Independence OKs tax hike

By Carolyn Walker

Stone cold silence greeted Independence Township Board members last week as they asked for public comment on the proposed increases of township millage rates.

After virtually no citizen comments at a public hearing Sept. 16, the board voted 6-0 to increase taxes for several funds to the maximum allowed by law.

The public hearing was required by law before the maximum rates could be set.

The possible loss of Federal Revenue Sharing dollars, the need to assist with road improvements, and the need to purchase property for a new fire station 1 and the building of fire station 2, already approved, were given as reasons for the increases.

The approved millage rate changes for 1986 are to be levied in 1987 and are as follows:

- General fund: 1.41 mills, an increase of .2102 over the 1985 1.1998 rate.
- Fire fund: 3.0 mills, an increase over 1985's 2.5 rate.
- Police fund: 1.0 mill, an increase over 1985's .9794.
- Safety path: .5 mill, an increase over 1985's .4255.
- Sanitary sewer: .35 mill, the same as last year.

Originally, Clerk Richard Holman had proposed reducing the safety path rate for "credibility purposes."

"I don't think the incremental amount we could raise would be worth it," Holman said, referring to the township's desire to maintain good relations with its residents.

Trustee Carol Balzarini, however, disagreed, saying there is very little time left for the safety path millage and that the township should do as much as possible in that time.

The 10-year safety path millage expires in 1990. In an example distributed by Holman, the owner of a house with a market value of $75,000 would pay

Mailbox vandals pose problem

By Chris Gerbasi

Mailboxes continue to be knocked over throughout Independence and Springfield townships, and it seems to be a problem without a solution.

"It's a continual problem," said Clarkston Postmaster William O. Kinsley II. "It's also a seasonal problem. There tends to be a lot at this time, with Halloween close and after school starts."

Judging by police reports, the targets are generally in rural areas and the incidents occur after dark.

But there's not much that can be done by the police department, said Lt. Glenn Watson of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

"Unless they see them do it, we can't do anything," said Watson. "If someone comes forward and makes a complaint, we'll go after them."

What residents can do is look into an alternative $24.69 in additional taxes under the approved increases. One mill is $1 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation, or one-half market value.

After the meeting, Supervisor Frank Ronk said he was a little surprised at the lack of public interest.

"I expected two or three to be there," he said. "Evidently the citizens were aware of what's going on."

Prior to the meeting, officials at the township offices had received several phone inquiries about the increases, Ronk said.

Voting to approve the adjustments were Ronk, Holman, Treasurer John Lutz and trustees Balzarini, Daniel Travis and William Vandermark. Trustee Dale Stuart was absent.

Kinsley suggests a post office box or a general delivery service. A box costs $13 for six months. If residents have had their mailboxes knocked over, they can use general delivery for up to 30 days.

"We're certainly sympathetic with people who have these problems," said Kinsley. "We'll do whatever our regulations allow us to do to help. We have to protect the sanctity of the mail."

"Our advice to customers is try to get the mail out of the box as soon as its delivered or before dark," he said. "They should make a police report. It's a police matter and if they have reason to arrest someone, at that point, the post office will step in and prosecute."

911 installation phase nears

By Don Rush

If all goes as Oakland County has planned, the entire county will be hooked up for emergencies by Oct. 1, 1988.

"On Aug. 21, the county commissioners unanimously voted to adopt 911 for Oakland County. We now have completed the planning stage and are beginning to enter the installation stage," said Paul Phelps, division manager of county disaster control.

When completed, the system will be the largest of its kind in the nation, servicing over 1 million people and spanning 936 square miles, he said.

Phelps said the installation stage, when completed, will cost $3.5 million. There will be 34 calling points countywide.

At the beginning of September, all local governments, except Commerce Township, had voted in favor of the system. Last week, Commerce joined the rest of the municipalities—now all 61 are participating.

Michigan's new law, Emergency Telephone Service Enabling Act of 1986, allows the county to adopt the 911 plan and spread the costs three ways: the county, local municipalities and the public. Residents will be charged 16 cents a month on their phone bills.

With the 911 system, the dispatcher will have instant access to a person's location and telephone number when an emergency call is made.

The information will appear on a special computer terminal, which each dispatch center will have to purchase. Phelps estimated the cost to be around $10,000.

The next step is for each community with a 911 dispatcher to adopt a Public Safety Answering Point Coordinator. This person will be the direct link to the county in organizing the system.

Developer sues over mall denial

A lawsuit has been filed against Independence Township regarding the Northcreek mall, a shopping center proposed for M-15 south of I-75 that was denied zoning variances.

The suit was filed Sept. 5 at Oakland County Circuit Court by developer Ron Helin's firm, W.H. Investments, said township Treasurer John Lutz.

The suit claims that the township improperly denied Helin the right to build according to township attorney Gerald Fisher.

Zoning variances needed for the shopping center were unanimously denied by the township zoning board of appeals (ZBA) in July. The suit names the township, the ZBA, planning commission and former building department director Kenneth Delbridge.

Plans for the mall were originally approved by the planning commission in February 1985, following ZBA approval for zoning variances.

Of his original parcel of land, Helin had donated about 40 acres to the Independence Land Conservancy and 20 shops were planned for the remaining 4.6 acres. The major tenant in the 51 000-square-foot structure was to be a sporting goods store.

When the mall plans were modified, building department director Delbridge directed the developer to reappear before the planning commission and ZBA.

Accordingly, in June 1986, the modified plans were presented to the planning commission, which granted conceptual approval. The major tenant had changed to an IGA grocery store and the size of the mall had decreased about 10,000 square feet, with about 10 shops planned in addition to the supermarket.

In July 1986, the request was made to the ZBA for the necessary zoning variances including parking on a residentially zoned portion of the parcel.

About 30 residents were present at the meeting, said Lutz, who sits on the ZBA.

The majority of the residents were from the village and the remainder were from Northview Drive, the street adjacent to the proposed mall, Lutz said.

"They were up in arms, and I understand," he said.

The plans were presented as if the developer expected "rubber stamp" approval, Lutz said.

The lack of details may have influenced the ZBA's decision, because three of the five members were not ZBA members during the original approval, he said.

One item not mentioned was the developer's gift of 40 acres to the land conservancy, he said.

"I think, truthfully, had we been presented a better plan of what was being presented, things may have (gone) differently," said Lutz, but he also defended the ZBA's decision.

"There were some big changes," he said. "We were not looking at the same project, we were looking at a supermarket."

According to Lutz, the lawsuit does not ask for a specific settlement.

"They're going to have to negotiate something," he said, noting that the township board met in closed session with its attorney last week regarding the lawsuit and that the township attorney and Helin's attorney will be meeting.

Helin, who could not be reached for comment, was refusing calls from reporters, according to a spokesperson with W.H. Investments.

John Dunlop, chairman of the ZBA, said he would not comment on the suit because he was unfamiliar with its allegations.

No court date has been set, Lutz said.

Homes in progress

Two new subdivisions are in the works for Independence Township.

The 14-lot Waldon Glen subdivision received final plat approval from the township board Sept. 16.

Very little discussion preceded the board's vote for approval of the subdivision, located off Waldon and Walters roads.

Mike Hofer, developer of the project, said 12 of the homes are already under construction and anticipates that they will sell for approximately $70,000 to $90,000.

Treasurer John Lutz praised the homes as being among the most economical in the township's current market.

After approving the Waldon Glen proposal, the board granted preliminary plat approval to Pine Tree Valley subdivision.

Also to be located off Waldon Road, Pine Tree Valley is to include 18 lots east of Wood Glen, said developer Gerald Anderson.

Construction had not yet begun on those homes, he said.

The board approved both projects in 6-0 votes. Trustee Dale Stuart was absent.

Trespassing warning rescinded

An amendment to the Independence Township trespassing ordinance is to go into effect next month.

On Sept. 16, the township board held the second reading of the amendment as mandated by the township's charter status.

Under the new amendment, trespassers riding motorized vehicles such as all-terrain vehicles or snowmobiles on public property will be subject to citation by police without warnings.

Previously, the ordinance required police to warn trespassers before issuing tickets.

At the first reading two weeks ago, the board voted to pass the amendment because motor-vehicle trespassing has become a wide-spread problem in the township, where very little land is provided for such use.

The Double D ranch off Clintonville Road was cited as a special problem area as trespass postings are frequently torn down or vandalized, according to attorney Gerald Fisher.

The amendment affects only motorized vehicles. Other trespassers must still be warned before citations can be issued, Fisher said.

The amendment goes into effect 30 days after publication in The Clarkston News.

Let's hear it for spirit

A pep assembly Friday morning at Clarkston High School brings out some class spirit during a contest between the sophomores, juniors and seniors. The cheerleaders led the cheer "Let's Go Blue!" and each class had a word. The senior class was deemed most spirited (they were supposed to shout "Blue" but they shouted "Seniors"), and they won a trophy. Pictured are members of the Class of '87 as they get into the battle of voices. At the assembly,

Four soccer fields proposed at Clintonwood

By Carolyn Walker

"A pressing need" is how parks and recreation Director Timothy Doyle described the problems of Independence Township soccer fields.

Appearing before the township board and 10 residents Sept. 16, Doyle outlined a plan for improving soccer conditions.

He was acting in response to requests by concerned parents, who had told the board previously that soccer fields in the township were hazardous because of overgrown grass and poor markings.

Doyle proposed creating four soccer fields on 80 acres owned by the township next to Clintonwood Park off Clarkston Road at an estimated $9,000 expense.

He also suggested enlarging the parking facilities at Clintonwood as a part of his proposal.

If the site were graded and seeded this fall, it could possibly be ready for play next year, Doyle said, describing the plan as "a quick fix at the site where we could best maintain (the grounds)."

In the future, he said, the four fields could be moved further onto the 80 acres and the first site replaced with a ball diamond.

Doyle said the 80-acre site, combined with the soccer fields, tennis courts and park, would also be ideal for a community center in the future.

Reacting positively to Doyle's suggestions, the board agreed to investigate possibilities for funding the project and report on the findings at a future meeting.

"I think that's an excellent investment," said Trustee Daniel Travis.

No formal action was taken by the board.

Springfield zoning map hearing

A public hearing will be conducted for the discussion of the Springfield Township zoning map Sept. 30.

The hearing will be held at the Springfield Oaks Activities Center on Andersonville Road at 7:30 p.m.

A significant number of proposed rezonings will be discussed, according to township Supervisor Collin Walls.

"This hasn't happened since 1973," said Walls. "It's a reflection of many things, and one is time and the changes that time brings and what has happened with development."

The township's planning commission and board are looking for public input, and the reaction to its proposed changes will determine how quickly zoning changes do or do not occur, Walls said.

Kathy

Gladys Porritt stopped by the News last week with two copies of Community News, published and printed in Clarkston in June 1922 and March 1923.

The tabloid-size papers are six and eight pages, respectively. They're preserved in plastic and one has a gap on Pages 1 and 2 where the paper cracked and broke off before it was placed under the protective coating.

But physical details aside, the great thing about them is what they reveal about times gone by.

In 1922, five seniors were graduating from Clarkston High School and all but one had gone to school in Clarkston since first grade. Also mentioned were the school tuition rates: $45 for grades one through six; $55 for seven and eight; and $75 for high school.

Total school enrollment was 135, and each elementary teacher had three grades.

There was a report on the Hampshire Pig Club, with a photograph of 16 young men—many dressed in suits and ties—standing behind a sow and her piglets.

Ads included a bus line schedule for rides to and from Pontiac and wool-bathing suits, salt by the barrel, linoleum, Rub-No-More Yellow Naphtha Soap, horse shoeing and wagon work, life insurance for cows and horses, silos, and the suggestion that the graduate might enjoy a book of Edgar Guest's poems.

Want ads revealed more about the life-style. Among items for sale were a child's sulky cart, marsh hay, young pigs, a road wagon and harness and buckwheat seed.

Some changes were evident the following year, although news reports continued to be rural in flavor.

On the April ballot, voters were to consider this question: "Shall it be lawful to make use of ferrets or guinea pigs or other rodents for the purpose of hunting, taking, killing or pursuing rabbits in the township of Independence?"

Following a cold winter, hungry ring neck pheasants were coming to the village and residents were feeding them.

The nine-member Girls Sewing Club met and had a lesson on how to hem and embroider. Meetings on the first and third Wednesdays of each month were announced for the Modern Woodmen of America.

Among community news items was this, reprinted in its entirety: "Henry Ford was in town again last week. He says he hasn't forgotten us, yet. And we know Henry is a man of his word."

Cars appeared in the ads: a 1923 Superior Line Chevrolet 5-Passenger Touring car for $525; and a Ford One-Ton Truck for $380.

A full line of new spring millinery was in at the shop of Mrs. L. Gillies, Davisburg.

Miller & Beardslee, "The Lumber & Coal Men," urged customers to prepare for the coming building boom by placing their orders for lumber and building material.

Butler Holcomb advertised "boats built in season"; L.R. McFarland Real Estate offered "ready deals for farms"; and the Clarkston Mills carried a complete line of dairy and chick feeds.

For sale in want ads were roosters, a span of gray horses ($400), potatoes (60 cents a bushel) and seed corn. For rent were 160 acres with "two good orchards, house barn, good fruit."

The newspaper's flag, at the top of Page 1, included "A welcome for ALL, ALL the Year around at Clarkston, Michigan, Best little Town in the State" and this list: Caribou Inn, Deer Lake Inn, Vlier's on the Hill, Cottages-Fishing-Bathing.

Clarkston continues to be the best little town in the state, but gone are the inns and almost all the farms, horses, cows and pigs.

Back then, society was changing from farming to industrial. Will the next 60 years bring as many changes?

Jim's Jottings

Golfing with a gang is great. This six decade living is affecting my memory, but I don't recall ever going on a golf outing with just guys.

Naturally, (get this, Hazel) it would undoubtedly been much more fun to have our wives along, but we tried to not let it bother us. And, after we shut the car door, it didn't.

Other than the detour around a flooded area in Saginaw, and a lousy hamburger at Bay Valley, the trip to Gaylord was routine golf language... which is a lot like hunting, fishing, and card playing language.

It's put-down, insult, castigate, ridicule, fault, and finger-pointing time at its best. Relatives aren't left out either. Mental health of participants is brought up. There's talk of sand bagging. Once in awhile a person's assumed extra-curricular activities is mentioned.

But mostly it's fun for the thick of skin. Sensitive people aren't invited on these treks.

Proper prior planning is probably the key to golf outings. Joe Phipps and Bob Lines did an outstanding job. No questions arose. Everyone was handicapped equally, except mine was too low. Tee times were made weeks in advance, as were reservations.

And the logging of scores and naming winners of various matches went smoothly after 36 holes of golf and a refreshment or two.

We were lined up to play Hidden Valley, east of Gaylord, Michaywe, south of Gaylord, and Gaylord Country Club, west of Gaylord. On the way home we were to play Bay Valley, however it was under water, so we played Hidden Valley again.

All the courses are in magnificent shape, greens putted the same on all courses, and the trees are planted in the direct line of the flight of all golf balls on all courses. Where trees aren't, sand traps are.

One thing about trees as opposed to sand traps... this time of year the trees are beautiful.

We were paired by rooms, or was it personality. My roommate, Mickey Hiatt, won all distance contests with his black-shafted Mariah driver.

Phipps won all the dog-leg left holes... he's been known to hook from time to time.

Lines, this year's winner of the Paul Gunnerfeldt Open (that's the name of this outing), missed one shot someplace, but no one remembers where.

Rod Jacobi had nine one-putt greens in the first 18 holes and quickly bought a new putter... and went to 20-2 putters on the next 18.

Jack Magee hit two buckets of balls before each 8 a.m. tee time, and still couldn't avoid a triple bogey.

Moke Hodge, the one with the wicked wrists, doesn't say much until he addresses the ball, then he tells it where to go and what he'll do if it doesn't.

Dick Buechler can hit his woods a mile, so he went entirely to his irons and found his score was lower.

Herb Thurber came out every morning with a towel around his neck, and a pencil at the ready to check off all bets.

Charlie Drummheller, despite threats to roommate Pete Kalohn, recovered to post some remarkable scores.

And, "When all else fails hit a 9-wood" Kalohn used his putter to save his handicap.

Wally Lee is the guy to watch with his 23 handicap. He got two strokes on all par 5s, and eagled them all. He got the skins.

We all survived with our hides.

Letters to the editor

Gas station plan

I have just read with interest the proposed Waterford Hill and Maybee Road condominium projects. Has the Independence Township Planning Commission gone mad?

We live on Maybee Road and can attest to the fact that Maybee Road is already choked with heavy traffic and the intersection at Maybee and Dixie is a death trap.

Furthermore, with little or no law enforcement, Maybee Road has become the designated race track between Dixie and Sashabaw Road.

Since Maybee Road has become undesirable for residential dwelling, my husband proposes converting our lot into a gas station.

It will be an ideal location and there will be a definite need with the increased traffic volume from the new projects.

We feel sure the Independence Township Planning Commission would have no qualms in granting us "conceptual approval" for the proposal.

Norma L. White

P.S. Congratulations to Carol Balzarini for having the moral fiber to cast the only dissenting vote.

Life aping art?

The latest rash of mailbox assault may be a case of life imitating art.

The current film "Stand By Me" uses "mailbox baseball" as a device for establishing the collective character of the boys in the "older gang."

I'm certain the director Rob Reiner and those who wrote the screenplay (this scene was not in the original story by Stephen King) did not intend for this scene to be a directive to teenagers.

However, those who have the combination of being impressionable and hell-bent on destruction may have viewed this scene as a suggestion for their own entertainment in real life.

David J. Kramer

No joking matter

I object to the way the Sheriff's Log is being handled.

Some people's misfortune seems to be treated lightly and as somewhat of a joke!

Evidently their lives have never been touched by the jokesters that mutilate mailboxes or found their mail a block away.

I appreciate humor as much as the next, but personally I feel tampering with mail is a federal offense. I think you could do away with the whole column!

Note from Sue

Dear Chris:

I read your article "Week in Review" in the Sept. 10 issue of The Clarkston News.

I would firstly like to tell you that I really enjoy your column. I am going to school in South Carolina and I look forward to The Clarkston News every week.

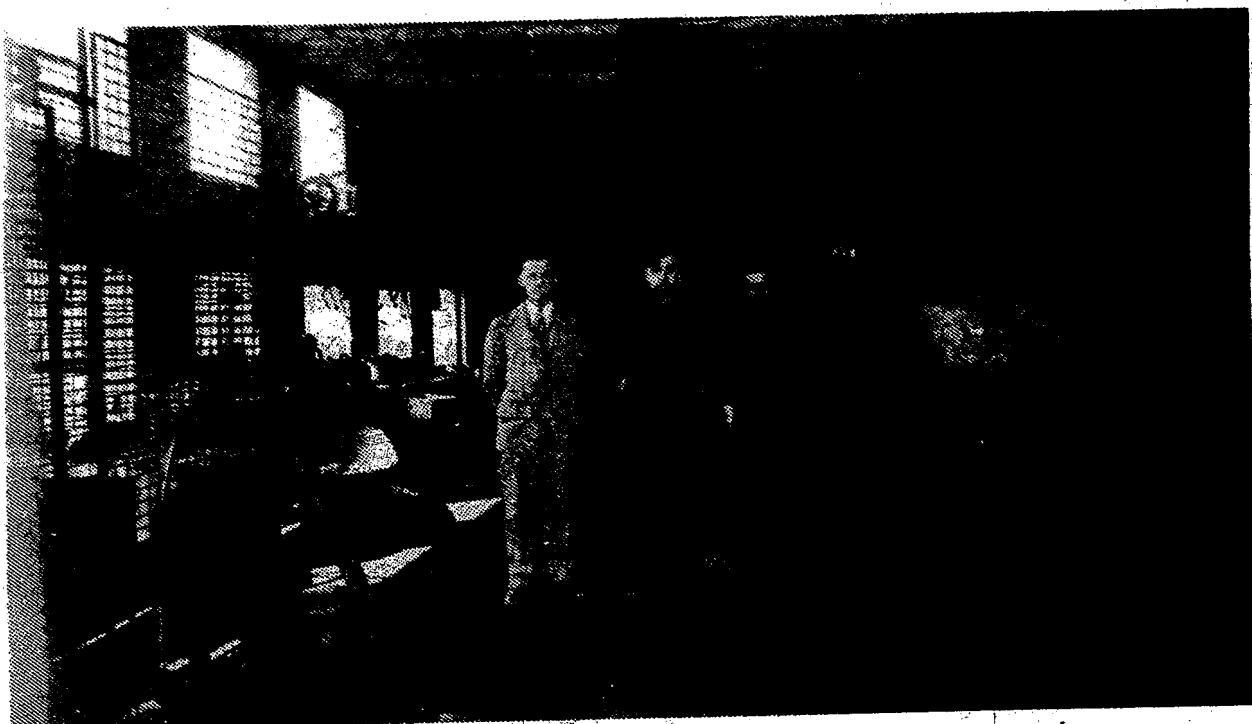

Secondly, about Sue Lovelady. I know where she is and I am presently keeping in touch with her.

She moved to Fort Wayne, Ind., after the first semester of our senior year. She is now attending Ball State in Indiana. She hasn't decided whether to play basketball or softball yet.

I will be sending her the article and I'm sure she will enjoy it.

BEFORE RUDY'S: The stone building on Main Street, Clarkston, that now houses Rudy's Market was once the Leonard & Miller Ford Garage. This photo was taken in the rear part of the building in about 1920. Bill O'Roark of In-

Guv snips at JOA

Jim Fitzgerald

Gov. Blanchard recently said the Free Press and Detroit News print too little about really important things, such as the state's solvency, and too much about less important things, such as the proposed joint operating agreement (JOA) between the two newspapers.

How would Blanchard feel about JOA publicity if he worked for one of the newspapers involved, especially the Free Press, otherwise known as "the failing newspaper"?

It's no fun to keep reading that the outfit you work for lost millions of dollars. It can make a conscientious employee feel guilty. Should I offer to help look for the lost money? Should I give back that last pay raise? Should I quit giving colorfully wrapped boxes of Free Press paper clips to my wife for Christmas?

Among the documents published in the wake of the JOA announcement was a memo written several years ago by a former Free Press executive. It said the salaries of some Free Press employees were too high. It didn't name names. Whose names?

No one denies that many employees of both newspapers will lose their jobs if the JOA is approved. Which employees? How will they be chosen? Has someone been counting paper clips?

What if Attorney General Edwin Meese turns down the JOA application? Will the Free Press follow through on failing, or will it survive by cutting corners and columnists?

If only the Detroit News survives, will it need more paper carriers, and will the News be impressed by my four years' experience delivering the Port Huron Times Herald? Or maybe the News will discover my Port Huron route was along the banks of the St. Clair River and, while throwing papers toward porches on windy days, I sometimes missed and customers had to pass through Canada Customs to find their newspapers.

Does Gov. Blanchard realize the stress caused by all those unimportant JOA articles? In fact, the Free Press is holding JOA stress seminars for employees. Attendance is voluntary. If I attend, I'll wear a beard and dark glasses.

I don't want anyone to suspect that, behind my normally dour facade, I'm feeling abnormally dour about the JOA. For months I've been telling my wife there's nothing to worry about. Just the other day I said:

Be sure to read what Gov. Blanchard said. He said newspaper articles about the Free Press and News having to combine business operations or the Free Press will fail are not as important as articles about the state not having to borrow money to make school aid payments. Doesn't that make you feel better?"

She said no because "what Blanchard was really crabbing about is all the publicity given to the fact that he doesn't want to debate William Lucas as much as Lucas wants to debate him. Blanchard doesn't really think the JOA publicity is excessive, he just used it as a red herring to distract from his real beef."

Perhaps she's right. Lucas is the underdog in the gubernatorial race, and it's normal for the top dog to not want to debate the underdog on TV because it would just bring the underdog more attention - and maybe more Alpo - than he'd receive otherwise. That's politics.

But it's no excuse for the top dog to make a red herring out of the JOA just to win a beef against the underdog. It's cruel treatment of dumb metaphors.

The JOA proposals is important enough to make me babble about paper clips and paper routes. It's important enough to make me attend stress seminars in disguise.

The JOA is important enough that Gov. Blanchard shouldn't use it to make a political point. Most people are more worried about being able to make their VISA payments than about the state being able to make school aid payments. There's no debate.

A post card is all it takes to receive Michigan's new Official Transportation Map.

The free map debuted last week as part of the state's 150th birthday celebration. It is the most up-to-date map of Michigan available, according to the Michigan Department of Transportation.

The map includes some photographs and descriptions of features that make Michigan unique among the states.

Also included are locations of hospitals offering 24-hour emergency service, airports, intercity bus terminals, commercial and recreational harbors on the Great Lakes, ferry routes, rail passenger lines and stations, rail freight lines, and freeway rest areas and roadside parks along the 9,500-mile state highway system.

The maps are available at all Michigan Department of Transportation offices and welcome centers, state police posts, district offices of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, municipal government offices and regional tourist associations.

To receive a map by mail, send a post card with your name, address and zip code to MAPS, Michigan Department of Transportation, P.O. Box 30050, Lansing, MI 48909.

Band volunteers

Volunteers are needed to help with the Clarkston High School Marching Band Invitational on Saturday, Oct. 4.

Workers are needed for concession stands, security, and more, from noon through evening hours. Different shifts are available.

"There's a whole slew of things that take place that we need people for," said Don Borngesser, Clarkston Band Boosters member.

The invitational begins at 6 p.m. at CHS. Ten high school bands from across the state and Canada are expected to participate.

Those who wish to volunteer may call Borngesser at 625-6211.

Stop snickering. I know what you're going to think. But, it's been a long time since I played under the bed—down where a unique, unconquered kind of territory and its native inhabitants thrived.

Dark, slightly stifling, cramped, cavernous. For me, it took a lot of courage to play there, its being the habitat of wild animals, cows and all.

It's true. At age three, I was convinced that cows and wolves lived there in the night. Cows especially. I knew because I could hear them mooing between the short, frightened breaths that I breathed into my covers. I could feel them thumping my bed as they rustled about, grazing.

Mother did her best to convince me it wasn't so.

In the late hours of evening, after I'd cried out to her in fear, she'd come into my room with a flashlight and help me out from under the blankets to find the cold floor with my feet.

Until her arrival, I was always careful not to let my feet dangle over the edge of the bed, tempting fate or provoking bites and attacks.

"There's cows making noises under there," I'd tell her in earnest, motioning downward with my pointer finger.

And she would reply just as earnestly, "No, there aren't."

A simple statement of truth from mother was never enough, however. Like children everywhere, I had my doubts about motherly judgment in the face of considerable proof: nocturnal thumping and mooing.

Seeing my distress, she'd give in. Together, we'd get down on our hands and knees, shine the flashlight under the bed and scour the floor for the four-legged beasts.

"You see," mother would say, "no cows."

I had to admit the evidence pointed to her being right. But fear did not abate easily.

After enough safe-from-the-cows searches, I eventually took an interest in treading under the bed myself. Squeezing in on my back, not taking such deep breaths that my belly swelled up and caused me to get stuck. It was great excitement.

Unfortunately, I've had to turn that type of fun over to the youngest member of our household, my size currently being what it is.

These days, when I can't find her playing in the drapes or hiding under the dining room table, I search her out under the bed.

I always ask the same silly question as I grab her ankles and give a good pull, demanding that she return to the real world: "What are you doing under there?"

"Playing," is all she answers.

Now I ask you, aren't the realities of childhood the best?

Low loans possible to redo village buildings

Low interest loans for revitalizing downtown Clarkston buildings may be in the offering.

Repeat, may be. It all hinges on several factors, not the least of which is continuation of the federal subsidy. The initiation of the program lies with the Village Council and store owners/renters. An application has to precede any monetary consideration.

The program under which funds might be made available is the Commercial Assistance Program (CAP). It's an Oakland County program that distributes federal block grant money. Last year that CAP money amounted to about $700,000.

Some of the 19 communities that have been included in the 2-year-old program, are Holly, Ortonville, Oxford, Keego, Springfield Township, Milford and seven other south county areas.

Susan Affleck-Childs, coordinator of the county CAP, explained the program to interested Council and business representatives Tuesday night.

She said one person (a catalyst) has to be named on the local level to coordinate the information, "because there are forms." She would work closely with that person. Once the application is filed, it takes 18 months for processing.

Each business (applicant) must have drawn plans and estimates for any improvements. These can include exterior restoration, interior alterations, energy conservation, handicap access, site improvement and related costs.

The coordinator pointed out the program is not for the well to do, well financed business, though some have had the 6 percent financing. There is 100 percent financing, and businesses can use their own contractors.

The intent of the CAP program is to revitalize downtowns with emphasis on bringing back original looks of old buildings.

Village president Sharron Catallo, who attended last week's meeting, made the Council aware of CAP Monday night. She said the Council would undoubtedly give wholehearted support to the program should businesses indicate a desire for it.

Clarkston quarterback Josh Newblatt gets set to release one of his 12 passes last Saturday against Pontiac Northern in the Silverdome.

Neither team had much offensive success as the Wolves won, 7-6.

By Chris Gerbasi

Shane Jackson threw a bullet and the Clarkston football team dodged it last Saturday at the Silverdome.

When Jackson, the Pontiac Northern quarterback, misfired on a two-point conversion pass in the fourth quarter, the Wolves hung on for a 7-6 victory.

It's the fourth straight year that Clarkston has defeated the Huskies by one point. The Wolves are now 3-0, while Northern is 1-2. It was the first league game for each team.

The Huskies scored on a seven-yard run by Larry McGhee with 3:21 left in the game. Coach Dave Schmidt chose to go for the two-pointer.

Jackson rolled right and possibly could've run the ball in, but he saw Johnny Edwards open in the end zone. However, his pass sailed far over the head of Edwards.

"You have to win it sometime," said Schmidt of his decision. "We're not extremely proficient at extra points."

Both touchdowns in the game were set up by poor punts.

Jackson, who plays a number of roles for Northern, shanked a punt deep in his own territory in the second quarter. His eight-yard kick gave the Wolves possession at the Husky 14.

Two plays later, Mike Gilbert ran five yards for the score and Jim Turk's extra point made it 7-0.

"That's one of the bad things about being a good athlete," said Schmidt of Jackson. "You're in more tight spots and when you do make a mistake, they notice it."

The same could be said of Clarkston's multi-talented Dan Jokisch.

It was a bad punt by Jokisch that gave the Huskies the opportunity to score. He actually got negative yardage on a punt that went straight up in the air and bounced backwards to the Clarkston 32.

From there, Northern converted a third down and six pass and a fourth down and one run on its way to the end zone.

In between scores, there were plenty of punts and penalties as neither team put together a substantial drive.

"We didn't dominate so much as in the past," said Wolfe coach Walt Wyniemko. "They took away some of our bread and butter and that caused us some problems."

Each team had eight penalties in the game. Jackson punted six times and Jokisch seven. The Huskies gained 163 yards to the Wolves' 130 and each team had seven first downs.

Jackson was held to just four completions in 15 attempts and Clarkston's Josh Newblatt was five-for-12. Both quarterbacks were intercepted once.

In other area action at the Dome Saturday Romeo defeated Chippewa Valley, 35-19; Flint Central topped Pontiac Central, 27-8; and Lake Orion beat Novi, 14-7.

Clarkston hosts Waterford Kettering this Friday night at 7:30 p.m. in a Greater Oakland Athletic League game.

Kettering lost last week to Grosse Pointe North, 10-3, and is now 2-1 on the year. The Captains are 1-0 in the GOAL with a win over Waterford Mott. They opened the season with a victory over Lakeland.

The Wolves and Kettering tied in the league standings last year and both were 6-3 overall.

Netters fall to Dragons

The big one got away last week for the Clarkston girls tennis team.

The Wolves defeated Lakeland, 4-3, but lost to archrival Lake Orion, 5-2, Sept. 17.

Coach Dick Swartout has said all along that Clarkston would have to beat the Dragons for the Greater Oakland Athletic League title this season.

But last week, all three Wolfe double teams lost to Lake Orion and the four singles players split their matches.

Clarkston's number one singles player Ashley Adams beat Kim Watrous, 6-1, 6-4, and No. 3 Rhonda Bowes downed Kellie Schram, 6-4, 6-4.

No. 2 Correen Hummel lost, 6-0, 5-7, 6-4, to Tricia Paswater and No. 4 Shelley Rood lost to Kellie McDonald, 1-6, 6-3, 7-6.

"A difference of 10 points and we would have won the match," said Swartout.

"I'm not very pleased with the doubles," he said. "I'm going to move all the doubles around and see if that helps. That's too much pressure for the singles players to win every time out."

The Wolves will have two more shots at Lake Orion, Oct. 1 and at the league meet Oct. 3. The two dual matches count as 50 percent of the league title and the league meet counts as the other half.

Clarkston bounced back the following day to beat Lakeland and improve its record to 4-2.

Adams remained undefeated with a 6-0, 6-1 victory over Amanda Poxon and the other three singles players also won.

Hummel won, 7-6, 6-4, over Lisa Nagy; Bowes beat Julia Buss, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4; and Rood triumphed, 6-3, 6-1, over Danielle Denston.

"The good thing was that those girls that lost in three sets (yesterday) came back tough today," Swartout said.

Number three singles player Rhonda Bowes returns a shot against Lake Orion's Kellie Schram. Bowes beat Schram, 6-4, 6-4, and also downed Lakeland's Julia Buss in action last week.

Wolves lose first game as injuries mount up

Injuries continued to hamper Clarkston's girls basketball team last week as the Wolves lost their first game of the year.

Senior starting guard Michelle Baker sat out last Thursday's 53-48 loss to Romeo. She had hurt her foot Sept. 16 when Clarkston routed Milford, 60-34.

The Wolves were 5-1 heading into this week, while Romeo went to 5-0 with the win.

Coach Dave McDonald was already missing forward Gina Houck, who may miss half the season with a knee injury, and backup Ali Fedjo, who was out with pneumonia.

Against Romeo, Clarkston got behind early and scored only 18 points in the first half.

The Wolves came back with a surge in the second half and went ahead by three with a couple minutes remaining. But Romeo bounced right back with a streak to put the game away.

"We just didn't have the firepower," said McDonald. "We ran out of gas."

Missy Odell paced Clarkston with 16 points and 13 rebounds. Michele Wyniemko had 10 points and eight rebounds and Lisa Ladd scored 11.

Ladd was high-scorer in the Milford game with 17 points.

"She really had a good game," McDonald said. "We got the running game going. It was a tight ballgame for a while, then in the second half, boom, we took off."

Odell added 13 points and 14 rebounds and Wyniemko had 11 points.

The Wolves return to their home court against Lakeland Sept. 30.

Scott Oppman of the junior varsity Wolves is pressured by the Pontiac Northern line. The Clarkston offense struggled in its 27-0 league loss to the Huskies and the team is now 2-1.

JV Wolves shut out on the road

Pontiac Northern moved the ball better against Clarkston's offense than its defense, and that led to a 27-0 junior varsity victory for the Huskies Sept. 18.

The Wolves hung tough on the road, trailing just 7-0 going into the fourth quarter, but then the wheels fell off.

With Clarkston threatening at the Northern 35, the Wolves fumbled and the Huskies returned it 65 yards for a touchdown.

"That fumble really hurt," said co-coach John Craven. "The offense was getting untracked, we moved the ball down and that hurt our momentum. If we could've put it in, that might have changed the complexion of the game."

As it was, the Huskies went on to intercept two passes and returned both for touchdowns. The Wolves defense yielded only one score, late in the first half.

"We never got the offense going," Craven said. "We could have had them, but we were coughing the ball up."

Northern is unbeaten at 3-0, while the Wolves are 2-1.

Boys win dual meet; girls still on a roll

One bad turn did not deserve another, but it did give Clarkston's boys cross country team its first dual meet win in two years.

The Wolves beat Waterford Mott, 24-31, Sept. 18 when a Corsair runner was disqualified for missing a turn in the course.

Mott runners would've placed one-two, but the second-place runner cut a turn too sharply and did not go back to make amends.

Three Clarkston runners almost missed the same turn, but co-coach Mike Kaul flagged them down and got their attention.

Brian Baert finished second for the Wolves and they also took positions five through eight.

"It was their first win in a long time, but that kind of takes the edge off it," said Kaul. "But they're making progress and they're grouping well, which is important in cross country."

The Wolves girls also defeated Mott, by default since the Corsairs only had three runners.

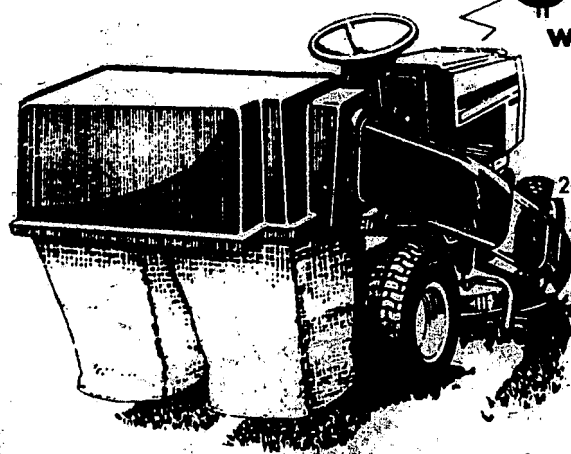

The girls also beat Waterford Kettering on Sept. 16, 16 to 39.

Kathleen McInnis won the race in 20:29, Kate Conlen was second at 21:09, Melissa Elfes ran third at 21:24 and Meredith Green was fourth at 21:59. Amy Rice finished in 23:04.

The boys lost to the Captains, 20-36, as Mark Roth ran to first in a 17:25 time.

Baert was runner-up (17:51), Jeff Funck was sixth (18:37), Jim Hotary eighth (19:22), Scott Graham ninth (19:24) and Rod Swanson 11th (19:53).

MARCHING MUSIC: The Clarkston High School Marching Band moves into formation during halftime of the Clarkston-Pontiac Northern football game at the Silverdome last Saturday. [Photo by Chris Gerbasi]

Crystal clear For readers only

Chris Gerbasi

I have never been to the Detroit Athletic Club and I probably never will go there.

But I have to say something about the DAC's recent decision to allow women to join the club. And I'm not sexist, although I don't think "Cagney & Lacey" and "The Golden Girls" should've won so many Emmys, but that's another story and I'm getting off the track.

What is wrong with men-only or women-only organizations?

They exist everywhere. There's the Clarkston Community Women's Club, the Waterford-Clarkston Business and Professional Women's Club and the Women's City Club in Detroit just to name a few. I don't want to join those groups and I don't care if men can't join them.

If there are two groups of a similar nature, one for men and one for women, what's the problem? Are communal Johns and lockerrooms next?

Women have justifiably strived to make points in sports and business.

In high school sports, for example, there have been girls who've tried out for boys teams and vice versa and I think that's great if there's just one team per sport.

In business, women women should have every chance at equal positions and equal pay.

But I fail to see the reason for their latest effort.

Women have said that they've been restricted in business and professional contacts because they could not join the club. I find it hard to believe that women have suffered serious setbacks in their careers because they couldn't attend a meeting at the DAC.

The DAC had overwhelmingly voted down women members in January and now it's backed down. A 71-year tradition has ended and I guess that's what bothers me the most.

Why the change of heart? I get the impression that women pushed for this only for the sake of making a point rather than from a practical standpoint.

I'm anxious to see if women are going to be knocking down the DAC doors to get in. Maybe I'm way off base, but don't write any letters because we've already received enough about the Sheriff's Log.

The response to the "Where Have You Gone, Sue Lovelady Sweepstakes" was overwhelming. Our lucky winners are Jenni John and Sue Kithil, who are now the proud owners of Holly girls basketball season tickets.

The whole thing started when I got this job and didn't see Lovelady on any of the spring sport teams.

I had seen her play basketball last year and play well. Her effort in Clarkston's double overtime playoff loss to Waterford Kettering particularly stood out.

Now she's at Ball State University in Muncie, Ind., and it's probably a good choice since David Letterman went there. Ironically, when I saw Lovelady at a basketball game this year, I was wearing my "Late Night" T-shirt.

Anyway, what I now need to know is Ball State's nickname. The first caller with the correct answer will receive a letter of recommendation from yours truly for membership in the Detroit Athletic Club.

Steps taken to find new building director

The search is on for a new building and planning director for Independence Township.

Following Kenneth Delbridge's Sept. 3 resignation, the township board voted Sept. 16 to seek applicants for the position through various professional publications.

In the interim, they also voted to enconse Beverly McAlmeel in the position, temporarily, at a pay scale of $30,000 per year.

McAlmeel is an employee of the department.

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., Sept. 24, 1986 27

"This came about very quickly and very abruptly," said Supervisor Frank Ronk, explaining Delbridge's departure to the board.

"His reasoning to me was strictly on a personal nature. . . . I didn't pursue it any further," he said. "He was not removed from office. He chose to leave."

Delbridge had twice held the title of building director in Independence Township. His most recent tenure began in 1981.

A ring-necked pheasant's point of view looks like this. The birds are raised in a 500-foot-deep cage that's furnished with "cover," so the birds will feel at home. They eat everything they can reach, and if the circumstances are right, they'll even eat each other.

Couple raises pheasants

By Julie Campe

Pheasants have no friends, said Elaine Forbes. They can't even trust each other.

Four legs, two legs—almost everything is a predator. But the pheasant's worst enemy is the owl, she said.

At night, an owl sometimes perches on a fence post at Elaine's pheasant farm, El-Bo Farms Inc. on Groveland Road in Ortonville.

The birds know he's there, and when they get scared enough, they flush. Pheasants fly up to 60 mph and cruise at about 25 mph, and sometimes a pheasant's head pops through the plastic game bird netting atop their territory.

The owl pounces on it. He'll chew through the neck, but the body will fall to the ground because he can't pull it through, she said. Then, she'll either find the remains the next morning or the other birds will eat it.

Dog packs are a problem, too, she said. Domestic as well as wild dogs in the open Ortonville

Barber's bees make sweet honey recipes

By Chris Gerbaai

Thanks to Dave Barber, the Michigan Specialty Food Guide has a taste of honey to it.

While it's the first year for the guide, Barber has been in the honey business for 25 years.

The guide features a variety of specialties from across the state including Barber's star thistle white honey. Barber didn't even know he was in it until last week.

He recalls sending a sample to someone from the guide who wanted to promote a recipe.

"Some lady bragged so much on my honey that they wanted to try it," said the Davisburg resident.

The recipe alongside Barber's name in the book is for honey french toast. Barber himself uses honey daily in his coffee as well as in a number of his wife's recipes.

He started in the business when he got a job with a beekeeper and decided he liked it. Now he's got 28 beehive locations in three counties. "They're harder to come by now with all the construction going on and people are afraid of bees," he said.

Beekeepers generally stay within a couple miles of each other because that's the range for bees, said Barber. At peak times, he has an estimated 65,000 to 70,000 bees at each site.

[See BEEKEEPER, Page 41]

half of honey a day. His honey is featured in the Michigan Specialty Food Guide.

Food guide available

The Michigan Specialty Food Guide features a wide variety of haute cuisine food products that are Michigan's own.

The guide lists some 35 food products and 15 wines produced in the state including pure white honey from the Russian Star Thistle produced by Dave Barber of Davisburg and naturally grown ring-necked pheasant from El-Bo Farms of Ortonville.

Michigan's first lady Paula Blanchard, a Clarkston native, and the the Office of Michigan Products Promotion unveiled the food guide Sept. 3.

"It represents an extraordinary collection of culinary delicacies grown, produced and created in Michigan by Michigan people," she said.

The Michigan Specialty Food Guide joins the previously published Michigan Gift Guide in promoting Michigan food products.

Copies of each may be obtained, free of charge, by writing the Office of Michigan Products Promotion, P.O. Box 30004, Lansing, MI 48909 or by calling 1-800-MIPRODS.

Incredible edibles

Apples—without the crunch

With apple season upon us, it's a perfect time to whip up some tasty desserts.

Three recipes selected from the Clarkston Community Women's Club cookbook, "Incredible Edibles," can serve as inspiration to get out the peeler and fill your house with the sweet smell of cooking apples.

Apple Crisp was submitted by Marcia Meyer of Clarkston, Black Forest Poached Apples by Dorothy Lowe of Clarkston and Apple Bars by Gail Ferguson of Clarkston.

APPLE CRISP

6-8 apples, peeled and sliced
 1/2 cup water
 1 teaspoon cinnamon
 1-2 teaspoons sugar
 Topping:
 1/4 cup sugar
 1/4 cup flour
 1/2 cup oleo

Put apples in buttered Pyrex 8-inch-square dish. Pour water, cinnamon and sugar over apples. Work together sugar, flour and oleo until crumbly. Sprinkle over apples. Bake, uncovered, until brown in a 350 degree oven for 35 minutes.

BLACK FOREST POACHED APPLES

Raisins
 Toasted almonds
 Honey
 Kirsch
 Apples

Peel one row near top of apple. Slice top off (set aside) and core apple with three scoops of melon baller to make a cup. Fill with a few raisins, spoonful of toasted almonds, spoonful of honey and fill to top with kirsch. Put on lid. Bake in pan for 25 minutes at 325 degrees.

APPLE BARS

2 cups flour
 1/2 cup sugar
 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1 cup butter or margarine
 2 eggs, beaten (just yolks)
 4 medium apples, pared, cored and sliced (4 cups)
 1/4 cup sugar
 1/4 cup flour
 1 teaspoon cinnamon
 1 slightly beaten egg white

Combine 2 cups flour, half of the sugar, baking powder and salt; cut in butter until crumbs are the size of small peas. Stir in egg yolks.

Divide mixture in half. Press half the mixture over bottom of 13-by-9-by-2-inch baking pan.

Combine apples and remaining sugar and flour and cinnamon; arrange over bottom crust. Crumble remaining dough over apples. Brush egg white over all. Bake in 350 degree oven 40 to 45 minutes.

Cool. Drizzle with thin powdered sugar icing if desired. Makes 4 dozen bars.

Proceeds from the sale of "Incredible Edibles" cookbooks are used in community service projects. The $6 cookbooks are available at the Independence Township Library, Village Book Store, Carol's Village Grill, Gayanne's Floral Concept and Pontiac State Bank's downtown Clarkston branch.

MOTHER AND SON: A mother and her son watch the ducks in the Village Park across the stream from the Cider Festival.

Clarkston kids write about their town

The third-graders took their pencils in hand and wrote their responses to this question: "What is your community like?"

Marion MacCarroll, their teacher at Bailey Lake Elementary, was so pleased with her pupils' observations that she wanted to share them with readers of The Clarkston News.

A selection of their writings follows:

"My community is small and lots of people live in Clarkston. Not many stores are in my community, but lots of houses."

—Alesha Ulasich

"You can go skiing and you can see concerts and you can go swimming in Clarkston. There are farms here. Clarkston is a small city. It is 150 years old. There are no skyscrapers here. There are five grade schools, two junior highs and one high school. There are still wild animals here like deer, skunks, pheasant and raccoons."

—Brent Zorka

"It's got swamps and lakes and lots and lots of trees. It's got houses and pavement roads and dirt roads and schools. And more important, people. I like my community."

—Eric Rood

"It's a small community, but I like it because I live in it. Every three weeks, I go to the library in our community and take out some books. I like to go to the park in our community."

—Jillian Gougeon

"My community has a pond and a lake you can swim in and ski. We have a bank and stores and doctors. It also has nice people and friends."

—Ken Molen

"People like Clarkston because it is in the country. Clarkston has a nice park, good schools and friendly people. Clarkston also has a nice place to ski called Pine Knob. It also has a nice lake called Deer Lake."

—Amy Tewksbury

"Our community is nice because there are a lot of people and friends to have, and there are paved roads and dirt roads. I like the dirt roads better because I can ride my bike on the dirt. There are a lot of pretty trees and bushes."

—Justin Morgan

Bible seminar

A seminar on the Book of Job titled "From Outrage to Acceptance" is planned Saturday, Sept. 27, at Calvary Lutheran Church.

Professor Walter Michel will present the seminar, which costs $5 a family. Lunch will be extra.

According to Michel, the seminar will deal with "human health and prosperity contrasted with human suffering and death and our human struggle to discover meaning and to experience God in our daily lives."

Michel teaches at the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago. He holds graduate degrees from the University of Wisconsin and the University of Vienna.

The church is located at 6805 Bluegrass, Independence Township.

Ortonville farm grows gourmet fare

100,000 pheasants raised each year by the Forbeses

area follow the birds' smell to the Forbeses' pheasant farm. Again, the birds get scared and flush, sometimes resulting in broken necks, wings and legs.

"We had to electrify the fence" to help keep the dogs away, she said.

When she spoke of the multi-colored birds, her voice held respect and understanding. She spoke of their peculiarities and their needs, and of the growing demand for them.

"They have just about every color known to man in them," she said. "They're kind of like turkeys, not real smart. They're cannibalistic. They eat each other for lunch."

To avoid this and successfully raise 100,000 birds a year, Elaine had to learn everything about the fowl.

They have oil on their feathers—like ducks—to insulate them from the cold and the water, she said. "They come from China, so they handle the cold really well."

The birds need 10 to 25 square feet each, and her 100,000 birds will eat 200 tons of grain a year.

"They won't tolerate crowding," she said. "It's like being in the city. Your aggression level goes up, and you eat your neighbor."

They built two barns to breed and incubate the birds. After they're six weeks old, they're transported outside to the Forbeses' "natural" cage.

The cages are 500 feet deep and filled with "cover" or short bushes.

"We try to duplicate the wild," she said. "The cover will help them know what the outside world looks like."

Being raised in those surroundings makes them good for hunt clubs because they'll react to a dog similarly to a bird in the wild, said Elaine.

"The birds strip anything they can. Chefs feel they have a better taste because they eat the bugs and leaves and worms," she said.

The Forbeses use plastic game bird netting above the cage.

"If it was chicken wire, they'd cut their heads open and the other birds would eat them," she said.

To transport the live birds to hunt clubs or other live bird buyers, she and her husband designed a pheasant crate, shorter than the normal chicken box. Otherwise, the birds would kill themselves by jumping up and down, she said. The smaller area in the crate doesn't give them room to jump.

The whole farming business started six years ago when Elaine brought home her first chicken. At that time, she had no idea that the interest in fowl would lead her to develop the nationwide pheasant business.

"I started with chickens and geese," she said. "We've become one of the biggest pheasant farms in the U.S."

She and several hired hands run the farm, and her husband Bob, vice-president of sales and marketing for Fruehauf International Leasing Group, handles the marketing.

Their business has grown by leaps and bounds. They sell plastic anti-cannibalism clips that hold a pheasant's beak open just a fraction, allowing them to eat but not to pick and pull. The sole distributors in the U.S., they sell two million clips a year.

They sell their birds live, fresh, frozen and smoked. They have other farms that custom raise animals exclusively for them. So by mail order, they sell rabbit and partridge in addition to the pheasant.

Above, Elaine holds a pheasant beneath the game bird netting on her farm. At left, she and her husband Bob pose for a picture.

Most people don't know how to cook the fowl, they said. So in each mail order, they insert their own cookbook, "The Pheasant Cookery Book."

"We try to keep it simple," said Elaine. "They're European housewife recipes."

Many of the area farms are run by women, she said, and pheasant is becoming a more popular dinner item as well as a gourmet restaurant item.

"It's low in fat and cholesterol and high in nutrition," said Bob. "It's in tune with what we want today. But if they don't take the time to learn to prepare it, it'll end up . . . (tasting like) a stringy old chicken."

The bird can be cooked about 25 to 30 different ways, he said. His favorites are cajun pheasant and pheasant curry.

Their birds were served during the last presidential inauguration in the United States. And they're featured in the Michigan Specialty Food Guide published by the Office of Michigan Products Promotion.

Overall, the past six years have been a challenge, said Elaine.

"It's very expensive, and you have to be committed," she said. "It's farming at its finest."

Their recipe

ROAST PHEASANT

- 1 large can mushrooms
- 1 cup chopped green mushrooms
- 2 stalks celery (chopped)
- 1 bell pepper (chopped)
- 1 cup whole green olives
- 1 1/2 cups whole green olives
- 1 1/2 cups red port wine
- Bacon
- Flour
- Grease
- Salt
- Cayenne pepper

Salt and pepper pheasants. Put several green olives in cavity. Wrap pheasants in bacon. Lightly grease roaster pan; place birds in pan and cover. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour.

While bird is baking, make the following sauce: Stir 3 tablespoons flour in 3 tablespoons of hot melted grease. Add 1 can mushrooms, 1 cup chopped onions, 2 stalks chopped celery, chopped bell pepper and 1 cup olives. Add 1 1/2 cups red port wine and water to blend to desired consistency. Simmer 1 hour.

Pour sauce over pheasant and cook 30 minutes, basting often. If more liquid is needed, add more wine before serving.

Suggested side dish: wild rice.

Pen & ink artist veteran at festival

By Julie Campe

Sally Kubani's eight consecutive years in the Clarkston Historical Society's Crafts and Cider Festival are noteworthy.

It's likely that her participation outlives any other artist's, said this year's festival organizers.

When she first started, the fair was held on the sidewalks of Clarkston, and she sold barnwood crafts.

The Independence Township resident now sells pen and ink drawings of village buildings as well as drawings painted with acrylics.

She works in her basement "next to the laundry pile." Her own photography and real life provide the sources for her work.

To keep her company while she works and to give her inspiration, she listens to classical music on the radio.

"It makes your juices flow," she says, mentioning that she especially likes light music from the baroque period and the Pachelbel "Canon" in particular.

To prepare for the show, she works all year on her original pen and ink drawings. Then she takes them to a printer, who copies them. Some are printed on paper that can be painted, and on that she uses acrylic paints in watercolor style.

On the weekend of the show, she and her daughter, Mary, share the booth. Mary displays her calligraphy, and they both take turns tending shop.

She's come a long way since her first show, she says, laughing. It wasn't easy to display her work before crowds of people in the beginning.

"It is scary. . . . People look more critically at painting because it's an art and not a craft, . . . and I didn't know if I would qualify as an artist," she says.

But she thinks she's figured out the best way to make sales.

"I try to stand back, but if I hear them comment about a building, I usually try to find out about it. . . . I love to hear the stories of the older townfolk," she says.

"That is one of the best things I get out of this show. . . . One woman came back and said her father was born in the Terrace Building. There were tears in her eyes (as she remembered). It was so interesting to see a reaction like that to art."

The show also provides a challenge and a chance to interact with the people.

"This is really a good contact with the people you don't see . . . the rest of the year," she says. "I would say it's a very rewarding experience. It's a good feeling you get from the feedback."

"If you do things that appeal to the local people, it means something to them."

She also takes custom orders, although she likes some types of orders better than others.

"Anything with stonework I like doing," she says. "I like to do homey homes . . . that people grew up in and had a great time, and they felt so good about it that they wanted it for their parents or their kids."

She likes to do animals, but she doesn't do too many people.

"I don't think I could take the criticism. . . . I would love to be able to do children. I think it's easier to do an old person, more shadows and more lines," she says.

Sally Kubani sells her original pen and ink prints of Clarkston scenes. This was her eighth year at Crafts and Cider, and she's now used to showing her work in public.

How can I say no to my drinking friends?

C.A.T.

P.A.W.

*Chemicals Are Trouble. People Are Working.

Copyright 1986 Jeanette Sanders

Dear Cat Paw:

How can I say no to a drink if all my friends are drinking? It's really hard, and I don't know what to say and feel odd.

Help Me

Dear Help Me:

If you don't want to drink, don't! Usually the best way to refuse a drink is with a simple and direct "No, thanks."

Skip any apologies, excuses or arguments. If you feel comfortable about not drinking, others will be more likely to accept it and not hassle you.

Dear Cat Paw:

Doesn't drinking beer and wine make you sick to your stomach?

Settle This Argument

Dear Settle:

Township Clerk

No! It's the alcohol in the drinks that makes you sick and drunk. Changing from one alcoholic drink to another shouldn't make much difference.

Dear Cat Paw:

What is freebasing cocaine?

Interested

Dear Interested:

Street cocaine is mixed with ammonium hydroxide ether in a beaker. This pasty substance is heated to evaporate the ether, leaving unadulterated cocaine freebase.

Small amounts are placed on the screens in the neck of the pipe and smoked at high temperature over the torch. (The ether, of course, is extremely volatile and may explode.)

Dear Cat Paw:

Why is it dangerous to take downers with a drink or two?

Never Had a Problem

Dear Never:

When barbiturates are used with alcohol, the practice has resulted in many accidental overdose deaths.

Due to the increased effect of the combination of substances in slowing down bodily functions, abusers lose track of time and often forget how many, if any, pills they have taken.

Consequently, they may take another pill, a drink or both and slip quietly into a terminal coma.

A frightening phenomenon of barbiturate abuse concerns an increase in tolerance to the drugs. As use continues and tolerance is created, the need for larger doses escalates.

The lethal dose for an individual, however, remains virtually unchanged.

Through incessant abuse, individuals can easily build a tolerance to their lethal level. At this point, they may ingest a slightly larger dose than that taken previously and become victims of fatal overdoses.

Cat Paw author Jeanette Sanders, a Springfield Township resident, is a state certified substance abuse counselor and a member of the Clarkston Area Chemical People, an organization devoted to the prevention of substance abuse among the community's young people.

Free directory

A free Bed and Breakfast and Historical Inns directory is available from the Michigan Travel Bureau.

The new directory lists over 100 B&B establishments and historic hotels throughout Michigan. The 43-page booklet provides detailed information on a number of rooms, area activities, reservations information and a brief description of each home or hotel.

Not all Michigan B&B's are quiet country inns. They are located in resorts, tourist spots, college towns, small villages and big cities.

In the bureau's directory, a bed-and-breakfast is defined as a small home with up to seven rooms in which the host treats the visitor more like a guest than a customer. A continental breakfast is always included.

An inn has eight to 20 sleeping rooms and breakfast is generally, but not always, included in the price of the room.

Historic hotels have 20 or more sleeping rooms, are at least 50 years old and have historical significance.

For a free copy of the directory, call the Michigan Travel Bureau at 1-800-5432-YES.

Beekeeper

"With 25 to 30 colonies, that's a helluva lot of workers," he said. "More than General Motors, probably."

Those bees produce about a ton and a half of honey in a 12-hour day. The season runs from April to November. That's a lot of honey.

Being around so many bees would make most people nervous, but not Barber, even though he might get stung several times a day.

He knows that the killer bees are on their way, too, but he has heard that they may not be able to survive the climate in the north.

The honey season is winding down and Barber will be happy when it's over, but he enjoys his living. "It's interesting," he said. "I'm my own boss. I'm outside all the time and the bees dictate to you when there's work to be done."

Walking for Health

By Tanya Luchkovitz-Weeder

Dr. Paul Dudley White, Cardiologist, said "a vigorous five mile walk will do more good for an unhappy but otherwise healthy adult than all the medicine and psychology in the world."

Dr. White continues "walking is the perfect exercise because it can be done in almost any terrain and weather, without special equipment, and into very old age."

Dr. Joseph Beninson adds that "only walking will satisfactorily promote blood circulation. Exercised bones don't demineralize but stay dense and strong and are far less likely to break."

Gaylor Hauser, in his book, Look Younger, Live Longer, writes: "If you want a quick pick-up in energy when going for a walk, make your diet extremely rich in the B vitamins. Take 3 or more heaping tablespoons, daily, of powdered brewers yeast in milk, vegetable or fruit juice."

The President's Council on physical fitness and sports recommends "walk every chance you get. Walking is actually one of the best all-around physical activities."

Every part of your body performs naturally when you walk. Abdominal muscles are strengthened, you can walk off middle age spread, look & feel better & feel better about yourself.

WE WOULD LIKE TO THANK: our many friends, relatives, neighbors and businesses in the community for all of their help and support during our time of need. Clarkston soldier remembered

In observance of National POW/MIA Recognition Day, the POW Committee of Michigan unveiled a memorial plaque Sept. 19.

The ceremony was held at Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens in Novi and remembered 84 Michigan MIAs in southeast Asia including James D. Carter of Clarkston.

The bronze plaque lists the names of the MIAs, rank, branch of service, hometown, date of birth, date of disappearance and leaves a space for a return date.

The remains of nine of the 84 MIAs have been returned in the last two years, according to Patti Comstock of the POW Committee of Michigan.

The committee was approached two years ago by John Tobias, the prearrangement manager of Oakland Hills.

"He (Tobias) had a friend who was a returned POW," said Comstock. "He knew the hardships and what (his friend) had to go through and that's what put the idea to work."

The plaque is embedded in a black granite background as part of a newly built chapel and mausoleum. The structure also has black granite trimming, which came from the same quarry as the memorial for Vietnam Veterans in Washington, D.C.

"It's a beautiful building," Comstock said. "It's wonderful. People have a tendency to forget, but it's such a hardship" on the families.

Donations sought for flowers, trees

A bid for donations from community members for village flowers and plants comes from Fontie ApMadoc, chairperson of the beautification committee.

"Money can go for more spring flowers or plants," she said.

ApMadoc, a member of the Clarkston Village Council, has been chairperson of the beautification committee for 11 years.

During that time, flower barrels have appeared on village streets; flowers, trees and shrubs have been planted in the Depot Road Park; and tulips have been planted in beds at the Main Street parking lot.

"Everyone comments to the shop owners. I just think it's a delightful thing," she said. "I've enjoyed every minute of it."

Village shop owners pay for barrels and flowers, and this year, members of the Clarkston Farm and Garden Club have watered and maintained the barrel plantings.

ApMadoc would like to see more spring flowers in the parking lot and more trees in the park, but expenses have exceeded the income from donations.

"It's just a constant little here and little there," she said. "I'm sure glad the Farm and Garden Club helped."

Those who wish to make donations can send checks to Village of Clarkston Beautification, Art Pappas, 375 Depot, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Flu shots available at senior center

Flu shots will be administered by the Oakland County Health Department at the Independence Senior Citizen Center on Tuesday, Sept. 30.

Hours are 10 a.m. to noon at the center, located on Clarkston Road between Sashabaw Road and M-15 in Clintonwood Park.

This year's vaccine protects against three viral strains, A/Chile, A/Mississippi and B/Ann Arbor.

A donation of $2 is asked for each shot.

Approximately 80 to 90 percent of the excess deaths attributed to pneumonia and influenza during epidemics have occurred among persons age 65 or older, according to a news release from the senior center.

Flu shots are recommended for persons with chronic illness such as diabetes, heart, lung or kidney conditions and for all older persons, particularly those over 65, the release said.

Influenza immunizations are also available at the health department offices in Pontiac and Southfield during regular clinic hours—Monday, noon to 7:30 p.m.; and Tuesday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

To set up for the Clarkston Historical Society's Crafts and Cider Festival, Leslie Raven first has to erect a waterproof booth. The Flint resident sold painted sweatshirts last weekend.

From quiet to crowded

Crowds of people examine the wares at the 12th annual festival. Even the rain stopped by for a short time over the weekend, but not long enough to ruin the show.

For a better view, Don Craner, 4, of Lake Orion prefers a tree in the village park. His friend from Troy, Jessica Oberholtzer [not pictured], also liked the tree.
