Tornado twists up trees in Clarkston

BY KATHY GREENFIELD
Clarkston News Editor

A tornado that touched down in Clarkston and Independence Township on Easter Sunday left behind minor property damage, downed trees and an angry township fire chief.

The tornado struck at about 6:35 p.m., about 10 minutes before the Oakland County tornado sirens were activated, warning residents too late to take cover.

"The people are getting to the point where they think the sirens are a joke," said Fire Chief Gar Wilson. "This is an early warning system - and we've got to get it working as an early warning system."

According to Wilson, the storm was being tracked before it touched down in Clarkston.

Funnel clouds had been spotted at I-75 and M-15, he said, but the National Weather Service must make the decision before the sirens are activated from the Oakland County Disaster Control office in the county complex off Telegraph Road in Pontiac.

Wilson said he would prefer that the siren system be eliminated rather than continue with the present practice of warning people only after a tornado has touched down somewhere.

He met with representatives of the county disaster control office on Monday to air his complaints. They, in turn, planned to use videotapes of the Clarkston tornado to urge the weather service to stop waiting so long, Wilson said.

"We were really lucky we had no worse problems. I know it was as close as six inches to one house," he said. "We were really fortunate no one was injured."

As the twister traveled northeast in a narrow path about one-half mile long, it first blew a window out of the steeple of the Clarkston United Methodist Church between Waldon Road and Church Street.

A few tree tops were snapped off before entire trees toppled, including two large maple trees and a box elder in the front yard of Rex Fenstermaker on Church Street.

When the tornado breezed by, all he could see was rain and he could hear tree branches hitting his home, Fenstermaker said. It happened so fast, there was no time to take cover.

A picnic table and a shed sitting in neighboring yards were picked up, carried over the fence and dumped into the yard of Eileen Madison on Roselawn.

She was talking on the telephone to a neighbor when they noticed the wind was picking up. Mrs. Madison

Leaky roof results in classroom relocation

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Perhaps the third-graders in Carolyn Young's Pine Knob Elementary School classroom learned greater concentration skills when they competed with the "ping ... ping ... ping" of water dropping in buckets.

And maybe their reactions became quicker when they had to dodge new leaks, moving their desks to adjust accordingly.

Just the same, they're happier they switched rooms with the reading support classroom, and their teacher is overjoyed.

"It's much better," said Young. "There are no leaks, and it's not damp. It's a little smaller."

Young requested the room change after she missed three weeks due to an illness related to the wet room conditions. She spent time in the hospital and received an ultimatum from her physician.

"He told me I had two choices. I either had to quit work or move to a different classroom," she said.

Young, who plans to retire in June, did not want to quit before her time, she said.

In addition to bronchitis, Young suffered from asthma, which was aggravated by the damp classroom conditions, she said.

"I nearly died before they got me to the hospital with this asthma attack," she said. "I do appreciate their moving us to a more conducive atmosphere for learning and teaching and for better safety and health for the children and myself."

Young compared her pupils' attendance records from term to term and found that more absences occurred during the leaky period following Christmas.

"When we came back after Christmas vacation up until I went into the hospital, the room was leaking constantly," she said. "At the parent conferences, some were very concerned because their children have been more ill this winter than in the past."

Parents found more and longer-lasting instances of upper respiratory infections and bronchitis - infections made worse by dust and mold and dampness, said Young.

When they moved down the hall March 25, mold and fungus were found behind a filing cabinet in the wet room, said Young.

Principal George White said the Oakland County Health Department inspected the room but didn't find any mold. The department may perform further tests, he added.

"If the health department should tell us we can't use that room, we'll be in a real space crunch," he said.

"The ultimate situation is to put a new roof on. We've ... spent close to $12,000 to $15,000 trying to repair sections of that roof. The roofing contractor said he won't take any more of our money because it would be robbery. The roof has deteriorated beyond repair."

"It points out the need for the bonding issue in

Car hits marquee at music theater

A Springfield Township resident was seriously injured April 1 when his car smashed into the Pine Knob Music Theatre Marquee on Sashabaw Road in Independence Township.

Andrew Clare Vinstra, 22, of Bridge Lake Road was in serious condition April 4 at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital.

According to reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, at about 8:20 p.m., witnesses saw the vehicle drive at a high rate of speed at the marquee, striking it head on.

The driver, who was not wearing a seat belt, was thrown from the vehicle and suffered multiple injuries, according to the police report. Although he was disoriented, the driver verified the witnesses' account.

The marquee was damaged, and an electrical fire started from the remains of the car.

June," he said. Pine Knob is a priority on the list of building repairs if the voters approve the request.

In the meantime, they've coped with the problems, he said.

"It was just the circumstances that we had a teacher who was highly susceptible. She's not alone, though, because I've had several other teachers complain about not feeling well," White said.

"It was just an inconvenience. The teacher had to take down the bulletin board. The two teachers in the reading room had to move - lock, stock and barrel. It's something I wouldn't want to do every Friday."

Board pares list to 3

BY KATHY GREENFIELD
Clarkston News Editor

The field of candidates for superintendent of Clarkston schools has been narrowed to three: Roy M. Bassett, Gary Haner and Dr. Timothy R. Jenney.

The board of education met Monday night to plan strategy for visitations to the candidates' school districts and for second interviews.

Of the three finalists selected from the 11 interviewed, Bassett had not been notified as of Monday. Board President Janet Thomas said it was likely that he was on vacation.

All three candidates are school district superintendents: Bassett of the Woodhaven school district in Flat Rock, Jenney of the Parchment school district near Kalamazoo and Haner of the Pinckney school district.

After two hours of discussion, the six board members present decided on the following:

- Board members Mary Jane Chaustowich, Carolyn Place and Elaine Schultz will visit each school district, have lunch with two of the district's board of education members and meet with some members of the school staff and the community. The plan is to complete the visits this week, if possible.

- Unless scheduling difficulties arise, the board will spend about four hours with each candidate, one a day, on April 15, 16 and 17. Up to two hours will be spent on informal interviews, with board members asking questions at will. During the first interviews, each candidate was asked the same 12 questions.

- For the informal interviews, the candidates' wives will be expected to be in attendance. Following the interviews, the board members will go out to dinner with each candidate and his wife.

Several other options were discussed during the meeting. Rejected were telephone interviews rather than visits to the districts of the candidates; interviews without spending some "informal" time at a dinner with each candidate and his spouse; and several variations of each strategy.

More than once, Chaustowich expressed her opinion on the value of spending time getting to know each candidate.

"I can't help but think this (choice) is going to impact on the district for years to come," she said. "I really don't want to spend three nights in a row on this, either, but if it's important enough to do, it's important enough to do it right."

The board's goal is to make the choice for superintendent this month. Superintendent Milford Mason's retirement from the post begins July 1.

Has Clarkston lost its charm?

Business owners voice opinions on dwindling town retail shops

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Two business owners endorse a proposal to better define the village's commercial zoning ordinance.

Both voiced their opinions on whether the zoning should remain the same or be split into two or more categories during Monday's planning commission meeting.

Joan Kopietz, co-owner of Tierra Arts and Design, and Bruce Harlton, owner of a township veterinarian clinic, both said it's important for a distinction to be made between office space and retail outlets.

"We can't have orderly development without a better ordinance," said Kopietz. "(The current zoning) is not helping anybody."

Under the existing ordinance, once a building is zoned commercial any kind of business - office or retail - can move in.

Offices currently outnumber the retail outlets downtown, she said. The number of business owners is shrinking as well.

To preserve the shopping district and bring more shoppers downtown, the best sites for retail outlets must not become offices, she said.

Buildings with large picture windows must be reserved for retail. Grouping businesses together so customers can walk from shop to shop also would help, she said.

If not, then the shoppers will find other areas to patronize, she added.

Planning commission members agreed erosion of the business district has occurred. There has been a noticeable drop in the number of shoppers walking the streets, they said.

Before the planning commission makes any recommendations to the village council, it first wants input from council members.

Chairman John Stuetzer said the issue will be raised again at the May 2 planning commission meeting.

Kopietz said with a little help from village officials, all is not lost in the battle to make downtown a vibrant business area again.

"I want to see the village invest some funds to make (downtown) a walking place," she said. "It doesn't have the charm it did eight years ago."

Harlton agreed with Kopietz.

"I do a lot of shopping in the area," he said. "I can appreciate how the business district has vanished."

He also knows first-hand how the vagueness of the current commercial zoning ordinance can hurt businesses.

His request to have a parcel of vacant land at the north end of town (just south of Beverly's) rezoned commercial last year was denied by the village council.

If the commercial ordinance is split into two or three sections, a rezoning request like his might be approved, Harlton said.

"We have the potential to improve the north end of town," he said. "I feel it needs to be better defined."

Fire intentionally set at Dixie business

A fire at Moon Valley Rustic Furniture on Easter Sunday was determined to be arson, according to reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSA).

About 9:20 p.m. April 3, neighbors near the Dixie Highway outdoor furniture business in Independence Township noticed the fire and called the firefighters, said Capt. Steve Ronk of the Independence Township Fire Department.

Firefighters doused the flames in about 10 minutes before much damage occurred. Damages to one building and a rack of pine logs totaled about $1,500, said Ronk.

It's lucky the fire was caught before the fire could spread to the inside of the building, which is used as a spray booth and contains highly flammable materials, he said.

The fire began in the rack of logs that had been sitting in the open for several days and had been soaked by rain, he said.

There are no suspects, no motives, no labor problems and no neighbor problems, he said.

No one was injured, and the business will be able to resume production as usual, he said.

The fire could have been much worse, he said.

"The potential was there, but the neighbors saw it quick enough. ... The place is a bomb waiting to happen. It's a big lumber yard with gallons of paint and thinner and lacquer. They're always a fire hazard because of the nature of the business, and they know it," he said. "The margin for error is less for them than for other businesses."

Anyone with information about the fire should call the fire department at 625-1924 or the OCSA at 858-4950.

Village reappoints 4

One planning commission member and three zoning board of appeals members have been reappointed by the Clarkston Village Council.

Marty Johnston, whose term expired March 31, 1988, was reappointed to the planning commission by a unanimous vote. Her term runs until 1991.

James Huttenlocher, Margaret DeCosta and Thomas Hunter were all unanimously reappointed to the zoning board of appeals. The three seats will be up for reappointment in 1991.

Council sets salaries

Salaries for the 1987-88 fiscal year were approved by the village council March 28.

The total payroll for the six council members and president was $6,300 - the same as last year.

In a 4-0 vote, the village council approved the proposed salaries as follows: Trustee James Schultz, $525; Trustee Eric Haven, $425; Trustee Gary Symons, $350; Trustee William Basinger, $475; Trustee Douglas Roeser, $325; Trustee Frank Millard, $500; and President Sharron Catallo, $3,500.

Clarkston approves wetlands law concept

A Wetlands Ordinance for Clarkston was approved in concept at the March 28 village council meeting.

Previously, village council members had discussed passing an ordinance similar to the township's to help protect Clarkston's wetland areas.

Trustee Douglas Roeser worked on developing an ordinance and brought it before the village council for its approval.

"I think this ordinance is important to have," he said. "It's important we get this passed and off to the DNR for input."

The village's ordinance uses basically the same language as the township's version, said Roeser, and only a few minor changes were made.

Such items as waiving the requirement for a permit under emergency situations and stricter guidelines were included in the village version.

Village attorney John Steckling advised the council not to pass the ordinance yet, but to approve it in concept and send it off to the state Department of Natural Resources for review.

The village council will review the ordinance when it returns from the DNR and vote on whether to pass it.

FIREFIGHTERS AT the village fire station spotted funnel clouds moments before the tornado touched down off Church Street near the eastern border of Independence Township and the Village of Clarkston. Fire Chief Gar Wilson said he knew the damage was caused by a tornado when he visited the scene. "When it starts twisting trees out of the ground that way, it's more than a windstorm," he said.

son hung up, but only had time to step into a hallway as the storm roared through.

A large blue spruce fell, barely missing the car parked in the driveway, the tree in the front yard went down, a garbage can lid shot through the screen on her back porch, some shingles blew off the roof, and one shutter lost its louvers - but the frame stayed in place.

"I don't suppose it lasted over a minute, maybe more. I'm a poor judge of time," she said. "You're so scared you think of everything afterward."

Tom Mauti of West Washington Street said he and his wife quickly gathered their children and ran to the crawl space under their home.

He saw a sheet of rain and parts of a swimming pool fly by the window, but the only damages to his home were a knocked over TV antenna and a blown out porch window.

Wilson said the final bit of damage he heard about involved a boat wrapped around a tree on Parke Lake Drive, just south of Clarkston Road.

Edison wires were pulled loose from a couple of houses on Washington Street when trees fell and some phone and cable-TV wires were also loosened, he said.

Crews from Edison and Michigan Bell were called to the scene by the fire department, as was Consumers Power to ensure there were no gas line leaks created when trees were uprooted.

Opinions

American dream

Kathy Greenfield

In a flash of goodwill, I offered to let my car travel west last week to East Lansing in trade for my daughter's car that needs repairs.

It was such a nice thing to do. I can't wait to get it back. Playing musical cars has become an ongoing activity in our family.

When I drive my son's car, he says I always manage to shut the seat belt in the door. When I drive my husband's car, he says I always leave the radio station on rock 'n' roll. When I drive my daughter's car, she says I always leave the seat up too far.

I'm innocent, of course.

My mind meanders back to the first car we purchased some 20 years ago. It was our only car, and we made do somehow. If I needed the car, I drove my husband to work - or something radically foolish such as that.

Even as our family grew to four, I never imagined that our fleet would enlarge accordingly. Maybe it all began with such parental generosity as Big Wheels of their own, bikes of their own, and so on. The only insurance we needed - then - was Band Aids.

There are some really horrid realities about owning a family fleet. Even if everyone pays for gasoline and oil of their own, there are those incredible expenses, called insurance and repairs.

One of our autos feeds on diesel fuel. While we're talking major savings in the gasing up department, there are other details diesel owners must cope with.

During the harsh, cold winter, diesels need night-time protection, such as a garage, in order to start in the morning. Thus, at the house she and fellow students rent in East Lansing, my daughter convinced her fellow tenants that she should park in the single-car shack.

A few weeks later, the call came. A beam had fallen from the rotten roof and cracked the windshield. It was drivable, our daughter said.

When she brought it home, we realized that the smash had to be repaired. Let me put it this way: If somebody had sneezed, the windshield would have self-destructed.

As our fleet ages, more expected problems arise on a regular basis. Some of our cars are beginning to fall into a significant category. We used to call them old clunkers, junkers or, in more positive, albeit sarcastic, terminology, good transportation. What a laugh.

My favorite, newly heard term for old cars that still run is this: salt ride. Images of vehicles that fit the description ramble through my mind. None of ours are quite that bad.

But there are weeks when I ask myself this question: Are we working to feed, clothe and house ourselves, or are we working to maintain the vehicles?

At least part of the American dream has turned into "a car key in the hand of everyone who can drive."

Jim's Jottings

Haven't you had it up to here with "Euro" designed anything?

Chevy came out with Euro Sport, designers of clothes apparently thought Euro fashions are just what Americans could hardly wait for, and now someone is advertising Euro ceilings.

I have to wonder about manufacturers who are putting Euro in front of products these days since Chevy isn't setting the world on fire and clothes buyers are rejecting current fashions.

I really like some newspaper headlines Carroll Blair clipped from a Wisconsin paper. Think about these:

"A mother died in infancy"
"Deceased had never been fatally sick"
"Died suddenly, nothing serious"
"Died suddenly at age 103"
"Went to bed feeling well, but woke up dead"
"Kicked by a horse shod on left kidney"
"Pulmonary hemorrhage, sudden death, duration four years"

"Deceased died of blood poison, caused by a broken ankle, which is remarkable, as the automobile struck him between the lamp and the radiator."

Carroll also brought in his list of things to do today:

1. Get organized

2. Talk to wife
3. Get re-organized
4. Talk to wife
5. Abandon entire idea
6. Talk to self.

Mrs Brown: Why does Mrs Smith object to the specialist in the city operating on her husband?"

Mr Brown: I guess she doesn't want strangers opening up her male.

Groan.

One more. Father: Why are you eating with your knife?"

Son: "My fork leaks."

I love seeing James Garner in anything, even Mazda commercials. Since I found him on cable a few months ago I watch him nearly every night at 10:00. Before that I went to bed at 10:00.

Overheard: "After 10 years I finally got something to quiet my nerves—a divorce."

People who aren't afraid to roll up their sleeves, seldom lose their shirts.

Mark Twain said it: "It could probably be shown by facts and figures that there is no distinctively native American criminal class except Congress."

Editorial Editors have changed

Thanks to Margaret Stoddard we have a copy of "Metamora Cross Roads Weekly". It's dated July 7, 1900. It's interesting in more than a couple ways.

Mrs. Stoddard found the paper recently while sorting some family keepsakes. Her father's name, A. B. Hagerman, is on the envelope front with the printing, "1942 softball rules".

The paper is very dehydrated, crumbling, scotch taped and ragged. However, much is legible. One of the things that strikes this publisher is that there are just two advertisements in the 4-page paper with Metamora addresses, L. D. Thomas the harness-maker and tree grafting by Rufus Kinney.

Star Clothing House in Oxford modestly advertised the "greatest sacrifice sale ever held in Oakland county." Cascarats were advertised as "The ideal laxative", "Best for Bowels". Available at all druggists.

News items included: The Detroit Journal was destroyed by a $61,000 fire again; Earl Johnson, Orion farmer, discovered gold on his farm; A new paper has started in Otter Lake, Lapeer County; George Hargraves is the new editor and publisher of the Lapeer County Press; W. B. Clark, Crossroads publisher, will establish a new paper in Ortonville, called the Hustler, and gasoline came near destroying the Chas Randall palatial home in Oxford.

This July 7, 1900 Crossroads was the last one edited by Ed. F. Doty. And, he held nothing back in his final remarks:

"In laying down the editorial pen on the Cross Roads Weekly, I have no apologies to make, no regret to register and no advice to tender. My stay of several years in your village has been neither pleasant or profitable. Metamora is delightful with her ignorance and she is effectually damned by some of her professing Christians.

"Forgiving and forgetting are not in my makeup, and try as I may, I am unable to throw the mantle of charity around my persecutors. To those who willfully and maliciously destroyed my property at midnight, I have coals of fire to heap upon their heads.

"To those who deliberately perjured themselves in the courts of Lapeer County in order to save their friends and relatives from felons' cells, I have only scorn and contempt. I hope the unconvicted scoundrels will be properly punished while they live here on earth, and in the other world I would consign them to oblivion and eternal damnation.

"To my friends--the respected and law abiding, liberty loving--I have only words of praise. In the darkest hours of persecution I leaned upon the reputable for support, and they were generous in the extreme." Doty.

Do you think anyone misunderstood him?

Then came the opening remarks of the new editor, W. B. Clark:

"Having purchased and taken possession of the Cross Roads Weekly, I desire, in making my bow, to say to one and all that I am here for business, and looking forward and not backward will be my object, and from this time forward the motto of this paper... (illegible until)... charity, harmony and good will among its patrons.

"In taking up the quill at this time we do not desire to impress any that we have no opinion of our own, but rather that while we do have opinions, we at the same time have the highest respect for the opinion of others, and it will be our highest endeavor to make the Cross Roads Weekly, please, profit and interest to its patrons, and with this end in view we ask your hearty co-operation."

After what Doty wrote, Clark had little choice but to bow to the left and right and walk the middle of the road, at least in his first issue.

Oh, yea, subscriptions were 35 cents a year.

'If it Fitz...'

God's way

Jim Fitzgerald

While Jim Fitzgerald is vacationing, we're running columns he wrote for other newspapers before coming to the Free Press in 1976. This one is from 1974.

A bunch of sincere people wearing sandwich boards recently spent three days on the U.S. Capitol steps, praying for President Nixon. They call themselves the National Prayer and Fast Committee, which naturally reminds me of my old basketball team.

I was brought up to believe God answered all prayers. I didn't begin to have doubts until I went out for eighth-grade basketball. The coach was a priest and the first thing he told us was to make the sign of the cross before shooting each free shot.

What about field goals?

The coach explained about the two-handed set shot, which was the only way to make field goals in those days. In the action of the game, a player had to keep both hands ready to shoot at all times. There simply wasn't time to make a decent sign of the cross which (for all you heathens) requires that the crosser touch his forehead, chest and both shoulders with his right hand while saying "In the name of the Father and Son and Holy Ghost, amen."

That was pretty hard to do while dribbling.

No shortcuts allowed

However, it was different at the free throw line. A player had plenty of time for prayer before shooting. And the coach would tolerate no sloppiness. A kid had to pause plainly at all four stops - forehead, chest, left shoulder and right shoulder - and his lips had to be seen moving.

If a kid made a careless circle instead of a cross, with no stops, he risked immediate benching.

The awful thing was, I made the slowest cross on the team, and my words were louder than cheers. But I still missed most of my free shots. God wasn't paying attention. My faith began to leak.

I took my troubles to the coach. He explained God knows best. If my shots weren't going in, it was God's will, and I should accept it. And when I prayed to God to put my ball through the hoop, I should always add, just before the amen, "That is, if it is OK with you, God."

Which made my sign of the cross take even longer. And still the free throws wouldn't go in. God's will was against me. Finally, I asked the coach for permission to kneel before shooting, but he said no, it wouldn't be fair to the rest of the players for me to hog all of God's attention.

Simple requests are best

Toward the end of a miserable season, cynicism began to take hold. "Are you sure God really cares whether I make my free shots?" I asked the coach.

He looked both ways before answering. "Don't tell the bishop, but I'm not even sure God comes to all our games," he admitted.

"If I were you, I'd quit asking God to make your free shots. There are more important things than scoring. You should ask Him to at least let you hit the backboard."

From that day on, my life with God was easier. I finally realized it was wrong and foolish to ask for too much. And that is the advice I would give to the National Prayer and Fast Committee on the Capitol steps.

They shouldn't pray that God will smite the impeachers and enshrine Richard Nixon forever. That's too much. Instead, they should ask God to at least let Julie Nixon Eisenhower keep her job as an editor at the Ladies Home Journal.

Peeved re: parking

Have you ever seen a person park a car in downtown Clarkston and then check to see if the car is within the lines of the "marked" space? I have not!

Clarkston Patrol Officer Smalley has had the white lines marking the ending/beginning of each parking space extended an extra 18 inches into the street so that drivers, without even getting out of their cars, can see that they are between the lines, not half in one space and half in another.

I would like to suggest that some public-spirited organization print up some yellow 3-by-5 cards which read approximately as follows: "It would help the parking situation if you parked your car in one parking space instead of the two spaces it now occupies."

Before placing this notice on the offending vehicles, Officer Smalley could jot down the license number on the back of the card.

If we then found them discarded in the street, we could turn them in and Officer Smalley could run the license number and write a ticket for littering. LET'S GO!!!

Professor's quest

As a member of the Ford Old Timers Club, I am passing along a request for assistance printed in our newsletter that perhaps can be given by one or more Clarkston area residents.

"Professor Howard Segal, a historian of American technology at the University of Maine and part-time Michigan resident, is doing extensive research on Henry Ford's 19-village industry experiment in southeastern Michigan.

He would like to hear, in writing, from anyone who participated in one of more of the village industries or is related to or friends with anyone who participated in them.

"Professor Segal needs personal reflections on work and leisure in these interesting, and too often neglected, factory communities. He promises to respect all confidences. You may contact him by writing to: Professor Howard Segal, History Department, University of Maine, Orno, Maine 04469."

Anyone who can provide information should contact me at P.O. Box 16183, Clarkston, MI 48016, or write directly to Professor Segal with a copy to me.

Your cooperation is appreciated.

COG responds

The action by Citizens for Orderly Growth (COG) to exclude township officials from regular membership has led to several misunderstandings.

1. Contrary to reactions expressed by two officials, COG does want the benefit of their experience and expertise. It will seek their input by invitation to scheduled programs. It hopes for a favorable response.

2. COG is apolitical. It feels that now, particularly, in an election year, the exclusion of township officials from regular meetings is necessary to maintaining its status.

3. COG wants a full and free exchange of member opinions. However, on occasion, the presence of township officials at meetings has inhibited open discussion. Because of their presence, some members have been reluctant to express themselves while others were concerned that meetings would become campaign platforms.

COG is in a formative stage. As its direction and method of operation are more firmly established, it is likely that membership will be reopened to township officials.

For now, it is hoped that it is understood that the desire for free exchange of opinions and an apolitical status dictates COG's present position.

Thirsty Soul

By Bruce A. Stewart

Old man at the bar sits, drinks and thinks.
Always unquenched he thinks out loud, not many listen.
Expressions chiseled by the salty wind and torso withered by the glass.
A lifetime of melodic misfortune bleeds from his mouth.
Murky, smoked stained bars are his home.
The canteen his right arm he tells me I have time.
His body slowly drowning in time that no longer exists.
Swallowing his last drink of life he turns to me and smiles.

Village road problems remain

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston worries about road repair and services haven't changed much during the past two years, representatives from the Oakland County Road Commission discovered March 28.

Brent Bair, of the OCRC, spoke before the village council - as he had two years ago - asking what needs Clarkston had pertaining to road repairs.

The major problems discussed previously still remained unsolved.

"I don't see all that much that has changed," said President Sharron Catallo assessing the village's road repair needs. "The village roads need work."

The village road in the worst condition is Holcomb, the president said.

"It's going to need more than patching but we will continue to (patch it) until we build up enough funds," she said.

Bair told the village council the OCRC was once again discussing road repair needs with all the municipalities in Oakland County. Clarkston was the 33rd stop among the 58 to be made, he said.

Most of the problems other municipalities had two years ago are still problems today, he added.

Besides the shoddy condition of village roads, a low area - where water often collects in huge puddles - on the corner of Clarkston Road and Main Street also needs attention, village council members said.

OCRC's first survey revealed a need for $750 million to repair roads in Oakland County.

The state has chipped in some funds for road repair but not enough to solve many of the problems.

Under a 10-year plan, the OCRC wants to generate $75 million a year to reach its goal.

The August primary ballot will include a proposal to tax car and truck owners an extra $25 during the next decade, the road commission representative said.

"This isn't going to solve the problems, just a small piece," Bair said.

He said the village council could spend its share of the money the OCRC raises (should the proposal pass) any way it wanted. The money doesn't have to be for the repair of county roads, he said.

If the proposal fails and the road commission isn't able to raise the anticipated amount of money for road repairs, the patching of village roads will continue, said Catallo.

Village officials will then continue to set aside money to repair Clarkston's roads.

"We'll have to find another way to pay for it," she said. "We have set up contingency funds (for road repair work), but we don't have enough for the major work."

Tree stops vehicle

A 21-year-old Waterford Township resident was seriously injured April 4 when his car hit a tree on White Lake Road, Independence Township.

Robert Kenneth Evans Jr. of Pleasant Road, Waterford Township, was in critical condition Monday at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, according to reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD).

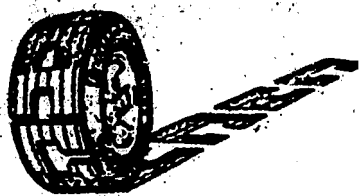

About 3:10 a.m. April 4, Evans was driving westbound on White Lake Road, just west of Dixie Highway, when the 1986 Pontiac he was driving apparently left the south side of the roadway and stuck a tree, according to the police report.

Firefighters from Independence Township extricated him from the vehicle.

The accident is under investigation, said OCSD traffic investigator Kenneth Hurst.

Evans was not wearing a seat belt, said Hurst.

CHS accreditation now in jeopardy

BY KATHY GREENFIELD
Clarkston News Editor

The accreditation of Clarkston High School by the North Central Association hinges on correcting three violations of standards.

In a letter dated March 24, NCA State Director William Bushaw notified CHS Principal Robert Burek that the high school had been placed on "Second Warned" status. If the problems are not corrected within one year, the school will be dropped from NCA membership, the letter said.

Specifically, the violations are:

■ Seven teachers with a teaching load of over 170. The number represents 12.5 percent of the CHS teaching staff of 56. The seven teach English and social studies.

■ One librarian for 1,600 students; continuing deviation. NCA regulations require two librarians for more than 1,500 students.

■ Inadequate media center seating; continuing deviation. There are 78 existing seats in the library; 112 are required, based on enrollment.

Two things must happen if the violations are to be erased, Burek said: School district voters will have to approve an increase in taxes for operational purposes on the June 13 ballot and voters will have to approve a bond issue for renovations to the existing high school or for a new high school.

The board of education is expected to set the millage amount for the operational tax increase at its April 11 meeting. Discussions are ongoing about whether or not to seek voter approval for a new high school or for improvements to the existing building.

Schools voluntarily seek NCA accreditation, status, which has been afforded Clarkston High School since 1960 when construction of the current high school was completed.

The benefits of conforming to the rigorous standards of the NCA include an annual report made by the school principal and an on-site evaluation every seven years, which includes a lengthy report by the school staff and attention to such items as goal-setting and in-depth studies of the existing curriculum by the staff and administrators.

"I think it's important," said Burek. "It assures a community that its high school maintains minimal standards."

Burek compares the NCA to professional associations for such fields as law and medicine.

"Personally, if I were a citizen in this community, I'd have some real reservations about sending my children to a high school that is not accredited," he said.

CHS also holds accreditation from the University of Michigan. According to Burek, the U of M association's standards are not as rigorous as those of the NCA. He said CHS is "in about the same boat" with the U of M group because of the crisis in the library-media center and in class size.

Burek also noted that if the operational tax hike request fails in June, the NCA accreditation is certain to be lost. NCA will not accept a five-hour day or the loss of extracurricular activities, he said.

Milford Mason, superintendent of Clarkston schools, concurred. "If we're not successful in June, a decision will have to be made to be dropped from the organization or voluntarily withdraw," he said.

Of the slightly over 700 school districts in Michigan, 360 hold NCA accreditation, said NCA state director Bushaw. Ten of the 360, including Clarkston, are currently in "Second Warned" status and of the 6,000 schools accredited by the NCA in 19 states, less than 50 are in "Second Warned" status.

Schools in the NCA agree to meet minimum standards, he said, and "once a school's on 'Second Warned,' that's it. They have one year (to correct the problems), or they will be dropped."

While everyone recognizes that a quality educational program is ultimately due to people who teach and plan, certain minimum resources are necessary, he said. If accreditation is lost, Burek said, the staff at CHS would continue to do its best.

"We'd work awfully hard to offer the best possible education with the resources we have to the children of this community," he said.

"Personally, if I were a citizen in this community, I'd have some real reservations about sending my children to a high school that is not accredited."

Busy night ahead for school board

On April 11, the Clarkston Board of Education will decide what to restore to the district's budget if voters approve a tax hike proposal on June 13.

The board will also decide how many operational mills to request on the ballot. The administration recommended 5.42 mills, or $5.42 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

The board will also vote on wording for the June 13 ballot for a request for a $5.2 million bond issue to make repairs on existing buildings.

The annual levy for the loan would be 1 mill or less.

Other items on the regular meeting agenda include introduction of Clarkston High School's Class of 1988 students with the top 10 grade point averages and their parents; tenure recommendations for six teachers; approval of amended graduation requirements; authorization for adding AIDS instruction materials to the health education curriculum; review of bids to hire a firm to inspect all district buildings for asbestos; and approval of a contract with Charles Sherman Associates of Pontiac, an architectural firm, to prepare plans for repairing the district's buildings.

The candidates for the two school board seats on the June 13 ballot will also be announced. The filing deadline for candidates is 4 p.m. on April 11.

The board meets at 8 p.m. in the district's administration office building, 6389 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township.

Business Briefs

Township woman receives citation

An Independence Township woman was recently honored for her work on a special eight-page section about 4-H printed in the Detroit Free Press.

Brenda Schneider received a Citation Award from the Michigan 4-H Youth Programs.

The opportunity to share the message about 4-H was rewarding in itself, said Brenda Schneider, vice president and community relations director of Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit.

"I was deeply flattered," she said. "I did it out of love for the organization, and I never expected any type of recognition."

As editor, Schneider proposed the section to the Free Press; contacted the writers including Gov. James Blanchard to the presidents of Michigan State University, the Ford Motor Co. and the Coca Cola Co.; was responsible for the layout and design; and wrote the headlines.

The project took 15 months from conception to completion. The section was published on Feb. 9, 1987.

"It's the first time that a major daily newspaper anywhere in the United States took an entire section to tell the story about a youth organization," she said.

Schneider was prompted to do the section because many people continue to perceive 4-H as an organization for rural residents.

Children in urban settings also benefit from 4-H, she said, by participating in a wide range of activities including the Japanese exchange program, career development, working with handicapped children and raising dogs for Leader Dogs for the Blind.

The Citation Award was presented to Schneider on Feb. 27 at the Michigan State University Kellogg Center.

"I have it in my office, and it hangs with great pride," she said.

Scott adds credentials

Roger Scott of Independence Township was recently recognized by the Associated Locksmiths of America Inc. (ALOA) for achieving the status of registered locksmith by successfully completing a nationally recognized proficiency registration program.

The worldwide program, initiated in 1985, establishes a standard of excellence within the security industry and credentials that will give consumers confidence in selecting vendors.

Locksmiths can go on to earn certified professional locksmith or certified master locksmith status. Scott is currently working toward the certified professional locksmith classification.

Scott, along with his wife Carol, has owned Scott's Lock & Key Shop Inc. at 4580 Sashabaw Rd. in Independence Township for 13 years. In addition to being a member of ALOA, he is vice president of the Michigan Master Locksmith Association.

A SWEET TREAT of ice cream looks like gold to Sommer Page as she chooses what kind of topping she wants on her sundae. The students at Andersonville Elementary were treated to the ice cream as a reward for their hard work during a reading program.

Top bananas in reading division

Andersonville Elementary pupils raised $1,000 for the Chimpanzee House at the Detroit Zoo through a successful reading program.

All of the pupils in the school earned the money by asking people to pledge a certain amount of money for each book they read.

The activity was capped off with a ice cream sundae feast at the school Thursday afternoon.

The top banana award was given to the students in each class who earned the most points.

Board member to step down

Thomas Bills has decided not to make a bid for a second four-year term on the Clarkston Board of Education.

The Allen Road resident said he made the decision because it became too difficult to handle four major commitments: family, work, the Air Force Reserves and the board of education.

"It wasn't an easy decision," said Bills. "I really enjoy being on the board. It's been a good experience working with some great people."

Incumbent John Needham, of Middle Lake Road, currently holds the second seat up for election on the June 13 ballot. Needham said he plans to run for re-election.

All positions on the seven-member board of education are part time. Board members are paid $30 a meeting, for up to 52 meetings a year, for a maximum of $1,560. Generally, the board meets fewer than 52 times.

Residents of the Clarkston school district interested in running for the election have until Monday, April 11, at 4 p.m. to turn in petitions at the administration office, 6389 Clarkston Rd.

Twenty valid signatures of Clarkston school district residents are required for a candidate's name to appear on the ballot.

Petitions are available at the administration office this week from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. and on Monday, beginning at 7:30 a.m. Candidates must also file affidavits of identity, which are available at the administration office.

People swarm to Del Webb's idea

By Jim Sherman, publisher

Sun City is not for everybody, but it is for a growing number of people.

There is more than one Sun City. We visited Sun City West outside Phoenix, Arizona. This is an extension of Sun City, which sprouted from cotton fields in 1960.

Eighteen years later those cotton fields had become the largest adult community in the world.

Sun City is completed, boasting a population of 46,000, while Sun City West, 3 miles away, has grown to over 14,000. It is expected to be completed in the early 1990's.

All residents will be age 50 or older.

These Del Webb developments are organized communities. They call it "Total Planning". That is the good and bad of it, depending on how you want to live that part of your life.

Sun City/Sun City West outdistance their competitors in recreation, social and cultural activities, medical services, and housing quality.

We toured their huge bowling alley/pool hall complex. It is massive. The complex, which includes, hobby, social and creative activities, cost $14 million.

A second, $5.5 million recreation center with crafts, huge indoor/outdoor swimming pools, and every conceivable type of fitness equipment, has been completed.

Sun City West has six 18-hole golf courses for residents and a private country club. There are miles of beautiful streets and sidewalks for walking, jogging, or bicycling.

Their 7,169 single-level theatre is the nation's largest. Several super stars appear at the Sundome each year.

To keep the place neat and tidy, volunteers are called on. Orange uniformed groups pick up fallen oranges, leaves, etc. That's one of the "total planning" aspects to consider.

They also have volunteer security, which hasn't always met with complete approval of newcomers. Sometimes the feeling of 'watched over' is substituted for 'security'.

During our visit we wondered where the people were. No one was on the streets. Of course, nearly all the houses have very small front yards and enclosed back yards. Privacy is a big thing.

The first home Del Webb sold in 1960 cost $8,900. Today, expect to pay over $125,000 for a Sun City West model home, though they say prices range from $58,000 to $210,000. They have 21 models to select from. They also have their own buyer selection department.

One should not feel they have to buy a model home in Sun City West. Indeed, people do die and move. Out of the thousands of homes built since 1960, several are available at any given time. Yes, they have their own real estate offices, too.

By 1990 it is predicted that 330,000 adults over the age of 45 will move to Arizona. Currently, there are more than 100 adult communities, like Leisure World, scattered throughout Arizona.

Census Bureau statistics show that almost 21 percent of all Phoenix retired adults live in or near the Sun Cities. About 1,500 are moving into Sun City West each year.

Climate and recreational appeals have proven to be the determining factor for these people to move to Sun City West.

If you like adult community living (no kids for very long and various restrictions), if you totally planned community including most church denominations, banks and stores, if you like things organized the Sun Cities may be for you.

Like we said in the beginning, it's not for everyone. A friend of ours moved in one year and out the next because he couldn't stand his life "totally planned", with that many old people all around him.

He may be a minority, because it sure is a booming place.

One of the golf courses at Sun City West with recreational facilities and the theatre stretched out between a massive parking lot and a park area.

One of the organized, volunteer clean-up crews.

Tennis team loaded with experience

Last year's pain will be this spring's pleasure for the boys tennis team at Clarkston High School.

The Wolves filled last season's roster with a generous portion of underclassmen and inexperienced players.

Clarkston finished with a 6-4 record in dual meets while the young Wolves learned their trade under fire.

Now the team is loaded with veteran varsity players and is ready to challenge once again for the Greater Oakland Activities League title.

How serious a threat they will be this season, though, won't be known until the games begin, said Coach Dick Swartout. But Clarkston's tradition of using tough non-league teams to round out the schedule continues.

"We will be playing some higher ranked teams this season," he said.

Two new teams on the schedule are Rochester Adams and Bloomfield Andover. Both will be difficult to beat, the coach said.

The Wolves also will face perennial power Milford, unbeaten last season, early in the year.

"It will be an indication of how good we are," he said.

Sophomores Keith Turner and Ian Halloran along with returning veterans Steve Hollis and Dave Reading will provide Clarkston with a solid roster.

All of the doubles teams from last season return as well, the coach said. Scott Kane, a sophomore, also will see action in doubles competition for the Wolves.

"Experience-wise this is the best group I have had," he said. "The sophomores are a welcome addition."

The Wolves play their home matches at Clintonwood Park in Independence Township. The team opens the season April 12 at home against Lakeland.

Leagues forming

Volleyball enthusiasts are gearing up for another season of summer play through the township parks and recreation department.

Games are played at Clintonwood Park, where four sand courts are available.

Teams will call their own games. Winners and runners-up will earn awards. All participants get T-shirts for playing.

There are a variety of different leagues to choose from. Call the township office at 625-8223 for more information. The deadline to register is May 25.

Tennis anyone?

WARM WEATHER brings Jenny Presson and her friends out of the house for an afternoon of fun playing tennis on the courts at Sashabaw Junior High School Monday.

Defense is first for Wolves

Defense should be Clarkston High's strong suit in junior varsity softball, the team's new coach said.

Al Cuthrell, retired from the Waterford school district, took over as head coach of the junior varsity program at CHS this spring, and he likes what he's seen so far.

"Optimistically, (the season) could be a good one," he said. "I'm impressed."

Unlike some softball teams, the Wolves have done extremely well with their gloves during practice sessions, he added.

During his days as an umpire, he has seen shoddy fielding turn a close game into a blowout. The Wolves probably won't let that happen to them.

"They field the ball real well," he said. "That's important."

The coach even has his own short-but-sweet philosophy on the important role defense plays in a softball game.

"He who is sharp wins," he said.

If Clarkston expects to compete with other league schools, the Wolves will have to be at their best day-in and day-out, the coach said.

The schools in the Greater Oakland Activities League should provide good competition, he said. Even new GOAL member Brandon will be tough to beat.

Some of the players expected to make an impact on the all-sophomore team include pitcher Jamie Law and third-sacker Shaun Wilson. Amy Blome and Jodi Lopucki will combine their talents and share the short-stop position.

Across the diamond at first base, Julie White and Laurie Highlen will hold down the fort. Outfielder Michelle Sykes, catcher Rebecca Poche and Lisa Manzo also figure to crack the starting lineup for Cuthrell's crew this spring.

The Wolves' new coach found out about the coaching job in a roundabout way when he contacted Athletic Director Paul Tungate for an umpiring job.

Tungate then informed Cuthrell of the opening for a junior varsity coaching post, and he accepted the challenge of preparing the young Wolves for a winning season.

Besides previous experience as an umpire, the Wolves' new coach also used to play in area fast-pitch softball leagues. He is no newcomer to the game.

The season opener is scheduled April 14 against Lapeer West on the road. Until then, Clarkston High's newest coach has adopted a wait-and-see attitude.

"I'm kind of enthused," he said. "But it's all up to the kids."

Time out

A woman's world?

Peter Auchter

I see a definite trend developing among sports personalities.

Everyone is jumping on the bandwagon to see who has his foot-in-the-mouth the deepest.

My winner by a landslide in this gee-did-I-say-something-wrong contest is Houston Astros pitcher Bob Knepper.

The man has proclaimed God did not put women on this Earth to be in a position of authority. President, governor, sportswriter and umpire are jobs only men should fill, Knepper said. Wow, what a revelation.

Knepper decided to make his anti-woman stance public after pitching five innings with a female umpire behind the plate recently.

He found nothing wrong with her, but he said God wouldn't approve of her occupation.

Knepper isn't alone in the land of outlandish statements by any stretch of the imagination. Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder, formerly of CBS-TV, and Al Campanis, formerly of the Los Angeles Dodgers baseball team, made disparaging remarks about blacks and their abilities.

Both were caught red-handed with their so-called biases flapping in the wind.

Good old national TV probably helped matters a lot by replaying what they said a couple of hundred times to stoke the flames underneath the seething lynch mobs even higher.

Once people get on a roll, it's hard to stop them. Campanis and Snyder were quickly ousted from their posts and banished to a never-never land.

It's the never-never land where one should never, never open his mouth if the spotlight of national television is around. Only bad things can happen.

Maybe that's why Knepper's comments didn't land him in the twilight zone or at least the unemployment line.

He still made all the newspapers - at least those papers with male sportswriters because he doesn't talk to female reporters in the locker room - and columnists had a field day.

Unfortunately, it ended there. Nobody roasted his butt over an open flame for denigrating women.

Knepper would be a perfect guest on David Letterman's show. There hasn't been this much material available on one guy since Watergate.

From personal experience in the working world, women seem to be holding their own against the males. Heaven forbid, but some are even doing better.

Maybe I missed it, but I haven't heard about Margaret Thatcher or any other woman in authority being struck down by lightning.

I think that Knepper saw a perfect opportunity to grab some national attention and went for it.

But one day he may realize the error of his ways.

He said that it's OK for women to be leaders, but they will have to answer to God when their time is up.

That's all fine and dandy, but what if (and it's possible) God is a woman.

What will Knepper do then?

Hopefully, he'll keep his mouth shut.

Sign up for team tennis

Fun and recreation are the goals of the Domino's team tennis program co-sponsored by the Independence Parks and Recreation Department.

People of all ages are welcome and fun, recreation and competition are the name of the game.

Teams must consist of at least four players, two men and two women, and may have no more than 10. The league begins in May at Clintonwood Park.

Each match includes one set of men's singles, women's single, men's doubles and women's doubles and two sets of mixed doubles.

The scoring will be by cumulative games won. A Kick-Off party May 21 at Clintonwood, hosted by Domino's Pizza, will begin the season.

Participants in the program will receive T-shirts and league winners will take home awards from Domino's.

Currently, the program is offered to those 16 years and older, but a division for juniors or seniors will be provided if there is enough interest.

To enter a team or to get on a team, call the parks and recreation department at 625-8223. Deadline to register is May 6.

Plans are complete for 2nd Fun Daze

The location's different, but everything else remains the same for the second annual Fun Daze extravaganza scheduled for May 21.

A balloon lift at sunrise starts the day while a street dance will close out the activities at sunset, said Fun Daze chairman Dick Greenfield.

St. Daniel's Catholic Church on Holcomb Road will hold most of the activities for Fun Daze this year.

Registration for the walks and races begin at 7:30 a.m. and end around 9 a.m. the day of the event. A breakfast sponsored by the senior citizens is slated to run from 7:30 until 10 a.m.

The one-mile walk/run begins at 9:30 a.m. and the 5-kilometer and 10-kilometer runs kick off at 10 a.m.

Unlike last year, runners will be treated to scenic country views while on the course. Most of the runs will be on gravel roads instead of pavement.

Approximately 500 to 700 people are expected to run in Fun Daze this year.

"We will try to double (the number of people) this year," the chairman said.

No parking is available at the church, he said, but plenty of parking will be available at the high school, junior high and behind township hall.

Free shuttle bus service will help alleviate the parking problem.

While the runners are on the course, there will be a myriad of activities for people of all ages to enjoy, said Greenfield.

"It'll be a good time," he added. "We want to make it first class."

A bike rodeo and safety inspection will be sponsored by the Clarkston Optimists Club at Clarkston

Junior High.

There also will be a "Big Wheel 500" race in the church parking lot (racers provide their own Big Wheels). Toddlers can take part in a gymboree program.

People can also bring their pets with them and show them off during a pet show. Others can entertain themselves with the kites that will be sold at St. Dan's.

Clowns from the Clarkston Rotary along with puppets, music and a mime troupe will entertain the crowd all day long. Bleachers will be erected at the start/finish line.

From 3 until 5 p.m. in the Depot Park Gazebo, the Clarkston Village Players will stage a free skit.

There also will be a "Clarkston Boat-a-Rama" in the park. Boats from Chriscraft and Sea Ray will be on display.

While food vendors will be at St. Dan's all day, the activities will cease for a dinner break at 6 p.m.

"I would encourage people to (patronize) the restaurants in the village that have supported us," Greenfield said.

The chairman hopes this year's event can raise even more money than the $1,900 Fun Daze netted last year.

Each organization involved in Fun Daze raises money for its own cause, but all are asked to donate a percentage of their profits to a general fund.

The money will then be used to begin some kind of special project for the community. One suggestion is a wooden pathway and observation towers in the wetlands area within Depot Park, the chairman said.

SELLERS MARKET?

Every week I will have this article on "SELLING YOUR HOME", giving you helpful hints, and keeping you up on the Real Estate Market. I am doing this to help keep you informed as I would like to someday earn the right to service you and your friends with their Real Estate needs.

Right now, as you have probably heard, the Real Estate market is very good. We have now what we call a "SELLERS MARKET". If you have been thinking of selling, but not sure "when", I would seriously consider doing it NOW. This is an election year, and the word is out that things will probably stay good, but no one knows for sure what will happen next year. If interest rates go up, that means your home will be worth less money.

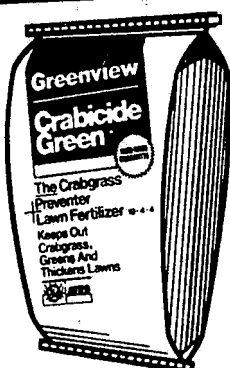

If you would like my "HOW TO SELL YOUR HOME FOR MORE THAN IT'S WORTH", contact me and I'll see that you get a copy. See you next week.

Sharon Vincent enjoys children so much she decided to make a business out of it.

The mother of three - Johnathon, 4; Tony, 7; and Charlie, 8 - Sharon has been a Cub Scout den mother, a Catechism teacher, a neighborhood babysitter and the organizer of the Christmas program, Toys for Kids.

Her new Clarkston Just For Kids daycare center in her home at 4803 Clearview, Independence Township, should provide a secure environment for children, said Sharon.

"It's more familiar with their own home," she said. "There will be smaller classrooms. It will be a sense of home instead of a building, especially for the younger ones."

Sharon hopes her two dogs, guinea pig and hamster also make the children feel at home. She just finished painting and carpeting the basement and furnished the area with a sand box, a child-sized arts and crafts area, a nap area and a huge "free play" area.

"We have lots of space," she said. Her husband, Charles, plans to add a fenced-in play area outside and she will also take the children for walks down the private tree-lined gravel roads in the subdivision south of Clarkston Road near Walters Lake.

Sharon accepts newborns to children who are school age and only need care before or after school this time of year. She expects the summer to be busy and is counting on help from a student in early childhood development.

She's excited by her new business.

"I didn't want to leave my kids with a sitter and go to work. I don't want a nine-to-five job. I'm really looking forward to it. ... I've babysat a lot. I've probably babysat a lot of the kids in this neighborhood. I thought it would be a good idea to start a business out of it," she said.

"With daycare, I can watch them do more things. I like to be able to see them learn, to accomplish something. I've always liked kids. ... It's not just babysitting. We're not here to just watch them. Plus, it's the interaction with the other kids."

She also enjoys the element of surprise that envelops the world of children.

"You never know what they're going to do. They always do something different," she said. "I like their innocence. ... Kids are pretty open. They're real honest. They don't mince with words."

Sharon shared her philosophy on caring for children.

"Common sense is the biggest thing in raising children," she said. "Treat them like they're human beings. Talk to them. ... Listen to them. Be involved."

New curriculum

State education officials announced they will be mailing curriculum packets on AIDS, to help school districts comply with a 1987 law requiring basic information about the disease be taught in schools.

The materials, which were jointly developed by the state Department of Education and Public Health, provide instruction on facts and myths about AIDS, how the disease is and is not transmitted and how it can be prevented.

At the 9th and 10th grade levels, students will be taught about different levels of HIV infection and how the AIDS virus attacks the nervous system, as well as risk reduction techniques.

At the 11th and 12th grade levels, instruction is to include various links in the communicable disease chain, and behavior which students can practice which will reduce the risk of HIV infection.

Wanda Jubb, health director for the Department of Education, said it will be up to local districts to determine at which of the two grades the instruction will be given.

Teachers who will be providing the instruction will receive in-service training, State Board of Education President Barbara Roberts-Mason said.

The curriculum units contain teacher resources, student worksheets and handouts, transparencies and videos. The materials are being provided through a grant from the Federal Center for Disease Control.

Local boards of education will review the materials before instruction begins in their schools, and parents will have the option of removing their children from the program if they wish, Roberts-Mason said.

Information about AIDS education was collected during two surveys last year, said Ned Hubbell, director of the board's Project Outreach.

Both high school students and parents overwhelmingly supported AIDS education, including how AIDS is transmitted, the characteristics of the disease, and how it can be prevented including use of condoms.

SENATE COMMITTEE APPROVES
"BOOT CAMP" BILL

Legislation that would establish a "boot camp" for young criminal offenders has been approved by a Senate committee, with approval by the full Legislature expected to follow soon.

The bill would authorize the Department of Corrections to establish military-regimen camps for first-time criminal offenders between the ages of 17 and 25. To meet the program's goal as an alternative to prison, the criminals would have to be facing sentences of at least one year.

The nearly $1.6 million it would take to implement the program this year has already been budgeted, with an estimated $2.4 million needed for fiscal year 1988-89.

Sen. Jack Welborn (R-Kalamazoo), sponsor of the legislation, said he hopes the camps fulfill a goal of rehabilitating young criminals, something, he said, that is not done in the prison system.

"If it comes off as operational as it is on paper, it will be the best program in the United States. I contend the only thing we teach in prison is how to be a better criminal. I believe a person facing hard labor and discipline has a better chance of going straight in the community," he said. Judges would have discretion to send the offenders, at their consent, to a 90-day stint at the camp, followed by probation.

No visitors would be allowed, and the camps would stress military discipline, work projects in conservation areas and education.

Television access would be limited to one hour of news each day. If offenders violate camp rules, they may be sent back to the judge for re-sentencing.

The camps will also provide offenders with drug and alcohol abuse counseling and teach them how to fill out job applications.

The first 150-bed camp will be Camp Sable near Freesoil. It is to be converted from a traditional work camp program already in existence, with those inmates transferred to other corrections facilities.

A second camp is to open near Manistique next year.

JEFFREY GRUSNICK pedals his way back and forth down Washington Street near the Mill Pond Monday afternoon while he enjoys the sunny spring day.

Watch out

The thunderstorm season is upon us, and an average of three people are killed by lightning each year in Michigan.

Although summer incidents are more prevalent, now is the time to develop good techniques to deal with the storms.

*Do not stand under a tall, isolated tree or telephone pole. Stay away from hills and other high areas. If you can get into a trench, ravine or valley, do so immediately when you see lightning.

*If you are boating, start for shore the moment you see threatening clouds, and stay away from your boat and the water.

*Lightning is a strong electrical charge in a storm cloud waiting to happen, and can strike as far as three miles from the cloud. It is attracted by metal, water or a group of people.

*If you're caught in a storm, get away from tractors, golf carts and cycles. Golfers should put down golf clubs and remove metal-cleated shoes.

*If you're in a group, have everyone spread out at least several yards apart. Be sure to stay away from wire fences, metal pipes and rails.

*If possible, get inside a house, building or non-convertible car when weather is threatening. If you are caught in an open field or prairie, and you feel your hair stand on end, you are a target for lightning. Drop to the ground and place your hands on your knees. Do NOT lie flat on the ground.

Persons struck by lightning have received a severe electrical shock and may be burned, but do not carry an electrical charge. Someone who appears to have been killed can often be revived by prompt action and should be treated first.

Victims who appear only stunned or otherwise unhurt may be in shock or have received serious burns. Do not let these people walk around. Check for burns at the fingers and toes and at any jewelry or metal buckles.

If possible stay with the victims and send someone else for help.

Cast in bronze: Artists' works receive permanent finish at Fine Arts Sculpture Centre

BY CAROLYN WALKER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Bronze figures (not the kind acquired basking in the sun) are in suspended animation on a Saturday afternoon.

Some stand. Some sit. Whatever, they relax to the sound of music. Madonna, specifically, pouring out of speakers located in the foundry.

It is a relatively quiet day, one of few, at the Fine Arts Sculpture Centre on Clintonville Road in Independence Township.

The Clarkston News

Reflections

Wednesday, April 6, 1988

The kiln is cool and the brushes are dry. Only a couple of workers mill about, putting the finishing touches on a building expansion. Work with the bronze figures will come later.

With a fascinated observer in tow, saying repeatedly that she never would have guessed this place existed, co-owner Charlene Petrucci conducts a tour.

The sculpture centre, she explains, is a family business where the ancient technique of bronze casting is practiced.

Founded by Fred Petrucci some 30 years ago, it is now owned by his descendants, cousins Al and Michael Petrucci and their wives, Charlene and Janet.

They, along with two other employees, perform the various tasks required for completing the products: bronze busts, awards, plaques and other figures, large and small.

Sculptors come from all over the United States and Canada to have their sculpted renderings recreated in bronze, she says, and include famous artists like Marshall Fredericks.

Heading up the stairs to where several pieces await finishing, Petrucci gestures about her at the molds, the wax, the statues, the bronze nuggets, and begins to rattle off the procedures used in creating a bronze masterpiece.

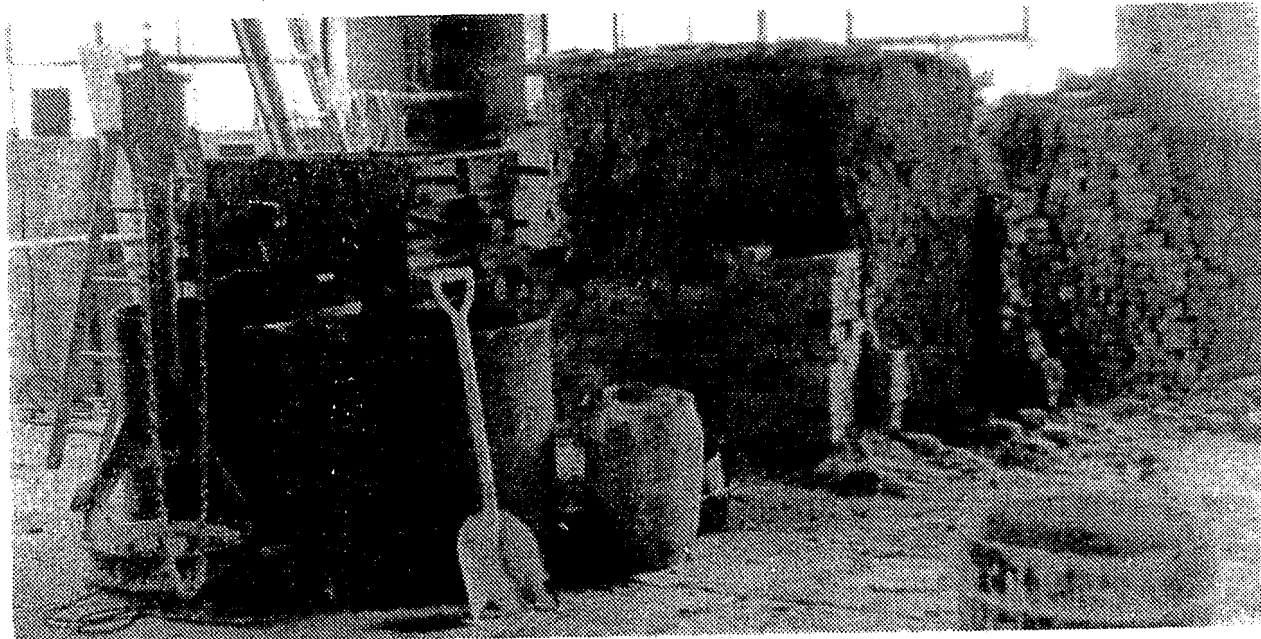

The art of bronze casting, using what is called the "lost wax technique," involves several steps, Petrucci

(See SCULPTURES, Page 40)

Mike Petrucci demonstrates how to apply a patina, or color, to a bronze lawn ornament of a golfer. Torch-generated heat and brushed-on chemicals create the color.

The kiln, located on a lower floor of the foundry, bakes plaster molds filled with wax for three days before melted bronze is added to create the works. The kiln is rebuilt every three days from mud and fire brick to accommodate different sized objects.

A wax dog figure awaits its turn to be surrounded with plaster and baked in the kiln.

Pet of the Week

"MISS PUGGY" is a mature lady.

Adopt Miss Puggy

This 8-year-old pug would be good for the family who wants a mature pet, with the manners and laid-back disposition to go with it.

Her name is Puggy, and she is black and tan. Puggy is good with older children and is already spayed and housebroken. She would also be a good lap warmer, and just happens to love laps.

Puggy can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The bride-to-be is to graduate in May 1989 from Grand Valley State University, Allendale. Her fiancé is a recent graduate of Grand Valley State University, working in law enforcement. ## CJHS singers fare well at festival

The 47 Clarkston Junior High School students who sang for judges during the Michigan State Vocal Association Choir Festival on March 24 in Novi did a fine job, said their music teacher Gloria Lacy.

The Select Chorus, composed of 28 girls, received a First Division (superior) rating. The Ovations, composed of 19 students, received a Second Division (outstanding) rating.

Each group performed two selections, from a list, by memory; plus a sight reading.

"I was happy with the ratings. These students represented Clarkston in a most professional manner," said Lacy. "But I felt that the judges were hard on the junior high students, because they also judged high school students at the same time."

The members of the Select Chorus that performed at the festival were: Shawn Bashaw, Kim Carpentier, Heather Carr, Elizabeth Cooper, Cheralyn Evans, Heather Flor, Theresa Fortuna, Nina Gern, Jenny Haney, Anissa Howard, Tina Kimmins, Bethany King, Kim Kurz, Robin Link, Brooke Manuel, Sharon Marsh, Shalae Montney, Robyn Nicholas, Tina Nolen, Christi Oppmann, Jolaina Parent, Kasey Pierce, Yvonne Poche, Jody Randall, Britt Ried, Sarah Sese, Cheri Stumpf and Jenny Woodward.

CHS students sing songs of success

Two singing groups at Clarkston High School brought home ratings to be proud of from the MSVA District Chorus Festival on March 25 in Novi.

The 67-member Varsity Concert Choir received an overall rating of I from three performance judges and one sight-reading judge. They are now eligible to participate in the state level of competition at Jackson Community College in Jackson on May 5.

The CHS Choralaires, a 22-member girls chorus, received an overall rating of II from the judges.

"It is with great pride as a teacher to know that we have so many talented and dedicated musicians in our school at all levels of education," said Grayce Warren, director of the vocal music department at CHS.

"These festivals hold both the teacher and student accountable to the high standards that must be met to receive such good ratings," she said. "We have all worked very hard to maintain this standard, and we know that ... parents and friends of the performing arts want to see it continue."

Somewhere over the elbow

Suzanne Baumann

Have any of you ever really thought about your elbows? As far as external body parts go, it must be the most neglected.

And why? Most of us have two of them. It isn't as if the elbow is some secret, taboo subject that no one should speak of (if it was, this article would probably never be published). We all know they're there.

Perhaps the answer lies in the fact that elbows are used for everything and seen on people everywhere ... except on ourselves.

It takes the aid of a mirror to see your own elbow properly. No matter how hard I've tried, I have never come up with a discreet, or at least polite, method of looking at my elbows.

Literally, the word elbow means "bow of the arm." The elbow, however, isn't a bow itself. It's a simple hinge able to make a bow out of the arm. OK, I got a little overtechnical. Sorry.

Elbows aren't all fun and geraniums, though. That probably became obvious to you the last time you plopped them on the table with your head in your hands while wearing a thick knit sweater.

Ouch! Then to peel away your sleeve to find the impression of textured yarn in your skin.

That's not to mention the pain you feel when it bangs up against something. The bone in the elbow (el-bone?) is called the humerus. The term "funny bone" comes from this.

Elbows deserve more respect than they're given. I've only mentioned the bad things about them. Do I have to describe all the good they're worth? Almost everything we need our arms for would be impossible without them. I'm not saying we should start an elbow awareness campaign. There are more important issues this world has to deal with. I would like it if people stopped and at least thought about the lowly bow of the arm from time to time.

If there ever were a campaign, we'd need a slogan. I'm suggesting "Have you hugged your elbow today? (If so, get well soon.)"

I'd better stop writing before these jokes get any worse.

Visit school district's child-care programs

Open houses are planned Wednesday, April 13, at day care and latchkey to increase the awareness of licensed child-care services offered by the Clarkston school district's Community Education Department.

The Early Childhood Open House is planned from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Clarkston Learning Center on Maybee Road. The program serves children from two weeks to 5 years old.

The Latchkey Open Houses are planned from 4 to 5:30 p.m. at Andersonville, Bailey Lake, Clarkston and North Sashabaw elementaries.

The Latchkey Kindergarten Open Houses are planned at Clarkston Junior High School from 9 to 10:30 a.m. and at Pine Knob Elementary School from 1:30 to 3 p.m.

Latchkey programs serve children in kindergarten through sixth grade.

The open houses have been planned in conjunction with the observance of "Michigan's Month of the Young Child."

In Loving Memory of Donald Wilson

February 13, 1928 - April 6, 1987

Our enchanting puzzle took 40 yrs. to assemble. Each piece was carefully placed with patience, laughter, tears, and an endless amount of love. It was forever, but suddenly our puzzle is all scrambled. Its main piece has disappeared. I seek, I despair to no avail, for I know in my heart, only God can put our puzzle together again.

Dog shows provide arena for teen's 'fun hobby'

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Dogs, dogs, everywhere dogs! When Karrie Smith wakes up in the morning, she's surrounded by them. A sheltie lies happily on her pillow. Six tiny Yorkshire terriers snuggle beneath the blankets and surround her on her waterbed. And she wouldn't have it any other way.

"It's fun," says the 13-year-old eighth-grader at Sashabaw Junior High School.

The junior dog handler says she inherited her love of animals from her mother, Beth, who can't bear to hurt any animal and loves to pamper the family's seven dogs and two cats.

"My mom caught a rattlesnake once, and she took it to the animal shelter," Karrie says.

Beth breeds and shows Yorkshire terriers, and as a junior handler, Karrie shows 2-year-old Melly. Her father, Steve, sometimes provides the transportation but doesn't partake in the showing himself.

The experience has made Karrie appreciate her furry friends and has taught her a little about human nature.

"It's a fun hobby, and I have a lot of friends in the dogs," she says. "The competition is fun, but sometimes the adults are worse (than kids) in sportsmanship. You expect them to set an example. One time a lady threw liver on our dog."

The woman wanted to boost her dog's chances, it was just moments before the judging took place, and liver is difficult to clean from a long-haired dog, she says.

"For some people, it's a big business. The puppies are worth more when they're from a champion," she says.

But for Karrie, the real joy in showing dogs is the pride and love involved, and the opportunity for a challenge.

"Some parents get very upset at their kids if they don't win. But it's supposed to be a hobby. It's not life or death," she says.

"I'm always nervous, but you just hope for the best. Drama (class at SJHS) helps me get up in front of people. At Cobo, there were 16 in my class. It was so crowded."

The judges try to trick the handlers, and it's tough to catch it every time, she says. For instance, if a judge moves a dog's leg, you're supposed to move it back when the judge is finished.

"I completely forgot on my dog," she says. "The hardest part is not forgetting everything."

The handlers also have to know all the parts of a dog, and Karrie reads books and attends a weekly class to keep informed.

So far, Karrie has received 20 "Best of Class" first-place ribbons. At each show, the Best of Class winners compete for the best junior handler award, and Karrie has won eight of those honors.

Showing dogs also provides a good excuse for travel. "We have friends to ride with us to the dog shows," says Karrie. "It's fun."

Of course, Melly goes along, too, even if it's only for the ride.

"She only weighs four pounds. They go everywhere with us, even on trips," says Karrie. "My mom says they're easier to take care of than kids."

Karrie isn't so sure. Melly can be demanding: "She talks. When you don't give her attention, she says, 'Ooooooo' until you pet her."

KARRIE SMITH enjoys the challenge of showing dogs. With Karrie are her mother,

Beth, a sheltie named Sheena and five Yorkshire terriers, including Melly (far right).

Wee-Z, a cat that sits when the mood strikes

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Wee-Z walks slowly and leisurely from his food dish to a favorite resting spot in the sunlight. He stretches first one leg, then another, then settles down to observe.

He remains perched in his spot even amid the commotion of a visitor arriving and of a dog barking and of five other cats darting from chair to chair and of his caretaker, Terri Bellant, answering the door and talking to her visitor.

He ignores them, even though they are talking about him.

The long-haired orange Persian has been an Independence Township resident ever since Terri found the beautiful cat in a cage with two other cats at an animal shelter. He had been left in a box on the shelter doorstep three months prior.

"I don't know why someone would give him away," says Terri. "He's a good cat. He's real calm. He doesn't get into anything."

He loves to eat and prefers his daily ration of food spread over 10 intervals during the day, says Terri.

And he attracts attention when he mimics humans and sits up straight, with his front paws off the ground.

On the afternoon of the guest's visit, Wee-Z isn't in the human-sitting mood and prefers to lay in the sunlight and blink instead of posing for a photograph.

He only has one vice - he's a tease, and a foolish tease at that. Every once in a while, his fellow boarder, a 125-pound black Labrador named Thunder, lets down his guard and wags his tail.

That's when Wee-Z pounces and bites the fluffy tail. Then Thunder "will get up and chase him, but he never hurts him," says Terri.

Wee-Z's actions are so quick, it's difficult to believe the laid-back cat could be capable of such a thing.

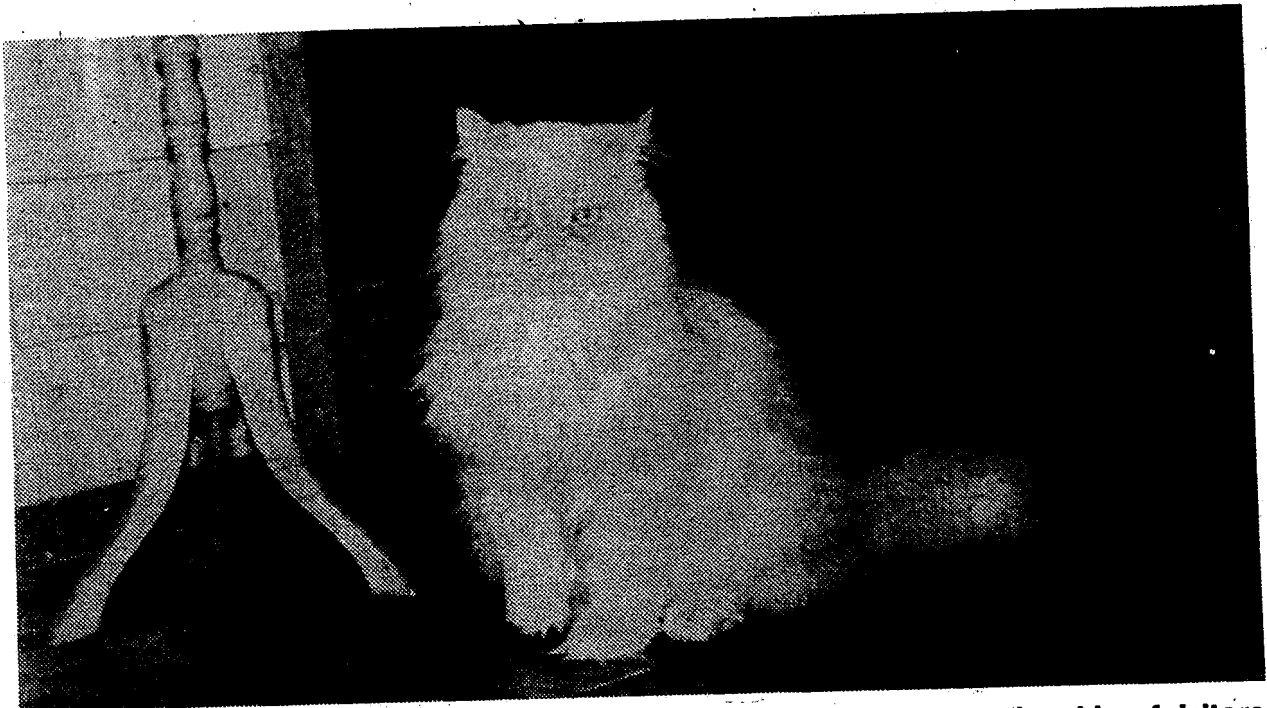

Wee-Z, named after Terri's co-worker Louise (the proud owner of 10 cats) whose friends call her "Weezy," rarely breaks from his aloof nature to show the soft side of his character.

But one day, a 6-month-old Persian friend named Mitchi had just arrived home from the hospital after being spayed. Wee-Z, who usually sleeps alone on the floor, spent the entire evening with Mitchi in her bed upstairs.

"He knew she was sick and wanted to be with her," Terri says. "The next day he was on the floor."

UNLIKE WEE-Z, Mitchi hides upstairs when company arrives.

SOMETIMES, WEE-Z sits up straight, with his front paws off the ground. But apparently, he doesn't like to perform at the whim of visitors, and he simply stares straight ahead.

Friend to Friend

Teachers have spring fever, too

Dear Friend to Friend:

I have a teacher who seems to be really stressed out. It has always been said that the students get spring fever, but I think it is going both ways.

This particular teacher seems to be going overboard on the rigidity of class conduct. It is getting ridiculous.

Some of the contributing factors include: pregnancy, fighting, alcoholism, dropouts, erratic behavior and student apathy. I'm not sure if these are the problems or if there's trouble in his home life. How can I resolve this situation?

STUDENT

Dear Student:

It's too bad that your teacher is feeling this way, but you seem to be sympathetic toward him, and that says a lot about you!

Maybe you could pull him aside and tell him that you are concerned about the welfare of the classroom situation. You have to put yourself in his shoes and try to understand his situation.

From his standpoint, he is trying to teach a lot of students who aren't interested in learning. It's common for students to give up before the year is over, and teachers have to deal with it.

Obviously, you are still interested in learning and by showing him that, it may give him an incentive to hang in there and keep teaching. By showing an interest in learning, you will also be setting a good example for others in the class.

It sounds like you are really trying, and that is very important. Watch out, because just like others might want to emulate your good example, you might start emulating their bad one.

If you give up, then there will be no hope, so keep a positive attitude. Things might work out OK after all. Good luck.

Dear Friend to Friend:

I have a real bad problem. There's this real great guy who keeps on using me. I can't help but let him, because I love him. Please help.

USED

Dear Used:

We're sorry that you feel this way. Now that you know what the problem is, you can do something about it. It sounds as if you want him to treat you as you treat him and have mutual feelings of love for each other.

Love is a two-way street, and both parties have to contribute equally in order to have a successful relationship. Obviously he has lowered your self-esteem, and you must do something to raise it again.

If you think that he can be reasoned with, try to discuss your feelings with him. You don't deserve to be treated this way, and if he will not make changes, maybe you should make other choices.

Dear Friend to Friend:

I was going to ask my best friend to my prom, but now she can't go. Her boyfriend's prom is the next night, and he doesn't want her to be tired for their prom.

Now I don't have a date for the prom. There is no one in my school I would like to take. This is my last chance to go because I am a senior, and it is important for me to go.

DESPERATELY SEEKING DATE

Dear Desperate:

For many people, senior prom is a really big deal and something that they feel they can't miss.

A few of us think there is too much emphasis put on the prom, such as the romantic aspect. There is also the argument that it's a great party, one you will never forget, with all your high school friends.

If you want to go to the prom, because that's the thing to do, and you still don't have a date, then get a group of good friends together that you know you will have fun with and go.

Other people think the prom is special and should be shared with someone special. If you share this view, and there is no one special, then get together with someone else who is not going and do something that night so you're not home brooding.

Don't forget you still have two months until the prom and anything can happen. The important thing is not to waste your time worrying.

Finishing brushes are still on a Saturday. They are used for applying color, called patina, to bronze pieces.

This Greek-type bust, created in wax by its artist, is destined to be a one-of-a-kind work of art. The artist is a plastic surgeon from Muskegon.

Fine arts center puts final touch on sculptures

says. They include recreating the artist's model in wax, plaster and finally bronze.

The procedure is called the "lost wax technique" because "bronze flows into the (mold) part that was wax," she explains, of the melting and casting process.

Once the sculpture is cast in bronze, finishing touches are applied using, among other tools, a torch, brushes and chemicals, which give the figure or plaque its color.

The entire process takes from four to six weeks for a small-sized piece, which costs approximately $350 in labor and $350 in bronze, Petrucci says.

Large pieces, including the famous 12-foot Joe Louis figure done at the centre and now on display in Detroit, are constructed from parts.

Each piece, regardless of size or complexity, is given the personalized attentions of the employees, who each perform a different task.

None of the artworks are "stamped," she adds. "We are really an art foundry. Every piece has to go through the same steps."

Better than egg salad

What do you do with all those hard-boiled eggs after Easter?

Candy Garbacz, a part-time seasonal naturalist at Independence Oaks Nature Center offered the following unique suggestion for Oriental smoked eggs. They're sort of an "after-Easter hors d'oeuvre," and certainly different than the usual egg salad or deviled egg fate of an Easter egg.

TEA EGGS

Hard-boiled eggs
Lapsang Souchong tea

Steep a fairly strong pot of Lapsang Souchong tea and cool. Crinkle cool, hard-boiled eggs by rolling them gently on a table or in your hands.

Drop eggs, shell and all, into the cool tea and put in the refrigerator for a couple of hours. Shell eggs before serving.

Triple CHS reunion on the way

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

In the late 1960s, classes at Clarkston High School were smaller - between 200 and 300 people in each graduating class - contrasted with the classes of about 500 people today.

Students in the different grades knew each other, and mingled with each other and sometimes married each other.

It was only natural that three of the CHS graduating classes combine for a joint reunion, according to two of the organizers.

Just plain fun is the main purpose, said Pam Af-folder Anderson, of the CHS 1967 class.

"We just kind of thought it would be a neat idea," she said. "Plus, there are brothers and sisters and husbands and wives (from the other classes)."

The class of '67 missed the 20th reunion, so this is a good opportunity to get together, she said. Normally, the class officers organize the reunions, but Pam said she likes to get involved.

Class president was Dan Fife, who now coaches varsity basketball at CHS, and he has a busy schedule, she said.

So far, the people she's contacted are looking forward to the July 16 event at the Pontiac Silverdome.

"I think it should be fun," Pam said. "There's been a good response from people who have brothers and sisters far away."

Sally Radoye Hadden, the organizer from the class of '68, has worked on previous reunions, and she thought a joint reunion would be more practical.

"Just to find people, it's an enormous help working with two other classes," said Sally. "Some have married each other or have brothers or sisters who have married someone."

"The hardest part of the whole reunion is contacting people. But that can be enjoyable, too. It's not even work. You can talk for hours.

"I'm thrilled. We're hoping for a huge turnout, between 400 and 500 people... We wanted to have a nice reunion. We figured the more people we could get together, the more funds we could have to have a nicer affair."

They will have contacted 900 to 1,000 people by the time they're finished, she said.

"If we can get a quarter of them with a spouse or a date, we will have reached our goal. ... We're excited. I just pray it's a success."

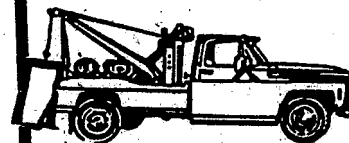

For more information, call Pam at 674-2338, Sally at 625-1490 or class of '69 organizer Trudy Beall Locher at 625-6998.

Reunion

Oxford High School, Class of 1978: The 10-year reunion is planned Aug. 13 at Roma's of Bloomfield. Organizers are looking for information on classmates whose addresses have changed since the five-year reunion and for help with mailing and planning. (Tim Kroninger, 689-6981; Gary Skelton, 373-7072)

Wanted: Singers to perform for fun

BY KATHY GREENFIELD
Clarkston News Editor

It must be fun to ride the Clarkston school bus driven by Jenny Sansom.

"The kindergartners usually learn 15 to 20 songs a year," she says. "They don't get music in school and they like music. It seems to soothe the savage beast in all of us."

The joy of music seems to touch all phases of Sansom's life, and it's a joy she wants to share. She's looking for men and women to join the Clarkston Village Singers, a community group for people who like to sing.

"If they want to sing, they can come up and sing," says Sansom. "They don't have to have a musical background. It's just to have a good time."

The group meets Tuesday evenings from 7 to 9 at Clarkston High School in the chorus room. The activity is free. The school district provides the meeting space and sheet music without charge, and in the same spirit, the group performs at community functions without fee.

Coming up in June is the Clarkston adult education graduation ceremony. Songs they plan to sing are "Man in the Mirror," a Michael Jackson tune; "Graduation Day"; "That's What Friends Are For," a Dionne Warwick song; and "The Greatest Love of All," the Teddy Pendergrass version.

Also planned are a performance in Clarkston's Depot Park following the July 4 parade and an appearance at a mother-daughter banquet at the Clarkston Eagles Hall.

A new member of the group is Carolyn Bush. She moved to the Clarkston area from Troy about nine months ago and added her voice to the group after reading about it in the Clarkston Community Education brochure.

"It's a way to get to know people in the community,

SINGING BRINGS JOY to the lives of Jenny Sansom and Carolyn Bush (left), two members of the Clarkston Village Singers. More singers are needed for the community group, and I like to sing and be a part of a group," she said. "I think music makes people happy. I know I like to hear people sing, and I guess I also like the applause."

The Clarkston Village Singers have been in existence for many years, off and on. The group just got going again, and there are only about six regulars, which is not enough, Sansom said.

"At one time, we had over 65 people in the group," which meets Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. in the CHS Chorus Room. New members can just appear, or for more information, call Sansom at 394-1125 or Bush at 625-1976.

she said. "It was so nice."

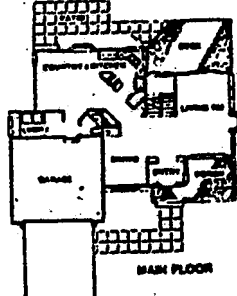

A 1968 graduate of Clarkston High School, Sansom was head majorette for the band, a member of the Varsity Choir for three years and a member of the League Choir for two years.

"I've always been in Clarkston," she said. "I went to school here. I've grown up here, and music has always been a part of my life."
