Bullets smash family room window—annually

By Julie Campe

For the second time in two years, Andrea Ward's family room window was destroyed by a bullet. The most recent incident occurred Monday evening, Nov. 24, causing $150 in damages.

It happens during hunting season, she said, although no hunting is allowed near her Felix Road home in Independence Township.

No one was injured in either instance, but next time her family might not be so lucky, she said.

It was dark, and Ward was walking through her back yard on her way home from her neighbor's house when she heard shots.

"I walked into the door and 'boom,' the window was shot," she said.

Last year, it happened during the day.

"The police think it's just stray bullets," she said. "Maybe if someone reads this, they'll stop or be more careful. . . . We're afraid someone's going to get killed here sometime. I wish that whoever they are would go somewhere else."

Ward has two children and is expecting a third. To protect the kids, her husband moved their "TV-watching sofa" away from the family room window, so the kids wouldn't sit there.

"We don't know what else to do," she said. "It just came so close to hurting someone last night. It's frightening."

The bullets could come from a half mile away,

Oakland County Sheriff's deputies told her.

A field is behind her house, followed by a patch of trees that extends to Greens Lake—a place hunters seem to like, she said.

Post Office open early

Clarkston area residents can mail cards and packages early—literally—during the Christmas season.

On weekdays, the Clarkston Post Office will be open two hours earlier than normal and close one-half hour later, from 6 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Saturday hours have also been lengthened, with the post office open one hour earlier and two-and-one-half hours later, from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The changes will be in place through Dec. 23, said Clarkston Postmaster William O. Kinsley II.

Mailers may also find the new stamp machines convenient, he said. Located in the lobby, the machines provide books of stamps or single stamps and change for $5 and $1 bills.

Kinsley said he decided to add the early morning mailing hours because many Clarkston area residents are commuters.

By mailing packages and cards in the morning, they can complete the task on the way to work and the items will be on their way the same day. If hours had been extended into the evening, the items mailed then would have left the post office the next day.

"We're looking forward to testing the waters," said Kinsley. "If this works, after Christmas I may open the post office earlier in the morning."

A stray bullet hit the Wards' living room window last week, causing $150 in damages. Andrea

Ward and her son Patrick, 3, examine the shattered remains.

Council turns down county proposal for dam

By Julie Campe

Control and maintenance of the broken Mill Pond cofferdam still rest with owner Lehman Investments.

The Clarkston Village Council opted not to accept a proposal from the Oakland County Building and Planning Committee (OCBPC) that the village pay for repairs so OCBPC could assume ownership.

"We didn't feel that we would be any further ahead, except that it would be repaired, but the people would still have to pay the costs," said council President Sharron Catallo after the meeting.

Public hearing

At a public hearing Dec. 10, Springfield Township residents will have a chance to suggest ways to spend approximately $36,000 in 1987.

The money represents the township's share of Community Development Act (CDA) federal funds. The hearing is planned during the township board's regular monthly meeting, which begins at 8 p.m. in Springfield Township Hall.

"The CDA hearing basically gives people a chance to voice their opinion, even though a public hearing isn't really necessary," said Springfield Township Supervisor Collin Walls.

Federal guidelines for spending the money include that it must benefit low and moderate income residents.

"Since it is not possible to document a specific low income area, because they are scattered throughout the township rather than centered in a specific area, we usually try to find a communitywide project that will benefit the low income residents as well," Walls said.

Following the public hearing, the township board will vote on a CDA budget.

The dam at the south end of the pond near Washington Street broke last spring, so the water level can't be lowered.

At the Dec. 1 special meeting, members of the OCPBC met with council members to discuss the proposal.

To determine what is wrong with the dam, an estimated $3,000 to 5,000 or more is necessary said said Glen Yrjanainen, Oakland County Civil Engineer.

If repairs were simple, a minimum of $10,000 would be needed to study and implement the solution, he said.

After repairs were made, the OCPBC would accept ownership from Lehman.

-Corrections-

The story on the Village of Clarkston's M-15 Study Committee in the Nov. 26 edition should have included the names of all three members.

Sharron Catallo, Village Council president, is exploring ways in which the village might take over legal control of Main Street in the business district.

Steve Secatch has contacted State Sen. Richard Fessler (R-West Bloomfield), chairman of the senate transportation committee, to see what might be done further.

The M-15 Study Committee is currently exploring options and more members will be added as the project takes shape, said Jerome Wilford, committee chairman.

In the Nov. 19 issue of The Clarkston News, an incorrect first name was used for a trustee on the Clarkston Village Council. His correct name is Douglas Roesser.

Objections to the proposal included: It would be too expensive to special assess residents or pay from general fund; the village would have no control; no advantage would be gained by the village by accepting the proposal.

The council voted, 4-0, not to accept the OCPBC proposal. Trustees James Schultz, Eric Haven and Fontie ApMadoc were absent.

The village council had requested the owners to repair the dam by August, and the council filed a lawsuit in September when repairs hadn't been made.

The lawsuit calls for repairs by Lehman of the dam and the Main Street spillway into Parke Lake, or permission to allow the village to repair the dam and bill the owner.

The suit names Lehman, the Oakland County Drain Commission and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. The case is scheduled to be heard Dec. 15 by Judge Alice Gilbert.

The council plans to discuss the lawsuit Dec. 8 in a closed meeting.

CHS graduate dies in deer hunting accident

By Kathy Greenfield

David W. Higgins, 29, of Waterford Township died Nov. 28 while deer hunting in Roscommon County. His death was the fifth firearms fatality in the 16-day deer hunting season that ended Nov. 30.

The gunshot wound was inflicted by a 20-year-old who said he mistook Higgins for a bear, according to police.

David W. Higgins

Higgins was graduated from Clarkston High School in 1976. He had lived in the area since 1966 when his family moved to Clarkston from California.

Hunting, taxidermy and antique cars were his son's hobbies, said Wayne Higgins of Independence Township. He never missed deer and bird hunting seasons, and he had showcases in his home with ducks and game birds he had mounted himself. During the last few years, he had traveled with friends to Texas annually to hunt ducks.

"Everyone liked David. I've had people call from Oregon, Tennessee," he said. "If you knew David, you would like him. He's going to be missed."

"He was a great guy," said his brother John Higgins of Malibu, Calif. "He was a great father, a wonderful husband."

Higgins is survived by his wife, Nancy; son, Nicholas, 3½; parents, Wayne and Lillian Higgins; and brothers, John Higgins, and Timothy Higgins of Lansing.

The accident occurred in a swampy area near the back of about 20 acres owned by Higgins and his father. The property is in Au Sable Township in the northeast corner of Roscommon County.

They had recently purchased the property with a cabin, and Higgins had shot a buck on the first day of the season while hunting with his father. After Thanksgiving dinner with his wife's family, Higgins had returned to the cabin.

According to Sgt. Fran Staley of the Roscommon Sheriff's Department, the 20-year-old who shot Higgins telephoned for help from the nearby cabin of his uncle.

Reports indicate Higgins was hunting alone, while the 20-year-old was with a companion, and that Higgins was wearing a black hat and a jacket that weren't "the hunter orange you're supposed to wear," he said.

Staley also said it was not bear hunting season. In the zone where the accident occurred, guns could be used to hunt bears from Sept. 19 to 25.

The county prosecutor's office would decide whether to press charges against the 20-year-old based on the evidence, Staley said.

Preliminary reports indicate five fatalities and 28 non-fatal hunting accidents during the general firearm deer hunting season from Nov. 15 through 30, said Lt. James Dabb of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources Law Enforcement Division.

In 1985, there were six fatalities and 30 non-fatal injuries, he said.

"It's a slight improvement, about 9 percent fewer accidents. One accident is too many, but when you look back to the 1960s, we were having 300 accidents per year," Dabb said. "The 1985 total was 85. That was the fewest number of accidents since 1938, license sales have more than doubled and there are more recreational hunting days."

Michigan has one of the lowest hunting accident rates in the country, he said, crediting required hunter education for 12- to 16-year-olds and the Hunter Orange Law.

The law requiring most firearms hunters including all deer hunters to wear an orange hat, vest or jacket has been in effect since 1977 for public property and since 1985 for all property.

The fatalities this year occurred in five different counties, two in the upper peninsula, two in the northern lower peninsula and one in the southern lower peninsula, Dabb said.

Of the five fatal accidents, two were from self-inflicted gunshot wounds and three from shots fired by other hunters.

"Hunting is about the safest recreational activity a person can get involved with," he said, citing national statistics of five injuries per 100,000 for hunting, 105 for swimming, 113 for tennis and 27,041 for football.

Food for the holidays

About 25 grocery bags of cans were gathered during the Thanksgiving can drive, sponsored by Clarkston High School Student Council.

The food was donated to the Independence Township senior citizen group to help feed needy families, said teacher Mike Kaul, council sponsor.

Although it's an annual event, this is the first Thanksgiving can drive, said Kaul. Usually, the drive is for Christmas.

Jan Modisett's third hour class collected the most cans per student, along with the media center in third hour. Both classes were rewarded with donuts and candy bars.

Army report confirms findings

A United States Army report concerning the Aug. 2 death of Springfield Township resident Thomas Michael Rohroff confirms the findings of the previous National Guard report, according to Maj. Michael Johnson.

There were no different findings of fault, said Johnson, the assistant public affairs officer for the Department of Military Affairs.

"Col. Robert Lundy, the chief of staff, said it was essentially the same as ours," he said.

Johnson had not yet seen the report, but said communication problems and inexperience were listed as the main problems with the National Guard exercise in which Rohroff died and two men were seriously injured.

"We think this has been as thorough and objective as can be," he said of the investigation. "We asked for (the Army report). We wanted an outsider to look at the situation objectively."

Rohroff, a 1981 Clarkston High School graduate, drowned during a routine drill after dropping from a helicopter without a parachute into Howes Lake in Grayling.

Due to communication problems, the helicopter was traveling too high and too fast for the drill at the time of the jumping.

Rohroff had served in the United States Army's 82nd Airborne Division before joining the National Guard.

His stepmother, Mary Rohroff, declined comment on the report because she had not seen it.

Tiger, bobcat may hit the road

The holidays don't look too bright for Athena the Siberian tiger and Cassandra the bobcat.

The animals, who live on a 20-acre farm in Independence Township belonging to the Murdochs, may have to leave home before Christmas.

The Murdochs had appealed the Michigan Court of Appeals to allow the animals to remain on the farm, contrary to the township ordinance, which doesn't allow "wild animals" as pets in the township.

Last month, Judge Fredrick Mester upheld the township's decision not to allow a zoning variance.

The animals have 60 days from the day of the decision to find a new home. However, the Murdochs have filed an appeal in the Supreme Court of Michigan, which may give more time, said Frances R. Avadenka, attorney for the Murdochs.

They'll have to wait and see how long the process will take, she said.

Township attorney Gerald Fisher was pleased with the judge's decision.

"I assume the Murdochs proceeded in good faith," he said. "I'm hopeful they will voluntarily remove (the animals)."

"I know it's not going to be an easy or pleasant experience for them," he added. "They've become attached to the animals."

Buy yule tree at Camp Oakland

A "you choose, we cut" sale of still-growing Scotch pine Christmas trees will be held weekends at Camp Oakland in Oxford beginning Saturday, Dec. 6.

Young people from Camp Oakland Youth Programs Inc. will be on hand to cut customers' selections of 5- to 7-foot trees. They'll be cutting trees from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. each Saturday and Sunday Dec. 6-21.

The trees were planted nine years ago by youths in Camp Oakland's Work Education program.

The camp will also be selling doughnuts, hot chocolate and coffee.

Proceeds from the sale, at $25 a tree, will benefit the camp's programs for young people: Girls' Ranch, Boys' Ranch, Work Education and summer camp.

Camp Oakland is located at 930 East Drahnner Rd., about a mile east of M-24 and two miles north of Lake Orion.

Further information is available from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays at 628-2561.

New Navy station

The United States Navy has opened a new recruiting station in Waterford Township.

The station at 6515 Highland Rd. officially opened Dec. 1. On staff are Petty Officer 1st Class Steven A. Hicks, Petty Officer 1st Class Stephen Richie and Petty Officer 2nd Class Fredrick Mikkola.

"We can deal with anything," said Hicks, listing new enlistments, reserve officer recruiting and virtually any phase of service in the Navy.

Hours are 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday. Call 666-2902 for more information.

Campbell loves Clarkston

By Julie Campe

Richard A. Campbell knows the value of hard work.

The former Independence Township attorney began working at age 12 and eventually worked his way through law school.

His first job was as a laborer at Waterford Boat and Trailer that used to be at the foot of Waterford Hill.

Next, he worked at the Oakland Press mailroom (then called the Pontiac Press), the Pontiac Coach Company, the United States Smelting, Refining and Mining Co. (in Alaska), the Budd Co., the Detroit Police and AAA Insurance Co.

At age 25, he was married with three children when he decided to go to college and continue to work full time.

In seven years, he received a degree in law from Wayne State University, Detroit, and opened his private practice.

He began his duties as Independence Township attorney five years later in 1970, when the population was less than 10,000.

The growth he's witnessed in the past 16 years is amazing, he said. An additional 12,000 residents live in the area now.

Overall, the job has been interesting, and he's loved working in Clarkston, he said.

Only the constraints of time are holding him back, said Campbell, who resigned from the township last month.

His partner, Gerald Fisher, will continue to serve as township attorney.

In the meantime, Campbell will still serve as Brandon Township attorney, as well as performing his other duties, he said.

Although he presently lives in Waterford Township, Campbell was raised in Independence, and he's interested in the many changes he's seen.

Several supervisors have served during his time: Bob Vandermark, Ed Glennie, Whitey Tower, Jim

Smith and Frank Ronk.

Some key rezoning cases—each involving petitions from the residents—also have come during his years of service. The results have set precedents for cases to follow, he said.

Back then, a proposed K mart on Dixie Highway near Maybee Road was not allowed; a proposed rezoning for a mobile home park at Clintonville and Maybee Roads was rezoned to multiple residential; and condominiums on Waldon Road behind Pine Knob received permission to build with lesser density than requested.

These decisions, as well as subsequent decisions, have helped make the Clarkston area a good place to live, he said.

"I believe there's an affirmative duty on the part of government to promote quality of life," said Campbell. "I believe that if society is going to be successful, it has to be successful at the local level."

"The tragedy of the system today is that everybody looks to other people to solve their problems. One of the reasons the Independence Township-Clarkston area has become so desirable is because of the affirmative moves of local government to keep it nice, to maintain high standards."

"There probably aren't too many better places in the world to live than Clarkston, Michigan."

Campbell seems qualified to judge. He's traveled all over North America, and he's seen other towns and governments and climates.

"Michigan is my favorite place," he said. "I think Michigan has more to offer than any other state."

Opinions

Open and shut case

Kathy Greenfield

There must be thousands of things people do that go without notice—unless they're not done. We learn that lesson all through life, but I still think household responsibilities provide the best examples.

The following are not terms of endearment: "You did the laundry. How wonderful!" "You're the best garbage taker-outer in the world!" "It's great, honey, the way you keep all those light switches turned off!"

Show me someone who loves to wash dishes, and I'll show you a 2-year-old "mother or father's helper." Show me someone who loves to wash toilets, and I'll show you the same child (they call it water play).

Does anyone anywhere on Earth (except in that pretend-zone of TV commercials) get patted on the back for dusting, vacuuming or washing floors?

I have one more question: Does anyone receive heaps of praise for shutting the garage door at night?

It's true. As early darkness has settled over our land, I've been consistently forgetting to shut that darned door. There's a definite pattern going here. I did the same thing last year.

Since only one car will fit into our detached garage and since my husband has the other half filled with things allegedly worth saving, I have the privilege of using the vacant spot.

Unfortunately, with privilege comes responsibility. In this case, all that means is I have to remember to close the door.

"Why was the garage door open this morning?" he asks.

"I'm not answering that question," I answer.

After realizing it just wouldn't work to wait until I walked into the house to press the button that closes the garage, I pondered some solutions.

I could hit the button in my car—and worry about getting out in time. (The headline: Garage door maims innocent victim.)

I could train the dog to hit the button whenever I walked through the back door. (This is the animal I can't train to stay off the living room couch.)

Time passed.

Then, finally, I managed to think of something that does work. When I leave the car, I take the garage door opener with me. I hit the button and watch the door close before putting the gadget in my coat pocket.

Incidentally, if anyone ever compliments me for keeping the garage door closed, I'm going to scream.

A reader called to tell me I'd missed a line in the prayer I printed from childhood memory last week.

It should have been: "Thank you for the food we eat. Thank you for the world so sweet. Thank you for the birds that sing. Thank you God for everything."

I left out the "world so sweet" part. I'm calling it the garage door line.

TAKE A BOW-ROTARY CLUB...

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

Quiet, conservative, soft spoken (none of the above) Mickey Hiatt had a large, stray dog come to his Oxford home recently.

It's capacity for food grew each day, which led Mick to realize why no one ever came by to claim the mutt. No one could afford to feed it.

Mick scanned this paper's lost and found columns, hoping to find anyone looking for any kind of dog. He would lie, if necessary to any person advertising for the return of a dog, even a toy poodle.

What Mickey found was people looking for good homes for cats. "Does anyone ever look for a bad home for cats?" he asked above the roar in the saloon.

"I found three ads for lost cats and 14 people with 'free cats to good homes.' I called them all and told them I'd take their cats if they would take this dog, if they had a good home," he said.

"These people who ask for good homes for their free cats," Mick wondered, "do they go out and inspect these homes before they give away their unwanted cats? Do they check out the kind of car they drive, if the kids are clean, or if they are behind in payments?

"Do they really give a darn about whether the housewife cleans under the bed more than once a year, or is it they just don't have a gunny sack, large rock and a river?"

I do not expect to see Mickey Hiatt's name as a judge in next year's cat show at Cobo.

As everyone in America knows by now, the break up of AT&T was hardly a boon to the common man. So, you can buy your own phone that looks like Garfield, a football, or Dolly Parton. Big deal.

You can also, if you're in business, pay 54 cents to have a canned-sounding voice tell you a number that's not in your book.

That's what Jim Oberliesen, Michigan Bell Corporate Affairs Manager, told me. I'm allowed about 20 calls to information a month, he said, though I can't find the allowance on my bill. Then it's over a half buck a call, plus 8.2 cents per every time a business phone call goes through.

A few years ago the phone company said they were going to discourage people from calling directory assistance. They've done it the good ol' American way... up the price.

• No man's opinion is entirely worthless—even a watch that won't run is right twice a day.

• Look before you leap. It is better to shun the bait than struggle on the hook.

• Money may not bring happiness, but everyone wants a chance to find out for himself.

Letter policy

We welcome our readers' opinions. Letters to the editor must arrive at The Clarkston News office by noon Monday to be considered for publication in Wednesday's paper. We reserve the right to edit all letters for brevity and clarity and to limit the number of letters from any one individual on any one topic. We discourage copies of letters sent elsewhere, and require all letters be signed and include a phone number and address. We may withhold names on request, but will not publish unsigned letters. Address all letters to: Letters to the Editor, The Clarkston News, 55 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Letters to the editor

M-15 mall protest

The Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) unanimously denied the request of W.H. Investment Co. for zoning variances on July 16, 1986. (W.H. Investments owns the vacant property at the southeast corner of I-75 and M-15 and has plans of building a shopping center on that site.)

As a result of the ZBA's action in denying the zoning variances, W.H. Investments filed a lawsuit in Oakland County Circuit Court to seek a court order directing the township to grant the requested variances and to allow the building to begin.

Court records indicate that attorneys for the township and W.H. Investments have agreed to have the ZBA "newly consider" the entire matter at a special meeting Dec. 10 at the Township Hall at 7:30 p.m.

My question is, why? A proper hearing has been conducted, a decision rendered, and the ability to appeal was available to those aggrieved. Why now is this matter brought back before the board?

It is imperative that those who have opposed this project voice their concern in this matter on Dec. 10.

I believe the citizens deserve an explanation as to why this rehearing is necessary as well as why the township has voluntarily agreed to such a hearing when one is unnecessary.

What troubles me most is that the citizens have spoken in this matter, yet someone has chosen not to listen.

I urge those of you concerned to be there and be heard on Dec. 10.

F.H. Millard

Does anyone expect a tax-supported state highway to become the private drive of the chosen few on North Main (M-15)?

My predictions are—

1. Clarkston will die on the vine. M-15 will be redesignated to Sashabaw where there is the land-space to take the increased lane widths—even if some buildings are taken out.

Clarkston was planned in the "horse and buggy" days when that man-made mill pond was necessary for a power source and became a desirable visual asset with Parke Lake being nature's relief down the spillway, under M-15, to keep all that water below a certain level.

1954 was in the pre-I-75 planning stage of the state highway's plan to relieve traffic congestion on the lifeline of this area—US-10 (Dixie Highway), also known as the Saginaw Trail when my people came here.

The power of the mill pond is obsolete. Nature has never repealed its law of running water.

Business law shows that towns are built because of commerce. Business needs enough customers. Enough customers need enough parking spaces. Enough customers are known not to walk to business. Business needs profits to stay alive.

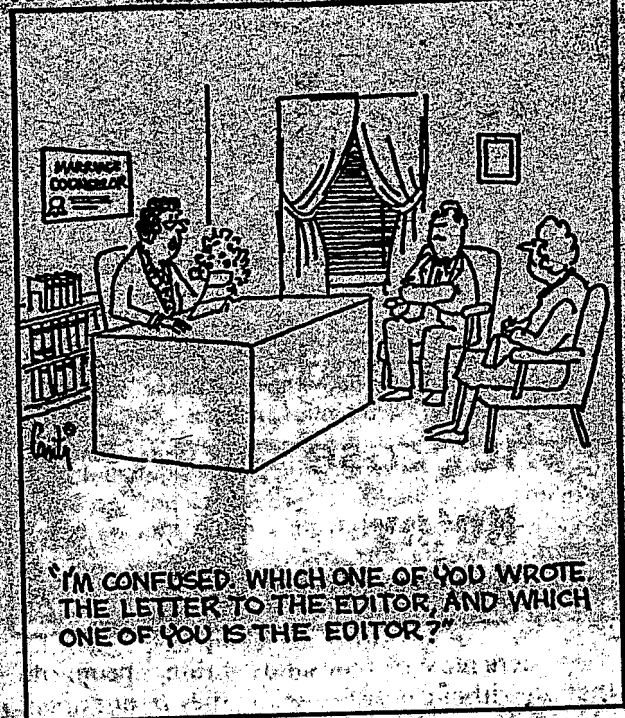

Clarkston will become an "old town."

2. More bitter feelings will develop through the next few years before something gives. I-75 eliminated all my closest neighbors to the north and took out half of our land but left my house and yard.

3. A new town will be born somewhere or the township can develop as a unit with a more than adequate highway system to-and-from-and-through our area.

Iva Caverly

ALL ABOUT TOWN

"I'M CONFUSED. WHICH ONE OF YOU WROTE THE LETTER TO THE EDITOR, AND WHICH ONE OF YOU IS THE EDITOR?"

Just to say thanks

I would like to thank the "Just Say No" club participants and volunteers for your hard work in making the "Just Say No" Club Rally a success.

If it weren't for the many wonderful friends and neighbors like you, we could not have carried out our vital work.

You made the "Just Say No" Club Rally possible. You created an awareness in our community and you showed you care.

We know Clarkston will be an even better place to live because of your help.

I would like to thank Betsy Spiker, Pattie Rumph and Karen Johnson for their special showing way beyond the call of duty. These ladies came out on the worst night of the year and stayed all evening to help so our children would benefit.

A special thanks also goes to our local talent for the evening—Brad Harman, the CHS Mimes, Sanders Marshall Arts Championship Competition Team and Section 8.

Thank you for your help and thoughtfulness.

Jeanette K. Sanders

'Clarkston will die'

Back in 1954, anyone planning on living along a state or federal highway should have had the common sense to realize that state roads and highways, etc., got that way because of vehicular traffic increasing yearly throughout lives.

That dog might have slept in M-15—but long before I graduated from Clarkston High School in 1939.

We bought our land out in the country on a narrow dirt road in 1953—never knowing about the impending I-75, and I don't think any dog slept in Sashabaw Road even then, either.

Postal praise

It seems to me that we should all be very pleased with the recent decision of our local postmaster, William Kinsley, to expand the post office hours during the holiday season.

This is just another fine example of the good service we have enjoyed from our local post office, particularly in the past few years.

To have access to all the post office services for three additional hours per day will make the holiday season just a little bit easier.

We should all be thankful and be sure to take advantage of this new service.

Neil E. Wallace

'If it Fitz . . .'

The clout of Lt. colonels

Jim Fitzgerald

I think it's neat that a mere lieutenant colonel has been in charge of this nation's foreign policy. It's as though the national debt totaled a thousand dollar sum, instead of trillions of dollars.

What I mean is I can comprehend how much money $3,000 is. It's what I owe on my car. But how much is $2 trillion? I don't have the slightest idea. Someone might tell me the CIA proved that two trillion dollar bills, dropped end to end from a covert coupe on a back road, will reach from here to Nicaragua. But I've never driven farther south than Mexico, so the comparison is meaningless to me.

Likewise, I can understand what a lieutenant colonel is. I used to work for one. But I can't comprehend the exalted positions held by a President Reagan or a Secretary of State Schultz. Someone might tell me that Ronald Reagan puts on his pants one leg at a time, the same as I do, but many years ago, in "King's Row," he lost his legs. I have never been in the presence of a man so distracted by the responsibilities of his exalted position that he didn't know his legs were amputated, and also didn't know at what point in time he first didn't know it. So the comparison is meaningless to me.

THAT'S WHY it was encouraging to learn that Marine Lt. Col. Oliver North had the authority to sell U.S. arms to Iran and send as many as 30 million of our dollars to the Nicaraguan contras without anyone above the rank of lieutenant colonel knowing much about it.

I think this is part of a heartening trend back toward the grass-roots government that made this country great enough to kill Indians and buffalo. In more recent years, a lieutenant colonel had to go through the proper channels to get an appointment with a full colonel. During World War II, I drove a jeep for a lieutenant colonel who was so subservient to his superiors he regularly saluted the star on a general's mailbox. But today's lieutenant colonels are apparently powerful as a speeding John Wayne—and confident enough to bypass even the president's wife.

This change is good because it puts the big decision-makers closer to the ordinary taxpayers who pay for the big decisions. I would never have the opportunity, or nerve, to tell the exalted president of the United States he shouldn't supply weapons to Iran, the contras or anyone else because weapons kill people and our nation shouldn't be in the murder business.

But, even though I was only a sergeant, I used to get pretty lippy with the lieutenant colonel in my jeep. He seemed like just another ordinary persecuted soldier. If he'd had the power to end-run the draft board and send me home to my mother, I certainly would have requested that he do it immediately or get out and walk.

SO IT IS comforting to learn that today's military gives so much authority to low-ranking officers. I feel like I could talk to a regular guy like Lt. Col. North. I could say his Iran-contras deal was illegal—not to mention immoral—and he should be locked up in a stockade for 134 years. I wouldn't feel comfortable saying that to Reagan.

Also, another part of the grass-roots trend is modern foxholes. The Pentagon, normally concerned with sophisticated, trillion-dollar weapons systems, is working on the EXFOD—explosive foxhole digger—which will make it possible to dig shoulder-deep foxholes in five minutes or less. It works something like a supersonic Frisbee, pulverizing hard soil and blasting out loose dirt.

I'd like to talk to a lieutenant colonel about EXFOD. I'd tell him not to do me any favors because, during the next war, I don't plan to hide in a hole. I'm going to trade myself to Iran in return for holy immunity from terror. Israel will handle the deal.

Campbell will still work hard

His reasons included the moderate climate, beautiful scenery, economic success, Midwestern friendliness and a nice mix of people.

"We have wonderful, wonderful water and decent skiing. . . . We have more golf courses accessible to the public than any other state. And we have wonderful summers," he said.

He mentioned one drawback.

"The state government isn't doing their job," he said. "I feel they're wasting our resources. . . . but I feel people in Michigan are smart enough to correct it."

In addition to his law practice, Campbell and his brother own Club Players, a bar/restaurant on Dixie Highway in Waterford Township.

His brother operates it, said Campbell, and the business has proved challenging.

"I learned an awful lot owning my own business," he said, mentioning the difficulties with state and local governments.

"Sometimes, as the small businessman, you feel like you're the enemy," he said. "As a conservative, I've noticed less of that under (Gov. James) Blanchard."

More cooperation between the government, the business owners and the workers is necessary, he said. And things are moving in that direction.

"The recession helped that," said Campbell.

It's been an interesting career, he said, elaborating. "I consider the law to be the ultimate social science. . . . I consider the lawyer the oiler of society."

The oiler makes sure all the parts are working properly, he said, and he does his best to perform this function.

His recreational activities include skiing, swimming, sailing, golfing and traveling. At one time, he had his pilot's license, but he doesn't fly anymore.

With such a full and seemingly adventurous life, not much is left to try, but Campbell does have one project in waiting.

He would like to write a book about his life.

After 16 years of service, Richard A. Campbell resigned from his duties as Independence Township attorney. He still practices law from his office in the Clarkston Mills Mall, Clarkston.

Free-lance writer DuFresne's office is also his home

By Julie Campe

When Peggy DuFresne leaves every morning to work at General Motors, her husband Jim stays home.

He's there when Jessica, 4, and Michael, 10 months, awaken. He makes them breakfast and lunch and dinner. And he plays with them outside in the afternoon.

Plus, he puts in a full day of work.

Beginning at 5 every morning, he puts in a half day of writing on his computer before the kids wake up.

"A lot of people accuse me of being a house husband, but I'm really not," he says, explaining that he and Peggy split the household chores.

A free-lance writer for newspapers and magazines, his main occupation is writing books.

He's the outdoor writer for the Saginaw News, for "steady money," he says.

But his wilderness books are his pride and joy. They're sort of how-to books, he says.

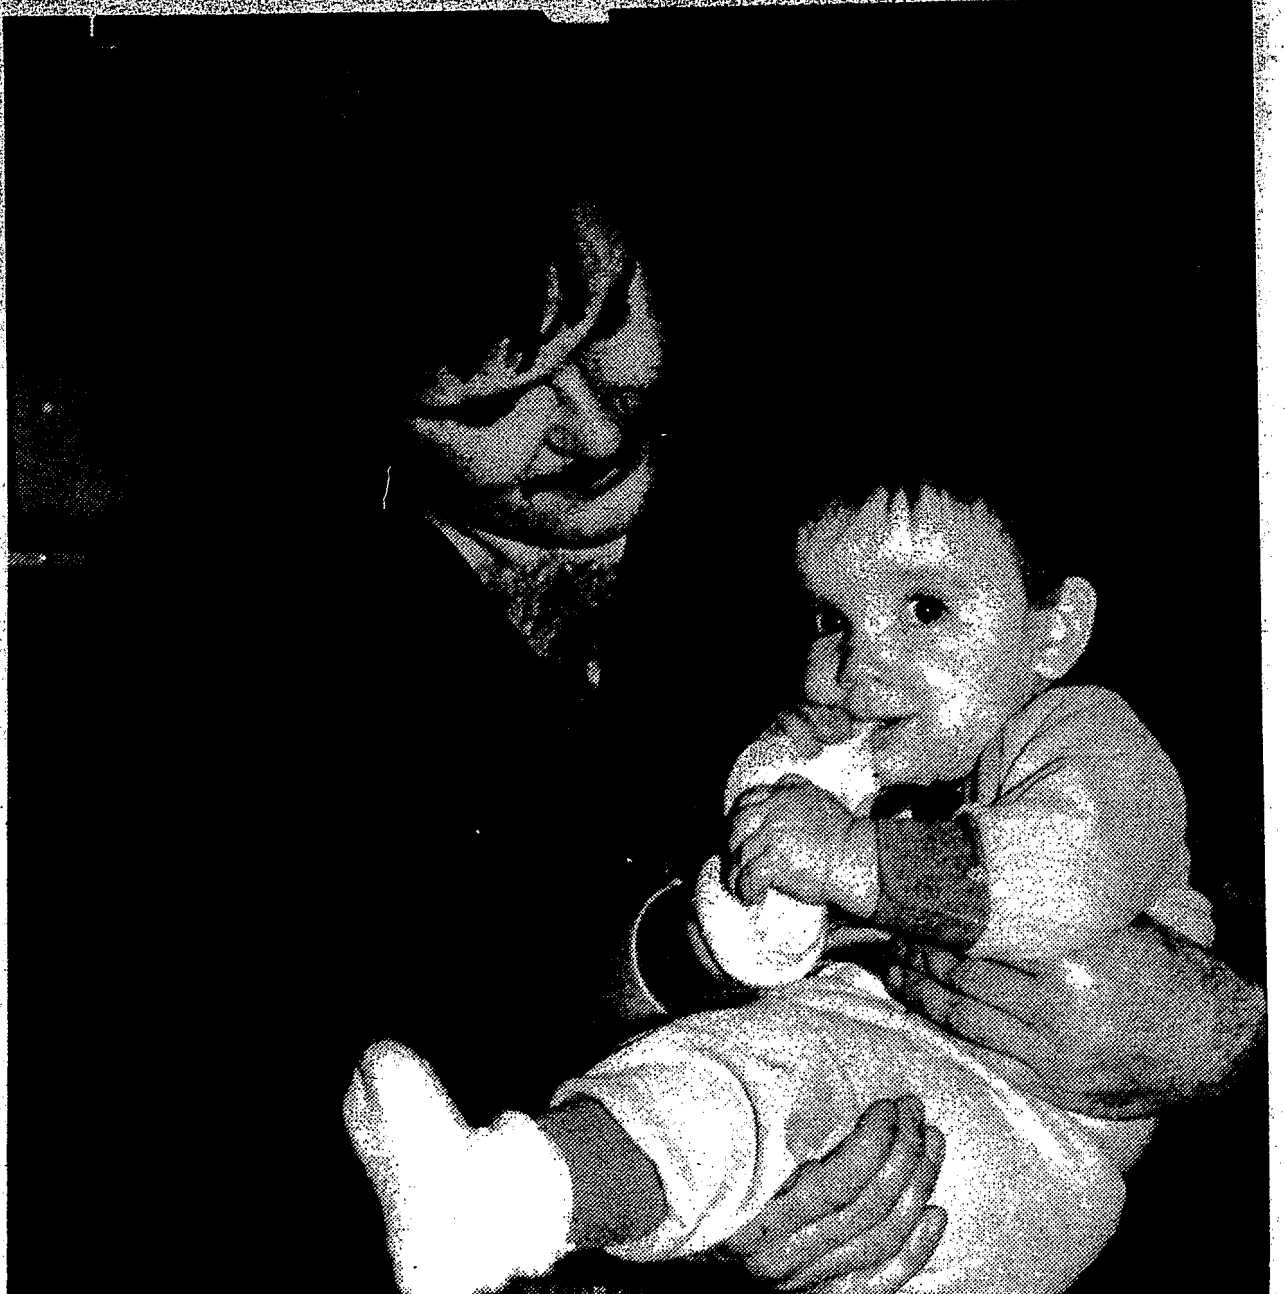

Every summer he travels two to three months in Alaska or New Zealand or wherever he has the inclination.

He spends the rest of the year writing the books in his office—the walk-out basement of his home on Woodside Road, Independence Township.

"It's kind of a bizzare lifestyle, especially when I look at my friends who are engineers, . . . but your kids are only young once," he says, then adds, "I look forward to the time when the kids are in school."

When the children are awake, Jim has to squeeze in writing time. But he's learned to manage.

"If you work real hard and take them outside
[See DUFRESNE, Page 13]

Jim DuFresne and his son Michael enjoy spending the day together. DuFresne writes books from his home office and watches his two children while his wife Peggy works at General Motors. It's a compatible arrangement, he says.

DuFresne is a natural at outdoor writing

after lunch and play, they fall asleep," he says, providing another hour or two to write.

So far, the children enjoy the same things he does, so playing outside is fun for all.

At age 4, his daughter Jessica already knows how to fish, ski, snowshoe and kayak—and she can write her name on the computer.

With the help of a phone, DuFresne sends a story from his computer at home to the computer at the Saginaw Daily newspaper, where he's the outdoor writer and columnist.

"I don't think she's going to be a tomboy, but I think she's going to be well-rounded," he says.

A lot of things are good about his lifestyle, says Jim.

He doesn't have to drive anywhere; he doesn't have to dress up; he sees a lot of his children every day; and the job is challenging and forever changing.

"My income is pretty low," he says. "For a lot of guys, maybe, that might be hard to accept. My wife makes three times more. I have a college degree, and I have to work hard."

His career has involved journalism or sports in some capacity or another since his junior year in high school. He has a long list of sportswriting and sports editing jobs, and a national Associated Press award.

"I don't try to glorify writing," he says. "I try to be really frank with people. It's work, and it's a lot of sacrifice. I guess everything is."

"Writing isn't for everybody. Writing is like always having a term paper due. You learn to live with that."

His books include: "Tramping in New Zealand," which has also been translated into German, and "Alaska: Travel Survival Kit," both published by Lonely Planet Publishing Co. of Australia.

Mountaineer Books are the publishers of his "Isle Royale National Park," "Voyageurs National Park" and "Glacier Bay National Park."

Glacier Bay is to come out next spring, and the second and "better" edition of the Alaska book is also ready for next spring.

"When I first started out, I wanted to get published, and I could care less about everything else," he says. "Now, six books later, I want to make money, to sell consistently."

Since he's paid in royalties, it may be a few years before he starts seeing any money to speak of, he says.

But the money is only a part of it. Speaking of his travels, he makes a listener see India, New Zealand, Alaska.

"In Alaska, I was by myself for 12 days," he says. "The only human voice I heard was when I sang to myself. To be someplace where you see more bears than people is rare."

Looking out the sliding glass door in his basement, his thoughts seem to be on the wilderness.

Music fills the air—George Winston's variations of the "Kanon" by Johann Pachelbel.

Children's toys are scattered about the floor. A wood-burning stove sits in the corner, next to the view of squirrels and birds through the sliding glass door.

Above his computer, black and white photographs of his children hang next to pictures of wildlife—all taken by him.

A roll-top desk is filled with notes and paper and books.

Suddenly, he's back in Michigan.

"I can't imagine wanting to retire," he says.

"The thing is, I'll write until I'm senile. . . . Maybe I'll change; maybe I'll do cookbooks because I can no longer paddle a canoe. . . . I'll be writing as long as I can possibly can."

Last hurrah

One last look at Clarkston's girls basketball season. The Wolves bowed out in their playoff opener, losing to Waterford Kettering, 55-42, Nov. 22. At left, Michelle Wynlemko and Missy Odell go high for a rebound. They scored 15 points each against Kettering. Below, Gina Houck gets back on defense against the Captains' Laura Hahnefeld.

Ottman hits court at Ferris

By Chris Gerbas

For someone who didn't even want to play basketball in college, Kim Ottman has done pretty well for herself.

The 1985 Clarkston grad chose to go up to Big Rapids and attend Ferris State last year, but had no intention of lacing up her sneakers for the Bulldogs. She couldn't walk away from the sport that easily, though.

"Originally I was going to run track," said Ottman, who was in town last week on vacation. "I didn't want to play a sport, but it's kind of a part of me and I thought I'd like to try it."

The speedster had a few track offers out of high school. Her name is on the school's record board as part of the Wolves' fastest relay teams.

But she was going to be a track walk-on at Ferris. Instead, she walked onto the court and was one of two such players kept by coach Pat Dolan.

The Bulldogs went 15-11 and Ottman saw plenty of action as a sixth player. She never did go out for track because of a blood clot in her thigh.

She started her sophomore season this week, but she's not convinced college basketball is for her.

"There's a big difference (between high school and college)," she said. "The games are more physical. It's not as much fun. It's like a 9 to 5 job. In high school, you played the games for fun, if you lost, you lost. If you lose here, it's like death."

Sports

The petite Ottman was also the smallest player in the league, the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

"I got thrown around a lot. It was tough on me," she said.

Ottman is debating whether she'll play another season after this one. But she's close to her teammates and she's happy with the choice to go to Ferris, where she wanted to experience living away from home.

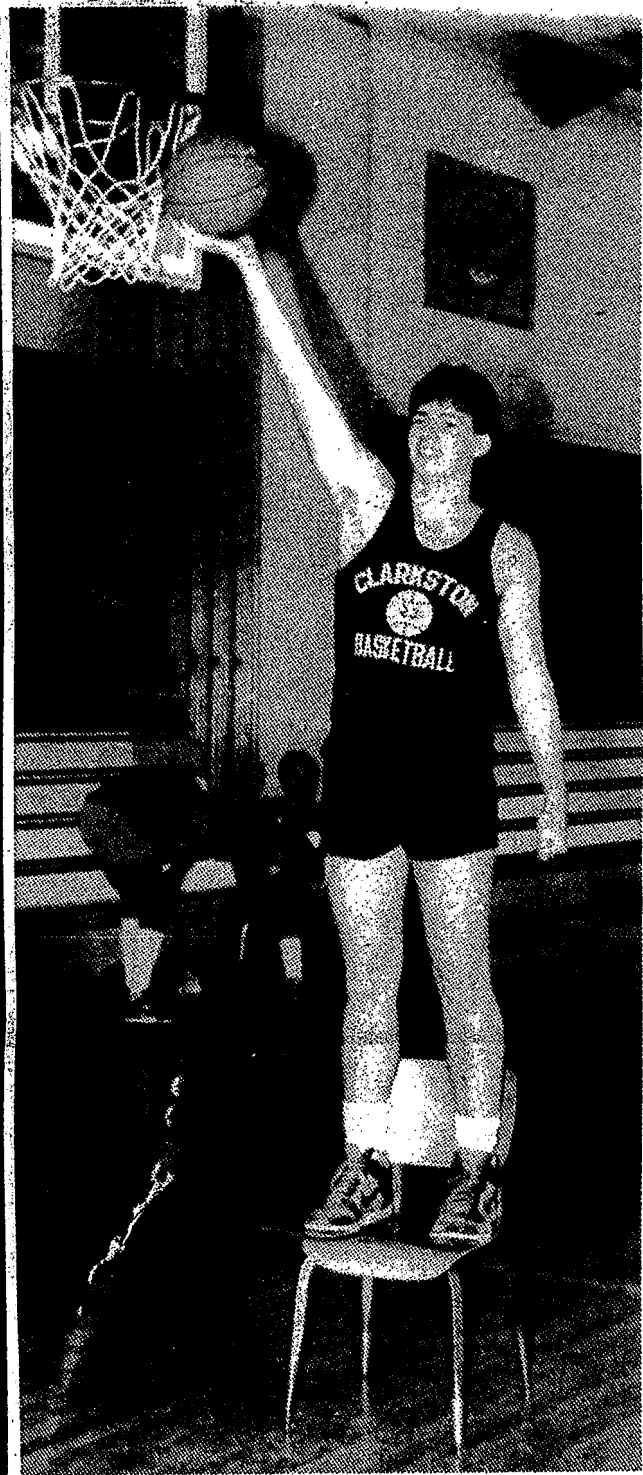

"In high school, everybody knew you," she said. "Nobody knows you up there."

[see OTTMAN, Page 18]

Kim Ottman gave basketball a shot at Ferris State, and this week she began her sophomore season. Ottman is a 1985 graduate of Clarkston High.

Cross country skiing is plentiful in area

PREP PROFILE:

Secatch has high aspirations for season

Steve Secatch is a 6-foot-6 senior center on the Clarkston basketball team. He also played on the Wolves' football team for two seasons.

Born: July 26, 1969.

Favorite sport: Basketball.

Favorite food: Anything.

Favorite music: Heavy metal. "It gets me up for games."

Favorite movie: "Bachelor Party."

Favorite TV show: "Cheers."

For fun: He likes to go out on weekends.

Idol: Larry Bird.

Biggest thrill: Winning the basketball district title last season.

Biggest accomplishment: Getting through high school.

Goal: To win the basketball regional this year.

If he could change one thing: He would have a smaller nose.

Most embarrassing moment: Playing for the junior varsity basketball team in 10th grade, he found himself behind the basket, but he shot anyway, hitting the wrong side of the backboard.

Before long it'll be time to wax those cross country skis and hit the trails.

There are a number of trails available in the Clarkston area.

Independence Oaks County Park is located two miles north of Pine Knob at 9501 Sashabaw Rd. The park has 12 miles of groomed trails for skiers of all ages and abilities.

Oaks also offers rental equipment, a warming shelter with two large fireplaces, restrooms and concessions. Ice skating and ice fishing on Crooked Lake are also available.

Independence Oaks will host several special skiing events this season. On Jan. 3, a "Family Affair Ski Tour" invites skiers and non-skiers alike to the park.

The Free Press Ski Clinic series will take place on Jan. 10, 17, 24, 31 and Feb. 7. A Senior Citizens Ski Clinic will be held on Jan. 22 and the Blue Cross/Blue Shield-sanctioned "Snow Rush Ski Race" takes place Feb. 14. For more information, call 625-0877.

Springfield Oaks Golf Course in Davisburg has cross country trails and will host the "Springfield Oaks Challenge" Jan. 17. The golf course is located at 12450 Andersonville Rd., near Hall Road. Call 625-2547 for information.

Indian Springs Metropark, located five miles southwest of Clarkston, has hills for sledding as well as trails for cross country skiing.

The trails cover eight miles and equipment can be rented on weekends. Sledding is available on moderate slopes, but there is no tobogganing.

The park also has a nature center, with seasonal exhibits and park naturalists on duty, and nature trails for self-guided hikes.

Indian Springs is open 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. For more information call 685-1561 or 1-800-24-PARKS.

Other area locations include White Lake Oaks Golf Course at 991 S. Williams Lake Rd. in Pontiac and Addison Oaks County Park at 1480 West Romeo Rd. in Oxford. Both have rental equipment available.

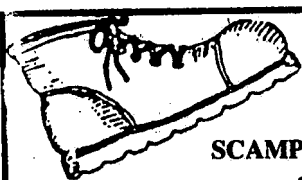

White Lake Oaks will stage a clinic for seniors Jan. 14. Call 698-2700.

Addison Oaks has 13 miles of groomed trails, including a 1.6-mile lighted trail for night skiing on weekends.

The park will host the Oakland Park Foundation's second annual "Winter Family Fun Day" on Feb. 1. The event features games and activities for the entire family, with a bonfire, clowns, celebrities and more.

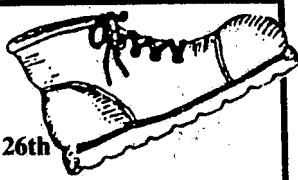

The Oakland County "Michigan Cup" Ski Race Relay is planned in conjunction with Family Fun Day. The race features four-person teams skiing 7.5 kilometer legs in a 30-km race.

Addison Oaks will also be part of the Free Press clinic series. Call 693-2432.

Ottman

"I've learned a lot. In high school, things are handed to you. At school, you have to go get it. Nothing's ever going to be handed to you, nobody caters to you. You're a no-name. It was hard to get used to it. It's Kim Ottman—who?—up there."

But Ottman is settling into the college routine now, after having to get used to harder grading, impersonal teaching and a widespread campus.

Because of the team's traveling, she doesn't get back home very often and, due to practicing and conditioning, her season really runs from September through May.

Ottman may see some time in the starting lineup this season and the Bulldogs are expected to challenge for the GLIAC title.

"It's a challenge. Basketball never came easy for me. I had to work on it. I had to make up for my height and my speed usually did," she said. "I think I surprised a few people."

Jokisch all-state

Clarkston's Dan Jokisch was selected for the Associated Press first team all-state football team.

The 6-foot-7, 205-pound senior made the team at the defensive back position. He also played split end and punted for the Wolves.

Jokisch had previously been selected for the Greater Oakland Activities League first team.

'The Sashabaws'

Chris Gerbasi

"Show business is like high school with money."
—Martin Mull

So many athletes today are going into acting, there's virtually one TV show with an ex-jock in it on every night of the week.

For example, Alex Karras and Bob Uecker have back-to-back sitcoms on Friday night. I think they both play sportswriters, but I'm just guessing because, of course, I'm never home on Friday nights.

Coming into contact with so many past and present Clarkston athletes sometimes makes me wonder what a sitcom might be like with some Clarkston stars. In fact, why not a sitcom set in Clarkston?

That's the premise and if you buy the premise, you'll buy the rest of the column.

The characters: the father, Bob, a former three-sport star at Clarkston, who now owns and operates a bowling alley; the mother, Millie, a part-time real estate agent; the daughter, named Michelle because nine out of 10 girls in Clarkston are named Michelle; and son Buck, who plays ninth-grade football and basketball.

Naturally the show needs a title. "All in the Family" has been used, "The Colbys" has been used... how about "The Sashabaws"?

In this week's episode of "The Sashabaws," Michelle gets a part-time job at the Big Boy, but has a falling out with her best friend Jenny, the other name used in Clarkston, when she gets a job at Burger King.

(At the Sashabaw residence.)

Michelle: Mom, Jenny got a job at Burger King and now she's hanging out with all the kids who go there.

Millie: You know, Michelle, in my day, we didn't have a Burger King.

Michelle: In your day, you didn't have burgers. (Laugh track.)

Millie: That's cute, Michelle, perhaps you'd like to be forced to listen to all my Mamas and the Papas records.

Michelle: Sorry, Mom.

Millie: What I'm trying to say is there's always going to be someone with more friends, someone more popular.

Michelle: More popular than me?

Millie: I'm afraid so, Michelle.

Michelle: I'm not buying it, Mom.

(Enter Bob and Buck.)

Millie: How'd the basketball game go?

Bob: Not too well, honey. Buck had a chance to tie the game with a free throw with one second left.

Buck: I'm going to be a laughingstock.

Millie: Everybody misses free throws, Buck.

Bob: He did have a nice arc on the ball, though.

Clear over the backboard. (Laugh track.)

Buck: I'm not going to school tomorrow.

Bob: Hey, son, don't let it get you down. Those other players are no better than you. They put their shorts on same as you, one leg at a time.

Buck: But I had my shorts on backwards, Dad.

Bob: Well, maybe they are better than you. Say, honey, did the paper come?

Millie: Yes, more stories about condos, taxes and that damn Mill Pond.

Bob: You mean the Mill Pond dam.
Millie: Whatever. Dinner's almost ready.
Michelle: Why don't you give Jenny a call and invite her over?

Michelle: No, Mom, I think I'll just try to steal her boyfriend instead.

Millie: Well, whatever you think is best.

Bob: That's right, Michelle, you should learn how to handle your own problems. Buck, why don't we go out after dinner and shoot some free throws?

Buck: Oh, OK, Dad. I'll try.

Bob: That's the spirit, son. Remember, we're Sashabaws.

(In the next episode of "The Sashabaws," young Buck falls for an older woman and Bob buys a new pin-setter.)

Homegrown talent graces Meadow Brook stage

By Kathy Greenfield

While he's no stranger to the stage, Eric Nelsen took a giant step this year from school productions to roles in "King Richard III" and "A Christmas Carol" at Meadow Brook Theatre, Rochester.

The 12-year-old Maybee Road, Independence Township, resident says he's appeared in "lots of plays," but some were different than others.

"The ones I've wanted to, probably just two years, but the ones I've been forced to do, about four years," he says.

In Eric's debut at Meadow Brook in October, he appeared as the Duke of York in William Shakespeare's "King Richard III."

This month, from Dec. 4 through 28, he'll play the role of Matthew Cratchit, an older brother of Tiny

Tim's, in "A Christmas Carol."

"In 'Richard,' I didn't really know what was going on, but there were a few people helping me—basically everyone—so it was really nice," he says. "(Now) I know what I'm doing."

Eric is a seventh-grader at Roeper City & Country School, Bloomfield Hills. He first heard about the opportunity to try out for a role in "King Richard III" while attending a drama class at school.

"I just forgot about it," he says, but "he called Mom, here, and she said, 'Hey, let's find out if he's interested' and I said, 'Hey, why not?'"

At the audition, he read lines from the play with other hopefuls. "I was kind of nervous," he says, "but after a while, I said, 'Hey, this isn't too hard.'"

After the reading, Eric was told he'd hear from the theater in two or three days. They called that night, and his part-time career began.

Rehearsals took place for 12 days and 32 performances followed.

"Close to closing, the director came up and said, 'Hey, Eric, it's a great job you're doing, so I wondered if you'd like to be one of the Cratchit kids in 'A Christmas Carol'—without auditioning,'" Eric says. "I said, 'Hey, sure! That's basically what happened.'"

After a two-week break, rehearsals began for "A Christmas Carol."

During rehearsals and performances, Eric receives a weekly paycheck. He'd rather not reveal the amount of money he makes, but he will say what happens to it.

His mom "makes me put most of it in the bank, but I keep a little of it," he says. What he keeps, he spends expanding his mostly Marvel-brand comic book collection.

As Eric talks about his stage experiences, a pattern develops, one that reveals his positive feelings.

At the end of each performance of "King Richard III," Eric participated in a curtain call with the other student who played the role of a prince. "They applauded for us, and it was nice," he says.

Charles Nolte, the director of both plays, is a "nice guy," says Eric. "I don't think he's ever raised his voice."

He also views his debut in "King Richard III" as having some significance. "People work years and years to be in Shakespeare, and (it's) the first thing I do," he says.

Eric's experiences have been so good he's decided on acting as a career goal. Stage plays, movies—everything sounds fine to him, he says.

While all this has been going on, Eric's family has been helping with details.

Because Faith Nelsen, his mother, attended so many rehearsals and all the performances of "King Richard III"—four times in the audience and backstage otherwise—the family used to joke that she could serve as a stand-in for virtually any role.

Eric Nelsen recites his favorite line as Matthew Cratchit in "A Christmas Carol" at Meadow Brook Theatre, "The potatoes are bubbling! The potatoes are bubbling!"

For "A Christmas Carol," she's been asked to help supervise the children and help get them on stage during their scenes, an appropriate task for a preschool teacher at Roeper.

"It takes a lot of our time. We've had to set up taking afternoons off work or drafting grandma," she says. "But it's worth it."

Plus, she knows it will come to an end Dec. 28 when the show's run ends—at least until springtime, that is, when Eric would like to try out for another Meadow Brook production.

Winter travel precautions

What would you do if a blizzard stranded you in your car this winter? Your preparation for hazardous winter situations could determine how well you would fare.

"Being aware of the possible dangers of winter traveling and being prepared to cope with those dangers could save the winter traveler from tremendous hardship," says Paul Phelps, Manager of Oakland County Emergency Medical Services and Disaster Control.

The EMS/Disaster Control offers winter travelers these precautions:

- *Make sure your car is in good condition, properly serviced and equipped with snow tires.

- *Take another person along with you if possible.

- *Maintain a full tank of gas as much as possible.

- *Have emergency winter storm supplies, such as a container of sand, shovel, windshield scraper, tow chain, flashlight and blankets in your car at all times.

- *Travel during daylight on main highways whenever possible with the radio on to hear weather information and warnings.

- *If you become stranded, stay in your car unless help is clearly visible in the vicinity.

- *Avoid overexertion. If you must push or shovel your car out, take frequent breaks and pace yourself.

- *Being prepared is the key to staying safe in the winter. Once the storm hits or you are stranded, it is too late," adds Phelps.

For additional information about winter survival or Winter Awareness Week, Dec. 7-13, contact Phelps, 858-5300.

Dec. 12 Family Night is a village tradition

By Pat Young

Some things about Clarkston's annual Family Night during the Christmas season never change.

It will be crisp, for instance. Mother Nature always sees to that. There will be hot cider and doughnuts, Christmas caroling, and lots of special fellowship—feelings that go hand-in-hand with the holiday season.

This year, Family Night is scheduled Friday,

Dec. 12, and there will, in fact, be one major change.

The Christmas activity, which has been a tradition in downtown Clarkston for around 15 years, will be organized by Buck and Joan Kopietz, owners of Tierra Inc., instead of the Clarkston Business Association.

"We just wanted to do this, from Tierra, for the Clarkston community," says Joan, who is also treasurer of the business association. "It's something we'd like to develop into a bigger, even more special event."

Family Night will begin at 7 with the singing of Christmas carols as families, Girl Scout and Brownie troops, and other groups place special ornaments on the tree.

Lighting of the tree, which is also a fairly recent addition to the annual celebration, will be at 8 p.m.

Lights were added a few years ago when electricity was wired into the area of the tree, at the corner of Main and Washington streets in downtown Clarkston. The lights are put up by Clarkston Rotary Club, whose members also remove the lights and decorations following the holidays.

Joan is already looking ahead to next year.

"We'd like to add some special things, like bringing in Santa, for instance, and perhaps designing a limited-edition ornament for people to take home," she says.

Ornaments play a big part in Family Night. Many people bring their handmade ornaments to place on the tree.

"It's a very special night," Joan says. "People come down year after year. I've been receiving phone inquiries for a month already from people asking about Family Night."

"People identify with that tree, and people like to come downtown and sing Christmas carols. It's a tradition."

Lerner lands spot in booklet

Essays aren't Jami Lerner's favorite form of writing.

But she wrote one well enough to represent Clarkston in the "America & Me: Reflections on America" booklet this year.

The booklet is comprised of essays by eighth-graders across the state and is distributed by the Farm Bureau Insurance Group. The topic was the importance of youngsters to America's future.

Lerner is now a ninth-grader at Clarkston Junior High.

"I want to be a writer. This is pretty exciting for me," Lerner said.

"I like to write fictional stories and I like poems a lot. I was surprised I could write an essay. Once you get started, you just have to find an idea and work from there."

More than 10,000 students from 550 Michigan schools were involved in the contest. Judging the essays were Gov. James Blanchard, Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths, U.S. Rep. Bob Carr and Lansing broadcaster Howard Lancour.

The excerpt from Lerner's essay used in the booklet was as follows:

"Since Columbus' adventure, the fields and forests have become cities and farms, products of the imagination and intelligence of men and women. In these places, the children of today develop and are educated to become tomorrow's generation of Americans. This generation could very easily lead us to a long-awaited peace."

Holiday concert

Some key holiday ingredients—music, children and songs—merge Wednesday, Dec. 17, when the Sashabaw Junior High School Instrumental Music Department presents its Christmas Concert.

The free concert is to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the school gymnasium.

Musical selections will include "Jingle-bell Rock" and "Rockin' Around the Christmas Tree" by the seventh-grade band; "Winter Wonderland" and "Do You Hear What I Hear" by the Symphonic Band; and Leroy Anderson's "Sleigh Ride" and Jim Curnow's medley "Cristmas Tryptich" by the Wind Ensemble.

Wrapping up the concert will be the traditional Christmas Sing-along with all students playing and the audience singing.

The SJHS bands are under the direction of teacher Douglas Doty.

Chemical dependency: teen issues

By Pat Young

A four-day workshop on chemical dependency, which took place in the Clarkston area last month, was attended by many adults—and also a few students.

One participant, a 16-year-old high school student named Kelly, candidly admits she is recovering from a chemical dependency.

"I started getting into drugs when I was in the seventh grade," she says. "By the 10th grade, my parents made me get help. I spent seven days in detox before even starting treatment. But I'm OK now."

She tells her story at workshops such as this in order to help others. She serves as a warning to teens who think "it can't happen to me." But she is also living proof that with help, recovery is possible and probable.

Alcohol is still the most common drug abused by teenagers, followed by marijuana. But cocaine, especially in the easier-to-purchase form of crack, is becoming a problem among teens.

Crack is cocaine freebase in the form of ready-to-smoke "rocks," at prices that make this highly addictive and toxic form of the drug available to everyone including teens.

Crack is not a new drug, it's a new dosage form, and it's available for as little as $20 for a plastic vial that contains three "rocks."

Stephen Hnat, clinical director of Ann Arbor Associates, explained the effects of cocaine and other drugs at the workshop.

"Mood-altering drugs affect the limbic system of the brain," Hnat said. "The limbic system is the part of the brain charged with labeling information with

"Cocaine is the most addictive drug because it makes you feel real good, real fast. Then it makes you feel real bad, real quick," Hnat said. "The brain learns quickly that to get relief, use more cocaine. It sets in motion an inescapable loop. The only limiter is how much cocaine is available."

In animal experiments, cocaine was preferred to all other drugs.

"It is clearly the best reinforcer. Animals will even choose it over biological drives (food, water, sex)," Hnat said. "No other drug got that kind of response."

Marijuana is also a stimulant, but is much less potent than cocaine. However, according to hospital studies, tolerance develops rapidly for marijuana and escalation is necessary in order to achieve the desired euphoria.

Hnat described chemical addiction as a biological illness, an "allergic response in the limbic system of the brain." And he listed three symptoms

Cocaine "is clearly the best reinforcer. Animals will even choose it over biological drives (food, water, sex). No other drug got that kind of response."

—Stephen Hnat

shown by all addicts:

1. Loss of control, inability to stop using the drug once started, inability to consistently abstain from the drug.
2. Compulsive pattern of use, focus on getting and using the drug.
3. Continued use in spite of adverse consequences.

Hnat also observed that when teenagers get big allowances, it takes down the only barrier to drugs: access.

Janice Cotter, program director of the Maple Grove Youth Treatment Center, described adolescent chemical use as "an instant way to cope."

"And when you combine the effects of drugs with normal adolescent behavior, you get extreme behavior," Cotter said.

The problem will continue unless an adult intervenes. "They aren't likely to seek help for themselves," she said. "Even most adults won't."

Cotter expressed hope that people attending the workshop would then "have a new set of eyes and begin to look at young people differently."

It's not long-haired kids overdosing on drugs, but normal teenagers being seen for drug problems today, she said, and a lot of them are crying out for help.

"If they have a place to get help, they will," Cotter continued.

Teens "aren't likely to seek help for themselves. Even most adults won't."

—Janice Cotter

She described the progression of chemical use in teens:

Ten- to 12-year-olds begin the experimentation stage by trying alcohol, inhalants and marijuana. They may be just socializing with peers, curious, acting out rebellion, or mimicking adult behavior, but they learn that chemical use alters their moods.

Regular use of alcohol and marijuana may begin as early as age 12 to 14, and may also include other drugs such as cocaine. A use pattern becomes established, amounts increase and tolerance is formed. For whatever reasons—socializing, coping, boredom—the abuse stage begins.

By the time a teen is 16, a chemical dependency may be established. The youth may use drugs daily, and in more sophisticated forms including narcotics such as heroin and opium. By now, they may use the drug just to feel normal, to function and to avoid withdrawal.

Statistics reveal that approximately three out of 10 high school seniors use chemicals at "abusive" levels, and one out of 10 use chemicals at "dependency" levels.

Also, 97 percent of young people treated in drug programs smoke cigarettes, according to Cotter. And a teen's chances of becoming dependent are increased 50 percent if he or she comes from a family where addiction is present.

"Teens have no respect for the adult that looks the other way," Cotter said. "They respect the one who knows, even if they don't show it."

The teen whose academic performance changes, who has problems with truancy and suspension, may be the teen in trouble. At high risk are teens who have problems at home, physical abuse, legal problems or big changes in their lives such as moves or divorce.

Teens are at a time in their lives when they are most curious and least cautious. Over three-fourths of them will go beyond the experimental stage to social use of drugs. About 20 percent will cross over the line to the next stage. And they become addicted much faster than adults.

Coordinating this second workshop was Kate Larkin, a nursing and chemical dependency educator in the Detroit area.

"Parents, teachers, coaches, counselors and friends could all be the important person in a teen's life," she said. "We need to be good role models as parents and adults."

"Don't give up on a problem person," she continued. "Help them get help."

As stated in a film lecture at the end of the workshop: Now is the time to take action and learn skills to help youth, give them a sense of responsibility and teach them stress management skills.

emotion.

"When these drugs affect emotion, you can mislabel information," he continued, "and that is a very dangerous situation, a threat to your survival."

As an example, when people drive high or drunk, they remember it as the "most fun" rather than dangerous. They remember the good part, not the bad, so they will do it again and again, because humans are biased toward increasing pleasure.

"The brain has two major functions, survival and reproduction," Hnat said. "Most of the limbic system is devoted to pain, not pleasure, because it warns us that something is wrong. On the other hand, a little pleasure goes a long way."

Alcohol, a depressant, decreases brain cell firing in the limbic system, taking away some of the pain.

Cocaine, a stimulant, increases brain cell firing, overwhelming the pain with pleasure.

Everything you need to know about frostbite

Freezing weather is part of every Michigan winter. When windchill temperatures drop, chances of getting frostbite increase.

Frostbite occurs when windchill temperatures drop below freezing. Wetness accompanying the cold contributes greatly to frostbite.

Bradford L. Walters, MD, Crittenton Hospital Emergency department, defines frostbite as "the actual freezing of tissues which kills tissue cells and severely damages the tissue."

Frostbite is similar to a serious burn. People most at risk of frostbite are those who do not prepare for cold days. Particularly people who work outdoors or who participate in outdoor activities.

"Anyone who is not adequately prepared for cold weather, especially in wet and cold weather is at risk," Walters says. He adds that he once treated a patient who experienced severe frostbite by walking 200 yards from his stalled car to a service station.

"People don't realize how quickly their extremities can freeze," Walters says.

Frostbite symptoms include a discoloration of the flesh, usually gray or white; a woody feeling of the exposed area and a lack of sensation. Blisters resembling a second degree burn may also develop.

The first step in treating a frostbite victim is to rewarm the area immediately.

Walters warns that using old wives' tale remedies such as placing snow and cold water on the affected area can further damage tissue.

"The key therapy is rewarming," Walters says. He advises victims to place the affected area in a tub of water 102-104 degrees.

To prevent frostbite, keep dry and dress in layers for cold days: temperature is only half of the cold you feel—wind causes the other half.

Walters also suggests maintaining a car emergency kit. "Everyone should carry an emergency kit in their car, containing boots, a hat, a scarf and a pair of gloves." During periods of severe winter storms and cold, Walters says he has treated as many as 10 patients a day for frostbite in Michigan. This year, the emergency physicians at Crittenton Hospital expect to treat between 50-80 patients.

Microwave-plus

Pumpkin recipe—a correction

Betty Wagner

Whoops! I goofed! Last week's Rum-pumpkin cheesecake recipe omitted the pumpkin. Here is the corrected version.

RUM-PUMPKIN CHEESECAKE

1 1/4 cups graham cracker crumbs
5 tablespoons butter
1 20-ounce can pineapple rings
1 1-pound can pumpkin
1 cup dark brown sugar
3 eggs, beaten
1 1/2 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 tablespoon sugar
2 8-ounce packages Neufchatel or cream cheese
1 tablespoon rum extract
1/2 cup whipping cream, whipped

Crust: Place butter in 10-inch deep-dish Pyrex pie plate. Microwave at high 1 minute. Combine graham cracker crumbs with sugar. Mix with butter in pie plate.

Press around sides and on bottom of dish. Microwave at high power 2 minutes, turning after 1 minute. Set aside.

Cheesecake: Drain pineapple and reserve 1/4 cup juice and gelatin. Refrigerate pineapple rings. In an 8 cup Pyrex measure, combine reserved pineapple juice and gelatin. Let soften a few minutes.

Stir in pumpkin, brown sugar, pumpkin pie spice and beaten eggs. Cover with plastic wrap and microwave at high power 6 to 8 minutes, or until mixture begins to boil, stirring every 2 minutes.

Place cream cheese in 2 quart microwave-safe bowl; soften at 50 percent (medium) power 30 to 45 seconds. Beat with rum extract until fluffy.

Using a wire whisk, gradually mix pumpkin-gelatin mixture into cream cheese. Blend thoroughly. Pour into crumb pie shell and refrigerate overnight or until set.

Garnish with pineapple slices and whipped cream.

Barnharts celebrate 50 years

On Nov. 8, people gathered from Ohio, Kentucky, Wisconsin and Michigan for the 50th wedding anniversary celebration of Marvel Mary (Miller) and Edwin Christian Barnhart.

The couple were married Nov. 28, 1936, at the St. Trinity Lutheran Church in Pontiac.

This year, their marriage vows were reaffirmed, at the same church in its new location—Independence Township. They even had the same best man and maid of honor.

The Rev. Michael Klafehn officiated.

Dessie Hoeffler, the bride's sister, was matron of honor; Gerhart Barnhart, the bridegroom's brother, was best man.

Other members of the 1986 wedding included ushers Norman Hoeffler and Marvin Barnhart.

Gloria Jeanne Barnhart brought the guest book; Elaine Pauli was organist; Janice Ramig was vocalist; and David Barnhart was organ soloist.

Acolytes were Norman Hoeffler and Marvin Barnhart.

Also present at the exchange of vows were the Barnharts' children, David and his wife Gayle, Marvin and his wife Carol Ann, and Gloria Jeanne; grandchildren, Michele and her husband Charles Owen, and Susan; and great-grandchild, David James.

A reception was held at the Sly Fox in Birmingham.

Now retired, both Barnharts are 78 years old. They pursue hobbies such as iris gardening, volunteer services and church activities.

Edwin and Marvel Barnhart have celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary by reaffirming their vows.

Honor

Kelly May was selected for membership in Mortar Board at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant.

She was one of 35 in the 3,000-member junior class chosen for the honor.

Mortar Board is recognized nationally as one of the outstanding honor societies for college students. Selection is based on scholarship, leadership and service to the university and community.

May is a marketing major at CMU. She is the daughter of Patrick and Norma May of Springfield Township.

What's new in business

Pure Systems of Michigan Inc. owner Art Suma demonstrates how to use the purified water vending machine his company distributes. Both purified water and distilled water are available from the machine.

Vending machines dispense water

You can get just about anything else in a vending machine these days, so it should come as no surprise that water is now available.

That's purified and distilled water at 25 cents a gallon, which must seem like a bargain to people who are worried about the purity of their drinking water.

The vending machines are distributed by Pure Systems of Michigan Inc. in Auburn Hills and have been finding their way to area supermarkets since April.

"The time is right, considering all the pollution and contamination," said Pure Systems owner Art Suma, of Clarkston.

Suma said the purified water from the machine is 100 percent pure, while the distilled water is 97 percent free of impurity.

He said there are presently 14 machines around

Oakland County and he plans to have over 100 available in the state next year.

Consumers can save money on bottled water while using the same container over again, which is available on displays next to the machine.

According to Suma, bottled water costs 59 cents to 99 cents for a gallon.

"It's cheaper than a cup off coffee," said Suma of his product. "There's definitely a need for it."

The machines are monitored every 14 days and meet State Health Department standards. The water is held in a 90-gallon tank and is continuously purified.

Suma and his company had been working on the idea for eight years.

"It's an economical and trouble-free way for customers to get pure water," said Suma.

Podiatrist Rose enlarges his office

Expansion at Dr. Harvey Rose's office on Dixie Highway has been completed and the added facilities have been in use for about a month.

The 1,000-square-foot addition was begun in June. The office, located across from the Clarkston Cinema, now has about 2,400 square feet of space.

The addition has given Rose, a podiatrist, a casting room, a surgical suite, a business room and an additional treatment room. The waiting room was also redone.

"The surgical suite is an operating room-quality surgical suite," said Rose.

"This makes the patient flow easier," he said.

"The separate casting room means we don't have to tie up a treatment room. We badly needed a business room. These are definitely positive steps in improving and making the office more efficient."

Rose said his busy practice made the addition necessary.

'Kick-Off Ski Party' at Pine Knob

Pine Knob's having a "Kick-Off Ski Party" and everyone's invited. Admission will be free to the affair in the Pine Knob Lounge on Friday, Dec. 5.

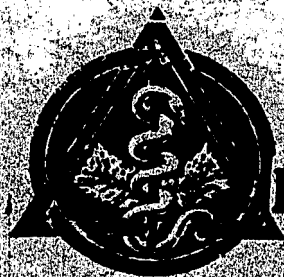

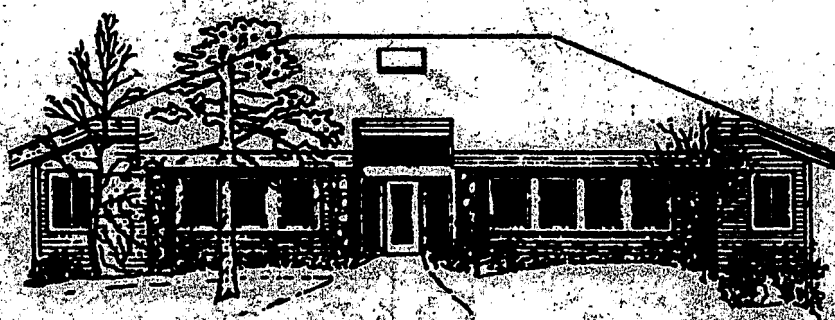

The party begins at 5:30 p.m. The first 200 in attendance will receive "Goodie Bags" filled with coupons and product samples.

At 8:30 p.m., a fashion show by Don Thomas Sport Haus is planned, and dancing and cocktails will be available throughout the evening.

Those who arrive with an invitation will receive half-off on chairlift tickets. For more information or an invitation, call Simone Prince at Pine Knob, 625-0800.

Hubbard's Cupboard

Yard better 'leafed' alone

Charlotte Hubbard

Should you pour cake batter into the pan before it has been thoroughly mixed? Of course not.

Should you lick the cake batter off the beaters before they come to a complete stop? Of course not!

Should you eat a cake that just started baking? Of course not.

These points can all be summarized with one simple axiom—don't start a job until it is ready to be done!

I realize that what was just stated is nothing profound—we all know it is pointless to put on our water wings until we actually get near the water. However, there are a few people in this world who have failed to realize such a simple point.

There are people in this world who will stop taking a shower before they run out of hot water, people who will really save one or two chocolate chip cookies for later, people who will actually vacuum while they can still see the true color of their carpet. Yes, as amazing as it seems, some folks will start a job before it is ready to be done...and these people are my neighbors.

I was made painfully aware of this recently, when I applied my philosophy of not starting a job until it is ready to be done to the leaves on the lawn. I have been watching the leaves fall off our three giant maple trees and spin to the earth with great patience. There are six leaves still clinging tightly at the very top. When the last one takes the plunge, I will grab a rake and round the rest up. Until that time, however, I will leave them alone.

There once was a time when I spent all fall with a rake in my hand, raking, aching, and taking thousands of bagged leaves to the curbside. I would feel blisters on my hands as well as a great sense of accomplishment, seeing the thirty or forty big green bulging bags piled out by the street like a bumper crop of giant zucchini.

Those feelings of accomplishment would all disappear however, when the lawn disappeared under another blanket of crunchy gold and orange leaves. Raking and re-raking and re-raking seemed so pointless. It was then I resolved to wait until the last leaf fluttered to earth and instead have one giant session of raking and one solid week of aching.

However, that resolution has been difficult to keep, as my neighbors reacted to the trees' slow strip tease a bit differently. They have been outside with their giant plastic bags and rakes every weekend since the first of October. I have been inside with my giant bowl of popcorn and remote control device. They have lawns with an occasional leaf. I have leaves with occasional lawn. They have well-worn rake handles. I have love handles.

The neighbors have been complaining greatly the last few weeks about the eighteen inches of leaves piled on my lawn. They have said they don't want my leaves blowing all over their leaf-free yards. They have said it is my duty to stuff them into bags and get rid of them. They have said other things which I cannot repeat in a family column.

These neighbors have a lot of gall. One weekend they all burned leaves, trying to smoke me out of the house. Funny how they never complained about the leaves this summer, when the shade fell into their yard. Like a good neighbor, I never complained this summer either, when the water from their sprinklers would blow over into my lawn, making it brown with green spots.

Furthermore, the neighbors have greatly exaggerated the "problem". I really don't have eighteen inches of leaves piled up on the lawn. It only appears that way because the leaves are stacked on twelve inches of grass that hasn't been mown since early August.

I sit prepared, weekend after weekend, ready to move out as soon as that last leaf lets go. I realize the first snowflake may flutter to the ground before the final leaf leaves the tree, and I may not be able to rake. It is a risk I am prepared to take.

Relentless, the neighbors are urging me to get the leaves up before it snows. I have tried to calm their fears—saying that with three or four inches of snow and sleet on top, those leaves won't blow anywhere. Of course, then they'll probably complain about my unshoveled snow blowing into their yards.

I think I'll ask them to "leaf" me alone, right after I borrow a cup of sugar to bake a cake.

Springfield woman bags first deer—a 10-point

By Kathy Greenfield

Vicki Turk's delighted with the first buck she bagged—ever—this season for two reasons: "I'm quite excited because I'm a woman, number one, and, number two, because I got a 10-point."

Vicki's pride over her catch began Nov. 17 at about 5:30 p.m. when she shot the deer in Delta County in the upper peninsula while hunting with her husband, Duane, on their 60 acres.

They ran about 170 yards to where the buck fell and, she said, "my husband looked at the buck, and he looked at me, and he looked at the buck and said, 'Vicki, that is a real nice deer!'"

Before returning home to Bluewater Drive to butcher her catch, Vicki Turk poses with the 10-point buck in the north woods.

Last year, the Springfield Township couple made an agreement after Vicki's first attempt to shoot a buck failed. She saw the deer and slowly raised her gun. She was moving so slowly that her chair squeaked, the buck leaped into the air—and that's when Duane shot it.

"We made the agreement that the first buck that came in this year was mine," she said.

When the 14 people from two hunting camps gathered in the evening, Vicki noticed a surprising reaction to her achievement by the men: "Everyone stopped speaking."

That was only the beginning. Practically everywhere Vicki went with her catch, people assumed it belonged to a male hunter.

During the drive home, "They toasted my husband all down I-75. I said, 'It's mine!'"

When they took to buck to the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) office on Pontiac Lake Road to collect Vicki's buck patch and have the deer's age determined, the DNR biologist's comment was one she'd heard over and over again, "Which one of you guys out here got the big buck?"

Her favorite reaction came at a rest stop on I-75 near Bay City after four hunters found out it was her catch and one of them said, "Do you know that is every man's dream?"

"And I said, 'This woman's, too.'" Vicki describes the deer as "a monster." At between 5½ and 6 years old, it was older than most. Dressed, it weighed 220 pounds and the DNR biologist estimated a weight on the hoof of about 270. Its antler spread was 20½ inches, about 2½ inches larger than average.

The deer was the largest catch in the three towns they checked before leaving the upper peninsula and, as far as massiveness, it was the biggest deer the taxidermist said he'd seen in a long time.

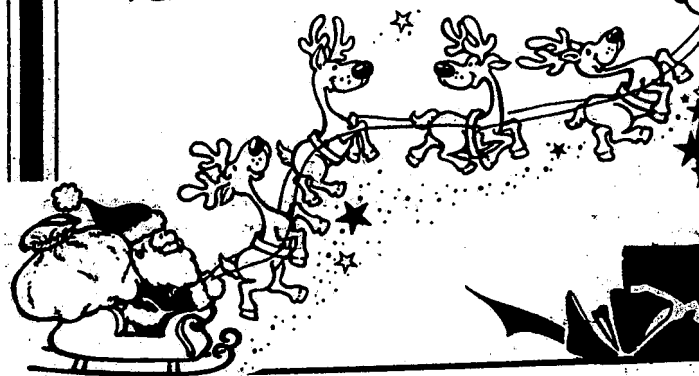

During her husband's 12 years of deer hunting, he's bagged a buck each year. The biggest was an eight-point.

But Vicki's certain they'll continue hunting and fishing together, as usual. "He's proud that I do that," she said.

Her history of pulling in the big ones goes back to their first date when Duane asked where she wanted to go and was surprised when Vicki suggested fishing.

That was the time she landed a trophy bass, weighing 7¼ pounds and measuring 21½ inches long.

Dunaskiss is assistant floor leader

State Representative Mat Dunaskiss (R-Lake Orion) has been re-elected by the House Republican Caucus to the leadership position of assistant Republican floor leader.

Dunaskiss was elected to his fourth term in the Michigan House during the November election, garnering more votes than any Republican on the ballot in his district. He has held the same leadership position for the past two years.

Joining Dunaskiss on the leadership team are newly-elected Republican Leader Paul Hillegonds (R-Holland) and Floor Leader Don Van Singel (R-Grant).

"I appreciate the trust of my colleagues as they re-elected me to this important post," Dunaskiss said. "This position will assist me as I represent Oakland County in the House."

In addition to his leadership position, Dunaskiss serves as vice chair of the Public Health committee. He is also a member of the Corporations and Finance, Liquor Control and Transportation committees.

Community cable guide

Visit Santa at studio

Santa Claus is coming to the Clarkston cable studio on Saturday, Dec. 13, from noon to 1 p.m.

There'll be free prizes, and parents are encouraged to bring their kids and cameras. The event will be videotaped for cable-TV viewing at a later date.

The studio is at 6570 Waldon Rd., adjacent to Clarkston Junior High School.

The lineup follows for next week's programs on Independence Township's public access cable-TV channel 11.

Monday through Thursday
Dec. 8-11

6:30pm—This Is the Life: "My Other Son" is this week's episode in the drama series sponsored by St. Trinity Lutheran Church, Independence Township. A Vietnam veteran's half-Vietnamese son appears and expects his father to love him.

7pm—Microwave Plus: The microwave cooking program is presented by home economist Betty

Wagner, an Independence Township resident. 7:30pm—Independence Update: The weekly news and feature program is produced and crewed by Clarkston High School Media II students.

8pm—Oakland County Parks and Recreation Presents: "Birdfeeders" reveals everything you've always wanted to know about birdfeeders with Kathleen Dougherty, a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park.

8:30pm—World of Glass: The series on making stained glass continues with host Rocky Martina, owner of A World of Glass in Waterford Township.

9pm—Shirley's World: "Image Makeover, Part II," a discussion between Independence Township psychic Shirley Lynch and Penny Weaver, image consultant.

9:30pm—"Alternative Education . . . an Option" is a look at Clarkston's adult and alternative education programs with Ginny Farmer.

Independence Township cable channel 11 programs are broadcast Monday through Thursday evenings. Other times, the station features a billboard with community service announcements and the schedule of the evening's programs.

Potter prepares for Christmas Craft Fest

By Pat Young

Visitors strolling down "Ye Old Christmas Village" at Davisburg's annual Christmas Craft Fest will no doubt spot the "Clay by L.A." booth.

Clay by L.A. has nothing to do with Los Angeles, but rather, is the handiwork of Lee Ann Oliver of Springfield Township.

She works out of a studio in her home on Woodland Trail, when she is not selling real estate, developing land or promoting the steel structure business she owns with her husband, Paul Robinson.

Oliver began her hobby two years ago by taking several semesters of classes at Oakland Community College.

This will be her second show at the Davisburg Christmas Craft Fest, which takes place from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Dec. 6 and 7 in the Springfield Oaks Activities Center, 12450 Andersonville Rd.

"I always wanted to do hand-built pottery, even when I was a little girl," Oliver says, as she puts the finishing touches on wall plaques she is preparing for the show.

The hand-built pottery Oliver creates does not begin on the familiar potter's wheel, though the same clay and same firing procedure is used.

Hand-built pottery is rolled out into sheets, then formed into desired shapes, or even cut out like cookies. It can also be cut into strips to create large "coil pots," or pressed into molds.

Oliver designs her own molds for the pressed pottery she makes by first carving a design, and then pouring a plaster mold around it.

Her favorite technique is simply carving sculptures from hunks of clay. She also carves designs into much of her other pottery.

She will have a variety of her work at the Davisburg Christmas Craft Fest, including bowls and vases with a delicate-looking design she fondly calls "grandmother's lace."

"The design was inspired by old lace given to me by my grandmother," she says. "I began by making some pieces for my sisters and brothers so they could enjoy a piece of their grandmother's heritage, too."

She carefully presses the lace into the clay to imprint the intricate designs, then paints and glazes the pottery.

Her pottery is usually fired twice, first to harden the pottery, and a second, "glazing firing" to acquire the shiny or matte finish on the pottery.

She sometimes underglazes or paints her pieces with a thin colored clay called slip before the first firing. And she sometimes fires pieces only once, then hand rubs them to give them a "waxed finish."

"You have to find a niche for yourself," she says, "and do something a little different."

Rain is falling against the windows, but inside Oliver's cozy studio, converted from a garage and warmed by a wood-burning stove, she is busily carving and painting items to take to OCC for firing.

She is not only preparing for the Davisburg festival, but for the OCC Potter's Market the same weekend in Royal Oak.

Wood for the stove is piled to the ceiling on one side of the studio, rugs are scattered around the floor, and shelves are filled with Oliver's pottery: heart-shaped bowls that can be used for baking, pencil holders, vases, sculptures.

A wicker basket holds cut and stenciled pottery Christmas ornaments, each tied with a ribbon for hanging.

A wooden rocking chair sits next to the stove, and Oliver explains that her husband sometimes likes to come out and "just sit and watch me work."

He carves too, but from wood, and his totem pole carvings adorn one shelf of the studio, as well as prominent places on the lawn outside.

"It's peaceful here," Oliver says, looking around the studio, "kind of like a retreat."

Lee Ann Oliver works on hand-built pottery in her Springfield Township home. Her work will be on display at the Davisburg Christmas Craft Fest Dec. 6 and 7 in the Springfield Oaks Activities Center.

Why all this talk about drugs?

C.A.T.

P.A.W.

*Chemicals Are Trouble. People Are Working.

Copyright 1986 Jeanette Sanders

Dear Cat Paw:

Why are you always talking about drugs when doctors give you drugs all the time and they help. What drugs are you talking about anyway?

Don't Understand

Dear Don't Understand:

A drug is a substance which alters the structure or functions of a living organism. The psychoactive drugs usually used by teens are likely to be self-administered to alter mood or feeling.

In addition to the serious toxicity, which can result from even occasional non-medical use, these drugs pose additional hazards of dependence and addiction.

Tolerance is developed along with dependence and are conditions which perpetuate drug use without medical supervision or in the absence of medical indications.

The drugs most commonly discussed are the narcotics (opium, morphine, heroin, etc.), depressants (barbiturates, benzodiazepines, methaqualone, etc.), stimulants (cocaine, amphetamines, phenmetrazine, etc.), hallucinogens (LSD, mescaline, phenylclidine, etc.), and marijuana (hashish, hashish oil).

Dear Cat Paw:

What is a buzz?

Student

Dear Student:

It's a slang term for a high, or a drug-induced euphoria.

Dear Cat Paw:

We've been talking and want to know if it's possible to overdose on grass. We can't figure out how or what would happen if you got too much of the stuff. How would you know?

Smokers

Dear Smokers:

Overdose effects from smoking marijuana, or "grass," have been reported and the effects are anxiety, paranoia, loss of concentration, slower movements and time distortion.

The withdrawal symptoms reported are insomnia, hyperactivity and decreased appetite.

Why not check with a professional if you think you have a problem?

Dear Cat Paw:

Is it true that coffee makes you want to smoke cigarettes? Are there any other foods or drinks that do that? I would like to stop but don't know how.

Long-Time Smoker

Dear Long-Timer:

Coffee is a stimulant and it can increase your craving for tobacco. Non-smokers International tells you to avoid: pepper, spiced foods, mustard, vinegar, catsup, pickles, spiced meats, spiced olives, sharp cheese and all heavy, rich desserts. Also, avoid alcoholic drinks.

They recommend fresh fruit and fruit juices high in vitamin C to flush out nicotine residue in your system to reduce craving.

Cat Paw author Jeanette Sanders, a Springfield Township resident, is a state certified drug abuse counselor.

What our readers like most about The Clarkston News is local news coverage. We bring you more in-depth local news of the schools, your government, your community than any other newspaper in the world.

From the front page to the back with personal columns, opinions, and police beat, The News is an exciting and interesting newspaper.

You can find more local athletes and events in our sports coverage than anywhere else, and you can even sell that old Ford, washer and RV in our classified section because it's read by all people in the area.

We think you'll agree that, page by page, item by item, The Clarkston News local coverage gives you a special value no other newspaper can deliver.

To us, that's what local coverage is all about, it's what makes The Clarkston News truly your newspaper. It gives you that special home town advantage. So, send a year's gift subscription to a family member, friend or neighbor, who is not a regular subscriber. We'll send a gift card and start with the Christmas issue. and Linda M. Gee, clerk

Incredible edibles

For dipping, spreading, nibbling

A batch of easy hors d'oeuvre recipes from the Clarkston Community Women's Club "Incredible Edibles" cookbook are party perfect.

The Pineapple Cheese Ball recipe was submitted by Jean Morse of Clarkston; Sour Cream Dip Florentine by Diane Ruddy of Clarkston; and Clams Casino by M.J. Griggs of Clarkston.

PINEAPPLE CHEESE BALL

- 2 8-ounce packages cream cheese (room temperature)
- 1 8-ounce can crushed pineapple, drained
- 1/4 cup chopped green pepper
- 2 tablespoons diced onion
- 2 cups pecans, chopped

Mix all ingredients thoroughly. Shape into a ball and chill.

SOUR CREAM DIP FLORENTINE

- 1 10-ounce package chopped spinach, thawed and well drained
- 1/2 cup chopped green onion
- 1/2 cup chopped parsley

- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dried dill weed
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 1 cup sour cream

In blender container or food processor, combine spinach, green onion, parsley, salt, dill, pepper, mayonnaise and sour cream; blend until smooth.

Place in serving bowl. Sprinkle with parsley. Surround with vegetables. Make ahead of time by a day for better flavor. Serves 24.

CLAMS CASINO

- 1/2 cup finely chopped onions
- 1/2 cup finely chopped green peppers
- 2 8-ounce cans minced clams
- 24 halved clam shells
- 1 4-ounce can pizza sauce
- 6 strips bacon, fried and crumbled
- Parmesan cheese
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- Paprika

If you use fresh cherrystone or longnecks, steam partially to open shells. Remove clams and chop or mince clams. Be careful not to get sand into clam mixture. Wash clam shells with hot water and vegetable brush before using.

Saute onions and green peppers in fry pan until tender. Add drained mixed clams, bacon bits and pizza sauce; stir. Fry mixture for less than 2 minutes. Add pepper.

Fill clam shells with mixture; top with Parmesan cheese and shake on paprika. Place shells on cookie sheet and bake 10 minutes at 325 degrees just prior to serving. Makes 24 Clams Casino.

Proceeds from the sale of "Incredible Edibles" cookbooks are used on community service projects. The $6 books are available at the Independence Township Library, Village Book Store, Carol's Village Grill, Gayanne's Floral Concept and Pontiac State Bank's downtown Clarkston branch.

County EMS issues tips for battery charger users

Oakland County Emergency Medical Services and Disaster Control is issuing a cold weather caution to users of battery chargers and booster cables.

Do not attempt to charge or jump start a frozen battery because of increased risk of explosion.

A "dead" battery could freeze at temperatures below 15 degrees Fahrenheit.

"There is an added risk of an explosion from sparks near the vent holes when jump starting or charging a frozen battery. We hope that this information will help the public avoid this danger," says Paul Phelps, Manager of Oakland County EMS/Disaster Control.

The EMS/Disaster Control offers these tips to help the motorist avoid mishaps caused by trying to energize a frozen battery:

*Whenever possible, remove the battery and bring it indoors to warm it before attempting to put the battery back into service.

*Charge the battery only in a well-vented area.

*Wear safety goggles for maximum eye protection.

*Be sure water (electrolyte) levels are sufficient to cover the plates.

*Be sure your charger switch is in the "off" position and that the charger is unplugged before connecting or disconnecting it to the battery.

*Make the positive connection first and the negative connection last and make this connection to a good ground away from the battery.

*Do not smoke or light a match or lighter when working around a battery.

*When jump-starting a car, connect the positive cable to the post of the "dead" battery and the other end of that same cable to the positive post of the booster battery. The negative connection to the booster battery should be made next, and the last connection is the other end of the negative cable to the engine block away from the battery.

*Always stand away from the car when the other person tries to start it.

*Remove the cable in reverse order.

PRAYER TO THE Holy Spirit: Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and show me the way to reach my ideal, you who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrongs that are done to me and you who are in all the instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you, no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Thank you for your love toward me and my loved ones. Amen. A person must pray this for three consecutive days without asking for a favor. After the third day your favor will be granted no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this dialogue as soon as your favor has been granted. LA ILLX48-1

'Tumbleweeds'

Jeremy Hargis dons a cape for his role as the villain.

An eager bride and reluctant bridegroom are played by Anissa Howard and John Hayden.

The junior high school students portray Hildegard and Tumbleweeds.

"You Plug 'Em, We Plant 'Em" is the tune of this singing trio in "Tumbleweeds." From left, Josh Sutton plays the gravedigger, Sean Westbrook the undertaker and Aaron Meyer the hangman. The musical, a takeoff on the comic strip of the same name, is to be presented Friday and Saturday, Dec. 5 and 6, by the cast of 29 enrolled in the After-School Enrichment Program class sponsored by Clarkston Community Education. Curtain time is 7:30 p.m. at the Depot Theatre, 4861 White Lake Rd., Independence Township. A limited number of seats will be available for the free performances, so those who wish to attend should arrive early, said Sandy Sanford, instructor of the class.
