By land and by lake

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Ski equipment, motors, boat radios, jet skis and gas tanks are the items most often stolen from area lakes, according to Sgt. Robert Smith of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department Marine Division.

"It's like anything else," he said. "If it's there, and the opportunity is there to take it, he will. ... And he sells it real cheap somewhere."

In Independence Township, water thefts are occurring at a normal rate, but it's nothing to be alarmed about, he said.

"It happens, but it's really no more of a problem than the other larcenies in the township," he said. "The boat theft problem is no worse than the car theft problem. ... It's a crime of opportunity, the same as larceny from garages and larceny from cars."

To prevent thefts, use common sense, he said.

"People get lazy and tend to leave a lot of their stuff down at the dock and boat," said Smith.

Put equipment away every time, he said. At the very least, put it out of sight. A good neighborhood watch system also helps.

If neighbors keep an eye on the lake and report any unusual circumstances to the sheriff's department, it will help, he said.

"When we do get any leads concerning boat thefts, we will pursue it wholeheartedly," he said. "We haven't had any major problem on any one particular lake."

End to litter

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Loose litter laying around downtown Clarkston will no longer be an eyesore, the village council decided Aug. 10.

Village employees will be asked by the council to work additional hours to help remove trash from the downtown area and in the Main Street public parking lot.

The issue was raised in a letter to the village council by Dennis Kacy. President Sharron Catallo read the letter to the council members.

In short, the letter said that too much

Low lake level concerns Independence man

Don Brockman hasn't used his boat in a few weeks. He didn't want to push it through the mud in his boathouse to get it to the water, and he didn't want to navigate between the stumps on Oakland Lake.

A Meyers Circle resident in Independence Township, Brockman says Oakland Lake isn't the only lake with trouble.

"It's getting kind of frustrating," he said. "I've got this nice boat that I can't even use."

George Bondi, chief of operations and maintenance at the Oakland County Drain Commission, said the problem is a lack of rain.

"Without much rain, it's difficult to keep it at a legal level," he said.

He's received about 10 phone calls from residents in the Independence Township area, he said.

Most people think the lake has dropped 10 or 15 inches, but it's really only between 1 and 2 inches below the legal limit, he said.

"We try to keep it a little above level," he said, in anticipation of dry spells. "As a whole, we're in good shape (in Oakland County).

"All we can do is pray for rain," he said.

Strategy set for tackling trash

loose trash was becoming a problem in the downtown area, said Catallo.

Kacy said the problem was particularly bad after special events like the Fourth of July parade. He suggested that the village council hire a work crew to handle just the litter.

The village council agreed that litter could become a problem if current conditions continue.

"You can see the (garbage) swirling around the parking lot" when the wind blows, said Clerk Norma Goyette.

Instead of an entire work crew, Catallo said she was in favor of hiring an additional worker, preferably a teenager, to help clean up the village, but the rest of the village council objected.

"Why hire an extra employee when we can give the extra work to one of our employees?" said Trustee William Basinger.

The extra paperwork required to hire a new employee wouldn't be worth it, he said.

The village council decided that an additional two hours per week would be sufficient to keep the downtown area clean.

Catallo was asked by the council to see if the village employees were willing to take on the extra work.

At the same time, Trustee James Schultz agreed to look into the possibility of purchasing more trash containers for the downtown area. Schultz said containers large enough to avoid being stolen would be needed.

Council members also requested information on how frequently the trash containers in the Main Street parking lot are emptied by the disposal firm hired by the village. They agreed that it appeared the cans weren't being emptied often enough.

38 prepare for school

Minds-on seminar sets tone

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It wasn't just a "how-to" leadership seminar that 38 Clarkston High School juniors and seniors attended last Tuesday and Wednesday.

It was a minds-on, goal-setting, idea-inspiring gathering led by Dr. Robert Burek, CHS principal.

The leadership seminar took place from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Aug. 4 and 5 in the high school library.

The only cost to the school district was lunch (McDonald's hamburgers and cokes) and approximately $200 for materials. The packaged seminar from Jostens was tailored to the school's individual needs.

"I asked club advisers for five outstanding juniors and seniors," Burek said, explaining how the students were chosen for the seminar.

Of the 50 suggested, 38 were able to attend.

Burek said he planned the first-time seminar because of a desire to "develop and nurture leadership skills in identified leaders—the key figures in the school who will make it go."

Student response to the experience was enthusiastic.

"I think it's great. It's helped me a lot," said Angela DeLaRosa, president of CHS student council. "There's lots of new ideas, lots of different clubs involved. It helps everyone get united."

"We're not all officers, but we represent all different groups in the school," added Tara Carncross, National Honor Society member and a staffer on the school newspaper. "Everyone has ideas."

Many of the students expressed an interest in seeing the group become an ongoing entity.

"If we continue to meet as this seminar group, I think we can get a lot done through the school year," said Jeremy Roberts, drum major in the band and chairman of sets in the drama club.

Mark Colwell, vice president of the senior class, had praise for Burek, saying, "I think it's really great of Dr. Burek, helping us get together so we can have a better year. His involvement will make us work harder."

"His interest reflects on us," added Stephany Tedder, senior class secretary.

The two-day leadership seminar dealt with topics such as the art of listening, reaching out, taking action, brainstorming and positive attitude.

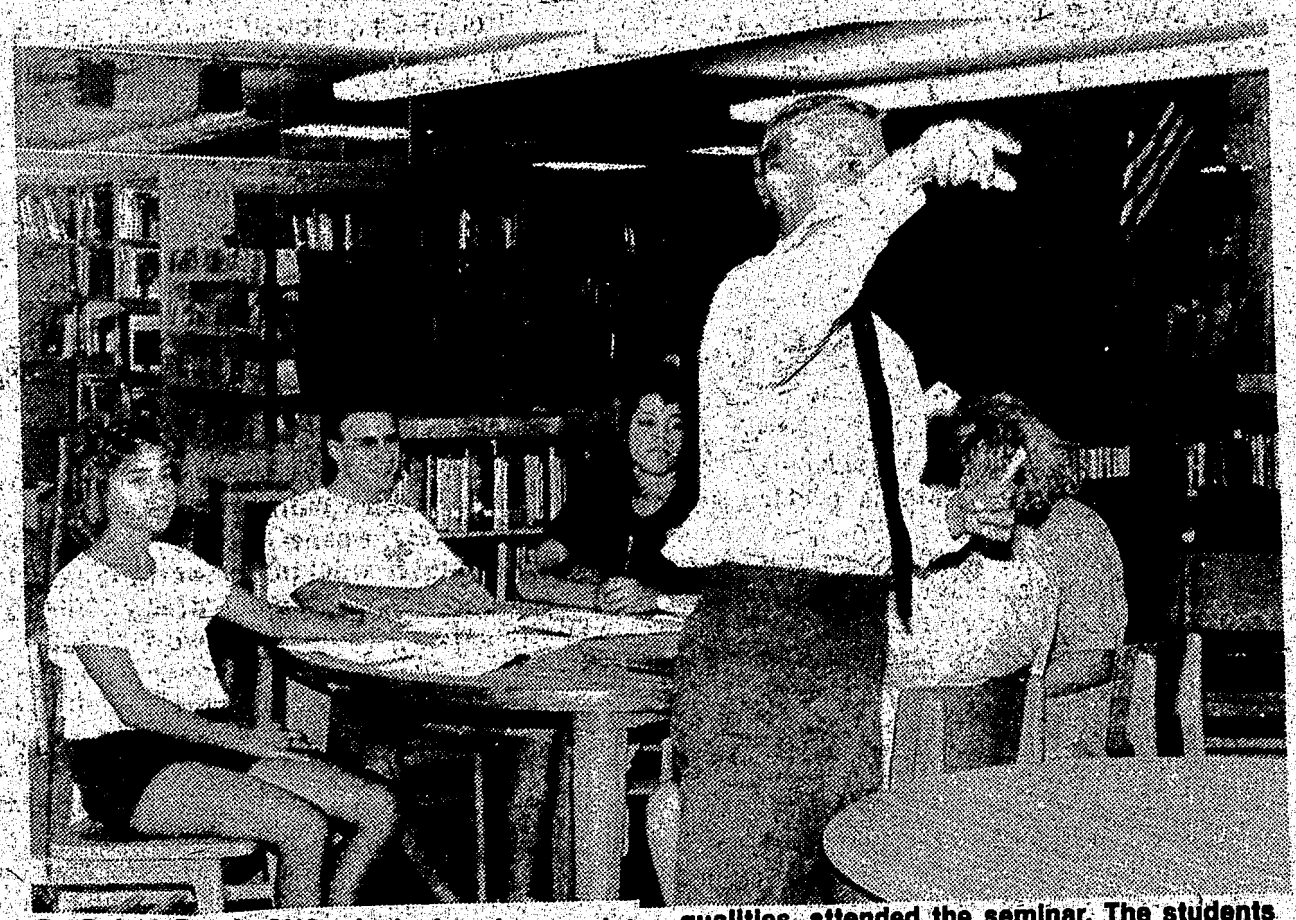
"It's fun working with young people who are enthused, committed and have great ideas," said Burek, adding that the seminar was a good "eye opener" for him.

The students expressed concern over school matters such as the millage and offered to get involved in the effort to pass a millage increase when it is brought to the voters again.



Dr. Robert Burek, CHS principal, makes a point during the two-day leadership seminar he conducted at the high school last week. Juniors and seniors, chosen for their leadership qualities, attended the seminar. The students voted to keep the group together during the school year and named themselves "Dr. Burek's Unity Group."

They discussed everything from cliques and counseling to the parking lot and unity at the school.

Unity—it's a word that came up frequently when the group critiqued the seminar. The students agreed that the experience brought them together.

They suggested that it not only be an ongoing group, but that sophomores be added at the end of the year and the group continued.

Burek said he is already planning for next year's seminar.

The group named itself D.B.U.G., which stands for Dr. Burek's Unity Group.

"We hope to eliminate some of the problems at the school," explained Roberts, who came up with the name, thus, "debugging" the school.

CHS senior Bryan Erickson plans to design a logo for D.B.U.G.

When members of Dr. Burek's Unity Group turned in anonymous written critiques at the end of the session, one student summed up the feelings of the group by writing: "This program is definitely a keeper."

Independence business sites face reappraisals

Last overall appraisal occurred 15 years ago, says assessor

Letters were sent from the assessor's office last week to notify commercial and industrial property owners of a reappraisal of their property in Independence Township.

The last overall appraisal of commercial and industrial property was 15 years ago, said township assessor David Kramer.

Since then, property values have probably changed, and due to the economic fluctuations, distortions in the uniform level of assessments have occurred, so some property owners are paying unfair amounts in taxes, he said.

Uniformity of assessment is the purpose of the appraisal, he said.

"(Right now), the fairness isn't there," he said. "Obviously, the person who is not assessed properly is either carrying more or less than their fair share of the tax burden.

"It's important that we conduct this appraisal this year to avoid another equalization factor, which could happen in 1988," Kramer said.

Equalization would distort the assessments even further, he said.

Equalization is the process in which the county may require an increase in the tax rate to certain classes of property to compensate for inaccurate assessments in general, he said.

Appraisal Research Corp. of Findlay, Ohio, is to perform the appraisals for a $27,775 fee. The job will probably take the rest of the year, said Kramer.

The appraisers are to present identification to the property owners and then measure the exterior of the building as well as examine the interior, he said.

"Generally, they will not interfere with the day-to-day operations (of businesses) at all," he said, adding the cooperation of the owners would be helpful.

Vandals strike at cemetery

BY KATHY GREENFIELD
Clarkston News Editor

Bill O'Roark spotted the bent flagpole in the veterans' memorial area of Lakeview Cemetery on Sunday. He was there, as on every Sunday, to tend family graves and water flowers on graves of veterans.

It's bad enough that flag stealing led to flying the flag only on Memorial Day and special occasions, he said, voicing his concern about the lack of respect shown by the latest act of vandalism.

"When you bend a pole that's 30 feet high, it takes more than one or four (people)," he said. "I think it's awful. I think vandalism has gone rampant in Independence Township and many other places.

"Too many (young people) don't care--that's about it," said O'Roark, a 62-year resident of Independence Township.

On Monday morning, the bent flagpole was removed. It will be replaced, said Linda Richardson, superintendent of the cemetery at White Lake Road and Dixie Highway.

Nothing else was damaged, she said, noting that the last time vandals struck was last Oct. 30, the night before Halloween, when a window was broken and headstones were pushed over.

Richardson blames the latest incident on teens, who are apparently partying in the cemetery at the shoreline of Cemetery Lake. She's found traces of a bonfire, beer cans and whiskey bottles.

"I guess this is quite a hot spot in the evening or early morning hours," she said. "One guy said he came through about 2:30 on Friday and it looked like a drive-in movie, there were so many cars parked by the lake."

The flagpole incident was reported to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department and deputies have agreed to step up patrols to curb the problem, Richardson said.

Walter Svenkesen and Micky Simpkinson, summer employees, hold up the bent flagpole they helped remove from the veterans' memorial area in Lakeview Cemetery, Independence Township. Vandals destroyed the pole Friday night or early Saturday morning.

Deer Lake hearing date set

A public hearing has been set for Oct. 5 to further discuss the plan for condominiums on six acres near Deer Lake.

On Aug. 3, Dan Rush, a representative of Vintage Construction Co. in Auburn Hills, presented the Clarkston Planning Commission with the proposal that would require rezoning.

The plan calls for 24 units to be built, each about 1,500 to 1,800 square feet, with enclosed garages. The units would tie into the current sewer system and additional fire protection would come from the pond on the property, Rush said.

While the property does front Deer Lake, no boating facilities would be made available to the condo residents. The small shoreline area would be turned into a park for the residents.

After the presentation of the basic plans, the planning commission called for a joint meeting with the village council and a public hearing on the rezoning issue.

"The public hearing will decide if that is the best use of the land," said commission member John Stuetzer.

Stuetzer said it was important for the planning commission to get some reactions from the public at the hearing.

"It's going to have an impact on the area," he said. "It's not like just a one-family home is being built."

Rezoning to allow the construction of condominiums on the same parcel of land was denied a few years ago.

Because of the controversy that surrounds the Deer Lake condo project, Stuetzer said the review process could take quite some time.

Hearing for watercraft control

Users of Deer Lake are to have a chance to voice their opinions on watercraft control at a public hearing Aug. 25.

The Department of Natural Resources is to hear all complaints, suggestions and concerns at the 7 p.m. meeting at the Clarkston High School Kirchgessner Auditorium.

"If anybody has any concerns or feelings pro or con, now is the time to stand up and be counted," said Timothy Doyle, director of the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department and chairperson of the Deer Lake Study Committee.

The meeting was scheduled during the boating season, so problems would be fresh on everyone's mind, he said.

The DNR is to hear all comments and then make a recommendation to the township board at a later date.

"It's not going to be a debate. ... Everybody who wants to speak will have their say," said Doyle, adding speakers should give their names, address before they begin their comments.

Autos damaged

A vandal, bearing a BB gun or pellet gun, shot nine automobile windows in Independence Township the evening of Wednesday, Aug. 5.

The damage was done to one car each on Warbler, Heath, Kingfisher, Drayton and Dixie Highway, and to four cars on Snowapple.

Kammer returns to commission

Kerry Kammer of Springfield Township has been reappointed to the Commission of Natural Resources for a term expiring Dec. 31.

Gov. James Blanchard announced the reappointment, subject to state Senate approval, on Aug. 3.

Kammer is a former 17th district state senator. He sponsored the Kammer Recreational Land Acquisition Trust Fund Act, Wetlands Protection Act and other conservation related public acts.

He also chaired subcommittees for the Department of Natural Resources, school aid and education, and agriculture.

Kammer is active in the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club, Bass Anglers' Sportsmen Society, Drayton Plains Nature Center and the Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC). In 1978, he was named MUCC Legislature Conservationist of the Year.

Kammer will continue to represent the Democrats on the bi-partisan commission.

Memories

Kathy Greenfield

My parents, the same as everyone else's, always warned us about sitting too close to the TV screen.

Sometimes I inched up anyway, but usually the thought of hurting my vision or having to wear eyeglasses was enough to keep me at a reasonable distance.

So here I sit, as I have for years, just inches away from a computer screen. The child in me is a little worried.

Another thing involved using electricity. My parents used to say that if you were leaving a room for a short time only, it was best to leave on the lights.

We used to laugh at a family down the street that religiously turned all lights off while moving from room to room. If they were going to be gone for only a few minutes, the lights went off.

I can remember the father bragging about their low, low electric bill. The child in me is shocked to know that he was right.

When I used to complain about the insects we had to wash off garden produce from the family plot, my parents used to tell us that the only way to rid the garden of insects was to spray insecticides.

No one, that I know of, used the term "organic gardening" back then, but that's what they were doing.

I also absorbed praise for such insects as ladybugs and for spiders and snakes. I learned that all of the above helped keep the insect population in check.

Much later in my life, their gardening techniques and tips became oft-quoted advice from health food experts. The child in me is reassured.

My mother never called it "quality time." She simply used to say that many household projects were less important than spending time with your children.

There were always standards to maintain, but the message was that people were more important than things. The adult in me frequently thanks her for that.

ALL ABOUT TOWN

Garbage is piling up

Looking for something to philosophize about? Take a stroll through the parking lots in Clarkston.

During our last such adventure, we found the following: a sample of every fast food wrapper known to man (a slight, very slight exaggeration), a broken beer bottle, large plastic bottles, caps from almost any type of beverage you can name and food wrappers.

Represented were the sports enthusiast (an empty golf ball box and Gatorade bottles), health food fan (a nectarine core), junk food addict, coffee freak (yes, we have plastic foam cups galore) and smoker (butts everywhere and a bowl from a pipe).

When you're finished asking yourself the inevitable question, which is "Why would people want to foul their environment this way?", the next thing that comes to mind is "What can be done about it?"

A good cleanup would help. Beyond that, there are some options. Frankly, we think it would be nice to send people to jail for littering, but that's not a practical solution.

We've also pondered a new club. We could call it the White Berets, otherwise known as The Trash Busters. They would assume the role of picking up after the slobs among us.

That solution, however, does not tackle the real problem. We need to think of a way to get people to stop throwing their trash everywhere but in garbage receptacles.

A city in the Netherlands came up with a novel approach. After rejecting a plan that would dispense cash for trash, and possibly cause the city to go bankrupt, a similar idea was put into action.

People who put trash in the cans were rewarded with a joke. Each trash can offered a different joke and the selection was rotated for variety's sake. The city soon became litter-free.

The solution is notable, because the approach was positive (a reward rather than punishment).

There's another side as well. The problem was recognized and people worked together to figure out a solution. That's what Clarkston residents need to do.

Most everyone agrees that the village is a wonderful place. It's simply not right to let it become a trash dump.

Last chance

If you've been meaning to respond to our readers' survey, this is your last chance.

You'll find a copy of the survey on Page 11 of this week's Clarkston News. We must receive your response by Wednesday, Aug. 19, for it to be included in the tallies.

We'll present the results and our reactions in an editorial in the Aug. 26 edition of The Clarkston News.

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

I won a golf tournament a few weeks ago. There were 57 golfers. None congratulated me. One guy said, "I'll get you next year."

I feel like Rodney Dangerfield.

Last week Hazel got a hole-in-one, and for crying out loud, praise is heaped on her from all quarters . . . and out of the other corner of their mouths comes ridicule and comparison.

I think it's absolutely wonderful that Hazel aced number 3 at Indianwood. I have no jealousy over her getting one before I did. No matter that she plays less than half as often, and with less accuracy, I am delighted for her.

It's great that friends, casual acquaintances, and total strangers seek her out to shake hands: no autographs, please.

I got a call from the course as word started spreading of Hazel's triumph. "Come with your camera, someone just got a hole-in-one," Marsha Olrich said.

Later Marsha said she couldn't believe anyone could be so complacent and casual about scoring their first ace.

After filling out the hole-in-one forms (she couldn't remember the name of her clubs), she entered the dining room midst clapping, shouting, and back slapping (patting, ladies don't slap).

The night before this historic shot, Hazel was most concerned at what to wear for the next day's round. She inquired about the weather, which would help in her clothes selection.

Never mind the height of the rough, speed of the greens, and tee and pin placement (like men do), but is it going to be sweater weather.

Off she went to good fortune and praise . . . while the same day I played in a golf league after word got out of her ace.

What did I hear? Your wife got one before you did, huh? I heard your wife got a hole-in-one. Must be she's a better golfer than you. You going to get Hazel to give you lessons?

I left the course early that day.

You know there's a tradition that golfers who hit a hole-in-one have to buy drinks for the house. Some golf courses even sell insurance on aces. When one is scored, automatically all patrons get a free drink.

The idea of the winner buying is contrary to tradition. Winners usually get trophys, money, and rewards. Not so with the single shot in golf.

Real golfers think the traditional way, and that's why everyone likes Dave Wolgast. He did the buying and we did the thanking.

May Dave still be around when I hit my first hole-in-one, which when I get it, will turn the critics jeers to cheers.

Sure it will.

Letters to the editor

Tax questions

I am writing in response to the school millage. I, for one, disagree with the millage. I think the schools are getting enough.

I looked at my July taxes, and the whole taxes go to the schools.

In 1979, the school had 175.89 acres of vacant land and 160 acres of improved property.

In checking with the township office last week, I found out that approximately 39 acres on Maybee were sold to Deer Lake Development Inc. Condos or apartments are planned for this property.

I assume that the school received a nice profit off the property. Another parcel, which was 37.5 acres, I believe, holds the school board offices. Did they sell some of the acreage? I doubt that the schools needed that much property for offices.

We always hear about what the school district needs. Let's hear about its profits. Today how much property does the school district own?

Every year the school district lays off teachers and every year they recall them.

I pay out almost $800 a year to the schools and I have no children in school. How many other people are in the same situation?

$125 more a year sounds small, but what if you're on a fixed income such as Social Security? A little here and a little there becomes a lot.

Lost: a kitten

Friday afternoon, we let our two kittens out to play in our yard at Buffalo and Waldon. That was the last time we saw the gray and white one, "Spaz."

A neighbor saw two young girls walking down the street late that afternoon carrying what looked like our kitten.

The kitten's sister and family miss her very dearly and would appreciate getting her back.

Please, if you know of anyone who came home with a gray and white kitten, call 625-5572.

More on fish

It was with amusement that I read about Mr. Sherman's walleye fishing trip.

We have just returned from The Fleitz Marina off Highway 2 in Oregon, Ohio. We had a very successful fishing trip, bringing home 72 walleye, nothing under 19 inches and, wouldn't you know, the grandson got the big 26-incher and the gradaughter, 20- to 23-inchers.

Grandpa caught the smaller ones and Granny stayed in the motor home and did the cooking (as usual).

Traffic was slow down, due to I-75 roadwork. The perch were on a good run for two days and then just disappeared.

Proposed bill to limit expenses

BY BOB CARR
United States Congressman, 6th District

As your Congressman, I have people come to me with a variety of problems.

Many of them are relatively easy to solve ... securing a passport in an emergency situation, cutting through the federal bureaucracy so that a widower receives her Social Security check or even arranging Washington tours.

By far, one of the most heartbreaking problems I have faced since being elected to Congress is trying to help families who are facing catastrophic illness ... illness requiring prohibitively expensive or long-term treatment.

Recently, the House of Representatives passed and sent to the Senate legislation that will limit the amount seniors and retirees have to pay for health care and may help many of you cope with the rising cost of medical expenses.

H.R. 2470, the Medicare Catastrophic Protection Act of 1987, would protect Medicare beneficiaries from catastrophic hospital and physician expenses.

It has become increasingly clear that none of us are immune from devastating effects of catastrophic illness, because almost no one is protected from it.

Contrary to popular belief, Medicare does not cover the extensive costs of catastrophic care and insurance from catastrophic illness is simply beyond the financial means of individuals and families.

Take the case of a retired school teacher whose 70-year-old husband became ill with cancer. They had Medicare coverage. They also bought supplemental coverage which they assumed would pay any expenses not covered by Medicare.

His illness necessitated three operations, long hospital stays, numerous visits to doctors, and finally a nursing home stay that lasted until his death.

The schoolteacher discovered that Medicare left substantial costs uncovered. She also found out that their supplemental policy covered little except the Medicare deductible and co-payment charges for the hospital stays.

They were finally forced to sell their home and become practically penniless before turning to the Medicaid Program for assistance.

In fact, a recent study has shown that married couples over age 65 averaged about $3,000 in out-of-pocket health care costs in 1986.

Basically, this bill places an overall limit on the things you have to pay for. These include hospitalization, doctors' services, other outpatient care and limited stays in skilled nursing facilities.

GM—Great Mystery

Jim Fitzgerald

A letter offered me a free mini-vacuum cleaner worth $42.95 for merely showing up at the Lakepointe Oldsmobile dealership in Grosse Pointe Park last Saturday.

"Go for it," my wife instructed.

Don't be silly; Oldsmobiles are made by General Motors. Just because someone from GM says a certain dealership is in Grosse Pointe Park doesn't mean it's really there. It might just as well be in Texas.

"But the letter says they're having a year-end auditor's sale just for Very Important People like you," she said.

A likely story. Last week, the president of GM's Saturn division said its headquarters would be moved from Troy to Spring Hill, Tenn. Then the president of GM said Saturn headquarters would stay in Troy. But top Saturn executives continued to say the move to Spring Hill has always been planned and those plans haven't changed.

So if those big shots can't even agree on the location of a division headquarters, why should I believe a letter from anyone at GM saying Lakepointe Oldsmobile is in Grosse Pointe Park? Why should I believe Lakepointe wouldn't allow me to take advantage of its year-end sale if I weren't a Very Important Person?

Beside, if GM really thinks I'm a VIP, how come the red light on my Olds dashboard tells me to "Fasten Seatbelts" 10 minutes after they're fastened?

AND HOW COME I was invited to Lakepointe on a Saturday? I thought everyone knew that Detroit area car dealerships refuse to do business on Saturdays so their salespeople will be free to spend the day throwing rocks at dealerships that forgot to close.

But if GM's top brass don't know where Saturn headquarters will be, maybe they also don't know about Detroit's never-on-Saturday car sales policy. That would explain something that has puzzled me. It would explain that GM doesn't really think it's smart business for its Detroit dealers to ignore nationwide shopping habits and lock out customers who have time to shop only on weekends.

I never could understand how such a huge corporation, with so many high-salaried, obviously bright executives, could condone inconvenient business hours that make as much sense as a convenience store closing at noon. Now I realize that the people at GM headquarters - which is generally believed to be in Detroit's New Center area - simply don't know about the Saturday closings.

Another thing that GM's best-paid executives probably don't know is that the astonishingly well-publicized, much-sought-after Saturn project was cut about 50 percent late last year. It will probably employ half as many people and pay half as much local taxes (minus tax breaks) as originally projected. If GM Chairman Roger Smith knew about this, he would surely reimburse half the money spent by dozens of cities and states in futile efforts to get the Saturn plant built on their vacant lots. After all, if they'd known Saturn was only going to be half as big, they would have wanted it half as much and made half the financial effort to lure it.

ANYWAY, I didn't drive to Grosse Pointe Park to get a free vacuum cleaner Saturday. I was afraid I'd either get hit by a rock or see a sign in the door saying the dealership was really in Austin, Tex., according to the latest report from top GM executives.

Instead, I went to a Midas Muffler shop because there was a hole in my muffler. A new one cost $46.95. I also had to pay $37.95 for an exhaust pipe I didn't need and $12.95 for a custom pipe I didn't need. "Blame GM," the Midas man said. "They built the separate parts in one piece so you can't replace one without replacing the others. It was a bad idea."

But I'm not angry. I know it wouldn't have happened if Roger Smith knew Oldsmobiles have mufflers.

Lower payments

This bill eliminates the limit on the number of days of hospitalization covered, it ends cost-sharing services and increases the number of days you can stay in a skilled nursing facility covered by Medicare.

Another good part of this bill is that it extends, for the first time, Medicare coverage to some prescription drug costs and makes it easier for you to obtain low-cost generic drugs. However, some of you will have to pay higher premiums.

While I was not satisfied with every aspect of this bill, especially the part increasing some premiums, I voted for it because many senior citizens told me they would take an increase versus the potential of catastrophic medical costs.

I also voted yes to move it to the Senate where hopefully further improvements will be made.

I can say, though, that this legislation means those living on fixed and modest incomes will not have to forego needed medical care because the cost is too great.

It helps those with the most severe health problems and greatest need for assistance. And, it provides a buffer between older Americans and the fear of catastrophic illness and bankruptcy.

"I'm going to be out there. People will see a lot of me," Sherman Publications Inc's (SPI) newest employee, Charles Yost, is planning on "pounding the pavement" and meeting area people as circulation director.

He started work with SPI, which includes the Oxford Leader, Lake Orion Review, Clarkston News and Auburn Hills Argus, on Monday.

Prior to Monday, Yost, 29, has had several circulation responsibilities. Most recently he was employeed by the Dearborn Times Herald newspaper.

"I was circulation director there, too. Actually, I worked with 3 papers, The Times Herald, The Heights Independent and Business Plus, a supplement of those 2 papers," he said.

Before coming to Michigan, he worked at the Daily Tribune, Ames, Iowa, as assistant circulation director. He worked there 4 years.

Yost will be responsible for "directing the continuing growth of our weekly publications," publisher Jim Sherman said. "All newsstands and subcription development will be handled by him, and he will look into other addressing and distribution systems."

He has an associate degree in Marketing from Madison (Wisc) Area Technical College and also from University of Montana, Missoula, Montana.

He has been involved with the Izaak Walton League as a director, supervisor of the Milwaukee junior public service and Detroit Circulation Council.

Improvement plans for Sashabaw put on hold

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

With office, industrial and commercial developments expected along Sashabaw Road, Independence Township Treasurer John Lutz would like to plan for the future.

At the Aug. 4 township meeting, Lutz proposed establishing a Local Development Financing Authority (LDFA) to finance road improvements on Sashabaw Road.

The board tabled the proposal until the Michigan Supreme Court rules on the legality of the financing mechanism.

A decision is expected this fall, said Lutz.

The board members didn't want to spend money on planning and engineering costs if there was a chance the Supreme Court would rule the financing method illegal, he said after the meeting.

Lutz, however, wanted to establish the LDFA now in case the Supreme Court decided to use a "grandfather clause," which would allow all present cases of the financing method but would prohibit future instances.

"If the decision grandfathers everything, then we would be cut off," said Lutz.

The time to act is now because other communities with a major highway through them have developed quickly, he said.

"If we're going to be called a planned community, I think we should be planning for growth," he said.

Lutz envisions a boulevard--a road divided by a landscaped median. Sashabaw Road will also need sewer and water improvements, he said.

Ideally, the boulevard would stretch all the way to Independence Oaks, but the LDFA would be only for Sashabaw Road between Maybee and Clarkston roads, he said.

An LDFA is similar to a Downtown Development Authority (DDA), except the LDFA was established by the state of Michigan to encourage economic growth in a community, said Lutz.

A DDA is established by a local unit of government and has more restrictions than an LDFA, he said. Both use tax increment financing (TIF), upon which the Supreme Court is to rule.

The township needs to consider this now because an LDFA would take a long time to establish--probably as long as the township's DDA on Dixie Highway took to establish, about five months, he said.

At the meeting, Lutz cast the lone no vote to table the project.

Developer needs sewer solution to build mutiples on Maybee site

At the Aug. 4 meeting, the township board tabled the second request from developer Joe Kosik to consider condemning the property needed to install a sewer from Dixie Highway to Maybee Road.

Because of township requirements, Kosik can't build on his 35-60 acres on Maybee Road without a sewer, he said.

Because of township requirements, he must have a gravity flow sewer, which means it will cut across some property on Waterford Road instead of following the road, he said.

Because some of the residents object, he can't build the sewer without the township's help, he said.

It's a chance for the township to extend the sewer with virtually no cost, he said.

George Anderson, director of the township's department of public works, said a sewer will come one day to Waterford Road.

Maybe it won't be necessary for 10 years, but one day, it will be essential, he said, adding Kosik was only trying to meet township requirements before building apartments and condominiums.

Most of the seven residents who spoke at the meeting, voiced objections, said township Clerk Richard Holman, after the meeting.

The board tabled Kosik's request pending further information on other possible sewer solutions, Holman said.

After the meeting, Kosik declined comment.

Independence objects to Senate bills

On township assessor David Kramer's recommendation, the Independence Township Board approved a resolution to oppose three bills in the Michigan Senate.

"The bills are not necessarily in the best interest of the residential taxpayer," said Kramer after the Aug. 4 meeting.

One bill, he said, would "change a lot of property from real property to personal property and exempt it. Then the residential taxpayer would have to pick up the burden."

Another would shift local assessing to the district--Oakland County in the case of the township, he said.

"Essentially, it eliminates local control over local tax collection," said Kramer, adding the township would be billed for the services.

"I personally don't think the broad range of services the assessor's office provides would be available under a district office," he said.

At the meeting, the board voted 6-0 to approve the resolution.

Muskrats surprise Walters Lake boat owner

BY JULLIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

They have long nails and sharp teeth. They eat vegetables, and they love to swim.

They also like Walters Lake.

"We have a lot of muskrats," said John Lutz, who lives on the lake off Clarkston and Eston roads in Independence Township.

The furry animals left a surprise for him while he and his family were on vacation, he said.

"They really did a number on my boat," said Lutz.

They chewed the seat and hauled the stuffing to the rear of the boat, he said. They took straps of life jackets to the back, too, and they chewed nylon rope into 6-inch pieces.

"It's very rare to see muskrats take up residency in a boat," said Lutz, adding, "They're not my fondest pet."

To reclaim his property, Lutz put ammonia-soaked rags in the boat at the suggestion of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. Muskrats can't bear the smell of ammonia, which irritates their eyes and nose, he said.

The animals are gone for now, he said.

"The problem is nobody traps them like they used to," said Lutz, adding he has traps ready in case they return.

As far as he can tell, the muskrats love Walters Lake and Heather Lake and the stream that connects the two, he said.

Lutz also likes the lakes and stream, and he doesn't mind watching the muskrats swimming and eating every morning, but he doesn't want to share his boat with them, he said.

Woman injured

A 76-year-old woman was injured in a car accident on Dixie Highway, Independence Township, last Wednesday.

Bernice Edna Powell of Dixie Highway, Independence Township, was waiting to turn left from northbound Dixie Highway when she was rammed by a garbage truck, according to Oakland County Sheriff's Department reports.

Powell was in fair condition at Pontiac General Hospital onMonday.

The other driver, Theodore Keith Jones, 23, of Croswell, was not injured. Jones, who was eating his lunch at the time of the accident, was given a ticket for following too closely and being unable to stop.

Powell's blinker was on.

Plan to use chemicals in lake survives challenge

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Cancer, chemicals, money, muck, weeds, sand, drains and Thendara Park were the concerns of the 30 people who spoke at the Walters Lake Board public hearing Monday.

Over 100 people attended, and the discussion centered on the the method of weed control for the lake off Clarkston and Eston roads in the northeast portion of Independence Township.

The board took no action, leaving the method of weed control as decided at the April lake board meeting. Weed harvesting and limited chemical usage along the shoreline are to be the methods.

The purpose of the public hearing was to hear comments on the formation of a special assessment district to pay for the weed control. The board members took no action on the special assessment district but plan to meet in another week, when the assessment objections on the Thendara side of Walters Lake should be solved.

At the three and one-half hour meeting in Clarkston High School's Kirchgessner Auditorium, residents presented a petition signed by 137 people objecting to the use of chemicals in the lake.

Lake board chairperson Richard Kuhn, a member of the Oakland County Board of Commissioners, said the board would hear comments on the chemicals because the petition showed "a sincere concern over the use of chemicals on the lake."

Robert E. McDonald of Lakeview Boulevard said he objected to the use of chemicals.

"There is no unequivocal guarantee that you can give that says it's safe. ... As long as you can't say, 'I guarantee you won't be affected,' chemical dusting is objectionable in any way," he said.

"This is a man-induced problem, ... and it's something man has to correct," he said.

"One of the best ways to control milfoil is chemicals. Chemicals are used throughout the state."

Suzette Hart of Longview was concerned with long-term solutions.

"Chemicals seem to be a quick fix to our problems, which are sewers and septic systems and fertilizers," she said.

Physician Dennis Zahm of Greenview did not want chemicals.

"Just because something is widely used ... doesn't mean it isn't a carcinogen," he said.

While after 10 years of usage of the herbicides likely to be used on Walters Lake, studies show no connection with cancer, after 20 years, a connection is apparent, he said.

Leonard Kerzka of Lakeview Boulevard said he's harvested his weeds for three or four years but the weeds always come up again.

"You can harvest these weeds til Hell freezes over, and they'll still come up," he said.

Applause met Kerzka's next action. From a white plastic bag, he pulled a jar of muck, neatly labeled with the date and contents.

"I brought a sample from the bottom of Walters Lake," he said. "I'd like you to analyze it and then tell us what's in here that makes weeds grow," he said.

Glen Vincil of Parks, also received applause.

"The weeds are unsightly," he said. "They're a pain. But I don't think we should risk the health of ourselves, our children or people who might live on the lake after us."

Applause also greeted the comments of Tom Gregory, the resident representative to the lake board.

"I want something done, and I want it done in my lifetime," he said, adding he would vote however the residents wanted him to, but he favored the proposed harvesting and limited chemical treatment.

An informal vote in the audience showed 23 lakefront property owners favored the proposed solution and eight opposed it.

Of the off-lake property owners, 23 opposed chemicals and seven favored them.

Board member Richard Holman, also the township clerk, suggested taking no action and letting the April decision stand. The originators of the lake board were most of lakefront property owners, he said.

Most of the audience left when the discussion turned to the special assessment district, but a few people commented.

Walters Lake is off Clarkston and Eston roads.

Jim Lafer of Thendara read a letter from his neighbors Clifton and Darlene Roche who said because of a subdivision problem, they did not have actual lake rights, although they had legal rights to the lake. They hoped to have the problem solved and volunteered to share the costs for weed control.

Lafer also volunteered to share the cost.

"I object to all of Thendara not being charged," he said.

The lake board took no action and plans to meet again next week to act upon the special assessment district, said Kuhn, after the meeting.

Assessments on the about 500 parcels around the 79.6 acre lake are to range from $140 to $14 a year for two years.

At the end of two years, the process is to begin again, including public hearings on weed control and special assessments.

After the meeting, Gerald Cleary, engineer for the project, said the chemicals he proposed were safe, and the studies showing a connection with cancer were unreliable.

"If I couldn't defend them, I wouldn't recommend them," he said.

Clarkston league is possibility

Residents interested in forming a League of Women Voters in Clarkston will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 26, in the Clarkston United Methodist Church, 6600 Waldon.

The meeting will be informational and organizational, according to Millie Ham, a Springfield Township resident who was recently named vice president of the Michigan League of Women Voters and is active in the League of Women Voters of Troy.

Anyone interested in joining the League of Women Voters is welcome to attend. Membership is open to all citizens 18 years of age and over.

"There are several people in the area who have expressed an interest in starting a league," Ham said. "It's a great opportunity for people to get involved, and Clarkston is a perfect community to have a league."

For more information about the meeting or the League of Women Voters, call Ham at 625-5486 or Katherine Payne at 625-5464.

Hunt honored

Forrest Hunt, DDS, received the Academy of General Dentistry's prestigious Fellowship Award during a special ceremony at the organization's annual meeting July 17-22 in Seattle, Wash.

Hunt, who retired from his over 25-year private practice in Independence Township this year, was graduated from the University of Detroit School of Dentistry in 1957.

To earn the fellowship award, he had to complete more than 500 hours of continuing education within 10 years and pass the fellowship examination.

Hunt holds memberships in the Oakland County Dental Association, the California and Michigan dental associations and the Michigan Association of Professionals. He also belongs to Omicron Kappa Upsilon, a national dental honor society.

The Academy of General Dentistry, the second largest dental organization in North America, is composed of 30,000 dentists in the United States and Canada.

Festival opens this weekend

The eighth annual Michigan Renaissance Festival that celebrates the glory of the 16th century will take place on seven consecutive weekends starting Aug. 15.

The outdoor festival is located on wooded grounds one mile north of Holly on Dixie Highway (U.S. 10) between Pontiac and Flint.

Continuous entertainment from four stages features lighthearted drama, bawdy and classical music, and folk and courtly dances. Along the tree-shaded paths, impromptu performances are presented by mimes, street theater groups, puppeteers, magicians, jugglers, rope walkers and minstrels.

Games which were popular in the Renaissance period and hand-held foods round out the offerings.

Admission is $8.75 for adults at the gate and $7.50 in advance at participating Fotomat stores, Ticketmaster outlets and the festival office. Children over 5 pay $3.50 at the gate and $2.50 in advance.

Festival hours are from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m. each Saturday and Sunday. The festival is also open on Labor Day.

For more information and group ticket rates, call the festival office at 645-9640.

Dreams play a large role for winners

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

No American had ever won a medal in Greco-Roman wrestling, but Steve Fraser still dreamt about it.

Fraser accomplished his goal of winning a medal at the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles and now he's telling kids across the state that the end result was well worth the effort.

On Wednesday morning at Independence Oaks County Park, a group of kids in the Independence Parks and Recreation playground program listened to Fraser speak about setting goals and then doing what it takes to make them come true.

The muscular Hazel Park native put the young crowd at ease right from the start of his 50-minute presentation.

"I'm just an average guy, just like you," said Fraser with a big smile.

Fraser went on to explain how he almost failed two courses during his first semester at the University of Michigan but then turned his fortunes around when he began setting goals.

By doing that, Fraser was able to become an Olympic caliber wrestler and graduate from college, he said.

"I was ready to quit but I didn't," said Fraser.

Fraser asked the crowd if they knew what Greco-Roman wrestling was. Several kids raised their hands indicating that they knew only moves from above the waist were legal in this sport. No leg take downs are allowed.

Steve Fraser, an Olympic gold medalist in Greco-Roman wrestling, demonstrates one of his many moves on Marcus Teague at Independence Oaks Park Wednesday morning.

The kids in attendance at the show had the opportunity to view a videotape of Fraser winning the gold medal in 1984. He brought the medal along to let the kids get a glimpse of the gold.

During a portion of the presentation, Fraser asked for a volunteer so he could demonstrate what Greco-Roman wrestling was all about.

He showed the group his favorite move, the slam headlock. This move helped him score eight of his 13 points during the Olympics, Fraser said.

The slam headlock uses the same basic procedure as throwing a baseball, Fraser said. As Fraser's arm wraps around the opponent's neck, the forward momentum takes both the wrestlers to the mat.

Fraser, who now lives in Ann Arbor, speaks at various schools and groups as part of his job for Domino's Pizza.

He still serves on the U.S. Olympic coaching staff, is on the Board of Directors of USA Wrestling and is an assistant wrestling coach at the University of Michigan.

Before ending his program, Fraser asked the kids what they wanted to be when they got older.

When one said he wanted to be president, everyone but Fraser giggled.

"If you ever want to accomplish something in life, you have to dream about it first," said Fraser.

Great Lakes State Games competitor

Township girl wins first gold medal

An Independence Township resident had the distinct honor of winning the first gold medal at the recent Great Lakes State Games in Marquette.

Hope Newport, of Ennismore Street, entered the state games in the smallbore rifle shooting competition.

Due to a scheduling conflict, the rifle shooters held their final competitions a day before the state games were to officially begin.

In effect, she won the medal before the Olympic-style festival began, making the honor even more unique.

Walking around the state games site with her gold medal draped around her neck, Newport became the center of attention during the opening ceremonies.

"People would walk up to me and ask if I had bought the medal someplace," said Newport, laughing.

The scheduling quirk that forced Newport to shoot early may have even helped her a little bit since the weather became miserable on the opening day.

"The day we shot it was really cool," said Newport of the weather conditions. Since the shooters are outfitted in many layers of clothing to keep their heartbeats from disrupting their aim, the weather was perfect, Newport said.

Part of the weekend competition was delayed due to rain at the beginning, but all of the events eventually took place.

Great Lake State Games, in their first year, were conducted on the campus of Northern Michigan University from July 31 through Aug. 2.

Featured were sports ranging from archery to wrestling. Some of the sports required participants to pre-qualify, but not the rifle shooters.

Approximately 3,000 athletes were in Marquette competing for the gold medals, said Newport. The state games were part of Michigan's sesquicentennial celebration.

The games were developed to promote amateur athletics in the state. All Michigan residents were eligible to sign up for participation.

Newport will enroll at the University of Tennessee in the fall. She chose the school because of its excellent shooting club. Several NCAA champions have attended and are currently attending the school.

"I plan on continuing to compete for quite a while," said Newport of her goals in college.

For now, her gold medal will join a host of other awards she and her younger sister Cary have won during rifle shooting competitions during the past four years.

Newport's parents are hunter safety instructors and they introduced their daughters to the sport of rifle shooting at an early age. The head start turned them into excellent shooters.

Besides the gold medal at the Great Lakes State Games, Newport also has qualified for a tryout for the Olympic Games.

Should she qualify for the honor again next year, Newport said she will travel to California and try to make the USA Olympic team.

A different view

Peter Auchter

What a thrilling finish to the Independence Parks and Recreation co-ed volleyball season. Things couldn't get any closer than they were.

The Village Clinic team needed to beat the Stars & Stripes club four out of five times Aug. 5 to claim the title. They did just that.

I had an inside view of what makes a winning volleyball player tick all summer long since a co-worker, who shall remain nameless for the purposes of this senseless story (Is that all right with you, Julie?), was on the Village Clinic team.

When the season was still young, this nameless co-worker asked if I would volunteer to be a reserve member of this powerful club.

I politely declined the invitation to make a fool of myself in the sand at Clintonwood Park due to a scheduling conflict.

Wednesday nights are my designated vegging nights. I'm not talking about a health food diet, but the act of sitting in front of the television and doing absolutely nothing. Not even changing the channel is allowed in this sacred practice.

It helps me to recharge my batteries for the rest of the week.

But looking back on the situation, hindsight is always 20-20, I should have given it a shot. After all, the winners will receive a T-shirt for their hard efforts. Considering all the hot and humid weather they had to play through, designer sweat bands might have been a better idea.

I would have liked to earn a T-shirt. Then I could finally have something else to wear besides the "I love Clarkston" T-shirt I was given on my birthday.

As it turns out, the team managed quite well without my services. They led the league for most of the way before Stars & Stripes overtook them during the next to last week of the season.

That set up a classic do-or-die situation for the Clarkston Village Clinic team. Like all true champions, they came through in the clutch.

But it wasn't a cakewalk for the Clinic players by a long shot. Stars & Stripes battled them down to the final game.

Each Thursday morning after a match, I eagerly looked forward to hearing about how the team did the night before. Sometimes the news was good, others times not so good. But mostly it was good.

Now that everything is said and done, I wonder if I would have made a difference, upset the balance of power in the league, had I decided to join.

Whenever those kinds of thoughts enter my mind, I have to slap myself with reality.

I'm a writer not a sports hero. Some things are the same in these two jobs, both include high pressure situations, but the differences are obvious.

So I'll take my assignment in life and stay a writer and leave the heroism to others who are much more qualified than I.

After all, without writers how would the world ever know about all the heros and the great things they do?

Soccer trip fun for all

While on the July 1-5 excursion, the 14 boysalso had the opportunity to play a couple of soccer games against teams in the cities they visited. Eleven of the players on the Waterford team are from the Clarkston area.

The Clarkston crew was pleasantly surprised by the hospitality they received while in Canada, said Coach Bill Deloney. Students age 11 through 14 went on the trip with Deloney and assistant coach Vern Boge.

"We got the use of the town pool and they threw a pizza party for us," said Deloney. "They really bent over backwards for us."

The soccer team visited the Montreal area and were able to watch the Montreal Expose baseball team in action. But the highlight of the trip was just getting around town.

The team helped raise money for the trip through candy sales, car washes at Bowman Chevrolet and various other events throughout the year, said Deloney.

The soccer team from the Waterford Youth League did well during its two exhibition games on foreign turf. The club won both games.

"I think that they underestimated us a little bit," said Deloney.

The kids who went on the trip were David Warner, Keith Wikle, Richard Larpenter, Scott Mehlberg, Steven Bennett, Andrew Deloney, Rob Doyle, Patrick Forbes, Jeremy Boge, Aaron Phillips, Justin Whitaker, Devin Dupree, Jason Borror and Jeremy Deloney.

Team members Shane Brown and Billy Martin were not able to make the trip, said Deloney.

"This is quite a group of kids," said Deloney. "I didn't have any problems with them at all."

Correct quote

An incorrect quote appeared in last week's edition stating that the Country Value Hardware Mighty Miss softball team was a "wreck" team last season. The quote should have said it was a "rec" team last season.

CAR WARS: Especially at rush hour, Dixie Highway at M-15 is difficult to navigate when it's under construction. This view is from Alexander's Restaurant, looking north. The improvements to Dixie between Maybee and White Lake roads are to be finished by November this year, according to Michigan Department of Transportation officials. Construction on Dixie from White Lake Road to I-75 is to begin in April 1988. Also planned for 1988 is the widening of I-75 between Joslyn Road and M-15. And after that is the widening of M-15, which is not yet scheduled for construction.

Millage vote to be set at meeting

The date and amount of millage for the upcoming Clarkston Community Schools special election will be discussed at the board of education's Monday, Aug. 17, meeting.

Superintendent Milford Mason said he would present recommendations to the board and it's possible the board will take action.

A request for 4.25 mills for operational expenses was rejected by Clarkston school district voters in June. The board previously agreed try again for voter approval of a tax increase. (One mill is $1 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.)

Also on the tentative agenda are the following items:

•The recall of three teachers to replace teachers who have requested leaves of absence.

•A review of the district's building operation handbooks. A separate handbook exists for each of the eight school buildings.

•Discussion of three proposed district policy changes: suspensions as they relate to substance abuse, sexual harrassment and controversial instructional practices. The board will vote on adopting the changes at its the Sept. 14 meeting.

•A proposed telephone lease program.

•A proposal to upgrade the graduation requirements for students enrolled in adult education and alternative high school education programs.

•A presentation to the board by Dwight Spiker, president of the Clarkston Athletic Boosters. At previous meetings, the organization has objected to the elimination of the athletic director's position.

•A closed session to discuss a tentative contract agreement with the district's 17 building administrators. The number represents building principals, assistant principals and the directors of special education, community education and athletics.

Hot air balloon festival

The second annual Oakland County Hot Air Balloon Festival is scheduled Aug. 22 at Springfield Oaks Youth Activities Center on Andersonville Road at Hall Road in Springfield Township.

Thirty colorful hot-air balloons will inflate and lift off at 6 p.m. during the festival, which includes a variety of activities from 10 a.m. until midnight.

Springfield Oaks is hosting a classic car show and an antique steam engine and tractor display. Participants can enter any pre-1970 auto in the car show.

Registration fee is $3 per vehicle before Aug. 22 ($5 day of show). More information about the car show is available by calling Oakland County recreation supervisor Rob Coffey at 625-8133.

Springfield Township Parks and Recreation is organizing children's games, and the Springfield senior citizens group is having a bake sale. Davisburg Rotary Club will sponsor a chicken barbecue from 5 to 7:30 p.m. and other food concessions.

Sherry Swindell, Springfield Township director of parks and recreation, is looking for more community groups to participate in the festival. Interested groups can reach her at 625-4802.

Over 60 vendors will participate in an arts and crafts sale. There will also be carnival games, a dunk tank, puppet shows, clowns, kite flying, a moonwalk, pony rides and an animal petting farm.

"Dancin' on Wheels," a combination roller skating/dance with a D.J. and band, and a square dance will add to the festivities.

Fees will be charged for food and some activities, but there is no entrance fee to the Hot Air Balloon Festival, which is sponsored by the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission, in cooperation with FM 104/WOMC and E.F. Hutton.

More information about the 1987 Oakland County Hot Air Balloon Festival is available by calling 858-0906.

UNTIL THEY PULL THE WHEELS, THEY'RE PULLING YOUR LEG.

Think about it. How do some brake places know what your next job'll cost if they've never seen your brakes to begin with? Answer: they don't.

Fact is, there's no way anyone can figure out exactly what the price will be. There are just too many possibilities.

That's why at Midas, we pull all four wheels before every brake job. To get inside your brakes. To inspect them. To positively determine what's gone wrong. From a nine dollar can of fluid to a new master cylinder.

And when we're finished, we'll give you a pinpoint estimate of the entire job. With a price that won't go up when the job's done. That's our promise to you.

So when it comes time to pay, you'll have a leg to stand on.

Wetlands provide cleaner water

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Wetlands, or swamps, are a part of the earth's ecological system that humans cannot do without, according to Holly Stephens.

"People think that they're just dirty swamps that are useless," she said. "But it's not dirt. It's not slime. It's a healthy part of the ecology."

Stephens, a Clarkston High School science teacher and former Independence Township Planning Commission member, serves on the township wetlands board.

"Society has to develop more of a consciousness of the environment," said Stephens. "It's something that has to be brought out.

"We've been destroying (wetlands) at phenomenal rates. It's scary," she said.

After completing hours of research at Wayne State University, Detroit, where she's taking graduate courses, Stephens talked about wetlands and other parts of the ecological system from her Fowler Road, Independence Township, home.

Humans have only recently become aware of the role wetlands play in the delicately balanced ecology of the planet, she said, but the conservation efforts have concentrated on saving wetlands for wildlife.

"Some people just don't empathize with the wildlife. They say, 'I don't care if a duck doesn't come back.' But there's more to it than the ducks.

"If we want our wells to work for us in the year 2000, we better preserve our wetlands so the water can be caught and re-enter the underground water tables. Also, we better not drain a lot of chemicals and pollutants into them, or we will be drinking them in 50 years."

Besides providing a habitat for wildlife, which is important aesthetically and practically because the wildlife may serve as food for animals that humans eat, said Stephens, wetlands also perform many other necessary functions.

They maintain water quality by retaining sediment, and they process organic substances. Organic substances are living things or byproducts of living things, such as goose or duck excrement.

Wetlands reduce erosion. They serve as a buffer to retain or detain runoff, and they provide plants that can absorb temporary flood water.

Wetlands provide an inexpensive system to process airborne pollutants.

They control insect populations and provide the needs of fish for spawning and the production of food organisms.

Wetlands can minimize acid rain by capturing sulfates and turning them into sulfides, which are more or less permanently removed from circulation in the sulfur cycle.

Wetlands can also compensate a little for the extensive loss of rain forests at the equator, which has interfered with the carbon dioxide cycle of earth.

To save well water, save the wetlands. To save the lakes, stop fertilizing lawns and stop feeding ducks, says Holly Stephens, from her Fowler Road home on the Clinton River between Woodhull and Oakland lakes. Grass is still healthy without being lush green, she said, and you'll save money on fertilizer, and you won't have to mow as much.

If the township fills in its wetlands, the Clinton River chain floods somewhere down the line, usually in Mount Clemens, said Stephens.

Also, by filling in wetlands, the underground water tables in the township don't have a chance to replenish themselves. This could mean private wells could go dry or become contaminated sooner.

"Social consciousness must be raised," she said. "Developers feel intimidated. They don't understand. They think you're taking property rights away.

"There has to be a balance. I'm not against development. I'm not against giving breaks to developers who preserve wetlands," she said, mentioning the township's cluster ordinance which allows smaller lots in order to save wetlands on a parcel.

"I think the developer and planning commission should work together, so nobody gets hurt.

"And we should all be willing to pay a little bit more so industries can take care of their waste products, or we're going to pay a whole lot more later."

Hubbard's Cupboard

Stuck on stamps

Charlotte Hubbard

I just returned from the post office with the new American Wildlife series of stamps. It is at times like these, when I have a sheet full of fifty colorful animals, birds, reptiles and insects with 22¢ inked across their bodies, that I wish I had fifty people to write.

I am anxious to stick the Bald Eagle stamp on a sky blue envelope and send it soaring across the United States, and would like to send the Gray Squirrel stamp scampering across a tangerine envelope and land in someone's mailbox.

I have had this intrigue with sticky squares of paper ever since the days of single-digit postal rates when Mom would let me help stamp the bright red Christmas card envelopes. Sure, I must have swallowed a stamp or two in the process of licking a hundred or so, but the satisfaction of placing pretty five cent postage stamps on complimentary-colored envelopes more than made up for a dry tongue.

Postal rates have gone up since then, but the fascination with stamps has stuck. I now enjoy the hobby so much that I take particular care to place a stamp on my tongue and then take it right off, not stopping to swallow in between.

This wildlife stamp set is beautiful, with the colors on these wildlife stamps so vivid and the reproductions so real that I started keeping the moth stamp in the garage for fear of finding holes in all the wool sweaters. Husband Tom thought I was getting a bit carried away, feeding the Canadian Goose at night and all.

Just to show the animals were not real, he placed two Black-tailed Jack Rabbit stamps alone in the desk drawer. A week later there were still only two stamps, but that doesn't prove anything. He could have gotten two boy Jack Rabbit stamps . . .

I get a certain artistic thrill out of licking and sticking a stamp such as the Scarlet Tanager to a matching scarlet envelope. However, that thrill is secondary to the thrill of setting these creatures free. Unfortunately, in order to let the Bison stamp roam, the Eastern Chipmunk stamp out of the midwest and the other forty-eight critters return to the wild, I have been forced to purchase a great deal of stationery.

Naturally I can't send blank letters, so I have been forced to do exciting things in order to have something to write about in the letters I send in order to use the pretty postage stamps. Tom thinks this is all expensively wasteful. While I can't buy stamps any cheaper than 22 cents each, I think he should be grateful that I keep a damper on the exciting things I must do in order to have something to write a letter about. Some folks require exotic travel, I just wrote my sister with the exciting news of a sale on bologna.

I am not single-tonguedly responsible for keeping the Post Office in business, for there are many people who share my intrigue with stamps and stationery. After hearing about some of them and watching my fascination with this latest set of fifty stamps and a new box of stationery, Hubbie inquired why anyone would spend fifty cents on a card and twenty-two cents on a stamp just to send someone their two cents worth.

I was really glad he asked that. He just gave me a reason to write fifty people for an answer.

2,222 books later

About 310 youngsters participated in the Independence Township Library's eight-week Summer Reading Program.

The number includes 250 children in the program for first- through sixth-graders and 60 in the preschool program.

"We had excellent response, better than ever," said children's librarian Anne Rose. "All in all, it was a good summer."

The theme was Celebrate Michigan in honor of the state's 150th birthday this year. Michigan-related activities and guest speakers helped make the program a summer-long birthday party, Rose said.

Eighty-nine of the children in grades K-6 fulfilled their contracts to receive reading certificates and 2,222 books were read by program participants.

Free library programs for children continue with the Preschool Story Times meeting weekly at 10 and 11 a.m. on Wednesdays and three parties.

On Oct. 24, the pumpkin carving party will begin the day, followed by an afternoon Halloween costume party. On Dec. 12, the annual Christmas party for kindergartners through third-graders is planned.

A healthy, low fat and high fiber diet can help prevent cancer

Sometimes it seems as though everything causes cancer, but actually some foods and vitamins may help prevent the disease. By eating a well balanced diet, choosing a variety of foods and following the guidelines listed below you can reduce your risk of developing cancer, according to the National Cancer Institute.

Limit your intake of fat to decrease the risk of developing colon cancer and possibly cancers of the breast and prostate.

To help you measure fats, here are some examples:

- one cup of whole milk has eight grams of fat, but skim milk only has a trace;
- 10 potato chips have eight grams of fat;
- One tablespoon of peanut butter has seven grams of fat;
- one slice of pizza has 20 grams;
- one cup of ice cream has 10 grams;
- one hot dog has 15 grams of fat;
- one teaspoon of butter or margarine has five grams of fat.

Ways of preparing food can also help reduce dietary fat levels. Baking, broiling and boiling foods is better than frying; trimming excess fat off of meat helps; using low fat milk and cheeses; and limiting the amount of meat, poultry and fish to six ounces or less each day is also beneficial.

The National Cancer Institute also recommends eating more fruits, vegetables (especially those high in vitamins A and C) and whole grain breads and cereals. Foods such as peas, carrots, spinach, sweet potatoes, kale and pumpkin are high in beta carotene, a substance which the body changes to vitamin A. Diets high in this substance have been associated with lower rates of most cancers. Diets low in Vitamin A have been linked to prostate, cervix, skin, bladder and colon cancers. Vitamin C may also play an important role in preventing cancers of the stomach and esophagus. Brussels sprouts, green peppers, strawberries, oranges and other citrus fruits are good sources of this vitamin.

Fiber helps move waste products, including potential cancer causing agents, through the body. Another benefit of fiber is that it is low in fat. For these reasons, a fiber rich diet is recommended. Such a diet includes bran, fresh fruits, vegetables, whole grain breads, rice, pasta and dried beans.

Consume salt cured, smoked and grilled foods only in moderation. Cancer causing agents may come from the barbecue flame and smoke; this may be a concern when grilling fish or meat or frying hamburger.

Drink alcoholic beverages only in moderation. Too much alcohol, especially when combined with cigarette smoke, increases the risk for cancers of the mouth, esophagus and larnyx.

These guidelines are beneficial not only for their possible help in preventing cancer, but for good health in general; following them may help keep body weight down and reduce risks for other health problems.

If you have any questions about diet and cancer prevention or special diets for the cancer patient call the Cancer Information Service of Michigan at 1-800-4-CANCER (1-800-422-6237). Counselors are available from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. to answer any questions about cancer.

Easy but elegant

The perfect summertime dessert, for me at least, is one that is light to eat, easy to make, but so elegant to look at that company will think it took hours to prepare.

The following dessert fits the description to a "T," and that stands for terrific.

CHERRY ANGEL DESSERT

8 cups angel food cake, cut into about ½-inch cubes
1 No. 2 can (2½ cups) cherry pie filling (or make your own with Michigan cherries)
1 package instant vanilla pudding mix
1½ cups milk
1 cup dairy sour cream

Place half the cake cubes in a rectangular cake pan. Spoon cherry pie filling over cake. Top with remaining cake.

Combine pudding mix, milk and sour cream; beat smooth; spread over cake. Chill about 5 hours. Garnish with more filling, if desired.

Friend to friend

Like yourself

ACTION AND EDUCATION AWARE WAR ON DRUGS

Dear Friend to Friend:

My boyfriend wants me to grow my hair long. I like it short. He makes fun of me whenever I get it cut. What should I do?

Short Stuff

Dear Short,

You are your own person. Even though we all get caught in the trap of trying to please others, we have to be very cautious of this.

Tell him how you feel about him making fun of you and if he continues, get rid of him.

You will be much happier if you please yourself in this instance and if he can't respect that, you don't need him. (Otherwise, pretty soon he will start trying to change you in other ways, too, and you will lose respect of yourself.)

Dear Friend to Friend,

I have a friend who is a wonderful person except for one thing. Her very regard toward sexuality is very poor.

She is crude, rude and socially unacceptable.

She gives gross references about her own sex life that I'm just not interested in. She constantly puts herself in a bad light, swears loudly and embarrasses me.

I've tried talking to her abut this but she thinks it's just funny. She's generally a wonderful and generous person.

How can I help her re-evaluate her behavior? What can I do?

Miss Priss

Dear Miss Priss,

It is apparent that you feel that her behavior and actions are below your standard of values.

Your values are to be commended, but you are not responsible for changing her value structure. The best way to deal with this is to talk to her about how she makes you feel.

If this has not worked in the past or doesn't work now, then you need to step back and take a look at your friendship.

Do you think that her strong points outweigh her weak points?

People usually resort to this behavior because of a low self-image, and another strategy may be to build on her strong points.

If, however, her negative a actions outweigh her positive characteristics, then is it worth saving the friendship?

If you find that your friendship is worth saving, then you've done all that you can and you should accept her the way she is.

Letters to Friend to Friend are answered by a panel of Clarkston High School students working under the sponsorship of Aware, a community group devoted to action and education against chemical dependency.

Students can submit letters by placing them in the designated "problem locker" at CHS, Clarkston Junior High or Sashabaw Junior High. The problem lockers remain open during the summer months.

Where's the lungs?

David Kwasnick

"OK, I want a full sprint to the other coaches ... Set ... Go!"

Gee, those coaches seem far away. I've never seen 50 yards look so long. Oh well, I guess this isn't called conditioning for nothin'.

Hmmmm. It definitely seems shorter going back. Must be that water bottle ahead. If I get there quickly enough, that baby's mine!

Just remember, don't drink too much. Lunch tastes better going down than coming up.

"This time I want to see forward crab ... Set ... Go!

Forward crab. It's like doing a full sprint, but on all fours. I feel like I just crawled out of a National Geographic magazine.

"Same thing going back ... Set ... Go!"

OK, I can handle this. Just think of what you're doing and focus on the water bot... Come on, now, who moved the bottle? It's time to think about something else. Somebody stole my inspiration.

"You know what it is this time, backwards crab ... Set ... Go!"

All right, picture this one. It's not just a full sprint. It's not just a full sprint on all fours. It's a full sprint on all fours with your back toward the ground.

Difficulty factor: 10; exhaustion factor: 11. This is going to get rough.

"Take it back, same way ... Set ... Go!"

C'mon, let's do it. Only a little farther. Wait a minute. Hold everything. I seem to be missing something. I think they're called my lungs.

I know I had them before practice started. They've got to be here somewhere. Right now, though, they're not in my body, or at least that's sure how it feels.

Yep, this is definitely conditioning!

Pet of the week

Her name is wiggles

A 2-year-old beagle wandered into a Rochester Hills business and hung around until one of the employees brought the friendly little canine into the Michigan Humane Society.

The staff at the shelter named her Wiggles because of the body language she exhibits when she wags her tail, which is frequently.

Wiggles appears to be highly trainable, in addition to being very friendly.

She can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The adoption fee for Wiggles is $25 plus a spay fee of $30.

Herbs can be a tasty substitute

Herbs can be a cook's secret weapon to new and interesting dishes, and they can also be substituted for salt.

Since herbs are an accessory, they should be chosen with care so they don't overwhelm.

A few tips from the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service-Oakland County follow:

•When purchasing herbal salt blends, beware. Some are merely herbs added to salt. Read the ingredients carefully or blend your own combinations.

•A pungent salt substitute can be made with 3 teaspoons of basil, 1 teaspoon of lemon thyme and 2 teaspoons of each: summer savory, celery seed, ground cumin seed, sage and marjoram. Mix well. Powder with mortar and pestle, and place in a salt shaker instead of salt.

•To become familiar with a specific flavor of an herb, try mixing it with butter or cream cheese. Let it set for at least an hour, and spread it on a plain cracker.

•A useful formula for herbs is: ¼ teaspoon powdered herbs is equivalent to ¾ to 1 teaspoon crumbled, which is equivalent to 2 teaspoons fresh.

To bring out oils and true flavors, fresh herbs should be minced, cut or crushed before using.

For more information, call the extension service at 858-0904.

Service with love

Service With Love, a lifeline for elderly homebound members of the community, is offered by Pontiac General Hospital.

The service provides a daily telephone call by a volunteer to reassure and to respond to the person's needs.

For information on volunteering or referring someone to be called, dial 857-7273.

Surplus food supply distributed in county

Income eligible Oakland County residents can pick up surplus commodity food (cheese, flour, milk and rice) distributed by the Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency the week of Aug. 24-28.

Residents should register at the site nearest them and then pick up their food there.

Persons not previously registered may do so the day of distribution; however, they must bring proof of total household income for the past 90 days, personal I.D. and their Social Security card.

Homebound persons not registered as of October 1987 should call the nearest field services office to register for delivery. Senior citizens should call the nearest senior center.

The distribution center in the Clarkston area is the Springfield Township Parks and Recreation Department, 650 Broadway. Food may be picked up from 10 a.m until 2 p.m. on Aug. 26.

For more information about the program or other pick-up sites, call 624-5520.

New business is booming

Long work days pay off for CHS grads

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Two Clarkston High School graduates have turned a business they started in a garage into a flourishing machine shop in less than one year.

Rob and Jim McArthur own Draco MFG, an engineering design and full-service prototype machine shop in Clawson, and they say things are going great.

"Sales have been just fantastic," said Jim, a 1979 graduate of CHS. "Things have gone a lot better than expected."

Along with his older brother, who graduated in 1974, Jim converted his garage into a small machine shop. They worked there six months until they found their present building on Crooks Road in Clawson.

"Everybody starts out in a garage," said Jim, who lives in Ortonville.

While business has been great so far, the McArthur brothers did notice a down side to their instant success.

Both have put in long hours, usually 14-hour days and six-day work weeks, to complete their jobs on time. Currently they have four employees, two of whom are part time.

"We put in a lot of hours," said Rob, "but it has been just fantastic.

"We just haven't had any vacations yet," he said, laughing.

Since their business is still small, finding workers who can operate all of the high-tech equipment in the shop has proven difficult.

Right now, the McArthur brothers are looking for a jack-of-all-trades type person instead of a specialist who knows how to operate only one type of machine.

"We are having some growing pains right now," said Rob, a Pontiac resident. "Our biggest nightmare is finding help."

Jim, 26, is in charge of the daily operation of the shop. Rob, 31, handles the sales end of the business.

The McArthur brothers have had extensive experience in the field.

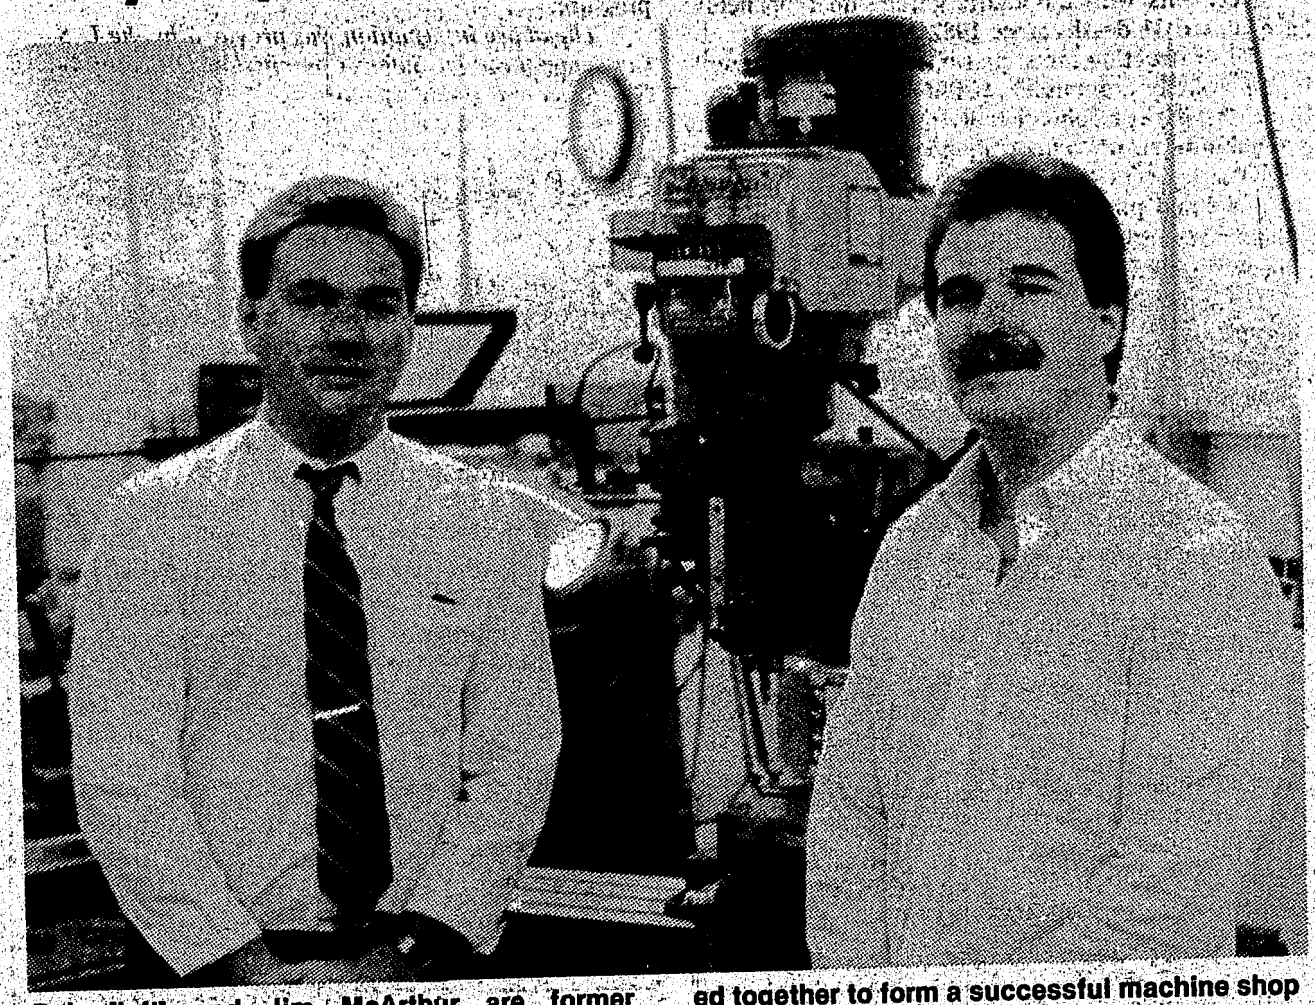
Jim went to the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center for additional training and after graduation he became an assistant teacher at the school for a year. He also has nine years of experience in the prototype machine shop business from working for other companies.

Rob has a decade of experience behind him and holds an associate's degree mechanical technology, a bachelor's in business and a one-year certificate in automotive body design.

With all the experience between them, the McArthurs felt confident they would succeed when they opened their own business last November.

"We decided to put (our experience) together and go for it," said Rob.

When they began their business, the McArthur brothers bought all new equipment so they could be competitive today and in the future.



Rob [left] and Jim McArthur are former Clarkston High School students who have joined together to form a successful machine shop business in Clawson.

They were able to finance their company on money they had saved and from family loans, Rob said. Business has been going so well lately that they have almost paid off their obligations.

One advantage of working in a prototype machine shop is that the workers get a preview of the future.

Presently, the McArthurs are working on a fuel injector system for automobiles that they said is remarkably smaller than the one in current use.

The McArthurs also are working on an anti-brake system for automobiles.

Because of the high-tech equipment they purchased, the Draco corporation is MIL-certified, said Rob. That means the company has been approved for military contracts by the United States government.

While the McArthur brothers have accomplished a lot of things since they opened up shop in Jim's garage, they continue to set lofty goals.

"Our goal right now is to get a building of our own," said Jim.

Keep children from garage door openers

Safety experts are again warning parents to prohibit children from playing games with garage door openers.

Accidents with automatic garage door openers have caused 31 deaths since 1982.

Reconstructing the scenario, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) said children activate the garage door opener, then run out of the garage in an effort to beat the door before it closes.

Deaths occur when the descending door strikes the child and pins him or her to the ground. Even garage doors equipped with an automatic reverse mechanism have been involved in fatalities.

CPSC urged parents to keep remote control devices locked in the accessory compartment of the car to prevent access by children. Wallmounted switches which activate garage doors should be moved far out of reach of young children.

Homeowners should also check the owner's manual for instructions on checking the automatic reverse feature on the doors. CPSC said homeowners may want to adjust the opener's sensitivity switch so that the door reverses under the least possible pressure.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY Spirit. Holy spirit, You make me see everything and show me the way to reach my ideals. You give me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrongs that are done to me and you are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with you, my loved one, in your perpetual glory. Amen. Persons must pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish. After 3 days your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then, promise to publish this dialogue as soon as the favor has been granted. HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning.

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item . . . and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

One more thing . . . get up early the day of your sale! When people read about a Garage Sale in Classified, they shop early.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

This cow seemed content to be petted by Leah Howard, 8½, of Perry Lake Road, Independence Township. At the Oakland County 4-H Fair last week at Springfield Oaks County Park, chickens, goats, horses, pigs, sheep and rabbits were among the animals on display.

Herb garden grows health benefits

BY ALISA NASS
Clarkston News Special Writer

Like many people this time of the year, Jean Williams of Independence Township is busy harvesting her garden.

What makes Williams' garden unique is that it's a herb garden.

Dating back to biblical times, herbs have been used for medical and decorative purposes, for cooking and in the making of dyes.

The different varities of herbs in Williams' garden, known as Catnip Corners, numbers around 75. Some of the well-known varieties she grows include lavender, peppermint, baby's breath, parsley and money plants.

Williams knew little about herbs when she started. She attended a seminar in 1982 because it interested her. Afterwards, she realized as an inexpensive hobby, herb gardening was for her.

"I think because I enjoy it so much, I want others to do it," she said.

Books have enhanced her knowledge, and Williams teaches an adult enrichment class on herbs during the fall and gives lectures.

"You can grow herbs on your window sills," she said. "I have a lot of students who live in apartments and want to learn what they can grow on their decks."

During the school year, Williams works in the Latchkey program. Several herb-related activities, such as making sachets and field trips to the her garden, have taken place.

The garden itself has grown from an original plot measuring 4-by-8 feet to three totaling 28-by-36 feet.

"In the evening when the dew starts, you can smell the different scents," she said.

If she could convince her husband Bob, she won't mind converting the entire back yard into a herb garden, said Williams. The couple have one daughter, Sarah, 18.

Her husband also enjoys the herbs, and now if she leaves herbs out of her cooking, the family notices, she said. "I had been a salt and pepper cook."

Williams makes a variety of teas, vinegars and even horehound cough drops. She uses ornamental herbs to decorate wreaths.

"I use to have really bad hay fever," said Williams, adding she's not one to take medicine. "I found that working with the herbs really helped with my sinus and hay fever."

Although now synthetically reproduced, "50 percent of pharmaceutical drugs are based on herbs," she said.

Jean Williams holds two types of herbs she grows in her herb garden. Williams, who started her herb garden in 1982, estimates she harvests nearly 75 varieties.

Help for stress just phone call away

Stressline, a courtesy line designed to help people through difficult times in their lives, is a unique new service offered at Women's Health Care Center of Clarkston.

Dr. Susan Coleman, medical director of the center, says through clinical experience, she discovered a dramatic need for such a service.

It was a natural extension of the center, Coleman says, to include counseling services. Women's Health Center, which the area physician opened in April, is located in Pine Ridge Place on Dixie Highway in Independence Township.

Stressline is available from 4 to 8 p.m. Mondays, Thursdays and Fridays. The free line is 625-6674.

The line was established as a community resource for answering questions regarding therapy and to address problems of a personal nature. It allows callers to ask questions on what therapy is and how it might help their current situation. Callers may briefly present a problem they may be experiencing and get feedback on helping to reduce anxiety or stress they may be feeling.

Stressline is not intended to serve as a crisis hotline, Coleman says. In those situations the center recommends that individuals call their therapist or hospital emergency center.

Staffing the line are experienced psycholotherapists Gayle Beck, Ph.D., and James and Ellen Windell, who are all part of the medical team at Women's Health Care Center of Clarkston.

"Stressline is offered as a way for both men and women to understand that support is available during those difficult times in one's life," Coleman adds. "One doesn't have to go it alone."

All you have to do is call

Cucumbers become pickles and relish. Berries become jam. Bountiful garden harvests are just bursting to be preserved this season.

Just a phone call away is information on canning, freezing, drying, food safety and general food and nutrition.

Falling asleep: driver's nightmare

BY MERRILL M. MITLER, PhD

It's 3 o'clock on a sunny afternoon. A car is traveling the highway somewhat above the speed limit but seemingly in control.

Gradually, it begins to veer to the right. Seconds later, it crashes head-on into a pillar supporting an overpass.

What caused this accident? Too many martinis at lunch? Perhaps, but a more likely answer is driver fatigue.

Falling asleep at the wheel, according to Warren Duff, PhD, consultant to the New York State Thruway Authority in Albany, is the leading cause of fatal thruway accidents he has studied and such accidents are increasing in number.

Some 50,000 people are killed on United States roadways each year and many more are injured.

Data indicate that falling asleep at the wheel is second only to alcohol as the cause of one- and two-vehicle accidents. Statistics indicate alcohol in 69 percent of such accidents.

Sometimes they occur not because the driver is drunk, but because a moderate dose of alcohol has triggered sleep. In 31 percent of cases, alcohol is not involved at all.

Sleep-induced accidents are often the most destructive kind. A driver impaired by alcohol or drugs may try, albeit ineffectually, to correct the vehicle's course or at least decrease its speed in the instants before an accident.

Such last-ditch efforts sometimes lessen crash severity. But a sleeping driver makes no attempt to avert collision, and the result is often devastation.

WHAT MAKES DRIVERS SLEEPY?

Among the factors that contribute to falling asleep behind the wheel are these:

Sleep Deprivation: Americans are getting less sleep now than ever before. With the invention of the electric light and television and the pressures of contemporary life, people are sleeping less.

But few realize that the effect of sleep loss accumulates. The pressure to sleep builds up.

People who have accumulated a large sleep debt may endanger themselves and others. They can be overwhelmed by an irresistible attack of sleepiness.

Sleep Disorders: Each year, sleep disorders centers see 20,000 to 30,000 new patients who have the problem of involuntarily falling asleep.

A car accident is often what prompts them to seek medical help. A variety of sleep disorders can regularly deprive people of adequate amounts of uninterrupted sleep. These include insomnia, narcolepsy, sleep apnea and a number of other conditions.

Some disorders can be dangerous, even life-threatening. Fortunately, they usually are successfully treated once physicians diagnose the underlying problems.

Body Rhythms: Data recently reviewed on 6,000 one- and two-vehicle accidents revealed that such accidents fall into a time pattern with a major peak between midnight and 7 a.m. and a second peak between 1 and 4 p.m.

These peak accident times coincide with the peak times people doze off without having wanted to fall asleep, according to Mary Carskadon, PhD, associate professor of psychiatry at Brown University Medical School, Providence, R.I., and her colleagues.

Alcohol and Street Drugs: Not only does alcohol impair judgment and reflexes, but even small doses can increase people's basic levels of sleepiness, particularly if they are somewhat sleepy to begin with.

And having consumed alcohol, drivers are less likely to recognize their own fatigue.

Many street drugs similarly impair judgment. Since some are depressants, it follows that they, too, would promote fatigue.

This presents a very real dilemma for physicians because some vital drugs fall into this category, among them antihistamines (for allergy), certain blood pressure drugs (beta-blockers) and many medications used to treat anxiety, depression, schizophrenia and insomnia.

Consuming these agents with alcohol can make matters even worse.

Driving, Itself a Sleep-Inducer: "When people are sleepy, their brains are more dependent on the environment to keep them awake," says David Dinges, PhD, clinical associate professor of psychology in psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine in Philadelphia.

"This means that we may not be able to judge just how sleepy we really are until it's too late," he says. "Such judgment is partly a product of the context in which a person is interacting."

He cites the example of being wide awake at a party, then getting behind the wheel and almost immediately being overwhelmed by sleepiness.

"Social interaction is the best stimulus for keeping awake. On the other hand, driving, particularly highway driving, is the quintessential sleep-inducing situation," he says.

Difficulties in focusing; increase in blinking or even closing the eyes for a second; and narrowing the field of vision.

Drifting to the side of the road.

Taking longer than normal to react to a dangerous driving situation.

Failing to scan the roadway and mirrors, and fixing the eyes on one side of the road or straight ahead.

Not remembering the previous few miles of the trip.

If a driver drops off to sleep once, even for an instant, and still continues to drive, he is very likely to fall asleep again.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR A SAFE TRIP

Before you leave to drive anywhere, but especially on a long trip, consider these helpful hints from the New York State Thruway Authority:

Pull over and take a safety break, then drive alert.

Let someone else drive for a while, if possible.

Set reasonable travel objectives.

Avoid drinking alcoholic beverages, even the night before driving. These effects can take a long time to wear off.

Evidence indicates that it's almost impossible for a normal, sober person to fall asleep at the wheel without any warning. The problem is that people continue to drive when they know they're sleepy.

Drivers must be aware that when they're sleepy, they're dangerous.

Is food cooked with microwaves safe to eat?

Questions may be directed to the Cancer Information Service; The Cleveland Clinic Foundation, 9500 Euclid Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. All questions will be answered by mail.

Question: I try to do everything I can to reduce my chances of developing cancer. I don't smoke, and I try to eat a low-fat diet, etc.

My question is: Should I avoid eating foods cooked in microwave ovens to reduce the amount of radiation I'm exposed to?

Answer: You do not have to worry about receiving any radiation from foods cooked in microwave ovens.

Microwaves generated by microwave ovens to cook foods are more like radio waves or radar waves than like X-rays or other potential sources of cancer-producing radiation.

When a microwave strikes a piece of food, it causes the molecules in the food to become excited and generate heat. This heat causes the food to be cooked.

While it is possible to burn yourself on the food if you're not careful, there is no danger of increasing your risk of developing cancer.

Michael Kademian, MD
Dept. of Radiation Therapy

Question: I have seen articles written in your column describing different types of cancer, sometimes referred to as carcinoma and other times referred to as leukemia or lymphoma.

How do doctors decide what to call a cancer, and what difference does it make?

Answer: Cancers are broadly divided into five classifications based on the type of cells in the body from which they arise.

Cancer Answers

Cleveland Clinic Foundation Cancer Center

The most common cancers are the "carcinomas," which develop from cells of tissues that cover the surface or line the internal organs of the body including skin, stomach, intestinal and lung cancers.

"Sarcomas" arise from cells in the connective tissues such as bone or cartilage. "Myelomas" are cancers which arise in plasma cells, which are located in the bone marrow.

"Lymphomas" are cancers which develop from cells in the lymph nodes. "Leukemias," which make up the final major category of cancers, arise from cells involved with producing new blood cells and located in the bone marrow, lymph nodes and spleen.

Within each of these broad categories, there are many subdivisions of types of cancers. The complicated names of cancers reflect the complicated nature of the disease.

While it may seem that the names were meant only to confuse the layman, they actually give doctors a great deal of information about where the cancer is in the body and how it might be expected to progress.

James K. Weick, MD, Chairman
Dept. of Hematology
and Medical Oncology

Question: I have regular pelvic exams including a Pap test as recommended by my doctor. What would happen if I had a positive Pap test?

Answer: The Pap test or Pap smear is a simple procedure, performed in the doctor's office, which collects a sample of cells from the cervix (the lower narrow part of the uterus.)

The doctor may also take a very small piece of tissue (biopsy) to be examined at the same time. The cells that are collected are examined in a reliable laboratory for the presence of abnormal cells.

These abnormal cells can be an indication of "premalignant" or precancerous conditions which often develop into invasive cancer.

Occasionally, other abnormalities in the uterus are also found through a Pap test.

A positive Pap test is not proof that you have one of these conditions, but it indicates that further tests should be conducted.

The reason the Pap test is so important is that precancerous conditions of the cervix have no symptoms, yet if treated in this early stage, they are almost 100 percent curable.

Chlamydia tests at local center

The center is located in Pine Ridge Place on Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

"Infections caused by chlamydia are now recognized as the most prevalent of all sexually transmitted diseases seen in the United States today," says Dr. Susan Coleman, medical director at the center.

An estimated 3-4 million men, women and infants are affected in the U.S. each year, but women bear a larger burden because of their increased risk for reproductive problems, Coleman says.

Chyamydia is a bacteria that lives inside the cell of the genital tract. Chlamydia infection in women may cause pelvic pain, cramping, and vaginal discharge, but in as many as one-half of the women affected, no symptoms are evident.

Because chlamydia is such a silent disease, the Women's Health Care Center of Clarkston has added testing on site. One reason Coleman added the service is because she feels current diagnostic testing is more time consuming, and specimens can die being transported to distant labs.

A cervical specimen can be obtained at the time of a pap smear or pelvic examination to detect this disease in women with high risk. The disease is treatable with antibiotics, but does not respond to the common antibiotics such as penicillin.

"Chlamydia testing is an inherent part of the total health care of female patients at the center," Coleman says. "The center is unique in that it is the only private clinical facility in Oakland County be be providing the service."

Sound nutrition makes difference, say Raths

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

As a homemaker with a degree in home economics, Emily Rath thought she had a pretty good understanding of nutrition.

But after experiencing health problems following the birth of her second child at age 37, the Springfield Township resident says, "I apparently did not take care of myself."

By the time her son, Adam, was 2 years old, she was having constant headaches and allergy problems.

"I couldn't breathe. I'd been on antihistamines for 36 years of my life," she says. "I just couldn't function. I felt like the right side of my brain had quit."

In addition, she had low blood sugar and had put on 50 pounds.

"I was aware of the four food groups—fruits and vegetables, breads and cereal, meat and dairy products—but what I did not know was, through processing of foods, many of the nutrients are destroyed," she says.

Nutrients are destroyed, she says, through the process of canning and freezing foods. She also claims that synthetic vitamins cannot be absorbed into the body like natural vitamins.

Emily was not the only member of the family suffering from what she says were diet-related health problems.

Her husband, Ray, says he was feeling the effects of what he was eating, too, and that he sees friends and neighbors with the same problems.

Their older son, Ryan, 13, had been on an "antibiotic roller coaster," Emily says, due to numerous health problems. And Adam was hospitalized at age 2 with a problem in his throat which prevented him from swallowing.

"It was like getting meningitis in the little flapper in his throat," Ray says of the problem with Adam's epiglotis.

They started talking to a nutritionist and Emily says, "She began to really show us these things."

You've got to have the combination of healthy foods and natural vitamins, Emily says.

"Eat more fresh fruits and vegetables, and vegetable protein such as soy, millet and legumes," she says. "Always eat a healthy breakfast to get your day going. Don't start your day with sugars."

Emily and Ray Rath got so interested in nutrition that they got into the business this spring. They sell natural vitamins and food supplements.

"It's a matter of choices," Emily says. "There's no reason Americans should be dying of diseases from within."

She points out statistics which show that in 1900, people died from viral diseases such as small pox and tuberculosis. Today people die from degenerative diseases such as cancer and heart disease.

"We need to minimize the things we don't need or want (to eat)," Ray says.

The Raths want to share their newly gained knowledge and have begun nutrition classes at their home on Thursday evenings.

And they practice what they preach. The whole family takes natural vitamins. They stay away from white sugars and flours, caffeine, animal protein, alcohol and salt.

They use more whole grains and whole-grain flour and eat less red meat; instead, cooking more chicken and fish. They steam fresh vegetables and make their own juice from fresh fruits.

Emily points out more statistics: Our bodies are made up of 60 to 80 trillion cells that constantly break down and need rebuilding.

The only way to rebuild them is with good nutrition, she says.

Emily says her headaches are gone and so are the rest of the family's health problems.

"Our bodies will heal themselves if we have the proper nutrients," she says. "I'm beginning to feel better than I ever have."

IS TAP WATER HEALTHY?

MUNICIPAL WATER comes from lakes, rivers, or streams. All of which may contain pollutants and agricultural wastes. Airborne pollutants from cars and factories also end up in municipal water. Chlorine and other chemicals frequently added to municipal water to kill bacteria have been known to cause cancer. Toxic substances from industrial wastes can combine with these chemicals to from carcinogens. Our government sets standards for municiple water contamination in parts per million. But why put harmful chemicals into your body?

WELL WATER from deep below the surface is part of an underground aquifer which travels for many miles. It often contains inorganic minerals which cannot be used by your body, but instead are deposited in the joints, arteries and internal organs. Well water sometimes contains disolved gases which smell and taste bad.

Guidelines help hot tub owners with safety

It hasn't been so long ago that the average person thought hot tubs were only found in California and spas were places for vacations.

Today, the growing popularity of hot water soaking has introduced a whole new form of relaxation and enjoyment to millions of Americans.

The National Spa and Pool Institute (NSPI) offers the following guidelines for using a spa or hot tub, whether at a public facility or at home:

Never use or allow anyone else to use the spa or hot tub alone.

Persons with heart disease, diabetes, high or low blood pressure or any serious illness and pregnant women, or any person's condition or abilities you're unsure of, should not be allowed to enter a spa or hot tub without prior consultation with their doctor.

Test the water frequently to make sure it is properly disinfected. If your spa or tub water is cloudy or foaming or if a strong chlorine smell is present, the water needs treatment. Soaking in such water greatly increases your chances of getting a skin rash. Be sure to maintain the water on a schedule recommended by a professional. The more people who use the facility, the more frequently the water should be tested.

People with skin, ear, genital or other body infections, open sores or wounds should not use the spa or tub because of the possibility of spreading infection.

Shower with soap and water before and after using the spa or hot tub. Showering before use washes away many of the common skin bacteria.

Don't soak for more than 15 minutes at one sitting at 104 degrees F (40 degrees C). If you wish to soak for a longer period of time, leave the spa or tub after 15 minutes, shower, cool down and then return for a brief stay.

Never, never use a spa or hot tub while or after consuming alcohol. The ultimate danger of combined alcohol consumption and hot water soaking is drowning due to loss of consciousness, heart attack or injury due to passing out.

Never use a spa or hot tub while or after using narcotics or other drugs that may cause sleepiness, drowsiness or raise or lower blood pressure.

It is best not to soak immediately after eating a heavy meal.

Be sure to check the water temperature before and while in the spa or hot tub.

Never allow children to use the spa or hot tub unsupervised.

Anyone with long hair should be cautioned to tie up their hair to prevent it from becoming entrapped in a spa or hot tub outlet.

Be sure to keep grates and drain coverings in good repair and secured in place.

In addition to all these guidelines, it is important to read and keep all operating instructions, owners' manuals and warranties for your spa or hot tub and its equipment.
