Newcomers Millard, Vaara victorious

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Two newcomers were elected as trustees and an incumbent was not re-elected in the only contested race for the Independence Township Board Aug. 2, in which 17 percent of the registered voters cast ballots.

All Republicans; the new trustees are Frank Millard, with 948 votes, and Mel Leroy Vaara, with 929. Millard also holds a seat on the Clarkston Village Council, and Vaara is assistant superintendent of Clarkston Schools.

The votes are unofficial until the Oakland County Board of Canvassers certifies the count, said Rosemary Howey, deputy clerk in Independence Township.

Incumbent Daniel Travis received the most votes with 983, while incumbent William Vandermark received 927. Carol Balzarini, with 913, was not re-elected. George Viinarios received 414 votes.

The four-year fire millage renewal of 3 mills was approved with 1,312 yes votes and 433 no votes. Three mills are $3 for each $1,000 in assessed property valuation.

The 10-year renewal of one-half mill for safety paths, for which Clarkston village residents could not vote, received 949 yes votes and 650 no votes.

Running unopposed were Supervisor Frank Ronk, Clerk Richard Holman and Treasurer John Lutz, who received 1,207, 1,178 and 1,142 votes, respectively.

The election ran smoothly, said Howey, adding only one write-in candidate was entered — "Nobody."

Of about 14,500 registered voters, only 2,406 turned out, she said.

"It was a quiet election," said Howey. "We expected at least twice that. I think it was the fact that there were no candidates running against the three full-time officials. And people don't like to vote in the primary because they can't cross over."

After the votes were tallied Tuesday, Balzarini, who finished 70 votes behind top vote-getter Travis and only 14 votes behind Vandermark, said she was surprised with the results and did not expect a defeat.

"I feel rejected," she said. "I feel that four years of hard work doesn't mean much to anybody but me. ... I'm satisfied with the job I did. I guess the voters weren't."

Vaara, who had 25 political signs stolen and many others vandalized, said he was "ecstatic" about being elected.

"The first time around, I got beat, so I'm very happy,"

he said. "It makes you humble, losing the first time."

Vandermark was also pleased with his re-election but was surprised by the close vote and the low voter turnout, he said.

"I'm sorry to lose Carol Balzarini, but I supported (See INDEPENDENCE, Page 12)

Walters, Stiles win contested Springfield races

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Lois Stiles won the Republican nomination for Springfield Township treasurer and J. Calvin Walters earned the sole slot on the November ballot for clerk in two contested township primary election races on Tuesday.

The only other contested race was for park commission. Incumbents Robert Clark, E. Roger Bower and Betty Hull retained their positions, and newcomers Helen Vergin, Tim Holmes and William Leddy won park commission seats. There were seven candidates, all Republicans, running for six positions.

In other issues on the Aug. 2 ballot, the Springfield Township Library lost two millage requests, while renewal of one half of the millage for police protection (1 mill for 10 years) was approved by a vote of 503 to 202.

The library, which is currently funded through the township general fund, was requesting 1 mill for operating purposes. The request lost by 101 votes, with 303 for and 404 against. The other library request was for 1 mill for five years to build a new library. That request was turned down by a vote of 244 to 456, a margin of 212 votes.

Stiles, the current deputy treasurer, won with 373 votes over fellow Republican Ruth Ann Hines's 215 votes. Stiles will face Democrat Joe Gorka in the only contested township race of the November election. Gorka, who is currently chairman of the township planning commission, received 109 votes in the primary. Current township treasurer, Patricia Kramer, did not seek re-election for health reasons.

In the clerk's race, Walters, the incumbent, won with 346 votes over fellow Republican William Watkins, who garnered 161 votes.

In the park commission race, Hull was the top vote getter with 338 votes. Clark received 323 votes, Vergin 310, Bower 295, Holmes 287 and Leddy 283. Helen Craig lost a bid for the park commission with a close 261 votes.

In other races, four Republican and one Democratic candidate ran for township board: Democratic incumbent Glen Vermilye received 101 votes. Republican incumbent Charles Oaks received 399. Newcomers Margaret Bloom, Nancy Strole and Dennis Vallad received votes of 380, 347 and 328 respectively. All will reappear on the November ballot.

Current trustee William Whitley did not seek re-election, and trustee Hines ran for treasurer.

Current township supervisor, Republican Collin Walls, ran unopposed, garnering 454 votes.

Voting was light. Of 6,720 registered voters in the township, 880 or approximately 13 percent, cast votes in the primary. But Stiles expressed appreciation for the

Mausoleum entered at Lakeview Cemetery

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Sometime between Friday, July 15, and Thursday morning, July 21, the Nuernberg mausoleum at LINDA RICHARDSON, superintendent of Lakeview Cemetery in Independence Township, looks at the damage done to the Nuernberg mausoleum.

Lakeview Cemetery was broken into.

"It's pretty sick when someone would do a thing like this," said Linda Richardson, cemetery superintendent.

A person or persons broke a lock on the iron gate at the entrance of the mausoleum, which faces White Lake Road in Independence Township.

"It's an open area," Richardson said, adding that it would be hard to do this much damage without being noticed.

But she said the vandals could have closed the solid door behind the iron gate door and used flashlights.

Once inside, vandals removed marble markers and broke through a cement and brick wall to get at two coffins. One was untouched, but the coffin cover on the other was smashed. Satin and padding were ripped from the coffin.

"It almost looks like someone was trying to remove the body," she said.

But there were no signs of cult activity, and no evidence left behind other than a lot of spent firecrackers in the area.

"It might have just been kids having a 'kick,'" Richardson said. But she added that it must have been pre-planned. "They had to have some tools to break through the wall."

Corrections

The photographs of Springfield Township trustee candidate Margaret A. Bloom and Springfield treasurer candidate Ruth Ann Hines were incorrectly identified in last week's Clarkston News. The photo above Hines' name was Bloom and vice versa.

The address of Springfield Township Parks Commission candidate Bob Clark was incorrect in last week's Clarkston News. Clark resides on Dixie Highway.

when she drove by the mausoleum on Thursday morning. The coffin broken into was that of her grandmother, who died in 1926.

Richardson said the granddaughter told her there was a gold ring on her grandmother's finger, but it was not known if it was still there, or if jewelry was a motive.

Oakland County Sheriff's Deputy Tim Doyle investigated the incident. He said there was no evidence of who or why. But he added, "I'd sure like to find out who did it."

False alarm callers are caught

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Four teenage boys were responsible for a series of false fire alarms last week, said Chief Gar Wilson of the Independence Township Fire Department.

Wilson and Detective Steve Parker of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department talked to two of the boys and their parents. The other two boys were out of town, said Wilson.

Wilson was satisfied that the parents would take care of the situation. Otherwise, he would have pressed charges, which would have been serious because false fire alarms are a felony, he said.

Wilson has a way of figuring out who makes false alarms, but he didn't want to reveal the method in case others find a way to get around it, he said, adding one of the teens called in an alarm for the teen's own previous residence.

"I just added two and two together and ended up with the final tally, which happened to be where he lived," said Wilson.

Apparently, the boys, around age 12 to 15, used an emergency phone at the pool in Lancaster Apartments on Dixie Highway near Maybee Road. The phone automatically dials the fire department when the receiver is lifted.

Required by the health department, the phone would be useful in case of a drowning or other serious accident, said Wilson.

All week, the department received calls that would just hang up, or the caller would push the phone buttons to make noises.

Then, a false alarm came in for a house fire, which is dangerous.

"When we get a call, we're hurrying," he said. "We don't know they're false alarms."

Every time firefighters and on-call staff head out, there's a chance of an accident on the congested roads, he said.

And with all of the employees and equipment out, they would have a difficult and dangerous time helping in a legitimate emergency.

"You're going to tie up the phones, so if you had a real emergency, they wouldn't be able to get through because the lines are tied up," he said.

Plus, it's a waste of money, he said. Each run costs between $600 and $1,000.

"I don't think anybody needs this," he said.

Building without permit risky

When a case before the ZBA comes after the item is constructed, a solution can usually be found, said Chairperson John Dunlop.

"Generally, you can work them out," said Dunlop, a 12-year member of the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA).

Music, ice cream, vintage racers due at Clarkston's park

Automobiles from the past, Dixieland music and an old-fashioned ice cream social are the attractions Friday, Aug. 5, at the third annual free Concours in the Park.

Launching the Meadow Brook Historic Races Aug. 5-7, the concours is scheduled for 6 to 9 p.m. in the Clarkston Village Park off Depot Road.

With music provided by the Merside Minstrels, ice cream donated by Stroh's and soft drinks donated by the Metropolitan Detroit Coca Cola Bottlers, the proceeds are to benefit Clarkston SCAMP, a five-week summer day camp that serves about 200 children and young adults from northern Oakland County with special needs.

The family event, featuring nearly 50 exotic sports cars and vintage racers, is a preview of the Meadow Brook Concours d'Elegance, a competitive show held annually at Meadow Brook Hall, Rochester, in conjunction with the Meadow Brook Historic Races at Waterford Hills Race Track, Waterford Road, Independence Township.

Before the concours on Friday, a free race day is scheduled at Waterford Hills Race Track, when each race group is to run practice laps from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Actual races begin at 12:30 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 6, and run until 5:30 p.m. The Sunday, Aug. 7, time trials are 10 a.m. to noon, with more races until 5 p.m.

From the Waterford Hill races, 12 grand cars will be chosen by the Historic Races committee to be exhibited at the Meadow Brook Concours d'Elegance on Sunday, Aug. 7, in Rochester, where one car will be awarded the prize for best vintage race car.

Tickets to the Historic Races are $7 per day or $12 for a Saturday-Sunday pass. Combination tickets for the historic races and the Concours d'Elegance are $21 in advance.

Two-for-one tickets are available at area Porsche dealers.

ing Board of Appeals (ZBA).

But it's a lot easier if residents seek the necessary variances before they build a shed or barn or garage because, usually, the structure must be moved to meet ordinance requirements, Dunlop said.

He cited a recent incident where a builder constructed a garage 13 feet off the ordinance requirements, and the ZBA denied his request for an exception to the ordinance.

"He made a mistake," said Dunlop. "There was no hardship to grant a variance other than it was going to cost him money."

The builder had three options: Tear down the structure and rebuild it according to ordinance requirements, appeal the ZBA decision or go to court.

The township zoning ordinance sets standards for such things as lot sizes, building sizes and the distances between buildings and property lines.

The township requires builders to pull permits for construction of such items, so the township building inspectors can make sure the structures are safe and meet building standards.

The ZBA hears cases when construction does not meet ordinance requirements.

Many people don't know they have to pull permits, and many don't know whether their property and construction plans meet the ordinance, said Dunlop.

Often, a resident will build a shed as close to the property line as possible, which is usually against the ordinance, he said.

"We've been getting a lot of barns or sheds or second garages for storage," he said, adding the ZBA would let the building remain only if there's a hardship or if the resident has special circumstances, such as trees or wetlands or water that would be ruined because of construction.

"They should be prepared to say why they want to change the rules," Dunlop said.

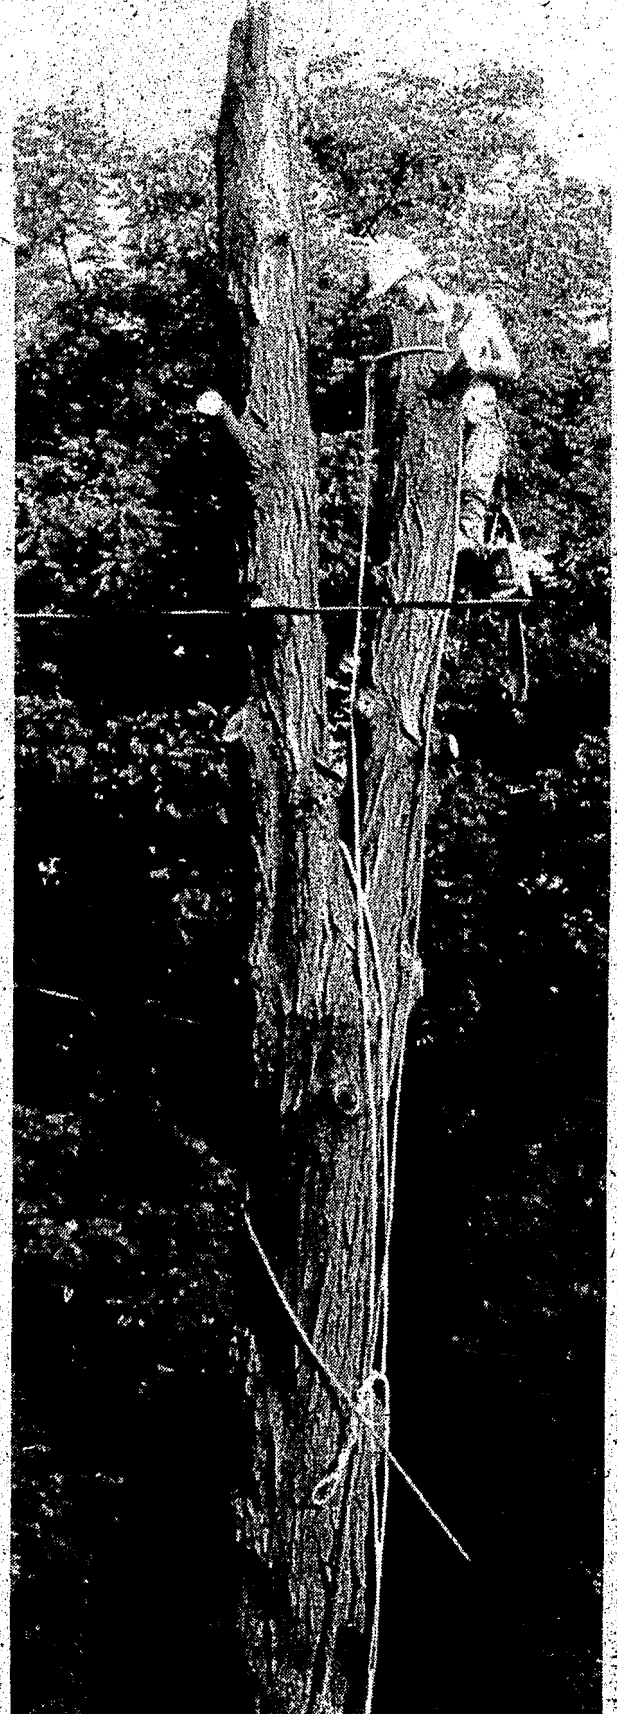

"The whole intent of the ordinance ... is to keep things reasonably under control. It's set up to control growth, ... and so you can't have a business put right in the middle of a subdivision or a factory in the middle of Deer Lake."

If a person lives on a lot that doesn't meet ordinance requirements or if he proposes to build a structure that wouldn't meet ordinance requirements, a visit to the ZBA is necessary.

"When anybody's in doubt, they should contact the building department," Dunlop said. "They're pretty helpful."

Construction plans, photographs of the building site and elevations are useful materials to bring to a ZBA meeting, he said, adding residents should apply to the ZBA early because there's usually a waiting list.

The ZBA will also hear arguments from neighbors who don't want a certain development or construction near them, and they, too, should bring evidence to support their position, he said.

Planners OK cardboard recycling on 10 acres

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A cardboard recycling facility received special permission to be located on an industrially zoned parcel on White Lake Road, but the conceptual site plan did not get approval July 27.

Instead, the Independence Township Planning Commission tabled the plan until environmental issues could be addressed.

A majority of the commissioners favored recycling and voted 5-2 to allow the land to be used for a facility.

Voting yes were Chairperson Brent Bair, Jo Fussman, Richard Oppmann, Dr. Bruce Mercado and Joseph Figa. Voting no were Carol Balzarini and Steve Secatch.

Recycling facilities need special land use permission in Independence Township.

On delaying the conceptual site plan, only Bair voted no, stating that the commission's concerns could be listed as conditions to the conceptual approval.

"I'm totally in favor of the concept of recycling," Bair said. "I'd like to see Independence Township do its share. If there's any area that's suitable, this is it. I think this is a workable project."

Issues of concern include adding landscaped screening between the facility and the adjoining residential property; limiting the scope of the operation in hours of operation, number of trucks per day, material allowed to be recycled and amount of outdoor storage; and devising a method to protect the nearby pond.

The owner would also be required to put up a performance bond, which would pay for damage to the site should the facility be operated incorrectly.

The proposal for a cardboard sorting facility by R.J. Hoffman Management Inc., which runs a Waterford-based trash pick-up business, involves 10 acres of a 32.76-acre parcel zoned heavy and limited industrial off White Lake Road near the railroad tracks.

The business does not need a recycling license from Oakland County because it's classified as a small processing plant, said planning consultant Richard Carlisle.

It's required to be registered as part of the Oakland County Solid Waste (OCSW) plan but will not be regulated by the OCSW unless the business sends out more than 200 yards of recyclable material a day or two tons of recyclable material a month.

Compacted corrugated cardboard and other packing materials from such customers as Meijer's, Hudson's and Felice's are to be brought to a 9,800-square-foot building and sorted by two employees, who would take out any metal straps or non-recyclable materials.

After sorting, the cardboard would be compacted again and shipped to a recycling plant. The metal would be sent to a recycling facility, or it could be sent with non-recyclable materials to a landfill.

Skyrocketing landfill costs prompted the proposal, said James Hoffman, one of three brothers who are partners in the business.

Only trash bins containing mostly packing materials would be brought to the sorting facility because it would not be worth the time to sort garbage, Hoffman said, adding that only his company would use the facility.

Addressing audience concerns that the site could turn into a landfill with undetected hazardous materials, similar to the fate of a Waterford Township landfill, Carlisle said the recycling facility could prevent hazardous materials from being deposited in the ground.

"If this were not sorted out, it would end up in a landfill," he said. "With a sorting process, it will be picked out of there. ... This could also serve as a monitoring facility."

Secatch voiced concerns over a nearby pond that could be contaminated if toxic materials spilled inside the facility. It isn't enough to eliminate drains from the building floor, he said, adding the floor should include walls, six-inches high at least, to contain liquids should any accidentally spill.

He also expressed worries over the future of the sorting plant.

"I don't have a problem with the county working on the site, but I don't want the county to come back and want it as an expanded solid waste site," he said.

Fussman said she had walked the site and complimented the developer for his "sensitivity to the issues."

"This earth is very, very small. ... Everything we do today affects us tomorrow," she said.

Figa concurred.

"Conceptually, the project appears very positive. Recycling is a good way to go," he said. "My concern is still with the water on the site. With the remote potential of something getting spilled, ... that stuff is going to flow right to that pond. ... All it takes is one spill, and it's there for a h-- of a long time."

Road paving hearings

Residents on Perry Lake Road and in Clarkston Estates have a chance to tell local officials what they think about the paving of their roads.

Public hearings are scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 9. Afterward, the Independence Township Board is to determine whether the paving is necessary.

Then, another public hearing will be scheduled to let residents voice their opinions on the costs, and the board will decide whether or not to continue with the project, which would require a special assessment district (comprised of property owners who would benefit from the road paving). The property owners would pay the construction costs.

The portion of Perry Lake Road considered for paving lies between I-75 and Cranberry Lake Road.

Clarkston Estates include the gravel roads between M-15 and Clarkston High School in the middle of the township.

Names in the News/James Hoffman

AGE: 33

FAMILY: Married to Dawn Reis Hoffman, a former Independence Township resident. Children: Jodie, 12, and Ben, 9. The family resides on Williams Lake Road, Waterford Township. James Hoffman's brother, Robert Hoffman, is Waterford Township supervisor.

OCCUPATION: Vice president of R.J. Hoffman Great American Disposal and Hoffman Nursery and Landscaping, Waterford Township. Other partners in the business are his brothers, Richard and Robert.

DEVELOPMENT: In the planning stages is a cardboard sorting facility on 10 of 32.76 acres on White Lake Road near Andersonville Road, Independence Township.

"It's an excellent location," said Hoffman.

The facility is one step of the recycling process and is the way of the future, he said. "I think it's a great idea. I've always thought that putting things in the ground is ridiculous. We're running out of space."

The facility should save money in landfill costs, which have risen 100 percent in a year, he said.

James and Dawn Hoffman are all smiles following planning commission approval of a special land use to allow recycling.

It's an iced tea kind of day...

They say you can never go home again, but our college student daughter made a statement early this summer worth repeating: "I really miss the beach."

And so, the neighborhood beach at the curve of the road has brought her home this summer between jobs. It's always good to see her, and to realize that something she took for granted during her growing up years is becoming more and more appreciated.

Sometimes she brings friends along - and they chuckle about "nothing to do," that age-old lament about Clarkston. The comment comes, of course, after a day of swimming, sometimes biking and the opportunity, at least, of sailing, boating and volleyball.

I think to really find nothing to do, they need to go somewhere else.

Regarding the cutting down of a tree, we were talking about the horrible noises made by chain saws and the machines that churn chunks of wood into chips.

We agreed there's something frightening about any loud machine. Give me a quiet computer any day, and I'm comfortable.

I would guess there are people who find the reverse true. And then there must be those who find comfort with both.

Don't you just love hearing about people with careers built on contrasts?

The sophisticates among us will talk about right brain-left brain, then there was the "welder by day, dancer by night" of "Flashdance" movie fame, but I'm interested in a friend's relative who teaches art and shop - and that sort of falls into the quiet-noisy machine train of thought.

The bottom line is that the art-shop teacher manages to make wonderfully decorated wooden creations all by herself.

We've certainly had plenty of six-step days this summer - six steps beyond the door of any air-conditioned building and you begin to melt.

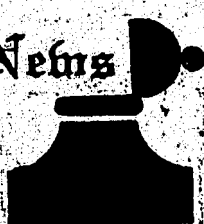

Honestly, the only time I remember trying to tolerate heat this bad was when I was pregnant in Virginia. Shortly before the July birth of our son, I can remember lying awake during sunrise time and watching the trees outside not move.

We had air conditioning there, of course, but the unit wasn't deluxe and the heat would get high enough to work against cooling efforts.

If this type of weather continues, air conditioners in homes are going to become essential. Meanwhile, I can be happy about at least one thing. I'm not pregnant.

The Roads We Travel

Traffic report

Brent
Bair

Development creates not only jobs and increased property tax revenues for the community, but also increased traffic on the roads.

In fact, although people tend to comment on the buildings going up and the lost open spaces, what seems to begin annoying them the most about the new development is that they now have to compete for the use of the roads with a lot of new traffic.

Our area continues to experience additional development, and you may wonder, "So how much has the traffic increased on the roads in our area in recent years?"

Comparable traffic counts are not available for all of the roads, but here are some counts I was able to locate.

The following provides the location of the count, the date the count was taken and the total volume of traffic going both ways on the respective road.

|-------------------------------------|-------|-------|
| Clarkston Rd. east of village limit | 8/77 | 3,510 |
| | 10/85 | 3,848 |
| Clintonville Rd. north of Mann Rd. | 8/77 | 4,750 |
| | 4/86 | 5,285 |
| Maybee Rd. east of Dixie Highway | 8/77 | 7,042 |
| | 4/86 | 8,076 |
| Maybee Dr. west of Clintonville Rd. | 8/77 | 3,100 |
| | 10/85 | 8,065 |
| Oakhill Rd. east of Sashabaw Rd. | 5/78 | 1,398 |
| | 5/86 | 2,099 |

|-------------------------------------|------|--------|
| Sashabaw Rd. north of Clarkston Rd. | 8/77 | 5,545 |
| | 5/87 | 11,822 |
| Sashabaw Rd. south of Waldon Rd. | 8/77 | 11,928 |
| | 4/86 | 15,500 |
| Dixie Highway south of Maybee Rd. | 1975 | 32,900 |
| | 1986 | 36,600 |
| M-15 south of the village limit | 1975 | 12,600 |
| | 1986 | 18,100 |
| Ortonville Rd. north of I-75 | 1975 | 10,200 |
| | 1986 | 17,500 |

No comparable counts were readily available for I-75. Comparable intersection counts are also difficult to come up with. Here is one example that you might find of interest.

| | | |
|----------------------------------|-------|--------|
| Sashabaw and Maybee intersection | 7/84 | 23,115 |
| | 10/87 | 27,415 |

The above represents almost a 20 percent increase in traffic for that intersection in only three years. With almost 300 apartments going in behind Food Town at that intersection, how do you suppose those numbers will change in the next three years?

Is it possible to deal with all this additional traffic? Sure, but a lot of tough decisions will need to be made. I'll discuss this in future columns.

Brent Bair is chairman of the Independence Township Planning Commission.

Jim's Jottings

For the past half dozen years the Michigan Press Association has had its summer convention at the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island.

More complaints are heard about The Island from fellow newspaper people than any other place they've attended, but the schedule continues.

The reason is simple. More people go to The Island for the MPA meeting than any other summer resort. Bay Valley was a complete flop as a draw, Shanty Creek likewise, Boyne was little better. So, we go back year after year.

And, we complain... about the high cost ($631 for two days for Hazel and I at the Grand), about the lousy luggage delivery (5 hours for some from dock to hotel), and arrogant waiters.

The first two complaints are still valid, but there's been a change in attitude amongst the Jamaican waiters. They smile, they talk, they serve, just like waiters do when working for tips. Only the 18 percent gratuity added to everything at the hotel passes through other hands first. Sort of like our taxes going through Lansing and being returned to the community.

By the way, it still costs $3 to walk near or in the Grand Hotel if you're not staying or eating there. Buffet lunch is $17.50. Lunch is not included in the overnight fee, just breakfast and dinner.

There's always a cocktail party for the press at one end of the "longest hotel porch in the world". The difference this year was the need for a guard to keep the sea gulls from the shrimp. They couldn't have been after those little sandwiches.

Those scavengers are a real pest, and they sure get your attention as the dive bomb the hors d'oeuvre table. Makes you double check the dip.

I didn't start this column to write about The Grand Hotel, or even The Island. I want to tell you about the moonlight catamaran ride the press took, courtesy Manistique Paper Company from the city of the same name.

Our hosts were Leif Christiansen and Al Schuster. They hired Arnold Line to carry this precious freight on their new "14 minutes Mackinac City to The Island" vessel.

We left the dock at 9:50 p.m. and headed west full speed. They probably need the speed for smoothness, and it was very smooth. But it was the bridge and moon that made the trip memorable.

The crescent moon was low in the east as we went under Big Mac. That scene of the lighted bridge with the moon showing through the bridge cables and stantions like it was moving behind a picket fence was absolutely beautiful.

It was one of the times we stopped to smell the roses along the way, and the scent was delightful.

Letter to Editor

Praise for reporter

Once again as I pick up The Clarkston News and read the precise, factual but compassionate reporting of Pat Young (on the M-15 pileup this week) I realize just how great she is at her job.

She not only is as accurate as one can be under the circumstances, but she really cares that it is right and as comprehensive as possible - not only that but the way she tells it makes it always interesting.

The interview she did with us (printed July 13) really proved that she is a master of taking a jumble and making it quite coherent. We were so pleased - and yes, positively amazed at what she gleaned and presented so concisely.

She is really a rare find - so talented and yet such a warm and friendly human being that obviously enjoys what she is doing.

We are really impressed and very grateful to have Pat Young and The Clarkston News in our area.

We feel quite fortunate that this was the choice location for us when we moved here from the Carolinas last fall. You all have really made a difference in making this a special place to live. Many thanks!

Do you think Jesse Jackson should play a role in government if Michael Dukakis wins the November election?

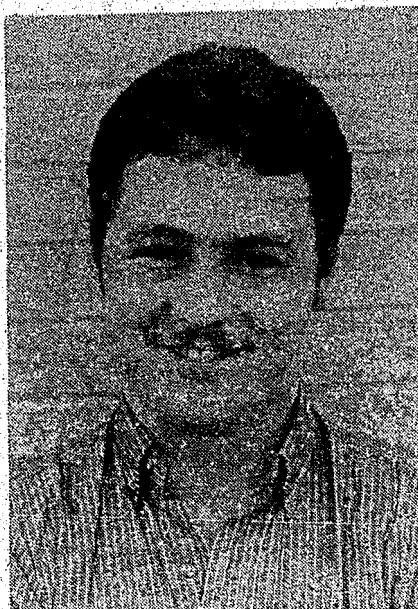

"I haven't been paying attention to the polls recently, but I think it would be quite an experience for him. I think that he might be able to play a part."

"I guess he should. He has been so important to the party. I don't feel he's qualified to be president or vice president because he never held office. He has been so instrumental, bringing people into the (Democratic) party."

"Yes, I do. I like a lot of Jesse Jackson's views. I supported him when he went to Libya and got our pilot out of there. I would have liked him as a vice president, but obviously the Democratic Party didn't agree."

'If it Fitz ...'

Senseless crusade

Jim Fitzgerald

My wife is among the many opposed to casino gambling in Detroit. She has been to Las Vegas and Atlantic City, and was dismayed by the sight of people betting money for greed and excitement, rather than spending it on food for the hungry or shelter for the homeless.

I often ask how she feels when she goes shopping and sees the lines of people waiting to bet money on the greed and excitement sparked by the state lottery. Many of those bettors should spend the money on their own food and shelter.

But she doesn't buy my hypocrisy-discrimination argument. I say it's discrimination for the government to approve - encourage! - gambling by horse bettors and lottery players, while at the same time saying it's against the law for slot machine and blackjack players to have the same sort of fun. And it's monumentally hypocritical to say casino gambling is immoral, but betting on the lottery and horses isn't.

Casino opponents say "casinos are different" because they attract crime and, besides, they "won't save the city."

Crime is overblown

No sale. How much did government-controlled horse and lottery betting increase crime? Why should government-controlled casinos increase it any more? With honest, tight law enforcement, the only increase would be in street crime, in direct proportion to the increase in tourists attracted by casinos.

And the "won't save the city" government is silly, a straw man set up for easy knockdown by casino opponents. Casinos wouldn't make Detroit prosperous. They would provide some low-paying - but surely needed - jobs and some added tax revenue. They would increase tourism and convention trade. They'd help a little, but Detroit needs a hell of a lot more than casinos. It needs businesses and industries that provide more than fast-food jobs. Anyone with half a brain knows that.

As for my moral-hypocrites argument, I realize it doesn't fit all casino opponents. Some of them are also opposed to horse betting and the lottery, they're just not as loud about it. But, then again, there is the group of black Detroit ministers who oppose casinos but are urging their flocks to vote against a proposal that would forbid casino gambling in Detroit if it's approved for the rest of the state.

The ministers' reasoning is that although casino gambling is immoral, it would be racial discrimination if Detroit couldn't have it, and other Michigan cities could. That's morality with geographical limitations, and it's incredible.

Maybe morality is to blame

What about casinos attracting organized crime? There are those who believe "Morality Sustains Organized Crime." That was the headline on a 1972 column by Sydney Harris, the late nationally syndicated columnist whose clear-thinking logic was popular with Free Press readers for many years. Harris wrote:

"It is our morality - or what we construe as morality, in the narrow Puritan tradition - that indicts gambling as an 'immoral' activity. And it is Puritan ethos that demands the immoral be made illegal."

"Because gambling is largely illegal in the U.S., this multibillion-dollar activity has fallen into the hands of illegal entrepreneurs. And gambling money is the 'grub-stake' these men use - the investment capital, as it were - to pry their way into dozens of other lucrative rackets and enterprises. Organized crime can flourish only as long as organized moralism keeps it rich."

Think about what Harris said the next time you make an illegal bet on football.

Casino gambling will never come to Detroit; the Puritan opposition is too large. Even Mayor Coleman Young seems to be giving up on the proposal. One story is he'll eventually settle for gambling on jai alai games. Why not? Most bettors know as much about playing jai alai as they do about riding racehorses. And members of the International Jai Alai Players Association recently voted to join the UAW.

Rezoning plan incites protest

Against the owner's wishes, a 26,850-square-foot parcel near the intersection of Sashabaw and Maybee roads will be recommended for rezoning to the Independence Township Board.

In a 4-3 vote July 28, the township planning commission approved the recommendation for changing the site south of Maybee Road and east of Sashabaw Road from highway commercial to local commercial zoning. The township board has the final say.

The rezoning was proposed by the planning commission following approval of the township's master plan that included proposed zoning changes for property surrounding the busy intersection.

Voting in favor of the rezoning were Chairperson Brent Bair, Carol Balzarini, Joseph Figa and Richard Oppmann. Casting no votes were Jo Fussman, Steve Secatch and Bruce Mercado.

Michael Clark, representing owner Nancy Jonna, plans to protest to the township board when it considers the rezoning, he said, after the meeting.

At a previous meeting, Clark said rezoning the property would decrease its value because the owners planned to use it for a restaurant, which would not be allowed under local commercial zoning.

On July 28, planning consultant Richard Carlisle read a letter from township assessor David Kramer, who wrote that restricting the use would prohibit the highest and best use of the land, and the potential value could be lost.

"I can appreciate what the planning commission is trying to do (with this intersection), ... but to take a perfectly legal parcel of (highway commercial) and rezone it to (local commercial) is just not feasible," said Clark. "It would be, in essence, confiscating the property."

Other parcels at the busy intersection were recommended for rezoning because they didn't conform to the township ordinance as zoned. The Jonna parcel meets all requirements, Clark said.

Secatch expressed the views of the commissioners voting against rezoning the parcel.

"That parcel is landlocked, surrounded by commercial. It doesn't abut residential. ... I have no problem with it," he said.

Other commissioners voiced support for local commercial zoning because it would allow less intensive retail business and would generate less traffic.

Grant receives company honor

Bud Grant, a State Farm Insurance Co. agent in the Clarkston area, has been named to the Legion of Honor, one of the firm's most distinguished accomplishments.

Road commission names Bair deputy manager

Moving from his position as a department manager, Brent O. Bair was promoted Aug. 1 to deputy managing director of the Oakland County Road Commission, an executive position.

"I'm very excited - lots of new challenges, new responsibilities, moving up. ... It's a good move," said Bair, who resides in Independence Township with his wife, Linda.

Bair also serves as a member of the zoning board of appeals and as chairperson of the planning commission in Independence Township.

His new responsibilities include the implementation of the road commission's strategic plan and the integration of the plan in the operation activities of the commission.

The plan calls for improvements to the road system and employee safety, road system mobility, communication with local units of government and the general public, employee relations and the development of human resources.

Bair joined the road commission in 1977 as transportation planning coordinator and began to develop the agency's risk management program.

In 1983, he became director of the department of planning and development, responsible for systems planning, data processing, risk management and environmental concerns.

He holds a bachelor's degree in mathematical sciences and a master's degree in engineering from the University of Iowa, Iowa City, and is a dissertation away from his Ph.D., also from U-I.

For now, Bair plans to continue his township activities and writing a column, "The Roads We Travel," for The Clarkston News.

In his spare time, he is taking scuba diving lessons in preparation for a trip to the Philippines in October to visit his brother.

His vacated position of director of planning and development will be filled by James C. Barbaresso, who was a student in a graduate level transportation planning class Bair taught at the University of Iowa.

Present deputy managing director William J. Fognini plans to retire next year, at which time Bair would be the only deputy managing director.

Printing via telephone

An object of convenience - and curiosity - has been added to American Speedy Printing of Clarkston at 5926 M-15.

A FAX machine has been on the premises for about three weeks now, and many people ask what the large machine is for, said Blaine Aldrich, co-owner of the business.

The machine allows anyone else with a FAX to phone in precise printing orders.

"It's just another service, one more added convenience to get people in my front door," says Aldrich.

TOURING THE TOWN: Twenty visitors from the Friedenskirche (Peace Church) in Bieberach, West Germany, and members of their Calvary Lutheran Church host families toured downtown Clarkston Thursday morning with the help of guides from the Clarkston Community Historical Society. The day's activities also included a tour of Cook's Farm Dairy in Brandon Township and of Meadow Brook

Hall in Rochester plus a concert at Meadow Brook Music Theatre that evening. Members of the churches have been exchanging visits since 1984 due to the friendship of their pastors, who met in theology school, the Rev. Robert Walters from Calvary Lutheran in Independence Township and the Rev. Eberhard Gohner from Friedenskirche. (Photo by Kathy Greenfield)

Pledge to start off school board meeting

Residents attending the Aug. 8 Clarkston Board of Education meeting may notice something new.

The meeting, which begins at 7:30 p.m. in the administration building, 6389 Clarkston Rd., will open with the Pledge of Allegiance.

"I've added it to the board meetings to promote patriotism in the schools," says school district Superintendent Gary Haner.

Agenda items include the introduction of the new communications coordinator (replacing Barbara Banker who left the district in June to move to the Chicago area) and a report from the school communications committee on activities.

Also on the agenda is a building audit report from Charles Sherman and Associates, architects, and approval of roofing bids for repairs to some of the district buildings. This is the first item initiated following approval of the $1.5 million bond issue for school repairs.

Other agenda items include: approval of an easement for a safety path over high school property, an increase of the daily substitute teacher rate, parent-student handbooks and the recall of a teacher to the Clarkston school district.

In closed session, the board will discuss negotiations for the sale of district property.

Knight's good deed goes awry

When Bernie Heike showed up to donate money to SCAMP on Friday, July 28, he had no idea his activities would be investigated by the police.

The Grand Knight of the Ortonville Knights of Columbus Council 6824 had planned to give SCAMP Executive Coordinator Bunny Newmarch a check for over $1,000 for the summer camp serving children with special needs.

But when the Groveland Township resident went inside the building, no one was there.

"I gave a little call, but nobody answered," said Heike.

So he went outside and sat around for a while, waiting for Newmarch. Then, he thought he might be at the wrong building, so he drove around the Clarkston High School area and returned when he didn't see anything.

He went back to the building, but was puzzled when he found the door locked. Next, he sat down on some flower boxes to wait again, and an Oakland County Sheriff's deputy drove by.

"He looked at me. I looked at him. 'Boy,' I thought. 'He's looking at me kind of funny,'" said Heike.

The deputy stopped and said he was investigating a silent alarm in the special services building.

"I told him it was probably me," said Heike. "He said, 'I'm going to have to detain you.'"

Which he did, until a custodian could make sure nothing was stolen and until the deputy could check Heike's police record (which was clear).

Now that it's in the past, Heike can laugh about it.

"It's kind of comical, really. It gives you a funny feeling, everybody looking at you like you did something," he said. "It was really kind of cute."

He and Newmarch still haven't met to complete the Knights of Columbus donation, but they have talked about the communication error.

"I felt really bad about it," said Newmarch. "I thought he was coming on Friday. I waited (a half hour). I feel fortunate that he has a sense of humor about it, now that it's all over."

FLIP-FLOPS, placed at just the right angle with the feet and legs, give the proper support necessary for 6 1/2-year-old Joseph Oberlee of Springfield Township to cut his construction paper project July 21. Arts and crafts are some of the activities during Independence Township Day Camp held at Independence Oaks each summer.

Try out for opening play

Open auditions are scheduled Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 8 and 9, for the Clarkston Village Players' season opener, "God's Favorite" by Neil Simon.

The eight roles are: Joe Benjamin, late 50s, strong character, businessman, devout, modern-day Job; Ben and Sarah, 24-year-old twins with a combined IQ of 160; Rose Benjamin, early 50s, wears tons of jewelry, dresses expensively, devoted to family; Mady and Morris, middle-aged domestics, could be rural or ethnic types, loyal to Benjamins; David, the Benjamins' older son, playboy, rebelling against father's materialism and religiosity; and Sidney Lipton, unimpressive looking, overly expressive voice and actions, a Brooklyn messenger from God.

The auditions will run from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Depot Theatre, 4861 White Lake Rd., Independence Township. Director is Verne Vackaro. For further information, call 666-3094.

The play is scheduled to appear on stage Sept. 30 and Oct. 1, 7, 8, 14 and 15.

Summer foods can bring extra energy

Warmer weather brings lots of good things. But it can also bring loss of energy - and loss of appetite which robs you of needed nourishment. Nibbling a few lettuce leaves won't do the trick and an ice cream cone, loaded with sugar and fat, gives you a short-lived "high" followed by a deep dip.

This year, on days when you feel your "get up and go" got up and went, take a tip from the experts and athletes - enjoy a high-carbohydrate treat: whole grain breads and crackers, fiber-rich cereals and, of course, any kind of pasta are all excellent choices. Carbo-loaded foods don't have to be heavy and provide a satisfying boost that lasts. Since it's a known fact they work best in combination with moderate amounts of quality protein, one perfect partner is versatile Norwegian Jarlsberg cheese - made from part-skim milk as a nutritional bonus.

Pale golden and delicate with smooth texture - creamy consistency when melted - America's favorite imported cheese comes ready to use so you don't have to pre-cook - another energy plus. It's also wonderfully adaptable - for sandwiches, sauces, casserole toppings (the microwave keeps your cool) and in lots of sure to be popular lighter pasta dishes - primavera style with fresh, crisp vegetables is one delicious idea.

Horses, burros up for adoption

Question: Is it true anyone can adopt a wild horse or burro from out West?

Answer: Yes! The U.S. Department of the Interior Bureau of Land Management puts up wild horses and burros for adoption at all times of the year. These horses and burros are from herds on public lands in the West. If the herd becomes too large for the area on which it grazes, the Bureau takes the excess animals and puts them up for "adoption". That way, the entire wild herd has enough food and space to roam.

Here's what the cowboys of today can expect when they adopt a wild horse or burro:

- The animals roam on public lands in the West, so they aren't accustomed to people. You can share in the excitement of taming a wild horse much in the same way the cowboys did in the days of the Wild West. However, you shouldn't think of yourself as a bronco buster. With kindness, patience and gentleness, these horses can be tamed and trained just as their domestic counterparts.

- An individual must be at least 18 years of age and have adequate facilities and means of transportation to provide humane treatment for a wild horse or burro.

- Parents or legal guardians may adopt a wild horse or burro and allow children to assist in caring and training the animal. Many young people use these animals for 4-H projects.

- An adoption fee of $125 per horse or $75 per burro is charged at the adoption center. You will be responsible for the cost of transporting the animal and for all costs involved in its upkeep, including veterinarian charges.

- Every excess wild horse or burro offered for adoption has been examined to insure its soundness and good health. The horses vary in size and color. The animals may be descendants of the horses and burros that belonged to the pioneers, cavalry, prospectors or even Spanish Conquistadors. Taking one of these animals into your care is a wonderful way to share in the spirit of America's rich history.

For a free brochure with more information on how you can adopt one of these living symbols of the American pioneer spirit, write: Department of the Interior, Bureau of Land Management, Adopt-A-Horse-Or-Burro, Dept. A., 18th and C St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20240 or call: 202-343-5717.

Pets for seniors

For the second year, the Michigan Humane Society is joining a national campaign to match area senior citizens with homeless shelter pets. The program is a segment of the Purina Pets for People Program, and reduces the number of homeless pets in the shelter.

Sponsored by the Ralston Purina Company, the program enables qualifying seniors to adopt a dog or cat from their local shelter completely free of charge. The program covers adoption fees and initial veterinary care, including inoculations and spaying or neutering. The senior citizen will also receive a starter kit, including a leash, collar, food and water bowls and a beginning supply of suitable pet food.

Studies have indicated that pets can provide health benefits, including companionship and a sense of security and protection. Pets are also a source of entertainment and affection for the senior citizen.

For further information, write the Michigan Humane Society, 7401 Chrysler Drive, Detroit, MI, 48211.

Help for small business

A workshop for small-business owners will be presented by the Pontiac Small Business Development Center September 16 in Pontiac.

The program is described as a hands-on workshop designed for growth-oriented, non-service companies. It will provide the "success tools" needed to take a small company through the stages from concept, to product, to becoming internationally competitive.

The conference will run from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Consumers Power Building, 1030 Featherstone, Pontiac. To register or for further information, call Dorothy Heyart at 333-2990.

Bagpiper brings touch of Scotland to Springfield

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Don Liddie walked out of the tiny, historic building that houses the Springfield Township Library, carefully opened a wooden box that contained his musical instrument, and promptly took the children seated on the shady grass to another land across the Atlantic Ocean.

Liddie, a first generation American from a family of Scots, is a bagpiper.

He demonstrated the art of making music on Scotland's national instrument to the group of interested children participating in the library's summer reading program.

The Rose Township resident did not learn the art until 1967 when a fellow Scotsman and bagpiper, the late Robert Watson of Springfield Township, got him interested and he began taking lessons. He is currently a member of the Flint Scottish Pipe Band.

Watson's widow, Mary, is president of the Springfield Township Library Board, and because of Mary, Liddie performed for the children on the afternoon of July 28.

"The theme for the summer reading program this year is countries around the world," said library Director Cathy Phillips. "I knew Mary's husband played the bagpipes, so I asked her if she could think of anyone who might perform for the children."

Liddie obliged with a half-hour demonstration, explaining how the bagpipe works, performing a few Scottish melodies, and even dressing in the traditional Scottish garb.

The familiar kilt is a "cold weather variation of the toga," Liddie said. The long plaid piece of wool - Scottish wool, of course - can also be used as a jacket and as a blanket at night. The tartan, or plaid design of the kilt, represents the family, and each Scottish family's tartan is different. Liddie comes from the McGregor family.

Liddie also wore the traditional sporran - that's Gaelic for purse. It is a "carry-all" worn with the kilt, since the kilt has no pockets for keys and wallet.

For cooler performances, parades and evening events, there is much more to the traditional bagpiper outfit, he said. And for very dressy events, there is a tuxedo-like jacket. There is also a full military outfit.

The bagpipe was first an instrument of war, rallying troops and leading soldiers into battle. British military bands today still have bagpipers, but the purpose is peaceful. The bagpipe has long since evolved into an instrument for entertainment.

The bagpipe, Liddie told the children, is made of African blackwood for the pipes and leather, or hide, for the bag. His is made of elk hide. All bagpipes are crafted in Scotland and range in price from $500 to $2,500.

The bagpipe is a reed instrument, with four reeds, three drone reeds and a fourth, the chanter, which plays the melody, much like a recorder. The reeds in each pipe are made of split cane:

To play the instrument, the bagpiper blows air into the bag through yet another pipe, the blow stick.

The Scottish bagpipe has nine notes, which is more than enough to make haunting music, as Liddie aptly demonstrated for the children. Most are tuned by ear, and, while bagpipers must learn to read music to learn to play, they must memorize the music in order to perform.

Liddie showed the youngsters a smaller, recorder-type instrument used to first learn to play the difficult bagpipe. It does not require the airbag and does not disturb the neighbors while you practice, he said with a grin.

It takes quite a while to learn to play the bagpipe, Liddie said, and lots of air to get it started and first fill the bag.

"But then, it's just a matter of maintaining pressure," he said. "It's more just getting used to it - but it helps to have a lot of air."

SPRINGFIELD TOWNSHIP LIBRARY summer reading program participants Jason and Tricia Greve (in background - Jenea Nickson) listen to a bagpipe demonstration.

Schools' Latchkey covers all seasons

Children can still sign up for Summer Latchkey through Aug. 19, but the Latchkey program is also closely connected to a sign of the coming season.

Registrations are now being taken for the winter program, also sponsored by the Community Education Department of Clarkston Community Schools.

The summer program works in conjunction with the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department to provide care for kindergarten through fifth-graders from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Latchkey provides care from 7 to 10 a.m. and from 4 to 6 p.m. During the mid-day hours, participants attend day camp at Independence Oaks or playground at Pine Knob Elementary or Clarkston Elementary, programs overseen by parks and recreation.

During the school year, the Latchkey program offers "Care With a Flair" before and after school in every elementary building as well care for kindergartners during the half-day they aren't in school. Registrations are being accepted at the Clarkston Learning Center, 5275 Maybee, Independence Township.

For more information on Latchkey, call 674-3141; and for more information on the parks and recreation playground or day camp, call 625-8223.

T-ball team walks away with championship

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Mothers and fathers talked quietly on the sidelines and sometimes erupted with cheers, while brothers and sisters played on the playground equipment.

But on field No. 4 behind Clarkston Elementary, boys, 4 feet high, scurried-around the bases, shagged baseballs and drank cool water or soft drinks, lugged to the game by parents.

For Delmar Studios, the 12th and final game was followed by laurels due to an undefeated T-ball team of 6-, 7-, and 8-year-olds.

After beating EDS, 20-8, July 27, a picnic followed at Paul Rachel's house, where players also received first-place trophies from the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

But before the celebration, it was business as usual for the team coached by Sandy Knake.

"I told them at our first practice that I didn't care if we won or lost all of our games. We just tried to learn the rules."

Coach Sandy Knake

Outfielders mechanically chattered, "Hey, batter, batter, batter. Hey, batter, batter, batter."

The second baseman focused his attention on the ground beneath his feet, and the catcher frowned at his mother, who was trying to photograph him between pitches.

When right fielder Nick Upchurch caught a fly ball whacked by a high-power EDS batter, he stared in

KEEPING HIS EYE on the ball, Chad McCormick swings away at the baseball on the astonishment.

Home run hitters for Delmar Studios were Kyle Nabozny with three, Eric Knake and Marc Wisniewski with two apiece and Paul Rachel with one.

Kyle, 8, who usually hits one or two home runs a game, shared his secrets for hitting home runs off a rubber tee.

"I just hit it lightly," he said, adding that his strategy changes if he's batting against a tough team.

"If it's a good team, I'll just hit it, and I'll just get a rubber tee. Although he ran fast, EDS threw him out at first.

base hit," he said.

He doesn't get nervous in the batter's box - he just hits the ball, he said, remembering one other key to strong hitting.

"I keep my eye on the ball," he said.

The final game against EDS was typical of the entire season, said Coach Knake. Delmar Studios merced all but one team - Morgan's Service, coached by Larry Hess.

With a 10-run limit per inning, a mercy occurs when a team scores so many runs that the other team can't catch up in the remaining innings.

"Our kids have learned to work together," said Knake. "There aren't any ball hogs. They've been really good together on defense."

Knake has five years of coaching experience, but this is the first year she's coached Delmar Studios.

She and her assistant, Waterford Kettering student Tim Hodge, started the season with one goal - to teach the basics of baseball.

"I told them at our first practice that I didn't care if we won or lost all of our games," Knake said. "We just tried to learn the rules."

They also stressed good sportsmanship, and Knake has never heard derogatory remarks about the other team from her players.

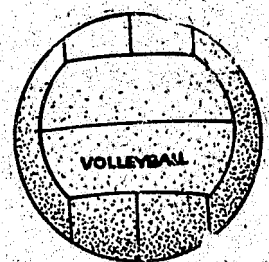

"I feel good that they've honored me in that aspect," she said.

Time out

Can fame be far off?

Peter Auchter

The jolly fat man of Michigan Daily 3 Lotto commercial fame and I have something in common.

In case you're puzzled, he's the one who repeatedly sees or hears the number 104 throughout his day (at the office, on the street, in the theater) and finally decides to play his so-called "hunch" in an effort to win a bunch of money.

Well, the same sort of thing has happened to me. Only I won't win money from my hunch as easily as the fat guy would.

During the last few weeks I've been surrounded by golfing and golfers. There was the Oakland County Junior Golf Tournament, many calls to report hole-in-one shots on area courses, magazine articles and a rerun of the classic movie "Caddyshack."

Finally it hit me like a flash of lightning. A higher being was calling me to the lush green courses that abound around this Clarkston town.

I just have to learn how to play the game, then my life will finally be complete, wholesome and happy.

A few short years ago, I was a total waste case in the sporting realm. I got winded playing pingpong. Today, I'm a new man.

Those days are gone forever. I've been playing basketball, tennis or just plain exercising whenever I get a free moment from work ... a scaled-down version of the famous Rocky Balboa story if I ever heard one.

I'm even a pretty good bocce ball player, if I do say so myself. I'm sure my employer at the News will reluctantly agree, since I led my team to victory at the last company party.

Now I'm ready to try a new sport. A more refined and orderly activity where men get to be men. I can feel myself maturing already.

I want to join the ranks of guys who escape from their wives once a week, even though I don't have a wife. I want to dress in mix-and-match clothing and spend a couple of hours whacking a little white dimpled ball.

I want to belong to a country club. I want a caddy. I want to be a superstar.

Golfing sounds like something only the rich and famous should be allowed to enjoy. Can an interview with Robin Leach be far off once I get started?

But first, there is a lot of work to be done. I have to gauge just how bad or, better yet, how good I am. Let's keep things positive, folks.

A day at the driving range should either boost my confidence and allow me to succeed, or burst my bubble of youthful exuberance.

Stay tuned for details of my first golf outing in a future edition of The Clarkston News.

Oh, one more thing before I go. Does anybody have any clubs I could borrow?

First ace recorded

The membership of the hole-in-one club at Pine Knob Golf Course keeps on growing.

Tom Muir of Royal Oak is the latest golfer to ace a hole at the Independence Township course this summer when he made the shot of his life July 24. With two witnesses to document the unusual event, he aced the 11th hole with a driving iron.

After sinking his first hole-in-one, he finished out the day with a score of 100 for 18 holes.

Opinion of Bill Myers

Long term or short, tax-frees are best

William A. Myers is a retired Lapeer County Editor and investments manager from Boca Raton, Fla.

A northern Michigan friend, whom I'll call Harry - because that's the only name he has - sent me a clipping from the Detroit Free Press, headed: Entering Tax-Exempt Market May Not Be Much Help to Your Wallet.

The writer was Jane Bryant Quinn, whose column is syndicated. She said "... Much of the tax-exempt market isn't the golden goose it used to be. Shortest bonds have been hard-hit, yielding 4.4 percent vs. 6.6 percent for taxable funds."

Then Goldman Sachs was quoted: "Municipals make sense only in maturities longer than five years."

Well, I wrote a column on long vs. short bonds a while ago and won't rehash that, but our own figures show that longer, higher-rate bonds do better for you. The bond salesmen at Goldman Sachs, as with other brokers, would prefer to sell short bonds, because they can sell them more often. You've got a built-in customer when the short bond matures.

There are exceptions to the fast-buck brokers. John Grant of Thomson McKinnon is one of them. He recently sold me some Virginia Housing Development Authority issues which don't mature until 2028. Then John will be 99 years old and his main concern will be getting a mention on the "Today" show.

Incidentally, these bonds have an AA rating and yield 8.40 percent. Compare those with some corporate bonds of equal quality - IBM for instance. IBM will yield 9.4 percent - before tax. Skim of 28 percent income tax from that and you have a 6.76 percent left.

I'm just a simple country boy, but 8.4 percent looks better to me than 6.76 percent.

Quinn says that buying longer-term bonds carries a risk. "If interest rates keep rising, the value of your bond will drop," she says.

True, except that they have not kept rising. Look at the graph on the next-to-last page in section 1 of the Wall Street Journal. Rates now are about where they were a year ago. They are halfway between the highs and lows of 1986, 1987 and 1988.

The other side of Quinn's iffy statement is that if rates drop, the value of your bonds goes up.

Rates are considerably lower than they were five years ago. In fact, looking over an account for an example, here's a fellow who bought some Wayne County (Mich.) bonds in 1984 for $69,000 and sold them 18 months later for $85,000. That was because interest rates went from 13 percent down to 9 percent.

The road runs both ways.

Quinn says that the April Supreme Court decision declaring that Congress has the right to tax municipal bonds is "another tax hanging over the tax-exempt market."

Well, bond prices are a little higher now than when the decision came out. Among other things, any change in the law would probably not affect bonds now in the market.

And it's indeed doubtful whether Congress is going to monkey with the taxability of issues yet to come out. They'd have every state, city, county and school district on their necks. To take away the tax exemption would cost the units of governments at least 2 percent more to borrow, and that's a fourth more. A city now selling bonds at 8 percent would have to pay 10 percent - maybe more - if their bonds were taxable.

Funny how this matter of long maturity bothers some investors. Sure, a long bond will vary more, both up and down, as interest rates change. But at maturity, it's still going to pay 100 cents on the dollars. More than you can say for stocks.

When will you IBM or General Motors stock mature? I ask stock-buyers. A year ago, IBM hit 175, then it dropped to 104. Now it's around 125. The yield is 3.9 percent before tax; after tax, 2.8 percent. Big deal.

My Virginia Housings bring me in 8.4 percent - exactly three times as much as IBM dividends. The defense rests.

Want to spur your child to higher academic achievement? How about the promise of a college education in his or her future?

That dream became reality Aug. 1 as the State of Michigan began taking applications for the nation's first-ever guaranteed tuition program.

The Michigan Educational Trust will allow parents to pay now for their child's college tuition, get a tax deduction for that payment, and be assured that the money will cover tuition and fees when their child is ready for college.

The program was put forth by Michigan Gov. James Blanchard in his 1986 "State of the State" speech. In December of that year he signed the bill into law. To complete the process, the Internal Revenue Service ruled recently that parents may claim a tax deduction, similar to an IRA, in the year the contribution is made. Income tax will not have to be paid on the trust fund until money is withdrawn.

Applications will be accepted from August 1-5 at Treasury Department offices; the nearest one is in Pontiac at 100 N. Saginaw (phone 335-6102). Applications received during that time are guaranteed a spot in the program.

In addition, the governor and state treasurer Robert Bowman will appear on WTVS, Channel 56 at 9 p.m. Wednesday, August 3 to further explain the new program. They will answer phoned-in questions from viewers around the state.

The MET will cover in-state tuition and fees in any Michigan community college, college or university. Various options exist to transfer the funds to a private or out-of-state school, or to refund or transfer funds under certain circumstances.

In making the program available, the state guarantees parents a safe rate of return on their money. In fiscal year 1987, the treasury department earned a 23% rate of return on the state pension fund, a $15 billion asset. It has averaged 20% since 1981.

Research help needed

Harper-Grace Hospitals are seeking persons to participate in a research study involving the use of the drug, Isradipine. The drug may reduce cholesterol build-up in the arteries, and that reduction could eliminate the need for corrective surgery on arteries that have become too narrow to allow proper blood flow.

Candidates for participation in the study include those with high blood pressure, plaque build-up in the arteries and a relatively normal blood cholesterol count. Those who qualify and participate will receive free health treatment, including medication, for the next three years.

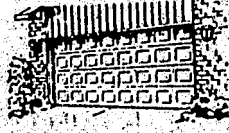

The study is being conducted by Dr. James Sowers, chief of endocrinology and metabolism at the hospital. Those interested may call Paula Zemel or Jackie Greene, 745-4008.

Orion Oaks project includes camping, pool

BY DESIREE MARCKS
Lake Orion Review Staff Writer

A master plan for the development of Orion Oaks County Park, with an estimated project cost of $18 million, has been approved by the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission.

The master plan calls for the development of Orion Oaks into an universally-designed, programmed public use facility with limited day use. The 927-acre park is bordered by Baldwin, Joslyn and Clarkston roads. The park's entrance will be located on Clarkston Road.

"The only way you'll be able to use the park in the beginning stages is with a group. The every-day person would not be able to walk in and utilize the park," Ralph Richard, park manager, said.

Later in the development, Richard said "open" days will be designated for individuals to use the park for activities such as cross-country skiing.

The park is intended as an outdoor-oriented, residential and day-activity resource for year round recreational and educational opportunities.

Primary programs will include aquatics, watercraft, sports, fitness, nature and environmental studies and performing and creative arts. There will also be opportunities for conferences and retreats.

According to Richard, groups using the park will be able to select activities from a scheduled "menu". For example, if a Girl Scout group was visiting the park for a week it could schedule a nature program or a two-hour walk through Orion Oaks with a county park naturalist.

This arrangement, Richard said, would enable a number of groups to be in the park at the same time, but they would not all be at the same place at once.

Features of the development will be overnight accommodations in a lodge and small group cabins, dining areas, meeting space, a multi-purpose hall and an indoor swimming pool.

None of the other Oakland County parks offer an indoor swimming pool. Richard said swimming is an activity that attracts many people to a camp setting and the commission wanted to meet that need at Orion Oaks.

"We feel we needed this type of recreational facility at the park for an all-year-round swimming activity," Richard said. "We are not looking at immediately opening a beach at this park."

Additionally, camping will be available in "seasonal villages" with shelters, dining space and shower houses, along with tent sites for primitive camping.

Primary development, to be implemented in phases, will take place in a large, centrally located meadow. Facilities will include suite housing for 80 persons in a lodge, dining for 250 and food service for 550.

The core development will also feature meeting and administration space, a multi-purpose activities center, the indoor pool, plus an activity field and courts.

Additionally, a series of small group cabins will house 140 people in dormitory-style accommodations.

The first of two seasonal villages, each housing 120 people, is included in the first phase. And a series of tent sites will be available for group primitive camping.

All facilities and systems are to be designed so they are available for use by all segments of the population, Lewis E. Wint, commission chairman said.

"The essence of the universal design concept is that it does not exclude anyone's use," Wint said. "The result is a more enjoyable and comfortable environment."

Among the types of groups expected to use the park are special populations agency groups, such as, the elderly, disabled and the gifted. Other groups expected to use Orion Oaks include community associations, schools and special interest groups.

Jackie McParlane, Oakland County Parks recreation supervisor, said, "The intent is to create an exciting and enjoyable recreational environment that does not pose barriers to any user - that does not make a distinction between able-bodied and disabled users."

The cost of the project is expected to be phased over an eight to 10-year period. The majority of development costs will be sought from private contributions.

According to Richard, the commission will cover the cost of items like the park's roads, sewer and water systems. Then funds will be sought from corporations and community groups to aid in the development of facilities like the cabins and tent villages.

"And that's why beginning development will hinge on the amount of money from the groups," Richard said.

Currently, Richard said, a team that will develop plans for approaching the various entities for funds is being selected.

"It's the biggest project we have undertaken, but the commission feels it could have an impact as a recreational and educational environmental center," Richard said. "It has a lot of range of growth potential and I think that's what's exciting to us as a park system. It's something that's going to be around for 50 or 60 years."

Clothing style appeals to fans of casual comfort — and skateboarding

BY JULIE CAMPE
and KATHY GREENFIELD
of The Clarkston News

Many different styles will be worn by students in school this fall, but one style, worn by "skaters," offers comfort and a sense of individuality.

Skaters are people who use skateboards and who can be found wearing oversized T-shirts or jeans or "clothes that really don't match very well, like plaids and stripes. And black," says 15-year-old Julie Walsh of Ellis Road, Springfield Township.

"I have an open mind about what people wear. A lot of people look down on people like me because they don't like what we wear. I'm trying to get away from that."

Julie Walsh

Julie identifies comfort as the main criteria in her clothing selection, and she tries to stay away from fads and the mainstream favorites.

"I have a different taste than most people because I just like, basically, black and red," says the sophomore, who's entering Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes High School in the fall.

"I like black because certain groups wear certain types of clothes, and the group I'm in wears mostly black," she says. "My mom won't let me wear all black, so I have to wear another color. Red is a nice, bright color."

George Doherty, a Clarkston High School sophomore, also expresses disdain for fads, and says he dresses in "mostly skate stuff," which he defines as "different type of clothing - shirts that have names of skaters on them, Vision pants, shoes (such as) Vans, Airwalk and Converse."

For Ken Haley, also a CHS sophomore, the idea is "just to dress different." Ken, however, chooses not to embrace the skater dress mode entirely, saying that he owns a "regular wardrobe, too."

Both young men find the relaxed approach to dressing in the skater style appealing. "Put on something, just grab the first thing. I don't care if I match or not," says George. For Ken, it's "whatever's clean. I just dress the way I feel. Whatever I want to wear."

If he's happy, George selects "old-time stuff, like my grandpa used to wear - I cut his pants into shorts. Just weird stuff you'd never see, that's my motto."

Skaters may also wear their bangs long enough to cover one eye, with the back clipped short. The asymmetrical style is worn by Julie and by George.

"I like my hair in my eye because it covers my face, and I like that because I'm used to it," Julie says. "I think people should wear whatever looks good on them. Some of my friends have long hair or a bob."

"I've always had short hair. ... I like it because it's cool in the summer. I don't have to pull it back, and it's easy in the morning. I get mistaken for a boy a lot."

For accessories, Julie likes silver jewelry because it goes well with black, and she occasionally likes to wear a scarf wrapped around her waist instead of a belt because it adds a final touch to a black outfit.

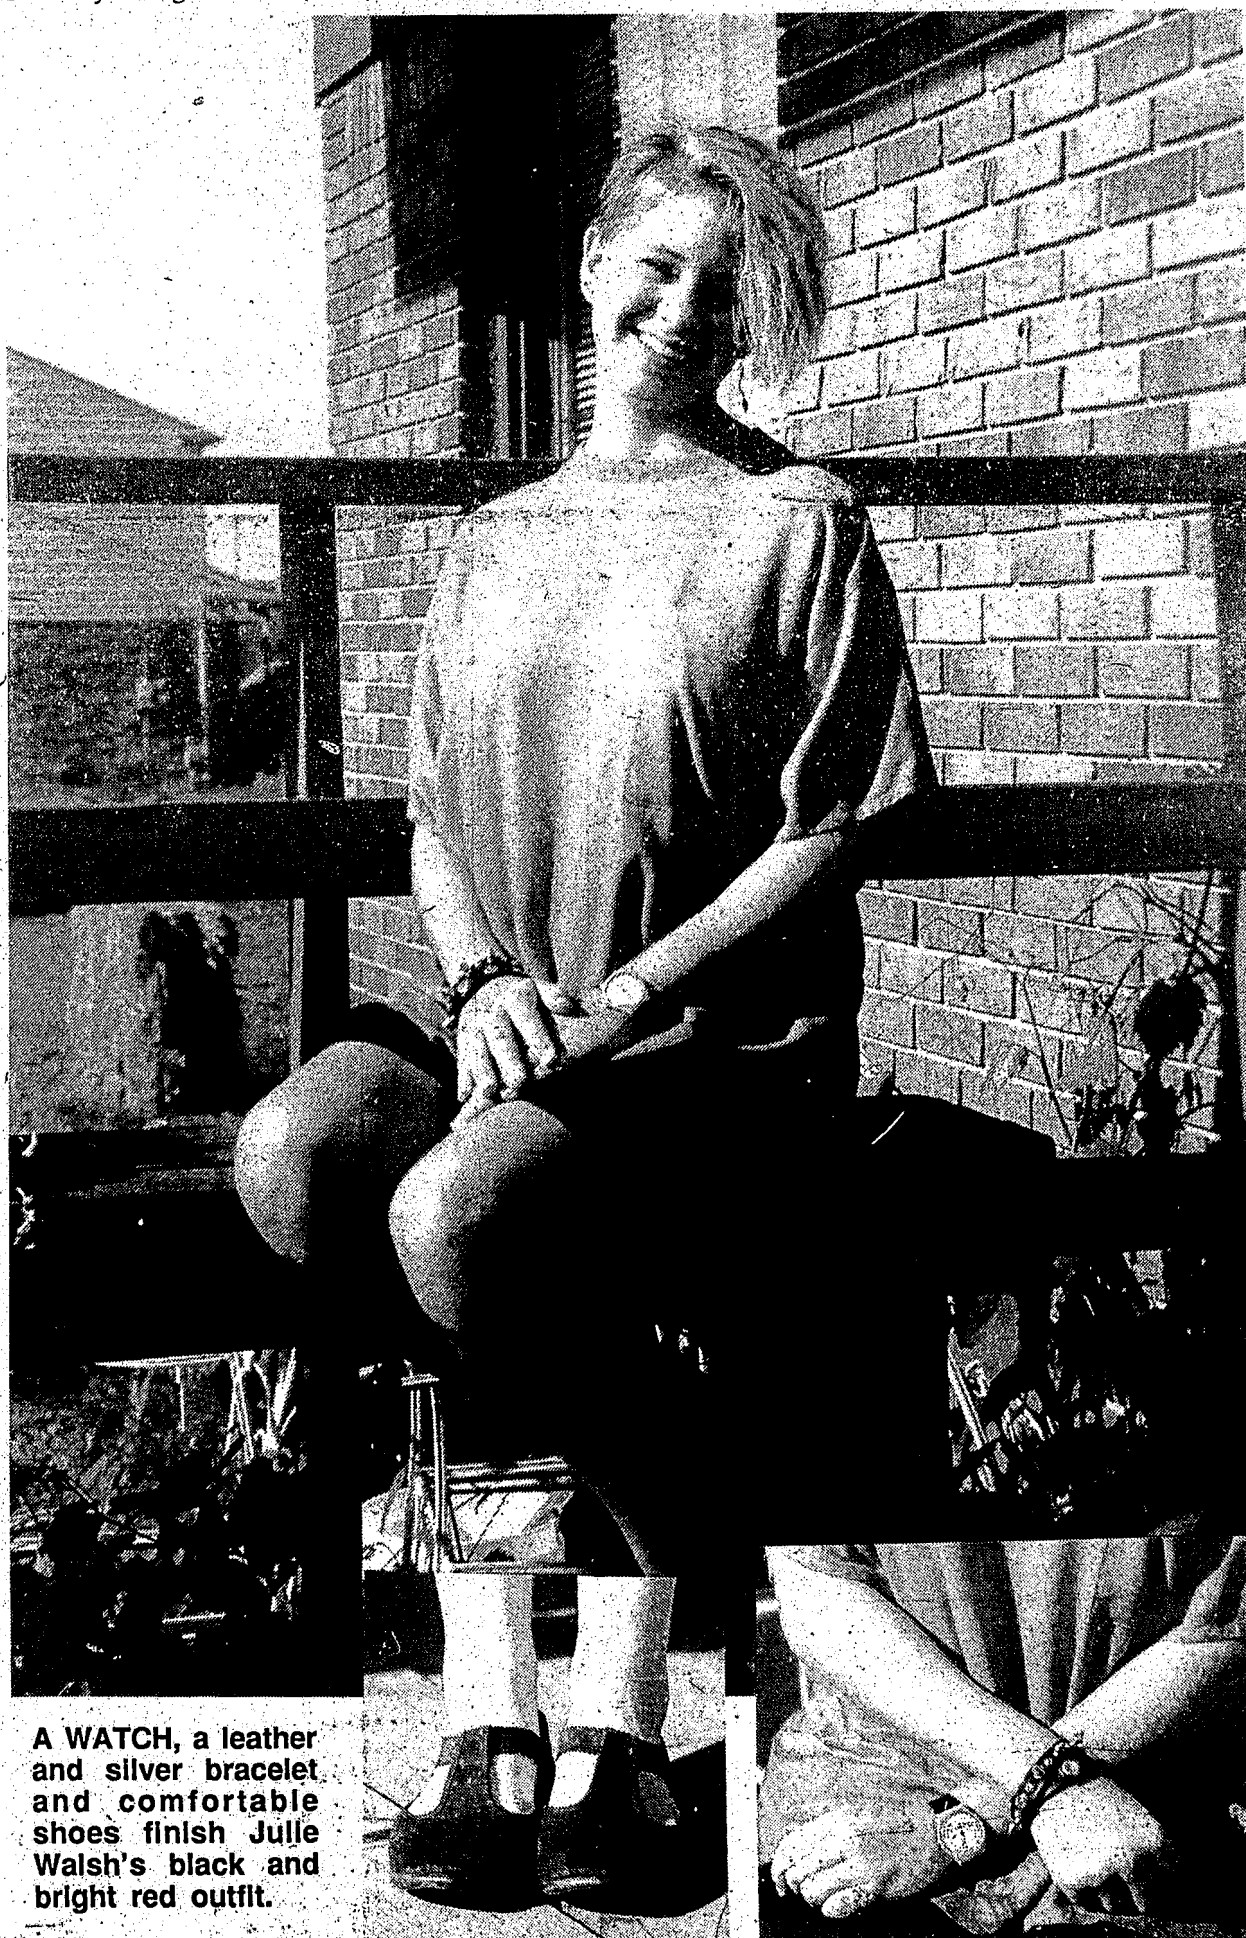

George and Ken consider Swatch brand watches essential to their wardrobes, and both plan to purchase high-top tennis shoes before school starts. Their favorite places to shop are stores that specialize in skateboards and clothing.

Acid-washed jeans, pastels and the "preppy" styles are fashions Julie can't stomach. The preppy look is also disliked by George and Ken, and their list of fashion

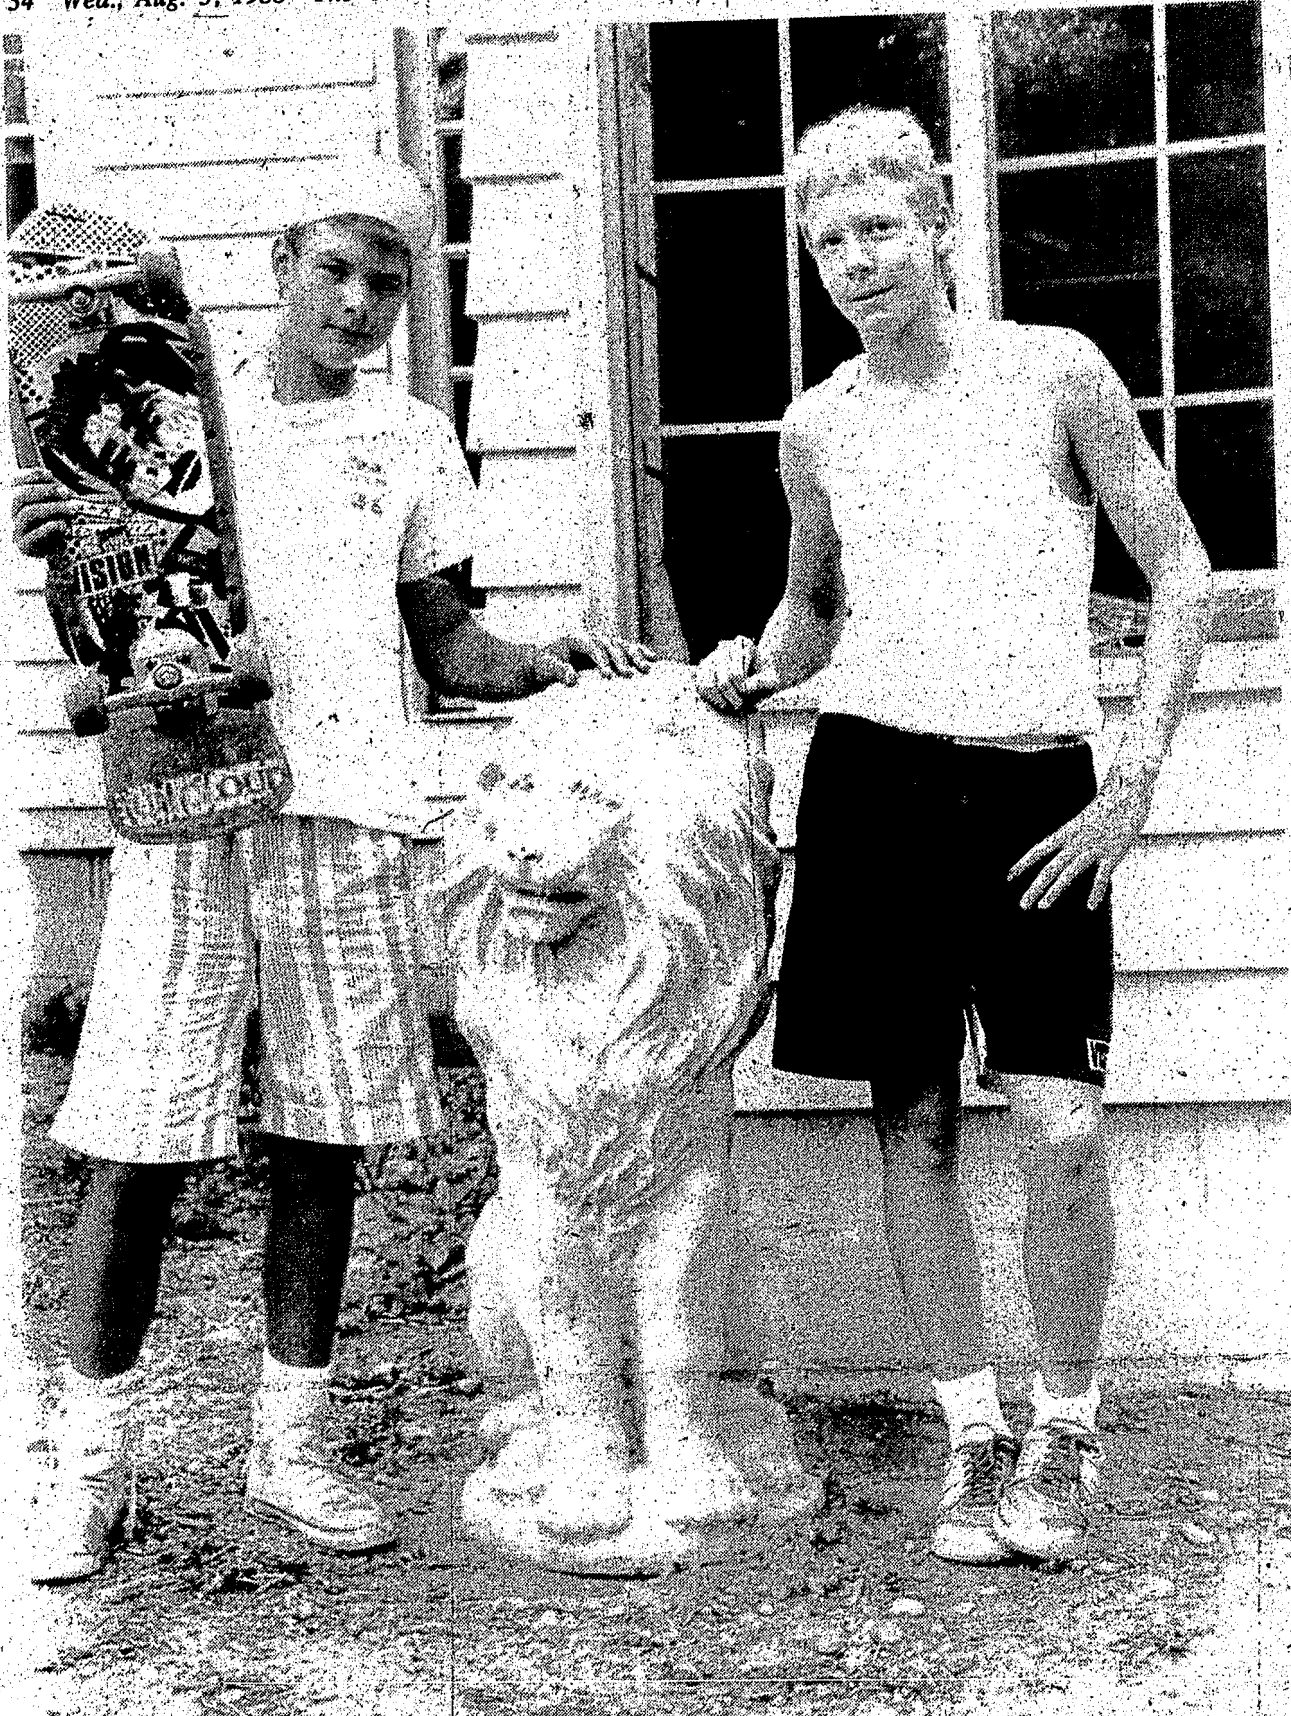

"don'ts" includes high collars, turtlenecks, two shirts with the collar up on the one underneath and any blatantly expensive clothing.

"I don't like stuff that a lot of people wear. I don't like being the same. ... I want to find something that's going to last. Like acid-washed jeans I don't like because you know they're going to go out of style," says Julie.

A WATCH, a leather and silver bracelet and comfortable shoes finish Julie Walsh's black and bright red outfit.

When school begins in Clarkston on Aug. 31, this is pretty much what they'll wear during those first still hot summer days, say George Doherty (left) and Ken Haley.

Clothes make the student, pupils say

Other items she wouldn't be caught dead wearing, she says, are clothing printed with teddy bears or flowers. And socks. She doesn't like socks much.

"I really don't wear socks. If I do, I just leave them. I don't fold them. I just leave them the way they are," she says.

People can make an impression by their clothing styles, and Julie's fashion statement is that she doesn't judge a person's character by his or her wardrobe. She has friends who wear other styles, as well.

"I have an open mind about what people wear," Julie says. "A lot of people look down on people like me because they don't like what we wear. I'm trying to get away from that. I'm trying to be non-judgmental."

For George, the skater look also indicates interest and skill on skateboards, a sport he takes seriously.

"The clothes you wear, you're trying to say, 'I skate.' When people look at you, they say, 'There's a skater,'" he says. "Skaters make friends. You've got something in common to talk about."

Student Standout: Joel Mellen

BACKGROUND: At age 16, Joel has played the baritone since sixth grade. In the summers following the seventh and eighth grade, he tried out for and attended the two-week all-state session at the prestigious Interlochen music camp.

While a ninth-grader, he tried out for and became a member of the 1988 Michigan Lions All-State Band comprised of about 160 ninth-through 12th-graders representing 77 Michigan communities. He's the only band member from Clarkston.

He's also a member of the handbell choir at Clarkston United Methodist Church. He took piano lessons as a child, but no longer plays.

A Perry Lake Road resident, he is the son of Skip and Judy Mellen.

TRAVELS: As a member of the band, Joel traveled by train (the ride "was long and boring") to and from Colorado for the week-long tour this summer.

The Michigan band played at the International Lions Convention in Denver, appeared in concerts once or twice a day and won a parade competition against bands from 10 other states.

Joel's glad he was there and "I like music. I like playing," says Joel Mellen, who shared his talent on the baritone this summer as a member of the Michigan Lions All-State Band.

plans to play with the band each summer. "You go different places. Next year, they're going to Florida. They're going to Australia in three years," he says.

SURPRISE: Joel says he doesn't listen to music, neither rock nor classical. His favorite music to play is jazz.

He chose the baritone because it's "just original - not very many other people play it." He says the sound is similar to a trombone, but the baritone has valves and is much heavier.

TRIP HIGHLIGHTS: He'll remember the white water rafting, the water park, the Rocky Mountain National Park and the good times with fellow band members, who nicknamed him "Fred the Flexible Freshman" because he's good at acrobatics.

IMMEDIATE FUTURE: As a sophomore, he'll be a member of the Clarkston High School Marching Band, and will also try out for the wrestling and soccer teams at CHS.

IN YEARS TO COME: Joel would like to attend a university, but is undecided on a career. He says music is in his future, but "it depends on how good I can get."

In any event, he always wants to be a member of a band.

BEGIN with a triangle of hair to make a French braid, as demonstrated by hair stylist Lois Srock on reporter Pat Young's hair.

TO FRENCH BRAID, add hair from alternating sides, over and into middle of braid.

THE FINISHED French braid can be left hanging long, or tucked under as demonstrated above.

How to:

Back-to-school braid remains popular throughout the years

Whatever other back-to-school hair styles may come and go, the braid is always in.

Independence Township hair stylist Lois Srock explains how to create a French braid.

"It's so nice to send your child off to school with a French braid," she says. "It's neat and it stays in."

If you can braid, you can French braid, she says. Here's the technique:

1. Start with a triangle of hair at the top of the head. (Or, if you want to create an angled braid, make the triangle wherever you want to start the braid. It can even be started at the bottom.)

2. Begin a regular braid with three pieces of hair, just braiding over once.

3. Now, pick up more hair from once side at a time as you cross it over, adding it to the middle of braid. Remember: alternate left and over, right and over.

4. Continue braiding to end of hair. If hair is very long, continue with a regular braid when all hair has been added and leave hanging long after securing the end. If hair is shorter, you can tuck the end under at base of hair.

For a special look, baby's breath or flowers can be added, or a bow to match the outfit can be tied on. You can even braid fine ribbon or pearls with the braid, Srock says. It is beautiful for proms or special occasions at school.

What's Cooking

Brown bagger's dessert delight

Pat Young

It's blueberry time in Michigan. And it's almost time to think about what to put in those lunch boxes as the children go back to school.

The following recipe from Mary (Fahrner) Hall provides a wonderful use for blueberries and a delightful treat for lunch boxes at the same time.

BLUEBERRY CAKE

- 1 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 cup soft margarine
- 3 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 1 1/2 cup blueberries

Cream sugar, egg and margarine until fluffy. Mix flour, soda and salt together. Gradually beat into the margarine mixture along with vanilla and buttermilk. Beat batter until smooth. Stir in blueberries.

Bake in a greased, 9-by-13-inch pan at 350 degrees for 45-50 minutes. Cool on a rack before cutting.

Drug education classes to begin in September

Clarkston area psychologist Peter Keelin is starting a series of drug education classes that will be open to anyone interested in learning more about drug abuse.

Keelin, formerly with Clinical Resources, opened his own practice a year ago in the Cowan Chiropractic Building, 6330 Sashabaw Rd., Independence Township.

The drug education program, an eight-week series from 7:30-8:30 p.m. on Tuesdays, will be conducted at the office beginning the second week in September.

Keelin says he is starting the program because after 15 years of treating alcoholics and addicts he has found that most centers treat the addict and the family both, but not with the same education. His approach is to thoroughly educate the family about the disease of addiction.

The program will "recycle," he says. It will run for eight weeks, then begin again. Each session will include a short film and a half-hour question and answer period.

Topics will include: romance to recovery, poly drugs and sedativism, Jellinek chart (disease concept of alcoholism), A.A. (Alcoholics Anonymous) and N.A. (Narcotics Anonymous), six steps to recovery, disease concept, pot and cocaine, and Chalktalk - a film with Father Joseph Martin on chemical dependency.

There is a charge of $20 per family attending each session. Keelin says he is keeping the cost minimal as a service; a comparable charge to a client at a clinic might be $70-$75.

"I would encourage people to attend all 10, to get the full overview of drug addiction and alcoholism," he says.

He is timing the drug education program to coincide with returning of students to school and families from summer vacations, because drug education is important to parents and students alike.

It is necessary for interested people to sign up for the program, as seating is limited, Keelin says. Registration or information on the program is available by calling his Independence Township office at 625-7320 anytime during the week.

Keelin is available at that office Tuesday and Thursday all day and evening and Friday afternoon. The rest of the week he is at Square Lake Counseling Center, where he serves as psychological consultant to the substance abuse treatment program and also does individual and family counseling.

TO ALL PARENTS . . .

Now a conservative approach to tooth decay!

Preventive Resin Restorations (P.R.R.) are a method of filling cavities and preventing further decay in one simple treatment.

New Molars in teens and pre-teens are especially cavity prone. Until now, if you had a cavity here, your dentist would have to drill out the decay plus a large space around it, and fill it with a mercury-silver filling. With P.R.R., we remove only the small decayed area, then fill just that space with a hard plastic "tooth-colored" material and cover this with a plastic sealant.*

Town plot produces produce aplenty

BY KATHY GREENFIELD
Clarkston News Editor

For Dom and Louise Mauti, a house without a garden isn't home.

The retired couple - he's the former principal of Clarkston High School and she's a former school secretary - moved from their 8 1/2-acre miniature farm on Allen Road to the Village of Clarkston three years ago.

Their back yard in town is a nice size - about the same amount of property used for their former garden, in fact. But it must hold the garage, brick walkway, deck with umbrella table, picnic table, and so on. It's no place for a tractor. The lawn could be comfortably trimmed with a hand mower, if desired.

Dom began creating space for a garden shortly after they moved in by removing a pine tree, some lilacs and willow trees with the help of their son Tom. That first year, after the plot was cleared, he planted strawberries and put up a rustic garden fence.

The idea was to blend a garden into the yard.

"I didn't want it to stick out," he said, making sure to give a share of the credit to Louise and their daughter Peggy. "They sort of designed it and things like that. I do all the manual work."

Per necessity, a foot-wide stone pathway was added inside the garden plot. The Mautis' three grandchildren apparently stepped on a few plants, so the path marks the foot boundaries - and it works, he said.

Despite the drought that began this summer, everything is green and healthy in the garden that features clusters rather than rows. The secret ingredient is sheep manure.

Remarkably enough, they weren't home for the garden's first 25 days. After planting the seeds and leaving a watering system that worked with the pull of a lever, friends took over while Dom and Louise were off to France and England from May 17 to June 9.

They're pleased that this garden comes much closer to yielding what they can eat, although they still produce enough to share with friends. The larger garden in their former home meant giving away bags and bags of produce.

"We get plenty for us," Dom said. "Things that we more or less live on, like tomatoes, summer squash, broccoli, zucchini, carrots, lettuce, peppers, beans, cucumbers, parsley and a lot of flowers. Louise likes a lot of flowers in the garden."

One flower stands out - or more precisely, up - this year, a sunflower planted by a bird as it flew from their backyard feeding station.

"I said, well, I'll just leave it there," said Dom. When it reached 6 feet tall, he added a stake for support, then another, then another. After the birds started pecking on the blossom, he surrounded it with a plastic net.

When the seeds are mature, he'll store the dried flower until autumn when the birds will really appreciate the treat.

Meanwhile, "Dom and the Sunflower Stalk" is the talk of the town.

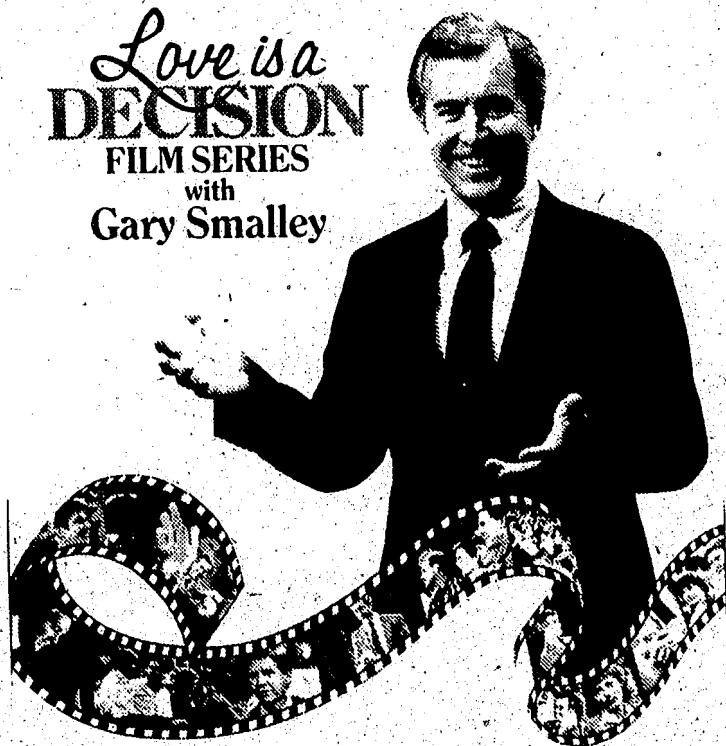

GARDENING IS A HOBBY Dom Mauti thoroughly enjoys. He credits his father and a Master Gardener course through the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service of Oakland County for sharpening his skills.

Practical tips for buying back-to-school clothing

Preparation for back-to-school will mean an increased investment in clothing for your children this year.

With clothing prices inflated along with everything else, parents will want to make purchases carefully to ensure garments are durable, safe, comfortable and well-liked by their wearers, says Elaine Glasser, home economist for the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service of Oakland County.

Before you shop, look in your children's closets and take inventory. Have them try on last year's garments. Separate articles into three piles: those that can be worn as is, those that need updating or repair, and those that do not fit the child but may be worn by a younger child in the family.

Parents should consider shopping for only the few essentially needed garments in the fall, rather than a wide range of clothes the child may outgrow or dislike by winter. Keeping children's wardrobes small also means clothes will be worn more often, thus clothing may wear out before it is outgrown.

In planning to buy clothing for children, remember that there is no set number of pieces of clothing a child has to have. It is only important that children have enough clothing to meet a variety of everyday needs.

As you plan, consider your child's special activities, the area you live in, what their friends wear, the size of your family and how much you can afford to spend on each child's clothing.

It is also important to remember your child's individual differences before you decide to buy. Growth rates, weight changes, shoe size changes and rate of "wear-out and tear-out" differ for each child and will have an effect on the amount and kind of clothing needed.

Shopping together is a chance to teach your children how to choose clothing that meets their needs.

Color, texture and style of clothing are very important. Try to guide children toward solidly constructed garments. Mix-and-match separates that can be worn in several different combinations will stretch a wardrobe.

Tightly woven or knit garments are most durable and will stand up longer under the rough and tumble play children enjoy. Remember, too, that most school-age children are very conscious of peer acceptance and will want to buy clothing that "everybody else has."

Read labels on garments before you buy to make sure they are easy to care for. Clothing from man-made fibers is usually easier to care for than that made from natural fibers. Take care of small repairs, such as loose buttons and small rips before the garment is beyond repair. Careful care of clothing helps give it a longer life.

Although it is difficult to judge your children's growth spurts, you can anticipate them by choosing skirts, dresses and pants with wide hems that can be let down as they grow taller.

Allowing room for growth does not mean purchasing clothes that are too big, though. Buy clothes that allow for movement, but are not so big or long that they get in the way of activity.

Sleeves should not be too tight, armholes should be set about one inch below the armpit and pants need to be roomy in the crotch and across the seat. Skirts and blouses should be long enough to stay tucked into pants and skirts.

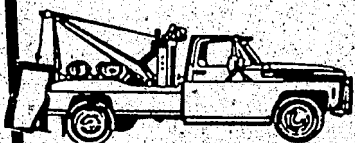

Finally, remember that high price does not always mean a good buy, and it does not have total influence on the construction of garments.

Take time to look over your purchases carefully to make sure the quality justifies the price of the product. You may want to wait for a sale or do more comparison shopping to find better constructed merchandise at a price within your budget.

Pointers for parents of kindergartners

As you look at your kindergartner, you see a child who has grown a great deal since the day he or she was born.

But do you remember that the world still looks very big - and sometimes scary - to a young child because of his or her small size and lack of experience, says Elaine Glasser, home economist for Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service of Oakland County.

Your child may be anticipating kindergarten, but wonder about such things as: Will I get lost? Will I have friends? What will happen to me on the school bus? Will I get back home all right from school?

Because we know that persons with high self-esteem are often more creative, self-confident, willing to try new things and likely to have greater academic achievement, Glasser says that parents need to provide experiences that help build a child's self-esteem and develop a sense of anticipation and importance in the coming school years. Learning and school should be approached with anticipation and pleasure.

Glasser makes the following suggestions on ways you can help your child adjust as school days begin:

Talk with and listen to your child.

Answer his or her questions and ask questions that help him or her see and think about new things.

Help him or her make new friends and have many play experiences with children of his or her own age.

Have plenty of experiences in being around adults other than family.

Read and tell stories to your child.

Provide many different experiences outside the home - trips to the library, zoo, museum, downtown, farmer's market, etc. Teach your child to use his or her eyes and ears to find out all he or she can about these new experiences.

Help your child to feel good about himself or herself by giving him or her success oriented tasks - setting the table, putting away his or her clothes, bringing in the mail, helping make dinner or cake or cookies.

Let your child make choices when appropriate, such as what to wear.

Help him or her learn how to accept failures and figure out new ways of doing things.

The above report was provided by the Cooperative Extension Service, Michigan State University.

Ice cream, plus at society's social

Ice cream - and more - await at the Oakland County Pioneer and Historical Society's 19th annual Ice Cream Social on Sunday, Aug. 7, at Pine Grove in Pontiac from 1 to 5 p.m.

Entertainment will include a concert by the 25-member Franklin Village Band and a puppet show for the children. A white elephant sale, used book sale and the sale of handmade crafts will also be conducted.

In addition, there will be guided tours of the 1840s Gov. Moses Wisner Historic House and other historic buildings on the 4-acre site.

And, of course, there will be ice cream, cakes, pies, lemonade, iced tea, coffee and hot dogs.

Tickets are $3 for adults and $2 for children 12 and under. They may be purchased at the door. Call 338-6732 for more information.

SYNOPSIS

Village of Clarkston

Minutes of Regular Meeting
July 25, 1988

Meeting called to order by President Catallo at 7:30 p.m., followed by the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

Roll: Present-Schultz, Roeser, Haven, Catallo. Absent-Millard, Basinger, Symons.

Moved by Haven, "That the minutes be approved as presented." Seconded by Schultz. Motion carried.

The Agenda was accepted as presented with the following changes:

Old Business Tabled: Street lights on Middle Lake Road, Lot Split (Main Street, Lots 28 and 31), Middle Lake Resolution, DPW Salary, Village Manager.

Trustee Schultz reported on the Hubbell, Roth, and Clark report regarding pedestrian lighting in the downtown area. Three sources were given in the nearby area while Detroit Edison had only two lighting designs, contemporary and colonial.

President Catallo reported that the Historical Commission would be meeting on the first and third Tuesday of the month at 7:00 p.m. for hearings concerning the historical ordinance. Meeting will be held only when there is commission business on the agenda.

New refuse containers were discussed, and a catalog was distributed for the Council's consideration in selecting new receptacles.

Trustees Roeser asked that the Council be given copies of official job descriptions as outlined in the General Law Village guidelines (blue book).

Members of the Clarkston Garden Club were present to request permission to sell bulbs and mum plants to raise funds for their scholarship fund.

Moved by Roeser, "That the Clarkston Garden Club be granted permission to hold their sale of bulbs and mum plants on September 16 and 17 on Main Street at the Village parking lot." Seconded by Haven. Motion carried.

The Garden Club will submit a letter with specific details of the sale.

There was no representative present to discuss the sale or demolishing of the Church of God building and the matter was tabled.

Moved by Haven, "That the Clarkston Community Education request to have a banner displayed from August 15 thru August 27 be approved." Seconded by Schultz. Motion carried.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ettinger were present regarding additions to non-conforming property at 30 North Holcomb. The Council concluded that it had two alternatives; to deny the request, or to table the request and refer it to the Planning Commission for rezoning.

Moved by Roeser, "That the Council table the request from Mr. and Mrs. Ettinger to refer to the Planning Commission the matter of rezoning of their property on Holcomb Street until the next regular Council meeting on August 8." Seconded by Haven. Motion carried.

Mr. Leonard Kerzka, Treasurer of the Men's Club of St. Daniel's Church was present to request that permission be granted to post a sign on M-15 and Miller Road. Mr. Kerzka was instructed to apply for a building permit from the township building department and President Catallo would inform him on the proper procedure to follow after a building permit had been issued.

Moved by Haven, "That Michelle Jarvis be permitted to use the Gazebo on October 15 for her wedding." Seconded by Schultz.

Moved by Haven, "That the Treasurer be given permission to attend the Michigan Municipal Treasurers Institute at Michigan State University on September 26-30, 1988, at a cost of $507 to the Village." Pet of the Week

DUSTY would be a trusty companion.

Playful yet mannerly

Dusty is a 6-month-old black and tan shepherd mix. He's still puppy enough to be playful, but old enough to be mannerly. He already knows some commands and is at a trainable age to learn more.

He appears to be good with all other animals and good with children. He's a clean dog, but still needs to be housebroken.

Dusty can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The adoption fee for Dusty is $60, which includes a $30 fee to neuter him before he leaves the shelter. He's up to date on shots.

Indians past, present interest banker

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

By day, Rick Zurel is an assistant vice president and manager of the Real Estate Department at First Federal Savings Bank and Trust.

By night, and any other time he can find, he works on his favorite hobby - anthropology.

The Independence Township resident was first an anthropologist. In the early 1980s when the area was depressed, jobs in his field were scarce, so he looked for a more dependable career, he says.

"It's good to go to work (at the bank), and it's good to do anthropology," he says. "It's a whole different field of interest, and it's nice to have two interests with such diversity."

It works out well for Zurel, since the bank encourages community service, and his unique background allows him a perfect opportunity. His involvement in a cultural exchange program has the approval and support of the bank's Chairman of the Board James Clarkson, Zurel says.

"I can quite literally step outside my back door and do anthropology. There is a great deal to research."

In part, the program involves a film Zurel produced and edited at the Michigan Indian Inter-Tribal Powwow. The film, which is airing on United Cable Public Access Channel 65 this week on Wednesday and Friday at 6:30 p.m., was sent to China this summer. The next step in the cultural exchange will be a special committee of Indians and other representatives visiting China in 1989.

Surrounded by artifacts from his special field of interest - the American Indian - Zurel starts at the beginning and explains his long-time work in anthropology.

He earned a bachelor's degree in anthropology at Oakland University and a master's in anthropology at the University of Georgia.

In 1965, he participated in a mastodon dig by the Cranbrook Institute in Lapeer County, searching for evidence of early Indian hunting activities. He has worked on anthropology projects every year since.

He has been a research assistant at OU, taught archaeology at Cranbrook and OU, and worked on archaeological digs in Michigan, New Mexico, Missouri, Illinois and Georgia.

"North America is conveniently located," Zurel says of his interest in the American Indian. "I can quite literally step outside my back door and do anthropology. There is a great deal to research."

Several years ago, he worked on the "Archaeological Survey of Oakland County" with Dr. Richard Stamps of OU. They recorded 277 archaeological sites.

"In all probability, there are thousands of them," he says. "People lived here 12,000 years ago."

He also did archaeological surveys of highway right-of-ways in the area in 1981-82.

He was working on an archaeological project with the Soil Conservation Service in Georgia before returning to this area in 1978 to work at OU. He lives on Clarkston Road with his wife, Joyce.

A few years ago, he received a grant from the Michigan Bureau of History to do an archaeological survey covering the 21-county area of central and southeastern Michigan. The grant, administered by Cranbrook Institute, allowed him to search for evidence of prehistoric Indian fortified villages.

"There were, I believe, 22 in the 21-county area," he says. "But of those, all but two have been destroyed."

He has spent a great deal of time since then studying one of the sites, which is within 45 minutes of Independence Township on private land.

"I would like to see the site preserved for posterity," he says.

Through his research on American Indians, Zurel says he became interested in meeting, working with and traveling with them in the Great Lakes today.

Anthropology is not just studying the past, he says,

RICK ZUREL, a Clarkston-area anthropologist, examines a replica of a 1,000-year-old Indian pot. A film he produced on the Michigan Indian airs this week on cable TV.

but also the present.

That is how he met 90-year-old Eli Thomas, an elder on the Chippewa Reservation near Mt. Pleasant known as Chief Little Elk, and became interested in contemporary powwows. He filmed the powwow shown in the television film in Mt. Pleasant in 1984.

"The modern powwow is an ethnic festival of sorts," Zurel says. "It is a gathering of Indians interested in teaching and keeping alive the traditions of Indian people - the dance, music, religion and arts."

"It was through the cooperation of the people who organized the powwow that I was given special privileges in doing the film," he continues. "I produced it as an expression of appreciation to these people and to provide them with a film documenting this powwow, which was held in honor of Little Elk."

He adds that this year's powwow is scheduled Aug. 6 and 7, and visitors are welcome.

In 1985 when he went to China with Stamps, the idea of a cultural exchange was formed.

"I had this idea of taking the powwow film to China and organizing a cultural exchange," Zurel says. "I proposed this to a visiting delegation from China in September of 1987."

The Chinese accepted the idea, and an executive committee of scholars and prominent leaders in the Indian community are developing the project with Zurel. It will be a national effort, he says.

"This cultural exchange is between minority people," he adds. "To the best of my knowledge, it's the first between minorities. It will be a project for the Indians by the Indians."

Zurel says there is some evidence that Indians came from Asia perhaps 12-40,000 years ago, though the Indians do not believe this.

Indian traditions, he adds, are among the most ancient in the world.

"I personally see a great deal of beauty in American Indian culture," he says. "I have an appreciation for their love and respect of nature, their interest in the mysteries of creation, and their interest and appreciation of man living in harmony with nature."

He is particularly interested in helping the Indians with the cultural exchange program because they are interested, themselves, in letting society know they are still here as an ethnic group. They want to improve the understanding of their cultural traditions.

"The history of what happened to the American Indian has many lessons for us," Zurel says. "In a sense, what I'm doing is what Little Elk has been doing all these years."
