School voters say yes in 2-1 margin

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It was a blue ribbon night for Clarkston schools. When news arrived at the school board meeting that the millage and bond issue were both approved by voters, a large audience, many wearing "Clarkston Kids Need Blue Ribbon Schools" T-shirts, responded with hearty applause. This was the third attempt at a millage increase, which failed twice in 1987.

The 5.5 operational millage increase and the $5.2 million bond issue for repairs to school buildings were both soundly approved, by almost 2 to 1 margins.

Unofficial results show the millage votes were 4,397 for and 2,567 against. The bond issue was 4,327 for and 2,392 against. Only Precinct 2 voted against the millage and two precincts, 2 and 5, voted against the bond issue.

Also in the election, John Needham was re-elected to the school board, with 2,026 votes, and Thomas L. Howard earned a position on the school board with 1,831 votes.

"I've always felt when it was time to go on to other things that I wanted to leave the district in good shape," said outgoing Superintendent Milford Mason on the millage and bond victories. "This certainly has set the stage."

Gary Haner, who will take over as new superintendent of Clarkston schools July 1, was on hand with his wife, Sue, to savor the victory at the school board offices.

"It was exciting to be coming to Clarkston before the election," Haner said. "Now it is doubly so, having the focus on the positive rather than on further negative."

A large "Blue Ribbon Committee" of volunteers, made up of concerned parents, citizens and school staff, organized a solid campaign for the election. Monday night, everyone was thanking everyone else, handing out praise and credit.

"I'm elated. I thought if we got all our identified supporters to the polls we'd win, but I didn't expect that margin," said Alberta Ellis, director of curriculum for Clarkston schools and administrative liaison for the millage task force. "I think we reached out and invited everyone to participate. It was a spirited campaign."

Ellis, when she announced that results were "looking good" early on in the school board meeting, took the microphone to thank everyone involved in the millage election, and to thank the co-chairpersons of the committee, Barbara Johns and William Bleisath, and Barbara Banker, community services coordinator for Clarkston.

CARRYING OVER 9,000 GALLONS of jet fuel bound for Selfridge National Guard Air Base, a Leaseway Transportation truck rolled over alongside southbound I-75 June 10, spilling

1,600 gallons of fuel. Early estimates stated that less than 500 gallons of fuel leaked. Here, the uprighted truck, still carrying combustible fumes, is carefully pulled back on the highway. Following the 12:30 p.m. mishap, I-75 was closed for over five hours in both directions. The story is on Page 3. (Photo by Julie Campe)

School board happily recalls 40 teachers

Once it was apparent that the 5.5 millage increase was headed for victory, the Clarkston school board had schools, who was also active in the campaign.

School board member Carolyn Place praised Ellis for the fantastic job she did in mobilizing the campaign effort, saying Ellis was "the key that unlocked community apathy."

Board President Janet Thomas, with a heavy sigh of relief, said, "this is much more fun than last June."

She also praised all the candidates who ran for school board and were "willing to stand up and be counted."

"We feel that we had a strong field of candidates," Thomas said.

Needham said he "felt good" about the election results, and looked forward to another four-year term on the school board.

"We have a special obligation to the voters to do the best job we can," he said.

New board member Howard said his victory was "most gratifying."

"I'm very pleased, and feel my experience in education and law will help (the school system)," he added.

There were three write-in candidates for school board, each garnering one vote: Gary Seelbinder, John Jones, and much to the amusement of the school board, one for Milford Mason.

the pleasant task of approving the 1988-89 school budget based on the increase, setting the millage, recalling 40 teaching staff members and 16 non-instructional staff members, and reinstating four administrators on Monday evening.

The budgets approved were: general fund, $21,551,538; building and site fund, $206,270; debt retirement fund, $586,201; maintenance, equipment and repair fund, $142,830; food service fund, $1,153,938; athletic fund, $350,941; vocational fund, $2,302,800; for a grand total of $26,294,518.

The operational millage was set at 36.5622 mills, which is the maximum allowable with the reduction under the Headlee Amendment. (The maximum authorized millage in Clarkston is actually 38.83 mills.) The debt retirement levy was set at 1.1178 mills.

The board unanimously voted to renew the contracts of four administrators, Marilyn Allyn, Alberta Ellis, Virginia Farmer and Paul Tungate, who would have been reassigned if the millage had failed.

The board also unanimously voted to recall the following 16 non-instructional staff members:

Clerks Kathy Garwood, Patricia Nienstedt, Carolyn Gill, Sally Curry and Marjorie Carlsen.

General custodians Steve Partlo and Sherry Hensley; bus drivers Valerie Hudson and Phyllis Pendley.

Media paraprofessionals Shirley Condron, Martha Wilson, Doris Britt, Patricia Brewer, Sally Inman, Janet Creed and Carol Webster.

The following 40 teachers were recalled, with the comment from Director of Personnel Services Conrad Bruce that two or three more could be recalled in July.

Elementary teachers: Gloria Lacy, Carla Teare, Darrell Marsh, Betsy Patterson, Sandra Sanford, Joanne Stroebel, Betty Kozma, Geraldine Allison, Laurie Wilson-Eller, Beatrice Cohen, Linda Johnson, Doris Bonnell, Jean Bierlein, Lois Richardson, Robert Devereaux.

Secondary teachers: Diana Lecky, Sandra Srabian, Kelly Cutshaw, Mari Ann Pace-Bleau, Julie Mathews, Suzanne Kiser, Gordon Richardson, Kurt Richardson, Cliff Chapman, Paul Witek, Lawrence Mahrle, James Smith, Mary Tippen, Victor Hart, Dennis Templeton, James Wasvary, Patricia McMillen, Elizabeth Duris.

Vocational school: Esther Andrews, Robert Fleming, William Holmes, Jesse Riojas.

Special education: Mary Pew, Caren Chamberlain, Ann McNab.

"That was much more pleasant than the reverse resolutions," said board President Janet Thomas when the reinstatements were completed.

Tipped fuel tanker cause for alarm

down fuel tank truck on I-75, and an explosion did not destroy the nearby homes on Flemings Lake Road, but emergency crews were prepared for the worst Friday, June 10.

After the 12:30 p.m. mishap, about 30 homes were evacuated in a half-mile radius and the highway was closed in both directions for over five hours while specially trained workers drained the remaining jet fuel from the downed tanker, and while towing companies carefully, carefully uprighted the truck.

All the while, Independence Township firefighters - dressed in protective gear - stood sentinel with foam-filled hoses that stretched one-and-one-quarter miles to the nearest fire hydrant at Clarkston Road.

"There's a lot more to it than just a simple crash," said Sgt. Robert Smith, who headed the operations for the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

PROTECTIVE CLOTHING prepares Independence Township firefighters Keith Bailey (left) and Bill Rausch for a possible fire or explosion. The truck driver suffered minor injuries in the accident, and firefighters developed blisters from wearing the protective boots during the eight hours of work and cleanup.

"It was imperative that we moved cautiously ... because of the potentiality of that fuel igniting," he said. "There was absolutely no way we could let even northbound traffic go because the flash of the explosion, had it gone, would have far exceeded the northbound lane."

The driver of the Leaseway Transportation truck, bound for Selfridge Air National Guard Base near Mount Clemens, suffered only minor injuries.

Allan Schmidt, transporting the 9,000 gallons of fuel from Bay City, was treated and released from Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital. Firefighters on the scene reported seeing Schmidt direct traffic before he received medical attention.

Schmidt apparently lost control of his vehicle after another truck cut him off, and the wheels on his truck dropped from the pavement onto the south shoulder of southbound I-75, said Smith.

Because of road construction, the shoulder was unstable, and the ground was sloped toward Flemings Lake Road. Tire tracks in the grass stretched beside the highway, showing where Schmidt attempted to get back on the pavement but, instead, rolled into a ditch, where final tabulations show that 1,600 gallons of fuel leaked into the ground.

The accident is still under investigation, and the truck remains in custody of the sheriff's department, Smith said.

Smith complimented the Independence Township Fire Department for the workers' quick, organized actions and for working well with other agencies.

"It was great," he said. "I had excellent rapport with Chief Gar Wilson and Capt. (Steve) Ronk. It worked beautifully. ... It's the way it's supposed to be. Things went better than you'd ever expect. They just meshed."

After the truck was removed from the scene, officials from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) investigated the site.

Neither surface water nor groundwater were affected, said Leon Vine, a DNR environmental quality analyst from Northville.

He noted the irony surrounding the circumstances. When he lived in Clarkston in 1962, he was a part of the Holloway Construction road crew that originally built I-75.

He happened to be in the area when the accident occurred; otherwise, DNR crews would have been delayed hours by traffic. The accident didn't pose a threat, he said.

"This is no problem," he said. "This is small."

Scott Schaefer, also a DNR environmental quality analyst, said the contaminated soil would be dug up and taken to a hazardous waste site facility, and clean soil would be deposited in its place.

"The majority of the material stayed within the tank, luckily," Schaefer said.

For the firefighters, the accident was a lengthy and dangerous call, but not out of the ordinary, said Chief Gar Wilson.

"Every time we go out, we're facing (danger)," he said, citing a typical car accident as an example.

"One gallon of gas is equal to three sticks of dynamite," he said. "There's an equal chance of getting injured (in any accident involving gasoline). It's not any different. It's a longer night, but we treat it in the same fashion."

"We were very fortunate not to have a fire or an explosion and no one injured," he said.

The most difficult part of the department's role in the accident was in trying to predict what would happen, he said. Their job was to prevent a fire or explosion and CAREFULLY, so the flammable fumes inside the jet fuel tank won't be disturbed, specially trained towing employees hoist the truck to its proper position.

Drowning averted

While fishing in Springfield Township on June 13, an off-duty Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) official saved a 66-year-old Springfield Township man from drowning in Softwater Lake.

About 6:50 p.m. Monday, Joseph Oswald of Cedar Loop was fishing in the lake behind Bavarian Village Apartments at Bluewater Drive and Dixie Highway. When he stood up to see something in the water, the boat tipped over, according to OCSD reports.

He did not have a life jacket or flotation device, so he held onto the upside-down boat, which was sinking, according to the police report.

Fishing on the shore of the lake were Undersheriff Billy J. Nolin and his son, Billy Nolin Jr., who heard Oswald's calls for help. The Nolins rowed their boat to him and brought him back to shore.

I-75 tanker accident backs up traffic for 5 hours

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The sight of bumper-to-bumper cars in downtown Clarkston, of hovering media helicopters and of police cars stationed at every I-75 exit and entrance ramp in the Independence Township area was surpassed in peculiarity only by the sight of an empty I-75.

The highway was closed in both directions for over five hours June 10, while firefighters and environmental officials uprighted a rolled-over fuel tank truck and volunteers helped in other aspects of the accident.

Officials from the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) could not estimate the number of vehicles detoured because of the accident, but the average daily traffic on that portion of I-75 was 42,000 vehicles in 1987, with a high hour of 4,960 vehicles, said an MDOT spokesperson.

Both lanes were closed at Sashabaw Road and M-15 around 12:30 p.m. Friday. But as traffic worsened due to workers returning home or travelers headed up north, the highway was eventually closed southbound at Holly Road and northbound at Joslyn Road.

Northbound lanes were reopened around 5:30 p.m., and southbound lanes resumed action about an hour later.

Numerous people helped throughout the emergency, said Independence Township Fire Chief Gar Wilson.

About 12 to 15 Oakland County Sheriff's Department cars were used to block roads, and police from Auburn Hills and Lake Angeles and Michigan State Police helped direct traffic.

Oakland County Road Commission and animal control units helped employees from the Independence Township Building Department and Department of Public Works evacuate the surrounding area near Flemings Lake Road.

The township parks and recreation department offered the residents refuge in the senior citizen center on Clarkston Road and a nearby church offered help as well.

Beth Lawrence and Joy Leonard brought sandwiches to the about 17 firefighters who worked through lunch and dinner.

Within 10 minutes of the accident, Ajax Paving Co., doing work on I-75, built a turn-around road in the median to allow southbound traffic - trapped by the emergency vehicles - to clear the area as soon as possible.

Firefighters from Orion Township brought extra fire hose and foam to the scene, while firefighters from Waterford and Brandon townships covered two Independence fire stations for other calls.

On the whole, citizens on I-75 cooperated, said Sgt. Robert Smith of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

One person was arrested for drinking and driving north of the accident, said Smith. Apparently, the driver was under the influence of alcohol didn't want to wait in the traffic. He was weaving in and out of construction barrels, when he was arrested.

"He was endangering people," Smith said, adding several people came forward to be listed as witnesses of his behavior.

to react quickly if it did occur.

To accomplish the goal, a smoking battery box was disconnected immediately. Then, the entire truck and surrounding area were sprayed with foam to provide a coating so the materials couldn't ignite.

Next, as three trucks unloaded the about 7,500 gallons of fuel remaining on the downed truck, more foam was sprayed as a precaution.

In the meantime, 30 homes were evacuated, and traffic was diverted from the area.

"I know we did cause somewhat of a traffic jam, but it was something that had to be done," Wilson said. "We're sorry to put people through the inconvenience, but it was for their safety that we did it."

Fortunately, nothing too bad happened, he said. "At worst, some pine trees may be affected. As quick as (environmental specialists) got in there, though, there might not be any damage to those pines."

With the high number of trucks carrying hazardous substances on I-75, it's a wonder serious accidents don't occur more often, he said, noting that another truck rolled over in the same area in the same week, only it wasn't carrying any dangerous materials.

The accident Friday could have been worse, he said. "If it had blown up, we would have had two or three houses on fire, too," he said, adding four houses were within 300 feet of the accident.

Although 4,000 feet of hose and three pumpers were needed to carry water from the nearest fire hydrant, it was worth the effort, he said.

"If we hadn't had the hydrant, we would have had to call in 10 to 20 trucks to keep up the water supply," Wilson said. "I thought that our guys did a h-- of a job. Everything was handled well. The support groups from the other areas did a fine job."

Risky business

Kathy Greenfield

Whipping down southbound I-75 just two days before the jet fuel tanker created havoc when it overturned, a thought kept going through my mind: "This is scary."

In the week since I'd made the early evening jaunt, things in the construction zone had changed. I was pondering the narrower-than-normal lanes and the almost non-existent shoulder that used to be wide enough to hold a vehicle in distress — or handle a swerve to the right.

All of this was compounded by trucks passing trucks, my knowledge that a truck had flipped over in the general area less than a week before, and the speed.

Does anyone pay attention at all to the 45 mph signs? That old expression "going like sixty" needs to be revised to "going like sixty-five ... or seventy" to apply to the I-75 we know and love.

I say love for a reason. After trying the alternate southbound routes — Dixie to Woodward and Dixie to Telegraph, it was I-75 with or without construction for me.

Still, as I drove in the construction zone, I kept thinking that another truck turnover was imminent.

So it was no surprise when the news of the rollover came over the fire radio in our office early Friday afternoon. And, of course, when I-75 was shut down, Clarkston became clogged for hours.

Even the side street I live on was filled with traffic. People pulling over to consult maps became a common sight in town and the three telephones at Main and Washington streets surged into full operation as people tried calling others to find alternate routes or suggest that I-75 be avoided.

Spouses who work out of town were dialed up by people who work in our office, commuters made plans to stop for dinner and trips out of town were put on hold for a while.

I am thankful that the fuel in Friday's overturned tanker didn't explode and that no one was hurt ... but I continue to be concerned.

When the everyday driver can readily identify an accident waiting to happen steps should be taken to decrease the possibility.

We're all too valuable to risk for the sake of getting drivers from place to place without ever slowing them down.

***

The blue ribbons that adorned trees, posts and houses in the Clarkston school district before and during Monday's election were a very nice touch — a classy way to show support without a yard full of drooping signs.

Apparently plenty of people were asking others what all the blue ribbons were for, again reinforcing the support residents were willing to display.

Bravo to the person or persons who came up with the idea!

Face power

Carolyn Walker

The little girl behind the mother's frustration was a blue-eyed, pouty-lipped, curly-haired blonde.

Legs and arms jutted out of her stroller like wild, unrestrained spokes. A hand here, a foot there, another hand over there. Touch a dress. Grab a toy. Kick a display case. Wiggle. Wiggle. Wiggle.

Like all two-and-one-half-year-olds, she had curiosity, speed and daring on her side.

And like all mothers who are divested of their patience, the girl's mother was reaching the upper bounds of her frustration threshold.

"Don't touch that, or ...," the mother said to the toddler as she reached a hand out to ruffle a rack of women's clothing, "... I'll show you the icky momma face."

That did it. No smack on the hands, no pinch, no heavy duty scolding, no threats of withholding dinner and reporting her to the father.

Obediently, the child put her hands in her lap, folded them and allowed an angelic expression to overtake her.

Satisfied that the victory was hers, the mother went on about her business of browsing.

It is left to us to imagine just what kind of Jekyll-Hyde transformation the mother would have undergone had the child defied her.

What, pray tell, is an "icky momma face?"

Obviously this woman, perhaps without even realizing it, has mastered the once popular (1950s), maternal art of child control using face contortions.

It requires absolutely no hands-on component whatsoever.

The angered/frustrated/pained mother need only stare off a short distance past her child, while her eyes become misty, lips tighten, and she beams an expression geared to produce a life-long guilt trip in the troublemaker.

My mother was (in fact still is) great at it. So accustomed have I become to it, that I can tell when she is wearing "the icky momma face" while talking to me on the phone.

Her version of said face never fails to elicit the desired response. I give in.

I have tried using the "icky momma face" several times during my tenure as a mother, with less success.

Usually, the troublemaker in question will just respond, "You're trying to lay a guilt trip on me, aren't you?"

Oh well. As I'm sure the aforementioned, browsing mother is sure to find out eventually, that's life in the '80s.

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

To succeed at anything a person has to have confidence.

A person can fail at anything with overconfidence.

Overconfidence has fascinated me for a number of years. And, I'm as guilty of it as the next guy.

It used to be I could hit one good tee shot in golf and immediately suggest changes in the next person's swing that would give them the same type of hit I just had.

I'm better now. I wait until I've hit two shots in a row before giving unasked for advice.

The same thing happens in all activities, I'm sure. When you catch a big fish, it's all in the wrist ... just cast your line like this.

Leave the puck hanging over the end of the shuffleboard and send the next one a foot short of the first, and it's "I use my little finger as a guide."

A person sets himself up as an expert so quickly. Why do we do that? I still end up with a lousy round of golf and haven't helped anyone. The one fish I catch is an annual event. It's the first and last hanging puck ever slid by me.

The overconfidence syndrome was brought to my attention while covering high school ball games. I remember one year the local basketball team was 0-10 when they broke their streak. The players went off the floor shouting, "We're number one," while waving their index finger at the sky.

They went from 1-10 to 1-16. But, from the time they won that one game to the time they lost the next, they had more confidence than Lee Iacocca.

Same thing happens in other sports. Ask a coach why his team didn't beat the opponent with the losing record and often they'll say, "We were overconfident." Though the IN thing to say is, "We didn't play with enough intensity."

Overconfidence is not confined to sports by any means. Why else do 80 percent of businesses fail? We make ourselves believe we have the world's greatest product, technique, personality, gimmick, or location and bingo ... we're into bankruptcy.

Of course, it isn't likely we'll succeed in business, sports or marriage without some confidence. We have to believe in ourselves at least a little. We just can't overdo it.

Take our kids, for instance. We can believe each is the greatest, but we should retain enough doubt to not send them off to kindergarten with them knowing absolutely they ARE the greatest.

Grandchildren are, of course, different. It's ok for the grandparents to heap praise upon the tikes as long as the parents have the major part of their lives to put realism into their offspring's thinking.

Sure, my grandson and granddaughter are the greatest, cutest, and cleverest, but only while they are with me.

Let the parents kick the overconfidence out of them.

I have often wished someone would kick me when I've suggested a golfer change their grip, and on the next shot I went 0-B.

Spirit of Clarkston continues

While I've only had Clarkston school board as my reporting "beat" for several months, I have been covering school events for The Clarkston News for almost two years.

I don't have children in the Clarkston schools, and in fact, I don't even live in the Clarkston school district. But I, along with a lot of other area residents, heaved a sigh of relief when the millage was victorious Monday night.

There's a lot of reasons it should have passed - to give kids the same choices and activities we all had when we were going to school; to keep music and sports, to upgrade curriculums.

There have been a lot of letters pro and con over the past months. But one resident made a point I think is worth repeating, and that is the small-town camaraderie and community involvement that prevails in Clarkston, and would have been threatened with a millage failure.

I have spent the majority of my life in "small-ish" towns, and have always enjoyed the kind of community involvement and friendly atmosphere that is cultivated in such environments.

I couldn't help feeling good as I wrote story that reported on teacher recalls, knowing that many worthwhile programs would also be reinstated before school resumes in the fall, and knowing, too, that a lot of people would be smiling when they passed each other on the sidewalk today.

I feel like I've come home, and it's a good feeling.

Tactics questioned

As a Clarkston resident and a mother of two, I am happy to know that our millage passed and will provide the proper education to my children in the upcoming years.

However, I also feel that the tactics used by the voting committee in harassing individuals over the phone were in very poor taste and totally unnecessary.

One telephone call to an individual to remind him or her to vote and to answer any questions would have been sufficient. I was left two messages on my recorder, and after voting received another to see if I had voted yet.

If by the third call I had not already voted, my vote would have been changed to "no" - because of the harassment.

As an American citizen I am given the privilege of voicing my opinion through voting, but I'm also given the privilege of my right to privacy. I feel that checking the voting lists to see if an individual has voted is an invasion of privacy.

If an individual does not vote, he or she obviously has reasons why and those reasons should be respected.

When

By Bruce Stewart

Is there a place I could get without credit and politics?
Change the look, steal from the crook
Back to the basics and old remedies
Model T's without blasphemy
Engines you could work on Bankers you could count on
When doctors were quacks and children didn't sell crack
When pop had a drug and the drug didn't have the world
The big band sound
The conductor's twirl
When records had weight and rock was slate
Speak easies weren't a way of talking and bars weren't a way of stalking
Flappers didn't have BMWs and Yuppies didn't have cords
The cord was a car and not a material
Decades ahead of its time
Years of the big three design
War could be seen and heard and not totally absurd
Irving Berlin was our heart and soul
Ford was the ultimate revolutionary roll
If only I could do time in a period of sheer bliss and misery
When men were men and mice were men

Bruce Stewart resides in Independence Township.

I hope that in the next millage vote in the upcoming years my right to privacy is not invaded as it was this year, because it just could make me vote the other way.

We teach our children about privacy. Maybe we should practice what we preach.

A wonderful day

We're sure the parents of Clarkston Elementary School third-graders must have talked non-stop about the "Reach for the Stars Day"!

Our students learned so much about heroes and heroines and had so much fun! What a beautiful gift to our kids!!

Many, many thanks to Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Pambid for organizing this absolutely fantastic educational day! They worked their hearts out!

There are over 25 adults that need thanking... all of whom worked out motivating presentations and creative activities.

Thanks to: Corena Bell, Lisa Pambid, Kathy Medina, Kathy Trepte, Pat Schlicher, Michaelene Hearn, Denise McIntyre, Jane Werner, Joanne Prudhomme, Gwen Manley, Michele Higdon, Meredith DeLong, Pamela Crawford, Joan Will, Glenida Olafsson, Liza York, Patti Rumph, Connie Bell, Kris Little, Diane Schubring, Richard Ruth, Kathy Frericks, Victor VanHentenryck, the square dance caller and his eight square dancers.

We know the kids felt like "stars" and have been cleverly encouraged to "Reach for the Stars" themselves.

From the third grade teachers,
Thank you! Thank you! Thank you!

'If it Fitz ...'

Talent is right here

Jim
Fitzgerald

"The Detroit Symphony Orchestra is looking for a new conductor," I said to everyone around me. "They should look here."

I was attending a concert by the Irwin Philharmonic, requiring a 130-mile round-trip drive on roads mostly under repair. It was standing room only, and I was standing at the very back of the room. The heat was oppressive - no air conditioning - and I was feeling a terrible pressure on my upper body.

I thought it was wonderful. I am undoubtedly losing my mind.

I was especially impressed by the extremely talented performance of the young woman leading the Irwin Philharmonic because I knew she'd gone through surgery just four hours earlier. It was a minor operation but caused a painfully noticeable gap in her stage appearance.

She waved her baton masterfully, in her right hand, supplementing it with a pointed left forefinger, calling forth beautiful music from the various musicians and their instruments - bells, tambourines, cymbals, triangles and sticks of wood.

Wretched excess by Grandpa

"That's my granddaughter Emily," I said proudly, grabbing the man standing beside me to make sure he was paying attention to this thrilling news. He was an old acquaintance, Ed Lynch, whom I hadn't seen in 12 years. "I thought so," Lynch answered calmly. He was not losing his mind.

The Irwin Philharmonic is made up of Bobbie Woods' morning and afternoon kindergarten students at Irwin Elementary School in Lapeer. The band's performance was the final act of a three-act production called "Kindergarten Greats."

The first two acts included a country hoedown, with spirited square dancing, and a "Memory Lane" sequence featuring old songs - "Merry Oldsmobile" was one - that caused me to reflect that I was the only one in the room older than the Oldsmobile. This pondering of my mortality was further prompted by the terrible pressure on my upper body.

Around 50 youngsters - each one the apple of several eyes - participated in the show, but Emily was the only one whose grandfather embarrassed himself by telling strangers she should be directing the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. I really didn't behave well at all.

The comparison with Ed Lynch was most telling. After the show, I learned the little girl who did such a great job narrating the "Memory Lane" sequence was named Maureen Lynch. Ed's granddaughter? Yes. While I was bragging about Emily, Ed didn't mention the talented Maureen. His modesty didn't become me.

Anyway, I was finally able to relieve the terrible pressure on my upper body. It was caused by Tricia, Emily's two-year-old sister, who was sitting on my shoulders. I thought it would be safe to put her on the floor for just a minute. Wrong.

Disappearing grandchild

As is her constant wont, Tricia immediately disappeared into the crowd, leaving me and other family members frustrated and miles behind. Tricia emerged into sight a few seconds later, on stage, where her big sister was leading the Irwin Philharmonic in a spirited rendition of "You're a Grand Old Flag."

Emily turned and smiled at Tricia, revealing the huge gap where her two front teeth had been until that afternoon when the dentist removed them so they wouldn't fall out by themselves, on stage in mid-conducting, and rattle a cymbal player.

The entertainment ended with everyone facing the flag and reciting the Pledge of Allegiance, led by... no, I'm not going to tell you.

After the show, there was a cast party at McDonald's. Tricia swiped Emily's French fries, dipped them in ketchup, and pushed them into my face. I don't know why I'm so lucky, but I sure am.

Dixie office building plan changes dramatically

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After a year-long metamorphosis from a high-tech to a contemporary design, an 8,000-square-foot Dixie

First, soil testing; then, 'friendly lawsuit'

Thendara Park subdivision soil testing costing about $10,000 is the last step before the township can enter a "friendly lawsuit" with the Oakland County Road Commission (OCRC) to pave the about five miles of roads.

The Independence Township Board approved paying the cost to hire the low-bidding firm of CTI and Associates Inc. to provide soil information requested by the OCRC.

The soil testing is just one step in the almost 15-year effort by residents to pave the private gravel roads located in the northeast quadrant of the township.

It could be four to six weeks before the final engineering plans are finished, allowing the township to enter the friendly lawsuit in the Oakland County Circuit Court, the chosen method to request that the OCRC to declare the roads public.

About 265 property owners would be affected by the road paving. The average footage frontage is 50,404 feet, and the average homeowner's cost is about $8,835.

Toward better copies

Crisp, clean copies should be coming from the department of public works, now that they have a new copy machine.

The Independence Township Board unanimously approved the purchase of a $2,650 Sharp SF-7750 from the low-bidder, Waterland Office Machines, Orchard Lake.

Highway office building can be built.

The Independence Township Planning Commission voted 4-3 to grant final site plan approval, but it attached a list of conditions to be met before building permits can be pulled by the Tandem Office Development Co.

Carol Balzarini, Bruce Mercado and Joseph Figa voted against the approval, and Balzarini explained the reasoning.

"I'm not comfortable giving final site plan (approval) with so many unanswered questions," she said. Voting yes were Chairperson Brent Bair, Jo Fussman, Steve Secatch and Richard Oppmann.

The conditions for the office building plans included the following: The landscaping must be revised to include more hardy plants and to show a buffer between the parking lot and the property behind the 3.2-acre site on Dixie Highway, between White Lake and Deer Lake roads.

In addition, the plans must show several more engineering details, a relocation of the dumpster and a reconfiguration of the Dixie entrance.

Developer Hank Bell said he planned to begin construction as soon as possible.

The final plan calls for a one-story building of solid wood materials and textured block. One two-story building may be added to the rear of the property at a future date, but Bell said there were no immediate plans for the building.

The original proposal was a two-story, 22,500-square-foot building of white, pre-fabricated concrete with a horizontal line of turquoise glass. Tandem developers changed the plans after the commission voiced disapproval in July 1987 over the design.

Theme set for July 4 parade

"Volunteers of America" is the theme of this year's July 4 parade through downtown Clarkston. The firefighters of Independence Township are sponsoring the event to honor all volunteers who have unselfishly given their time to help others.

Starting from the parking lot at Clarkston Junior High on Waldon Road, the parade will travel west on Church Street to Main, north on Main through downtown and up to Miller Road where it ends.

Line up will begin at 8:45 a.m. and the parade gets underway at 10 a.m.

The firefighters invite all those with special vehicles, marching groups, clowns, floats or bands to join the parade. For more information or to let them know you want to participate, call the fire department at 625-1924.

AN ICE CREAM SOCIAL sponsored by the CHS Student Council juniors provided seniors the opportunity to sign yearbooks last week, as did Terri Blome (left) and Chris Cole.

Board blasts road commission

Criticism was directed toward the Oakland County Road Commission (OCRC) before the township board voted unanimously to participate in improving drainage on Major Street.

Trustee Dale Stuart voiced disapproval over the method the OCRC uses to fund road projects, particularly the proposal for Major Street, which has severe drainage problems. The street is located in the southeast corner of Independence Township and a small part of Waterford Township.

"The people in that area of the township deserve this drain, but the people at the county ought to be kicked in the fanny," Stuart said.

The county proposal called for Independence to pay $9,170, Waterford Township to pay $2,437, and the county to pay $11,608. Of the $23,216 total cost, $17,859 is the actual construction cost. The county is charging $3,571 for engineering and $1,785 for any extra costs.

"It's a surcharge of $5,000 for normal office expenses," Stuart said. "Isn't that supposed to be up to the Oakland County Road Commission to fix this on their own?"

Supervisor Frank Ronk said if the three parties didn't agree to cover the cost, the road would remain washed out in the wet seasons.

Trustee Carol Balzarini said, "It's an opportunity to do something for a portion of the township who never asks for anything."

Trustee Daniel Travis suggested requesting the county use the interest from the township's portion of the cost to pay for any contingencies.

276 apartments OK'd for Maybee Road site

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Traffic and precedent-setting were the major concerns of planners before they granted final site plan approval for the proposed 276-unit Bridgewater Apartments on Maybee Road.

Before the 5-2 vote June 9, some commission members talked about possibly setting a precedent by approving the plan with the condition that it also be approved by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

The Independence Township commission had twice rejected such a condition when requested by developer Rudy Lozano for the Village West condominium project proposed for Deer Lake off White Lake Road. The project is awaiting DNR approval and must return to the commission after DNR approval is received.

Bridgewater plans don't have to return to the commission after DNR approval. Instead, developers may pull building permits immediately after DNR approval, if the township wetlands board also approves the plans.

Commission members listed the differences between the two cases, and the Bridgewater plans received yes votes from Chairperson Brent Bair, Jo Fussman, Steve Secatch, Richard Oppmann and Bruce Mercado. Carol Balzarini and Joseph Figa voted no.

In addition to DNR and township wetlands board approvals, other conditions of the planning commission approval include: Revising the landscaping plan, adding a passing lane at the Sashabaw Road entrance, adding a left-turn lane and a deceleration lane at the Maybee Road entrance, getting a planning commission review of the carport placement, addressing the engineer's and the township planner's comments, and requesting a variance for two signs (one at each entrance) from the zoning board of appeals.

Balzarini said too many significant items needed to be addressed and mentioned the traffic problems that would be added to the already congested Maybee and Sashabaw roads intersection.

"Maybe I'm just being overly cautious," she said. "Verbal assurances are one thing. I guess I lean toward seeing something written."

Developer Dick Fay of Fox and Assoc. said the Oakland County Road Commission's (OCRC) plans to improve the Maybee-Sashabaw intersection were needed before Fox engineers could draw up road improvement plans.

Bair, who also serves as director of planning and development of OCRC, said the preliminary engineering for the intersection was in progress, but construction would probably cost about $400,000 and the county is applying for federal funding. It could take until 1989 or 1990 before improvements begin.

By the time Fox is ready to build, the county's plans should be finished, so the two projects could be coordinated, he said.

"This applicant has made the changes we requested, and it looks pretty good in my mind," he said, adding that two signs are justified on the site (despite violating the ordinance) because a sign at the Sashabaw Road entrance might keep the cars out of the busy Sashabaw-Maybee intersection. The planning commission should send its endorsement to the ZBA, he said.

Fussman said the building design looked good, and compared it with Lancaster Apartments on Dixie Highway across from Maybee Road, also developed by Fox and Assoc.

"I think you did a great job in removing the clone idea between Lancaster and Bridgewater. They have two distinct characters," she said.

Planned for about 50 acres between Food Town and Spring Lake Country Club, the Bridgewater Apartment complex is to include tennis courts, a swimming pool, a whirlpool and a sauna.

A 14-station wood-chip exercise path is to follow the perimeter of the apartments and parking area, separating it from the about 15 acres of wetlands.

Cable-TV proposal is hearing topic

A public hearing for the cable television proposal and application with North Oakland Cablevision will take place at the Springfield Township Board's regular meeting on July 14.

On June 9, the board set the hearing date and discussed an amendment to the cable TV ordinance. Second reading of the ordinance amendment will also take place at the July meeting.

The amendment would delete a provision requiring a full, certified financial report annually. Instead, the board approved amending the article to require a financial statement on revenues, certified by a CPA.

Supervisor Collin Walls said the cable company felt it was unnecessarily in-depth and costly to verify the amount of revenue with a full financial report, when the contract with the township would allow ample room to double-check the revenues.

The requirement for a statement of revenues rather than a full report was a compromise suggested by Trustee William Whitley, who expressed reservations about deleting the requirement altogether.

"When you're granting a 15-year franchise, I don't see any reason not to ask for a periodic audit," he said.

If the franchise is awarded next month, as expected, cable installment would begin about 45 days later. Some areas could, accordingly, have cable by November or December, although many areas would not have cable until spring. Up to 75 percent of the township will eventually have cable service available.

Mill Pond Dam controversy remains unsettled

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Ownership of the Mill Pond Dam is a burden Ed Adler would like to see lifted - by a vote of the people.

His recommendation is that the Clarkston Village Council place the issue on the ballot and allow voters to determine the future of the controversial dam on Washington Street.

"It is an asset to this community," he said. "It should be in the hands of some governmental agency."

After the Mill Pond water level dropped unexpectedly amid a dry spring last month, a group of 50 people attended the May 23 village council meeting and asked Village Council President Sharron Catallo to meet with Adler to work out a suitable solution for all parties soon.

Catallo, who met with Adler on May 24, said a quick fix won't do anymore.

"We would like to solve this problem permanently," she said. "I personally feel that it (the dam) belongs in the hands of the people who live there."

The mood of the homeowners is directly related to the water level, she said, and the Mill Pond residents stopped complaining to the village council when the level returned to normal.

"The pond is back up and everybody is happy," she said.

The dam and pond history reaches back to the late 1930s and early 1940s when Henry Ford had the dam built after purchasing the property and water rights to run a hydroelectric plant. The dam and water rights have transferred to each owner of the property, now the Clarkston Mills Mall, which Adler owns.

One possible permanent owner for the dam could be the Oakland County Drain Commission, Adler said, adding that it's not unusual for the commission to assume ownership and then raise funds for maintenance and repairs through special assessments.

Adler cited one example at Indianwood Lake in which the drain commission rebuilt the dam at a cost of $110,000 and assessed the lake residents, 90 in all, to pay for it. The residents were able to secure an interest-free loan to pay off the debt over a long period of time, he said. The same could happen with the Mill Pond dam.

Should the drain commission accept responsibility for the Mill Pond Dam, Adler said everyone - not only waterfront residents - should help pay for maintenance and repairs.

"It would be fairer if they made the whole village pay," he said. "Everyone benefits from it."

He added that since he owns the Clarkston Mills Mall and the Food Town office building on Main Street, he probably would be paying the largest amount of taxes should that happen.

Before the Mill Pond Dam was repaired last year, the drain commission was asked to take control, but Catallo said ownership of the dam by the drain commission probably wouldn't solve the current problems.

"That would be the last and most expensive solution," she said. "That was the information when the (dam) was inoperable."

She said that if no one else has already done so, checking with the drain commission about ownership again - now that the dam is repaired - would be a good idea.

Oakland County Commissioner George Kuhn remembered that the drain commission was offered the Mill Pond Dam when it was broken last year, but said he hasn't heard anything about it recently.

Kuhn added that the drain commission probably still isn't interested in taking control of the dam from Adler.

"I'd have to review it again," he said. "But we are not in the business to accept private dams, especially if it has a lot of problems."

Colleges pursue multi-talented CHS grad

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After two seasons of hard work, a 1985 Clarkston High School graduate is ready to make it pay off big - as in a full-ride college scholarship.

Instead of heading off to a four-year university right out of high school, Michelle Taulbee decided to make a pit stop at Oakland Community College.

"I had a lot of fun," the Pine Knob Lane, Independence Township, resident said. "At a four-year college I would have had to sit on the bench and watch the juniors and seniors."

But starting - and starring - in basketball for the Lady Raiders was just a small part of what Taulbee accomplished while at OCC.

She excelled in the classroom, earning a 3.9 grade point average out of a possible 4.0 while majoring in commercial arts.

Because of her fantastic academic record she was recently named to the Junior College Academic All American first team. Then came the academic scholarship offer to attend Bowling Green University in Ohio.

"I am very proud of Michelle because she exemplifies our team goal, to get your education and go on to a major school," said Coach Larry Hojna of OCC.

Taulbee said her coach has indicated another university is interested in offering a full-ride scholarship, but as of June 13 the school had not contacted her.

She'll probably wait until the end of the month -

MICHELLE TAULBEE played basketball and volleyball while at Clarkston High School.

after visiting Bowling Green - before making her decision, she said.

Once that's out of the way, then the multi-talented student will decide what sport she wants to play in college.

She only played basketball at OCC (she was co-captain of the 24-4 squad this past winter) but did star in volleyball while at Clarkston High. This spring, she has picked up the sport again and has found it to her liking.

Whatever she decides to do, both in choosing a school and then a sport, one thing will remain in the forefront for Taulbee - academics.

"I'd like to play on a varsity team," she said. "But if I can't, then I'll concentrate on my studies and get some work experience."

One of her greatest passions away from athletics is painting.

During the past year, she completed 15 paintings and 10 drawings. Her favorite subjects are animals and landscapes. While that may sound like a large number considering Taulbee's other commitments, rest assured she has the situation under control.

"I was really whipping them out this year," she said. "But they were all good quality."

Her track record so far in life proves she wouldn't have it any other way.

CANDY TRIM set a record for the girls 7th/8th grade track team at Clarkston Junior High this season with a throw of 33 feet, 8 inches.

Summer fun for kids

Openings exist in several Youth Summer Recreation Programs offered by Springfield Township Parks and Recreation.

The Youth Basketball Clinic for ages 9 to 16 has been moved back a week to allow children from the Clarkston school district to attend. The clinic will meet June 20-30, Mondays through Thursdays, at the Mill Pond Park in Davisburg from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Participants receive a T-shirt - and a pizza and pop party the last day.

Summer Day Camp for children ages 6-12 is also held at the Mill Pond Park. Activities include sports and games, arts and crafts, nature study and hikes, field trips and swimming daily. The camp meets in two-week sessions, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. with sessions planned June 20, July 5, July 18 and Aug. 1.

Junior Golf League for boys and girls ages 8-17 is for those with previous golfing experience. The five-week league meets Tuesdays, July 19-Aug. 16, from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m. at Springfield Oaks Golf Course.

Youth Tennis Lessons for ages 8-17 are scheduled June 21-July 28 on Tuesday and Thursday mornings at the Mill Pond Park Tennis Courts in Davisburg. Registrations must be made by June 20.

For more information, call the parks and recreation office at 625-9622 or 634-0412 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays.

Time out

Same old song

Peter Auchter

School's out for summer! Every year about this time I'm reminded of Alice Cooper's big hit "School's Out For Summer." During sixth grade, one friend tried to coax the principal at my school into playing the song over the school intercom near the end of the day. But he failed.

I guess the old man wasn't into that kind of stuff. I guess he probably didn't see the point in airing the song for a bunch of overzealous youngsters who were ready to party. (Wanna race to the Dairy Queen?)

My, how quickly my view of the annual year-end celebration by students of all ages around the world changes.

Just one year removed from all the hoopla, I'm blasé about the whole deal. Somehow, when you have to get up for work in the morning, summer just isn't the same. One of life's great moments has come and passed me by.

But it's still great to see everybody else out having a good time in the sun. (Nobody can ever accuse me of being a poor sport.) I hope the sunburn isn't too bad, guys.

My first vacation is planned for later on this summer and I'm getting geared up for it already.

Thoughts of summer vacations gone by are rushing through my head: the sunburns, the hot days, the humid nights and an annual trek to Cedar Point are now just memories in my scrapbook of life. Sigh!

***

Speaking of principals, and remembering my old fuddy-duddy of an administrator, I had the opportunity to take photos of a fun-loving guy named William Potvin over at Clarkston Elementary.

Dressed in a disarray of colorful clothing, he sat on the hot tar roof of the school building and read jokes and riddles to the amazed group of students below. You had to see - and hear - it to believe it, folks.

Here's a little sample of the whacky humor dispensed from Potvin:

"What are the last three hairs on a dog's tail called?" he asked the group.

When no one knew, he finally answered his own riddle to a chorus of groans from below.

"Dog hairs," he chuckled.

I couldn't believe I couldn't figure that one out in the allotted time. I have a college degree for goodness sake. Maybe I should consider asking for a refund?

***

Finally, the new taller fences at Clintonwood Park look neat and shiny, but I doubt few big hitters in Sunday afternoon softball action like them.

Twice, while I was watching a co-recreation game between Arrow Uniform Rental and Club Rio De~, the ball missed going out of the park by less than a foot.

Had the old fences (they were two-feet shorter) been in place, the rocket shots would have been easy home runs for those guys with arms like oak trees.

But this isn't the major leagues, so settle down guys. Look at the bright side: At least you didn't pop out to the pitcher.

Be thankful for small favors. The homeowners on the other side of Clintonwood are.

Registration booming for hoops camp

Annual McCormick event

Registration is running heavy for the third annual Tim McCormick Basketball Camp scheduled later this month.

The format of the program will remain the same as last year with local coaches John Gaulin, Jeff Tungate, Scott Weaver, Larry Mahrle, Mike and Kevin McCormick along with a few of Tim's friends from out of state teaching Clarkston kids the basics of basketball.

If the kids keep signing up for the camp - that starts the week of June 27 - as they are now, the coaches will have their hands full.

"Registration has been real good," Mahrle said. "As of Friday (June 10) we had 120 applicants with two weeks left (to register)."

Last summer the camp drew 155 kids from grade four through nine to the gym in Clarkston High School.

Every aspect of basketball is emphasized at the camp. Offensive fundamentals, including shooting, ball-handling, passing and teamwork, will be stressed. Defensive work such as stance and footwork will be covered, Mahrle said.

There also will be team play throughout the week.

"It was a real good camp last year," the former Oakland County Coach of the Year award-winner said.

McCormick, a former Springfield Township resident, graduated from Clarkston High School in 1980. He went on to star at the University of Michigan and was drafted into the National Basketball Association by the Seattle SuperSonics.

He spent two years with Seattle before he was traded to the Philadelphia 76ers in 1986.

The CHS grad developed some friendships with 76ers teammates and one of them - All-Star Charles Barkley - made an appearance at his camp last year.

Mahrle said McCormick, who was traded to the New Jersey Nets midway through last season, probably will invite someone from his present club to the camp as a special guest. NBA memorabilia will be awarded the campers throughout the week as well as official camp T-shirts.

There will be two sessions, one for those in grade four through six and another for grades seven through nine. Each group will be limited to 75 kids and late registration at the door is not guaranteed.

Fee for the week-long session is $60, and registrations may be mailed to Tim McCormick Camp, P.O. Box 595, Clarkston, MI 48016.

CLEARING THE HURDLES for Clarkston Junior High's 7th/8th grade track team is Brian Gruber during the Wolverines' final meet of the season against Pierce on May 26.

DDA adds parcels

Five additional parcels of property in Independence Township are to benefit from the sewer, water and landscaping planned for the Downtown Development Authority (DDA).

The township board voted unanimously June 7 to adopt the boundary adjustment for the DDA.

The ordinance change includes four parcels on Dixie Highway near Waterford Township and the Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital (POH) parcel at the southwest corner of Dixie Highway and White Lake roads.

During a May 17 public hearing, Independence Township resident Warren Newsted, who owns a building proposed for the DDA, said he didn't see the value of the DDA and added that the recent tax increase wasn't a benefit.

Supervisor Frank Ronk said the tax increase was due to a townshipwide commercial reappraisal, which resulted in higher assessments, and that it had nothing to do with the DDA. Benefits from the DDA include upcoming water and sewer connections and future lighting and landscaping, he said.

The DDA includes nearly all of the commercial property and some residential property fronting Dixie Highway from the Waterford Township line north to Deer Lake Road on the east and to just past White Lake Road on the west. The district also includes the commercial property along M-15 from Dixie Highway to the Clarkston Village limits.

The DDA is financed by a tax increment financing authority, which captures some taxes from that area and uses the money for improvements to that area only. No additional taxes are required, and residents from other areas are not taxed for the projects. The DDA does not use school tax money.

In addition to the POH site, new parcels include: commercial property in front of Clarkston Bluffs Condominiums, Brose Electric, Independence Commons and Newsted W. Co. (the former 52nd District Court building).

Library post addition

To help junior high age patrons through adults, a new position was created at the Independence Township Library.

Anne Shepherd, a former employee at the Rochester Hills Library, was to begin as adult services librarian June 13 at an annual salary of $19,960. After three months, her salary is to be increased to $21,000.

The full-time, non-union position is parallel to the children's librarian position.

Township could gain millions from fee proposal

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

About $7,516,402 would be collected over 10 years for Independence Township road improvements if Oakland County voters approve a $25 vehicle registration fee in November.

Although one board member protested the fee, the township board voted 6-1 in support of placing the question on the ballot.

The question would face voters without township approval because the Oakland County Board of Commissioners already approved placing the proposal on the ballot.

The board may have to consider another resolution before the November election, said Treasurer John Lutz, after the meeting. The proposal was originally scheduled for the Aug. 2 primary election but was postponed because proper notification had not been sent to local units of government in time to put it on the ballot.

At the June 7 meeting, Trustee Dale Stuart criticized the county for suggesting the fee, which would be collected by the Secretary of State and returned to each municipality in proportion to the number of registered vehicles in each community, less an undetermined administrative fee to the state.

"I think the $25 per vehicle is a ridiculously high charge. ... The county sits on a surplus of more funds and have year after year," Stuart said. "There has got to be a more reasonable way to do this."

He added that the county had not committed in writing to distributing the money according to the number of registered vehicles in each municipality, so residents had no guarantee of fairness.

"I think this is an outrageously high attempt to tax the people," he said, adding it's about a 50 percent increase.

Supervisor Frank Ronk said the township roads needed work, so the fee was necessary.

"If it flies, it's going to be a plus for us," he said. "We won't have to go out for a millage vote. ... If this doesn't go, we're not going to see any improvements on the roads."

Stuart responded: "If that is so, ... we ought to get rid of the road commission that exists and get someone who can think of something more creative."

Others also said the county could more fairly distribute its road funds.

"We don't know if we're being treated fairly in this area," said Trustee William Vandermark, noting that the county doesn't keep clear records on how much revenue (from the gasoline and weight taxes) comes from Independence or other municipalities.

Trustee Daniel Travis said the state Legislature would have to institute developer impact fees, which would allow local governments to charge developers for road improvements if their development increased traffic.

Trustee Carol Balzarini said the voters should have a chance to decide on the $25 fee, and the election was a good opportunity.

The projected revenue from the fee over the proposed 10-year period was estimated with data from the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments, said Ronk.

Following are the estimated statistics (using 1990 dollars):

	1987	1998	+ (-)	Change
Population	23,270	28,342	4651	20%
Occupancy/unit	2.98	2.64	-0.34	-11%
residential units	7,814	10,727	2,913	37%
vehicles	16,331	22,420	6,089	37%

Revenue Projection	10-Year Total
$25 per vehicle	$4,897,275
Interest at 8%	$2,619,127
Total revenue	$7,516,402

Springfield sets road priorities

A priority list for road improvements in Springfield Township was set by the board June 9, in the event that a proposed $25 vehicle registration fee is approved by voters in November.

The proposed $25 fee would bring revenue for road improvements back to the communities of origin, minus a 3 or 4 percent administration fee.

Township Supervisor Collin Walls projected a rough estimate of $150,000 per year for 10 years for road improvements in Springfield Township should the fee be approved.

The board unanimously adopted a priority list that would gravel and ditch unpaved township roads as first priorities, and then use any additional funds for townshipwide chloriding without resident contributions and for some paving and safety projects.

But the township board was not unanimous in its support of the fee proposal.

Walls read a resolution he prepared supporting the fee, but the board declined an opportunity to vote its support. Walls was the only board member who publicly voiced support.

"There is a critical need for road improvements," Walls said. "The available funding sources simply cannot fill the need."

Another reason he supported the fee was because of the Oakland County Road Commission's commitment to allow local communities control of the money collected.

"A fee of this nature, a user fee, is more logical than a property tax," he said.

Council plans to spruce up the village gazebo

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Landscaping, reinforcement for the top rail and automatic lights to thwart vandals are three additions planned for the Depot Park gazebo this summer.

On June 13, Trustee Douglas Roesser presented the village council with a proposal from Bordine's to landscape the area around the gazebo for a price not to exceed $1,500.

"I'm concerned about the look of the gazebo and not making it look like a garbage pit," said Roesser.

The village council unanimously approved the expenditure for the evergreen-type bushes and colorful flower arrangements. Work is expected to be completed before the July 4 weekend when the gazebo is officially dedicated.

Later in the meeting, Trustee Frank Millard informed council members that the architect has ruled the hand railing around the gazebo is a possible safety hazard.

About $225 dollars of work, materials and labor, are needed to reinforce the railing to ensure nobody will break through and fall to the ground should they lean on it heavily, Millard said.

Since the village inspected and approved the work at the time the $24,600 gazebo was built in December, it wouldn't be fair to ask the builder (Sunheiser) to come back and fix it free, he added.

"He (Sunheiser) did what we asked him to and getting him back here would be a favor," Millard said. "This is something that's critical."

The council unanimously approved the expenditure. Millard said the work should be completed before July 1.

Talk on the gazebo then turned to trying to avoid vandalism, and a photocell will be installed to trigger the light inside the gazebo at dusk every evening in an attempt to thwart vandals.

While he approved of the preventive measure, Millard said he wasn't totally convinced it would work.

"I'm sure if we turn on the light it will be broken," he said. "They (vandals) probably don't even know it's there now."

The council, again, voted unanimously to approve the gazebo improvement.

Mobile homes cause debate

Temporary placement of mobile homes on property in Springfield Township has been the focal point of board discussion on a proposed amended article in the zoning ordinance.

Article 17 of Ordinance 26 was sent back to the planning commission by the township board after first reading in May, and was discussed again at the June 9 board meeting. The planning commission has been instructed to have the ordinance back to the board in time for its July 14 meeting.

"The purpose of Article 17 is to give the zoning board of appeals the authority to place mobile homes on land temporarily while building or rebuilding," said Supervisor Collin Walls.

But in an emergency, such as loss of a home in a fire or tornado, homeowners wouldn't have time to go through the normal process, which would take several weeks. They would need a place to live the next day.

The board's recommendation was for a committee of two or three township officials to review a request and make a decision in an emergency situation.

But Trustee William Whitley was not in favor of all temporary buildings being handled administratively.

Trustees Glen Vermilye and Ruth Ann Hines both agreed, saying that the zoning board of appeals should handle temporary dwellings other than emergency cases. And Trustee Charles Oaks said there should be a time limit on emergency temporary dwellings.

Clerk J. Calvin Walters said that since temporary dwelling requests are few, he didn't see why the administration couldn't handle all of them.

After discussion, the ordinance was sent back to the planning commission with instructions that only emergency temporary dwellings be handled by the administration.

Conditions of temporarily placing a mobile home on property include a time limit of not more than one year, a bond posted in the amount of $1,000, and required hook-up to well and septic.

The township is revising the zoning ordinance "one piece at a time," Walls said later, because they attempted to revise it all at once and "failed miserably."

Upgrading the zoning ordinance to keep up with a changing township as well as legislative changes has been an ongoing process. Revision of the township zoning map was completed early in 1987.

Eighth-grade band hits high note at festivals

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

There is a certain camaraderie about this group of eighth-graders as they prepare to practice in the band room of Clarkston Junior High School.

If many of these students seem to be good friends, it's because many of them have been in band together since the sixth grade in the elementary school band program. Perhaps 80 or 90 percent of them stayed with band into the junior high program.

"They've done very well this year," says band director Cliff Chapman, who has taught music in the Clarkston schools for 11 years. "I think this might be the first group from Clarkston Junior High to earn first division ratings at district and state festivals."

The junior high band performed at Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association district on March 19 and at state on May 7 to earn the division one ratings, defined as excellent level of performance and musicianship for the event and classification being judged.

Individual band students volunteered to participate in the MSBOA's district solo ensemble festival, and the majority received first and second division ratings in that competition as well.

As a group, the junior high band also participates in several concerts during the school year - holiday, spring and festival concerts.

"Part of this group's success has been the continuity since seventh or eighth grade," says Chapman.

The majority, he says, plan to continue with band and music "in one way or another."

As practice begins in the junior high band room, Chapman walks around the room, helping students with their instruments. As the band does a warm-up routine, Chapman frequently says "that's good," and even an occasional flat note draws encouragement rather than criticism.

"It's been a pleasure to see them grow and watch the moth to butterfly metamorphosis," Chapman says.

"And it's a pleasure to watch their musical growth," he says. "Very often, sixth- through eighth-graders don't see their own progress and development as clearly as adults do.

"They're a unique blend of talent and personality," he adds.

CLIFF CHAPMAN, Clarkston schools band director, works with the Clarkston Junior High School Band during the final week of school.

Springfield Township waives some review fees

The Springfield Township Economic Plan took a positive step when the township board unanimously approved waiving some site plan fees for six months.

The board also unanimously voted June 9 to authorize a maximum of $1,500 of economic development block grant funds to prepare landscaping plans for the township's "front door," Dixie Highway from the township line to an area near I-75 and Cedar Crest Academy.

The board adopted the following waiver of site plan review fees, which are $750 each:

Waive site plan review fees from 6-1-88 through 12-31-88 if the proposed plan would decrease or eliminate a non-conformity resulting in better site use, improved safety and/or improved landscaping and general appearance in the following situations.

-Additions, expansion or site improvements to existing non-conforming commercial businesses where use is conforming but site or site improvements are not.

-Conversion of a non-conforming residential or industrial use of a building, with or without addition, expansion or replacement, to a conforming commercial or office use.

The waiver does not apply to:

-New development on vacant land.

-Industrial uses except under b above.

-Conversion of an existing building that has little or no relationship to the overall proposal or potential development of the site.

-Any proposal that does not meet the intent, objectives or policies of the township master plan, zoning ordinance, Springfield Township economic plan or other adopted policies.

"This is one way that the Springfield Township board can say 'Mr. or Mrs. Businessman or Property Owner, we care and we are trying to help,'" said Supervisor Collin Walls. "It's an opportunity for the property owner to put that money ($750) to use for direct benefit to his or her property."

Dawber, Lily Tomlin, Mayor Coleman A. Young and a Detroit landmark, the Spirit of Detroit. More than 40 people vied for the prizes in the June 1 contest. The actual celebrities appear in the bureau's "Feel At Home in My Hometown" advertising campaign.

Tax truth session

A "Truth in Taxation" hearing has been scheduled for Monday, June 20, at Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot.

There will be no tax rate increase for village residents this year. The millage rate for the general fund will remain the same at 7.4, said village Treasurer Artemus Pappas.

The total millage rate for the village will be 8.4 this fiscal year with 1 mill going toward the debt retirement fund for sewer construction.

The special meeting is necessary because the state valuation of Clarkston's property increased during the past year and the village will be getting approximately 12 percent more in revenue because of it.

"The state says that you have to let the people know" more money is being collected, the treasurer said.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m.

'Clarkston Carver's' hobby soars

He does 16 shows a year; next local one will be June 18, 19

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

John Hyde puffs on his pipe as a chunk of butternut "poor man's walnut," as he calls it - takes on the shape of a mallard duck under his artful touch.

Known as "The Clarkston Carver," Hyde has been making decoys and decorative waterfowl for over 40 years. It all began when, as an avid duck hunter and a handy carpenter, he began making his own decoys years ago.

After 30-plus years at the hobby, his house was full of hunting decoys. He'd made about 1,000 of them, giving some away to friends.

"My wife (Dorothy) told me, 'Look, you've either got to start selling these or quit carving,'" Hyde says, chuckling.

Now retired from the chemical company he co-owned, Hyde has turned his talent into a full-time hobby, selling ducks, geese, swans and other waterfowl as fast as he can make them. He and his wife take his craft to about 16 arts and craft shows a year in southeastern Michigan.

This year, one of the shows is Art at the Water's Edge, a Camp Fire-sponsored event at Camp Oweki in Independence Township, on June 18 and 19.

Dorothy really enjoys her husband's hobby, and she designed the display area they use at shows. They used to do more shows, but cut back.

"After all, it's still a hobby," Hyde says.

He works in a shop attached to his Independence Township home on Cranberry Lake, the tools of his craft hung neatly around him.

Outside the windows, "live models" paddle quietly up to the shoreline, while inside, unfinished ducks and geese carved from wood sit waiting for finishing touches. Waterfowl patterns he designed line one wall of the shop.

Dorothy proudly points out the different woods. There is an exotic, stripe-grained wood from Africa known as zebra wood, and other exotic woods called wenge and padouk. There are more common hardwoods such as cherry and oak, and the softer woods like butternut, from which many of his ducks are crafted.

Dorothy also points out ducks and wood crafts created by their two sons, Gregory and Larry, who began carving with their father by the age of eight. Hyde's calling cards say "John Hyde & Sons," because his sons are very much a part of the family hobby.

It's easy to envision John and Dorothy Hyde enjoying themselves at art shows, visiting with people and describing the craft that encompasses so much of their lives.

JOHN HYDE works on a duck he is carving in the shop off his Cranberry Lake home. He will participate in Camp Fire's Art at the Water's Edge show June 18 and 19.

"We meet a lot of nice people at shows," Hyde says. In fact, he says, one of their sons is married to a woman he met at an art show.

In addition to decoys and decorative waterfowl, Hyde crafts flower boxes, refrigerator magnets and many other items with the duck motif.

When he began carving, he says he was fortunate to meet Ben Schmidt, "one of the best decoy carvers in the country."

Schmidt has since passed away, but Hyde spent a year working with him and was invited to go into business with him when he proved his talent at wood carving.

Hyde restores antique decoys in addition to creating new ones. But he says decorative waterfowl make up most of his business. All of his carved pieces are signed and dated.

"Ninety percent of my customers are ladies who want them for decoration," he says, noting that the country ducks and geese are "in" right now.

Hyde's smaller ducks sell for about $55 and a large, graceful swan sells for up to $250, because it takes many hours to create.

When he's not busy hewing ducks from blocks of wood in his shop, Hyde has a cabin up north, where he says he is "either hunting or sleeping."

But when he's at home on Cranberry Lake, neighbors frequently stop in to watch him work and chat awhile.

"I don't know about other folks, but I get a lot of satisfaction out of people liking what I do," says Hyde, a friendly smile forming around the pipe he is still puffing on. "It's a hobby that pays its own expenses, and it's a lot better than TV or a rocking chair."

Art show details

Over 90 artists and crafters are expected at the second annual "Art at the Water's Edge" on Saturday and Sunday, June 18 and 19, at Camp Oweki in Independence Township.

The professional show is sponsored by Camp Fire North Oakland to raise money for camping and substance abuse programs and to provide camp scholarships for needy children.

The show and sale will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the camp located at 6125 Gulick Rd., off Waldon Road, one-quarter mile west of Sashabaw Road and I-75.

Admission and parking are free. There will also be food, raffles and free entertainment. Representatives from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department will offer free youth I.D. fingerprinting.

Writer tells of Michigan secrets

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Just as his latest book is hitting the bookstores, Independence Township writer Jim DuFresne is already working on a new book about New Zealand and is organizing another book about Michigan State Parks.

But he's pleased with "Michigan: Off the Beaten Path," published by The Globe Pequot Press, Chester, Conn., and selling for $8.95.

His previous books have centered on wilderness travel, and this latest - more of a tourism book - could be his most financially rewarding book yet.

"My timing was pretty good," said Jim. "Tourism in Michigan is booming."

As the title suggests, the book is not about chicken dinners at Frankenmuth or tours of Greenfield Village.

To gather the information, Jim visited every county in the state last summer and highlighted about 200 attractions off the beaten path. About 150 others were mentioned. With strict space limitations, he could not include all the sites he visited.

"It wasn't easy. I could have written a book twice as big," he said.

The most bizarre attraction was a roadside table off I-94, reportedly built by engineers who used leftover planks from road construction - the "first roadside table in America," boasts the sign.

A schoolhouse museum in White Rock in the thumb area is not worth planning a vacation around or even making a special trip, said Jim, "but if you happen to be driving along M-25, you should stop," he said.

A visitor will have to get the key from a woman down the road, but the building is one of the last one-room schoolhouses, complete with old desks and a horse shed. Since it was used up to the 1960s, some of the textbooks - still in the shelves - may seem familiar, he said.

A lighthouse in the upper peninsula has been turned into a bed and breakfast business on Lake Superior - definitely worth the trip, he said.

A bar in Frankenmuth is filled with Tiffany lamps, and Frankenmuth also houses Michigan's only two breweries.

His research renewed his love of the state, he said. "Michigan's a neat place. I've lived here most of my life. I saw some incredible things."

In his 8,000 miles of travel last summer, Jim stayed with friends and relatives throughout the week and returned to his Woodside Road home only on weekends.

During the week, he awakened at his usual time - 5 a.m. - and wrote until the attractions opened, usually around 9 a.m. He toured until about 8 or 9 p.m.

To compensate for his absence at home, a babysitter stayed with his children - Jessica, then 5, and Michael, then 1-1/2, while his wife, Peggy, worked as district sales manager of General Motors.

Jim is happy to be home this summer, although he's learned to type accompanied by sounds from "Mr. Rogers" and "Sesame Street," which Michael watches in Jim's office in his walkout basement.

After Christmas last year, Jim was tramping in New Zealand for three months to update his book published by Lonely Planet, New Zealand.

Although he's been home for about two months, Michael still looks at him every once in a while and says, "My daddy home from New Zealand?"

The adjustment to his lifestyle may be more difficult on his family than on himself, he said. But he loves wilderness travel and writing.

"It's the thing I like to do most. The adventures are unbelievable," he said.

An outgrowth of his Michigan book is his new syndicated outdoor column for about eight daily newspapers, including the Saginaw News, for which he already writes an outdoor column and other outdoor articles.

His syndicated column each week features one of the entries in his book, only he expands it to make an entire feature article and includes photographs or drawings.

The work for "Michigan: Off the Beaten Path" also provided the groundwork for one of his upcoming books on Michigan State Parks - to be finished in November.

Memory makers

The year 2000 should hold some fond memories for a group of kindergarten children thanks to the creativity of a pupil's parents.

Bob and Janet Hugheses' daughter, Nicole, is enrolled in the kindergarten program at Andersonville Elementary. Nicole and her fellow classmates will graduate from high school in the year 2000.

To commemorate the school experience that will end at the turn of the century, the Hugheses thought it would be nice for the kids to plant a tree (of the blue spruce variety) and a time capsule (of the Tupperware variety) filled with childhood memories, such as photographs.

"They will all be invited back when they graduate (from high school)," said Hughes. "It will be kind of fun." Teachers Sue Cattin and Debbie Licata instructed their students write their names, a list of what they like best in kindergarten and their best friend's name on a piece of paper so it could be included in the time capsule.

The clear Tupperware tub containing all the information and photographs was buried June 10 underneath the outside window of one of the kindergarten classrooms. At the same time, the kids planted the tree.

"This tree belongs to the kindergartners," said Cattin. "It's a wonderful idea."

She told the children that when the gym was built an old tree, standing in the location of the new tree, was chopped down.

About 53 kids helped plant the tree and bury the box on the school grounds.

bands that signify they are the graduating Class of 2000 as they gather round their tree.

Library program for preschoolers

Preschoolers can hop on an imaginary train this summer as they take part in the free Storytime Summer Program at the Independence Township Library.

The program runs from June 29 through Aug. 10, and registrations are now being taken. Meeting times are the same as the regular Preschool Storytimes at the library, with identical programs at 10 and 11 a.m. on Wednesdays.

Children ages 3 through 5 may participate, including those who will begin kindergarten this year.

The children will take an imaginary Train Trip to Adventure, with a different stop each week to see the zoo, the farm and other inviting places. As part of the program, certificates will be available to record each child's favorite book of the week.

The library is located at 6495 Clarkston Road. For more information, call 625-2212.

West Point grad comes home on leave

BY CAROLYN WALKER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

W. Dale Conwell: At 22, a second lieutenant in the United States Army. A 1988 graduate of West Point. A student of nuclear physics. An American patriot. One of three apples that shine in his parents' eyes.

The others are Ronald, soon to be a West Point "yearling" or sophomore; and Pamela, a student at Clarkston High School.

Dale, as he prefers to be called, is home on leave this month, his experiences as a cadet fresh in his mind: the challenging introduction to West Point life known as "beast barracks"; studying nuclear reactors in New Mexico; jungle school in Panama; grueling military training; May's graduation with full dress uniforms, sabers and Vice President George Bush's commencement address; his brother-the-younger-cadet's salutes.

"I consider it an honor to have been allowed to attend West Point. It was certainly a challenge," he says of his chance to obtain an education and fulfill a military obligation simultaneously. "I've grown a lot and learned a lot."

Composed, articulate, professional, he speaks of the privilege of being one of the chosen few from his parents', Walter and Gayle, Independence Township home.

A 1984 graduate of Springfield Christian Academy, Dale was recommended for West Point by United States Congressman Bob Carr.

According to Dale, congressmen, senators and the president of the U.S. can make recommendations to the academy each year.

Test results, school grades, leadership qualities and extracurricular participation are all taken into consideration for acceptance.

Following such prestigious recommendations, the administration at West Point then picks the students they want, he says.

He shrugs modestly when asked if West Point students represent the cream of America's crop. He says he only knows that: "The people I worked and went to school with were highly professional, highly motivated and patriotic."

Dale, whose academic gifts lie in math and science, says he once wanted to be a doctor.

Deciding he didn't have that "special calling" he believes doctors need, he opted to major in nuclear physics engineering.

One of the highlights of his education at West Point came when he was allowed to study a huge proton accelerator at the Meson physics facility in New Mexico. "It was really fascinating," he says.

His experiences in Panama were equally interesting, he adds. They included treks through the jungle where the men familiarized themselves with jungle patrolling and ambushing.

"It was a lot of fun. So different from anything you've ever seen," he says, citing as an example, a thick "ant highway" he watched meandering its way through the foliage.

Dale feels he is carrying on a proud family military tradition that dates back to his great grandfather, a World War I veteran, as he heads into the five years of Army service he must now perform.

When his leave is over, he will go to Ft. Bliss, Texas, where he will take an officers basics course in air defense artillery. He will then be stationed in Germany.

The brothers are a graduate and a soon-to-be sophomore cadet of West Point.

An Apple for the Teacher

Bernice Rynders

By Dorothy Leaming

Bernice Rynders is a Clarkston teacher whose life is a witness to attitudes bred early on.

She is the product of Western Christian High School, Sioux Center, Iowa, a parochial school of Dutch Reform faith.

Pure Dutch and the middle child in a siblingship of five, Bernice has a large extended family. So extended, in fact, that when they gather for their twice yearly reunions, they rent a school gym!

She married Pete, presently a reading consultant at Oakland Schools, and started her family prior to graduation from Kansas University, a situation that required some compromises.

Her teaching career spans second through seventh grades, and she has taught in Iowa, Montana, Georgia, Kansas and New York state - wherever Pete's career took the family.

Fortunately for us, the Rynderses have been in Michigan since the early '70s and Bernice has subsequently earned a master's degree in reading from Oakland University.

Rynders: Her homework is her home in Pontiac.

She has worked for Clarkston schools for 12 years as a reading support or classroom teacher at Pine Knob, Clarkston and Andersonville schools.

Bernice loves teaching, and there is nothing else she would rather do. Teaching reading is "like second nature," but the most fun for her is teaching math!

She believes passionately in strong bonding between parent, teacher and child. Bernice feels that parents are just as important as teachers, and the child's educational experience should be a shared responsibility.

The Rynderses practice what they teach and once took three daily newspapers, which even Bernice admits was a bit much. Nevertheless, she manages to keep abreast of current events and current trends in education.

She serves on the language arts curriculum committee. She has long been an elder at the Orchard Lake Presbyterian Church and recently was chairperson of their committee searching for an associate pastor.

She is part of an ecumenical outreach group striving to serve the needs of nearby inner-city peoples mainly in the area of housing.

The Rynderses have recently accomplished a dream, the purchase of a beautiful old English tudor type home in Pontiac, which they are lovingly refurbishing while retaining its architectural features and character.

Travel is important to Bernice, who says this was a legacy from her parents. In 1985 she visited the Netherlands town where her father was born and visited the family church. (Her mother was born in the United States of Dutch parents.)

A 1987 vacation took the Rynderses on an automobile trip to Alaska where they took a boat or plane to some of the more remote areas.

Bernice and Pete have two young adult children. Their son, Perrin, is a graduate of the University of Michigan Law School and practices in Grand Rapids. Their daughter, Janna, now married, is working on her Ph.D. in molecular biology at Carnegie-Mellon Institute in Pittsburgh. Thus, the tradition of service has come full circle.

The Clarkston community has much to be proud of in Bernice Rynders and of what she represents.

An Apple for the Teacher is provided through a committee of the Clarkston Education Association. This week's author is Dorothy Leaming, school social worker.

CJH recognizes excellence with awards

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Respect from peers and staff members at Clarkston Junior High School was the common denominator between three award winners, said Principal Duane Lewis.

Winning the principal's awards were ninth-graders Andrew Deloney and Robin Link, who were chosen from 25 other finalists, he said.

Staff members recommended students for the award, and Lewis made the final selection based on academics, leadership, school involvement and personality.

"Robin has been involved in just about anything that goes on here in school," Lewis said. "She's an outgoing pleasant person, ... a real super young lady."

She performed well academically and was a founder of the Green and White Club, vicepresident of student council, a statistician for the boys and girls basketball teams and an actress in the school musical, among other activities.

Andy was also a strong student and respected by his peers and staff members. His activities centered on athletics. He participated in football, basketball and baseball.

"He's well-liked and has been a leader in athletics and academics," said Lewis.

The Bud McGrath Award, given in memory of a former counselor and coach, honors the type of person

Bud McGrath tried to get kids to be, said Lewis: "People who worked to overcome obstacles, are respectable to others, involved in school life, nice personality."

Shannon Wiltse exemplifies those qualities, he said.

"Shannon is a very good student and has had to overcome a tremendous number of handicaps," he said. "She is pleasant, well-liked and has adjusted to a building that certainly isn't barrier-free."

McGrath would have admired her, he said. "She's polite, hard-working, always has a smile. She's positive about everything."

Other award winners included the following:

Foreign language: French, Stacey Secatch, 9th grade; Spanish, Joshua Hamman, 9th.

Social studies: Michelle Davis, 9th; Benjamin Gunsberg, 8th; Brad Patterson, 7th; Sean Craven, 6th.

Industrial Arts: Jeff Bloom, 9th; Trevor Sanford, 8th; Brendan Kelly, 7th.

SHANNON WILTSE, the daughter of Scherry and David Wiltse of Chestnut Hill Drive, is the recipient of the Bud McGrath Award at CJHS.

PRINCIPAL DUANE LEWIS chose Andrew Deloney and Robin Link as the recipients of the Principal's Award at CJHS. Andrew is the son of William and Nancy Deloney of Sleepy Time Court. Robin is the daughter of Joe and Ruth Barnett of Squirrel Hill Court.

Sashabaw honors top students at ceremony

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When Amy Rayner and Gary Lisle were announced as this year's recipients of the Principal's Award at Sashabaw Junior High School, the audience at the annual awards ceremony June 7 erupted into cheers.

Principal Dave Reschke said it was a fitting tribute to the talented students.

"Both are very friendly and outgoing," he said. "It seemed to be a popular decision since the teachers and students gave them a standing ovation."

Rayner is on the honor roll and participated in track and wind ensemble this year. Lisle, also an honor roll student, played basketball and took part in a Drama II class as well as being a counseling aide.

Only students who make a deep, long lasting and positive impression on Reschke during their stay at Sashabaw Junior High are eligible for the Principal's Award.

Winners demonstrate good citizenship, good academic performance, good attendance and good leadership through involvement in extracurricular activities and community service.

The award is usually granted each year to a boy and a girl in the ninth grade. At the principal's discretion, if no candidates exist the award may not be given.

Ninth-graders Chris Figa and Kelly Collier won the other big award at the honors ceremony by capturing the Cougar Spirit Award.

Figa was active in sports (football, basketball and track) and band (wind ensemble). Collier played softball, basketball, was the wrestling team manager and participated in student government.

Both said they were surprised when they discovered that they had won the special award.

The Spirit Award is presented to a student who represents most clearly the ideas Sashabaw stands for, said Assistant Principal Vince Licata. These ideas are: success, perseverance, participation, growth and an overall winning attitude.

"When students demonstrate these qualities, they possess what is referred to as Cougar Spirit," he said. Typically one boy and girl win the award annually. Other honors presented to Sashabaw students at (See JUNIOR HIGH, next page)

PRINCIPAL DAVE RESCHKE presents Sashabaw ninth-graders Amy Rayner and Gary Lisle with the Principal's Award for their outstanding and outgoing attitudes.

UP ON THE ROOFTOP is Clarkston Elementary Principal William Potvin relaxing in a lounge chair and reading jokes and riddles to a group of amazed youngsters below Friday morning. Potvin was on the roof reading because he bet the pupils they wouldn't be able to read over a million minutes during a special three-month program designed to encourage them to develop the reading habit.

Shouting it from the school rooftop

Principal marks pupils' success in reading more than 1 million minutes

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A friendly bet by Clarkston Elementary Principal William Potvin provided the incentive.

With five weeks left in a three-month reading program, the kindergarten through fifth-graders at the school were only a little over halfway to their goal of reading for a million minutes.

Since it appeared unlikely the pupils would reach a million, Potvin thought it would be a safe bet to tell the participants he would spend his lunch hour on the roof reading if they made their goal.

That's all the students needed to hear. They reached their goal, easily finishing with 1,080,000 minutes.

"They really kicked it into gear," the principal said.

Since he lost the bet, Potvin had to sit on the roof of Clarkston Elementary June 10 reading jokes to an attentive audience of students below.

When kids answered his riddles correctly, he threw down candy and quarters as rewards.

The program was designed by Potvin to get the children in the habit of reading. The principal said he was familiar with several types of reading programs and favored this one because it made the most sense to him.

Other contests that reward kids for reading a certain number of pages or words left plenty of loopholes for kids to slip through. Slow readers would be penalized and therefore discouraged if books or pages were used as the benchmark, he said.

Using the minute-method worked to perfection.

"I couldn't be more happy," he said. "The success of the program went far beyond my expectations."

The elementary school students were divided up according to grade and given 60-minute coupons to complete every time they read for an hour.

The coupons were then collected in a can, one for each grade, and winners of prizes were drawn from the names.

Readers who read out loud to someone or who were read to, earned double the amount of minutes, he said. This encouraged parents to become involved with their children's reading habits.

"There were a lot of side benefits to this program," he said. "Kids were asking their parents to buy books for them."

The school also staged read-ins in classrooms to provide pupils with extra reading time.

New CHS club has Clarkston Rotary connection

BY PETERAUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Whenever and wherever people around town need assistance, a group of juniors from Clarkston High School want to be there.

A charter group of 12 students formed a local chapter of Interact, a service club sponsored by Clarkston Rotary, so they would have an available avenue to for their helpful ambitions.

"We will be there for Rotary events," said President David Woodruff. "(Interact) is a link to Rotary from the high school."

With the help of Brent Cooley, a Rotary member as well as assistant principal at CHS, the group began meeting in late April.

All of the students are highly motivated and capable of serving the public in various capacities, the assistant principal said.

Wildlife artist wins top award

Independence township artist Russell Cobane was named the new Michigan Ducks Unlimited Artist of the Year for 1988 during the fourth annual Michigan Great Lakes Wildlife Festival in Clare over Memorial Day weekend.

Top wildlife artists, carvers and photographers gathered for the event, which awarded prizes totaling $7,000 to the top artist, carver and photographer of the year as well as to amateur artist awards.

Cobane, who won the award three years ago and was required to wait three years before entering again, received a $2,000 award for his acrylic painting of a pair of wigeons. His artwork won over a field of 50 entries.

Last year the well-known wildlife artist won the Michigan Trout Stamp competition and must now wait three years before entering that contest.

But Cobane says maybe it's just as well that he can only enter the competitions every three years, because it's a lot of work.

He must personally sign and date 2,000 prints of the D.U. award-winning wigeon painting, which are auctioned off at D.U. fund-raisers across the state and in many other states.

The Memorial Day wildlife festival drew thousands of visitors and featured displays, demonstrations and seminars as well as an arts and crafts show.

Cobane's Marshland Woods Studio is tucked away in the rolling farmlands and woods north of Clarkston on Allen Road. In addition to being a wildlife artist, he is a leading photo-realistic commercial artist who has achieved Master Status.

"They all believe in service above self," he said. "They are here to help."

Each Interact club, there are over 5,000 of them spread over 83 countries with 110,000 members, is self-supporting. It is governed by a constitution prescribed by Rotary International.

Since the group is just getting organized as the school year is drawing to a close, the students are focusing most of their energies on increasing the ranks before next fall.

"We will try to involve more seniors next year," Woodruff said.

According to the by-laws of Interact, the group must participate in the two major projects, one serving the community, the other promoting international understanding.

So far this spring, club members have helped out at the senior citizen/Rotary pig roast, said Cooley.

Clarkston Interact is led by four officers: Woodruff, president; Jennifer O'Heren, vice president; Shannon Flynn, secretary; Bob Newton, treasurer.

Other charter members are Bree Michelsen, Jill Pilarcik, Nichole Chinavare, Lizz Webb, Ross Rosenthal, Eric Chambers and Paul Reading.

Friend to Friend

Handling harassment

Dear Friend to Friend,

An old friend of mine is saying things to me at my locker such as, "Boy, you are sure gaining weight" or "Is everything OK - because you are getting fat."

Now, I know that she is probably just jealous because I am dating her old boyfriend (they had already broken up).

Most of the time I can blow it off, but lately it's been getting to me. I am afraid to say anything because she is the type to turn and start hitting me. I just want to put her in her place. Any suggestions?

VICTIM OF CRITICISM

Dear Victim,

We really think that this girl probably has many underlying insecurities and problems. Keep this in mind when she says these things, and probably the way you handled her before is best - ignore her.

On the other hand, this is very difficult to do and you should let her know that you don't appreciate these comments. If you choose to say something, do it in a calm fashion and then walk away before she has the chance to take a swing.

Don't lower yourself to her level. If you make it a point to stay in control, you will be less likely to provoke her.

The other way to handle it is to avoid her. Move your locker to another spot. Good luck.

Dear Friend to Friend,

I work in a public place and I deal with a lot of people. I'm 17 and consider myself to be an attractive girl.

The men who come in to the place where I work are very forward. They make crude remarks and think that they're funny when they try to pick me up. I don't like being treated this way - it makes me feel uncomfortable.

When it comes from a guy my own age, I know how to handle it, but when it comes from an adult, I don't know what to do. I have always been taught to respect my elders, and I don't know how to act when they don't respect me. Any advice?

WAITRESS

Dear Waitress,

This is a difficult situation that even adult women have trouble handling. People from our group thought that there were a number of ways to deal with this.

A couple of suggestions that might be beneficial include just blowing them off, or being rude in the hopes that the harassment will stop.

Even though it may be difficult, the most effective way to handle the situation is to confront the comment by saying something such as "I'm sorry, but I don't appreciate being talked to like that."

The main thing is to do something; don't ignore the situation. Don't let these men intimidate you. Even though it will be hard at first, the more you confront them, the easier it will become.

If you do decide to confront them, do it tactfully because not all men realize that they are being offensive. Let us know how it works out for you.

Time to move on

David Kwasnick

"Senior! It's finally my time to be a high school senior!" Remember those words? So read the opening of my first article for The Clarkston News.

The time was late June 1987. I was fresh off my junior year and ready to enter high school's "last act," as I then termed it. Being a senior meant everything to me. What a difference a year can make.

The time is now mid-June 1988 and having been a senior carries about as much importance now as did any other grade level. And rightfully so. It's time to move on.

In my article of a year ago, I wrote that being a senior can be thought of as "the last stop before you are, like it or not, given your independence; an independence that will mean making your own decisions and having to live with them."

I also wrote that "therein lies the beauty of being a senior; it doesn't have to be dealt with... yet." Well, guess what? It's yet! And to be quite honest, the whole thing scares me sometimes.

It's a foreign concept - total independence, and it carries many unanswered questions with it. I keep telling myself I know the answers, but when it comes down to it, I really don't.

What if I can't handle myself on my own? What if things don't work out as I expected? What if I fail? What if, what if?

But as I don't know the answers, no one does; not that they should. An individual is just that, himself. If there is success out there for me, I want to be the one to find it.

And the only way I can accomplish this is by hoping that the era that ended with me being a senior has prepared me for the one just now beginning.

David Kwasnick is 1988 graduate of Clarkston High School.

Pet of the Week

Sam needs new home

Sam, a 3-year-old Siamese cat, had an encounter with another animal that disliked cats, and Sam came out on the short end of the stick.

His owner could not afford to pay for the treatment to Sam's front leg after he was bitten and gave him to the Humane Society.

He's all healed up now and ready for a new home. Sam has a quiet, easy-going disposition. He's also a handsome guy, with sealpoint (tan and brown) coloring and bright blue eyes. He'd make a good house pet.

Sam can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The adoption fee for Sam is $35, which includes his neutering before leaving the shelter.

50 graduate in ceremony at CHS

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

As a sophomore 17 years ago, a high school diploma didn't mean much to Gene Hall. But times have changed and so has his attitude.

His thoughts on academics stayed the same until his wife, Cindy, returned to school in search of a high school degree. While helping with her studies, he became interested in obtaining his diploma and decided to return to school.

Cindy and Gene completed their academic dream together by walking down the aisle June 9 in front of a full house during a graduation ceremony for Clarkston Adult and Alternative Education students.

Before the diplomas were awarded to the Class of 1988, the vice president of the Clarkston Board of Education offered an analogy.

"Graduates are like woodpeckers," said Carolyn Place. "They keep using their heads until the job is finished."

A big round of applause followed her comment. Then it was the students' turn to address the group.

Six of the 50 graduating students, including both Halls, spoke about their experiences during the commencement ceremony in the Kirchgessner Theatre at Clarkston High School.

Looking back on the last 15 months of work, Gene said the diploma he was soon to receive was well worth the effort.

"It both excited and challenged me," he said of his studies. "I thought that just having a piece of paper wouldn't make me any smarter, but it did."

While it was supposed to be the students' night to be honored, they did take time out to thank those who helped them achieve academic goals - especially the instructors.

"Where would we be without the teachers?" Hall asked. "I thank you for this opportunity."

His wife was equally pleased with her achievement.

"My dream in life has always been to graduate in cap and gown," she said. "Next to three children and marriage, it's the best thing that's happened to me."

DETAILS

June 13th, 1988

Dear Friends and Neighbors,
You are hereby invited to attend Wally Edgar Chevy-Buick's FIRST PRE-SILVERDOME BLOWOUT SALE!!! That's right!! Now you can save more than ever before on the new CHEVY, BUICK, or CHEVY TRUCK of your choice. Now, for the first time, you don't have to go to the Silverdome to get Silverdome savings. Right now, our inventory is huge and we'd rather sell'em cheap now so we don't have to pay someone to drive them to the Silverdome next week. In fact, we'll pass that savings on to you. Starting Monday, June 13th, EVERY new Buick in stock will be marked with the LOWEST possible prices. Plus EVERY Chevy car and truck will be marked down. This year, you don't have to fight the mobs of customers at the Silverdome. This year, you won't have to melt in the heat of the sizzlin' Silverdome blacktop on a blistering summer day.
THIS YEAR, YOU'VE GOT WALLY EDGAR!!!

Sincerely,
J. Kevin Yzquierdo

A MUSICAL INVOLVING dancing and songs from around the world wouldn't be complete without a salute to the North American continent. Miss Liberty was Melissa Wilmont, the Canadian Mounty was Scott Hanewacker and Uncle Sam was Austin Moening.

"SIAMESE IF YOU PLEASE" cat Karl Woodworth was one of the third-grade performers at Pine Knob in the production of "It's A Small World."

A TRAIN BOUND FOR FRANCE was engineered by J.R. Mitchie, with Adrienne Hein as the passenger car and Daniel Miller as the caboose. The Pine Knob Elementary School pupils were performing in "It's A Small World" June 7 at the school. The travelogue-type production was staged by the third-grade classes of Debbie Luczyn and Carolyn Young.
