Waterford Hill

Condos

By Carolyn Walker

Clarkston Bluffs, a 148-unit condominium development planned for Waterford Hill, was approved in concept Sept. 10.

Charles Bowles, an Independence Township developer, received conceptual site plan approval from the Independence Township Planning Commission for the 40-acre project with several stipulations. The vote was 6-1.

A conceptual site plan looks at the basics of a proposal; while specific items such as construction materials and landscaping are fine-tuned during a later final site plan review.

In the recent past, Bowles had met with subcommittees of the commission twice and walked the site with commissioners last month.

Chief among the commissioners' concerns were what would happen to the many trees covering the hill, which vice chairperson Holly Stephens called a "historic landmark."

PUD request

. . . condos

By Carolyn Walker

Patience and perseverance paid off for Frank Walker and William Hahn as they received a rezoning recommendation from the Independence Township Planning Commission last week.

On Sept. 10, a complete set of final site plans in hand, the commission voted 4-2-1 to recommend a Planned Unit Development (PUD) rezoning for the parcel, which is currently zoned for single family dwelling.

The proposed condominium development had been repeatedly tabled by the commission during the past several weeks because plans had not been submitted according to regulations.

A final decision on the PUD request must be made by the township board of trustees.

When combined with the single family status, the PUD zoning would permit an extra condominium unit per acre for a total of 28. PUD allows a variety of uses on a single parcel of land.

Walker and Hahn propose building the Newport-style condos, complete with gazebo, ponds and walking trails, across from Clintonwood Park.

In recommending the zoning change, the commissioners outlined several stipulations which they want addressed for the township board.

. . . and still more condominiums

By Carolyn Walker

Condominiums and apartments are in store for 22 acres west of Spring Lake Country Club.

The J.F.K. Company received conceptual approval for the proposal at the Sept. 10 meeting of the Independence Township Planning Commission.

According to Joseph Kosik, a J.F.K. representative, approximately half of the 130-unit Maybee Road development would be condominiums and half would be apartments.

They would be geared at residents "a touch above average income," he said, estimating that the 1,000-square-foot apartments would rent for $600 a month.

The 1,250-square-foot condominiums would sell for approximately $100,000, he said.

The motion to grant conceptual approval incorporated several stipulations including one which would send the developer before the lot-split committee.

J.F.K. is trying to purchase additional acreage to the rear of the site, Kosik said.

If that isn't accomplished, the Maybee Road property would have to be "split" from the rear acreage, and an easement would need to be granted to avoid land-locking the adjacent parcel, which has no road frontage.

The commission also advised the developer about the appearance and materials considered desirable for project as well the landscaping and road layout, according to Chairman Neil Wallace.

These matters must be addressed by the developer before he returns to the commission for final site plan approval.

Township building director Delbridge resigns

By Carolyn Walker

Kenneth Delbridge took Independence Township by surprise Aug. 3 when he resigned without notice as the director of the building and planning department.

Delbridge, who had been director of the department for about five years in the mid-1970s and again beginning in 1981, gave his notice without much explanation, said Supervisor Frank Ronk.

"The only thing I can tell you is he left for personal reasons. . . . He said he had no animosity toward anyone here and was just leaving," Ronk said.

On Sept. 11, after visiting a planning commission meeting, Delbridge explained that he quit his job to pursue a career in building and construction, a profession he has wanted to pursue for a long time, he said.

"There isn't any pressure at the township," Delbridge said, referring to the fact that on-the-job pressure did not contribute to his decision.

According to Ronk, who said he was surprised by the resignation, the township will pursue "normal channels" for replacing Delbridge.

In the interim Beverly McAlmeel, who worked under Delbridge, has been appointed to carry the load.

The department will continue to function normally with builders and developers during this boom period, Ronk said.

"It will miss his expertise, but we'll go on . . . and not be held back," he said.

Neil Wallace, chairman of the township building and planning commission, also commented on Delbridge's departure.

"He was, at the same time, tough and reasonable. (He will be) hard to replace," Wallace said.

Planners worry about trees

"There will be many areas where the natural vegetation will remain," said Jim Buckerfield, engineer for the project, adding every effort would be made to preserve as many trees as possible.

"This is a highly individual project," he said. "This is not going to be a cookie cutter project."

The fate of the trees was further discussed by commission members.

"There isn't going to be very many trees once the roads go in left on Waterford Hill," said member John Gray. "There is going to be a substantial amount of that vegetation that's going to be eliminated."

Chairman Neil Wallace agreed. "They have a very, very special responsibility to the community and to themselves to make a special effort in that regard (preserving trees)," he said.

The development, which Bowles said he hopes to get under way in 1987, is located off Dixie Highway, north of Balmoral Terrace.

In addition to their concerns about the trees, several commissioners expressed worries about the traffic to be generated by the development.

Stephens proposed constructing a boulevard entrance to the site and asked that a second entrance be created off Maple Road.

In moving to approve the project conceptually, the commissioners made several stipulations.

They included that every effort be made to "preserve the integrity of this unique site," that properly engineered retaining walls be incorporated into the plan, that an emergency road or second access off Maple Road be researched, and that appropriate buffers be established to screen neighboring residences.

After the meeting, Bowles described the style of the condominiums as a cross between colonial and contemporary and displayed pictures of units constructed of wood and stone.

Voting to grant conceptual approval were Wallace, Gray, Brent Bair, Holly Stephens, Joseph Figa and Betty Jo Fussman. Carol Balzarini voted no after saying she was concerned about the development's impact on the community.

Bowles must return to the planning commission for final site plan approval before a construction permit can be obtained.

Correction

The condominium name was incorrect in the story on Page 1 of the Interiors and Exteriors section in last week's Clarkston News. The correct name is Water's Edge Condominiums.

Village opts out of cop tax quest

By Julie Campe

The Village of Clarkston opted not to join Independence Township in requesting an additional police millage on the ballot this year.

Township residents now pay close to 1 mill (or $1 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation) to contract deputies from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department and the village contracts their police service from the township.

To pay for the entire cost of the six officers and their equipment, the township also uses money from the general fund.

This year, a request for voters to approve an additional 1.5 mills (or $1.50 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation) for three years will be on the Nov. 4 ballot, bringing the total amount to almost 2.5 mills.

This will double the amount of present police coverage for three years, as well as alleviate the pressure on the dwindling general fund money, said township Supervisor Frank Ronk.

"We're doing this on a three-year trial program and we'll wait for the studies to come," said Ronk at the Sept. 8 village council meeting. He was referring to studies on township police protection under way by the township board and by a citizens committee.

The council decided not to join in the millage request but instead to contract for the services as usual if they, too, decided to increase police coverage.

"We don't have any positives or negatives about it," said Ronk at the meeting. "We were just talking about eliminating some paperwork with the contracts. . . ."

The concerns of the council members included: if more village police coverage is necessary, the limits of a three-year millage with no choice in the type of coverage and a possible conflict between the desires of township residents and village residents.

Some of the council members agreed that more police coverage is necessary, but they didn't agree on the method of obtaining more coverage.

"The problem we have right now . . . is we don't have anyone doing police work," said Trustee Frank Millard. "We have people answering calls. We don't have anyone sitting watching to make sure nobody's speeding. . . . We're getting tagged as easy pickings out here, and we better do something about it."

"If there's no tax difference, I'd like to remain with the flexibility (of the present system)," said Trustee Eric Haven.

"No offense to the township, but we'd like the freedom to choose the vendor," said Trustee William Basinger.

The council decided not to take any action on the township's request, so village residents will not be voting on the millage. The village council may still contract for increased police services if the rest of the township approves the millage.

After the meeting, Ronk commented on the council's decision.

"I felt that it was kind of like the fire millage," he said, referring to the joint millage between the township and village.

"Nobody likes to raise taxes but there's just no other way to do it. With federal revenue cuts, and Graham-Rudman (tax plan) is likely to affect us too, we have to something on our own."

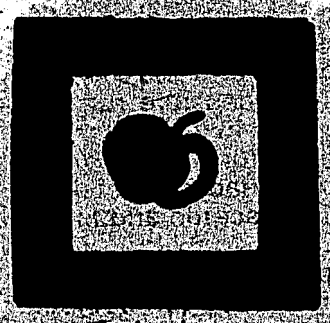
The village has about 1,000 residents and the township has about 21,000. Village residents pay village taxes and township taxes, and some of their village taxes are used for police protection.

In 1986, the village paid about $13,600 toward police protection, which cost the township about $332,000.

Crafts and Cider weekend

The cider will flow this weekend as the Clarkston Community Historical Society's 12th annual Crafts and Cider Festival fills the village park.

The festival will be open at the park on Depot Road from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.



Last year, 350 gallons of cider were sold by the glass and festival-goers downed 5,100 donuts.

This year, the society will again sell cider and donuts as well as flag sets, aprons with the Crafts and Cider logo and an array of other items.

About 60 exhibitors will show and sell their wares, which range from ceramics, photographs and porcelain dolls to wheat weavings, burl walnut art and hydo-stone castings.

"The jury this year has done an excellent job. I think, in getting a really good cross-section," said Jennifer Radcliff, society president.

"We're all really excited about the new people involved and the raffle merchandise—every year we manage to do something different, but it's something special," said Maralee Cook, society vice president.

Prizes in this year's drawing include a night for two at the Dearborn Inn with a breakfast buffet and two tickets to the Henry Ford Museum or Greenfield Village, an antique print from Great Britain donated by Aura Fine Art, a pair of European cut crystal candlesticks donated by Sadows Auction Galleries, dinner for two at the Clarkston Cafe, dinner for two at 20 Depot Street, Sunday brunch at the Deer Lake Racquet Club and several other items donated by area merchants.

The society uses profits from the festival for two major projects. Books are purchased for the Independence Township Library and the remainder is put into money market certificates to eventually fund a local history room addition on the library.

Last year, the festival raised about $5,300 during the rain-free weekend.

"We're hoping the weather will cooperate like last year," said Cook.

Enrollment surge: a first since '73

By Kathy Greenfield

The 1986-87 school year is going to be a year of reacting, predicts Superintendent Milford Mason as the district grapples with its first enrollment surge since 1973.

Preliminary figures indicate an enrollment increase over last year of about 136 K-12 pupils. The district's budget was based on an expected decrease of 104 pupils.

The actual number, on which state aid is based, will be determined on the fourth Friday of September.

In dollars, the higher number of pupils would increase revenue from property taxes and state support in excess of $300,000 over the budgeted figure.

"It means we've got the resources to hire the teachers, move the (portable classrooms) and (handle) any other staffing needs," said Mason. "We can do that without increasing the deficit. We now may very well be able to reconcile back into a balanced budget without dipping into our fund equity."

In June, the board of education approved the $18.1 million general fund budget with expenses of nearly $240,000 over projected revenues.

Money to cover the deficit would have reduced the district's operating surplus (or fund equity) from $1.7 million to $1.5 million. The surplus is used to offset the need to borrow to meet expenses between tax periods, and board discussions had included the need to seek more operational taxes if the deficit spending continued. That could now be a moot point.

In addition, more pupils—and more money—mean the district will be able to continue making planned improvements in curriculum without worrying about how to pay for them, a prospect that pleases him, Mason said.

The curriculum improvement program, which began last year, touches every phase of education from introductory foreign language and computer courses at the elementary level to improved science, social studies, computer and writing programs at all levels to more stringent graduation requirements.

If the enrollment increase continues, and Mason indicated that he believes it will, the district will also face problems, he said.

Since January, the school board has been working on a plan to improve school facilities. The goal is to solve current problems with outdated and inadequate facilities and to solve the problems for 20 years.

"It puts more (pressure) on us to come to some conclusions on what our facility plans ought to be," Mason said.

The board is currently considering several options that would require voters to approve a tax increase.

Under discussion are building a new high school or adding onto the existing high school and the possibility of no longer using the existing Clarkston Junior High School for general education.

But if voters approve a proposal, the earliest improvements could be made would probably be 1989, and that creates the need for interim solutions.

"One of the options that's being discussed is that, for an interim period of time, the sixth grade classrooms be moved to the junior highs," Mason said, which would mean housing grades K-5 in elementary buildings, 6-9 in junior highs and 10-12 at the high school.

Mason does not expect enrollment to stay static during the school year. As he pondered the houses under construction and near completion, he wondered aloud about possible enrollment increases in the next six months.

"It's going to be a year with a lot of challenges, and I think a lot of them are going to be positive challenges," he said.

Surge problems resolved—for now

Immediate problems created by the enrollment increase in Clarkston schools should have been solved as of this week, says Superindent Milford Mason.

The solutions include an additional third grade class at North Sashabaw Elementary, the moving of a special education classroom at North Sashabaw to a former clinic room in the building, balancing of class sizes at Clarkston High School and the opening of a portable classroom after its move from Andersonville to Clarkston Elementary School.

Too many unknowns existed to make the changes before school started, Mason said.

"I don't want to say everything was a total surprise; it wasn't," he said. "But to be able to put a precise number on what would occur . . . was impossible.

"There are no statistics in the land that can tell me new people arriving will have a predominance of third-graders," he said. "It leaves you at the point that about the only thing you can do is have the youngsters come in and make adjustments as quickly as possible after the first day of school."

Administrators were aware that new homes in the district were plentiful, but the construction boom in the mid-1970s had not turned around declining enrollment and previous predictions on enrollment based on the birthrate had been very close to the actual figures.

The district's K-12 enrollment has declined at a steady pace since 1974, following the all-time high of 7,095 pupils in 1973. The only increase since was 15 more pupils in 1977 than 1978, and the largest drop was in 1981 when enrollment decreased 303 pupils over 1980.

Preliminary figures indicate an enrollment this year of 5,643 pupils. Last year, enrollment was 5,507.

At the district's five elementary schools, preliminary figures show an enrollment increase of 159 over last year, with 50 more at North Sashabaw, 47 more at Pine Knob, 37 more in Clarkston Elementary, 15 more at Andersonville and 10 more at Bailey Lake.

An increase of 18 elementary pupils had been predicted using birthrate statistics. The district, however, realized the number was too low following kindergarten screening, which indicated kindergarten enrollment would increase from 427 to 464. As of Sept. 5, there were 497 kindergartners enrolled in the district.

In May, the decision was made to add three half-day sessions of kindergartners, "so kindergarten, per se, is not giving us a problem even though there were more yet," Mason said.

Then, he indicated the stunning impact of the increase: "You expect a few more, sure, because people are still transient. But 30? Lordy!"

The other shock, which was more difficult to deal with, came at the third-grade level.

Last year, 352 second-graders were enrolled in the district and the number was used as a guide for the number of third-graders expected this year, but enrollment so far shows 392 third-graders.

Junior high school enrollment remains closest to the predicted mark. A decline of 112 pupils was projected and preliminary enrollment figures indicate an actual decline of 88.

High school enrollment predictions had placed the expected decrease at 50, but preliminary figures indicate an increase of 63 students.

Clarkston schools get 15 new staff members

By Kathy Greenfield

If Clarkston schools represent a slice of Michigan, job prospects for teachers are improving.

This year, 15 new staff members have already joined the teaching ranks in Clarkston schools and another teacher was to be hired this week, said administrative assistant Conrad Bruce.

"Usually, we hire three or four—that's been the norm for the last six years," he said.

Many of the jobs were for teachers with specialized training, and Bruce provided a rundown on what kinds of teachers being hired across the state.

In demand are mathematics, science and English teachers, media specialists and vocal music teachers, he said.

On the other hand, there are still many out-of-work teachers of the learning disabled, social studies and physical education teachers and elementary school teachers.

"We must have had over 500 applications in 1986 for elementary positions," Bruce said.

Other factors are also influencing the job market.

Movement between districts is becoming more common. Clarkston lost three teachers for that reason this year: former Clarkston High School media specialist Susan Kott moved to East Detroit High School, former gifted education teacher Joette Kunse is now the director of gifted education for Farmington schools and former Clarkston Junior High School science teacher Tony Stachurski is teaching English at Troy High School.

"The three teachers that left Clarkston all got much higher salaries—that wasn't the only reason but that certainly was a factor," Bruce said.

The age of teachers is another factor that will influence the number of new teachers in future years. In Clarkston, 85 percent of the about 292 teachers on staff have over 11 years seniority and 56.6 percent have worked 16 or more years.

Accordingly, there were seven retirements during the last school year, several retirements are expected between now and next summer, and by 1990, Bruce expects the number of retirements to jump to 12 to 15.

"And, if we keep growing at the same rate we've been growing the last couple of months, we're going to be adding people because of enrollment increases," he said.

While there is some concern about having enough applicants to fill positions, something happened this summer to alleviate the worry, Bruce said.

The district expected some difficulty in finding a mathematics teacher for CHS. That was not the case, however, when 22 applications were made.

"I would say one out of three applications this summer were from people who want to get back to teaching in Michigan because this is their home state, this is where their family is, and the pay is much better than a lot of states," Bruce said.

Only one of the district's new hires, CHS math teacher Victoria Braquet, taught school out of state last year, in Houston, Texas.

The other new teachers include: Geri Allison, half-time kindergarten teacher at Clarkston Elementary; Esther Andrews, dental teacher at Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center; Caren Chamberlain, teacher of the learning disabled at Sashabaw Junior High School; Mary Conklin, vocal music teacher at CJHS; Kelly Cutshaw, CHS math teacher; Rene Debs, French teacher at all elementaries and CJHS; Robert Devereaux, media specialist at Bailey Lake Elementary; Betty Duris, CHS English teacher; Gloria Lacy, elementary school vocal music teacher; Patricia McMillen, science teacher at CJHS (recalled from the layoff list); Tom Smith, landscaping teacher at NWOVEC; Sandra Srabian, counselor at CHS; Sharon Steinhelper, school social worker; and Betty Kozma, third-grade teacher at North Sashabaw Elementary School.

The sixteenth teacher will be hired to teach academically talented pupils.

Sub pay goes up

Substitute teachers will be paid more in the Clarkston school district.

On Sept. 8, the board of education approved increasing the per-day rate to $45 from $43.50 and the over-10-consecutive-day rate to $55 from $53.50, retroactive to Aug. 26.

The increases were recommended by administrative assistant Conrad Bruce, who said it would keep the district competitive.

"This will be in line with the north end of the township, with the exception of Holly," he said, noting that Holly will continue to pay substitutes at a lesser rate.

The board approved the raises 6-0. John Needham abstained, explaining that his wife is a substitute teacher.

House that sneezed

Kathy Greenfield

I have long believed houses have personalities all their own.

The aura has something to do with the people who live or have lived inside, but after living in a dozen places, I've decided the feeling goes beyond that.

It's almost an instinct kind of thing. Some places simply feel better than others.

I began thinking about this deeper-than-appearance sense after going inside the house my daughter will be living in this year while attending Michigan State University in East Lansing.

Something she said triggered the train of thought.

One of her friends, after looking at the house right after the previous tenants moved out, said "It's a great house, but it looks like it needs to sneeze."

That remark deserves four stars for its creativity and accuracy.

The house, unfortunately, is indeed in desperate need of a giant sneeze, the kind that—if you'll pardon my graphic extension—blows out all the snot.

We're talking ugly paint colors, furniture that should have been dumped a decade ago, mold in the bathroom, and so on.

I have to give my daughter and her friends credit, however, for they're spending the next couple of weeks on a massive effort to clean and redecorate.

They aren't going to be able to change the fact that the furnace looks like it has a life of its own—octopus, possibly—and is without question inefficient.

Accordingly, we've had some serious discussions about long underwear and wool sweaters.

Another parent whose daughter is on another campus said he was amazed at how readily our children are willing to lower their standards of living.

My daughter said she's lucky she grew up in an old house because she's used to such things as low water pressure, sharing too few bathrooms and drafts.

Last weekend, as we drove around the off-campus areas where many MSU students live, we saw many, many houses in the process of sneezing.

I have never seen such a massive collection of crummy furniture at curbside. I felt sorry for the people whose job it is to pick up the trash.

All that aside, I agree with my daughter that her new home has a certain charm about it. It will be a worthy test of the dwellers' creativity.

I can't wait to see how it turns out.

The multiples are coming!

The long-standing cry for apartments and condominiums in the Clarkston area is now being answered in a big way.

Proposals for multiple dwellings are bursting forth at a fast pace. This week's Clarkston News includes stories on plans that have moved forward for two condominium projects (on Waterford Hill and Clarkston Road) and one apartment-condo proposal (on Maybee Road).

Recent final approvals have been granted for condominiums on Clarkston Road and for apartments on Dixie Highway, just north of Waterford Hill.

If the construction industry holds steady for a year or two, people in our community will have literally hundreds of opportunities to live in apartments or condos.

And if all the projects are built, the Clarkston area will face some dramatic changes.

We're pondering what will happen to school enrollment, police protection, fire protection and traffic. It only makes sense that each will feel the strain of rapid growth.

We continue to applaud Independence Township's planning commission, zoning board of appeals and township board for a willingness to "hang tough" when developers present plans. Details are vital to the future look and feel of our community.

And while we're glad the new types of housing will help many people enjoy our community when they are first starting out and when they reach the age when single-family residences are too much work, we can't help but feel a touch of panic.

We're not under siege exactly, but: The Multiples Are Coming!

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

I read somewhere, maybe even in this newspaper, it's good for the soul to admit you're wrong. It shows humility. It proves you're human. It makes you a better person.

I didn't get anywhere near through the list of my "wrongs," when it occurred to me I must have passed the point of gaining any possible good, humbleness, or happier life.

Wrong? I've been wrong more times than Carter has pills. In this column I'll just deal with errors I've made in predicting what people would accept. For instance, seeing how easy my mother starched clothes before ironing, I couldn't believe Niagara would even introduce such a product in spray form.

Men would certainly never use a hair spray, put contact lens in their eyes, or wear a necklace. Now, furgoshsakes, every pitcher in the major leagues has added tucking his gold necklace in his blouse as part of the pre-pitch ritual along with tugging his pants, pulling the bill of his cap and spitting.

Having beaten the Japs in WWII, never would a red-blooded, flag waving American buy an automobile made by them. I never said we wouldn't buy Italian or German, which probably tells me something about my prejudices.

I said no one in their right mind would pay 70 cents for a doughnut, $15,000 for a Ford, or spend money on electric golf carts.

Add to that "recreational list", never use colored golf balls, metal woods, rent space on a racquetball court, or use exercise equipment except when ordered by a doctor.

By now, you realize how wrong I've been about so many things. Had I been around at the time, I would have scoffed at the iron horse, horseless carriages and probably the wheel.

But, that is by no means the end of the list. I never believed wide ties or narrow neckties would sell at the time each was introduced. I said stores that specialize in just greeting cards couldn't make it and neither would 10 minute oil changes, instant printing shops, or a place that sold only Mexican food.

No one would ever give up the charcoal flavor of a grilled steak, and buy a gas grill. And, who would be so lazy they would pay for a car wash when it cost nothing to wash your own?

Instant coffee? Are you kidding me? Percolated coffee had the only 'real coffee' flavor. And, what made Mr. Rich of Coffee Rich fame think anyone would go for an imitation cream?

Frozen foods would never sell. The flavor is frozen out of them. And, why are they building all these restaurants? People will never give up home cooking!

School teachers, doctors, police and firemen go on strike? Never! Tanning salons were surely a joke, as were tubeless tires, paper towels and credit cards.

Wonder how long the list would be of things I expected would make it, and did? Tuck in your necklace and write your batting average.

Easy on drunks?

When Michigan citizens get tired of the drunk driving problem, they will likely see that laws and courts get tough. In some instances that seems to be taking place.

Drunk driving isn't peculiar to Michigan. It happens all over the world. You might be interested in this information regarding drunk drivers:

In no civilized country are drunk drivers as pampered as they are in America.

Australia sends the names of drivers to local newspapers and they are printed under the heading, "He's Drunk and In Jail."

The Malayans jail drunk drivers--and if he's married, the wife is jailed, too.

South Africa gives them a 10-year prison sentence and the equivalent of a $10,000 fine -- or both.

In Turkey, police take drunk drivers (before the trial) 20 miles from town and force them to walk back, under escort.

In Norway, offenders get three weeks in jail at hard labor, one year loss of license. Second offense within five years -- license revoked for life.

In Costa Rica, police remove license plates from the car itself.

In Russia, drunk drivers have their licenses revoked for life.

England gives one-year suspension and $250 fine, with up to one year jail term.

French drunk drivers lose their licenses for three years, get a year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Letters to the editor

Sue who?

Chris:

Whatever happened to Sue Lovelady, you ask? Sue's family moved to Indiana last year. She's been back a lot, though, even for a quick trip to Acapulco for spring break with "the girls."

Sue is around, and I'm sure if you look carefully at various sporting events throughout the year, she'll be there supporting the home team. Thanks for asking about Sue Lovelady.

Now I have a question for you: Whatever happened to Clarkston's star volleyball and soccer player of last year, Sue Kithil? I know!

P.S. Instead of season tickets to Holly basketball, how about a pair of Clarkston Homecoming football game tickets. Now there's a game to see!

Uplifting silence

Jim Fitzgerald

At the bottom of the printed program, it said: "The audience is requested to remain seated during the playing of the Interlochen Theme and to refrain from applause upon its completion."

The band conductor made an announcement to the same effect: No hand clapping at the end of the concert. And earlier a member of the band had cautioned me that everyone was supposed to be quiet after the final number.

It's easy to understand why the request for silence must be repeated several times. When the music ended, I didn't just want to applaud. I wanted to stand up on my chair and yell, like when a Tiger hits a bases-loaded home run.

It was an outdoor concert at the National Music Camp in Interlochen, and it never stopped raining. That was good. The audience was allowed to crowd onto the roofed stage and sit or stand in horseshoe formation close behind the 100-piece band. It was the nearest I've come to being in show business.

BY CHANCE - plus some adroit maneuvering - I was able to sit directly behind the only female red-haired flute player in the band. I had a great view of the back of her head as it nodded in time to the music. I could see how intently she was watching the conductor for the signal for the flute players to join in. Then she put the flute to her mouth, leaned closer to her music stand, and...

I was reminded of that marvelous scene at the end of "The Music Man" when Professor Hill's boys band finally makes some music. "That's my boy!" a parent of one of the musicians shouted. I wanted to shout "That's my girl!"

Actually, she was my 13-year-old granddaughter, Melissa. And at first I felt foolish about feeling so proud. Then I noticed her mother and grandmother were crying for joy, and her father was grinning completely around his head. And everybody else in the audience was reacting in a similarly goofy manner to their boy or girl.

Splendid things are accomplished at this internationally famous music camp. Melissa's group was there for two weeks, during which time they were known as the University of Michigan All-State Intermediate Band, conducted by Lynn Hansen. The young musicians, in grades seven through 10 from all over the state, had of course never played music together before arriving at Interlochen.

BUT OH, MY, how they played on that rainy Sunday afternoon. I was reminded again that there is pop music - the pleasant stuff to which I drum my fingers on piano bars - and there is real music, the classical sound that exalts the spirit and fires the emotions.

The All-State Intermediate Band played two selections full of marvelous crescendos. The brass sang and boys beat on drums bigger than they were. My skin prickled and my eyes moistened. Veteran professional pop musicians never stir me that much. But a bunch of school kids - amateur musicians just beginning to learn their instruments - made me tingle all over.

It was an astonishing experience. All hail to Interlochen. This summer, more than 1,300 students from 47 states and 28 countries are learning how to make better music on its 1,400 wooded acres. It is a farm that produces a huge annual crop of pleasure to be enjoyed by countless people for countless years.

It is tradition, I guess, that discourages applause at the close of concerts that signal the end of camp sessions. There is much joy in having made the music, but the silence reflects the tinge of sadness felt by the youngsters who walk off into the woods knowing they may never play music together again, and there may never again be a summer like this one.

To cheer everyone up, I kidnapped a red-haired flute player and took her home with me for a few days.

Pass the baton—please!

Carolyn Walker

Random thoughts from a tired mind:

As far as I'm concerned, this has been the worst season yet for allergies. I envy you people out there who are non-sufferers.

Scout land question draws crowd

By Chris Gerbasi

Maybe the Girl Scouts shouldn't knock on too many doors in Springfield Township.

Angered by a Scouts lawsuit against the township, about 50 residents packed in the township hall for this month's board meeting Sept. 10.

On the agenda was the discussion of a possible consent judgment with the Girl Scouts for a R1 rezoning, which is for single family residences.

Early this year, the Michigan Metro Girl Scouts requested that 188 acres, bordered by Hillsboro Road and Crosby Lake Road, be rezoned from recreational to R3 residential.

R3 lots are 20,000 square feet with 1,200-square-foot houses and R1 lots are 57,600 square feet with 1,500-square-foot houses.

The R3 request was rejected 3-2 by the board and a lawsuit against the township followed. The suit named Supervisor Collin Walls, Treasurer Pat Kramer and Trustee William Whitley, who voted against the request.

Last week, citizens expressed concern that the board may be giving into the Scouts and that the Scouts may be circumventing normal rezoning procedures.

"Why consent or even consider consenting if you thought you were right in the first place?" asked resident Murray Glazer.

"We are not going to approve their original request," said Walls. "The lot sizes are different and, in my mind, that makes a difference."

The Scouts have already sold the property for residential use and need the rezoning.

Walls motioned to send the Scouts a proposal with three points:

1. The township will agree to change the zoning on 188 acres from recreational to R1.

2. Any development which takes place on that or any other property is subject to the provision of all township ordinances.

3. Any change in zoning which might take place in the normal course of the legislative process would be valid and the consent judgment would not take priority over that zoning process.

After about a 45-minute discussion, the motion was carried by a 5-0 vote.

"Due process has been circumvented because you decided to rezone because of the lawsuit," said Tom Rabette of Big Lake Road. "Is this setting a dangerous precedent?"

"I would not have made the motion if I did not believe it was the right thing to do," said Walls. "The fact that I was individually named in the lawsuit has not altered my review of this or my decision of this."

Residents were angered that board members were named in the suit, but were also upset that they didn't know about the suit in the first place.

"We were completely in the dark until there was a little blurb about it in the paper that a suit had been filed," said Rabette.

"I'm appalled (at the suit)," said Peter Marchbank of Shaeffer Road. "It's a sham, it's below the dirtiest thing I've ever seen done."

The board's proposal will go to the Scouts and if they're agreeable, it would come back to the board at next month's meeting and the township would approve the deal, said Walls.

"I think an amendment should be added to tell the Scouts to go back to the planning commission or go to h---," Rabette said.

"That's as plain as you've been all evening," joked Walls.

After the discussion, Rabette said, "The Girl Scouts are not going to sell a lot of cookies next year in Springfield Township."

Incentives get district $370,000

The Clarkston school district expects to receive about $370,000 this school year from the state for meeting incentive requirements for class sizes and graduation.

About $120,000 (or $12 per pupil) will result from an average class size of 23.7125 in grades kindergarten, first and second. In order to qualify, the teacher-pupil ration must average a minimum of 25 to one.

About $150,000 (or $29 per pupil) will result from high school graduation requirements that will go into effect in 1988-89.

Incentive money for meeting suggestions from the State Department of Education began about two years ago, said Superintendent Milford Mason.

According to Mason, the program is an offshoot of the Headlee Amendment, which requires the state to pay districts for mandated programs.

By using the incentive method, the state can encourage programs by paying for a portion of the cost of their implementation, he said.

Commission asks for stipulations

They include a bond for landscaping; deceleration, acceleration and passing lanes off Clarkston Road; and a properly engineered water system resolved with the township board.

Instead of a central water system, the developers propose four wells and a pond with a dry hydrant to service the site. But they must receive a variance from the board to proceed.

Fire Marshall Gar Wilson attended the meeting and confirmed that the proposal was satisfactory for the fire department, unless the site should be enlarged or the immediate area should be developed.

Subsequently, the commission also requested in the motion that the developers present a letter to the fire department saying they would expand the water system if the project is expanded.

Voting to recommend a PUD were Betty Jo Fussman, Brent Bair, Joseph Figa and John Gray. Holly Stephens voted against the motion saying she was opposed to the zoning, not the project. Carol Balzarini also voted against the motion without comment.

Chairman Neil Wallace, an attorney, abstained because he is involved in a lawsuit with one of the developers.

Recall rescinded

With the recall of teacher Richard Erhardt, the layoff list for Clarkston school teachers has dwindled to seven.

Erhardt taught social studies full time for six months during the 1985-86 school year at Clarkston Junior High School. He is now on staff at Clarkston High School as a social studies teacher.

The recall was made after former CHS social studies teacher Gary Nustead officially resigned the day before school started.

Nustead had been on a leave of absence two years, and his request to extend the leave one more year was denied, said administrative assistant Conrad Bruce.

The current layoff list includes six secondary school teachers and three of those are industrial arts teachers whose positions are not likely to reopen, Bruce said. Also on the list is one special education teacher.

Auditor's praise

The speed with which the Clarkston school district's books were audited is an indication of good record-keeping, according to auditor Fred Hailer of Plante and Moran of Southfield.

Speaking to the board of education Sept. 8, Hailer noted that the district's fiscal year ended June 30 and the 28-page audit report was completed July 25.

"I think that speaks well of the condition of the district," he said, calling the time spent "about the best evidence about how good the records are out here."

"I think they're in very good shape," he added.

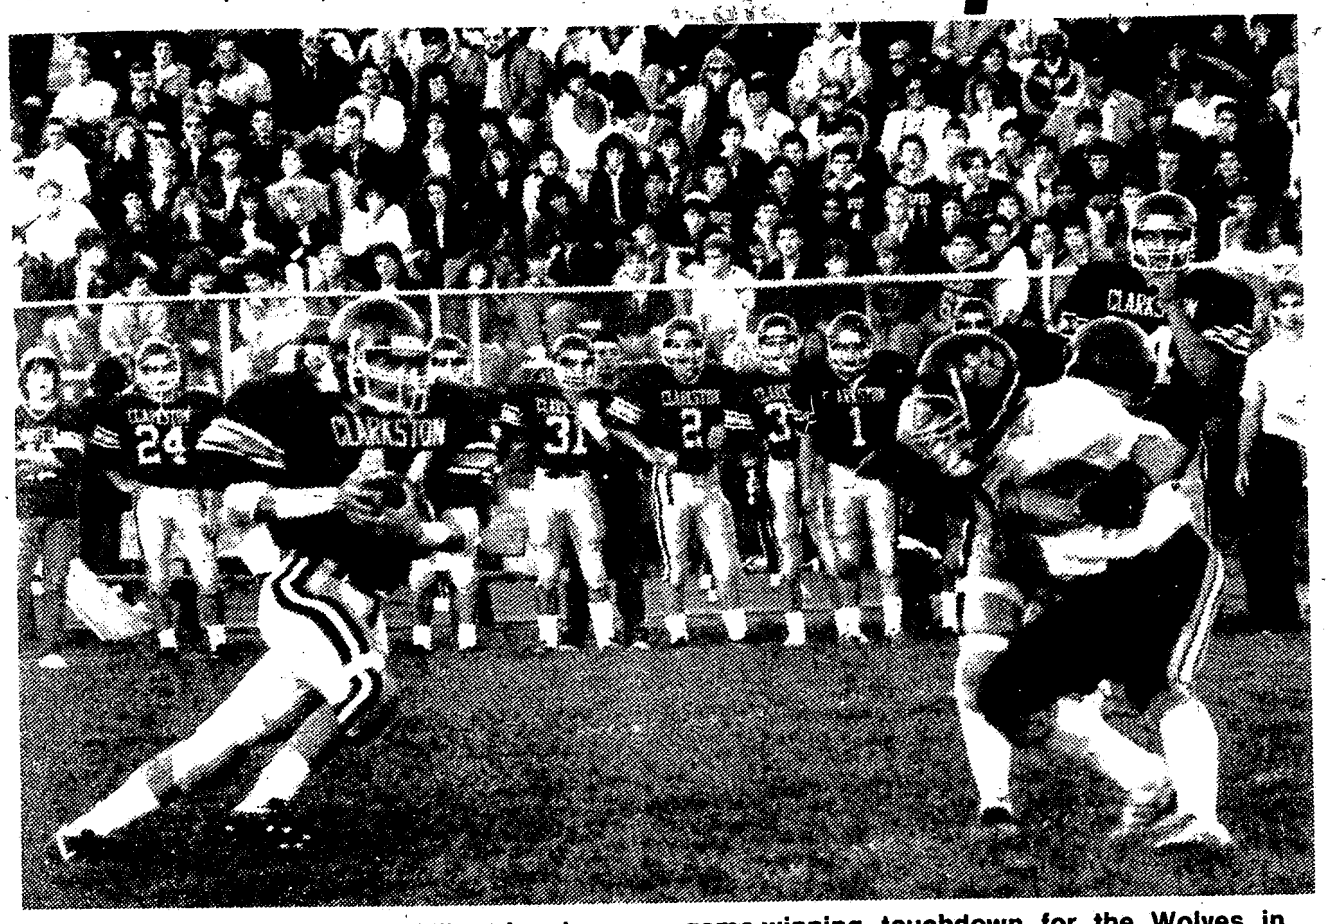
Wolves double pleasure, 19-13



Clarkston running back Mike Gilbert heads up field against South Lyon. Gilbert scored the game-winning touchdown for the Wolves in double overtime and gained 96 yards.

By Chris Gerbasi

It took awhile, but perseverance finally paid off for Clarkston's football team against South Lyon last Friday night.

Down 6-0 in the fourth quarter, the Wolves came back. When the Lions passed up a game-winning two-point try, the Wolves hung on. And when running back Mike Gilbert plunged in from four yards out, the Wolves had won, 19-13, in double overtime.

"We knew we could do it if we put our minds to it," said Clarkston head coach Walt Wyniemko.

"To have to come from behind and work hard like that takes a lot of courage," he said. "And they worked very hard for it."

Gilbert scored in the second overtime after the Wolves had held South Lyon on its set of four downs. Each team had scored a touchdown in the first overtime and converted extra points.

"There was a big hole," Gilbert said of his touchdown. "The line was blocking good all night. They're (South Lyon) a good team. They hit harder than Romeo."

After the Wolves won, 34-21, in their opener against Romeo, it was surprising to see 0-0 on the scoreboard at halftime. But the Lions won eight games last year and Clarkston would have its hands full.

The closest threat for either team in the half was by the Wolves. Gilbert ran for 42 yards to the Lions 20 late in the first quarter, but they could move no farther. Gilbert finished with 96 yards on 10 carries.

Clarkston controlled the ball at the start of the third quarter for 7:22, but all for naught. A seven-

Hoopsters win twice more, but it hurts

By Chris Gerbasi

The only setbacks for Clarkston's girls basketball team last week came in the way of player losses.

The Wolves won twice on the court, but lost starter Gina Houck to a knee injury and backup Ali Fedio to pneumonia.

Coach Dave McDonald said Fedio may be out a couple of weeks and he was awaiting word on the extent of Houck's injury.

Houck hurt her knee on the last play of Clarkston's 57-47 victory at Rochester Adams Sept. 11. McDonald said her knee "popped." She had been wrapping it and wearing a brace this season after injuring it this summer.

Sports

Houck's mishap took some of the luster off the Wolves' fourth straight win. They had also defeated West Bloomfield, 46-25, Sept. 9.

Against Adams, Missy Odell poured in 20 points and had 14 rebounds. Michele Wyniemko complemented her with 12 points and 10 rebounds and Lisa Ladd added 10 points.

"We blitzed them early and then things got tight," said McDonald.

Clarkston jumped out to a 17-3 lead at the start of the game. Eventually, the Highlanders pulled to within six points in the fourth quarter and the Wolves had to hang on.

"It was physical, believe me, it was physical," McDonald said.

"Lisa Ladd had a big night. She ran the team real well against their pressure man-to-man," he said. "And we maintained the good break and we're still scoring points."

Clarkston scored more than enough points against West Bloomfield (1-1). The Lakers, one of the top teams in the county a year ago, seemed to have some early-season shooting problems.

The Wolves led throughout and held West Bloomfield scoreless for the first 5:30 of the contest. They led by eight at the half and the Lakers didn't get any closer.

"What hurt us was the fast break," said West Bloomfield coach Mike Green. "We gave up eight, 10, 12 points off that. I think we got tired. They kept coming and pushing it up the floor."

McDonald enjoyed Clarkston's defensive effort.

Michele Wyniemko shoots over Julie Hines of West Bloomfield in Clarkston's 46-25 victory last week. Wyniemko scored eight points that night and had 12 in a win over Rochester Adams.

"We had an off shooting night, but we did the other things well," he said. "Michelle Baker really makes the defense go, you don't know all the little things she's doing out there."

Odell had a game-high 10 points for the Wolves. Wyniemko had eight, Jane Selent came off the bench for seven points and Houck scored six. Julie Hines led the Lakers with seven points.

yard touchdown run by Stacy Turner was wiped out by a holding penalty and the Wolves came up just short on a long fourth down pass.

South Lyon then broke the scoreless tie with a big play. Quarterback Mike Skatzka hit Mark Hoorn with a short pass, but Hoorn found himself all alone and outraced the defense for a 69-yard score. Skatzka's two-point pass was overthrown.

The Wolves had three unsuccessful drives, but then they took over on a punt on their own 46 with 5:44 left in the game.

On first down, quarterback Josh Newblatt connected over the middle to Craig Chamberlain and he went 54 yards for the tying score. The extra point snap bounced out of holder Mark Galan's hands.

"It was a great pass, a great catch and he knew what to do with it once he got it," said Wyniemko.

"It was just a post play," said Chamberlain. "It was a perfect pass. Coach (Marty) Martinez called the play and (receiver Dan) Jokisch said the post should work; if we ran it, it would go."

After a Jokisch interception, Clarkston had a late chance to win. The Wolves moved down to the Lions' 11 with 1:40 remaining.

But a sack and a penalty pushed them back to the 20 and Jim Turk missed a 37-yard field goal try with 56 seconds left.

"You can't commit turnovers and penalties like we did," Wyniemko said. "You can't afford to that against a good team like that."

On the first overtime possession, Stacy Turner ran nine yards around left end and Turk kicked the extra point to put Clarkston up 13-6.

Skatzka came back on the Lions possession with a 10-yard reverse screen to Darren Warford. After a timeout, South Lyon coach Bob Scheloske decided to settle for the extra point and Steve Atchison's kick sent the game into a second overtime.

The Lions went on offense first in double overtime. They had a touchdown pass to Hoorn called back because of illegal motion and Atchison eventually missed a 32-yard field goal. That set up Gilbert's dive on a third down play.

Clarkston held South Lyon to just three first downs and 146 total yards.

Newblatt completed 10 of 16 passes for 131 yards. Four of those went to Chamberlain for 70 yards. Turner carried the ball 20 times for 79 yards.

Crystal clear Football weekend

Chris Gerbasi

Anyone who reads this column on a regular basis pretty much knows what I do each weekend. I was going to go to New York last week, but then I heard it was a "Rock Party Weekend," so I had to stay.

Actually, for me, it was a "Football Party Weekend."

FRIDAY: It's good to cover a football team that's not dull. At least Clarkston hasn't been dull yet.

In their first game, the Wolves scored 34 points and their second game went into double overtime. The game this week is at the Silverdome and that should be a highlight in itself. Not a bad start.

It's hard to find a high school team that's consistently interesting. But the Wolves can run, they can pass and against South Lyon they showed they could play tough defense.

And the two games have featured big plays. Fans love to see long touchdowns and they've already seen a good share. Stacy Turner had two long runs in the first game. Mike Gilbert broke a lengthy run last week and Clarkston got a clutch 54-yard pass play late against South Lyon.

Of course, the Wolves have given up some big plays, too. They like to keep things interesting.

SATURDAY: This day I knew that fall is here and it's football time again because Michigan and Notre Dame played each other on national television.

Michigan got every break imaginable and I loved it because usually, no, almost always, Notre Dame gets the breaks.

I despise Notre Dame above all other things. It's difficult to explain this hatred. It's almost inborn.

It's just that the Irish have always been ridiculously overpublicized whether they're good or bad and in my short lifetime I've seen the headline "Luck of the Irish prevails" enough times to make my face turn green.

They've got a "holier than thou" attitude and I'm glad their luck ran out Saturday. It'd be a shame if they lost the rest of their games.

SUNDAY: In retrospect, it was a mistake. I said to myself, "Yes, I want to see the Lions-Cowboys game. Yes, I want to see Herschel Walker. Yes, maybe the Lions will win like last year."

No, no, no. It was terrible. Feel fortunate that the game was blacked out on local television. The Lions were just plain awful.

It's a running joke among me and my friends: It's like someone came up to me and said, "Hey, just give me $20 and you can go watch the Lions get killed against Dallas," and I said, "Yeah, that sounds great, here's my money!"

And as if the game wasn't enough of a torture to endure, me and Greg Eno had to put up with the incompetent Silverdome parking situation.

The place has been open for 11 years and the Lions have never done anything to improve the way cars go in and out of the parking lot.

Sunday, the top flight parking attendants waved in a couple thousand extra cars, whose drivers were then left to create their own parking spots.

When we tried to do that, we were told to move on. Some fisticuffs could have broken out and then I would have been involved in an ugly scandal which would have made headlines in papers across the country.

Anyway, the point is, ultimately, the Lions management doesn't care about the fans. Only their money.

Cougars roll over Clarkston

"That was probably the best game Sashabaw's played in a long time," said Clarkston Junior High girls basketball coach Dennis Bronson.

"You betcha," said Sashabaw coach Jayne Bannister.

Sashabaw survived a second quarter Clarkston rally and poured it on in the second half to down the Wolverines, 52-31, Monday night.

The Cougars were smoother on the court and it showed on the scoreboard.

"That's the way I expected my girls to play," Bannister said. "I knew they had it in them and I'm glad they showed it tonight."

The first quarter featured more screaming than scoring in the cozy Clarkston gym, where the fans' shouting reverberated all game long.

Sashabaw led, 11-4, after one and increased its lead to 20-7 in the second quarter. The Wolverines then scored six straight points and trailed just 25-19 at the half.

That would be as close as they would get. The Cougars went up 37-23 going into the final quarter and were never seriously threatened.

It was the Wolverines' first game of the season after Howell canceled its game last week.

"We weren't ready," said Bronson. "Offensively and defensively we came out extremely flat. It was opening game jitters. We're not that bad and we'll do better than that."

Sashabaw had lost its first game by nine points to Milford last week.

"They were concentrating and they didn't do that in the first game," Bannister said.

Christy Graham scored 12 points and Emily Zubalik had nine for the Cougars. Erin McAuliffe hit for 10 and Rhonda Jokisch added eight points for Clarkston.

Soccer team kicks off with tourney win

By Chris Gerbasi

The defense did not rest for Clarkston's soccer team as it shut out Lake Fenton, 2-0, to win the Springfield Christian Tournament last Friday.

Mark Whitcomb got the whitewash in goal, and tourney Most Valuable Player Zack Brown scored the only goal the Wolves would need in the first half. Matt Beamer added another tally in the second half.

"I think we have an outstanding defense this year," said Clarkston coach Neil Granlund. "I think there'll be a lot of improvement as the season goes on."

The Wolves had previously held Lapeer West to one goal in a 6-1 victory Sept. 10. Beamer and Rob Laurie had two goals each in that contest.

They opened the Springfield Christian tourney with a wild 6-5 win over Brandon Sept. 9.

The game was tied at four at halftime and the Blackhawks went ahead in the second half, 5-4.

Clarkston then got two quick goals from Greg Cherniak and Laurie with 10 minutes left in the game. Curt Caruso scored the first three goals for the Wolves.

Clarkston (3-0) could have faced SCA in the championship game, but the Eagles lost to Lake Fenton, 5-4, in a shootout.

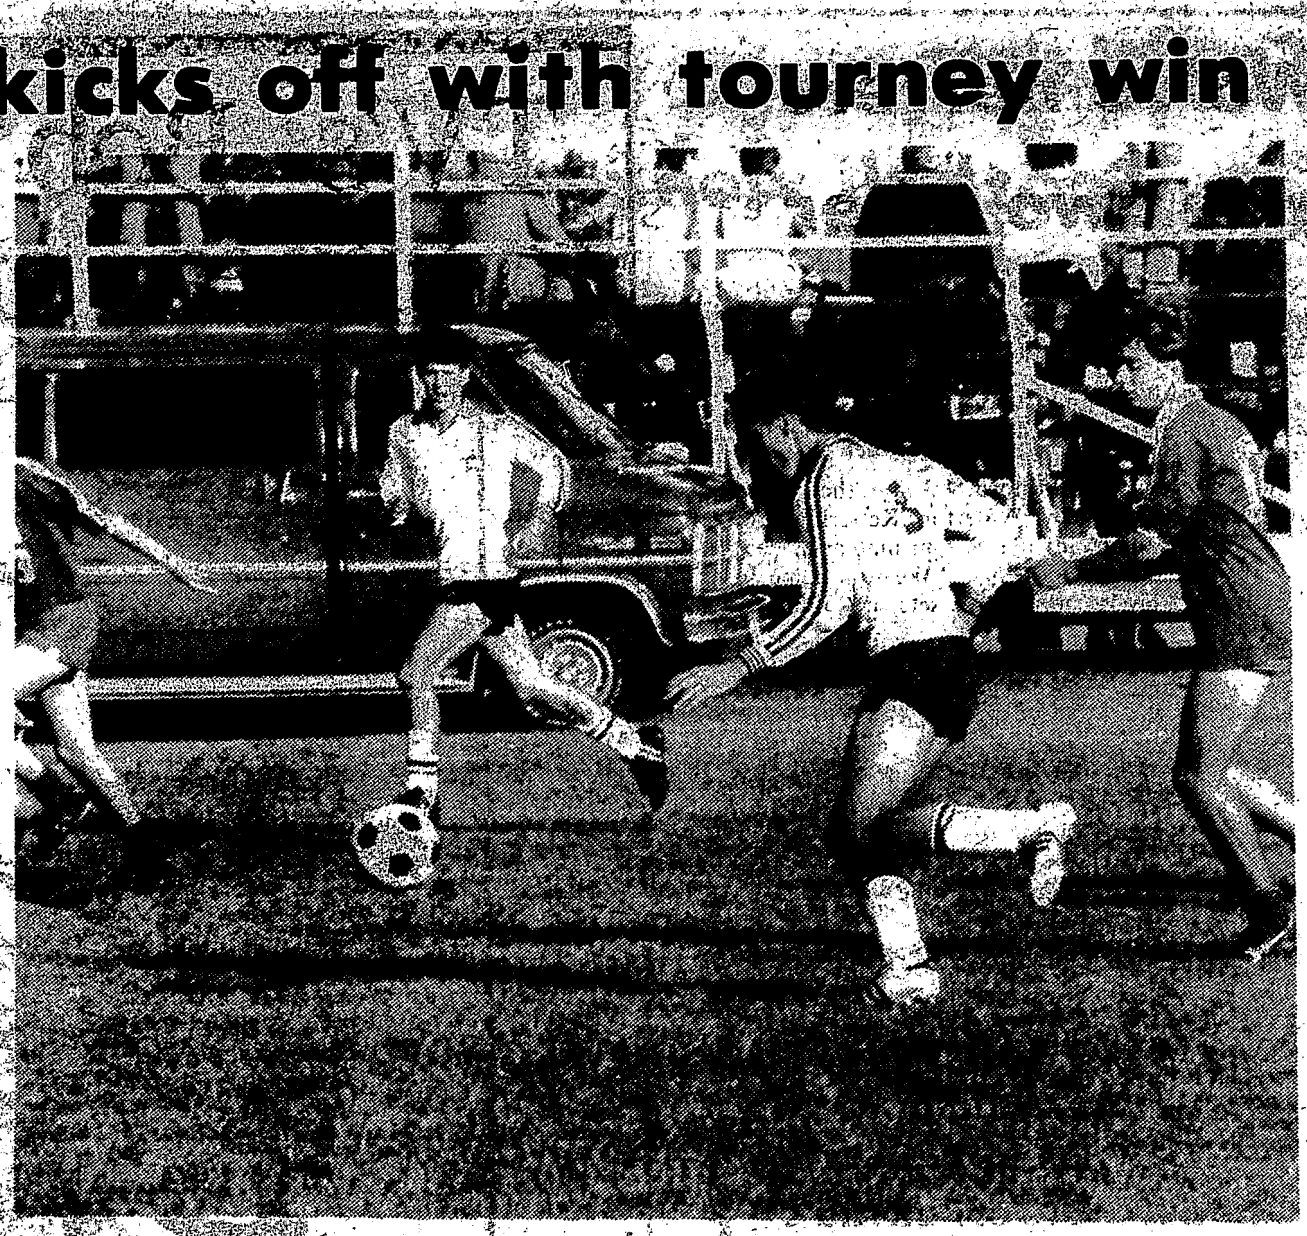
The three-hour game was tied 3-3 after regulation and 4-4 after two overtimes. Lake Fenton then won the shootout, 2-1.

Brandon downed Springfield Christian, 3-1, in the consolation game Friday. Jim Adams scored his 26th goal of the season for the Eagles, who are now 9-2.

In the championship game, the Wolves' defense, led by Brown, was too much for Lake Fenton.

"Zack is a defensive player, but he sometimes gets into a scoring position and I tell him to go for it," said Granlund.

"Our forwards are passing well and that has a lot to do with our success so far," he said. "I have to be pleased so far, but a tougher schedule is coming up the next two weeks."



The Wolves bring the ball upfield against Lake Fenton in soccer action last Friday. Clarkston won, 2-0, to win the Springfield Christian Academy tournament. The Wolves have started the season with a 3-0 record.

Wolve netters win two after opening loss

After an opening-season loss to Milford, Clarkston's netters rebounded with two victories last week.

The Wolves lost to Milford, 4-3, and then swept both Pontiac Northern and Waterford Kettering, 7-0.

"Milford had already played four matches," said Clarkston coach Dick Swartout. "We won some in three sets and lost some in three sets, it was pretty close."

Three of the Wolves' top four singles players are undefeated. Number one Ashley Adams, No. 3 Rhonda Bowes and No. 4 Shelley Rood have won each of their matches.

The number one doubles team of Kim Morris and Martina Stahl and the number two team of Jenny DuPree and Kristin Allison are both 2-1. Swartout has rotated the players in his third doubles team.

"They're all playing just about the way I thought they would," Swartout said.

Cougars blow by Wolverines

For two and a half quarters, Sashabaw Junior High was a better football team than Clarkston Junior High.

No one will ever know what might have happened during the remaining time.

The Cougars won a shortened game over the Wolverines, 14-0, when the contest was called because of a tornado warning.

"The sky lit up, there were large clouds and everyone was evacuated," said Clarkston coach Steve Himburg. "We ended up in the boiler room of the junior high."

Sashabaw lit up the scoreboard early on a 60-yard touchdown run by Rich Johnson with 9:04 left in the first quarter. The Cougars then made the two-point conversion.

The teams exchanged turnovers through the rest of the half until Sashabaw scored again with just 23 seconds remaining.

On a fourth down and four play at the Clarkston five, Cougar Dane Davis rolled right. He faked the pass and then ran it in to the corner of the end zone. Davis' two-point pass to John Anderson was incomplete.

"This was a big win for us, because they're our crosstown rivals," said Sashabaw coach Kurt Richardson. "It was bad that it ended that way. I think both teams wanted to finish it out."

"We made a lot of mistakes, a lot of turnovers, it was terrible," said Himburg. "We only had 17 offensive plays. They controlled the ball."

One bright spot for the Wolverines was nose guard Bill Kruger, who had 10 solo tackles.

Sashabaw's Dane Davis rolls right against the Clarkston defense. Davis faked a pass and took the ball into the corner of the end zone as the Cougars went on to win, 14-0.

Johnson finished with 86 yards on six carries for the Cougars.

The teams will square off again in the last game of the season, Oct. 29. Both teams will want to see who's better over four quarters.

"We'll want to get them even more to prove to them it wasn't just a shortened game," Richardson said. "It'll be a good one next time."

Mason empathetic

By Kathy Greenfield

Recent knee surgery has left Clarkston schools Superintendent Milford Mason with an appreciation for what handicapped people go through.

Mason is on crutches as his knee heals from surgery performed Sept. 5, and he expects to continue using the crutches for about eight weeks.

His hands sport new callouses and he said he's still trying to figure out how to gracefully get in and out of the shower. He can't maneuver the crutches and a cup of coffee at the same time, and the spring-loaded doors at the administration office, curbs and steps are sources of frustration.

The surgery, which was performed at a hospital on a outpatient basis, was to remove bone chips from his right knee socket and grind down the socket to make it smooth. He has four small incisions.

Innumerable people have asked if the problem was caused by an old football injury. Mason said, and the answer is he doesn't know what caused it.

"I played high school athletics and I played basketball in college for two years—at that point in time, I didn't walk away with any injuries that I know of," he said.

Dull pain was the first indication that something was amiss, and then his knee began locking.

Mason's admission to the hospital was his first.

"I have to look at the fortunate side. I've been very good health-wise," he said, "so we're back to business as usual."

His practice of stopping into the office of fellow adminstrators has been curtailed, however. Instead, he usually has to ask his staff members to come to him.

"It's been quite an experience," he said. "I'm not getting around as fast, and I'm not getting around to the buildings like I'd like to . . . but physically it doesn't hamper how I drive a desk."

Rhinos win attack

The Flying Rhinos had a Big Mac Attack and raced their buns off this past weekend.

The cycling club, based at the Kinetic Systems bike shop in Clarkston, won the four-person, 170-mile race from Mount Pleasant to Mackinac. It was the Fifth Annual Big Mac Attack race.

The Rhinos team consisted of Joe Matthews of Rochester Hills, Greg Bugala of Fenton, Keith Jacober of Ann Arbor and Dave Belton of Rochester.

Each member started four minutes apart and the team's cumulative time was 7 hours, 43 minutes. It is the first time the Rhinos have won. The foursome trained throughout the summer for the race.

Ten teams competed and traveled up Old US 27, through Claire, Houghton Lake, Grayling, Gaylord, Cheboygan and into Mackinac.

Meet the author

Birmingham author Margaret Hillert plans a special appearance at the Village Book Store this Saturday, Sept. 20.

The Author Signing Party is scheduled from 1 to 3 p.m. at 26 S. Main, Clarkston. Refreshments will be served.

Although Hillert does appear for speaking engagements, she rarely schedules autograph sessions, said bookstore manager Carol Nicolai.

The party, planned to coincide with Crafts and Cider, came about after the author visited the bookstore last year.

A variety of Hillert's works, which include 55 children's books and 11 poetry books for children, have been sold at the bookstore for a number of years.

"We point them out as being excellent beginning reader books," said Nicolai, who describes the author as "a delightful lady."

Hillert's career as a primary school teacher began in 1948 for Royal Oak public schools and she is now retired from the district. She has won numerous awards from the Poetry Society of Michigan.

On hand during the signing party will be her newest work, "Action Verse," a book of finger plays and body movement for preschoolers to 6-year-olds.

CUISINE COMEDY: In the restaurant scene from "Bullshot Crummond," Dennis Fitzpatrick [left] and Richard Williams ham it up on the Depot Theatre stage. The comedy, a parody of 1930s low-budget grade "B" detective movies, completes its two-weekend run Friday and Saturday, Sept. 19 and 20. The play was performed seven times last spring and it's back by popular demand with the same cast, said director John Witherup. Curtain time is 8 p.m. at the theater on White Lake Road, Independence Township. Tickets are $5. They may be purchased at Tierra Arts on Main Street, Clarkston, or by calling 363-0188 or 625-4859.

Dance lessons

If square dancing is your forte or a desired skill, the Independence Squares club can provide lessons and entertainment.

The Clarkston-based club offers weekly lessons for beginners and Mainstream-plus starting Thursday, Sept. 25, from 8 to 10 p.m. The first night is free.

Classes meet at the Waterford CAI Building, 5640 Williams Lake Rd., Waterford Township. Instructor is Jim Thompson, the club's caller.

Square dances for those at the Mainstream and Mainstream-plus levels begin Saturday, Oct. 4, at Clarkston Junior High School. Dances are held the first, third and fifth Saturdays from October through April.

To kick off the square dance season, "Just Friends" will appear at the club's Oct. 4 dance at 8 p.m. The four women sing and play hammer dulcimers, guitars, banjos, harps, mandolin and stand-up base.

Tickets are $6 at the door. For more information, call 373-1394.

Library makes used book plea

There's a place for used books—donate them to the Independence Township Library for its annual used book sale planned in late October.

Hardcover and paperback books in good condition are now being accepted at the library at 6495 Clarkston Rd. on Mondays through Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. and on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Books on any topic will be accepted, with the exception of textbooks, National Geographics or condensed books.

The Clarkston Masonic Temple at the corner of Main and Washington streets will be the site of the sale.

Iron

Iron is essential and required for life. It is necessary for the production of hemoglobin (red blood corpuscles), myoglobin (red pigment in muscles), and certain enzymes.

Iron and calcium are the two major dietary deficiencies of American women. Only about 8 percent of your total iron intake is absorbed and actually enters your bloodstream.

In one month women lose almost twice as much iron as men do. Copper, cobalt, manganese and Vitamin C are necessary to assimilate iron. Iron is necessary for proper metabolism of B vitamins.

Iron aids growth, promotes resistance to disease, prevents fatigue, cures and prevents iron deficiency anemia, brings back good skin tone.

Deficiency disease is iron-deficiency anemia.

Best natural sources are dried peaches, egg yolks, nuts, beans, asparagus, molasses, oatmeal, red meat, oysters, raw clams, farina, and liver (yuk)!

Tree cutters stir wrath of Clarkston council

By Julie Campe

Two trees in the Village of Clarkston were cut down last month without village permission.

The Goldsmiths of Washington Street removed the catalpa trees that grew between the sidewalk and the road in front of their house.

After they cut the trees, they received a letter from the village council stating the trees were village property, and it was illegal to remove them. The council requested the Goldsmiths to appear at the next meeting to explain their actions.

They had no idea the trees were village property, said Donald Goldsmith at the Sept. 8 meeting.

They cut them because they were a nuisance with bark, leaves, and other tree material continuously falling into their yard and their neighbors' yards, he said, and they were told the trees were diseased.

The trees were also too close to the driveway and cars often bumped them, and during storms, branches fell and some have hit cars, he said.

Removing the trees was a solution to possible liability and danger problems as well as getting rid of the messy foliage, he said.

One tree was completely hollow, he added, and the other was partially hollow, so the initial diagnosis was correct.

The trees were on a list to be trimmed and not removed because the village's tree company said they weren't a danger to people, said Trustee James Schultz, so they weren't diseased enough to warrant removal.

"We spend a lot of money every year planting and maintaining trees," said Trustee Fontie Apmadoc. "We try to hold onto every tree as long as we can. To me, it was a crime to cut down the trees."

The council asked the Goldsmiths to adhere to the recommendation of the village tree committee—possibly to remove the stumps and replace the trees.

Donald Goldsmith agreed to comply with the ruling.

"It didn't even occur to us that this was village property," said Joanie Goldsmith after the meeting. "I love trees. I would never cut down a tree (if) that wasn't necessary.

"We're just waiting to hear what they want us to do about it and we're willing to do whatever they say. . . ," she said. "We want to make it right."

Snipping away

Workers carrying shears and clippers will be seen in Clarkston this fall. They'll snip dead or irregular branches from the village's trees.

The Clarkston Village Council unanamously approved spending $1,175 to pay the N.G. Gilbert Co. of Detroit to do the job.

Home demolition plans move ahead

Demolition plans are proceeding for what has been deemed a dangerous building in the Lake Maria Woods subdivision in Springfield Township.

Building owner Alan Krasinski did not meet certain deadlines and the board decided, 5-0, that he has run out of time.

At last month's meeting, he was given two weeks to secure a mortgage for the home, another week to get a building permit and a Nov. 1 deadline to finish the exterior of the house.

The board said it has not heard from Krasinski and that a mortgage has not been approved.

"They have not complied with the last meeting and there's been no communication," said trustee William Whitley. "It's been 11 months and nothing's happened. We've given them chance after chance after chance."

The township will now advertise for bids to demolish the house.

On to Traverse

Springfield Township Supervisor Collin Walls, planning commission member Joe Gorka and zoning board member Ina Golden will attend a Michigan Society of Planning Officials conference next month.

The trip to Traverse City was approved at the Sept. 10 board meeting. It is scheduled in October.

Mining request

A first reading was held last week for a rezoning request of 33 acres behind Pontiac Steel Co. on Dixie Highway.

The request is being made by Ben R. Hawkins, who wants the land rezoned from manufaturing to E-1, which allows mining.

At the first reading, some Springfield Township residents said they were concerned about the environmental impact a mining pit would have on the acreage.

The second reading for the rezoning request will be at the Oct. 8 township board meeting.

Cadman crowned

Beth Cadman had some free time so she decided to become Miss Springfield Township.

Well, it wasn't that easy, but she did have to squeeze the pageant into her busy schedule.

The Holly High senior was crowned Miss Springfield from a group of seven contestants Sept. 4. Along with the crown, she won a $500 educational scholarship.

"I was confident really," said Cadman, 17. "I was more excited than nervous."

Cadman rode in the Carry Nation Festival Parade in Holly Sept. 6 and will be in the township's Sesquicentennial Parade Oct. 4.

If the pageant had been held on a different day, Cadman may not have been in it. She keeps herself extremely busy with cross country, Powder Puff football, float construction for homecoming, a church youth group and, of course, homework.

The contestants had one day of rehearsal before the pageant.

"We didn't have meets on those days and Powder Puff didn't start until this week," she said. "I like to be involved in different things. We (her family) always have been."

Cadman thought she had a good chance to win the title until she realized that a couple of models were entered.

All of the contestants got together for a dance number, "Born in the USA," and then they modeled both a casual outfit and a formal gown.

They had to describe how the casual attire reflected their personalities and Cadman thinks her speech was a strong point.

She wore a white, linen skirt and a white sweater with a rainbow of colors.

"I said that my personality wasn't dark, it was full of colors and I said how each color was a different aspect of my personality," Cadman said.

That was good enough for the judges. First runner-up to Cadman was Heather Smith and second runner-up was Dawn Balhorn. They each received a $100 savings bond and the rest of the participants got $50 savings bonds.

Cadman will put her scholarship toward a career in fashion design or child pyschology, two diverse fields but what you could expect from a girl with so many interests.

She said she had a good time at the pageant. Just another day in her busy life.

Beth Cadman found time in her busy schedule to pose for this shot. The Miss Springfield winner was flagged down between cross country and Powder Puff football practice last week.

Boy Scouts share adventure

By Julie Campe

It was a real life adventure for Boy Scout Troop 49 of Clarkston this summer.

The group of five boys, two assistant scout masters and a chaperone spent five days hiking in the wilderness of Isle Royale last month.

Isle Royale is in the middle of Lake Superior, a five-hour boat ride from Copper Harbor in the Upper Peninsula to Rock Harbor on the island.

They hiked 45 miles, carrying food, tents, sleeping bags and clothes—everything they needed to survive.

They ate freeze-dried food, granola, instant oatmeal and gorp—a mixture of raisins, M&Ms, nuts and cereal.

Special program for women only

A special program for women is planned Saturday, Oct. 4, by the Clarkston United Methodist Church Women.

"New Beginnings: Keys to Unlocking God's Doors" will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the church on Waldon Road.

Several inspirational speakers will provide a selection of mini-sessions based on ideas from Robert Shuller's book "Tough Minded Faith for Tender Hearted People."

The fee is $8 if paid by Sept. 28. Lunch will be provided.

To register, send your name, phone number and the registration fee to Julie Hall, Registrar, in care of Clarkston United Methodist Church, 6600 Waldon Rd., Clarkston, MI 48016.

For more information, call the church office at 625-1611.

Independence birthday finale

An awards program is planned as the conclusion of Independence Township's Sesquicentennial festivities.

Awards will be given to an area citizen, volunteer and business person. An award will also be presented for historical preservation and property beautification.

The ceremony will be a breakfast at the Deer Lake Racquet Club in Independence Township with Clarkston resident Lewis Wint of the Lewis E. Wint & Son Funeral Home as master of ceremonies.

The awards program is to be held annually with the next ceremony planned during Michigan Week in May 1987.

Volunteers are needed to help organize the event. Contact Chris Downing, the Community Awards Committee chairperson, at Pontiac State Bank's downtown Clarkston branch.

Microwave-plus

Dorm room dining

Betty Wagner

Furnishings for college dorm rooms have changed. We now witness the "electronic habitat" with TVs, touchtone phones, computers, stereos, refrigerators and compact microwave ovens.

Beds are often placed on lofts to provide space for all these seemingly necessary electronic wonders.

Parents, who only a generation ago arrived at college with a typewriter and two suitcases, are amazed to see their children drive off to school in a van or truck loaded with modern day conveniences.

Having a microwave oven actually saves space because it eliminates a coffee pot, popcorn popper, hot plate and electric fry pan. And students need nourishment at odd hours when the cafeteria and dining room are closed.

Room refrigerators are small and full of milk and juice, so most of the following snack recipes use food that can be stored in a cupboard.

Most importantly, though, these refreshments require minimal preparation, cooking and clean-up time.

CHEESY HOT DOGS

Hot dogs take up very little freezer space if frozen separately and placed between and on top of the ice cube trays.

Be sure to wrap in moisture-vapor-proof plastic or aluminum foil and use within a month. If refrigerated, use within a week.

Remove foil and wrap one frozen hot dot in microsafe paper toweling. Microwave at high for 1 minute. Place dog in bun, top with grated cheese, rewrap and place on microsafe paper plate. Microwave for 20-30 seconds or until bun is warm.

If hot dog is not frozen, heat as above for 30-45 seconds before placing in bun.

STUFFED BAKED POTATO

1 large baking potato
1 jar cheese spread
Imitation bacon bits

Scrub potato well. Pierce with a fork to prevent exploding while cooking. Place on microsafe paper towel. Microwave at high power for 5 minutes.

Wrap in paper towel and let finish cooking for 5 minutes. Pop open and top with cheese and bacon bits. The cheese will melt from the heat of the potato.

Store raw potatoes in a cool, dry place, away from light but not in the refrigerator.

NACHOS

1 bag corn chips
1 container nacho cheese spread that needs no refrigeration
Taco sauce
Chili peppers, if desired
Sliced canned mushrooms, if desired

Spread chips on a large microsafe paper plate. Using a spatula, spread the cheese over the chips. Top with peppers and/or drained mushrooms. Microwave at high power for 1 minute or until cheese melts. Douse with taco sauce and enjoy!

PASTA MEALS

One-jar pasta meals are a new product that can be heated and served in the jar. Do not heat jars of food in the microwave that do not specifically give microwave heating directions; the jar may break or explode. Remove lid. Microwave according to directions on label. Do not overheat. Stir and eat.

SOUP

1 can chunky soup that needs no rehydration
1 microsafe mug

Place soup in mug. Microwave at high power for 1½ minutes or until desired serving temperature. Stir to distribute heat.

WARM COOKIE

For that fresh-baked taste in cookies, try this trick.

1 large or 2 small homebaked or bakery cookies
Microsafe paper toweling

Wrap cookie in paper toweling and heat in the microwave at high power for 15-20 seconds, or until just warm to the touch. Chocolate chips or fruit contained in the cookie will be hotter than the cookie.

POPCORN

Popping corn in the microwave seems to be a controversial subject.

The results are usually not as good as other methods and the price and calories per serving are often higher, but it is convenient for dorm room dwellers.

So if you must use your microwave oven as a corn popper, please follow these directions:

1. Use a microwave popcorn popper, not a casserole dish or paper bag;

2. Or use a package of microwave popcorn and follow the directions carefully. Do not leave the popping corn unattended.

Home economist Betty Wager, an Independence Township resident, is a graduate of West Virginia University. She hosts a weekly cable-TV show, called Microwave Plus, Mondays through Thursdays at 7 p.m. on Independence Township's channel 11.

Boy Scout trip

They had to filter or boil every drop of water they consumed because the water carried tapeworm larvae. But the weather was cool enough, so not many bugs bothered them. All in all, they enjoyed the hike and can't wait to try it again, they said.

What was the best part?

"Not fishing because we didn't catch any," said Jeremy Thompson.

He and Chris McAlister spent their free time casting their lines—but with no success.

"One of the best parts was seeing the fox," said Mike Crowley. "It came right up to us. It was as big as a wolf."

"The moose was pretty neat, too," said Chris.

And they all agree the best campground was Lake Desor in the middle of the island. It was a lake surrounded by trees, "like a birch wall," said Chris.

Already they're planning another adventure for next summer.

"You learn a lot about life and about confidence from this," said assistant scoutmaster Tom Thompson. "In the beginning, you wondered if you could make it up the first hill, and then you find you've gone the whole way."

Youth Assistance celebrates its 25th year

By Julie Campe

About 70 people gathered Monday in honor of the silver anniversary of the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee.

The group of volunteers was established in 1961 to develop programs to prevent juvenile delinquency in the Clarkston Community School District.

At the luncheon at the Clarkston United Methodist Church, the new officers for 1986-87 were introduced: Merelyn Mallet, chairperson; Jan Colbrunn, vice chairperson; Jackie Fromm, secretary; and Kay Robertson, treasurer.

Also honored were the Rev. Alex Stewart and Al Carter who have been active in the organization for 25 and 24 years respectively.

Since the inception of the committee, many programs have been developed.

A camping program provides financial aid to send about 80 kids to a week-long summer camp, as well as aid for several students to attend Clarkston SCAMP, a five-week day camp program for handicapped young people.

Family education programs include presentations on self-esteem, suicide prevention and motivation.

The shoplifting prevention program provides a presentation to every fifth-grade classroom in the district, accompanied by a film and question-and-answer period.

The committee also provides a counselor for children and their parents if they begin to experience problems. Referrals to the conselor are made in an attempt to prevent contact with the juvenile court.

PLUS establishes a one-to-one relationship between a volunteer and a child who needs an extra supportive relationship.

The group also sponsors a youth recognition banquet to honor area children who contribute to the community by performing outstanding volunteer work or an act of heroism.

After the 25th annual meeting Monday, Clarkston Youth Assistance Chairperson Merelyn Mallet speaks to Richard Stasys, supervisor of Oakland County Youth Assistance.

A youth assistance subcommittee, the Clarkston Area Chemical People, provides a follow-up to the Toma visit by paying for substance abuse prevention training at elementary and junior high school levels.

They also organize a post-prom breakfast to reduce the number of students who "drink and drive."

Why can't teen drug abuse be prevented?

Dear Cat Paw:

We just found out that our son has been using drugs for years. Why didn't we see what was going on? Our family is all turned around right now and we don't know what to do next.

Why can't this kind of thing be prevented? I've been reading your column since you started and never thought that I would need your help. It was always the guy who lived next door.

I guess I don't want any advice, just let your readers know it can happen to you just like it happened to us.

Torn Apart Family

Dear Torn Apart:

You didn't ask for my advice, but I can't resist. You can become a family again! Get some professional help for your son—and do it now.

You and the rest of the family will also undergo counseling since drug addiction is a family illness. Attend an Al-Anon meeting and meet people who have been in your shoes. It won't be easy, but your family becoming whole again is your reward.

The most effective method of preventing drug abuse is education. Become educated and be honest about the dangers of misusing drugs. Don't give your children half-truths or exaggerated facts about drugs—they eventually learn the truth and will disbelieve everything.

Parents should set reasonable, firm limits on the actions of their children. Parents are also obligated to set proper examples for their children.

Those parents who abuse alcohol or drugs openly should not be astonished to discover that their children are following in their footsteps.

Dear Cat Paw:

I don't like smoking but want to use grass. Can I put it in food and get high? What will it do to me since I won't be smoking?

Eager Student

Dear Eager Student:

Many nonsmokers prefer cooking with marijuana. The drug, however, is abrasive to the stomach and chronic and continuous consumption can result in ulcers.

I don't know what effects marijuana will have on you since it affects different people differently. Usually, if the drug is ingested orally the onset of the trip will begin in approximately one hour and last from six to 10 hours.

During this time, the heartbeat and blood pressure will rise and body temperature will usually drop slightly. Most abusers have bloodshot eyes while influenced by the drug.

Users are often confused, may stare into space for lengths of time or behave in a gregarious fashion. Hunger is common.

Contrary to popular belief, a bad experience is possible. THC remains in the system for long periods of time and accumulates in the brain and liver.

The drug also impairs the body's immune system, retards psychological development and damages the reproductive systems of men and women.

These effects make marijuana a particularly dangerous drug for students and young people.

Dear Cat Paw:

What's it like to come down from LSD?

Wondering

Dear Wondering:

No withdrawal symptoms have been reported from the use of LSD.

Cat Paw author Jeanette Sanders, a Springfield Township resident, is a state certified drug abuse counselor and a member of the Chemical People of Clarkston, an organization devoted to the prevention of substance abuse among the community's young people.

Sunday's sunshine provided ideal weather for Conor Schoemer [left] and Christopher Groscurth, both 6, to build a fort. They spent the entire morning on the project.

Kids at play

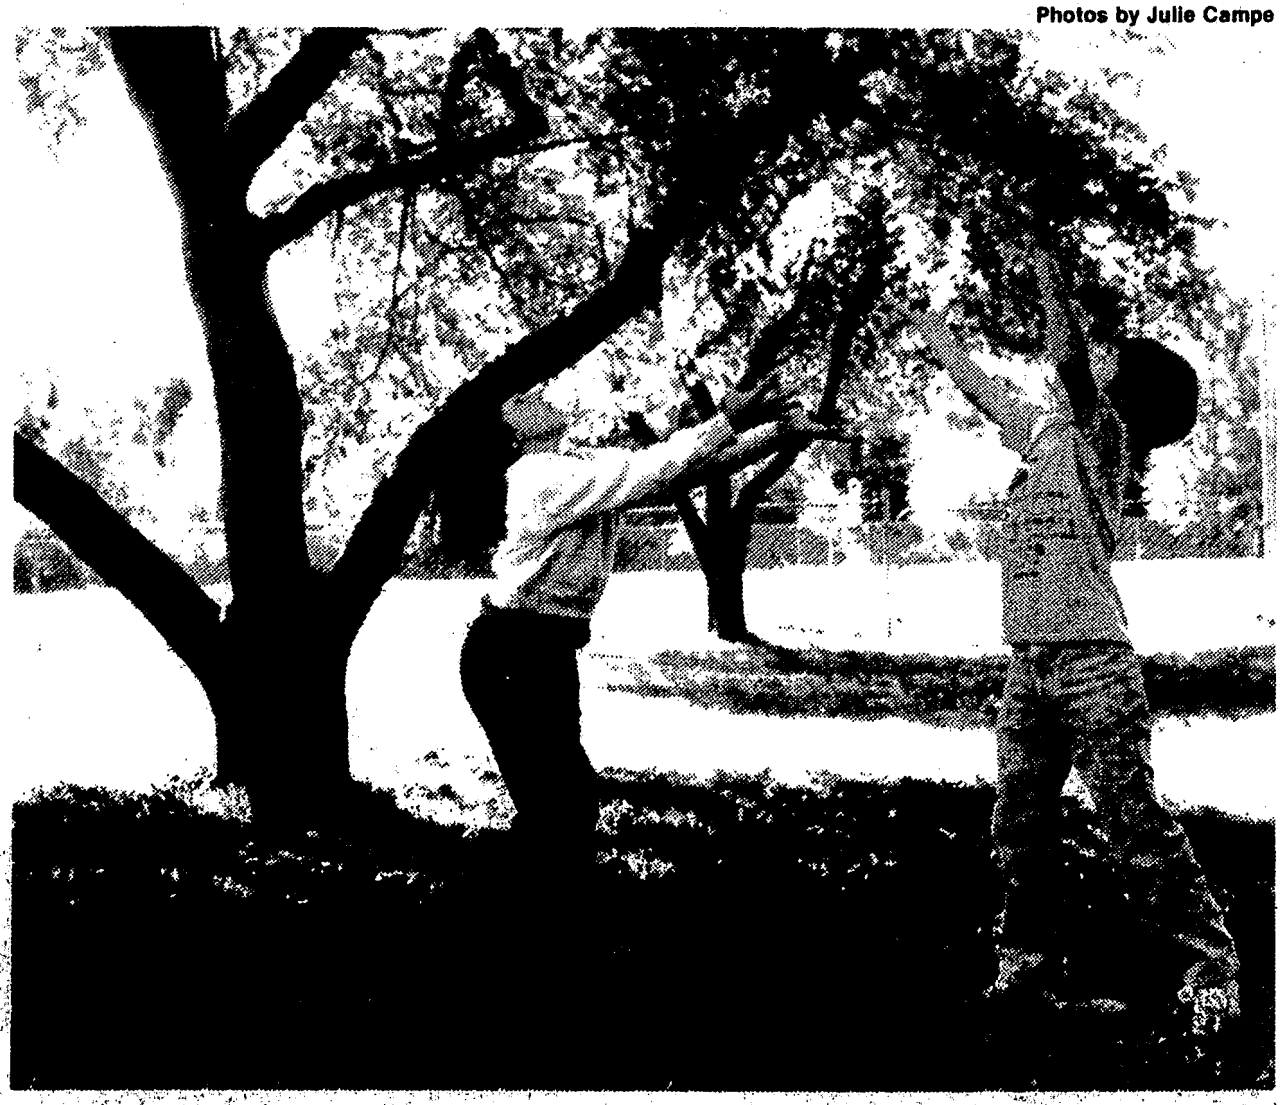
Eric McCausland, 5, uses a stick to knock walnuts from the tree above the fort. He and his sister Jennifer plan to sell the nuts or eat them or give them to their mother.



At Clintonwood Park, the kids play in the surrounding area while the dads play softball.

Robert and Sue Turner try to knock apples from an apple tree and catch them as they fall.
