Land conservancy gets tough with trespassers

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Establishing a firm stand against trespassing, the Independence Land Conservancy obtained a court order Oct. 26 to expel a trespasser from wetlands at the north end of Greens Lake.

The area is preserved by the conservancy as a bird sanctuary and a nearby resident had built a permanent path, hung electrical lines, built a dock and moored a pontoon boat on the property, said attorney Rockwood W. Bullard III, a conservancy member who also donated his legal services to the conservancy.

The conservancy filed suit against the resident, Guy Derryberry, but settled the matter before going to trial, he said.

According to the judgment, signed by Oakland County Circuit Judge Robert Templin, Derryberry is to remove the dock, boat and electrical lines and return the property to its natural state.

"It should send a signal to people and let them know the land conservancy is serious about preserving its property," said Bullard.

Derryberry, who plans to begin work soon, said he was disappointed in the outcome.

Since 1973, he had lived next to the property

Low voter turnout has been blamed, primarily, for the defeat of the 4.25-mill tax increase on the Oct. 27 ballot, but why the voters stayed home is a difficult question to answer.

According to Milford Mason, superintendent of Clarkston schools, the 4,467 voters who cast ballots represented 28 percent of the about 16,000 registered voters in the district which includes most of Independence Township, about half of Springfield and small portions of Waterford, White Lake and Orion townships.

In 1981 when a tax increase was approved by voters in the district, 42 percent or 5,039 voters out of 12,000 registered voters cast ballots.

WHEN IT'S TIME FOR leaf raking ... or lawn mowing ... 9-month-old Brendan Lynch is along for the ride, says his dad, Rob. The Lynches were busy last week raking the

New plans developed for Deer Lake property

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A six-acre parcel of land next to the township beach on White Lake Road may soon be developed into "cluster homes."

At a joint meeting between the Clarkston Village Council and Planning Commission on Nov. 2, Rudy Lozano presented two possible uses of the land for the Vintage Construction Co., which was turned down last month by the village council on a rezoning request for condominiums.

This time Lozano took a more realistic approach to the project.

"We are not going to please everybody but we are looking for a majority," said Lozano.

One plan calls for six and one-half duplex units to be built on the land. It would be a similar to a subdivision, said Lozano.

Each unit would be 2,000 square feet (4,000 total for each building) and driveways would be combined to limit access to White Lake Road.

The single unit (half a duplex) would lie on township property.

The second proposal calls for nine residential homes to be built. Each person would purchase a plot of land and build a home on it.

Six of these homes would be in the village, two would be split between the township and village and one would lie in the township.

No rezoning would be needed for this plan, said Lozano, but the developers would have to seek zoning board of appeals approval.

"Of the two plans, we want to find out which one would be more palatable to you," Lozano said.

Although no vote was taken, both bodies agreed that the nine residential homes would be better than the duplex idea.

The planning commission then said it would write a letter to the zoning board of appeals stating they are in favor of the nine residential home plan.

Lozano said if the developers reduce the number of homes to eight, the zoning board of appeals approval wouldn't be needed.

Board to discuss 2 changes

A recommendation for moving all sixth-graders into the junior high buildings next year and the proposed purchase of six school buses are the major items on the Clarkston Board of Education meeting agenda for Monday, Nov. 9.

After nearly one-half year of having sixth-graders in their buildings from three of the district's five elementary schools, the principals plan to recommend that sixth-graders from Andersonville and Bailey Lake elementaries join the group beginning at the next school year.

"First of all, they feel that all youngsters should be receiving the same program and they feel that it's working very well," said Milford Mason, superintendent of schools.

The principals will also recommend that only the sixth grade adopt a middle school concept until the ninth grade can be moved into the high school building.

Three bids for the buses are expected. The purchase is part of a long-range plan to keep the fleet in good condition. The proposal is for 72-passenger diesel buses in conventional style.

Also on the agenda are the contract for the district's 32 bus drivers; the first reading of the communicable disease policy which has been updated to include dealing with cases of AIDs and covers students and staff; an update of the health curriculum; and the recall of Joanne Stroebel to teach 60 percent of full time under a grant for gifted education.

The board meets at 8 p.m. at the administration building, 6389 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township.

Harassment puts chill on CHS musicians

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Excelling at any school-related activity, whether it's in academics, the arts or on the sports field, is something to cheer about.

That's the attitude school officials and parents alike are trying to instill in the Clarkston High School student body after recent incidents involving the CHS marching band.

"Unity and respect, those are the key words," says Roger Diederich, a band parent who is part of a committee that will meet with CHS principal Dr. Robert Burek and band director Cliff Chapman to improve the situation.

Band parents who attended home football games to support the team and the band found little to cheer about in the stands.

"I have seen students throw spitballs and popcorn at the band kids and call them names," says band parent Jennifer Erickson.

"It's only a small group of students who are creating the problem," Erickson stresses, "but when a student is doing anything to misbehave, why can't they be escorted from the game?"

"Basically, what we're looking at is an attitudinal problem, a lack of respect," says Diederich. "Some of the students find great sport in throwing projectiles into the band instruments."

Since the problem has been brought to the attention of the administration, the situation has improved and parents are pleased with the positive steps being taken. At the last home game, the cheerleaders led the student body in a cheer for the band.

"Building overall school spirit is what the committee wants to do," says Diederich. "Tying it all together to foster a positive 'we' attitude rather than a 'them' or 'us' attitude. Students should be proud of what they're doing and what others are doing."

"What would a football game be like without the band playing?" is a question raised by many CHS parents, but it's a question Grosse Pointe students found the answer to the hard way.

The high school in Grosse Pointe lost its marching band because similar incidents escalated to the point where students lost interest in the band.

But CHS band students are feeling better about the situation since the school has made a concerted effort to address the problem, according to Chapman.

"I think the greatest concern everyone has is that we're all here for the same thing, student self-image and welfare," Chapman says. "There shouldn't be negative attitudes placed with any student in any school-oriented activity."

Some of the positive steps already in place, according to Burek, are recognition of students for their accomplishments and control mechanisms, such as being present at the games to monitor the situation and talking with students who create the problems.

"We're all concerned with the kids," says Durham Downs, another band parent who will meet with Burek this week. "We want kids to have the broadest range of classroom opportunities—in the arts, the academics and all the subjects that give them a chance to grow."

Pride and respect are words that come up frequently when the parents and administrators talk about correcting the situation, and pride is something that is certainly not lacking among the band parents.

"Basically, what we're looking at is an attitudinal problem, a lack of respect. Some of the students find great sport in throwing projectiles into the band instruments."

~Roger Diederich

"I have gone to all the football games and sat between the band kids and the other kids, and sometimes it was pretty upsetting," says Samantha Dolsen, mother of two band students. "Maybe I'm more sensitive because I'm handicapped, but I'm very proud of my kids."

CHS band marches to best season

The 1987 season marks the most successful competition record for Clarkston High School band, according to CHS band director Cliff Chapman.

Most recently, the CHS marching band and color guard attended the Michigan Competing Band Directors Association State Marching Band Championships. The competition took place Oct. 24 at Plymouth Centennial Educational Park.

The students earned a finalist position and third place in Flight II (bands with between 86-115 members) as a result of an outstanding preliminary score of 80.3, Chapman said.

The band has been competing successfully throughout the fall. At the Michigan Invitational Contest at Atwood Stadium in Flint on Oct. 4, they earned a third place in Flight II. At the Montrose Invitational contest on Oct. 10, they earned a first place in Flight II.

Also at the Montrose Invitational, the band swept all caption awards for the first time including best percussion, best winds, best color guard and best marching.

On Nov. 13, the CHS band and color guard will compete in the Bands of America Grand Nationals at the Pontiac Silverdome with 50 outstanding high school bands from across the nation.

"Considering their youth and inexperience, they've accomplished remarkable achievements," said Chapman.

He also noted that the band is frequently complimented on their behavior at events.

"They exude courtesy and character wherever they travel," he said. "It has almost become a trademark for them, and I think it speaks well for them and the parents. We have an incredible amount of parent support and volunteers."

The 108-member CHS marching band and color guard is under the field direction of drum majors Jeremy Roberts and Rachel Young, and color guard co-captains Kelsey Harmon and Tina Sheppard. Doug Doty is assistant director.

In addition to the marching band at Clarkston High School, there is a symphonic band, wind and jazz ensembles, plus extra-curricular groups such as pep band and various smaller ensembles.

The Clarkston High School bands have performed throughout Michigan and the midwest.

Zoning ordinance error found after 14 years

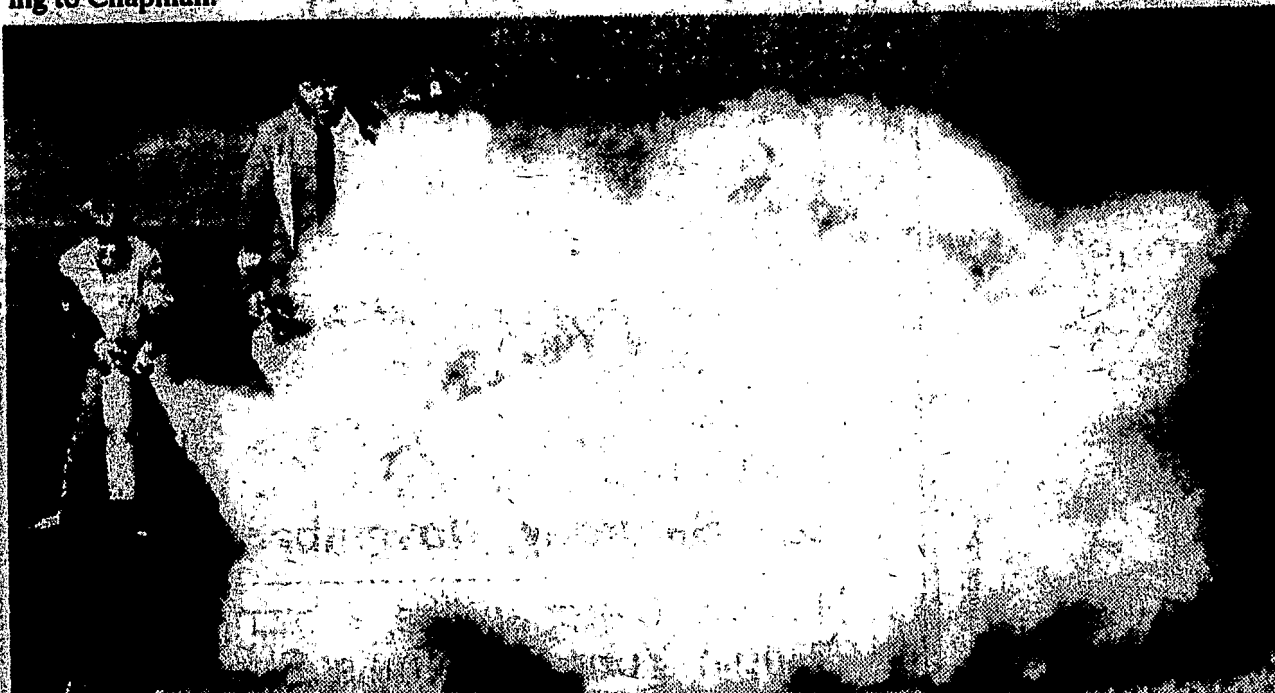

An error of omission was corrected Nov. 2 when the village council and planning commission discussed Clarkston's zoning ordinances during a public hearing.

Trustee William Basinger discovered the error recently while looking through the zoning ordinances and brought it to everyone's attention.

The omission allows utilities, schools and churches to build on lots zoned for single family dwellings. In the business and multiple family zoning sections, utilities, schools, churches, etc., require a special permit to build.

"A clear error was made that was unintentional" when the zoning ordinances were written up in 1973, said Basinger. "What occurred in 1973 was a cut and paste operation."

No one from the audience voiced an objection when the village council voted 5-0, trustees Gary Symons and James Schultz were absent, to move the paragraphs around.

FIRE EXTINGUISHER handling is demonstrated by Independence Township Fire Department Capt. Neil Ashley to ninth-graders in Tom O'Brien's handicrafts class at Sashabaw Junior High School. O'Brien, a long-time volunteer firefighter, has made the demonstration an annual event for his industrial arts students. Mike Corcoran practices putting out a gasoline fire after Ashley's instruction on the proper technique.

Remember them

Next Wednesday pause a moment. Pause November 11 and remember those who fought and died in wars to save the United States of America.

Reflect on the people in our armed forces who died in World War one, World War two, Korean War, Vietnam War and wherever men and women in uniform for our country have died serving it.

The number of Americans killed in these efforts to preserve freedom for their countrymen is both astronomical and sickening. Millions! Over 16 million lives lost in WW II alone.

We must remember them. We must never forget they gave their lives for us.

Take a moment. Remember the veterans. JAS

Sad song

Kathy Greenfield

There will always be the insensitive among us.

The latest example involves Clarkston High School's Marching Band members who apparently have been suffering silently--until now--at the barbs of fellow students.

I'm glad the parents of some band members have gone public with the problem, because I believe their action will put a stop to the abuse and offer an opportunity for those responsible to ponder the importance of caring about the feelings of others.

While I cannot remember an equivalent example of harassment when I was in high school nearly a quarter of a century ago--nobody bothered the band--I do remember an incident involving a fellow student I'll call Jeff.

In many ways it's worse than what happened at CHS.

Back then, Elvis Presley was the rage. I remember listening to "Hound Dog Man" on my 45 rpm record player with automatic replay for hours on end.

Jeff and I had grown up together--same elementary school classes, same bus route, that routine. Mostly, everyone ignored Jeff ... until he announced one day that he could sing like Elvis, which he was willing to demonstrate.

There were those of us who backed off when we realized that Jeff's singing left everything to be desired. There were others who encouraged him to keep on singing.

Jeff's final high school performance attracted a snickering crowd that blocked a hallway. I saw it happening and turned away. It was sad.

Later I heard that those so willing to get a few laughs at the expense of Jeff were in trouble. The adults among us had finally realized what was happening.

I've thought of Jeff, too, whenever I've heard about Elvis impersonators making their fortunes by copying the late star's style.

Sometimes I imagine Jeff on stage in Las Vegas rocking and rolling to the cheers of a truly appreciative crowd. Wouldn't that be lovely?

Cop contract dispute out of control

BY NEIL E. WALLACE

For some time I have watched closely the township battle the village over police protection money.

As a township resident, I am dismayed at the township's actions and the statements of some of its officials.

First, the township brought on this problem by deciding too late to put the millage increase on the ballot.

Although they were saved by the special action of the Legislature, their decision was still too late to permit the village to give the proposal due consideration and timely place it on the village ballot.

Next, the township approached the village with an ultimatum for total reimbursement without any provisions for specific services. The township claimed that without total reimbursement it would lose, in effect, $90,000 because of a state ruling.

So, the village agreed to reimbursement based on that and the township's promise, in April, to provide a much needed traffic service to the village ... a service which is at least as important to many township residents as it is to the village.

Yet, the township withheld this service ... for no apparent reason ... until the attorneys could work out the language for a written contract. This was all but complete in October leaving but one issue.

Should the village reimburse the township for the full equivalent millage back to the first of this year although the township had not provided the service it agreed to do?

The answer to all but one of the township board members was: "Yes, they should." In fact, one official called it the village's "moral obligation."

Preposterous, though that sort of comment has no place in this debate, it more accurately describes the township's duty.

The village has requested several times that some accommodation or compromise be reached. But the township boards sits, arms folded, demanding "their money."

As an excuse, the township has said right along that they will in effect be penalized by the state to the tune of $90,000. Yet, they have not to this date produced the written evidence of this even thought it was requested last spring and was a significant factor in the village's decision when it reached the agreement in principle.

Where is this letter? I predict, if and when it is produced, the loss will not approach $90,000, if there is one at all that can be attributed to the village.

It seems to me and to others that this matter has been mishandled by the township from the beginning. They now risk driving an irrevocable wedge between these communities at a crucial time in the history of our community.

The unrelenting development of the metropolitan area is at our borders. If we are to preserve some semblance of our way of life, the village and township must stand united.

In this and many other respects, the village is not just another subdivision and neither they nor township residents should be made to pay for someone else's errors. There are many possible ways to resolve this that will leave the community united.

It is time someone made the effort.

Jim Sherman

Jim's Jottings

I think it was sister, Barbara, who I first heard say: "Predicting should be done in advance".

It was next day quarterbacking that prompted the remark.

It's apropos following the happenings on Wall Street in October. After the Monday crash, excuse me 'correction', many pundits came out to tell why it happened.

The trade deficit, the national deficit, the Persian Gulf fracas, the Bork hearings, German interest rates ... if some or all of these things caused the market to fall, where were the experts before? Why weren't they telling the stockholders the market was going to tumble?

The problems have been around for quite a while. To credit them with causing a market crash after the crash has happened is phony reasoning.

Only a couple guys selling their books of gloom and doom, Great Depression just ahead, predicted the 'correction', and they went further with their pessimism than anyone could with bull market talk.

Dow Jones averages ... like many TV shows.

The all-summer hype for the 'colossal, exciting, stupendous new shows on television this fall' coaxes me into watching them at least once. That's the power of advertising, folks.

But, I couldn't get through half of "The Oldest Rookie", and I don't even want to be reminded of that Debbie Reynolds and son cop flop.

I don't mind "The Law and Harry McGraw", except for the inevitable sloppy eating scenes, but "Jake and the Fatman" can't possibly survive, though Fatman, William Conrad's voice can go on forever describing nature on cable.

Give me "Rockford Files" and "Columbo" reruns, and give me back Simon and Simon, which I understand is back.

Five, no four minutes of "Thirtysomething" was plenty. The reviews are so high on "Frank's Place" I'm going to give it one more try, and maybe I'll watch one more "J.J. Starbuck", but only because I liked Dale Robertson as a left-handed gunslinger in the earlier TV days.

The trouble I have with television watching is with my conscience later. I drag myself off to bed knowing I've wasted hours of my life. I have numerous projects going in the basement, a typewriter waiting to be pounded, and a sock drawer to rearrange. Each would salve my inner mind more than tube time.

Trouble is I turn that magnet on to see the news I've already heard on radio, then get lulled by Peter Jennings who comes on right after Dan Rather - yes, I watch both when I can.

Then I'm comfortable and hooked. Gone is the fitness program, storm windows don't go up (or down), furniture doesn't get refinished, motors stay unrepaired, and the basement remains unfinished for the 17th year.

Let's see what's on HBO.

Letters to the Editor

Reason for pride

At this time, I wish to express on behalf of the students of the Clarkston High School Band and Color Guard sincere and heartfelt appreciation to all who contributed to our resounding success this season.

The parents, Boosters and friends of these young people were a formidable force in their achievement and should both publicly and privately share in rewards of their efforts.

We are fortunate to enjoy the special experiences afforded us by these people and to witness what positive energy, common goals and commitment can produce.

To the students, congratulations on an outstanding effort. Your collective leadership and purpose are worthy of the pride you should feel in your accomplishments thus far.

May you always enjoy success!

Started, 3:30 a.m.

I am so disgusted with the looks of this village that I cry when I think of how many years I have worked to make this an attractive place to stop and shop. I am talking about the business section only.

The parking lot next to The Clarkston News--it is not theirs--and others around town look like the slums of any big city.

The sidewalks are filthy, stained and in disrepair. As a council member, I kept asking that we do something about them.

Mill Street and the alley running from Washington to Depot are repulsive--as are others.

The weeds behind some buildings are almost as tall as I am. Look behind the house-turned-office on East Church abutting the Clarkston Corners parking lot. Look behind the building next to Kacy's building. We even have an ordinance against weeds.

These are not the only places. There is a little patch of grass, weeds or ? next to the sidewalk between Clarkston Corners and the Baptist Church. It is so small I guess no one cares.

Some of us had an antique shop at 69 South Main. It was a cute little house that now looks like a disaster--probably full of vermin. Has the council ever thought of condemning this--and let the historical society buy it. With the new ordinance, it cannot be torn down.

Now, behind the stores on the east side of Main. Do not count the Symons' building and its parking because it is lovely with flowers and a very well-kept parking area.

The rest is a hill with crazy parking. So many more parking places could be made if it were flattened out and good drainage put in. This is another thing I tried to accomplish while on the council.

There are engineering plans sitting in the Village Hall somewhere, along with expensive village plans, done by Villican and Lehman and by Betty Lee Francis.

The alley going north to Washington is the pits, and I mean that literally.

In the same area, the building department should give the so-called fire escapes a good going over. They are rusted and look unsafe, and I have seen people using them to go up to the apartments above the stores.

There was to be a new dumpster behind the fire hall--the same old rusted, no lid one is still there. The other at the north end of the lot is always overflowing.

It is so very hard for me to believe that residents have not complained to the council--and that the building owners could be so uncaring.

I want to compliment the Clarkston Mills Mall for their flowers and upkeep. The only things wrong are some broken tiles near the sidewalk on Washington. They will be sued someday because of a fall--and that should take care of that.

I will not get started on the filth in the Mill Pond on Washington. It makes me sick to look at it--and why can't the village get the county to fix the rotting posts that are on the Mill Pond on Washington.

Why haven't the disreputable flower barrels been taken off the streets? Except for a few, they were never watered enough, dead flowers picked off or petunias pinched back.

Suckers around flowering trees have never been cut down--except the one time I had my helper go across to the parking lot and cut those.

Our big evergreen on the corner of Main and Washington had a deep dose of vitamins and fertilizers, so it looked great for quite a while this year, but the council has done nothing about the deep watering system that I gave them a plan for. This was given to me by the Oakland County Extension office--so next year you will find that tree dying again.

We should all thank NBD for what they have done to the bank--and we should all write the president of NBD to get rid of that--THAT--sign.

Now, one thing on the political side--the police issue.

I honestly do not remember how I voted when the township Supervisor Frank Ronk came to the village council and wanted to know if we wanted it to go on our ballots. We should have allowed the village residents to vote.

The continuing argument is ridiculous. We are part of the township and should pay them the other 1 1/2 mills for protection.

I am sure the township would like to cut down the speed on Main Street as much as we would. As for the payment, I think it should have started when our old contract ran out.

One thing--that I have told many people--if you ever read about a little old lady sitting on the curb from 5:30 a.m. shooting at the tires of those d-- gravel train trucks going through town at 70 mph or thereabouts, you will know who it is.

This may or may not be my last letter before my move to N.C., but in spite of all I have written, I love this village.

I have lived within a mile of it for 30 years (I think). I have had so many friends and support when I have needed it that nothing will ever be able to replace that.

6:10 a.m. One of those trucks just went flying by--

Bless all of you,

Fad for thieves?

Dear Clarkston Parents and Teachers,

If you see your youngsters sporting a hood ornament off a car, please take some to investigate where it came from.

We are employed at the Clarkston Professional Building and during the past two weeks, three of us have had our hood ornaments stolen.

After talking to a local police officer, we found out it is one of the latest fads for kids in Clarkston to wear hood ornaments around their necks.

Please help end this expensive and annoying vandalism.

Platooning too early

Jim
Fitzgerald

I was in the Pontiac Silverdome for the big game last weekend. The Lions won, and I couldn't believe it.

No, I didn't break my vow never again to watch the Detroit Lions play after they deserted Detroit in favor of the suburbs. I watched the Lake Orion Lions beat the Lapeer Steelers, 47-0. What I couldn't believe is what's happening to little boys' football since I was a little boy, shortly after the Civil War.

These Lions and Steelers, members of city recreation little leagues, were ages 12-14, not even in high school yet. And they were the oldest boys playing in the carpeted, 80,000-seat Silverdome Saturday. Other games featured players as young as eight in an all-day celebration of jockstrap overkill.

Yes, those kids wore jocks. Also shoulder pads, hip pads, cleated shoes, helmets, face masks, numbered shirts--the whole schmeer. I'm not sure how much the players get out of organized sports for tiny tots, but the games are a great deal for the manufacturers of sporting equipment.

There were stripe-shirted officials, chain carriers marking off first downs, several coaches, offensive and defensive teams, cheerleaders and pompon shakers, a play-by-play description over the public address system in the press box, $4 admission tickets, screaming fans, video cameras capturing the action, and nachos for sale.

WHAT WILL these kids do for excitement by the time they're jaded old men of 17? Probably get locker room phone calls from the White House and jet to Ohio to be enshrined in the football Hall of Fame.

When I was 12, the neighborhood boys played football on a strip of grass behind the tennis court in Pine Grove Park. The two biggest kids were automatically team captains. They picked team members and I was always picked last. My problem was tackling. Give me the ball and I could run like the wind, but I didn't weigh enough to bend the grass, and when the other guys had the ball, I ran like the wind to get out of their way. If there had been two-platoon football in 1938, I would have been star instead of coward.

Our equipment consisted of one bulgy football. The goal lines were the railroad tracks at one end and the parking posts at the other. Out-of-bounds was the tennis court screen on one side and a huge chestnut tree on the other. There were no first downs. If we didn't make a touchdown in four downs, the other side got the ball and I ran like the wind to hide behind the chestnut tree.

By the time we were old enough to go out for high school football, we surely didn't know as much about the game as today's 15-year-old veterans of little league play. Progressive high schools must appreciate being able to recruit experienced players, just like big universities and the NFL.

HIGH SCHOOLS recruit? Sure. I just read about a strong runner who played for three different Detroit-area high schools in three years. Between his sophomore and junior years, his mother made him a ward of the court and gave his guardianship to her sister, who lived in Ohio. This maneuver avoided wait-a-while regulations and made him immediately eligible, as an out-of-state student, to play for a Michigan boarding high school absolutely dying to educate him in off-tackle cutbacks.

I was at the Silverdome to watch my grandson play. I cheered wildly when he ran like the wind to down a punt inside the opposition's five-yard line. I was proud of him.

After the game, he felt lousy because his team got clobbered. I didn't ask him if he likes having his fun organized by adults. It wouldn't have been fair. But I sure wonder if we proud adults know what we're doing.

I hope it was OK that I kissed him. If he'd played on both platoons, I would have kissed him twice.

Changing times

A dramatic change has taken place in schools between 1940 and today.

Top offenses in 1940 were things such as talking, chewing gum and wearing improper clothes. Today, top offenses in schools range from carrying weapons to murder.

How have the schools improved with more spending?

In 1963, Bible reading in public schools was declared unconstitutional and the void created was quickly filled with curriculum materials that promote immoral behavior, rebellion against parents and other unruly behavior.

Since 1960, educational spending has increased seventeen fold, and there was no increase in educational quality since that time.

The National Commission on Excellence in Education gave its report to Congress in 1983 that stated that there was an unbroken decline in SAT scores from 1963 to 1980.

Is spending more on education the only answer?

Caring shortfall

Dear Clarkston school students:

I am truly sorry about the millage defeat.

Just last month, many of you were studying the facts and ramifications regarding the 200th anniversary of our nation's Constitution.

This document reflects a characteristic of American strength--the ability to lay aside immediate concerns for the greater good of all citizens.

In Clarkston, it seems that concerns over a heightened tax outweighed the concerns for bringing a top quality education to you.

It won't be long before you are on your own, working your way through life's maze.

Without a competitive education, it will be more difficult to compete in a competitive market. This will seriously affect your income producing potential. Students with less education make less money.

The people who voted down the millage hope to live comfortably in their older years, yet it will be you who will be supporting their Social Security checks. The less you make, the less they will get.

Then they will be complaining about that, too.

Our founding fathers showed careful concern about future generations of Americans. Why didn't the citizens of Clarkston show similar concern for you?

Too many mills?

I'm no math-magician (which is what it takes to make all the figures come up right when dealing with tax dollars), but how much cash does Clarkston need to operate its schools?

The recent millage defeat seems like a slap in the face to students, but is it really?

Maybe asking for a 4.25 mill hike was a slap in the face to the taxpayers. Could the school district have asked for and operated with a 4 mill or even 3 mill increase?

Was too much asked for at one time?

As a graduate of CHS, I have seen many fine and well-educated students come from Clarkston, which is something to be proud of. (Sorry, Mrs. Meyland, for ending the sentence with a preposition.)

Again, was too much asked for at one time? How much has the district stashed away, in what accounts and for what rainy day?

Can programs, teachers' jobs and the continued well-balanced education of Clarkston students be saved by dipping into these funds until the next millage vote?

I don't know, but would like to find out. Get the math-magicians working and let's see what happens.

Sincerely concerned,
Donald P. Rush

Recently we've received inquiries from local citizens about letters and phone calls received from an affiliated organization of the Michigan State Fire Fighters Union.

This organization has been using the name Michigan Professional Fire Fighters Union and over the last few years has canvassed the Clarkston area for donations for various home fire safety products.

Although this is a legitimate organization, they have been using the Independence Fire Department's name, more specifically, Independence Professional Fire Fighters Association, Local 2629, without authorization.

They've also associated this department with their organization and have been informing people they contact that a portion of the money collected goes to the local fire department, all of which is not accurate.

It is true that we are an affiliate of the Michigan State Fire Fighters Union but not of this subaffiliate, the Michigan Professional Fire Fighters Union.

Phone call saves man from blast

A house on Rockcroft, Independence Township, received about $60,000 damage during a house fire last Thursday in which no one was injured.

About 7:30 p.m., Forrest Hunt received a phone call and left his garage, where he was repairing his dune buggy, said Gar Wilson, township fire chief.

Hunt heard an explosion, and a fire started in the garage, which was attached to the house, said Wilson. Hunt tried to douse the fire with a fire extinguisher, but another explosion made the blaze too big to fight, Wilson said.

By the time firefighters reached the scene, the flames had traveled the length of the house in the attic, said Wilson.

The fire was under control in about 45 minutes and firefighters were on the scene for about three hours, he said.

"It was a little tough for us to get to the fire because it was up on a hill," Wilson said, adding they parked the trucks at the bottom of the hill and stretched water lines up the hill.

While the cause of the fire is unknown, it may have been caused by battery cables or the gas line on the dune buggy, on which Hunt was working, said Wilson.

Sleeping Beauty's legacy

Carolyn Walker

At 70, she could have been anybody's grandmother.

Her breasts, heavy with age, rested sluggishly atop a belt that held her housedress snugly about her waist; while two nylon legs, choking under the pressure of elastic garters, peeked out from beneath its hem.

Decades spent standing over stoves and mops and pails coupled with a childhood case of rheumatic fever had put a large dowager's hump square in the middle of her back.

SHE WAS A lovely little girl.

Thick, grease-caked glasses brought the world within viewing distance of her cloudy brown eyes. Her teeth? Like the beauty of her youth, they were long since forgotten.

The one existing picture of her as a little girl always elicited a gasp of surprise from anyone viewing it for the first time. "That's her?" people would ask.

It was hard to believe.

The little girl in the picture was truly beautiful. Her lustrous black hair cascaded down her shoulders, topped by an enormous gingham bow. Her large brown eyes hinted at a joyous childhood. And a touch of a smile crossed her lips as she reached for the one toy she owned, her beloved doll.

Nowadays, when she wasn't complaining about something, or asking you to repeat yourself for the zillionth time so she could hear you, or predicting doom for somebody, she would affectionately reminisce on those happy, good ol' girlhood days. They offered a stark contrast to her lonely, old-age existence.

It was easy to wonder about the many experiences, like not being allowed to marry the man she loved, that made her, well, so testy with age.

On this day, she struggled to force open the door of the car, wondering aloud how she was going to walk all the way from the parking lot to Meadowbrook's amphitheater.

"I'll never make it," she said, huffing dramatically as she took her first few steps.

"Yes you will," we said, grasping her elbows and leading her forward, determined that, against all odds, she was going to have a good time. It was a ponderous, slow, long walk.

Arriving finally, we eased her into a lawn chair on the hill and attempted to cheer her with talk of the upcoming open-air concert, her first. It wasn't an easy task.

Behind us, pouring himself yet another glass of wine, sat a dark, good-looking middle-aged man who was fairly exuding cheerfulness.

He struck up a conversation laden with friendly small talk while offering us samples of the cheeses and fruits he had brought to the concert on a platter. He seemed an unlikely Prince Charming.

Throughout the evening this stranger continued to share his food, wine and friendship, making sure that he included "Grandma" (as he called her), who was complaining as usual.

From the gleam in his eye, it was clear to us, if not to her, that this man recognized a contrary old lady when he saw one and was determined to do something about it.

You had to admire his spunk.

As the music wound down and the theatergoers began to pack up their belongings, Prince Charming completed the evening as only he could have. He bent down over Grandma and puckering, planted a large, juicy kiss full on her pencil-thin sunken lips.

What a moment! Stunned, then pleased, Grandma came back to life.

Suit may block youth camp project

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A work and learn camp for delinquent youths may not end up in Oakland County, according to an attorney who was in court last week to argue against a restraining order on further expenditures for the camp.

A lawsuit was filed last week by Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson asking for a court order to void a contract between the state Department of Social Services and International Field Studies, the private company hired to run the first of three proposed youth detention camps.

Patterson also asked for an injunction to prohibit the state from allocating $7.7 million for the first camp.

The suit was filed Oct. 27 in Oakland County Circuit Court by Patterson and the local social services board against the state DSS and IFS. In the suit, Patterson alleges that DSS had no authority to set up a camp without first allowing the Oakland County Board of Social Services to review the plan and make recommendations.

Several North Oakland County sites have been considered for the work and learn camp, with Camp Holly, a Michigan Metro Girl Scout camp in Rose Township, considered a prime site.

William Reddish, director of properties for the Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council, said that IFS has not negotiated for the Camp Holly property for many months. The Girl Scout Council has another prospective buyer currently negotiating for the site, he said.

Coincidentally, Reddish said, while everyone is up-in-arms over Camp Holly, they have a contract, made over a year ago, for a modest amount of logging to be done at the camp this month.

"Every year we do this at one of our camps," he said, "And this year it will be at Camp Holly. I'm just afraid people will see that heavy equipment going in and think it is the youth camp going in."

Rather than moving in at Camp Holly or any other site, the youth camp proposal is embroiled in a legal battle.

In a prepared statement on the youth camp issue, C. Patrick Babcock, director of DSS, said the prosecutor's legal opinion had been reviewed and the DSS was confident that the process was handled appropriately.

Assistant Chief Prosecutor Richard Thompson argued for the restraining order on the funding before Circuit Judge Richard Kuhn Oct. 28, one day after the lawsuit was filed.

"At this point, the court has not ruled on it," Thompson said. "We were there to get a preliminary restraining order, in order to keep the state and IFS from taking any further steps."

The statement made by Aaron Goren, attorney for IFS, about IFS not seeking an Oakland County site caused the judge to feel that there was no need for an immediate restraining order, Thompson said.

Instead, Judge Kuhn asked for briefs to be filed Nov. 4 from both sides about why the county is involved in the case and whether irreparable damage is occurring. The judge also asked for briefs on a conflict of interest issue, because Rose Township Supervisor Michael Izzo is also an assistant prosecutor with Oakland County.

Thompson said a similar situation of dual employment has been reviewed favorably by the state Attorney General's office, and that Izzo's situation is already being reviewed by that office.

When contacted after the proceedings, Robert Lipsitz, president of IFS, said he considers the contract valid between his company and the DSS.

"Basically, the judge said it was not out of line and didn't require an injunction," Lipsitz said. "He also questioned the conflict of interest (in Izzo's situation)."

Lipsitz said IFS "is not negotiating on Oakland County sites at this time" and that they haven't been looking into Oakland County sites for several months.

Members of RAID (Residents Against Ineffective Detention) have been actively opposed to the youth camp in Oakland County, and question whether or not IFS has really decided to go elsewhere.

"We have reservations," said Nancy Strole, spokesperson for RAID. "The statements made last week were made under duress. What assurances do we have that it won't be in Oakland County?"

Thompson said correspondence dated Oct. 16 from Ken Visser, DSS administrative assistant in charge of the camp program, to IFS indicated Camp Holly was still being considered as a prime site.

Both sides will have time to respond after briefs are filed Wednesday, Thompson said, and a hearing date will be set, probably within the next three weeks.

Strole said RAID will meet at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 5 in Springfield Township Hall to assess the situation and give the public an update on the latest developments.

Court order ends trespassing in bird sanctuary

in the southeastern portion of the township, he said.

When the conservancy took over the property in 1975, he continued using the path, he said. "I was really disappointed because my kids love to fish," he said. "As it is now, I can see them and watch them fish."

"I think it was a really nit-picking thing. ... I wasn't hurting the property. But I understand you've got to follow the law."

Last year, when Derryberry improved the dock and moored his boat off the property, a conservancy member talked to him about removing it, but said the conservancy could probably work out a compromise with him, said Derryberry.

He was surprised when he was served a notice to appear in court, he said.

While some of the 222 acres in the conservancy are completely restricted from human trespassing, other sites are hardy enough to allow an occasional walk through the forest, as long as no permanent paths or structures are built, said Tom Murphy, conservancy president.

It's expensive for the non-profit organization to take legal action against a trespasser, he said, adding the money comes from donations.

"We don't like to (go to court), but we have an obligation to protect the property," he said.

The 20 acres on Greens Lake were purchased as a memorial with a donation from the parents of John R. Schmude, who was killed in Vietnam, he said.

Bullard, who has lived in the Clarkston area for over 35 years, said the conservancy allows the preservation of some wetlands in the area, which is important for the habitat of animals and plants, as well as beauty, he said.

"Like many areas in Oakland County, particularly in northern Oakland County, population and land use is growing at astounding rates," he said. "It's a continuing struggle between good growth and maintaining enough of the beauty of the area we live in."

"It's our goal to maintain all that to the extent possible. We do it by gifts," he said.

"The impact on that entire (ecological) system by mistreating our wetlands here has a profound impact, not only on the rest of Oakland County, but all of southeastern Michigan."

Cuts to follow school millage defeat

volunteers had identified a "pretty solid" block of 2,800 "yes" voters, Mason said.

In the final tally, the 4.25-mill request was defeated, 2,353 to 2,114, so if 2,800 people had voted "yes," the millage would have easily been approved, he said.

If approved, the 4.25 mills would have meant an increase of $4.25 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation. The increase would have added $1.8 million this school year to the district's $19 million general fund budget for grades K-12.

Another significant aspect of the defeat involves the Clarkston school district's tax revenue, which makes it an in-formula district supplemented by the money from the state.

"There is a great reluctance to believe that increased development in the community does not result in increased funds for school operation," Mason said.

In fact, when development increases, the state's share of revenue declines as property owners move closer to covering the majority of the costs of education.

Some have suggested that the decline in the stock market played a role in the defeat, Mason said.

"I have no way to know whether that's a solid conclusion or not," he said. "It's possible, certainly."

Mason has also heard comments regarding the senior citizen block of voters.

"I think a lot of people think that senior citizen is an automatic no-vote block," he said. "However, I'm aware of a number of senior citizens and retired people willing to support education."

Regardless of the reasons, the millage defeat will mean more reductions in the school district's budget for 1988-89.

"It's too soon to predict what the next round of cuts will be ... but it certainly will be the subject of a number of board meetings," he said. "Right now I would expect, and this is by way of conjecture, that the cuts would exceed" the $1.1 million in cuts that were made for the 1987-88 school year.

Seeking a millage approval immediately would not help this school year because the taxes could not be levied until June of 1988.

But "there's no question that the district will have to go back to the voters. When is the question that has to be resolved," Mason said.

Costly for kids

If I may borrow a phrase from J.P. McCarthy (of radio station WJR fame), my "losers of the day" are all those people who did not support the school millage increase at the polls on the 27th. Unfortunately it's the kids that are the real losers.

When my wife and I made the decision to move to Clarkston 14 years ago, we did so with the knowledge that the Clarkston school district was one of the best in the area.

In the years that we've lived here we have always been proud of the fact that "kids count in Clarkston" and we have never been bashful about proclaiming that fact and doing our best to convince those folks in search of a new home to move to this area because of the schools.

Now it would appear that kids no longer count in Clarkston. The excuses that people gave after the first election no longer apply.

The millage election was well publicized and I doubt that anyone was unaware of either the issue or the reasons.

The excuses that come forth this time will be many. The timing of the election with the drastic decline of the stock market could not have been poorer and, granted, no one likes to pay additional taxes.

However, there are extremely few of us to whom the extra dollars each month would change the lifestyle to which we are accustomed.

It will be difficult to find many who admit to voting against the millage, let alone get honest answers from them as to what their deep-down reasons are.

If there are that many people who feel that strongly against the additional millage, then let them attest to that fact publicly rather than hiding behind the "secret ballot."

I'm sure our educators would be more than willing to listen to honest opinions so they can do whatever is necessary to inform people about the condition of our educational system.

I hope that eventually the millage will be approved. In the meantime, the kids will pay a price far greater than the few dollars it would have cost the adults had the millage passed.

What's the rule on gravesite flowers?

Why didn't anyone tell me what I should know?

For instance, I was told at one cemetery that flowers were to be placed below the headstone (in front of and below the writing). Is this so?

From the very beginning, in my mind, I have decorated the grave above the headstone of the ones I knew. You see, nobody instructed me until now.

I only assumed where the planting should be and where the grass was to be sewn and trimmed. I've been manicuring 15 graves of total strangers and placed lilacs every spring on the cemetery graves of neighbors of my kinfolks.

I was there and did my best. It's the thought that counts.

Eleanor Purdy

Editor's note: Indeed it is the thought that counts, and you may be right in some cemeteries.

There is no state law on stone, marker or flower placement. Roy Bemis, manager of White Chapel in Troy and president of Oakland County Cemetery Association, says individual cemetery rules govern flower placement.

At Lakeview Cemetery in Independence Township, supervisor Linda Richardson says that placement of plants or flowers is not allowed at the foot of a grave but plantings are allowed all around the headstone. She recommends placing plants in front of the headstone, however.

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed. Nov. 4, 1987 17

Statewide, stone and marker placement is not uniform. Some face east, some west, some at the feet and some at the head. And, as you know, some cemeteries don't allow headstones, plastic flowers, bushes or trees. Check with the cemetery manager.

Please accept our apology for failure to provide candy screening on Halloween evening.

Arrangements were made in September and confirmed during Halloween week. On Oct. 28, we were notified that it was not possible.

This decision was made because of possible liability in the event of tampering of candy with glass or drugs, not found by metal detectors.

We regret that we were unable to provide this valuable service and saddened that it is even necessary.

Heartfelt thank you

During this very difficult time, we wish we had the perfect words to express what is in our hearts.

Diane lived ... and brought to this earth beauty, love and abiding faith. Now her life will be reflected in the hearts of her family forever.

Diane met her adversity bravely with the constant help of her supportive community friends who kept in touch either in person or by cards and notes and food, which added immeasurably to her courage and faith.

Her entire family express their deep gratitude for such special caring.

We are finding true consolation in the source of strength and courage that Diane has conveyed to us during her lifetime.

With sincere appreciation,
Lew Wint

Clarkston High Varsity GOAL meet (boys)

Oct. 20--Jim Hotary was the top runner for the Wolves but it wasn't enough for the host team. Hotary finished the race in 18 minutes and took seventh place, for the last All-GOAL honor, during the race at Independence Oaks park.

Scott Kempf of Lake Orion won the meet with a time of 17:11. The Dragons also won the league meet as a team with 46 points.

Second place went to Brandon (66), then came Waterford Mott (75), Waterford Kettering (91), Pontiac Northern (91) and Clarkston (119).
GOAL meet (girls)

Oct. 20--The Wolves won the top three spots in the race and easily walked away as champions of the Greater Oakland Activities League meet for the fourth year in a row.

Sonya Schaffer, Jenny Mahler and Kate Conlen finished first, second and third, respectively, as Clarkston overpowered the rest of the league during the meet at Independence Oaks park.

Schaffer was timed at 19:59, Mahler at 20:16 and Conlen at 20:22. Schaffer and Mahler broke the course record.

Lisa Palazzola took seventh (last All-GOAL spot) for Clarkston (21:14) and Meredith Green (21:26) finished right behind her in eighth place.

Clarkston won with 21 points, Lake Orion was second with 43, followed by Waterford Kettering (68) and Brandon (131). Waterford Mott and Pontiac Northern didn't finish the race.

Football

Clarkston High JV Wolves 34, North Farmington 6

Oct. 29--Clarkston whipped a good North Farmington team at home to end the season with a seven-game winning streak.

Mike Brueck tossed a 38-yard TD pass to John King to start the scoring for Clarkston. King broke several tackles on his way to the end zone.

A 60-yard screen play by the Raiders later in the first half tied up the game, 6-6.

Dane Davis then ran the ball and hit paydirt to put the Wolves in front for good. Kevin Keilitz added another TD and King ran in the conversion for a 20-6 edge.

King closed out the scoring blitz in the first half with a 5-yard run. Tony Simmons kicked the point-after attempt for a 27-6 halftime lead.

Davis scored on a 25-yard scramble out of the pocket in the second half to make the score 34-6 after another Simmons PAT.

"The kids played extremely well," said Coach John Craven. "I am very proud of them."

All of the players helped Clarkston gain the victory.

For example, Glen Adams kept one drive alive for Clarkston with good running, said Craven.

Basketball

Clarkston High JV Wolves 46, Lake Orion 33

Oct. 27--Celeste Steinhelper scored 10 points and grabbed nine rebounds to pace the Wolves past the Dragons in a GOAL battle.

Deanna Green added 10 points and Ingrid Larson pulled down nine boards for the victors.
Flint Central 47, Wolves 32

Oct. 29--Three players scored six points apiece for Clarkston as they went down to defeat at home.

Tami Mitchell, Steinhelper and Larson netted six apiece. Larson also had 12 rebounds.

"We have a hard time scoring," said Coach Larry Sherrill. "Our defense has gotten most of our points for us this season."

The team's record now stands at 9-7.

Clarkston High varsity Wolves 71, Lake Orion 67 (OT)

Oct. 27--Stephanie Stamas stole the ball in overtime and made a basket to pace the Wolves past the Dragons.

Jackie Patrick netted 12-of-16 shots from the free-throw line and Ali Fedio made 16 points to help Clarkston win the game.

The victory ups the team's record in the Greater Oakland Activities League to 5-1. The Wolves stay one game behind leader Waterford Kettering.

Flint Central 62, Wolves 46

Oct. 29--Fedio scored 15 points and Michelle Baker added 11 more, but it wasn't enough for the host Wolves. Fedio also had 12 rebounds.

"They just beat us," said Coach Dave McDonald.

Clarkston's record falls to 9-7 with the loss as they enter the final part of the schedule.

"We are in the league's stretch drive," said McDonald. "We have to get it all together now."

9th grade basketball Mason 49, Wolverines 22

Oct. 26--Jenny McChesney scored 10 points and Carrie Roeser added eight, but powerful Mason was able to roll over Clarkston.

Lapeer West 47, Wolverines 40

Oct. 27--Clarkston's losing streak hit four games as a late defensive lapse cost the Wolverines a game against Lapeer West.

Lapeer West managed to score 21 points in the fourth quarter and squeak past the Wolverines.

Beth Walker had 11 points to pace the Clarkston team. McChesney added 10 points before leaving with an injury.

"We were in the ball game, but we just had a defensive lapse for six minutes," said Coach Dennis Bronson. "I'm still pleased with the way we have played."

The team's record now stands at 7-7.

Cougars 55, Lakeland 27

Oct. 26--Missy Crites played an outstanding game, said Coach Jayne Bannister, and led the Cougars past Lakeland. She scored 12 points to pace the scorers.

Jenny Graham had 11 points and Stephanie Cashin added 10. Lauren Caston and Sue Kramer chipped in with eight points apiece.
Cougars 28, Lake Orion 19

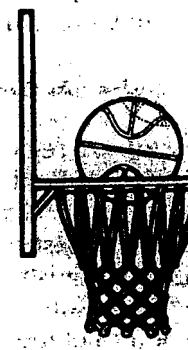

Oct. 29--Sashabaw held the Dragons scoreless in the third quarter and it helped the Cougars to defeat Lake Orion.

"It was an exciting game. The lead went back and forth," said Bannister.

Graham scored 11 points to pace Sashabaw. Kramer and Crites added six apiece.

The victory evens the Cougars' record at 7-7 and gives them the opportunity to finish the season with a winning record.

"We really have come a long way this season," said Bannister. "They have a chance to finish with the best record around here in a long time."

Harriers head for state meet

The girls cross country team is peaking at just the right time.

Good weather and a flat course helped the Wolves put on their best performance of the season during the Class A region 6 regional at Royal Oak Kimball High School on Saturday.

The top five runners for Clarkston finished with career best or season best times to pace the Wolves to a second-place finish.

Clarkston had 58 points in the meet and ended up just one point behind champion West Bloomfield. Troy was in third with 106 points. The top three teams qualify for the state meet Saturday in Lansing.

"We made the state meet and that's good," said Coach Mike Taylor. "This is the most successful cross country team Clarkston has ever had."

With seven wins in eight dual meets this year, a GOAL championship and wins at two invitational, Taylor has the statistics stacked in his favor to back up his claim.

Jenny Mahler was the top Clarkston runner at 19:22. She finished in fourth place. Kate Conlen was in fifth (19:23) and Sonya Schaffer took eighth (19:34).

Other good performances were turned in by Lisa Palazzola who took 20th place with a time of 20:07 and Meredith Green who finished right behind her at 20:13.

Amy Rice was clocked at 22:17 and Emily Winfield 22:58 for Clarkston.

West Bloomfield runners took first, seventh, ninth, 12th and 28th to win the regional.

The favorite in the Class A state meet in Lansing will be Ann Arbor Pioneer, said Taylor. Clarkston had beaten Pioneer earlier this year at the Gabriel Richard Invitational but the Ann Arbor team was without its top two runners.

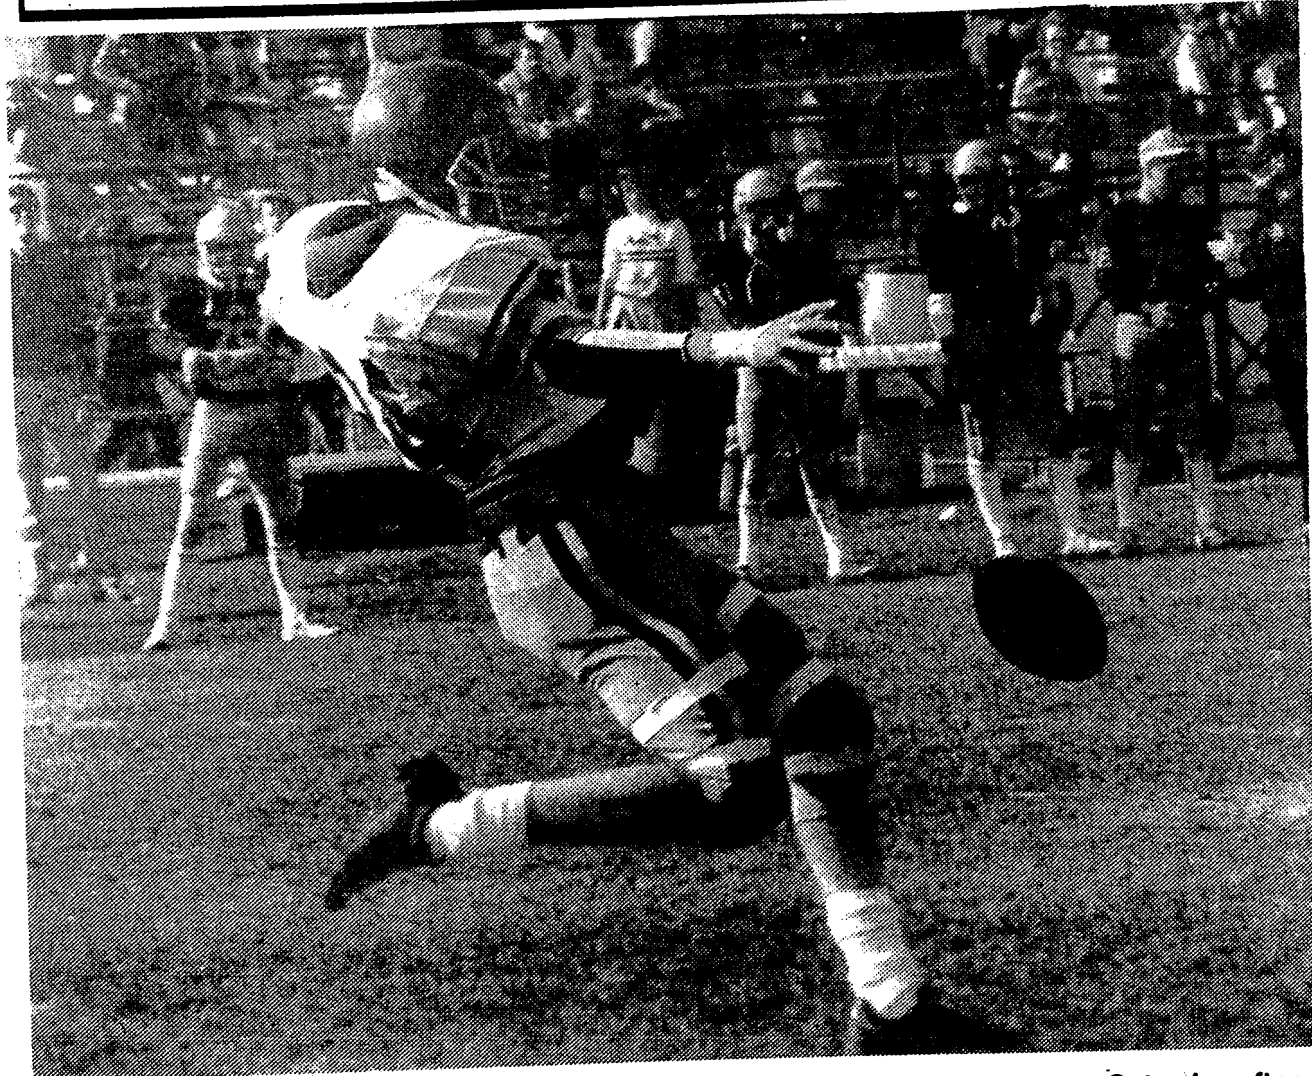

Clarkston plans to continue its winning ways at the state contest.

"Our goal is to finish in the top five," said Taylor.

KEENAN POWELL prepares to boot another long punt into North Farmington's territory during a varsity football game Saturday afternoon. Clarkston won the game, 14-0.

Boys cross country improves

As the season progressed, the boys cross country team continued to get better.

Unfortunately, time ran out on the Wolves and they will have to wait until next year and hope the winning spirit carries over.

Clarkston competed in the Class A Region 6 regional at Royal Oak Kimball Saturday and finished in the bottom half of the 20-team field.

Individually, the Wolves fared better as several runners ran well, said Coach Mike Taylor.

"The improvement was nice to see at the end of the year," he said.

Jim Hotary was the top runner for Clarkston. He ran the race in 17:38 and finished in 67th place.

Sean Cervantez ran the best race of his career, ending up with a time of 18:07. Others under 19 minutes included Mike Kovalesky (18:12) and Tom Holliday (18:49).

"Getting four guys under 19 minutes was good for us," said Taylor.

Other runners for Clarkston included Chris Bailey (19:14) and Rick Beardsley (19:22).

For Bailey, it was his best time ever, said Taylor.

In the team competition, Brother Rice won. Bloomfield Hills and Milford were the other teams to qualify for the state meet on Saturday in Lansing.

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Disguised as a steamroller, the Wolves pounded North Farmington into submission on Halloween Saturday.

Clarkston held the Raiders to minus-26 yards rushing on a bright sunny afternoon and walked away a winner in its final game.

The Wolves, who finish at 7-2, defeated North Farmington, 14-0. But the game wasn't as close as the score might indicate. The defense shut down the Raiders in every phase of the game.

"The defense was always on the go," said linebacker David Thompson, who had one sack.

All of the players on the defense drew praise from the coaching staff after the game. Mike Wells, Mark Oswald, Mark Hetherington and Chris Locher played exceptionally well, they said.

"We beat them on character," said Coach Kurt Richardson.

The first half of the game was a true test of character as both defensive units flexed their muscles.

Neither team was able to punch it into the end zone. But that didn't last long.

Rob Himburg snared a tipped pass in the end zone with a diving catch to put the Wolves in front for good. The conversion attempt failed and Clarkston led, 6-0, in the third quarter.

The most serious threat of the game for North Farmington came later in the third when they started on the Clarkston 25-yard line.

The Raiders pushed the ball down to the 10 but couldn't get another first down and turned the ball over.

After that threat, it was all Clarkston. Stacey Turner closed out the scoring when he rumbled 71 yards with a toss from Josh Newblatt with less than four minutes left in the game. Newblatt threw a successful conversion to Keenan Powell for a 14-0 edge.

Powell was a thorn in the Raiders' side all afternoon with his powerful runs up the middle. It always took a host of North Farmington tacklers to bring him down.

The shutout was especially sweet for the defensive players since it was their first of the season.

"They worked really hard for this and they deserve it," said Richardson.

Richardson credited coaches Kurt Norman and Steve Pearson with the excellent job the defense did this season, especially in the final game.

Since the playoffs were out of reach, the team had nothing left to play for except pride. That was enough.

"They had every reason to just go through the motions, but they didn't," said Richardson.

Clarkston wins rematch for redemption

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

For one it was disappointment, the other redemption as the 1987 ninth grade football season ended.

Sashabaw, only one win away from becoming the third winningest team in Cougar history, lost to an enthusiastic Clarkston team Oct. 28 at Clarkston High School.

MIKE HERBAN cuts upfield for big yardage during first-half action at the Oct. 28 battle between Sashabaw and Clarkston.

Clarkston, with only one win on the year heading into the contest, won a rematch with the Cougars, 30-14, to make the season worthwhile.

"With the season we have had, not many teams could have come back to win the big one," said an elated Coach Steve Himburg after the game.

After a scoreless first quarter, Clarkston, now 2-7, opened the scoring on a 16-yard run by Aaron Knapp. Jerrod Johnson ran in the conversion for an 8-0 lead.

A successful pass play from Mike Stoutenburg to Johnson on a fourth-and-seven situation and a long run by Johnson helped the Wolverines score.

That was all the scoring either team could muster in the first half.

"We came out flat," said Sashabaw head coach Tim Brennan. "We outmanned them but we lacked their emotion."

Sashabaw, now 4-4-1, came storming back in the third quarter and recovered an on-side kick to start things off. But the drive was soon over when the Cougars lost the ball on a fumble.

Clarkston upped its lead to 16-0 when Mike Herban scored from four yards out in the third quarter. Johnson once again ran in the conversion.

Herban had set up the touchdown by recovering another Sashabaw fumble on the Cougars' seven-yard line.

"The defense was the key," said Himburg. "They dominated (Sashabaw)."

The Cougars finally got on the board late in the third quarter on a 45-yard gallop by Eric Hund. George Crouch caught a pass for the successful two-point conversion.

In the fourth quarter, Johnson scored from seven yards out to put Clarkston up 22-8 with nearly nine minutes left in the game.

But Sashabaw wasn't about to roll over and die just yet.

Chris Figa returned the ensuing kickoff for a touchdown--breaking through a pack of tacklers in the middle of the field--to make the score 22-14 Clarkston.

Herban scored the final touchdown on a 22-yard run up the middle with 30 seconds left in the game.

Once the clock ran out, the celebration began for Clarkston. It appeared as though they had just won the Super Bowl.

JERROD JOHNSON celebrates with his Clarkston Junior High teammates after an emotional victory over rival Sashabaw.

While the loss was disappointing for Sashabaw, it didn't wipe out the good things that happened--including a 30-0 whitewash of Clarkston earlier this season.

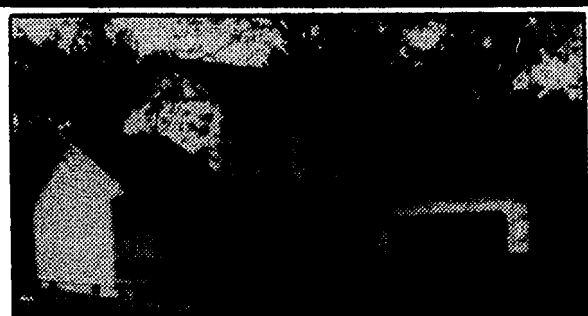

"There are some great athletes on both of these teams," said Brennan. "The JV team is going to have another great year."

Call for grapplers

Open registration begins for the Clarkston wrestling club Tuesday, Nov. 10, at Sashabaw Junior High.

A parents meeting is planned at 7 p.m. for all children age six and up who wish to participate on the team this season.

Registration costs $10. The first practice session will be Nov. 12.

For more information about the club, call 623-1773 or 394-0251.

Among the members of the University of Michigan team is CHS 1987 graduate Dan Jokisch.

The scrimmage between members of the Wolverines is sponsored by the Clarkston Athletic Booster Club.

"It's a community fund raiser for furthering high school sports, especially now that the millage has been defeated," said booster club member Karel Howse. "The athletic boosters feel that we have to pick up a bit of the slack."

The game is to begin at 7 p.m. in the gym. Tickets cost $2.

position by then if possible, said Vince Licata, assistant principal at Sashabaw.

Anyone interested in the position should contact Athletic Director Paul Tungate at 625-0906 or Licata at 674-4169 for more information.

Clarkston Chiefs are super bowl champs

Gloomy skies, a soggy field and strong opponents couldn't stop Clarkston from capturing a super bowl championship in little league football Sunday afternoon.

The Clarkston Chiefs, members of the Suburban Youth Football League, defeated the Pontiac Raiders, 24-6, in front of a supportive crowd at Clarkston High School.

The league is composed of squads from Clarkston, Lakeland, West Bloomfield, Pontiac, Lake Orion, Lapeer, Troy and Rochester. This was the second annual super bowl.

Freshman squads include those kids 8 to 10 years old. To better promote sportsmanship, all players on each team must play at least six downs per half.

Two touchdowns by quarterback Jeremy Fife paced the Chiefs' offensive attack as they built up a 24-0 lead by halftime.

Fife opened the scoring late in the first quarter on a five-yard run. Joshua Watson scored the two-point conversion for an 8-0 lead.

Clarkston bottled up Pontiac deep in its own end early in the second quarter and the result was a safety. A gang of Chiefs tackled a Raiders' runner in the end zone for two points.

Fife scored again with less than five minutes left in the half on a one-yard plunge into the muddy end zone. Dave Boucard scored the two-point conversion for an 18-0 edge.

Jeremy Bleim scored the Chiefs' final touchdown of the game on a 28-yard run. The pass attempt for a two-point conversion failed.

The Pontiac team finally got on the board in the fourth quarter on a freak pass play.

The ball bounced off the head of a Chiefs' defender right into the hands of a waiting receiver for a touchdown. But that was all the scoring they could muster.

CELEBRATING an exciting victory over the Pontiac Raiders, the members of the freshman Clarkston Chiefs football team prepare to rush on the field to congratulate their teammates Sunday afternoon at Clarkston High School.

Sound the bells, party in the streets, Clarkston has won the super bowl of the Youth Suburban League.

Too bad there was no ticker tape parade for the guys who made up the Clarkston Chiefs' freshman team. They deserved it after the way they dominated the Pontiac Raiders Sunday at Clarkston High School.

All they probably ended up with was a warm bath to wipe off all the mud they cheerfully carried home with them. Yuk!

A good dose of rain turned an already sagging football field into a quagmire of mud ready to suck in anyone who dared stay in one spot too long.

Hay was strewn across the field and down the sidelines to keep things semi-respectable, but you just couldn't help getting dirty. But who cares, the laundry had to be done anyway.

These 8- to 10-year-old players certainly didn't seem to mind sloshing around in the muck too much. Unless, of course, the play was nullified by a penalty.

"Ya mean I did this for nothing?" they groaned as the mud dripped from their noses.

Fans could tell who the coaches were by the amount of mud on their legs.

For example, head coach has mud up to the knees, defensive coordinator up to the ankles and so on. Things were very organized out there at the high school.

The Clarkston Chiefs were able to put together several good scoring drives in the first half and it was enough to hand them the championship of the Youth Suburban League at the freshman level.

Only an unkind bounce, off the head of a defender, allowed Pontiac to score at all in this game. They went down to defeat, 24-6.

After the game, the celebration began. It was one like I had never seen.

No cars were overturned, the grass wasn't torn up (they did that while playing the game) and the players and fans didn't become obnoxious toward their opponents.

What a pleasant change. If you had arrived after the game and watched the post-game handshakes it would have been hard to tell the winners from the losers.

According to officials in the league, that's just what they had hoped to accomplish with this football league.

Good sportmanship is what is being taught here, folks. Everything else is secondary.

During halftime ceremonies of the super bowl, the league awarded the Lapeer Steelers with a trophy for exhibiting the best sportmanship. The Clarkston Chiefs finished as runners-up.

Both teams won trophies. Everyone came up a winner.

That's not a bad idea at all.

Undercover cops capture 3 alleged armed bandits

In an undercover operation by Waterford Police, three alleged armed robbers were arrested last Friday following the robbery of Hop-In Foods in Springfield Township.

8-lot sub wins 1st OK

An eight-lot subdivision received preliminary plat approval Oct. 20 from the Independence Township Board.

The board's 6-0 approval of Oakhill Meadows, off Oakhill Road near M-15, was another step toward a consent judgment between the township and the property owner, Gerald Bandy.

Bandy's original request last spring for preliminary plat extension was denied, and he filed suit against the township, said Gerald Fisher, township attorney.

The consent judgment eliminates the township concerns of nonconforming lot sizes and the design of the cul-de-sac on the property, he said.

"The owners have rectified all our problems," said Supervisor Frank Ronk before the board voted to approve the preliminary plat.

Business brief

Realtors honored

Karen Reichle, Century 21 Hallmark West and Lee Hunt, S. Carpenter Realty, members of the North Oakland County Board of REALTORS were recognized by the members of the Michigan Association of Realtors for being chosen to Board's 1987 Realtor and Realtor-Associate-of-the-Year.

Realtor Reichle and Realtor-Associate Hunt received their awards from Libby Wright, president of the association, during the Annual Convention Oct. 8-10 in Grand Rapids, and were among 72 members selected by their boards throughout the state membership of more than 20,500.

The award recognizes Reichle and Hunt's contributions not only to the real estate profession, but also their local community.

About 11 p.m. Oct. 30 at Hop-In Foods on Dixie Highway, Springfield Township, a 29-year-old Pontiac man pulled a gun, pointed it at two cashiers and took $193 from the two cash registers, according to reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD), which assisted in the arrest.

According to the report, James Hagerman of Mann Road, Pontiac, entered the convenience store and bought a chocolate candy bar. He waited for a customer to leave, pulled the revolver, held it in his left hand and pointed it at the two female cashiers.

"Give me all of your money," he said, according to the police report. "I'm not kidding. Give me all your money, now!"

He took the money from both cash registers and ran outside, where a Suburban was waiting.

Waterford detectives followed the vehicle to northbound I-75, where the criminals pulled into the rest area north of Dixie Highway.

With little trouble, the detectives, assisted by OCSD deputies, arrested Hagerman and the two others in the Suburban, said Sgt. Carl Solden of the Waterford Police Special Operations Unit.

The money was found in Hagerman's pocket and the revolver was found on the floor behind the front seats, he said.

"The element of surprise does wonders for you," said Solden, adding the entire operation went smoothly.

"In the course of a guy's police work, very rarely do we witness an armed robbery," he said, calling armed robberies the "worst and toughest cases" because of the potential violence.

Hagerman, who is a suspect in at least a dozen robberies in the Waterford and Independence township areas, said Solden, was charged with two counts of armed robbery, a sentence of two years to life; carrying a pistol in his vehicle, a five-year sentence; and possession of a firearm and commission of a felony, a two-year sentence.

Bond was set at $40,000 and Hagerman remains in Oakland County Jail.

The others, Paul Phagan, 34, of Overton, Pontiac, and Ken Chancy, 30, of LeGrande, Pontiac, were charged with two counts of armed robbery and carrying a pistol in a vehicle.

Bond was set at $30,000 each, and they remain in Oakland County Jail.

Junior Miss show on stage Nov. 14

Twenty Clarkston High School seniors will vie for the Clarkston Junior Miss title and scholarships on Saturday, Nov. 14, in the CHS Kirchgessner Theater.

This year's program has a nautical theme--"Dames at Sea"--the Saturday's show will include group physical fitness and poise and appearance routines as well as individual talent presentations.

Judging for the title is also based on scholastic achievement and a private interview with the judges on Saturday, when the Clarkston Community Women's Club will provide a luncheon for the girls at Spring Lake Country Club.

Because the program stresses scholastic scholarships, chairperson Barbara Hamaker asks that anyone interested in donating money for the cause contact her at 625-4041.

Hamaker can also be called for tickets, which cost $5, or pageant-goers can purchase them from any Clarkston Junior Miss contestant.

The program is to begin at 7:30 p.m. and Hamaker expects it to continue for three to three and one-half hours.

New member

Steve Sitar has been appointed by the village council to an open position on the Clarkston Planning Commission.

Sitar, of Church Street in Clarkston, is a police officer in Pontiac and will be taking the place of longtime planning commission member Nancy Prucher who recently resigned.

He was chosen for the position due to his involvement in the Clarkston area.

"He has an interest in the community," said President Sharron Catallo at the Oct. 26 council meeting. "He has shown some interest in other projects as well."

Sitar will take over the position immediately, said Catallo.

CHS senior wins DAR certificate for achievements

BY KATHY GREENFIELD
Clarkston News Editor

As the voice on the public address system revealed Kristi Martin's DAR Award, she was studying for a history test.

Even her grandmother, Thelma McCall of Ohio, was thrilled when she won the DAR Award, says Kristi Martin.

Oct. 23 had been one of those nerves-on-edge mornings, for Kristi had already made her way through two classroom tests at Clarkston High School.

While she was most pleased with the honor, the CHS senior did not expect it and she laughed at her reaction.

"I was shaking," she said. "I shook for probably a couple hours."

The DAR (Daughters of the American Revolution) Award is, traditionally, the first award announced for a member of the graduating class. At the high school level, the award consists of a certificate. In December, Kristi will complete a two-part written questionnaire to be eligible for state and national honors.

At CHS, the DAR Award is sponsored by the national organization's Sashabaw Plains Chapter.

The winner is chosen by high school administrators, department chairpersons and class sponsors. The criteria for selection include leadership (personality, self-control, assumption of responsibility), dependability (truthfulness, loyalty and punctuality), service (cooperation, courtesy, consideration of others) and patriotism (unselfish interest in family, school, community and nation).

"That's Kristi in a nutshell," said Jan Gabier, CHS assistant principal. "She is an extremely active and versatile young lady."

Gabier also mentioned Kristi's modesty and said, "Anything you ask her to do, she's always willing to do it, wants to do it, does a wonderful job and always has a beaming smile on her face."

The teen's list of activities at CHS is impressive: She's president of the National Honor Society, co-chair of the Blue and Gold Club, a founding member of Students Against Smoking and a member of the Just Say No Club. She also works part time as a file clerk in Dr. James O'Neill's office.

What makes her achievements more impressive is that last year, Kristi was one of the proverbial "new kids in school," having moved to the district from Grand Blanc.

"I feel like it's really my home now," she said. "I had a hard time at first, but I feel like I belong here now."

Kristi's career goal is to become a Spanish teacher, beginning at the elementary school level.

"I think teachers have a chance to make a difference. It's the good teachers I've had that make me think that," she said, adding that "so far in Clarkston I don't think I've had any bad teachers. I'm pretty impressed."

Her positive outlook continues as she talks about her parents, Barb and Joe Martin.

"They're awesome," she said. "I'm happy with the way I turned out and I think I turned out that way because of them, so I'm grateful to them."

Produce growers worried

Will county market close in winter?

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

On market days, the Oakland County Farmers Market is the scene of friendly transactions between vendors and shoppers who browse the booths of fresh produce and handmade items with market baskets on their arms or children in tow.

But recently it has become the scene of protest as well, with irate farmers handing out petitions to shoppers because of talk that the market might close in winter months.

When contacted at his Oakland County office, Glenn Harrelson, chief of market operation, said there is no intent to close the market this year, but there has been talk of closing during winter months in future years.

"There are only a maximum of eight farmers who use it in the winter," he said. "The market is too small to operate in the black. Closing in the winter months has been discussed as a way to save money."

Harrelson cited potential savings in heating and operational costs. Probably at most, he said, the market would close in January, February and March, possibly April, although talk has included the months of November, December and May.

For this year, anyway, the market at 2350 Pontiac Lake Rd., Waterford Township, is open Thursdays and Saturdays through Christmas and on Saturday only through April. Hours are 6:30 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Stalls are rented by the year, Harrelson said, at a cost of $325.

Farmers and others who rent stalls are upset over the talk of closing and shoppers expressed disappointment as well.

"They (the farmers) had petitions all over the market lately," said Don Thomas, an Independence Township resident who, along with his wife June, is a frequent shopper at the market for such things as eggs and fresh produce. "Sure, we'd prefer to see it stay open in the winter, for the cold crops such as potatoes and onions you can get."

Another frequent shopper and occasional vendor of bean soups and herb mixes at the market is Gini Schultz of Clarkston.

"I buy lots of fresh fruits and vegetables and plants there," she said. "I'd really be disappointed if they closed it, especially if they closed before Christmas. There are Christmas wreaths and

Mystery farce on its way to Depot Theatre

The delightfully British mystery farce "The Murder Room" begins a three-weekend run at the Clarkston Village Player's Depot Theatre stage on Nov. 6.

Directed by Verne Vackaro, the tongue-in-cheek play by Jack Sharkey seeks to answer the burning questions: Who killed Edgar Hollister and, more importantly, is he really dead?

Curtain time is 8 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays, Nov. 6, 7, 13, 14, 20 and 21, at the theater at 1681 White Lake Rd.

Tickets, which are $5, may be purchased at Tierra Arts and Design on Main Street, Clarkston. For more information, call 363-0188 after 5 p.m.

Notes of a refrigerator investigator

Suzanne
Baumann

I had a little extra time so I am starting my article at home in the kitchen.

Across the room stands a rather large metallic box humming softly but just loud enough to keep me from concentrating.

Yes, readers, it's a refrigerator. Now, the Baumann refrigerator looks like any other at first glance: two doors, freezer on top, handles to the left, drip pan grating that never stays in place, a dozen or so magnets holding nothing important sticking wherever it's handy.

When you look inside, though, you find... it's still just about like everyone else's.

I'm not saying I spend my life poking my face in people's refrigerators comparing them to mine, but I have seen enough to know that refrigerators everywhere are pretty much the same.

For instance, they all contain food. Even the ones on display at appliance stores have plastic food "mannequins" wearing the refrigerators.

They all smell differently, though. I know families that must hire people to sit in their fridge for an hour or so each day and fart continuously.

Others have the kinds that smell heavily of disinfectant and baking soda. This is actually a diet trick. You open the door, smell the Windex, and suddenly you lose your appetite.

The refrigerator at my home doesn't have a smell, or if it does, I'm so used to it that it goes unnoticed.

Some features of the Baumann refrigerator never change. For instance, milk always goes on the top shelf no matter what. Some mornings when I want a glass of milk, I don't even have to look inside. I just open the door, reach in -- Wham! My hand automatically slips into the handle of the plastic gallon jug.

Over the summer I was babysitting for a family that told me I could eat anything I could find. For the first couple of weeks, I thought they never bought milk, until I realized it was sitting there all along on the bottom shelf.

Is there anybody really strict about what goes in which refrigerator drawer?

We have a compartment labeled meat which contains a couple apples, eggs, various cheeses and a jar of taco sauce, but no meat.

We lost our egg-holder thing, too. What's the use for it? It would be easier just to rip off the top of the carton when you first get it from the store and forget about it until you need more eggs.

Yeah, I know, people who have their own pet chickens find the things useful. Sell them with the birds, then!

Some things stay in the fridge forever. Tartar sauce, for instance. Nobody eats tartar sauce in my family. Nobody eats fish.

Well, my mother does occasionally but never with tartar sauce. We must have had guests for dinner several millenniums ago and bought the stuff because they liked it.

It's the same way with mustard. Every time we have hamburgers, which is around once a week, the mustard is set out on the table. Until the meal is over, it never moves from its spot.

Now is the time for me to close the door on the family fridge this week. The rubber lining on the door is rather loose, so I have to kick it in to make it stay.

My foot hits the door, hits the shelf, hits the pickle jar, hits the Coke bottle, hits the Thousand Island dressing, hits the other side of the shelf.

Thud-clink-crash-splash-klunk.

My mom glares at me but doesn't say anything because she knows I know better, and I turn to write the last line of my article.

Ninth-grader Suzanne Baumann is working with The Clarkston News through the Sashabaw Junior High School mentorship program.

Pet of the Week

THIS BUNNY'S a good bet for a housepet.

Heart thumper

Bunnies make good pets. Just ask Bluebell, a 4-month-old lop-eared female with unique coloring.

A bluepoint, with color points like a Siamese cat, she is gray-blue and white in color.

Bluebell is very people oriented and loves attention. She is litter box trained, so she'd make a hopping good housepet.

Bluebell can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The adoption fee of $15 includes her spaying at the Humane Society clinic when she is 6-months-old.

Booker, Grimes married in Florida

Allison Susanne Booker and Richard Henry Grimes exchanged marriage vows at the Community Congregational Church in Bonita Springs, Fla.

The Rev. Charles Lewis performed the Aug. 15 ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. William Mendizza and Gordon Lee Booker, both of Naples, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grimes of Bonita Springs are parents of the bridegroom.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Dr. Vivian Booker Ebert, twin sister of the bride.

Bridal attendants included the bride's sisters Geri Booker Underhill of East Orleans, Mass., and Cynthia Booker Gatz of Naples.

Also attending the bride were Marilyn Porter of Drayton Plains, Sylvia Adkins of Naples and junior bridesmaid Jodi Lee Grimes, daughter of the bridegroom, of Lincoln, R.I.

Best man was Marc St. Martin of Greenville, R.I. Ushers were Lee and Eric Booker, brothers of the bride; Joseph Grimes, brother of the bridegroom; Kenneth Poole; and Stephen Miller, nephew of the bridegroom, of LaCanada, Calif.

The bride is a graduate of Clarkston High School and the Naples School of Business. She is employed by Chelsea's Boutique in Bonita Springs.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Lincoln High School, Lincoln, R.I., and St. Petersburg Community College in Florida. Along with his family, he owns and operates Henricks Jewelry/Diamonds in Bonita Springs.

Following a reception at the LaPlaya Inn, the couple spent their honeymoon on a cruise to Mexico, Cancun and Ochos Rios, Jamaica.

They are residing in Bonita Springs.

Pony rider, 10, wins bevy of awards

LORI HILL and her 24-year-old pony Scout won several awards at a recent competition.

Lori Hill of Brandon Township recently won honors at the 1987 All Breed Youth Show.

The 10-year-old won second place in pinto western horsemanship, third place in pinto western showmanship and fourth in pinto western pleasure.

Lori belongs to the Seymour Lake 4-H club and has been riding horses competitively since she was six, said her mother Tanual Reich.

"I am very proud of her, she has accomplished a lot," said her mother.

Lori rides a 24-year-old pony named Scout in all of her competitions.

She has also won first place in western horsemanship, third place in western pleasure, sixth in western showmanship, second in reserve champion and grand championship in cloverleaf and speed and action.

On top of that, Lori won the David Gibbs Memorial Trophy for most points 12 and under at the Oakland County 4-H Fair in August.

Lori, who resides in the Sashabaw Meadows Trailer Park, has won grand championship awards in pony western pleasure and reserve grand champion in western horsemanship in a show circuit this year with her black and white pony.

In service

Airman Anthony J. Dettore has graduated from the KC-135 refueling operator crew training course at Castle Air Force Base, Calif., and has earned the silver wings of an aircrew member.

A 1984 graduate of Clarkston High School, Dettore is the son of Sherill Dettore-Allingham of Greene Haven, Independence Township, and Leo E. Dettore of Farmington Hills.

Vincent D. Evans, a cannon crewman in West Germany with the 1st Engineer Battalion, was promoted in the U.S. Army to the rank of private first class.

The son of Annette E. and Rick Evans of Hillsboro, Independence Township, Evans is a 1986 graduate of Clarkston High School.

Honors

Mike Prucher, a Clarkston area resident who attends Virgil Grissom High School in Huntsville, Ala., was one of the members awarded a first-place trophy in the percussion division of band competition held in Memphis, Tenn.

The 300-member band also won first-place awards regionally and statewide.

At college

Mary Stuck has graduated from the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse with a bachelor's degree in recreation and park administration.

Her home address is on Northcrest Way, Independence Township.

Newlyweds: Allison and Richard Grimes.

Just to say 'thanks'

Katie MacKay threw a party at 6:30 in the morning and everybody came.

MacKay, co-sponsor of the Clarkston High School "Just Say No" Club, organized the breakfast party at the 20 Depot Street restaurant in Clarkston to thank the 34 members of the club for their involvement.

Virtually every member of the club showed up for the breakfast, and all received "Lean, Mean Drug-Free Machine" T-shirts.

The breakfast was paid for by the Pine Knob Elementary School "Just Say No" Club and by Bill Graham of Oakland Automotive Supply. The T-shirts were purchased by CHS principal Dr. Robert Burek out of school activity funds.

The club members have been making presentations to fourth- through ninth-graders, with the goal of educating these younger pupils about the dangers of drugs, in addition to setting a shining example for their own peers at the high school level.

New twist to annual church bazaar

BY KATHY GREENFIELD
Clarkston News Editor

Rather than sell crafts made by church members, this year St. Daniel's Rosary Guild has selected 40 crafts artists from across the state to stock their annual holiday bazaar.

"I am very pleased. We were very fortunate in our contacts," said Jerry Hunter, co-chair for the event.

Renamed Crafters Corner in honor of the change, the bazaar is planned Friday and Saturday, Nov. 6 and 7, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Church Social Hall at the corner of Holcomb and Miller roads in Clarkston.

A light lunch will be available as well as baked goods made by the ladies of the church. The traditional raffle of a quilt, afghans and hand-painted china will continue.

"We'll have everything from soup to nuts, really," said Hunter, listing wood carvings, stained glass clocks and country items galore.

Two of the crafts artists are from nearby Ortonville.

Marlene Dalton specializes in basketry. She's especially proud of her clusters of wicker bells trimmed in a Christmas colors or those of a country tone and her garlic and onion baskets.

A basket maker for three years, Dalton recalls with amusement her first try at basketry.

Her sister was guest of honor at a baby shower and "I wanted a nice gift for the guests to take home, so I sat down and made 65 little nut baskets," she said.

After working for a week on the project, until 4 many mornings, she took a year's break.

"Then I wound up on chemotherapy and needing something uplifting to do," she said. Basket weaving "kept me going. It got me better."

Leslie Williams began tole painting about four years ago.

"I signed up for a class and I don't think I've missed a week of classes since then," she said. "Sometimes I take two or three a week."

About two-and-one-half years ago, she also began sharing her skills by teaching tole painting classes.

Her favorite items are those "that do something, like the door harp," which plays soft notes when doors are opened and closed.

She also paints country motifs on peg shelves, music boxes and working napkin presses. Williams also paints her designs on sweat shirts and aprons.

Her bazaar business has become so successful that her husband, John, has begun helping her cut the wooden shapes she paints.

"We're very industrious in the basement," she said. "He's painting now, too. He does a lot of my basing in."

Marlene Dalton [left] and Leslie Williams frequently work together at crafts shows, sometimes sharing a booth. At St. Dan's, however, they'll present their wares separately.

Community Cable Guide

Programs on cable-TV Channel 65 are broadcast weeknights from the Independence-Clarkston studio of United Cable.

Brenda on Beauty

Fingernail finery

Brenda
Ward

From days long past to times present, a well-groomed hand of nails has always been a sign of good taste.

A man with healthy maintained cuticles and smooth healthy nails will feel confident about the attractiveness of his hands from the office to home to racquetball.

And then there are we women. There are those of us who desire long scarlet talons to those of us who like pale pink short and square nails to everything in between.

In 1986 the largest individual salon growth area according to Modern Salon magazine was in nail care services and nail care related retail products. It seems we are taking notice of our hands with a fastidiousness second only to our hair.

For men, the manicuring choices are much easier. The main decision a man has to make is choosing a buff or a polish. Buffing is a process where the nails are smoothed with a fine pumice or small-grained file.

The nail is then buffed to a high luster with a chamois cloth. This process is similar to polishing stones.

Many men opt for polish as it gives the nail protection from splitting, chipping and peeling. The clear polishes on the market for men have a very low shine or no shine at all. (So no, guys!—it won't look like your using your sister's stuff!) The finished result is very natural looking.

At this time of year, men also start to notice excessive dryness around the fingertips and the cuticle, which sometimes can result in cracked, split, bleeding irritations.

Help protect your hands and get them into condition for winter by using a hand cream or oil at least once a day before you retire. And as the weather gets colder and colder, don't forget your gloves!

In the world of nail care for women, as the saying goes, "You can have it all." If you don't have long, even, perfect gorgeous nails of your own, you can buy some.

You can buy any type of nails from the pre-polished drug store stick-on-yourself variety to the high-priced solar glass or acrylic types that will stay on indefinitely with the advised maintenance.

Be careful, educated and selective if you opt for any type of permanent artificial nail service.

Be sure to ask your manicurist plenty of questions, such as how long you can expect your results to last, how often you will have to come back to maintain your nails and, most importantly, how much damage will your natural nails suffer.

Once you have an artificial nail, follow your professional's advice and visit her as she suggests to keep your nails looking great and your fingertips healthy and free of bacterial infection.

I like to advise paying more attention to your hands and trying to cultivate your own two hands of beautiful nails.

Remember, a well-groomed and attractive hand does not necessarily mean four-inch fingernails. Nails can be beautiful at any length as long as the length and shape are uniform and the cuticles are groomed.

Also remember, if you are going to wear nail polish, wear it well (no chips, neat and compatible color) or don't wear anything at all.

If you have nice nails that you are happy with and are only distressed by an occasional break or tear, consult your manicurist or local beauty supply. There are lots of quick, easy and relatively inexpensive ways to repair nails.

Here are a few final pointers:

*Gently push cuticles back with a towel every time you wash your hands. It'll only take extra seconds as you dry them.

*A coat of clear polish every two days will make a manicure last at least a week without chipping (as well as keeping nails stronger).

*Keep nails shaped as broad as possible (oval or squared). The less you file from the sides, the stronger they'll be.

*Clear polish is always better than none. Nails will be stronger and look shinier. Peels and chips don't show.

*A professional manicure will always last longer than when you do them yourself.

I hope I've given you a hand in taking better of your hands. Have a great week!

Bats: are they friends or foes?

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Oxford Leader Staff Writer

Bats are a traditional symbol of Halloween in this country, and, as such, have a nasty reputation.

But do they deserve it? And if they decide to hibernate in your attic, what should you do?

First of all, don't panic.

Secondly, don't call your local police, animal control people or the Department of Natural Resources.

None of them are very likely to help you.

Either call an exterminator, and get out your checkbook, or prepare to take care of your new neighbors yourself.

According to the Encyclopedia Britannica, bats are the only truly flying mammals in the world. They inhabit every region of the earth, except the Arctic and Antarctica.

They range in size from 1/20th of an ounce to 2.2 pounds, with wingspans from 6 inches to 5 feet. They either migrate south for the winter, or hibernate, preferring to return to the same places each year.

One recognizable bat can be seen as the trademark on a bottle of Bacardi Rum. The rum people are very fond of their symbol, and have published a booklet extolling its virtues, among which are:

✓ Bats are the only major predator of night-flying insects, eating up to 3,000 mosquitos per bat per night.

✓ Like bees, they are very important in the pollination of plants.

✓ They are vital to the survival of the earth's rain forests, which themselves are crucial to maintaining global climate.

Why, then, do they invoke such fear and loathing?

Bats are very social animals, so they live and travel in groups. Since they are nocturnal, they roost during the day and fly at night when, due to their dark color, they are not easily seen by people.

They roost upside down. And of course, everyone has heard of vampire bats. But like any other wild animal, they would rather leave people alone.

"I guess I wouldn't say they are dangerous or vicious," said Gary Bower, of Adept Pest Control, Oxford. "But their bites are potentially dangerous, and if you get into their roosting area, they might come after you."

Bower said bats can enter a home through an opening as small as 1/4 inch, often in an eave or where a roof meets a chimney.

"I've seen them roost in a fireplace in summer," he said.

His preferred method of removal is to locate the point of entry, and there apply a tracking powder, which is poisonous. The bats, in the process of cleaning themselves, ingest the powder and eventually die.

He would not recommend approaching the area if the bats are still alive. "They don't stay out all night," Bower said. "They could come back in at any time. I'd rather kill them first."

Once they are out of the house, a thorough cleanup of the site must be done. Bower recommends ammonia or bleach as a final solution, after droppings have been removed.

The tracking powder is not available to the general public, so do-it-yourselfers will have to find a different method.

Since conservationists are concerned about the extinction of some bat species, more humane methods can be used.

Detective Ron Crichton of the Oxford Police Department recommends the following: "Prop open a door and broom the bats out. Or throw a sheet over them."

A bat's in my house!

A tiny black bat's stuck in the corner of an upstairs bedroom or, worse yet, soaring around the living room.

Who ya gonna call? The Independence Township Fire Department.

"Over the years, we've removed several from houses, and it goes in spurts," said Fire Chief Gar Wilson. "You might not remove any one year and then the next year you get six calls."

The fire department answers bat-in-my-house calls as a public service and they'll give bat chasing a try, although if a bat proves uncatchable or an emergency call comes through during a bat chase, the quest will be abandoned.

Wilson recommends using a fish net for bat catching because the long handle offers protection from a riled bat that might bite and, if desired, the bat can be taken outdoors and released by shaking the net.

Alternatives are tennis racquets or kitchen brooms. Bats can also be downed with pieces of cloth as long as care is used when picking them up.

Friend to Friend

Overwhelmed senior

Dear Friend to Friend,

I have these two friends, Julie and Susan (not their real names), who are really headstrong. They have conflicting views and it seems like I always end up in the middle.

For example, Julie has a lot of problems right now and her stepmother is one of them.

Julie always asks for advice and Susan always has answers, but she doesn't give advice in a nice way. Instead, she pushes her advice on Julie.

Julie asks for this advice but resents Susan for almost forcing her to follow the advice.

Each of them comes to me to ask how to handle the other. I think both of them are right and both are wrong. They're both so headstrong in their own way. I feel helplessly in the middle.

In the Middle

Dear In the Middle,

Doesn't it make you mad when you allow yourself to be put in the middle? It's unfortunately a situation we all find ourselves in sometimes.

You probably keep yourself in the middle because you don't want to hurt your friends' feelings. By not dealing with the problem with Julie and Susan, you will stay in the middle.

Our advice to you is to remain neutral. You can remain neutral by informing both your friends that you will no longer try to give advice to either of them.

You can add that you will try to continue to be their friend but will refuse to listen to their problems with each other.

Dear Friend to Friend,

I'm a senior and beginning to feel overwhelmed about the decisions I have to make in the next year.

For example, I have to decide what I'm going to do after high school. Am I going to college, begin working or go into the service?

In filling out my announcements today, I felt like I didn't have a secure future. I know I need to face these decisions and my future, but how can I make all these important decisions?

Overwhelmed

Dear Overwhelmed,

You've already acknowledged in your letter that you know you will have to face these decisions sooner or later.

The best way we can help you with this is to tell you to make a chart or calendar of some sort that will help you keep a record of the decisions, etc., that lie ahead.

When you have accomplished something, check it off this list. This will help to relieve a lot of the stress associated with this flood of responsibilities that have been pushed upon you in such a short period of time.

Another way would be to sit down with your counselor. He/she can help you plan your calendar and help you prepare for test and application deadlines or any vocational training.

Counselors can also help you with your decision to go or not go to college, or discuss other alternatives with you.

Almost every senior goes through this and we want you to realize that this is natural and normal and part of growing up.

This pressure and financial drain will pass ... but they will pass more quickly if you talk to someone about your anxieties.

Whatever you do, please don't give up. If you work for what you want, things will fall into place for you.

Remember that the decision you made in high school doesn't have to last forever, and we hope you find what you're looking for.

Letters to "Friend to Friend" are answered by a panel of Clarkston High School students working under the sponsorship of Aware, an organization devoted to combating chemical use and dependency among Clarkston's young people.

Century building to house bazaar

The co-chairs of Ye Olde Country Bazaar planned Saturday, Nov. 7, did their share of the work.

Lorraine Theuer made a quilt, which will be raffled, and Joanne Prudhomme made packages of dried soup mix--after visiting three stores to gather nine varieties of dried beans.

The annual bazaar is planned from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church's Century Building across from the church at 5331 Maybee, Independence Township.

In addition to tables rented to 14 craftspeople, the church tables will feature Christmas trims and a bakery with homemade pies, cookies and jams.

Lunch will be served by the men of the church. The menu includes homemade soups and sandwiches.

VOLUNTEERS FOR THE CHURCH fundraiser include (from left) Louise Smith, Joanne Prudhomme, Mary Bass and Jenny Schram holding her daughter Katie.

Free screening for diabetes

A free diabetes screening clinic will be sponsored by the Pontiac General Practice Center at the Independence Township Senior Citizen Center on Thursday, Nov. 12.

The screening is scheduled from 10 a.m. until noon and is available to anyone who meets the following criteria:

- *A personal history of diabetes
- *A family history of diabetes
- *Having a baby over nine pounds (women only)
- *Being overweight

The screening involves testing a small drop of blood taken from a finger for higher than usual amounts of glucose (sugar).

If individuals are interested in having the diabetes blood test they need to follow one of the following directions:

1. No food or drink except water after midnight the night before.
2. Nothing but water after a substantial breakfast eaten two hours before the scheduled test.

The senior citizen center, located at 5980 Clarkston Rd., is in Clintonwood Park. Interested persons should call the center at 625-8238 to make an appointment.

Don't catch it!

It is a suffix denoting the diseasing or deterioration of a certain object. Senioritis, the diseasing or deterioration of seniors.

What? Wait a second! This doesn't sound right. What do you mean the "diseasing or deterioration of seniors"?

Well, maybe the terminology is a bit harsh, but nevertheless it's for the most part accurate. Senioritis—you know, that feeling of "Why do homework?" that seniors begin to get now and really takes off around January or February.

This feeling begins to grow as the months progress. In no time at all, high school has become one big blow-off. A seven-hour study hall, if you will.

Senioritis is not unique to seniors alone, however. Juniors and sophomores feel the same way. For them, though, lacking a motive as good as the seniors, it is called laziness.

So what is this motive? How can it turn an otherwise "A" student into a person whose biggest concern in life is whether or not nachos will be served as the cafeteria lunch?

Rather easily, I'm afraid. Senioritis stems from the fact that most seniors already have their immediate future planned. The work that was done in high school paid off.

Maybe it's in the form of a college acceptance or maybe it's an immediate job waiting for you after graduation.

It doesn't matter, you pretty much know what the future holds. And one thing's for sure—it doesn't hold high school.

Why be in high school at all? Does it really matter anymore?

Yes, it does, both directly and indirectly. Directly is quite simple: If your grades suddenly take a nosedive, that certain future might not be so certain anymore.

It seems that colleges and employers don't appreciate your letting up on your school work. Colleges will be requesting and taking a good look at your final transcript.

Indirectly is a bit different. It deals with attitude, or lack of it. So you blow-off half of your senior year. Big deal! It was fun.

But all of a sudden you find yourself at some university or in that job you wanted so badly. You're not only expected to work, but work hard. And it seems you are a little out of practice. Now, was senioritis still fun?

It's still early in our senior year, so beware—senioritis will be creeping into your life. If you want to be able to use those graduation announcements we just ordered and want all your plans for after high school to work out, BE SMART.

Your senior year is not the end of anything. As a matter of fact, it's just the beginning. Treat it that way and you'll be all right.

David Kwasnick is a senior at Clarkston High School.

Cougar Tracks

I Don't Remember...

By Julie Fyda

Buzz! The horn blows its final warning. Lockers slam. School has begun.

First it's social science, then algebra; afterwards, English. With a very hungry stomach, and a brain about to explode, lunch.

It's 11:20 and I've already gone through a day of integers, government and verbs. But within the next two hours, I'll forget all that was said.

Let's face it. We can see it two ways.

It's too early to be thinking or we need more than 50 minutes to digest math.

Well, which is it?

When the final locker is empty for the summer vacation and the ninth grade is packed to the high school, we'll see who remembers what year the Magna Charta was signed.

Authors of works featured in "Cougar Tracks" are Sashabaw Junior High School ninth-graders enrolled in Dick Swartout's media class.

Village of Clarkston Synopsis

Meeting called to order by President Catallo at 7:30 p.m., followed by the pledge of allegiance to the Flag.

Roll: Present: Roeser, Haven, Basinger, Schultz, Millard, Catallo.

Absent: None.

Moved by Haven, "That the minutes of the October 12 meeting be approved as submitted." Motion carried.

The agenda was approved after adding the Gazebo to the New Business and Cable casting member to old business.

Trustee Haven reported on insurance coverage. A premium statement should be received shortly with regard to the wrongful acts coverage in the amount of $4,790 and the Treasurer's bond has to be increased as previously approved.

A discussion was held on the proposed lots of parking on Main Street due to the traffic signal at Waldon and Main. Dr. Gary Ushman objected to loss of spaces in front of his offices. President Catallo was asked to invite Mr. Dombrowski of the Department of Transportation to the next Village Council meeting on November 9.

Mr. Frank Myers was present to discuss the proposed addition to the Methodist Church parking lot.

Moved by Symons, "That the Methodist Church site plan be submitted to the Planning Commission for review at their November 2 meeting." Seconded by Basinger. Motion carried.

The Tri-Party program and Independence Parking lot discussion was tabled until the next meeting.

Trustee Millard presented a letter from County Commissioner Richard Kuhn and reported that he would be discussing police coverage for the village with the Oakland County Sheriff's department.

Moved by Millard, "That the Village Council approve entering into a contract with Sunheiser, Inc. for the construction of a gazebo in the Village park for a price of $24,600 complete, excluding permits and inspection costs." Seconded by Basinger. Roll: Basinger, yea; Millard, yea; Roeser, yea; Catallo, yea; Schultz, yea; Haven, yea; Symons, yea. Yeas: 6; Nays: 0. Motion carried.

Moved by Millard, "That Steve Star be appointed to the Planning Commission to fill the vacancy created by Nancy Prucher's resignation." Seconded by Schultz. Motion carried.

Moved by Haven, "That Trustee William Basinger be appointed to serve on the Cable Casting Board." Seconded by Symons. Motion carried.

Moved by Basinger, "That the meeting be adjourned." Seconded by Haven. Motion carried. Meeting adjourned at 9:35 p.m.

Tiny tasty tidbits

As the holiday season draws near, it brings to mind social gatherings of families and friends—and lots of good eating.

I think it is only appropriate that I begin a round of holiday recipes with this appetizer recipe garnered from a good friend in the South.

MINIATURE CHEESE BALLS

- 6 ounces cream cheese
- 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 2 tablespoons salad dressing
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- 2 tablespoons chopped ripe olives

Blend the above ingredients and form into small balls. Roll these in minced dried beef and put a pretzel stick in each one.

Holiday Country Market

Friday, Nov. 6th 10:00 a.m.-8:00 p.m.
Saturday, Nov. 7th 10:00 a.m.-3:00 p.m.

HEATHER WHITE eagerly waits for the next game during the Friday morning party.

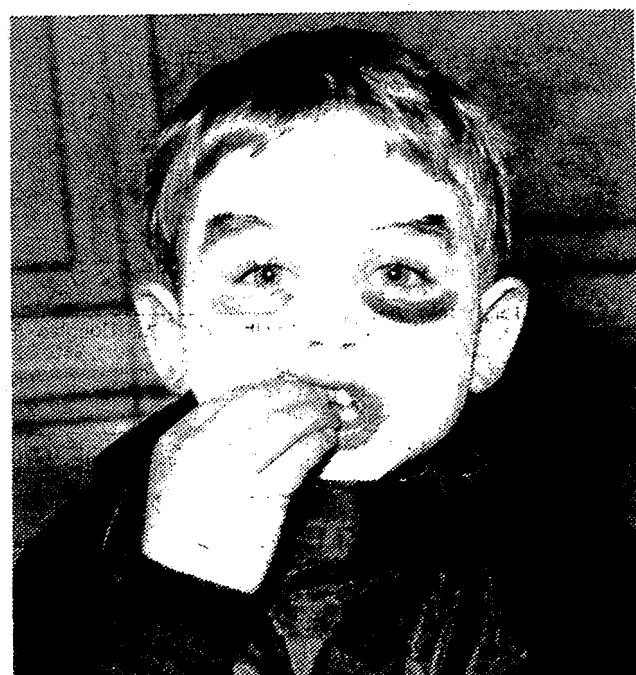

STORYTIME doesn't seem to interest Jenae Fonseca [left] too much but it certainly has David Eden's full attention during the Halloween festivities at Clarkston Christian School.

JOHNATHAN LUTZ sits quietly at his desk while listening to a scary story told by his teacher.

Pair of parties

JUSTIN GATES pops a pig-in-a-blanket snack into his decorated mouth. The home ec students of Sally Granlund planned the party at the end of an entertainment unit of study.

JASON GRONLUND WAITS FOR another pupil to take his place during a Halloween party variation of "Duck, Duck, Goose." Kindergartners enrolled in the Latchkey program that meets at Clarkston Junior High School were guests of honor at the party tossed by ninth-grade home economics students.

LISA SAUNDERS holds onto a ghostly party favor made with a lollipop and tissue.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY Spirit. Holy spirit. You make me see everything and show me the way to reach my ideals. You give me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrongs that are done to me and you are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with you, and my loved ones, in your perpetual glory. Amen. Persons must pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking for your wish. After the 3rd day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then, promise to publish this dialogue as soon as your favor has been granted. Impossible wish granted 10-12-87. RLB. Market may close for winter trees and lots of Christmas gifts.

"Besides," she said, "the growers have produce available year round, and they need an outlet all year round. They depend on it."

"I guess I look at it that, if they close it for a few months, they might phase it out completely, and that would be too bad. It's a service and a convenience to taxpayers."

Her feelings are echoed by Groveland Township resident Helen Austin, who sells asparagus, rhubarb and raspberries there in the spring and summer and shares her stall with family members who sell cut flowers and dried flowers.
"You can't turn off the hens laying eggs," she said. "And folks have the potatoes and fruit and honey all year. Wouldn't it be a shame to close the market?"

"Couldn't they just partition it off if it costs too much to heat the whole thing?" she said. "We pay for the stalls. Couldn't they keep it open just that one day a week?"

Austin said she wouldn't like to see the market close for even three winter months, though she admits the traffic isn't what it is in late summer and fall.

"I'd hate to see it close. It would be like the beginning of the end," she said. "The market is kind of special, kind of a friend-to-friend type of place where the middle man is eliminated. You're dealing with the real producer."

Obituaries

Sadie I. Dexter

Sadie I. Dexter, 74, of Irons, Mich., and formerly of Davisburg died Oct. 29. She was retired from the Pontiac Motor Division of General Motors Corp.

Surviving are her husband, Alva; children, Geraldine Trim of Waterford, Lorakay Ruelle of Clarkston and Brenda Riggs of Lansing; 11 grandchildren; 11 great-grandchildren; and sister, Retha Ridgeway of Clarkston.

A family service was conducted. Arrangements were made by the Lewis E. Wint & Son Funeral Home, Independence Township.

Ernest C. Garnett

Ernest C. Garnett, 77, of Pontiac died Oct. 29. He was retired from General Motors Truck and Coach.

Surviving are his wife, Wilma; and brothers and sisters, Robert of Royal Oak, Frank of California; Jack of Florida, Joyce Farmer of Tennessee, Georgia Brooks of Alabama and Ora Whitten, Irene Garnett and Dolly Arnold, all of Pontiac.

The funeral was Nov. 2 at the Lewis E. Wint & Son Funeral Home, Independence Township. Burial was in Christian Memorial Cemetery, Rochester Hills.

Fred W. Mast Jr.

Fred W. Mast Jr., 65, of Clarkston died Nov. 2. He was a retired supervisor of standards and procedures for Pontiac Motor Division of General Motors Corp.

Mr. Mast was a member of the Clarkson

United Methodist Church. He served in the United States Army during World War II.

Surviving are his wife, Ruth; and son, Christopher and his wife Lori Mast of Royal Oak.

The funeral was scheduled Wednesday, Nov. 4, at 11 a.m. at the Goyette Funeral Home, Clarkston, with the Rev. Douglas Trebilcock to officiate. Burial was to follow in Lakeview Cemetery, Independence Township.

Memorial tributes may be made to the Independence Township Fire Department or the Clarkston United Methodist Church.

Robert (James) Stiles

Robert (James) Stiles, 54, of Springfield Township died Oct. 31. He was joint owner and operator with his wife, Lois, of the former The Clarkson Shoe Service in the village and The Bootery of Holly.

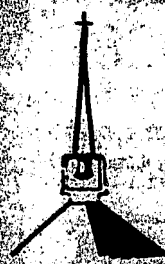

In addition to his wife, surviving are his brothers and sisters, Raymond Stiles of Livonia, Jack Stiles of Manchester, Gerry Stiles of Holly, Richard Stiles of Milford, Joann Cornel of Roscommon and Patricia Kramer of Davisburg. He was preceded in death by his son, Adam.

The memorial service will be conducted at the Episcopal Church of the Resurrection in Independence Township with the Rev. Alexander Stewart officiating at a later date. Burial was in Lakeview Cemetery, Independence Township. Arrangements were made by the Goyette Funeral Home, Clarkston.

Memorial tributes may be made to the Episcopal Church of the Resurrection, Leader Dogs for the Blind or the American Diabetes Association.

Danny Moore, Curtis Haremza, Becky Abdoo, Laurie Clements, Romy Tappero, Scott

Zumwalt, Rebecca Bridges and Alan Watson. [Photos by Kathy Greenfield]

THE GIANT'S WIFE TELLS him to smell the flowers instead of hunting for Jack. So Scott Zumwalt, as the giant, does as he's told.

JACK CLIMBS THE BEANSTALK, a ladder in disguise, while carrying bags of gold. The title role is played by Curtis Haremza.

Laughter rings out at CHS

The laughter of Barb Gibson, drama teacher and director of "Clowns' Play," rings out through the Clarkston High School Kirchgessner Theater.

A rehearsal for the annual children's play by the CHS Drama Club is under way--and it's funny.

"The thing I'm so tickled about is the kids in the show," said Gibson. "It's really a challenging experience to come down to the kids' level and they're having a wonderful time with it."

The play is also a bargain, at $1 a ticket, and it will appear twice on the CHS theater stage on Saturday, Nov. 7, at times suitable for a young audience--10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

The story of a group of clowns who put on a performance of "Jack and the Beanstalk" will also be presented by the drama club crew at elementary schools in Clarkston and Waterford.

"I feel it's an excellent way for children to be exposed to the theater," said Gibson.

Student director of the play is Beth McDermott and stage managers are Ron Risk, Mark Young and Holly Maiher.

Money from the children's play will help pay for production costs of the annual CHS musical. This year, "My Fair Lady" will be presented on March 17, 18, 19, 20, 24, 25 and 26.

WHEN IT IS DISCOVERED that the giant needs help remembering the his famous lines, help is provided by Alan Watson and Laurie Clements--and the audience.
