Voters will face bond issue on June 13

BY KATHY GREENFIELD Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston school district voters will be asked to approve a bond issue on the June 13 ballot to pay for repairs to the district's buildings.

At a special meeting Monday night, the board of education listened to a detailed presentation of repairs deemed necessary by the architectural firm of Charles W. Sherman Associates Inc. of Pontiac.

After about two-and-one-half hours of presentation and discussion, the board decided to put the question on the ballot and direct the firm to prepare the necessary documents required by the state for a bond issue.

If approved by voters, the district would borrow about $5.2 million and repay the loan with money raised by the millage. Although no amount was set, seeking approval for 1 mill was discussed. One mill is $1 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

The money would pay for items deemed "Priorities 1 and 2" by the architectural firm. The priorities include roofing on virtually every school building and such items as unit ventilators to introduce fresh air into classrooms without ventilators, remodeling toilet rooms, eliminating code violations and some fire safety items at Clarkston Junior High School

"Most of it has to be done just to continue using the buildings," said board President Janet Thomas.

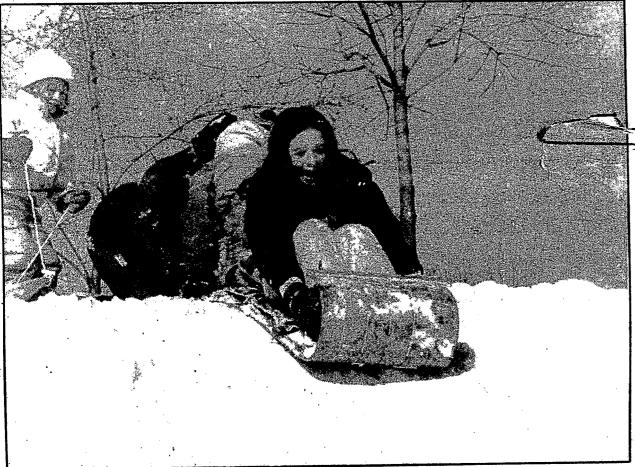

Board member Mary Jane Chaustowich stated her agreement by saying. "It is our duty to (put this on the ballot), because these things have to be taken care of."

The entire board concurred, but some members stated a desire to include bond issues for a new high school and for "Priorities 3 and 4," which were also briefly presented by Sherman at the special meeting.

Those priorities were linked to approval of the high school, because they involved making improvements that would use classroom space and require another school building.

If a new high school is approved, the current high school would become a middle school for grades six through eight and Sashabaw Junior High School would be converted to a middle school for the same grades.

According to estimates by Sherman, Priorities 3 and 4 would require a bond issue of $11 million and the (See BOND, Page 12)

Hearing date set for 'Plan A'

Residents who wish to speak at the public hearing on "Plan A" by the Clarkston board of education will be asked to sign up as they enter the board room on Monday, Feb. 22.

Board members spent several minutes discussing the procedure during a special meeting Monday night. The consensus was that the sign-in process would create a more orderly meeting, because each person would be called on to give his or her comments about Plan A.

The hearing is to begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Administration Office 6389 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township.

Plan A is the list of cutbacks, totaling $1:75 million, recommended for the 1988-89 school year by the administration in order to maintain a balanced budget.

The proposed reductions, which were presented to the board in January, include elimination of 42.5 staff the control of the thirty of the control of the control of the control of the control of the positions and cutting the previous seven-hour school day to five hours at the high school and six hours at the junior highs.

All extracurricular activities including after-school sports, drama and music would be eliminated on the high school and junior high school levels.

Elementary school pupils would lose music, physical education, foreign language and reading support. Class sizes would also go up.

"Plan B," which includes a proposal to return to the voters for the third time to seek approval of a tax hike (requests of 4.25 mills; or $4.25 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation, were rejected by voters in June and October 1987); is to be presented to the board on Feb. 20

A public hearing on Plan B is planned March 21.

First sign of spring

In the midst of Friday's snowstorm, a robin appeared in the chokecherry tree outside Carol Barnhart's office in her home on Clarkston Road.

"I thought I had heard him earlier, but I thought, 'No ...'," says Carol. "Does he know something I don't? Is spring far away? He miscalculated, I'm sure."

At the time of the 8:45 a.m. sighting, Carol was on the telephone with a client in Plymouth. She let out a scream of delight.

"He was just sitting there, as big as you please. I couldn't believe it," she says. "I strained my eyes and squinted, and sure enough he was there."

Carol now has her camera loaded, wide-angle lens in place, ready to capture that lonely robin on film and provide concrete evidence that spring is, indeed, on its way.

indeed, on its way.

"He did lift my spirits a little bit, especially when I keep hearing there will be lots more snow," she says.

RAID raises questions about work camp costs

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

Members of Residents Against Ineffective Detention (RAID) are concerned with how the Michigan Department of Social Services (DSS) is spending the taxpayers' money, said Nancy Strole; spokesperson for RAID.

RAID members have actively objected to the DSS proposed work and learn camps in northern Oakland County. Some sites considered for the first work and learn camp for juvenile delinquents were in the Springfield Township-Rose Township area of the county.

Through the Freedom of Information Act, RAID members obtained DSS documents and correspondence on the camps, and are not too happy with the latest information received Feb. 10, Strole said.

When International Field Studies (IFS) was named the sole-source contractor for the first camp, Robert Lipsitz, president of IPS and his wife Joan were given an advance of $534,692.41, to be drawn on the last three months of the contract, according to Strole. In addition, between May 6 and Sept. 30, 1987, IFS received an additional $12777569 for a total of $662,468:10, she RAID members were not the only ones who objected to the work and learn camp transact. The contract between DSS and IFS was investigated by the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office because the county board of social services was not given adequate time for review before the contract was signed.

When IFS could not procure a suitable site for the camp, the contract was canceled as of Dec. 29, and DSS stated they would seek a new contract for a smaller, 50bed camp. The first proposal was for a 100-bed facility, for youthful offenders primarily from Wayne County.

Following the contract cancellation, IFS returned $154,731.00 of the money to the state, according to Strole. She said IFS collected $127,775.60 covering the period of May 6, 1987, when the contract was retroactively signed by DSS and IFS, through Sept. 30, and another $115,897.08 covering the period of Oct. 1 to Dec. 29, when the contract was canceled.

Reading from the information she procured from DSS, Strole listed the following charges by IFS for outstanding liabilities:

anding machines: An office lease for IFS in Farmington Hills through Sept. 14, 1990, for $65,769.

Phone expenses through August 1989 of $2,500. Buying out of Lipsitz employment contracts: $87,500 for Robert and $70,000 for Joan, through Sept.

Employment contract benefits charges of $26,775. through September 1989.

A car lease for a 1988 Oldsmobile Delta 88 from Oct. 15, 1987, to Oct. 14, 1989, totaling $8,867.88.

Insurance charges for the IFS office for $1,085, and insurance on the leased car for $1,588, through Sept. 14,

"They signed the car lease Oct. 13," Strole said. "But the DSS letter to IFS notifying them of the contract cancellation was dated Oct. 1.

"This is a gravy train for IFS, and DSS let it she said.

She said the documents show that IFS is also charging the state with additional responsibility for its legal fees pertaining to the lawsuit by the prosecutor's office on the contract.

From his office, Lipsitz said, "The office space and things like that were entered into on behalf of the work and learn camp, and the state knew at the time they would be liable; their contract said they would."

Lipsitz said the state could probably terminate the lease on the building, if desired.

"That's up to them;" he said. "But it could also be used for the work and learn camp."

Lipsitz said he hasn't decided whether IFS will bid on the smaller, 50-bed camp, adding that he hasn't had any recent contact with DSS on the work and learn Strole contends that TFS already has the money, and if DSS disagrees, they would presumably have to initiate a lawsuit to get it back. We'd like to see the Blanchard administration get personally involved and the Legislature step in and put reins on this kind of thing. "DSS is an agency that, at least as far as this issue is concerned, has run amok," she said.

Contacted about the costs accrued by IFS, Michigan DSS Public Affairs Director Bob Harris, said, "We have currently hired an auditor to determine what costs are allowable. Final determination will be (made) in the next few weeks."

If the auditor determines that IFS has inappropriate charges for services rendered, Harris said, "DSS will pursue getting (the money) back through whatever actions are necessary."

Short causes fire

An electrical short in the kitchen was the cause of a fire that totally destroyed a house on Ormond Road, Springfield Township, Feb. 7.

Firefighters from Springfield, Independence, Groveland and White Lake townships and Holly battled the blaze for about two hours, said Elwyn Hillman, assistant fire chief in Springfield Township.

"We had a high wind, and it just took the roof right off." he said.

Firefighters received the call at about 10:50 a.m., but the building apparently had been on fire for several hours before a relative of the homeowner called, Hillman said

"If it weren't for the high winds, we would have had half a chance to save it," he said adding the house was located atop a hill in a rural area.

The extra help from the other departments was needed because they had to pump a great deal of water to fight the flames, he said.

The house received over $150,000 damage, he said. No one was injured, and homeowner Robert French was out of town at the time.

Effort begins to organize help for the North Oakland needy

BYPETERAUCHTER Clarkston News Staff Writer

Needy people exist all over northern Cakland County and there are organizations that can help. Unfortunately, finding out where to go for help is not always

A group of concerned citizens gathered recently at Sashabaw/United Presbyterian Church to work out a better way of organizing efforts to aid the less fortunate.

The decision of the group of about 20 people from Holly, Springfield, Independence, Pontiac and other surrounding areas on Feb 11 was to create a new organizational position.

The job would entail getting those with a need in touch with those who can help as quickly and hassle-free as possible, said Tom Stowell, a member of the board of directors for Lighthouse.

We need a staff person based in Clarkston or Ortonville from Lighthouse who will be there to help," he said. "He will not take over (from volunteers) but will provide assistance."

The new person would probably be affiliated with a group like Lighthouse, said Stowell.

with emergency assistance, food, clothing, referrals to various social services and emergency medical supplies.

Noreen Keating, director of Lighthouse, also spoke to the group at the meeting. She said Lighthouse needs plenty of help from other groups to help meet the need.

Lighthouse is based in Pontiac and helps the needy

We are a last-ditch place," she said. "They (needy people) have to exhaust all other possibilities first."

Because of a small staff, Lighthouse volunteers aren't always aware of the need in outlaying communi-ties. Volunteers in small towns don't always know where to send people in need.

This is where the new person would come in handy as a middleman, said Stowell Everyone agreed with him. Trudy Long, who works with the senior citizens in Independence Township, emphasized that older residents need an easy and quick method of getting help.

"Seniors need a place they can go to (for help), because if they get the runaround they will just give up and say they can do without," she said.

Having one person in an office in northern Oakland County could be beneficial in many other ways, the Rev. Bill Schram said.

"A highly visible person might bring out some of the need in the area," he said.

Keating said since northern Oakland County is growing in population all the time, some type of help will be needed in the years to come.

"If we don't do something now, we will in the future," she said.

Lighthouse has tentatively placed money aside in its budget to fund the new position, said Stowell, but the idea must be passed by the board of directors.

Should the plan be approved, office space would be rented and one person would be hired.

Stowell said when plans become more concrete, another meeting will be scheduled to brief area volunteers. He expects the meeting to take place in late March.

Garbage rates up; owners tell why

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

Garbage disposal rates keep increasing, as many area residents who use independent haulers have noticed when they received bills in the mail.

But there are reasons plenty of them - according to owners of some of the local disposal services

"Motor Carrier-Weight Master, a division of the State of Michigan, forced a third axle to be put on our frucks," says Jim Reynolds, owner of Al's Disposal in Davisburg. "The cost for this to be done is $5,000."

He also points out repair costs increasing 5 to 10 percent in 1987, elimination of some business deductions under the new tax law, 22 percent increases in Blue Cross-Blue Shield, and almost 100 percent increases in Workmen's Compensation Insurance costs between 1986 and 1987.

"It might be interesting to note that when this business started in this area in the 1940s, the cost for service was $1 per month, wages at G.M. plants were 80 cents per hour, dumping was free, and there were no special taxes," Reynolds says.

Today, the rate for service ranges from $10 per. month to $30 per quarter, wages at General Motors are approximately $13 per hour, and dumping costs amount to about 17.3 percent of the hauter's total income.

Owners at other area disposal services agree. The increased dumping charges combined with other cost a moore's Disposal to no longer bill by the year.

"Prices change too much in a year," said Fran Moore, secretary in the family owned business.

Local independent haulers use several privately owned landfills including Wayne Cakland Landfill on Brown Road, Waterford Hills Landfill on Gale Road and the Eagle Valley Landfill on Silver Bell Road.

According to Rick Detkowski owner of Clarkston Disposal, las: October the cost of dumping was $56 a load Todavitis $112 a load There is also a $5 charge per tire, mattress, box springs or appliance. The landfills will not accept any 55 gailon drums or car batteries, and restrictions in general are a lot tighter.

"In fairness to the landfilk, there have been a lot of restrictions put on themity/the DNR (state Department of Natural Resources)," Detkowaki says. "For instance, the DNR requires them to have plastic liners, and that "It's getting real expensive" Detkowski says Lisbility insurance, equipment, everything has gone

"... when this business started in this area in the 1940s, the cost for service was $1 per month, wages at G.M. plants were 80 cents per hour, dumping was free, and there were no special taxes."

Jim Reynolds

He estimates that cost to his customers has increased about 10 percent just this year.

"The way things keep going, there's really going to be a big change in a few years," he says, "Landfill life expectancy around here is only four to five years."

Leonard Smith owner of Smith Disposal, says, "There's nothing we can do about cost increases. When they go up, we have to go up. People have to understand

One thing echoed by each independent hauler was concern about the independents staying in business.

"If big companies come in, you won't have any control over it," Smith says.

"This country is based on free enterprise," Detkowski says. "Competition keeps the price down."

"We don't like raising prices, as we lose customers by doing so," says Reynolds. "But we raise prices to stay in business. Actually, we are trying to work on a catch-up principle."

4 injured in crash

Four people were injured in a three-car accident Saturday on 1-75 in Independence Township.

About 8:50 p.m., two cars were traveling north together on 1-75 when one of the cars overheated. Both cars pulled to the shoulder of the road, about one-quarter mile north of Clintonville Road, according to the report at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD).

When the cars pulled back onto the highway, another northbound car, driven by Michelle Renee Renaud, 22, of Plint, crashed into one, knocking it into the other, according to the police report.

According to the police report; Renaud was looking down to pick up a cassette tape and did not see the other cars in time to slow down:

Renaud and her passenger, Joe Bongiovanni, 25, of Sterling Heights, were not wearing seat belts. They were treated and released from Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital (POH).

The driver of the overheated car, Michelle Eileen Gala, 28, of Warren, and her passenger were wearing seat belts and were not injured.

Murder suspects return to Michigan

BY JULIE CAMPE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Nationally wanted murder suspects, formerly of Springfield Township, were back in Michigan last weekend after Waterford detectives Sgr. Donald Bailey and Sgt. David Thompson flew to Washington and brought them back.

them back.

Jerry Strickland, 26, was arraigned Saturday in 51st District Court, Waterford, before, Magistrate John McGrath. Of his charges, bond was denied for firstdegree murder, armed robbery, and kidnapping; and bond was set at $100,000 for each of two counts of using a firearm in the commission of a felony, said Bailey.

Strickland remains in Oakland County Jail, where he awaits a preliminary examination. Feb. 23 at 51st District Court

Melissa Munday, 17, a minor at the time of the alleged crimes, had a hearing Saturday in 51st District Court and was returned to Children's Village, whereshe awaits a hearing at a future date, said Bailey.

The suspects were located in Moses Lake, Wash, two weeks ago after the NBC-TV program "Unsolved Mysteries" outlined the circumstances of the alleged crimes and showed photographs of Strickland and Munday

Police think Strickland and Munday, who lived together in Springfield Fownship with their infant; were responsible for kidnapping, robbing and killing Elmer DeBoer, 38, from a Union 76, gas station on Dixie Highway near Andersonville Road, Waterford Township

Munday, a Maryland runaway, was a cashier at the station. Strickland, a West-Virginia resident and prison parolee of Hagerstown, Md., was a former employee at a different Union 76 station. DeBoer was a courier for Union 76 and was carrying between $8,000 and $10,000 when he was kidnapped.

DeBoer was later found by three boys in a Rose Township field with a handcuff around one wrist and two gurshot wounds in the back of the head.

A nationwide search followed, involving Waterford police, Michigan State Police and the FBI.

Munday, who is reportedly about five months pregnant with her second child, sent her first baby to live with her mother in Maryland last week, said Bailey.

Search for prison site goes on Speculation about the focation of a regional prison heightens as the deathline nears for an announcement from Wade-Trim/Dziurman, the Rochester firm contracted by the State Department of Corrections to recommend a site.

The Springfield Township site is adjacent to a former toxic dump site, which township officials fear could be affected by construction of a prison. Walls said other sites in Springfield Township may have been looked at for a prison site as well?

The original list, announced in December by John Dziurman, president of the Rochester firm, named eight sites, located in the townships of Springfield, Holly, White Lake, Oxford, Oakland and Lyon, the village of Holly, and Auburn Hills.

But Dziurman said sites have since been added and deleted. He also said an announcement on "finalists" for the prison site could happen this week.

the prison site could happen this week.
"We have a 95 percent determination, but are waiting to make an announcement because one new site is to be added, Dziurman said Monday. "We want to be sure. We want to make one announcement, not piecemeal."

Dziurman will recommend one of those finalists for a 612-bed prison after public hearings are conducted in each community where a prison site is proposed.

Radio purchase OKd

The fire department in Springfield Township was given the nod for approximately $4,000 in new tadios at the Feb. 11 board meeting.

The board approved the purchase of 10 small, toneactivated radios to be carried by the firefighters and one larger radio for a new truck approved last month.

The new equipment is necessary because several new volunteer firefighters are joining the Springfield Township Fire Department, and some of the older equipment needed replacing, said Suprvisor Collin Walls

Tabled at the February board meeting was discussion of increase of wages and benefits for township firefighters. Currently, there are five levels of wages, ranging from $5 to $10 an hour depending on the level of training completed.

Cookies for thought

Kathy Greenfield

If the cookie jar was empty at my grandma's house, she always had homemade bread that she would spread with butter and top with brown sugar for young visitors like me.

In later years, when she no longer baked bread (there was no need just for herself), she frequently kept a canister filled with her sugar cookies. If placed in a tightly sealed container, they would keep for weeks, she used to say.

The cookies were good. Everyone always ate a few, but they seemed to last. Now I know why. I wasn't having a party. No one was home but I dug this yellow with age recipe card out of my file it's in my handwriting, but I must have copied it from my mom's collection, for jotted in the corner is "Ma from Aunt Louise." Ma is what my parents always called my grandmother, whose sister was Louise.

A couple of hours later, I frost the first plate full to give away. There's a huge pile of cookies on my table ... and I'm still baking.

I think of all the things I should be doing and imagine conversations such as, "Didn't you do any laundry?" "No, but weren't the cookies great?"

I think of more significant things, such as how life was so different for my grandmother, who had a need for a cookie recipe that would feed an army ... or at least four growing sons and a daughter.

I remember the wringer washer. The cellar with its shelves lined with fruits and vegetables cannot from the garden. The treadle sewing machine (which she always preferred).

I'm amazed that I have spent so many hours baking cookies and prepare to give some more away.

I wonder how I'd feel if baking bread and desserts was something I had to do several times a week rather than just for fun.

Then I remember that cookie jar Grandma enjoyed keeping full long after her children - and grandchildren - were grown.

Kiddie tax not all

We've made a few cynical remarks on these fellow senator if the corrective law did not go through pages about the state legislature passing, and the that way, they would insist on reverting to the previous governor signing, a law to tax kids' income. rule.

We were referring to the bill that said every child making any money off paper routes, interest from a gift-savings account, mowing grass or whatever, had to file a tax form

When a citizen pointed out this dumb law to her legislator, he was shocked to see what he and his colleagues had done.

Recently, the legislature voted unanimously to re-write the law. They gave exemption to children earning less than $1,500 a year.

This week state senator Rudy Nichols called to say, "You thought you were cynical before, but you haven't heard all of it. The law now states that if the child earns $1,501 a year, they pay tax on all of it ...

Nichols said state treasurer Bowman told a

Bowman said how many millions of dollars a $1,500 exemption for kids would cost the state.

We say Bowman should never have had the figures in the budget or in his head in the first place. The state couldn't be shorted millions of dollars if they hadn't put it in the budget . . . which it wasn't prior to last year's tax package.

Good lord, if our state is in such a financial condition that it needs taxes from kids we're really in fough times. These are certainly not the times the governor has been spewing. It's been 'Oakland county is lead, ing the nation in high tech growth'. Michigan is the tourism leader. Our jobs program is second to none,

Never has he said 'Tax the kids', but that's what his appointee says. Why not increase the take at the track, or, heaven forbid, cut some state spending, IAS senator

State Sen. Vernon Ehlers, R-Grand Rapids, bragged recently that the Legislature 'is about twice as good as the population that sends us here. Our arrest and conviction rate is less than half of what it is for the public at large (and) our alcoholism rate is about half ... and so forth."

Imagine that: Lawmakers don't break laws as often as we non-lawmakers do: That's the most reassuring quality-of-life news I've heard since a surgeon told me he could do a better job of removing my appendix than I inuă moi Mi di remonii

What Ehlers said is true despite anything you might have heard lately about state senators pleading guilty to felony drug charges, losing a driver's license for refusing to take a blood-alcohol test, or being jailed for falling behind on mortgage payments.

But I'm concerned about what Sen. Ehlers meant by "and so forth." Does that include work habits? It was recently revealed that state Rep. Ethel Terrell, D-Highland Parks was present for only 41 of the 109 days the House convened in 1987. That's an absenteeism rate of almost two-thirds with no dock in pay.

Does that mean, if legislators are "about twice as good as the public at large - that ordinary citizens don't go to work five days a week and are paid overrime for not working Saturday and Sunday?

That question is especially important to me because Sen Etilers also said reporters coverling the Legislature should "hold themselves to the same high standards of accuracy and fair play that they hold us to the same had been that they hold us to the same had been that they hold us to the same had been accuracy and fair play that they hold us to the same had been that they hold us to the same had been that they hold us the same had been that they hold us the same had been that they hold us the same had been they had been Does that mean Hugh McDiarmid our Lansing based columnist, shouldn't show up for work more often than Rep. Terroll does? I hope not I have long prided myself on working less than any other area columnist, and I'd hate to lose the prestige attached to such an achievement because the Legislature demanded complete coma from the journalists covering it.

OH, I KNOW what you're thinking (if you're a legislator). You're thinking what I've written so far is a good example of the unfair reporting that bugs Sen. Ehlers, It is unfair to cite the extreme absenteeism of Rep. Terrell instead of praising the fine attendance records of other legislators. Granted.

But it should be remembered that legislators are also members of the public at large, and their crime and absenteeism statistics are included in those for the entire citizenry. On the other hand, non-legislator citizens are not allowed to drag down the Legislature's statistics.

It's probably unfair to mention that tiny bit of statistical inequality. Maybe it's also unfair to suggest it is OK for ordinary citizens - including reporters - to expect a standard of conduct higher than ordinary from the people they elect to represent them.

Instead, I should be fair enough to concede Rep. Terrell will undoubtedly improve her work habits now that she wants voters to promote her to the Senate to replace a senator forced to resign so he'd have time to go to prison on drug charges.

FINALLY, THERE IS the question of furniture. House Speaker Gary Owen, D-Ypsilanti Township, recently spent $105,641 of our money renovating and furnishing his conference room. Included were 28 chairs costing more than $900 each.

Let's assume it's good to be thrifty, especially when spending the money of citizens facing new taxes required to wipe out a possible $200 million budget deficit. Does Sen Ehlers' "and so forth" mean citizens barely half as good as legislators are sitting around their homes in $1,800 chairs?

If not, does it sit well with you that Rep. Owen and his conferees are sitting so good on your money?

In the interest of accuracy and fair play, should some member of the public at large tell Sen. Ehlers to sit on it?

Cable TV meeting set

Despite the snowstorm, representatives of three cable television companies appeared at the Springfield Township board meeting last Thursday evening to introduce themselves.

The three companies that have submitted applications and proposals for the cable TV franchise in Springfield Township are Michigan Cable, Empire Cable and North Oakland Cablevision.

The township board will conduct a special meeting Feb. 25 in the township hall, beginning at noon and lasting until 4:30 to 6 p.m., to meet with each of the companies.

The purpose of the meeting is to sit down with each proposer for an hour or hour and a half," said Township Supervisor Collin Walls. "It is an informal question-and-

Watch group wanted

A group of Springfield Township residents concerned over a few incidents in their neighborhoods want to develop "Neighborhood Watch" groups.

Samples of Neighborhood Watch signs which could be posted were displayed at the Feb. 11 township board meeting, and the organization of Neighborhood Watch groups was supported by the township board.

Springfield Township residents interested in organizing or being a part of a Neighborhood Watch group are asked to call the township office (625-4802 or 634-3111) and leave their names, addresses and phone numbers.

Just once I wish somebody would telephone me and say, "Fifi, you sound absolutely wonderful!"

I wish this because last week I was made unexpectedly depressed by a call that came during a pleasant after-dinner conversation I was having with my husband.

The telephone rang. I answered. And a strange man's voice on the other end of the line said quite sincerely, "Is this Harold?"

Embarrassed and chagrined, I turned and looked to my husband who was watching me with devotion, patiently waiting for my return to our

I could only cast my eyes downward to the kitchen floor and reply under my breath, "No, this isn't Harold."

Obviously irritated, the caller then said, "Well! I guess it isn't" before he rudely slammed down his receiver.

I returned to my husband a changed woman. Flush about the neck. Hands doubled into fists at my sides. Teeth clenched. "Do I sound like a Harold to you," I growled at him over the table. He didn't answer.

I don't blame him. He probably thought I was going to grow fangs and bite.

But I didn't. Actually, this represented a fairly common-type mistake to which I am gradually becoming accustomed.

People (usually salespersons, whom I detest anyway) are forever calling our house and asking me if I am Mr. Walker. Sometimes they ask me if they can speak to the lady of the house. 'Tis to laugh. So much for having a sultry voice.

On the other hand, things could be worse. My own mother once asked me to "put Laurie outdoors." What she really meant to say was "Put Ginger outdoors."

Ginger was our pet dachsund and was barking to get outside. Laurie is my sister, my mother's other daughter, and my mother knows that.

Tis to laugh.

Saturday hours cease at post office

Reduced hours at the Clarkston branch of the United States Post Office started Saturday, Feb. 13, when the retail windows were closed.

The new hours are 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, closed on Saturdays and Sundays. Previous hours were 6:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 6 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays, said Susan Gillespie, communications manager for the Detroit Division of the U.S.

"We take these steps reluctantly, but in order to meet our budget requirements, we've been mandated by federal law to do so," she said.

The lobby is still open on Saturdays, allowing customers access to the vending machines and the post office boxes, said Gillespie.

When the lobby is open, customers can knock on the service door to pick up a package or a registered letter, said Gillespie

Gillespie said she regrets the changes and hopes they don't inconvenience customers too much.

"Service to our customers is our prime concern," she said. "We're getting mixed reactions. Some people are concerned, and some people are very understand-

Each post office branch around the country is to eliminate at least four hours of window service a week, she said, adding it would save the Detroit district $600,000 from now to September, the remainder of the fiscal year. Clarkston is part of the Detroit district.

The district is to cut a total of $2.65 million by September, to be accomplished in other ways, such as the elimination of Sunday mail collection and Sunday mail processing, she said.

Express mail won't be affected - it will still be delivered and collected seven days a week, she said.

Property valuations incomplete

Assessment notices are to be sent Feb. 26 to residential property owners in Independence Township.

Overall, the values in some neighborhoods increased, while others stayed the same, said township assessor David Kramer.

"They're scattered around," he said. "Not one specific area of the township increased."

The assessment department isn't finished with the assessments, so Kramer couldn't give any average increases or figures, he said.

The assessments are determined by the market value of properties, and the values are determined by neighborhood. An overall residential reassessment was not performed, he said.

The 85 township neighborhoods were categorized geographically into groups of homes that economically complement each other, he said.

According to state law, property is assessed at 50 percent of its market value, so a $70,000 house would be assessed at $35,000.

If people have questions, they should call the assessing office at 625-8114, Kramer said.

Review board settles disputes

A special review board exists to hear objections and problems with property assessments in Independence

The board of review is comprised of three township residents: real estate broker Dan Ellsworth, real estate sales representative Rainee Stricklin and mortgage service specialist Tom Brecht.

"We are very fortunate in this township to have these kinds of people on the board of review, people who know something about value," said Kramer.

Starting March 14, the board will hear questions in the following three areas:

1. Is the property improperly classified? Has a parcel been classified as commercial instead of residential, for example?

2. Is the value correct? Have the sales of similar properties supported the given value? Did the assessing department make an error?

3. Is the property owner facing hardship? (Residential property only.)

"Property tax assessment is not meant to be confiscatory," said Kramer. "If they flat-out cannot afford to pay all of their taxes or a portion of their taxes, relief is

The property tax is a tax on wealth, but it comes out of income, he said, adding it isn't meant to create a conflict such as Scarlet O'Hara's in "Gone with the People with questions about their assessment notices should first call the assessment department to see if there's an error, he said.

The assessing records are open to the public, and a property owner may come in to make comparisons, he said.

A person may also get information from someone in real estate sales in the area, he said, but he cautioned that the properties to be compared must be similar.

"They've got to compare apples with apples," he said. "You can't compare an assessment value with something in Tennessee."

The board of review meets March 14 and 15 for residential hearings, March 16 for commercial and industrial only and March 17 for an evening session. Appointments are necessary.

For more information, call the assessing department at 625-8114.

Most property assessments in Springfield Township will go up this year, according to Judy Shirk, township assessor since 1983.

The 1988 assessments should be in the mail by Feb.

Average increases are; agricultural property, 6 percent; commercial, 10 percent; industrial, 1 percent; developmental (property held for future development), 4 percent; and residential, 9 percent.

"Now that's just an average, and has no relationship to an individual assessment," Shirk stresses. "Some property may go up as much as 30 percent, and some may not go up at all.'

Shirk says she looks at every single property on paper each year before determining assessments. Sales and appraisal figures play a large part in assessment determinations.

"It's the buyers and sellers who ultimately determine assessments," she says.

Assessments, by state law, are set at 50 percent of the market value of the property and are used to deter-

Seriously injured have

A home providing rehabilitative services to people 18 years and older who have suffered closed head injuries has been opened in Springfield Township.

The township board received notification of the home and offered no objections after determining that there was no other such home within 1,500 feet.

Edward Ewell, director of Kalevala Inc., the company which has opened the home, said they have already applied to the state Department of Social Services for a license. Kalevala has been offering similar services in the Detroit area for around 20 years.

Kalevala purchased a Shaffer Road residence on 20 acres and already has one resident living there.

"You can have up to three residents without a license in Michigan," Ewell said. "But we have applied for a license for up to six residents."

The home offers rehabilitative services and a structured environment to the accident victims in order for them to gain independent living skills. The residents are at a cognitive level that allows them to hold down jobs, Ewell said.

There is one live-in staff person at the residence and one other for each eight-hour shift.

Ewell invited any interested board member or resident to tour the facility at any time.

Games start at 7 p.m. and will be played on March 7 through 10 and on March 12.

Besides the Wolves, Waterford Kettering, Lake Orion, Holly, Pontiac Central and Pontiac Northern will participate in the Clarkston district.

Fire called arson

A fire last week on Lakeview, Springfield Township, is under investigation by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) for arson.

A neighbor notified the Springfield Fire Department of the fire around noon Feb. 8, said Elwyn Hillman, assistant fire chief.

The basement was extensively damaged, and the fire department had the fire under control in about a halfhour, said Hillman. Firefighters from Holly and Groveland Township helped battle the blaze.

No one was injured, said Hillman, adding he hadn't received the OCSD results yet on the arson investigation.

Bond on ballot

"Ultimately, we need that new high school," said board member Stephen Werner, who indicated that he believed a bond request for the high school should also go on the June ballot.

District financial manager William Jackson pointed out that the board could make the decision about putting a bond request for the high school and for Priorities 3 and 4 at the Feb. 29 special meeting.

covered back roads that were "just treacherous" on Monday, Feb. 15, caused school to be canceled, said Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara.

State law now requires snow days in excess of two be made up, and number two was logged about three weeks ago. It was decided before school started this year that the days would be added in June, Vaara said.

Late radio announcements of the most recent school closing were the main frustration, he said. The result was over a 100 telephone calls from parents.

Vaara said he called the State Police, who handle contacting radio stations, at 5:01 a.m. on Friday and at 5:05 a.m. on Monday. The closings weren't aired until several additional calls were made.

"It's not that we haven't done our job," he said. "Friday, I guess they had a computer failure. Monday, they didn't have an answer."

Students embrace computer contest

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

Seventeen eager faces lean forward, almost in unison, reading a question flashed across dual monitor screens. Then, quiet concentration dissolves into animation as they decide on the correct answer.

"D, no E,E!" is yelled from one quadrant of the team. "No, it's B. The answer is B!" comes from another.

The answer is quickly punched into a computer, and the cycle begins again.

The pupils, sixth-graders at Clarkston Junior High School, were competing in the 1988 Elementary Knowledge Master Open (KMO) created by Academic Hallmarks out of Durango, Colo.

Selected by the three sixth-grade teachers at Clarkston Junior High to represent strength in different academic areas (math-science, English), the team members were: Kristy Swartout (captain), Chris Groner, Ashley Ball, Anne Brueck, Jennifer MacArthur, Sean Craven, Keith Conklin, Matt Martin, Jim Simonson, Sara Klopfer, Matt Little, Chris Moore, Jake Vaughn, Erin Patterson, Gabrielle Bielak, Derenda Howard and Brian

Sort of a high-tech, academic version of "Trivial Pursuit," KMO has been offered to secondary students before, but this is the first time an elementary level contest has been available.

"They are pioneers, the first sixth-graders to be involved in this national competition," says Barbara Glover, sixth-grade teacher and one of the coaches for the contest at Clarkston Junior High. Media specialist Suvonne Hogan was the other.

The contest took place simultaneously at schools across the country Feb. 10, lasting about one-and-a-half hours. When the competition was completed, coaches called the results in to Colorado and on Feb. 11 called back for their team's results.

The Clarkston Junior High team answered 81 of 100 questions correctly. There was a lot of strategy involved. They were timed and had two chances to answer each question. More points were accumulated by answering quickly and answering the first time correctly.

The Clarkston pupils were strong (100 percent correct answers) in history, health and science areas and weaker (60 percent) in math and English. They scored well (90 to 93 percent) in knowledge and comprehension.

Out of 17 teams from Michigan, they placed seventh; out of 422 teams across the nation, they placed 206th. Their score of 652 placed the Clarkston Junior High team above the national mean of 638.

The questions covered a range of subjects: literature, physical, biological and earth sciences, history, geography, current events, art and music, English, health, math, government, and for fun, one question on "useless trivia." The questions represented behavior levels of knowledge, application, comprehension and KMO was designed to recognize the "aukcomplishments" of student scholars and their schools. The "Great Auk," an intelligent-looking feathered friend, is the "host," or mascot, of the academic competition.

Comments from "Auk" appeared from time to time between questions. At the end of the competition, the screen flashed: "Congratulations, you've just completed a grueling ordeal."

The pupils didn't look like it. They were excited, keyed up and looked as if they had just completed a great

When asked for their comments on the contest, responses like "nerve-racking, fun, hard, exciting and frustrating" cropped up from the team. When asked if they would like to do it again, the response was a resounding "YES!"

CONCENTRATION on their faces, a team of Clarkston Junior High sixth-graders competes in the first elementary-level Knowledge Master Open, a national competition programmed through a computer system. Secondary-level competition took place ealier.

Wolves win with confidence

BY PETER AUCHTER Clarkston News Staff Writer

While the varsity volleyball team lost its own tournament, it did gain something of value from the experience - confidence to win.

Struggling through a rough non-league schedule, the Wolves were in need of a victory - any type of win more than George Bush in his quest for the presidency.

Three straight triumphs right off the bat brought the team to life as the day wore on. Clarkston also split with a tough and talented Warren Woods-Tower squad. Lansing Waverly, the eventual champion of the 10th annual tourney, finally was able to down the host team in three games.

Clarkston fell, 16-14, 4-15, 13-15, in the semi-finals as the Wolves ran out of gas in the third game. Clarkston led, 12-6, in the final game before Waverly rallied to win the game and match.

The loss may have dampened the team's spirit a little, but it took nothing away from the Wolves' wonderful day.

"A lot of good things happened," said Coach Gordie Richardson. "I was really excited for the kids."

Blocking has been a weak area for the Wolves, but Saturday was a completely different story. Clarkston had 28 blocks during its five matches, more than it had all season.

The Wolves also were hot in the serving department as several players racked up amazing stats.

Heather Behrens was 49-of-51 serving with nine aces, Ali Fedio was 26-of-29 with seven aces, Kelly Avenall was 17-of-17 with one ace and Jenny Grohs was 45-of-47 with eight aces.

"We haven't had stats like that all season," said a happy Richardson.

If he wanted to, the coach could have read off favorable Clarkston statistics all evening long. Everyone played well, he said.

Fedio also racked up an amazing amount of kills with 34 on 63-of-70 attacks on the day. Grohs had 31

The Wolves began the day beating up on Mount Clemens, 15-6, 15-5, as Behrens, Fedio and Grohs led the way to victory. Clarkston never allowed the Bathers to get going in either game and cruised to victory, Richardson

Clarkston then rolled over Bloomfield Andover, 15-5, 15-10, as Jami Lerner, Coy Carlson, Grohs and Fedio all had outstanding performances.

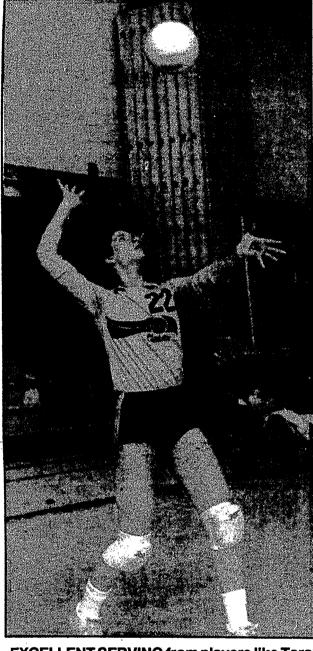

Then came the big test for the Wolves. A tough Rochester team was the next one on the hit parade.

Clarkston manhandled Rochester, 15-1, 15-7, to really give the home team a boost of confidence.

'That (victory) really gave us a lift," said Richardson. Sue McKoin, Lisa Bertling and Lisa Peel led the way for the victors.

The Wolves were finally slowed down a bit when Warren Woods-Tower split with them.

The Titans won the first game, 15-2, and dropped the second, 15-10. Lerner and Fedio paced the Wolves.

EXCELLENT SERVING from players like Tara Carncross helps the Wolves win three straight matches in the 10th Annual Clarkston Volleyball Tournament on Saturday.

Girl skiers slip to 3rd

Heading into the final event of the league championships at Pine Knob last week, the girls skiteam was tied

The unfavorable weather conditions didn't help the Wolves at all in the Giant Slalom as they slipped to third place overall.

Rochester Adams took first with 123 points, Lakeland second with 132, Clarkston third with 140, Grand Blanc fourth with 190, Flint Powers fifth with 244, Walled Lake Central sixth with 253, Rochester seventh with 289, Milford eighth with 379 and Flushing ninth with High winds and a lot of new snow made the slopes unsuitable for the light Clarkston skiers, said Coach Don Racers with more weight had an easier time driving through the freshly fallen snow, he said.

"We really could have done better, but they couldn't drive through the snow," he said.

The competition was particularly tough since the time difference between second place and 29th was just

In the slalom, Shelly Purdy was the top Clarkston finisher in second place with a time of 51.53. Jackie Jablonski (11th) was clocked in at 53.89, Wendy Zoss (19th) crossed the line in 54.88 and Tina Sheppard (22nd) finished in 55.46.

Purdy was the team's best racer in the giant slalom with a sixth-place time of 48.01. Jablonski took 17th with a clocking of 48.09.

Clarkston now travels to Mount Holly on Thursday to participate in the regionals. The state finals are to be conducted in Marquette on Feb. 29.

Boys prepare for regionals

With a fifth-place finish at the league meet, the boys ski team is preparing for this week's regional competi-

In the slalom event, Shawn Lambouris took 12th place with a time of 47.51 and Todd Roeser ended up 13th with 47.59. Tim Snyder wound up in 16th with 47.94.

While watching the racers come down the slope, Coach Don Balzarini noted the Clarkston team registered some good runs, but the times were not up to par with the rest of the squads.

"There were a lot of good skiers and a lot of good times," he said.

Only a second separated the skier in second place from the one in 20th, he added.

Brother Rice won the meet with 39 points. Grand Blanc finished in second with 75 points. Cranbrook was third with 95, and Lakeland was fourth with 149.

Clarkston was in fifth with 208, and Bloomfield Andover took sixth with 256 points. Flushing was seventh with 262 points and Walled Lake Central finished last with 399 points.

In the giant slalom, Andy Yarber was the top Clarkston skier with a time of 45.57. He finished in 26th

SETO SWEET THE cancels sports

Along with wiping out school for two days, the abundance of snow and ice dropped on the Clarkston area by Mother Nature also forced the cancellation of many sporting events.

Friday night's basketball game against Greater Oakland Activities League rival Pontiac Northern was not played due to the closing of both schools.

The game is rescheduled for Wednesday, March 2, at 6 p.m., which means the Wolves will face Brandon and night before (March 1) and Lake Orion two nights after (March 4) in a hectic end to the regular season.

The bad news for sports fans continued on Monday. Icy conditions of the roads caused school and all sporting events in the Clarkston district to be canceled for the second day in a row.

On the varsity level, Monday's volleyball match against Lake Orion was rescheduled for Wednesday, Feb. 24, at Lake Orion.

Wrestlers win

Nine grapplers from the Clarkston Wrestling Club brought home medals from a tournament in Hazel Park.

In the 8-and-under division Arron Grant (45 pounds) finished in second place, and Andy Auten (65) and Franco Vega (65) placed third.

Jason Tiefenbach (55) placed third and Brandon Rank (60) took second in the 9- to 10-year-old age

Winners in the 11- to 12-year-old division were Eric Endeszl (85) and Corey Grant (70), who finished in third place in their respective weight classes.

Chris White (126) took second in the 13- to 14-yearold division while Damon Mitchelsen (138.5) finished in third in the 15- to 16-year-old group.

Snowy thoughts

When I was in high school, I thought getting a snow or ice day off was fantastic. On my wish list it came right after an all-A report card and just ahead of being a jock.

In fact, listening to WJR in the early morning hours today still brings back fond memories of when I was younger and searching for a way to get an extra day off. Especially when I accidentally forgot to do all of my homework.

"And now, the school closings ..., " J.P. McCarthy would drone on as I as dozed on and off at 5:30 in the morning wondering whether I should climb into the bed or bath.

After the "Wall Street Report," followed by the farm report, which was just before the weather, about 500 or so names of schools are read off. Then one of two things happens, either my school is named and I fall asleep for another five hours or it isn't and I head for the frozen barrens known as the shower.

Anyhow, I digress.

The point I'm trying to make is that a snow day is no longer a thrill. Actually, it's quite a pain in the rear. Working for a living is tough enough without any extra hassles.

When the Clarkston schools close down, it also means no after-school sports will be played. The recent situation where the school was closed two days in a row became a double pain for me.

Sports is my livelihood, my life blood, my only reason for existence and I can't go too long without it. I'm afraid I might go through withdrawal if this goes on any longer.

I just can't stand it. I miss all the action, all the thrills, chills and spills of high school sports. Oh, the pain!

Somebody must be testing me.

First, the basketball game gets wiped out Friday night, my big sports night of the week. What a bummer. I was all dressed up and had nowhere to go.

Then on Monday, volleyball gets the ax from Mother Nature. She dropped a neat sheen of ice all over the place Sunday night just to keep things

Just when the Wolves were on a roll coming off a fine performance in a tournament they hosted over the weekend, the weather screws everything up.

It seems like nobody can win around here anymore. What gives?

I just wonder what will happen next. Heaven forbid should I jinx anyone, but did anyone give any serious thought to hurricanes, tornadoes, earthquakes, lunar eclipses or food fights interrupting school again this year?

I can hear it clearly now.

"And now for the school closings," the announcer would say as I slip back and forth between my dreams and reality during the early morning hours one day.

"Clarkston is closed today due to ..." Will somebody please wake me up?

Better eating habits helped

Dietary system brings couple alive

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

Macrobiotic. Just the definition - long lived, or tending to prolong life - sums up what Shon and Judy Allen sought.

After spending three years in Mexico on assignment with General Motors, the Allens returned to their long-time home on Round Lake in Independence Township, and Judy became seriously ill.

"I became sick with allergies that no doctor could help me with," Judy says. "I started studying nutrition and what food does to our bodies."

In the process, she discovered macrobiotics, a dietary system derived from Zen Buddhism, based on the opposite qualities of yin and yang in various foods. The diet consists mainly of organically grown fruits, vegetables and fish, along with whole grains and brown rice.

Eating is only one phase of it, Shon says. "It's a study of balance, of health and life. Every extreme has its opposite. Within that, wherever you are, Mother Nature will balance."

"I went vegetarian at first," Judy says, "Because I found I was allergic to the additives in the food here."

Both say they feel better for it, and that going to natural foods has cleared up all kinds of previously lived with symptoms, including "middle-age things," as Shon calls them.

"It's important to eat in your own environment. And how you eat depends on where you live. For instance, here we eat for four seasons, but you would eat differently if you lived in a hot, dry climate."

Judy Allen

"I couldn't close my hand and thought it was arthritis," Shon says. "Now I type and play the piano. I have all my circulation back."

He accredits Judy's discovery of macrobiotics to his better health, saying, "She accidentally saved my life." The macrobiotic diet also includes such things as

The macrobiotic diet also includes such things as miso soup, a naturally stimulating beverage called bancha tea and vegetables that most people never consider, such as seaweed.

All these items are popular on the menu at the Allen home. They also eat the root of burdock, a weed which (See HEALTH, next page)

(HEALTH, continued from previous page) grows in abundance in this area and produces the bothersome burr that family pets come home within their fur.

Burdock warms you, and it's full of energy," Shon says. "We use the roots in soups and stir fry."

In the winter, they also eat buckwheat, another warming food. And in the summer, Judy cooks dandelion greens, readily available in her own yard. They occasionally eat white fish, caught in their own lake.

"It's important to eat in your own environment," Judy says. "And how you cat depends on where you live. For instance, here we eat for four seasons, but you would eat differently if you lived in a hot, dry climate."

The main thing, they both say, is to listen to what your own body is telling you.
"If you can a big dinner and are tired, ask yourself why," Shon says "It's funny. We always ask what is happening to us, but we never ask why."

The Allens steam their vegetables or pressure cook some of their food. They shy away from electrical cooking devices.

They've abandoned the dining room table, except for special occasions, instead enjoying their meals sitting naturally at a low table in their comfortable living room. Even their home reflects the natural lifestyle they pursue, with wooden beams, open lofts; green plants and a woodburning stove.

And they take time to enjoy their meals,

People don't chew their food enough," Judy says. "If you chew at least 35 times per mouthful of food, it would cure a lot of indigestion and you'd need less

"Too much liquid offsets the balance," Shon explains. "It flushes your system of vitamins and minerals. before the natural system has a chance to take over."

"You are what you eat," Judy says. "My philosophy is that I'm the one who lives in my body all the time. No one else does."

When people tell her, "I don't have time to eat good," she replies, "But do you have time to be sick?"

She says eating rice cakes or steaming vegetables is easy to do, and once you learn how, brown rice is easy to cook and very good for you.

Shon and Judy frequent health food stores as well as their own surroundings for items on their grocery list, and they season foods with ground ginger and sea salt.

When people ask Judy how she gets enough calcium in her diet, she responds by telling them broccoli is loaded with calcium. When her three grown children visit, they either eat "macrobiotically" or bring their own Shon and Judy drink no alcohol, because they don't like the way it makes them feel afterwards.

"It's a choice people can make," Judy says. "If you study this, for instance, and you have a headache, it's because of something you ate or drank, and you can make it go away by eating something the opposite."

The trim blond woman pauses, trying to explain the balance philosophy. "If you eat ice cream, for instance. that is expanding. And eating a salty food such as peanuts is offsetting because it's contracting."

The Allens not only eat natural foods, they use them as home remedies. They have acquired an extensive library on macrobiotics and note that books on the subject are available in libraries and bookstores.

Shon commutes to his job with General Motors in Flint, and Judy, a model and actress, won't travel anywhere unless she knows she can get her hands on healthy

"That's just what I choose to do," she says. "If you don't feel good, there is a reason."

It has been over four years since the Allens came back from Mexico and changed their lifestyle. Neither

"You can't buy some things," Judy says. "You can't buy good health."

American adventure

Au Pairs enjoy new challenges while in the United States

BY JULIE CAMPE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Peanut butter was the most shockingly terrible thing to eat in this country, according to four visitors from Great Britain and West Germany.

"I tried it once," said Michelle Brien, 20. "I thought it smelled good. I like peanuts."

She made a face when she recalled the taste. "I thought it was a joke," she said. "It was disgust-

As "nannies" in the Au Pair program, they see a lot of the "yucky" stuff because peanut butter and jelly sandwiches are a favorite of the children for whom they Michelle, from a town near Manchester, England, works with Nikki and Ron Baker's family of Deerhill Court, Independence Township.

Others in the program are Samantha Long, 21, with John and Anne Moye's family of Main Street, Clarkston; Christiane Bicker, 21, with Jeff and Kathy Lynn's family, Main Street, Clarkston; and Clare Salt, 18, with John and Robin Bones' family in Bloomfield Hills.

Au Pair means "on par," said Samantha. And that's what it's like for her. She's on par with the family, kind of like a big sister, she said.

"It's supposed to be as beneficial to the parents as the children, because they're learning about another culture," she said.

The program is sponsored by the United States government and is available all over Europe, although it's a long process to get accepted.

After they're approved, the family pays for their transportation to the U.S. and pays them a weekly salary to work around 45 hours a week in child care for 12 months. The family also pays for evening classes.

The rest of the time is free time, although they can do extra work around the house if they're paid for it. At the end of their stay, they have an optional month to travel around the country, as long as they don't work.

Chris, who had an American boyfriend for six years near her home in Sondern, Germany, had been curious about the country for a long time, she said.

"I really wanted to get to know the people and the country," she said. "I think the program is really, really

Samantha, who has a degree in English literature from a British university and who audits a journalism class at Oakland University, Rochester, was also excited to come.

"I wanted the cultural exchange," she said, "I eventually want to work with children. I just wanted to see

She had seen a lot of American movies, such as "Platoon," and read a lot of books. And about half of their TV programs are American, she said.

They all remember being a little nervous when they found out when they would go. Chris, who finished an apprenticeship with a fashion designer before she left, had to leave 10 days after she received the phone call.

"I was so nervous," she said, adding she talked to the kids, Jenna and David, on the telephone before she left.

"My (American) family was really great," she said. "They've been really nice. It helps a lot if you have a really good relationship with your family, if they're understand-

Their first week of orientation in New York City met all of their expectations of America, said Samantha. It was fast-paced, crowded, and there were tons of shops.

But they did not expect what they found in Michi-

"I knew a little bit about it because of my (former) boyfriend and his family," said Chris. "I heard Americans were very friendly, and it's true."

Samantha was surprised when shopkeepers would say hello to her and chat for a while.

"I didn't know what to do," she said, explaining that no one ever greets you like that in England, and you feel guilty asking an English shopkeeper for a price or help.

Chris likes using the English "you" because the German language has two forms of "you" - one for people you know well, and one for people you don't know. It's confusing to know which to choose, and the one "you" in English sounds so friendly, she said.

In general, young American children are much more active than European children, they all agreed. With pre-kindergarten classes and planned activities, the children are different from German children who don't start any formal classes until kindergarten at age 6, said

The American families also seem more relaxed and less strict.

"It's much more rigid (in Europe)," said Samantha. 'In Germany and Europe, there's not as much choice."

"The philosophy is totally different," said Chris. "I don't want to say American children don't behave, but I have a lot of trouble with discipline. In Germany, you tell (See COOKIES, next page)

Cookies, movies are favorites

The meals and foods were turned around for them, too, said Chris, mentioning the hot supper in America, when Germans eat a hot noon meal and cold sandwiches before they go to bed.

"At home, all we hear about is health-conscious Americans, and the food here (is astonishing)," said Samantha, mentioning the high caloric fast-food meals. "America has some of the biggest women in the world."

They found cookies to be surprisingly good, said Chris and Samantha. Samantha likes chocolate chip, and Chris likes fudge-covered Oreos.

But the chocolate is terrible, they all agreed, again making faces.

"It's waxy, even Hershey's," said Chris.

They were also surprised at all the attention they received when someone found out they spoke another language. In Europe, at any given public place, several languages are likely to be spoken.

Clare, of Paignton, Devon, shared her observations of the night clubs and other places that younger Americans might go.

"Gum is the main item in the purse, not the cigarette or the wallet, but gum," she said.

She also found stereotypical Americans -- identical-looking girls (kiddingly dubbed "Barbie Dolls") with long, curly blond hair, tight jeans and baggy blouses tied at the waist, wearing loads of makeup.

Chris was also puzzled by the differences in social etiquette.

"You talk to people, and you have a really good conversation," she said. "And they ask you for your phone number, and they never ring you. That's weird."

The Au Pairs in this area meet regularly with their community counselor, Carolyn Hilty of Bloomfield Hills, and they also see each other socially.

In their remaining months, they plan to take more classes and to keep going to the movies, the night clubs and the Village Bakeshop in Clarkston.

THE PLOT THICKENS

Reading contest's biggest prize could be a new family habit

BY KATHY GREENFIELD Clarkston News Editor

On the surface, B.E.A.R. is a cute program to encourage reading at home by Clarkston Elementary School pupils.

There are drawings for prizes! The whole school is working toward a goal of amassing one million minutes spent reading in only 100 days! Little bears decorate posters, canisters and notes home!

During the schoolwide kick-off assembly Thursday afternoon, a teacher wore a bear suit, parents led a verbal bear hunt and teachers performed in a skit narrated by a parent reading a version of "The Three Bears." The bears learned to read thanks to Goldilocks.

Principal William Potvin explained the rules for "Be Enthusiastic About Reading" and held up samples of the 354 tiny to giant-size bears that will be among the prizes. The children oohed and aahed, cheered and applauded, smiled and laughed.

What fun!

That's at least part of the plot. About three years ago, Potvin began thinking about the concept that eventually became B.E.A.R. Last summer, he made it a goal for this school year.

He wanted to do something that would be fun and would enhance an aspect of education with long-term benefits. He also wanted to eliminate competition as much as possible. Many reading contests require a certain number of books be read or that a certain list of books be read.

For Potvin's contest, the minutes spent reading

Jim Wenger's approach is relaxed and personal. Wearing a warm, red sweater and an encouraging smile, he jokes with his students and is not afraid to reveal that he's a real person behind his title of teacher.

"I think he's a great teacher," says Jeff Alkire, a senior in fifth-hour government. "He communicates on a kid's level - without being immature."

Senior Robert Potts agrees: "He encourages everyone to participate."

Mark Hargett likes another quality about Wenger. "He knows how to explain things so it's not boring," he says, after two weeks in the required government class. "He's great so far."

Wenger is uncomfortable with all of the attention, and his students tease him while he's photographed "in

Before class, Wenger talked about teaching. He did not expect the "Teacher of the Semester" award from the National Honor Society, he said. "I was surprised because it's a lot of students voting," said Wenger. "You try to reach everybody, and you hope that you reach a few. ... It's a nice honor to think that students would take the time to write my name down.

"It's humbling in a way. You know that there are a lot of good, dedicated teachers there, and you're sorry it can't be more than one."

A teacher for 21 years, Wenger has seen the ups and downs of the profession. In the social studies department, Wenger teaches three required government classes and two current events class and is a team-teacher in one government class.

"It's a big challenge, teaching a required class, trying to make it meaningful," he said. "There's a lot of

3 students picked for Girls State

2017年的全部的古典特别是否

Although it was a difficult decision, three Clarkston High School juniors and three alternates were chosen to attend Girls State this summer at Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant.

The representatives from this area are Christine Lisle, Kellee Duty and Marie Powell. The alternates are Kristen Allison, Jill Pilarcik and Kelly Kurz.

"We were really pleased with the applications that we had," said Dawn Tower, chairperson of the Girls State committee in the American Legion Auxiliary.

"It was really, really hard (to choose) because they're all so enthusiastic. They were all a great bunch of girls. I wish we were rich, so we could send them all."

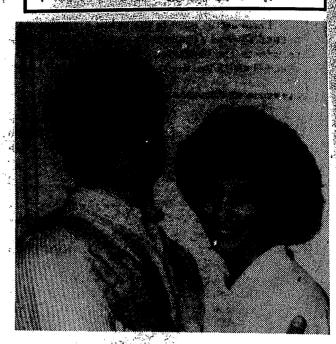

The auxiliary conducts bake sales, raffles, flea markets, craft sales and food sales all year to raise the $180 cost per girl, said Dawn.

The week-long program in June at CMU is designed to stimulate interest and promote a better understanding of government, she said.

The girls were chosen with the help of high school teachers of government and history classes who recommended candidates to the auxiliary. The auxiliary invited the candidates to apply and received 11 applications.

"The school has been really, really helpful," said Dawn. "They have backed us every step of the way. With 11 names this year, it was hard to nail it down."

Jaycee family tradition goes on

BY JULIE CAMPE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Joy Leonard's involvement in the Clarkston Area Jaycees was a natural extension of her concern for the community.

Born and raised in the Clarkston area, Joy now lives on Princess Lane in Independence Township with her husband, Alan, and children - Kenny, 6, and Kelly, 4.

JOYLEONARD likes bowling and snowmobiling and helping others through her work in the Clarkston Area Jaycees.

The community and the people within it mean a lot to her, and the Jaycees were a perfect way to express her concern, she said.

"Living here, it's nice to know and to see that we're actually helping people," she said.

Her hours of contribution in the organization were recognized in December, when she was chosen Jaycee of the Year.

"I was surprised, being new," she said. "There were other people who had been there a long time."

The award broke all kinds of local and state records. Joy was the first female to win the Clarkston Award.

Her brother, Bill Wint, had won the award the year before, so it made them the first brother and sister in the state to win the award in consecutive years.

Her father, Lew Wint, had won the award years ago, so it made them the first father, brother and sister to win the award in the state and possibly the nation.

"That was neat to know that," she said, adding the award was even more meaningful because of it.

Joy joined the Jaycees about one and one-half years ago, and the record of being the first female to win the award doesn't carry special meaning, she said, adding many women are in the group and contribute a great deal.

"My award is outstanding Jaycee, not outstanding woman Jaycee," she said. "That's how I like it, equal. I don't want to be singled out."

Joy is pleased that the Jaycees have been able to help in so many ways, she said.

In the past, the club has had a booth at the Renaissance Festival, raised funds for Clarkston SCAMP, donated money to other service organizations and bought electric scoreboards for the softball diamonds at Clintonwood Park in Independence Township.

As vice president of the community committee, Joy has worked extensively on the Easter egg hunt and a fund raiser for muscular dystrophy, as well as other projects, she said.

In order to devote the necessary time, Joy needed help from her husband.

"I'm really glad Alan is so understanding with all the time I'm gone," she said. "He does a lot of babysitting. He's good with the kids."

Find friend help

Dear Friend to Friend:

Where can I get information on the upcoming presidential elections? I will be 18 in time to vote, and I am very confused about all the different people running. They all sound the same.

Help me figure out who to vote for!

Dear Scared:

We are confused too! Start with the TV news reports and newspapers. They are promoting, educating and exploiting the different candidates. Get information from your local districts.

We give you a lot of credit for wanting to be educationally involved in this election. So many times, people don't care enough to vote or feel their vote doesn't

We feel, however, that if you don't vote, you are giving up control of your life as far as jobs, income, civil rights, Social Security and even national safety.

Check out what each candidate has to say on all issues from the environment to STAR WARS to taxes. Compare their past records. Don't base it on personality, color or sex.

Agree with their views and feel proud you live in a country where you determine what happens in your life.

Dear Friend to Friend:

I am concerned about a friend who, in my opinion, is having deep emotional problems. Lately, this friend has been sharing with me some of the poetry that he has

In his writings, he talks about really depressing things including death. I feel like there is something I should be doing to comfort him, but I'm really not sure what. Please help me.

Scared and Need Advice

Dear Scared:

We feel that may times people may express their feelings of depression through their writing.

Sometimes if the hints of depression aren't recognized or addressed, the end result may be a suicide attempt. That is why the signs of depression should never be ignored and must be taken seriously.

We are glad you have recognized these signs and have taken the first step toward helping him. The next step you should take is to try to talk to him.

Try not to make him feel as if he's on the spot, but we think that letting him know that someone cares can make all the difference in the world.

You need to make a special effort to let him know that you are concerned. When you first talk to him about this, try to be alone with him because what you have to say will be much more effective on a one-to-one basis.

You might start by saying, "I'm getting the impression from your poems that you are really depressed and I think you have a lot going for you that you don't realize. But, I am concerned about whether or not you have someone to talk to."

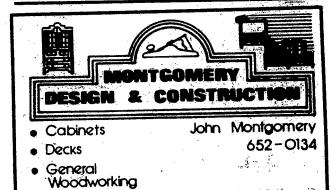

See if he will go with you to a counselor if he won't go to a counselor on his own. You won't be betraying him if you tell someone yourself, such as a counselor, parent, crisis team or someone else who is trained to handle these types of problems.

Many people in our group have also experienced severe depression. This is a normal way to feel. Many people that you would never expect to be that depressed have been. The important thing is to get him talking.

This is a risk that you are taking and we are happy that you have taken it. Caring for others and going out of your way for them is part of being a human being Friend to Friend is written by a panel of Clarkston High School students working under the sponsorship of Aware, a community organization devoted to action and education against substance abuse.

Letters to Friend to Friend may be addressed in care of The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

gather round the plano in the music classroom at CJH to sing.

Students fare well at music festival

Clarkston Junior High School students hit some high notes with their performances at the Solo and Ensemble Festival on Feb. 6 at Royal Oak Kimball High

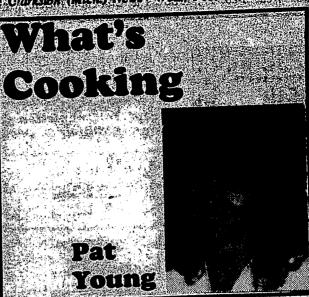

The students, who volunteered to participate, received first division and second division ratings for outstanding performances, said Gloria Lacy, vocal music teacher at CIHS.

While first division ratings are highest, both are considered top ratings, she said.

"I feel they did very well. I was very pleased," Lacy said.

A first division rating was received by the trio of Christi Oppmann, Britt Ried and Anissa Howard. With the rating comes the opportunity to compete in the state finals on April 16 in Flint.

Second division ratings were received by the duet of Heather Flor and Jenny Woodward and by soloists Kathy Manser and Robby Taylor.

Pop them in the oven

Now is when many people have the time to prepare ahead and keep food in the freezer. It's nice to have something you can just pop in the oven.

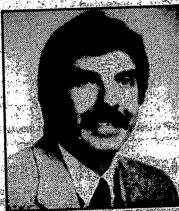

These individually wrapped sandwiches fill the bill.
They are popular with kids for after-school snacks, and great for large parties because they can be prepared days or even weeks in advance.

HOT HAM AND CHEESE SANDWICHES

- 1 1/2 pounds chipped or finely shaved ham 1/2 pound swiss cheese, finely sliced
- 2 dozen buns 1/2 pound butter or margarine
- 3 tablespoons mustard 2 tablespoons poppy seeds 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 small onion, minced

Soften butter or margarine and mix in the last four ingredients. Spread on buns. (If using buns that are smaller than hamburger buns, the recipe will make more than two dozen sandwiches.)

Wrap each sandwich individually in foil and refrigerate (or freeze) until ready to bake in a 350 degree oven for 15 minutes. Serve hot.

Rave reviews

Wagner

Fred Schwarze of Rudy's Market in Clarkston offered this recipe to me. He said a customer gave it to him, and his wife Doreen received rave reviews when she served it at a party,

For a Lenten variation, substitute chunk tuna fish for the chicken. Use 12 ounces (two cans) of tuna.

ENCHILADA CHICKEN 1-10 ounce can Rotel tomatoes and chilies

1 pound box Velveeta cheese

1 can cream of mushroom soup

1/2 cup water

4 lärge chicken breasts, cooked, boned and cut into bitesize pieces

18-ounce package cream cheese

1 medium onion, chopped

1/4 teaspoon salt and pepper 1 package of 10 6-inch tortillas

In the top of a double boiler, place tomatoes and cheese. When cheese is melted, add the soup and water.

In a large bowl, mix chicken, cream cheese, onion, salt and pepper until cream cheese is thoroughly blended. Place chicken mixture in center of softened tortilla, roll and place in 9-by-13-inch casserole dish.

Pour tomato-cheese mixture over all and place in 325 degree oven until it starts to bubble.

Microwave directions: Place chicken breasts with thickest part to edge around a microwavable baking dish or on a roasting rack. Cover with wax paper.

Microwave for 5 minutes per pound. Let stand several minutes to finish cooking. When cool enough to handle, cut into bite-size pieces.

Cut Velveeta cheese down the center, then into eight pieces to facilitate melting. Place tomatoes and Velveeta in a 6-cup measure; microwave at 50 percent (medium) power for 4-5 minutes or until cheese is melted. Stir every 2 minutes.

Soften cream cheese at 70 percent (medium high) for 30 seconds. Mix with chicken, onion, salt and pepper. Place chicken mixture in center of softened tortilla, roll and place in 9-by-13-inch casserole dish.

Pour tomato-cheese sauce over tortillas. Microwave at 50 percent (medium) power for 15 minutes, covered with plastic wrap, then for 15 more minutes, uncovered. Let stand for 5-10 minutes. Sauce will be soupy, but should be hot.

There are only a few days left for you to enter the Microwave Plus Contest. Watch United Cable, Independence-Clarkston Channel 65, Monday through Friday evenings for details. Rudy's Market has offered one of the lovely prizes. Winners will be drawn Feb. 25.

For each 60 minutes of reading verified by a parent, a pupil can place a card in the canister in the school lobby for his or her grade level.

Names will be drawn from the canisters every two weeks and at the end of the 100 days for prizes. In addition to the bears, there will be an equivalent cash amount of $3 gift certificates to the Village Bookstore plus coupons from local eateries.

Potvin, of course, is personally more enthusiastic about the book certificates. But he's a realist. If it takes bears to get children to read at home with their parents, that's fine with him.

To reach the goal of one million minutes, he figures each child in the school would have to put in 20 hours of reading aloud with someone over the next 14 weeks.

He's hopeful families will continue the practice. According to Potvin, in every study, without exception, the correlation between success in school and reading with parents has been confirmed.

"I'm saying a few minutes of listening to your kids read or reading to your kids is the single most important thing you can do to assure success in school," he said.

BY CLARKSTON ASSOCIATES LIMITED PARTNERSHIP Notice to Township Residents.

The Zoning Board of Appeals has been requested to hear an appeal at their March 3rd meeting by Fox E. & Associates on a determination by the Independence Township Planning

The students have other interests besides academics, so their attention is spread, he said. Parents have higher expectations, and the schools have more and more financial strains.

"It's tough to see good, dedicated teachers have to worry whether they're going to have a job next year, and students have to worry about whether they'll have the classes they want next year," he said.

At the end of each year, a teacher has to take stock and make sure he doesn't suffer from burnout, he said, and he remembers the reasons he chose education as his profession.

DOROTHY WOULD LIKE her "yellow brick road" to lead to a good home.

Bring Dorothy home

Five-month-old Dorothy's origin is unknown, though she's probably not from Oz.

She was wandering in the cold when kind-hearted people brought her to the shelter where she has a chance to find a family and a better life.

Dorothy is a shepherd mix, probably with a little collie in her judging from her markings and her longer

She appears to be very trainable, very people oriented and is accepting of new circumstances. She's been groomed and had all her shots. All she needs now is a loving family.

Dorothy can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The adoption fee is $30, plus a $25 fee to have Dorothy spayed at the shelter when she is 6 months old.

And we need a few good Christians to fill out our core group. We believe the bottom line for every Christian should be helping others to know Christ. If you share this belief, we invite you to visit next Sunday or call us at 625-7332. We're only 30 people now. And we worship in the Carriage House at Clintonwood Park. Who knows, you might even rub elbows with a few tax collectors before it's over. Sunday Service 10:30 AM.

Area Junior Miss champions in Marshall for shot at title

Two Clarkston area high school seniors are in Marshall this week preparing for the Michigan Junior Miss competition, sponsored by the Jaycees in this area.

Rachel Young of Clarkston High School, and Jennifer DaKroub, of Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes High School, won their local competitions and are to compete with 22 other high school seniors for the state title and over $7,000 in scholarships.

Each contestant is to be judged on physical fitness, poise and appearance, creative and performing arts, scholastic achievement and the judges' interview.

Rachel said she was looking forward to going to Marshall and meeting her fellow contestants.

"I think it will be a fun week," she said. "Sometimes
I get a little nervous when I think about it."
