Center for teens next

By Kathy Greenfield

Encouraged by the turnout of about 300 students for a skiing day at Pine Knob, the organizers are moving forward with plans for a Clarkston teen center.

A meeting to discuss ways to offer a gathering place for young people is planned Wednesday, Feb. 11; at 7:30 p.m. at the Independence Senior Citizen Center by Clarkston Area Youth Assistance.

The Pine Knob ski day on a Friday afternoon came about following the reactivation of a Youth Involvement Committee by Youth Assistance chairperson Merelyn Mallett.

The enthusiastic participation by Clarkston teens played a significant role in the group's next step, said Garry Pullins, social worker for Youth Assistance, an organization devoted to the prevention of juvenile.

Cave-in at bank

Pontiac State Bank (PSB), on Main Street, Clarkston, took a close-up look at its overhead Tuesday morning.

The bank's ceiling caved in, creating a 3-foot high pile of rubble and insulation covering the lobby is, said Char Williams, vice president of PSB.

At 5:15 a.m., Williams received a call from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

"Apparently, a customer using the AT (automatic teller) had seen the ceiling fall down," she

The damage closed the bank for the day, and possibly longer, she said Tuesday afternoon, but the jutomatic teller machine still works.

Meeting may clarify: Pontiac Steel permit

By Chris Gerbasi

A Feb. 19 meeting of the Michigan Water Resources Commission may begin to settle the issue of a Pontiac Steel Corporation expired state discharge permit:

The company's permit expired in February 1982; according to Dave Batchelor of the Environmental Enforcement Agency of the Department of Natural Resources.

Pontiac Steel, located at 9615 Dixie Highway in Springfield Township, has been discharging about 5,200 gallons of process wastewater per day since that time, said Batchelor. He also said it is unlawful to discharge wastewater without a permit.

Short-term plans for drop-in center

#[CENTER, continued from Page 1] delinquency.

"We were very, very pleased," he said.
The teen center concept is being approached in two ways, he said.

"Pirst of all, talking long term, the idea that's been kicked around for years—an actual building," he said. "The short term, to have a spot where teens could go—kind of a drop-in center, a place to meet, eat snacks, listen to music."

On Saturday, adult and student members of the Youth Involvement Committee plan a trip to a teen drop-in center open every Saturday in a high school in Rochester, and they will make a report at the Feb. 11 meeting, Pullins said.

"We're concentrating right now on getting something for teens to do," he said.

People interested in helping with the teen center plans are encouraged to attend the meeting at the senior center, 5980 Clarkston Rd. in Clintonwood Park. For more information, call the Youth Assistance office at 625-9007.

"They feel they are licensed," Batchelor said.

The corporation reapplied for a discharge permit in March 1986 when it wanted to install a new dry well. At that time, the DNR received data that suggested there may be a problem with the groundwater on Pontiac Steel property, he said.

Batchelor said there was no immediate danger to the public but the DNR will recommend that the commission deny the application and to enter an order of abatement.

As a public notice states, "The facility is now being operated without a valid permit and has failed to meet the requirements and conditions of expired State Permit No. M00346. Past wastewater treatment and disposal practices have failed to provide sufficient protection to the groundwater."

At the meeting, Pontiac Steel representatives will be able to give their version of the story. But both sides are hopeful that the case will become water under the bridge.

"We're working on that. We have an environmental outfit out here to straighten it out," said plant manager Tom Lakos.

"We're very hopeful, if they're willing to stop all discharges," said Batchelor. "Right now, that's the recommended course of action. We're willing to work with the company."

The DNR wants the corporation to cease discharges until proper containment and treatment facilities are on line and to restore the groundwaters.

While there is no need for immediate concern, data shows that some areas of the Pontiac Steel property have ion concentrations that are either higher or lower than usual, according to Batchelor.

"We're not dealing with a lot of organic chemicals," Batchelor said. "But any discharge to the water that is not regulated is dangerous."

The Springfield Township Board is aware that the company has been operating with an expired permit. Supervisor Collin Walls expressed similar views to those of Batchelor.

"The last one (study) I saw indicated there wasn't any present danger to any wells or water supply," said Walls.

"Anytime you discharge potentially polluting material into groundwater, there's concern," he said. "The other concern to be expressed is to the DNR for timeliness, or lack of same, for their response in following up on permits."

Batchelor cited layoffs, budget citts and a backlog of permits as problems for the DNR.

"Since we gained the knowledge, it (attention) has picked up," he said.

The Feb. 19 meeting of the Water Resources Commission will be held at 9 a'm, at the Delta Township Hall on West Saginaw Street in Lansing.

The meeting is open to the public and written comments can also be sent to Permits Section, Groundwater Quality Division, Department of Natural Resources, P.O. Box 30028, Lansing, MI 48909.

NWOVEC open house next week

By Kathy Greenfield

Visitors are especially welcome next week at Clarkston's Northwest Oakland Vocational Education

An open house on Sunday, Feb. 8, and a special luncheon buffet on Tuesday, Feb. 10, are planned in celebration of national Vocational Education Week.

Visitors "can see the advances in technology, because vocational education is getting more and more technical all the time," said John Tucker, a counselor at NWOVEC. They can get a look at the future, because that's what vocational education is all about. Tucker would like visitors to include those who have never seen the center as well as those who have:

"Now that we've been here 15 years, people thinkthey know what it's about, (but) now things are markedly different," he said,

Computers, for example, are found in almost all of the 17 vocational education programs. Word processors and computerized typesetting machines, milling equipment and cash registers are used as teaching tools at the site.

"We want our people to be employable, so we have to keep pace with what's happening out there in the work world," said Tucker. "All these things weren't here a few short years ago."

The open house is planned from 1 to 4 p.m. on Sunday at the center at 8211 Big Lake Rd. in Springfield. Township, near the intersection of Dixie Highway and 1475. Student activities will be conducted in the labs for each of NWOVEC's programs and instructors will be available.

NWOVEC programs are open to high school juniors, seniors and adults. Registration and enrollment information will be available during the open house. The vocational center serves the school districts of Brandon, Clarkston, Holly and Waterford.

The buffet in the school's Northwest Inn, staffed by food service students, is planned Tuesday from 11:15 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Featured are a bar round of beef, crown roast of pork, chicken and fish; a salad table; and dessert table: The price is $6.45 per person plus tax.

Telephone reservations are requested. Call 625-5363 or 625-5202 during the school day.

For the open house on Sunday, food service students will prepare relish trays, hors d'oeuvre trays and dessert trays to display another of the many facets, of the food service program.

Orders for the entertainment-helpers are taken during the school year.

Assault occurs after basketball game

By Chris Gerbasi

Two Clarkston High School students and a graduate allegedly assaulted two Lakeland High students and another student after a basketball game between the schools Jan. 27, said Lt. Kenneth Peppiatt of the White Lake Township police.

The incident occurred at about 9 p.m. in the Lakeland High parking lot after Clarkston had defeated the Eagles, 67-53.

"It was reportedly a strictly unprovoked attack," said Peppiatt.

Peppiatt said each of the three victims suffered some injuries, apparently none serious. But a Clarkston basketball player said he saw one victim with blood on the side of his head enter the high school as the team was leaving.

Peppiatt also said he had "tentative identifications" of the suspects, but witnesses were still being questioned as of Monday,

Two of the suspects were apparently wearing Clarkston High jackets and CHS principal Dr. Robert Burek said the police were using a Clarkston yearbook... to help identify the suspects...

Deadlines set for dam owners

By Julie Campe

Mill Pond cofferdam owner Lehman Investments has until June 1 to fix the broken dam and until March 1 to mend the eroding spillway according to an out of court settlement agreement signed by Judge Alice Gilbert.

If Lehman doesn't make the repairs, the Clarkston Village Council has the right to enter the property and fix the dam and spillway, or petition the court, according to the agreement.

The issue was settled out of court just minutes before the Jan. 28 hearing before Gilbert in Oakland.

Village council President Sharron Catallo was Lehman attorney Jon Gaskell also commented on the agreement.

Paved roads are on the way

-For two subdivisions in Independence Township this winter marks the last of dusty, bumpy, muddy gravel roads.

The roads are scheduled for paying this summer. At the south end of the township off Sashabaw Road, about one-quarter mile in the Meyers subdivision is to be paved.

Weisel and Weisel Construction of Clarkston is to do the work for $49,664. The township is to pay 9.7 percent and the benefiting property owners are to pay the remainder through a special tax assessment.

At the north end of the township off Sashabaw Road, about three-fifths of a mile in Whipple Shores subdivision is to be paved.

Thompson-McCully of Belleville is to pave the roads for $77,822. The benefiting property owners are to pay by special tax assessment.

The Oakland County Road Commission (OCRC) awarded the bids last month, said Dennis Pajot, OCRC spokesperson.

To pave a dirt road, the abutting property owners must petition Independence Township, which requests the paving on behalf of the residents. The benefiting property owners pay the cost by special tax assessments, said Pajot.

If the township has enough money, it contributes a small portion of the cost to encourage the paving, said township Clerk Richard Holman.

A fill-in-the-blank will is now available in Michigan to allow some residents to create a will without seeing an attorney.

The state adopted the statutory will in 1986 to make it easier and less expensive to make a will, said Robert Olsen, president of the Oakland County Financial and Estate Planning Council.

The council consists of about 150 tax attorneys, certified public accountants, financial planners and trust officers who share ideas for their clients, he said,

Ideally, the fill-in-the-blank will is to be used with an attorney, said Olsen, an Independence Township resident.

For some reason, many people don't like to see an attorney, so they don't have wills, he said, adding that about 65 percent of people don't have them.

that about 65 percent of people don't have them.

The new state will allows people to insert information without seeing an attorney.

A person may even include a list of specific items to be given to particular people and allows a cash gift to two charities, he said.

Having a will is important, he said, and almost everybody needs one—single, married, with children, without children.

Otherwise, a person's property is governed by the state, he said.

"Everbody has a will, but the state has drafted it for us," he said. "It's called intestate (dying without a written will). Most people don't like the way it's done, so they make their own wills:"

For example, if you're intestate, and you were married, $60,000 will go to your spouse. The balance will be split between your spouse and children, he said.

The process is expensive because everything goes through probate court, he said. And it can be complicated for a person with children who dies without a will. For the children, the judge appoints a guardian who may or may not be satisfactory to surviving relatives, he said.

If you make your own will, you choose your own guardian and, a personal representative for your estate, said Olsen.

It still goes through probate court, but it's less expensive and less complicated, he said.

If your estate involves a lot of assets or a complicated family, an attorney's help should be sought, Free copies of the will are available from State Rep. Mat Dunaskiss (R-Lake Orion) by calling 693-4820 or at Olsen's office: Suite 3, Clarkston Mills Mall, 20 West Washington St., Clarkston.

Opinions

What's in a name? Kathy Greenfield

When I was a high school junior, I decided to make a statement about my individuality.

What I did wasn't horribly radical. I simply changed the spelling of my nickname.

It felt good, as I remember. There were a whole bunch of Kathys in my school. It was a popular name back then and I liked it, but we all spelled it the same way.

So I decided that instead of the "Y" at the end of Kath, I'd use an "I."

I informed everyone in my family of the new spelling, insisted that they conform, and used Kathi in all cases possible—whenever a legal signature did not require the use of Kathleen.

My friends, too, were told the change had been made and that they were expected to use Kathi. Some of them voiced amazement and some gave me a hard time, in particular Diane.

"Oh, there's Kath-eye," she'd say. She let me know in uncertain terms that she thought the whole idea was silly.

A few years later, I switched back to Kath-Y. I'm not sure why: I think I just decided I preferred the more common spelling and, besides, I'd been Kathy much longer than Kathi. It was more comfortable.

I probably no longer needed to express with my name that I was an individual. My name no longer had to be different.

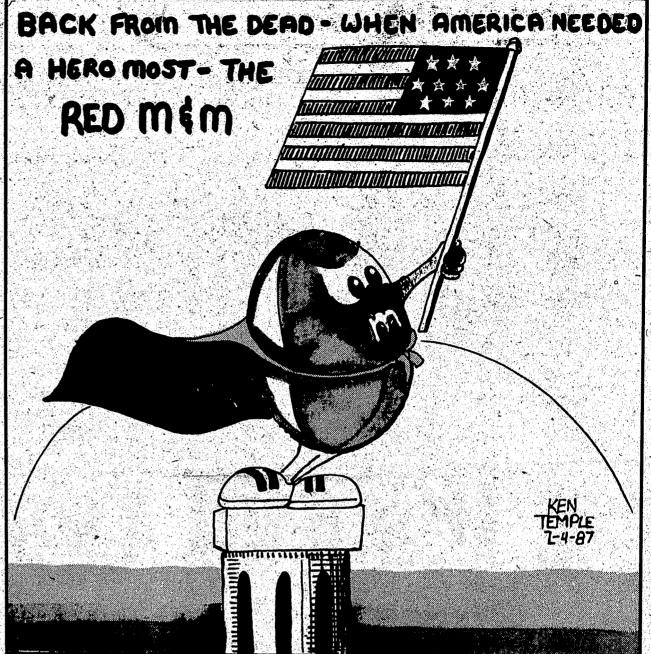

An interesting thing happened along the way, though. Some people in my family still use Kathi. I'll receive a birthday card or a letter from an occasional writer and there it will be: a piece of my past. It always makes me think back to that time in my life.

But the really mind-boggling thing is that once in a while, I receive something with "Kathi" on it from a person who didn't know me back

That's when I wonder if I seem more like a Kathi than a Kathy-whatever that means.

Jim's Jottings

There is about as many myths and folk beliefs about snakes as anything. Tom Burnam's "Dictionary of Misinformation" dispells much of it.

For instance, he says snakes do not swallow their young to protect them. But big snakes sometimes eat little snakes, often alive. The digestive juices of snakes are so quick-acting and strong - they can in a short time turn bone into powder - that any young' swallowed are consumed; not protected.

Nor are there any snakes with poisonous stingers in their tails, though some may strike with their sharp, spiny scaled tail. So, not having poisonous tails, they cannot kill trees by striking them, as has been mythed.

That St Patrick drove the snakes out of Ireland is a charming tale, not to be taken seriously. However, many islands do not have, and probably never did have snakes.

Nor can the coachwhip snake whip its tormentors or enemies; it just looks like a coachwhip, and is entirely harmless.

The milk snake actually exists, but it does not milk cows. Even the most patient bovine, Burnam says, will scarcely stand still for double rows of ncedle-sharp teeth.

It's said black snakes hang around with and eat poisonous snakes. In fact, black snakes get along so well with rattlesnakes and copperheads that they frequently hibernate in the same dens.

The puff adder (hissing adder or hognose) is perfectly harmless. It does not blow poisonous vapor, mostly because it has no venom sacs.

The pilot black snake leads copperheads and rattlesnakes back to their dens in time of danger is another myth. The fact is that the pilot snake is simply more active than his lethal companions. In early spring, when the snakes come out of the den to sun, during midday before actually leaving it, any sign of danger sends them scurrying back. The pilot snake, being faster, beats them, but doesn't lead them.

Cobras are not 'charmed' by flutes. Snakes do not, in fact, have ears. They sense vibrations in the earth. The cobra sways in time with the flute because it is trying to get into position to strike at it. The charmer has to be quite alert.

Those cowboys or campers who encircle their sleeping bags with rope in belief that snakes won't, cross it are relying on a dangerous myth. Snakes don't mind crawling over ropes, as repeated experiments have proved.

As for snakes laying eggs, some do and some don't. Rattlesnakes, among others, don't.

Finally, venomous snakes do not reserve their poison for their enemies; as is sometimes thought. They use it for a most practical reason, to kill their prey. They are themselves immune to their own venom if they swallow it.

After all this reading and writing about snakes, I still don't feel any more comfortable about them, especially those in the water, when I'm in the same water.

If it's a major fire or a minor oddity, we want a call at the News.

Looking good

The young people in our community have been saying that they need something to do.

In response to this, Merelyn Mallett, Youth Assistance chairperson, reactivated the Youth Involvement Committee.

Three high school students, Sandy Coulter, Laurie Irwin and Jill Gamble, came to the first meeting and said they would help out in any way if there were planned activities.

The first activity was a ski day at Pine Knob, and the girls kept their word. They went back to the student government and together they had announcements made, made posters for the high school and both junior highs and sold tickets.

The response from the rest of the students showed that the teens really do want something to do, as almost 300 signed up to skil

Mayor Young last week proposed that Upper Peninsula weather be used to punish young Detroit criminals.

Young talked to Gov. Blanchard about turning ment for his service in Congress. unused UP air bases into juvenile detention facilities. The mayor said keeping our troublesome youths "in the frigid " zones of the north would help cool some of these hotshots properties and environmental and Young should be commended for his innovation; although some UP residents may suggest that if the mayor wants to cool off Detroit's hotshots, he should stick them up into the freezer compartment of his own refrigerator, or some similarly awkward but nearby location.

IT'S NOT USUALLY casy to devise an effective way to loree lawbreakers to pay for their crime. Someimes however, in steateasy. For instance, when it comes to applying penaltics sift ever saw also lution crying for a problem at is in the case of former Michigan Rep. Charles

If that same government can't figure out how to collect from Using the UP as a gulag is one of the more unique; Diggs, it must be the taxpayers' fault for failing to elect 10-year-old girls to Congress.

BUT I DIGRESS; I didn't mean to leave the Upper Peninsula so quickly. However, when people do leave, via the Mackinac Bridge, they should be required to pay a much higher toll than when entering,

I first made this suggestion several years ago, as a: means of bolstering the state's shrinking treasury. My theory is that, because of the lousy weather and depressing isolation, sanc people would be willing to pay any amount of money to get out of the UP.

Much to my surprise, UP residents - both of them -were offended. It seems that some people actually like it were orienged: it seems mansome people actuarly like it up there. They enjoy dog signifing for hundreds of miles without seeing one significations not even a drive through. Wendy's they unink its fun to exhale and see their breath, rather than inhale and taste soot.

There are those who believe the UP economy (presently two pasty shops run by Joe Mack) could use the income generated by a penal system for Detroit criminals. Local people - already armed with muskrat traps - would: be hired to guard the convicts. And, on Visitors Day, local supermarkets would be enriched by prisoners' relatives collecting refunds on beer bottles bought in Detroit.

HOWEVER, there is a flip side of Mayor Young's suggestion that a best use of our state's natural resources would be sentencing Detroit criminals to the UP. One big reason the Mackinac Bridge was built was to transport tourist dollars into the UP. But will tourists want to go there when they learn the UP is regarded as an ideal spot for freezing the heat out of hotshot crooks?

I'don't know if UP jails for Detroiters would create enough local jobs to make up for tourists reluciant to visit a designated punishment area. Probably a rural development firm should be hired for $1,000 an hour to study the environmental impact of a prison system upon Dominic Jacobetti.

M-15 committee pursues solutions

By Julie Campe

Help may be on the way for the M-15 traffic congestion in Clarkston.

A meeting last week between Clarkston's M-15 Traffic Study Committee, state Sen. Richard Fessler (R-West Bloomfield) and state Rep. Mat Dunaskiss (R-Lake Orion) resulted in some suggestions for the committee, headed by Jerome Wilford of Clarkston.

Wilford proposed an alternate truck route for

M-15, bypassing the village.

Fessler and Dunaskiss suggested Clarkston and Independence Township meet with the Oakland County Road Commission and the Michigan Department of Transportation, said Wilford.

A meeting was scheduled for the end of February....

To bypass the village heading north, the alternate route would use Dixie Highway north to I-75 south to M-15 north, said Wilford

The difference in distance is about two miles, he said. Measured informally, the difference in driving time between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. varies between 4 and 26 seconds, he said.

More help for Tony Palazzola

Another business has stepped into the effort to help Tony Palazzola walk again.

The Hair Brush hair salon will stage a "Help Tony Walk Day" Feb. 7, with $1 from each service performed that day donated to a fund for Palazzola.

The Hair Brush is located at 7400 Highland Road (M-59) in Pontiac. It's on the corner of Highland and Williams Lake Road.

Palazzola lost the use of his legs in a plane crash at Pontiac Oakland Airport last March.

Palazzola needs about $16,000 to help him attend a rehabilitation center in Las Vegas this March.

A friend of his, Donald Kevern, has organized a fund to collect donations and the owners of The Nickelodean restaurant on Ortonville Road recently announced that in the month of February, $1 from every pizza sold will go into the fund.

To make the change, a traffic light at the ramp from I-75 to M-15 would be necessary, said Wilford.

"Truck operators tell us that it is too difficult to make the left turn onto M-15 against the stream of southbound traffic," he said: "This is why some trucks go through the village."

A traffic light may also be necessary for southbound traffic to turn onto Dixie Highway from I-75, said Wilford.

Ramps might need to be widened by one lane; he

He also suggested alternate route signs be installed north of I-75 and south of M-15 on Dixie Highway.

Passenger cars may prefer to use the bypass, too, especially after the M-15/Waldon Road traffic light is installed, said Wilford.

Clarkston to sue Independence

The Village of Clarkston plans to file a lawsuit against Independence Township this week, said David Lee, Clarkston's attories.

The suit, to be filed in Oakland County Circuit Court, seeks to eliminate a sidwell number, or lot number, issued by the township for tax purposes, he

The sidwell number was issued in error, said Lee. The township is the agent for Clarkston and should not have issued the number because it's illegal, he

The village council members discussed the issue at a December meeting. The sidwell number, issued for lot 41, effectively splits the property, said village attorney John Steckling at the meeting.

In 1979, the owner of lot 41 asked to remove 27 feet from the rear yard to add it to lot 60 (Clarkston Corners on Main Street, Clarkston) to be used for parking, he said.

The village denied the split because it would make lot 41 non-conforming. The owner apparently sold the property, and the new owner asked the township for a sidwell number for tax purposes for the extra property.

By giving the number, the assessor at that time allowed the owner to sidestep the ordinance, said Steckling.

The matter is more complicated because ownership of the lot has changed and a different assessor now works for the township, said council President Sharron Catallo after the meeting.

Township Supervisor Frank Ronk refused comment until after he sees the lawsuit.

Clarkston wins thriller in 30Ts

By Chris Gerbasi

It took 12 games and three overtimes, but Clarkston's basketball team finally reached the .500 level last week.

In an emotional, nerve-wracking, triple overtime contest, the Wolves hung onto a 69-68 victory over Lake Orion last Friday.

That evened Clarksfon's season record at 6-6 and its record in the Greater Oakland Activities League at 2-2. Lake Orion is 7-5 and also 2-2 in the GOAL. Both teams trail Waterford Mott, which is 4-0 and 10-1 overall.

Jeff Tungate connected on the front end of a oneand-one with nine seconds to go in the final overtime to give Clarkston a 69-66 lead. The Dragons' Mike Sherwood was then left alone to drive for a basket as time ran out.

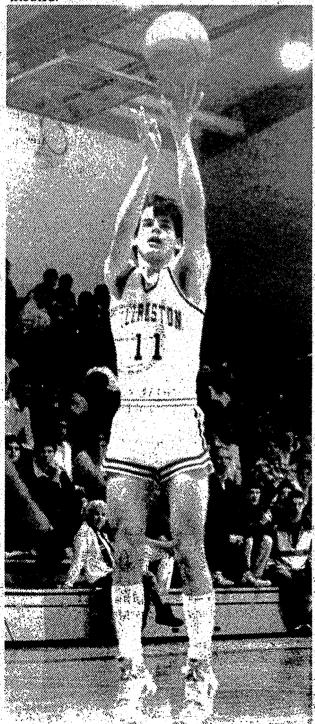

Tungate had also canned two free throws with 32 seconds left for a 68-64 Wolves advantage. He finished with 13 points and Steve Secarch also scored a season-high 13. Dan Jokisch led the way with 20 points.

"We've been through a lot," said Clarkston coach Dan Fife. "As poor as we've played, the kids wouldn't quit on me. It takes a lot of guts to win that ballgame."

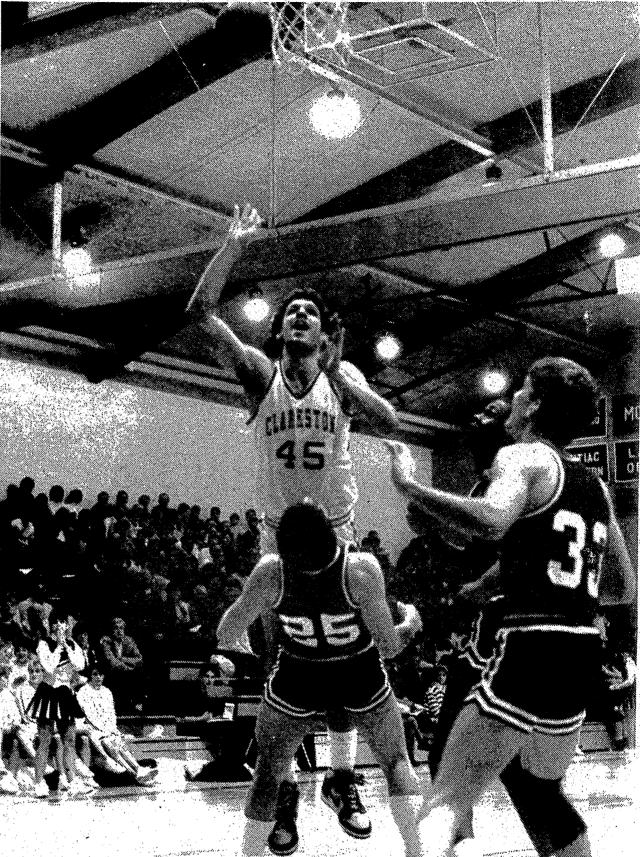

Both teams had shots at winning the game in regulation and the first two overtimes. The best opportunity came for Lake Orion in the second overtime but Jim Manzo missed a free throw with one second left Tungate and Craig Chamberlain then helped to win it for the Wolves in the third extra period.

After Jokisch fouled out in the fourth quarter, the Wolves went almost exclusively with the lineup of Tungate, Secatch, Chamberlain, Josh Newblatt and Jim Hall throughout the overtimes. All five contributed.

Jeff Tungate canned three free throws late in the third overtime to give Clarkston the win. He scored 13 points in the contest.

Clarkston's Dan Jokisch barrels into Lake Orion's Jim Manzo last Friday. The shot didn't drop, but Jokisch scored 20 points before foul-

Besides the scoring of Tungate and Secatch, Chamberlain put Clarkston ahead in the third overtime with some tough inside play. Hall helped shut down sharpshooter Troy Rusnell, and Newblatt has seen more court time recently to run the Wolves offense.

Sherwood and Rusnell were deadly from the outside for the Dragons. Sherwood scored a game-high 26 and Rusnell had 18, although he was held to just six after intermission.

Junior guard Jeff Fair had 12 for Lake Orion including six in the fourth quarter, which sent the game into overtime.

The Dragons were on top through much of the first three quarters. They led by as many as 10 in the first half and 31-30 at halftime.

The lead changed hands until 2:20 was left in the third. A technical foul was called on Jokisch for dunking after the whistle had sounded and Sherwood hit the free throw to the the game at 40.

But on the Dragon possession, Jokisch stole the ball at midcourt and went in for a jam. Darrell Green attempted to block the shot, but he came down hard and hurt his right arm.

After a lengthy delay, Green left the court with his left arm raised, giving the "No. 1" sign to approving Lake Orion fans."

But Jokisch quieted them with another steal on the very next play. This time he went three-quarters of ing out in the Wolves' 69-68 triple overtime victory.

the court for a layup, he was fouled and the free throw put Clarkston in front, 45-40.

The Wolves eventually built a 53-46 lead early in the fourth quarter, but Lake Orion refused to fold.

Clarkston was ice cold during the last four minutes of the game and Jokisch fouled out with two minutes left.

Meanwhile, Fair hit three straight short jumpers, the last one tying the game at 56 with 40 seconds remaining.

Secatch missed from about 18 feet with five seconds left and Fair was short from 25 feet at the buzzer.

The teams were tentative in the first two overtimes. Chamberlain misfired from about 18 feet at the end of the first overtime and the score was 58-58.

The Dragons had their chance in the second overtime, but Manzo hit the back of the rim with a free throw with one second left and the ga e was knotted at 62-62.

Chamberlain redeemed himself in the third extra period as he got a rebound basket and then was fouled on another offensive rebound. He made one of two shots to put Clarkston ahead to stay, 65-62.

Secatch then sank a free throw with 51 seconds left to send the Wolves' bench, including Fife, leaping into the air.

"We've lost a lot of overtime games in the past,"
Fife said. "This was a big win for Clarkston."

Cougarspikers

down Clarkston

At the ninth-grade level, it's very easy for sports teams to be inconsistent. Momentum is everything.

Momentum swung like a pendulum in last week's Sashabaw-Clarkston volleyball match before Sashabaw finally prevailed, 15-4, 13-15, 15-10.

'Emotionally at this level, since they haven't played a lot of volleyball, it's up and down and up and down," said Cougar coach Sue Koslosky.

Clarkston started out on the down side, but the 1-6 Wolverines nearly came back to knock off 10-4 Sashabaw.

The first game was no contest as the Cougars went out to a 10-1 lead and won easily.

But the second game was close throughout. With her team leading 9-8, Sashabaw's Emily Zubalik served four straight points for a 13-8 advantage.

But Clarkston regained the serve and Jami Lerner eventually served five straight to put the Wolverines in front, 14-13.

They won it from there and kept on going, jumping to a 4-0 lead in the third game. The Wolverines continued to serve well and led 8-4 before the Cougars Sashabaw chipped away, tied the contest at 10 and then methodically scored the final five points.

Once the momentum goes one way, it's hard to get it back;" said Koslosky.

Clarkston coach Jeanne Odell knows that all too well as her team has had trouble coming back after poor first games. But that was not the case against Sashabaw.

"That was probably the best game we ever played," she said. "We're improving every game. I wasn't at all disappointed with the way we played. Of course, we wanted to win:

'Both teams are developing some good skills," said Koslosky. "But to them (the players), winning is what really counts."

Both teams will be out to beat each other again at Clarkston Feb. 23.

A Sashabaw player tips the ball past Clarkston last Wednesday. The action went back and forth before the Cougars won, 15-4, 13-15, 15-10. Sashabaw is 10-4 on the season.

Friday fun

Chris Gerbasi

It was probably what everyone needed—the players, the students, coach Dan Fife—a fun Friday

Clarkston pulled out a thrilling 69-68 triple overtime win over Lake Orion last Friday. The previous two Friday games, losses to Mott and Kettering, had been not only losses, but, well, boring.

The Wolves hadn't done much to cure the winter blahs in compiling a 4-6 record heading into last week. But then there was some action.

Unfortunately, some of that action came in the form of two Clarkston students allegedly attacking two Lakeland students after the schools' game Jan.

But Clarkston and Lake Orion showed how it should be done Friday.

Of course, there was the tension on the court, as the lead went back and forth and both teams had numerous opportunities to win the game in regulation and in the overtimes.

And there was the energy in the stands. It was good to see the Clarkston students consistently make noise. The usual couple rows of fans that stand most of the game increased to most of one section and they cheered throughout.

At past events, when their team has fallen behind. Clarkston fans have resembled Michigan basketball fans—as still as a painting and as quiet as Marcel Marceau.

But not Friday. A long chorus of "Way to go, Jokisch, way to go" followed a Dan Jokisch steal and dunk. Lake Orion fans responded with an unclassy "Jock itch, jock itch" chant, but at least they tried.

The Dragons' Darrell Green was injured on the same play and had to leave the game. He had been urging on the Orion rooters throughout the game and when he left the court giving them the "No. 1" sign,

It was like that the whole game, back and forth, for the players, the fans, and the cheerleaders, who tried to out-backflip each other.

Now the students just have to get the other side of the gym fired up.

Nothing would've typified the Wolves' frustrating season more than a triple overtime loss. They needed

And they got it, along with a victory at Lakeland to help them reach the .500 mark for the first time this season.

Maybe now they can put some of that frustration behind them. Or maybe they'll fall flat on their face again this week. It's been that kind of season.

The Wolves have plenty of talent, but Fife has been looking for the right combination of players to bring out that talent.

Last week, he substituted less than he usually does and told junior Josh Newblatt to run the offense. Newblatt, the football team's quarterback, is no stranger to the role.

We've had trouble with our leadership," said Fife: "Wrong or right, Josh's not afraid to take the bull by the horns.

'At first I wasn't quite sure what coach Fife was asking of me," said Newblatt. "I had to play in ways I wasn't used to. But now I know what he wants from me. He wants me to take control out there.'

Of course, with any lineup changes comes the other side of the story. Guards Keith Mercier, Jeff Billig and Craig Chamberlain have seen less playing time recently. Chamberlain's sprained ankle actually helped Newblatt get more time.

Being a team player, Chamberlain didn't want to make a big deal out of his floor time. He waited for his opportunity Friday and scored the go-ahead points in the third overtime.

"I just work as hard as I can and do whatever I can for the team," said Chamberlain. "Everybody worked hard (Friday).'

And everybody had fun.

Tucked away at the back of 40 acres of rolling farmland in Groveland Township is Norbert Wudarcki's private domain.

Sectioned off from the rest of his land by a wooden fence and a cluster of trees are several old school buses, goat and chicken houses, wooden sheds, neatly stacked piles of wood and a hand pump to draw water.

The nucleus of this domain is housed within one of the buses. It is furnished with table and chairs, bookshelves, kerosene lamps-and a brand new wood-burning cook stove.

"I had to buy a new one at Solley's," Wudarcki says. "I wore the first stove out. Guess I made too many biscuits.'

Norbert Wudarcki fires up his favorite stove—a wood burning cookstove housed in an old school bus at the back of his Groveland Township property. Most wood stove enthusiasts especially enjoy cooking during winter months, but Wudarcki uses his year-

"I wouldn't be without a wood stove; not if I have to do the cooking," he says emphatically. "Things just taste better than on those modern stoves. Just ask my wife. She even says so.'

His wife, Norma, prefers to cook in the kitchen on her "modern" stove, but agrees that the woodburning stove produces a better flavor.

Wudarcki grew up two houses down from his present home on Bald Eagle Lake Road, and says, "I was 10 years old before I even knew there was any other way (than wood) to cook."

He traveled a lot in his younger days, with the Army and on his own, picking up recipes from all over the world. His bookshelf is brimming with cookbooks, attesting to his fondness for preparing meals.

"I have everything I need here," he says, looking out. Frost patterns on the windows are slowly dissipating as the wood stove warms the glass.

"When I want milk, I go see my goat," he says,

"and there's always fresh eggs."

The chickens, a Chilian breed, produce colorful eggs, from tans to a greenish blue that makes one think of the Dr. Seuss story about green eggs and meals, Wudarcki has compiled a book of recipes, neatly typed and filed in a three-ring notebook, that include some of his favorites.

The following recipe for a hearty winter meal can be adapted to a modern stove, too, for those who don't own a wood stove.

CREAM OF PEA AND CHICKEN SOUP

2 cups dry or split peas

1 cup turkey, chicken or pork, cooked and chopped

½ cup onion, chopped I cup celery, chopped

1/2 cup carrots, chopped 1 clove garlic, minced

2 bay leaves

1 teaspoon sugar.

Salt and pepper to taste

1/4 teaspoon red pepper

1/4 teaspoon thyme

Simmer peas in a minimum of broth until soft. Stir-fry celery, carrots, onion and garlic until tender. Combine all ingredients and simmer until done. Remove from heat and stir in 21/2 cups whole milk and heat, but do not boil.

Wudarcki has a story to tell about another of his. favorite recipes.

Teenager plans to fly the skies of Michigan

By Kathy Greenfield

As a student pilot, Kelley Cook has some adventures to share.

Once, when landing a single-engine Cessna 152 in Flint, he came in directly behind a Boeing 737. "Just the size difference is incredible," says the 17-year-old Main Street, Clarkston, resident.

Another memory involves the first couple of times his instructor suddenly pulled up on the wheel. "It felt like I weighed 600 pounds," he says. "I got used to that."

Then there was the Corvette experience. "I was going over 1-75. I was going about 100—and a Corvette passed me," he says.

While Kelley doesn't have his pilot's license yet, he's getting close. His coursework is done and he's put in 20 hours of instruction with a pilot and 20 hours flying solo.

Following a night flight and the flying and written tests administered by an official from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), he expects to receive his license by the end of February.

Kelley's quest to become a pilot began a year ago Christmas when his father presented him with the gift of flying lessons.

"It was a total surprise; but I wanted to do it once he gave it to me," Kelley says. "It was something I always wanted to do, but I never told anybody I wanted to do it."

A Many who receive a pilot's license spend four to six months on the task, but more time was needed by Kelley because of school and other activities.

A senior at Clarkston High School, he's taking classes in physics, advanced placement English and Spanish plus a class at Oakland Community College in calculus: He skis as a hobby and is a member of the CHS Computer Club.

The flying lessons resulted in an unexpected

"It did make the first part of physics easier," he says. "A plane, when the wind's blowing, you have to turn a certain amount of degrees into the wind or you'll be blown off course. You're actually flying sideways."

A pilot has to make calculations to set his course which Kelley learned to do.

"Then, in the first part of physics class, we had problems like that," he says.

Kelley is taking his flying lessons from Tradewinds Aviation at the Oakland-Pontiac Airport. The use of an airplane was included in the cost.

"They say if you get through this course, you can take the (FAA) test pretty easy," he says, "They also say if you take lessons there, you're pretty set for any airport."

According to Kelley, the Oakland-Pontiac Airport is one of the busiest in the nation, with incoming or outgoing flights every 30 seconds.

Kelley is in the process of applying to universities, but while he's not sure where he'll go to school yet, he knows he doesn't plan to make a career out of flying.

"It'll probably just be a hobby," he says. "I don't know how far I'll go into the field, but I'll probably get what is called an instrument rating. You can do a lot more flying then. You don't have to wait until the weather's good."

When Kelley receives his pilot's license, he plans to make a skiing trip. "I'll probably fly up to Boyne or something," he says.

Meanwhile, he's putting up with some teasing.
"Most of my friends said the day I get my license is the day they stop being my friends," he says. "They don't want to go up with me: They think I'm too wild."

His dad, Bob, can't wait.

"It's something he's always wanted to do. He wants me to fly him on fishing trips and stuff," says Kelley.

And Mary Alice, his mom, has a different reaction.

"She doesn't like it," he says: "She didn't like me driving either, so..."

Kelley Cook plans to receive his pilot's license in February, close to his 18th birthday. The achievement will make him one of the youngest pilots around. According to Kelley, people of any age can take flying lessons, but a licensed pilot must be at least 17 years old.

Parent, teen topics now at librar

Books dealing with issues faced by parents and teens are on the shelves in the Independence Township Library...

The collection of 11 titles, worth about $50, was donated by Clarkston Area Youth Assistance.

The books were selected by Jan Colbrunn, Youth Assistance vice chairperson and a teacher of parenting classes sponsored last fall by Youth Assistance and Clarkston Community Education.

"I was eager to find something positive and preventive," she said.

Many of the issues addressed in the classes she led are covered in the books.

Some of the ones on parenting are the most practical parenting books—things that can be applied to everyday parenting and are not just theoretical," said Colbrunn, a former elementary school teacher who received training in parenting education from Oakland Family Services and is currently working toward a master's degree in counseling.

The books for parents include the topics of childrearing, discipline, improving marriage relationships, single parenting and blended families (remarriages with children). Teen topics include sexuality and other issues.

A list of the titles and authors follows: "Preparfor Adolescence" by Dobson, "Dare to Discipline" by Dobson, "Looking for Love" by White,

Substance abuse stages in abbreviated form

With all the talk about how bad cigarettes are for you and all, is there a change? I mean, have people really stopped smoking and think that smoking is bad for you? I still see people smoking on the street and in places and just wonder.

Dear Student:

According to a survey by the United States National Institute on Drug Abuse, only about 14 percent of college students smoked on a daily basis and about 19 percent of high school seniors were daily smokers.

A survey taken by the American Lung Association showed most teenage boys in the United States would rather not date a girl who smokes. Teenage girls aren't much different; most of them want to date a guy who doesn't smoke.

Even teens who smoke prefer to date nonsmokers. Of the smokers surveyed, only 3 percent preferred to date other smokers.

These surveys show a change in attitude. Smokers tell me it is getting more and more difficult to find a "comfortable" public place to smoke.

A manager at the Clarkston Elias Brothers Restaurant said in years past there were more requests for seatings in smoking than non-smoking areas. Recently, the tide has turned. Now 60 percent of the customers ask for the non-smoking section:

With 365,000 people dying annually from lung disease and more adults quitting daily, there is bound to be a change in attitude and percentages.

Dear Cat Paw: Can you tell me quickly what the stages of drug use are and how you can tell what stage your friend is

Need to Know

Dear Need to Know:

Chemical dependence has four stages: Please note that these are very much abbreviated.

1) A teenager is offered alcohol or another drug with the message that it feels good. The teen, like before trying it.

C.A.T.

Chemicals Are Trouble. People Are Working. Jeanette Sanders Copyright 1987

The first try is just a token swig or puff that doesn't produce a high. Soon, in a social situation among other kids, the teen gets a buzz. It feels good. There are no immediate bad results, so he or she uses the chemical now and then with friends.

2) At some point the teen decides, "I like this" and takes charge of his own drug supply. He starts using the alcohol or other drug of choice to get the high instead of just to be social.

He or she wants to feel good regularly and in this easy, no pain way. The teen often begins to steal from his family to supply his growing habit.

He may cheat at school to cover up failing study habits: Hobbies drop by the wayside. Guilt rises, selfworth drops. He then turns to more chemicals to deal with those feelings.

3) Next he or she becomes preoccupied with drugs and/or alcohol. Getting high becomes the center of his life.

Unfortunately, it is taking more and more of the substance or stronger combinations to produce the good feeling.

Stealing hits the streets and grades fall to the bottom. The family becomes a battleground. The drug/alcohol use is no longer hidden; it is public

4) In the final stage; the teen must take the chemical just to feel normal. He or she no longer experiences much pleasure, but it feels as if he'll die without it.

Cat Paw author Jeanette Sanders, a Springfield Township resident, is a state certified drug abuse counselor and a member of the Clarkston Area Chemical People, an organization devoted to the prevention of substance abuse among the community's young people.

Autographs, jail at fair Saturday

Everyone's invited to the Clarkston Elementary School Fair on Saturday, Feb. 7, from 11 a.m. to 3

There will be games for all ages, a white elephant sale and country cupboard for adults, and food for sale in the multipurpose room.

Two special attractions are planned.

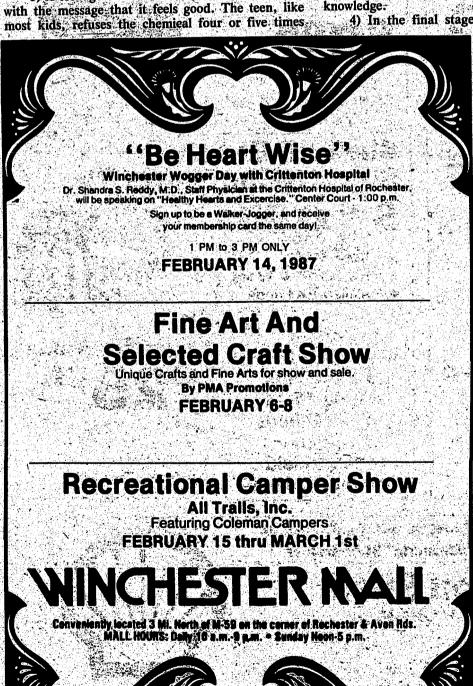

Four police officers are to be on duty to "arrest your favorite person" and hold him or her captive in the Clarkston Elementary Jail.

University of Michigan Wolverine football team members Steve Thibert, Dave Folkertsma and John (Jumbo) Elliot plan to be on hand to talk to the kids and sign autographs.

The school is on Waldon Road, just east of the Village of Clarkston. For more information, call 625-4900.

Cook's domain is his wood burning stove

wonderful roast that changed his mind.

"Every now and then I get a yen for leg of lamb, but it got so expensive. Then I thought, gee, goat looks and tastes just like lamb." So he raises goats, for meat as well as milk.

For years, he prepared the roasts on his wood stove, and his family loved them, until once when his wife prepared one in her stove. "It just wasn't the same," he says.

So this roast recipe isn't guaranteed by Wudarcki unless it's prepared in a wood stove oven.

ROAST LAMB OR GOAT

3 pound roast Garlic cloves

- 1 tablespoon each salt and pepper
- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- 1/2 cup wine or sherry
- 1/4 cup vinegar
- 1/4 pound butter
- 2 tablespoons olive oil

Carrots, onions and potatoes

Punch holes in roast with end of sharp knife and stuff with garlic cloves. Mix salt, pepper and chili powder together, rub all over roast.

Melt butter in roaster; add olive oil, vinegar and wine. Place roaster on top of stove, add meat and heat through. Place roaster in moderate oven and cook until almost done.

Add vegetables and continue cooking until vegetables are tender (about another hour)...

"You have a better range of heat on a wood stove than any other," Wudarcki says.

He starts his stove with a corn cob soaked in kerosene or diesel oil. Then he adds short pieces of wood he has cut and stacked for the stove.

He likes to cook with a wok, and demonstrates how he can remove the round plate on the stovetop and place the wok directly over the flame for high heat, or place it on a ring stand several inches above the stove for a simmer.

He also uses a cast iron Dutch oven and skillet for many of his dishes.

A temperature gauge on the oven door lets him know whether to stoke the fire or change the draft.

Wood can be added from the top, front or left side of the stove.

There are draft controls on the side, and also onthe stove top, where more or less warm air can be diverted to the oven.

Below the fire box compartment on the stove is an ash drawer. Even the ashes from Wudarcki's stove don't go to waste. He gives them to the chickens for scratch in the winter.

'Maybe it's a little more work to cook on this stove," he says: "You have to chop the wood, carry it in, stoke the fire, adjust the draft. It's very important to always have a supply of dry wood nearby when you're cooking.

Despite the effort, Wudarcki obviously believes there is no better way to cook than on his wood stove.

"No modern stove can hold a matchstick to it." he says.

The hardest part about making race cars from balsa wood is cutting them, according to six seventhgraders at Sashabaw Junior High School

Routing and sanding were difficult, too; they

But these boys didn't seem to have much trouble. They finished in the first and second places of their woodshop classes, taught by Tom O'Brien. Starting with a wedge-shaped piece of balsa wood, they designed and created their own cars, considering the aerodynamics, friction and weight as they made their designs. Next, they painted them.

Then, they raced their creations, powered by a carbon dioxide cartridge, on a 20 meter track. After converting their times to miles per hour, they discovered the winners.

Finishing first in their classes were: Omar Trevino, Robb Colbrum and Sean Westbrook. In second place were: Jeremy Thompson, Kevin Heidisch and Noel Strong.

Colbrunn had the fastest time overall with 35 miles per hour.

Part two of the competition is drawing their cars at the actual size after they have drafting class.

The winners of the two skills combined are to compete at the state balsa wood car race, with the same judging criteria, said O'Brien.

The food was quite tasty in this country located in

After each early morning game viewing and picture shooting, we were greeted with a wonderful breakfast of fresh tropical fruits, croissants, porridge, eggs, sausage and delicious Kenyan coffee.

Large buffets were spread for lunch, sometimes featuring tribal specialties and always offering elaborate pastries for dessert.

Dinner was a set menu that included soup, a choice of entree, fresh vegetables, dessert and always wonderful bread or rolls.

The following dishes were adapted for microwave cooking from recipes given to me by Chef John Kamau of the Samburu Lodge in Kenya, Africa. ESCALOPE MILANAISE

1 16-ounce jar spaghetti sauce or 2 cups homemade spaghetti sauce

Cooked spaghetti noodles

Sprinkle pork chops with garlic powder and paprika. Pour milk over, cover and refrigerate 3 Preheat browning dish for 6 minutes. Meanwhile, remove chops from milk, dip into beaten egg, then into flour-cheese mixture.

Add butter to preheated browning dish, then quickly add coated chops. Saute at high power 1 minute. Turn and saute at high for another minute.

Add spaghetti sauce, cover and cook at 50 percent (medium) power 5 minutes or until chops are no longer pink inside. Serve over cooked spaghetti.

Note: Escalope Milanaise may be topped with lightly sauted julienne strips of peeled cucumber and ham and sliced mushrooms.

POTATO SOUP 1 tablespoon butter

Preheat browning dish for 5 minutes. Add butter and remaining vegetables. Saute for 3 minutes, stirring after 11/2 minutes. Cool slightly.

Place potatoes with cooking water and sauteed vegetables into food processor. While processing, add 2 to 3 cups water (use 2 cups water for thicker soup) with bouillon cubes to the vegetables, Pour pureed vegetables into a 2 to 3 quart casserole or soup tureen. Add evaporated milk.

Teen shares her story

Winning the battle against drugs

By Pat Young

Kelly Saunders of Independence Township remembers the seventh grade as the time in her life when she started partying.

"The first time I drank, I got so drunk I passed out," she recalls.

Now, the petite 16-year-old is celebrating her junior year at Clarkston High School by setting a shining example for her peers.

Kelly is recovering from an addiction, the roots of which go back to that first party in the seventh grade. And she's doing everything she can to help others get "In the seventh grade, I started by just drinking, experimenting with friends," Kelly says. "Then I'd get high on pot. And I'd take speed a lot."

At the time, Kelly lived on Almond Lane, but soon she and her mother, then a single parent, moved to an apartment.

"That's kind of where it really all started," says

Carol Ryden, Kelly's mother.

Kelly had lots of other kids at the apartments to hang around with, many older than her, and most very much into partying.

"I didn't even know Kelly was into anything," says Carol. "Now, I can look back and see the signs. But then, I didn't know."

Carol recalls that Kelly would come in, say "Good night, Mom," and head straight to her room without actually confronting her.

"Her behavior changed. She never used to talk back to me, but she became belligerent," Carol says. "Her school work went downhill. Her friends meant more to her than anything."

Kelly smiles at her mother's recollections. She knows it was a time that put distance between them. But she's also aware that the support she's getting from her mother and step-father, Jeff Ryden, is making them closer now.

Kelly did drugs at school. She would smoke pot before school or during the lunch hour.

"I did a lot of mescaline, too," she says. "You just stick it on your tongue. It was easy. I did a lot of it in classes, sitting in the back of the room."

She also did acid. The LSD was in a form called "blotter acid." It looked like a little piece of paper; you just stuck it on your tongue.

"I had a couple of friends I did it with, or I would just do it anyway—alone," Kelly says. "You'd laugh a lot, and didn't really know what was going on. You were just out of it, like a zombie. You'd act crazy."

The eighth and ninth grades were Kelly's worst.
"I've seen some weird stuff," Kelly recalls. "I know a lot of people who have hallucinated. It's kind Carol adds, "It's so prominent, much more than people think. We're just fortunate that Kelly didn't suffer any permanent damage from the experience."

It's easy to get stuff, according to Kelly. "You just save your lunch money." Two dollars will get most of it from a dealer at school. Or it was always "just a phone call away."

she is actively involved in helping others fight the problem of chemical abuse.

Carol adds, "A lot of times kids will share their drugs, too, in order to have someone to get high with:"

Kelly says she's not proud of that part of her life.
"I stole, broke into houses to get money for stuff."

Then came the cocaine summer, the turning point for Kelly. It was just after she finished the ninth grade.

"I tried it and I really liked it," Kelly says. "It makes you feel like superwoman, like you can challenge anything. But the down effects are really bad. You literally crave the stuff,"

A good friend of Kelly's finally alerted Carol to the problem.

"She came to the door and told me she had discussed it with her mom, and they had decided it would be in Kelly's best interest to tell," Carol says.

The nightmare unfolded as the friend described all the drugs Kelly was into by that time.

"When she came home, I confronted her with it," Carol says. "She admitted it all.

Drug abuse: Clarkston teen shares her story

"I don't know why I admitted it," Kelly says, except that I was hurting inside. Maybe I really wanted help.

'I'd tried to get sober before, and it would last a couple of months; maybe," she continues.

Parents are too trusting," Carol says. "They believe their kids when they say they're going one place, and instead, go another.

You can't control what a kid does outside the home. I know that now," she adds. "They just have to learn to be responsible for what they do. Since Kelly's experience, we're totally against all of it (drugs and

Sometimes when Jeff and I go out to dinner, we may have a drink, but it's rare, and it's never around Kelly," Carol says. "We have to have a totally safe home. There is no alcohol. Nothing.".

After the confrontation, Kelly was in and out of several therapy groups, but nothing seemed to help.

About that time, an ex-New York cop named David Toma came to Clarkston, sponsored by the Clarkston Area Chemical People, to talk to kids.

"He really made kids see what drugs can do to your life," Kelly says. "It got everyone thinking. A lot of my friends said, 'Yeah, this isn't cool. We shouldn't do this to ourselves. I tried for a while, but

Kelly says it wasn't that all the therapy she went. to didn't work, but rather, that she wasn't ready to

"I had so many drugs in my body that it finally took an inpatient program to help me;" she says. "By the time I went to the hospital, my nose was all raw and bleeding from snorting cocaine.

'I think I was ready when I got in treatment and could see the things I had done. My future didn't look very happy," Kelly says. "Even when I was partying; I was scared to think of what I'd do next. I knew I'd get into even worse things.

Kelly first went to the detox, ward at Pontiac

Osteopathic Hospital while she waited for an open bed at Henry Ford Hospital Maplegrove, a treatment center for chemical dependency. It was September of her sophomore year.

"I was in there with lots of older people and heroin addicts," says Kelly. "I was scared; I wanted to go home.

For the first couple of days, Kelly says she felt more drugged than ever. They had to give her progressively less drugs; they couldn't just let her come down "cold," or she might have died.

It was the worst week of our lives," recalls Carol, "When we left the hospital, we went directly to Maplegrove. I wouldn't even let her come home first.'

Kelly spent 12 days at Maplegrove, and then went two days a week for 12 weeks for aftercare. That was a year and four months ago. She has not touched a thing since

I don't think I'll ever let myself get into that situation again." Kelly says. "It's hard recovering. I have to face the fact that I have a disease, like cancer. I'm not cured. It never goes away. You control it by not doing it—at all.

Friends called me afterwards and wanted me to party, but the temptation is not strong enough to get me to do it," she continues. She had to sever all ties with many friends:

It's hard, not going to parties and big concerts," Kelly says: "It's especially hard; being a kid. I don't totally isolate myself, but I just don't do Kelly returned to school, caught up in her classes and picked up her life on a more positive footing.

At the end of her sophomore year she became involved in anti-drug campaigns, joined Chemical People to help fight the problem and represented her school's S.E.A.R.C.H. program (Support, Education, Awareness, Resources for Chemical-Free Health) at meetings.

This year she started up her own group to help spread the word that you can have fun without chemicals, It's called F.A.C.T. (Fighting Alcohol and Chemicals Together).

Kelly attended a four-week chemical dependency workshop in the area last fall, representing Clarkston High School, and is actively involved in the aftergroup that is meeting to deal with the problem of chemical abuse.

She has also stood in front of groups, represended ting Maplegrove, and candidly told her own story to hundreds of people, which she admits is a hard thing

"We're very proud of her," Carol says, beaming. Kelly has big plans for her future—plans that are motivated by her own experiences.

"I want to major in psychology in college," she says: "I've really learned a lot about myself, others, and the whole concept of disease.

"I'd like to go into that field. I'd like to help. I want people to see," she says with quiet determination and wisdom beyond her years. "It's one thing I know Pursue infant foot problems, warns podiatrist!

By Chris Gerbasi

Parents with infant children should not allow their children's foot problems to go untreated for very long, according to Dr. Harvey Rose.

The Independence Township podiatrist warns that some pediatricians do not always follow through on referring patients with foot problems to other doctors

"I've seen a number of cases, in a very short period of time, of infants with foot abnormalities that weren't picked up by pediatricians, outside of the Clarkston area," said Rose.

Metartus addutus, or toes pointing inward, and club foot are the most common problems for infants. Metartus addutus has a 3.6 percent incidence at birth. Rose said the cause of these problems is debatable, but club foot is more likely to be hereditary.

From birth up until six months, metartus addutus is very easy to correct, said Rose. The bone cartilage is still soft enough that it can be manipulated into the desired position.

After six months, the bones mature and harden and the corrective process becomes more difficult and prolonged.

"The bones are more resistant and the prognosis is not as good," Rose said. "It's much easier to move soft bone. The cartilage is more elastic when they're young."

Rose is not sure of the reasons some pediatricians are reluctant to refer patients.

"They tell the parents that the kid will outgrow it and then he doesn't and then it's too late," he said.

Rose works with residents at area hospitals to help them learn to diagnose and treat foot abnormalities. He said the basic treatment of common cases has changed little in the last 25 years, except for plastic casts which are more durable than plaster.

Serial casting can be used to correct curving toes. The casts on the toes are changed each week until the bone has moved.

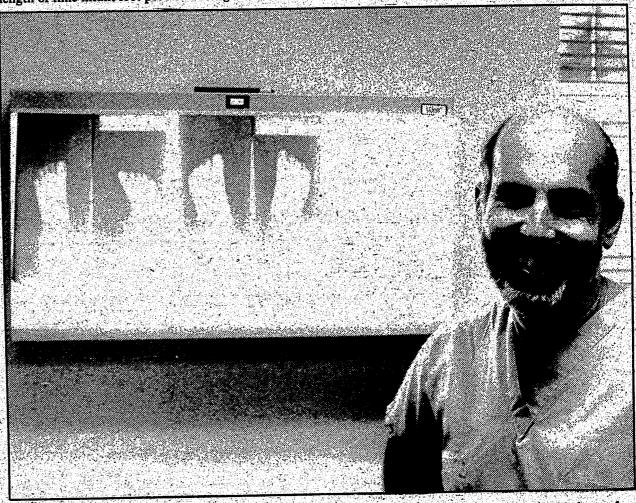

Club foot is usually picked up by pediatricians immediately. Milder cases respond well to manipulation or special shoes.

Rose said 18 months is the absolute maximum length of time infant foot problems can go unchecked and still be corrected.

"If the parent feels something is wrong with their child's foot and the pediatrician puts them off, get another opinion," Rose said.

Dr. Harvey Rose stands in front of "before and after" X-rays of a patient who needed treatment for metartus addutus. Dr. Rose said children's foot problems must be diagnosed in infancy for effective treatment.

Don't throw caution aside with blown snow

Snow blowers can cause serious injuries ranging from cuts and tendon damage to finger amputation if the blower is not used properly.

"We see as many as 50 people each winter with serious injuries from snow blowers," said Bradford Walters, M.D., of the emergency department at Crittenton Hospital, Rochester.

Although there are different types of snow blowers on the market, all have one thing in common; the snow exhaust shoot gets clogged with wet heavy snow typical of Michigan winters.

The injuries happen when users try to clear the exhaust shoot by hand. As the snow is cleared from the blades, pressure from the blades is released and the blades come down on the operator's hands.

"Even with the engine shut off, it does not eliminate the possibility of serious injury," Walters said. "Once the pressure is released from the blades, the pressure is still strong enough to trap the hand and induce injury."

The most frequent type of injuries Walters sees are cuts and crush injuries.

"Typically, these injuries are on the tips of the fingers involving the nail," the nail bed and bone," Walters said. "A complication that can develop from a laceration and fracture of the finger tip bone is bacteria getting into the bone and causing a serious infection."

Walters added tendon damage and multiple finger amputations require surgical repair and may result in permanent impairment of the hand.

If amputation occurs, wrap the severed finger in a clean dry towel, place it on a bed of ice and go to a hospital emergency room immediately. The part should never be placed in water, salt water or directly on ice.

Using common sense and following directions are the best ways to prevent injuries when operating a snow blower or any heavy machinery.

If your snow blower clogs, turn off the engine and use a long stick instead of your hand to remove the snow.

If all else fails, the old-fashioned shovel method is a slow but effective way to clear the snow.

Pointers For Parents

Drug Abuse: Protecting Your Children

A group fighting drug abuse says all citizens must become involved in the war against drugs. Here are three pointers on how parents can join a nationwide effort to protect their children from becoming involved or affected by the devastating effects of drug abuse.

Be informed! Take advantage of free information from organizations such as PRIDE, the National Parent's Resource Institute on Drug Education, This organization provides drug education through its computerized information center. If necessary it can also refer people with drug problems to an appropriate treatment facility. The center can be accessed by touch tone telephone by dialing 1-800-241-7946.

Join a citizens' volunteer group. PRIDE serves as a resource to guide parents and young people in establishing drug abuse prevention programs in their own neighborhoods and communities. Parents join to provide positive guidance and support for their children and their children's friends.

Many organizations help parents get involved in the fight against drug abuse.

• Support fund-raising drives. The International Fabricare Institute, the association of professional drycleaners and launderers, has launched a nationwide campaign to educate the public on drug abuse and raise funds for PRIDE There'll be collection boxes and posters outlining the hazards of drug abuse at drycleaning establishments. Parents and concerned citizens are encouraged to ask other businesses to support efforts in the fight against drug abuse.

 Be informed, join, and support. Parents so armed will be better able to help their children make intelligent, informed decisions when confronted with drugs.

Cold alert: There are ways to avoid frostbite

When you're out shoveling snow or trying out your new Christmas skis or just taking a walk in the crisp air, beware of one of winter's most unwelcome visitors—frostbite.

Frostbite occurs most often when the temperature drops below 8 degrees. Those individuals most susceptible are children, winter sports enthusiasts, the elderly, diabetics and people with poor circulation.

"If you are going to be out during those chilling days, don't stay out for more than two hours at a time," says Thomas J. Petinga Jr., D.O., medical director of the MercyCare Immediate Care Centers and Emergency Medicine at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac.

"If you don't have to go outside, stay in and prepare for a 'cuddle alert,' " he says.

According to Petinga, frostbite is apparent

To treat frostbite, gently warm the affected portion(s) of the body with lukewarm water, blankets or warm compresses. Never use hot water or ointments.

Upon thawing, the frostbitten area may become red and swollen and possibly blister. If this happens, seek immediate medical attention.

This winter, be sure to wear warm clothes before you go outside. Proper clothing provides insulation

Statistics illustrate dangers for pipe smokers

Questions may be directed to The Cancer Information Service: The Cleveland Clinic Foundation, 9500 Euclid Ave., Cleveland, OH 44106. All questions will be answered by mail.

I am a healthy 37-year-old woman and my doctor has recommended that I have a mammogram. Isn't this a little overkill? I thought only older women needed to have regular mammograms.

No, it is not "overkill" at all. While annual mammograms are not recommended for most women until they turn 50 years of age, the American Cancer Society and the American College of Radiology recommend Ja baseline mammogram between the ages of 35 and

This baseline mammogram will allow your doctors to have something to compare future exams with, which can be helpful in identifying changes early.

In addition to the baseline mammogram, the guidelines suggest that women aged 40 to 49 have a mammogram every one or two yers and women over the age of 50 have mammograms every year.

If you would like more information about the guidelines for early detection of breast cancer, write to the Cancer Information Services and indicate your return address and interest in receiving breast cancer detection guidelines.

I gave up cigarettes several years ago and began to smoke a pipe instead. I don't inhale the pipe and smoke about three bowls a day. I've read a number of articles that pipe smoking leads to an increased risk of developing certain types of cancer. What can you tell me about this?

Pipe smoking has been linked to an increased death rate from cancer.

The 1982 Surgeon: General's report on "The Health Consequences of Smoking from Cancer" outlines that pipe smokers were approximately three times as likely to die of oral cancer, twice as likely to Cancer nswers die of pharyngeal cancer and three times as likely to die of esophegeal cancer as non-smokers.

Also, pipe smokers were approximately 1.3 times as likely to die from all types of cancer.

These estimates are derived from review of a number of large studies which have compared cancer. rates of various types of smokers with that of non-

In comparison, male cigarette smokers have approximately five to 10 times the death rates of oral cancer, five to 10 times the rates of laryngeal cancer and 10 to 15 times the rates of lung cancer as do non-

Cigarette smokers are twice as likely to die from all forms of cancer as non-smokers. As you can see, pipe smoking does not seem to be as dangerous as cigarette smoking, but it is itself associated with severe health consequences.

My mother, who is in her sixtles, has bone cancer. This is the second time she has had cancer in the last year. She was treated successfully with surgery for breast cancer about a year ago. Now the doctors say she should have chemotherapy instead of surgery. Why can't they treat the bone cancer with surgery

While it is possible that your mother has developed a second cancer, this is a very rare situation. It is more likely that her present problem results from the spread or "metastasis" of the original breast

This can occur even if the initial surgery seemed to have removed all of the tumor in the breast.

It is very common for breast cancers to spread through the blood system to the bones. This is one of the reasons bone scans are performed on women who have bone pain and who have previously had surgery for breast cancer.

Many patients initially believe that metastatic cancer found in one of their bones is a new cancer and describe it to their families that way.

When a cancer is found to have spread to another part of the body, it is said to be a "systematic" disease. This means that it has moved throughout the body's systems and located in a new area.

Chemotherapy is referred to as "systemic" treatment because it also travels throughout the body to destroy cancer cells.

Chemotherapy usually is the treatment at choice for metastatic cancer because it has the best chance to destroy cancer cells in a number of parts in the body. Other systemic treatments include hormonal therapy and biological response modifiers.

Promoting healthier lifestyles for older people

் Older people can do many things to maintain or improve their health.

More than 49 million people in this country are 55 or older. In the next four decades, that number is expected to more than double.

While most older Americans consider themselves to be in good health, nearly 80 percent have at least one chronic health condition, such as heart disease, diabetes or arthritis.

The good news for older adults is that older people can prevent or better manage chronic health conditions by adopting healthier lifestyles.

To benefit, all you have to do is follow some simple, healthy habits, like eating right, exercising regularly, quitting smoking, using medicines safely and preventing injuries.

Let's review some of the key points of these important behaviors.

Eating Right. Eating nutritious, well-balanced meals can lower your risk of cancer, heart disease and other chronic conditions. It can help you reach and maintain your proper weight and help you look and feel better.

Eat a variety of healthy foods—fresh fruits and vegetables, low-fat dairy products, whole-grain breads and cereals and lean meats.

Remember, too, that calcium is important for strong bones and fiber is needed for healthy digestive tracks

Exercise Regularly: No matter what age you are or what shape you're in, there's an exercise that's right for you. Regular exercise can improve your mental health and physical appearance.

It may also help you sleep better and make it easier for you to lose weight. Vigorous, regular exercise appears to have a role in increasing and maintaining overall cardiovascular health.

There is also some evidence that it helps reduce high blood pressure, stress and strokes.

A recent study, however, found that many older people believe there is no need for them to exercise and that exercise can even prove harmful;

The fact is that exercise, if done properly, benefits older people just as it does other age groups.

Quit Smoking. It's never too late to quit. New research shows that no matter what your age, or no matter how long you've been smoking, if you stop now, you'll reduce your risk of cancer, chronic bronchitis, emphysema and even heart attacks:

The evidence is overwhelming. A recent study showed that the effects of smoking are at least partly reversible within one to five years of quitting—even among people who have smoked for decades.

Another revealed a decline in the death rate for men over the age of 50 who stopped smoking:

Quitting smoking is not easy and many people may need a program to help them quit, but more than 35 million Americans have done it. And there are more good reasons every day to quit.

Use Medicines Safely. Medicines can ease pain and discomfort and improve the way you feel. They can help speed recovery when you're ill.

But medicines work only when used as directed and when coordinated properly with what you eat and drink and the other drugs you take: Because older people generally take more medicines than other age groups, they may have greater problems complying with their medicine schedules.

Make sure you; your doctor and your pharmacist know as much as possible about all the different medications—prescription—and—non-prescription—that you take.

Prevent Injuries. As people get older, they become more vulnerable to injuries. Many injuries can be prevented by practicing proper safety habits and maintaining good physical health.

The Centers for Disease Control estimate that 90 percent of all injuries are preventable. The most common cause of injury among older adults are falls, auto-related accidents and burns.

Safety-proof your home by providing adequate lighting and removing obstacles that might cause a fall. Install devices like handrails; grab bars and non-skid rugs. Be careful when cooking to avoid burns. Drive during the time of the day when you feel most confident, with your safety belt fastened.

Healthy older people follow these simple words of advice. Why? For a better life.

Do you want to lose weight in 1987?

By Dr. James Harrison

Losing weight is probably the number one resolution for most people. Maybe some of my tips will help you reach your goal:

•Establish a reasonable goal—remember, no one can lose 20 pounds in one week.

•Keep track of every morsel that you eat. Increased awareness of your food consumption will tell you how food is used in stressful or other emotional times and will help you avoid continuing this behavior.

•Make eating a pleasure and make every bite count. Eating should be an event that satisfies and the more aesthetic pleasure there is when dining, the fewer calories you'll need to feel satisfied.

•Eat sitting down—don't stand in front of the refrigerator or over the sink and munch.

•Change your eating ritual. For example, sit in a different chair at the table or try eating with your nondominant hand.

 Try designating certain areas of your home as non-eating zones. Decrease the number of areas where eating is allowed

Don't grocery si. if you're hungry or ask a friend to do your grocery :hopping for you.

•Keep all forbidden, calorie laden goodies out of sight-or better yet, remove all of them from the house.

Study how to get the most nutrition from the

•When you have a craving for something crunchy, eat raw vegetables or fruits or air-popped popcorn, but remember—no butter or salt.

To help you achieve your goal weight, try exercise along with your new eating habits. Not only will exercise help you shed pounds, but medical research continues to offer evidence that some of the normal physiological effects of aging can be slowed by regular Exercise will also improve the heart's efficiency, increase lung capacity and maintain muscle tone and flexibility.

Remember to start slowly and build stamina gradually. If you hurt, stop. The old adage "no pain, no gain" isn't true. Include five minutes of stretching and warm-ups before exercising and a five-minute cool down after is a must.

Make exercising fun. Work out with a friend and exercise to music. Try varying your exercise routine every few days, but be consistent and exercise at the same time every day.

Dr. James Harrison is deputy director for programs for the Michigan Department of Public Health.

In 1945, Americans ate an average of 402 eggs a year; by 1985 that was down to 255 eggs.

Some used to say that carrying elderberries would ward off the effects of poison ivy.

Keep off lost weight

A support group for persons who have lost weight and want to keep it off is being sponsored by St. Joseph Mercy Hospital.

The program is scheduled on six consecutive Wednesdays beginning Feb. 4 at 7 p.m. in the hospital's Xavier Pavilion.

Advance registration is required. The cost is $30 a person. For more information or to register, call the hospital's Department of Outreach at 858-3155.

The cold fact: Some sniffles should not be ignored

You know the signs. Sniffles, sneezing, stuffednose, watery eyes and a general achy feeling. You've got a cold.

According to folklore, "If you treat a cold, it takes seven days to go away. If you ignore it, it takes á week. But doctors say it's important to take a cold seriously and treat symptoms to avoid needless suffering and prevent complications, such as secondary bacterial infections from developing. Although most colds disappear after about a week to 10 days with no aftereffects, colds can occasionally develop into more serious illnesses including sinusitis, flu, bronchitis and pneumonia.
