Independence man's body found

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After 15 months of waiting and hoping, the mystery is finally solved for the Walstead family.

Roger Walstead, 75, of Independence Township, disappeared in May 1986 while he was turkey hunting up north.

His body was found at 4 p.m. Aug. 18 in the basement of an abandoned barn in Hazelton Township, Shiawassee County.

Police are 95 percent sure of the circumstances surrounding his death, said Detective Sgt. Dean Porter, of the Shiawassee County Sheriff's Department.

After his disappearance last year, Walstead's van and wallet were found in Georgia, apparently abandoned by Joel Paul Hanna, a suspect in the May 3, 1986, slaying of Otsego County Sheriff's Deputy Carl Darling Jr. Hanna was later killed when he fled law enforcement officials in Georgia.

Police think Hanna killed Walstead at the barn site, buried him, and then took his van, said Porter.

"Circumstances dictate that it's a homicide," he said. "We figure he executed him right there. Mr. Walstead was a pretty good-sized man. Hanna was not. Hanna couldn't have dragged him without leaving a trace.

"There's no doubt in our minds about it," he said. "Obviously, if Hanna were still alive, we'd have to go to a lot more trouble to make a case."

The property owner who found Walstead, Kenneth Diffin, knew immediately who it was, said Porter.

Last year, Diffin was forced at gunpoint to help Hanna get the van unstuck. Hanna rammed Diffin's truck and threatened him but didn't shoot. That's when the search for Walstead began, said Porter.

Volunteers, helicopters, dogs and state, county and federal police searched the swampy area for three to five days, he said.

"We had dogs right near where he was found," said Porter.

The barn where Walstead was buried had been used to house cows and was still filled with manure and straw, making it almost impossible for dogs to detect a human scent, he said.

Diffin was clearing the barn of lumber and corrugated metal when he saw a belt buckle. When he tugged, it wouldn't budge, so he called the police, said Porter.

The body was decomposed, so police

Village to ban skateboarding

Complaints about teens riding skateboards on the downtown area sidewalks sparked the Clarkston Village Council to abolish the practice.

On Aug. 24, the village council decided to authorize the village attorney to revise the ordinance that prohibits bike riding on sidewalks in the downtown area to include skateboards.

"It's an on-and-off problem that happens every summer for about three or four weeks," said President Sharron Catallo.

The village council decided to act on the issue before somebody was seriously injured.

But the news isn't all bad, said Goyette. She has also witnessed other youths who carry their skateboards through downtown.

The revised ordinance would prohibit the use of skateboards on the sidewalks in the downtown area, including the mall area, said Catallo.

"We are hitting this kind of late in the summer, but we are doing it for next year," she said.

Man dies from crash

About 10:30 p.m., Gregory W. Lamrouex of Whipple Lake Road was driving westbound on Stickney, about a half mile west of Pine Knob Road.

While rounding a curve on the gravel road, he crossed left of center, striking the south side embankment, according to reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Fleet Ambulance transported Lamrouex to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, where he died Sunday, Aug. 23.

No other cars were involved. Lamrouex was not wearing a seat belt, said Sgt. James Heiligenthal, and there was no indication of alcohol.

didn't determine a cause of death, said Porter.

"It would cost a lot of money, and it would take a long time to find the cause," he said. "We talked to the family, and they've waited this long. They didn't want to wait longer."

Walstead was identified by comparing old X-rays of his broken ribs to the broken ribs on his body, and from his clothing.

"Mrs. Walstead was right on top of it from the beginning," said Porter. "She knew exactly what he packed, right down to the tags and where she bought the clothes."

Porter and the other law enforcement officials were relieved to finally find Walstead, he said.

"I guess we all expected that he was dead," said Porter. "We're all relieved here, especially for the family. We're glad in that respect.

"I think we all feel Hanna got his just due, after trying to take on the Georgia Bureau of Investigation."

Walstead's family were also relieved that his body was found.

"It was still a shock," said Walstead's daughter, Beverly Morgan. "It was a relief, so now he can be put at rest. It makes it all final now.

"It has been such a long mystery. We wanted people to know that, although it wasn't a happy ending, the mystery is at least solved.

"My mom has finally gotten up courage to pack up my dad's things and take them to the Baldwin Center. He would have wanted something like that.

"He was a jolly person, who just loved people and nature. He was civic minded. He was just an extra special good father and grandfather. We all loved him."

Her father was one of the volunteers who started fire station No. 2 at Sashabaw and Clarkston roads in Independence Township, she said. Walstead had a farm machinery sales business in the building before the fire station was housed there.

Walstead was a past member of the Clarkston Rotary Club and a firefighter for 25 years, serving as assistant chief for a time.

When he found he had cancer, he became a volunteer participant in the University Hospital, Ann Arbor, cancer program.

"He thought that what little he could do could help someone. He was doing well at the time he came up missing," she said. "All the months and months that my dad was ill with his cancer, he did not complain. He was so good."

Beverly and her family appreciate all the help from friends and relatives, she said, especially from Seymour Lake United Methodist Church.

"Everyone has been so wonderful to us in the last 15 months. They have kept us in their prayers, even people from other churches," she said, adding nurses from Wheelock Memorial Hospital had kept in touch as well as law enforcement people from up north.

"Deputy Darling's family has contacted us and said they would come to the funeral," she said.

She hoped her only son, Russell, 23, Walstead's only grandson, would be granted a special leave from the Army, where he's stationed in West Germany, to attend the memorial service, she said.

"My mom (Elaine) and I just have my husband (George) and my son," she said.

Teacher layoffs number 13 as school begins

BY KATHY GREENFIELD
Clarkston News Editor

Four more teachers have been called back to work from the Clarkston school district's layoff list.

Eighteen teachers were given notice in April that they would be layed off as the board of education prepared for the possible failure of the 4.25 mill new tax request on the June ballot. Voters failed to approve the millage and 13 of the layoffs are still in effect.

Of the five teachers recalled, all but one were reinstated due to resignations or leaves of absence for teachers on staff.

Three of the latest recalls, unanimously approved by the board on Aug. 17, were for Geraldine Allison (one-half time kindergarten), Caren Chamberlain (full time) and Carla Teare (two-thirds time physical education).

Teare was rehired to teach sixth grade physical education in the junior high schools. The sixth-graders are to participate in physical education each day in lieu of recess.

Administrative Assistant Conrad Bruce told the board she would teach two sessions of physical education each morning at Clarkston Junior High School and two sessions each afternoon at Sashabaw Junior High School.

The cost would be about $15,000, he said.

Board member Thomas Bills expressed a reluctance to hire an additional teacher when the district is facing budget cuts.

"If that individual was not put in place, how would that impact the junior high physical education program?" he asked.

Bruce said that without an additional teacher, there would be no daily physical education program for the sixth-graders.

When the decision was made to move the sixth-graders from Clarkston, North Sashabaw and Pine Knob elementaries to the junior highs this fall to alleviate overcrowding in the elementaries, the parents were promised daily physical education in place of recess for the pupils, Bruce said.

After the meeting, Bruce said Gloria Lacey was also being recalled to teach music at CJHS due to the resignation of music teacher Mary Conklin, who has taken a teaching job in another school district.

The district has also hired Pat Klankey, a special education teacher, to work in the SPICE program for preschoolers with special needs due to the transfer within the district of Pat Brumback.

In addition, Lynn Mead has resigned from his position as food services instructor at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center and a teacher will be hired to take his place, Bruce said.

Whether or not the recall list will decrease further after school starts Sept. 2 remains to be seen.

"If we have a sudden increase in a grade level, ... that's a possibility we'll have to hire additional teachers, but we won't know until the first week of school," Bruce said.

There have been some new enrollments, but the number of students who transferred out of the district will not be known until record requests arrive from other school districts.

Many of the smaller districts close their offices all summer and do not make such requests until after school starts, he said.

Camp hearings

Residents will have a chance to hear both sides of the issue during upcoming meetings about the state's proposed work and learn youth detention camp program.

Robert Lipsitz of International Field Studies, the firm chosen by the state to run the first of three proposed camps, has scheduled an informational meeting Sept. 1.

The meeting is planned at 7 p.m. in the Springfield Oaks Youth Activities Center on Andersonville Road near Hall Road in Springfield Township.

"We'll be giving a presentation about what the program involves," Lipsitz said.

Camp Holly, a camp in Rose Township owned by the Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council, is one of the sites under consideration for the first detention camp.

Area residents have strongly objected to the camps being located in north Oakland County.

Concerned residents formed RAID (Residents Against Ineffective Detention). This group is monitoring a meeting at 3 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 30, in Holly High School, 920 E. Baird.

According to RAID spokesperson Nancy Strole, state Reps. Willis Bullard and Mat Dunaskiss as well as a representative of state Sen. Richard Fessler's office will participate in the Aug. 30 meeting.

"We are also inviting all local officials and professionals from Social Services to the meeting," Strole said.

"We are approaching the time when we believe something will happen on this," she said. "And we have a tremendous amount of information to share. There has been a major demand from people for information on the situation."

Both upcoming meetings are open to the public.

Main, a 14-year resident of the Independence Square apartments off Dixie Highway in Independence Township, always plants a few tomato plants in the same location among the flowers in front of his apartment building. In years past, they've grown a few feet tall and produced some tasty produce for Main and his wife, Vyvian, to enjoy. This year, one plant has topped 7 1/2 feet. "I didn't give it any vitamins at all!" he said. Main moved to Independence from Bloomfield Hills after retiring as sales manager for Sealtest Ice Cream.*

Taxes OKd for weed control

The assessment district for weed control on Walters Lake is set to go, said Richard Kuhn Jr., chairman of the Walters Lake Board and member of the Oakland County Board of Commissioners.

At the Aug. 10 lake board meeting, the board didn't approve the assessment district because of some objections from the Thendara side of Walters Lake, in the northeast portion of Independence Township.

After adjusting the assessments for 12 property owners, the lake board approved the special assessment district Aug. 20.

Property owners in the district have 30 days to file objections in Oakland County Circuit Court, said Kuhn.

Otherwise, the assessments for the weed control will appear on winter tax bills, he said.

The 12 property owners on the Thendara side protested because they were being assessed as lakefront property owners, said Kuhn, when they actually did not own the 10 feet of property directly on the lake.

As a result, their assessments were dropped form $140 a year to $112 a year, he said. Plus, they'll be charged $75 each for their share of the feasibility study costs, he said.

Individual assessments for the estimated $24,000 project are to range from $14 to $140 a year for two years. About 509 parcels will be taxed.

The weed control program is to begin next spring, said Kuhn. First, a pretreatment study is to determine the types of chemicals to be used. Then, chemicals will be applied along with weed harvesting.

Guidelines set by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources will be followed, he said.

Romeins celebrate 25 years of life in the USA

Editor's note: In honor of the silver anniversary of Evert and Susan Romein's arrival in the United States from the Netherlands, their daughter-in-law Carolyn Romein put their story on paper and brought it to The Clarkston News. We're pleased to share her tribute.

BY CAROLYN ROMEIN

Evert and Susan Romein of Independence Drive are celebrating a very special 25th anniversary this year. However, it is not their 25th wedding anniversary.

They are celebrating their 25th anniversary of living in the United States.

On March 3, 1962, Evert and Susan arrived in the U.S. with their four children, Ronald, Renee, Tom, and Paul. They spoke little English and had never been to America.

They came here from Amsterdam, the Netherlands, for a new life.

They brought their possessions in a large crate aboard the ship, the Maasdam. Luckily, an old Dutch lady had told them, "Even if the streets are lined with gold in America, you still need to buy things."

Evert and Susan, therefore, brought many reminders of their Dutch way of life including furniture, Delft Blue vases and Dutch windmills.

Evert and Susan had come close to coming to America in 1955. The First Christian Church of Ottumwa, Iowa, had made plans to sponsor the Evert Romein family. They had rented a house for them, had a job as a blacksmith for Evert and made plans for their arrival.

But when the Romeins went for their physicals to obtain their visas to the U.S., it was discovered that Evert's wife, Susan, has a mild case of tuberculosis so she was denied a visa to immigrate.

With great sadness, they wrote the First Christian Church to tell them that they could not come to America, but their dreams of life in the U.S. did not end.

In 1961, a relative was visiting the Romein family. Talk of coming to the U.S. again surfaced and the relative said she would sponsor them.

Susan had recovered, so plans were again made to come to America.

A new set of modern day immigrants had arrived.

Evert and Susan Romein found a very rewarding life here in the States. Even though they have a rich Dutch heritage, they are proud to be Americans.

Their oldest son, Ronald, recently visited them from Vienna, Austria, with his French wife, Martine, and their children, Emily and Antony, to help celebrate their special 25th anniversary.

Ronald and his family live outside of Paris, France, but they are temporarily living in Vienna while Ronald organizes a car dealership network for Peugeot.

Their daughter, Renee, and her husband, Tommy, live in Bonham, Texas. Another son, Paul, lives in Clearwater, Fla. Their other son, Tom, and his wife Carolyn, live with their sons, Michael and Eric, on Independence Drive.

Evert Romein is retired from Pontiac Motors.

If you ever see a Dutch display in our community, you probably will see Evert and Susan or some of their Dutch windmills. They both like to wear their Dutch costumes and tell about Holland.

Evert and his daughter-in-law Carolyn have presented class programs at Pine Knob Elementary School for several years.

The Romeins also loaned Dutch windmills to the SCAMP program for their craft display at Summit Place last fall.

We congratulate them on their 25th anniversary in the United States and welcome their son Ronald and his family from Austria for the celebration.

Council sets date for anti-demolition hearing

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Discussion of substantial alteration of buildings dominated talk of the proposed anti-demolition ordinance at the Clarkston Village Council meeting Aug. 24.

A public hearing is scheduled Sept. 14 at the Village Hall on whether the village council should adopt an ordinance to protect historical buildings in the historic district.

The planning commission will also be in attendance at the public hearing.

The village attorney, John Steckling, discussed points he felt would hinder the proposal if it were adopted in its present form.

"I came here to see what you had to say about (the ordinance) before the public hearing," said Steckling. "I want to play with the definitions."

Part of the anti-demolition ordinance was clear and part wasn't, so Steckling appeared before the village council to clear the matter up, he said.

The proposed ordinance would prohibit the complete destruction of buildings in the historic district unless financial hardship could be proven, said Trustee William Basinger. That much of the ordinance was clear, Steckling said.

Financial hardship would be proven when the cost of renovation exceeds the cost of replacement, said Basinger.

Problems arose over the wording "substantial alteration" in the proposed ordinance, the village attorney said.

He said the definition of substantial alteration had to be clearly stated to avoid potential problems with lawsuits.

Basinger said that substantial alteration was renovating more than 30 percent of the exterior of the building, including any alteration to the roof and walls.

The guidelines will be less harsh than the historic districtordinance that was rescinded, Basinger said.

"Altering 30 percent of the structure involves doing major work and many cases will not fall under this ordinance," he said.

Steckling also wondered where additions to homes in the historic district would fit into the anti-demolition ordinance.

Basinger said that additions that left existing walls alone would not fall under the proposed ordinance.

Both Steckling and the village council wanted to avoid the problems that caused the repeal of the historic ordinance. That was one reason the anti-demolition proposal was discussed Aug. 24, Steckling said.

"This is the kind of thing that can raise high emotions," said Steckling.

President Sharron Catallo said that the proposed ordinance wasn't the entire historic ordinance, only the part that dealt with destruction of buildings.

Catallo said the ordinance would have to be more objective than the historic ordinance was. But she added that no matter what they decide, everyone will not be 100 percent happy.

Harvey's restaurant to be rebuilt

From the ashes and still standing walls on Dixie Highway, Independence Township, Harvey's Colonial House Restaurant is to be rebuilt.

On Aug. 18, the township board accepted a consent judgment to allow the owners, Harvey and Mary Render, to repair the building and reopen the restaurant.

According to the judgment, construction must begin within 60 days of receiving the building permits.

The Renders are glad to finally be allowed to open business again, said Robert G. Rooyakker, their attorney. The business had been closed for over two years after a fire gutted the building.

Since the business rested on property that didn't conform to township standards, special permission was needed to reopen the business.

"Mr. Render has always been a good business person and a taxpayer of the community," said Rooyakker. "All he wants to do is reconstruct his business.

"He's been in business there for years and years. That's probably one of the oldest restaurants in Independence Township. ... He wants to start construction immediately."

The existing walls have been tested and are OK to build upon, said Rooyakker.

With little comment, the board voted 5-0 to accept the judgment. Supervisor Frank Ronk and Trustee Daniel Travis were absent.

Opinions

Slang sage

Kathy Greenfield

After getting over the shock of being asked to remember the slang from the good old days when I was a high school student ... just yesterday ... I decided to take the quest seriously.

I pulled out the moldy old yearbook and found some gems.

At first, it seemed that everything we were saying nearly 25 years ago everyone is saying now.

But the more I read, the more I realized just how much times have changed.

Before getting into the slang terms jotted down for perpetuity in my yearbook, I'll share a couple of other observations.

If you ever have anyone sign a yearbook, make sure he or she does a paragraph or two that starts with "don't ever forget." That's where the best memories from my long-ago youth were rekindled.

Always sign your last name. An astute friend signed both her names and added "for the record" after her signature. Many other signers simply wrote their first names, their words of wisdom never to be afforded proper credit.

Looking at changes in society as a whole, I was overwhelmed with all the times people wrote "sweet kid" or "sweet girl." It seems that teens today are adamant about their status as young adults. I would be surprised if the phrases are commonplace in yearbooks today.

Now, on to the slang. "Cool" was common, and the word is enjoying a comeback in the vocabulary of young people I know. I wonder, however, if "real cool kid" is ever said now.

I had a wonderful teacher who said, "All right, you guys" to the class so many times that someone suggested that I "always remember" that line.

"Bud," a short form of "buddy," was used to denote friendship. "This is poor" and "pretty close" were common forms of self-criticism.

My all-time favorite bit of slang, however, was something I haven't heard since.

We actually said this to each other when we were not happy with whatever was going on: "You grub."

New hires must prove citizenship

By now employers must know they are required to document the citizenship status of all new employees.

Employees, most of whom do not know, must present proof of their citizenship when they are hired.

The half dozen employees hired by Sherman Publications since the law went into affect November 6, 1986 complied with our request for proof of citizenship with the same enthusiasm as when asked to fill out a W-4 form.

It was a 'Oh, another form for the government' look.

This new law, promoted by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, covers every business that hires an employee. The employer must provide a form for the documentation and the employee must sign the form, as does the employer.

The law is aimed at illegal aliens working in the U. S. but under the law covers all employers across the country.

One of the good things about the law is there is no permit or fee required. One of the bad things is enforcement. Is someone actually going to call on every business (there are over 100 in this community) and inspect the records?

The government is again shooting with a scatter gun when it's rifle shots that are needed. Certainly, they know after all these years of checking out illegal aliens where to look.

However, it's the law and we have to live with it . . . under the current administration and court opinions.

Therefore, if employers have any questions they can call the Immigration and Naturalization Service at 313-226-3240 or 313-226-3279. There is also an INS hotline, 1-800-777-7700.

The 800 number gives you the information in both English and Spanish. If you dial the 800 number listen carefully. If you touch the numer 1 at the wrong time you will receive the information in Spanish which is ok if you understand Spanish. JAS

Praise is due 4-H youths

4-H youngsters are a special lot. They start a project, be it animal, fowl, eatable, or mineral, work on it until showtime, then often sell it.

Sometimes there are tears for the loss, there's pride in the accomplishment, there's always inner growth.

This year at the Oakland County 4-H Club Fair animal auction the youngsters extended themselves above and beyond expectations of all except perhaps their parents and leaders.

A new livestock building has been built on the County property and it is not yet paid for. The 4-Her's helped reduce that debt at the auction.

They donated $25 to $50 of the money they earned through auctioning their animals to the building fund.

It was an unsolicited, and very unselfish, offer, and we commend them all for their thoughtfulness and generousity.

Survey result coming

We promised the results from our readers' survey this week, but the responses are still arriving.

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

Whatever happened to Jim Fitzgerald's World Series car?

Some digression is due. In June the back page columnist of the Detroit (JOAing) Free Press, whose writings also appear in our papers, wrote of his setbacks in playing a golf match.

I had invited him to play with a couple Lapeer lawyers, Don Poniatowski and Jack Nowak at Indianwood.

Good hearted Jim let his wife drive their newer car that day, and he threw his clubs, shoes, and change of clothes in the trunk of his 1977 Olds.

That's the same car the Fitzgeralds and Shermans were in the night the Tigers won the World Series . . . remember a car was set fire in that celebration. Jim had sensed trouble and we motored in the home-brush-painted car with 130,000 miles on it.

It's an ugly old 98 Olds.

Anyway, just off I-75 headed for Lake Orion, the Olds quit. Fitz called a wrecker and me, one to pick up the car the other to pick up him.

When both rescuers arrived at the Olds, Fitz couldn't open the trunk. The Olds went south, the Fitz went north to play his first and only partial round of golf for 1987. He quit after 13 holes from heat, frustration, and kindness to his partner.

He played in street shoes and clubs borrowed from Pansy Baldwin. Played is not the right word. It was all work. He took more swings in those 13 holes than Ben Hogan has taken up to this time in his life. (Ben Hogan is quoted saying golf is 90 percent mental, so . . .)

During the golf match Fitz called the car repairer twice. One estimate was "maybe $150". He said if it doesn't cost more than $200, fix it.

They did not start on his car that Friday. They did not start on it the next two weeks, either. But, when they did put in a new radiator, hoses, etc. it cost Fitz $360.

He reasons the sentiment of a 10 year old car, and having breakable, throwaway transportation in the City of Detroit was worth it.

However, he still had no access to the trunk. That cost him another $50. His wife has the figures fastened to his chair. Maybe you non-golfers are beginning to realize how costly this pasttime can be.

Fitz says he took his change of clothes out of the trunk, but insists the golf clubs will go with the car . . . and they should.

So, back to the opening question. Now you know what happened to Jim Fitz's World Series car, which he says he'll be driving to the World Series again this year. I assume he's planning on taking a taxi home and missing the game because he'll have left the tickets in the trunk.

Letters to the editor

Tax hike unfair

This school tax situation is very much like the one in recent years.

Scare tactics again. That one had children and parents in a near panic, as the children were told "half days of school faced them" if their parents didn't vote for increase.

Now, Mr. Tungate's position of Athletic Director is being used, as everyone gets in a panic if sports are cut back.

Yet, at a meeting some weeks ago, a very large amount was given to SEARCH. Now if school board funds are "hurting," where is this money coming from? What have they in the way of a contingency fund under any other name they choose to keep it under?

Is it true that under this "tax hike," the administrative staff is scheduled for a big "raise?" That is a "rumor" as is contingency fund "rumor" that comes via employees.

Let us ask for funds for school pupils' benefit and then use it for that.

When school administrators retire on a "fixed income," they will be financially OK. But how about some of us taxpayers who are old, on small fixed income? We're burdened very badly and their retirements are paid for by people like us on fixed income!

Also, with all the new homes and businesses our township has had in the past very few years, hasn't that given more money to the schools?

Make us AWARE of our situation instead of making us SCARED of it. Perhaps from higher rates in recent years, our trust isn't in your tactics you use now.

It's time to renew my subscription to The Clarkston News. I enjoy it very much.

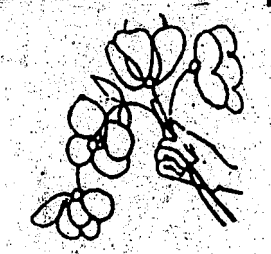
Be proud



On Aug. 8 a very special event took place at Insight at Colombiere, a residential substance-abuse treatment center in Springfield Township.

Insight celebrated nine years of being in operation with its 9th Annual Alumni Picnic.

The staff at the facility found it necessary to ask area businesses for prize donations for a raffle held that day. Virtually every request was well received, and we'd like to publicly thank the following businesses for their support:

Bordine's Better Blooms, 10 flowering plants; Burger King (Telegraph and Dixie), several crowns; True Value Hardware, chicken roaster pan; Vachon's Florist, four dozen carnations; Dinero's Creative Hairstyling, two free haircuts; Kroger's, charcoal and watermelon.

The people of Clarkston and the surrounding area should be proud of the generosity of your area businessmen. Your willingness to help is greatly appreciated.

Lawbreakers overlooked

Jim Fitzgerald

It was unusual for my law-abiding wife to be furious at an officer of the law. But this was serious business. This was parking discrimination as condoned by the top-level wimps who run this city when they're not too busy kissing wealthy butts.

She had been double-parked in front of the Free Press building less than a minute, waiting for me. A meter maid ordered her to move or be ticketed. My wife said she would by only a few more seconds. Move right now, the meter maid demanded.

By this time I was on the scene. Identifying myself as the columnist who's written many futile words about the unfair enforcement of parking ordinances, I asked the meter maid how she could sleep nights.

More precisely, I asked how she could justify cracking down on one-minute double-parkers in front of the Free Press while ignoring two-hour double-parkers in front of the plush private Detroit Club, just around the corner. Club members' cars are double-parked the length of the block every weekday between noon and 2 p.m. while the owners eat lunches that cost a lot more than those eaten by the peasants forced to finance parking lots and meters while dining at Ham Heaven or a Coney Island.

In fact, although it was past 3 p.m. on this particular day - Wednesday - there were still two illegally parked cars at the club. I pointed them out to the meter maid and asked why she didn't give them the same treatment she gave my wife's car.

SHE GAVE the same answers I've received from other meter maids through the frustrating years - she wanted desperately to ticket those cars but her boss wouldn't let her. She conceded other well-known facts - that those double-parked cars clog traffic and make it terribly difficult - even dangerous - for buses to negotiate turns at Cass-Fort intersection, especially now that the western-most Cass lane has been displaced by a People Mover station.

The meter maid added that she also wanted to ticket the members' cars that often completely block the public alley beside the club, but she was under orders to ignore them, too. And then she said:

"A couple of times I got so mad I ticketed some of those cars anyway and the club valet parker - his name is Joe - ran inside the club, and some guy came out and removed the tickets and tore them up."

The meter maid identified herself as "Officer Murrie" - carefully spelling the name as my wife wrote it down - "badge number 197." She urged me to tell her boss that she hated being forced to allow illegal parking by Detroit Club members while ticketing less-privileged parkers just a few feet away.

MURRIE'S TOP BOSS is Helen Irving, director of the Municipal Parking Department. She wasn't in when I phoned Thursday but her office said she was expected momentarily and would return my call. She didn't, and I'm not surprised. In previous conversations with Irving, the only thing I've learned for sure is that no city official likes to admit he or she is too big a wimp to enforce the law against rich, politically influential members of private clubs. I've received the same limp reaction from members of City Council.

The apparent truth is that no one can end parking discrimination except the old anti-discrimination king himself, Mayor Young, who is a member of the Detroit Club.

In a city where residents are continually shooting each other, why should the mayor - or anyone - care about such a petty annoyance as unfair enforcement of parking regulations? Because such picayune chiseling further erodes respect for the law.

And it makes my wife snarl. I hate it when she snarls.

Windy weather cancels hot air balloon flight

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It was a great day for kite flying, but a little too windy for the balloons.

Nonetheless, 8,000 to 10,000 people were on hand to enjoy the second annual Oakland County Hot Air Balloon Festival on Aug. 22.

"There were lots of families, and that's what the event was all about," said Dan Stencil, Oakland County chief of parks.

Children rode ponies, played games or bounced around in the moon walk, while parents examined dozens of cars in the antique car show.

Music provided by the Reel Happy String Band entertained festival-goers in the area designated for the balloon ascent.

Winds in excess of 10 knots canceled the balloon competition on Saturday. Winds kept the balloons on the ground again on Sunday, when at least 1,500 people returned on the only scheduled alternate flight date.

The wind provided just the right ingredient for kite flying, however. Dozens of colorful kites, if not balloons, filled the sky over the Springfield Oaks Activities Center on Saturday during the kite flying portion of the balloon festival.

Inside the Youth Activities Center, families browsed through 60 arts and crafts booths.

One booth, manned by Clarkston Senior Citizen Center ladies, sported wood crafts created by two of them.

"They work like little beavers in the basement of the center to make these things," said Sharon Turner about her booth mates, Sally Miller and Virginia Rotta.

"We can't get the men interested (in making the crafts)," Sally said.

"But it's okay, as long as they know how to use a scroll saw--we don't want them abusing our (shop) equipment," Virginia added, laughing.

The ladies reflected the mood of the festival. Everyone appeared to be having a good time. Square dancing and roller skating took over in the activities center in the evening, and the Davisburg Rotary Club provided concession stands and a chicken barbecue.

Puppet shows and tours of the Davisburg historical home were some of the other activities on Saturday.

Stencil, though disappointed that the weather didn't cooperate for the hot air balloon competition, said, "We're already shooting for next year."

The festival is planned for the weekend of Aug. 27 in 1988, Stencil said.

This year's festival was co-sponsored by the Oakland County Parks in cooperation with E.F. Hutton, FM 104/WOMC and the Springfield Township Parks and Recreation Department.

Bump free to be

About 25 residences on Rohr Road, Independence Township, are to front a bump-free road in the future.

With a 10 percent contribution of $6,700 from Independence Township, the property owners are to pay the rest of the $66,750 cost to pave their half of the portion of Rohr Road in Independence Township. The rest of Rohr Road lies in Orion Township.

At the Aug. 18 township meeting, the board voted 5-0 to approve the expenditure. Supervisor Frank Ronk and Trustee Daniel Travis were absent.

Friendly faces

Helping others find joy in art keeps Tierra clerk smiling

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Art, animals, books and travel bring the most enjoyment to Ethel Morris.

A Whipple Lake Road, Independence Township, resident, Ethel finished her last day as a sales clerk at Tierra Inc. last Friday. She hopes to return to teaching art, she said.

At Tierra on Main Street, Clarkston, she worked mainly in the art department as well as performing other store duties including helping customers.

"I get really excited when people come in and say, 'I've never done anything before. Where do I start?' I can give them direction and encouragement. I really enjoy that," she said.

The people she worked with and for made her job enjoyable, said Ethel, adding she liked the delivery portion of her work--transporting supplies to southern Michigan schools.

"The names on our computer come to life," she said. "We get to know the faces. It makes it a little more personal."

Ethel was glad to be working in Clarkston, she said.

"We have really nice customers. I've worked at other places in Clarkston, ... and Clarkston people are really friendly," she said.

Ethel, too, is friendly, said her boss, Buck Kopietz.

"She's very community oriented," he said. "She's taught art locally, and she's just a very pleasant person all the time. She deserves that recognition for friendly face."

When she's not selling art supplies or teaching art, Ethel paints landscapes and portraits in oil. And she reads a lot, mostly archeology. She's also studied archeology at Wayne State University, Detroit.

Traveling is another activity Ethel enjoys. She's visited Australia, New Guinea, New Zealand, Tahiti, Hawaii, Mexico, Great Britain and Europe. Her next trip is planned for Crete and other parts of Greece, particularly the Palace of Knossos.

Animals also fascinate Ethel.

"I like all animals, right down to the creepy crawlys," she said.

At present, she has one dog, two cats and a python named Monty. In the past, she's raised dairy goats, pigs, rabbits, geese, peacocks and chickens.

All her activities should give Ethel the material for one of her favorite hobbies--writing children's stories.

"I love telling children's stories," she said. "When I would substitute (for Clarkston schools), I would tell my own stories to the children to try them out. It was great. They were enthralled sometimes."

Eventually, she would like to publish her children's stories and maybe do other writing, too.

"I think everybody has a novel in the back of their head, and maybe one day there'll be a novel," she said.

DO YOU KNOW someone who works in the Clarkston area who deserves recognition for a job well done? We'd like to share your praise. Give us a call at The Clarkston News at 625-3370 or drop us a line at 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

4 hurt in accident

Four people were injured in a collision during a heavy rainstorm last Thursday on M-15, Independence Township.

About 11:30 a.m., Burton Lynn Goodwin, 60, of Pontiac, was driving north on M-15 when his vehicle started to slide into the other lane.

He hit the oncoming vehicle just south of Oakhill Road, according to reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Goodwin was not injured. The four people in the other car were injured and taken to Wheelock Memorial Hospital, Goodrich.

Treated and released were the driver, Judy Rae Hacker, 48, of Royal Oak; and passengers Bernice Hacker, 71, and Robyn Gilbert, 26, both of Dayton, Ohio.

Bonnie Juday, 61, also of Dayton, was in satisfactory condition at Wheelock on Monday.

Requirements up for adult grads

Beginning in 1990, the number of credits required for graduation from the Clarkston school district's adult education program will match those required for general education students.

On Aug. 17, the board of education unanimously approved the plan submitted by the Department of Community Education, which oversees the adult program.

The increase will be phased in, with 16 credits accumulated in grades 10 through 12 required for 1988 and 1989 graduates and 21.5 required in grades nine through 12 beginning in 1990.

Previously, adult education graduates needed 14 credits, said Virginia Farmer, coordinator of adult and alternative education.

The lower number was based on credit given for experience and life skills of the adult students, she said after the meeting, adding that the increase "adds to the quality and credibility of the adult diploma."

The increase is in line with guidelines suggested by the State Department of Education, she said.

The alternative high school program, also overseen by the community education department, has always required the same number of credits as the general education program, Farmer said.

Pay raise for substitutes

A $3-a-day raise will greet substitute teachers in the Clarkston school district this school year.

On Aug. 17 in a 5-1 vote, the board of education approved the wage hike from $45 a day to $48 a day. Board member Thomas Bills voted no and John Needham abstained because his wife works in the district as a substitute teacher.

Administrative assistant William Neff recommended the wage increase. Brandon and Waterford schools have raised their substitute pay rate to $48 a day, he said, and Clarkston should match the amount to stay in competition.

Responding to questions from board members, Neff said the raise would cost the district $11,000 to $12,000 a year and that the district usually has no problem finding enough substitute teachers, about half of whom live in the Clarkston, Waterford and Ortonville areas.

He added that he would not want to jeopardize the district's ability to find enough substitutes by paying a lower rate than surrounding schools.

Neff requested that the pay raise to be approved before school starts because substitute teachers have been invited to a workshop on Aug. 31. The teachers are not paid for attendance at the workshop, he said.

Board member Carolyn Place, a special education teacher in the Brandon school district, said the substitutes should be commended for giving their time for a workshop and added that she considers the substitute pay rate totally inadequate.

At $48 a day, the hourly rate rounds out to about $7 an hour and "If anyone has ever been in that position, this is ridiculous, that amount of pay," she said.

Board President Janet Thomas said that if a substitute worked a five-day week, the pay would be $240, which is not much money for a professional.

Bills' objection to the increase was based on the financial difficulties faced by the district since the 4.25 mill tax increase request failed on the June ballot. He expressed the desire to wait and see if the repeat of the millage request passes in October.

"It's not that I don't feel that increase isn't warranted," he said. "It's just that I don't feel any driving need to make that move (now)."

Put big tomato to test

Kids and their biggest tomatoes are invited to Bordine's Better Blooms Saturday, Sept. 5, for a tomato contest.

The Great Tomato Weigh In starts at 11 a.m. and lasts until 4 p.m. Clowns will give treats to the contestants at Dixie Highway, Springfield Township, and the Rochester Road, Rochester, locations.

At the end of the day, prizes will be awarded to kids with the biggest tomatoes. First, second and third prizes are $100, $50 and $25 respectively.

Closer to cable

With cable television companies expressing an interest in Springfield Township, the township board created a cable TV ordinance to pave the way.

In a 6-0 vote, the board approved Ordinance 56 giving the township authority to enter into cable television contracts. The ordinance passed on second reading at the Aug. 12 board meeting.

The ordinance is a "fairly standard" cable TV ordinance, according to Township Supervisor Collin Walls. The next step is a franchise agreement.

Springfield Township did not previously have an ordinance dealing with cable television. The creation of the ordinance was prompted by inquiries from at least two cable companies, Walls said.

Empire Cable and Fenton Cable Vision have made contacts with the township, Walls said, adding that their choices are not limited to those two companies.

"We are continuing the process with as much speed as government work will allow," Walls said. "With a typical timetable, our assumption is that a franchise can be worded by the latter part of 1987 or early 1988."

Walls said he expects cable television service in at least part of the township by late 1988.

Beverly's blossoms with move to Main Street

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

What began as a hobby for Beverly Short and evolved into a tiny business tucked at the end of her husband's glass company has blossomed into a spacious new shop.

And she's not done yet.

"I'm going to expand to fresh flowers," she says, looking around the new shop where she is still adding the finishing touches. She specializes in silk and dried flower arrangements, custom orders and gifts.

Her former shop at 6577 Dixie Highway, Beverly's of Clarkston, was located at her husband Don's Clarkston Glass Company.

Her new shop, Beverly's Flowers and Gifts, is located at 7150 N. Main, just north of the Village of Clarkston.

It is on property which once served as the used car lot for a Pontiac dealership the Shorts owned and operated across the street.

The plain, rectangular building on the lot has been transformed into a cedar-sided business with bay windows and leaded glass. Old-fashioned street lights and flower boxes greet customers when they pull into the parking area.

The new Beverly's has the same charm familiar to customers at the old Beverly's.

Virtually every foot of wall space is covered with country and Victorian decorations made of flowers and grapevine and wicker, some with soft-sculptured dolls and animals integrated into the designs. Color-coordinated pillows and other gifts are also in abundance.

What isn't displayed on the walls is displayed on handsome wooden furniture, which is also for sale or can be ordered. Wedding displays highlight another of Beverly's specialties.

She has artists from whom she buys cloth sculpture, wicker and handmade wooden items. Since moving into the larger quarters, she has enlarged her staff to include another flower designer, Joyce Hovis of Davisburg.

New lines at the expanded shop include "1804 Brand" sparkling, non-alcoholic grape juice and stone buhr ground meals and mixes, such as brownies, cookies and cakes. Also new are burlap baskets and handmade candles.

Beverly's husband--she describes him as her business manager and all-around biggest help--makes some of the grapevine wreaths and is custom building glass display cases.

She gives a lot of the credit for the new business to him and to his company, Clarkston Glass, and also credits builder Harley Thomas, designer Jerry Carter, electrician Charlie Warner and paving company Waisile and Waisile for their work on the new location.

The Shorts have lived in Independence Township for 23 years, and while Beverly describes Don as semi-retired, neither of them appear to be slowing down much. A new office for Don is being decorated at the north end of the new business.

Beverly's Flowers and Gifts has only been open since the middle of August--the sign isn't even erected yet--and already Beverly talks of the archway she envisions that will lead to the fresh flower area. But that will be next year.

For now, she is planning for Christmas and the fresh greens and poinsettias that will be part of her stock.

Behind the business, Beverly's mother-in-law, Christine Short, helps tend an herb garden they are planting. Beverly grows and dries her own baby's breath and some of the other flowers she uses in her arrangements.

"Next year, maybe we'll put in a pumpkin patch, too," Beverly says, again looking ahead. "The kids would love it."

Beverly raised four of them herself before opening her business. But now, the business is her baby, and she bustles around arranging this wall hanging and that basket of flowers between visits with customers.

"I just have a certain style I like," Beverly says of her hobby-turned-business. "And I have a lot of customers who know me and come back."

Thursday, someone in a white or tan pickup truck took over $3,000 of equipment from a truck parked at the Deer Lake Inn, Dixie Highway, Independence Township. Damaging the dashboard in the process, the thief took a radar detector, cooler, radio, amplifier and mobile car phone.

Friday, someone kicked open the front door of an Andersonville Road, Springfield Township, home and took $850 worth of goods, causing $150 damage. The criminal took two nylon tarps, a tape player, dust buster, fan, coffee maker and a power sweeper.

Saturday, a Rochester resident received a ticket for disorderly behavior at Pine Knob Music Theatre, Independence Township, after refusing to park his limousine in the lot where he was directed.

When the parking attendant tapped his car to stop him, the man opened his door, hitting the attendant in the leg. He then threw a beer bottle at the attendant and chased him on foot.

Sunday, tires were slashed on two cars on Fairfield Circle, Springfield Township.

The above information was compiled from reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

New era starting for Wolves

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A new era is about to begin for the Clarkston High varsity football team.

Kurt Richardson is taking over the helm from Walt Wyniemko, who resigned after last season, but that doesn't necessarily mean the players will have to start from scratch.

Richardson, who served as an assistant under Wyniemko for seven years, said he will incorporate some of Wyniemko's strategies into his own game plan.

"There will be some changes," said Richardson, "but they will not be wholesale changes."

Defensively, Richardson said, he will be doing many of the same things Wyniemko had done in the past.

Talent-wise the Wolves appear to be in pretty good shape. The entire starting offensive backfield returns from last year's 8-1 squad. That's the good news for Richardson's crew.

The bad news is that the team has lost its top three receivers from last year: Dan Jokisch, Jim Hall and Craig Chamberlain.

"We lost three of the best receivers Clarkston has ever had," Richardson said. "We are going to have to find some people to fill their shoes."

Joe Herron, so far, has been the best pass catcher in camp for the Wolves, said Richardson.

Overall, Richardson said, things have gone well in practice for Clarkston. He will be able to get a closer look at his team during a scrimmage game against Garden City on Aug. 27.

The new head coach isn't particularly worried about what kind of record the Wolves might post this year. What bothers him most is the way they play the game.

"I want the players to perform to the best of their capability and then everything else will take care of itself," said Richardson.

Clarkston opens the season at home Sept. 4 with a game against Grand Blanc, but the next three contests are all on the road.

More talent needed fast

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

As far as the coaches are concerned, the boys cross country team has talent. They only wish there was more of it.

Lack of runners once again plagues the team as it has in years past. Only six boys came out for the team this season.

The boys program has been on a downswing for the past three years, said co-coach Mike Kaul.

"We try to recruit kids but the sport doesn't have any draw," he said.

For now, the coaches will have to work with what they have.

The team does sport some solid runners, said Kaul.

"They are great kids," said co-coach Mike Taylor. "I'm not disappointed with what we have at all."

But with so few runners available, it will be a challenge to improve on last year's record when the team won only one dual meet.

The top returning runner on the team will be senior Jim Hotary, back for his third season.

Another runner, Kent Hansen, doesn't have a lot of experience but could develop into a solid runner as the season progresses, said Taylor.

Hansen, a junior, will most likely run against the number two runner of other teams.

Others who will contribute during the season are senior Mike Kovalesky, Chris Bailey, Bill Zweng and Tom Holliday.

Due to the short roster, there is no junior varsity squad and sophomores must gain their experience against top-notch competition, said Taylor.

The coaches are looking forward to the start of the school year in hopes that it will bring them a few extra warm bodies.

"We always pick up a few runners after school starts," said Kaul.

Time out

I have heros, too

Peter Auchter

When kids are growing up, they need role models to pattern their lives after. Cub sportswriters like myself are no different. We need idols, too.

If a child is interested in baseball, then his idol might be Lou Whitaker, Alan Trammell or Al Kaline, for example. Football heros could be Walter Payton, Lawrence Taylor or a host of others. The possibilities are endless.

I've wanted to write for a newspaper ever since I was in the fourth grade.

Don't ask me why, because I really don't know. Maybe it's a sickness or something I caught in school that man hasn't figured out a cure for yet.

Just as baseball players must field ground balls hour after hour to improve their skill level, so, too, must a writer practice. My practice involves reading what other people write.

Instead of reading what others write and then forgetting about it, I try to understand how they wrote what they did. It's a time-consuming process, but well worth the effort since it helps me become a better writer and reporter.

My personal favorite writer when it comes to sports is former Free Press columnist and current Los Angeles Times scribe Mike Downey.

It was a horrifying experience for me when I was told that Downey was leaving his post at the Freep and heading out to the Coast.

(I heard through the grapevine that he made the move because he thought the Detroit freeway system was too dangerous).

Before I could start to go through withdrawal, Downey's columns started appearing in The Sporting News. As luck would have it, I am a longtime subscriber and my problem was solved.

I could still get my weekly fix of his unique brand of writing without flying to Los Angeles every morning for a paper.

His humor and wit can make almost any subject he chooses to write about interesting and fun to read, even for the non-sports fans who may happen to glance at his work one day.

One of his more inspired columns was the one he wrote about the Kentucky Derby. Instead of talking to the jockeys, owners or fans about the race, Downey found an original idea by interviewing the horse that was supposed to win the race.

That story still baffles me. I don't know how he ever got that horse to grant him an interview. It was a good one, too.

I only wish that I had gotten a hold of that horse before Downey did. Then I could have written the story. I wonder if it would have turned out as funny?

I guess I'll never know the answer to that question. Maybe it's better that way.

But the one thing that really impresses me is the consistent way in which Downey turns out funny story after funny story.

It's kind of like Joe DiMaggio's 56 consecutive game hitting streak in baseball. Not an easy feat to repeat.

Of course that is not to say that Downey has never struck out in his life. If he hadn't, then he wouldn't be human. We all have our bad days, but some of us can hide it better. Like Ronald Reagan, for example.

I can live with some of Downey's bad days, because I know how he feels. I have had a few of them myself.

In fact, I've had weeks like that. Trust me.

Girls cross country team seeks continued success

A pair of seniors are expected to lead the girls cross country team to success this season.

Kate Conlen and Amy Rice will lead a team full of talented but inexperienced athletes, said co-coach Mike Taylor.

The girls squad, which won the Greater Oakland Activities League title last season, lost two of its top runners in Melissa Elfes and Kathleen McInnis.

Meredith Green, who finished 33rd out of 200 in the state last year, also will be one of the team's leaders.

Emily Winfield, Jenny Mahler, Sonja Schaffer, Lisa Palazzola and Nicole Chinavare are also on the team.

One high point for Taylor was that many of the girls attended summer camps to improve themselves. They did this at their own expense and time, he added.

"When they are doing that, I don't have to worry about them. They will come prepared," said Taylor.

The girls probably ran more than 100 miles during the two-week summer camp, said co-coach Mike Kaul.

While the team's talent is untested, Taylor said he hopes they will jell as the season wears on and become a contending team in the county.

"They (Clarkston) will be one of the better teams. There is no doubt about it," he said.

Looking at the competition, Taylor sees West Bloomfield and Milford as two of the tougher teams in Oakland County. The GOAL will add a new member to the league this fall, Brandon High School.

Unlike the boys team, the girls have some depth on the squad and that should help them remain competitive over the season, said Taylor.

The 1987 season begins Sept. 1 with an away meet against Milford.

New players have winning spirit

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

There will be a changing of the guard at Clarkston High this fall on the girls varsity basketball team.

Gone are Missy Odell, Michelle Wyniemko, Lisa Ladd and Gina Houck. All were starters on Coach Dave McDonald's 17-3 team last year.

Despite the loss of four players, Clarkston still should be competitive in the Greater Oakland Activities League, said McDonald. The reason for McDonald's optimism is the spirit the team has shown during summer camp.

"It's a solid team this year," said McDonald. "They all know what to do on the basketball court."

The girls have learned to depend on each other and that makes them a better club, said McDonald.

Michelle Baker, a three-year starter for the Wolves, heads the list of returnees for Clarkston. McDonald considers her the best defensive player on the team.

McDonald had counted on the scoring ability of Jane Selent to help carry the team this year but an injury will put her on the bench for most of the season.

The play of center Ali Fedio has given the Wolves hope for a successful season. Based on her performance in summer camp, Fedio could become one of the top three centers in Oakland County, McDonald said.

Other starters are Chris Castillo, Jenny Grohs, Jackie Patrick and sophomore Sue McKoin. McDonald said height won't be a problem for the Wolves this year.

Newcomers will fill the rest of the positions on the team. McDonald credits the junior varsity team with feeding the varsity program with talented players.

The green players on the bench, however, could be the Wolves' downfall should they run into foul trouble.

"We don't have depth or experience on the bench," said McDonald. "That might be our shortcoming."

When it comes time to score, however, McDonald doesn't foresee his club having any problems.

"We will be more of a power team with Ali at center," he said. "We will also be a good fast-break team."

The Wolves enjoyed a very successful campaign last season and McDonald knows it will be hard to repeat that feat.

Waterford Kettering appears to be the early favorite in the GOAL because they are returning a lot of players, McDonald said.

Clarkston also faces a tough schedule this season. Flint Powers, Flint Central and Flint Northwestern are three talented non-league teams the Wolves have to face.

"We are just going to have to hang tough early (in the season)," said McDonald.

Clarkston opens the season Sept. 3 on the road against Rochester High.

BRAKE PRICES?

UNTIL THEY PULL THE WHEELS, THEY'RE PULLING YOUR LEG.

Think about it. How do some brake places know what your next job'll cost if they've never seen your brakes to begin with? Answer: they don't.

Fact is, there's no way anyone can figure out exactly what the price will be. There are just too many possibilities.

That's why at Midas, we pull all four wheels before every brake job. To get inside your brakes. To inspect them. To positively determine what's gone wrong. From a nine dollar can of fluid to a new master cylinder.

And when we're finished, we'll give you a pinpoint estimate of the entire job. With a price that won't go up when the job's done. That's our promise to you.

So when it comes time to pay, you'll have a leg to stand on.

Wolves hungry

For the past two seasons, Clarkston has been the runner-up to Lake Orion in girls tennis. The Wolves are out to change that this season.

Even during the early stages of practice, the season opens Sept. 9 against Brandon at home, Coach Dick Swartout considers the final match on the schedule, against Lake Orion, as the most important.

Swartout realizes that overtaking the talented Lake Orion team, winners of the Greater Activities League title for the past two years, will be no easy feat for his charges.

"They have a lot of good players coming back," said Swartout. "It (deciding the league champion) will come down to Lake Orion."

The Wolves will rely on experience at the singles positions to carry them through the season, said Swartout.

The first three players are returning from last year and all three have three years of experience at the varsity level.

Ashley Adams, Coreen Hummel and Rhonda Bowes are the top returning players, said Swartout.

Clarkston's weak point might be doubles play. Swartout said improvement in doubles play was something the team needed to work on.

Top scorer returns

Bright future in store for soccer team

With a host of players returning from last year and an influx of new talent moving up from the junior varsity level, things are looking up for Clarkston's boys soccer team.

The Wolves posted a 8-5-2 mark in 1986 and the leading scorer from that squad, Curt Caruso, returns for another season.

Other players with experience include Chris Blimka, Zack Brown, Bill Cashin, Eric George and Tom Haden.

Coach Neil Granlund is counting on these players, along with those brought up from a 7-3 junior varsity team, to help Clarkston remain competitive.

"We will be very aggressive this season," Granlund said. "We have a quick and experienced defense."

When the Wolves are on the prowl offensively, Granlund said his team can pass the ball well.

Clarkston plays in the Greater Oakland Activities League and the North Oakland Soccer League. Granlund said Clarkston matches up favorably with the other teams they will face this season.

One reason is that the Wolves' roster boasts more senior talent than any of the other teams, said Granlund.

"This should be a very good year for us," he said. "The players blend together well."

The soccer team began conditioning drills Aug. 10 in preparation for the season that begins Sept. 1 against GOAL foe Brandon.

"Brandon has always been a strong team," said Granlund. But that doesn't mean he's worried his club will be in over their heads.

Granlund has been pleased with the performance of his charges so far this summer. He especially likes their aggressive nature.

"They really put their hearts into it and they look forward to the scrimmages at the end of practice," said Granlund.

One bright spot for the Wolves when playoff time rolls around is that they have been moved out of the Troy district and into Milford, said Granlund. It is a welcome change.

Since the Troy teams have been playing soccer longer than Clarkston has, the matchups were never fair, said Granlund. The Wolves are in their fifth season of soccer as a varsity sport.

The new setup will allow the Wolves to play teams in their own area come playoff time.

While it's hard to determine where Clarkston will end up this season, Granlund knows it won't be that bad.

"It will go well if things continue to jell as they have," Granlund said.

All star game

The senior citizens closed out their 1987 softball season Aug. 19 with an all-star game and picnic at Clintonwood Park.

Oak Park challenged an all-star crew comprised of four members of the remaining teams in the league (Clarkston, Waterford, Pontiac and Clinton) and came out on top, 13-9.

Each team was represented by two men and two women on the all-star club. Approximately 96 seniors attended the picnic that followed the ball game.

The seniors managed to close out the season in style. The star spangled banner was played before the game began and everybody had fun, said senior center co-ordinator Rena Chemin.

Seniors could play games like horseshoes and relax during the picnic, she said.

Bike riding parrot's king of roost

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Rocky likes to feel the wind blowing in his face and the ground speeding beneath him.

That's the feeling he gets when he rides his bike on Cedar Grove, Independence Township, with June Kellam, his caretaker.

"He thinks he's flying," says June.

June's husband, David, built a carpeted perch between June's handle bars, so Rocky could keep her company on her neighborhood rides.

Rocky is the king of the roost at the Kellam home. A blue and gold macaw, he lives in the basement in his own special cage. His fellow birds, Mandy, an African gray, and Daisy, a cockatoo, defer to Rocky's judgment in all matters.

He's intelligent and playful and talkative, and just a bit conceited.

When his neighbor, Barb Edwards, calls him a pretty bird, Rocky holds his head high and spreads his wings, showing his brilliant blue and gold plumage.

He'll take any attention he can get, says June. He'll answer with a sneeze if you ask, "Do you have a cold, Rocky?"

And he's kind of shy. He'll talk and talk all day, but when a stranger enters the room, he won't talk until he gets to know him, says June.

"It doesn't take long, though," she says.

He's a pretty good watchbird, too, she says. One time, a neighbor came to the door and knocked, calling, "Hello, anybody home?"

Rocky answered from the basement, "Hello, hello."

So the neighbor went inside and followed the call to the basement, where Rocky sat, startled, in his cage.

And he's kind of jealous. When he's outside, perched in a bush or tree while the Kellams sit on their porch, he has to be the center of attention, says June.

If one of their three cats comes by for attention, Rocky can't stand it.

"He chases all my cats," says June. "They won't come within 10 feet of him because he goes for their tails every time, and he bites hard."

Birds are great pets if you don't have children, says June. And she ought to know. She's had just about every type of house pet imaginable.

Charlie, her 15-year-old Yorkshire terrier, lives downstairs with the birds, where they bark and squawk at each other.

"I had an iguana who died a month ago," June says, adding it was terribly sad.

"I also had a baby skunk who died a while ago. I cried for a week. He was really cuddly," she says.

She's had lizards and snakes in the past, too, she says.

"I like reptiles," says June. "My dad used to take me out to the woods when I was little. My dad liked animals.

"It's something you're taught when you're little. You learn respect for humans, too, from animals. If you don't take care of your animals, you don't take care of your children, I think."

After raising all sorts of dogs and cats and reptiles, June turned to birds.

"I got into birds because I got tired of burying my animals," she says. These guys are supposed to outlive me."

She hopes one day to have a chimpanzee or a monkey.

"But my husband says no," she says.

Tour to Ecuador is fascinating

BY ALISA NASS
Clarkston News Special Writer

Amazon rain forests, the equator and an Otavalo Indian market were just a few things Albert and Joann Schwartz of Independence Township experienced while visiting Ecuador, South America.

"It was beyond our expectations," said Joann. "Because we had done a lot of traveling (worldwide) in the past, we wondered if we would be disappointed."

The Schwartzes spent two weeks in early July exploring Ecuador. They were part of a 20-member tour sponsored by Heralding Christ Jesus' Blessings World Radio (HCJB).

The group stayed in homes of HCJB missionaries while visiting different towns.

In Ecuador, HCJB is involved in community development, hospitals, television and shortwave radio stations. Internationally, HCJB has operations in more than 20 countries.

"I was impressed by the many areas of service of the missionaries down there," said Joann. "You can see the love they have for their work and for the Ecuadorian people."

The Schwartzes became familiar with HCJB and the Ecuador tour through attending the First Baptist Church of Pontiac. A family from the church is currently doing missionary work in Ecuador with HCJB.

"We have friends that had been down there and they encouraged us to go. They said they knew we would enjoy it, and we did," said Joann.

"We didn't realize there was that much to see down there," said Albert.

Albert works as a gas serviceman for Consumers Power and Joann teaches third grade at the Belle Ann School in Ortonville.

The Schwartzes' first two days in Ecuador were spent in Quito, the capital, where they learned about HCJB's missionary work and adjusted to the altitude.

At 9,300 feet above sea level, "you can get out of breath and tired quickly," said Albert.

Because they were a few miles from the equator, some people thought that it would be hot, said Joann. Instead, they found the temperature at Quito ranges between 40 to 70 degrees year round.

The climate difference became apparent

Ecuador is a delight for bargain hunters

during their return trip home.

"You could sure tell when we hit Miami," said Albert. "It was so hot you wilted like a leaf."

Buses provided transportation to the different towns. The couple found the rain forests, mountains, volcanoes and waterfalls beautiful. Because of its beauty, Ecuador is sometimes referred to as the Switzerland of South America, said Albert.

On some of the one-track roads, "one side is the mountainside and the other is straight down," said Joann.

One of the big jokes was that to sit on the right side of the bus "it took a person with a brave heart because of the extreme dropoff on that side," she said.

Along one of the roads, they passed people still living in tents, an aftermath of an earthquake that struck Ecuador in early March and measured 6.8 on the Richter scale.

Many people lived in adobe mud huts with thatched roofs and no running water or sanitation systems, said Joann.

In contrast, they also saw many modern buildings, and "shopping centers as modern as Lakeside," she said.

In a more remote town named Shell, the couple visited a new hospital built and run by HCJB. Also located there is the Missionary Aviation Fellowship aircraft base used to fly people from the jungle to the hospital.

The day they visited the cooking area of the hospital, the Schwartzes found monkey paws. The staff said they were preparing them for the natives at the hospital, who found them to be a delicacy, said Joann.

The town, Shell, had received its name from the Shell Oil Co., which founded the town after finding oil in the region.

"Every town had its own specialty," said Albert of the items they bought. Their purchases included leather goods, scarves, wool sweaters, wood carvings, blankets and brass candlesticks.

JOANN AND ALBERT Schwartz of Independence Township display some of the handmade goods they bought during their tour to Ecuador, South America, with Heralding Christ Jesus' Blessings World Radio.

The exchange rate for an American dollar was 192 sucres.

Prices were not high for the quality of the goods, said Joann.

A wool sweater she bought at the Otavalo Indian market cost around $9 in American money. The natives knit sweaters while tending their sheep in the fields, said Joann.

The little pieces of plants and sticks that get caught in the sweaters have to be removed after purchase, she said.

The colorful open-air market covered acres of ground and was jam-packed with buyers and sellers.

"I wish I had brought home twice as much as I did," said Joann. "They had some beautiful things there."

NEAL AND DORIS PARKER plan to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with their neighbor, Raldorise Pelham, who is celebrating his 50th birthday.

Special celebration for 50th

On Sept. 3, Neal and Doris Parker will have been married for 50 years. For 46 of them, they've lived in their M-15, Independence Township, home.

They were married in 1937 in the Rev. Hill's house in White Lake Township, when Neal was 20 and Doris was 17.

After Doris moved to Michigan from Ohio, Neal's friend introduced them, and they've been together since, says Doris. But there's no clear way to make a marriage last, she says.

"There's no secret whatsoever," says Doris. "We just plain got along. We had our spats like everybody else does, but we got by them. ... The days just went by."

Through the years, they've been active with jobs and hobbies. Neal was a group leader at General Motors Truck and Coach. In his spare time, he operated a ham radio and planted a vegetable garden.

Their plant-filled home attests to Doris' jobs--at Boucard's Greenhouse (now Bordine's) for 25 years and at Waterford Hill Florist for nine.

Neal still plants a vegetable garden, and Doris still keeps green plants, as well as knitting and crocheting. And they both read a lot, says Neal.

To celebrate their anniversary, they plan to spend an evening with their next-door neighbor of 46 years, Raldorise Pelham, who has been like a son to them, says Doris.

CHS grad bound for fish hatchery adventure

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

By Christmas, Michele Barks, 22, should know intimately chinook and coho.

The Warbler Lane, Independence Township, resident left Monday for Washington, where she will serve as one of two volunteers at Spring Creek National Fish Hatchery on the Columbia River.

She didn't know much about the program before she left, but she knew she needed a change after being laid off from General Motor's Lake Orion plant, Barks said.

MICHELE BARKS, A 1983 Clarkston High School graduate, plans to spend three months as a volunteer in a fish hatchery in Washington.

At first, she didn't know what to do. Then, while cleaning her room, she ran across the volunteer information that her Clarkston Junior High School science teacher, Anthony Stahursky, had given her class.

She sent for an application, and a few weeks later, she found herself having a phone interview with the conservation people in Washington, she said.

Michele is to help in the spawning of chinook and coho--counting, sorting and measuring eggs; removing eggs from the fish and fertilizing fish--all the while, wearing hip-high wading boots.

"My dad and I fish for bass," she said. "This sounds like a good time."

She was looking for an adventure like this, she said.

"I didn't want to start college yet," said Michele. "I wanted to try something else. I've always liked nature and the outdoors. I'm thinking about going into conservation when I get back. Or I might not. Who knows? It just sounds really exciting."

That's typical of Michele's outlook on life. She wants to experience all she can, she said.

"Why go to college right now? I'm trying to do everything I can before I go to school. I know people who go to college right away, and they come out totally ignorant of life," she said.

Since graduating from Clarkston High School, Michele has visited Ireland and traveled in some parts of the United States. She worked as a cook at an Elias Brothers Big Boy restaurant for three years and she worked painting cars at GM for a year.

On Monday, she started on the 2,300 mile journey to Washington in her 1983 truck.

"That's a long way for one person to drive," she said. "It doesn't scare me, though. I'm excited about it."

Planning a wedding?

Flowers, hair, makeup, invitations and photographs are some of the topics to be discussed at the Brides to Be fashion and music show Tuesday, Sept. 22.

The show, at the Deer Lake Racquet Club on White Lake Road in Independence Township, is to provide information for planning weddings.

The Velvet Pumpkin Bridal Salon and President Tuxedo are to provide the fashions. Clarkston area merchants are to help with the other items--invitations, photographers, video recorders and music.

The cost is $3 in advance or $5 at the door. To order tickets or for more information, call Brides to Be at 775-7431.

A touch of home

Yvonne Lampela's country baskets and wreaths are to be among 100 artists' work in the 8th Christmas in the Country Folk Art Show and Sale.

The show, at the Flint IMA Sports Arena at the intersection of I-69 and Center Road, is limited to reproductions of 1700 and 1800 items.

The Friday, Sept. 25, preview runs from 5 to 9 p.m. The Saturday, Sept. 26 show, runs from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. An admission fee will be charged. For more information, call (517) 652-8941 or (517) 224-8446.

Linda Chambers' wood sculptures will be among 90 artists' work Sunday, Aug. 30, in the free 14th annual Northfield Hills Condominium Association Art-on-the-Lake Show, at the northwest corner of Long Lake and Coolidge roads, Troy.

Pet of the week

MISTY AND TA are littermates.

Purr-fect pets

Misty and Ta are 1-year-old domestic shorthaired littermates. A family move left them homeless, so the brother and sister are looking for new homes.

Misty is a pastel torte (she has light calico colors that are blended rather than in patches). Ta is a tan and white male.

Both cats are very affectionate and mild mannered. Both would make loving pets.

Misty and Ta can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The adoption fee for Misty is $15 plus a $25 spay fee. The adoption fee for Ta is $15 plus a $15 neuter fee.

What's cooking?

Pat Young

Give 'em gorp

As the new school year approaches, mothers may be struggling to think up something different for the lunch box snack.

How about giving the kids some gorp--that's another word for trail mix.

It has enough nutritious, energy-building ingredients to be a healthy snack, with enough sweets to be tempting to the kids. By the way, it's a great adult snack, too.

GORP

1 cup quick-cooking rolled oats
1 cup shelled peanuts
1/2 cup shredded coconut
1/4 cup wheat germ
1/2 cup honey
2 tablespoons cooking oil
1 cup candy-coated milk chocolate pieces
1/2 cup coarsely chopped mixed dried fruit
1/2 cup raisins

In a bowl combine oats, peanuts, coconut and wheat germ. Combine honey and oil and stir into oat mixture.

Spread in a 9-by-9-by-2-inch baking pan. Bake in 300-degree oven for 30 minutes or until light brown, stirring every 15 minutes.

Remove from oven. Transfer to another greased pan; cool without stirring. Break up large pieces. Stir in candy pieces, dried fruit and raisins.

Store in a tightly covered container or plastic bag, or divide into small plastic bags for lunch box snacks. Makes approximately 6 cups.

A good part of your life.

Ah, summer

David Kwasnick

First of all, I would like to take this moment to express my deepest sympathy on the passing of summer.

Yeah, it was a good summer. But as I'm sure you all know, no good thing can last forever. So be it.

The end of summer marks the beginning of a unique event, however. It is an event that is (how can I put this delicately?), well, not liked by most of its participants.

Bear in mind, though, that these participants used to spending their days sleeping late, basking in the warm sun and pursuing other such leisure time activities.

It's a strong contrast to what they now have to do. What is this event? I think most of you know what it is, but for those who don't, I'm talking about school.

Yes, that's right, school. Now, I know school is as popular as dental root canal work with most students. OK. But it does have its bright spots; those little shining points of interest that make it all worthwhile.

First of all, it's a known fact that school makes your days last much longer. No more getting up at the crack of dawn. Noooo. All this is behind you now.

It's time to hop out of bed full of life and revvin' to go. Chances are you had plenty (a good six hours) of sleep the night before. Boy are you refreshed! Where's the No-Doz?

This now brings me to the second way school can extend your day. It's simple: Time moves slower in school. Any student can tell you this.

I think it has something to do with the fact that learning Pythagorean Theorem at 7:30 in the morning is not high on your list of priorities.

School also, believe it or not, can improve your agility. No joke. It's amazing how fast one can duck around a corner or dive into a bathroom at the mere sight of a hall monitor.

This skill can later be applied to sports such as football, basketball or driving in and out of the Clarkston High School parking lot.

Finally, school makes one able to think quickly on his or her feet. After a few weeks in the old learning institution (and it can be an institution), no question is too tough to handle.

"Why weren't you in class yesterday?"

"My cat died. Had to go to the funeral."

"Where's your homework?"

"Didn't have time to do it. Was my night to help the Sisters at the orphanage."

"Why are you tardy?"

"Just got back from the doctor's. An old rash is acting up. Wanna see?"

Yes, as I'm sure you can all see, school has a lot to offer. It almost makes you want it to start tomorrow. ... Almost. I miss summer already.

David Kwasnick, a senior at Clarkston High School, also writes for Wolf Tracks, the CHS newspaper.

A cook's delight

The editor of "Berry Good Recipes," the cookbook just published by the Mt. Zion Christian School, is its biggest fan.

Since Laura Brehmer sent copies of the over 200 recipes to the printer in May, she's been busy in the kitchen.

"Every recipe is worth trying," she said. "Some cookbooks, you go in and can only pick out two or three. I've tried these personally and I haven't tried a recipe I didn't like."

Inside the cookbook are appetizers, soups, salads and vegetables--and it's loaded with desserts, said Brehmer.

Many of the recipes are family favorites. Some are over 100 years old including "Sister Calcote's Banana Cake," "Sister Calcote's Coconut Kiss Cake," "Sister Calcote's Crumb Cake" and "Grandma Benoit's Famous Dressing."

Brehmer also highly recommends "Texas Ranch Hand Banana Cake." The aunt of the woman who submitted the recipe used to serve the tasty dessert to her ranch hands in Texas.

There are about a dozen recipes that won blue ribbons at the Michigan State Fair, and several zucchini recipes should interest fans of the prolific squash. An appetizer made with zucchini is particularly good, Brehmer said.

She also suggests trying the meatballs with gravy or sweet and sour sauce (the recipe is from Nate's Market via its owner Nathan Anderson) and the sugarless date coffee cake and sugarless pineapple cream custard pie.

The cookbooks are $5. All proceeds will benefit the school for grades K-8 at Mann Road in Waterford Township.

They are for sale at Calcote Country on Main Street, Clarkston, and J.C.'s Hair Design on M-59 in Waterford or by calling Brehmer at 394-0549.

Friend to friend

He deserves better

ACTION AND EDUCATION AWARE WAR ON DRUGS

Dear Friend to Friend,

I'm writing in to tell you about my parents and how they seem to interfere with everything I do in life.

For instance, they started telling me that I was gay because I was 16 and hadn't had a date yet.

They call some of my friends drug addicts because of the way they look or dress and they've accused me of coming into contact with drugs and alcohol whenever I go out for the night.

I have found myself starting to participate in some of the things that they've been accusing me of.

I spend a lot of time thinking about this because I realize I'm rebelling against my parents and not aiming as high as I should. Where do I go from here?

Pushed by Parents

Dear Pushed,

Although we know it's tough to live with suspicious, accusing parents, please remember one very important thing: You have choices.

You may feel like you have been backed into a corner and have to rebel; however, you have control over the choices you make.

Instead of rebelling against your parents to work out your anger, you could choose to live your life in a productive and constructive manner.

You could set goals for yourself and work hard to achieve these goals. What better way to prove your parents' accusations wrong?

Dear Friend to Friend,

I have this friend who is a guy and he is totally infatuated with a girl who treats him very poorly.

He has admitted to his disappointment with her behavior a couple of times, but he just overlooks her bad points because he is so crazy about her.

She is a nice person, but she is really bogue to him. He's wrapped around her little finger and she knows it.

I know he deserves better. Is there something I can do to make him see her for what she really is?

Concerned Friend

Dear Concerned Friend,

This is a common problem for both guys and girls. Often people become infatuated with others who do not treat them well.

There are several possible reasons for this--one of them is low self-esteem.

Despite the causes for your friend's continued infatuation, you want to provide some assistance to him. As we have indicated in previous columns, you can't help someone who doesn't want help or recognize a problem.

If he approaches you asking for help, you can be a good friend by listening to his problem and offering him some reassurance.

Very likely, he desires this relationship to improve his self-esteem and self-confidence. In the long run, however, dating someone who treats you badly will only make you feel worse.

When talking with a friend about a problem, it is always best to ask questions (Does it really upset you when she treats you so badly?) than give advice (If I were you, I'd dump her.).

Let us know what happens.

Letters to Friend to Friend are answered by a panel of Clarkston High School students working under the sponsorship of Aware, a community group devoted to action and education against chemical dependency.

Students can submit letters by placing them in the designated "problem locker" at CHS, Clarkston Junior High or Sashabaw Junior High. The problem lockers remain available for use during the summer months.

Letters can also be sent to Friend to Friend in care of The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

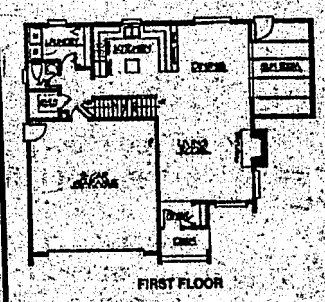
SECOND FLOOR



FIRST FLOOR

The rich and warm looking exterior design of this 1816 square foot, 4 bedroom contemporary, is only surpassed by the practical and efficient design of the interior.

The floor plan answers all the practical uses of the home with its spacious kitchen, 2½ baths, first floor laundryroom, walk-in pantry, to its most unique master bedroom concept.

The effficiency of the design is accented by the easily heated and wide open aspects of the living room, dining room, and kitchen areas. Coupled with an adjoining 10' x 16' Solarain, that functions both as a Florida room and a passive solar concept, this home will remain warm with sunshine all year round.

IMPROVE PRODUCTION

Set Aside 10 Minutes To Plan Your Day

Time management experts say that setting aside ten minutes of planning time a day can increase productivity by at least ten percent.

Set aside the same time slot each day (best: first thing in the morning or last thing in the evening) and limit it to ten minutes.

Longer planning periods can involve too many details and can actually hamper productivity.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY Spirit. Holy spirit. You make me see everything and show me the way to reach my ideals. You give me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrongs that are done to me and you are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with you, my loved one, in your perpetual glory. Amen. Persons must pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish. After 3 days your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then, promise to publish this dialogue as soon as the favor has been granted. Thanks, St. Jude, for favors receivd. A CONSUMER SHOPPING TIP
When waterproofing your basement, make sure your contractor's reputable. Read your contract carefully before signing. Question all language you don't understand. Be prepared to remove your own interior basement walls if contract so states. And don't let a salesman tell you soil conditions and water table are irrelevant. They're important.
