Arrests up; crime down

By Julie Campe

Arrests in Independence Township more than doubled in the first three months of 1987 compared to the first three months of 1986, said Lt. Glenn Watson of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

"The increased patrol out there is probably doing the job," he said, adding that liquor law enforcement (minors in possession, open containers) is most significant—up 800 percent.

"With the increased patrol level, they're stopping more people and writing more violations," said Watson. "I think the increased presence has caused your Part One crimes (arson, assault, motor vehicle theft, robbery, burglary and larceny) to go down, too."

Several statistics show that the double police coverage, in effect since January, may have affected several areas of patrol, said Watson.

For the first three months of 1986, total arrests were 100; for 1987, 217. About 44 percent more drunk drivers were arrested in 1987, and they remedied 12 percent more juvenile complaints, he said.

Decreases were evident in motor vehicle theft, down 15 percent; vandalism, 3.5 percent; disorderly conduct, 66 percent; accidents, 8 percent; and destruction of property and minor crimes, 15 percent, he said.

In January through March 1986, two people were arrested for robbery and two for burglary. In 1987, so far, six have been arrested for robbery and seven for burglary, Watson said.

"Arrests are up in every category," he said. "All crimes are down 14.4 percent in Independence Township."

Honor thy neighbors

The deadline for nominations for the Michigan Week Community Awards has been extended to April 30.

Nominations are being taken in the following categories: citizen, volunteer, property beautification, business person and historic preservation.

Last year's winners were Howard Huttenlocher, citizen; Edward Thomson, community pride; Rita Burdick, volunteer; Joan Kopietz, business person; and Dr. Gary Symons, historic preservation.

The awards breakfast will be at the Deer Lake Racquet Club. The $10 tickets may be purchased at Independence Township Hall, Village of Clarkston Hall or area Pontiac State Bank offices.

See sheep sheared in Springfield

Wool Away Days are coming at the Hillside Farm in Springfield Township and visitors are welcome.

The shearing is planned from 11 a.m. to 5 or 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, April 28, 29 and 30, at the Bellairs farm, 8351 Big Lake Rd., adjacent to the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center (625-2665).

"People can just wander in and out as they please. It is something if they've never seen it before," said Gloria Bellairs. "It's something they usually enjoy seeing."

Professional sheep shearer Doug Hoolsema, a resident of Michigan's thumb area, will shear the flock of over 200 colored and white Romney sheep.

There is no charge for the event.

"I have more people come out and say, 'I'd like to see a sheep sheared.' It's not something you do every day—in our case, we do it twice a year," said Bellairs.

The majority of the wool is kept at the farm for spinning and weaving, and Bellairs determines the quality of the wool—its softness, luster and whether it will dye well—as the sheep are sheared.

"The difference is amazing even among sheep of the same breed," she said.

The sheep are sheared in the springtime and in October. The growth amounts to some three inches in depth all around the sheep.

This time of year, the shearing makes the sheep more comfortable during warm weather—and there's another benefit.

"It makes a lot more room in the barn," said Bellairs. "You'd be surprised how much difference three inches on either side makes."

Roadside trash dumpers are back

By Kathy Greenfield

Vincent Rizzo's voice fills with sarcasm as he issues the following messages:

"I'd like to thank the person who dropped off three water tanks on Iroquois; also, I'd like to thank the person who dropped the two mattresses on Stickney."

Robins and touches of greenery aren't the only signs of springtime: The trash dumpers are back.

Rizzo is vice president of the Michigamme Knolls subdivision association in Independence Township. The 20-lot subdivision with 11 houses is tucked into the country in the township's northwest quadrant.

Surrounding roads are rural. Tree branches frequently extend over the roadways and wildflowers grow close enough for passing motorists to admire.

For four years, the subdivision dwellers have staged a spring cleanup of about 1 1/4 miles along Stickney and Iroquois roads.

This year, the 14 volunteers cleaned out a mound of trash—mattresses, tires, bed springs, tail pipes—and they filled a trailer with garbage bags holding mostly fast-food wrappers.

"It's like this every year," said Gene, Rizzo's wife.

The Rizzos are certain that most of the trash is dumped by people who live in the township—the roads are too out-of-the-way for outsiders to find, they say; and, besides, who would drive into the country to get rid of hamburger wrappers?

And they're angry that the township no longer provides the free Spring Cleanup, which in most recent years involved trucking the refuse to the DPW building on White Lake Road.

This year, they figure it will cost them over $70 to have the trash hauled away by a private firm, which charges extra for tires and mattresses.

Rizzo was instrumental in the formation of free dumping days. Five years ago, when the township board was looking for suggestions for spending federal Revenue Sharing funds, he recommended pay-of garbage Michigamme Knolls subdivision residents removed from two country roads.

ing for dump days.

Participation was high. Last year, the cleanup cost about $30,000, mostly for hauling fees to landfills from the DPW site.

Federal Revenue Sharing was terminated this year and the township board established a fee schedule after deciding it could not afford the expense out of its general fund.

The Michigamme Knolls residents could have waited and paid for dumping at the DPW on May 16 and 17, but Rizzo said it wasn't worth the hauling and expense ($5 for an automobile load of trash; $10 for a single-axle trailer or pickup; $25 for a pickup and single-axle trailer, a flatbed single axle truck, a dual axle trailer, or a five-yard dump truck).

"I really wish the township would think of some way to fund this," said Gene Rizzo, noting that their subdivision roads are private and the residents, therefore, pay for all maintenance and snow removal.

"Our taxes are exorbitant and we don't get any services," she said. "We just hope if we keep pushing and pushing, they'll come up with something."

Clarification

Following several complaints about a reference to Clarkston as "the boondocks" in a story about Aura Fine Art in the April 15 issue of The Clarkston News, Aura owner Karen Weaver has asked for space to clarify her remark.

Weaver's viewpoint about the culture in Clarkston follows: "The artists' works speak for themselves. Clarkston needs no defense. It's a culturally viable area."

'Aloha' almost meant farewell for students

By Pat Young

Seventy Clarkston High School seniors are basking in the Hawaiian sunshine this week. They're halfway through a week-long senior trip to Waikiki Beach in Honolulu that's been planned since the first of the year.

If they're sending home postcards, they should send one to Meredith Travel in Pontiac, with a big thank you to Joyce Meredith. If it wasn't for some fast action on her part, the whole trip could have gone up in smoke, or more accurately, in bankruptcy.

The students and seven teachers left for Hawaii on Saturday. But two days before that, on Thursday, they got the bad news that International World Tours, the broker Meredith booked the tour through, had filed for bankruptcy.

It looked like the whole trip was off when Meredith discovered that the broker had only paid a deposit, a small portion of the $559 each, leaving a large balance due on the nearly $60,000 for the trip. Also, airplane reservations were not paid for by the broker.

Meredith convinced American Airlines to give the students airspace at the previously agreed on discount rate, and she covered the cost of the tour herself.

Thursday evening, seniors involved and their parents gathered for a meeting.

"Mrs. Meredith was there and had the tickets. Everything was in order," said Helen Blomberg, whose daughter, Michelle, was taking the trip. "We were all so relieved."

Meredith said later, "Thank God we take out insurance on every group tour we book. Access America Insurance (a new division of Blue Cross Blue Shield) will cover the cost, but we were short on time, and the immediate need was to cover the cost myself so these kids wouldn't lose out on their trip."

"It was a decision that had to be made," she continued. "There was a lot at stake, including my reputation."

Meredith said she had every reason to believe the Chicago-based tour broker was a reputable company. But she also said that this incident is exactly why she takes out insurance on her tours to protect herself and her customers.

"I've been in this business five years now," she said. "With tours, you're not dealing with nickels and dimes, but with hundreds of thousands of dollars."

Milford Mason, superintendent of Clarkston Community Schools, had nothing but accolades for Meredith.

"I learned about the problem last Wednesday evening. At that point, it looked rather hopeless," Mason said of the senior trip, which was not a school-sponsored event. "Thursday morning when I talked to Mike Kaul, a CHS teacher who helped organized the trip, he said Joyce Meredith was working on some things and would get back to him.

Later that morning, Mason said he discovered Meredith had arranged the airline tickets, one of the largest concerns, and confirmed hotel reservations at the Imperial Hotel.

At least one parent, Blomberg, hopes the kids are "behaving properly" at the Hawaiian resort.

"Mrs. Meredith told us this is a first for the Imperial Hotel, accepting so many students," Blomberg said. "If it goes well, it may pave the way for future student trips."

Hunger in Clarkston does exist

By Julie Campe

Spring is the season for outdoor recreation, yardwork and exercise—the time of year that organizations hold annual fundraising walks.

With the sun shining and vegetables ready for planting, it's easy to forget that others—even neighbors—may not have basic food, shelter and clothing.

Clarkston is not without people who may go hungry or have trouble meeting basic expenses, said Noreen Keating, executive director of the Pontiac Area Lighthouse.

"In general, we continue to maintain the perception of a wealthy county, that we don't have a lot of individual problems. We do," said Keating.

"Clarkston is just a small town that reflects the same problems as Pontiac, just less cases. Rural poverty is there," she said.

Lighthouse is an emergency human service center benefiting northern Oakland County and funded by various churches, individuals, United Way and some government help, Keating said.

She mentioned some of the cases she has seen in the Clarkston area.

An elderly woman, considered financially secure, became a victim of cancer and used her life savings to recover. She was left unable to earn more money and unable to meet expenses.

Several families have suffered from serious auto accidents and used all of their money helping the injured family members, leaving nothing left for food or clothing, or sometimes rent, she said.

"Many times, it's a temporary situation," she said, adding it's not unusual for people to come to Lighthouse for help.

In the last three months, a large number of Clarkston area cases have come through Lighthouse, she said.

A laid-off General Motors worker with children needed temporary help with utilities.

"You decide when you're in this situation whether you're going to eat or pay the light bill," she said.

A young couple with an infant did not have health insurance. With money from the husband's job, they paid the baby bills, but they needed temporary and immediate help with other bills and money to move to a less expensive residence, said Keating.

Lighthouse helped work out a payment plan with the apartment owner and found an organization willing to give a small portion of the deposit required for a different apartment.

In hindsight, said Keating, the couple should have worked out a payment plan with the hospital.

A working man needed family counseling for his elementary school child, which he couldn't afford. Lighthouse referred him to the proper agency.

A woman who made her living babysitting was unable to do other jobs and could not make enough money to meet all expenses. She received partial help with rent.

"There's all kinds of human emergencies that we've all thought we're above," said Keating, mentioning cancer and car accidents.

"Those people are all of us. Any one of us could face these things. Some of these people are neighbors."

Walks planned to help the hungry

Two walks to fight hunger are scheduled for May.

The 10K Hunger Walk, sponsored by Lighthouse, is scheduled at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, May 2, to start at Lighthouse, 109 Williams St., at the corner of Orchard Lake Road, Pontiac.

They expect to raise $25,000-30,000 with 500-600 walkers.

All of the money will be used to fund Lighthouse, an emergency human service center benefiting northern Oakland County. Family passes to Boblo Island will be given to people who complete the walk.

For more information, call 385-2462.

The second annual Crop (Christian Rural Overseas Project) Hunger Walks locally sponsored by the Independence Township Ministerial Association and by the Church World Service worldwide.

Scheduled at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 17, 25 percent of the proceeds from the 10-kilometer walk are to remain in the community. The remaining money will help fight world hunger.

The Rotary Clown Troupe is to participate in the walk this year, and awards will be given to the top five walkers in each church. Individual awards will also be given to those who return their completed sponsor sheets by June 1.

To pick up a sponsor sheet, contact a church or call 625-1750. The walk is to start at St. Daniel Catholic Church, at the corner of Holcomb Road and Valley Park Drive, Clarkston.

Baryshnikov, Sinatra slated for Pine Knob

By Julie Campe

Mikhail Baryshnikov, Frank Sinatra and the Bangles are a few of the performers scheduled for Pine Knob's 16th season, said Simone Prince, director of promotions and public relations.

"I think it's pretty strong with Baryshnikov coming and Frank Sinatra," she said. "I think the best is yet to come. We have not announced our opening performance."

They plan to announce the opener in May, the same month they plan to sell regular tickets, she said.

Only subscription series tickets are on sale now.

This season marks the season with the most shows—85. Last year, there were 73.

The open-air theater has a seating capacity of 16,000—6,000 in the pavilion and 10,000 on the lawn, although the average attendance is 10,000 a show, with about 800,000 attending each season, said Prince.

The average age of the audience ranges from 18 to 50, and people come from Illinois, Ohio, Canada and all over Michigan.

With an earlier Memorial Day, they hope for a longer, more successful season, she said.

Madonna and me

Kathy
Greenfield

In the course of a recent conversation, I mentioned that I had graduated from Rochester (Mich.) High School.

The person's response surprised me. This is what she said: "Oh, the same school as Madonna!"

Now, I'm certain that when Madonna graduated from dear old RHS ("the school we love the best"), she wasn't totally like she is today.

I have a difficult time, for example, conjuring up images of Madonna appearing in school talent shows and belting out such tunes as her "Like a Virgin" and "Papa Don't Preach ('cause I'm having his baby)."

Her wardrobe is probably strikingly different now, too.

When I think back to when I went to school there, however, that's when we get into really radical differences.

Most RHS girls, back in the early to mid-60s, were concerned about having matching blazers and skirts with stitched-down pleats. When we got really risqué, we wore blue jeans rolled up to our knees.

When we went to sleep at night, our hair was usually done up in curlers. I can still remember the discomfort caused by those brushes inside the round metal rollers and plastic picks digging into my head.

We had to drive to Pontiac to find a McDonald's, where they sold inexpensive french fries made from fresh, not frozen, potatoes.

Virgin was a word we never imagined singing at the top of our lungs.

I wonder if Madonna rode a school bus, ate cafeteria food, led a gym class in exercises or shivered in the bleachers while watching a football game. She must have done at least one of the above, which only proves that everything never changes.

About a week after the conversation that took me back to my RHS days, I ran across another unexpected reference to the famous Madonna.

I quote from a letter written by a fifth-grade teacher in New Mexico whose class became pen pals to fifth-graders at Clarkston's Bailey Lake Elementary School:

"I tried to talk about Henry Ford and the assembly line, but they were only interested in Madonna."

Think about that for a while.

Bartender toasts his customers

By Julie Campe

Dan Hallman has lived in the Clarkston area his whole life.

As a kid, people may have known him for his parents' business: Hallman's Apothecary on Main Street.

Now, he's known for his quick wit and smile behind the bar at the Back Court Restaurant on White Lake Road, Independence Township, where he's tended bar for 11 years.

It's a great job because of the customers, he said.

"The customers are the friendliest people in the world," said Dan. "They really are. They're like family. They're a great bunch of people."

He works the day shift, and all would be perfect if only he could have more time on the golf course, he said. That, and carp fishing, he joked.

"Since I golf so much, I don't get to fish too frequently," he said.

"In golf, I shoot my age quite frequently, by the seventh hole," said the 34-year-old.

He lives on Sunnyside with his wife, Cindy, and his two cats. Their names reflect Dan's interests.

Mooki is named after Mooki Wilson, center-field for the Mets, whom he saw play in the World Series. Thembi is named after a song by one of his favorite jazz musicians, Pharoah Saunders.

Dan's humor and friendliness are what the customers appreciate, said customer Pantel Pantelides.

"The guy's a heck of a guy," says Pantel. "He's my bartender and my personal friend, and he's my golf instructor."

Itching for free trade

Jim Fitzgerald

Do unto others as you would have them do unto you. That is the hackneyed opinion I usually express when the subject is imports. Free trade is great, but only if it's equally free for both sides.

Admittedly, mine is an exceedingly simplistic - and uninformed - opinion. It is nice, of course, when imported products cost me less than homemade, but what about the exploitation of foreign workers when General Motors goes to Mexico to manufacture cars sold in the United States? What about the jobs lost in the United States?

On such questions I like to defer to someone who knows more about them than I do - Ralph Orr, former Free Press labor writer, now retired and greatly missed. Recently, someone gave Orr a sport shirt made in Korea. The label, with no punctuation marks, instructed: "Machine Wash Gentle Warm, Tumble Dry Low Damp on Wrong Side."

"WHAT DOES this mean?" Orr asked. "Does it mean the outside is not fireproof? What happens if I drop a hot cigaret ash on the outside? Will I go up in flames, immolated on the altar of free trade? Or should I wear it wrong side out to be safe? And the damn thing itches. The tragedy of all this is that the Korean woman getting 50 cents an hour obviously couldn't afford to buy the product she makes (it probably costs $20 to $25) any more than the Mexican autoworker getting $1 an hour can afford to buy the American car he assembles in Mexico.

"I guess you could call this shipping of work to destitute countries a form of 20th-Century colonialism. In the 18th and 19th Centuries, Europe exploited Africa and the Orient for their raw materials. Today we exploit their people, and do nothing to improve their standard of living.

"It is interesting to read that of all the people that Reagan boasts about adding to the work force since 1979, more than half are making $3.50 an hour. Maybe when we get the figure down to a buck or so, we'll move all the work back to the U.S."

"In the meantime," Orr said, "you and I will have to make up for the income taxes lost because so much of what we buy is made somewhere else."

LIKE ME, ORR is a Depression baby. He remembers the "Buy American" movement. "I was only nine or 10 when things went to hell," he recalled, "but even then it made sense to me: If you buy a bauble made in Japan or Germany, you're taking the job of some American who probably was 'on the dole' - Depressionese for 'welfare'.

"Maybe it's provincial, maybe it's old-fashioned, but I look at the labels when I buy clothes, like Bob Hope does in these commercials. I prefer the ones that read 'Made in U.S.A.', although I do hold still for those that read 'Made in U.S.A. of Imported Fabrics.'"

It is something to think about.

When imported products are a much better value, why shouldn't I buy them? It irks me to drive into a union hall parking lot and see a sign saying "No Foreign Cars Allowed." Why should I pay through the nose to support U.S. autoworkers' union-inflated wages?

And I'm a lot more irked by auto industry executives who fell asleep on their fat bonuses and let other nations gouge into the U.S. market.

But if I save money by buying a Korean car, I'm taking advantage of the slave wages paid Korean workers. If I buy a GM car assembled in Mexico, I'm likewise exploiting Mexican workers. And either way I'm putting U.S. citizens out of work.

In the real world, free trade based on the Golden Rule is an idealistic dream not dreamed by the exploiters. So, when there's a choice, I'll buy the product made in the U.S.A. - even if the damn thing itches.

Eating disorders group meets monthly

The Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center is sponsoring an ongoing support group for people with eating disorders such as anorexia nervosa or bulimia.

The group meets from 7:30 to 9 p.m. the fourth Tuesday of every month at Dr. James O'Neill's office, 5885 M-15 in Independence Township. There is no fee and the group welcomes friends and family.

"The support group is designed as an information session and an opportunity to share experiences and feelings," said Bev Walters, RN, nursing director of the Ambulatory Care Center.

"Coming to one of the groups and learning more about the eating disorders may be an important first step for friends and family of someone who is having a problem," she said.

Walters points out that treatment for one who is bulimic or anorexic may involve hospitalization or intensive one-to-one psychiatric counseling. The support group, says Walters, is just one part of what is often a long recovery and readjustment period for those with eating disorders, their families and their friends.

If you think a friend or relative may have an eating disorder, Walters suggests you call your family doctor or the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center.

Springfield ponders new ordinances

Two possible ordinances were discussed at the April 8 Springfield Township Board meeting, one governing self-storage units and the other, off-road vehicles.

The board unanimously voted to send the self-storage unit ordinance back to the planning commission for a report. The ordinance deals with such issues as specific items that could not be stored.

The ordinance is to be discussed again no later than June.

Possible enactment of an off-road vehicle ordinance brought comments from the audience.

"I spoke to the sheriff's department and the prosecutor's office, and they said it is a nuisance to enforce this (off-road vehicles law)," said Lee Rogers of King Road, Springfield Township. "But something must be done to stop them. It's only a matter of time before someone is killed."

Walls distributed copies of the state statute governing off-road vehicles to board members.

"A local ordinance cannot be more restrictive than the state law," he said.

The state statute deals with noise, time of operation, trespassing, etc., on all types of off-road vehicles except snowmobiles, which are covered by a separate statute.

The board unanimously voted to request the sheriff's department to "actively and vehemently" enforce the state law, and also voted to work toward preparing a local ordinance based on the state law.

Parks & Rec offers aerobics

Spring is usually the time people get bathing suit-conscious, and they might even be motivated enough to trim their tummies and thighs for summer.

To keep the shape throughout the beach season, morning and evening aerobics will be offered by the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

Starting June 22, 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. sessions will be offered on Monday, Wednesday and Friday for six weeks in the township hall.

The cost to attend twice a week is $25; for three times a week, $35.

Also, classes will be offered at 6 p.m. Tuesday at Sashabaw Junior High School and 6 p.m. Thursday and 9 a.m. Saturday at the township hall.

The cost to attend twice a week is $20; for three times a week, $25.

The classes include a total workout of stretching, cardiovascular work and toning. Low-impact aerobics are also available.

For more information, call the parks and recreation department at 625-8223.

Sheep show at zoo

A shearing, spinning and weaving demonstration led by Gloria Bellairs of Hillside Farm in Springfield Township is planned Thursday, April 23, at the Detroit Zoo.

From 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Bellairs and a spinning guild of her former students will card, spin and weave the wool removed from zoo sheep, llamas and alpacas.

Bellairs will provide the commentary for the first "Sheep to Shawl" demonstration at the zoo at 8450 W. Ten Mile Rd. in Royal Oak.

Following the demonstration, the spun wool, a newly woven fringed shawl and other wool items will be sold at an auction.

Proceeds from the auction will be used for the Adopt an Animal program, which helps pay for feeding the zoo animals.

PUTTING CLARKSTON 'ON THE MAP': Village President Sharron Catallo was among metropolitan Detroit dignitaries who gathered at the Northfield Hilton in Troy last week to construct a giant puzzle map of the area served by the suburban Detroit Ameritech PagesPlus directories. The map, one of the largest ever created in the metropolitan area, was part of a 12-by-20-foot directory cover display to announce the arrival of the new telephone directories produced by Ameritech Publishing and Michigan Bell. Pictured with Catallo is Chuck Drouillard, Ameritech Publishing vice president of sales and marketing.

Rezoning likely

One acre at White Lake and Andersonville roads may have a new zoning.

In a 6-1 vote, the Independence Township board approved the first reading for the rezoning from motor vehicle service station to local commercial.

A second reading and adoption is required before the zoning change takes effect.

The present commercial usage of the property is non-conforming, so no improvements or changes are allowed, said township planner Richard Carlisle.

The owners would like to improve the property, and the local commercial zoning would be more fitting, he said, adding they plan to improve the convenience store at the site.

The property is surrounded by light industrial zoning, with residential zoning on the other side of Andersonville Road.

Teens cited for vandalism

Three Independence Township boys were issued appearance tickets for damaging a mailbox April 16, according to a police report.

The youths, two 16-year-olds and one 17-year-old, knocked a mailbox off its post with a baseball bat on Reese Road at about 11 p.m., the report said.

The home owner heard the noise and went outside and saw the boys leaving in a car. He followed them in his car, eventually cornered them and called the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, according to the report.

Each of the boys were issued tickets for damage to property under $100. The mailbox was worth $20.

Robbery charged

A 24-year-old Drayton Plains man has been arrested and arraigned in connection with the robbery of the Jet Gas Station on Dixie Highway April 12, said Lt. Glenn Watson of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Dale Laverne Jackson was arrested last week by the Waterford Police Department and charged with armed robbery and felonious use of a firearm.

He was arraigned before Judge Gerald McNally in 52nd District Court April 17 and is being held in Oakland County Jail on a $20,000 cash bond. A preliminary exam is scheduled April 27.

The gas station, at 6550 Dixie, was robbed of less than $100.

Three hurt in Dixie crashes

Three people were injured in two separate traffic accidents involving cars attempting to enter onto Dixie Highway last week, according to police reports.

John Sherrill, 18, of Independence Township and Karen Kahn, 25, of Springfield Township were injured when their cars collided last Saturday afternoon. Sherrill pulled out on Dixie from a business parking lot near I-75, but did not see Kahn's car, said the report.

They are in stable condition at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital. Two passengers in each car were unhurt.

Joyce Walters, 57, of Springfield Township, was injured April 16 after her car was struck by a car driven by Gregory Hickman, 17, of Independence Township.

Hickman was also attempting to enter Dixie, but pulled in front of Walters as she traveled northbound. She was treated and released from St. Joseph Mercy Hospital. Hickman received no injuries, while a passenger in his car suffered a minor injury.

JV Wolves off to slow start

First baseman Doug Lederman puts the tag on a Lakeland runner, but he gets back in time. After Clarkston jumped to a 5-0 lead, the Eagles put plenty of runners on base and came back for the victory.

Kurt Richardson may have been as anxious for spring break as Clarkston's Florida-bound students. The Wolves' junior varsity baseball coach finds his team in the unusual position of having a losing record.

With three straight losses last week, Clarkston is 2-5. Richardson's teams have gone 16-2 in each of the last two seasons.

"We're struggling bad right now," said Richardson. "Hopefully, the vacation will do us some good."

His players may have been thinking ahead to vacation last Wednesday when they blew a 5-0, first-inning lead and lost, 10-8 to Lakeland.

First baseman Doug Lederman provided some punch with three hits and three runs batted in, two of them coming on a homerun.

But the Wolves couldn't keep the Eagles off the basepaths.

"It was a combination of pitching and poor defense," Richardson said. "I can't pinpoint it. We get good defense one inning and terrible pitching, or good pitching and bad defense."

"We're not consistent enough to win right now."

A good illustration of Richardson's explanation came in a 4-3 loss at Holly April 14.

Clarkston received an excellent pitching performance from Joe Herron, who had a no-hitter after the regulation seven innings. Unfortunately for Herron, the Wolves had given up three unearned runs in the first inning and went into extra innings, tied 3-3.

Herron gave up his only hit in the bottom of the eighth and that was enough to give Holly the win. It was Clarkston's second straight one-run loss. Herron also had to do the job at the plate, going four for five and driving in all his team's runs.

When the Wolves, and Richardson, return from vacation, they'll host Ferndale April 28 at 4:15 p.m.

Clarkston's Matt Carson winds and delivers against Lakeland in junior varsity baseball action last week. Carson and the Wolves got roughed up, losing 10-8.

Sports

U of D to offer pro athletes 2nd chance

The dream of almost every high school or college athlete is to play professional sports.

The reality for those athletes is that only one in 50 at the high school level will receive a college scholarship and that only one in 12,000 will make it to the pros.

Even for those who do reach the professional ranks, the average career length in the four major sports is only four years.

"They have to understand the odds are against them," said Ronald Naski. Naski is director of a new program at the University of Detroit's Clarkston campus, which is designed to emphasize education among athletes.

When the college or pro career has ended, what follows for the athlete is sometimes a nightmare. They have few skills or an education to fall back on in their search for a new profession.

Some of them went straight from high school into the pros, some left college early and many who attended college for four years did not earn their degrees.

"Seventy-eight percent of professional athletes (in the major sports) have not completed their college education," Naski said.

In an effort to alleviate this problem, 22 universities across the country have begun an outreach program.

The object of the program is twofold: to help past and present pro athletes attain their college degrees; and to use athletes as spokesmen to stress education to young athletes.

U of D is the only school in Michigan to be involved with the program, which it calls the Center for the Study of Sports. Its Clarkston campus is a logical choice to help athletes from the Detroit Lions and Pistons, who play in Pontiac and many of whom live in the area.

A press conference, featuring representatives from the Detroit Tigers and Red Wings, as well as the Lions and Pistons, was held last week at the Pontiac Silverdome to announce each team's involvement.

"Russ Thomas (Lions' general manager) said it's about time a university did something about this," Naski said.

U of D will offer a one-credit course to Detroit pros and other selected athletes in the fall, to reintroduce them to school, as Naski said. They'll be able to brush up on reading and writing skills and the course will be offered at the team site. They'll then have an opportunity to complete their college requirements.

Naski is heading the outreach portion of the program, in which athletes will visit local high schools and junior highs to urge students to get an education.

"We don't want to shatter their dreams, but we want to temper them with reality," said Naski. "An athlete makes a beautiful spokesman. I'm a former coach and teacher and I'm a parent and we can say, 'Stay in school and get an education.' But if you get someone like Isaiah Thomas, it's like God telling them this."

Muhleck's attitude brought OCC success

Tom Muhleck's two-year basketball career at Oakland Community College couldn't have had a better ending.

The Raiders were Division II national champions for junior colleges and Muhleck, a walk-on two years ago, won the team's "Best Attitude" award earlier this month.

Coach Lynn Reed made the presentation at the team's banquet.

"He (Reed) said of all the awards he's given, this was the most important," said Muhleck, a 1983 Clarkston grad who did not play organized sports in high school. "That made me feel good."

"Tom Muhleck had a lot to do with the way the team jelled," Reed said. "He never missed a practice, always gave 100 percent and never complained. Tom served as the cement that held us together."

"All of his teammates respected him and looked to him for leadership," he said. "His never quit, never complain attitude was the perfect example for his teammates to follow."

Reed guided OCC to a 29-8 record this past season, his first at the school. In the previous year, the Raiders finished third in the national tournament.

"He's (Reed) more of a disciplinarian," Muhleck said. "He ran a lot tighter ship than last year. At the beginning of the season, we had some problems and there were fights among us, but we really came together.

Clarkston's Tom Muhleck was honored with the "Best Attitude" award at this month's Oakland Community College basketball banquet.

"It was incredible how we came together. No one thought we had a chance to match (last year). We surprised a lot of people."

It wasn't easy, though. The Raiders won by just two points in both a regional semifinal game against Owens Tech of Ohio and a double overtime national semifinal against Shawnee, Illinois. Muhleck contributed four points and three assists in the Shawnee contest.

OCC then won the championship game by one point, in overtime, over Allegheny, Pennsylvania.

Muhleck said Reed had a great influence on him and his teammates off the court as well as on the floor.

"He helped everybody on the team," said Muhleck. "There's nothing he wouldn't do to see us graduate from OCC and get scholarships. He's called me to ask if he can help me in any way."

Reed has encouraged Muhleck to continue his basketball career at Ferris State. Muhleck will again be in the role of a walk-on, but whether he makes the team next fall or not, he'll probably stay on to study law enforcement.

"I'm going to give it a shot. Coach Reed thinks I can do it," said Muhleck of his chances at Ferris. "I'll have to work hard."

Lawrence keys softball wins for Clarkston

Win or lose, there should be no shortage of runs in Clarkston's junior varsity softball attack this season.

In five games, the Wolves are averaging 15 runs per game. However, they're also giving up 10 runs a contest, which accounts for an up and down 3-2 record.

They started 1-2, but pitcher Jody Lawrence limited opponents to just four runs in two victories last week. Clarkston mercied both Holly, 13-3, and Lakeland, 18-1. Lawrence has all three of the team's wins.

"Dana Austin was starting (at pitcher)," said coach Rich Erhardt. "She has more velocity, but she was having trouble getting it over the plate. Jody is slower, but more accurate."

In an 18-7 loss to Milford April 13, Erhardt said 11 of the Redskins' runs scored because of walks.

"We've got decent hitting and defense," said Erhardt. "We've got to get the pitching because there's nothing you can do if you're walking everybody."

Lawrence has seemed to be the pitching answer, as she was virtually untouched in the Lakeland game. She got plenty of offensive and defensive support, as Austin and others made several fine plays in the field.

The Wolves begin league play when they return from spring vacation, hosting a doubleheader against Pontiac Northern May 1 at 3 p.m.

Clarkston's junior varsity softball team ripped into Lakeland's pitching last week, mercying the Eagles, 18-1. The Wolves won two of three games last week to improve to 3-2 in the young season.

Clarkston grad makes ski team

Rick Emerson has reached his goal of qualifying for the 1988 United States Olympic freestyle ski team.

Emerson, a 1981 Clarkston graduate, placed third in both moguls and aeriels at the national freestyle competition at Squaw Valley in California earlier this month.

The top 15 competitors made the team and Emerson and his teammates will begin training in Oregon in June. They'll move on to Lake Placid, N.Y., for more training in July.

Emerson, who resides in Breckenridge, Colo., challenged skiers from the World Cup circuit at the nationals and he was named Rookie of the Year for his performance. He had been a professional for four years, but regained his amateur status last summer, thus becoming a "rookie" among amateurs.

Freestyle skiing will be an exhibition sport at the '88 Winter Games in Calgary and will become a full-fledged sport in the 1992 Olympics.

More cash needed for clock

Another $4,000 for the town clock is still needed by next week.

So far, residents and business owners have contributed $14,000 to buy a 1909 Seth Thomas clock in honor of Independence Township's 150th birthday, said Rita Burdick, Sesquicentennial chairperson. A July 4th ceremony is planned for the clock installation.

The two-faced, 17-foot timepiece has been restored and has a weight driven movement. The clock originated in Iowa and is to be purchased from an antique dealer in Florida, she said, adding they have to send the final payment next week.

"I think (the fund raising) has been great," said Burdick. "We've had several inquiries. We just need to get the people going to send their checks in."

She's confident they'll get the money.

"There's no question, we're going to get it. Otherwise, we're going to take it out of the employees' salaries," she joked.

"I think the people I've talked to are going to come through," she said.

To contribute, send a check payable to Independence Township with a notation of Township Clock Fund to 90 North Main St., Clarkston, MI 48016. For more information, call Burdick at 625-5111.

Morgan works until Ernie

With the help of radio announcer Ernie Harwell, Tiger baseball is something Dick Morgan can enjoy even during business hours at his Clarkston service station on Main Street.

But he prefers to be home for the games, he said. So what Detroit News sportswriter and Independence Township resident Joe Falls said about Dick in Sports Illustrated was true, he said.

In an article about Harwell by William Taaffe, Falls was quoted saying, "I know a gas station owner in Clarkston, Mich., name of Dick Morgan, 71 years old. He's been on the same corner for more than 50 years."

"Dick, what are your hours?" I asked him. "Well, I work from 7:30 in the morning till five minutes to Ernie."

"Five minutes to Ernie! You know what a tribute that is to have somebody say such a thing?"

Dick was kind of embarrassed by all the attention he's received since the April 13 issue, he said, adding he's received all kinds of phone calls about it.

"It was quite an honor to be mentioned with Ernie Harwell," he said. "But (Joe) was giving Ernie another pat on the back, (not me)."

"Joe's a customer and a good friend," Dick said. "We enjoy his company. He's good to me, and I'm good to him."

Acid rain could destroy food chain

By Kami Buchholz

April showers, snow showers and acid rain showers.

About the only thing experts agree on about acid rain is that a potential exists — in a few years time — for a mild concern to become a major concern.

"This is something to have concern about, but not panic. It may be years before it poses problems," Laura DeGuire, environmental air quality analyst for the DNR, said.

"It's something that would get gradually worse, even if we were to clean it up today," said Dr. R. Douglas Hunter, associate professor of biology at Oakland University.

To simplify, the acid rain process begins when waste materials, called effluents, which float around in the atmosphere later combine with vapors and are released during a rain shower.

Any given rainfall contains a certain amount of acidity.

"Pure water is naturally acid, but we're talking an increase in acid over what it would normally be," said Dr. Hunter.

Usually, the beginning of a rainfall is more acidic than the end of a rainfall, says DeGuire, who admits that "not all the mechanisms about acid rain are known."

Car emissions also contribute to the acid rain process, and is in part the reason legislation was enacted for tri-county car emission testing.

The concern over acid rain is the affect it can have on the environment.

Data is being collected and interpreted on acidic levels in lakes. The snail and clam are especially sensitive to acid concentrations because their shells are made primarily of calcium carbonate.

High concentrations of acid, it is believed, eventually cause the snail and clam's shell to soften and then dissolve.

"Once the molluscs (which include the snail and clam) go, then probably everything else (in the life cycle) will go."

"I don't mean to imply that that would be soon, but it could happen if the acid rain continued," says Dr. Hunter.

Since industry waste byproducts can contribute to the cycle, any area with clusters of industry poses an environmental threat.

The biggest factor in the cycle is played out in the atmosphere, and the source of one area's acid rain is usually downwind.

Acid rainfall in Michigan is probably coming from emissions in Gary, Indiana; Chicago, Illinois; Minnesota or Wisconsin, says DeGuire.

Arthur Johnson, president of Combustion Research on Leach Rd, says smoke stacks can contribute to acid rain.

"If somebody starts a fire, you can smell it 200, 300 yards away; but if you put a stack up... it spreads it around.

"We don't do enough to stop the contamination in the environment or the air," says Johnson.

The federal government has been haggling over a bill to address acid rain in both the House and Senate for about 4 years.

The primary issues are money, as in who pays for the restrictions placed on businesses, and how to monitor the percentage of reduction in pollutants.

"There's just a lot of issues that aren't resolved yet — it's a high priority yet."

"The problem is not being ignored. They just don't feel they have a consensus yet," reports Ken Nakamura, a spokesman from Washington congressman's William Broomfield's office.

The state of Michigan also does not specifically address acid rain in any legislation.

Pupils share reactions to pen pal program

By Kathy Greenfield

Match up a batch of fifth-graders with another class in far away state, have them become pen pals—and the inevitable occurs.

Some children find what could be friends for life and others are glad when the ordeal is over.

Two-thirds of the about 30 pupils in Duane Proctor's class at Bailey Lake Elementary School said they enjoyed the experience of writing to fellow fifth-graders at Fairview Elementary School in New Mexico.

Many of the children found similarities with their pen pals.

"Having a pen pal's pretty fun," said Misty O'Neal, who writes to Alina Vigil. "We have a lot of things in common, like our favorite movie 'Karate Kid II,' and we both like pizza."

"My pen pal and me, we have a lot in common. We both like to read books and we both like 'Wrestlemania' and we both draw the same. Our pictures are exactly alike," said Kris Diehl of his pen pal Michael Martinez.

Others enjoyed the aspect of discovery.

Chris St. Charles' pen pal Dustin Calavere has five cats, two dogs, a motorcycle and a B-B gun.

"I just like seeing what other people have," said Chris. "I told him about what I have."

For Jenny O'Rourke, who only knows her pen pal's first name, Valerie, the experience of trading photographs and writing has been pleasant even though she's quite a bit different than the fifth-grader from New Mexico.

"She's nice and she thinks I'm pretty," said Jenny. "She likes different kids of music (classical) and she likes to read, and I don't. It's neat because we keep sending (letters) back and forth."

Jason Parsons and his pen pal Jake Baras have exchanged their thoughts on their favorite things as well.

"He likes wrestling. His favorite show is 'Night Rider,'" said Jason, who likes wrestling but prefers

In mail call fashion, fifth-grade teacher Duane Proctor distributes the letters to his Bailey

Lake Elementary School pupils. Picking up his is Chris St. Charles.

"Growing Pains" on TV. "I guess it's pretty fun because you can write to him and it just gives you another friend."

Anne Everingham, who writes to Josie Gryalya, mentions another bonus.

"If you ever got to go to New Mexico, you'd know somebody," she said.

For some of the children, there wasn't much they liked about having pen pals. Two of them summed up their reactions with, "It stinks."

And some, such as David Hartke, shared mixed feelings.

"I like writing off and on with him," he said.

"Sometimes he says good things, but sometimes he says bad things. Every time we write, we joke a lot, like we ask each other if we got run over by semis."

All in all, their teacher considered the pen pal exchange arranged through the Scholastic Book Clubs a good one experience.

The children have learned some things about the state of New Mexico and about the lifestyles of children who live in a city with a nearby amusement park and mountains.

"We have found this to be a rewarding experience for our students as they are learning about other students' habits," said Proctor.

Guess what, Dad? A tour!

By Pat Young

Some kids volunteer their moms to bake cookies for school. Joshua Schell went one better.

The second-grader at North Sashabaw Elementary School volunteered his dad to give a tour of the General Motors Truck and Bus Plant.

Not just any student could volunteer this sort of thing, but it so happens that Joshua's dad, Dan

The Clarkston News Reflections SECTION 2

Schell, is an ergonomist for the plant. He is involved with working conditions, safety—and also gives tours.

"The whole thing just sort of mushroomed," Dan said. "My son came home and said, 'Guess what, Dad, you're taking my class on a tour.' His teacher (Donna Dick) is involved with three different second grades, so she couldn't take just one class."

In addition to Joshua's class, the second grades of Debbie Latozas and Norma Stalions went on the tour. So did the sixth-grade class of Tom Brown, where Dan's other son, Jacob, is a pupil.

Usually there are about 50 pupils on a tour. For this one there were 100, the largest group of students to tour the plant at one time, Dan said.

In addition to mothers helping with the students, including Dan's wife, Jackie, there were about 30 employees of the plant explaining the assembly process to the students.

Tours, common at the plant, have included everything from an international Girl Scout tour to an auto mechanics class from Tennessee.

Next week, GM Truck and Bus is planning special "Kids' Day" tours at the plant for the children of the plant employees.

Some of the North Sashabaw Elementary pupils had friends or relatives working at the plant, and they eagerly waved when they spotted someone they knew.

The children enjoyed a tour of the medium and heavy duty truck assembly area in the 5-million-square-foot plant built in 1927. They watched the beginning process of assembly to the finished product and were able to see robots painting vehicles.

Their biggest thrill came at the end of the tour, when they could climb up in the cab of a General or a Brigadeer, large straight trucks, and honk the air horns.

Pupils from North Sashabaw Elementary got a thrill from honking air horns on trucks at the end of a General Motors assembly line. Second-grade classes of Norma Stalions, Donna Dick and Debbie Latozas and the sixth-graders of Tom Brown toured the plant last week.

Dan Schell, an ergonomist with GM Truck and Bus, shows North Sashabaw Elementary students how parts are assembled at the plant.

H.A. "Junior" Berquist, general superintendent of manufacturing at General Motors Truck and Bus, doubles as tour guide when school children visit the plant. Here, he talks with second- and sixth-graders from North Sashabaw Elementary School.

Tom tries to bathe the 2 children

By Charlotte Hubbard

Last week hubbie Tom offered to take the children to the hardware store with him—allowing me 45 minutes of rest and relaxation. Tom has a way of stopping for an ice cream treat just before dinner as well as giving in to all the children's other demands, so I hesitated putting the two little kids in the care of the big kid.

However, I conceded. As any mother of a toddler will testify, the opportunity to use the bathroom by yourself should be seized. The thought of a lazy bubble bath with a cup of tea and without two kids and Tubby turtle to keep me company was irresistible.

All three "kids" returned two hours later. While I resembled a raisin from lounging in the tub, they looked like blueberries. Somewhere, between our house and the hardware store, there was a parking lot carnival.

Somewhere, in a parking lot carnival, there was a cotton candy machine making fluffy bright blue clouds of candy.

Somewhere, near the cotton candy machine, there was a richer cotton candy machine concessionaire.

And somewhere, under matted, blue sticky hair, were the children.

"Look at the bright side," said Tom, peeling patches of turquoise sugar off our son's face, "they couldn't have eaten much—it's all over the car, too!"

Tom offered to give the cotton candy covered children a bath; if I would fix dinner. I agreed, but cautioned him to hurry as dinner would be ready in half an hour.

"Half an hour?!" exclaimed Tom. "The kids will be in and out of the tub and dressed in less than ten minutes!"

"Ha! If you can accomplish that, the Tidy Bowl man will personally climb out of the bottle and congratulate you. Complete bathing of two kids in ten minutes isn't possible!"

Tom challenged me to a wager. If he lost, he would bathe the kids for a month. If I lost, well, we all lost, because I would have to cook dinner for a month. We synchronized watches, and then the big kid and the blue kids raced to the bathroom. I strolled leisurely to the kitchen.

Dinner was ten minutes late, but the clean kids were even later. Tom admitted defeat, and asked how I ever managed bathtime in less than half an hour. As he has a month's tour of dirty-kid duty ahead, I shared a few tricks of the trade. The secret is organization, using the "12 list." As I explained to Tom, the 12 key items to keep in mind when bathing small children are:

1—bottle of shampoo, minimum, per bath session. While it is usually used sparingly on the little heads, the little hands usually manage to apply it liberally to everything else.

2—children. With the size of dolls and the speed of little chubby legs these days, actually getting two squirming live children in the tub at the same time is the greatest challenge.

3—inches of water. This obvious ingredient is easy to overlook while you are busy chasing two muddy children throughout the house, so I have included it in the key item list.

4—bars of soap, one for each child to chase, one for the adult to use, and one for the adult to lose.

5—sets of clean clothing, minimum. Two sets for each child, as at least one outfit will get splashed, and one set for the adult, as the clothing they are wearing will get thoroughly soaked.

6—wash cloths, one for each child, one for the doll, one for the duck, one for the dog, and one for Tubby turtle.

7—the number of times each minute you must say SIT DOWN!

8—the number of arms and legs to be scrubbed. Preferably, the legs and arms should be attached to one of the children.

9—hundred tub toys.

10—miles per minute, the speed at which an unclothed child will dash through the house when being chased by an adult clutching clothes.

11—towels, minimum. One for each child, and nine to mop the floor with.

The final key item, number 12, reminds me to not take tub-time too seriously. You see, 12 is the maximum number of minutes freshly scrubbed children will stay clean before they need another bath.

Delpha Dunn's neighbors helped celebrate her 81st birthday April 16 with a cake, gifts and visits throughout the day.

The East Harvard Street resident has lived in Independence Township over 50 years.

"She is all-outgoing and full of fun," said neighbor Thelma Potvin in tribute to her friend.

Haley's hen

She's had to put up with a little teasing from her siblings, but Becky Haley of Independence Township is glad she won the 18-pound gourmet Henry K chocolate hen.

"They're trying to say I put in five raffles or it was fixed," said Becky, 10, a fifth-grader at Our Lady of the Lakes School.

In fact, Becky said, she only put her name in the basket twice, and that was at the suggestion of the salesperson at the Main Street Deli on M-15 in Independence Township.

On Friday, Becky said she wasn't sure what she was going to do with all that chocolate.

"I might eat it (or) split it with my sister," she said. "I can't eat it all."

Bill Wilson, a.k.a. 'the water man,' retires

By Julie Campe

Whistling was one of Bill Wilson's trademarks on the job as "water man," he said. "I'd whistle all the time," he said. "People always knew I was coming."

The 67-year-old decided it was time to retire from the Department of Public Works after 27 years on the job. Last Thursday was his last day.

At Bill Wilson's retirement party last week, somebody forgot the plaque, so township Supervisor Frank Ronk gave it to him on Thursday, his last day.

Most people in Independence Township know him from his call as he knocked on the doors.

"Water man," he'd say.

On the street, people would recognize him and say, "It's the water man."

Often, it was the woman of the house who answered the door when he was out taking water meter readings. And on the street, they'd always say hi.

"I used to have to tell my wife, 'They're water customers,'" he said.

He's enjoyed his job throughout the years, said Bill.

"You meet so many nice people out there. And I've always had good relationships with the people in the water department," he said. "I always looked forward to going to work."

Unbelievably, he's never had a problem with a dog, said Bill. "I even made friends with some of them."

"It's been a good life," he said. "I've enjoyed it very much."

His plans now include relishing his favorite activities.

"I know I'm going to play some golf, that's for sure," he said. "When the snow's around, I'll ride the snow machine."

"I'd just like to relax for a while, I guess," he said. "I don't feel 67."

And the people will miss him.

"He's been a great employee, a good friend," said George Anderson, director of the DPW. "He'd do anything in the world for you. He's just an all round good person. We really hate to see him go."

On-call firefighters find challenges, rewards

By Julie Campe

Part of the challenge of being an on-call firefighter is quickness.

When the call comes over the monitor, you have to drop whatever you're doing and go the scene immediately.

For Kevin Mason and Mike Jackson, that aspect has made the job more exciting in their first year of firefighting.

"I really didn't know what it was going to be like," said Mike. "I just felt it was something I wanted to do, so I gave it a shot. I found I enjoy it."

Every kid, I guess, wants to be a fireman when he grows up."

Kevin had a good idea of what to expect, having served in the fire brigade on an aircraft carrier.

He became a firefighter to gain more medical knowledge and safety techniques and for the "human end of it—the ability to help people," he said, adding he's attending Oakland Community College to become an emergency medical technician.

An important attribute on the job is having a cool head, no matter what happens, said Kevin.

His first fire was an assist for a barn fire in Atlas

Township, he said.

"We had just started a class at that point," he said. "They called and canceled class."

And off they went. And it was hot, he said.

Mike's first fire was a building donated to the Independence Township Fire Department for training.

"I was scared," he said. "You get in there, and it's hot. . . . It's tricky. It's dangerous."

"Now, I try not to think about it, just do it. You think about the danger after it's over. I remember the first time it got hot, and I thought, 'Do I really want to do this?'"

But, as Kevin said, discomfort is something to learn to ignore.

"You've got a job to do, and you just do it," said Kevin. "You don't give it a whole lot of thought from a personal point of view. You have to keep your mind on what you're doing. It falls back on the amount of training you have."

"The training they give is pretty good; it's ongoing," said Mike.

After 66 hours of firefighting classes and training, an advanced first aid class, a medical examination and a physical fitness test, a firefighter might be hired.

They're paid about $3.50 an hour during training and about $7 an hour for the time they work on-call.

Kevin, an "idled Fiero worker," is on-call during the day and takes classes at night. That leaves him pretty busy, he said, but he also likes to spend time with his wife, Karen, and children, Dathan, Jay and John. They live on Fourth Street in Independence Township.

Mike works days at General Motors Truck and Bus and is on-call in the afternoons. He and his wife, Lorraine, and son, Danny, live on East-Princeton Street in Independence Township.

Mike summed up their love of the job.

"I like the satisfaction of knowing that I've done something worthwhile," he said. "I get a good feeling when it's over. It's kind of a sense of pride. I feel great when it's all over, and I know I might have saved somebody's life or done somebody some good."

Mike Jackson (left) and Kevin Mason have been on-call firefighters for over a year. They fight fires, help with accidents or medical emergencies and help people in general.

Another treat was having lunch in the cafeteria at the plant.

Visiting with the children toward the end of the tour was H.A. "Junior" Berquist, general superintendent of manufacturing. He is also "chief tour guide" for children's tours.

Known by some in the plant as the "Pied Piper of children's tours" (Dan calls him "Papa Smurf"), Berquist looked like he enjoyed every minute with the youngsters.

"People in this plant are very proud of what they do," Berquist said. "When you bring people in from the community—students or adults—and they see these people working, it has a positive effect for the employees and the community."

"Besides, I love it," Berquist added with a grin. "I'm very proud of this plant and it does my heart a world of good to show it off."

Sharry Bronson, center, won the school award in an essay contest sponsored by the Farm Bureau Insurance Group. Meredith Higdon's essay placed second; and Jeff Waite's, third.

Three students earn essay contest honors

"My teacher made me," was the answer three eighth-graders gave when asked why they entered an essay contest.

It's a good thing he did. Three of Mr. Rathburg's Clarkston Junior High School English students placed in the school's America & Me Essay contest sponsored by Farm Bureau Insurance Group.

First-place winner Sharry Bronson's essay is to advance to the state level competition, and the top 10 state winners are to receive US savings bonds.

The essays weren't hard to write, all of the winners agreed. It was like any other assignment, they said, explaining what they wrote about.

"I didn't want to be remembered for whatever it was I did, and I didn't have to be famous to help America's future," said Bronson.

"I wrote about the immigrants who came here and what they did to make America strong," said Meredith Higdon, second-place winner.

"I wrote about the American flag and how we should take pride in the country we live in and what we stand for—pride and freedom," said third-place winner Jeff Waite.

Honor society welcomes members

64 students join 43 current members of Henry Ford Chapter

By Pat Young

Sixty-four Clarkston High School students were inducted into the Henry Ford Chapter of the National Honor Society on April 14.

Forty-three current NHS members took part in the evening ceremony in the CHS Kirchgessner Auditorium, which opened with a performance by the CHS Madrigal Singers.

"We have to be especially proud of evenings like this," said guest speaker Jerry Rose, director of admissions and scholarships at Oakland University, Rochester.

Rose congratulated the honor students on their achievements and talked about the choices that lay before them. He described the college years as a "four-year sabbatical to examine life."

Inquiry, literacy, function, awareness and understanding were some of the "good experiences" that go with education, Rose said. Putting them all together is what makes a scholar.

"Value is not found in earning the most money," Rose said, "but in being able to use your skills."

"Certainly the step you are taking tonight is the right step," he concluded. "You're an example of getting the best from the educational system."

NHS officers took part in the candle lighting ceremony, signifying leadership, character, scholarship and service. Officers are Jeff Billig, president; Keith Mercier, vice president; Mike Trebilcock, treasurer; and Michelle Pettit, secretary.

New members inducted included sophomores Kristen Billig, Kylel Bray, Nichole Chinavare, Steven Doolittle, Kellee Duty, Jennifer Fauss, Kristine Fromm, Mark Hetherington, James Huttenlocher, Jill Pilarcik, Marie Powell, Brian Riganon and C. Jason Smithers.

Juniors inducted were Ashley Adams, Kevin Baert, Nancy Bailey, Kelly Ballard, K.C. Baran, Douglas Bronson, Allyson Bugai, Katherine Carroll, Mark Colwell, Bret Cottick, Sandra Coulter, Bradley Dedrick, Jennifer Dupree, Kelly Eberhardt, Ali Fedio, Quinten Geyer, Brendan Gillen, Paul Jensen, Michael Kennedy, Michael Kolody, Robert Laurie, Wendy Law, Tracey Manning, Darren Miller, Sheri Mitchell, Sheryl Molzon, Ann-Marie Mudge, Kelly Parker, Sherri Rico, Marianne Samuel, Jane Selent, Derek Werner, M. Corey Whisner, Joseph Willis and Matt Zabel.

Players stage 3-act comedy

The Clarkston Village Players are wrapping up their season with "Saving Grace," a three-act comedy.

Play dates are Fridays and Saturdays, May 1, 2, 8, 9, 15 and 16. A benefit performance for Clarkston Area Youth Assistance is May 14. Curtain time is 8 p.m., all dates, at the Depot Theatre on White Lake Road.

The story involves mistaken identities between a secretary, her boss, a telephone repairman, the secretary's sister and a traveling evangelist.

The cast contains familiar faces of seasoned actors from the Village Players and newcomers to the area.

Sandy Sanford has the starring role as Grace. Larry McGhee is the boss, Dennis Fitzpatrick the repairman, Lee Wilcox is Grace's sister and Rick Carver, the evangelist.

Marlene Sewick is the director and Maria Shelton is making her debut as producer.

Tickets are $5. They may be purchased at Tierra Arts on Main Street, Clarkston, or by calling 363-0188 evenings after 5.

Harriet (Lee Ann Wilcox) handles the discovered gun much like a pencil and when she points it at Walter (Larry McGhee), he worries.

Trying to keep a secret can be trying, funny—or both, as Larry McGhee as Walter and Sandy Sanford as Grace illustrate in "Saving Grace."

Programs fuel children's interests

By Pat Young

Elementary students, according to a survey conducted by the Clarkston Elementary Enrichment Committee, have a high interest in three areas: science, space and computers.

Two of those were covered in a special "Science Day" elementary enrichment program last week at Pine Knob and North Sashabaw elementary schools. The programs were funded by a portion of a gifted program state grant.

"We attempted to address the issue that there are other gifted and talented students in addition to those in the Clarkston Academically Talented (CAT) program," said John Mathews, sixth-grade teacher at Pine Knob Elementary and a member of the Clarkston Elementary Enrichment Committee.

Programs on space and science were presented in morning and afternoon sessions at Pine Knob Elementary April 14, and repeated at North Sashabaw Elementary April 15.

Two teachers from Birmingham's West Maple Middle School talked to the pupils about the United States space program.

Concetta Brown, an eighth-grade teacher, and Don Sill, a sixth-grade teacher, had attended the U.S. Space Camp in Huntsville, Ala.

Using a large video screen to illustrate her talk, Brown presented the history of the space program in capsule form, from the "researchers and dreamers before World War II who felt space travel was possible" to the present program.

Students viewed pictures of the historical first walk on the moon and the marker left behind, which says: "Here men from the Planet Earth first stepped on the moon July 1969. We came in peace for all mankind."

They viewed pictures of Skylab, the first true space laboratory, and of the first launch of the space shuttle April 12, 1981.

Brown said that in spite of tragedies like the Challenger explosion last year or the fire which claimed the lives of three astronauts years before, the space program must and does go on.

Brown described Space Camp as "an amazing experience." The camp was really set up as a program for school students, but was opened to adults in 1981.

Sill echoed her feelings, telling the students that he was surprised how much simulation astronauts must go through in training. They spend many hours "pretending" before the real thing.

[See IMAGINATION, Page 43]

Imagination takes off

Then Sill gave the students a chance to "pretend they were going on a space shuttle."

Amid thunderous sounds taped at an actual liftoff, the students watched in awe on television screens as the rocket headed skyward.

"In a matter of eight minutes, man can go from launch pad to an orbit around the earth," Sill said. "Just imagine the incredible power this takes."

Next on the program was an assistant to Mr. Wizard of children's cable television fame. "Mr.

"Only as far as we seek can we go. Only as much as we dream can we do."

—Quotation on a space program poster

Wizard's World" is presented on the Nickelodeon channel.

While the real Mr. Wizard's studios are in California, he has assistants, like John Love, who do 4,000 shows in 24 states each year.

Love, who trains all Mr. Wizard's assistants, looked the part of Mr. Wizard's assistant when he appeared before the elementary pupils last week.

Complete with white lab coat, the bespeckled "science man" captivated the children with his sense of humor and his science experiments.

Using everything from water balloons to beach balls, Love taught the youngsters about air pressure and invisible gases. He used many volunteers from the audience to help with each experiment.

Love used Mr. Wizard's special hot air balloon to demonstrate how hot air rises. He illustrated how oxygen helps a fire burn and how carbon dioxide, created on stage with vinegar and baking soda, helps put a fire out. He spent half an hour teaching the students about science.

Their interest fueled, the students examined science projects and space literature as they left the program.

A colorful poster of the space program on the wall had an inscription which may further inspire some of tomorrow's scientists.

It read: "Only as far as we seek can we go. Only as much as we dream can we do."

Early campers get the bargains

Campers willing to brave the cooler spring weather will find reduced "Early Bird" rates at Addison Oaks and Groveland Oaks on weekends between May 1 and 10.

Fees are $5 for primitive campsites and $6.50 for modern and semi-modern sites at the Oakland County Parks.

Addison Oaks is on West Romeo Road, nine miles northwest of Rochester, in Oxford. The park offers 720 wooded acres that surround three springfed lakes. There are 13 miles of hiking trails. One hundred campsites are available.

Groveland Oaks is two miles east of I-75 at Dixie Highway and Grange Hall Road, near Holly. The 200-acre park surrounds Stewart Lake and boasts 600 campsites. Modern restroom facilities and three islands for group outings are also available.

Both campsites have boat rentals, concessions and swimming beaches during the regular camping season.

For more information on Early Bird or regular camping, phone the parks directly: Addison Oaks, 693-8305; or Groveland Oaks, 634-9811.

Green thumb aid

Help with gardening problems is a phone call or visit away.

Now open are a gardening hotline and a plant clinic staffed by the Michigan State University Extension Service in Oakland County.

The gardening hotline, 858-0902, is open from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m. weekdays.

The clinic maintains the same hours at 1200 Telegraph, Pontiac, in the north office building of the Oakland County governmental complex, on the same side of Telegraph as the Oakland County Jail and Courthouse.

Gregory Patchan, horticulture agent for the extension service, recommends that people with plant, tree or bush problems bring in cuttings, or the entire plant, for inspection. Color photographs are another option.

"The more information a person can provide, the more accurate the diagnosis will be," he says.

Currently, the plant clinic is a free service.

For parents-to-be

The Oakland County Health Division will offer a series of six expectant parent classes beginning May 6 at Clarkston High School, 6595 Middle Lake Rd.

Topics will include maternal physical changes, good nutrition, growth and development of the fetus and the baby, labor and delivery, infant care and parenting.

The health division advises expectant parents to enroll as early in the pregnancy as possible. To register, interested participants may call 858-1280 or 634-4418, ext. 81280.

Raking the lawn together makes the task more enjoyable for Walt Newman and Michelle Buhl. Last Wednesday, the students cleaned up the grounds and planted a tree in honor of student Brian Clarke, who died last year. The Colorado Blue Spruce was donated by Donald Moran.

For Tree Day, Michelle Trader doesn't mind trimming bushes at the Clarkston Alternative Education Center, even though it's kind of wet outside.

Spring spruce up

Photos by Julie Campe

Over 75 alternative education students gathered to plant the tree. Afterward, they formed a circle, held hands and remembered their friend. The Tree Day is to be an annual event.

Vincent Ventimiglia practices the series of moves, designated by number, that make up the Tae Kwon Do routines. Vincent wears an orange belt, the third level of eight.

Eeeeeyaaahh!

Joe Sanders' voice rings out over the lawn in front of Pine Knob Elementary School.

"Who's going to win the U.S. Open this year?" he shouts.

"We are, sir!" comes the response in perfect unison from 31 of his Tae Kwon Do karate students.

Sanders teaches the martial art through the Clarkston Community Education Department. Sessions are conducted Monday and Wednesday evenings and Saturday mornings, and new members are welcome.

The Force was down in numbers last Saturday—due to the holiday—but their enthusiasm was high. The group numbers 93 and they range in age from 6 to 47.

The weekend before, Sanders' group brought home 49 trophies and, for the second year in a row, the team title from the 12th Annual Tri-State Tae Kwon Do Karate Championships near Youngstown, Ohio.

Now they're practicing for the U.S. Open on Oct. 18 in Akron, Ohio. Between 800 and 1,000 competitors are expected. Last year, the Clarkston Force took first place in the competition.

Judging is based on balance, power, speed and grace—and the quest for perfection takes practice, practice, practice.

When Joe Sanders provides instruction, praise or criticism for the karate moves of his students, they respond with, "Yes, sir!"

Will melons planted by cukes taste funny?

Gardeners are a faithful lot. In spite of everything winter can throw at them, they know spring will come—and the thought is enough to generate books of gardening questions.

The following questions and answers were provided by Michigan State University Extension specialists.

Q. My neighbor says if I plant cucumbers next to melons, it will make the melons taste funny. Is there really any problem in planting closely related crops together?

A. Only if you plan to save the seed from this year's crop. Except in the case of sweet corn—which will cross with field corn, Indian corn and popcorn to produce an inferior crop this year—cross-pollination of vegetable crops does not affect the edible parts of this year's plants.

If you save the seeds from the crops you grow and plant them next year, however, the resulting plants may not look much like their parents, either because they were cross-pollinated or because they were hybrids to begin with, which are created by carefully crossing two or more lines of plants and do not produce plants like themselves when grown from seed.

An advantage of planting closely related crops together is that it makes it easier to rotate plant families around the garden because you can work with blocks of plants rather than individual rows, hills or plants.

For instance, if you grew all the cole family crops on the east end of the garden and the squash family crops on the north side last year, it's fairly simple to move them to a different area this year—the cole crops on the south side and the squashes on the east end, for instance.

Q. I know I should use treated wood for things like planter boxes and retaining walls for raised beds. But what kind of chemically treated wood is OK to use around plants?

A. Avoid wood treated with pentachlorophenol (often called simply "penta") and creosote. Both these materials give off fumes that are toxic to plants. Look for wood treated instead with copper naphthenate. It will not harm nearby plants.

Q. What is soil pH? And what does it have to do with soil fertility?

A. Soil pH is a measure of the acidity of the soil. A pH of 7.0 is neutral—neither acidic or alkaline. A pH below 7.0 is acid (sour); above 7.0, alkaline (sweet).

Soil pH affects fertility by affecting the availability of nutrients to plants. Each nutrient has a range of soil pH in which it is most readily available to be taken up by plants.

Outside that range, it may be present in adequate quantities but "tied up" in the soil so plants can not take it up.

The garden corner

A slightly acid soil—with a pH of 6.2 to 6.8—is usually recommended for most vegetables and flowers. Some plants—including blueberries, rhododendrons and azaleas—require a more acid soil. If the pH is too high, these plants will suffer from iron deficiency.

Q. Which vegetables need to go into the garden as started plants rather than seeds?

A. In the early garden, plant cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli and Brussels sprouts plants. After the danger of frost is past, set out tomato, pepper and eggplant plants.

You use transplants of early season crops so they'll be able to mature and produce a crop before the heat of midsummer. The warm weather crops need to start as transplants so they have time to mature a crop before frost.

Q. Someone told me that ordinary rubbing alcohol makes a pretty good pesticide for houseplants. Do you spray it on, or what?

A. Alcohol on a cotton swab can be used to get rid of mealybugs, but spraying it on plants is not recommended—unless your aim is to pickle your plants. A dab is good but a soaking is not.

Q. What's the best kind of onion to grow in Michigan?

A. It depends on what you want to use the harvest for. For green onions, you might want to plant white bunching onions from seed.

For onions for slicing on hamburgers, try a few sweet Spanish or Bermuda onions. They take most of the summer to grow from seeds or slips and don't store well.

The best onions for drying and storing are yellow globe types. Varieties such as Spartan Sleeper or Stutgartner were developed specifically for storing. These are usually grown from sets. Or you can buy seed and start your own transplants.

Q. I'm new to vegetable gardening, as this question will probably reveal: Do seeds have to be planted in a certain way so they're right side up? Or doesn't it matter?

You don't have to worry about planting seeds upside-down. Unlike corms and bulbs, which need to be oriented with the root down and the sprout end up, or transplants, which have a very obvious top and bottom, seeds will manage no matter which end is up.

Just be careful to follow packet directions for planting depth and avoid planting seeds too deep. This is especially important when you're planting very small seeds in clay soil that tends to get hard and crusty on the top.

Tiny seedlings may not be able to force their way through the crust if they're planted too deep.

Q. My neighbor says black walnut trees poison the soil so that nothing else will grow in it. Is this true?

A. No. It is true that black walnut tree roots (and the roots of butternut and Carpathian) contain a toxin (juglone) that will kill the roots of sensitive plants that come into contact with it.

This substance does not spread through the soil, however, though it will persist in the roots long after a tree is cut down.

Symptoms of black walnut toxicity include stunting, wilt and death of part or all of the affected plant. Most landscape plants are not sensitive to juglone. Tomatoes, on the other hand, are extremely sensitive.

Q. What does it mean to leach houseplants, and why would I want to do it?

A. Leaching is watering from the top until the water coming out of the drainage hole is clear. The aim is to remove accumulated soluble salts from fertilizer and soft water. These salts can damage delicate plant tissues. Leaching is not possible, of course, if plants are growing in pots without drainage holes.

Q. I had what seemed like zillions of yellow jackets in my yard last summer and early fall. Can we expect a similar invasion this year?

A. "Invasion" isn't quite the word for it—population explosion is a better fit. The only yellow jackets out of those zillions to overwinter are the queens. Each queen builds a new colony from scratch every year.

If you kill the queen in the spring, you eliminate the whole colony.

Watch for lone yellow jackets sitting on sunny south or east walls or crawling across sidewalks or driveways in late April or early May. Step on, swat or spray them then.

By late May, nests are fairly well established and populated with two or three dozen zealous, stinger-armed nest defenders. By August, nests may contain 200 to 1,500 individuals, depending on the species.

For 1987, a flagpole garden

Master gardeners prepare for bloom time

By Pat Young

A love of gardening and a desire to learn more led Don and June Thomas of Independence Township to become master gardeners.

"We read about it in the paper and called the Cooperative Extension Service and inquired," says June.

The master gardener certificates required attending a 10-week course offered through the county extension service. Each week, they covered a different subject—lawn care, flower and vegetable gardening, conifers, insects, soils, etc.—and each week they were tested on the material.

"We started with a little notebook, and it got very fat," says Don. "It's more than you could possibly assimilate in 10 weeks."

June is quick to agree, emphasizing that they "certainly don't know everything there is to know about gardening."

"It was just something we thought would be helpful to us," June says. "And we enjoyed it."

Another requirement was 20 to 30 hours of volunteer time helping others learn. The Thomases spent time at a farmers market, flower shows, senior citizens center and the Clarkston Farm and Garden Club disseminating information and answering questions.

June is now a member of the garden club, and Don helps out with projects.

June and Don's fondness for gardening is evident throughout their home. Sunny windows are filled with plants, and their 2¼-acre homesite on Foster Road is landscaped with conifers and gardens.

Wildlife enjoys the Thomases' attention, too. They feed deer at the back of their property, bird feeders hang from trees and corn is spread on tree stumps for squirrels and chipmunks.

The Thomases are already working on their gardens this year, and June has a special project in mind for her "flagpole garden."

"I read about a garden plan commemorating the bicentennial of the United States Constitution in 1987, and I sent off for it," June says.

"A Living Legacy in Flowers" will not only grace the small plot around June's flagpole, but will be used across the nation in 1987.

The design is elaborate. June says she will not follow it exactly, but will adapt it to her own garden. She has chosen red begonias and verbena, white begonias and sweet alyssum, and blue ageratum and verbena.

June Thomas tends one of her many houseplants. She and her husband, Don, are master gardeners and they spend a lot of time on their outside gardens as well.

Don Thomas prepares the soil for the flagpole garden. His wife, June, has planned a special garden this year commemorating the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

Nan's 21-year-old son Tim's bedroom sits in what used to be the hayloft, open at one end to the rest of the house.

For the bathroom sinks, the Dangel's placed the basins in old pieces of furniture.

A brick archway provides a window between the kitchen and the dining area. It's a "functional kitchen, small and cozy," said Nan.

Nan Dangel grew up on a 500-acre farm in Pennsylvania. Her husband, Bob, grew up in a city in New York. Their home on Deerhill Drive, Independence Township, suits them both.

Almost lost amid hickory, birch, oak and pine trees, the 100-year-old-plus barn reflects their lifestyle.

"We have all the charm of the old with the advantages of the new—plumbing, electrical," said Nan.

The couple bought the house 12 years ago from people who had transported it beam by beam from upper Michigan and reconstructed it near Deer Lake.

The post and beam construction provides the frame for the open home. The haylofts became bedrooms, and the rest of the house remained 30 feet high, she said.

To make it liveable, 6 inches of foam insulation was sprayed on the walls. They caulked cracks and holes and sprayed more insulation.

They didn't use drywall, but painted the insulation white, giving the interior a rough look to match the hand-hewn beams.

The Dangelos decorated with old and antique furniture collected in more than 25 years. And they added prints by Andrew Wyeth, reflecting their taste and decor.

They have since added a master bedroom and family room, said Nan, adding that they remained true to the style of the barn in their materials.

One of the best things about the house is the location, she said.

"The charm of Clarkston just grabbed hold of us," said Nan. "We are just absolutely delighted that we have found this home in this area. . . . It fits our lifestyles to a T."

"We love it here because we have the feeling of country, and we have neighbors," she said, adding the highway access makes it even more desirable.

[See BARN, Page 8]

Nan calls the master bedroom their "special place." With weeping mortar brick and cedar shingles, it's hard to tell it was an addition to the barn house.

Pepper, the calico cat, likes the master bedroom as much as Nan and Bob do. The nightstand is part of another set of furniture used in different areas of the bedroom.

The wicker set in the master bedroom is from Lloyd Loom, a Michigan manufacturing company from about 1910 to 1930.

Get the dirt on garden dirt

Soil testing is essential for healthy gardens and flower beds, says Gregory Patchan, horticulture agent for Oakland County office of the Michigan State University Extension Service.

"That's one thing people should be more aware of," he says. "Soil testing is important because it's the only way to know how much fertilizer to put on a soil area."

Gardeners frequently use guesswork when it comes to fertilizing and a common problem is overdosing, which creates a toxic environment. The plants don't grow properly and the reason why is not obvious to the untrained eye.

"Sometimes soil testing every couple years on gardens and flower beds is a good investment because it allows you to fertilize properly and maybe save some time and money, too," Patchan says.

He offers some advice for early-bird gardeners: "If you don't know what to do at all, you can always plant and fertilize later."

Soil testing cartons are available for $5 each at the extension service office at 1200 Telegraph in the Oakland County governmental complex in the north office building, on the same side as the Oakland County Jail and Courthouse. The telephone number is 858-0880.

Gardeners fill the cartons with soil, then mail them directly to a laboratory. The lab sends the results to Patchan, who provides the interpretation. The process takes 10 days to two weeks.

With the addition several years ago, the Dangels added another eating room off the kitchen and in front of the back porch. For the floor, they used 2-inch hickory boards and stained them once. They will be left to wear.

A barn no more

They're close enough to town to walk for bread or milk, and through the thick tangle of trees in the back yard, sparkles of Deer Lake are visible on a sunny day.

While their two children were growing up, Nan occupied herself with collecting antiques, and her hobby grew into a career.

Over a year ago, she opened The Great Midwestern Antique Emporium on Dixie Highway in Waterford Township.

"As the children grew up, this was my way of not ending up with the empty nest syndrome," she said. "I probably sell nicer pieces than I have, but my memories are in these."

Many of their items moved around the country with them because they relocated frequently before settling in the Clarkston area. Their bright red living room carpet has been the connecting color in each house.

This spring, the Dangels also shared their home with uninvited guests—two raccoon families, one in each chimney. They're loud, sometimes fighting or crying, and at night, they play in the trees and peek in their windows. They plan to have them removed after the babies are able to leave the nest.

But Nan doesn't seem to mind them too much. Maybe they add to the atmosphere.

Now! A carpet that keeps spills from turning into stains.
