Robin report

The robins have come back to Myrtle Roadway's.

"They're real fat ones, just like they've been well-kept," said the Deer Lake Road resident. "I imagine they've come back from Florida and, if so, they must know we're going to have spring soon."

Mrs. Boadway's yard sounds like a friendly place. The birds are fed throughout the winter—and she especially enjoys watching the batches of goldfinches that gather.

"The birds in winter and the flowers in the summer, that's what keeps us going, I guess," she said.

She spotted her first robin March 9 and now there are several chirping their sweet message of plenty of sunshine-to-be.

Thousands protest certification law

By Julie Campe

Dr. Paul Vanaman is willing to go to jail to support his conviction that state certification should not be required for teachers in non-public schools in Michigan.

Principal of Springfield Christian Academy and pastor of Dixie Baptist Church, Vanaman also serves as president of the Michigan Association of Christian Schools.

Vanaman was one of the organizers of a march last week in Lansing, when about 8,000 people protested the state law requiring teacher certification in non-public schools.

Not all private schools are affected by the law, according to area principals.

The law has been in effect since 1921, said Dr. James Phelps, associate superintendent of the Michigan Department of Education.

The department of education has been enforcing the law all along but has been stalled recently, waiting for the outcome of a lawsuit in U.S. Supreme Court, he said, adding the Michigan Supreme Court has ruled the law is constitutional.

"The schools have a right to challenge, and it's their right to talk to the state Legislature, but they do not reflect the vast majority in the private schools," said Phelps, adding that 200,000 students in 900 non-public schools have been following the law with no

Rumor untrue

Pontiac State Bank continues to operate from a temporary office in Clarkston because damages from a collapsed ceiling last month haven't been assessed or fixed yet, said Chris Downing, manager and assistant vice president.

Despite rumors that the branch on Main Street is closing, once repairs are made the bank will move back inside, she said. Meanwhile, they will continue operating from the Clarkston Mills Mall office behind the Main Street office.

"Slowly but surely, customers are starting to find us," said Downing. "We're very sorry for the inconvenience."

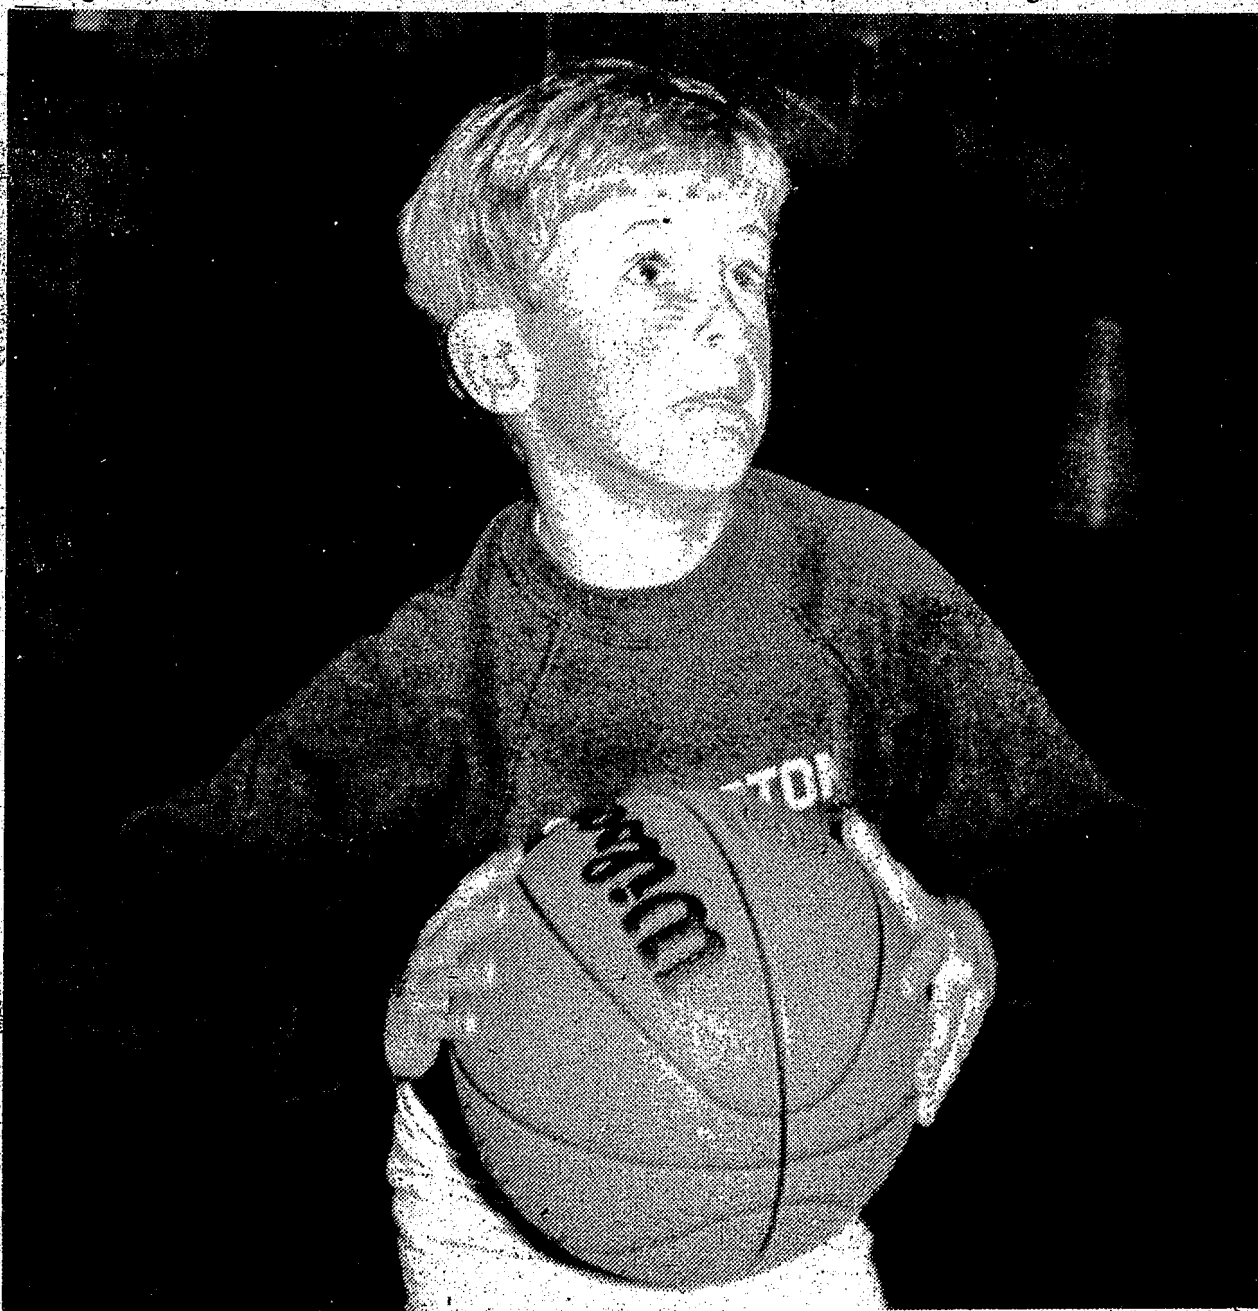

Repair work on the 70-year-old building has not begun because bank officials are waiting for an architect's report, she said.

The Bank Now machine on Main Street still works, she said, and customers who want to use their safe deposit boxes should call for an appointment.

Springfield lowers berm for industrial park

By Pat Young

A berm and a ditch add up to one big bone of contention for Al Valentine of Springfield Township, proprietor of Valentine Industrial Park on Andersonville Road.

The height of the earth berm at the industrial park was a topic of discussion at the March 11 township board meeting.

The board voted 6-1, with Trustee William Whitley casting the only "no" vote, to allow the berm to remain at its present height, but not before Valentine had a chance to make a few colorful comments on the issue.

"I don't want anyone denied use of the property and denied occupancy of their buildings on my lots because of this stupid berm, which I think is illegal anyway," he said. "You have rendered some of my land useless. You can't condemn the land without paying a man for it."

"Because of this berm, I've had to get a second job with an undertaker," he said, amid chuckles from the audience of approximately 22 people.

"I only had two choices, a berm or a concrete wall," he continued. "Then the DNR and the EPA and whoever came along because of the eagle, the snail darter, the frogs or what-have-you and made me build this stupid ditch."

"I've had enough of all this nonsense," he said. "Just let me finish this job and let my clients move into their buildings. The only one that's ever not going to be pleased over this is me."

Supervisor Collin Walls said that in the late 1970s, the board of appeals waived construction of a concrete wall and required a berm of 1,032 feet above sea level.

The berm at the rear of the property is approximately one-quarter mile long, and a smaller berm at the front of the property by Andersonville Road is about 100 feet long.

Because of the wetlands and adjacent Green Lake, the Army Corps of Engineers required Valentine to dig a shallow ditch beyond the long berm.

The long berm, which is 2 to 3 feet lower than required, provides an 11-foot-high barrier on the residential side and a 6-foot-high barrier on the industrially zoned side.

The board approved the present height because the berm keeps settling, and attempts to raise it higher have been futile. The motion approved by the board also includes plans by Valentine to plant fast-growing pine trees on the berm.

The board unanimously voted to allow the second, smaller berm to remain at its present level, with landscaping improvements.

They also voted unanimously to waive the necessity of a fence around a detention basin on the property.

"It would serve no useful purpose. It is not an area where children would be and it would be unsightly," Walls said.

In its final action on the Valentine Industrial Park, the board voted 5-2 not to delay issuing an occupancy permit for Schwan's Sales because of landscaping or other work required for the park as a whole. Schwan's is a new business to be located within the industrial park.

Whitley and Walls cast the only "no" votes in the final action.

After the meeting, Walls said that the "remaining work is such a relatively minor amount (approximately $2,000), that I didn't feel waiving the requirement was necessary. I felt it should be completed."

Corrections

Sheffield Estates on Opdyke Road, a mobile home community just south of Auburn Road, is owned by Frenkle Associates of Troy, not the company named in The Clarkston News Progress Edition.

An incorrect last name for the owners of Satellite Tracking Systems Inc. of Brandon Township was printed in information under a photograph in the Progress Edition of The Clarkston News.

The owners are Don and Mary Cargo.

The address of the Village Place Restaurant was incorrect in the Progress Edition story in last week's Clarkston News.

The correct address is 5723 Dixie Highway in the Waterfall Plaza, Waterford Township.

Board requests a special education report

By Kathy Greenfield

The Clarkston board of education responded to charges that special education classes are not meeting the needs of some students by requesting a report from special services director Robert Brumback.

The board's action on March 9 was prompted by the comments of parent Robert Newlin. Brumback is to make his report at the next regular board meeting, on April 13.

Newlin began his comments by thanking the board for the opportunity to express his concerns.

He asked for specific attention to two areas—suspensions as they apply to special education students at Clarkston High School and the Individual Educational Planning Committee (IEPC) meetings required for every special education student.

Students who are identified as emotionally impaired (EI) and learning disabled (LD) should not receive suspensions from school for tardiness, he said.

Instead, Newlin suggested developing an alternative method for handling tardiness. EI and LD students may have problems judging time, he said, and "they don't want to be there (in school) in the first place and they may, unknowingly, try to get suspended."

The result can be students who want to give up and quit school, he said, which establishes a pattern of failure.

The IEPC meetings, according to Newlin, are ineffective because tests are inadequate or nonexistent in the evaluation process and because more efforts should be made to establish programs where such students can learn.

Parents can feel intimidated at the IEPC meetings, they may not understand their rights under state laws and may not understand the educational jargon used, Newlin said after the meeting.

At the meeting, he also objected to the method of mainstreaming which puts EI and LD students in regular classrooms most of the school day.

"These kids are special and they have trouble just facing life," he told the board. "They don't need to have roadblocks placed in front of them."

"They're crying out for help. I hope you listen. I hope you will do something about it," he said.

Board President Janet Thomas responded by saying, "We will look into this matter and I'm sure it will appear as an agenda item on the next scheduled board meeting."

After the meeting, she said the board has a moral and educational responsibility to respond to the concerns expressed by Newlin.

"The board was concerned because they're serious allegations," she said. "If it is indicated there are areas that need to be improved or services that can be improved, it can take place."

After the meeting, Newlin said he was very pleased with the board's response.

"They were attentive. They seemed interested. They were taking notes," he said.

"We are simply trying to make the board aware. We think there is a problem and we need some help," he said, adding that he hopes the report will lead to "developing a program that will give some of these kids an opportunity to survive."

Springfield board outlines goals

The outcome of a "brainstorming session" to outline short- and long-term goals for Springfield Township was highlighted by the township board at their regular board meeting March 11.

The board unanimously voted to begin working on the list of goals prepared at a special meeting March 7.

The purpose of the special meeting, which Supervisor Collin Walls described as "excellent and well worth the time," was to list ideas rather than deliberate on the pros and cons of each idea.

The goals list included the following possible courses of action:

1. Review township fees and charges.
2. Prepare a five-year financial plan.
3. Work with engineers to revise, review and update the Davisburg sewage treatment plan and the road-need study.
4. Hire an architect or similar person to review township hall and prepare plans and estimates for temporary office expansion.
5. Request the attorney to prepare an analysis of special assessment provisions, which allows the township to assess those residents who would benefit from an improvement, such as blacktopping a road.

6. Seek "bond council" for analysis of bonding provisions, authority and procedures, in the event the township wanted to generate funds for a large project by selling bonds.

7. Hire a consultant for financial projections, review of procedures and policies, and salary and benefit program.

8. Ask the attorney to review and update the dangerous buildings ordinance, the existing structures codes and zoning ordinance enforcement problems.

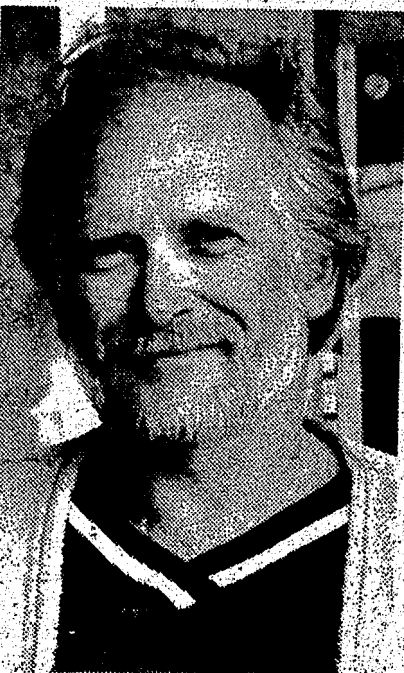

9. Develop a list of problems to be addressed in an active enforcement program.

10. Begin discussion with the current enforcement officer to set up an expanded program and time allotment for ordinance enforcement.

11. Review board procedures and policies for changes that will make meetings more productive and less time consuming on routine administrative matters.

Planning commission denies zoning request

By Julie Campe

Developers Leonard Grossman and Sheldon Fuller will have to think of something else to do with their almost 75 acres on M-15 at Oakhill Road, near the Independence-Brandon township border.

The Independence Township planning commission voted unanimously to recommend denial of Grossman and Fuller's request to rezone the property from rural residential to local commercial and multifamily residential.

The two had planned a strip shopping center for the southeast corner of M-15 and Oakhill Road and an apartment complex just south of that on M-15.

They requested the zoning change because a market survey of the area showed a need for temporary moderately priced housing in the northern part of the township, said Grossman at the March 12 meeting.

The property has been listed for sale for four years, and they have received no offers, said Fuller. The three-acre minimum lot size required in rural residential areas is less affordable, and not many want to live directly on the busy M-15 state highway, he said, adding multifamily residential and commercial zoning would better use the property.

About five residents of Independence Township and Brandon Township voiced similar objections to the zoning change.

"I'm strictly opposed to such a concentrated area where you're going to put a lot of cars," said David Brock of Reese Road, Brandon Township. "Most of the people live out here for one reason—it's country."

Township planner Richard Carlisle recommended denial of the rezoning. The change would not conform to the master zoning plan, township sewer and water are not available, and fire and police services would be too far away for such an intensive development, he said.

All of the planning commission members voiced objections to the rezoning before voting to recommend denial of the request. The township board has final say on rezonings.

Jo Fussman said the need for cluster housing will be met in the southern part of the township, and the northern part should remain rural residential.

"The strip plan appalls me," she said, adding it didn't match the master plan.

3-part series addresses parenting of junior high school-age children

A parent education series billed as an "important, in-depth look at the junior high adolescent" is coming to Clarkston Junior High School.

The three-week series is to meet on Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m. beginning March 24, in the CJHS cafeteria. There is no fee for the programs, which are sponsored by the school.

Many questions from parents on how to deal with 12- to 15-year-olds led to planning the series, said Vince Licata, CJHS assistant principal.

The problems of the age group are "unique for the most part," he said. "It's a tumultuous time period—a lot of growth and changes going on."

Licata added that he's excited about the series. "Hopefully, we'll get a good turnout," he said.

On Tuesday, March 24, Don Kevern is to present "The Capable Young Person." Kevern, the principal of East Hills Middle School in Bloomfield Hills, will discuss the parent's role in discipline, self-esteem and the young person, and how to raise the adolescent to be a responsible young adult.

On Tuesday, March 31, Dr. Eric Alsterberg is to present "Normal Adolescence." Alsterberg is a clinical psychologist with the Consortium for Human Brent Bair cited traffic concerns.

"I have a problem with a potentially high traffic generator at an already busy intersection," he said, adding the planning commission plans to review the master plan, and they should address the proper land uses along M-15 at that time.

After the meeting, Grossman said he did not know what his next step would be.

Development. His topic includes awareness of the social and emotional development of the adolescent and learning to recognize which behaviors are cause for parental concern.

On Tuesday, April 7, Dr. James O'Neill is to present "Physical Changes of the Adolescent." O'Neill, a pediatrician, is to discuss adolescent growth and development and how it affects behavior and signs to look for when substance abuse is suspected.

There will be ample time for questions and answers following each presentation, Licata said.

Springfield opening

An assessor aide position, vacated in January, is open in Springfield Township. The township board voted March 11 to advertise the position, which pays $10,000 to $12,000 a year.

Clerical and math skills, as well as ability to deal with the public, are requirements.

An applicant does not have to be certified by the state, according to township Supervisor Collin Walls, but the applicant chosen to fill the position would be encouraged to become certified.

Pine Knob jobs

Job applications for the Pine Knob Music Theatre are now available at The Clarkston News. The applications are for security, maintenance, usher and parking attendant positions.

They may be picked up, one to a person, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays at the News office, 5 S. Main, Clarkston.

The completed forms are to be mailed to the address printed on the applications.

Joint meeting called

A joint meeting of the Springfield Township Board, Planning Commission and Zoning Board of Appeals is set for 7:30 p.m. March 31 in the township hall.

"One specific purpose of the meeting is to discuss items of mutual concern to members of the boards, such as zoning ordinances," said township Supervisor Collin Walls.

The joint meeting, which was requested by the planning commission, is "also something we schedule from time to time just to get together and share ideas," he said.

HAVEN seeks volunteers

HAVEN, Oakland County's only domestic violence shelter, is looking for volunteers to train in various program areas.

The shelter, located in Pontiac, deals with sexual assault, child sexual assault and domestic violence. The agency provides such services as counseling, advocacy, a 24-hour crisis line, school presentations and temporary shelter.

For more information, call Kate Burdick at 334-1284. HAVEN is a United Way/United Foundation agency.

Dust buster OK

Dust control is on the minds of the Springfield Township Board.

Last week, the board agreed to cover two-thirds of the costs of chloriding dirt roads in the township.

Springfield Township contributes two-thirds, or 20 cents per foot, and residents pay one-third, or 10 cents per foot, to the Oakland County Road Commission for the chloride treatments.

"If residents who collected for chloride last year have not received applications by now, they should contact the Oakland County Road Commission," said township Supervisor Collin Walls.

Residents may contact the Citizens Service Department at 858-4804 for applications.

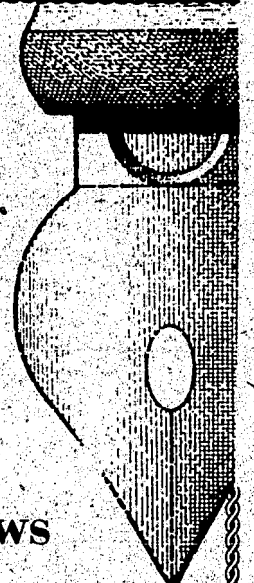

Applications for chloride must be submitted to the road commission on or before April 24. The deadline is the same throughout Oakland County.

Ladies first

Kathy Greenfield

Numerous occasions have brought back a comment written on an English paper I wrote when I was 17—and every time I think about it, I'm surprised at the longevity of the memory.

There are two factors at work, here.

One has to do with the women's liberation movement that surged to the forefront during the '60s, the decade in which I spent most of my teen years.

The other involves criticism, which is always more memorable when it springs from an inaccurate assumption.

I have no memory of what the English paper was about. It was an assignment in "Senior English," a grueling class filled with numerous reading and writing assignments.

We had a student teacher, from Oakland University, who worked with our high school class that year and participated in grading our papers. He penned the comment in the margin.

I had written the name of a married couple, and I had put the woman's name first. His comment went something like this: "Women's liberation does not apply here. Proper English usage requires putting the man's name first."

At age 17, women's liberation was the last thing on my mind. I was a member of a very traditional family. My father worked. My mother was a housewife. I spent a chunk of most Saturdays washing floors and dishes—and I loved to cook.

In fact, I can remember precisely my thought before I decided to write the woman's name before the man's: "Ladies first." That's about as far away as you can get from a philosophy that condones equal treatment of the sexes.

I wondered why the student teacher felt the need to include a jab about women's liberation in his comment . . . and filed in my mind the proper English usage information he had shared under "rules to remember."

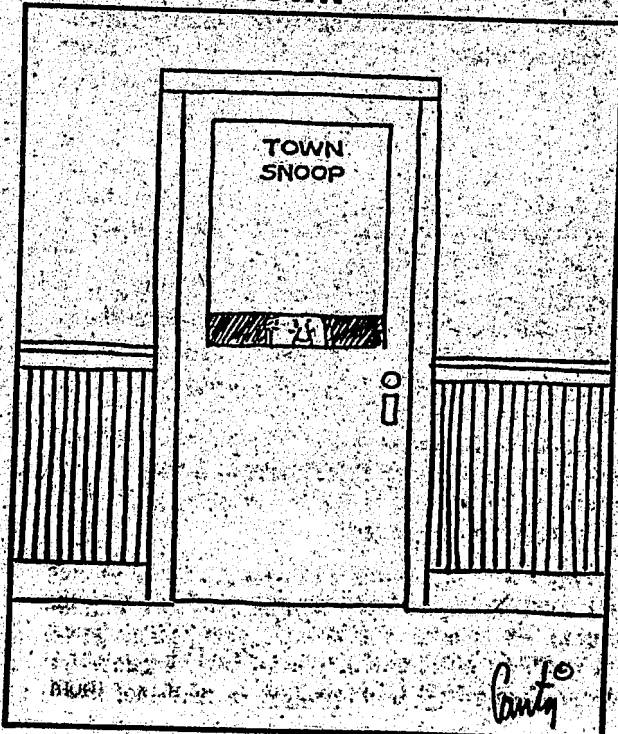

Some interesting things have happened during the intervening years.

People have continued to call forth the phrase "liberated woman" to give their criticisms some punch. That will probably never change within my lifetime.

But the man's-name-first rule emblazoned in my mind is being ignored by some.

Did you know that when listing parents' names, almost all of the home-town news releases from the United States Army list the woman's name first?

Hazel and I were in Washington recently for a conference of newspapers and DC-types. The experience is covered elsewhere in this issue, and here are some additions.

-----O-----

We listened to 2 senators, a congressman, and a few White House aides while in Washington March 4-7. From their remarks we have concluded the coming election pitch will be on education and trade.

Sen George Mitchell, D-Maine, said students must go to school longer hours and the curriculum must be improved, and we must elect officials who believe more in aid to education and in trade reciprocity.

Senator Paul Simon, D-Illinois, said it would be difficult to overstress the need for education. "American students," he said, "go to school 180 days. Japanese students go 240 days."

"There are 10,000 Japanese salesmen in New York and all speak American. There are 900 American salesmen in Japan and few speak Japanese." He also pointed out the need for a balance of trade.

Later in the day, the president's press secretary spoke of the need to teach more science and math.

You can bet the 2 parties will be trying to out-shout each other on education and trade until Nov. 1988, and then do nothing from 1989 to 1992.

We also heard from presidential candidate, Jack Kemp, GOP congressman from New York. He's all red, white and blue. "It's great to be alive now," he shouted. "We're not going to fall in a handbasket."

"We need a strong USA, and we can have it with a good policy."

Kemp was loud, and fast, and full of football-related phrases. He left the over-200 weary newspaper people cold and terribly unimpressed.

Potpourri on DC

We went to the Kennedy Center to see "Mikado" in the Opera House. Surprised at the poor acoustics. When more than one person sang, we couldn't understand them.

We learned later earphones are available.

The Opera House has soft, solid red wall coverings with gold trim. A star-burst arrangement is highlighted in the recessed ceiling. It is beautiful, but.

Went to the Irish pub "Dubliner" and heard a self-impressed balladier insist all drinkers be quiet to hear his every word. He must know a drinking Irishman, or any other kind, is only provoked when asked to be quiet.

We sat at a table of Nebraskans one meal. Yes, agriculture is bad. Yes, banks have suffered, and Savings and Loans worse, but it's not bad. There was no bad-mouthing the administration, weather or God.

They'll come through. They wouldn't change their lives-maybe conditions, but not for any other state. Same was true with people we talked to from Summerville, SC, Gig Harbor, Wash., and Delta, Utah.

The conference headquarters was in the Hyatt Regency. Rooms are $110 a night, plus $11 state tax and $1 occupancy tax. A bar in our room had pop at $1.50 a can (just down the hall it was 75 cents), beer $2.50, and liquor, $3.50. Thank goodness no one stole any.

A breakfast of hash, 2 eggs, coffee and toast is $9.02. Across the road in the Quality Inn, Hazel and I had eggs, juice, toast, coffee and fried potatoes for $10.75 total.

There are nearly 16,000 cabs in Washington, D.C. There are 2.4 million people working there today, and they are predicting a growth of one million more by 2010.

Letters to the editor

Bad apples, too

There are many good and kind people in Clarkston, but like any other town there are some bad apples. I am referring to March 9, the day of my grandfather's funeral.

As the funeral procession was pulling out of Lew Wint's, two cars sped up and passed us, nearly causing a head-on collision.

A rude lady in a van then cut into our funeral procession and stayed with us until we got to Dixie.

We were then trying to cross Dixie and into Otawa Park Cemetery. The hearse stopped in the middle of the road until the cars came over the hill so we wouldn't get hit.

Then another rude lady, preoccupied with her coffee, stopped at the last minute, just missing the hearse.

I have never seen so many disrespectful people in a two-mile trip.

Why are people in such a big hurry that they forget to have a little respect and compassion for others?

Wake up, you rude drivers in a big hurry and remember courtesy for others will never go out of style! You may need the same respect and courtesy some day.

Fitz not funny

For the past 20 years or more, I have subscribed to The Clarkston News.

I have thoroughly enjoyed Jim Fitzgerald's column, even written to tell him so, and told many people what a great writer I thought he was.

I have bought many subscriptions for people and for my children as they married and moved away so they could keep in touch with the Clarkston news.

I have never been so disappointed in anything as I was with his article about the Pope, birth control, abortion and his senseless lack of humor and perspective. I cannot even understand what ever possessed him to write such garbage.

It certainly was not funny or amusing in any way to anyone, I am sure.

He and I as Catholics can certainly laugh at many customs and practices and traditions and have an open mind, but this was just plain trash, and very unworthy of him and the newspaper it was printed in.

I very much doubt that a letter like this is going to make any difference to him, but just thought he might like to think twice before he prints anything like that again.

Likes satire

Recently, in Jim Fitzgerald's column, he expressed some rather "unusual" ideas concerning the Pope's fast-approaching visit in September.

It was brought to my attention by several people, some being close friends, that his column was "more than offensive." I, however, found it to be very entertaining; in fact, I down-right chortled through every word.

It is too bad people can't discern serious from satire. We all need to sit back from time to time and laugh at ourselves. There is humor in every facet of life—no matter what the subject. I'm sure that even Jesus himself had a good sense of humor.

I must say, to some, the satirical comments may have been shocking, but to me it was "Papal Relief!"

Shame on Fitz

I have been reading Jim Fitzgerald's articles for a number of years. Some of them I enjoy, especially when he makes remarks about his family activities.

But his recent blurb in The Clarkston News has brought up thoughts about his mentality regarding the Pope's visit.

He seems to think all families in Clarkston are subscribing to various means of birth control. He suggests they abstain from using those birth control methods for ONE DAY.

If he thinks the people in Clarkston are that ignorant and dumb enough to follow his advice, he should get those marbles in his head re-adjusted, because when he wrote that article, he must have been sitting on his brains.

As Jim Fitzgerald grows older, I see him copying the great Carson, on TV, who finds it a great joke to make snide remarks about our president, so he tries to make fun of a great and pious man who is trying to improve humanity.

If he thought his article was supposed to be funny, it was not. But he has gone the way of very, very poor taste. Shame on him.

Lesson shared

My parents have five children, of which I am the youngest by six minutes.

My twin brother Michael, my brother Keith, my sisters Jody and Vicki—all are married. I have eight very special nephews and one very special niece. Our family is very close and we all try to keep in harmony.

It wasn't very hard to accept my sisters' husbands, but I must admit it took a little longer to accept my brothers' wives.

I guess it's because as long as I talked to Vicki and Jody and their husbands were treating them good, then everything was OK.

My sisters-in-law, however, seemed hard to get close to. (It wasn't their fault.)

My brother Keith has been married five years to Alice. Alice and I worked in the same office for two of those years, but I only recently started to relax and enjoy her company and have found a very wonderful person.

She has helped Keith make a very happy and beautiful home and has been a wonderful mother to my only niece and two of my nephews. I love her now as much as a sister.

My twin brother Michael just got married in June to Linda. Even though she recently entered our family, I am not going to make the same mistake of taking my time to let her know she has made him very happy.

Because Michael is my twin and we were so close, I must say that she had the hardest task to prove herself "worthy."

I am quite sure there are many parents who just can't believe that anyone is "good enough" for their children and I'm sure there are just as many brothers and sisters that feel the same way about each other.

What I have realized is that as marriage is to "love and trust," so must the family "love and trust."

You might not see what they see in that new member yet, but take the time to relax and enjoy—really get to know all the wonderful things that your sibling noticed in that person.

If you love them, you must trust their judgment. After all, they're the ones who have the most to lose. Remember parents, whether married or single, your children will always need you.

I would just like to thank God that my brothers and sisters have been taken care of and have found someone to love them deservedly.

And I thank everyone in my family for giving my niece and nephews the opportunity to be raised in a home full of love as I was also so fortunate to experience.

Did you hear the big news? Andre Thaddies, a high school senior in Delray Beach, Fla., will attend the University of Minnesota next fall. I read about it in the Detroit Free Press and the Detroit News.

Who is Andre Thaddies? Unless you live in Delray Beach, you probably never heard of him. Why would readers of Detroit newspapers want to know where Andre Thaddies is going to college?

And it's not just Thaddies. Robert Barnes of Iselin, N.J., will attend Kent State University in Ohio. John Williams of Houston will go to the University of Wisconsin. I read about them in the Detroit newspapers, too.

In fact, both newspapers published the names and chosen colleges of hundreds of high school seniors from all over the nation. Why is that something Detroiters should read?

The young men play football. EACH OF THEM is an amateur athlete barely past puberty. Each was recruited by various universities and colleges. Each just signed a national letter of intent revealing which school was successful in obtaining his services. Extra, extra, read all about it!

Andre Thaddies, living in a little Florida town, would probably be thrilled to learn that about three million newspaper readers up north in Detroit could read that he is six feet tall, 180 pounds, and played running back and strong safety in high school.

Some people say big colleges put too much emphasis on sports, especially football and basketball. Nonsense. Thaddies and the other recruits got their names in newspapers thousands of miles from their homes because they excel in football. Other high school students excel in mathematics or literature. Their height, weight, specialty and chosen college will be listed in newspapers nationwide just as soon as they decide which recruiting offer to accept.

It is difficult for a 17-year-old to resist the blandishments of a UCLA alumnus who offers him a part-time job shoveling snow at $100 per hour if he'll sign a letter promising to study mathematics in Los Angeles. But then there is the University of Texas professor who spent so much time in the recruit's home, talking to his parents and offering him a free oil change (with oil well attached) if he would study mathematics in Austin.

Faced with this sort of pressure, it's no wonder an impressionable young mathematics student can't decide where to go to college. But when the decision is made, you will surely read about it in your local paper, no matter where you live.

ACTUALLY, I SUSPECT it's harder for a more intellectual student—a poet, say—to choose a college than it is for an athlete. This theory is illustrated in the current Sports Illustrated, in an article about Sean Higgins, a basketball player who signed a letter of intent to go to UCLA but is now trying to renege so he can attend Michigan. Higgins claimed a wealthy UCLA booster, Steven Antebi, helped lure him to UCLA with offers of easy money.

And Antebi told the Los Angeles Times: "He (Higgins) has obviously been counseled by professionals. If you met with Sean Higgins at any time, he has trouble putting three words together... And he wasn't even able to carry on a dialogue."

Antebi apparently doesn't think much of Higgins' language skills, and it's safe to guess that Antebi thinks Higgins is not very smart. Smart enough for UCLA maybe, but not as smart as, say, a poet, who probably can put three words together.

But even an average poet might have difficulty deciding between two or more colleges that make him offers he can't refuse. So naturally it takes the poet a long time to make up his mind.

That's the only reason this season's crop of high school football players received more publicity than the poet crop. The athletes made news by signing their letters of intent, but the poets are still trying to find a big university whose library is as well equipped as its locker room.

Dentist office gets quick approval

It was a quick March 14 meeting for developer Joseph Knoll.

In less than 15 minutes, his final site plan drawings for a dentist office on Lorac Drive, Independence Township, received approval from the Independence Township Planning Commission.

The township engineering report by Hubble, Roth and Clark read, "Everything is in order," and the planning commission members voiced praise for the building plans.

After about five minutes of discussion, the planning commission unanimously approved the final site plan.

Parks & Rec wants your ideas

Thoughts and ideas from residents are sought by the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

A public hearing on the department's proposed master plan is scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 24 at the township hall annex, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston.

It's a chance for the public to see what direction the township is heading and to share their ideas, said Timothy Doyle, director of the parks and recreation department.

The master plan has been updated to allow for the expected growth in the township, especially along I-75, he said.

The plan includes more land acquisition for neighborhood parks and a community center, more recreational programming and projected expenditures to improve existing facilities, said Doyle.

The township board must approve the plan before it comes into effect, he said.

"It's one of the nicest looking buildings I've seen in a long time," said chairperson Joseph Figa.

The only comments on the drawing were to include proper sign setbacks and to note the plant sizes to be used in landscaping.

It'll be at least two months before construction begins, said Knoll, after the meeting.

To be constructed of red brick, the two-level 9,308 square-foot building for dentists George Krull and James Williams is to be compatible to the 52nd District Court building located across the street from the site.

Seven-year lapse

The first new subdivision proposal in seven years received tentative approval from the Springfield Township Board on March 11.

Cedar Valley Estates, near Dixie Highway and Holly Road in Springfield Township, is to have 13 residential lots and three commercial lots, each at least two and one half acres.

The tentative preliminary plat received unanimous approval. Final approval of the plat must be granted by the township board before construction can begin.

The board's motion included several recommendations to the Oakland County Road Commission including changing the entrance to two commercial lots from Dixie Highway to Cedar Valley Drive and possibly combining two commercial lots due to topographical problems with the land.

Subdivision developer Howard Miller told the board he had no problems with its recommendations.

RV guidelines

Recreational vehicles, including all-terrain vehicles and off-road motorcycles, could face stiffer regulations in Springfield Township this year.

The Springfield Township Board unanimously voted March 11 to have the township attorney prepare language for an ordinance to control recreational vehicles.

The township currently does not have an ordinance governing recreational vehicles, but governs that activity according to state laws.

The township ordinance would prohibit unsafe use, trespassing and other unlawful use of recreational vehicles within Springfield Township. It will be given serious consideration at a future board meeting, said township Supervisor Collin Walls.

Raymond Rogers of King Road, Springfield Township, prompted the action when he expressed concern during the meeting about bikes abusing the area near his home.

"With the mild weather, they are already out," he said. "It is just a matter of time before they run over a small child or kill themselves."

He expressed concern about the bikers' frequent use of public roads, illegal under state law.

"I would like to see a serious response to this problem, such as long-term bike impoundment," he said.

The township board agreed there is a problem with recreational vehicles, but Walls noted enforcement is part of the problem.

B & E arraignment

A 24-year-old Pontiac man was arraigned March 10 for the breaking and entering of an occupied dwelling in Independence Township, said Lt. Glenn Watson of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

James Clyde Hembree II was arrested March 9 and charged with stealing $39 from a residence on Chickadee Lane.

According to the police report, a neighbor saw Hembree enter the house and she then called the sheriff's department. An officer stopped Hembree as he exited the house.

At his arraignment, Hembree plead not guilty and was released after posting a $1,000 bond. The preliminary exam is scheduled March 20 at 9:30 a.m. before 52nd District Court Judge Gerald McNally.

problems.

Principals Carl Uberti of Our Lady of the Lakes High School, Waterford Township; Mark Krontz, director administrator of Clarkston Christian School, Independence Township; and Bette Moen, owner and educational director of Cedar Crest Academy, Independence Township stand neutral on the issue, they said.

"We feel to give the child every opportunity to learn, we want our educators to be educated," said Krontz.

"This is a real hairy problem. It involves conscience, philosophy and freedom. In the core of a person's being, what else is there?"

—Dr. Paul Vanaman

Moen had similar thoughts.

"Considering the comparative achievements of the United States with other industrialized countries, we can't afford to be lenient with our children's education," she said. "A certification doesn't mean that will guarantee high educational standards, but we must be fastidious in our approach."

Vanaman and others plan to use every method available to rid non-public schools of the requirement, he said.

"If all of these courses fail—and there are many—many of us will not submit. . . .," he said. "We are ready to go to jail."

The law violates basic constitutional rights, said Vanaman, paraphrasing a portion of the First Amendment: "because Congress will enact no law that will prohibit the free exercise of religion."

"A certificate is a license that begs permission from the state. . . . They've thrown God and the Bible out of the public schools," he said. "Taking state control out of the Christian schools (would be) separation of church and state. . . . Eventually, they'll be telling us what to teach."

"This is a real hairy problem," said Vanaman. "It involves conscience, philosophy and freedom. In the core of a person's being, what else is there?"

"Jesus told us to go to the world and preach and teach. To us, it's like Jesus telling us to do something, and we turn to the state and say, 'Is this all right?'"

Last week's march included about 500 people from Dixie Baptist Church, said Vanaman, adding the "birth" of the rally was a lawsuit initiated by two Baptist schools near Saginaw, protesting the requirement. It is to come before the U.S. Supreme Court.

The purpose of the rally was twofold—to emphasize religious and educational freedom in Michigan and to bring attention to a bill introduced to the state Senate last week, said Vanaman.

The bill would eliminate the teacher certification

Now and in the future, says Dr. Paul Vanaman, he plans to employ the best-qualified teachers at Springfield Christian Academy, regardless of requirements in non-public schools, and it already has 17 or 18 sponsors in the Senate, he said.

The bill only needs 20 supporters to pass it, said Vanaman, adding the state representatives may not be as receptive.

"We appreciate that we live in a country where we can do this," he said.

Many of the teachers at Springfield Christian Academy are certified, said Vanaman. In his eyes, they're all qualified to teach either from education or life experience or a combination.

"Teacher certification guarantees nothing," he said. "If we are producing a good product—the student—then why should we be compelled to lower whether or not they're certified. A state law requiring certification of teachers in non-public schools is currently under protest.

our standards to conform to that (of a public school)?"

He also objected to the state teachings of humanism, defined in two separate instances as a religion by the U.S. Supreme Court, he said.

Humanism is a man-centered philosophy which holds that all things originate with man, relate to man and revert back to man, he said.

It's directly opposed to the biblical religion of a God-centered philosophy, where all things originate from God, relate to God and revert to God, he said.

"It's the battle of the ages, the battle between good and evil—since the Garden of Eden. . . . It's whether man is God or God is God," said Vanaman.

Trip approval needed

School board approval is now required for field trips by Clarkston student groups to areas outside the United States and Canada.

The board of education approved the new field trip policy for high school and junior high school students in a 6-0 vote on March 9.

The original policy under discussion was modified after board members questioned the portion allowing principals to approve trips within the North American continent.

"The North American continent includes Honduras, El Salvador, ..." said board member Thomas Bills. "I'd just as soon not include these."

Board member Mary Jane Chaustowich agreed. She also said trips to Canada should be approved by the school board, but that portion of the proposed policy remained unchanged.

When field trips are proposed, their sponsors routinely submit applications to principals and that procedure will continue, said administrative assistant William Neff.

The applications include goals and objectives, how the trip fits into the curriculum and how it is being financed, he said.

The new policy requires approval from the school principal or assistant principal for trips within a 50-mile radius, from the principal for trips outside of 50 miles but within the state, and from the principal with notification to the board for trips outside the state.

Happy talk is receptionist's specialty

By Julie Campe

Conversation, says Linda Jewell, is one of her favorite pastimes.

A receptionist for Dr. Gary Symons on Main Street, Clarkston, she's worked in the dental field 13 years—three at Symons' office.

"I've just always enjoyed people," says Linda. "That's the primary reason I work. . . I just plain like to talk. I came from a family of four girls, and we all like to talk."

One of three Lindas at the office, her part-time job includes insurance billing, making appointments and lots of talking on the phone, she says, adding the talking on the phone is her favorite.

Since nearly all her co-workers share the same name, patients find it easy to start a conversation; they can just call everyone Linda, she says.

But Linda isn't ready to call herself friendly. Being pleasant is all a part of working with people, and the patients are the real friendly people, she says.

A few are grumpy, but "I just choose to think they're having a bad day," says Linda.

Her attitude is part of what makes Linda stand out. Warmth shows in her eyes, especially when she talks about her family or her pets.

Linda and her family have lived in the Clarkston area about 24 years. They currently reside in a rural setting on Allen Road in Independence Township, where her family first established their love of animals, says Linda.

Since so many are abandoned on dirt roads, many of them have found their way to their home, and they've adopted some.

"In fact, we've never had a dog that wasn't a stray," says Linda, mentioning her dogs Nikki and Rocky.

Rocky was named by her oldest son, who found him in a cardboard box with rocks piled on top—the sole survivor of a whole litter of puppies dumped on Allen Road, she says.

It's a shame but it often happens; and it's hard to turn away a dog, especially with soft-hearted children around, not to mention herself, she says.

Puppies and children bring out the warmth in Linda's voice. Spending time with her 1-year-old grandson, named after her husband, is one of her favorite leisure activities, she says.

She also likes to shop, go to the movies or out to lunch. And in the summer, she goes to Silver Lake with her husband Paul.

Do you know someone who works in the Clarkston area and deserves recognition for a job well done? We'd like to share your praise. Call The Clarkston News at 625-3370 weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. or drop us a line at 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Linda Jewell likes to spend time with her three sons and her grandson Paul when she's not working at the office of Dr. Gary Symons on Main Street, Clarkston.

844-mile snowmobile trip's a breeze

By Chris Gerbasi

An 844-mile trip in any vehicle sounds exhausting, but making that week-long journey on a snowmobile sounds particularly challenging.

Actually, the trip was a breeze for the Ogemaw Hills Snowmobile Club. Twenty-nine of its members trekked on snowmobile trails from Newberry, in the Upper Peninsula, to the tip of the Keweenaw Peninsula and back again last month.

All 29 riders and their machines completed the trip without any major breakdowns. The club makes one long journey annually, but this was its longest in nine years of existence.

"We're a riding club. Some snowmobile clubs are more like social clubs," said Kay Kelley of Clarkston. "We wait for winter and pray for snow."

Kelley has been riding for one year, but her husband Terry, who also made the trip, is a veteran snowmobiler who used to race competitively.

The excursion was planned for a year, as stops had to be scheduled and reservations made for each of the seven days.

The group was guided on the trails by 74-year-old Carlton Richman. There were also two chase truck drivers to carry luggage, drive ahead to get lunch for the riders and transport the snowmobiles if anyone wanted to take a breather.

And it would be understandable if the riders needed a break. The first day, they traveled 162 miles from Newberry to Marquette. They averaged about 120 miles a day over seven to eight hours each day.

Kelley fell victim to a little fatigue after not getting enough sleep the third night. The next morning, her concentration slipped, she missed a curve and went straight into a field.

The weather was almost too warm during the week, with temperatures sometimes going into the 40s. In fact, the group originally planned to go to Eagle River, Wisc., but heard there wasn't much snow there, so they altered the route to the Keweenaw Peninsula.

They did wind up at Eagle River, Mich., and had a picture taken of the group in front of the Eagle River road sign, to show they reached their destination.

The altered route Kelley and company took was far from a letdown.

"The snow was four feet deep in the Huron Mountains," she said. "The trails are absolutely unbelievable up north. Down here, they're bumpy."

"But up there, the trails are well-groomed. We passed a lot of groomers on the trails," she said. "It felt like I had never ridden before. They were all so perfect."

The trails in the U.P. can be maintained better because there's less traffic. The trail through the Huron Mountains was a gradual incline and Kelley said the scenery through the mountains was beautiful.

"The scenery is why we made the trip," she said. "And the camaraderie between the people. We're one big, happy family. Everybody gets along."

"We had so much fun and everybody loved it so much, that on the trip we were already planning for next year."

The Ogemaw Hills group stays busy throughout the year, with canoe trips, hayrides, dinner dances and other functions. Anyone interested in joining the club can call Kay or Terry Kelley at 625-0420.

Kay Kelley, of Clarkston, and 28 other members of the Ogemaw Hills Snowmobile Club completed an 844-mile trip in the Upper Peninsula last month.

Wolves no match for Marian

By Chris Gerbasi

There'll be no happy ending to the Clarkston volleyball season.

Last Friday the 13th, coach Nancy McCarrick took her team to see the inspirational film "Hoosiers," in which a small-town high school basketball team wins the Indiana state championship.

But on Saturday, Birmingham Marian wrote an ending to the Wolves' year that looked more like a "Friday the 13th" movie.

Marian carved up the Wolves, 15-8, 15-0, in a regional semifinal match at Flint Central. The Mustangs (46-1) then went on to defeat Traverse City in the finale to advance to the state finals this Saturday.

Clarkston, which finished at 42-9, tied Marian at 8-8 in the first game after trailing 7-3. But the Wolves wouldn't score another point in the match and rarely had an opportunity to serve.

Sports

The Mustangs' Patty Condit, an all-state candidate, put down roots at the serving line. She served the last seven points of the first game and the first 12 points of the second game. Laura Sullivan wrapped up the shutout by serving the last three points.

"It was 8-8 and we couldn't pass another good ball the rest of the match," said McCarrick. "We got the safe eight (points). That's what we always get against good teams."

"Going out for the second game, they already had thought we lost," she said. "But it's not over for a long time. The kids got down and they let them (Marian) play."

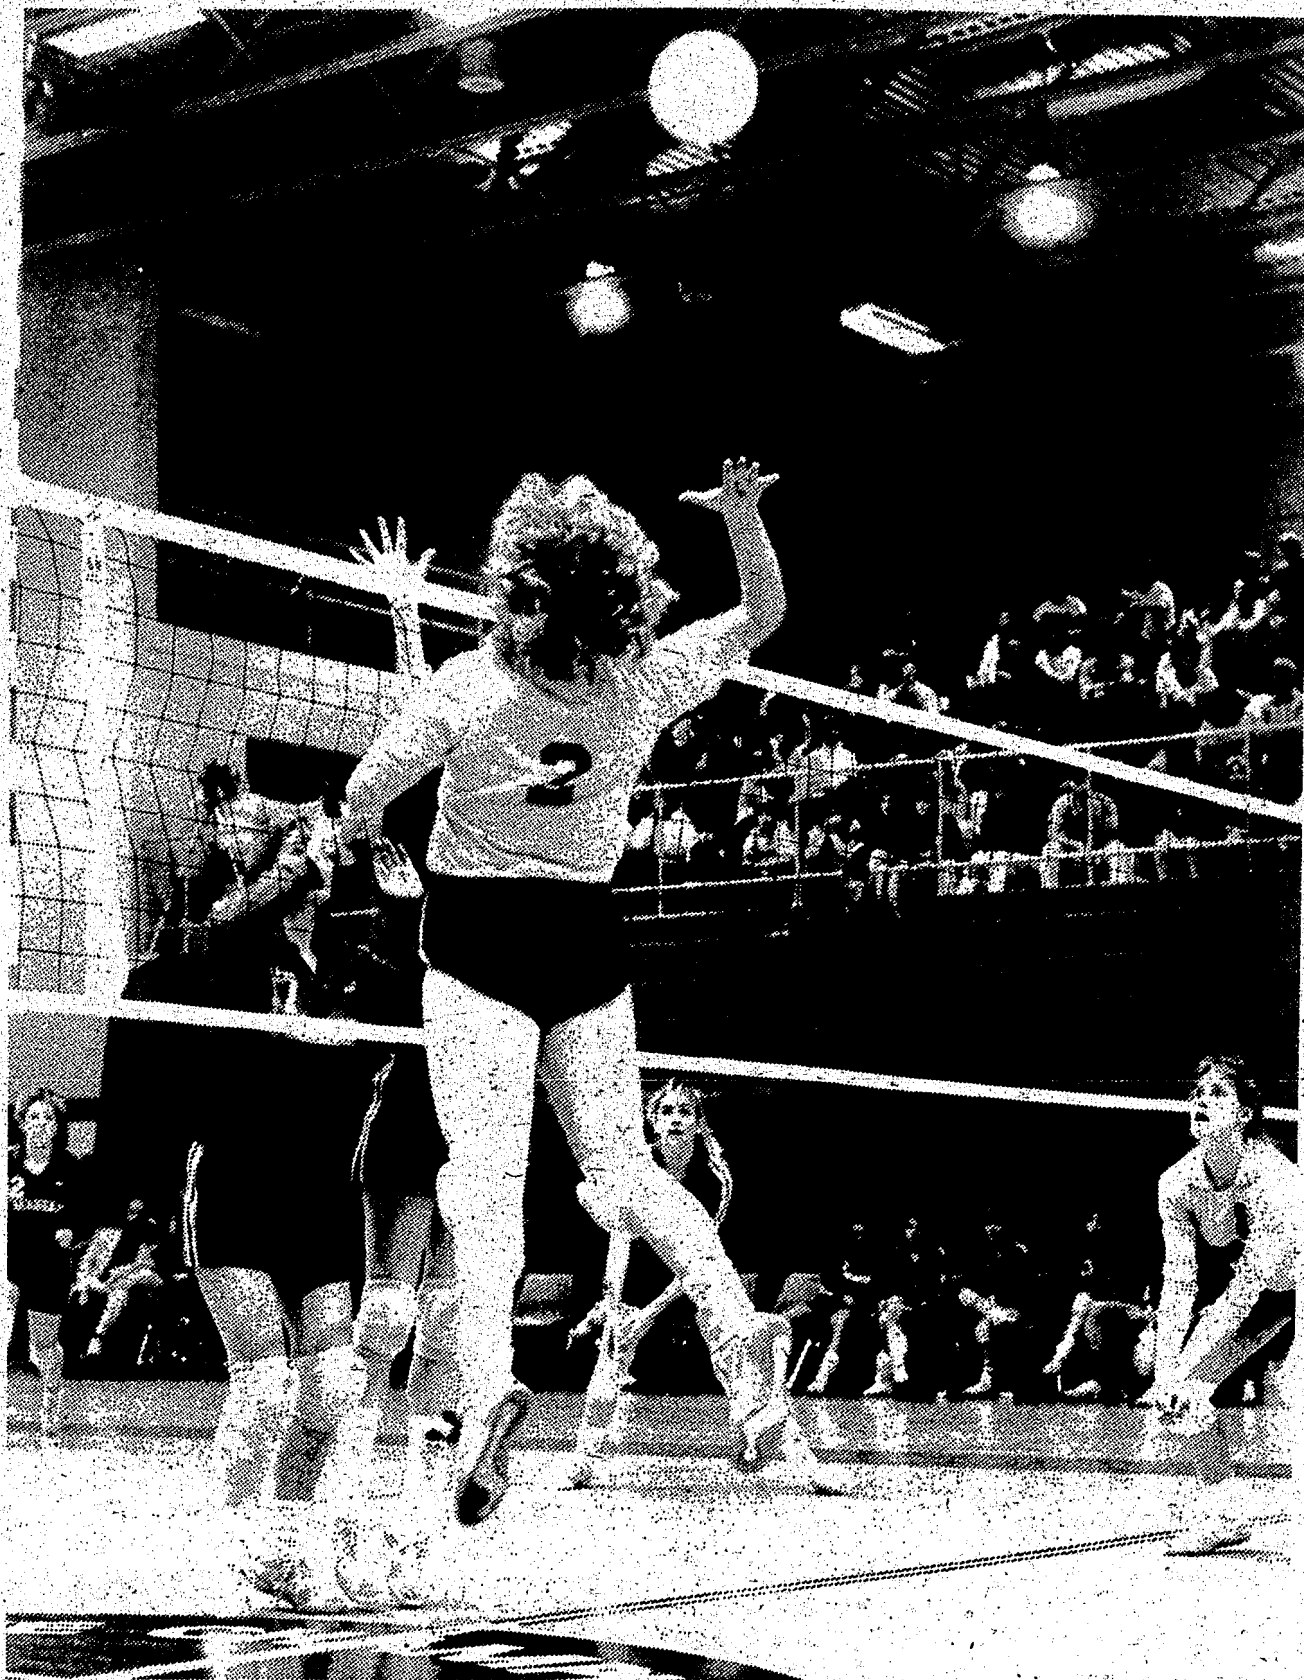

McCarrick may have been hoping for a comeback similar to those of Flint Powers and Traverse City in their opening match.

Powers incredibly came back from a 14-1 deficit to win the first game, 16-14, then Traverse City bounced back from a 14-9 disadvantage to win the second game, 16-14. Traverse City then won the rubber game, 15-8.

Marian never let Clarkston back into their match, however. The Mustangs consistently hit the ball down the line and the Wolves were on the defensive throughout, frequently mishitting serve receptions in the second game.

"I don't think we had more than five offensive attacks all game," McCarrick said. "I told them if we serve and serve-receive well, we'll win. We served well, but we certainly didn't pass very well."

It was a surprise ending, but not a happy one, for an otherwise successful season.

Clarkston's Kelly Laidig goes high for a slam against Birmingham Marian in last Saturday's regional match. Nothing much went right for the Wolves, as they got bounced, 15-8, 15-0.

District playoffs

Mott ends Wolves' up and down year

By Chris Gerbasi

Clarkston's basketball odyssey ended with a surprisingly lopsided 56-44 loss to Waterford Mott in the district playoffs at Mott last Wednesday.

"It was a strange season all year," said Wolves coach Dan Fife, who didn't expect the season to end so decisively.

His team started 4-6 and finished 13-8. Having won nine out of the last 10 games and the GOAL title, Clarkston was favored to cruise into the district finals.

But it was the Corsairs who had smooth sailing, as they blew the Wolves out of the water in the first half.

Coach Ray Robinson's crew came out with a full-court zone press from the opening tip and were relentless through four quarters.

Mott only led 10-9 after one quarter, but Clarkston had trouble getting the ball upcourt and were twice called for 10-second violations in the early going.

The Corsairs then hit for the first 12 points of the second quarter as the Wolves went scoreless for nearly five minutes.

Mott led 28-17 at the half and was never seriously threatened in the second half.

"Most of the stuff we tried worked," said Robinson, who was very vocal with his players during the game. "But I thought we were hanging on for dear life."

"Sometimes it gets intense for the coach," he said. "If you want them (the players) to get in somebody's face, sometimes you have to get in their face."

Mott was in the Wolves' faces, all right, and Fife put a lot of faces out on the court. He used all of his guards, at one time or another, to help bring the ball upcourt and to change the tempo of the game.

"What also hurt us was after missed shots, they'd (Mott) still set up the trap," Fife said. "We're not a full-court team. We needed to play a half-court game."

"It was total confusion," he said. "And when the kids are confused, it all goes back to coaching. I couldn't get them out of it. We were thoroughly out-coached."

Clarkston only got as close as eight points, 31-23, in the third quarter. Gene Seets scored nine of the Corsairs' 11 points in the quarter to give them a 39-27 lead. He had 15 in the second half and 23 for the game. Bill Schomberg and Brian Tucker added 10 points each.

The Wolves didn't get any closer than 11 points in the fourth quarter. Senior Dan Jokisch left the game with 38 seconds remaining, having scored a team-high 20 points in his last game.

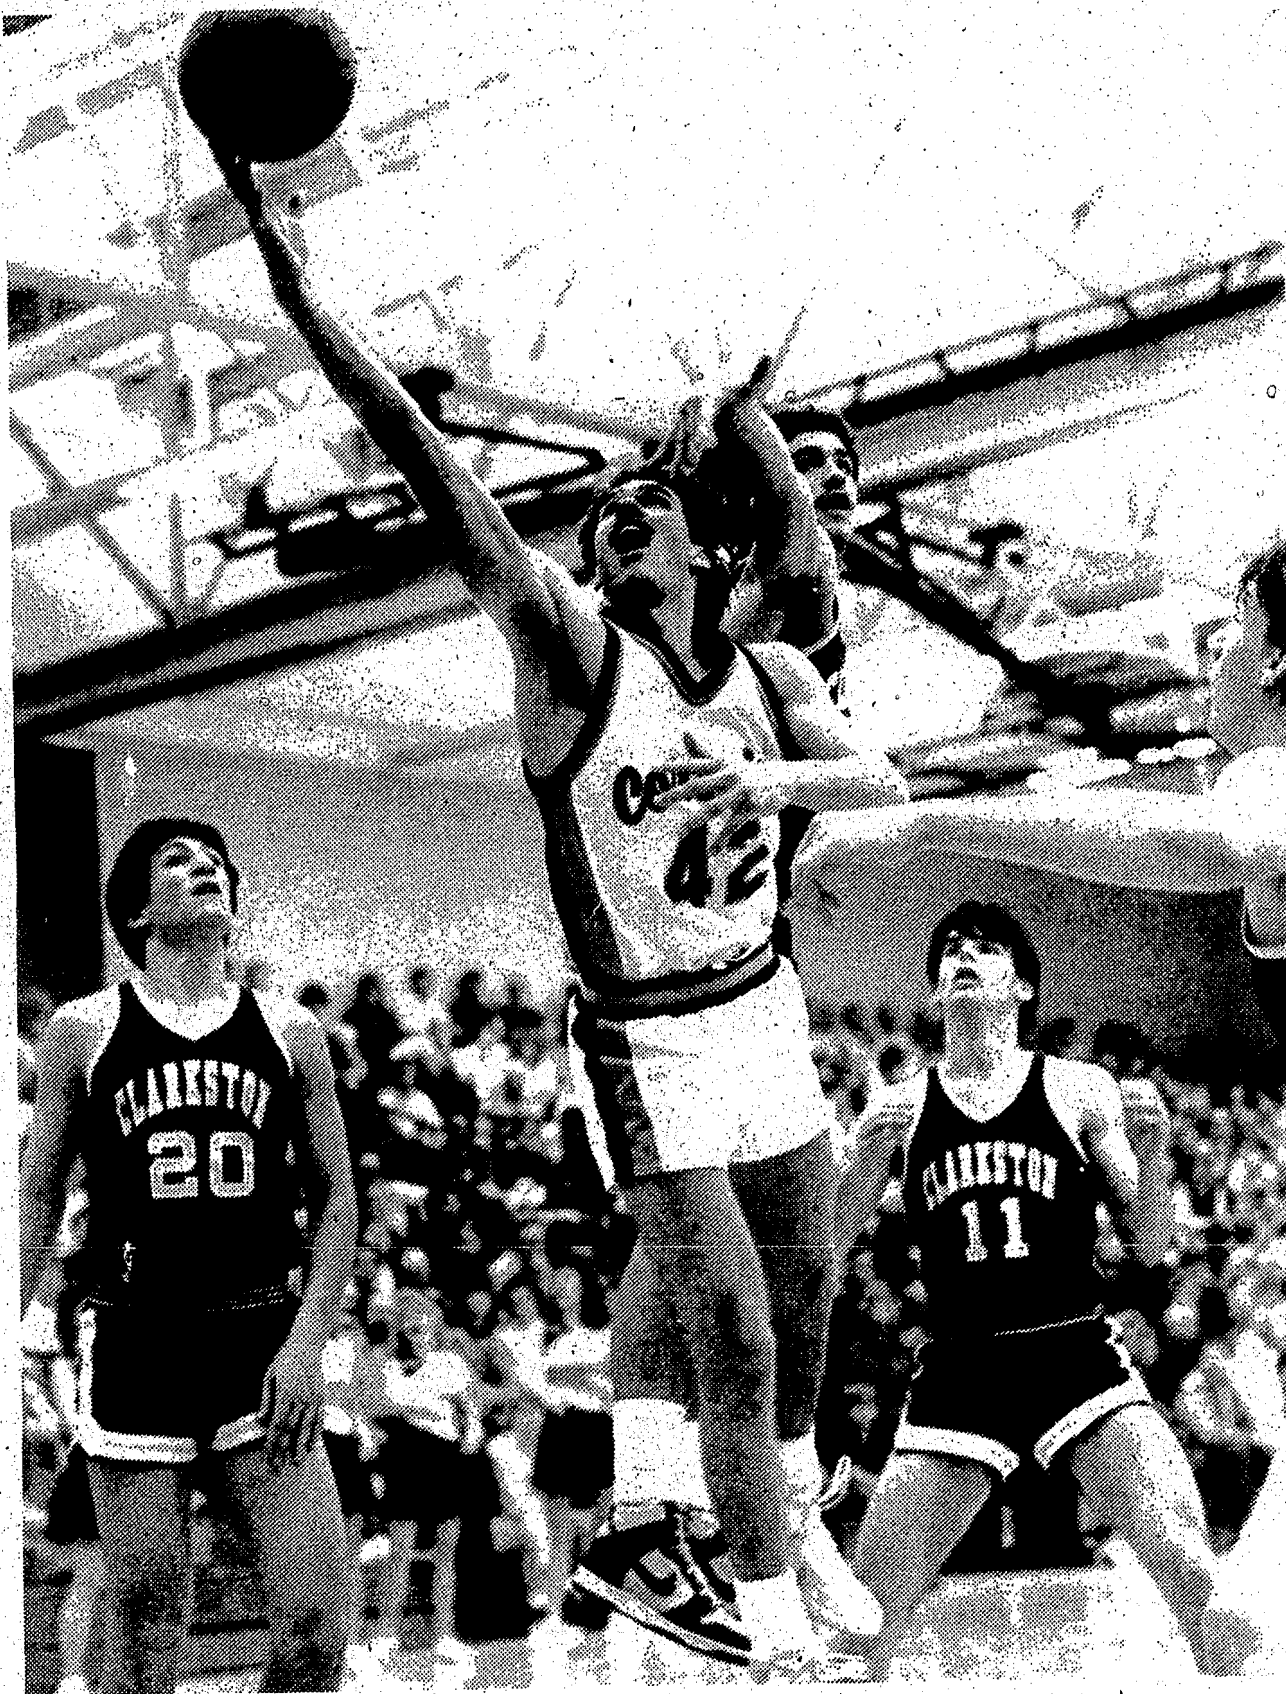

Also winding up their high school careers were Keith Mercier, Jeff Billig, Steve Secatch, Craig Chamberlain and Jim Hall.

The victory for Mott avenged a homecourt loss to Clarkston in the teams' previous meeting.

"I hate to say they wanted it more," said Fife. "But I think they were looking forward to playing us."

"It was hard for us (this season)," he said. "We played less kids than we ever played before. But we accomplished a lot of things. They could've quit a long time ago."

Waterford Mott (16-7) went on to lose in the district championship game to Pontiac Central, 71-63.

Waterford Mott's Gene Seets glides by the Wolves' Dan Jokisch, as Josh Newblatt, Jeff Tungate and Steve Secatch look on. Clarkston couldn't stop Seets, who scored 23 points in Mott's 56-44 district playoff victory last week.

Emerson wants to be king of the hill

Rick Emerson's skiing career has grown by leaps and bounds since he was a youngster learning the ropes at Pine Knob.

In two weeks, Emerson will have a chance to qualify for the United States 1988 Olympic freestyle ski team. He'll be among 50 competitors from across the country at the nationals at Squaw Valley in California April 1-3.

Rick Emerson once skied the slopes of Pine Knob, but now he soars through the skies as a freestyle skier in Colorado. The 1981 Clarkston graduate has a chance at making the 1988 Olympic freestyle team.

The top 15 finishers will make the U.S. team and Emerson is hoping for a top 10 performance.

Freestyle skiing, which involves both a timed mogul run and aerial acrobatics, will be an exhibition sport at the Winter Games in Calgary. It will become a full-fledged sport for the 1992 Olympics.

"It's definitely a growing sport," said Emerson, a 1981 Clarkston grad, who resides in Breckenridge, Colo. "Probably a lot more people will get involved after the Olympics. The professionals will probably make more money."

Emerson reached the top of the professional ranks during a four-year career, taking first-place overall on the circuit two years in a row. But he fought to regain his amateur status with the Olympic Committee last summer.

"It was pretty difficult," said Emerson, adding that switching from professional to amateur status is a touchy subject among skiers out west.

"I was at the top of the sport in the pros. I was taking firsts in everything," he said. "There's a lot more competition in the amateurs. And you travel around to other countries."

Emerson, 24, now supports himself by teaching freestyle skiing full-time and he's aided by several sponsors. He also has to fit in about six hours of training a day, six days a week.

He got into the sport after entering a freestyle contest at Pine Knob. He had skied at the Knob for about 12 years and helped Clarkston's high school team to the state finals.

"I won a $2,500 cash prize and then I moved out here to see what it (freestyle competition) was like," said Emerson. "So I competed out here and did rather well."

He qualified for the nationals by placing first in moguls and second in aerials at a regional two weeks ago. For the season, he was also first in moguls and fourth in aerials in the Rocky Mountain Division rankings.

The Rocky Mountain Division is sending the largest group of skiers to the nationals, so Emerson has already competed against some of the best skiers in the country.

If he should make the U.S. team, he would train with his teammates all summer in Oregon and compete against countries such as France, Japan and Yugoslavia, among others.

Whether he makes the team or not, Emerson plans to stay in coaching after his career ends. But that's well down the road, or slope.

"Right now in the World Cup rankings, Steve Desovich is number one in the world," Emerson said. "That's what I'm after."

Dean Moscovic finished fifth in the state wrestling finals recently in the 155-pound weight division. Moscovic, of Independence Township, attends Birmingham Brother Rice.

Moscovic fifth at state finals

As the son of a wrestling coach, it's understandable why Dean Moscovic has been successful in the sport.

Still, Moscovic had an exceptional sophomore season at Birmingham Brother Rice, compiling a 52-8 record and finishing fifth at the state finals two weekends ago in the 155-pound class.

His father, Dick, coaches at Clarkston Junior High and Dean began wrestling competitively there in seventh grade.

"He (his father) helps me a lot," said Moscovic. "You can go to him for advice when you want it, for little things here and there. He doesn't push you. He just points it out for you."

As a sixth-grader, Moscovic would go to Clarkston High and wrestle with the high school kids. For ninth grade, he decided to go to Brother Rice, a private Catholic school, for its academics and wrestling program.

As a freshman, Moscovic went about 38-15 and advanced to the regionals. This season, he won four tournaments and Brother Rice sent three grapplers to the state finals.

Moscovic now has the benefit of advice from both his father and his coach at Brother Rice, John Major.

"He's (Major) been good for me," Moscovic said. "Wrestling is one of those sports where the more different types of things and techniques you can learn from people, the better off you are. You can pick out what works for you."

Obviously, things are working out for Moscovic. He'd like to continue to wrestle in college, but first he wants to concentrate on his next two high school years and improve on his state performance.

To get to the states, held at Lansing Eastern, he placed second at both his district and regional. Both times he lost to Steve Yobuck of Holly, the eventual state champ.

Once at the states, he lost a tough 6-5 decision, which prevented him from finishing third or fourth overall.

"I was hoping to do a little better, to be honest," he said. "But I can't complain. I was happy since at least after losing my second match, I just didn't lose my head; I came back and placed."

"Overall, it was a nice season. And I'd like to thank my parents and family for their patience. It was a long season."

WELCOME HOME TO FAMILY FASHIONS!

Crystal clear

Cat's meow

Chris Gerbasi

Due to the recent demise of the Cat Paw column, a backlog of all types of letters has developed, which has all of our staffers chipping in to respond to them. My editor has asked me to once again dip into the mailbag and field some questions:

Dear Chris,

In volleyball, what's a floater?

Spike, Waterford

I'm glad you asked me that. Thanks to my handy volleyball glossary, acquired at last Saturday's regional, I now know more about volleyball than I could have ever hoped for, or thought possible. Spike, in volleyball, a floater means striking the ball near the center to prevent it from spinning.

Dear Sir,

What's a dot?

Curious, Clarkston

I can't seem to find this one in my volleyball glossary. This must be one of those Cat Paw letters. I'm not a doctor, although I play one on TV, and I think you should consult your physician about "dots."

Dear Chris,

Saw you on the street the other day and you looked bummed out. What gives?

Concerned, Independence Township

Well, Lance Parrish signed with the Phillies, Woody Hayes died, Clarkston's basketball and volleyball teams got bombed, Michigan lost to North Carolina, I went to a Pistons-Sixers game in which neither Tim McCormick nor Julius Erving played, I fell asleep during my favorite movie, "It's a Wonderful Life," and nobody asked me to the Saddle Hawkins Dance. Yeah, I'm bummed. Wanna make something of it?

Dear Editor,

How could you print such a blasphemous column about the pope and discontinuing birth control during his visit in September? I didn't think it was the least bit funny and I was appalled to find it in The Clarkston News.

Outraged in Clarkston

This must be referring to the Jim Fitzgerald column. Personally, I haven't planned that far ahead.

Dear Editor,

Is Pat Young male or female?

Stumped, Bedford Falls

Reporter Pat Young is female.

Dear Sir,

Is Grace Jones male or female?

P.Y., Independence Township

Once again, I'm not a doctor and I think Grace should consult her physician.

Dear Editor,

How is the Prep Profile athlete selected each week?

Somebody's mom, Clarkston

It's a long, complicated process. Each Wednesday evening, the department heads gather for a meeting which generally lasts three to four hours. Each person submits a list of prospective athletes and then each of us goes over their academic and athletic records with a fine-toothed comb.

After a lengthy debate, which sometimes leads to arguments and on several occasions fist fights, a vote is taken and an athlete must pass unanimously. Then I pick whoever I want.

Dear Mr. Gerbasi,

Is it hard to score a basket?

Billy Z., age 5, Davisburg (My mom helped me write.)

I'm not a Dr. J, although I play one on TV, but yes, Billy, it is hard to score a basket. For some of us, it's very hard.

Dear Mr. Gerbasi,

Why?

Billy Z., age 5, Davisburg

Well, Billy, because people are trying to stop you from scoring.

Dear Mr. Gerbasi,

Why?

Billy Z., age 5, Davisburg

Because that's the object of the game, Billy.

Dear Mr. Gerbasi,

Why?

Billy Z., age 5, Davisburg

That's enough, Billy. You've become very annoying. Have your mother help you with something else, like riding your bike on Dixie. And that's enough letters for this week. Next week I'll be helping out with recipes.

Jim Tuman, a nationally known motivational speaker for youth, drives home a point during assemblies for the Clarkston High School student body on March 9 and 10. "If you feel good about yourself first, you have so much more to share in life," he said. Part of that process, he said, is not putting other people down.

Tuman tells teens to care

His message rings with the importance of self-esteem

By Pat Young

Jim Tuman paced like a tiger while being introduced and then pounced into his program, ripping down walls of defense and touching the souls of teenagers on the bleachers before him.

Running up to the sea of faces at Clarkston High School and yelling, "Who is the most important person you know?" he evoked complete attention and flustered responses.

The students were in for a most unusual three and a half hours.

Tuman, of the Detroit area, is a nationally renowned motivational speaker for youth. He has presented his program "Who Controls Your Life?" to a quarter of a million students in over 200 schools in the past two years.

The goal of this remarkable man, who began the assembly by digging down deep and baring his own soul to the students before him, is to teach self-esteem to teenagers.

"The students experience caring by reaching out to others and find value in themselves by sharing their feelings," said CHS Assistant Principal Brent Cooley, who spearheaded the effort to bring Tuman to the school.

Clarkston High School and Volunteers of America presented this Positive School Support Program to the 1,600 CHS students and students from Clarkston Alternative High School (Clarkston Learning Center) March 9 and 10. It was followed up with programs for parents and teachers.

The effort stems, in part, from a growing concern over teenage suicide. And it is a personal, painful experience with suicide which Tuman shares early in the assembly.

"The 14-year-old son of a friend of mine hung himself in the shower last year," Tuman said. "I saw the parents begin to misunderstand and criticize him; he didn't fit their expectations like the three older children did. He believed the put-downs he was hearing, and now he's dead."

Tuman said he feels pain every time he relates the story. Then he tells of his own suicide attempts.

"I was a seven-letter athlete, made decent grades and was a class officer," Tuman said, "but I tried to take my life three times because I was afraid."

"We are all so busy letting everyone else tell us

Teen succeeds in patrol quest

By Chris Gerbas

For the first time in about eight years, the Pine Knob Ski Resort had a junior ski patrol member this season.

Sarah Schultz, of Clarkston, went through a lengthy training program to earn that distinction this past year.

Schultz, a sophomore at Cranbrook Kingswood, actually hadn't skied much in recent years, but that changed when she became interested in the ski patrol a couple of years ago.

"I read an article about it (in World Magazine) and found out about the junior program; you have to be 18 to be basic patrol," said Schultz. "They said they hadn't had one (a junior member) for a long time and I asked about what I had to do."

What she had to do was considerable. Last summer she had to take a two-week CPR course and about 60 hours of Red Cross classes.

She passed both of those courses and then throughout the winter, she attended more meetings and training sessions twice a week.

Away from the classroom, Saturdays were patrol days. Schultz primarily made sure skiers were on the right hills and she could administer first aid, if necessary, as long as another patroller was on hand.

Schultz also had to compete in a ski-off, to be judged on her skiing skills. As if all of these things weren't enough, she played volleyball for Kingswood and is now preparing for the lacrosse season.

"I really wanted to do it," Schultz said. "I like to help other people and just being able to ski a lot."

Next fall will mean even more training for Schultz, for evacuation of the chair lifts, rope-tying and more first aid.

Then she'll be able to take a basic patrol test and if she passes, she'll automatically become a full-fledged patroller when she turns 18.

Sarah Schultz is the first junior ski patrol member at Pine Knob in several years. Schultz, who attends Cranbrook Kingswood High School, trained throughout the summer to earn the position.

Honors

Two local students have been named to the dean's list at Albion College, Albion, for the fall semester.

Martha Huttenlocher, a senior, is majoring in French and speech. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Huttenlocher of Middle Lake Road, Clarkston.

Candace Naz, a senior, is majoring in economics and music. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Naz of Wellesley Terrace, Independence Township.

Clarkston area residents Gregg Babcock and Asher Cornelius are on the dean's honor roll for the winter day term at Lawrence Institute of Technology, Southfield.

Ruth Webb of Amy Drive, Independence Township, is one of 11 high school students named winners of Oakland University's top scholarships for 1987-88.

The Clarkston High School senior won an Endowed Scholarship for $2,500 the first year and an additional $1,000 the next three years.

Accolades for CHS singers

The 39-member Choralaires, an all-female chorus from Clarkston High School, sang their way to top honors in the District Choir Festival March 6 at Novi High School.

"This is a first for this choir in the history of the vocal music program," said Grayce Warren, director of the CHS vocal music department. "The girls worked very hard and their work showed a great deal of personal and group accomplishment."

The Choralaires participated at the primary level of difficulty and received straight 'I' ratings from all three performance judges and the sight-reading judge.

With a 'I' rating, the Choralaires advance to the state level of competition in Jackson, where they will perform April 30 or May 1.

They must sing one number from a required list of music, one a capella (without musical accompaniment) and one of choice. The pieces must be of contrasting styles.

At the district festival, the CHS Varsity Concert Choir participated in the intermediate level of difficulty and received an overall rating of II.

"I am extremely proud of both choirs," said Warren. "They represented our school and music program in a most commendable manner."

New arrival

It's a girl for Neal and Carolyn Mansfield of Clarkston.

Julia Marie was born at 4:22 p.m. Jan. 17 at Pontiac General Hospital. She weighed 7 pounds 8½ ounces and measured 19 and seven-eighths inches long.

She was welcomed home to North Holcomb Street by her 9-year-old brother, Joe, and 6-year-old sister, Laura.

Grandparents are Richard and Nora Jorgensen of Bluegrass Drive, Independence Township, Roger and Marguerite Patterson of Green Valley, Ariz., and Ben and Judy Mansfield of Cape Coral, Fla.

Hordos-Schodowski

Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Hordos of Davisburg Road, Springfield Township, announce the engagement of their daughter Karen Marie to Robert Charles Schodowski, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Schodowski of Rochester. A May wedding is planned in Lake Orion.

Grads

Brian Maher received his bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, at the end of the fall semester.

He resides on Deerwood Drive, Independence Township.

Carrie Thomas has completed requirements for a bachelor's degree from Ferris State College, Big Rapids.

A White House news conference

By Jim Sherman, publisher

Washington, D.C. - Where you get chills looking at the Lincoln memorial.

Washington, D.C. - Where you always see someone protesting something.

Washington, D.C. - Where a simple breakfast costs nine bucks, a drink $3.50, and a politician ? ? ?

This was our first visit to our nation's capitol in over 15 years. The occasion was the National Newspaper Association's 26th annual Government Affairs Conference. Membership in NNA is primarily made up of small weekly newspapers. 45 of the 50 states were represented by the weekly press.

First off, let me tell you we will not fly Presidential Airlines into Dulles International Airport again. Their terminal is available only by bus shuttle, and Dulles is a $30 taxi from town.

Yes, there are buses. We missed the one to our hotel by a minute and it cost $11 each to get to town, and $5 to taxi to our hotel. Close-in National airport is a $10 taxi.

We were met in Dulles' lobby by a gal at a card table promoting Mars as our 51st state. Another sign said she was a LaRouche supporter.

We past up the first conference on 1986 tax reform (if we don't know it now, forget it), but did listen to Postmaster General Preston R. Tisch say he would not push for a postal increase in 1987.

However, he will ask for an increase in 1988. In fact, he has since talked of asking for a 25 cent first class stamp.

That evening there was a 'Congressional Reception.' Michigan was grouped with Wisconsin, Ohio and Indiana. All congressmen and senators were invited to this reception... none showed up. Obviously, a non-election year.

On the other hand, during our free time, we didn't look up any of our elected officials either.

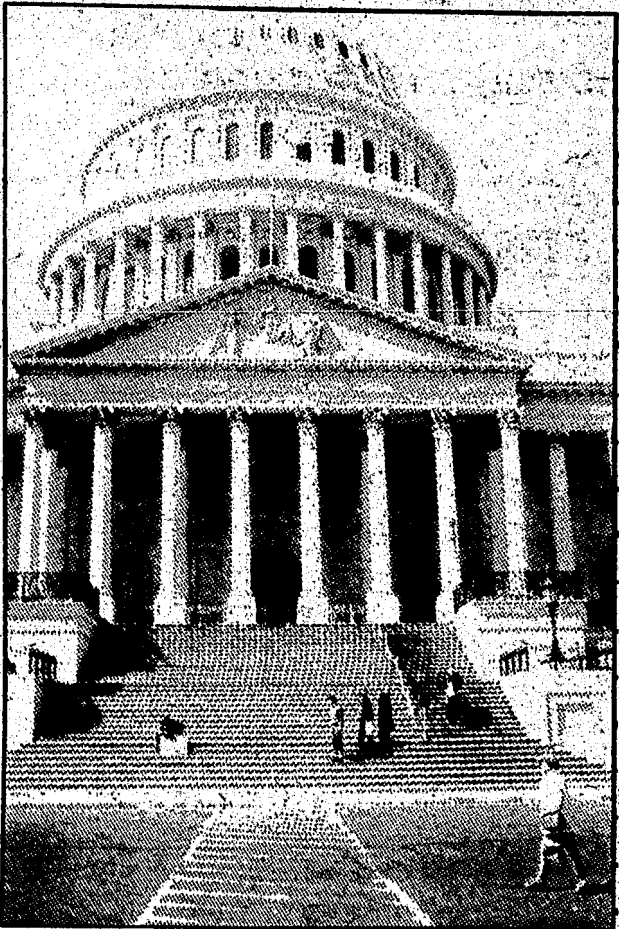

The next day, Thursday, was to be our big day... sit in on a presidential news conference. Before we left home we had sent personal history to get White House clearance. Then they limited the audience to 180. I was one of them, though over 400 were at the conference.

We were rushed like sheep across the Old Executive Building yard, and jammed into a vestibule suitable for 25. It took 50 minutes for 180 people to be metal detected and checked off lists.

Then, up 4 floors and into an auditorium of lush, blue, large, theater seats. Ten minutes to game time.

With 2 minutes to go, a door opened in back and in rushed about a hundred photographers, cameramen and White House reporters.

For the first three minutes after someone announced, "Ladies and Gentlemen, the President of the United States", all that could be heard was clicking cameras, mine included.

Back of the Capitol, complete with a single protester on the steps. He's opposing aide to the Contras. The Senate is to the right and House of Representatives to the left. Only this center portion has been sandblasted clean.

The President of the United States addressing the National Newspaper Association Government Affairs Conference, or at least, 180 of them, March 5. Behind Pres Reagan, left to right are, Marlin Fitzwater, assistant to the president for press relations, Dick Natsinger, president of NNA of Hood River, Oregon, and Sue Richards, special assistant to the president and director of media relations.

In fact, I was so intent on taking pictures, I didn't hear the first part of his comments, nor did I remember to turn on my tape recorder right away. I wasn't flustered!

It's times like these I know just how American I am. It would probably not matter who the person was making the speech, just the respect we have for the office of President of the United States, and the closeness to him, left me in awe.

President Reagan looked great. He didn't hesitate in his delivery. He didn't butter up the audience. He just talked of mistakes, learning from them, and doing the job the American people sent him there to do.

ABC reporter Sam Donaldson would have hated it. I didn't care what the president said. It was enough for this country boy to just be there in the presence of the United States president.

My tape recorder caught the crux of Mr. Reagan's comments regarding a Soviet acceptance of a US arms position in Europe... "In working for the cause of freedom, preparedness pays, patience pays and firmness purpose pays. Again and again over the past few years I've had to invoke those truisms to protect the policies that has brought us to this moment of hope."

He defended his Star Wars program, said he would not let any chance for World peace slip by, insist on verifiable checks on Soviet missiles, and there was strong agreement with our allies on arms controls.

He closed by saying, "Well, I've taken enough of your time. As Henry the 8th said to each of his six wives, 'I won't keep you long.'"

New Chief of Staff, Howard Baker was close at hand, as were several secret service agents.

We were also interested in the camera crews. When they rushed into the room, you got the impression this shabby looking bunch were rejects from the people's machine. One had a necktie. The same one wore a sport coat. Pullover sweaters and washed denims were the uniform of the day, non-shirt.

They uphold the TV image... that of being aloof to common folk, callous of all about them, void of feeling, but with a know-it-all attitude. They're not impressive.

On the other hand, they had been at the White House before 10 a.m. to be cleared, gone to this room at 10:30 to setup TV cameras, and waited until 11:30. One commented, "I hate the White House assignment. It's such a zoo."

It was old hat to them, but to me it was impressive and warming.

Everyone should visit Washington D.C.

There is so much to see in Washington DC. So much history in so many ways... art, antiques, memorials, artifacts. Buildings. Georgetown. Embassies. People.

I enjoy just looking at the Capitol. Two mornings we just went up and looked at it. Big and white, especially the dome, which has just been sandblasted. Scaffolding is up on the front for more cleaning, but the back is done.

One evening we took a 3-stop tour of memorials. The Lincoln Monument impresses us most. 58 steps up, one for each year of his life, and 36 columns around his seated statue, one for each state in the union.

Then turning toward the Washington monument, across the reflective pool. About 100 yards from Lincoln is the memorial to the Vietnam War dead.

I didn't remember that it was sunk into the ground, that if you laid down and looked across the grass you wouldn't see it.

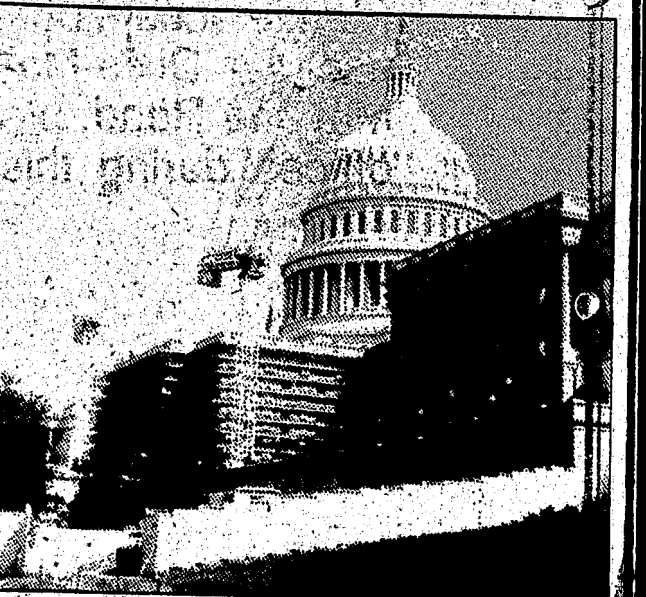

Frankly, it's not impressive at night. The dim lighting on the black background doesn't do it. At night it appears almost an apology, which might be the intent. It's impressive in its plainness, depressing with its thousands of inscriptions of dead young Americans.

Night visiting is good for other memorials. No crowds, no concessions, no pan handlers, no hurry.

The Smithsonian area is a must for most. There are eight buildings to view art, space, history and museums, all free.

We also enjoyed walking the shopping district of Georgetown. The Georgetown Park Mall is particularly impressive with its high prices. A newspaper woman from Utah exclaimed over the price of some faded jeans, which she said was her work outfit in Delta, Utah. $75 for a necktie did seem a little much.

Scaffolding is up around the front of the Capitol for cleaning. In the foreground is the House of Representatives. The grounds are not very pretty.

Juniors chosen

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., March 18, 1987 35

Ten Clarkston High School juniors were honored last week when they were chosen as representatives or alternates to Girls State and Boys State this summer.

The week-long program to teach students about government is sponsored by the American Legion and Auxiliary.

Girls selected by the Campbell-Richmond Post Unit 69 in Independence Township were Stephany Tedder, Wendy Scroby, Kelly DuPree and alternates Tara Camcross and Allyson Bugal.

Their week at Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant, is to include a mock government, complete with campaigns and elections, said Dawn Tower, Girls State Chairperson for the Auxiliary.

They will be chaperoned the entire time and will meet with over 500 girls from all over Michigan, she said.

The boys selected were: Jeff Briggs, Derek Werner, Tony Myers and alternates Jim Hotary and K.C. Baran.

Their week at Michigan State University, East Lansing, is to cover a similar program.

The students were chosen from nominations from their teachers, their involvement in school activities and their interest in government, said Tower.

The cost of $160 per student is paid by the American Legion and Auxiliary through fundraisers held throughout the year, she said.

Selected for Girls State were (front from left) Wendy Scroby, Kelly DuPree, Stephany Tedder and alternates Tara Camcross and Allyson Bugal. In back from left were selections for Boys State: Tony Myers, Derek Werner, alternate Jim Hotary and Jeff Briggs.

Laura Richardson, there with her Optimist father, does a mean dribble. She's a kindergartner at Pine Knob Elementary.

Richardson, a second-grader at Pine Knob Elementary; and Jason Peltz, a seventh-grader at Sashabaw Junior High School.

Bouncing basketballs created Saturday morning thunder in the Clarkston Junior High School gymnasium.

Many of the over 30 participants in the Clarkston Optimist Club's Tri-Star Basketball Contest spent the morning in the gym, sharpening their skills after the contest was over.

At one end, older youngsters staged a half-court scrimmage. On the opposite side, there was lots of shooting and dribbling by the younger crowd.

The contest for 8- to 13-year-olds tested skills in three areas: shooting, aiming and dribbling. The children with the highest total scores in each age group won plaques.

The winners were: age 8—Jeff Cumberworth, first, and Tim O'Rourke, second; age 9—Sean Harrington with 146.31, the highest score overall, and Brandon Scheib; age 10—Corey Bildstein and Nicholas Mutthaupt; age 11—Ryan Morrissey and Danny Scheib; age 12—Heather Austin with 139.29, the second highest score overall, and Matthew Underwood; and age 13—Jason Beltz.

Tuman urges kids to look within who we are that we can't see our own value," he said. He wheels abruptly and points at a young man. "What is your favorite car?" he demands. Firing the question off several times, he gets responses like Lamborghini and Porsche.

"Now imagine that you just drove your car to school, and I came along with a wrecking ball and smashed it. How would you feel?" he asked the youths, who looked stricken. The responses were, as expected, to "hurt him back."

"If these cars are the only reason you have friends, your only image, then I have just destroyed you," he said.

"How do you know you don't have six months to live?" he asked, relating the deaths of several high school students in a car accident. "I'm sure those students didn't get up that morning thinking it was the last day of their lives."

He asked how many had been to a funeral in the last year. Many hands went up. He asked how many wished they had had a chance to say goodbye. Still many hands went up.

"This assembly isn't about death. It's about time," he said. "Maybe it's time to tell family and friends how much you love them. There are no guarantees about how much time we have in life."

He related a poignant story about his own father nearly dying before he had a chance to say "I love you" to him. And when he finally did say it, Tuman

"When are you going to start to care? How many are going to have to tell you they want to take their own lives before you stop tearing them down?"

said "it ranked among the best moments of my life."

Students shuffled uneasily in their seats and wiped tears from their cheeks as they recognized themselves in the emotional stories he told.

He asked how many had best friends. "Why is that your best friend?" he bellowed. "Because she listens to me" and "Because I can just be me" were some of the responses.

"How come none of you mentioned cars, or money, or the sports they played?" he demanded.

Instead, the answers were all about being themselves and not, as Tuman pointed out, about material things.

"If you were killed, what would you want to be remembered for," he asked. The unanimous response was "for myself."

"Listen up, because this is important. If you can't build someone up, DON'T tear them down. Walk away. For every put-down you give someone, it will come back to you sometime in your life."

"That's funny," Tuman said. "Ten minutes ago you would have killed me for a car you don't want to be remembered for."

"Think about how you want to be remembered, and then live it out," Tuman said.

"You don't get a second chance," he said. He told of a letter he received from a girl who had quarreled with her friend. She wanted to tell her she was sorry, but the friend was one of the three killed in the car accident.

"I can't bring back the people who died so you can say goodbye," he said quietly. "But I can give you the gift to say I love you to the ones who are still here."

Tuman talked about taking off our "masks" and being ourselves. "We're all alike and no one has to go it alone."

For the rest of the assembly, Tuman urged the students to do the talking.

"You've all had friends who have helped you through some tough times, and you've never let them know you cared," he said. "Have the courage, take the time to let them know. Let somebody know they made a difference in your life."

There was a moment of awkward silence before a young man stood up and walked to the microphone. It triggered a dozen others to follow suit, and soon there was a long line of students waiting to spill their innermost feelings to the entire audience.

The young man had been at a Tuman assembly before. He said, "Mr. Tuman brought us so close together. What he had to say hit home and hit fast."

He was new to the school and related a painful experience as he adjusted. He thought about taking his life. He talked about the fear he felt, and the friends who were able to "look past the shadow and see the real me."

A girl came up and hugged him. Many others followed.

Another young man described the anguish of losing a good friend and neighbor in a car accident. "Get to know everyone while you can," he urged.

Tuman took the microphone and said, "Even if you don't know this guy, find a way to give him some support. He's going through some pain."

So were many others. Like a giant magnet, Tuman had the ability to draw the pain these students harbored out into the open.

Many stood up, with trembling voices, and said they had tried to kill themselves. Many said, "This is really hard to say. I've only told a few people."

Within the hour, more students were out on the floor hugging one another and crying than were still sitting in the stands. Students were supporting other students that they wouldn't have even spoken to in the halls an hour before.

All the cliques dissolved for a moment. There were no jocks, no burnouts—just people.

A girl spoke next. In a voice barely under control

"We are all so busy letting everyone else tell us who we are that we can't see our own value."

and tears streaming down her face, she spoke of losing her closest friends in two car accidents.

"My last good friend, Billy, was 18. He and his girlfriend had just picked out engagement rings before he died. I never got to say goodbye to him," she sobbed. "Don't wait until it's too late, because it hurts too much."

Tuman said, "Her message is everything this assembly is about."

The aftermath

Adult support team was there to offer assistance

When Jim Tuman spoke to Clarkston High School students about self-esteem and goal setting, his fiery rhetoric was capable of melting the masks that people hide behind.

He had the ability to make students open up, to share their innermost feelings, and to care.

The emotional upheaval of the program may have left some students needing further support, or feeling the need to discuss further what they had poured out at the assembly.

For this reason, a special team of support people was available during and after the assembly. Students were free to talk to these people. All they had to do was ask their teachers for passes to the media center.

"These people performed an important service," said Brent Cooley, assistant principal at Clarkston High School. "When kids are in pain, they need people to talk with, people who will be non-judgmental."

In addition to Tuman's Volunteers of America associates on hand during the assembly, there were CHS staff members organized by CHS social worker Jim Butzine to support students: Bill Hartwell, Bill Bonnell, Vic Hart, Sandy Srabian, Linc Smith, Katie MacKay and Dave Schoemer.

There were other school personnel, plus numerous volunteers from the community available at the school to assist: Vicki Dickey, Garry Pullins, Mary Ann Pace, Larry Sherrill, Sheryl Butzine, Stan Garwood, Sharon Steinhilper, Wendell Jennings, the Rev. Robert Walters, Marge Dever, Karen Engle, the Rev. William Schramm, the Rev. Doug Trebilcock and Peter Keelin.

The Positive School Support Program was brought to CHS through the efforts of a task force at the school, headed by Cooley, and comprised of Larry Rosso, Linc Smith, Janet Miller, Toby Carter, Jim Wenger and Vince Licata.

The program cost the high school $1,500, and was co-sponsored by Volunteers of America, who contributed $500 to the $2,000 total fee.

Half of the nearly 1,600 students viewed it on the morning of March 9; the other half attended March 10.

"It took a lot of courage for these kids to get up to the microphone and talk," Tuman said during the assembly. It is a statement echoed by Cooley.

Everyone involved expressed the hope that the positive aspects of the assembly can be nurtured for a long time to come.

Parents, teachers can help

An assembly on self-esteem attended by Clarkston High School students last week was part of a Positive School Support Program designed for parents and teachers, as well.

The program, co-sponsored by Clarkston High School and Volunteers of America, was presented by Jim Tuman, nationally renowned motivational speaker and youth services director for the Volunteers of America.

"I developed this assembly at first so that teachers, administrators and people who work on line with kids could see them as real people, not as test scores," Tuman said.

CHS Assistant Principal Brent Cooley said the teacher and parent programs were an important part of the experience.

"I feel it is crucial that we all learn to support one another in a positive way," Cooley said. "This can only be accomplished through a community effort on the part of all individuals."

Bertie Synowiec and Sue Bishop, two Volunteers of America associates of Tuman, were in Clarkston to conduct the teacher and parent sessions.

"One of the things that's happened in the last 20 years is that many good teachers have been beaten down by the system," Synowiec said.

"We try to emphasize that you have to be real with the student. We brainstorm how to deal with kids in pain," she continued. "This can also be used to deal with adults in pain. It comes back around; we support one another."

Bishop agreed, adding, "We emphasize unity among the staff. We're just reiterating things we all learned about being a good teacher."

The teacher in-service was about a positive school environment. "No put-downs." "It's great to be me." The positive parenting program dealt with much the same philosophy.

Approximately 700 parents and students attended the evening program on March 10, according to Cooley.

"It was a very positive thing," he said. "Parents formed groups and shared their concerns about young people in general."

Parents are curious when their children come home from the assembly acting "differently," according to Synowiec and Bishop. They want to know more about the program.

"First, we identify what happened at the assembly," Synowiec said. "We have kids share some of this with the parents."

The women also talk to parents about being real with their children.

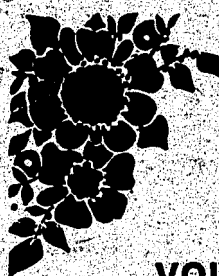

"Kids know when we're hurting inside, too," Synowiec said.

"The most important thing about the parent meeting is positive reinforcement, with no negatives," Bishop added.

It's an aspect of the program the school staff and Volunteers of America counselors hope to see continued long after the assembly and parent meeting.

"We've got a pretty good school community, but we've got to make it better," Cooley said. "We've got to nurture positive programs."

"There are good kids making wrong decisions. Sometimes there is difficulty distinguishing between the kid and the kid's behavior," he continued. "We have to change inappropriate behavior, but there is inherent worth in everyone. Discipline has to have a large dose of caring."

FARMERS NEW WORLD LIFE

Microwave-plus

Fish in a flash

Betty Wagner

During the Lenten season that preceeds Easter, meatless dishes are very popular.

Some people abstain from meat for religious reasons while others use this time to shed a few pounds by choosing fish in an attempt to reduce fat intake.

The microwave oven is perfect for quick and delicious fish entrees as well as other low-fat, meatless entrees.

Joan Toole's book "Cooking En Concert with Microwave" contains a special low-fat cooking section. Her husband, J. Gerald Toole, M.D., a cardiologist, helped develop this section.

Here are two delicious offerings from Joan's book. The recipes are reprinted with her permission.

FISH-VEGETABLE MEDLEY

Serves 2-3

- 1 pound fish fillets, red snapper or sole or halibut
- 3 long slender carrots
- 1 chicken bouillon cube
- 1/4 cup water
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1/2 cup soft bread crumbs
- 2 teaspoons green onions, chopped
- 1 tablespoon parsley

1. Peel carrots. Wrap them in plastic film and micro-cook on high power 4 to 5 minutes until tender. Remove plastic. Set aside.
2. Cut fish into 3 even pieces.
3. Place water in 1-cup glass measure and boil on high power 45 to 60 seconds. Add bouillon cube and stir to dissolve.
4. Wrap fish fillets around carrots and secure with toothpicks. Be sure to let bright ends of carrots show.
5. Place in a 2-quart dish. Mix lemon juice in bouillon and pour over fish. Sprinkle with bread crumbs, onions and parsley. Cover with plastic film, venting one corner.

6. Micro-cook on high power 5 to 7 minutes until fish is opaque and flakes easily with a fork.

7. Allow to after-cook, covered, 5 minutes.

LASAGNE AL FORNO SPECIAL

Serves 4-6

- 3 cups tomato sauce
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon sweet basil
- 1/2 teaspoon oregano
- 1/2 cup sunflower seeds, toasted
- 12 thin slices mozzarella cheese
- 1/4 cup fresh Parmesan cheese, grated (optional)
- 1 cup low-fat cottage cheese
- 3/4 pound whole grain lasagne noodles
- 1 bunch spinach

1. Cook noodles on conventional cooktop in boiling water 8 to 10 minutes until tender. Drain.

2. Crush garlic, sweet basil and oregano into tomato sauce.

3. Rinse spinach and shake leaves to remove excess water. Chop into bite-size pieces.

4. In a 3-quart dish, spread 1/2 cup of sauce, then 1/3 of noodles, 1/3 of spinach, 1/4 of seeds, 1/4 of cottage cheese and a layer of both cheeses. Repeat the layers of noodles, seeds and cheeses twice. Cover with remaining sauce and any remaining cheese and seeds.

5. Micro-cook on 70 percent power 6 to 8 minutes.

6. Allow to after-cook 15 minutes.

TIP: Sunflower seeds can be toasted on high power 5 to 7 minutes. Stir three times while toasting.

(Under authority of Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended)

Open Seasons And Catch Limits On Pike, Walleye, Sauger and Muskellunge

Under the authority of Section 4, Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended, being 300.4 of the Michigan Compiled Laws, the Natural Resources Commission, at its October 10, 1986, meeting, adopted the following order to become effective April 1, 1987, and remain valid for a period of five years until March 31, 1992. This order supersedes the order of May 17, 1985, CFI-112.85.

It shall be unlawful to take the following named species except within the open seasons and daily limits as prescribed below:

Open Season: On walleye, sauger, northern pike, and muskellunge (including tiger muskellunge).

Region I: All Upper Peninsula waters including the surrounding Great Lakes and connecting waters not otherwise closed to fishing shall be from May 15 through March 15.

Regions II and III: All Lower Peninsula waters except the Great Lakes and connecting waters not otherwise closed to fishing shall be from the last Saturday in April through March 15.

Regions II and III: The Great Lakes and connecting waters shall be open year around; except that muskellunge in Lake St. Clair, and the St. Clair and Detroit rivers may be taken only from the first Saturday in June through December 15 of each year.

For the purpose of this order, all drowned river mouth lakes such as Manistee Lake, Lake Macatawa and Muskegon Lake are considered as inland waters and are subject to inland water regulations.

Daily Catch Limits: Statewide limits shall be five (5) singly or in combination for largemouth and smallmouth bass, walleye and sauger and northern pike; the daily catch limit on muskellunge is one (1) (including tiger muskellunge) except that the daily catch limit on Lake St. Clair and the Detroit and St. Clair rivers shall be six singly or in combination for largemouth and smallmouth bass, walleye, sauger, and northern pike when the catch includes at least one walleye or sauger. And except that the daily catch on Lake Erie shall be 10 singly or in combination for largemouth and smallmouth bass, walleye, sauger, and northern pike when the catch includes at least five walleye or sauger.

For the purposes of this order the boundary between the Detroit River and Lake Erie is defined as an east-west line touching the southern most tip of Celeron Island.

Students share hugs and tears

Students got up and thanked their families or friends just for "being there." Some said, "I wouldn't be here today if it weren't for you. I love you."

No one left the microphone without being instantly surrounded by students sharing hugs and tears.

One student said he had broken apart from his best friend because he could see through his friend's image. "You don't have to pretend to look good. Just be yourself," he said.

His friend came down from the stands, and the hug they shared brought a standing ovation.

Many students spoke of the pain of rejection, of being put down, of being lonely.

A few spoke of special physical problems that made them "different." Some spoke of problems at home.

"Maybe it's time to tell family and friends how much you love them. There are no guarantees about how much time we have in life."

"When are you going to start to care?" Tuman bellowed at the crowd. "How many are going to have to tell you they want to take their own lives before you stop tearing them down?"

And therein lies the biggest impact of Jim Tuman's program.

"Listen up," he demanded, "because this is important. If you can't build someone up, DON'T tear them down. Walk away."

"For every put-down you give someone, it will come back to you sometime in your life," he said.

"Some of you want to disappear, to make the pain go away," he said. "You've got people in this school who want to help you. Find someone to connect with. Let them help you through some tough times."

"The bottom line," said Tuman, "is family and friends."

Cooley had asked for volunteers to present Tuman with a special award for caring at the end of the assembly. He had more volunteers than he knew what to do with.

Tuman was mobbed with students wanting to thank him, wanting to touch him, to share with him. Here was a man who cared about their pain.

Missy Spiece leads the lineup of the Clarkston High School Winter Guard during one routine.

Their twirling flags create a colorful visual delight in time with the recorded music. The 14-member team will present their 7½-minute routine Sunday night at CHS.

CHS students are on their guard for upcoming contest

Precision is the watchword for the Clarkston High School Winter Guard Contest in the CHS gymnasium Sunday, March 22.

Ten high school teams are to compete and, as part of the contest, the CHS Winter Guard will put on an exhibition performance at the end of the program.

The event is to begin at 3 p.m. and continue until about 7, when the judges will announce the results. Admission is $3 for adults, $2 for students and $1 for children under 12.

Audience members can expect to see twirling flags, sabers and wooden rifles as the teams perform their synchronized routines to music.

Each group's performance will last 4½ to 7½ minutes, as governed by the rules. Teams to compete are Esperia from St. Charles, Avaria from West Bloomfield, Bandettes from Sault Ste. Marie, L'Anse Creuse North from Mt. Clemens, Providence from Mt. Morris, Flushing, Sensie from Southgate, Spirit of Windsor from Canada, Bridgeport Seventh Star and Studio One from Flint.

The CHS Winter Guard rehearses five to eight hours a week during March and competes on weekends. In competitions at Flushing and St. Charles, they placed fifth.

The guard is in its second year and it is supported by the Clarkston Band Boosters. The team is affiliated with the Michigan Color Guard Circuit, the hosts of contests throughout the state.

Members of the Clarkston Winter Guard are Kristi Bas, Jeni Carr, Jennifer Freil, Stacey Gackstetter, Kelsey Harmon, Julie Kidd, Julie Meredith, Heather Moe, Michelle Poole, Kerri Ranta, Kristin Ried, Kris Rosenthal, Marcy Spiece and Missy Spiece. Bas and Ried are commanding officers.

Instructors are Clarkston area residents Cheryl Girard and John Freil.

A Bridgeport native, Girard works as a copywriter for an advertising agency and teaches dance for Troy Community Education.

Freil, a 1983 graduate of CHS, was a drum major for the school's marching band. He is majoring in architecture at the Lawrence Institute of Technology in Southfield.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT, Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything & who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the divine gift to forgive & forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you, no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you & my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Thank you for your love. Amen. Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Ppray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish, after the third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as your favor has been granted. Wish granted. IIRX10-2

Students see D.C. up close

By Julie Campe

The Tower Commission, President Reagan, the homeless bill, Ed Meese, the Washington Post—all speckled the sentences spoken by six Clarkston High School students and a social studies teacher after they returned from their trip to Washington, D.C.

Their week in the Close-Up program, a close-up look at government for high school students, threw them into a whirlwind of political activity.

It was the week Reagan gave his speech following the Tower Commission report. They heard Attorney General Ed Meese speak during a standing committee report and heard oral arguments in the United States Supreme Court.

Every day, the students read the Washington Post and attended workshops, seminars and tours of the city, as did their teacher Jim Wenger.

"That week was especially nice," he said, mentioning the good weather and the excitement of the Iran-contra affair.

"They had a homeless bill going on and the contrast of the powerful and rich with the poverty was amazing," he said.

"It was extremely tiring and extremely gratifying," said Wenger, adding the students "really worked hard at raising the money. Their behavior was above-board, and they had fun."

For the students, it was more than fun.

"The city itself was exciting," said Andrew Kar. "One of the most upsetting things was the number of homeless."

There's a lot of irony in finding a hungry and homeless person two blocks from the White House.

"There's seems to be more freedom in government than you think," said Kar. "You can walk into any representative's office and say, 'Hi,' or walk into the Supreme Court."

Kristi Bas was surprised to find informal government workings. She saw Meese speaking during a standing committee report, she said, and others were talking at the same time and not paying attention.

Kar noticed it, too.

"He doesn't look any different from the back of the head than anybody else," he said.

"They're like high school kids," said Cynthia Merritt.

When Merritt returned, she was tired of hearing about the Iran-contra affair, she said.

But for Jon Midtgard, the background information was helpful.

"It was interesting to come back and read the paper and watch the news and know what's happening," he said.

Perhaps the most important part of the trip was the self-knowledge they gained and the tolerance they learned of others' viewpoints, said some.

"You didn't have to agree, but you had to accept others' opinions," said Monica Strobehn.

She argued with one person at the beginning of the week, she said, but by the end of the week, they were friends—even though they didn't agree on most issues.

"I found I had to re-think a lot of things," said Kar.

"Hardly anyone is very radically conservative or liberal," said Merritt. "The spectrum is so wide that some subjects don't fit in, and you can't categorize as conservative or liberal."

Wenger and the students expressed gratitude to the organizations that contributed toward the $700 per person for the trip: Clarkston Rotary Club, the Optimists, Student Government and the Clarkston Gifted and Talented.

During rehearsal for "Hello, Dolly," Dolly Levi (Jennifer Fenton) convinces Ambrose Kemper (Jeff Huber) not to worry and to follow her match-making plan. The Clarkston High School performance is scheduled for March 26, 27 and 28 at 8 p.m., March 29 at 2 p.m. and April 2, 3 and 4 at 8 p.m. The Thursday evening and Sunday matinee performances are $3; other shows are $4.50 for adults and $3.50 for students and senior citizens.

Cornelius Haki (Craig Hayward, left) and Barnaby Tucker (Jeremy Roberts) prepare for an adventure in New York where they hope to meet girls. The proceeds, except royalties, from the Thursday, April 2, performance are to benefit the John J. Kirchgessner Scholarship Fund, in memory of the CHS principal who died last year in March.

A lot happens in Irene Molloy's hat shop, and Amy Travis sings a solo just before the adventure begins. Other cast members include Allan Watson as Horace Vandergelder, Laura Manser as Ernestina, Lori Neff as Minnie Fay, Michelle Blomberg as Mrs. Rose and Matt Ford as Rudolph.
