Cop millage on ballot

By Carolyn Walker

Once again citizens are going to have the chance to vote on the Independence Township police millage issue.

Citing increased crime and insufficient police numbers in the township, Supervisor Frank Ronk requested at the Sept. 2 board meeting that the matter be placed on the November ballot.

He proposed that a 2-mill police increase for a three-year duration be considered. But after much discussion, the board agreed to a proposed 1.5-mill increase for three years. (1.5 mills are $1.50 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.)

Currently, the township levies just under 1 mill for police protection, which is contracted through the Oakland County Sheriff's Department. The .9 mill generates $256,800. If the 1.5 mills passes, coupled with the current rate it will generated about $750,000 for police services.

According to Ronk, a citizens' group is studying police protection alternatives for the township and a second study group is planned by the township itself.

Estimates are that it will take over two years for the studies to be completed, he said, explaining why he proposed a millage increase that would last only three years.

". . . to cover the interim period and give us some relief, if it be the wishes of the people," Ronk said.

After the three years, the rates could be re-voted based on the studies' results, he said.

Currently there are six deputies patrolling the township on three shifts seven days a week, often a single deputy at a time. Estimates put the township population at 24,000 residents.

Ronk's original proposal would have financed an additional eight deputies, with the possibility that one would work in the schools.

The millage request approved by the board was reached after several comments by Trustee Dale Stuart and could permit seven to nine more deputies.

"There is no question that we need something. I have a very large concern for what we're going for," he said, adding that he feared the increase would be defeated because it would appear as too much too fast.

"We have to have some kind of relief. I'm just concerned that we'll end up losing it again," he said.

"Anything that we do is a plus," Ronk agreed.

In 1984, a 15-year, .5-mill increase was defeated by the voters.

The decision to place the matter on the November ballot was unanimous. Present in addition to Ronk, Stuart and Holman were Treasurer John Lutz and trustees Daniel Travis, Carol Balzarini and William Vandermark.

Taxes to be hiked

By Carolyn Walker

Several funds in Independence Township, such as the police, fire and general funds, are feeling a financial crunch, according to Clerk Richard Holman.

As a result, the township board is considering the establishment of a new millage rates at an overall increase of .692 over last year's.

"What we're looking at, is to levy what we can by law," Holman said following the Sept. 2 board meeting.

The allowable rates have already been approved by a vote of the people, or in the case of the general fund established by the state, but have previously not been levied to the maximum.

In 1985, 1.1998 mills were levied for the general fund, while the state permits as much as 1.41 mills, which the township will seek for 1986.

The result will be an increase the total millage rate from 5.5242 in 1985 to 6.1827 (or $6.18 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation) in 1986.

As proposed, the rates for the general fund, fire, and police funds would slightly increase; while the safety path and sanitary sewer rates would be slightly lowered.

Because of the Truth in Taxation law, a public hearing must be conducted before the adjustment can take place.

A hearing has been scheduled Sept. 16 at the township hall annex off Main Street at 7:30 p.m. Members of the public are encouraged to attend and express their views.

Tax bills go out in December.

Teachers' contract wins unanimous approval

By Kathy Greenfield

It took just minutes for the Clarkston Board of Education to unanimously ratify the teachers' contract Monday night, and board member Mary Jane Chaustowich spent most of that time qualifying her vote.

"In the eight years I've been on the Clarkston school board, I have never qualified a vote that I have made," she said. "But tonight, I feel I have to qualify a vote."

Chaustowich went on to say she was unhappy with portions of the contract concerning curriculum implementation and she voiced displeasure with contract language. Some teachers would benefit more than others, she added, and she mentioned "hidden costs."

Before casting her "yes" vote with reservations, she said she believed it would be worse for the district not to ratify the contract than to ratify it.

Following the meeting, the district's chief negotiator Conrad Bruce and Clarkston Education Association (CEA) President Allen Bartlett and CEA chief negotiator Thomas Brown outlined the contract highlights. The CEA represents the district's 292 teachers.

The contract includes a 6 percent wage increase for each of the three years the contract covers (from Aug. 25, 1986, through Aug. 26, 1989).

The raises will be determined during the first two years using the 11th pay step as a base, by adding 6 percent of that figure to steps one through 10. The decision was made in order to make the district competitive when hiring new teachers, said Bartlett and Brown.

Roughly half of the district's teachers hold bachelor's degrees and half hold master's degrees or higher.

During the contract's first year, the pay range for teachers with bachelors' degrees and 15 or fewer years of longevity will be $17,114 to $31,752 and with masters' degrees $18,731 to $35,714; the second year, $19,019 to $33,657 and $20,874 to $37,857; and the third year, $20,160 to $35,676 and $22,126 and $40,128.

Longevity increases for the contract's two remaining steps, 16-20 years and 21 years and over, will be range from about $1,000 to $1,500 a year.

Other highlights include:

•Beginning in the 1987-88 school year, elementary school pupils eat lunch in the multipurpose rooms with two teachers supervising on a rotational basis.

•Beginning in the 1988-89 school year, high school teachers will teach five classes a day instead of six. Teachers in secondary schools will also have lower numbers of pupils beginning in '88-89, down from the present 180 for both to 170 for junior high and 150 for high school.

•Staff development was added with provisions for required or requested classes by the district. If requested, the district will cover tuition and fees, mileage, meals and all other incidental expenses. If required, the district will cover all incidental fees and pay the teacher an hourly wage. The district also agreed to set aside $15,000 a year for teacher-requested job-related classes, which must be approved by the board, to pay 50 percent of tuition costs.

•Teachers transferred into seventh- or eighth-grade teaching positions must now have a major or minor in the field they will be teaching plus some experience in the grade level in the last five years or they must take at least 12 hours of coursework in the subject the first year and 18 hours within three years. The change was made because every elementary and secondary teacher is certified to teach all subjects in seventh and eighth grades.

•Coaches for girls' team sports will now be paid at the same rate as boys' coaches. In addition, qualifications for coaches will be put into writing and coaches will be evaluated yearly by the athletic director.

Dam takeover

The Mill Pond dam will be fixed at last, decided the Clarkston Village Council.

Because dam owner Ed Adler hasn't fixed it yet, the council plans to sue for right of entry, pay for dam repairs and settle the costs with Adler at a later date, if Adler doesn't reply to its letter within two weeks.

The dam broke earlier this summer, and the council asked Adler to fix it several times. At the July 28 meeting, they gave Adler an Aug. 31 deadline.

At the time of the Sept. 8 meeting, they had not heard from him. With little discussion, council members voted unanimously to have village attorney John Steckling file suit if Adler doesn't reply to their letter within two weeks.

Dixie widening to start in spring

By Chris Gerbasi

After nearly three years in the works, the Michigan Department of Transportation is now accepting bids for the first three projects to improve Dixie Highway in Oakland County.

Congressman Bob Carr (D-East Lansing) said last week that work on eight miles of the highway would begin next spring and possibly sooner.

"If the winning contractor has the equipment and personnel available, they can start right away," said Carr. "My guess and hope is that some steps can be made this year yet."

The improvements include widening Dixie to five lanes from I-75 southeast to Telegraph Road. All previously widened sections will be resurfaced. There will also be additional drainage structures installed along with curbs and gutters.

The first project extends from Hatchery Road southeast 2.4 miles to Telegraph Road and also includes two-tenths mile of work on Oakland Avenue, southeast from Telegraph Road. The estimated cost is $4.3 million with work scheduled for completion in the fall of 1987.

The northern section of the project, scheduled to begin in 1987, begins north of I-75 and runs southeast for 2.5 miles to north of M-15. The estimated cost is $2.9 million.

The middle section of the improvement extends from Maybee Road southeast for three miles to Signet Road. It is scheduled to start in 1988 and cost $4 million.

Carr secured a $12 million special federal appropriation working through the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Transportation.

He said plans began in early 1984 when he received a petition with 2,000 signatures asking for Dixie improvements. State highway condemnation meetings dragged on.

"All I know is one or two properties are not settling," said Carr. "It's not a question of getting the land, but what amount of money they will get.

"State highway condemnation meetings are much more difficult than local county roads," he said. "There's a lot of discussion. But they've been surveying for the last two years and utilities are being moved right now."

A state highway provision states that all properties must be resolved before any work can begin, but the Federal Highway Authority has waived that provision so work can get under way.

"Next spring and summer the highway is going to be torn up in a major way," Carr said. "The people will be inconvenienced, but I think that everybody agrees that it needs to be done and they'll cope with it."

7 wells are contaminated

By Carolyn Walker

Toxic gas contamination has been found in seven individual wells near the southern end of Independence Township.

According to George Anderson, director of the township's department of public works, the contamination was discovered some six months ago after a resident reported a gasoline taste and odor to his drinking water.

At the township's request, the health department began testing nearby wells, Anderson said, adding that the contamination is not considered life-threatening.

There have been no associated illnesses reported, he said, and free drinking water has been distributed to the affected families.

Two contaminated wells are located on Sashabaw Road with two on Pinedale Road. And one contaminated well each is located on Scammel, Clinton and Elmdale roads.

Neighboring wells are not contaminated, Anderson said.

Underground gasoline storage tanks at service stations along Sashabaw are suspected as the source of the contamination, but none has as yet been confirmed, said Supervisor Frank Ronk.

As a result of the contamination, the Department of Natural Resources has agreed to extend the township's municipal well system to the affected areas, Anderson said.

The extension and cleanup will be paid for by the "super fund" at the DNR and, in financial terms, will amount to a benefit of some $138,000 for the township.

The super fund is made available through the Michigan Environmental Response Act.

There is to be no cost to the township or residents, according to Anderson, who said he hopes construction will be done by Christmas.

On Sept. 2, the township board voted to sign a contract with the DNR for the municipal water extension following the contract's review by attorney Gerald Fisher.

ATV crackdown

Calling the use of off-the-road vehicles "generally a problem" in Independence Township, attorney Gerald Fisher proposed amending the trespassing ordinance last week.

His suggestion, which was approved unanimously in a first reading by the township board Sept. 2, makes an exception to the current rule of warning trespassers.

The ordinance presently requires a violator to be warned before a citation can be issued, Fisher said.

Warning signs have been put up around the township, especially at the Double D ranch where vehicles are most frequently used, only to be torn down by vandals, he said.

The amendment would permit police to issue citations without a warning first and would apply only to all-terrain vehicles.

The warning rule would stay in effect for other violators.

"Essentially, this makes an exception to the warning requirement (for vehicles)," Fisher told the board.

The amendment must be published and voted on a second time before it can be enacted.

The interest rate instigation

Sales brisk at local auto shops

By Chris Gerbasi

Oh, what a feeling for car buyers.

When General Motors lowered its finance rates to 2.9 percent two weeks ago, it sent customers rushing to dealers to look at 1986 cars.

Chrysler and Ford followed suit with 2.9 percent financing for 36 months and AMC went to 0 percent for 24 months last week, a first in the car industry.

The rates came about because of GM's overabundance of '86 cars in stock. It's made for great business for dealers and great deals for customers.

"It's been an absolute circus since Thursday," said Randy Hosler of Hosler Pontiac last week.

Hosler's office sold 93 cars during the first week of the low rates. A typical week would be 30 sales.

"We can't handle all the people that come in," said Hosler. "The factory overbuilt. We were selling a lot of cars anyway; it's been a good year. But they were building more than we were selling."

Clarkston Motors, which carries Chrysler and AMC cars, has 2.4 percent rates and has experienced a similar surge in sales.

"It's increased sales 100 percent and traffic by about 300 percent," said sales manager Michael Kole.

"There was no glut at Chrysler or AMC, but you can't sit back."

"Both Bowman (Chevrolet) and Hosler had an extraordinary number of cars sitting on their property," said Kole. "It helps them more than it helps us, but we don't mind the extra business. You can't say no to that."

Bowman Chevrolet had 200 to 300 cars on its lot, according to sales representative Christopher Masterson.

"Business has been very brisk," Masterson said. "We've been selling 30 to 40 cars and trucks a day. It's (the rates) definitely motivating. These are the lowest the rates have ever been."

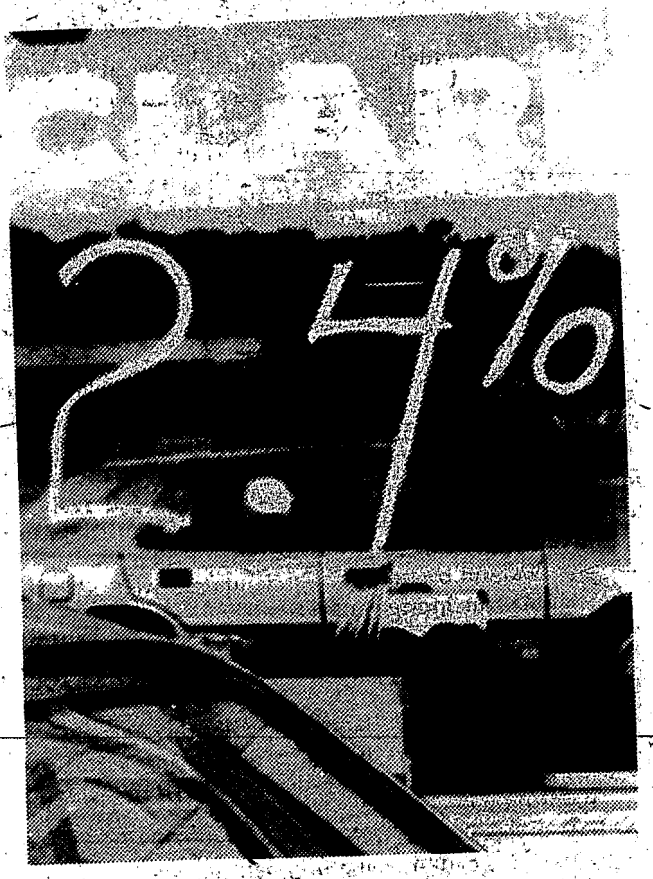
The onrush of customers has meant later closing times at the dealerships and extra hours for the salesmen, but nobody seems to mind as long as cars are selling.

The rates are good for all '86 models with few exceptions and on some '87 models. The rates are in effect until Oct. 8 and it's hard to say whether consumers will remain in a buying mood.

"There will still be interest for '87 cars," said Masterson. "It won't be the same interest rate, but it'll be pretty fair."

"It slows down for a while because you're always stealing business," said Hosler.

For now, cars are a steal for consumers.



What a deal for prospective car buyers, 2.4 percent financing. Rates dropped at all the area dealerships two weeks ago touched off a wave of business.

Man pleads not guilty in stabbing

A plea of not guilty has been entered on behalf of Michael McDowell on his charge of assault with intent to commit murder.

McDowell, 30, of Independence Township, stood mute at Monday's hearing in Oakland County Circuit Court. He is charged with injuring Jesse Eversole with a knife in an incident Aug. 22 in Independence Township.

McDowell's bond was set at $60,000 in a preliminary hearing last month. His defense moved Monday to reduce the bond. Judge Norman Lippitt did not reduce the bond, but added a 10 percent provision to it which enables McDowell to pay 10 percent of the bond to get out of jail.

A trial date has not been set.

New fire truck to be custom-built

A new pumper truck has been requested by the Independence Township Fire Department.

Chief Dale Bailey asked the township board to allow him to seek bids for a new pumper and was authorized to do so at the Sept. 2 meeting.

In making his request, Bailey said he would like a custom-built truck because they are more durable.

General Motors and Ford have discontinued their cab-forward design, he said, adding that the major American motor companies have recently started having their pumpers constructed in foreign countries.

"I don't want to be the guinea pig," Bailey said, emphasizing the importance of durability and explaining why he doesn't want to purchase a foreign-built model.

Bailey said he expects the bidding responses by October with a year's wait for the new truck's arrival.

Delbridge tribute

As you know by now, Ken Delbridge has left.

He resigned as director of the township's combined building and planning departments last week. This will help make way for so-called "progress," starting with the long sought (but unnecessary) split of those two departments.

Twice, Ken Delbridge served the community in this post.

More importantly, his ability to be tough but reasonable combined with concern for this community's special character made him an important factor in the preservation of that character.

His instincts about people and his disarming frankness helped guide us through some crucial moments in the development of the township.

For all this and more, he will be missed. An important cog in our community has been removed and we must take up the slack with vigilance and energy.

Neil E. Wallace, Chairman
Independence Township Planning Commission

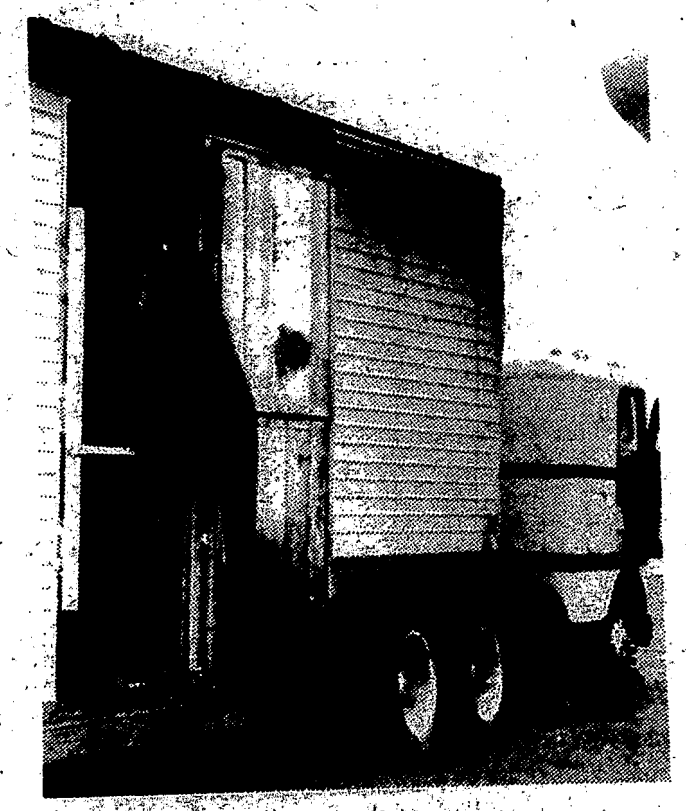
Gentle beasts

Kathy Greenfield

The news release said elephants were going to help erect the 200-foot circus tent at about 7 a.m. at Springfield Oaks County Park.

My eyes don't focus well at that hour, but what the heck, thought I, and I motored out to the site through the early morning dew.

Some two-and-one-half hours later, the elephants did, indeed, hoist the poles to raise the huge blue and white striped tent.



Max the puppy is dwarfed by the tire and by Irene the elephant, his circus companion.

In the interim, I shivered in the cool morning air, got rained on—and made friends with Max.

At first, there was virtually no sign of the elephants. There were plenty of men, between 25 and 30, working on the tent preliminaries, which included lugging poles off a truck, spreading tent pieces in the proper locations and using a truck that sounded like a well-driller to pound in the stakes.

The first animal I saw was a dog—somebody's pet apparently. Then I watched a horse and a donkey eat breakfast under a trailer awning.

A huge batch of dogs, had to be the dog act, scampered out the door of another large trailer and were later briefly confined to a small makeshift fenced area. When the rain got heavy, they went inside and I sat in my car.

I was standing outside when a large truck pulled closer to the tent area. Memories of many moments spent watching elephants at the Detroit Zoo came rushing back, and I said, "They must be inside, because it smells like elephants."

The side door was opened out popped an elephant's trunk, which snatched up a bunch of grass. "You won't get too close, will you?" asked the man who opened the door. No problem.

Stakes, chains, rakes and elephant harnesses appeared. The female elephants, Irene and Kelly, stepped out, and each automatically raised their mighty legs for chains.

The male elephant, Stoney, was rocking back and forth in another trailer that had pulled up alongside, but once outside he, too, was the epitome of good behavior.

Meanwhile, I met Max. The husky puppy belonged to Dave Belanger, an elephant handler. Max was yipping, so I investigated and discovered he had gone the wrong way around the huge tire on the truck.

As puppies do, he couldn't figure out how to unwind and he could only move in inches. I unraveled him and he hugged me.

I also spent a great deal of time watching Belanger care for the elephants. They followed his commands without hesitation. The massive chains didn't seem to make sense for such gentle beasts, so I asked him why such tame animals were chained.

"I don't believe in the word tame, they're trained," he said, noting that they would, given the opportunity, wander off, not to mention their other possible actions: "They'll slap you, knock you down, step on you."

Belanger said he'd worked five years with the circus as an elephant handler, so I believed him—and asked more questions.

The female Asian elephants, age 19, weigh some 6,000 pounds apiece. The male, age 13, tips the scale at 6,500 pounds. Their lifespan is 50 to 70 years.

"They're amazing," said Belanger. "They're very smart. They're like 7-year-old kids with an IQ of 250."

The elephant handler went on to say that the elephants were what kept him with the circus. A mechanic by trade, his work with the circus began in that profession but days later, he began working with the elephants.

The elephants seemed to like their handler. Max hugged him, too. I decided that a circus must be a wonderful place for a person who truly loves animals.

Belanger put it in more macho terminology.

"I like being able to handle something so big," he said.

I watched two of the elephants hoist the poles and raise the tent. The commands were simple: "Move, Kelly, move!" "OK, back up." The routine was smooth, and it was impressive to think the tent that took all morning to put up would come down almost immediately, for two shows were planned that night before it was on to the next stop for The Great American Circus from Sarasota, Fla.

Someday, Belanger said, he would like to own elephants of his own and possibly become a trainer. For now, he moves props during the elephant act, oversees elephant rides before the shows and simply takes good care of them.

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

Here's my shopping list of thoughts, accumulated while waiting for something to take my mind off fishing . . . which is hard to do. I missed opening bass season in June, missed walleye fishing on the river, and endured brother Dair's tales of fishing every day of his retired life.

Anyway: If backers of bike paths started calling them sidewalks I wonder if the opposition would be so vociferous? Why did they start calling them bike paths anyway?

Either by ordinance or design, earth berms frequently separate roads from projects. Since most of them I see are dead grass this time of year, why not plant the berms with a low growing, always green clover?

Daughter Susan, who always wants clothes for her birthday, wished for the same last month. Unlike the other females in our family, Susan is a delight to buy for. Size eight is perfect, everything looks good on her tall, slender body, and she never takes anything back.

It seems to me there ought to be a chemical or plastic that can be put under hard surfaced roads and walks to stop weeds from coming up through the cracks.

My mother, and probably yours too, was obsessed with ears. "You could plant potatoes behind your ears," mother would scold. Virginia Roberts told me a mother's sayings she remembers was, when a child didn't hear, "You got a banana in your ear?"

I have a fear of heights. Looking out a second story window brings shrinking pains in my lower body. Yet, looking down from an airplane at 35,000 feet leaves no sensation. Why is that, doctor?

When school boards, village councils, etc are looking for people to serve on study committees, why don't they first look to past members, those who have already invented the wheel?

The average man has 66 pounds of muscle, 40 pounds of bone and 3 and a quarter pounds of brains. That explains a lot of things.

Mother Nature is a wonderful woman, but she's no acrobat. She can't jump from summer to winter without a fall or from winter to summer without a spring.

Watching "48 Hours to Crack" on CBS last Tuesday night was scary. For a while I figured everyone was a drug addict and/or a pusher, that the cops and courts either were involved in drugs or didn't care, and whoever isn't on drugs is a target for those who are. The story on crack reminded me of reading a Buffalo, NY newspaper in June that said Detroit was the second leading provider of the drug. The story made the Detroit papers three days later.

When people go to public meetings to plea for street lights, stop signs and speed limits, usually someone will ask, "Are you going to wait until somebody is killed?" Where's the cry over released prisoners due to overcrowded jails?

Wonder if the walleye will be hitting in Brevort Lake this fall?

Praise for speed

I would like to thank the Independence Township firefighters, the Oakland County Sheriffs and Fleet Ambulance for their speedy arrival last week in a medical emergency.

They were so nice. I think it's just a good addition to the community to have them.

Are we headed down?

It is said if you put a dozen economists in a room you'll have 12 different opinions on the economy.

Too, just about anytime there are good and bad signs for the economy of this state and country.

Right now Michigan's job rate is up, Troy based K mart is having record sales, office and industrial growth in southeast Michigan is phenomenal, and consumer confidence is surveyed to be high through 1987.

Yet, General Motors has ordered a 25 percent reduction in workstaff by 1990, auto dealers predict dormant sales of 1987 models following the cutrate interest rates on 1986 cars, and there are major plant closings in Pontiac, Flint and Saginaw.

And regardless of the State Commerce Dept campaigns, the automobile business IS southeast Michigan's economy.

More downward indicators are cast by the oil industry, steel industry, farming, and tax reform. All have affected the economy . . . and much more so in states away from the Great Lakes.

With Houston, Texas half vacant, with Youngstown, Ohio boarded up, with banks auctioning farms, and with investors uncertain of what the new tax bill contains . . . car sales will slow, and Michigan will too.

Another thing we believe will slow car sales is the rapid increase in the number of retirees. In a few years this group will be the largest age catagory. They drive less, and keep cars longer. (GM is offering retirement packages to workers 53 years old.)

We mentioned economic troubles in other parts of the country, and those problems are emphasised by the Federal Reserve's actions over the past several months in continually lowering the prime interest rate.

Chairman Volker says the whole idea is to stimulate an ailing economy. It doesn't seem to be working.

It is this continuing slowness that makes us fearful of late 1986 and 1987.

Just as Michigan and the mid-west's depression that started in the spring of 1979 lead to a country-wide recession through 1984, we feel the economic downturn in other parts of the United States will catch up to Michigan. JAS

'If it Fitz . . .'

Lessons in pleading not guilty

Jim Fitzgerald

My friend Ralph asked why I hadn't written anything about how unfair it is that almost everyone except Tony Franco is allowed to engage in fraudulent stock-market activities.

I said I was too busy worrying about whether dozens of Michigan communities will be required to return the goodwill that William Lucas gave them in 1985.

Anthony M. (Tony) Franco is the owner of Michigan's largest public relations firm. William Lucas, of course, is Michigan's Republican candidate for governor and Wayne County's executive in charge of lame ducks. I'm putting both men in the same column because they were involved in remarkably similar incidents.

●Franco was accused by a federal agency of trying to make a quick $27,000 profit in the stock market by violating federal laws against trading on the basis of "insider" information. Although not admitting any wrongdoing, Franco consented to a court order barring him from any fraudulent stock-market activity in the future. He said he did this "rather than go through the long and expensive and arduous process of litigation." He also resigned as president of the Public Relations Society of America, saying he was stepping down for the good of the organization.

●Lucas was accused by the state of trying to avoid campaign spending limits by claiming to be a goodwill ambassador in 1985 when he was actually a candidate for governor. Although not admitting any wrongdoing, Lucas consented to repay $190,000 in question. "We're not admitting, we're settling," Lucas said.

"How about what the SEC (U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission) did to Franco?" my friend Ralph said. "They got him to consent to a court order barring him from further violations of securities laws. He didn't admit doing anything wrong but agreed to stop doing it. That's funny.

"But what about the millions of people who haven't officially agreed to not commit stock fraud? Does that mean it's OK for them to do it? If an accused bank robber were freed because he didn't confess he did it but promised never to do it again, does that mean it's legal for the rest of us to rob banks because we never promised we wouldn't?"

Ralph was being facetious. I think. I explained to him that many Wall Street insiders think there's nothing wrong with using inside information to make a quick million bucks, because so many insiders do it. Raymond Cox, assistant professor of finance at Central Michigan University, said in the Detroit News Friday: "I think it happens so much that business looks at it as being par for the course... You know that some people are privy to insider knowledge and are going to take advantage of it."

"Yeah, but Franco is one of the best known public relations executives in the country, and he apparently got his inside information while doing public relations work for a client," Ralph said. "Isn't that poor public relations for the public relations business?"

Only if you get caught with your hand in the privy.

As for William Lucas, I was one of many who fell down laughing when he insisted he wasn't campaigning for governor in 1985. He said he wasn't a candidate until Feb. 12, 1986. But last week, he conceded he was a candidate as of July 26, 1985.

Which brings up an interesting question. Lucas originally claimed he was only a goodwill ambassador for Wayne County while traveling the state in 1985. Now that he's conceded otherwise, should the recipients of goodwill spread under questionable circumstances be required to return it?

Finally, there is this moral for Labor Day. People who labor while wearing white collars are most likely to avoid litigation by not admitting they did wrong and promising to never do it again.

The dragon sleeps

Carolyn Walker

It is hard to believe that it has been 10 years since the dragon roared.

Ten years since its fearsome fire struggled to destroy my mother. It did not succeed.

Oh, it took from my mother her ability to do headstands, all right.

Following her battle with the dragon, she lingered awhile, stunned by its blow, her memory, her confidence shaken. But only temporarily.

It could not conquer her spirit. She fought to win.

It was the September of America's bicentennial year. Americans were celebrating. Mother was attacking life as she had always done: dancing, traveling, living life to its fullest.

Then the dragon came unexpectedly, quickly on a Sunday afternoon. It came in the form of a searing, violent headache—a brain aneurysm.

I had seen the dragon take people before. First a headache, followed swiftly by a coma and then death.

For some reason, the dragon played with mother for a while, giving her time to plan her strategy. It teased her. A headache. A misdiagnosis. A valid diagnosis. A lingering cold. Surgery. A hemorrhage. A relapse.

We, her family, gathered around to support her. We talked to doctors. She could die. She could live. She could become an invalid who would know no one, regardless of the path she chose, they said.

There was no easy answer. No guarantee. No decision we could make for her.

She opted for surgery. It offered the best hope.

We walked her quietly to the surgery room doors, she on a hospital bed with only the dragon and strangers to keep her company beyond them.

What to say? Not be good. Not take care. Not goodbye.

She flashed us the OK sign with her thumb and first finger in a circle, other fingers raised in a salute to life.

We waited a long day while the dragon and mother fought, wondering, praying.

In the operating room, the doctors struggled to clip the aneurysm. Instead, the aneurysm broke in a bloody hemorrhage.

Like boys who plug holes in their bicycle tires with gum, the doctors turned to glue, an unlikely miracle of modern medicine. With God's help, it could do what the clip could not: hold fast to the dragon in her head.

After the battle, mother slept, weakened. We watched her, fed her, soothed her. It was all we could do.

There she lay for a while, wrapped in a head bandage, her thick hair shaved from one side, her eyes just a little off, her arms limp. A repetition, repetition, repetition in her talk.

She was the same mother who had climbed through bathroom windows, boogied with The Beatles, mispredicted changes in the weather, trod the couch for lost treasures.

Yes, the same mother who had entertained us as children with headstands on the living room floor. The one who had shown us how to run sack races.

Who, in truth, had shown us how to live and, courageously, had shown us how to face death.

She met it. She simply met it. And it turned away.

The dragon is not gone, merely glued. It does not raise its ugly head. The dragon sleeps.

Mother lives.

She loves her job—and it shows

By Julie Campe

In all of Janet Wasik's 22 years of married life with Ed, they've lived in Independence Township. They live on Wealthy Street which is pretty close to the Village of Clarkston. That may explain Janet's string of jobs in village businesses in recent years, jobs that she has enjoyed.

Janet Wasik enjoys her work at Coach's Corner.

She now works at Coach's Corner on Main Street doing what she absolutely loves, she says.

"I enjoy people, just the different personalities, I guess. People are just fun," she says. "I try to figure out the cranky ones and have fun with the nice ones."

At the sporting goods store, she stocks and waits on customers, and runs the cash register. The atmosphere suits her well because one of her favorite hobbies is watching sporting events. She also likes golfing with her husband and taking evening walks.

And she appreciates her co-workers.

"The people I work with are great. I can't work anyplace if there's not a sense of humor there," she says.

Owner David McNeven likewise appreciates Janet's work.

"She's pleasant to be around," he says. "She works good. She works good with people. . . . She's always here on time, and I like her as a person. She makes the time go faster because she's friendly to be around."

Newport condominiums put on hold—again

By Carolyn Walker

The Newport condominium project by developers Frank Walker and William Hahn has faced another delay.

The two men appeared at a special Independence Township Planning Commission meeting Sept. 4 to request a Planned Unit Development (PUD) zoning change for their 28-unit project off Clarkston Road.

As it was in August, the request was tabled, this time because commissioners could not find among their piles of papers a single, complete final site plan.

The vote to table came after nearly two hours of discussion in an effort to fine-tune the plans.

The condominium site, across from Clintonwood Park, was recently rezoned by the township board to single family dwelling status.

That zoning permits an additional one-unit-per-acre when it accompanies a PUD.

PUD permits a variety of uses on a single parcel of land.

At the meeting, the developers and commissioners discussed several concerns about the project including an alternative to a central water system, changes in some landscaping trees, and passing and left-turn lanes.

The commission read a letter from Fire Marshall Gar Wilson in which the fire department agreed to waive the need for a central water system in lieu of a retention pond with a dry hydrant for fire fighting.

Walker and Hahn propose four individual wells to service the residents in place of a central water system.

"The site plan has undergone a lot of improvement," said commissioner John Gray, who voiced concern about traffic and the need for the passing lanes.

Most of the commissioners agreed with him, except Carol Balzarini, who said she was not in favor of the project. "I don't believe this project is appropriate for PUD design," she said.

Ultimately, the rezoning decision must be made by the township board upon the recommendation of the planning commission.

Because they wanted to present what Vice Chairman Holly Stephens called "perfect plans" to the township board, the commissioners voted to table the issue.

In order to be on the Sept. 25 agenda, the developers must present a set of final site plans by Sept. 8 to the building department.

Those plans must address changes of trees in the buffer, the exact location of a gazebo, fencing around the retention pond that is proposed to house the dry hydrant, and plans for the left passing lane.

Walker and Hahn would not comment on the matter after the meeting.

Voting to table were Stephens, Balzarini, Gray, Brent Bair, Joseph Figa and Betty Jo Fussman.

Chairman Neil Wallace abstained because he is involved in other litigation with Walker.

Nine members for DDA board

Following its recent decision to create a Downtown Development Authority along the business district of Dixie Highway, the Independence Township Board has agreed to appoint nine members to a DDA board.

Seven of the nine members were approved at the Sept. 2 board meeting.

By law, one member must be the township supervisor, who is currently Frank Ronk.

Among the nine, there must also be members appointed from the Waterford and Clarkston school districts. Those names have not been selected as yet.

Other approved members will be businessmen John Bowman, owner of Bowman Chevrolet; Dick Ayres, owner of Mr. G's hair salon; Forrest Milzow, developer of the Northcrest condominiums; and Del Lohff, owner of Kieft engineering; as well as two residents of the district, Gerald Darnell of Northcrest condominiums and Denise Schons, branch manager of Pontiac State Bank's Dixie Highway office.

The DDA, which captures increased revenue for improvements within the district, was approved last month.

Possible improvements to the district are sewer extensions and landscaping modifications.

Man attempts to rob the Knob

A 23-year-old South Lyon man was arrested and charged with larceny after trying to run off with $1,100 from a Pine Knob concession stand Sept. 3.

The man walked into a concession area where employees were counting money at about 11:30 p.m., according to Lt. Glenn Watson of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

He grabbed a bag filled with money and took off, but was nabbed by Pine Knob security and county deputies, said Watson.

He had previously scored a hat trick in a 3-2 semifinal win over Ann Arbor Greenhills and another three goals in a first-round 5-0 triumph over Genesee Christian.

Andy Bull had four assists and goalie Shannon Bullock recorded the shutout over Genesee.

Eagles 3, Pontiac Catholic 2

Aug. 29—Springfield Christian wins the Oakland Christian Invitational with the win over Pontiac Catholic. Adams and Matt Montgomery each get a goal and an assist. The Eagles had previously downed Fairlane Christian, 4-3 in overtime in the first round. Adams had yet another hat trick in that game.

SCA Junior Varsity
Eagles 2, Novi Christian 0

Sept. 5—The SCA JV team shuts out Novi Christian's varsity squad and the junior high team wins by the same score over Bethany Christian in its season-opener.

Wolves break out to 34-21 win

Turner rushes for 244 yards in season debut

Sports

By Chris Gerbasi

Stacy Turner wears No. 1 on his Clarkston football jersey and it was appropriate last Friday night.

He was the number one player on the field, running for 244 yards and two touchdowns as the Wolves overpowered Romeo, 34-21, in the high school season opener.

Turner scored on runs of 50 and 81 yards behind the Clarkston offensive front, which dominated the line of scrimmage.

After the game, Turner thanked his teammates on behalf of himself and junior fullback Mike Gilbert, who also enjoyed a big game.

"We were awesome tonight, no question," said Turner. "The front line was prime. All year you can expect that. We're underrated and we've got a lot of people to wake up."

The Wolves had to wake up a little themselves in the second quarter.

The Bulldogs, 1-8 last season, got on the board first on a one-yard sneak by quarterback Mike Ganfield late in the first quarter.

Clarkston came right back to start the second when Turner burst through the right side of the line for his 50-yard touchdown.

But on the ensuing kickoff, Jeff Cohoon picked up the ball at his own two, broke up the middle and didn't stop until the end zone for a 98-yard return.

"The special teams are very, very important," said Wolve coach Walt Wyniemko. "Any time you give up six points like that right away, it's a big play and you've got to be able to stop those things."

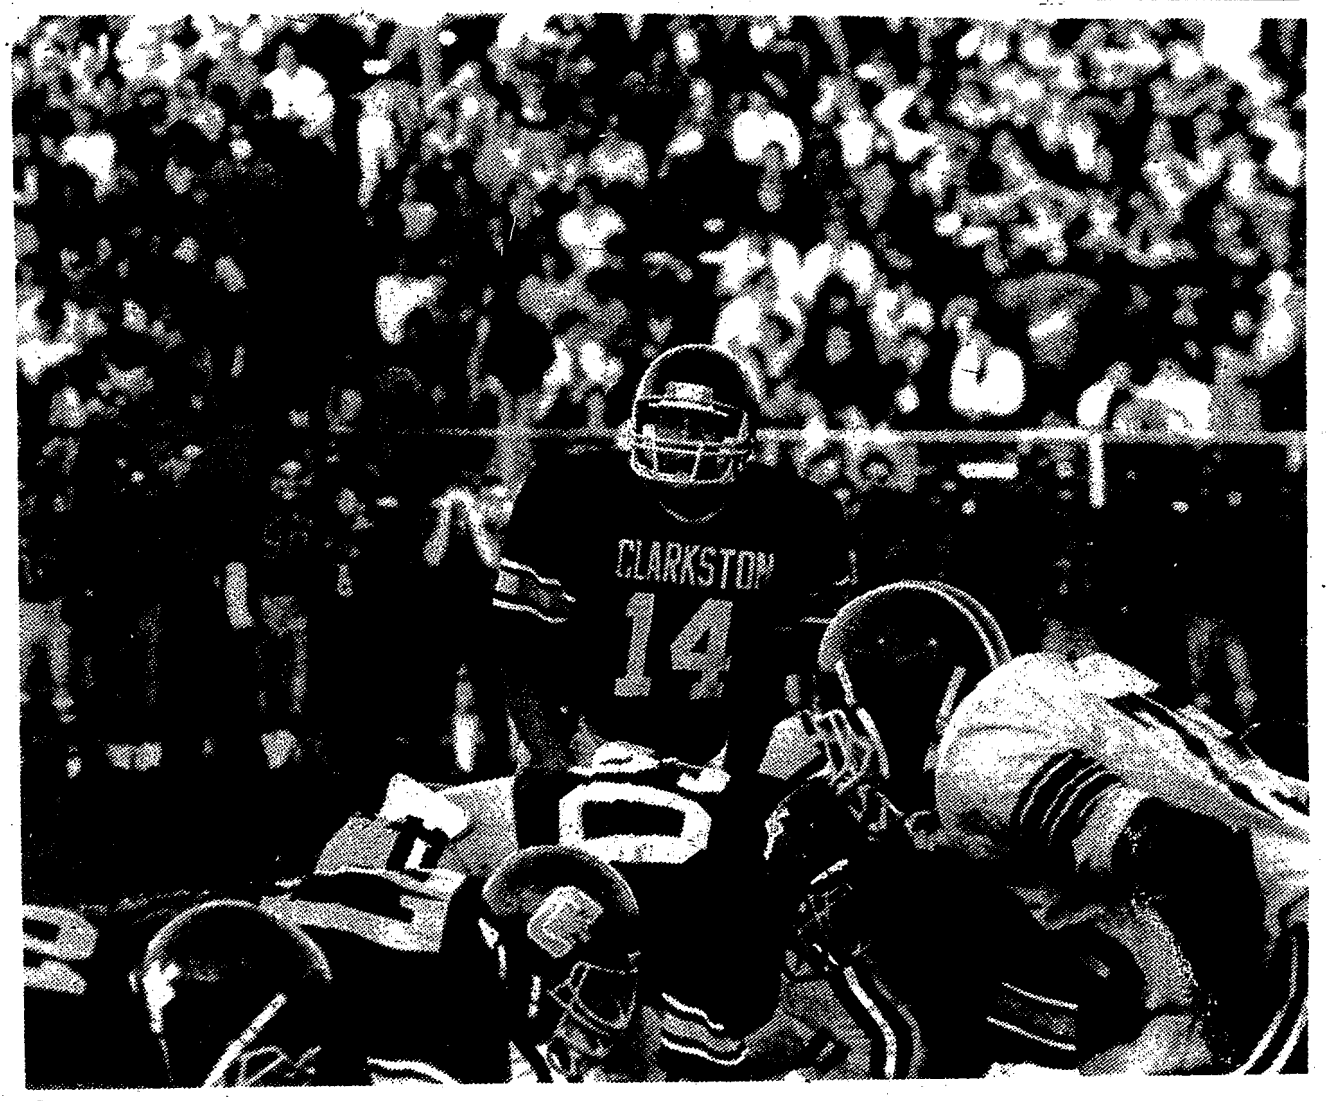
It took Clarkston just four minutes to tie the game again at 14. The Wolves did it mostly on the ground, but a 23-yard pass from Josh Newblatt to Jim Hall highlighted the drive.

Newblatt then kept the ball himself for a four-yard scoring run. He was starting his first game as a varsity quarterback.

"I've been waiting a long time for that—since I was a little kid," said Newblatt. "I was nervous. In warmups, I was going too quick."

"I'm comfortable with him (Newblatt)," Turner said. "I think the whole team's comfortable with him. He's a leader; he takes control."

Wolve running back Mike Gilbert slips through the Romeo defense last Friday night. Gilbert capped the Clarkston scoring with a 23-yard run.



Quarterback Josh Newblatt calls out the signals in his first varsity game last week as a full house looks on. Newblatt guided the Wolves to a 34-21 victory over Romeo to kick off the high school football season.

Following Newblatt's score, Turner ran for 81 yards to put Clarkston on top. The play started to the left, then Turner cut back to the middle and continued down the right sideline, eluding one final Bulldog near the 20-yard line.

The Wolves put the game away in the third quarter. They recovered a fumble at the Romeo 27 and then Turner slashed through the middle for 17 yards. Newblatt then hit receiver Dan Jokisch with a well-timed pass to the front corner of the end zone.

Clarkston got its final score on a fourth down and three play from Romeo's 23 midway through the fourth quarter. Gilbert went through a gaping hole up the middle for the touchdown.

The Bulldogs scored late on a 35-yard pass from Ganfield to Dave Sobek.

The Wolves outran Romeo 336 yards to 58. Newblatt didn't have to pass much, but was six-of-10 for 101 yards.

"We couldn't stay with them," said Bulldog coach Dennis Zbozen. "It wasn't that they stopped us, but us not being able to stop them."

"The offensive line did a heckuva job," said Wyniemko. "Josh and the whole offensive unit rose to the occasion. We are starting to generate some explosive power."

Most of that running power came from Turner.

"He needed it," said Newblatt. "He was gettin. down and he needed to get up. He needed a game li e that to get his confidence up."

If he lost it, it's back. Turner said he hopes to improve on the 244 yards.

Girls speed to two hoop wins

By Chris Gerbasi

If you blink you might miss Clarkston's girls basketball team.

The Wolves are fast. Real fast. And they've got some size. That adds up to potential.

Of course it's early, but Clarkston looked impressive in disposing of highly regarded Rochester last Thursday, 65-44.

That came on the heels of a 52-5 (no typo, that's a five) embarrassment over Holly Sept. 2 in the season opener for both teams.

Rochester was judged by some to be one of the best teams in the county this year. But the Wolves had little trouble against the Falcons, who were playing their first game of the season.

Clarkston got off to an 18-14 lead after one quarter and then exploded on the fast break in the second quarter.

Lisa Ladd continually beat the Falcons down court for layup opportunities. Ladd can flat out fly and she helped the Wolves break out to a 39-19 halftime lead.

"The running game is what we try to do," Ladd said. "Me and Michelle (Baker) are not real slow and she can run it, and Missy (Odell) and Michele (Wyniemko) and me fill the lanes."

Rochester never really got back in the game. The Falcons pulled to 56-42 with about three minutes left in the game, but got no closer.

"We weren't rated at all and I think we surprised ourselves and them," said Ladd.

Odell led the Wolves with 14 points and 14 rebounds. Senior Gina Houck, who played on the JV team last year, scored 12 and grabbed eight boards. Ladd had nine points and five steals and junior Ali Fedio also had nine points.

Rochester's Jennifer Golen, one of the county's top scorers last year, got off to a slow start but finished with 21 points. Kara Denyer added 12.

The Wolves shot 42 percent from the field and 45 percent from the line.

"It was a nice team game," said Clarkston coach Dave McDonald. "Missy, Michele and Gina all played well, the two guards played well and Ali Fedio had a great game off the bench.

"We're going to run and why not? We've got track stars out there," he said. "Plus I liked the defensive intensity. We were picking off a lot of passes."

"I was impressed with their quickness," said Rochester coach Tom Hawes. "They have the ability to get the ball down court right now."

The Wolves also had the size advantage. The Falcons lost their tallest player from last year's team, Pam Bankey, to graduation.

But the biggest mismatch on the court was not against Rochester, but against Holly. Clarkston towered over its opponent.

Holly did not score a point until just 1:36 was left in the first half. The halftime score was 20-4 and could have been more lopsided if the Wolves had been shooting well.

Holly could then score just one more point in the second half.

Wyniemko was high scorer with 10 points, Fedio had nine and Ladd, Houck and Jane Selent had six points each.

McInnis and Baert lead Wolve runners

Kathleen McInnis made it two-for-two with another cross country victory at the Milford Invitational Sept. 2.

McInnis won with a time of 19 minutes, 38 seconds to lead the Clarkston girls and Brian Baert ran what co-coach Mike Taylor called "probably the best race of his life" for the boys team.

Baert came in eighth out of about 60 runners with a 17.12 time.

"We're real pleased with that time," said Taylor. "Brian's really coming along and the rest (of the boys) are making progress. They all cut at least 40 seconds off their times from the last meet."

Sophomore Meredith Green, running in her first cross country race ever, finished eighth for the girls at 21.43.

Melissa Elfes was fifth at 20.41 and Kate Conlen ran seventh at 21.02. Junior Amy Rice was 23rd (25.03) and sophomore Nichole Chinavare was 29th (26.00).

Jim Hotary (19.15) and Jeff Funck (19.18) finished 25th and 26th, respectively, in the boys race. Rod Swanson was 40th at 20.26. Kevin Baert was 48th with a 21.28 time and Kent Hansen was 52nd at 22:14.

Milford, the defending county champs, won the girls team title in the five-team meet with 32 points. The Wolves were runners-up with 44 points.

Embarrass the Sportswriter

Volleyball is my game (?)

By Chris Gerbasi

Welcome to another episode of "Embarrass the Sportswriter."

Chalk one up for the scribe this month. Of course, I hid myself within a team sport, volleyball, where my shortcomings might be less noticeable.

I hadn't played volleyball since high school gym class and I always dreaded it then. Whenever I was in the back row, I hoped the ball wouldn't come my way, because I could never "bump" too well.

But last week my buddy Julie LePere, uh, Campe, needed someone to fill in on her co-rec team.

The Clarkston Village Clinic team has been decimated by injuries and defections, so I signed a one-game contract. Terms of the contract were not disclosed. A press conference was held where Campe announced my signing and then I held up a Village Clinic jersey in front of me.

Last week's match was a battle for second place against Wee Bee's. Both teams were 5-3 going into the match. Buffalo Athletic Club, 8-0, had already clinched first.

When I got to the white, sandy beaches of Clintonwood Park, we only had three players, myself, Julie and her husband, Chris. So we picked up a straggler named Rob and played four-on-four.

In this league, each team has to have two girls and if a ball is hit more than once a girl has to hit it over the net. Chris Campe was our designated girl and he did a fine job in that role.

For the first few points of the game, I mistimed some plays around the net and I thought it could be a long night. Wee Bee's jumped out to an easy 12-4 lead.

Then we got our game together, slowly chipped away at the lead and eventually won, 15-12. I didn't do much. I just let Julie, a former Clarkston High athlete, handle all the back row plays.

In the second game, we recruited a couple more players, but Wee Bee's lost Pat Haaseth to a finger injury. That seemed to take away some of their spirit and we won the game fairly easily.

We were playing best-of-five so I really wanted us to win the third game so we could blow off the last two games. I didn't want to have to exert myself any more than necessary.

I started getting into it in the third game. I was actually diving all over the sand and each time I did I wondered why I was doing this. But my competitive nature was coming out.

Unfortunately, we got cocky and lost the third game and then lost a tough 15-12 match. That set up the decisive fifth game.

We were back to four-on-four by then and it was getting dark. There was only light from the baseball diamond next to the courts and I couldn't see too well.

I was thinking that we were going to choke and blow a two-game lead and that somehow I'd screw up on the crucial point.

Instead we blew them out, 15-3, and I went home happy and sandy. I had sand in my eyes, hair, socks, shoes and shorts. And I was tired. But it was a good kind of tired.

Golfers open with victory

Clarkston's Gunnar Karlstrom got off to a fast start to lead the Wolves to a 156-161 victory over Waterford Mott in the boys golf opening match Sept. 4.

The senior shot a one-under par 35 at Spring Lake Country Club to capture team and match medalist honors.

Randy Nelson backed up Karlstrom with a 39, Mike Foyteck shot 40 and Tom Zeleznik had a 42, followed by Ken Mercier and Dave Larkin. Team scores are based on each team's top four golfers.

Phil Fugate was low man for the Corsairs with a two-over 38.

"Anything under 160 is pleasing," said Clarkston coach Jim Chamberlain. "Under par is better than what you'd expect, so I'm quite pleased with Karlstrom."

Randy Nelson swings into the new golf season last week. Nelson shot a 39 to help Clarkston to an opening win over Waterford Mott.

Week in review

Chris Gerbasi

(This week's column requires some reader participation).

Thoughts on the first week of fall sports:

Where are all the basketball fans?

The Clarkston girls team played twice at home last week and was lucky to draw about 100 people combined.

From covering girls games throughout Oakland County last year, I know, they rarely draw decent crowds, usually just the parents of players.

But why? Well, it's probably because the sport has no national following. There's no major professional league and few people could name any college players, so there's no automatic interest.

But that shouldn't stop Clarkston students from checking out this team. It's good basketball. I saw as many exciting girls games as boys games last season.

OK, so nobody missed anything at the 52-5 Holly game. But against Rochester, ranked as one of the top teams in the county, there were even fewer fans. I'm sure not even all the parents were there. The girls' competition was junior high football, which attracted a huge crowd by comparison.

The Wolves showed they could be an explosive team against Rochester. A team to watch. Literally.

*****

I neglected to find out Holly's nickname last week and it kind of bugs me when I don't know a team's nickname. What is it? The Hollies? The Shrubs? Do they even have a nickname?

Let's give Holly a nickname. Even if they have one, we could probably do better, so send in suggestions to the paper. The winning entrant will win a pair of season tickets to Holly girls basketball games.

*****

Stacy Turner seems like a guy who's going places. He went a lot of places last Friday against Romeo, carrying the football for 244 yards.

He's 16 years old, can play football, coached a baseball team this summer and sounds like he's got a good head on his shoulders.

He was smart enough to stand up in the locker-room and thank his offensive line after the game and it's always a good idea to keep your blockers happy.

When I was 16, I was still just trying to match my clothes.

*****

Where have you gone again, Sue Lovelady?

The former Wolve basketball standout popped up at the Holly game (this sounds like a gossip column), but I blew it by not asking her what she's up to these days.

Is she going to school? Is she playing hoops? Anyone with knowledge about the whereabouts of Sue Lovelady, please call in. The first correct caller will receive a pair of season tickets to Holly girls basketball games.

*****

Every time Kate Conlen runs in a cross country race, her name will appear in this paper, even if she doesn't want that. Kate is one of those students who's involved in a million things at once.

When approached at this season's first meet, Kate said, "I'm going to be in the paper again? Yesterday my Mom said, 'Kate, your name's in the paper again.' I had a teacher say to me, 'I saw your name this summer plastered all over the paper.'"

I suggested that she and her family should just relax, maybe watch some TV and not do anything newsworthy for a while. Maybe she could take in a Holly game.

*****

Two "Embarrass the Sportswriter" matches you'll never see are me challenging Lisa Ladd to a footrace or Gunnar Karlstrom to a round of golf.

Ladd, starting this season for the Wolves basketball team, is a blur. And she's not even the fastest player on the team. Coming off the bench is Jane Selent, who beat out Ladd in the Oakland County 100-meter dash.

Karlstrom shot a one-under par 35 in the first meet of the year at Spring Lake. I had thought about taking him on, but what would be the point? I'd just lose by about 25 shots.

I gave up golf when I started getting more distance throwing my clubs than hitting the ball.

*****

One final note: I presume my picture is back on this column after a week's absence. What I want to know is what happened last week?

Anyone with any knowledge leading to the arrest and conviction of the vandal who stole my picture will get, as a reward, two season tickets to Holly girls basketball games.

Planned soccer field confrontation goes awry

By Carolyn Walker

Eleven vocal residents left the Independence Township Board meeting last week with disappointment.

Their planned meeting with the board and parks and recreation director Timothy Doyle about soccer field conditions went awry when Doyle failed to show before the end of the meeting.

Angry, several residents said Doyle's no-show was typical of treatment they have been receiving since complaining to him about fields in the township.

"I think our requests are very minimal. It's getting very frustrating," said Carolyn Bielak, a parent. "We want some attention. We're real disappointed."

"I think we're being given a run-around," said Fiona Brown. "Do we have to come every time to get the grass cut?"

Resident Dave Davis agreed. "This is typical of the treatment we have had with the parks and recreation department," he said. "There are coaches, parents and players leaving in droves."

On Aug. 19, the parents presented a petition with 250 signatures listing inadequate maintenance of fields as a problem which has caused several player injuries.

They reiterated their stance at the Sept, 2 meeting.

"Sometimes the best laid plans to get information go awry," responded Trustee Dale Stuart. "We're not trying to ignore what you're saying. There's nothing been withheld from you that I'm aware of."

Before leaving the meeting, Bielak praised recreation department employee Cheryl Steckling for her cooperation in the matter.

Doyle, who was to present a field report, arrived just after the meeting was officially adjourned at 9:30 p.m. by Supervisor Frank Ronk.

He explained that he was late because he was returning from another meeting in Lansing at the time of the board meeting, which was unusually short.

He had notified Ronk that day that he had a conflict of schedules and knew he might not make it by the scheduled agenda time, he said.

When Doyle failed to show at the scheduled time, the matter was moved to the bottom of the agenda.

"I got in the parking lot when everybody was walking out the door," said Doyle.

Doyle went on to say he is concerned about the residents' complaints and quality of the fields.

He said he met with some soccer managers and parents at the Independence Township Senior Center on July 22 to discuss field conditions, and that interested persons were notified of the meeting by phone.

He also explained that the fields have experienced more severe problems this year than in the past because of heavy rainfall.

"We couldn't get over there and mow," he said. "We can't do anything about the weather."

According to Doyle, increased rain encourages rapid growth of the grass, which, in turn, hinders chalking of the fields.

The Bailey Lake field is especially boggy, said Doyle, who added that he is investigating the possibility of installing a soccer field in the recently purchased 80 acres adjacent to Clintonwood Park.

"To say we aren't concerned about the program . . . is absolutely ridiculous," he said. "I can understand their concern."

Taking a break

Angela Thomson, 6, brings her stuffed animal and a whiffle ball game with her to recess while she watches the action on the new slide.

For some, the line was just too long. Ricky Cushion, 10, [Left] and Ray Shaw, 11, are content to watch.

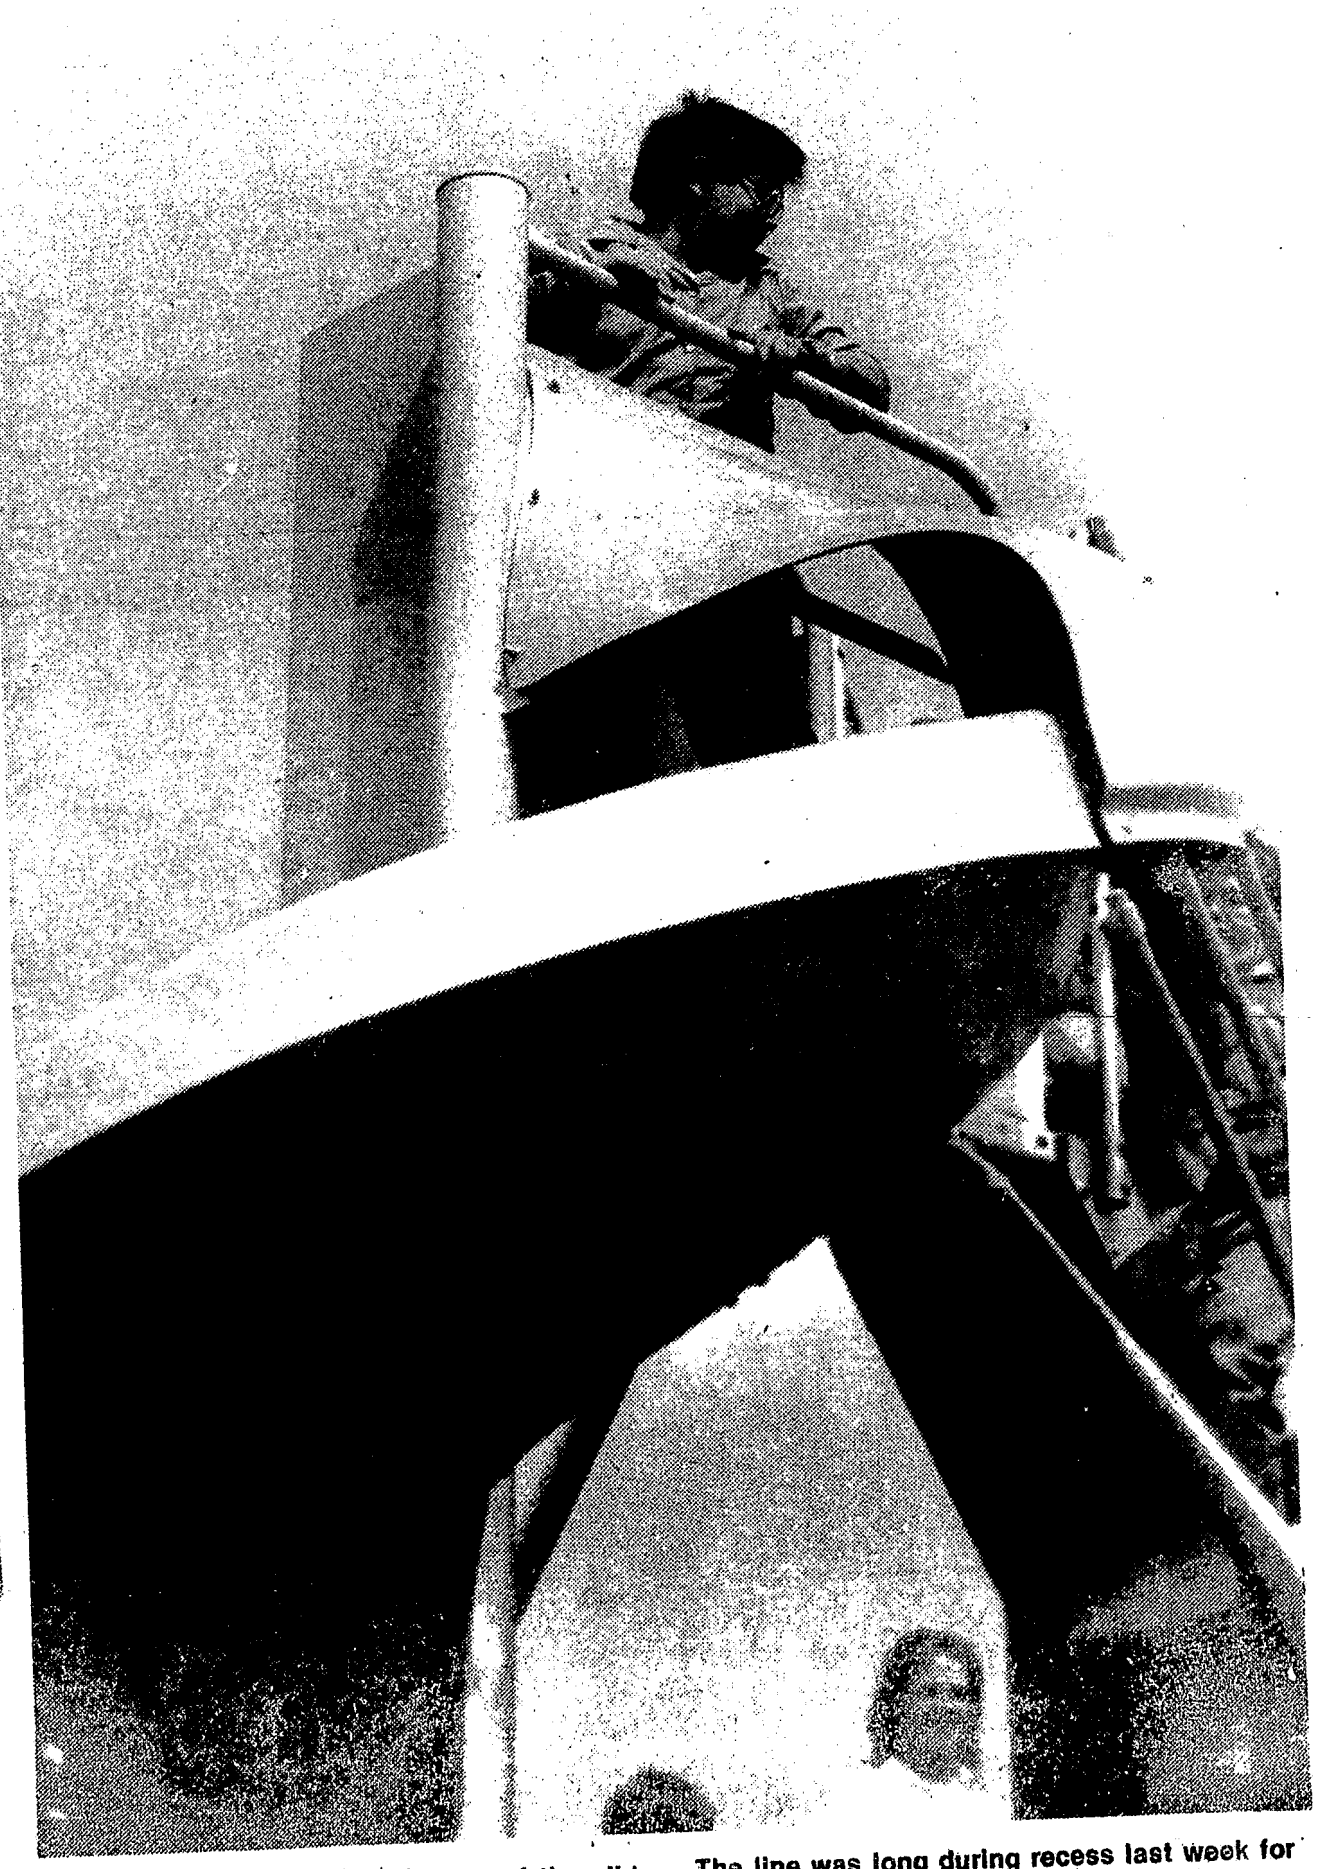
Robbie Beckman, 11, takes the curve on his school's new addition. The Pine Knob PTA raised the $9,000 for the equipment with help from the kids who sold candy.



When he finally reaches the top of the slide, Frank Catalano, 12, takes a look around him.

The line was long during recess last week for Pine Knob Elementary School's new slide.

Betty and her sister work together

Reed weaver is festival first-timer

By Julie Campe

When Betty Wochholz retired in 1979, she set out to do the things she'd always wanted to do.

After 16 years with AAA, she wanted to relax, to slow down and enjoy life.

She and her husband John moved to Independence Township. They planted a garden and harvested the vegetables. They canned and froze them. They relaxed and enjoyed themselves, but they didn't slow down.

Betty and her sister Shirley Inwood took lessons in basket weaving. Just a year later, she and Shirley plan to enter their work in the Crafts and Cider Festival in Clarkston this month.

In the meantime, John is taking care of the garden chores, keeping him busier than ever.

"My husband is helping me by doing some of the other things, so I don't have to do it," said Betty.

She weaves baskets out of split ash, round reed and cane, and she designs and dyes them herself. They're pretty, original and functional.

"You have to do everything when it's wet. Otherwise they'd break or split," she said.

She makes totes that are lined with cloth to carry knitting or clothing or anything. She makes baskets for bread, napkins, letters and plants.

A glove basket hangs on a closet door so gloves and mittens are always easy to find, and a pie-taker basket protects the pastry.

Some are shades of blue, some of rose. Some have fancy curly decorations, and some have stenciled designs.

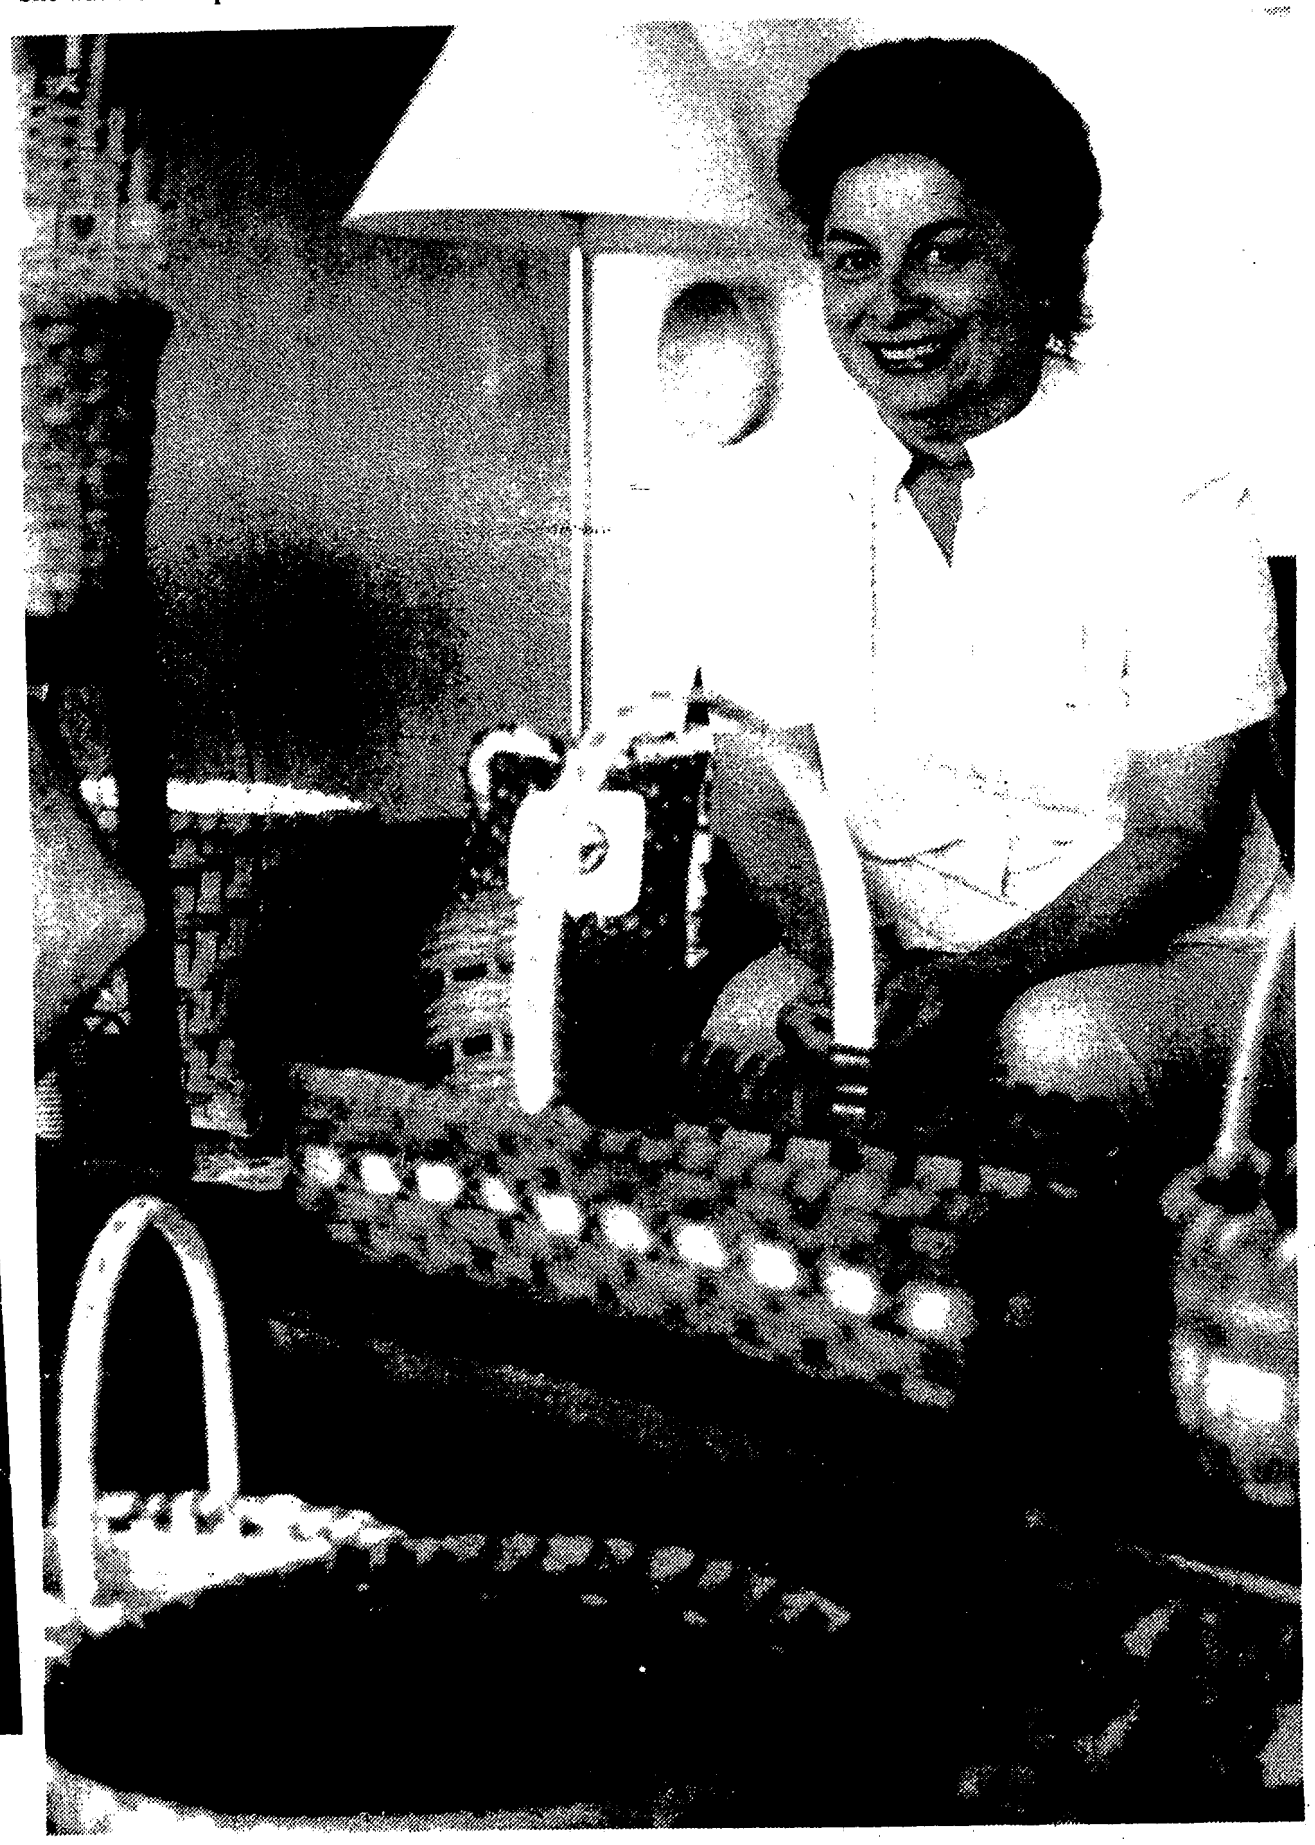
"I like the creativity, starting with just these pieces and ending with (a basket)," she said. "You really get hooked on it. . . . And everyone is different. I like that, variety."

Her sister will contribute specialized baskets to their booth at the festival: MSU and U of M totes. She will also sell pine cone wreaths.

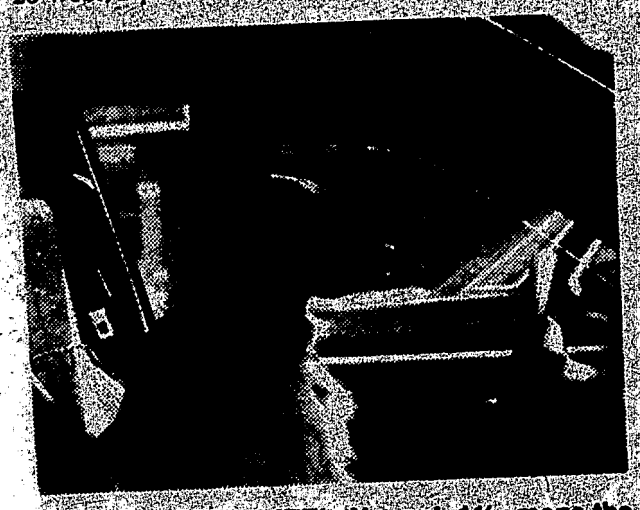
The prices will range from $10 to $40, depending on the size and amount of work put into each piece.

"I get a little nervous because I'm hesitant about selling the baskets, but I think it will be fun," said Betty. "It's a way to find out what people like."

Betty demonstrates how to weave baskets from wet wood. The Independence Township resident makes totes and baskets for bread, napkins, letters and plants. She and her sister Shirley Inwood are working on projects for their first arts and crafts festival.



Betty Wochholz has recently learned basket weaving. Her work will be on display at the Crafts and Cider Festival in Clarkston on Sept. 19-21.



A DOG AT THE WHEEL: Nugget, 1½, mans the wheel on Main Street, Clarkston, while waiting for his family, Carol Gehrke and her son Chris, 8.

Buy festival items

This year for the first time, merchandise to be sold by the Clarkston Community Historical Society at its annual Crafts and Cider Festival can be purchased in advance.

The society has United States Flag Highlight Sets for $12. The sets include a 3-by-5-foot cotton flag, 6-foot pole with eagle, screws, brackets and ropes for hanging, and a brochure on flag etiquette.

Also for sale are aprons with the Crafts and Cider quilt logo for $8.50, Clarkston posters (a Sesquicentennial special) for $5, stationery for $4 for 12 cards, reproduction maps of Oakland County and Independence Township for $1.50, and old Clarkston postcards for 25 cents.

For advance orders, call Barb Johns at 625-5835.

The merchandise may also be purchased at the festival on Friday through Sunday, Sept. 19-21. Hours are noon to 6 p.m. at Depot Park on Depot Road in the Village of Clarkston.

Did Coke used to be drug?

Dear Cat Paw:
Is it true the Coke used to be a drug or had drugs in it?
Rumor

Dear Rumor:
In 1886, John Styth Pemberton patented a medicine and drink whose active ingredients were cocaine and caffeine. He named the drink Coca-Cola. In 1905, the cocaine was eliminated.

Dear Cat Paw:
Can you tell if you will become hooked on cocaine if you try it?
Interested

Dear Interested:
Most people encounter cocaine in a social setting. They try it for that first time.

For some, that first snort will be the last. For some, it will become a once-a-month treat. For others, however, the first experience will be followed by a second, a third and on and on until using the drug becomes the most important and driving force in life.

Scientifically, there is no way to predict who in a group using the drug for the first time will ultimately become hooked.

Cocaine is very addictive. Don't take a chance!

Dear Cat Paw:
What happens if I get caught with marijuana on me?
Pusher

Dear Pusher:
The punishment for growing or possession can bring up to five years of imprisonment and a $5,000 fine. Selling marijuana generally doubles the sentence. You are playing a very dangerous game.

Dear Cat Paw:
I went to a couple of Al-Anon meetings and just didn't take part in it and stopped going. Is there anything else I could do to stop being--
Miserable

Dear Miserable:
It seems to me that you failed to understand what was taking place during the Al-Anon meetings you attended. The lack of understanding results in the inability to really participate.

The bride's white organza gown over taffeta featured a wedding ring collar of lace and pearls. It had a fitted bodice with a ruffle accent and renaissance sleeves with fitted cuffs and lace appliques. The A-line skirt had lace appliques on front and tiers of Chantilly lace ruffle at the border, with a chapel train.

The bride's sister, Karen Geukes, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Brenda Bolthouse and Linda Schuette.

Best man was Timothy Raeck, the bridegroom's brother. Groomsmen were James Campau and James Myles. Ushers were James Geukes and Daniel Weiler.

The reception was held at Jack Revette's Regal House in Bay City.

Balzarini's ducks to make festival debut

By Chris Gerbasi

Don Balzarini has been carving ducks, out of wood, that is, for two years, and next weekend they'll be on display at the Clarkston Crafts and Cider Festival in the village park.

Balzarini, of Independence Township, has 15 to 20 duck decoys that he'll show at the festival, Sept. 19-21.

He's an outdoors-lover and he's done other woodwork, so the combination must have seemed like a natural when he picked up a booklet about carving two years ago.

"I read up on it and just started doing it," said Balzarini, a retired Pontiac school district teacher who coaches Clarkston High's ski team.

"They can be used (for hunting), but they're primarily for display," he said. "I want them to look like the older decoys of the past."

Balzarini said that decoys were an unique type of art form in the Detroit and St. Clair areas in the early 1900s.

For his ducks, he usually uses white cedar or pine wood and any good duck photos he comes across as models. He gets glass eyes from taxidermy shops and does the color work with paints and polishes. The finished product has an antique look about it.

"You want a pleasing arrangement of lines," he said, "so it looks pleasing to the eye as well as looking like a duck."

It takes him about two days to finish a carving if he works all day.

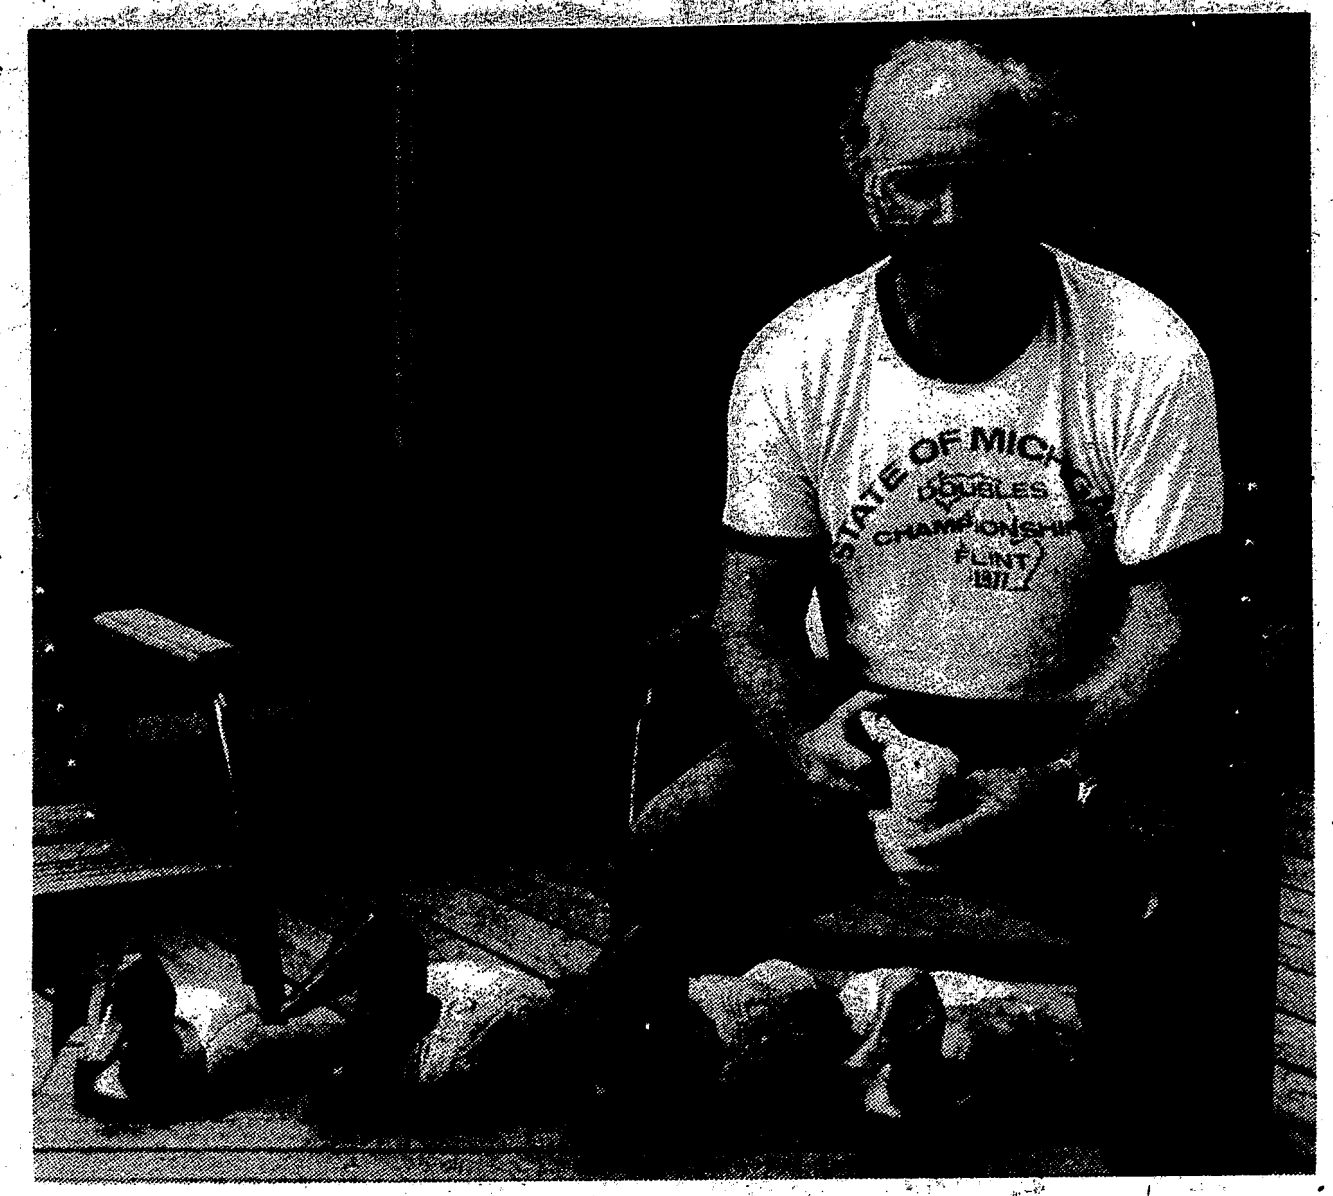
"I'm kind of slow at it I guess," he said.

Balzarini occasionally uses his decoys when he goes hunting. He also fishes and he said canvasback ducks are his favorite type.

"I like the outdoors, I like ducks, I like wildlife in general," he said.

At the festival, Balzarini hopes to get $100 to $150 each for his decoys. He's never been in a show before, but did have one duck auctioned off for $151 at a Ducks Unlimited gathering.

"A friend of mine once said there's a duck in every log, it's just a matter of getting around all the wood," he said.



Don Balzarini of Independence Township will display his carved duck decoys at next weekend's Crafts and Cider Festival in the Village Park. The outdoorsman has been carving decoys for two years.

CHARITY RIDER: Herb Rose of Clarkston rode his lightweight bicycle 120 miles on Aug. 2 to raise more than $700 for the Hurley Hospital Burn Center in Flint. His ride was part of Biking for Burns in which bicyclists help burn centers across Michigan by soliciting per-mile pledges and then riding all or part of the day. Approximately 1,080 bicyclists participated, and over $79,000 was pledged. "The money was donated through the generosity of the people with whom I work and friends in my home town," Rose said. "I just had the fun of riding the bike." Rose, 58, is employed by General Dynamics Corp., Warren.

Incredible edibles

Bake a batch of bread

When a touch of autumn is in the air, nothing warms up a kitchen like a batch of quick bread in the oven.

Three selections from the Clarkston Community Women's Club "Incredible Edibles" cookbook will rise to the occasion: Strawberry Bread, submitted by Denise O'Rourke of Oxford; Blueberry Nut Bread, submitted by Pamela Smuda of Manistee; and Zucchini Bread, submitted by Maureen O'Dea of Lake Orion.

STRAWBERRY BREAD

2 cups sugar
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups cooking oil
4 eggs, well beaten
2 (10 ounce) packages frozen strawberries, reserve ½ cup juice
1 (8 ounce) package cream cheese

Combine all dry ingredients; mix well. Make a well in center of dry ingredients and pour in liquids (except ½ cup reserved juice). Mix by hand and pour into 2 greased and floured loaf pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour or until done.

Topping: Soften cream cheese and mix with reserved strawberry juice. Drip on top of loaves. This freezes well.

BLUEBERRY NUT BREAD

2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup sugar
3 cups flour, sifted
3 tablespoons melted butter
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup nuts, chopped
1 cup blueberries (fresh or well-drained canned or frozen)

Mix eggs, sugar, butter and milk together. Add sifted dry ingredients, stirring only until blended. Fold in blueberries and nuts. Put in greased loaf pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes. Makes 2 loaves.

ZUCCHINI BREAD

2 eggs
2 cups grated zucchini (with peel)
1 cup shortening
½ cup raisins
3 teaspoons vanilla
3 cups flour
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
3 teaspoons cinnamon
½ cup orange peel (if wanted)

Beat eggs until light and foamy. Add sugar, oil, zucchini and vanilla. Mix well, then add dry ingredients. Divide into three (1 pound) loaf pans. Before putting in oven, add ½ cup orange peel. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes or until done. Freezes well in foil.

The "Incredible Edibles" cookbook sells for $6 at the Independence Township Library, Village Bookstore, Carol's Village Grill, Gayanne's Floral Concept and Pontiac State Bank's downtown Clarkston branch. Proceeds are used by the women's club for community service projects.

Bids not required for some homes

New guidelines for home improvements under the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program were approved by the board Sept. 2.

Acting on a request by Independence Township Treasurer John Lutz, the board agreed that up to $2,500 in assistance can be approved without that project going to bids.

The $2,500 figure is the one used by Oakland County.

The board has a policy of requiring bids for any expenditures over $1,000, but the township had not established guidelines for CDBG, Lutz said.

The CDBG program is federally funded through the county and exists to assist people who are in the low to moderate income range, people who are handicapped or areas with slum and blight problems.

Pettinaro finds place

Woman rebounds from divorce

By Julie Campe

Nola Pettinaro traveled a difficult road to survive financially and to find a career. She raised two teenage children while taking classes and working.

"I'm a displaced homemaker," said the Independence Township resident. "That's what the government calls it. It's a divorced woman with children she has to support."

Dressed in a business suit and heels, Nola talked in a no-nonsense sort of way. She was direct and to the point.

"Right after the divorce, I had three part-time jobs," she said.

Then she signed up for an accounting assistant program at Oakland University, Rochester.

"It was awful. I'd be up at 2 in the morning studying. I was bleary-eyed. . . . Lynn was only 15 at the time. She really kicked in. I didn't ask her to, but she always had a hot meal ready for me every night, even if it was only a soup and sandwhich."

She and her family survived. Michael, 15, is a sophomore at Clarkston High School. Nola had graduated from CHS herself, in 1964. And Lynn just finished two years at Oakland Community College.

Having finished the OU program, Nola now works in the accounting department at Porta-John in Utica.

And she loves her work at Porta-John. It's both enjoyable and challenging, she said.

"I like the detail work. It's something if you do it right, it comes out right. . . . There's a lot of room for differences of opinions and how to treat different accounts."

But she still has future goals.

"I'd like to go back to school," she said. "Even if it takes 10 years, I'd like to get a degree."

For her, success is a challenge, and she accepts it in the same way she accepted her hardships. She simply digs in and meets it head first.

"It was difficult, but it was worth it," she said. "You get a sense of self-respect.

"I'm not a super mom. I lose my temper, and I don't get the dust out of the corners. But my kids are fun. They tease me and keep me going."

Last year, her mother died. That left "Granny," Virginia Kraus, alone in the house on Sashabaw Road, just five houses down from Nola's. So Lynn, now 20, moved in with her.

"Things are looking up for me. But since my mother died, I have these two houses to keep up," she said. ". . . . But it's a good life. No matter what you do, you have to find a way to enjoy it. And there's always the future."

Nola Pettinaro faces hardship and success by digging in and accepting the challenges. The Independence resident works in the accounting department at Porta-John.

Clarkston sophomore joins teen pageant

Heather Jackson is an entrant-at-large in the 1986 Miss Michigan Teen Pageant.

Heather Jackson would like to be an architect, but for right now, being a teenager is pretty good.

The Clarkston High School sophomore will be competing in the 1986 Miss Michigan Teen Pageant on Sept. 13 and 14.

She'll have to wear a formal gown and a bathing suit in the event, and the winner will travel to Miami for the Ninth Annual Miss Teen All American Pageant in October.

Heather, 15, is more excited about her trip to Lansing and possibly to Miami than about any prizes.

"I just keep thinking about Florida," she said.

Her hobbies of dance and piano should help her with poise in the contest for 14- to 19-year-olds.

She also likes swimming, jet skiing and going to high school dances. And she likes shopping. She and her mother have ordered an altered wedding dress for the occasion.

"It's kind of like planning for a wedding except there's no son-in-law," said her mother.

Heather lives with her parents, Charles and Susan Harris, on Overlook Street, Independence Township.

"I'm really proud of her," said her mother. "It's really been exciting. Even if she doesn't win, it's really good experience."

Township equipment can be loaned

Certain Independence Township equipment can be loaned to residents if they leave a deposit.

Vernon and Eileen Rederstorf of Bluegrass Drive, Independence Township, discovered the policy last week when they had a garage sale.

Their neighbors borrowed township cones to block their property so none of the Rederstorf garage sale customers could park on their lawn. One of their neighbors works for the township, said Rederstorf.

He initially thought she had special privileges and could borrow township equipment because she worked there. But he called and found that anyone can borrow the equipment.

"If they can do it, why can't we do it?" he said. "I think we should let everybody in the township know this program exists. . . . When the (Calvary Lutheran) Church has (an) overflow, nobody gets out and puts pilons there."

The township verified his information.

"We do have some equipment that we do loan out," said Rita Burdick, deputy supervisor for the township. "We don't like it too widely spread because we do lose tables and chairs. . . . We're only down to a few now."

Tables and chairs and recreation equipment can be borrowed from the township by leaving a deposit for the equipment, she said.

Around graduation time, they receive a high demand for the equipment and sometimes don't receive all of it back, she added.

Police study group

The police study group, made up of about 25 concerned township residents, will hold its second informational meeting Wednesday, Sept. 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the Clarkston Village Hall.

The public is invited to hear presentations from the district commader of Michigan State Police and Post Commander of Post 27.

The group was formed earlier this summer to study different police options and offer a recommendation to the township in 1987, said Frank Millard, a member of the study group.

"There's a lot of issues," he said. "I have no preconceived notion of what can be done."

They hope to discover the best police protection for the least cost, he said.

Selenium May Play Role in Cancer Prevention

By Tanya Luchkovitz-Weeder

Selenium, an essential trace element was researched at 10 medical schools in the U.S. In a 5 year study involving cancer-free patients who first had their blood selenium level measured and then during the next five years, repeatedly underwent examinations for cancer.

Cancer that developed in these people was twice as high in those who started out with a low selenium blood level than those with a normal level.

Selenium may help to prevent cancer, especially of the breast, prostate, stomach, and rectum, because it is an antioxidant that shields the tissues from injury by carcinogenic pollutants.

Even so, there is no advantage in taking more selenium than needed.

There was an increased rate of cancer only in people whose blood selenium levels were in the lowest 20 percent of the scale of values for the whole group.

Since there is some concern about selenium toxicity, adults should not take it in daily doses greater than 200 mcg.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS

Beginning October 1, 1986, an additional penalty of $10.00 will be added to each 1984 and prior years delinquent tax that appears unpaid on the records of the county treasurer. This amount is added according to the provisions of Section 211.59 and 211.60 compiled laws of Michigan to cover the expense of sale at the next May tax sale.

Immediate payment will save you this additional penalty and keep your property from appearing in the public list of lands to be offered at tax sale.

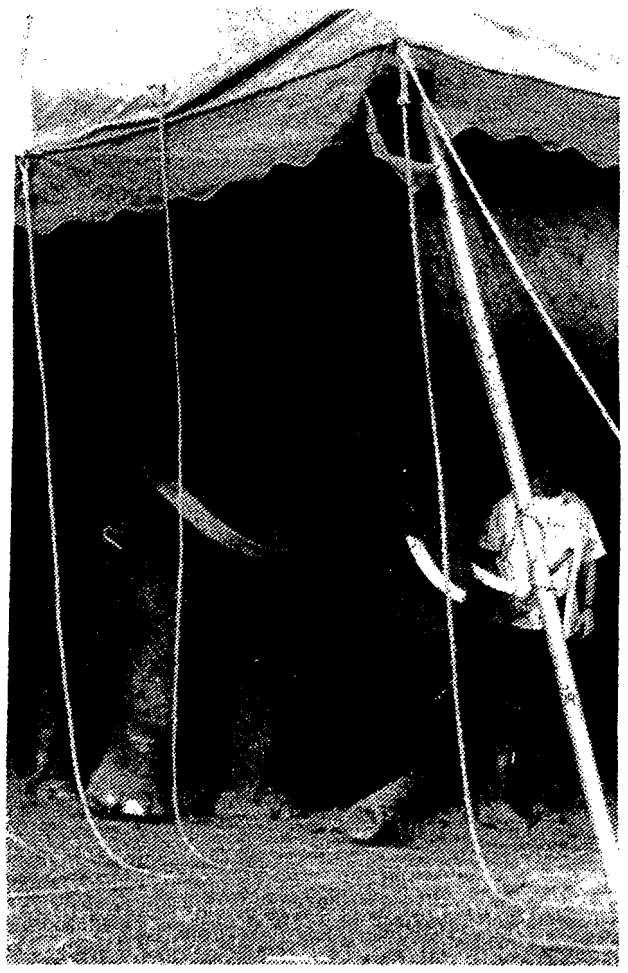
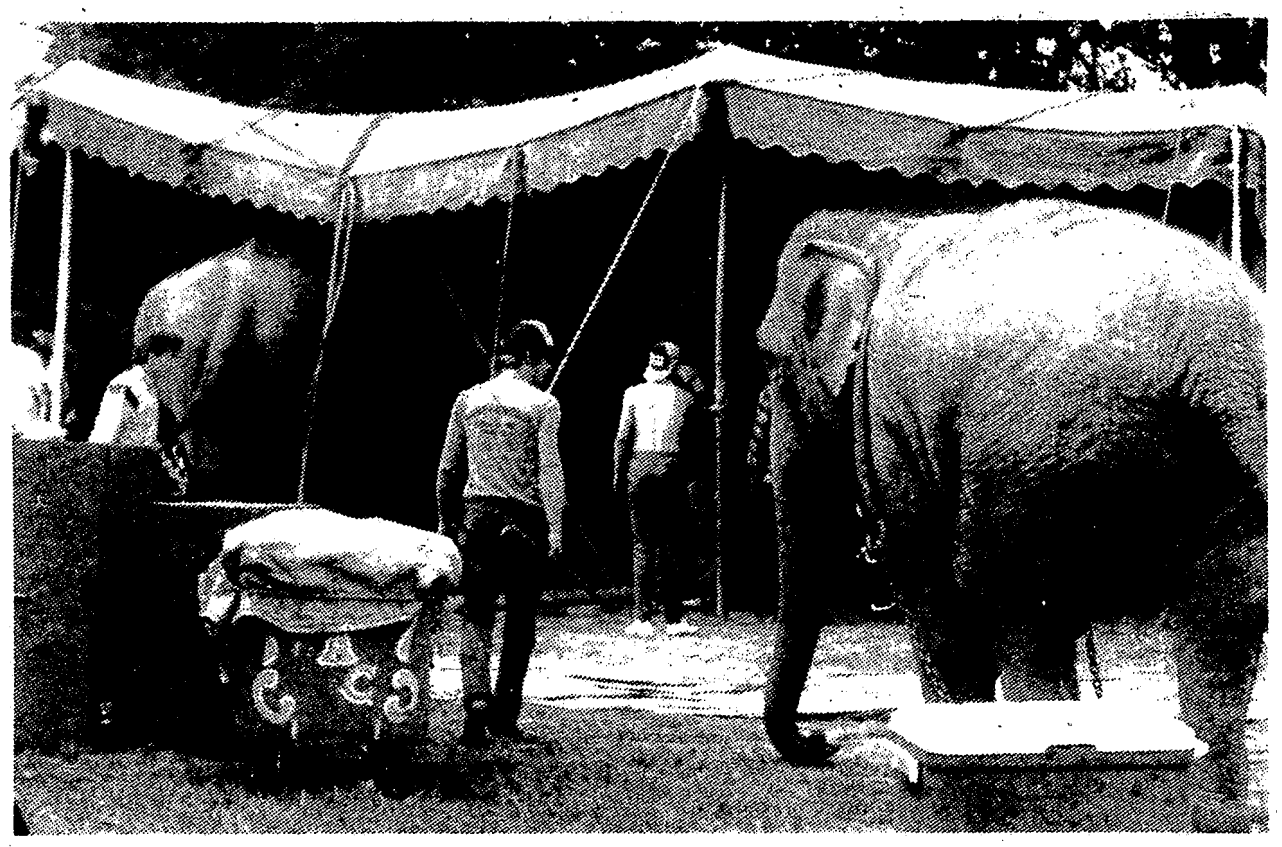
Under the big top



Before heading farther inside, Stoney provides a literal illustration of the phrase "under the big top."



Kelly, a 6,500 pound female elephant, is led to her task of raising the circus tent poles by handler Dave Belanger [center]. At left, Stoney, a 6,500 pound male elephant, heads inside the tent for his share of the chore. The circus was presented as a fund raiser by the Oakland County Deputy Sheriff's Association. Proceeds will be donated charities.

Irene steps outside the home she shares with fellow Asian elephant Kelly while they're on the road with The Great American Circus. The troupe's home base is Sarasota, Fla.

Photos by Kathy Greenfield

The job of raising the tent for the Great American Circus begins during the early morning hours Thursday at Springfield Oaks County Park in Springfield Township. After about two hours of pounding stakes with a truck and spreading tent pieces and poles, the men of the circus pull the giant tent in place. Next come the elephants, who raise the tent by lifting the large poles to an upright position. A worker said he expected the job to be completed by noon, some five hours from start to finish. After the final show Thursday, the tent came down in about two hours. By 12:15 a.m., it was loaded into circus trucks.

Condo living: It's perfect for Wiands

Lloyd and Dorothy Wiand often sit in their dining room when entertaining friends. To their left, the balcony enclosed in glass provides a warm view of Lester Lake. To their right is the kitchen.

By Julie Campe

When choosing a form of housing, a person considers many options. A house or an apartment?

If it's a house, a small house or a large house? With a small yard or a big yard? On a lake or on a hill?

If it's an apartment, a small one or a big one? With a balcony or a patio? Including heat or paying extra for utilities?

How about a condominium?

The choices seem endless, but for Lloyd and Dorothy Wiand, the condominium is the only way to go.

"It's like being on vacation all year round," says Dorothy. "We have a hard time pulling ourselves away from here."

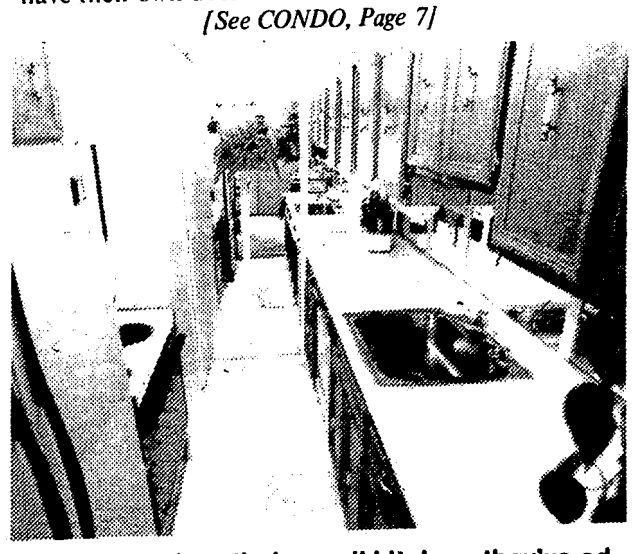
The Rivers Edge Condominiums on Andersonville Road, Independence Township, offer the housing features important to them.

They have a garden plot, a garage, a clubhouse and an exercise room including a rowing machine, tread wheel, bicycle, his and her showers and saunas, and a pool.

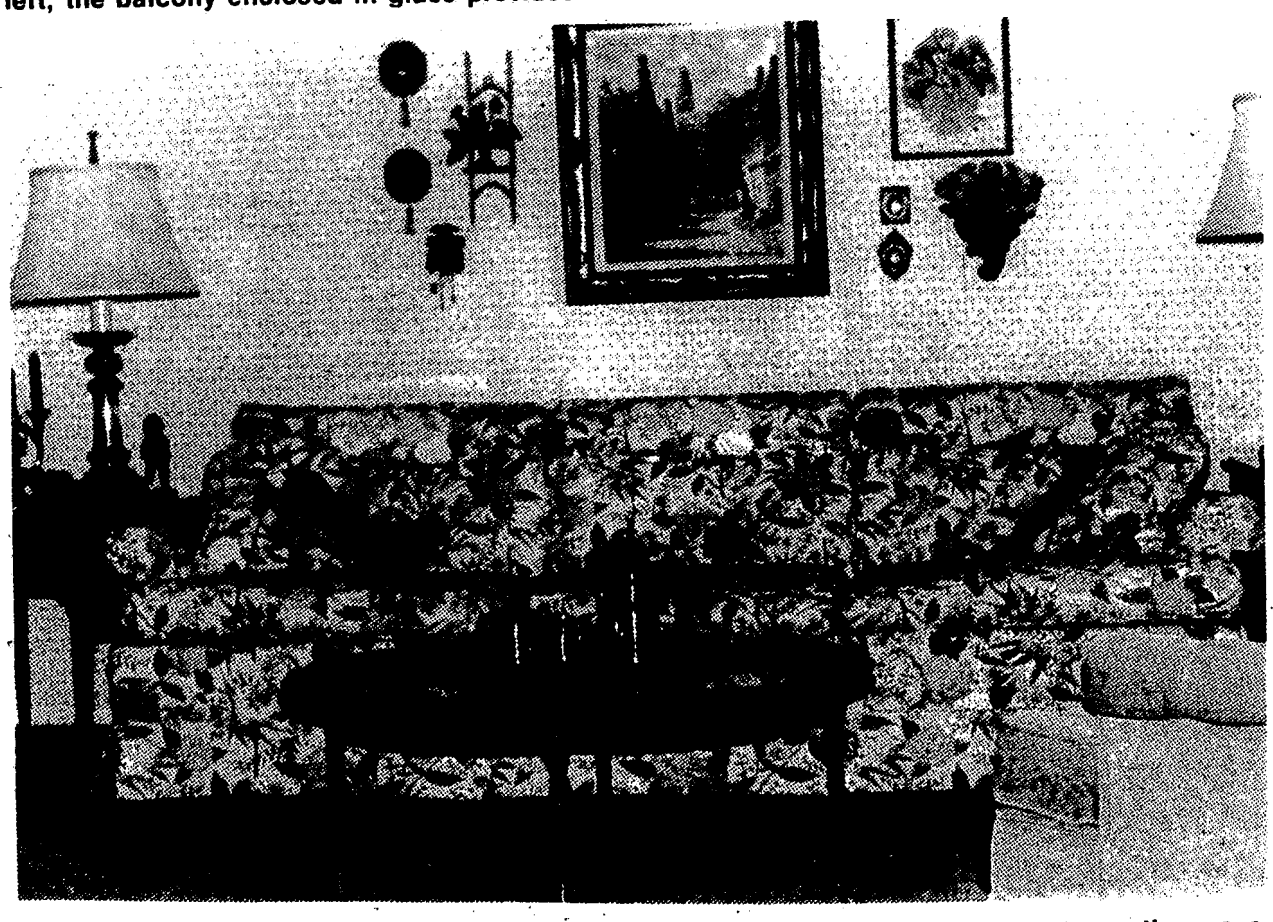
The 48 units are less than 30 yards from Lester Lake, perfect for boating, fishing, swimming, ice skating or cross country skiing.

At one end of the complex, a park area offers picnic tables and swings. And the units on the lake shore have their own docks. For the others, a dock on either

[See CONDO, Page 7]



To give depth to their small kitchen, they've added mirrors to the walls and a diamond pattern to the ceiling.



The Wiands were able to keep most of their living room furniture when they moved from their large house 13 years ago to the condominium.

Dorothy, who enjoys interior decorating as a hobby, has added details to make the room special, including one of Lloyd's many clocks.

When they're not entertaining and they want to relax, they sit in the cozy TV corner.

Junipers provide perfect cover and food for wildlife

The BACKYARD NATURALIST

By Craig Tufts, National Wildlife Federation

Most of us gardeners have favorite plants; landscape designers do too. With me, favorites include the junipers, an incredibly diverse group of ground covers, shrubs and trees.

Some are native to the United States and many have been introduced from Europe and Asia—especially those commonly used in landscaping.

For gardeners interested in attracting birds, junipers are truly a plant for all seasons. They outstrip most other bird-attracting plants in providing cover and food.

As evergreens, they're excellent nesting sites and year-round places for birds to hide from predators. Many produce abundant fruit over a long period of time; most set their fruit in March and April; some (like the eastern redcedar) mature their fruit the same year.

The fruit is ready to eat in August or September and holds for five to eight months, often well in to the next fruiting period—considerably longer than the one- or two-week period most other berry-producing shrubs and trees offer their wildlife-attracting produce.

Among the native U.S. junipers, the eastern redcedar, Juniperus virginiana, provides food regularly for at least 20 or 30 (and I suspect possibly 60 to 70) species of birds.

A long-lived, sun-loving tree, this "cedar" prefers well-drained soils but can tolerate a wide range of soil pH. It does support a fungus (cedar apple rust) which can damage apples, mountain ash and other plants in the rose family, but its assets outweigh its drawbacks.

Similar juniper species serve the southeastern and southcentral U.S.

The Rocky Mountain juniper, J. scopulorum, and its horticultural varieties can provide similar food and cover for many western birds and mammals.

The many-trunked common juniper, J. communis, usually a spiny shrub, performs the same functions in the northern third of the U.S.

A juniper of Asian origin popular in the U.S. and Canada is the Chinese juniper, J. chinensis, occurring in a kaleidoscope of forms from ground-hugging, matlike plants to large trees as well as popular shrubs such as Pfitzer and Hetzi junipers, widely used as foundation plants throughout much of the U.S.

I've seen cedar waxwings dine ravenously on Hetzi berries as late as early May. Many birds use the shrubs for nesting and year-round cover.

Recently I've become interested in a low-growing European juniper sold at many nurseries. It's the Buffalo juniper, a horticultural variety of the Savin juniper, J. sabina. The first ones I found were covered with fruit.

The plant will, in time, mature at 12 to 18 inches in height, with an 8-foot spread. A female variety, it can probably be pollinated by any male juniper in the area. Many such prostrate junipers bear no fruit, but the Buffalo juniper is a lavish exception, besides being a fine hiding place for small songbirds, shrews, chipmunks and rabbits.

You might consider planting some (or more) junipers. Many native species do best in fairly sweet soil, but the Chinese juniper varieties and eastern redeedar tolerate a wide range of soil pH.

As a group of plants, almost nothing can beat junipers for providing a good habitat for wildlife.

For a Backyard Wildlife Habitat information packet, contact the National Wildlife Federation, Dept. BN 1412, 16th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036-2266.

Some refrigerator answers

Q. Are there some things I should do the the refrigerator before going on a short vacation?

A. According to home economists from the Whirlpool Corp., there is no need to shut off the refrigerator if you will be away for less than four weeks.

Be sure to use up perishables and freeze other items. If you have an icemaker, turn it off and shut off the water supply. Empty the ice bin and make sure that all ice cubes are dispensed out of the mechanism.

Q. Do I need to remove all foods from the refrigerator when taking a long vacation?

A. If you are going for a month or more, remove all food. If you have an icemaker, turn off the water supply to the icemaker at least a day ahead. When the last load of ice drops, turn off the icemaker.

Unplug the refrigerator and clean it . . . . rinse well and dry. Tape rubber or wood blocks to both doors, keeping them open far enough for air to get in. This will keep odor and mold from building up.

Upon return, follow recommendations in your owner's manual for resetting all controls. Allow several hours for the refrigerator to cool down before adding food.

Home's decor can flatter occupants

One method of color selection for decorating is the seasonal color theory system, which is popular with fashion consumers.

According to the theory, everyone can be categorized as belonging to one season of the year by his or her skin, hair and eye coloring, and the colors of that season that are most flattering to them.

Fashion consumers purchase clothes according to their season, and decorating consumers plan their homes so they are surrounded with their most flattering colors.

National Decorating Products Association (NDPA) says more and more decorating center customers are requesting assistance in color selection using the seasonal color theory. NDPA represents 7,000 decorating center stores in the United States and Canada.

Spring is statistically America's favorite color pallate for decorating, regardless of the purchaser's true natural season. Many traditional colors are in this group including clear, bright greens, blues, yellows and pinks.

Summer people often choose soft colors such as light blue, rose brown, navy blue, rose pink, lavender and plum.

Autumns, which have the widest range of color intensity within their pallette, can decorate with both muted and clear colors. Dark brown, camel, beige, orange, gold, warm red and moss green are best for people who fall into this category.

The stark contrasts of winter's colors produce an effect of high drama when used in decorating. The colors which provide the most flattering background for winter decorators are navy blue, black, white, bright red, gray, shocking pink and deep blue.

What to do if one member of the family is one season and another is a different season? Try choosing compatible colors from each of the two seasons, using colors from one for background, and accent with colors from the other.

According to NDPA, however, it is important to remember that seasonal color theories provide fun decorating guidelines but, more importantly, the end result must be pleasing and, most of all, livable.

Here's what to do if rodents come calling this fall

As the days get shorter and cooler, many wild animals start looking for a cozy spot to spend the winter. For some homeowners, the scramble for winter shelter means a host of unwelcome houseguests.

Squirrels, bats, house mice and wild mice are the most common animals to enter homes looking for winter shelter, says Glenn Dudderar, Extension wildlife specialist at Michigan State University.

Squirrels, especially red squirrels, often enter homes to use a quiet spot in the attic or walls to stash nuts.

Use a box trap baited with sunflower seeds, a rat trap or a body-gripping trap placed over the entrance to the squirrel's hideaway to get rid of the invader, Dudderar advises. Then seal the entrance with sheet steel, 1-inch lumber or plywood, or masonry.

Bats entering homes in the fall may have occupied the house all summer long or may be looking for someplace new to hibernate through the cold monthes.

Of all the home-invading animals, they are probably the least critical to eliminate but the one most people are least likely to tolerate, simply because most people tend to be afraid of bats, says Dudderar.

It is better to get rid of them if you can, he adds, because their droppings and urine can make a smelly mess, and bats sometimes carry disease organisms.

The time to deal with bats is before cold weather sets in and the bats slip into hibernation. The easiest way to get rid of them is to spend some time outdoors in the evening observing your home from all sides until you see where the bats are coming and going.

Then temporarily seal up the opening at night while they're out and make a permanent repair sometime during the day.

Driving bats out is more difficult. Repellents must be used properly to be effective, Dudderar says.

"Mothballs are often prescribed as a remedy for bat infestations, but you need large quantities—5 pounds for every 2,000 cubic feet of confined space in which the bats roost," he says. "Likewise, bright lights used to make an attic unpleasant for bats must illuminate every corner and may have to be left on for a week or more."

High frequency sound, such as a silent dog whistle rigged to an air source, may take days to run bats out. In the meantime, all the dogs in the neighborhood may be howling on your doorstep.

None of these measures will succeed if the bats are already hibernating, and none will prevent reinvasion—the openings must be permanently sealed.

Mouse droppings in a kitchen drawer or a stash of sunflower seeds in a corner of the broom closet may be the first indication that wild mice have come inside.

Getting rid of them is a three-step process: eliminate all mouse food sources inside the house, seal up the openings where mice are coming in, and trap or poison the mice already inside.

Cleaning up possible food sources means cleaning up food spills in storage areas, placing all stored foods in cans or jars with metal lids, putting up pet food as soon as the pet has eaten, cleaning off plates and washing dishes immediately after meals, removing all garbage from the kitchen, and so on. Strict sanitation is necessary if trapping or poisoning is to succeed.

"No mouse that can eat people food off the counter or pet food from the bag is going to go for rat or mouse bait or the bait in a trap," Dudderar says. "But if there's nothing else for the rodents to eat, they'll either eat the bait or leave."

Two general classes of poison bait are available: single-dose, highly toxic materials that kill the animal with one feeding, and multiple-dose anticoagulants.

In the home, the multidose poisons are the safer choice because one accidental consumption by a human or a pet is not likely to be lethal.

The single-dose poisons can kill any warm-blooded animal, including a human being, that consumes them. Never use them in a home with small children or pets, Dudderar says, unless you are absolutely sure you can place them where only rodents can get to them.

Even the relatively safe anticoagulants are best used behind appliances, in the back corners of cupboards, inside cold air ducts and in other out-of-the-way places where rodents lurk or run.

Mice must consume anticoagulants daily over about two weeks to get a lethal dose, so you must be persistent and patient.

"If the first box of mouse bait that's consumed or the first six boxes don't work, buy another," Dudderar says. "It could be the seventh box that finishes the mice for good."

To trap mice, use a lot of traps placed behind applicances, in base cupboards and in other out-of-the-way places that mice might hide in or use to travel around the house. Bait them with a mixture of peanut butter and oatmeal or saltine cracker crumbs with a dash of salt.

Check, empty, rebait and reset daily any traps that get results. When traps go begging for more than two weeks, you've either caught all the mice or caught most of them and the rest have become trap-shy.

When you go looking for mouse entryways to the house, bear in mind that a hole doesn't have to be very big for a mouse to squeeze through it. A quarter-inch hole will admit a mouse or a bat.

People who are tempted to tolerate mice because they're cute need to know that mice, like rats, are rodents whose teeth grow constantly. To keep them worn to the proper length, the animals must gnaw.

Inside the house, their gnawing on wood and other structural materials can do a great deal of damage. Gnawing on the wiring in your home can strip off the insulation and create a fire hazard.

Mice also eat and contaminate, with their urine and droppings, both human and pet food.

"Whether you're dealing with house mice that spent the summer outdoors and are now looking for a permanent home or wild mice seeking temporary winter quarters, getting rid of them and keeping them out is a serious matter related to your family's health and safety," Dudderar says.

Seasonal questions

The outdoor gardening season may be winding down, but the stream of questions from Michigan gardeners isn't abating. Extension specialists at Michigan State University answer some timely fall questions:

Q. Why is fall a good time to fertilize the lawn and landscape plants?

A. The cool-weather grasses used in Michigan lawns grow best under the cool, moist conditions that tend to prevail in fall and spring.

Fertilizing in the fall makes nutrients available to them at a time of peak root growth. And a strong root system makes for healthy, dense turf that can resist attack by insects and diseases and invasion by weeds.

The roots of trees and shrubs likewise continue to grow until the ground freezes, so they also benefit from fertilizer applied in the fall.

Woody ornamentals may also be fertilized in early spring, just as growth begins.

Turfgrass experts at MSU advise against fertilizing lawns until late May or early June, however, because early spring fertilization causes a flush of top growth that can increasee the likelihood susceptible turfgrass varieties will develop Fusarium blight, a turfgrass disease.

Fall fertilization provides sufficient nutrients for good spring color without rapid top growth, thus reducing the need to mow so often.

Q. I've put the cart before the horse—I've ordered quite a few spring flowering bulbs without deciding beforehand where I'm going to plant them. What kind of site do they do best in?

A. The very early flowering bulbs may be planted under deciduous trees because they'll have flowered and died back before the trees leaf out to shade them.

Late flowering bulbs should be planted where they'll get a full day's sun. There the foliage will be able to make food for the bulbs to store and draw from for next year's flower display.

The most important consideration, however, is drainage—bulbs planted in poorly drained or low-lying, wet areas tend to rot.

Q. Why do woodpeckers attack houses?

A. In the spring, the male woodpecker may peck at a house to produce a noise, called drumming, to

Timely fall answers to yard groomers' questions

announce its presence to potential mates and to establish its territory.

Woodpeckers may excavate winter roosting or spring nesting sites by pecking holes in the side of a house. More commonly, woodpeckers peck houses for the same reason they peck trees—to find insects for food.

Rough plywood siding is most often damaged because the grooves cut into it give insects a way to get into the openings between the plys.

When insects are active inside the siding, woodpeckers may hear them and peck through the surface of the siding to extract them. Stopping the damage can be difficult.

Because the insects in the wood are not wood-boring insects, it's technically illegal to use insecticides labeled for use against wood-boring insects to control these opportunistic pests, even though the chemicals would be effective.

Pesticides labeled for use against cluster flies, spiders, beetles, wasps and other insects that may hide or rear young in these openings don't have the necessary penetrating ability to reach them.

Killing the woodpecker or woodpeckers—which requires state and federal permits—solves the problem only briefly until another woodpecker happens by.

Scare tactics usually aren't effective, either. The birds tend merely to move and take up their search for insects on a new portion of wall.

The best way to keep the woodpecker problem from reoccurring is to use wood filler or some other appropriate material to plug the openings in the siding in the spring, when insects leave.

Q. When do I mulch my strawberries?

A. Wait until temperatures are in the 20s (generally after Thanksgiving in mid-Michigan) and strawberry plants have stopped growing. Mulching before that will smother the plants.

Q. Is there anything I can do to keep moles from destroying my spring flowering bulbs? I'm about ready to give up planting any more.

A. Before planting, dust the bulb with 10 to 20 percent thiram (sold as a rabbit repellent for woody ornamentals). For a small bulb bed, devices that impart vibrations into the ground will repel moles.

Likewise, border guards of aluminum foil buried 6 inches or deeper in the ground will reduce tunneling into the area, though moles will sometimes burrow in below this barrier.

As bulbs sprout in the spring, pour a liquid solution of thiram around the sprouts so that the solution trickles down around the bulbs. Good luck.

Q. What are the pros and cons of seeding a new lawn after cold weather sets in—in late October or early May, say?

A. Sowing grass seed in late fall is called dormant seeding because the seed lies dormant—doesn't begin to grow—until spring. Then it begins early, well before the annual grassy and broadleafed weeds that can be such a problem in May-planted lawns.

With a head start on the weeds, the grass plants have a better chance of being able to compete with the weeds for water and nutrients. They also tend to be fairly well established before hot, dry summer weather arrives.

Dormant seeding is especially advantageous if the area to be planted is slow to dry out in the spring.

Erosion on slopes is a potential disadvantage of dormant seeding. To prevent erosion, turfgrass experts recommend using straw mulch.

If the dormant seeding fails for some reason, having prepared the area for seeding in the fall means it will be ready for reseeding in the spring at the earliest possible moment.

Q. What's the point of mulching spring flowering bulb beds? If you're going to do it, when's the best time?

A. The aim of mulching is to keep the soil from alternately freezing and thawing and damaging the roots of the bulbs or pushing the bulbs out of the ground.

Apply a mulch of straw, hay or ground leaves after the ground has frozen to keep it frozen. Remove it in the spring as soon as new growth starts so it doesn't smother emerging plants.

Gardening ranks 1st

Eight of 10 (83 percent) of American households are involved in at least one form of indoor or outdoor gardening.

Gardening ranked as the number one outdoor leisure activity of U.S. households, more popular than golf, jogging, biking, tennis and swimming. The most popular gardening activities were flower gardening with 40 million (47 percent) of all households involved, vegetable gardening with 34 million (40 percent) participating, indoor houseplants with 39 million households (46 percent) and lawn at 54 million (63 percent) of households involved.

There is a house in Massachusetts built entirely of newspaper. It is made of 215 thicknesses of newspaper and all the furniture is of newspaper, too.

Couple compares condo living to 12-month vacation

end of the complex serves the purpose.

With almost no exterior maintenance, plenty of time is available to enjoy the benefits of condo living.

As for the interior, the owner is limited only by his or her imagination.

"On the interior, you can do anything you want decoratively," says Dorothy. "The only thing you can't do is move the bearing wall. All 46 units are the same, basically, but all will look differently if you go inside."

Lloyd and Dorothy, who takes interior design classes at night, have added their own styles to the interior.

"It's like being on vacation all year round. We have a hard time pulling ourselves away from here."

—Dorothy

The balcony has been enclosed with glass, leaving a bright, sunny room with a view of Lester Lake. It was enclosed only after Lloyd had cast his fishing line into Lester Lake and actually caught a fish from the second story, "just to say I did it," he says.

Plants and money tree arrangements have been placed at various spots in the home, attesting to Dorothy's green thumb.

The balcony . . . was enclosed only after Lloyd had cast his fishing line into Lester Lake and actually caught a fish from the second story, "just to say I did it," he says.

A variety of clocks tick from the shelves and walls, proof of Lloyd's hobby.

To give a perception of depth and space to the small kitchen, they've lined the walls with mirror plates.

The half walls at the stairways have been replaced by rail banisters, again to give a more spacious feeling.

One-and-a-half baths have been added to the lower level which opens to the lake in back. Clocks and plants also highlight this level.

The entire condominium situation suits them well, they say. But condo living isn't for everyone.

"If you live by the golden rule, then you're suited for condo living. . . . In other words, if you can treat your fellow man like you would want to be treated," says Lloyd.

"People who feel that rules are made to be broken probably shouldn't live in condominiums," says Dorothy.

They both appreciate the fact that the co-owners manage the complex collectively. All of the co-owners vote annually for the five members of the board of directors, who make legislative decisions.

Although the complex allows children, the Wiands, who have five grown children, think the lifestyle is better suited toward adults.

"If you live by the golden rule, then you're suited for condo living. . . . In other words, if you can treat your fellow man like you would want to be treated."

—Lloyd

"I don't feel it's a secure place to raise children," says Dorothy. "There's no safe place to ride bikes or play basketball."

"They shouldn't be discriminated against, though," says Lloyd.

All in all, the move 13 years ago to River's Edge was a good one, they say, and they'll recommend the life-style to just about anyone.
