

If only they were real

Someone keeps plopping yellow tulips in Carolyn Bielak's front yard.

First it was a clump of yellow silk blossoms in May, then wooden yellow tulips in November and yet another silk batch last week.

While she's laughing about the mystery, Bielak is deeply curious. When the latest clump appeared, she put up an addition to the blossoms: "This is great. I love it. But who are you, anyway?"

In order to tell the story, Bielak says, one must begin with the fall of 1986 when 100 red and yellow tulip bulbs were nestled in place alongside Holcomb Street in Clarkston. At least she thought they were red and yellow.

In the spring of 1987, only red blossoms appeared. People raved about their beauty.

"I told them it was a surprise to me, because I thought I was planting red and yellow tulips," she says.

Shortly thereafter, the first yellow reproductions were added to the group.

"I called my friends and nobody would own up to it. They all laughed and said they wished they'd thought of it," she says.

After the November cluster appeared, she called everyone again. Ditto for their responses.

Bielak's sure that whoever put in the latest batch wants to hurry up spring, an attitude easy to understand this time of year.

"I wish I could give credit to whoever's doing it," she says. "It's just a fun thing. It's nice to have a fun experience."

Tree stumps anger many

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The conflicts Monday night were man against fish, man against his neighbor and man against the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

Over 75 angry Lake Oakland residents voiced opposition Feb. 29 to plans to add fish spawning areas of stone, concrete and wood to the lake, replacing the spawning areas that were damaged last fall when stumps were removed to make boating safer.

At the meeting in the American Legion Hall off Mary Sue Street in Independence Township, residents applauded Oakland County Drain Commissioner George Kuhn for protecting the homeowners' rights.

Residents' suggestions included the following: Add nothing, add only concrete and crushed stone and no stumps, close the public access in exchange for adding the stumps, punish the individuals responsible for damaging the habitat areas and add nothing, add more fish instead of habitat, and get rid of the carp so bass, walleye and pike would have a better chance of survival.

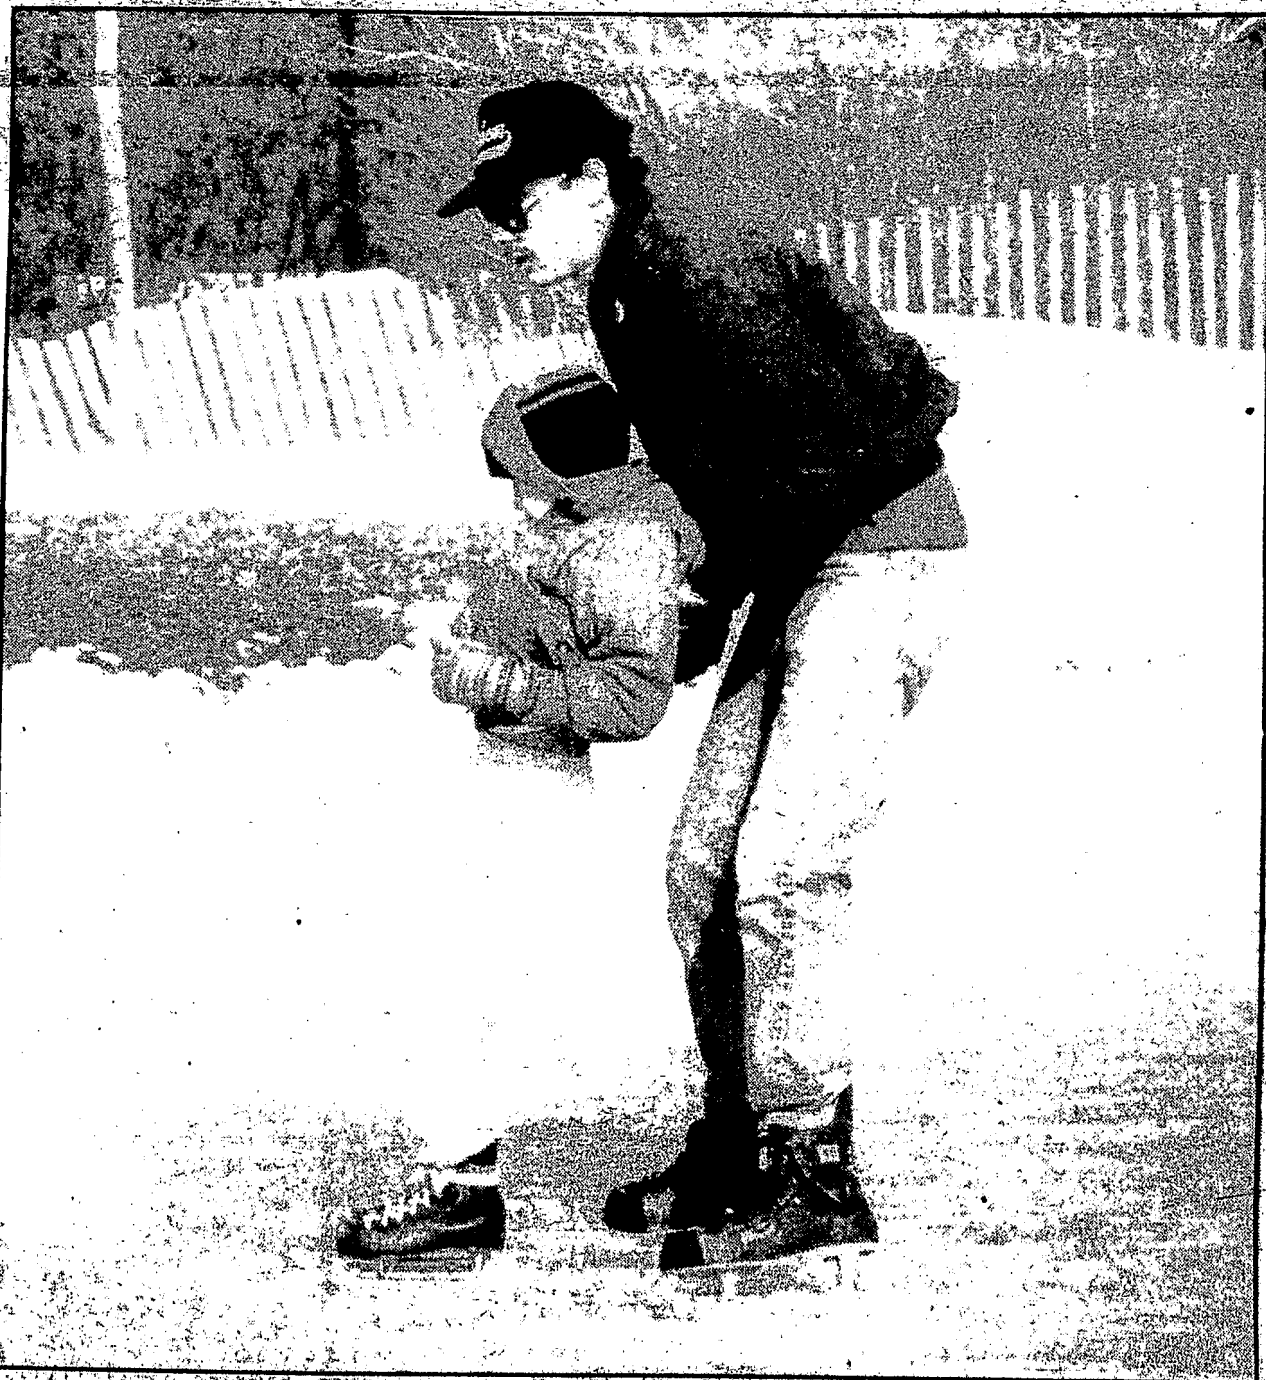

At the request of lake residents last year, the lake level was lowered 4 feet in November to allow residents to cut stumps hazardous to boaters. Several fish habitat areas were supposed to be restricted from any cutting, but some were cut without authorization.

About 40 tree stumps, around one or two tons each, were originally planned to compensate for the habitat loss, but residents objected when Oakland County Drain Commission (OCDC) employees placed them on the frozen lake Feb. 14. The stumps have since been removed and placed on the shoreline.

The purpose of the Feb. 29 meeting between lake residents, OCDC employees and DNR employees was to come to a compromise over the replacement of fish habitat in the 255-acre lake.

A specific plan wasn't agreed upon at the Feb. 29

Board ponders cuts to '88-89 school budget

BY KATHY GREENFIELD
Clarkston News Editor

After approving $1.7 million in cuts for the 1988-89 school year, the Clarkston board of education heard "Plan B," a report on what could happen if voters OK a $4.2 mill tax increase, on the June ballot, for operational purposes.

Although board members asked several questions at Monday night's special meeting, no changes were made to "Plan A," the label given the proposed cuts by the administration when the plan was introduced in January.

The board approved the cuts in a 5-0 vote.

Board President Janet Thomas said the action was necessary to allow time for planning and for layoff notices, which by law require 90 days for administrators and 60 days for teachers.

"Obviously these cuts will hurt us a lot. It's going to be a big step backwards for the district if this is implemented," said board member John Needham. "I call it a starvation budget, but I don't see that we have a choice."

"Sadly, that's true," said Thomas.

"I think John said it very well for me. It's not pleasant, but it has to be done," said board member Elaine Schultz.

Plan B for restoration will not be voted on by the school board until after a public hearing, scheduled Thursday, March 24, at 7:30 p.m. in the administration office on Clarkston Road. After the public comments are heard, the board is expected to set a millage rate for the June 13 ballot.

Plan B covers operational expenses, or the day-to-day expenses of the district for staffing, supply costs and student activities. It also recommends the sale of "excess district property": 80 acres at Reese and Rattalee Lake roads and 19 acres at Waldon Road near Sashabaw Road.

Plan B does not include money for repairs to the district's buildings. It recommends that the board proceed with its plan to ask voters to approve a bond issue of about $5.2 million for repairs to existing buildings, which would require a tax increase of up to 1 mill over a number of years.

The precise ballot request has not been approved, but on Feb. 15 the board directed its architectural firm to prepare the necessary documents, which must have state approval.

Under Plan A, 13.5 support teachers would be laid off, eliminating elementary school music, physical education, foreign language, two and one-half reading support positions and the existing gifted education program; two junior high school guidance counselors; two high school guidance counselors; the high school SEARCH program for students with substance abuse problems; and the half-time district computer coordinator and quarter-time keyboarding instructor.

In addition, 15.5 classroom teaching positions would be eliminated, one in elementary, 9.5 in junior high and five in high school; one central office administrator would be eliminated as well as the half-time athletic director; and 12 non-instructional personnel would be laid off: five media aides, three secondary school clerks, one custodian, two bus driver substitutes and the athletic director's secretary.

Non-personnel reductions would cover the elimination of all extracurricular activities including sports, drama and the marching band; all teacher training for curriculum changes; a 20 percent reduction in teaching supplies; and the purchase of three school buses.

Also under Plan A, $91,000 would be spent for new textbooks to update the science series and for some computer and social studies texts; and $53,527 would be transferred to the maintenance fund to make emergency repairs on buildings.

In addition, the general fund surplus would drop to $204,475.

Before granting approval to Plan A, board members questioned several aspects of the cuts.

The first question, from board member Needham, involved the need to cut back to five hours at Clarkston High School. He asked why a six-hour day wouldn't work.

"It will work," said Dr. Robert Burek, CHS principal. "A six-hour day will work and a five-hour day will work. The difference is about $300,000."

Burek said the seniors during 1988-89 shouldn't have any problem gaining enough credits to graduate, but if a five-hour day continued, graduation requirements would have to be lowered.

He also said opportunities for classes would be fewer, since the five-hour day eliminates an elective for each student.

When asked whether the high school would be in

Slight increase in assessments for residents

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Notices were sent last Friday about assessed value changes, and by Monday afternoon, David Kramer had already received a few phone calls.

"A lot of people are curious about what has happened to value," said Kramer, the Independence Township assessor.

The assessed valuations for most neighborhoods in Independence Township and the Village of Clarkston increased by less than 4.5 percent, or $31,439,200 total, over last year, said Kramer.

The residential assessments ranged from no change to a 27 percent increase, although most were low, he said.

"The important thing to remember is that not all neighborhoods appreciate (increase in value) at the same rate," he said.

A neighborhood is a group of homes that economically complement each other, he said. If a lot of homes were sold at high prices in a neighborhood, that means the homes in the neighborhood probably increased in value.

Kramer's job is to assess property at half its market value, or half the price a property owner could get if he sold his property. That figure is the amount taxed by municipalities.

Every year, the assessing department looks at the general values in the township to see if adjustments are necessary, he said.

"Adjustment is a recognition of how value has changed," he said.

Of the residential increases this year, $12,299,400 was the increase due to adjustments, and $19,139,800 represented half the market value of newly constructed homes.

In other areas, commercial property assessed valuations rose by $15,029,700. About $3,749,200 was half the value of new construction, and $11,280,000 was the adjustment for the value increase.

Industrial property assessment valuations increased by $432,400, of which $1,600 was new construction and $430,800 was the increase to adjust the value.

The numbers won't be official until after the March meetings of the Board of Review, three township residents who hear objections and solve problems with property assessments, said Kramer.

If people have questions, they should call the assessing department at 625-8114.

"Our records are open to the public," said Kramer. "We're willing to investigate their value along with them, if necessary."

New zoning inspector hired to help answer complaints

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When Don Phillips took the oath at the 52nd District Court, he realized how valuable his previous job experiences would be.

"After I was sworn in, they said, 'Don't get shot,'" said Phillips, laughing.

Before starting full-time Jan. 25 as the Independence Township zoning inspector, Phillips worked at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac, enforcing hospital policy. He also worked one day a week for the township in zoning enforcement.

He well knows the value of having a thick skin and a fair, objective outlook because he knows not everyone will be happy to see him. But most Independence Township residents will be happy, he said.

Most of his work will consist of checking into complaints. So far, the biggest complaint is junk cars.

If a car is not licensed or if it's inoperable, it must be stored in an enclosed building, said Phillips.

Other problems are vacant buildings, too tall weeds, dumps and too many dogs on a lot, he said, adding his goal is to check into all the complaints and to address the major eyesores.

He calls his approach simple. "(I'm) trying to get a problem cleared up without getting too involved and having to go to court," he said.

"I'd like to get things done on a one-to-one basis. ... I don't want anyone to think I'm picking on them."

Building Director Beverly McElmeel thinks Phillips was a good choice to fill the newly created position.

"He knows how to deal with people, and he's a good communicator," she said. "He's out there to help you. These are some of the fine qualities he has."

Besides addressing complaints, he will be working with homeowner associations on improving a whole neighborhood, she said, adding Phillips will also be working with property owners along White Lake Road to improve that area.

But most of all, he will be helping people, she said.

"We're not the police with our thumb on everybody. We want to promote goodwill so the citizens have a place to come and air their complaints."

"We have ordinances because people put them there. ... The zoning ordinance itself is the foundation of the community," she said, adding the enforcement of ordinances will make a more attractive community and will make property more valuable and more desirable.

"The attractiveness says something about the community," she said. "It says that the people care here."

More and more people are getting involved with the future of the community, and that's good, said McElmeel.

"With all the environmental concerns, people are getting more aware. They're just smarter now days. ... A lot of people care."

DON PHILLIPS, a Union Lake resident, is happy to be on the job as the township's new zoning inspector.

Women's work?

Kathy Greenfield

Outside influences have a way of creeping into lives, but sometimes the results are unexpected.

Last week, I scanned the headlines in the Detroit Free Press, not having time at the moment to read one that caught my eye: "Survey finds kitchen is still women's turf."

As the day wore on, I found myself thinking about the message. In our house, the kitchen is mostly my turf, but everyone else also bakes, cooks, shops, empties the dishwasher and puts things away.

The sharing of duties has caused a few problems, most notably frustrating searches for missing utensils, bowls, and so on, that show up in unlikely places. What's illogical placement to one person appears to be perfectly logical to another.

But we muddle on.

While I prepare most meals, it's a task I usually enjoy. There's something relaxing about peeling carrots after a busy day at the computer terminal. There are evenings, however, when I would rather not cook.

Mostly as I thought about the headline, I thought about how stupid the whole issue of sharing household duties has become. Who really cares if the wife cooks and the husband empties the garbage as long as both agree on the tasks.

In every household of working couples that I know, the men help out with household tasks. If they didn't, everyone would suffer.

While there must be families in which the wife rushes home from work and does everything while the husband watches TV or something, I'm haven't been able to discover one.

On this particular evening, I brought items home to prepare dinner. My husband wasn't home yet, so I put things in pans to begin cooking when he arrived.

We talked for a while after he appeared.

Then, to my horror, he said, "Why isn't dinner ready? I'm hungry."

"If you're so hungry, what's wrong with you cooking the meat?" I snapped.

Which he did.

Letters to the Editor

Kids are suffering

This year the Clarkston school system has received a hard blow from the voters in the community who voted no for the millage to pass, but it's not really the school system that's suffering, it's the kids.

I should know, because I am one of them.

The people of Clarkston are obviously voting no on the millage proposal to get back at the system for the high price of taxes this year, and since the millage is the only tax people are allowed to vote on, they vote no.

I know the right intentions are there, but it's definitely the wrong way to do it. The people who are voting no should know that the kids are losing out on a better education.

I wanted to take a foreign language class, but due to the millage being voted down, the class was not available. A foreign language is important for college acceptance.

Next year the high school is only offering five hours instead of seven, and because of this we are only allowed one alternate class instead of three.

Four and a half years ago, my family moved to this area because the Clarkston school system was one of the best school systems around, but since the majority of voters don't care enough to pass the millage, then I suppose it won't be one of the best for long.

Pep band praise

Before the basketball season at Clarkston High School is over, I want to personally thank a small group of students that participated in every home game.

For some reason, these students did not receive recognition at these games. They were practically ignored, not just by their peers, but by adults also.

What group am I speaking of? The Clarkston Pep Band, which has just as much spirit as anyone in those stands. They not only have spirit, but through their training in band, they know how to show respect of their school.

No matter how discouraging things seem to be, whether it is at a band competition or at another school or in their own gym, they try to conduct themselves in a professional way.

I want to briefly explain about the "Pep Band." It is made up of volunteers from either the Wind Ensemble or the Symphonic Band. Besides showing up for basketball games, the band students have practiced all winter getting ready for upcoming festivals, which started Feb. 13 in Farmington Hills, where band students as soloists or as small ensembles are judged for medals.

Those who received blue medals will go on to a state festival. If they play as well as they hope to, they will be heading for Grand Rapids for State Festival.

I'm not only writing this letter to thank the band kids for their hard work. I'm also hoping that I'm showing more people in the community of Clarkston how fortunate we are to have such talented and mature kids in Clarkston bands.

A Proud Mom of Two Band Students,
Samantha Dolsen

Very special gifts

Jim's Jottings

Jim
Sherman

It'll cost more for small raffle licenses March 31. Legitimate raffles, that is.

The Bureau of State Lottery's Charitable Gaming Division is tripling the price of licenses, going from $5 to $15. This license is for games with prizes under $500.

For drawings of over $500 the license stays at $50.

It is against the law for printers, like us, to print tickets that do not have the Michigan license number. It is also against the law to buy or sell tickets without the state ducat.

Lottery Commissioner Michael J. Carr said the additional $10 was needed to "recover our costs". Nothing was said in the news release about the state increasing the tax, excuse me, fee, to bring more money into state coffers.

The release did mention the high volume of applications.

Translated that means more Michigan people are gambling than ever before. And, more organizations are raising money through gambling than ever before.

Which brings us to the point of this week's column . . . casino gambling in Michigan.

We are such hypocrites. Here we have gambling all around us, much of it state approved and policed, yet we don't allow casino gambling. No, that's not true. The Indians can have casino gambling on their reservations, such as Bay Mills.

So, we actually do have casino gambling. Several from this area go to Ohio.

Then we have the state run lottery, with odds that make Las Vegas cry with envy. Love our state's slogan, "Somebody's going to win, why not you." At least Las Vegas goes don't have to hear that crap at the crap table.

The lottery was going to do great things for schools and budget. Every taxpayer knows his taxes haven't gone down since the lottery was started, and officials would have a tough time proving taxes would have gone up more without the gambling scheme.

Then there's bingo. And, more hypocrisy. Newspapers cannot advertise bingo games in spaces larger than one inch high and one column wide. Buy lots of licenses, play all the bingo you want, but don't over-advertise. That would show the state is in favor of gambling. Ridiculous.

Which brings us to horse racing. We can gamble at the pony tracks year around. We can also place bets on ponies at other tracks under certain rules.

Our protective leaders in Lansing save us from the sins of dice, but very openly welcome us to put two bucks on hayburners at Sports Creek, DRC, etc.

One of the arguments against casino gambling is that it brings organized crime, to town. What is it now, disorganized?

And, casino gambling ruins lives, takes incentive from the youth, reduces church attendance, and encourages promiscuity.

So does television!

Casino gambling, like the state-run lottery, could do great things for schools and the budget, and maybe it would keep taxes from going up quite so fast.

More Letters

Preston Yost of Oxford, his sister Marion Bates and their cousin Dorothy Holcomb Schaffer of Clarkston recently donated the band uniform that belonged to their grandfather, Butler Holcomb, in the middle to late 1800s, as well as a Thomas A. Edison phonograph and cylinders, which also date from that period.

After many years of hard work, the historical society board is now, in conjunction with the Independence Library staff, in the fact-finding stages of a library expansion plan, which will include a local history room.

Original documents, such as the maps and the gifts from the Butler Holcomb family, will become the cornerstone of our archival and artifacts collections.

They will be proudly displayed and gratefully acknowledged.

Rambling assault

Regarding Jim Fitzgerald's column "Golden Rule is silenced" in the Feb. 24 edition of The Clarkson News:

If this is indicative of the mind set of the people of Clarkston, I'm glad I don't live there. This has to be the worst commentary I've ever read, not only insulting but a blasphemous rambling assault on readers' intelligence.

Quote misleading

I am quite upset by the quote taken out of context that was in your newspaper of Feb. 24 concerning the Feb. 22 school board meeting. It was a terrible misrepresentation of my feelings about Clarkston students and the financial crisis we are in.

I would like to summarize several points I made that evening and add a couple thoughts.

1) The Clarkston school board, administration, staff and students have worked hard to improve our school system for the past several years.

We could be one of the best in Oakland County. Fourteen years ago when I came here, we were teaching an inadequate curriculum in inadequate facilities. With many pieces of a sound program missing, the myth of a superior system was strongly promoted.

Many curriculum improvements have been occurring and plans for more were on the table. Now with inadequate funding the past couple years, we are sliding backward again.

Smaller class loads especially in early elementary were coming true. Imagine, a gym and music in elementaries became realities and real physical education was beginning. Now we have space, but no teachers for these classes in the future.

If adequate funding is not found by fall of 1988, we will continue to tear apart the fabric of a good system.

I have witnessed the stress this has had on staff and students, particularly at the secondary level due to fewer choices and teachers needing to teach courses they are bumped into due to seniority rights. Of course, both teachers and students lose out again.

Do we run our lives, our homes, our cars, our lifestyles on the basis of the cheaper the better? There are still some people who would like to elude us into believing we can run an educational system this way.

I want my children to have the best education possible and I am willing to pay for it as long as I believe the money is well spent. I believe it has been in our school system.

2) The cuts we are talking about for next year will not give secondary students good choices and will shorten their school day.

I've worked with students long enough to know that many teens do better when they are active and part of a structured group. Boredom often creates difficulties for teens.

With a shorter school day and fewer if any extracurricular activities taking place, students will miss out.

Imagine empty ball fields, quiet stages, no music and many other very important and worthwhile activities not taking place. For many students, sports and extracurricular activities are very important in helping them grow into confident adults.

3) There are many excuses we can make as to why we refuse to vote for adequate funding for our schools. Waiting for Lansing to act has been one of them.

Well, Lansing acted a few years ago with many of your votes, and the system hurt tremendously by the Headlee Amendment has been the schools. There is no doubt that school financing must be more evenly distributed and the property tax is already heavy.

If we wait for Lansing to straighten out this mess, the Clarkston school system will be gutted so badly that it will take many, many more years to build it back up.

4) If you as a citizen in the Clarkston school system want an education that is well-rounded and solid for your child, I suggest 4.25 mills will not do the job. We need more than this.

It's a short-term, inadequate remedy that will continue inadequacy now and lead to a crisis in a year or two. I know I don't want to go through this hassle every couple of years, and I hope you don't.

It is truly past time for all of us in this community who care about children's education to develop an excellent well-rounded school system with a plan that will last several years.

This letter is by no means all I feel about Clarkston schools, but hopefully it clarifies the short one statement misrepresentation I saw in last week's newspaper.

'Fitz' is loved

Hi Jim,

Jes thought I'd contribute to your mail bag some of the bible verses you advertised for on Feb. 24th.

My Jesus wrote the old-fashioned Golden Rule you like so much . . . a real good bible verse.

Jesus does take a personal interest in you that no religion can. He gives His life for you, both before and after the Cross. How can I, as His right-hand man, do any less? So I'll sit down for ten minutes of giving my life for you in His name.

While you were at Michigan State College studying the bible like a book that is not "quick and alive, and sharper than a two-edged sword", I was being fed the religion of Humanism (Hinduism) at the U of M . . . kids will fall for just about anything, won't they?

My man Pat Robertson was blessed by your article, along with all the other born-again (Jesus's term), Spirit-filled believers, considering the verse in the Living Word that covers those "persecuted for righteousness' sake". Thanks for the Blessing, and for the advertisement of Jesus' name.

You probably have a stack of the enclosed article by Winkle Pratney, but if not, you'll get a charge out of it: It tells how the Bible is unique (Unique means, "No other like it"). Tells how your column was part of the scene some 1700 years ago, predicted for these "last days".

Believers don't swallow the idea that "Anything Goes" when it comes to how you live your life, any more than a mom does who protects her baby from spilling a pan of boiling water over him. You see, Love cares.

We love Jim Fitzgerald because Jesus does.

Success-makers

On behalf of the Clarkston Wrestling Club, I would like to thank the A.A.U. volunteers, the Clarkston Wrestling Club coaches, and most importantly, our club's own volunteers, their families and friends for donating their time and labor to the Clarkston Freestyle Wrestling Tournament on Sunday, Jan. 31.

Our tournament was a big success because of the support of these people.

I would also like to thank the Clarkston school district and the Clarkston Athletic Boosters for the use of their equipment and facilities.

Finally, our thanks to the various individuals for their private donations and to the local businesses that were kind enough to donate items for our concessions:

From Clarkston: A&P, Burger King, Elias Brothers Big Boy, Papa's Pizza and Pine Knob Wine Shoppe. From Drayton Plains: Dunkin' Donuts, Hardee's, Kmart, Kroger's, McDonald's, Tenuta's Food Mart, Wendy's and 7-11.

Book uncovers exercise scam

Jim
Fitzgerald

In my high-rise apartment building there resides a young woman who regularly walks up the 30 flights of stairs. I've never seen her do this, which isn't surprising. I've never seen the stairs.

I read about her in my favorite newspaper in a regular feature called "Healthier Than Thou." I also read the obituary page, which could be called "Deader Than Thou."

In a little book called "Why I Don't Jog . . ." the obituary page is referred to as "the Irish sports page." This stems from the fact that many Irish people almost make a sport out of finding out who's dead today and going to the wake.

Terrible Jean, my much older sister, likes to go to wakes to mourn with old friends, especially if the sad but social occasion requires a trip back to her old hometown. Terrible Jean not only pores through the obits; she keeps close track of the seriously ill so she can plan ahead.

It would be a bad pun to say a dead person revived a dead weekend for a reader of the Irish sports page. And Terrible Jean would kill me if I said a life-sustaining machine screwed up her social calendar.

If Your Number's Up, It's Up

So let's return to the book, whose full title is "Why I Don't Jog, Play Tennis, Bicycle, Swim, Row or Dance" (Quinlan Press, Boston). It was written by Thomas P. McCann, a Boston writer, TV producer and "sedentariologist." McCann believes there's no harm - and much enjoyment - in a sedentary life because:

"For as long as I can remember, I've believed in the 'number's up' theory. Simply stated, it means that when your number's up, it's up, and you die. It doesn't matter whether you're two, twenty-two, or a hundred and two. Nor does it matter who you are, what you do or what you have done. It doesn't even matter what 'shape' you are in."

As a devout sinner, I think McCann should be president and institute a National Physical Lethargy program. My favorite newspaper would publish a "Lazier Than Thou" feature describing the advantages of using the elevator instead of the stairs - it doesn't hurt your body all over, you don't sweat on your clothes, and you get where you're going much faster.

The exercising woman who walks up 30 flights in my apartment building does it five times in a row, four days a week. She takes the elevator back down each trip. I assume she doesn't walk back down because it's too easy. That's the same reason I insist upon sitting through the entire Free Press International Marathon, not lying down even once.

More Exercise-Related Deaths

Sitting isn't Thomas McCann's only hobby; he 'so collects obituaries of people who died while exercising. "Imagine my sense of well-being while reading the obituaries of such exercise victims as the guru of the U.S. jogging craze who died in the act, or the 38-year-old artist who suffered a fatal heart attack while exercising at an American Heart Association fund-raiser," McCann wrote. "And how about the macho man film star who dropped dead while jogging along an Irish country road? And then there's the racquetball champion who collapsed and died, also at 38, while playing racquetball."

That, almost exclusively, is what's in McCann's book - reprints of obituaries of the young, well-exercised dead. It's done with good taste - names of the deceased are blacked out to protect the feelings of immediate survivors and, perhaps, avoid lawsuits.

But the profound message is no less clear: Exercise can be fatal. In fact, McCann has asked the U.S. Surgeon General to put a "Dangerous to Your Health" label on all exercise products.

Incidentally, 53-year-old McCann's photo reveals him to be not a bit fat. Which supports my long-held contention that the sensible way to get thin is to stop eating so much. Running to lose weight makes as much sense as eating to catch a bus.

Finally, if you trip on the stairs, you could land in the newspaper feature: "Fell Farther Than Thou."

Residents voice complaints over stumps in lake

meeting, but another meeting was scheduled March 2 for OCDC and DNR officials to decide on a solution.

On behalf of the residents, Kuhn obtained the DNR permit to allow the lake improvements. He opened the meeting by introducing the officials.

Setting the tone for the evening, a resident in the audience yelled, "Are you the man who said 'Over my dead body?'"

The resident referred to a newspaper story quoting Kuhn saying the stumps would be allowed over his dead body.

Laughter followed the comment.

After a DNR presentation of a proposed Feb. 26 compromise between the DNR and OCDC, residents reacted.

Michael Thomas, of Meyers Road, said not all lakes in Michigan had stumps.

"On the fifth day, when God put lakes and fish on the earth, he didn't put stumps in," he said, adding that the stumps were created when man enlarged the lake. He asked how fish survived in other lakes without stumps.

DNR fisheries biologist Ron Spitler said the fish population was probably higher in Lake Oakland because of the stumps.

Chuck Gianakos of Edgewood said the DNR had no proof that stumps were removed and criticized the DNR for not monitoring the situation. He also said the DNR was violating the rights of the residents by trying to add stumps without notifying people.

"You guys went the punitive route and hauled stumps out before talking it over with the people," he said. "There's at least 100 people in this room who don't want any of this. ... What are our rights?"

Bill Garneau said he no longer lived on Lake Oakland but was speaking for his sister, a lake resident.

"I was born here in the bay down in Lake Oakland," he said. "What you people are doing is a shame. ... The DNR - not Oakland County - you people think you're God. ... You think you can do anything. You don't care about people."

Bernadette Walli, of Meyers Road, Independence Township, said adding materials to a shallow area was creating a safety hazard.

"I love fish, but I love people, too," she said. "I have children who live in that lake. I'm a registered nurse, and I've seen people paralyzed from the neck down."

She also said lawsuits would follow any injuries.

Jawn VanNorman, of Rutherford Court, Waterford Township, said the habitat additions were proposed for extremely shallow areas that would be worse than before the stumps were cut.

"Nobody has a problem with having a fish habitat," he said. "It's just when they're in ridiculous areas, it loses all our faith in what the DNR is doing."

On behalf of the American Legion members, David Kasat asked that no stumps be allowed to rest above the water level near the legion hall because their fishing lines would get caught on them.

William Klockow, an Independence Township resident and engineer for the OCDC, said he was monitoring the stump cutting and saw stumps being removed in the restricted areas. He drives by the lake on Sashabaw Road twice a day on his way to and from work, he said.

"When I came home (Friday of the last weekend), it looked like a cemetery with stumps as gravestones," he said. "When I came by on the following Tuesday, it looked like a dance floor."

Albert Massey, DNR regional supervisor in the division of land resource programs, addressed the audience after most of the comments were aired.

He said that the DNR held no formal hearing over the permit violations because both the DNR and the OCDC (which holds the permit) agreed that stumps were cut in the restricted areas, so the permit was violated.

According to the agreement last fall, the OCDC was responsible for monitoring the situation because the DNR doesn't have enough manpower, he said. Apparently, the damage was done by residents not involved with the authorized stump-cutting crews, which were comprised of lake residents.

"We're asking that some habitat be restored," he said. "The drain commissioner, who represents his constituents, feels it's best to do it this way, rather than going to court."

"We're not trying to punish anyone. All we're trying to do is re-establish the habitat."

DNR presents its case to public

Before the discussion began at the Feb. 29 meeting about Lake Oakland stumps, Ron Spitler outlined the revised habitat replacement plan.

A fisheries biologist for the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), Spitler arrived at the plan through compromises with the OCDC and other DNR officials, he said.

Last fall, over six acres of stumps were cut or removed in areas where nothing was to be touched, he said, and hundreds of 2-, 4- and 6-inch stumps were removed.

"Without replacement of some sort, ... the resource will go down hill," said Spitler. "I'll tell you, the property values will soon follow."

He apologized that the residents weren't notified of the plans to replace the stumps, but he thought the homeowner representatives would notify them, he said, adding he would be angry if the same situation occurred on his lake.

He proceeded with the plans - an alternate proposal to take the place of the 40 large tree stumps placed on the lake last month. The new plans were open to compromise, he said.

In the area in Waterford Township off Mariner

Rezoning endorsed

Part of a section of property zoned rural residential on Waldon Road was recommended for rezoning to single family residential by the Independence Township Planning Commission.

Because the property is surrounded by single family residential, the change would be a good one, said planning commission Chairperson Brent Bair after the Feb. 23 meeting.

"It's sort of an isolated island that just doesn't make a whole lot of sense," he said.

The 4.61 acres, north of Waldon Road between Almond Lane and Walters Road, are to be developed by the owners, Alan and Sandra Lawrence, for single family homes.

The commission voted 4-0 to recommend approval to the township board, which has the final say in rezonings.

Road, they proposed a 30- by 60-foot area of stumps and a 30- by 200-foot area of crushed stone on a fiber mat, sunk to the bottom, 4 to 6 feet below the surface of the water.

In the "Liggett Lake" area at the shallow, east side of the lake, they proposed placement of the small stumps that were removed from the west side of the Liggett Lake area.

Off Sashabaw Road in Meyers Cove near Scott's Lock and Key, they proposed placing one 30- by 60-foot area of "substitute logs," 12- to 16-inch diameter pipes on the bottom; out of sight; and one 30- by 200-foot area of crushed rock on fabric sunk to the bottom.

The DNR proposed a "natural area in the Independence Township Bay in front of the American Legion Hall, with three 30- by 60-foot areas for some of the new, large stumps and a 30- by 200-foot area of crushed stone on fiber.

The officials and residents didn't reach an agreement Monday, so another meeting was scheduled March 2 between DNR and OCDC officials to devise a solution.

After the Feb. 29 meeting, Spitler said he was "shocked" by the open hostility displayed at the meeting. He also said the people who spoke at the meeting were not representative of the phone calls he had received from people who supported the habitat replacement plan.

"There was just no compromising with them," he said.

The lake improvement was begun in the spirit of goodwill, with people from many governmental agencies working with many residents, he said.

"How bitterly disappointed I was that it turned out so bad," he said. "It's true that the stumps that were removed were 2, 4, and 6 inches, but each one of them had some value. (At the meeting,) there was no way of explaining biology to them."

The damage to the lake "just really broke my faith in human nature," he said. "I can't sit back as a resource protector and watch it get destroyed."

Take a pill!

If you don't want your children taking drugs, maybe you should be setting a good example. When people see a chiropractor for the first time, they are often surprised that we don't prescribe medication of any type. There's a very important reason for this approach. We regard pain as a warning signal our body sends out to indicate that something is wrong. Recognizing the human body as a very complicated organism, we advocate a conservative approach to drug usage. Drug usage is often given a prominent role in health care, when actually, our own natural healing abilities are a far more viable way to achieve good health.

And the Department of Substance Abuse couldn't agree more

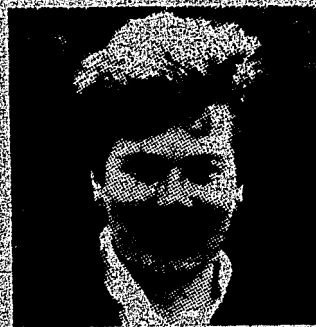

Can we teach our children that drugs are dangerous when we have a medicine cabinet full of them? If we are going to explain that drugs are dangerous, then we must realize ourselves that no drug ever solved any problem. No drug ever corrects the cause.

Health doesn't come from drugs. Health comes from the optimum functioning of the nervous system. Our own example speaks infinitely louder than words.

Math counts

Story problem: If John rows his boat downstream at 7 a.m. on a Sunday after eating a heavy breakfast and a locomotive is going 40 mph in the opposite direction along the bank of the stream, how long will it take William to build his new house?

Story problems like this used to cause me great consternation when I was a math student.

What connection, I wondered, could the solving of story problems possibly have with my existence and the potential success of my life or anyone else's?

The answer came to me in a flash between bites of salad last week. If one is to understand a complex family dinner conversation and all its intricacies and ramifications, one needs the abilities to reason, equate, compute and solve as gleaned from studying story problems.

The enlightenment scenario: I was sitting across the table from the Teenager, who was separating mushrooms from her spaghetti sauce and placing them in a mountain on the side of her plate between "ughs" and "arghs"; and the Perfectionist, who had offered to eat them before we sat down ... but had since changed his mind.

On my right was the middle child, asking for a slice of bread so she could create a "spaghetti sandwich." To my left was the baby, drooling, coughing and doing other baby things.

The conversation:

Teenager: "You eat them."

Perfectionist: "No, you go ahead."

Teenager: "You said you wanted them. You eat them."

Perfectionist: "That's OK. You can have them."

Teenager: "But I hate mushrooms. Pop down the toast."

The Perfectionist missed his cue and began eating. Frustrated, the Teenager reached a 10-foot arm in front of him and pushed down the handle on the toaster.

Me: "Gees. You've got arms like a gorilla."

Teenager: "You're supposed to. Your hands are supposed to reach down to your knees when you stand up. We learned it in school. Try it. You'll see."

I tried it (they came up short) and sat back down, addressing the Perfectionist: "You'd better not have your mother come for dinner Thursday. She might catch the baby's cold. Stop and get her a hamburger on your way home from the doctor's."

so she won't have to cook."

Perfectionist: "You know she can't have that stuff because of her diabetic diet."

Me (reconsidering): "You're right. Fast food places put sugar in their buns."

Perfectionist: "Sweet buns." Pause. "It's funny about Jimmy Swaggart. ..."

I couldn't resist the temptation. I looked directly at the Teenager: "See how your father's mind works. Typical male. He goes right from 'sweet buns' to Jimmy Swaggart and his prostitute problems."

Teenager: "Mother, that's disgusting."

Perfectionist (going flush red): "That's not what I was thinking."

His excuses fell on deaf ears; however, I was confident in my new-found wisdom.

Now, if I could only figure out why I had to learn to diagram sentences.

Goals set for Springfield Township park

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Improvements are scheduled for several Springfield Township parks in 1988, according to parks and recreation director Sherry Swindell.

Goals, improvements and a variety of park activities were set at the February meeting of the Springfield Parks and Recreation Commission.

At Karl Schultz Park, off Dilley and Davisburg roads, planned improvements include draining a low area of the park, putting up new park signs and adding a 10-foot fence behind one of the ball fields.

Holcomb Road Park will get ball field improvements, and a post and cable barrier along the Holcomb Road boundary to discourage motorists from driving onto the grass. Swindell says she hopes that the park will also get a picnic pavilion.

Plans at Mill Pond Park off Davisburg Road include beach improvements, additional playground equipment and possibly a second pavilion. Currently, there is one pavilion in the beach area.

Five more park benches and picnic tables will be added at Green Lake Park, off North Bay and Foster roads, as well as upgrading of the ball fields.

All of the parks will be brightened with summer flowers this year, Swindell says, and some will get additional landscaping.

The township's newest park, a 400-acre parcel called Shiawassee Basin Preserve, will get a 1-mile nature trail, thanks to the Davisburg Rotary Club.

According to Swindell, the trail will be unique because signs identifying wildlife and plants along the trail will include famous quotes from famous authors.

The nature trail will also be used for Walk Michigan events this year, as well as a walking clinic Swindell says will be added to the park programs in 1988.

Other programs for this year include golf, tennis, basketball and swimming lessons, as well as Great Escape programs for low-income people and senior citizens. These are one-day trips to Independence Oaks for tours, games and other activities. The township will again offer summer day camp programs for 6- to 12-year-olds, and discount amusement park tickets for all residents.

In conjunction with Oakland County Parks, the township will host the Easter Spring Fling March 26 and the Hot Air Balloon Festival in August at the Springfield Oaks Activities Center.

Springfield Township Parks also plans some type of Halloween activity this year, perhaps a haunted house or walk, Swindell says. Another new program planned is a residential Christmas decoration contest.

The township will again have its Christmas tree lighting and will also collect old Christmas trees after the holidays to make an "ice sculpture" of the trees in Mill Pond Park.

Swindell says they hope to offer ice skating at Mill

Pond Park next year, possibly even build a skating rink at the park.

Senior citizen programs in the township are held at Springfield Oaks Activities Center. The group meets once a week, on Thursdays, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Special senior programs coming up include free hearing screenings on March 3 from 12:30-2 p.m., a St. Patrick's Day pot luck dinner on March 17, an Easter dinner on March 31 and a fashion show on April 21.

Springfield Parks and Recreation is selling Tiger game tickets for a special benefit game on April 27 to support ball field improvements, Swindell says. They are also preparing a new brochure describing Springfield Township parks and activities for new homeowners in the area.

Murder suspect heads to circuit court

After two-and-a-half days of testimony at 51st District Court, murder suspect and former Springfield Township resident Jerry Strickland was bound over to Oakland County Circuit Court on Feb. 26.

The purpose of the preliminary exam before Judge Kenneth Hempstead last week was to examine the evidence to determine if a crime was committed and if the suspect could have been involved, said Julie Brown, an employee at the district court on Airport Road, Waterford Township.

Strickland, who was charged Feb. 17 with first-degree murder, armed robbery, kidnapping and two counts of using a firearm in the commission of a felony, remains in the Oakland County Jail without bond.

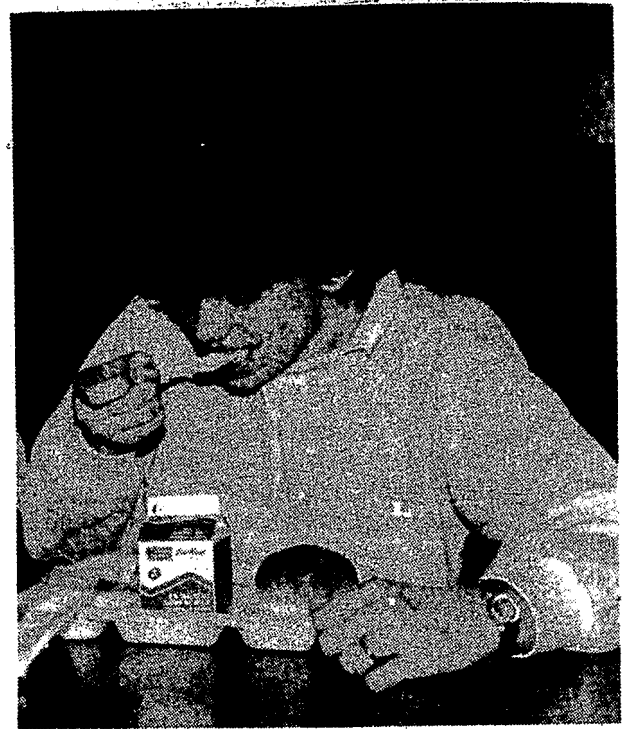

He is to be arraigned before circuit court Judge

James Thorburn at 8:30 a.m. March 10.

Waterford police charge that Strickland, 26, and Melissa Munday, 17, who lived together with their infant in Springfield Township, were responsible for the 1987 kidnapping, robbing and killing of Waterford resident Elmer DeBoer, 38, a currier for the Union 76 gas station on Dixie Highway near Andersonville Road, Waterford Township.

Munday is being held in Children's Village on open murder, kidnapping and armed robbery charges. Her preliminary hearing is scheduled March 9 in Probate Court.

The couple were apprehended Feb. 6 in Moses Lake, Wash., after the alleged murder case was broadcast on NBC-TV's "Unsolved Mysteries."

MUNCHING ON A "Good 'n Healthy Lunch" is Kerry Munday, a fifth-grader at Pine Knob Elementary School. February marked the introduction of a once-a-month menu designed to be low in fat, cholesterol and sodium, said Mary Claya, Clarkston school district food service director. "Our goal is to expose students and staff to an alternative to our regular lunch and to promote a healthier eating style," she said. February's healthy menu listing was turkey slices, herbed rice, fresh frozen peas, fresh fruit, roll and milk. March 18 is the next date for the "Good 'n Healthy" menu choice. [Photo by Julie Campe]

Planners support 27-acre rezoning

With little comment, the Independence Township Planning Commission recommended rezoning from industrial to residential for 27.62 acres on Andersonville Road near White Lake Road.

The commission voted 4-0 to support the change

Meeting spot changes

The March 10 meeting of the Springfield Township Board will be conducted in Fire Station No. 2 at the corner of Rattalee Lake Road and Dixie Highway beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The change of location from the township hall in downtown Davisburg is due to a conflict in scheduling with the Springfield Township Board of Review, which is using the township hall that evening from 6 to 8 p.m.

The rest of the township board's monthly meetings in 1988 are scheduled to take place the second Thursday of the month at 7:30 p.m. in the township hall.

from the heavy and limited industrial zoning. The township board has the final say in rezonings.

The owner, Dan Proctor, plans to develop the site for 40 luxury condominiums. Construction will begin next fall if all approvals are granted, he said after the meeting.

Proctor said he would request a planned unit development, which allows different uses on a property and allows a site to be developed in phases.

During the meeting, commission member Carol Balzarini said she had inspected the tree-covered site with other commission members.

"It's an extremely beautiful site, and it would be a crime to have it developed as it's currently zoned," she said, mentioning the hills and lakes on the property.

Jo Fussman agreed.

"It's impossible to develop as industrial without destroying the integrity of the land," she said.

During the public hearing for the rezoning, Les Hyde of Andersonville Road, Independence Township, said, "I like it."

Clarkston High Junior Varsity
Wolves 71, Lakeland 39

Feb. 23 - The host Wolves started off slow in this contest and led by only nine points at halftime.

Clarkston picked up the pace in the third quarter and outscored the visitors, 20-7, en route to an easy victory.

Scott Trekman and Reggie Reed were the top point scorers for the Wolves with 15 points apiece.

Wolves 69, Waterford Kettering 53

Feb. 26 - Clarkston students may have had an off day from school Friday, but the Wolves sure didn't on the court at Kettering.

Once again a strong third-quarter effort by the Wolves helped overpower the opponents.

After a 26-11 scoring surge in the third stanza, Clarkston was able to roll to victory.

Scott Weeks had 19 points to pace Clarkston. It was his best game of the season, said Coach Tim Kaul.

Jason Brown added 13 more for the victors.

As a team, Clarkston canned 16-of-20 free throws in the contest.

Clarkston High Varsity
Wolves 61, Lakeland 48

Feb. 23 - The Wolves led all the way as a tenacious defensive effort smothered the Eagles' offense all night long.

Mike Barnes was the team's leading scorer with 19 points. He made eight of those in the first quarter.

Jeff Tungate had 17 points and Chip Galley made 15 in support for Clarkston.

The victory was the team's third in a row.

Sashabaw Junior High
Waterford Mason 46, Cougars 40

Feb. 23 - Chris Wasilk and George Crouch scored 11 points apiece for Sashabaw, but it wasn't enough to stop powerful Mason.

Milford 67, Cougars 45

Feb. 25 - Sashabaw closed out the season with a loss against Milford.

Chris Figa was the lone scorer in double figures for the Cougars with 10 points.

Sashabaw finishes with a 5-10 overall record.

"I'm happy with the way the kids improved," said Coach Charlie Shires.

Clarkston Junior High
Waterford Pierce 69, Wolverines 43

Feb. 23 - Dave Eby topped all Clarkston scorers with 11 points.

Waterford Mason 82, Wolverines 42

Feb. 25 - While the score might have been lopsided, all of the Clarkston players managed to score.

Coach Bill Bildstein said it was the only time this season everybody scored.

Nerves spoil title shot for wrestlers

STATE MEET FINALISTS Jason Campbell (left) and Dave London both were eliminated early in the wrestling competition staged in Battle Creek but not before each claim one victory.

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

As new experiences go, wrestling in the state meet was everything two Clarkston High grapplers expected it to be - and more.

After a five-year absence from the main event of high school wrestling, the Wolves were represented at the annual affair by Dave London and Jason Campbell.

London wrestles in the 119-pound class and Campbell in the 185-pound division.

Both are juniors and were wrestling in an event as large and important as the state meet for the first time. Both fell victim to nerves in early matches, but not before each was able to register a win.

"I was really nervous," said London. "That was my main problem. It will be a lot different next year."

He was knocked out of the competition in the early rounds, winning his first match and then dropping the next two.

Coach Scott Strickler said London was involved in some very exciting matches and nearly pulled off a major upset before being eliminated.

Both wrestlers said that they could have advanced further than they did.

Campbell said he was nervous heading into his matches and has learned a lot from the weekend experience.

He was eliminated during the first two rounds of action and lost one match during the final 30 seconds that he shouldn't have, he said.

"I was kind of disappointed," he said. "I should have beaten the guy."

The state meet was in Battle Creek this year and Oakland County participants made a strong showing, said Coach Scott Strickler. Teams from the Lansing area had dominated the meet in recent years.

"It's a good feeling to get back to the states," he said. "Since they are both juniors this will be good experience for them."

Strickler hopes to get even more wrestlers to the state meet next season.

"Maybe we can get things rolling like we did a few years back," he said.

Spikers sweep Sashabaw for exciting win

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The junior high volleyball season came to an end last week with the second half of an annual clash between Clarkston and Sashabaw.

Unfortunately for the host Cougars, they couldn't stymie a late season slide, as the Wolverines swept the series, 15-7, 15-11.

The loss dropped the team's record to an even 10-10 after it had begun the year by winning 8-of-9 matches.

Afterward, Cougars coach Sue Koslosky reflected on the disappointing loss to Clarkston.

"Clarkston bumps the ball real well," she said. "They are going to beat an attack team."

On the plus side, Shannon Doby, Jackie Boucher and Lauren Caston all played well for the Cougars, she said.

But inconsistency has dogged the squad all year. "We show up in spurts and not over long (periods of time)," Koslosky said.

Sashabaw dropped a 5-15, 12-15 decision to Brandon Feb. 17, and Koslosky said the Cougars never were a factor in the first game. By the time they got rolling, the match was over.

The Cougars' woes continued against Milford when they lost, 15-5, 8-15, 8-15, on the road. Once again, Sashabaw couldn't put consistent back-to-back good games together, she said.

On the other side of the net, Clarkston ends its season on a high note with a season sweep of rival Sashabaw.

CLARKSTON JUNIOR HIGH ends the season with a sweep of rival Sashabaw on the road much to the delight of the Wolverines who celebrate on the court as they finish with an 8-10 record.

Koslosky couldn't remember the last time the Cougars were swept by the Wolverines. Carrie Rosser served up six points, including the last two, in the first game for the victors. Jeany McChasey added two more for Clarkston.

Call for team coaches

Coaches for ninth-grade baseball at Clarkston Junior High and ninth-grade boys track at Sashabaw Junior High are needed as soon as possible.

Interested persons should contact Athletic Director Paul Tungate at 625-0906 for more information.

Pom pons take 10th

Clarkston High's pom pon squad finished 10th out of 18 schools at a state competition over the weekend.

The contest between 18 Class A schools in the state was hosted by Davison High School.

Adults interested in softball leagues for men, women, co-rec, 35 & over men, 30 & over women and men's morning teams can register for the upcoming summer season beginning March 2.

The costs vary per league according to the number of games played.

Games are scheduled to begin the week of May 31. For more information, contact the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department at 625-8223.

Deadline nearing

Deadline to sign up for junior baseball or softball is March 12 at the Independence Township Parks and Recreation office, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston.

Anyone registering after the cutoff date will be assessed a $5 late fee. The cost is $35 for one child and $15 for the second.

There will be leagues for boys and girls, ages 7 to 18. Practices begin in May and the games will start the week of June 20 and run through July.

For more information, call the parks and recreation office at 625-8223.

Spikers square off

Sashabaw put up a good fight in the second game but was unable to pull out a win as McChesney served up the winning point for the Wolverines.

The victory bumped Clarkston's final record up to 8-10 and managed to put a smile on all the Wolverines' faces - including Coach Jeanne Odell.

"It's been great," she said. "They have all learned a lot and really improved. All of them."

Before closing up shop for the year, both clubs agreed to play a third game even though the issue had already been decided.

Many of the players who didn't get a chance to see action in the first two games were able to log some playing time.

Sashabaw was able to gain some measure of revenge when the team was victorious, 15-1.

Time out

Sunday is my fun day

Peter Auchter

On a particularly rather boring Sunday afternoon, I found myself daydreaming as I peered out of the picture window of The Clarkston News office.

The sun lit up the streets as the people of Clarkston bustled by, oblivious to the man watching them from behind his computer terminal.

Obviously, such a condition did not lend itself well to working. It was more suited for goofing off.

So, without a moment's delay I headed out the door with my trusty camera to my personal favorite place to hang out - the Clarkston High School gym.

In search of a little fun, I thought I'd take in a game or two of the Independence Township Parks and Recreation league teams that play on Sunday evenings.

I also snapped a few pictures - while I was there having the ultimate time of my life - so I could write the whole trip off on next year's income tax. (If I decide to pay my taxes, that is. Let me tell you, I can't wait to get rid of Ronald Reagan, but that's another column.)

The action - with two games going on at once - was so intense my body tingled as I entered the gym. These guys meant business.

Complete with exotic uniforms, coaches and cheering sections, these games packed all the wallop of Sports Illustrated's swimsuit issue into a neat little family oriented night on the town.

Who needs the Pistons in there crummy little Palace next fall?

Best of all, these games are free to watch. But be warned, no laughing, heckling or jeckling allowed. After all, this isn't the NBA.

One of the team's I happened to follow a little more closely on this particular Sunday evening was Tri County Power Rodding. Not because of any spectacular plays or unusual uniforms, but due to the constant bantering of its coach.

Chants of "He ain't nothin'" from Andy Pinner, constantly reminding his club of the opponents' weakness on the court, rang out loud and clear.

Word has it that he practices his chant while at junior varsity basketball games, but that's probably just idle rumor.

Of course, the fact this catch-all phrase is uttered 365 times a game does tend to dilute its effectiveness. But since the game is for fun (or at least most of them start out that way), it still gets the job done.

In between all the circus acts, the teams played an exciting, close ball game with plenty of good high-class plays to thrill the audience. It wasn't exactly a standing-room-only crowd, but there were a few die-hard fans taking in a game or two.

During my time as a sports reporter, I have seen a fair share of athletic events and I have to say from the bottom of my heart, these games were some of the best.

Granted, players like these are not trying out for the NBA, but they are working their tails off and having a lot of fun.

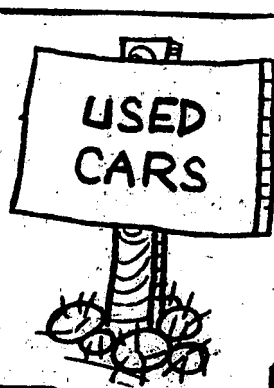

I also was having fun watching them play. The next time you find yourself lying around bored beyond belief on a Sunday evening, why not check out a game or two?

Wolves whip Kettering, ready for playoffs

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

As the boys prep basketball season heads into March, the Wolves seem more and more up for the playoff challenge.

The latest example of Clarkston's handiwork is the 81-62 pasting it gave Greater Oakland Activities League foe Waterford Kettering on the road Friday night.

With the win, Clarkston stays in first place with a 6-1 league mark. The Wolves are 12-5 overall.

If Keenan Powell wasn't dropping in a basket from the lane, then Jeff Tungate was bombing the Captains from the three-point line for the Wolves.

If Darin Brandt wasn't harassing a Kettering shooter while attempting to steal the ball, then Mike Barnes was.

No one really stood out in the victory - because nobody really had to. As far as Coach Dan Fife was concerned, that is the way it should be.

"Everybody contributed," he said. "It was a heck of an effort."

Chip Galley drew first blood in the contest with a free throw. On Clarkston's next trip down the court, Tungate swished a three-point shot to get the Wolves rolling.

Clarkston built up a 10-2 cushion before Kettering knew what hit. The host Captains eventually caught up behind sharpshooter Ryan Thorpe, who could match Tungate's deadly shots from the three-point area.

With the score knotted at 16 apiece and one minute left in the opening quarter, Fife inserted Keenan Powell into the lineup. The rest is history.

Powell scored 10 straight points to power a scoring thrust by the Wolves and put them in command the rest of the way.

Clarkston led, 26-20, after Powell's scoring spree and never were seriously challenged again. His fine effort off the bench came at a critical time in the second quarter for the Wolves.

"That's the time when the starters start to get tired," Fife said. "Keenan was our spark tonight."

Powell finished the game with 17 points. Tungate was the team's leading scorer with 21. Chip Galley had 14 and Josh Newblatt added 13 for the victors.

Tungate continued to swish long-range shots in the second half as Clarkston poured it on and polished off the Captains, a team that had won four straight games after a poor start.

The Wolves now will prepare for the final week of the season with games against GOAL challengers Pontiac Northern on the road March 2 and Lake Orion at home March 4.

The Huskies were two games behind and the Dragons were one behind in the race for the league crown as of Feb. 29.

Spikers draw Holly in opener

After an up-and-down regular season, the varsity volleyball team now looks toward the districts on Saturday for redemption.

The Wolves, who have been battered and beaten by some of the top teams in the state, received a break in the draw for the districts at Rochester High, said Coach Gordie Richardson.

"Anything is better than being in the top bracket with Lake Orion and Adams," he said.

The district pairings were divided into two pools, an upper bracket and a lower bracket. Clarkston ended up in the latter along with Holly, Rochester, Grand Blanc and Pontiac Northern.

Lake Orion, Rochester Adams, Pontiac Central, Waterford Mott and Waterford Kettering make up the upper pool of schools vying for the district crown this year.

Against the teams in Clarkston's bracket, Richardson said his club should be able to hold its own.

"I think that we can play with the team we have drawn," he said. "We have gotten better all season long and I'm pleased with our progress."

Lack of experience under fire hurt the team earlier in the year. Both as individuals and as a cohesive unit, the Wolves have learned how to win games over the course of a rough season that ended with a 11-17 overall record, he added.

But there still are a few rough edges that need to be worked out if the Wolves are to remain competitive with the cream of the crop come playoff time.

"We have to deal with the little problems and not make them big ones," he said. "We have to start picking our blocking angles and read (opponent's) hitters better."

Clarkston opens play at Rochester High Saturday morning at 9 a.m. against Holly. No matter what happens, Richardson knows it will be for the good of the team.

"It could be a real good experience for us," he said.

Next year, the entire team except the three seniors (Tara Carncross, Ali Fedio and Coy Carlson) will return and will provide Clarkston with plenty of experience from the first game to the last.

Brandon couple shares legacy

Photos, memories give glimpse of yesteryear

BY CAROLYN WALKER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Adelma and Frank Sherman, husband and wife, sit in the comfort of their 40-year-old home.

Family pictures, old clocks and antiques lining the walls give it a warm, cozy atmosphere.

Outside, the afternoon sun glances colorfully off what's left of this year's big snow. It is a day for reflecting.

"Dad Sherman owned this area," Adelma says, referring to her father-in-law whose property stretched for acres along Oakwood Road, Brandon Township. He gave them the lot on which they built their current residence during the early 1940s.

Frank, a retired owner of Sherman's Well Drilling and Pump Sales, and Adelma, a former Brandon grade school teacher who originally hailed from Hadley, have done a considerable amount of family-history research.

Their task was somewhat eased by a bounty of heirlooms including pictures, journals and diaries from Frank's family. The pictures, especially, show the fun, if somewhat austere life that former Brandonites lived.

The journals, on the other hand, detail harsh realities of a time gone by.

With the goodies strewn about them, Adelma and Frank banter good-naturedly back and forth, discussing the community contributions of Frank's forbears.

Perl Sherman, Frank's father, was a member of the locally famous Sherman family, New York farmers who worked the land of Brandon Township before descendants founded the Sherman Funeral Home.

The contributions of Perl, who was a village president for 15 years, were equaled by those from the maternal side of Frank's family: the Wilderses of Kegworth, England, who arrived in 1848.

The Rev. William Wilders (referred to affectionately by Adelma and Frank as "the original Wilders"), after settling in Brandon, established the Baptist church which constructed its first building on South Street, in 1866.

It is from the Rev. Wilders' family that the pictures and diaries came, outlining Brandon, indeed American, life as it was before and just after the turn of the century.

According to the Wilders' diary, written during the family voyage to America, this is how it was for those who braved the seas to settle in Oakland County: "At night some (passengers) were singing, others swearing, one playing the fife, another the accordion, some vomiting and others doing various other nasty jobs."

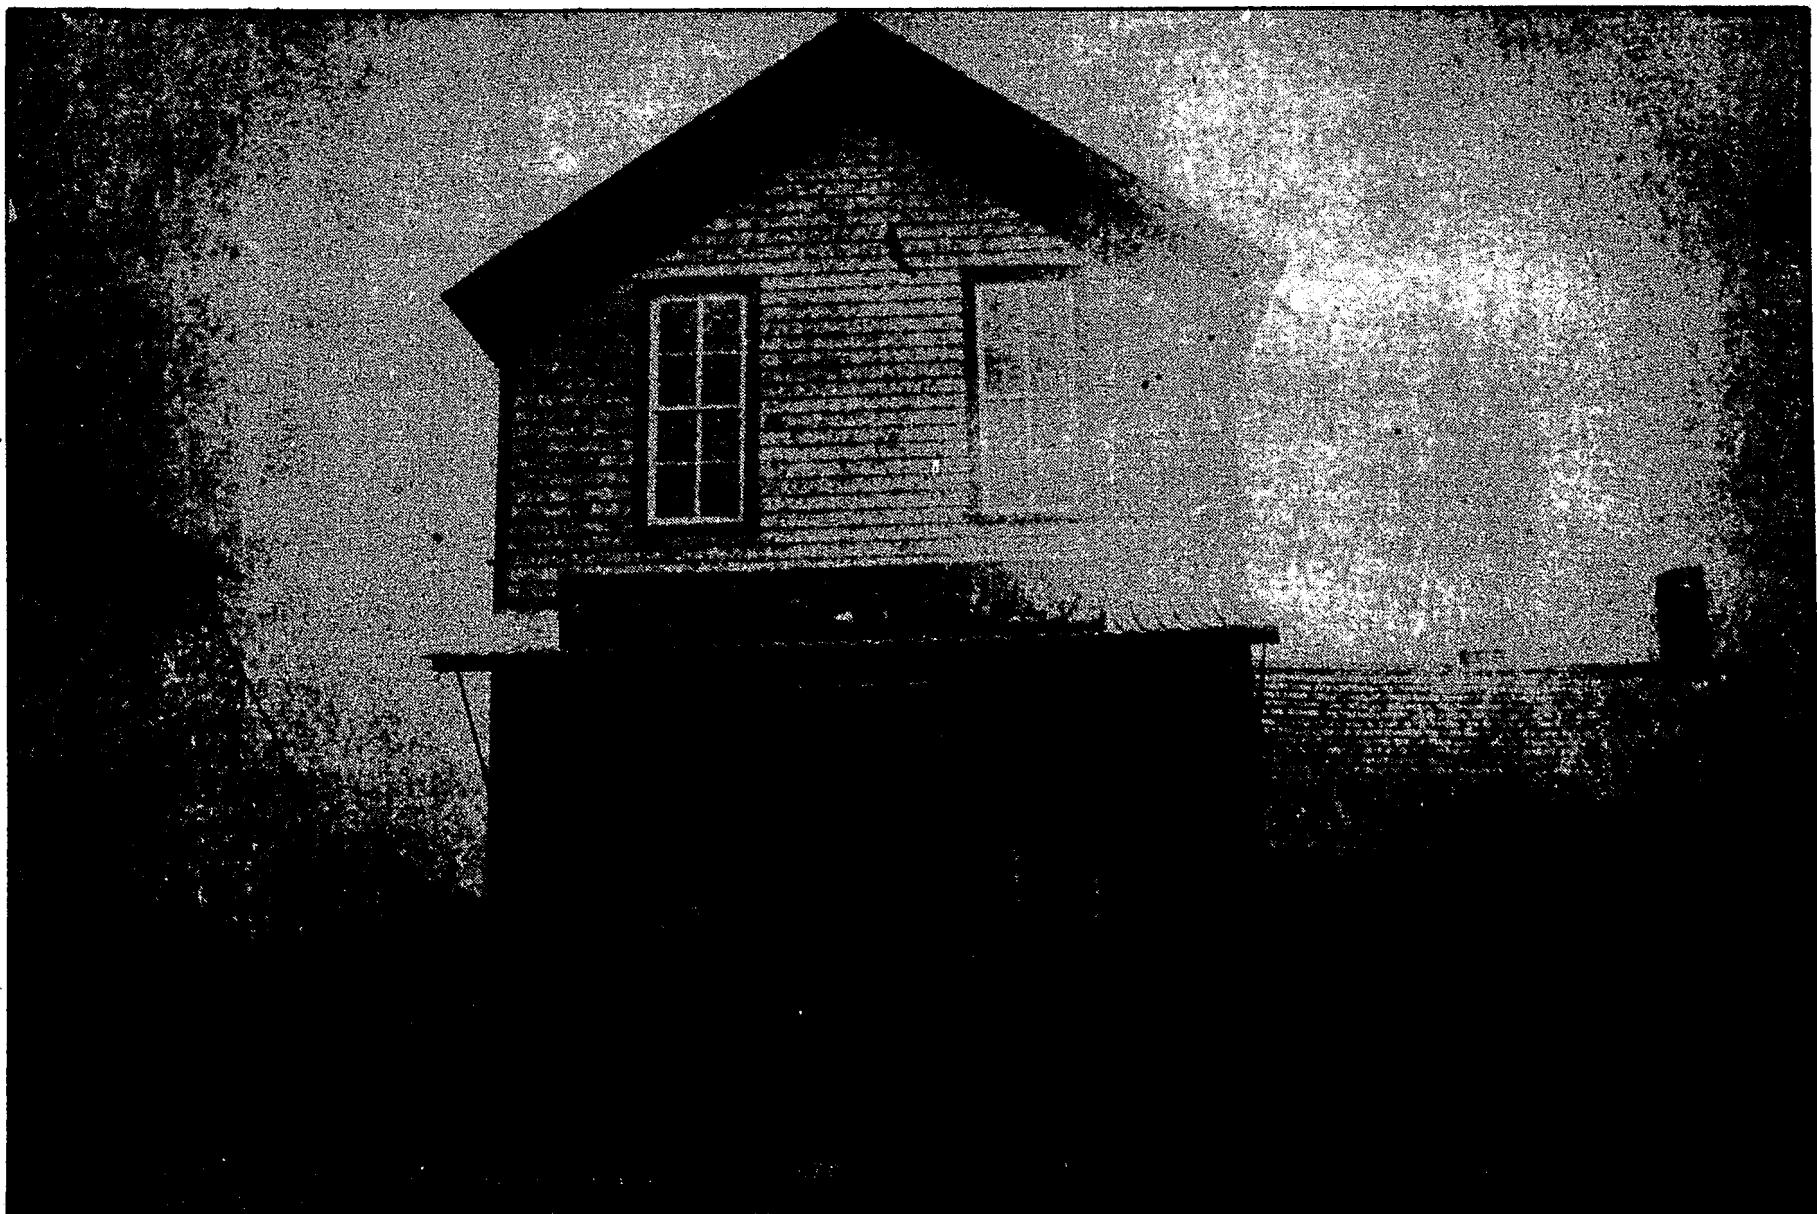

The Wilders family pictures show happier scenes:

family members holding wreaths and surrounding an American flag on what one can only imagine was a long ago Memorial Day; Albert Wilders, a son, standing alongside a display case in his drug store on Mill Street, Ortonville; a companion picture of the building from the outside, derby-hatted patrons standing beside their horses and carriages; the 1915 Brandon homecoming, a festive day with parade and games.

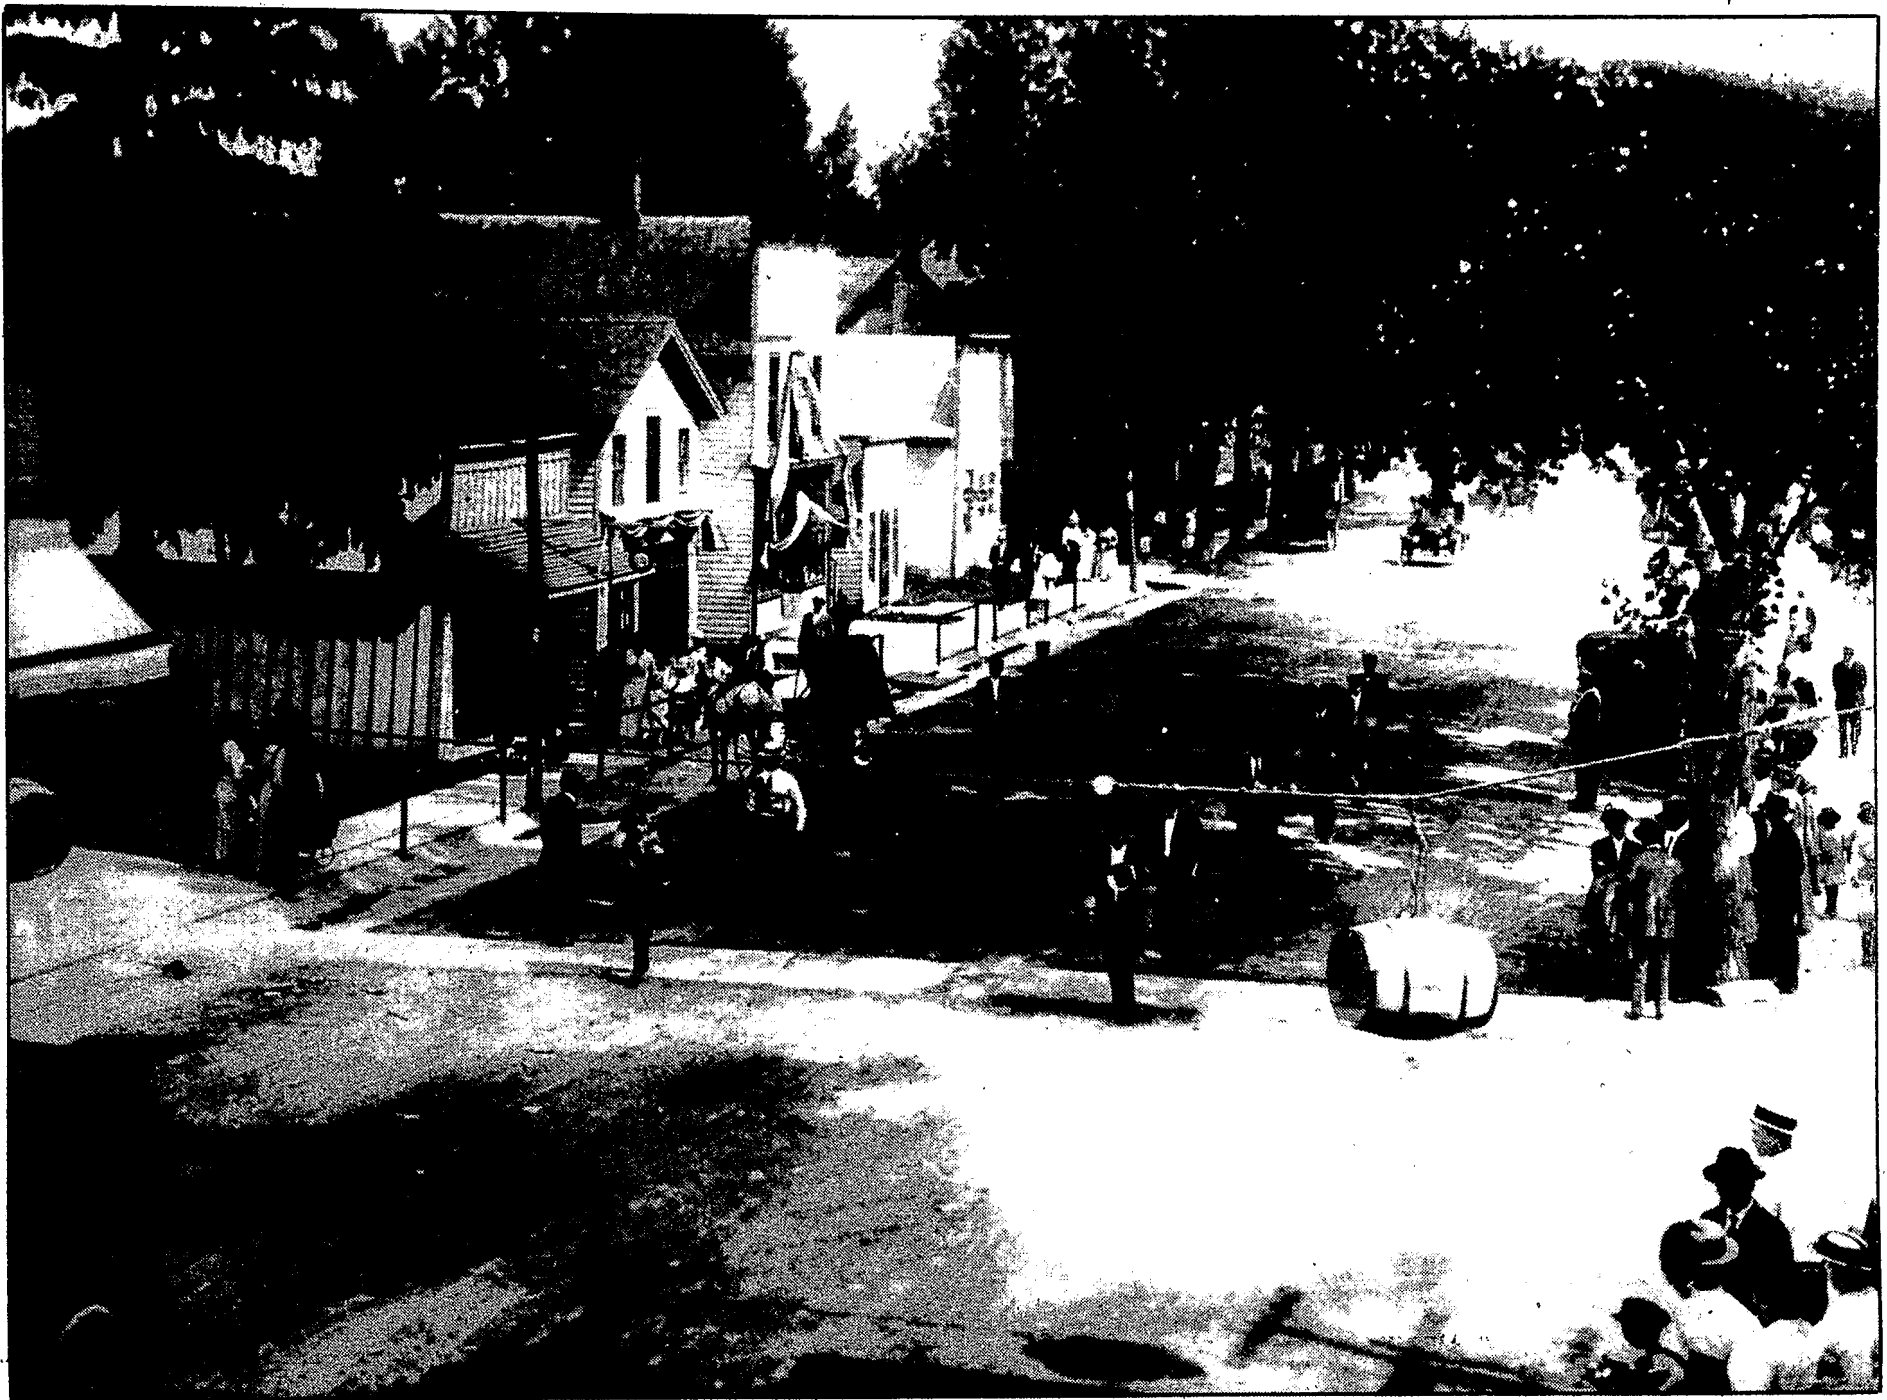

A few of those pictures grace these pages.

FRANK AND ADELMA Sherman's collection of family photos, diaries and journals tells the history of Brandon Township and Ortonville.

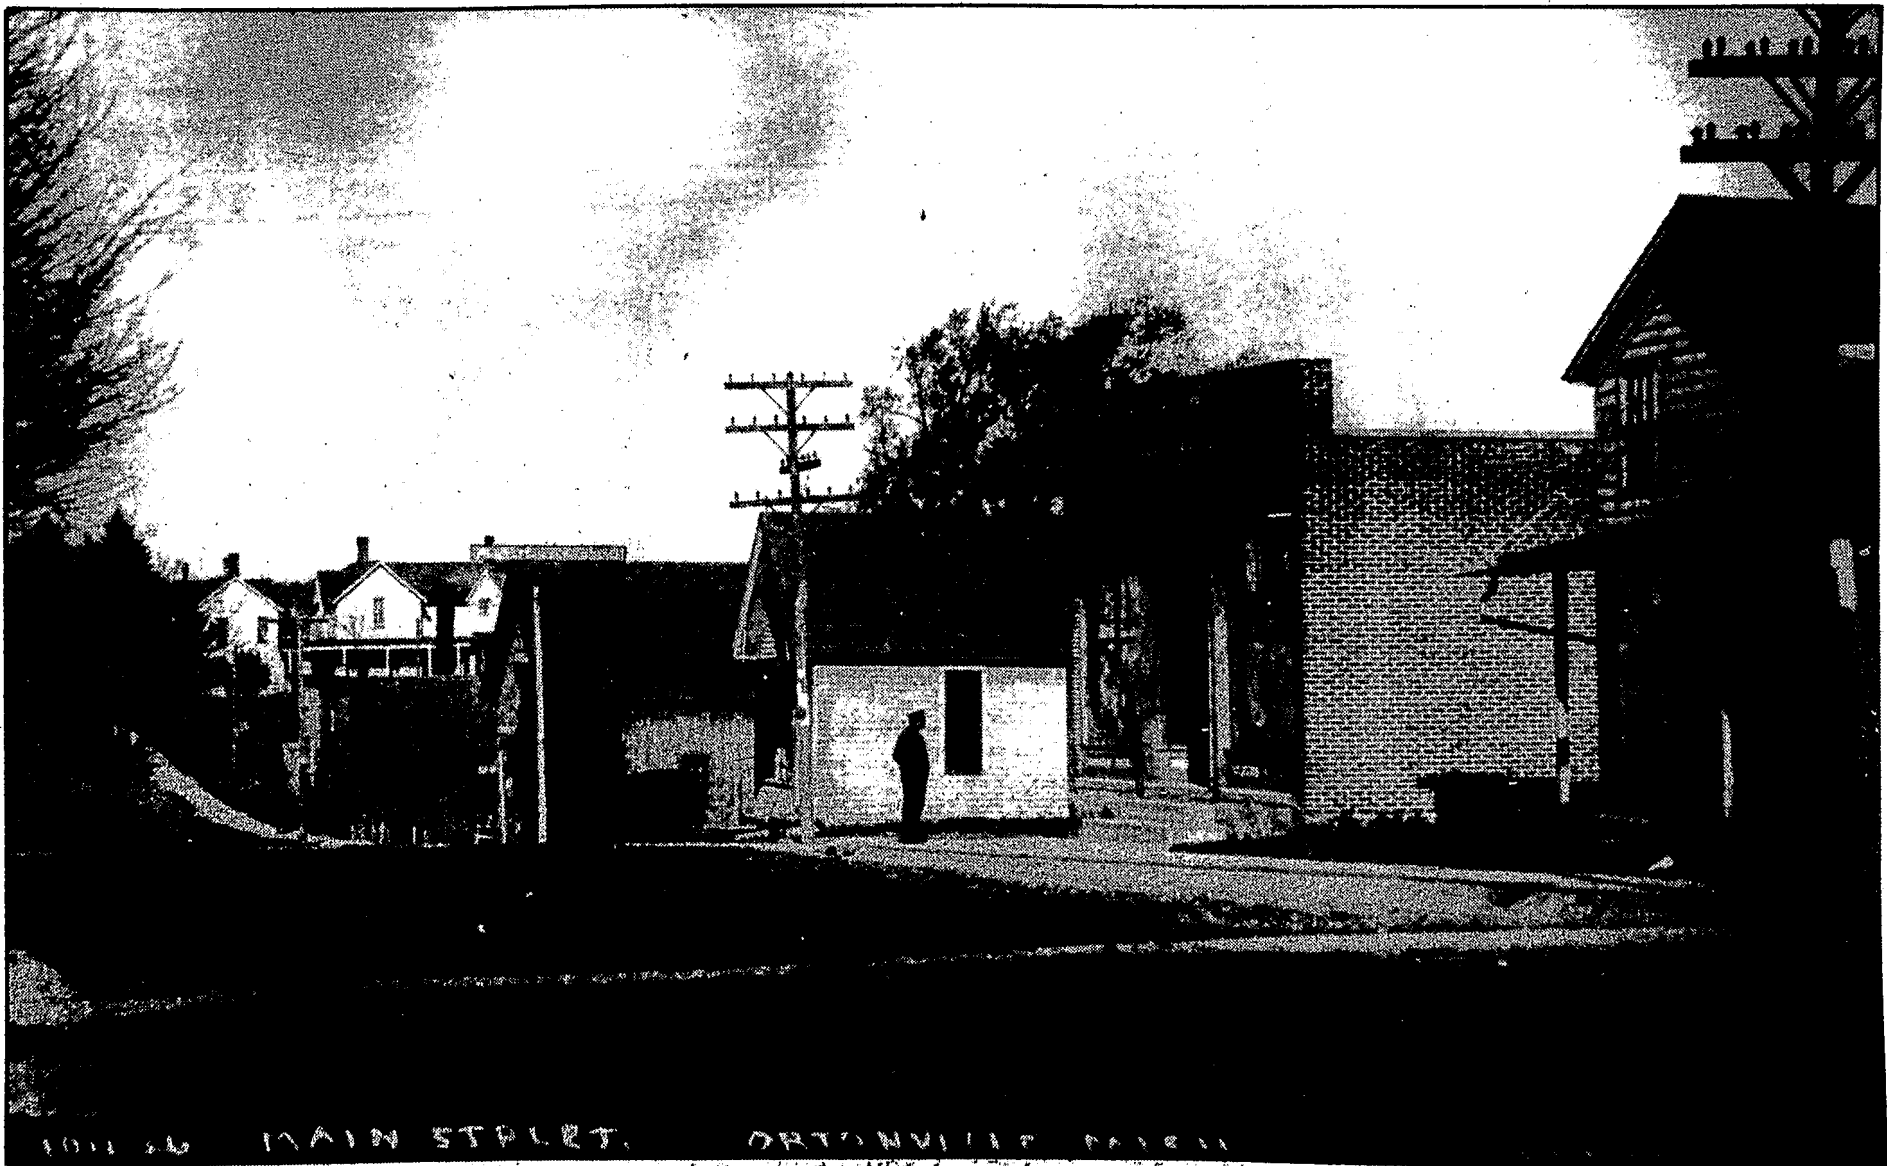

MEN AND HORSES stand before Albert Wilders' drug store on Mill Street. Albert was the son of the Rev. William Wilders, who built the first Baptist church in 1866.

THIS PHOTO, taken in September, 1910, shows the Brandon homecoming, a festive occasion featuring parades and games. The barrel strung in the foreground was a target for the fire department's hoses. In trying to blow it back and forth across the street, half the fun, according to the Shermans, was getting the crowd wet.

trees and the square-looking structure near the middle are still standing.

Lack of funds forces program cuts greater danger of losing accreditation from North Central, Burek said it would, adding that at one time, students who attended high schools with the accreditation were automatically admitted to college. Now, colleges look at college board test scores and grade point averages, Burek said.

"Of more importance is, the program has suffered," he said. "Over a period of time, it will have serious effects on education - it will next year."

The elimination of the SEARCH program at CHS was also discussed.

"I would see us losing a large measure of the progress we've made at Clarkston High School in the past several years in addressing substance abuse," Burek said, adding that SEARCH coordinator Katie MacKay has "made a difference in the lives of many youngsters at Clarkston High School."

Attendance checks, which have included telephone calls home to check on absent students, will probably stop due to staff cutbacks at the senior and junior highs, said Burek and Sashabaw Junior High Principal David Reschke.

At the elementary level, a question about running libraries without aides brought this response from administrative assistant William Neff: "I think you would walk by four days out of five and probably see the libraries locked up."

Children would probably be allowed to check out books one day a week as the librarian spent one day a week at each of the five elementary schools, he said.

"It's not good," said board member Carolyn Place. "No, it isn't," said Neff.

Due to the cutback in reading support, for the first time only the children with the greatest difficulties could be seen, creating a waiting list for the others, Neff said, and pupils in grades four and five would no longer receive remedial services in reading.

Plan B was presented by Superintendent Milford Mason. It represented the consensus of school district administrators.

Under Plan B, the district would restore most of the cuts required by Plan A and most of the $1.1 million in cuts made for the 1987-88 school year. A few new teaching positions would be created.

Support teachers hired would total 23.5, with the additional positions for two elementary mathematics support teachers to help pupils having difficulty with math; a social worker for the elementary school level; and a half-time music teacher for sixth-graders and two teachers at the junior high level to help sixth-graders who need remedial education.

For classroom teachers, Plan B would restore all positions eliminated under Plan A and add one more teacher at the elementary, junior and senior high levels and one special education teacher for the learning disabled in elementary schools.

Administrative positions would be restored from

Plan A and the one-half position of junior high assistant principal now paid for through community education would be covered, instead, from the general fund.

Under Plan B, 11 of the non-instructional personnel layoffs would be restored, the exception being one full-time bus driver substitute, and 7.5 positions would be added, restoring staffing to the 1986-87 school year level. New positions would be a bus driver for a new route, a special education bus driver for a new route and a special education aide for the elementary school learning disabled class.

On the non-personnel side, all but about $3,000 worth of sports activities would return, some staff development and the development of a test for graduation would begin, two school buses would be purchased, three special education buses would be purchased, about $21,000 would be spent to improve communication efforts, $40,000 would be spent to replace outdated computers in the junior high schools and $50,000 would be spent for a district computer system.

District business manager William Jackson estimated that the 5.42 mills would keep the district from a deficit budget until 1991. (5.42 mills are $5.42 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.)

Organization: key to millage success

About 60 people attended the special meeting Monday night. When school board President Janet Thomas offered an opportunity to comment or ask questions at the meeting's end, three people expressed opinions.

Clarkston High School teacher Ned Burdick began his statements by saying, "I guess I am outraged at the constant Band-Aid approach that the school board and administration continue to take."

Burdick said he was appalled that Plan B would probably only allow two years of school district operation until cuts would again be required.

"When are you going to take a stand and say education counts in this community?" he asked.

Dunham Downs, a parent, said he had observed that the community lacks confidence in the school board and the administration.

After attending recent board of education meetings and spending time with the district's business manager, Downs said he now understands the very real financial problems faced by the district. In contrast, he said, the community at large does not understand.

"We're lacking trust and confidence, we're lacking information and we're lacking organization," Downs said, offering several suggestions.

First, he said, the board should "make a positive statement" by reducing its salaries to $1 apiece a year; second, the board should approve a policy that it will provide information; and third, he supported the idea that a committee of 50 to 100 people be appointed to work on the problems.

"Until we are organized, we'll continue to have the problems we have today," he said.

Thomas reacted by talking about how frustrating it is that information is constantly presented and frequently ignored.

She said many residents carry the misconception that school board members are paid $50,000 a year. In fact, board members are paid $30 a meeting not to exceed 52 meetings a year and none of them work full time in the board office.

During her 13 years as a school board member, Thomas said she has missed only three meetings, and last year she was paid a little over $800.

It was noted that $5,700 covered the entire pay expense for the seven school board members last year.

"We spend that for aspirin," said board member John Needham, providing tension relief and inviting laughter from the crowd.

Downs said he realized that the $1 a year action would be only a gesture, but it could be an important one. He also again encouraged the formation of a committee.

"Obviously what we've done in the past has not worked," he said.

David Taylor, a parent, provided praise for the board and administration's efforts.

"I would like to know what I can do to help in the next millage campaign," he said, adding that "it's important that we proceed at least with Plan B."

Awards pour in for schoolteacher

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

If a student doesn't learn something about social studies in Greg Clevenger's class at Rochester Adams High School, it isn't because the teacher didn't give it his best shot.

The Independence Township resident uses audio-visuals, posters, pictures and slides. His students participate in mock trials, mock supreme courts and model legislatures.

Clevenger tries to mix up, spruce up and pique the interest of every student by employing a hands-on learning experience. They enter the classroom with a curiosity and a "What are we going to do today?" anticipation.

Social studies has never been so much fun.

Clevenger's unique teaching techniques earned him the Outstanding Contribution to the Commemoration of the Bicentennials of the U.S. Constitution and Bill of Rights last September from the Council for Advancement of Citizenship in Washington, D.C., and the Los Angeles-based Center for Civic Education. Clevenger will receive the award in St. Louis this month.

He was chosen from 1,000 entries and five semifinalists to win this national "Constitution in the Classroom" award, sponsored by Scholastic Update Magazine and WNEV-TV (Channel 7 in Boston).

He did it by writing the best lesson plan on the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution, which, not surprisingly, closely resembled his everyday teaching technique.

Clevenger held a six-day celebration of the Constitution by inviting senior citizens, retired people from various walks of life, into the classroom.

Four senior citizens and five students donned robes and formed a model supreme court, while other students argued a "modernized" version of a landmark case from 1969 before the court.

The role model case was the Tinker vs. Des Moines court decision on student rights involving students who were expelled after wearing black arm bands to class to protest Vietnam. In Clevenger's updated version of the case, students wore arm bands to protest aid to the Contras.

The students won, but it was a split decision. Much to the students' surprise, some of the senior judges were for the student rights, and some of the student judges were against them.

"I've always been a people person and I've always enjoyed working with young people. They are open to new ideas and enthusiastic. I think working with young people keeps you young."

Greg Clevenger

It was a learning experience for everyone, and it culminated with a special reception and a special, student-written version of a "constitution" for the senior citizens. In essence, it said: "Thank you, senior citizens, and now the senior high school students will do their best to keep our country prosperous and safe."

The students participated in two television specials,

GREG CLEVANGER, an Independence Township resident, recently won national recognition for a special classroom celebration of the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution he created for his Rochester Adams High School classes. His son, Benjamin, shares the limelight with his dad in a basement office lined with other awards Clevenger has earned.

part of a 13-show series filmed in conjunction with the bicentennial. Camera crews flew in from Boston to film for 10 hours during Clevenger's award-winning classroom celebration of the bicentennial of the Constitution.

One of those specials, "Those Who Can - Celebrating America's Teachers," was hosted by Ed Asner. The other, "The Great American Quiz Show," was hosted by John Davidson.

This spring, Clevenger earned the 1987 Michigan Education Association Excellence Award for the same Constitution project.

He has received several other honors during his 14-year teaching career in Rochester schools, including the Michigan Council for Social Studies Outstanding Teacher Award in 1983, the Law-Related Teacher of the Year Award from the Michigan Law-Related Education Project at Oakland Intermediate Schools, and the Elizabeth Siddall Award for International Understanding from the MEA in 1981.

A department head at Rochester Adams, Clevenger teaches government, practical law, international relations and U.S. History. Rochester Adams was the first school in the state to use a student court, a program he co-founded, which is now used at many schools.

It was the first high school in the U.S. to have a planned famine, another Clevenger project. Teachers and students went without food for 30 hours (under a physician's supervision) and gave money earned through their efforts to World Vision International for hunger relief projects.

They have a "partner school," Clevenger says, in Poofarang, Thailand. "It's like a cultural exchange program." They even contributed money toward the building of that community's first grade school.

"I believe teaching is more than just telling," he says. "I believe if we say something to students, we have to try to show it in some way."

He also believes the class should be as democratic as possible.

"Students have a desire to be heard," he says, "And in a structured way, I try to provide a forum for them to be heard."

Sometimes, he says, his classroom is like a briefing room, and other times, it is more like a town meeting.

"I've always been a people person and I've always enjoyed working with young people," says the 37-year-old teacher. "They are open to new ideas and enthusiastic. I think working with young people keeps you young."

Clevenger is a native of Lansing. He did his undergraduate work at Spring Arbor College in Jackson and his graduate work at Wayne State University in Detroit. He lives in the Thendara Park subdivision with his wife, Janet, and their children, Benjamin, 6, and Lindsay, 2.

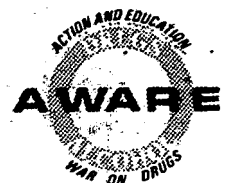

He is taking his unique teaching technique "on the road" this year, with a "Constitution for Kids" one-hour assembly he has packaged for school children in grades four through eight. He says he may be presenting his program in Clarkston schools this spring.

It's just another extension of a career Clevenger loves.

"I've learned a lot from the students, and hopefully it's reciprocal," he says. "Even without the awards, it's been a gratifying career."

Friend to Friend

30 Wed., Mar. 2, 1988 The Clarkston (Mich.) News

You may be too shy

Dear Friend to Friend,

I have a major crush on this guy and I am too shy to ask him out, so I went and talked to his best friend. I asked him to talk to the guy I like.

I am not sure if he talked to him or not, because I think the friend likes me. He told me that "Jon" (not his real name) doesn't like me and doesn't want to go out with me.

Now I don't know what to do because I really feel hurt. I just feel that my relationships never work out and all my friends' relationships do. Help me decide what to do.

Dateless

Dear Dateless,

We understand how you feel because we all have been dateless at one time or another.

What you need to do, perhaps, is find out from Jon if he likes you, not from his friends. Maybe you'll be surprised to find out he does like you!

The worst thing that could happen is that you'll find out that what you've heard is true.

Maybe your shyness is the key to failed relationships. You might want to be a little more outgoing. Go up to him and ask him out, or be a little more subtle and telephone him. He would probably be flattered if you are up-front with him.

One member of our group said she called a guy she liked and asked him to the movies. He said, "Sure." Another member said she would try to double-date with some friends.

You might try to ask neutral questions to find out what he thinks of you, such as "Are you doing anything this weekend?"

We know this is going to be difficult, but be positive about yourself. Good luck.

Dear Friend to Friend,

It seems like I'm always forgetting to do things I need to get done. I don't have enough time to do everything.

I wake up at night, sometimes, with anxiety about the things I didn't accomplish. Is this normal? How can I get rid of this problem?

Stressed Out

Dear Stressed Out,

It is apparent that you must have a lot of responsibilities, possibly too many to handle on your own. When you begin to experience overload, you need to stop and take a look at your situation.

It would probably be beneficial to eliminate some activities or find a new way to organize them so you're sure you get everything done. Then you won't have to worry about waking up in the middle of the night with these worries.

If you are not able to eliminate any activities, there are several options that should be beneficial. Periodically, make lists to keep things organized.

If making lists is not helpful or is irritating for you to do, buy a pocket-size planning calendar to put on or above your desk. You will probably want to keep a calendar at home and one for work and school.

Another idea is writing your short-term responsibilities on pieces of note paper and sticking them on your bathroom mirror or somewhere they'll be seen and remembered.

Some people make tape recordings of upcoming events and what they need to do to prepare for these events, the date and their responsibilities. They play the tape when they get up in the morning or in the car on the way to work or school.

People have different ways of remembering things and you'll need to experiment to find out what best suits you. If one method stops working after a while, then try another method until you find your niche.

Dear Friend to Friend,

I have a problem, or what people might think a problem. I'm a sophomore and I like it. I'm the kind of person who likes to have fun.

Some people say I get too carried away and really am obnoxious, but I don't care. I am having a good time and feel that I'm not annoying.

I really don't want to have to act grown up or mature. I like to have a good time! Am I wrong when I say I want to act the way I want to?

Myself

Dear Myself,

There's no reason you should not act the way you feel is appropriate. If enough people, however, say you are obnoxious and annoying, then perhaps you have to take into consideration what others are saying.

One of the major tasks of adolescents is figuring out "Who am I?" As a sophomore, you are involved in determining who you are.

Part of the way you do this is by determining what other people think about you and then comparing this with how you feel about yourself or how you would like to be.

When there's a big gap between the two, one of the things you can do is make a change in your behavior.

The most important thing is that you are happy with your self-image - the way you see yourself. If your behavior is consistent with your self-image, then by all means stay the way you are.

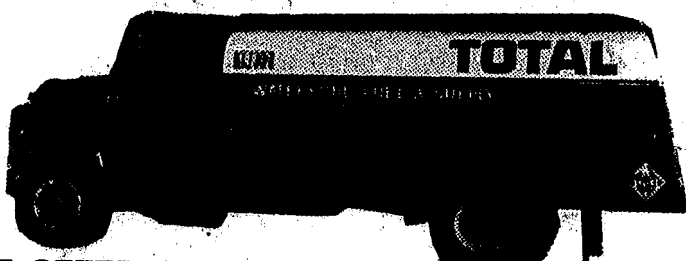

Friend to Friend is written by a panel of Clarkston High School students working under the sponsorship of Aware, a community organization dedicated to education and action against substance abuse.

Letters to Friend to Friend may be mailed in care of The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Engagement

MISIAK-IDALSKI: Marvin and Barbra Misiak of Bridge Lake Road, Springfield Township, announce the engagement of their daughter Carmen A. to Bryan Lee Idalski, son of Michael and Elaine Idalski of Hillman. The bride-elect, a 1986 Clarkston High School graduate, is employed by Telecom Technicians Inc. as a secretary. Her fiancé is a military police officer in the United States Air Force. A November wedding is planned.

At college

Jennifer (Jaye) Menzies, a 1986 Clarkston High School graduate, was recently initiated into the Chi Omega sorority at Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo.

She is also on the cover of the Pi Kappa Alpha "Women of Western" calendar that came out last month.

Her parents are Marv and Jan Menzies of Springfield Township.

Club notes

TOP OFFICER: Kimberly McClusky has been elected 18th District President for the American Legion Auxiliary Juniors. She is an active member of the Chief Pontiac No. 377 Juniors and is currently the department junior of the year. Kimberly is the daughter of Michal and Lorraine McClusky of Drayton Plains. Other officers from the Chief Pontiac Juniors are Shannon Chapple, Heather Rolison and Nichole Rutterbush. The post is located on Edgewood Drive in Independence Township.

Honors

Karen Kozlowski is on the dean's list for the fall term at Grand Valley State College, Allendale.

A 1984 Clarkston High School graduate, she is a junior at Grand Valley majoring in special education.

Her parents are Robert and Janet Kozlowski of Stickney Road, Independence Township.

For the seventh consecutive term, Tracy Smallwood is on the dean's list at Michigan State University, East Lansing.

The 1985 Clarkston High School graduate is a junior at MSU majoring in materials and logistics management and in operations and purchasing.

She is the daughter of Tom and Linda Smallwood of Williamson Street, Independence Township.

Scott Luzi, a 1986 Clarkston High School graduate and a sophomore at Michigan State University's Lyman Briggs School of National Science, has made the dean's list for the second time with a 3.857 grade point average. He pledged the Delta Sigma Phi fraternity and became an active member in February. Luzi received a scholarship from the fraternity for academic achievement. He was also appointed to the governing body of the Lyman Briggs Student Advisory Council. His parents are Vince and Marie Luzi of Independence Township.

Engagement

ROWE-BROWN: Mr. and Mrs. Dean Rowe of Wilder Lane, Waterford Township, announce the engagement of their daughter Paula Ann to Daniel Vincent Brown, son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Brown of Muncie, Ind. The bride-to-be is to graduate in April from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, with a bachelor's degree in political science. Her fiancé, a graduate of Ball State University in Indiana, is currently completing graduate work toward a doctorate degree in analytical chemistry at U of M. A June wedding is planned.

Grad

Michael Weller was graduated from Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, at the end of the fall semester of the 1987-88 school year.

Weller, who received a bachelor's degree, resides on Reese Road in Independence Township.

VOICE HONORS: Erin Gaiser received a first-division rating for her solo performance at the District Solo and Ensemble Festival on Feb. 6 at Royal Oak Kimball High School. The Sashabaw Junior High School ninth-grader was the only student from her school who participated in the festival. She prepared for the performance by working with her private voice teacher Jackie Thompson. The first-division rating allows an opportunity to participate in the State Solo and Ensemble Festival on April 16 in Flint. "It was really good experience to go," said Erin. "I know it will be a really good experience to go to state, so I'm excited about it."

In service

Navy Petty Officer Peter J. Saile recently departed on a six-month deployment to the Western Pacific and Indian Ocean aboard the aircraft carrier USS Enterprise, homeported in Alameda, Calif.

While deployed, Saile will participate in military exercises designed to test individual skills and the readiness of the USS Enterprise. During routine operations, he will also visit several foreign ports.

A 1979 graduate of Clarkston High School, he joined the Navy in September 1982. His parents are James and Jean Saile of South Main Street, Independence Township.

Engagement

KITHIL-JACKSON: Mr. and Mrs. David L. Kithil of Holcomb, New York, announce the engagement of their daughter Virginia Ewing Kithil to Scott Jansen Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald C. Jackson of Boston, Mass., and Savannah, Ga. The bride-to-be, a 1984 graduate of Clarkston High School, is to graduate in May from Wingate College, Wingate, N.C. Her fiancé, a 1987 graduate of Wingate College, is employed by Haverly's Fine Furniture of Melbourne, Fla. A June wedding is planned.

Dermatologist provides facts regarding Retin-A

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When Clarkston dermatologist Susan Klemmer presented a lecture on new trends in dermatology at the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center last Wednesday night, Retin-A was one topic of discussion.

Retin-A is the world's latest answer to the quest for the "fountain of youth."

A synthetic derivative of vitamin A containing tretinoin, Retin-A is not really new, though it made a big splash in the news in mid-January after an article about it was published in a national medical journal.

According to Klemmer, Retin-A was developed as an acne medication in the late 1960s by dermatologist Albert M. Kligman of the University of Pennsylvania.

DR. SUSAN KLEMMER, Clarkston dermatologist, spoke recently at the Clarkston Ambulatory Clinic about trends in dermatology, including the much-publicized Retin-A.

Klemmer has been using it in her practice to treat acne and sun damage for three years.

Prolonged use of Retin-A for acne brought a revelation: The skin looked smoother, "rosier," with a glow that seemed to have fewer brown "liver spots" and less wrinkles.

But Klemmer stresses that while some have noticed these best possible results after prolonged and regular use of the product, others have experienced no improvement at all. Some must discontinue the treatment due to the burning, irritation or allergic reactions to the medication.

"It does help the sun damage, but that's an accumulation over most of your life," Klemmer says. "So even if you start using sun screen tomorrow, your skin will still age."

Retin-A can't stop normal aging, she says, but can help the aging process caused by sun damage. Klemmer does recommend it to some of her patients, and also uses it to treat pre-malignant skin lesions caused by sun damage.

She says that many people don't understand that it takes a year or 18 months to see results. It is not an instant fix. And it does not eliminate deep creases, freckles, scars, moles, surface blood vessels or skin cancers.

"Retin-A thins the outer layer of skin (epidermis) and increases cell replacement by increasing the rate of cell production," Klemmer explains. "There is new blood vessel formation resulting in increased blood flow. Preliminary studies find new collagen formation in the deeper skin layer (dermis)."

Whether the drug is safe or not is still being studied, Klemmer says. In studies with mice, the combination of Retin-A and artificial sunlight has apparently sped the development of skin tumors. But other studies indicate that the drug reverses certain pre-cancerous skin conditions.

"There appears to be no increase in skin cancer among the thousands of acne patients who have used Retin-A for the last 16 years," Klemmer says. "However, if you want to be completely safe, you should wait until any drug has been thoroughly tested."

She says there are different strengths of the medication available. Patients must discontinue use of certain other facial products and cosmetics while using Retin-A.

"There appears to be no increase in skin cancer among the thousands of acne patients who have used Retin-A for the last 16 years. However, if you want to be completely safe, you should wait until any drug has been thoroughly tested."

Dr. Susan Klemmer

She also points out that some people's skin may be more susceptible to the adverse effects of ultra-violet light. She recommends that patients use a sun screen while using Retin-A, and minimize exposure to sunlight as well as sun lamps and tanning salon treatments.

"To obtain maximum benefit from Retin-A therapy, it is essential to use it regularly, properly, and for a prolonged number of months," Klemmer says.

Even after the year to 18-month period when results are usually seen, patients are advised to continue using the product on weekends, she says.

There are many new trends in dermatology, but Retin-A seems to have grabbed the attention and imagination of the public, at least for now.

"We've had a huge increase in people calling," Klemmer says.

It apparently does work for some, but it's not a miracle. And people do have to keep using it to maintain the results.

Discontinued use of the product won't exactly put you back to "square one," but it does reverse the "youthful process" enjoyed under the influence of Retin-A.

Christian Soldiers Wanted

Here's your chance to get involved with an unusual church. We don't plan on growing by attracting people from other churches. We're going after the unchurched people in the North Oakland County area. And we need a few good Christians to fill out our core group. We believe the bottom line for every Christian should be helping others to know Christ. If you share this belief, we invite you to visit next Sunday or call us at 625-7332. We're only 40 people now. And we worship in the auditorium at Clarkston High School. Who knows, you might even rub elbows with a few tax collectors before it's over.

Microwave Plus

The Clarkson (Mich.) News Wed., Mar. 2, 1988 35

New on the market

Betty Wagner

The 1988 International Housewares Exposition was full of exciting new microwave cookware and accessories.

Ensar Corp. of Wheeling, Ill., featured a microwave egg poacher that is a combination cooker and server. One egg can be poached in 50 seconds.

Micromen of Rockford, Ill., displayed its egg poacher that can be used in the microwave as well as on top of the range.

Taraware introduced an attractive see-through plastic cookware called Micro Clear. The set is made up of a large casserole with trivet and cover, circle cooker with see-through cover, layer cake pan, 3-quart multi-pot with trivet and cover, large fluted cake ring, omelet pan with egg poacher and utility-serving tray. This cookware is designed to go from freezer to microwave oven to table to the top rack of the dishwasher. It is not for cooking foods that are high in fat.

Rosti of Denmark displayed a set of high-tech utensils designed by Karl-Axel Andersson & Morgan Ferm. The set includes a colander, small and large spatula, ladle and whisk that are microwave safe. I have been looking for such a whisk.

Endura non-stick, anti-stain Cook 'n Serveware has a full lifetime warranty against chipping, breaking or peeling. It is attractive white plastic cookware suitable for microwave, convection and conventional ovens up to 420 degrees.

Endura includes microwavable lids with openings for a temperature probe and refrigerator-freezer covers. This cookware also goes from the freezer to the oven to the table to the dishwasher. The numerous pieces include two shapes of skillet browners, a popcorn popper and high-intensity black cook-and-serve ware for the modern kitchen.

Microwise, an Australian company, showed a

"Super Chicken Baker," which is a 7 1/2 inch round tray with a 5 1/2 inch post in the center. The whole chicken is placed on the post for fast cooking in the microwave.

The Revere Micro-Fryer was ably demonstrated during the show. This is the revolutionary new pan that allows range-top browning and speedy microwave cooking. The pan has been specially designed for microwave use to produce pan fried flavor and looks with microwave speed.

A remarkable new accessory (not for the microwave, though) was displayed by the Zephyr Convection Cooking Systems Co. It is a fan, powered by a special heat-resistant motor that can be installed in any electric oven.

It turns the oven into a convection oven by circulating heated air over, around and under dishes placed in the oven. When I get it installed in my oven and test some recipes, I will share the results.

Here are some recipes that I adapted while testing several cookware pieces from the show.

BRENDA'S GUMBO

(Adapted from "Tout de Suite a la Microwave" by Jean K. Durkee)

1/3 cup oil
1/3 cup flour

Mix together in 4-cup Pyrex measure. Microwave at high for 4 to 5 minutes, or until brown. Then add:

1 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup chopped green bell pepper

Microwave at high for 2 minutes. Then add:

2 cloves garlic, minced
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
2 tablespoons chopped green onion tops

Microwave at high for 1 minute. For the next step, you will need:

14 1/2-ounce Mexican style tomatoes, drained with 3/4 cup juice reserved
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 pound cod fish, defrosted and cut into chunks
1 package frozen okra, defrosted

Slowly add 3/4 cup drained juice from tomatoes to oil-flour mixture. Stir in salt, pepper, cod fish chunks, okra and tomatoes. Cover. Microwave at high power 5 minutes. Stir. Cook at high 2 more minutes or until fish is just cooked. Let stand, covered, for 1 minute. Serve over hot cooked rice.

COUCHE-COUCHE

(Adapted for the Revere Micro-Fryer from "Cajun Cooking")

2 cups white cornmeal
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 1/2 cups milk
1/2 cup oil

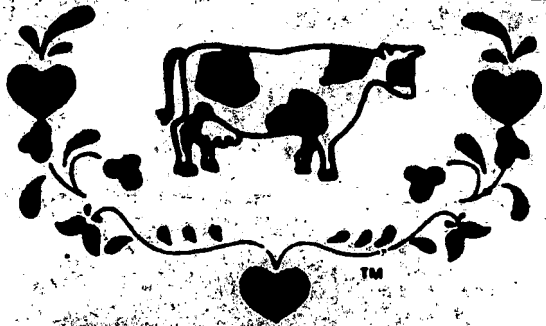

Mix cornmeal, salt, baking powder and milk together. Heat oil in Revere Micro-Fryer on electric or gas surface unit for 3 minutes. Add cornmeal mixture; cook 5 minutes or until crust forms.

Cover. Place on floor (not wire rack) of microwave, taking care to keep micro-fryer from touching sides of oven. Microwave 5 minutes at 50 percent power.

Remove from oven and serve with warm syrup for breakfast or dessert.

BRAKE PRICES?

UNTIL THEY PULL
THE WHEELS,
THEY'RE PULLING YOUR LEG.

Think about it. How do some brake places know what your next job'll cost if they've never seen your brakes to begin with? Answer: they don't.

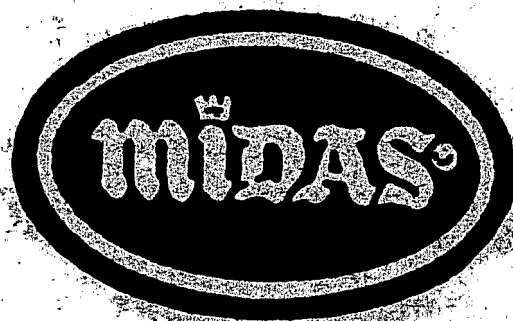

Fact is, there's no way anyone can figure out exactly what the price will be. There are just too many possibilities.

That's why at Midas, we pull all four wheels before every brake job. To get inside your brakes. To inspect them. To positively determine what's gone wrong. From a nine dollar can of fluid to a new master cylinder.

And when we're finished, we'll give you a pinpoint estimate of the entire job. With a price that won't go up when the job's done. That's our promise to you.

So when it comes time to pay, you'll have a leg to stand on.

NOBODY BEATS MIDAS

Medicine cabinets and otherwise

Suzanne Baumann

I see them each morning and last thing at night, They keep me clean, decent-looking and smelling just right.

My head propped by the mirror, my feet in the sink; I run floss through my teeth and take time to think...

In my opinion, nothing in the family bathroom could be more fascinating than our immigrants from the drug store.

Yes, they come under a variety of names: toiletries, health/beauty aids (don't forget that ever-important slash), or sometimes simply bathroom products.

I have to ask myself, though, why are these so interesting? This usually leads to more questions.

For instance, the deal with antiperspirants and deodorants. Very rarely these days are they two separate things. It's always a combination of both jointly working to "fight odor and wetness."

So why are the names still split up? Why won't somebody come up with a word that means both antiperspirant and deodorant?

Think how much easier things would be for advertising, shopping lists, casual conversation!

It wouldn't be a big shock: Names change all the time. Perhaps it's not as vital a change as converting "toilet water" to cologne, but many times more convenient.

Shampoo ingredients are another story. Never would anyone dare shorten the names of the chemicals, and for that I'm glad.

Phenoxyethanol, Imodazlydnol Urea and, my personal favorite, Methylchloroisothiazolinone are fun words to decipher, try to pronounce (or say five times fast) while waiting for the conditioner to set.

If I'm like most people, as long as it makes suds, I'll put it on my hair, even if I don't know what the words mean.

For all I know, I could be washing my hair with the insides of chipmunks somebody scraped off the street, but I'm not bald yet, so I won't worry.

I guess my shampoo philosophy could be summed up in a line from a recent commercial: "I don't know what it is, but I like what it does."

Once I had my own personal bar of facial soap, I'd keep it apart from the rest of the family's in its own container, making sure nobody else used it. Once a day I rubbed it on my face.

I didn't want to waste it, so it lasted a year until it finally got so small it fell down the drain.

There are a million stories on the bathroom counter. These were some of them.

In Independence Township Your Board of Oakland County Road Commissioners and Independence Township invite your comments on the proposed project to realign curves, resurface and pave the shoulders on Sashabaw Road from Sally to Oakhill Road.

We invite all interested citizens to attend and express their views or request information on this matter before the start of construction of this project.

Date: March 10, 1988. Time: 3:00-6:30 p.m. Place: Independence Township Hall, 90 North Main Street, Clarkston, Michigan 48016.

At the meeting, staff of the Oakland County Road Commission will be available to discuss the project and answer questions. Project drawings will be available for your review. The meeting is informal; please stop by any time between 3:00-6:30 p.m.

Tentative project schedule is as follows: Construction would begin in August, 1988 and end in November, 1988. Final cleanup would be in the spring of 1989.

Your attendance at the meeting will give the best opportunity for presenting your views and gaining desired information. However, we welcome your written statements to us. Send your comments to: Oakland County Road Commission, 31001 Lahser Road, Birmingham, Michigan 48010.

Pet of the Week

VANNA AND FAMILY want loving homes.

Mom, pups homeless

The shelter employees call her Vanna, but the six little pups who came to the shelter with her think of her as mama.

Vanna and her pups were thin and needed some tender loving care when they arrived, but are in good shape now.

Vanna is a terrier mix, white with some brown markings, small-boned and about knee high. She is very friendly, but does prefer older children.

The puppies, now 7 weeks old, are also looking for loving homes.

Vanna and family can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The adoption fee for Vanna is $30, plus a $40 spaying fee. The fee includes all her shots, de-fleaing, worming and other preparations for adoption. Fee for the puppies depends on the sex and size.

Lecture on library

Check out your library knowledge! Do you know Michigan was the first state to mandate library services for its residents? It is in our state Constitution.

The Detroit Public Library is one of the 10 largest libraries in the U.S. Do you know how the Clarkston Library is funded? What percentage of penal fines collected in our district go to our library?

The League of Women Voters (LWV), members throughout Michigan are studying the structure and funding of public libraries in Michigan. The chairman of this statewide project will speak to the LWV of Clarkston on Thursday, March 3, at 7:30 p.m. at the Village Hall, Depot Road, Clarkston.

Join the LWV members as they learn about and assess the various funding mechanisms for Michigan libraries. Check out your library knowledge! Are changes needed? For membership information, call 625-1906.

Health insurance is senior seminar topic

Four health insurance seminars designed to help senior citizens select the right coverage are planned by the Independence Township Senior Center.

Bruce Wochholtz, community planner-health specialist from the Area Agency on Aging, is to present the workshops that will provide an understanding of what Medicare and Medicaid cover and what to look for in supplemental insurance.

The topics and dates follow:

Tuesday, March 8 - "What Medicare is or is not."

Thursday, March 24 - "Knowing your rights under the new Medicare system."

Tuesday, April 5 - "Description of Medicaid."

Thursday, April 21 - "Long-term care insurance."

All four seminars are to begin at noon at the senior center, 5980 Clarkston Rd., between M-15 and Sashabaw Road in Clintonwood Park.

Wochholtz will have handouts, slides, films and a question-and-answer period after each seminar.

For more information, call the center at 625-8238.

Synopsis Village of Clarkston

375 Depot Road
Clarkston, MI 48016
Regular Meeting
February 22, 1988

Meeting called to order by President pro tem Schultz at 7:40 p.m. followed by the pledge of allegiance.

Roll: Present: Schultz, Roeser, Millard, Basinger, Haven.
Absent: Symons, Catala.

The agenda was approved after two additions and one deletion.

Moved by Basinger, "That the Village of Clarkston adopt the inter-municipal agreement for police protection as presented by the Charter Township of Independence. Further, that the minutes reflect that by entering into this agreement, it is the understanding of the Council that in approving the contract in lieu of establishing a direct police department within the village and that purchase of services via the township is not intended to compromise the fact that the Village of Clarkston is purchasing the police services under the contract subject to its direction and control. Reference: M.C.L. 42-27."

Seconded by Haven. Roll: Yeas-Basinger, Roeser, Millard, Haven.

Nays-None. Motion carried.

Trustees Basinger and Roeser were to inform the Oakland County Sheriff's department, by mail, with regards to the above agreement.

The adoption of a Wetlands Ordinance was discussed. The Township Wetlands ordinance is to be referred to the Village attorney and engineers for recommendations. Trustee Roeser was asked to contact the Village attorney and engineer with regards to the Wetlands ordinance and possible adoption.

Moved by Roeser, "That the Moslem Shrine letter request of February 12 to conduct a paper drive on June 17 and 18 be approved." Seconded by Schultz. Motion carried.

Moved by Basinger, "That the Village Budgets for the General Fund and Street Funds be approved as presented by the Treasurer (copies attached)." Seconded by Haven. Roll: Yeas-Basinger, Roeser, Schultz, Haven, Millard.

Nays-None. Motion carried.

Moved by Roeser, "That the following be approved for use of the Village Hall facilities: March 8, COG; March 22, County Cupboard; March 16, Mill Pond Association." Seconded by Haven. Motion carried.

Moved by Roeser, "That the following be approved for use of the Village Park: August 12, Petersen wedding; August 13, Wedding Pictures; August 28, Richardson wedding." Seconded by Basinger. Motion carried.

A letter from Brook Realty was read regarding 6123 South Main. Mrs. Dickie from Brook Realty was present to hear the recommendations of the Council. The consensus of opinion was that the individual lot sizes did not comply with existing zoning ordinance regulations.

Moved by Basinger, "That Mike Thayer be hired as auxiliary street labor at the rate of $6.75 per hour." Seconded by Schultz. Roll: Yeas-Basinger, Roeser, Schultz, Haven. Nays-None. Motion carried.

Moved by Schultz, "That the Muscular Dystrophy Walk Campaign on May 31 to June 7 be approved." Seconded by Basinger. Motion carried.

The Hubbell, Roth & Clark Co. 1987 Safety Path Program letter was tabled until the next meeting.

Meeting was adjourned at 8:35 p.m.

PRAYER TO THE Holy Spirit. Holy Spirit. You make me see everything and show me the way to reach my ideals. You give me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrongs that are done to me and you are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with you, and my loved ones, in your perpetual glory. Amen. Persons must pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking for your wish. After the 3rd day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then, promise to publish this dialogue as soon as your favor has been granted. Impossible wish granted. IILX28-3

In 2 weeks, 2 lives saved

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

In a battle where the most formidable enemy is time, man has united with the machine to create a powerful team, strong enough to defeat the clock - sometimes.

Smaller than a portable typewriter, the compact external semiautomatic defibrillator is bestowed with near human characteristics. It listens and talks and remembers things and sometimes helps a human rebel against death.

What it does is shocking.

"It's an absolutely amazing machine," said Capt. Steve Ronk, of the Independence Township Fire Department.

Ronk removed the machine's computer chips and recording tape - perhaps so the machine wouldn't hear everything and become conceited - and talked about its capabilities.

In its first two weeks of service in the township, it saved the lives of two people.

"If we didn't have this machine, they'd be dead," said Ronk. "There's no doubt about it. ... We'd be going through funerals right now."

On those two occasions, the defibrillator shocked the hearts and brought them out of fibrillation - uncontrolled electrical impulses that make the heart quiver and unable to pump blood - and back to its normal rhythmic action of controlled electrical impulses that create a heartbeat and pump blood to other parts of the body.

"We've got a machine now that can really make a difference, but we need the time. ... Once that clock starts going, you can't stop it."

Steve Ronk

The medical technology has been around for a long time, but it was limited to hospitals and ambulances, said Ronk.

By the time a patient from a northern township, such as Independence, reached the technology, it was usually too late. Eighty or 90 percent of those patients

THE FRIENDLY defibrillator does nothing when connected to a patient whose heart doesn't need defibrillation, such as Halley who needed a defibrillator died.

"We're battling the clock," said Ronk. "And that hurts."

In the old days, way back in January of '88, the emergency medical technicians (EMT) from the township would arrive at the scene of a medical emergency in about three to five minutes. If a patient needed a shock to get his heart back on track, he would have to wait for an ambulance, which would take a few minutes longer to arrive.

If the shock wasn't administered within about eight minutes, the patient could be severely brain damaged, even brain dead, said Ronk.

Even now, it's a battle against time to save a patient before his brain is too damaged, said Ronk.

"Our biggest problem is they've got to get us on the way as soon as they can," he said. "We've got a machine now that can really make a difference, but we need the time. ... Once that clock starts going, you can't stop it."

After the machine is attached to the patient with wires and cloth patches, it works by reading an electrocardiogram of the patient. Only if the heart is fibrillating will the machine start talking to the EMTs, telling them to push the button to shock the heart back into shape, as well as telling them to perform other procedures.

"This is really exciting," said Ronk. "It is working. ... Technology is truly going to have an impact."

No fame, no glory; just saving lives

Capt. Steve Ronk, of the Independence Township Fire Department, credited two people for bringing the defibrillation machines to the level of the emergency medical technicians (EMT).

"If it weren't for them, this machine wouldn't be here today," he said.

Richard Schachern, emergency medical services coordinator at Paramed Inc., and Dr. David Malicki, emergency medical services coordinator at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, teach the EMTs from Independence, Brandon, Oxford and Orion townships how to use the machines.

Before they pushed for the machines, it was just expected that 80 to 90 percent of patients from the northern part of the county who needed defibrillation would die, said Ronk.

Malicki and Schachern knew they could save some of them.

The four northern Oakland County townships are a test group for the machines, said Ronk. Otherwise, the EMTs wouldn't be able to use them yet because it would take about two years for the state legislators to change the EMT licenses to allow the additional technology.

In addition to conjuring up the idea, Malicki and Schachern volunteer their Saturdays and Monday evenings to teach the machine use and all the reasons behind it to the EMTs.

"They really stuck their necks out and cut through some red tape," said Ronk.

He and Schachern were elated when the first patients were saved, said Malicki, who was in the emergency room at POH when he heard the news about the first patient. He and his co-workers expressed their joy in an unusual, instantaneous gesture.

"We don't high-five in our department, but it was unanimous," he said. "It was fantastic."

"By delivering that shock early, there was no brain damage and very little heart damage," he said.

He complimented the EMTs on their quick actions.

"You've got to give it to these guys," he said, mentioning the many hours of training the EMTs underwent.

"They're not going to make any more money," said Malicki. "There's no fame and no glory. But they did it because they're concerned with saving people's lives."

"I'm proud of these guys because they dazzle the paramedics now. I love it because we're all a team. For us to look good in the hospital, we have to have something salvageable," he said.

Sometimes, the successes astound the medical professionals, even with all of the technology, said Malicki.

"We call them miracles on Perry Street," he said. "We know it isn't us. We know someone up there is doing something."
