Residents retrieve eggs

Rifle fire kills pair of swans

By Kathy Greenfield

A pair of swans were killed by rifle fire last weekend in a channel between Lake Oakland and Woodhull Lake, but efforts are under way to save the swans' offspring.

On Sunday, after residents found the bodies of the swans, their six eggs were removed from the nest in Independence Township. Brenda Weathers is keeping them warm under light bulbs in the den of her

Meyers Road home until swan breeders from Lapeer can pick them up.

Weathers is upset and angry over the loss.

"It was definitely intentional, and that's what's so sick about this," she said.

She recalls hearing gunshots Saturday. On Sunday at about 4 p.m., the shooting recurred. As about 15 shots were fired, the popping sound became louder.

Follow the bunny trail

When the Easter Bunny hopped by The Clarkston News office this week, he told us he plans to hide Easter eggs starting this weekend.

And he plans to spend a lot of time figuring out how to best conceal them—that's more fun for children, he said.

He also told us his favorite egg-hiding places—spread all over the community. Several groups have volunteered to direct children on the egg hunts.

Clintonwood Park Easter Egg Hunt: The search is planned at 10 a.m. Saturday, April 11, at Clintonwood Park on Clarkston Road. If it rains, it will be postponed to April 18. The Clarkston Area Jaycees volunteered to host this hunt for the Easter Bunny and will give prizes in four age groups. For more information, call 625-0530.

Easter Spring Fling: Several activities are planned from noon to 3 p.m. Saturday, April 11, at Springfield Oaks County Park, 12450 Andersonville Rd., Springfield Township. Walk with the Easter Bunny at 12:30 p.m. The egg hunt at 1 p.m. is guided by the Springfield Jaycees with prizes for preschoolers to 12-year-olds. At 2 p.m., the Easter Bunny's pilot friend will drop marshmallows from the sky, and children can hunt for them to exchange for Easter goodies. For more information, call 625-8133.

Egg Hunt and Visit with the Easter Chicken: The gathering is to begin at 11 a.m. Saturday, April 18, at Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church, 15300 Maybee Rd., Independence Township. The church members will be helping with this hunt, although it's open to all children. Since the Easter Bunny couldn't be in two places at once, he asked his friend the Easter Chicken to help with this one. For more information, call 625-3101.

To illustrate his story, Jared Weathers holds a swan egg in the den of his family's home on Meyers Road. Swan breeders in Lapeer plan to try to hatch the eggs and save the offspring of a pair of swans shot and killed in Independence Township last weekend.

Swans killed on lake channel

Visible on the opposite side of the channel from her home was a junior-high-school-age boy shooting a rifle toward the water. A neighbor began yelling, and two boys could be seen running into the woods.

One was wearing a bright blue jacket with a hunting license tacked on the back and the other was wearing a brown jacket.

A neighbor took his rowboat across the water to retrieve the swans. One was cold and the residents believe it was killed Saturday, Weathers said. The other was still warm.

"He was a good shot. He hit him right in the neck, so his aim was good," she said.

Also found were empty 22-caliber rifle shells.

The incident has left the residents worried about the safety of the remaining swans and of their families. Weathers noted that a stray bullet from the large-size rifle could kill a person.

Tootsie Roll sale to help retarded

Tootsie Rolls go on sale April 10 and 11 during the Clarkston Knights of Columbus annual fundraiser for the mentally retarded.

This year, as in previous years, there will be over 125 Knights working in shifts at nine locations throughout the area.

Last year's drive exceeded $12,000, which was distributed to area organizations with the most need.

"This year, we hope to raise $15,000," said Milt Haines, chairperson.

The Oakland County Association for Retarded Citizens presented the Clarkston Council with the distinguished service award at their annual banquet. Pamela Eldred, the former Miss America, presented the award.

She and her husband, Glenn, have lived on the channel 10 years and swans have always been part of their waterfront view.

They've watched them build nests and care for their young. And they've seen batches of newly hatched cygnets grow from scruffy gray creatures to beautiful white swans.

Her voice is sad as she recalls looking across the channel and seeing "a great big white glob laying in the muck" after the swan was killed Sunday.

"Swans are not aggressive animals. They're there to have their babies. (People should) just let them be," she said.

The incident was reported to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department and on Monday, Weathers called the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

The DNR provided the telephone number of Larry and Jane Dalton, the swan breeders in Lapeer.

On Monday morning, Jane Dalton said she and her husband were planning to pick up the eggs that evening. She was hopeful they could be hatched.

"My guess is we might have a good chance since this happened this weekend," she said.

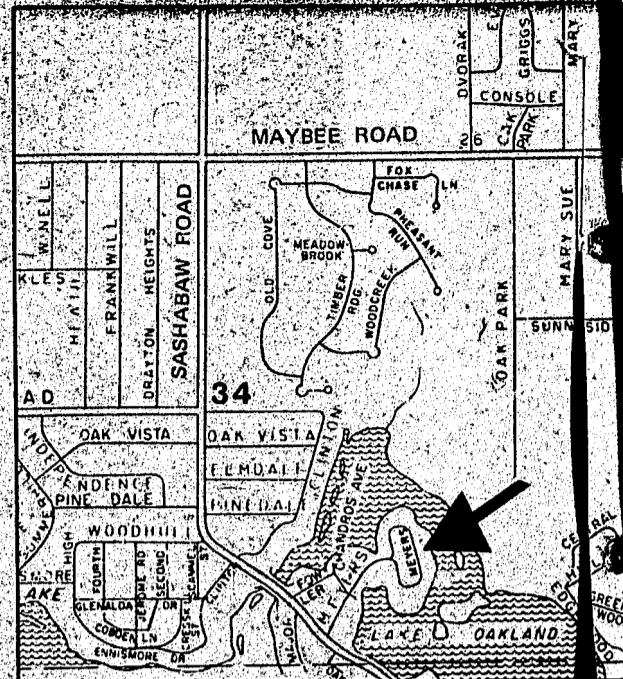

The incubation period for swan eggs, which weigh 3 to 4 pounds apiece, is 28 to 29 days. Once the eggs are placed in the nest of another swan, the waiting will begin.

Lt. Cliff Johnson of the DNR Law Enforcement Division said on Monday that the leads were slim, but if anyone has information that could lead to the "arrest and conviction of the murderers," the DNR should be contacted at 666-1500.

"If we could get some kind of clues or information about who could have done it, we'd certainly follow up on it," he said.

Swans are protected by state and federal laws. Killing a swan is a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of up to $100 and a jail sentence of up to 90 days. In addition, anyone found guilty of killing a swan must make restitution of $500 to the state.

Four or five swans are murdered each year in the Oakland County area, Johnson said.

The swans were part of the view for residents on the channel between Lake Oakland and Woodhull Lake.

11 make CHS 'Top 10' list

The "Top 10" in Clarkston High School's Class of 1987 are "outstanding kids," says CHS principal Dr. Robert Burek.

"They're not just book kids that go home and study. They're involved in the extra-curricular activities of school life, and they're just great kids," Burek says.

The list of the students with the top 10 grade point averages is comprised of 11 students including co-valedictorians Peter Hollis and Kimberly Johnson, with averages of 4.10, and salutatorian Amy Pilarcik, with an average of 4.066.

In recognizing the top graduates' achievements, Burek introduced the students and their parents to the board of education on March 9, and on March 25, the students and their parents were honored guests at a special reception at the high school.

At graduation, June 8 at 7:30 p.m. at the Pine Knob Music Theatre, the Top 10 will lead their classmates into the pavilion when the formal ceremony begins.

Grade points at CHS are based on a 4.0 scale with honor points for more difficult academic courses, which accounts for some averages above 4.0.

The honored students and their achievements follow:

Peter Hollis, 4.10: Three-year member of the National Honor Society; senior class vice president; varsity football; varsity tennis; junior varsity basketball, baseball and golf. He received the B.J. Hanson award in football, is a Merit Scholar, was named an Academic All American as a junior and senior and was the recipient as a junior of a national math award. He plans to attend the University of Michigan and major in liberal arts. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Aho of Snowapple Drive.

Kimberly Johnson, 4.10: Spanish Club, National Honor Society, Quiz Bowl, Powder Puff football, tutor in reading comprehension. She has been active in her church as a pianist, Sunday school teacher, participant in the youth group and member of the Youth Council. She plans to attend the University of Michigan and major in engineering or accounting. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ken Johnson of Clintonville Road.

Amy Pilarcik, 4.066: Spanish Club, three years; marching band as a sophomore; tutor for two years; three-year member of the National Honor Society; active in church youth activities. She plans to attend Notre Dame University or Miami University of Ohio and major in psychology. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pilarcik of Green Haven Drive.

Keith Mercier, 4.05: Baseball, football and basketball during sophomore year; MVP in basketball; captain of basketball team; basketball and baseball teams during junior and senior years; three-year member of National Honor Society; Student Rotarian as a junior; member of Calvary Lutheran Church. He plans to attend the University of Michigan and major in mechanical engineering. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Mercier of Clearview Road.

Michelle Pettit, 4.016: Three-year member of the Drama Club, MIME Troupe, National Honor Society and the Spanish Club; secretary this year of NHS and Spanish and Drama clubs; director of MIME Troupe; soccer team, sophomore and junior years; senior Powder Puff football team. She plans to attend the University of Michigan, University of Miami (Florida) or the College of William and Mary and major in marine biology. She is the daughter of Gail Pettit of Ruth (Ragatz) Mason, a 1978 CHS grad, was a member of the CHS pompon squad, Drayton Heights Free Methodist Church and the Teens For Christ singing group before she moved to New York.

Questions surround death of CHS grad

By Julie Campe

The hardest part is not knowing. And Paul and Betty Ragatz don't like to talk about it when they don't know anything more than hearsay, they said.

So far, all they have is third-hand information on the details surrounding their daughter's death, said Paul.

All they know is on March 25, police found 26-year-old Ruth (Ragatz) Mason dead in Sufferin, N.Y., a small town in a county adjacent to Ruth's home in Wallkill.

"The way it's working out now is she was killed in her own home by her own husband and then transported across one county into the next," said Paul.

They have not received official reports yet, said Paul, but in a phone conversation with local New York police, he was told Ruth's husband Donald was arrested and charged with second degree murder.

In a telephone interview Monday, Detective Sgt. Duane Whitaker from the Ramapo, N.Y., Police Department confirmed that Donald Mason was charged with second degree murder. Mason pleaded not guilty at the March 27 arraignment, he said.

The Ragatzes are still trying to overcome the shock, said Paul.

Betty had visited Ruth just five days before her death, she said, adding "There was nothing to indicate anything out of line whatsoever."

Paul and Betty prefer to talk about the things they do know, like how talented and nice Ruth was.

She liked most crafts and made many items for her home, said Betty, and she was a good seamstress.

"We buried her in the dress she made," said Paul.

"Among other things, she was a very good artist," he said. "She loved to paint. I would have liked to have seen her really get into something like that."

Ruth worked in the claims department at AT&T in Sufferin, where her husband also worked, he said.

"She just loved life in every aspect," said Paul, mentioning a recent skiing trip she took to Aspen, Colo., this winter.

"She wrote me a letter and said, 'Dad, I never knew there was such grandeur. If you wanted to see things to really know there is a God, you can sure see it in the Rocky Mountains.'

Ruth was a member of the Leptondale Bible Church and active with the youth group. A cheerleading coach for the church basketball team, she also belonged to a Bible study group that met once a week.

"They were a part of the church family," said Paul.

A 1978 Clarkston High School graduate, Ruth had only lived in New York for about two years, he said, and she made some very good friends.

He mentioned Al VanDam and his wife who Ruth felt were her adopted parents 800 miles from home. And Wendy Baker was her friend at work and after work, he said.

"They had like 'vibes,'" said Paul. "They were like sisters."

"It will be a long, long time—we'll never completely get over it," said Paul.

Paul and Betty are grateful for the support of their friends and relatives.

"It's just beyond our imagination how people have come in to help us—just bushels and bushels of food," said Paul.

Daycare for adults begins April 14

Day care will soon be available for adults in the Independence Township, Waterford Township and Pontiac areas who should not be left home alone.

A component of the Waterford Senior Citizen Center, ENCORE provides care from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays, starting April 14 at the Waterford Senior Citizens Center, 6455 Harper Rd.

The program is not designed for medical treatment, said Esther Callahan, Waterford senior citizens coordinator.

If accepted into the program, an adult could attend for $25 a day and participate in a wide variety of activities.

Transportation is also available in many areas for a small fee, she said.

"There is a great need for this service," said Callahan. "There has been for a long time, but we've never had a place to do it."

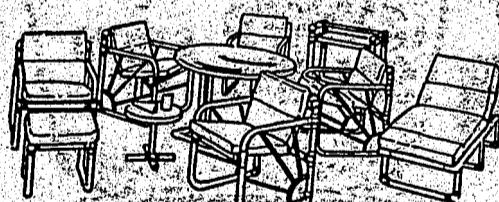

For more information or to enroll, call 625-6500. Sponsored by the senior citizen center, Waterford Township and Waterford schools will also help, said Callahan.

To raise funds, a bluegrass music concert by Doyle Lawson and Quick Silver and a magic show by Jeff Hobson are planned at 8 p.m. Friday, April 24, at Waterford Kettering High School, 2800 Bender Rd.

All proceeds are to benefit ENCORE.

"It's one of the finest jazz ensembles we've had here in Clarkston," said Cliff Chapman, CHS band director, "and it's the only time the jazz ensemble will appear in a concert by themselves. The students are all outstanding."

Students featured in the concert include Scott Orth on guitar; Craig Hayward, Russ Simonson and Matt Jensen on saxophone; Tracy Roek and Tasha Vaara on trumpet; Greg Hall on bass; Rod Swanson on drums; and Andrew Newman on piano.

Opinions

Timely question

Kathy Greenfield

The clock that once hung on our office wall came crashing down just days before Daylight Savings Time struck.

The loss of the clock, apparently damaged beyond repair, was significant all by itself.

Over the past seven years or so, it has become an important part of my life. For one thing, it allowed me to function without wearing a wristwatch—and so I liked it. A lot.

I vaguely remember being thrilled about my first wristwatch. What a boon! The idea of never having to wonder about the time had its appeal.

I soon realized, however, that watch wearers have to develop a certain coyness. It takes great self-control to not look at the watch while trying to hide boredom.

I never could master that art.

My most traumatic experience had to do with a new watch. Whenever I put it on, it didn't work. When I wasn't wearing it, it kept perfect time. When other people wore it, it kept perfect time.

We took it back to the place of purchase. They could find nothing wrong with it and came up with a tale about how some people couldn't wear watches. I gave up.

Since then, I've ignored the exciting advent of digital dials that glow in the dark with alarms you can set.

I've only been tempted by the latest round of fashion watches. They're small works of art, and they come in bold colors so you can buy one for each outfit.

What appeals to me—and the reason I think they're so popular—involves their other highlight. Since there are no numbers on most of the dials, you simply cannot tell exactly what time it is except at 12 o'clock, 3 o'clock, 6 o'clock and 9 o'clock.

Unfortunately, this attitude of mine toward time does not work when I'm at work—I have appointments and deadlines to keep.

I needed that wall clock.

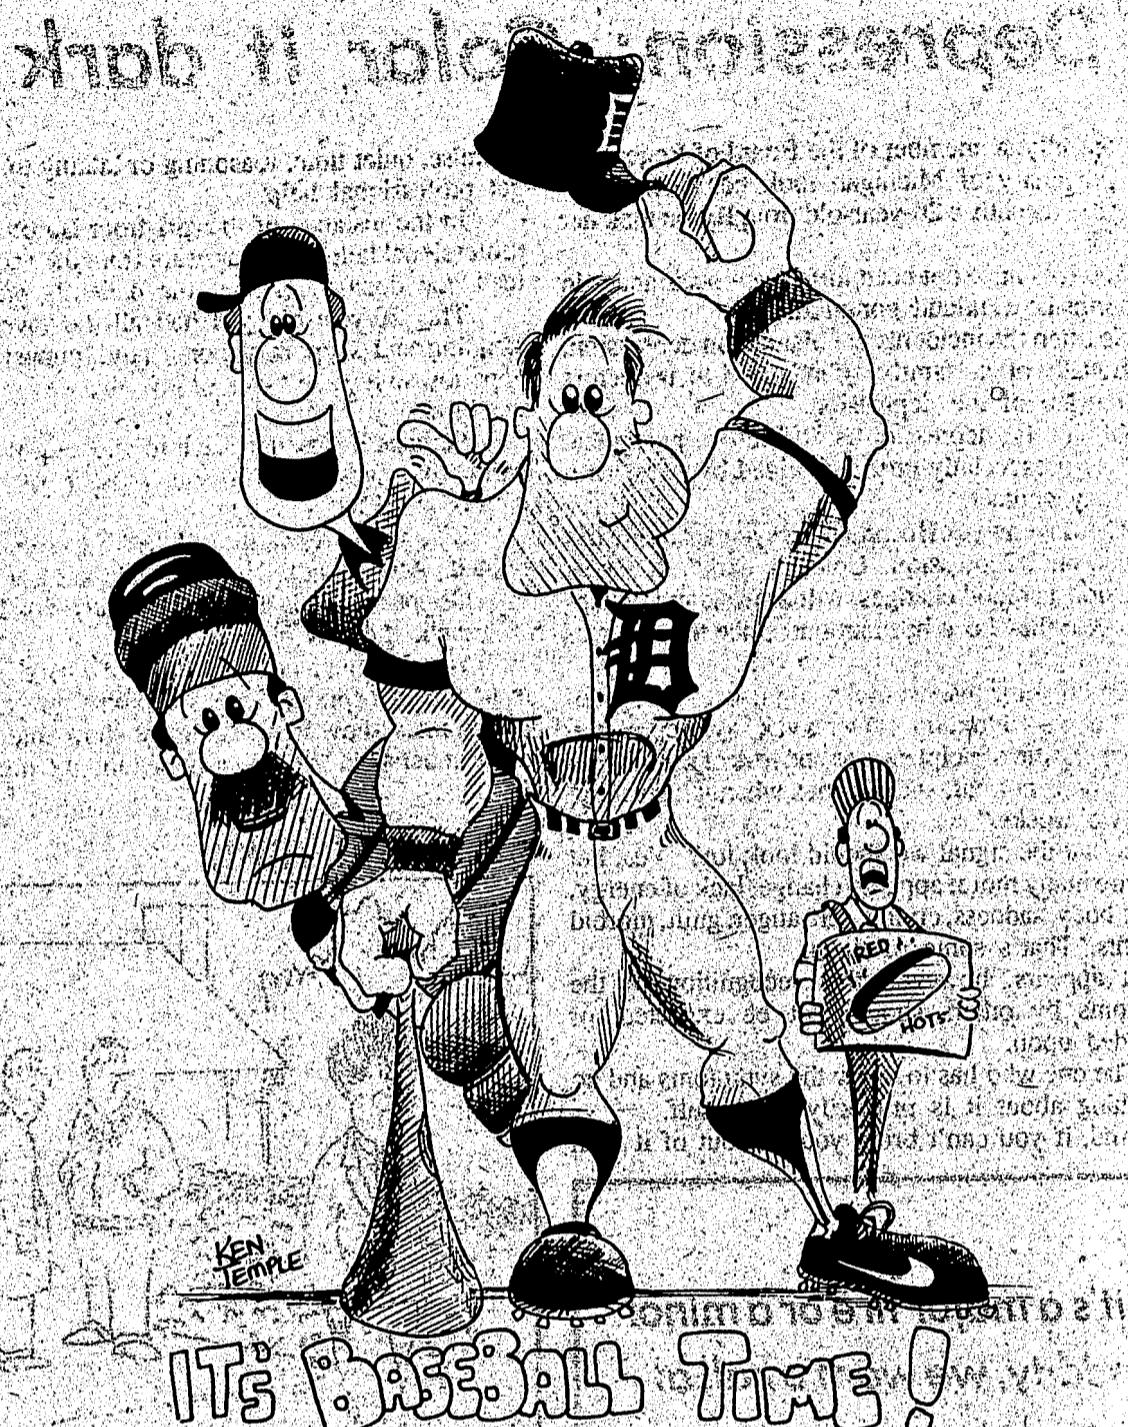

I don't need Daylight Savings Time, which throws off my sense of time.

Glancing down at the wristwatch I dug out of my drawer out of desperation, I see I have just seconds to make one more point.

I read that the original person to push Daylight Savings Time was connected with the manufacturing of charcoal briquets.

The reasoning was supposed to go something like this: If there were more daylight hours in the evening, more people would have time to cook out; thus, more briquets would be sold.

In my wildest imagination, I couldn't have come up with anything more appropriate, and dumb enough, to answer the question: "Why?"

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

In speaking of Washington D.C. one time, President Harry Truman said, "If you want a friend in Washington, buy a dog."

Another comment made by an assistant to the president while we were in Washington last month was: From 1960 to 1980 our country's major financial commitment to education increased 90 percent.

At the same time student SAT test results declined, delinquency went up, drug use went up, and mortality rate for teens went up while going down for all other age groups.

The speaker's conclusion was money alone won't do it for educating our youngsters.

Enter my comment: Wasn't the 1960-80 period the "me" generation? Wasn't that the time when parents were told to do your own thing, to share partners, to do things that make you feel good... be your own person?

The White House representative and I agree on one thing... kids need more love, or another way, we need more love of kids.

One last offering on Washington, and we'll return to the real world. The community press representatives we were with were given a tour of the Pentagon. Had we not been escorted the tour would have taken about 3 minutes. With a guide it took 45.

Thirty of the minutes were spent listening to some fine marine singers and speeches thanking us for running news stories of servicemen... and asking us to not run down the Pentagon.

I wouldn't think of doing such a thing. So when I tell you the Pentagon has 23,000 employees who drink 30,000 cups of coffee a day, I'm using their figures.

Were I to write disparagingly, I'd say the Pentagon has 8,000 workers, and Hills Brothers has an in-house plant there.

The Pentagon brochure says 9,849 cars park on 67 acres. I'd say that was good planning, taking into account absenteeism, because most places need 23,000 parking spaces if they have 23,000 employees.

When Pentagon officials were through sweet talking us, they gave us a choice of red or white wine. Wine is never mentioned as being available in the 5-sided building, just the daily consumption of 6,000 pints of milk, 5,000 soft drinks, and 685 drinking fountains.

The Pentagon literature says it cost $83 million to build it. There is no mention of cost over-run. But then, it was built during war time, 1941-43, and 'nothing is too much for our fighting boys'... that's why we built the world's largest office building with 17.5 miles of corridors.

Not to knock it, though. I'll help pay for another one, if the home of the Department of Defense can preserve the peace... and keep my grandson out of war.

Depression: Color it dark

Recently, a member of the Board of Regents of the University of Michigan took her own life.

Also, recently a 20-year-old from Byron took her own life.

Suicides have not been infrequent occurrences in our northeast Oakland community.

So often the incidents are blamed on depression.

Equally often, family, friends, and their doctors are unaware of the depression.

Obviously, depression is difficult to recognize. They say it especially goes unnoticed by those with every day contact.

The Havenwyck Hospital for psychiatric care has a folder on "Depression: Color it dark". It labels depression as mood changes, withdrawal, and unhappiness, and they have been around since the dawn of man.

You'd think we would recognize these symptoms. Yet we seldom do. Havenwyck says depression is an expression of helplessness and loss of power, and depression is normal, and "serious when it lasts more than two weeks."

Is that the signal we should look for? Yes, but there are many more: appetite change, lack of energy, aching body, sadness, crying, self-anger, guilt, morbid thoughts. That's some of them.

It appears, however, that recognition of the symptoms by others should not be expected, or depended upon.

The one who has to know the symptoms and do something about it is primarily one's self.

And, if you can't bring yourself out of it with

If it's a major fire or a minor oddity, we want a call at exercise, quiet time, reasoning or talking to a friend, get professional help.

In the instance of the girl from Byron, she got professional help, but it appears from the account we read, the doctor misread the patient's progress.

This 20-year-old girl had all the love, understanding and support at home any youngster could hope for, so it wasn't lack of love that drove her over the brink.

Perhaps it was her drive to succeed, not disappoint, that caused her action, plus an overload of credits at MSU.

But, what of all the others? All are not drug related. All are not from fear of being a burden.

Of course, ALL are not from any single thing. And, there is no pill.

What we must do is be aware of what depression is, be able to recognize some symptoms, and talk about it. We must show love. We must show interest. We must understand. We must hope, and we must pray. JAS

Police praise

On behalf of my employees and family, I would like to take this opportunity to commend the entire Oakland County Sheriff's Department, and particularly Sgt. Wark and Sgt. Coats, for their efforts in investigating the recent armed robbery at the Deer Lake Inn.

It has come to my attention that the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office Investigative Bureau also participated at great length, and I applaud their efforts also.

It's my understanding combined manpower totaled over 10 investigators on this single case at one time.

My heartfelt thanks for everyone's concern, which resulted in two arrests being swiftly made.

Again, thanks to everyone for a job well done.

Dance a delight

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all those involved in making the second Clarkston Athletic Boosters' dance such a great success!

The people that gave of their time to chaperone, sell concessions or tickets deserve a medal. You showed the students how important they are and how much you care about them.

To my committee members, I wish to express my heartfelt thanks for helping to get everything organized. (You made my a lot job easier.)

Lastly, I would like to thank the students of Sashabaw and Clarkston junior high schools for behaving and representing your schools with pride.

Slouch is in like fuchsia

Jim Fitzgerald

Slickly uniformed Pentagon poseurs, standing straight while dealing crooked, so they slouch and wear socks that droop on purpose. They also use razors that leave a stubble on purpose. It is a fashion statement that says: "I may look sloppy, but at least I don't divert money to the contras."

SLOUCH SOCKS can be purchased in many men's hosiery departments for $4.50 a pair. But you want to know where I got that fuchsia lace-trimmed T-shirt. Sandy Schreier, noted Detroit area fashion historian, gave it to me after I poked fun at women who wear huge shoulder pads that make them look like fullbacks.

Sandy said these manly costumes help women prove their equality to men, especially in the business world. I said I didn't like women to look manly, but I had no objection to the opposite. And Sandy decided I should put my money where my po'belly is.

"Across the front of my frilly T-shirt is lettered: 'I don't care if men look womanly.'"

"It's a beautiful shirt, but I haven't worn it yet because it didn't come with built-in sweat stains. I don't want anyone to mistake me for Glici Northrom's way to the tailor to have battle stars sewn to his starched pajamas. I don't want anyone to think I'm not slouch."

The latest addition to my ever-tasteful wardrobe is a fuchsia T-shirt with lace around the collar and cuffs. But it didn't come fresh from the factory with damp sweat in the armpits, so it probably isn't stylish.

The headline in a current newspaper advertisement says: "Slouch socks from Burlington. Socks made to fall down on purpose." That's stylish.

"In the past," the ad continues, "if your socks fell down, it meant they were old or very cheap. No longer. Now it means you're following the hottest trend in socks today. Big, bulky, in tons of solid colors. All meant to fall down on purpose."

A photo shows feet wearing slouch socks that droop into shoes with the laces untied. Today it is also stylish to maximize your chances of tripping over your shoelaces. Slouch used to be a disparaging word, often used to describe a person with poor posture who leaned against a pole in front of a poolroom instead of working for a living. Today, it is not only acceptable to slouch, it is fashionable. AS FAR AS I'm concerned, this change can be blamed on the Reagan administration. More precisely, it should be blamed on the military types working in the White House air ducts - guys like Lt. Col. Oliver North, Rear Adm. John Poindexter and retired Air Force Gen. Richard Secord.

You've seen them on TV. They always stand or sit ramrod straight while refusing to reveal anything except name, rank, serial number and name of lawyer. These guys give good posture a bad name.

North looks as if he'd rather break his spine than break a crease in his uniform. When Secord walks into an office building even with a civilian raincoat covering his puffed-out chest, he looks like he's wading ashore a conquered island. And Poindexter keeps puffing on his pipe as though his military bearing makes him immune to cancer - and to the health concerns of nearby people forced to inhale his smoke.

Teenage boys used to want to attend West Point and learn how to keep their shoulders back, stomach in and socks up. But now they see, spic and stuff Ollie North taking the Fifth instead of loudly denying that he snuck arms to the bad guys and otherwise broke the law while President Reagan was busy trying to remember if the commander-in-chief outranks Enola Flynn.

Weed fight to begin in Walters Lake

By Julie Campe

Weeds in Walters Lake, beware.

The five-member Walters Lake Board has reconvened to analyze the thick weed problems on the lake at Clarkston and Eston Roads, Independence Township.

The board is also to recommend a solution.

A public hearing is set for 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 20, at the Township Hall annex, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

First established in 1984, the board faced some opposition from residents with lake access, said John Lutz, township treasurer and lake resident.

"Some of the residents, in Thendara Park for instance, had other priorities—like roads," he said. Some felt they shouldn't have to pay for lake improvements if they didn't use the lake, he said.

Others think anyone with lake access should help pay for improvements—whether they used the lake or not, he said. One purpose of the board is to be sure that residents are fairly and equally assessed, he said.

"The lake is overpowered by weeds," he said.

"Something has to be done."

Ordered by the lake board in 1984, a lake study by Cleary Engineers, Auburn Hills, sited several problems and solutions:

A large amount of phosphorous (over 7 tons) was found in the bottom sediments, mainly caused by septic tank effluents and lawn fertilizers.

For this reason, lawn fertilizers used in the immediate watershed should be phosphorus free because enough phosphorus is already in the soil. Besides, phosphorus, a root growth nutrient, doesn't make lawns green; nitrogen does.

Also, some method of exporting the septic tank effluent from the immediate watershed should be found—possibly to a large tile field some distance from the lake.

The study recommended weed harvesting with a commercial harvester—a machine that cuts weeds in lakes—and some herbicides in shallow areas.

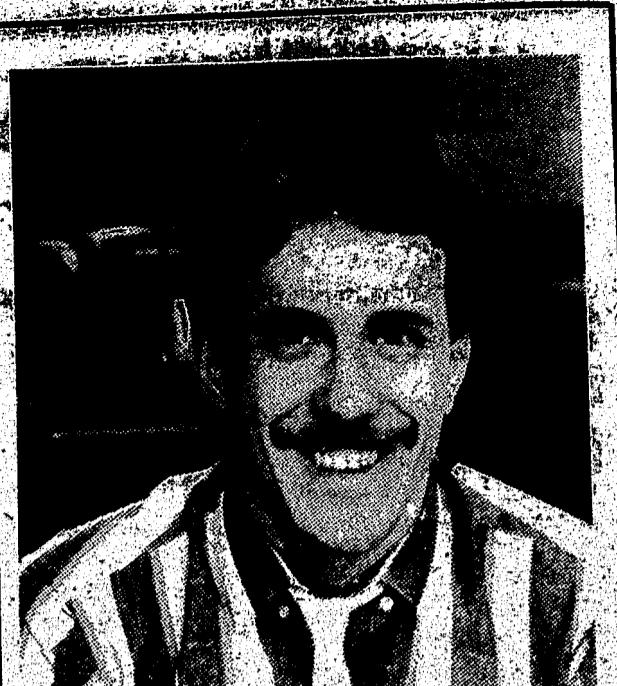

Existing dam improvements or replacements were also recommended.

Walters Lake is private, said Lutz, adding that Van Norman Lake, Big Lake and Pontiac Lake also have lake boards.

More lake boards are established in Oakland County than any other county in the state, he said.

Thick, thick weeds plague Walters Lake in the northeast quadrant of Independence Township. A lake board, established in 1984, plans to find solutions to the problem.

Lighter ignites house

A house on Oak Park Street, Independence Township, was extensively damaged when it caught fire about 6:25 p.m. April 1.

Apparently, a 13-year-old boy who was home alone accidentally started the fire with a cigarette lighter, said Capt. Steve Ronk of the township fire department.

A mattress caught on fire, and the boy tried to put it out himself and couldn't. He then called his mother who told him to get the dog and get out of the house, said Ronk.

The room of origin was gutted by the time firefighters were called, he said, and the rest of the house suffered extensive heat and smoke damage, for a total of about $45,000 in damages.

The fire was under control about 15 minutes after firefighters arrived at the house off Maybee Road in the northeast quadrant of the township, said Ronk.

It was tough on the boy, said Ronk. "He learned the hard way. I don't know what it is about fire that makes people want to play with it."

The house could have received less damage if the fire department been called immediately, said Ronk, adding that the best procedure in a fire is to leave the premises immediately and call the fire department from a neighbor's house.

Also, the house wasn't constructed with drywall, and the wood paneling used instead burned more quickly, he said.

Friendly faces People are best medicine

By Julie Campe

Medicine combines all the things Tina Cougan loves.

Working with people, constant learning and fast work are required of her as a medical assistant for doctors Barbara Bober and Anthony Aenle on M-15, Independence Township.

It's what she's always wanted to do, she said, adding that she's studying to be a nurse and she worked with patients in home health care for about five years.

"I love elderly people," she said. "They're fun. They always have good stories to tell... . The patients need someone when they're sick, especially the elderly."

"I hope to specialize in the elderly someday. They can always teach you something because they've been there."

Tina wouldn't trade her chosen field for anything, she said.

"Medicine is for me," she said. "It's really educational. I've learned a lot about it. I've learned a lot about doctors."

Dr. Aenle and Dr. Bober are both very down to earth, easy to work for and excellent with their patients—very thorough. The good thing about them is they're willing to teach you anything."

The bonus about her present job involves people, said Tina.

"Dr. Aenle has some excellent patients," she said. "Patients here are nicer than anywhere else I've worked. I plan to work here a long time."

"My job is important to me because this is what I want to do. This is my future. As Dr. Aenle would say, the patients come before anything."

Her employers likewise appreciate Tina.

"She's very friendly and efficient and courteous," said Bober. "She's very nice, and we all like her."

Tina and her husband, Karl, moved to Pontiac less than a year ago from Pensacola, Fla., to be near her parents in Ortonville for a while, she said. Eventually, they plan to move south again to be near Karl's parents for a while.

"We like it here, but we miss the sunshine, and the weather is so unpredictable," she said. "We don't have any children, so we're kind of gypsies on the road."

In their spare time, Tina and Karl like to bowl with her brother and she enjoys spending time with her grandmother.

"I love my Nanny. She's the craftiest person I know. We work on lots of crafts together," she said.

Do you know someone who works in the Clarkston area and deserves recognition for a job well done? We'd like to share your praise. Call The Clarkston News at 625-3370 weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., or drop us a line at 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Medical assistant Tina Cougan especially likes to spend time with her grandmother Margaret Sheldon, who lives near her in Pontiac. And she enjoys her cats, Babs and Poet.

Teens hear talk on self-esteem

By Julie Campe

Laurie Stewart well remembers being a teenager. It showed when she talked about it to kids at Sashabaw Junior High School on Monday during Friendship Week.

Stewart, a graduate of Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, speaks to groups around the country about setting goals and having a positive self-image.

"When I was in junior high, I always had a comb in my back pocket, gum in one pocket and Tic Tacs in the other," she said. "I was prepared for anything."

She told stories, sometimes painful, about running high school track and always finishing last in the 100-yard dash; judging others only by how they looked; the death of someone close to her.

And the kids listened.

A lot of times, teens look for the negative aspects of things, she said.

"Often times, we look for the bad in ourselves and in others," said Stewart. "But if someone always cuts down others, it could mean they don't like themselves."

She asked the audience to think of people who have had a positive influence in their lives.

An eighth-grader, Eric, said his mother and father had helped him through bad times and taught him right from wrong.

Heather said her dad is a positive person. "He always has confidence in me," she said.

When she asked what made them depressed,

preciating themselves and others. "Do your best and let God do the rest," she said.

Speaker sets tone for week

When he was 15, he was depressed, she said. Everything was going wrong: His parents were getting a divorce; he wasn't having fun at school.

So he sat on his bed and took out five sheets of paper. And he wrote down everything he wanted to do in life.

He wrote 127 goals ranging from typing 50 words a minute to visiting a movie studio, milking a rattle snake, visiting every country in the world, going to the moon and climbing Mount Everest.

"He knew he had a choice," she said. "Now, many years later, he's achieved 107 goals."

She recited a poem, and the students repeated it: "I and I alone am responsible for what I am and for what I do; I shall not blame you for my failures or for my untapped potential. Because the challenge to make my life a meaningful and successful experience is not yours, but it is mine." (Author unknown.)

"You are someone special!" she said. "We have to feel our feelings, but you have to figure out what to do with it. You have a choice."

The audience responded with vigorous applause.

Stewart set the tone for the entire week, said assistant principal David Reschke.

"Counselors have reported a whole lot more alienation. Kids are hiding things," he said, adding that three families in the school have experienced suicide this year.

Other events planned for Friendship week include: Poster Day, contests for friendship posters; Graffiti Day, when students can leave friendly messages; Student Government Day, to be planned by the students; Candid Camera Day, when students can bring their cameras and take pictures to be displayed in the cafeteria.

Hopefully, the program will set an expectation for the students and teachers for the entire year, Reschke said.

Jim Hall crosses the finish line in victory for the Wolves. He, Chris Locher, Keith Mercier and Gunnar Karlstrom made up the 400 meter relay team that stole victory from the hands of Milford High School at the Clarkston High School team's season opener on Monday.

Wolves beat Milford in opener

Clarkston's boys track team started its season on the right foot by beating Milford 71-66 on April 6.

The meet was tied at 66 points going into the last event, the 400 meter relay, but Wolves Chris Locher, Keith Mercier, Gunnar Karlstrom and Jim Hall won with a 3:37.71 clocking.

"We don't like it that way," said coach Walt Wyniemko, referring to winning the meet in the last event. "We knew it was going to be a very close meet."

One of the keys to the victory was their strong performance in the field events. The team's point total was boosted by Matt Scharl winning the pole vault (13 feet) and placing second in the discus (116 feet).

"We knew we had to score more than 23 points in our field events," said Wyniemko.

Clarkston's strong performance in the relay events was another deciding factor. Points are awarded only to the first-place finisher, and the Wolves won three of four relay events, the 200, 100 and the 400 meter relays.

Karlstrom won the 200 meter dash (23.89) and was also on two of the three winning relay teams.

Mercier won the high jump (5 feet 8 inches) and was a member of the winning 100 and 400 meter relay teams.

Norman Carmichel put in a strong performance as well. He was on two of the winning relay teams, placed second in the 100-meter dash and was third in the 200 meter dash.

Third-place finishes are also an important factor in winning a meet.

"We knew third place finishes could make a big difference, and they did," said Wyniemko.

Although it is still early in the season, the coach is satisfied with his team's performance.

"Everyone played an important role," he said.

Jordan's jargon

Playoff mania

Michael Jordan

Playoff mania has hit Detroit's professional teams once again. The Detroit Pistons and Red Wings have clinched playoff spots in their respective leagues.

Playoff mania brings back memories of when I spent the night outside Joe Louis Arena one cold March evening in 1984.

My mother, who has been a Red Wings fan for about 20 years, came up with the bright idea of braving the sub-freezing temperatures in hopes of getting prime tickets.

We arrived at the box office at about 11:30 the night before the tickets went on sale.

After we established our spot in the line, which numbered about 50 people, I joined the game of street hockey in front of the box office.

I played until about 1 a.m., then decided to get some rest, so I joined my mother, who was propped up against a wall. I fell asleep for what seemed like hours; but when I awoke, only 30 minutes had passed.

"This is going to be a long night," I told myself. The man camped next to us offered me a beer and I accepted, even though I know alcohol does not make a cold person warm.

My mother and I then decided we would take turns sleeping in our car. My shift ended just as the sun came up.

After I got back in the line, some of the anxious hockey fans raided the Detroit Free Press newsstand and pretended they were news boys.

"I'm never doing something this stupid again," I said to my mother.

At about 8 a.m. the line started to grow and by 9 a.m. the line numbered about 1,000 people. This is when the TV and radio stations began to interview the weary hockey fans.

"Excuse me, but would you mind saying a few words for WDIV?" My mother looked bewildered.

"I look like a mess," she said. After a few minutes of negotiating, my mother finally agreed to be interviewed.

When the box office door opened at 10 a.m. it felt as though we were being herded into a stable.

We dug into our pockets and walked away the proud holders of six playoff tickets.

When my mother and I finally arrived at the ticket window, we found out we had to buy at least six tickets for the playoff series.

It made me sick to find out later that day that the tickets hadn't sold out and we could have gotten comparable tickets at a nice, warm computer ticket outlet.

Tennis starts

Coach Dick Swartout has somewhat of a family affair leading his 1987 edition of the Clarkston High School varsity tennis team.

Peter and Steve Hollis along with Grant, Paul and David Reading are the top five players on the team, which has won the Greater Oakland Activities League (GOAL) title for the past two years.

In 1986, the team compiled a 9-3 overall record while placing fifth at the state regional tournament. The record may be hard to duplicate this year because the team is comprised of mostly sophomores and first-year players.

"They (the team) will be decent," said Swartout. "But they don't have any match experience."

The team's strongest area is singles play, according to the coach.

"Doubles are going to be the weak spot mainly because we have a lot of sophomores and first-year players who don't have a lot of experience," he said.

The team's quest for the 1987 season is to win the GOAL title for the third year in a row.

Swartout said practice has been going well.

"Practice has been good because we've been playing indoors at the Deer Lake Racquet Club. The booster club has been paying for the use of the club and one of the parents payed for one practice," he said.

So far this year, team members have not suffered any injuries or illnesses and Swartout said he's hoping it will stay that way throughout the season.

On April 10, the Wolves face their first opponent, Milford Lakeland, and Swartout said Lakeland will be a tough team to beat.

"We played them (Lakeland) last year and they have just about all their players coming back," he said. "They have a lot of experience, especially in doubles."

The Wolves will play their home matches this season at Clintonwood Park in Independence Township.

CHS girls squeek by tough Milford team

Coach Gordon Richardson doesn't mind if the winner of a track meet is determined in the last event—on one condition.

"I like it only if we win," said Richardson, who coaches the girls varsity track team at Clarkston High School.

That is precisely what happened in the Wolves' season opener April 6. They beat Milford High School, 67-61, by winning the last event, the 400 meter relay.

The Wolves got off to a slow start and were losing by 10 points after the 100 meter high hurdles. But the team fought back and tied the meet at 48-48 with four events left.

Clarkston went on to win two of the next three events and was beating Milford, 62-61, going into the 400 meter relay.

The situation was simple. Whoever won the relay would win the meet, and the Wolves' relay team of Michelle Baker, Meredith Green, Joelle Choops and Wendy Cohoon turned on the jets, beating Milford with a 4:27.46 clocking.

Lisa Ladd was also a major factor in Clarkston's victory. She won the long jump (17 feet 5 1/4 inches) and the 100 and 200 meter dashes (:12.52 and :27.95, respectively) while leading off the winning 100 meter relay.

Other fine performances were turned in by Wendy Cohoon. She won the 800 meter run (2:34.62), took second in the high jump (4 feet 8 inches) and anchored the winning 800 and 400 meter relay teams.

Richardson was happy with the way the seniors performed.

"The seniors are doing a pretty good job of being where they should be," he said.

Richardson also said the meet was the first taste of real competition for some team members.

"Our sophomores learned a lot from the meet today," he said. "We found out that we are going to have to work at certain events more diligently."

Teams prepare for spring season

Preparations are being made by the Clarkston Athletic Department in anticipation of the spring sports season.

The list of new items is comprised of hurdles, uniforms, the running track, baseball scoreboard and the press box.

With help from the Clarkston Athletic Booster Club, the high school purchased 40 hurdles for $1,600. The booster club paid half the bill.

The hurdles will adorn the new $100,000 track installed in the fall of 1986. District Athletic Director Paul Tungate said the track had to be totally rebuilt.

"The old asphalt was torn up pretty bad,"

Tungate said. "We didn't want anyone to get hurt, so before the (1986) season, we made the decision to run all away meets."

One good aspect of the new polyurethane track is if the surface needs to be repaired, a section can be replaced instead of replacing the entire track.

Along with helping to pay for the new hurdles, the booster club purchased a $1,500 electronic baseball scoreboard which will be installed at the varsity baseball diamond at the high school.

The seventh- and eighth-grade Clarkston Junior High track teams will have a new look this year. Tungate said the team has been outfitted with 100 new uniforms and sweat suits.

Construction will start this summer on a new press box at Clarkston High School. The old press box was destroyed Feb. 18, 1987, by arsonists.

"We have a $2,000 reward posted, but we haven't had any takers," said Tungate.

Tungate said all the electrical outlets and the PA connections were destroyed and the cost of the new press box will exceed $10,000.

The athletic department is hoping construction will be completed in the fall, he said.

O'Dey aids champs

Sashabaw Junior High student Pat O'Dey was part of the GDA Pee Wee Major Hockey Club that won the Pee Wee Major National Championships in Amherst, N.Y., on April 5.

O'Dey helped his team beat Amherst 3-2 in the final game, to take the national title. The team finished with an overall record of 60-9-4.

Couple tours around township on bicycles

By Michael Jordan

David and Mary Ann Tysver of Independence Township braved the fierce wind and sub-freezing temperatures to ride the 2.5 mile round trip from their house to Depot Park.

What the couple did not know was the Clarkston-Orion Express biking club had canceled its first Saturday morning ride of 1987 because of inclement weather.

Even though the ride had been canceled, the couple joined the four other bikers who showed for breakfast at Carol's Village Grill.

The husband-wife riding team joined the Clarkston-Orion Express last year and they're looking forward to another year with the group.

The Tysvers have been riding together for about three years, since Mary Ann received her first bike, an 18-speed, for her birthday. Now they ride together for fun whenever they get the time.

David started biking when he became a paperboy, and when he went to college at the University of Washington, he was forced to ride.

"The bicycle was my main mode of transportation when I was in college," said David. "In fact, it was my only mode of transportation."

Since he started running when he was in high school, David can't stay away from exercising.

"I've been involved in exercising all my life," he said. "I don't know what it would be like, not exercising."

Mary Ann bikes because she likes to stay in shape. "I do it (bike) mainly for the exercise," she said.

They do most of their biking in the Clarkston, Lake Orion and Oxford area. Although they don't consider themselves bike racers, they try to enter races every year.

"We only did a couple (races) for fun last year," said Mary Ann. "We don't race. We ride as opposed to race."

The Tysvers plan to stay in shape by joining the Clarkston-Orion Express again on April 11 at 9:30 a.m.

Group leader Vic Bilicki said they will continue to meet at 9:30 on Saturday mornings for a 25 to 35 mile bike ride. They will stop in Clarkston or Lake Orion for brunch.

The cost to join the Saturday morning rides is 75 cents per person and the money is donated to the American Youth Hostels. Families are encouraged to participate.

Teen center at CHS to open after Easter

By Julie Campe

After Easter, area teens may have a place to "hang out" on Saturday nights.

A teen center at Clarkston High School is planned for alternate Saturdays from 7 to 11 p.m. with admission of $1 for ninth- through 12th-graders.

Organizers are still working on the details, and they need final approval from the school regarding legal concerns, said Merelyn Mallett, Clarkston Youth Assistance (CYA) chairperson.

"I think anybody who has had kids in high school the last few years realizes the kids need something to do," said Mallett.

The CYA is an organization devoted to the prevention of juvenile delinquency.

The teen center, sponsored by CYA, is to be entirely managed by students, said Mallett.

"We really want a wide range of students," she said. "We would like to have a committee of at least 25 kids."

The kids would be responsible for everything, she said. Adult volunteers are to stay in the background and only help when needed.

In the gym, they plan to offer basketball, volleyball and possibly floor hockey. In the hallway between the gym and cafeteria, they are to set up tables for games: euchre, Monopoly, Trivial Pursuit, UNO and possibly Ping-Pong. In the cafeteria are to be dancing, music, pizza and pop.

Pizza and pop are to be sold for exactly the cost, she said.

An organizational meeting is scheduled Monday, April 13, at 7 p.m. in Room 232 at CHS. Students in grades nine through 12 are welcome—especially ninth- to 11th-graders since they will be the organizers next year, she said.

To get ideas, Mallett and others have spoken with organizers of teen centers in other areas: Rochester, South Lyon and Novi.

"The thing that was interesting was that with all the different ages, there have been absolutely no problems," she said.

"I think maybe the kids were ready for it. Everybody seemed to think that 10 years ago, you probably wouldn't have been able to do this. . . . For some reason, the kids today want something constructive to do."

"I hope we can be as successful as the other programs," she said.

SJH 7th-grade band wins top rating

The seventh-grade band at Sashabaw Junior High School hit a high note at the Michigan State Band and Orchestra District IV Band Festival on March 21 in Royal Oak.

The band received the top first-division rating in Class D competition.

"If they can earn a first-division rating when they are seventh-graders, just think of the possibilities for the next two years," said Douglas Doty, SJHS band director.

Doty also had praise for the performances of the school's Symphonic Band and the Wind Ensemble.

In Class C competition, the Symphonic Band received a third-division rating, which was a good showing because it was the first time a symphonic band from SJHS has entered a band festival, he said.

In Class A competition, the Wind Ensemble received a second-division rating in performance, which included a first-division rating in sight reading.

Doty noted that in the past six years, the SJHS

Wind Ensemble has received the top first-division rating for performance four times.

"They play well, and we will be back next year to try again," he said.

Missing classmates

The search continues for three members of Clarkston High School's Class of 1937: Donald Bain, Angeline Marcora and Jean Oxtoby.

The class is planning its 50th reunion for June 3.

If anyone knows the whereabouts of any one of the three classmates, call Eleanor Baynes Gunter at 625-2729 or Louise Gulick McLintock at 623-7033.

IF IT'S A MAJOR FIRE or a minor oddity, we want a call at The Clarkston News, 625-3370.

Springtime inspires these fifth-grade poets

A batch of budding poets from Duane Proctor's fifth-grade class at Bailey Lake Elementary School found inspiration in the changing season.

THINGS SPRING BRINGS

By Jill Theryoung

Gentle breezes,
Filling the air.
Gentle breezes,
Blowing your hair.
These are the things spring brings.

A robin in my yard,
Singing happily.
A robin in the tree,
With a nest full of babies.
These are the things spring brings.

Flowers blooming,
Red, white, yellow, pink.
Flowers blooming everywhere,
Daisy, violet, chrysanthemum.
These are the things spring brings.

THE WIND

By Stacie Justus

The wind is nice
flowing through your hair. Goes down your neck. And it can fly your kite
don't let it go—the wind—it blows. It's just there
WIND

SPRING

By Jenny Drallos

Spring is the wind blowing
Girls singing and dancing
Boys playing baseball
It's a lot of fun in the spring.

Spring is warm but yet
Not warm enough to go swimmin'.
But yet spring is when flowers
Grow, birds sing and bears
Get up from their winter's nap.

Spring is a kiss from
The wind that will knock you
Off your feet. Spring is wet
And silky. It rains and rains
All day. And woosh, there it goes.

BUD

By Shawna Greene

I know a dog named bud,
Who's always in the mud,
And when it comes to bath time,
He's never any fun.

THE WIND IS ALWAYS THERE

By Kris Diehl

The wind has to blow
to make the sailboats go.
It makes your hair fly
and keeps the kite in the sky.
The wind is always there.

It makes the young trees bend,
but it can be your friend.
It can give you a fright,
as it howls through the night.
The wind is always there.

It can make destruction
from the tornado's suction.
It makes the leaves spin,
its name is the wind.
The wind is always there.

SPRING BREEZES

By Brian Meloche

Spring breezes bring flowers and trees and after that comes the bumble bees.
The ducks and the swans
all swimming in the ponds.
The cricket's chirp.

SPRING

By Misty O'Neal

Spring is when the rain falls
& when flowers bloom.
Spring is sunny,

Spring is when animals come from hibernating & when
The sky is blue.

Spring is where the wind blows & when
The lakes are blue.

Spring is when the birds chirp & fly about
The sky.

Spring is when the kites fly high &
Animals run about.

SPRING

By Heather Knapp

The spring is like
The prettiest time of the year.
You hear the birds sing in the air.

In the spring, the leaves turn green.
The blossoms of the flowers
Bring joy to my heart.

In the spring, you hear the birds
On the sycamore tree
Singing a song.

SPRING

By David Hartke

In spring, flowers begin to bloom.
The weather gets warmer,
And rain starts to pour down.
Trees get their leaves,
As grass begins to grow.

There is a breeze in spring.
A comfy cool breeze.
You can wear a tank-top shirt.
And your Bermuda shorts.
But you can't go swimming yet.

It is fun to get outdoors again,
Playing soccer, baseball and riding your bike.
You can fly a kite up in the sky.
The birds come back.
But I don't know why.

FLORAL OPEN HOUSE: At the first spring open house, Friday, Easter lilies, adult Easter baskets, silk flower arrangements and plant baskets will be sold, such as this arrangement held by Larry Campanaro, an 11th grader at Clarkston High School. Artist's flowers to bloom at DIA

By Julie Campe

When Anthony goes to work and Reese goes to school, Donella Reese Vogel goes to the basement.

Only there can she lose herself for the day among pastels, colored pencils and paper—and her outgoing cat, Misty.

She creates beautiful scenes full of flowers or landscape scenes or whatever appeals to her. Her studio is the entire basement of her home on Fawn Valley Drive, Independence Township.

Her latest creation of poppies and sweet William, titled "Mosaic," was a finalist in a poster design competition for an upcoming exhibit at The Detroit Institute of Arts (DIA).

The DIA will display Donella's design and 17 other finalists' works from April 13 through May 2 during the "Art and Flowers: A Festival of Spring" show, the DIA's salute to Michigan's Sesquicentennial.

Donella was excited to enter the competition, she said.

"I've always enjoyed nature, and I love flowers and plants," she said. "I wanted to do a close-up."

"It's really an honor to get to show at the DIA."

—Donella Reese Vogel

Toledo, Spain is the subject of Donella Reese Vogel's current work in pastel. She was named a finalist in a poster design competition at The Detroit Institute of Arts (DIA).

wanted to get the flowers against that mass tangle of leaves.

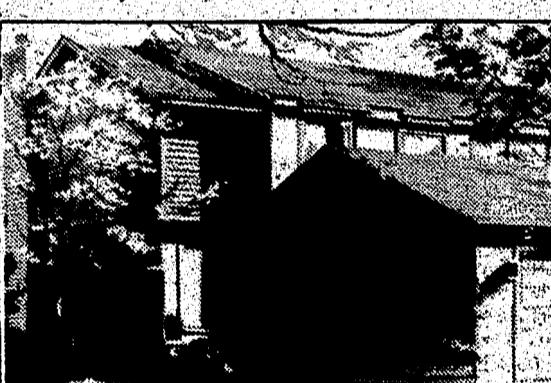

"I was thrilled about being a finalist. It's really an honor to get to show at the DIA," she said.

3 teams win state honorsClarkston kids show problem-solving skills

By Kathy Greenfield

Three teams from Clarkston schools were winners in the state Odyssey of the Mind competition Saturday at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant.

Although none of the teams placed in the top three in their divisions, which would have made them eligible for national competition, the teams won recognition for placing in the top six in their divisions.

"They made a real good showing for Clarkston. They showed a lot of good sportsmanship and good problem solving skills," said Sue Banworth, teacher coordinator of the elementary Clarkston Academically Talented program.

In most divisions, there were at least 20 teams from across the state competing, she said.

The competition involved creative problem solving with two components: solving a complex, long-term problem and spot brainstorming.

One team, comprised of Clarkston Elementary School fourth-graders, won two awards.

A special creativity award, "Ranatra Fusca," went to Brad Agar, Alex Bruni, Chris Duling, Tim Szukula and Kevin Taylor, coached by parent Dave Taylor.

"They were congratulated because they worked so well together as a team and they supported each other so well," Banworth said.

The boys also placed fourth in Division I of the Decision Structure problem. The problem involved designing and building a balsa wood structure and performing a skit.

A team of sixth-graders placed sixth in Division II, also with a Decision Structure problem.

Coached by parent Barry Hranach, team members were Brad Hranach, a Pine Knob Elementary pupil, and Steven Bennet, Steve Bowers, Brent Hummel and Aaron Phillips, all North Sashabaw Elementary pupils.

A Division II team from Sashabaw Junior High School placed fifth in the Omer to the Rescue problem, which involved designing a vehicle that would fit inside two suitcases.

During the competition, they had to perform a skit while assembling the vehicle, performing specific tasks, taking it apart and returning it to the suitcases.

Team members were Renny Abraham, Shane Brown, Rob Colbrunn, Mark Peterson and Joshua Sutton. Their coach was parent Don Colbrunn.

Township youth club seeks members

The Springfield Township Youth Group is looking for new members.

The group meets every Thursday from 6 to 8 p.m. Prospective members must be between the ages of 13 and 17.

Members participate in many activities of their choice, including basketball, volleyball, dodgeball, floor hockey, racquetball, bowling, roller skating, swimming and softball.

They plan monthly outings such as bowling, horseback riding, a trip to a Tiger game, or similar activity, and they have fundraisers.

The Youth Group also participates in community events, such as helping with the Easter egg hunt, hot air balloon festival and Halloween haunted house.

A camping trip to one of Michigan's state parks is planned for July. The group hopes to rent cabins at the park.

Teenagers interested in joining the Springfield Township Youth Group may contact Sherry Swindell, youth group director, at the Springfield Township Hall in Davisburg, 634-3111 or 625-4802. The group is sponsored by Springfield Township Parks and Recreation.

Pediatrician moves office to Independence

By Pat Young

A new pediatrics office has been opened in the Clarkston area by Dr. Shobha S. Chandra.

Chandra, who has been practicing pediatrics in the United States for nearly 10 years, opened her Independence Township office at 6300 Sashabaw Rd., Suite C, in March. For the past four years her practice had been located in the Davisburg area.

"I felt this area would be good to work in," Chandra says. "It is more accessible for the patients."

"Dr. (James) O'Neill (of the pediatrics group located on M-15) was one of my teachers when I was in residency," Chandra adds. "He was one of the first people I approached for an opinion on the need for another pediatrician in the area, and he encouraged me to locate here."

Chandra graduated from medical school in India and was practicing there when she and her husband, Sharath, a cardiologist now located in Lake Orion, decided to relocate in America.

"We wanted to explore new and different places and technology," she says.

Chandra had to repeat her residency training and retake her examinations in order to practice in the United States. She is now a board certified pediatrician and a fellow of the American Academy of Pediatrics.

She completed her residency at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac, and now has staff privileges there, at Pontiac General Hospital and at Children's Hospital of Detroit, where she completed a year of fellowship in the intensive care unit.

Chandra also enjoys teaching and has been a clinical instructor at Wayne State University, Detroit, for 10 years. Her interest in teaching carries over into her pediatrics practice.

"One of the most important things is making a mother understand what a child has, so they feel comfortable," Chandra says.

Pediatrician Shobha S. Chandra recently moved her practice to the Clarkston area. Her office is in the building owned by dentist and orthodontist Jack Shader at 6300 Sashabaw.

After 30 years in dentistry, Dr. Hunt retires

By Julie Campe

Dentist Forrest D. Hunt is consistent through and through.

His values of honesty and hard work have governed every aspect of his life: his own personal goals, child-rearing, his dental philosophy and his choice of dental insurance plans.

The Holcomb Road resident retired in January after 30 years of practice in Independence Township, and he's kind of sorry to go, he said.

"I enjoyed working with people," said Hunt. "I made a lot of good friends. In fact, a lot of my patients became my friends. . . . Clarkston is a good place to practice. It's full of surprises. Everybody's related to everybody. . . . People are nice."

One of his favorite parts of practice was working with children, he said.

"I've always liked working with kids because you always knew exactly where you stood with them," he said. "One 6-year-old boy came in one day and said, 'Is that the drill?' I said, 'Yes.' He said, 'Oh, I get it. I'm the driller!'"

He's also pleased with the condition of children's teeth today.

"Overall, the kids today have better teeth than the previous generation," he said. "They're better educated, there's fluoride in their toothpaste and water, and they come in younger."

Hunt has treated three generations of some families.

In general, the job pressures contributed to his retirement. Since he suffered a heart attack over a year ago, his doctor told him to quit work and stay away from stress.

"You're working in a small space doing very exacting work all day; it's especially stressful with someone who doesn't want their teeth worked on," said Hunt.

But through it all, his values of hard work and honesty have guided him in his practice, he said.

"Honesty is most important, and that controls

"Overall, the kids today have better teeth than the previous generation. They're better educated, there's fluoride in their toothpaste and water, and they come in younger."

the other (factors), I think," said Hunt. "You have to tell people what's best for them, not what's best for me. You have to do your best, all the time. I always try to ask myself what I would do if it were my mouth.

I always thought I was harder to please than the patients."

And he adhered to his philosophy in raising his five children: Delana Weil, Rebecca Tatu, Adele Kay, Doc and Jeanie.

"All the kids have worked here at the office," he said. "I never liked to just hand them money. I told them how to get it. They'd come in and work. I always felt they should earn their money, not just hand it to them. They thought I was tough."

In his extra time, Hunt and his wife, Luana, plan to travel and spend time with their favorite hobbies: camping, photography and computers.

He still hopes to be of some service to his patients by informing them about dental insurance—something he did not talk about before he retired unless asked, he said.

"Now that I'm not in practice, people will know I have no ulterior motives in telling them what's best for them," he said.

"I consider it a public service to tell people to sign up with a traditional dental plan," he said.

"I think people ought to take the traditional dental plan and skip all these capitation programs—something for nothing," said Hunt. "They

"There's nothing you can buy today that you can use so much and that lasts so long," says Dr. Forrest D. Hunt about dental care. "You use your teeth for eating and smiling and speaking."

(capitation programs) all work on the principle that the dentist works on a flat fee. He's rewarded for doing less work. . . . The less he does, the more money he makes. There's something wrong with that system.

"Under a traditional plan, you can go to anybody you want. And if you get mad, you can leave. With a capitation program, you're stuck."

"It really scares me what's happening because we're being controlled by insurance companies," he said. "To me, the hope is that everybody signs up with capitation dentistry and tries it and gets sick of it. Then they'll go back to the dentist of their choice."

"People do not want to be treated like cattle. Eventually, they'll want to be treated like people again," he said.

Dentist Michael Hennessy has taken over Hunt's practice, he said, adding Hennessy is a good choice.

"I think he's honest, and I feel comfortable having him take over my patients," said Hunt.

Park tosses volunteer party

All current, past and potential volunteers are invited to attend a Spring Volunteer Refresher course at the Independence Oaks Nature Center on Saturday, April 25.

The session is planned from 1 to 4 p.m. at the center off Sashabaw Road in Independence Township.

The program's purpose is threefold, said volunteer coordinator Lynn Conover. "Aside from showing our gratitude (to volunteers), we hope to renew the enthusiasm of past volunteers and ignite some enthusiasm in potential ones as well."

An indoor training session will be led by naturalist Kathy Thomas.

She will discuss what volunteers should know about wild animals, how to handle them and what to do when creatures are encountered on the trails.

Conover will then take participants outdoors to reveal tips and techniques used to enhance nature walks.

"These tips are important because they make field trips more enjoyable for the participants," she said.

She will also discuss the different areas where volunteer assistance is needed. Hummingbird feeders will be presented as special recognition mementos for volunteers who donated more than 30 hours last year.

"We like to call upon people who have a keen sense of the outdoors and love excitement for nature that they are willing to share with others," Conover said. "Before you can instill an appreciation in others, you have to have it in yourself."

Volunteers are needed for all areas of the nature center.

People from all professions, ranging from waitresses to counselors, photographers to cosmetologists, comprised the 46 volunteers who donated more than 500 hours to the nature center in 1986.

Dedicated in 1985, the center is open Tuesday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. during the school year.

The center is staffed by three full-time naturalists who conduct weekly interpretive programs, coordinate and instruct school or group visits and assist with park exploration of the center and Independence Oaks County Park.

Individuals interested in attending the Volunteer Refresher should call the Nature Center at 625-6473 no later than April 23.

And now Donella is working on other challenges including the largest creation she's ever attempted: a view of Toledo, Spain, for a client. Eventually, she would like to try different subjects, such as people, she said.

"My goals are just setting myself new challenges," said Donella. "Pretty soon, you can do it and it's tedious. As soon as you feel that, you've got to set yourself a new problem to solve."

But for right now, she's contented.

"I love working by myself and being alone, but sometimes I need someone to talk to," she said. "But I love it. It's very rewarding. I'm one of the few people who can't wait to get to work on Monday morning."

She credits a lot of her success to her husband, Anthony.

"My husband has been my strongest inspiration," she said. "He's encouraged me from the beginning. He's my most honest critic. I couldn't ask for a more supportive person."

College leads to in-house nursery school

By Julie Campe

Crayons, runny noses, songs, untied shoelaces, lunch, story telling: all fill Janet Thon's day, even though her three children are ages 12 through 18.

Why would a 40-year-old woman return to such shenanigans and fill her large home on Fawn Valley Drive, Independence Township, with children's laughter?

"I think you can learn from kids," said Janet. "They don't have their opinions formed. They're more open and natural. We should be more childlike. We get so inhibited and uptight, and children are free to be who they are."

Besides, it's her job. For over three years, Janet has provided nursery school and day care in her home.

After a divorce, she returned to school for a degree in early childhood development. And because she loved children and lived in a large house, she opened the business in her basement.

"It's great," she said. "I like being my own boss."

I didn't want to go and be a secretary or something. I wanted to do something I would really enjoy.

"A lot of people think I'm crazy when it gets busy, but I've been around kids my whole life because I'm the oldest of six kids."

She and her helper, Sandy Henderson, have up to 12 children at a time, and about 31 kids total for the week, she said.

"Sandy is wonderful," said Janet. "She's my right hand. She's just terrific. She used to own her own nursery school."

Two-year-old Adrienne Ouellette spends almost the entire day at Janet's Place, a nursery school and day care. And Janet loves spending her entire day with children.

For Janet, the situation is ideal. Her daughter Anne gets home from school around 2:30 p.m. and also works for her. So that leaves Janet free to fix dinner and do household chores. She can also fit in a three- or four-mile run.

"I like being home," she said. "And I get to see people. . . . I have 31 families, so I see lots of people. If the weather's nice, I take the kids outside, so it's a pretty neat job."

Her best friend, Karen Teberian, gave her the idea, she said. While she was going to school, she took care of Takouhy, Karen's daughter.

"She said I'm taking care of one, why not 12," said Janet.

From word of mouth, her business spread, she said, adding several of the children live in her subdivision. The school bus stops in front of her house, so that makes it convenient for mothers in the area who work. Most are from the Clarkston area, but some come from Holly and Pontiac.

"There really is a need for this," said Janet.

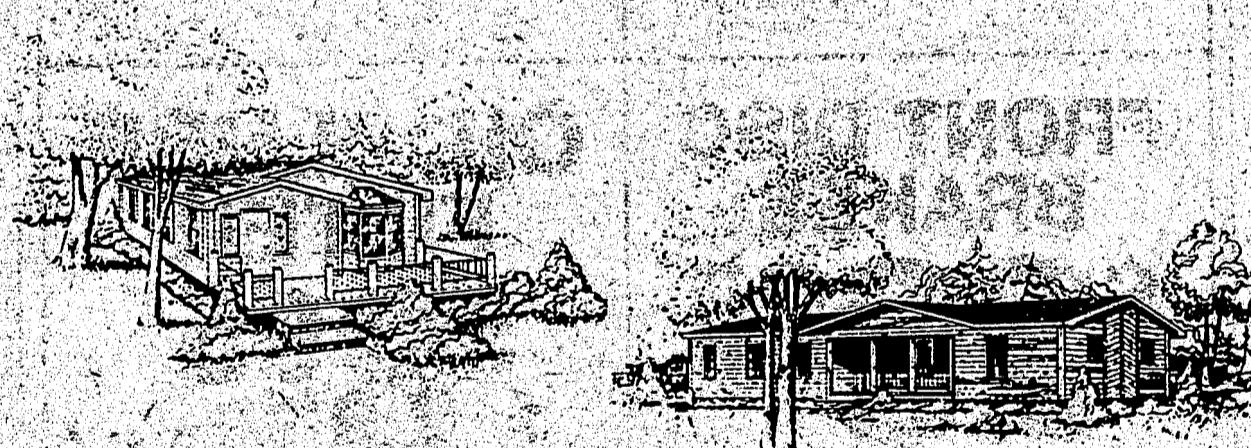

The schedule ranges from quiet reading time or songs to lots of activity, she said.

"Physical things are very important, so we do active records—mini aerobics for children, a mini trampoline. Children can learn through play," she said.

"There are different philosophies. . . . Some

Divorce led to happy career

want their kid to get a big headstart, and you can't really do it—getting things out of sequence before they learn to socialize. It doesn't make sense to push them. . . . It takes away from their early growth. Children learn through play, but you can provide the play, the stimulants. It's amazing what they come up with.

"I believe in letting the kids make their own projects, so they can be creative. Sometimes, I just give them a piece of paper and tell them to paint whatever they want."

None of the kids bring their own food.

"I'm kind of a health nut, so I insist on giving them all their snacks and meals," said Janet. "So they eat vegetables, some they might not eat at home."

And she tries to do what's best for the child, even in the rough times, like 2-year-old temper tantrums and kids who don't know how to share yet.

"We have very little times when we have to discipline," she said. "We don't spank them or anything like that. We just remove them from the situation. We don't make a big deal out of it, no punishing or scolding."

It's not only the kids who learn, said Janet. She, too, has learned.

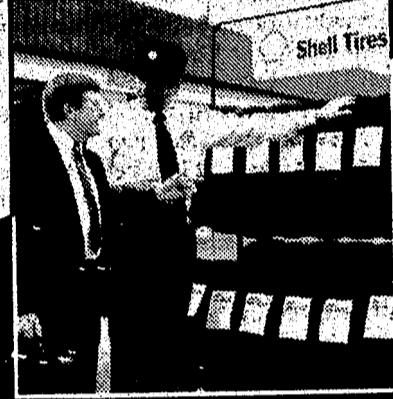

"I'm different than I was as a mother," said Janet. "I'm more into letting kids be themselves. All kids are different. You don't try to change their personality."

"As a young mother, I was more into having them be perfect. . . . I'm very different than that, although my kids are great kids. They still turned out."

"I should give my kids credit about being great about this business because it's their home. They're really understanding. They're nice to the parents when they come in and nice to the kids."

"I feel really lucky compared to others who have been through a divorce. I found a happy career. I don't feel I'm a victim of divorce. . . . To me, it's an opportunity to do things you wouldn't otherwise do."

Aware spells actions against drug abuse

By Pat Young

A group of citizens concerned with substance abuse is moving rapidly beyond the organizational stage and into the action stage.

The community-wide Aware group developed out of chemical workshops co-sponsored last fall by Clarkston Community Schools and the Clarkston Area Chemical People.

Aware stands for "Aware Declares War on Chemical Dependency Through Action and Education."

Armed with a knowledge of chemical abuse enhanced by the fall workshops, a concern over chemical abuse that goes back a lot farther and a "What can we do to change things?" attitude, the group has been meeting since January.

Participants formed subgroups to discuss specific areas of interest, such as community awareness, intervention, alternate activities and publicity.

Representatives of each subcommittee have also formed a steering committee for Aware. The Rev. William Schram is the acting head of the steering committee.

Each subcommittee is already working on various activities.

One activity under way has been a logo contest organized by the publicity subcommittee. Students at all Clarkston schools were invited to design the concept for a logo which would then be developed as the official logo of Aware.

The publicity group is also contemplating the possibility of replacing the C.A.T. P.A.W. (Chemicals Are Trouble. People Are Working.) column, which previously appeared in The Clarkston News.

"It would be an advice 'to teens from teens' type of column, with supervision from counselors and adult members of the Aware group," said publicity spokesman Jim Windell.

The community awareness group is working toward getting more parents to sign up for the "safe home" pledge. The safe home pledge means agreeing to support appropriate behavior, not allow substance abuse to occur in the home, no unsupervised parties and no alcohol and drugs available to teens.

Jim Hibler, Independence Township librarian and a member of the community awareness group, is preparing a bibliography of information on substance abuse available at the library.

The community awareness group is also developing a list of speakers on substance abuse and will make this list available to all organizations and clubs for possible programs.

The alternate activities subcommittee is targeting activities beyond those which are already available, like the prom breakfast sponsored by the Clarkston Area Chemical People.

"They want to develop some summer activities
(See AWARE, Page 41)

Logo contest winners named

Rob Geach, a ninth-grader at Clarkston Junior High School, earned a $50 first prize by designing the winning entry in a logo contest for Aware.

When the publicity committee of AWARE gathered to choose a logo winner, they had a tough job. Over 150 entries were received, and many were extremely good, according to members of the publicity committee.

AWARE is a recently formed, community-wide group of people concerned with the problems of chemical abuse. The logo contest, open to all students in Clarkston schools, was organized to get students involved in the fight against drugs by having them design a concept to be developed as the official logo of Aware.

The entries were judged on April 4. Rob Geach, a ninth-grader at Clarkston Junior High School, was the winner. He earned $50 for his logo concept, which was a boldly printed AWARE over a ring.

Because there were so many good entries, the committee also chose four runners-up: Matt Wenger, a fourth-grader at Clarkston Elementary School; Ben Polidan, an 11th-grader at Clarkston High School; Jim Morris, a student at the Clarkston Learning Center; and Shonn Colbrunn, a ninth-grader at Sashabaw Junior High School.

Ten students won honorable mentions for their logo entries:

John Justus, seventh grade, Sashabaw Junior High; Kari Upham, eighth grade, Clarkston Junior High; Beth Walker, eighth grade, Clarkston Junior High; Chris Heason, ninth grade, Clarkston Junior High; Scott Lester, eighth grade, Sashabaw Junior High; Todd Myers, eighth grade, Sashabaw Junior High; Kim Diggan, third grade, Clarkston Elementary; Billy Barber, eighth grade, Sashabaw Junior High; Dennis Felker, eighth grade, Clarkston Junior High; and Stephanie Sander, third grade, Clarkston Elementary.

pre-teens and positive peer pressure clubs," Windell said. "Some of the emphasis would definitely be on pre-adolescent activities, trying to reach them and develop activities for them before they become teens."

The intervention subcommittee is looking at ways of intervening directly with the community and with teens with problems.

"An example would be work at increasing cooperation between police and schools, so that young people with specific problems can be identified and worked with," Windell said. "This group will work very closely with the law enforcement agencies."

The group is also working toward identifying places in the community where substances are distributed, and trying to intervene directly to keep them from being distributed. Again, Windell stressed, they would be working closely with the police.

Another plan of the group would be to form a student assistance program at the schools to identify troubled students and develop plans to help them. The program would be modeled after the employee assistance programs in businesses.

The steering committee for Aware will meet monthly, on the first Wednesday of each month, said Schram.

"I see this (Aware) group as the next step," said Schram, who also serves as chairperson of the earlier-formed Chemical People.

He explained that the Chemical People and the larger, community-wide Aware group have more or less "joined forces," further strengthening the drive to combat chemical abuse.

Toys galore in doctor's office

She doesn't just tell the mother, for instance, that a child has an ear infection and then provide a prescription. Rather, she keeps numerous file boxes brimming with information to hand out on all childhood diseases and she explains to parents exactly what condition the child has.

She will be available daily to see children at her new office, and she also shares offices at 1701 Baldwin Ave. in Pontiac with an obstetrician, where she sees infants twice a week.

"Rarely does a patient cry in my office," Chandra says. "My aim is to make a child's experience as pleasant as possible so they will not be afraid to visit the doctor."

Toys of all descriptions share countertop and cabinet space with medicines and medical equipment. She uses "action toys" to distract young patients when she is giving shots, and "unusual" toys, something not as common on the market, to help ensure that their visits will be as pleasant as possible.

"More often, children cry when they have to leave," Chandra says.

She prides herself on giving individual attention to patients, and complete evaluations are a routine part of her exams.

The office is bright and cheerful, relaxed and homey.

Office assistant Linda Howard, who came with Chandra from the Davisburg office, noted that they don't wear white uniforms because children feel more comfortable to see them in "regular clothes."

A tour of the office reveals different patient rooms set up for different ages. For the teens (she sees patients through age 18), there is a more sophisticated room, devoid of toys.

Chandra has raised two children of her own, a daughter, Lali, in college, and a son, Naveen, a high school student.

She says parents should participate in their child's care, and she encourages parents of her patients to ask questions.

Butcher celebrates 76th birthday

By Pat Young

Regulars at Rudy's Market in Clarkston know Fenton Weaver. He's been a familiar face in the meat department of the grocery store for 35 years.

Weaver celebrated his 76th birthday April 2, but he isn't planning retirement yet.

"I'll work 'till I drop," he jokes.

Rudy's Market gets customers from as far away as Flint and Detroit, Weaver says. The store has been in the Clarkston area for over 50 years, and at the present location on Main Street since 1956.

Weaver describes Rudy Schwarze, retired owner of the store, as "the nicest man I ever worked for."

The store is now owned and run by Rudy's sons, Bob and Fred. Bob, too, is a butcher and there are several additional butchers in the busy market, including Ann Richardson, Pat Sorles and Barbara Haynes.

"Three of the best girls that I've trained," Weaver says with a grin.

A quiet man, described by his fellow employees as a "heckuva nice guy," Weaver knows his meats. He should. He's been a butcher for 58 years.

At the age of 13, he began what turned out to be his life-long work by helping out Homer LaJoye at a little market near his former home on Baldwin Avenue in Pontiac.

By the time he came to work at Rudy's, he had already worked for many years at Ritter's Market and Holloway Brothers in Pontiac, and then at Jacober's Market in Waterford.

For many years, Weaver cut a pretty good tune as well as a good steak.

"I was a musician, played a trumpet and had my own band," he says. "I've been a member of the American Federation of Musicians for 40 years.

Weaver received a gold card from the federation for his long-standing membership. He retired from playing the trumpet six years ago when "the rest of the guys in the band wanted to give it up."

Weaver and his wife, Alice, raised three children, Judy, Jack and Jane. They now have four grandchildren as well.

Being a good butcher requires more than knowing your meats, Weaver says. Service also plays a major role. He's probably filled orders for just about any cut of meat you could ask for.

"It's been a pleasure working with all the nice people," Weaver says, carefully slicing off another steak while he talks. "It's all I've ever done."

Fenton Weaver has been a butcher for 58 years, the last 35 of those at Rudy's Market in downtown Clarkston. He celebrated his 76th birthday on April 2.

CHS musicians fare well at festival

Sound the kettle drums.
Accolades are in order for the Clarkston High School students who participated March 28 in the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association State Solo/Ensemble Festival at Howell High School.

The students were eligible to participate because they received first-division ratings at the District Solo/Ensemble Festival on Feb. 14.

The following students received first-division ratings at the state level:

Sherry Mitchell—flute solo
Nicole Chinavare—piano solo
Vicki Geyer—violin solo
Ann McClellan—alto saxophone solo
Brendan McMullen, Rod Swanson—percussion duet
Russ Simonson—tenor saxophone solo

Second-division ratings were received by:
Christine Fromm—piano solo
Kristen Billig, Christy Johnston, Nicole Chinavare, Jeff Moore and Kim Toretta—brass quintet

In addition to the solo-ensemble events entered from CHS, two jazz combos received first-division ratings:

Craig Hayward, Scott Orth—jazz duo
Craig Hayward, Scott Orth, Greg Hall and Rod Swanson—jazz quartet

"I'm very happy that they did so well," said Clifford Chapman, CHS band director, adding that the students' participation in the festival was voluntary—"above and beyond what they do in class."

CHS grad to sing in 'Gotta Dance' show

As graduation from college approached, Alec Puskus was beginning to worry because he didn't have a job. The worry has stopped.

Puskus found a summer job at the Great America theme park in Santa Clara, Calif., that entails his talents in singing and dance, and all is upbeat.

"I'm really excited about it. It's going to be a good opportunity," says the 1983 Clarkston High School graduate who plans to graduate from Oklahoma State University on May 9.

He was hired as a singer for the park's production of "Gotta Dance."

The park is one of six theme parks across the world owned by Kings Productions. Four are in the United States, one in Toronto and one in Sydney, Australia. The firm also provides entertainment for major industrial shows, live shows for Caribbean cruise ships and conducts U.S. Department of Defense tours to Europe and the Orient.

Accordingly, Puskus says, there are opportunities for further employment with the firm for the fall.

"I hope this will give me a chance to work professionally for a while before I go to New York to try Broadway," he says.

Meanwhile, he issues an invitation to travelers from Clarkston who visit the San Francisco bay area this summer: Stop by and say hello.

GARAGE SALE

HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning.

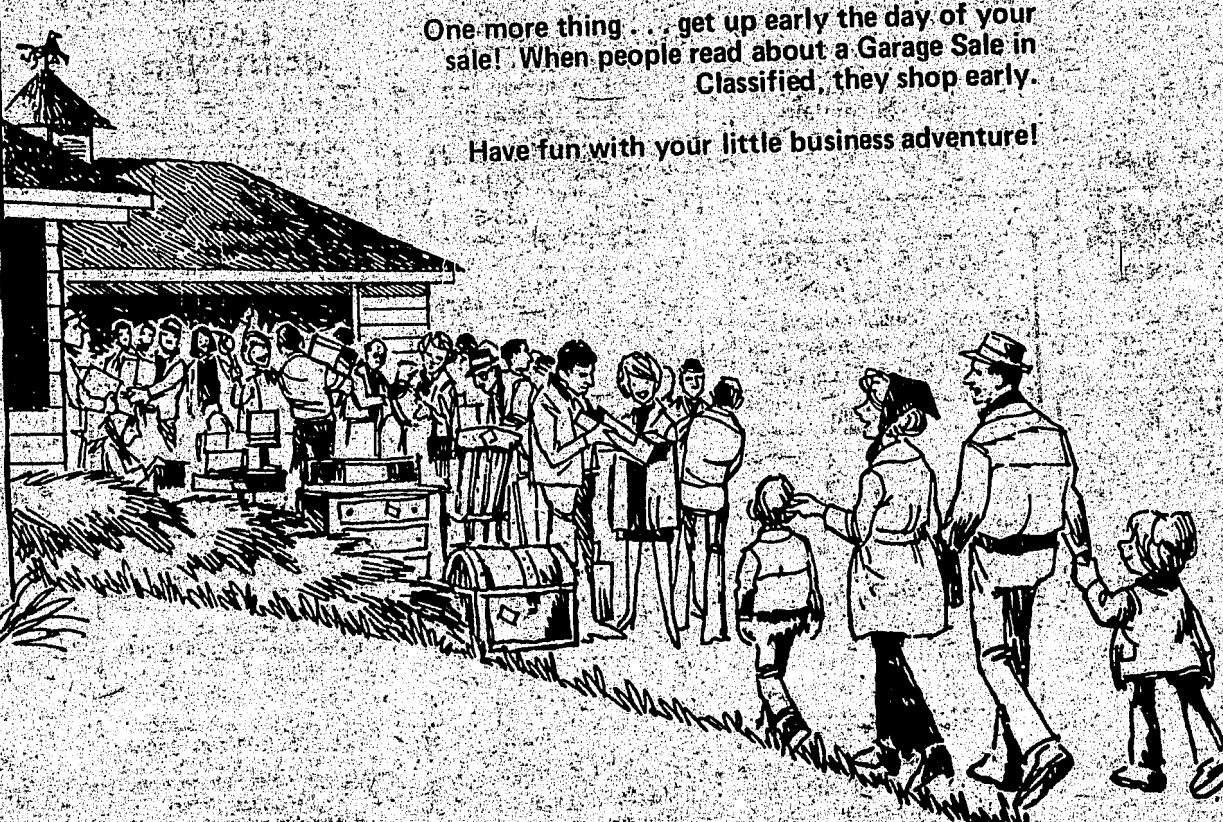

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item . . . and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

One more thing . . . get up early the day of your sale! When people read about a Garage Sale in Classified, they shop early.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

Changing clothes so quickly requires help, and Amy Margherio gives a hand with the belt on Tracy Rappuhn's outfit from Coach's Corner. Rappuhn was also named
