Fire destroys Tra-Tech van plant

BY KATHY GREENFIELD
Clarkston News Editor

By Monday, plans were firm to rebuild the Tra-Tech Midwest building in Springfield Township that was destroyed by fire Wednesday, Aug. 3.

Tra-Tech President Grant W. Grebeck estimated damages between $2 million and $3 million in the blaze that brought about a dozen fire departments to 10100 Dixie Highway, between Davisburg and Rattalee Lake roads.

On Friday, he said the firm was searching for a temporary facility for the van conversion plant with the intention of being back in operation in three to four weeks.

"After the initial shock, we're now convinced we have to get on with it. This is just a bad situation, and we'll do our best to solve it," said Grebeck, who has served as president of the firm since October 1987. The business has been at the Dixie site since early 1986.

Of the 63 employees working in the plant, some were assisting with cleanup and the office staff had moved to the Tra-Tech painting plant directly south of the destroyed building. Grebeck said the entire staff would be back at work when temporary quarters are established.

The cause of the fire has yet to be determined, although fire investigators from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department are working on the case.

All products and materials in the 350,000-square-foot plant met current safety standards, Grebeck said, and the plant had passed a fire inspection 90 days ago.

"I've considered everything conceivable and cannot identify what did occur or what could have occurred," he said. "It was just a showplace inside."

Due to the heat, work hours in the factory had been changed to 5 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., with a few staff members working overtime in the afternoon, Grebeck said. On Wednesday, the daily security inspection performed after the plant is empty by a team of two was completed at 5:10 p.m.

Grebeck was told that minutes later, a woman cleaning the office portion of the building heard a noise. "She opened up the door and saw a wall of yellow flame," he said, and she called to report the fire. It was 5:24 p.m.

At 5:30 p.m., the Springfield Township Fire Department called the Independence Township Fire Department for assistance.

"It took off and burned in a hurry. This was a big, wide open area," said Springfield Fire Chief Marlan Hillman.

"In the history of Springfield, it would be the biggest

EPA to test township wells

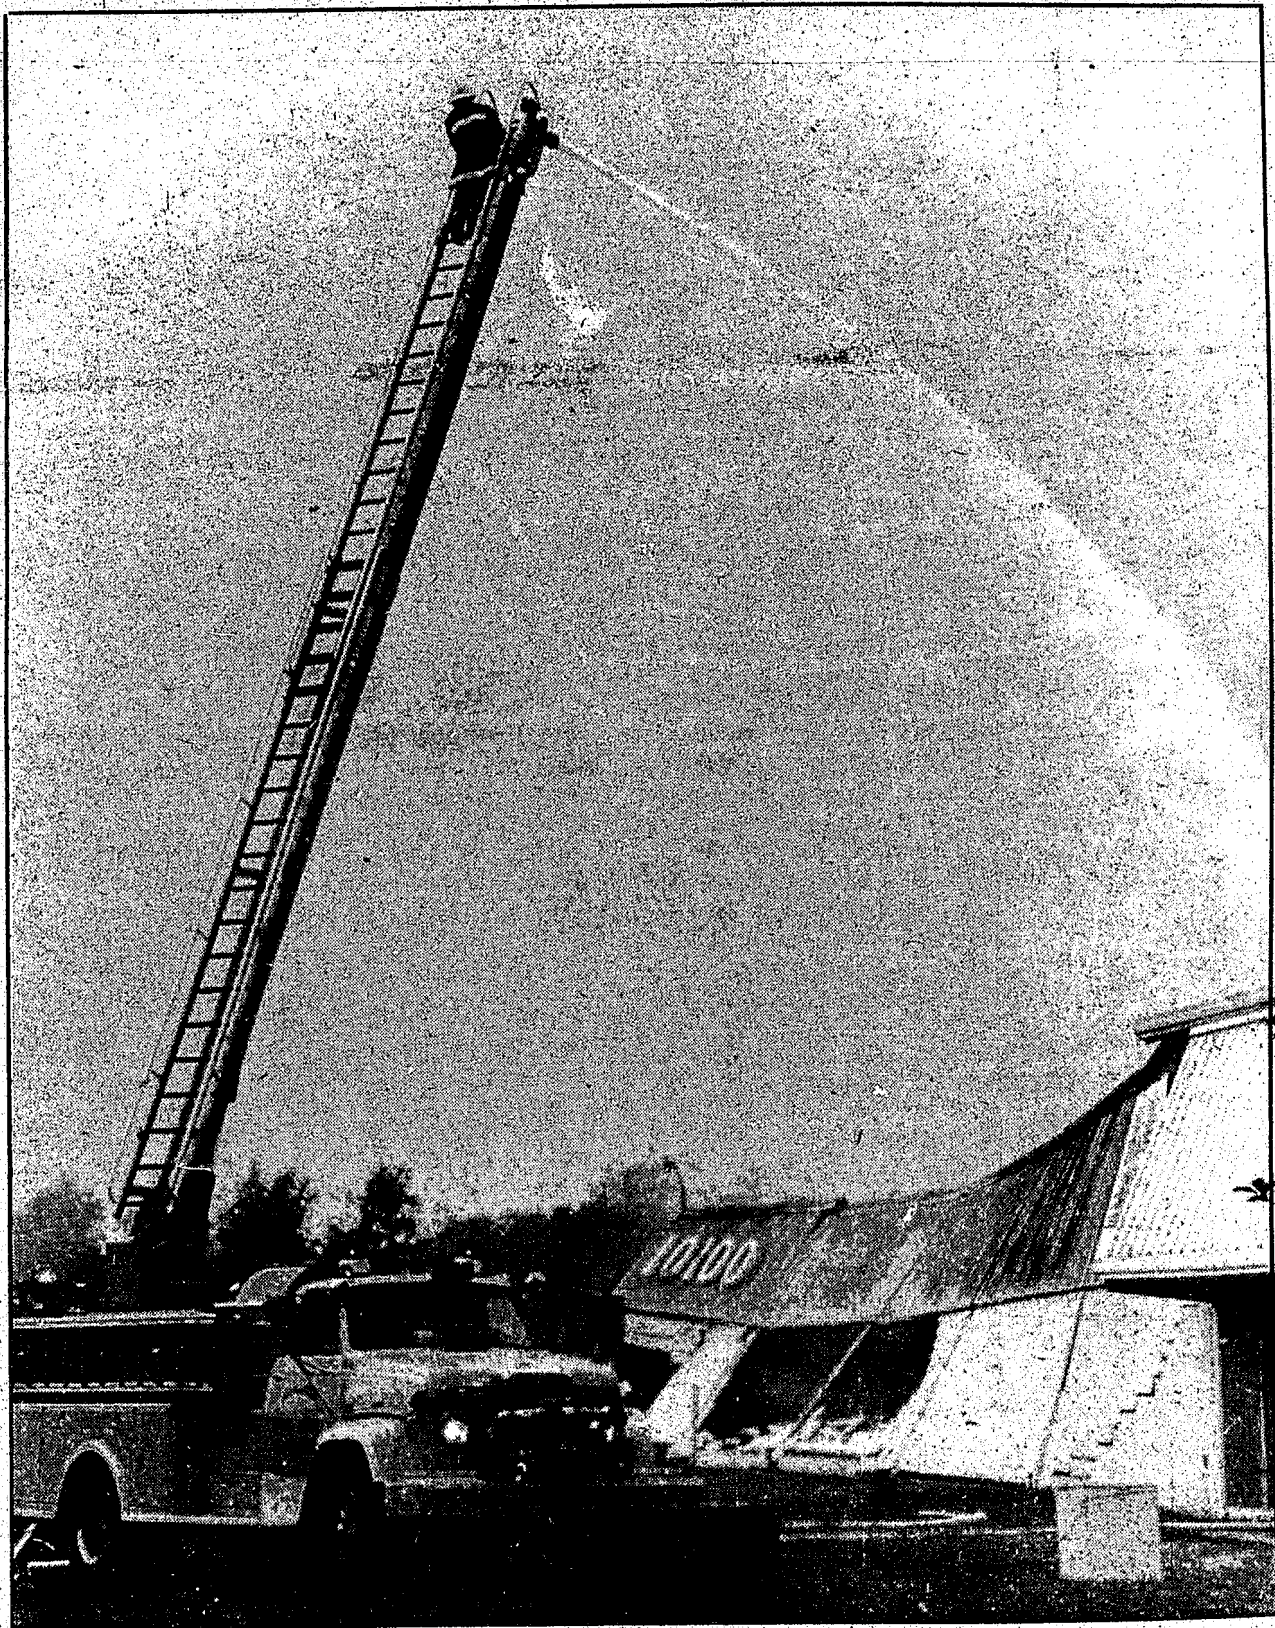

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It's only coincidental, officials say, that the water system selected for sampling in a federal pesticide study will serve Independence Township residents whose wells were found to be contaminated.

The community water system on Perry Lake Road north of Interstate 75 serves residents in Olde Sturbridge subdivision. The water line is to be extended this summer south across the highway to serve residents on Northview Drive and Perry Lake Road.

Residents on those roads have been using bottled water for over a year because their private wells were found contaminated with ethyl ether, freon-type compounds and benzene - contaminants suspected to have traveled from an abandoned landfill on Clarkston Road.

AERIAL SQUIRTS, high ladders with attached fire hoses, are used on the north and south ends of the construction portion of the Tra-Tech building. The fire was reported at 5:24 p.m. and was under control at 7:30 p.m. Most of the firefighters had left the scene by midnight, but some stayed into the following day to douse spot fires under the collapsed roof.

EPA water study includes Independence locale

But the pesticide testing to begin in 1989 by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is part of a two-year nationwide study and has nothing to do with the contaminated wells in the Northview Drive area, said EPA spokesperson Dan O'Riordan, who was unaware of the Northview water contamination.

"It is coincidental," he said. "The reason for the survey is to test what (pesticide) levels exist (in drinking water) throughout the country."

The Independence Township site, one of 600 of the country's 51,000 community wells to be tested nationwide, statistically represents the country, he said.

"There should be no reason for concern simply because it's one of the sample sites," he said.

The study will test for 100 pesticides, of which 60 have a high potential for leaching into the groundwater, he said.

The results, which will take until about 1990 to tabulate, will help determine if pesticides need further regulation or if they need to be monitored more closely, he said.

The two-year study will also test 750 of the 13 million private wells across the nation.

"It's a very precise survey, and it will take time. It's very thorough," said O'Riordan.

Julie Parson, a sanitarian for the Michigan Department of Public Health, said the EPA project was unrelated to the Northview water contamination.

"They do a lot of random testing like that," she said. "They'll send us copies of everything when they're finished."

Parson, who planned to take more water samples Aug. 9 from wells in the peripheral areas of the Northview contamination, said the contamination doesn't seem to be spreading.

"We just want to make sure the contamination is confined before the project is complete," she said, adding the community water system on the other side of I-

75 is not contaminated and is suitable to extend for drinking water.

George Anderson, director of the township department of public works, said the EPA informed him of the pesticide study plans about a month ago.

"We're not concerned about it," he said. "That's just a random sampling. I think they use a dart throw to choose a place. It could have been any one of our well systems."

Mom dies in crash on Sashabaw

A 35-year-old Brandon Township woman was killed and her three children injured Aug. 5 in a two-car accident on Sashabaw Road.

Peggy Winger of Hawthorne Road, Brandon Township, was pronounced dead at 8:25 p.m. at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital. She was not wearing a seat belt.

During a rainstorm around 7:18 p.m. Friday, Winger was driving south on Sashabaw Road, Independence Township, near Independence Oaks County Park, according to an Oakland County Sheriff's Department report.

Winger's 1986 Renault was struck head-on by a northbound 1982 Ford that crossed the center yellow line about 1/2 mile south of Sally Road.

Her children, ages 7, 2 and 2, were taken to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac. No information on their conditions could be released without the family's permission.

The driver of the Ford, Angela Kababik, 19, of Highland was treated and released from St. Joseph Mercy Hospital.

OCSO Accident Investigator Mark Newman said the accident was under investigation, and no tickets had been issued yet.

Rule changes tighten campus

No cars, no lunches out for CHS juniors

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

There won't be as many students driving to Clarkston High School this fall, and sophomores and juniors will not be allowed to leave school for lunch.

With safety the key issue, the Clarkston High School Parent Advisory Committee, along with CHS Principal Dr. Robert Burek and other administrators, drafted a change to this year's high school parent/student handbook.

Juniors will not be allowed to drive to school except in the case of co-op students, vocational school students or other valid school-related instances. Heretofore, the rule applied only to sophomores.

Another rule change that previously applied only to sophomores will be a closed campus at noon for juniors this year.

"Parents wanted to see more restrictions for the sake of orderliness to and from school," CHS Assistant Principal Brent Cooley told the Clarkston Board of Education. "They want to minimize the possibility of accidents."

The board approved secondary and elementary parent/student handbooks, which were presented by Director of Administrative Services William Neff, at its Aug. 8 meeting.

There were virtually no changes to elementary handbooks and only a clarification of dress code in the junior high handbooks, dealing with definitions of skirt lengths, inappropriate slogans on T-shirts, etc.

The driving and closed campus changes at the high school level brought comments from the board.

"I can see the noontime thing, but I have a problem with sophomores and juniors who have jobs getting to and from school," said board member John Needham.

Cooley said they would consider individual cases, and Superintendent Gary Haner added that the policy leaves it open to discussion.

Board member Steve Werner asked, "What provisions do you make for extracurricular activities such as band?"

Cooley replied that sophomores have had to deal with this; now the juniors will, too.

"We're kid advocates," Cooley said later. "But we want to empower people to be able to say no to kids in appropriate situations.

"This was a process-driven decision developed over nine months with the parent advisory committee and Dr. Burek," he said. "This was one of the issues raised, and this is the product of this process."

Cooley said some people want to see the closed campus at noon for all grades, because there is concern about students driving off for lunch. But at this point, the school could not handle the crowd.

Sophomores and juniors, however, can be accommodated, he said. The lunch periods are longer this year (40 minutes instead of 30) and there are again three staggered lunch periods. There will also be additional tables set up in the band room for sack lunches.

Parent Roger Diederich, a member of Dr. Burek's Parent Advisory Committee and member of Band Boosters, voiced his support at the meeting for the handbook change on driving and the closed campus.

"We've got too many cars, too much congestion," Diederich said immediately following the meeting. "I have a junior, but I feel as a parent, for safety's sake, it's worth it."

The discussions on driving policy have been going on a long time, Diederich said, but the fatal car/bus accident last fall helped bring the issue to a head.

"On the surface, we realize that it may be an inconvenience," Diederich said. "But if it's a choice between safety and convenience, we will choose safety."

Visitors revive man who receives shock

A 29-year-old Independence Township man was saved by two vacationers Aug. 10 after he fell into wet cement and received a shock when he touched the cement mixing machine.

Around 2:53 p.m. Wednesday, Brian Joseph Jackson was pouring cement for a retaining wall in front of his residence on Lakeview on Walters Lake near Eston Road, according to an Oakland County Sheriff's Department report.

He fell from the wooden form, hit the mixing machine and landed with his feet in wet cement, where, apparently, he received a shock and went into a cardiac arrest, according to the report.

Abby and Carol McClellan of Frankenmuth, who were visiting the nearby beach, ran to Jackson when they heard the commotion. The women started cardiopulmonary resuscitation and stabilized Jackson until rescue workers arrived from the Independence Township Fire Department.

Jackson was in stable condition Tuesday at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, said Dr. Robert Aranosian.

Theme chosen

"Labor Day Activities" is the theme for the Labor Day Parade this year.

The parade, sponsored by Clarkston Rotary Club, will begin at 9:30 a.m. on Monday, Sept. 5. The route will begin at Clarkston High School and continue west on Waldon Road to Main Street, then north through downtown Clarkston.

Anyone interested in entering the parade or wanting more information may call George McCausland, Rotary member in charge of the parade, at 625-8200.

Middle Lake plan challenged

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Concerned by a lack of communication, three Middle Lake Road residents aired their views about a proposal to allow only no-wake boat motors on Middle Lake.

After reading about a village council resolution in The Clarkston News that favors such an ordinance, which would be similar to the one at nearby Parke Lake, Jim and Barbara Cowen decided to investigate.

She visited Village Hall and read the letter by attorney Larry Barnett on "behalf of many Middle Lake residents" asking for a ban on noisy jet skis and other high-powered boats.

The 33-year village resident said she is not part of "the many" who support the ban and suspects many of her neighbors aren't either.

Only two Middle Lake residents are on record in support of the ordinance, she said, and she was puzzled why the village council would go ahead and adopt the resolution.

"That's imposing someone else's wishes on the rest of us," she said. "I came here and read your records, and they didn't show any petitions (from supportive Middle Lake residents)."

She said the township, unlike what the village did, would notify all concerned parties before considering adoption of a resolution in favor of the ordinance.

Since Middle Lake lies partly in the village and partly in Independence Township, the council and township board must send a resolution stating they are in favor of an ordinance to the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR), said village Trustee Frank Millard.

He sent a copy to the township office so the board could act on the matter, then forward it to the DNR. A public hearing would be scheduled to discuss the ordinance before final approval is granted by the DNR, said Trustee William Basinger.

Millard told Cowen his intentions weren't bad, just misunderstood.

"Maybe we did jump the gun a little" in an effort to resolve the situation quickly, he said. "We didn't realize the consequences."

Another Middle Lake resident also spoke against the proposal. Don Santola, who owns 130 feet of lakefront property, said he's never heard complaints.

"I don't know anything about this except what I read in The Clarkston News," he said. "I haven't been approached by anybody."

The township board still has to decide whether to support the village's resolution in favor of the ordinance. If it does, the DNR would schedule a public hearing.

All the village council's passed resolution did was move the ordinance one step closer to a hearing, said Millard.

"I'm a believer that when somebody wants a hearing, have it and let the majority decide," he said.

Springfield voters may face library tax request

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Springfield Township Library lost two millage requests in the Aug. 2 primary, but the library board is considering putting at least one back on the ballot in November.

The library, currently funded through the township general fund, requested 1 mill for operating purposes. The request went down by only 101 votes, 404 to 303.

A second millage request was for 1 mill for five years to build a new library. That request was turned down by a more substantial margin - 456 to 244.

"The library board will have a meeting with the campaign committee and some township officials to regroup," said Cathy Phillips, library director. "Maybe we'll just go for the operational millage. The building is a future need, but operational money, we need that now."

The library's 1988 budget was $71,590, Phillips said. The library budget is weighed against other township budgets, so although modest budgets are submitted, the approved amount is always less than needed.

"We are constantly cutting back because the money is just not there," she said. "The township only has just so much money to go around."

An operational millage would allow the library to maintain a budget separate from the township's general fund and run an adequate library, she said, and it might allow beginning to save for a new building as well.

The library board has until Sept. 6 to put the operational millage on the November ballot. If so, Phillips said, the campaign will be more vigorous.

"Our strategy (for the Aug. 2 election) was to be low key," she said. "But maybe we were too low key."

One reason she thinks the building fund millage failed is because many people really like the present building.

"But there's just no room," she said. "We have to be really selective these days because there is no place to put things.

"You drive around and see all the new homes going up and you know the demand is going up for the library, too," she said. "People are just going to have to let go of the idea of using this building."

Township Supervisor Collin Walls agrees, saying, "They are using every available square inch of space short of hanging things from the ceiling."

He also said there was no room at the present site for a building addition.

Planning studies have indicated the library will need a newer, bigger facility within 10 years, Phillips said.

Less than 11 years ago, Springfield Township did not have a library, but paid a fee to neighboring Independence and Holly townships for library service.

The library evolved from a project begun in 1976 in honor of the national bicentennial, when township residents decided to preserve the one-room schoolhouse that was the original Andersonville School.

The historic building, constructed in the late 1890s, sat at the corner of Ware and Andersonville roads. It was moved to its present location at Andersonville and Hogback Lake roads.

"Actually, the idea for a library came after they decided to preserve the building," Phillips said.

The "Friends of the Library" was formed, and later appointed to be the first Springfield Township Library Board. Two original members, Ruth Gruber and Kristine (Rice) Bower, still serve on the board.

The building was renovated and the library was opened in November 1977. While the building is not on a historic register, it maintains much of the original design, Phillips said.

Several years ago, the library added an automated circulation system, the same computer system that Independence Township recently installed. The Springfield Township Library has 90 percent of the library collection in the system, plus library patrons, said Phillips, who has been the director 10 years.

CATHY PHILLIPS, director of the Springfield Township Library, stretches to put a book on top of a crowded shelf.

"A lot of people ask us what we would do with this building if we built a new one," she said.

There are several possibilities, she said. They could sell the property or donate it back to the township.

"Maybe it could be used for a senior citizen center," she suggested.

Deer Lake boat launch problems anger residents

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Armed with concerns residents voiced during a public hearing Monday, village council members are ready to bargain with Independence Township for a new Deer Lake Beach lease.

About 34 residents from the township and village packed Village Hall to express their views on how the beach should be run.

Before approving a five-year automatically renewing lease with Independence Township to operate the beach, village council members wanted to hear any complaints. Once they sign the proposed contract it won't come up for renewal for 20 years.

The village last reviewed the lease contract in 1973, so long ago that some village council members didn't know the village owned the beach, said President Sharon Catallo.

Most lakefront homeowners at the public hearing Aug. 8 were concerned with abusive power-boat owners who are gaining access to Deer Lake even though they do not live in the township.

"We have one of the nicest lakes in Oakland County," said Gary Zabel of Phelan Drive, Independence Township. "I would like us to find a solution together."

He said lakefront owners have complained to the township about the number of boats several times but have failed to get results. "The township is never going to limit the number of people on the lake," he said.

Zabel recommended that the village take control of the beach and monitor the boat access situation a little closer. Catallo said the enormous expense of operating the beach is beyond the village's budget.

Trustee Frank Millard agreed with the residents that something needed to be done to rectify the situation. "You have to cut down the time and access," he said. "Take back the keys, staff it and keep proper hours."

Under current rules, anyone with a key to the gate can launch or remove a boat from the water 24 hours a day. Lakefront owners disapprove since it's hard to tell whether or not a boat is being stolen during the middle of the night.

When asked, most of the residents indicated they did not want the rules changed concerning the operation of the beach and boat launching facilities. They just wanted the old ones enforced on a daily basis.

Residents asked for more authoritative figures than high school or college students to police the boat launching facility. Millard said an Oakland County Sheriff's Deputy could be signed up for extra duty to weed out people using the lake illegally.

"We have a problem with enforcement and we need the cooperation of the township," said Trustee Douglas Roeser. "The township administers the park and it's not being done."

Another lakefront owner, planning commission chairman John Stuetzer, said the problems concerning the beach need attention now since it's bound to get worse in the years ahead.

People legally using the boat launching area are not locking the gate behind them, thereby allowing others easy illegal access, he said. Also, three stolen purses turned up on his property recently, as does a good deal of garbage from passers-by.

"As more and more people use the beach, you will see more incidents like this," he said. "We will be larger in five years and so will the problem."

After an hour, Catallo ended the public hearing and said the village council would bring the residents' concerns to the township's attention during lease contract negotiations.

Woman critical after crash on Dixie

A Springfield Township woman was critically injured Aug. 5 during a rainstorm when the vehicle in which she was a passenger was struck by another car on Dixie Highway.

Diane Sue McKay of Tartan Road was in critical condition Tuesday with head injuries, said Dr. Robert Aranosian of Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital. McKay was not wearing a seat belt, according to reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD).

The driver of the vehicle, Susan Ann Kraske, 36, of Ann Arbor, was treated and released from Pontiac General Hospital.

Around 5 p.m. Friday, Kraske was driving southbound on Dixie Highway, just north of Norman Road in Springfield Township, when a northbound vehicle crossed the yellow center line and collided with her car, according to police reports.

The driver of the northbound car was 34-year-old Ann Bastin of Holly, who was treated and released from St. Joseph Mercy Hospital (SJM), Pontiac. Bastin's children, ages 2, 5, 7 and 11, were also injured and were treated at SJM.

The 2-year-old girl remained at SJM Tuesday, but her condition could not be released without permission from the family.

Alcohol was not a factor, and warrants are pending the investigation, said (OCSD) Sgt. Kim Rossman.

Secondary teacher recalled

Cheryl Mix, who taught at Clarkston High School last year, is the most recent teacher to be recalled to the Clarkston school district for the upcoming school year.

The Clarkston school board approved her reinstatement Aug. 8.

Mix will teach social studies at Clarkston Junior High School.

A day in the life

Kathy Greenfield

Wednesday evening I had a quiet confrontation with police officers who made me wait to go to the fire scene at Tra-Tech Midwest in Springfield Township.

A portion of the conversation went something like this:

Him: M'am, I can't let you go in there now. There's too much going on. Just pull over into the shade, and I'll let you go when things settle down.

Shade? What shade? It must be 100 sweaty degrees in my car. I left dinner on the stove for this? I get out of the car. Look at the smoke in the distance. Admire wildflowers. Watch what seems like every firefighters' wife in the northern Oakland County get the go ahead to bring in refreshments.

I ask him how much longer he thinks it will be. He says officers are checking the scene and if it looks OK, I can go through soon.

Me: I'm just trying to do my job.

I take a few photographs of the smoke in the distance, ponder going home, ponder walking in, grit my teeth.

Him: I appreciate your patience. You can go through now, but don't get in the way.

Me: Thank you.

And on to the next police car ...

Him: M'am, you can't go through.

I explain. He tells me to park out of the way and walk the rest of the way. No problem. Am I feeling stress? I notice I forgot to release my car's emergency brake while driving from officer to officer.

At the scene, one of the first people I see is a photographer from a daily newspaper, clicking away. Does this bother me? Slightly.

The photos are done, I go home. I call the News staff writer who phoned me to tell me about the fire to tell her what happened. She apologizes for telling me about something I have to cover when I'd taken the afternoon off.

Me: Don't be ridiculous.

Then she tells me about the front page of last week's Clarkston News, which I haven't seen yet - you know, the one with the glaring spelling error in the lead headline.

I think about taking the rest of the week off. I think about finding a closet to crawl into. I eat dinner instead.

The next morning, I dial up my boss - News publisher Jim Sherman.

Me: Did you see the headline on the lead story in this week's paper?

Him: No, I haven't had a chance to look at the paper yet.

Me: Well, there's a misspelled word - victorious without the second "O."

I hear paper rustling.

Him: You spelled it the Latin way. (Laughter.)

Me: I feel so dumb. All I can tell you is that it looked OK at 1 a.m. yesterday and, of course, it's obviously not OK now.

Him: What were you doing here at 1 in the morning?

Me: We were covering the election.

At that point, I continue to tell him how rotten I feel. It's the kind of mistake you can't explain to anyone else, let alone yourself.

Him: Why don't you write about it?

Wednesday afternoon, I played cards with a group of very good bridge players. I brought home the booby prize.

Now I fully understand why the Detroit City Council wants its own video equipment. Council members want to make a TV mystery show. The mystery concerns what they did, why they did it, and who put the pension increase in Mrs. Henderson's chowder.

Also, the video camera could tape Council President Erma Henderson's efforts to arrest someone for disturbing the peace.

It will be recalled that in May, the council asked city administration to approve spending $15,000 for council video equipment. Budget Director Walter Stecher said no, the Department of Public Information already had the equipment and expertise required to meet the council's video needs.

"We don't think it's appropriate for City Council aides to be video photographers," Stecher explained. "Let's use the people we train and pay for that service."

The council said OK, if that's the way you're going to be, we're going to stop acting on any city contracts until Mayor Coleman Young releases the $15,000 needed to tape council members and other city problems.

The immediate result of the council's contract stall was that the administration could no longer do such important things as buy customer billing envelopes for the Water and Sewerage Department. But the administration retaliated by withholding action on contracts concerning council functions. Naah naah.

TV viewers are the losers

Council members soon backed down and resumed normal contract procedures. They still don't have their own camera to tape their meetings so citizens unable to attend the daily morning sessions can see them later on tape, perhaps on cable television.

At first, I thought the council's only reason for wanting more TV exposure was to generously provide quality programming for discerning TV viewers, such as the many people mourning the demise of "St. Elsewhere."

Also, the council said in May that it would use the video equipment to tape community eyesores and problems. At the time, I assured worried readers that all council tapes would be plainly labeled and narrated so viewers would be able to distinguish the council meetings from the eyesores and problems.

But it didn't occur to me until this week that members could use council tapes to get a second (or 10th) look at their meetings and perhaps figure out what they did and why they did it, or at least what they were wearing the day they did it.

On Wednesday, the council repealed a fat pension increase it approved for itself less than a month earlier. In explaining the reversal, President Henderson said no one on the council knew how the pension increase got on its agenda in the first place. It was just there, mysteriously, like the overalls in Mrs. Murphy's chowder.

Henderson added that the pension plan, which also includes whopping raises for the mayor and city clerk, was "disturbing the peace of the community" (10,000 citizens signed petitions against it).

Meetings are a mystery show

If a camera crew had been taping Henderson and other council members throughout their working hours, there would probably be irrefutable evidence who disturbed the peace by handing the council the plan increasing their pensions. There might also be evidence of why six members voted for it without having any idea where it came from.

The entire bewildering scenario would make a marvelous TV mystery show. Keep in mind that disturbing the peace is against the law. Erma Henderson was one of the six voting for the fat pension raise, and the public was most disturbed by the council's greedy grab for public money in a city that can't afford to keep neighborhood crime off every other porch.

The climax of the TV show could show Henderson making a citizen's arrest of herself.

That isn't all I have to say about nature this week. White tail deer are particularly fond of wild mushrooms, according to the National Wildlife Federation. During certain times of the year, fungi make up more than 80 percent of a deer's diet in South Carolina. The wild mushrooms of Michigan are what make deer skittish the last two weeks of November, just as you would be if you ate wild mushrooms.

The ocean contains about 97 percent of the earth's water, and the make up of the ocean water more closely resembles human blood than any other natural thing. I heard it on the radio.

The Roads We Travel

Traffic increase inevitable

Brent Bair

In my last column, I showed how traffic volumes have increased on the roads in our area, primarily due to recent development.

I believe development will continue to occur, primarily in the township since the village has little space left for new development.

While the township planning commission and board of trustees have taken steps, and continue to look for more methods, to control growth and direct it to more manageable or appropriate locations in the township, development at some level will occur as owners of vacant property decide to do something with their property, and people and businesses continue to migrate out from Detroit, Wayne County and even southern Oakland County.

Even with growth controlled in our township and village, we have no way of controlling what happens in communities around us, such as Springfield and Brandon townships.

As people move out there and then attempt to travel to or through out communities to get to work or shopping, we can expect to see traffic volumes continue to grow on roads such as Andersonville, Dixie, M-15 and Sashabaw.

The increase in traffic should be gradual rather than sudden, but it will increase.

So how bad do the traffic problems have to get before somebody does something about it? If we look at more developed areas of the county for an answer, that answer is, "Pretty Bad!"

Why? Why don't the agencies responsible for the roads step forward and fix them? If you read my earlier column on funding, you know the answer to that is, "With what?"

The road agencies don't receive additional funds as a result of development, and the gas tax and license plate fee revenues they do get are often not adequate to maintain the existing roads.

For example, in the last couple of years, the Oakland County Road Commission (OCRC) borrowed $9.5 million and 14 communities contributed an additional $2 million to resurface over 68 miles of existing two-lane asphalt county roads in Oakland County.

If the OCRC has to borrow money just to put a new surface on existing roads, how is it supposed to come up with the hundreds of millions of dollars necessary to widen roads to handle the traffic created by development?

The village and Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) have similar problems.

There is a source of about $8 to $10 million of state and federal funds available annually to cities, villages and the OCRC for major road improvements, but these are allocated on a "worst situation first" basis, and the waiting list of projects in cities to the south and east is so long it probably would not be worth "taking a number."

There have been exceptions where new funds were "found" to provide road improvements to serve new development. The General Motors Orion plant and the Oakland Technology Park are examples.

When several thousand jobs were at stake, the state stepped in and came up with the money to improve both state highways and county roads around the Orion plant.

The county also put up $1 million. The OCRC did not have funds to participate and advised that if it was up to the OCRC to fund any of the roads, the plant would probably end up in Tennessee or some alternative location.

The state came up with some of the money by borrowing federal funds designated to other parts of the state. That did not make those other areas very happy, as they had projects that had to be delayed.

The state is currently working on ways to come up with funding the the Oakland Technology Park roads. Once again, the OCRC has advised that it has no money for those road improvements.

I don't think we can expect nor really want the type and size of development that would get us this type of state aid.

So how did we get into this situation? For years the county and local communities have worked hard to attract development to Oakland County. Most of them did not think to provide the funding for road improvements to avoid the congestion problems.

Short sighted? You bet! Apparently they just assumed that "somehow" the roads would get improved when needed.

Often I hear statements to the effect, "That's MDOT's problem" or "That's OCRC's problem." Wrong! It eventually becomes everyone's problem, and then it is too late.

Can Independence avoid this situation? Not totally, because a lot of the traffic is already here. However, we can do better than some communities have.

I've got an idea, why not let the developers pay for all the road improvements we need? I'll discuss this concept in my next column.

Brent Bair is chairman of the Independence Township Planning Commission. If you have questions about roads, you can write to him in care of The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Social rescheduled

An old-fashioned ice cream social that was scheduled in conjunction with the 'Concours in the Park' last Friday has been rescheduled for Friday, Aug. 26, from 6 to 9 p.m.

The event, which will benefit SCAMP, a five-week summer day camp for special children and adults, was cancelled last Friday due to rain.

There will still be a band, according to Bunny Newmarch, executive coordinator for North Oakland SCAMP Funding Corporation. And there will be some sport, street cars provided by Motor Sport Promotion, rather than the vintage cars that would have been on display during the Concours.

Ice cream for the event was donated by Strohs and soft drinks were donated by the Metropolitan Detroit Coca Cola Bottlers.

Independence votes mirror Oakland, state tallies

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

In Independence Township, the races for local offices were most likely decided in the Aug. 2 primary election because all candidates ran on the Republican Party slate.

Their names will appear on the ballot in November, but the winners of the primary can be almost sure they will assume the township board seats in January 1989.

There's always the possibility of write-in candidates, but to win, the write-in candidate would have to receive more votes than his or her opponent, said Clerk Richard Holman.

Winning last week were full-time incumbents: Supervisor Frank Ronk, Clerk Richard Holman, and Treasurer John Lutz with 1,207, 1,178 and 1,142 votes, respectively.

The four trustee winners were incumbents Daniel Travis with 983 votes and William Vandermark with 927, and newcomers Frank Millard, 948, and Mel Leroy Vaara, 929. Incumbent Carol Balzarini, with 913 votes, was not re-elected. George Vitineros received 414 votes.

Other local issues may be on the November ballot, said Holman, adding that the township board plans to discuss a police millage renewal and a new millage for library construction.

In the primary election, township voters paralleled the voting activity in all of Oakland County. Following is a comparison of the results.

For county executive, Daniel T. Murphy (R) received 53,904 votes countywide and 1,143 in Independence. William G. Wolfram (D) received 20,047 countywide and 220 in the township.

Of the Republicans running for county prosecutor, Richard Thompson won in the county with 36,161 supporters; Independence voters also chose Thompson, who resides in the township, with 975 votes.

Of the other Republicans, John J. McDonald received 16,037 votes countywide and 378 in Independence; Jeffrey Leib received 12,235 countywide and 318 in the township; Richard Fessler received 3,963 in the county and 65 in the township.

Democrat Barry Kraemer received 20,781 votes in the county and 235 in the township.

For county clerk, Republican Lynn D. Allen won with 53,103 votes in the county and 1,187 in the township. Winning the Democratic Party nomination was Diana Trivax with 11,822 county votes and 163 township votes. Democrat Philip Marcuse received 7,513 county votes and 78 township votes.

County treasurer candidates ran unopposed in each party. C. Hugh Dohany (R) received 50,583 county votes and 1,077 township votes; Democrat Steve Allen won 20,006 county votes and 238 township votes.

For county sheriff, Tommy Dizotell received 19,321 votes from county Democrats and 219 from the township. John Nichols (R) received 57,075 county votes and 1,196 township votes.

Drain commissioner George Kuhn (R) won the Republican nomination with 40,999 county and 817 township votes, beating his fellow Republican William Eckstein, who received 13,339 county and 396 township votes. Democrat Douglas Kuthy ran unopposed and won 19,116 county and 225 township votes.

With 2,003 county and 1,141 township votes, Republican Richard Kuhn won his party's nomination for Oakland County Drain Commissioner representing the 3rd District. Democrat Ken Schaffer received 519 county votes and 224 township votes.

For U.S. Senator, Jim Dunn's 245,237 votes beat Robert Huber's 158,940 votes for the Republican Party nomination. Township voters cast 929 votes for Dunn and 465 for Huber. Democrat Don Riegle received 389,237 county votes and 334 township votes.

Running unopposed in both parties for the Representative in Congress for the 6th District were Republican Scott Schultz with 20,124 county and 903 township votes and Democrat Bob Carr with 12,799 county and 331 township votes.

Winning 6,646 county and 1,267 township votes was Republican Mat Dunaskiss running for the Representative of the 61st District in State Legislature. Democrat William Portugal received 1,193 county votes and 217 township votes.

All counts are unofficial until certified by the Oakland County Board of Canvassers in the county races plus the State Board of Canvassers in the statewide races.

In the non-partisan judicial section of the ballot, Independence Township voters agreed with the countywide voters' choices of three of the county's top four vote getters for judges of the court of appeals.

Appearing on the ballot again in November will be Marilyn Kelly, with 18,385 county votes and 361 township votes; Richard D. Kuhn with 30,275 county votes and 818 township votes; Mark J. Cavanagh with 15,426 county votes and 253 township votes; and Kathleen Jansen with 11,371 county votes and 200 township votes. Voters will choose two of the above to serve as judges of the court of appeals.

Other candidates for the position were: E. Thomas Fitzgerald, who finished above Jansen in the township with 232 votes but only 10,919 county votes; Paul J. Fischer with 47 township and 4,290 county votes; Patrick Cleary with 77 township and 5,499 county; Paul A. Cassidy with 62 township and 3,520 county; J. Martin Brennan with 163 township and 9,257 county; Dean David Alan with 88 township and 3,404 county; David M. Serotkin with 99 township and 8,442 county; Ellen E. Mason with 116 township and 6,617 county; and M. Richard Knoblock with 89 township and 5,564 county votes.

For judge of the probate court, Joan E. Young and Thomas M. Brennan were the top vote getters in the township and the county with 468 township and 21,206 county votes for Young and 265 township and 14,475 county votes for Brennan. In the November election, voters will choose one of the two to serve in probate court.

Other candidates for the position were Hugh Dean with 163 township and 8,692 county votes; James P. Delaney with 145 township and 7,463 county votes; and David I. Kaufman with 139 township and 12,493 county votes.

Roofing projects OK'd

All Roofing Company was the low bidder on repairs to four roofing projects in the Clarkston school district: North Sashabaw, Bailey Lake and Pine Knob elementary schools, and Sashabaw Junior High.

The Clarkston Board of Education approved the roofing contract at $663,745, after it was presented by Charles Sherman and Associates, architects for the district.

The bid amount, Sherman said, includes recommended changes in certain insulation materials and a roofing guarantee for 20 years.

The roofing projects are the first action on school repairs following the approval of a $5.2 million bond issue by district voters in June.

Springfield closely parallels Oakland voters

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Aug. 2 primary in Springfield Township decided two races and set the stage for two others in the November general election.

J. Calvin Walters won re-election as township clerk, barring the unlikely event of a successful write-in candidate, with 346 votes.

Lois Stiles won the Republican nomination for township treasurer with 373 votes. Stiles will face Democrat Joe Gorka in the November election. He received 109 votes in the primary.

There is one other contested township race in the November election. Four Republican and one Democratic candidate are running for four trustee positions. Their votes in the primary were: Democrat Glen Vermilye (incumbent), 101; Republicans Charles Oaks (incumbent), 399; Margaret Bloom, 380; Nancy Strole, 347; Dennis Vallad, 328.

A park commission race was decided in the primary. Seven Republicans ran for six positions, and the winners were incumbents Betty Hull, 338; Robert Clark, 323; E. Roger Bower, 295; and newcomers Helen Vergin, 310; Tim Holmes, 287; and William Leddy, 283.

The Springfield Township Library lost two millage requests, while renewal of one half of the police millage (1 mill for 10 years) was approved 503 to 202. The library lost a request for 1 mill for operating purposes 303 to 404, and a building fund millage (1 mill for 5 years) on a vote of 244 to 456. The operational millage, which lost by only 101 votes, may be back on the November ballot.

Also on the November ballot will be five non-partisan candidates for the all-volunteer, six-member library board in Springfield Township. A write-in candidate could secure the sixth position.

As it was throughout the county, voter turnout was light in Springfield, with 880, or about 13 percent, of 6,720 registered voters going to the polls.

Township voting closely paralleled that of county-wide voters in other races. The only major race that did not follow county voting was the prosecutor's race, where Jeff Leib came in second to Richard Thompson, as opposed to third countywide. Township vote totals were:

County executive: Daniel Murphy (R), 405; William Wolfram (D), 116.

Prosecutor: Thompson (R), 346; Leib (R), 116; John McDonald (R), 81; Richard Fessler (R), 57; and Barry Kraemer (D), 117.

County clerk: Lynn D. Allen (R), 417; Diana Trivax

(D), 63; Philip Marcuse (D), 47.

Treasurer: C. Hugh Dohany (R), 394; Steve Allen (D), 112.

Sheriff: John Nichols (R), 439; Tommy Dizotell (D), 109.

Drain commissioner: George Kuhn (R), 282; William Eckstein (R), 159; Douglas Kuthy (D), 103.

County commissioner, third district: Richard Kuhn (R), 398; Ken Schaffer (D), 106.

U.S. Senator: Jim Dunn (R), 351; Robert Huber (R), 167; Don Riegle (D), 160.

Representative in congress, sixth district: Scott Schultz (R), 347; Bob Carr (D), 152.

Representative in State Legislature, 61st district: Mat Dunaskiss (R), 445; William Portugal (D), 117.

In the non-partisan judicial portion of the ballot, votes in Springfield were as follows.

Judges of the Court of Appeals: Marilyn Kelly, 134; M. Richard Knoblock, 27; Richard Kuhn, 241; Ellen Mason, 44; David Serotkin, 22; Dean David Alan, 32; J. Martin Brennan, 78; Paul Cassidy, 40; Mark Cavanagh, 151; Patrick Cleary, 66; Paul Fischer 32; E. Thomas Fitzgerald, 102; Kathleen Jansen, 101.

Judge of the Probate Court: Hugh Dean, 45; James Delaney, 61; David Kaufman, 65; Joan Young, 157; Thomas Brennan, 84.

Can't be on both

When Frank Millard takes his seat on the Independence Township Board in January, 1989, he plans to resign from the Clarkston Village Council.

Village Council President Sharron Catallo will probably appoint someone to finish his term, he said.

The Clarkston resident, currently a trustee on the village council, won one of four trustee seats on the township board in the Aug. 2 primary election.

Since all the candidates were Republicans, and no candidates ran from other parties, the November election will probably confirm Millard's seat and the seats of the other trustees: incumbents Daniel Travis and William Vandermark and newcomer Mel Leroy Vaara.

"As of January 1, or whenever I take office, I'll have to resign (from the village council)," said Millard, adding a Milford resident tried to serve on two boards in Milford but was not allowed to by the state attorney general.

As a township trustee, Millard plans to pay close attention to the needs of the village residents, but he cautioned that he would represent the entire township.

"I'm looking forward to it," he said. "I think I can make more of a contribution townshipwide and on behalf of the village."

"The village residents are real concerned about what happens in the township. We have to try to mend the fences that some people still don't believe exist. ... Whether the village becomes a city or not, I think they can still work together."

If you want a convenient way to borrow that makes getting a loan as easy as writing a check, come to Old Kent for Prime Access Equity Line.

It's a line of credit that may help you keep interest payments tax-deductible and save you money. You save with a lower interest rate. And lower monthly payments... much lower than you might expect. You can't match the savings or tax advantages with most credit cards or personal loans.

Think Homeowner's Loan.

If you prefer a more traditional loan with a fixed monthly payment and a low interest rate, ask Old Kent about the Homeowner's Loan.

With the Homeowner's Loan, you know exactly how much you've borrowed, when and what your payments will be, and when the loan is to be paid off. Each payment rebuilds your equity. And, like Prime Access Equity Line, your interest rate is low and interest payments may be tax-deductible.

Old Kent gives you choices in home equity loans. Apply for Prime Access Equity Line or the Homeowner's Loan at any neighborhood Old Kent office or call 229-9531. They're the tax-deductible ways to borrow.

Police tax renewal begins next year

Springfield Township voters approved 1 mill for police protection in the Aug. 2 election—a renewal of one-half of the township's police protection.

The police millage in Springfield is 2 mills, half of which expires in 1989 and the other half in 1995. (One mill is $1 for every $1,000 of assessed property valuation.) Since there is no scheduled election in 1989, Township Supervisor Collin Walls said the voters were asked to approve the renewal early.

Renewal of the 1 mill for police protection will cause no changes in 1988. In 1989, half of the police millage will be subject to the Headlee rollback and half will not, thereby generating slightly more money for police protection.

In 1988, the Headlee rollback causes 1 mill to be assessed at about .91, generating approximately $119,200 per mill. Without the rollback, 1 mill would generate an additional $12,000.

Through the millage, Springfield Township generates about $241,000 of the $257,000 budget for a contract with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department. Some additional money is collected through fines, etc., and the rest is made up from money in the police fund.

CHS grad fondly recalls bunny days

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When the Lansing Playboy Club closed its doors July 29, most people probably viewed it as the passing of an era. The Lansing club was the last remaining Playboy Club in the country, though there are still some outside the country.

But for 24-year-old Anne Weber of Independence Township, it was more than that. For her, it brought back memories of a job that paid her way through college and gave her the opportunity to meet a lot of interesting people.

Anne graduated co-valedictorian of the Clarkston High School Class of 1981 with a 4.0 grade point average. Shortly after she went to East Lansing to attend Michigan State University, management of the then brand new Playboy Club staged a "bunny hunt" as they prepared to open.

Anne stood in line with 750 other hopeful bunnies and was one of a small percentage who landed a job. It wasn't much of a job interview, she recalls.

"I got the job by walking through a room and saying, 'Hi, I'm Anne,'" she says.

She worked at the club as a bunny for two years while attending college.

At first, she says her parents, Donald and Barbara Weber, weren't too sure about the whole thing. Her dad even came up once, unbeknownst to her, and peeked in the window.

"After a while, though, they were pretty proud of it," Anne says.

She graduated from MSU in 1986 with a 3.9 grade point average and a degree in merchandise management. She was the only student on campus who was a bunny.

The valedictorian-turned-bunny says she only had one problem on campus with her job, and that was the attitude of other female students.

(See BUNNY, Page 27)

ANNE WEBER THEN AND NOW. The Clarkston High School honor student worked her way through Michigan State University as a bunny at the Lansing Playboy Club. Currently, she works as district merchandise planner for Dunham Sporting Goods stores.

Renewals mean more paths, same fire

Independence Township voters soundly approved two millage proposals on the Aug. 2 primary ballot last week.

Fire Chief Gar Wilson was pleased with the renewal of the money for the fire fund.

"I thought it was great," said Wilson. "The people came through and supported it. ... We weren't asking for any new money."

The four-year renewal of 3 mills for fire protection was approved with 1,312 yes votes and 433 no votes. The township and the Village of Clarkston voted on the issue.

Three mills are $3 for each $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

The millage will generate about $1.1 million a year for four years and will be used to cover the entire 36 square miles of the township and village with three fire stations, 15 full-time firefighters and 35 on-call firefighters.

To the taxpayer, the fire millage renewal means: A person with a $50,000 home assessed at $25,000 (half the market value) would pay $75 per year to the fire department; a person with a $100,000 home assessed at $50,000 would pay $150 per year; and a person with a $150,000 home assessed at $75,000 would pay $225 per year.

The 10-year safety path millage renewal for one-half mill was approved with 949 yes-votes and 650 no votes. Village residents did not vote on the issue.

The millage will generate about $180,800 a year for 10 years to be used for construction and maintenance of safety paths throughout the township.

Safety paths are the six- and eight-foot-wide concrete or asphalt paths beside township roads that are used for walking or biking. About nine miles of safety paths exist in the township.

To the township taxpayer (village residents are not taxed for safety paths), the safety path millage means a person with a $90,000 home assessed at half its market value (or $45,000) would continue to pay $22.50 per year to the safety path fund.

Substitute pay goes up

Pay for substitute teachers in Clarkston has been raised for the upcoming school year.

The Clarkston Board of Education approved the increase Aug. 8.

Director of Personnel Services Conrad Bruce recommended the raise based on the rate paid by other school districts.

Daily substitute rates were raised from $48 to $50 per day, from $25 to $30 per half day, and from $55 to $60 for 10 days in the same assignment.

Thanks to Stickney trash cleaning phantom

Although she doesn't live on Stickney Road, Marg Adamson often uses the gravel road to reach her residence in Thendara Park subdivision.

She was dismayed a couple of weeks ago to see two large cardboard containers of trash dumped alongside of the tree-lined rural road between Michigamme and Pine Knob Road.

"When I saw it, I said, 'Oh, how terrible,'" said Adamson.

The Independence Township resident was so grateful to see that the boxes of trash were gone this week that she called the News.

"I wanted to put a thank you in for some good citizen who came by and picked them up," said Adamson, adding the garbage was too much to fit in her trunk or she would have carried it away.

Fire guts Springfield building

fire," he said, adding that he appreciates the assistance of neighboring fire departments.

Wilson compared it to the fire at Moon Valley Rustic Furniture on Dixie Highway in Independence in 1981, also on a hot summer day.

To illustrate the intensity of the fire at Tra-Tech, he said, "It took 2-foot I-beams and just twisted them like a pretzel."

Wilson said there were 20 vans on the assembly line that were destroyed, and noted that items such as carpeting, wood products and bucket seats that go into van conversions provided "a good fire load."

A fire wall that surrounded the office portion of the plant saved it from destruction, he said.

Water to fight the blaze, that was under control at about 7:30 p.m., was shuttled continuously by fire truck-tankers to the scene from a retention pond on the Tra-Tech property and from a pond at Bavarian Village condominiums located south of Davisburg Road on Dixie Highway.

WATER IS USED TO FIGHT the blaze and to cool off firefighters including Marjorie Garrison of the Springfield Township Fire Department. Providing soothing water baths for many firefighters was volunteer Helen Craig, also of Springfield Township.

Two firefighters were treated and released from hospitals for heat exhaustion, one from Springfield and one from Independence.

There would have been more, Wilson said, but refreshments brought in by fire department auxiliary groups made the difference.

"It was tough on the firemen, but we did have sandwiches, potato salad, stuff like that, and plenty of liquids. Without that, a lot more people would have gone down," he said.

"After the initial shock, we're now convinced we have to get on with it. This is just a bad situation, and we'll do our best to solve it."

Grant W. Grebeck
President of Tra-Tech

ON FRIDAY, cleanup has begun at the plant that was devastated during the Aug. 3 blaze.

TEMPERATURES IN THE 90s add fighting heat exhaustion to fighting the fire at Tra-Tech Midwest, a van conversion company at 10100 Dixie Highway, Springfield Township. "The heat was just overwhelming," said Ric

Hardy, a firefighter with Independence for one year. "That's the most heat I've ever experienced. You're in there 20 minutes and you sit down for a half-hour or 45 minutes."

HOT WEATHER didn't bother the drivers Friday during a practice session on the 1.5-mile paved track at Waterford Hills Road Racing at the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club. About 17 antique automobile races were conducted throughout the weekend.

Clarkston resident wins twice

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After a couple of bad breaks last year, a Clarkston resident reversed his luck with winning performances during the Meadow Brook Historic Races last weekend.

Clarence Catallo, of Church Street, rode his Lola T70 to victory in two races during the three-day event at the Waterford Hills Road Racing track in Independence Township from Aug. 5-7. In 1987, he wiped out in one race and couldn't get his car started for another.

In its fourth year, the historic race event is growing every year, the co-chairman said.

According to Jim McIntosh, a former racer at Waterford Hills, about 100 drivers from across North America converged on the 1.5-mile paved course last weekend. Most of them left happy after the 17 races were run, he said.

"We had almost twice the number of drivers from last year," the former race car driver said. "They put on one heck of a show."

Entrants in the historic races are divided into four groups in an effort to match up compatible cars from various eras. The divisions are as follows: pre-war vintage through 1940, 1941-1962, 1963-67 and a special historic group.

Catallo competed in the latter group. On Sunday afternoon he raced to the finish line ahead of Bob Schnieder of Detroit and Carl Code of Grosse Pointe Woods in a feature competition for Group 3 and 4 entrants only. His average speed was 64.24 mph and best lap time was 1 minute, 17.60 seconds.

In his regular Group 4 class race, Catallo won with an average speed of 64.36 mph and a best lap time of 1:17.37.

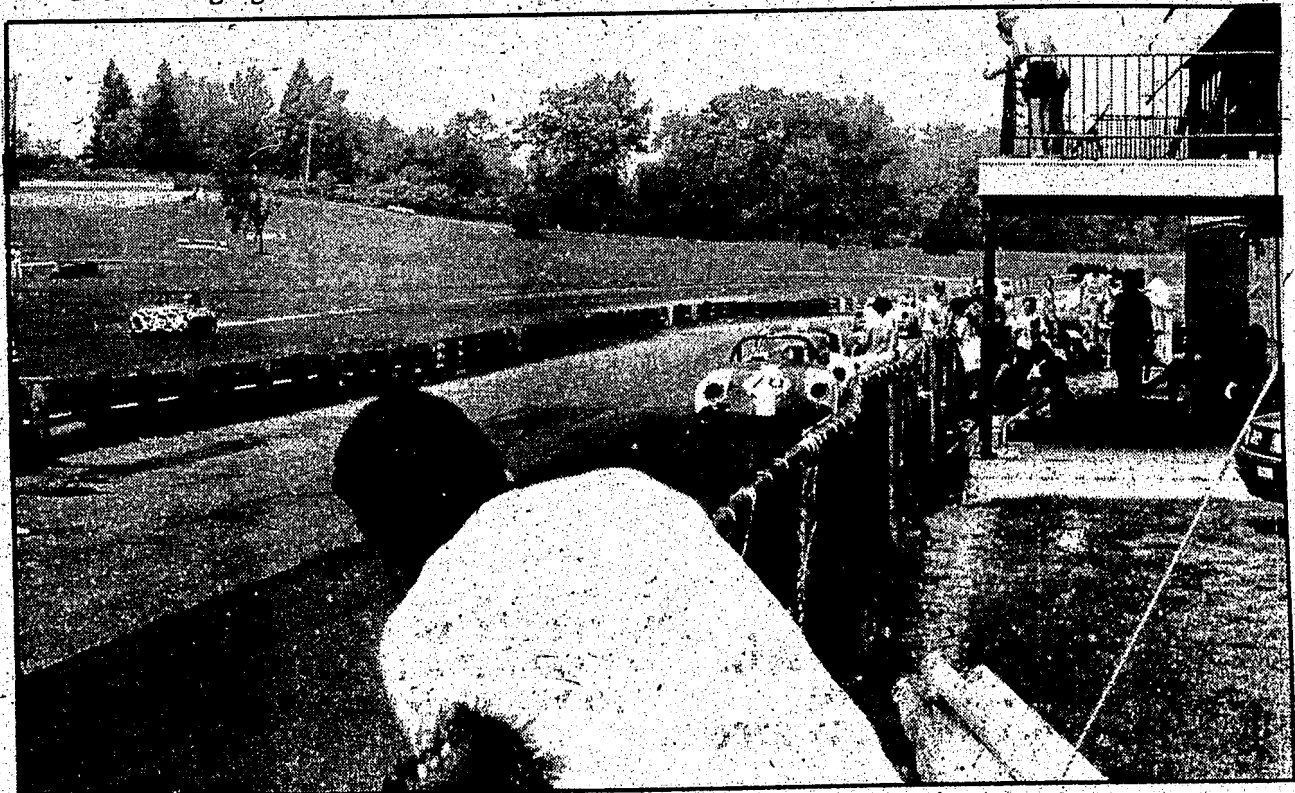

While final tabulations were not complete as of

Aug. 9, McIntosh also predicted that the races brought in another good-sized crowd to Waterford Hills. He estimated about 5,000 people viewed the vintage cars during the three-day extravaganza.

One of the highlights of the races on Saturday was the celebrity VW GTI challenge that pitted Metro Detroit media personalities against each other.

In the women's competition, Ann Job of The Detroit News (average speed 51.05 mph) beat out Amyre. (See CATALLO, next page)

Time out

Happy hooping

Peter Auchter

If you enjoy the challenge of putt-putt golf and shoot hoop once in a while, then listen up.

During my recent vacation to a little resort town on the west side of the Thumb (Caseville), I happened upon a new, exciting game that almost anybody could enjoy. It's called Bankshot Basketball.

Don't worry if you've never heard of it. According to the owner of the Caseville franchise, only 15 exist in the United States.

Well, enough on the history. Here's a brief explanation on how to play:

Just as in putt-putt golf, there are 18 stations to visit on the course.

Each station consists of a basketball hoop and an odd-shaped backboard.

There are three colored circles painted from various distances on a straight line out from the center of the hoop.

Each team is provided with a yellow regulation-size basketball.

The object (if you haven't guessed already) is to bank the basketball off the backboard and into the hoop more times than your opponents.

The closest circle to shoot from is yellow (it's about a 2-foot shot) and is worth one point for all successful shots. About two steps back is the blue circle that's worth two points. The red outer circle is another two steps back and nets a person three points.

If all three shots at any one station are made, the shooter gets one bonus point plus an opportunity to shoot an extra shot from any of the three circles for additional points (anywhere from 1 to 3). The most points at any station a shooter can rack up is 10. (Make all three shots, one bonus point, plus extra successful shot from red circle.)

Now about the course.

The first basket is of the normal configuration that can be found in any gym around America. This is a good warm-up for the rest of the game.

The next backboard is horseshoe shaped, and the shooter must bank it off the left or right side of the curved board. It becomes progressively harder the rest of the way.

Another shot requires tossing the ball blindly over a backward facing hoop, bouncing it off a free-standing backboard and back through the hoop.

One station's backboard is bent forward at an almost 45-degree angle. Another one later in the course is just the opposite. Get the picture?

I only played the game twice while on vacation (the beach was constantly calling me back), but I could have played it over and over and over again without getting bored.

If you enjoy shooting hoops for hours on end in your backyard, this new game is right up your alley. The next time you're on vacation and happen to pass by a Bankshot Basketball place, stop and give it a shot. You'll have a ball. (But you'll have to give it back when the game is over.)

Dan Ross (56.87) of Motor Trend defeated Bill Hampton (56.78) of Business Week in the men's portion of the races.

The only down point of the whole event was the cancellation of the Concours in Depot Park Friday night due to thundershowers and a tornado warning, the co-chairman said.

Fond memory maker

When Craig Kessler returns home to Moline, Ill., he will take with him the fond memory of his first hole-in-one.

Kessler drilled an ace into the 163-yard seventh hole at Pine Knob Golf Course Aug. 2 with a 5-iron. He finished the day with a score of 85 for 18 holes.

The joyous occasion marked the first hole-in-one for the 15-year veteran of golf courses. Three people witnessed the ace.

Pom pon squad finishes first

Thanks to an impressive performance at Oakland University recently, the Clarkston High School Pom Pon squad will have the chance to view the Cotton Bowl firsthand next January.

Competing with 30 other teams from around the state in a three-day contest beginning Aug. 2, the Wolves won the right to attend the Cotton Bowl Jan. 1, and take part in the parade.

The girls also won the Spirit Award and the Best Home Routine Award (for best original performance).

In addition, two girls won special honors for their outstanding performances at the competition. Jenny Davis and Kellee Duty won the National Cheerleading Association Superstar award and will fly to Ireland to participate in a St. Patrick's Day parade next March.

Duty was singled out a second time during the competitions when she was chosen to perform at the Hula Bowl in Hawaii.

The other members of the CHS Pom Pon squad are Jill Atkinson, Jennifer Blagg, Joelle Choops, Margot Coxen, Beth Demsey, Kristin Gilbert, Kimm Heyman, Jenny Hunkele, Nicole Hocking, Jenn Leach, Nicole Kidder, Kelley Miller, Jenny Rouse, Tisha Sherman, Nikole Westphal, Andrea D'Avito, Tammy Lee and Lisa Blimka.

The team is coached by Mary Jane Cox.

The only sanctioned games in the state of Michigan qualify winners to participate in the United States National Senior Olympics next year in St. Louis, Mo.

"Michigan Senior Olympics provides older persons an opportunity to compete in a wide variety of sports and recreation activities," said Marye Miller, Senior Olympic Committee Chairman.

The many events range from swimming, diving, cycling, track and field, volleyball and archery to competition in arts and crafts, baking, softball, shuffleboard, golf putting checkers, basketball free-throw and dancing.

Independence family joins Clinton cleanup crew

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Everything from discarded water heaters to used automobiles was pulled from the fast-flowing Clinton River during a cleanup last summer.

Jim and Barbara Reed of Perry Lake Road, Independence Township, expect to see more of the same when they volunteer for the Clinton River Cleanup '88

the weekend of Aug. 20-21.

"Some people are ingenious. You wonder why they go through so much work to throw it in there," said the 55-year-old father of four. "You need some heavy-duty equipment to get that stuff out."

The Reeds are involved in the cleanup project because they enjoy the Clinton's beautiful, natural appearance as do their sons, Jon, 33, Dan, 31, Andrew, 30, and Bob, 28, who will join them for the cleanup in Waterford Township. For 20 years, the family has taken canoe trips down the river.

Wildlife such as raccoons, ducks, turtles and all types of birds abound on the banks of the river today. People don't have to travel hundreds of miles north to experience the wonders of nature, the Clinton River has it all, Reed said. But times are changing.

"I don't know how many people in Clarkston know how dirty it is," he said of the river that begins crystal clear in Independence Oaks.

But the pollution problem in the river is far from the critical stage. "We are starting off a lot better than the Rouge (River cleanup crews)," he said. "They won't even let the volunteers go into the water, it's so polluted."

Last year, the Reeds, son Jon and other volunteers spent an entire day cleaning up a quarter-mile portion of the Clinton River near M-59 and Crescent Lake Road.

Shopping carts, fast-food wrappers and miscellaneous junk were found in abundance. Bottles and cans were rare finds thanks to the deposit law. The toughest project of the day was removing a water-logged couch from the river, Reed said.

Public works departments of communities involved in the cleanup and several private companies supply the volunteers with dumpsters and equipment to help remove the trash.

This year, the Independence Township family hopes to find plenty of company in the river.

"You are working on 20 years of trash," Reed said. "Once you get the logjams out of the way, it will be a lot safer river."

The cleanup will span 11 communities from Water-

BARBARA AND JIM REED are preparing to volunteer for the Clinton River Cleanup 1988 later this month and are encouraging their sons to do the same.

ford to Lake St. Clair and involve approximately 70 miles of the river including the main branch and parts of the middle and north branches.

With their sons, the Reeds will once again work near the M-59 and Crescent Lake Road area.

Instead of attacking the entire project all at once, the many volunteers will clean up the river one step at a time.

Want to help?

Anyone interested in volunteering for the Clinton River cleanup is encouraged to attend the next organizational meeting.

The cleanup is planned Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 20-21, with a morning and afternoon session each day. Old clothes are a must as is adequate protection from the sun, said Jim and Barbara Reed of Independence Township, veterans of the project.

"Wear old tennis shoes," he said. "You may not want them after you're in the river." Gloves, long pants and a hat to ward off the sun's rays are also necessary.

Volunteers ranging in age from 17 to 60 participated in the cleanup last year including a number of Boy Scouts.

"Even (working) for an hour or two, one bag of garbage can make a difference," she said. "It's tiring work and any time they could get there, they would be needed."

The organizational meeting is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 11, in Waterford Township Hall, 5200 Civic Center Dr. For more information, call Waterford Township Trustee Robert Sherrard at 334-6917.

CHS grad recalls fun times as a Playboy bunny

"They just had this image in their head, and didn't really see it as it was," Anne says. "The administration had no problem with my job. In fact, while I was working, I was appointed a member of the State News Board of Directors."

Anne worked on the college paper and served on the board as a student representative in 1982-83.

The tall, blond student also made the dean's list every year, received the MSU Academic Excellence Award in 1981, earned a Dobson Memorial Scholarship the same year and was a member of three honor societies: Omicron Nu, Phi Kappa Phi and Golden Key National Honor Society.

"I liked the job," Anne says of her bunny days. "And what was nice was the entertainment. They'd fly in really top entertainment from California and Las Vegas."

She started as cocktail bunny, but spent the last part of her job at the Lansing club as membership bunny, checking I.D.'s as people entered.

Getting used to the costume - the well-known brief bunny outfit with fluffy bunny tail and tall silky ears - was the hardest part of her job. But she says it wasn't that bad, and the club always made sure the bunnies weren't hassled.

Anne says she doesn't think the television movie on Gloria Steinem's undercover experience as a bunny "typifies" bunnies.

"It was just a real nice place to work," she says. "And we did pretty well (financially)."

She was asked, but declined a chance to be photographed with other Lansing bunnies for Playboy Magazine.

"I had no interest in anything like that," she says. Anne never met Hugh Hefner, but she did meet his daughter, Christy, who came into the club from time to time to check on things.

Since hanging up her bunny costume and graduating from college, she worked as a sales consultant and manager for Vic Tanny, created her own business designing and marketing crafts she created, and most recently, works as merchandise planner for 42 Dunham Sporting Goods stores out of district offices in the Waterford Township store on Dixie Highway.

While she was in college, being a bunny wasn't Anne's only interesting extra-curricular activity. She was a distribution volunteer at the MSU Natural Science Museum, a gift shop volunteer at Lansing R.E. Olds Museum and worked in the Students for Sterns group to recruit voters for Paul Sterns in the election campaign of 1982.

She also worked summer jobs as a mail carrier and as a food preservation and safety consultant for Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

At one point during her bunny tenure in Lansing, Anne put her merchandising and artistic talents to work, serving as boutique supervisor at the club.

The day before the Lansing club closed its doors last month, there was a bunny reunion at the club, which Anne attended.

"It was fun to go back up and see all the other bunnies," she says.

Anne's 28-year-old sister, Sue, thinks her bunny job was great. But little brother, Jason, age 9, is too young to care or understand what a Playboy bunny was all about.

"He just thought it was ridiculous that I wore ears," Anne recalls, laughing. "He thought the costume was funny."

COG survey results

70 percent indicate growth too rapid

BY JERRY WILFORD
Special to The Clarkston News

Seven out of 10 residents in Independence Township feel that growth is occurring too rapidly. And, while a majority (54 percent) are satisfied with the quality of residential and commercial development, 27 percent feel that planning is inadequate.

Residents give high marks to parks, but there is broad concern about how well police, roads, water and sewers will meet future needs.

These are some of the findings of a survey recently conducted by Citizens for Orderly Growth (COG), a non-political organization of township residents. The survey is intended to further COG's objective of determining a consensus of residents' attitudes toward growth.

The survey explored three areas of concern:

- 1) the rate of growth, and the quality of residential and commercial development;
- 2) zoning regulations and adherence to them;
- 3) township preparations for growth relative to police, roads, parks, sewer and water services. Additionally, residents were queried about schools, health, retail and commercial services.

Beginning in mid-April, canvassers distributed questionnaires in 22 areas with approximately 5,700 homes. Contacting every 10th house, or the adjacent one if no one was home, they hand-delivered comprehensive four-page questionnaires to 567 residents.

Recipients were asked to complete and mail their questionnaires to COG's post office box within 10 days. By June 20, the cut-off date, 274 questionnaires had been returned.

This type of sampling is routinely used by research professionals to measure concerns and interests of large populations. In this case, it can be viewed as representative of the township as a whole.

Further, the 48 percent response, which is exceptionally high, can be perceived as indicative of residents' concerns about growth.

It is also worth noting that all but a few forms were filled out completely, with "no opinions" ranking among the lowest numbers.

Two areas not contacted by June 20 were streets bordering Green Lake, and homes north of that area and west of Dixie Highway. Because the views of permanent residents were of primary concern, multiple unit rental complexes were excluded purposely.

The survey's sponsors believe that the results provide a broad expression of the residents' concerns, needs and interests, more so than is possible at the ballot box or at official meetings of the township board.

With that in mind, the findings have been furnished to township officials and to candidates for office. It is COG's intention that the survey will be influential in affecting directions and decisions relative to further growth.

Questionnaires have been sorted and tallied by 22 areas, and by geographic quadrants, with the intersection of Clarkston and Sashabaw roads as the township's central point.

The most useful tally, however, is that of the township as a whole. Not only are the numbers large enough to provide meaningful percentages, but comparisons with responses from specific areas show little variation in concerns and interests throughout the township.

The following findings are based on analysis of the 274 questionnaires, representing the township as a whole.

Relative to the rate of growth, 70 percent of the respondents feel that growth is too rapid, with 27 percent checking "much too rapid." It is just right for 21 percent, slow for 6 percent, and the balance have no opinion.

Quality of growth is acceptable to 54 percent who are "somewhat" or "very satisfied." Among those dissatisfied, more than one out of four find fault with planning.

As to types of housing, single family homes are considered most appropriate by a wide margin (88 percent). Even here, though, the fact that 47 percent want only moderate development indicates concern about increases in density.

Limited development of townhouses and condominiums is approved by 45 percent and 42 percent respectively, moderate development by 20 percent and 27 percent, and no development by 20 percent for both types of housing.

Apartment complexes and mobile homes are looked upon with little favor. Only 13 percent approve of even moderate development of 20-unit apartments, and 6 percent of larger complexes.

Seven percent agree to moderate development of mobile home parks; the balance want very limited or no development.

How well are township services prepared to meet future needs? Public parks and recreation facilities are rated good or better by 75 percent of respondents. But police, road building and road repair scored less favorably.

While 22 percent to 30 percent feel that the township is "somewhat prepared" to meet growth with these services, half or more felt that it is somewhat or not at all prepared.

COG survey reveals Independence's weaknesses

Four out of 10 are also concerned about sanitation, water and sewer services if growth continues at unforeseen rates.

Because of typographical errors in the questionnaire, responses to two questions on the survey form are subject to conjecture.

One, which is outside the authority of township officials, concerns education from primary school to high school to university, plus vocational, arts and adult education programs.

Respondents were able to check degrees of dissatisfaction, but "equal time" was not as well provided for satisfaction. Despite this, it is evident that dissatisfaction is relatively low, except for concerns about high school and junior high. There, a quarter of respondents checked that they were somewhat or very dissatisfied.

"No opinions" run up to 31 percent for vocational school and community college, 39 percent for arts education and 40 percent for graduate school.

While these figures are a measure in some degree of respondents' interests, they might also be viewed as marking a need for information as to what is available - and its importance.

The other question flawed by typographical error concerned parks and recreation facilities, relative to the amount of land, quality of type and upkeep.

Again, so few respondents indicated dissatisfaction or "no opinion" that it can be assumed that citizens are satisfied with this aspect of the township.

Why did people choose to live here - or stay if born in the township? Two-thirds or more of the respondents cited "size of community," "lack of crowding" and the "character of the area, its look."

Schools, proximity to work, and attraction to a particular area were important to half. Marginal comments by many respondents expressed concern that these values were being lost or endangered.

As for taxes if growth continues at the present rate, 82 percent of the respondents expect they will increase.

Nonetheless, elements that are often thought to reduce the tax burden, light industry, office complexes and research centers - are not viewed with enthusiasm. Approximately 80 percent of respondents want "very limited" or at most "moderate" development of this kind.

The last page of the questionnaire was devoted to present and future needs for retail and professional services.

About the only strong need was expressed for clothing stores, with many respondents adding "shoes" in marginal notes. Several wrote that they currently drive to Troy and Rochester to shop for clothing.

A third of the respondents want movie houses closer to home, 24 percent want more restaurants, 22 percent more book and art stores, and 21 percent more supermarkets.

Adequate for now and the future? Half or more marked physicians and dentists, drug stores, hardware, garden centers, hair care for men and women, veterinarians, and financial/legal services. Twelve percent feel that there are more than enough banks, and 15 percent say there are too many lawyers.

A consideration that seems to affect answers relative to retail and professional services is the distance respondents live from Clarkston and Dixie Highway, and from Drayton Plains.

In order to target areas where concerns and needs might vary from the total, analyses were made of responses from the aforementioned quadrants.

With the center of the township established at the Clarkston-Sashabaw roads intersection, the southwest and northwest quadrants were divided by Clarkston Road to the I-75 overpass, and that point west along I-75.

Southeast and northeast quadrants were divided by Clarkston Road eastward to Orion Township. Sashabaw Road was the dividing line between east and west.

As noted earlier, responses within the quadrants vary surprisingly little from the total, marking a high degree of cohesiveness within the township as to residents' interests.

Only in the southeast quarter, with established population concentrations south of Maybee Road, is there a little less concern about the rate and quality of growth.

On the other hand, people in the northwest quadrant, north of I-75 and east of Sashabaw, are slightly more concerned about the rate of growth. There, more than three out of four say it is a little or much too rapid.

Many of the breakouts within the quadrants involve too few responses for separation from the overall total. However, one of the 22 areas, including Whipple Lake and Round Lake, showed a strong reaction relative to police, roads and sanitation services.

Fifty to 85 percent of respondents feel that the township is only somewhat or not at all prepared for growth with respect to these services.

Another area with marked differences from the township totals is the Deerwood subdivision. There, respondents feel that the township is unprepared to deal with crime and traffic control, road building and repair. And, though they are somewhat satisfied with schools at present, 75 percent feel that educational facilities will not meet future needs.

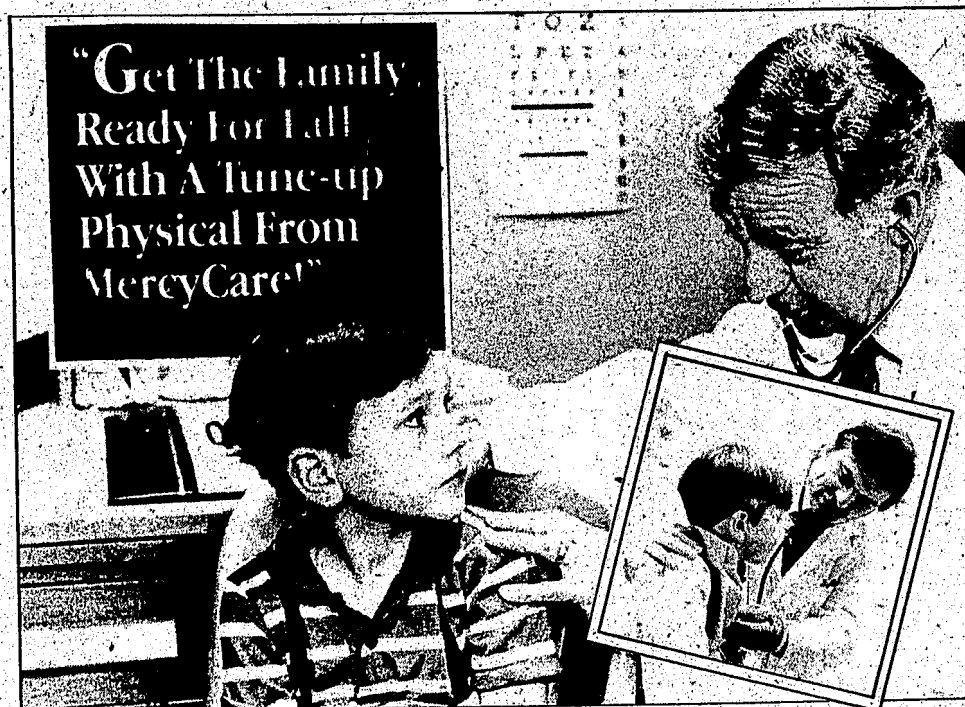

For COG members, the experience of conducting the survey has been rewarding. Canvassers were well received, with only a half a dozen exceptions.

As is borne out by the high return of the completed questionnaires, they feel a strong sense of community in the township. They also feel that a slower rate of growth is important to keeping it that way.

Jerry Wilford is the Citizens for Orderly Growth survey committee chairman.

Survey takers' comments bring nods, chuckles

Many respondents to the COG survey added written comments to their questionnaires.

While these have no statistical value, most are thoughtful and merit consideration.

Volume of traffic is a common concern: A respondent living in a neighborhood just north of the village writes, "Trucks carrying heavy-duty equipment all day long. Exceed 25-mile speed limit. Call Sheriff. Only once has a police car monitored traffic."

Another, "Village is charming, but traffic discourages going to town." From Cramlane Avenue, "We fought opening Cramlane. Now traffic is heavy and far in excess of speed limit."

Some respondents are moving out: "Don't like congestion." "Rate of growth... is determined by outside forces."

And, many are happy with things the way they are: "Green space." "Small town feeling." "Happy with people, church, new home, lot sizes - but unhappy with road services."

The character of the Village of Clarkston has value for many residents, including some from the far edges of the township. "Keep Clarkston quaint" sums it up.

There is anger and humor in some responses. "This questionnaire stinks," wrote one respondent. The entire first page was x-ed out, and then the rest was answered in detail.

A man wrote that he moved to Clarkston because "my wife and daughter made me." And a woman commented, "My husband bought the house."

Crafts and Cider Fest drops to 2 days

For the first time in 14 years, the annual Crafts and Cider Festival will be held on two days instead of three.

The change was made at the request of the exhibitors, said Larry Gilleland, president of the Clarkston Community Historical Society, the festival sponsor. This year, dates and times are Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 17 and 18, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

"There were some complaints about three days," said Gilleland.

Most exhibitors work at full-time jobs and some travel long distances, so the Friday show was not possible for many, he said, adding participants are required to sign an agreement to stay the entire length of the craft show.

"And they said they didn't really make any money on Friday," said Gilleland. "People on Friday just stroll."

Also, the jurors, who accept or reject entrants, wanted to attract more exhibitors in the fine arts. A two-day show was better for them, he said.

"I don't know of any disadvantage (to two days)," Gilleland said.

Based on prior years, Gilleland estimates that 10,000 or more visitors will come to the Clarkston Village Park festival site this year.

"I expect the same number of people to show up in two days (as in three days)," he said.

About 60 exhibitors with wares ranging from pottery and weaving to jewelry and watercolors will be on hand. Free sidewalk tours of the Village of Clarkston will again be conducted each afternoon by historical society members.

The society will still sell donuts and apple cider, and they plan to sell the second issue of a coffee mug with a design of a historical area in Clarkston.

This year, the design is by Bob Hubbach, a Springfield Township artist.

For more information, call Lisa Briggs, society secretary, at 625-8496.

LOVABLE LLAMAS:

They're clean, economical and they hum, say couple

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

They have enormous dark eyes, affectionate personalities and a knack for entertaining people. And those are only a few of the reasons llamas are easy to love, say

Dick and Jan Kleber.

They should know. They have seven of the woolly-haired critters on their rural Independence Township homestead.

Jan got interested in llamas after house sitting for someone in Minnesota who raised them.

DICK KLEBER shares a greeting with one of the family's current herd of seven llamas, while his young daughter, Gabriell, watches from a backpack.

JAN KLEBER finds a gang of interested llamas when she goes to the pasture of her Independence Township home with a bowl of treats.

"I just fell in love with them," she says.

Jan had horses until a back injury forced her to give them up. So she went out and purchased a pair of llamas, a gelding named Rudy and a stud named Trumpkin, when she lived on a farm in Illinois in 1983.

She was dating Dick at the time, and he says he was really into the llamas, too. The couple have since married and have two children, Christian, 2 1/2, and Gabriell, 4 months. They also have five more llamas.

Jan says she had Rudy and Trumpkin about six months when she decided to buy a breeding female, Trixie, and get into the llama business.

The Kleber family moved to this area from Illinois about a year ago when Dick's automotive consulting work brought him to Michigan. He is an automotive engineer for Autokinetics in Rochester Hills.

They still have the original three llamas, plus Shades, a stud male, two other females, Vixen and Sundance, and more geldings, including the newest member of the family, 7-month-old Scrapper Blackwell.

But the llama population at the Kleber residence changes regularly. At least one of the females is expecting, and many of the llama offspring are sold.

Like horses, llamas bring a wide range of prices, Jan says. A gelding may bring $1,000-$1,500, while a female may bring $10,000. At an auction this spring, she saw a good stud male go for $130,000.

"It's like a thoroughbred horse," she says.

Almost in unison, Jan and Dick will tell you all the wonderful things about llamas.

They have an affectionate personality, much like a dog. They are peaceful and full of character. They make virtually no noise, except for "humming." They are easy to care for and economical. They don't require a lot of space and they live for 15-20 years.

They are also extremely clean. There is no smell at all around the Kleber barn.

Llamas are very intelligent and highly trainable.

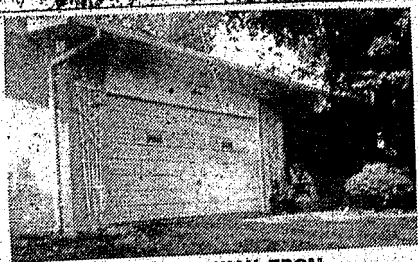

(See LLAMAS, Page 38)

RUDY IS definitely not camera shy. The curious llama belongs to Dick and Jan Kleber of Independence Township.

Kids and their canines win awards galore at 4-H Fair

The Clarkston contingent of the Oakland County K-9 4-H Club of Oxford fared well at the Oakland County 4-H Fair last week.

Three of the youngsters gathered at the Zirwes home last week to show off their pets and talk about the club, which is the 4-H dog club in Michigan and one of the oldest in the United States.

Ashley Zirwes, 14, is treasurer of the club that has members from ages 9 to 19. It meets weekly from November through March.

"You learn more about your dogs, and you learn how much spending time with your animals really means," she said.

Kelly, her well-behaved golden retriever, gives credence to Ashley's words. At the fair, they won a trophy for team competition, in which four dogs and their handlers work on precision drills; a third-place ribbon, ages 13-15, for obedience; and a fourth-place ribbon, ages 14-15, for showmanship.

Steve and Erica agree that taking their dogs to club meetings and participating in the fair are fun.

Steve and his sheltie Chip won a trophy for the novice showmanship championship, ages 9-12; a first-place ribbon for showmanship; and a sixth-place ribbon for obedience.

Erica and her Yorkshire terrier-mix Benji, also known as Puny Bruni, won a second place ribbon in obedience, ages 9-12.

Club members also participate in parades, including the Thanksgiving Day Parade in Detroit, and take their dogs on visits to nursing homes.

4-H FAIR AWARDS belong to (from left) Erica Bruni and Benji, Steven Zirwes and Chip, and

Friendly llamas make great pets for family

"If you can get a llama to do something three times, they'll do it (on command)," Jan says.

Because llamas originally come from a South American Andes climate with sparse pastures, they have a sophisticated metabolic system. They use what they eat and they don't eat much.

Jan says llamas were well established as 4-H projects in Illinois.

"They make wonderful projects," she says. "You can do pack training, obstacle training, utilize the wool, and enter them in showmanship and halter classes."

Llamas are becoming more and more popular as pets. Many people are training them to pull carts. Out west, you can rent llamas to pack into the mountains. But a lot of people just like one in the back pasture to love and to watch.

When Scrapper was still a baby llama, Christian would chase him around. If Christian tired and stopped chasing, Scrapper would turn around and chase him instead. It was a big game for both of them.

Even though llamas weigh between 250 and 400 pounds on an average, the Klebers never worry about Christian being in the pasture. Llamas are gentle creatures, and the friendliest will come right up to within inches of your face to check you out.

Rudy is a favorite when Jan takes the llamas around to school and summer programs. He is a particularly friendly and curious guy, much to the delight of school children.

Jan's dad, however, is not as amused by Rudy's personality.

"My dad is not a real animal person," Jan says. "Once when he was over working in the barn with Dick, Rudy kept peering over his shoulder. We finally locked Rudy out of the barn, and he still stood there, peeking in the window."

When babies are born, they weigh 25-35 pounds and are all legs. "They're kind of funny looking," Jan says. But within two days, they're cute as a button and racing around.

Jan says that llamas are unusual in that they are close knit and social as a herd. All will protect and befriend the young babies.

The Kleber family plans to keep breeding llamas for a long time. This fall, they hope to take their llamas into the state parks for some pack training.

And Jan says she hopes to have Scrapper trained enough to take into nursing homes and schools to do programs, and she would like to work with the blind. (Llamas are fun to feel.)

She is also going to classes to learn to prepare the fine quality llama wool for weaving. She does not weave at this time, but her sister does.

The entire Kleber family sports llama T-shirts, and Christian already has his own llama to love. While Dick feeds llamas in the pasture, Gabriell watches with interest from his backpack.

"I think that's what is so nice about llamas," Jan says. "It's really an entire family interest animal."

New math? They call it 'Their Way'

"You cannot teach a man anything. You can only help him discover it within himself."

Galileo

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Gone are the workbooks and drills of the past, and with them went the concepts of failure and defeat and feelings of inadequacy.

In their place are colorful blocks, beans, rice, milk carton scales, string, jars and dishpan tubs full of all sorts of child-sized goodies.

The materials are used by children to estimate, predict, group, organize and record. In the process, children learn about mathematics and science and language. And about the pride of figuring something out for themselves.

Teachers, themselves taught the old way with workbooks and endless drills and tests, may even learn some underlying concepts of mathematics from the children and the activities - concepts they may have missed when learning everything on paper.

The philosophy and teaching methods of Math Their Way, which originated in California, are slowly making their way across the continent.

Last week, 37 teachers from all over the state spent six days at the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus, Springfield Township, in a seminar with instructor Marilyn Bernard of Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.

The elementary school teachers spent up to $250 of their own money, sometimes reimbursed by their school districts, to hear about the revolutionary ideas.

Bailey Lake Elementary School team teachers Cindy Omans and Sharon Thomas volunteered their time to organize the seminar. After two years of using Math Their Way with kindergartners in Clarkston Schools, they're convinced that all children should learn this way.

"It's a very activity-oriented program," said Omans. "They figure things out for themselves."

Thomas said the children have taught her a lot, and she now knows there are many ways to figure out one particular math problem.

"We think of arithmetic as being numbers on a page, but math came thousands of years ago as a method to keep track of your belongings, such as how many sheep you had," she said.

Using hundreds of objects, the children actually see what they're counting, what they're weighing, and what they're predicting will sink or float or weigh more or less or measure longer or shorter.

They beg for "tubbing," said Omans, referring to the holders of the many items.

The children initiate their own activities, and the teachers ask appropriate questions at the right times, she said, adding different children will not be asked the same questions because they're all at different stages in learning.

"The child is learning the best way for himself. ... The child goes to what he's comfortable with," Omans said.

STRING IS AN essential part of milk carton scales created by Holly teacher Wendy Beller (left) of Mount Clemens and Teresa Michaels, an Avondale School District teacher. Elementary school teachers from around the state tested the new math projects.

"It's meaningful to him because he's using real things," said Thomas.

People accept that children talk and walk at different ages, but children - with up to a year's difference in age - are thrown together in a classroom and are expected to meet calendar deadlines for math and reading and are labeled a failure if they don't, said the instructor, Bernard.

"I don't think kids should have to face that," she said. "They should be given enough time to learn when they're ready to learn. I think, in school, we should be measuring progress and growth, not using pass or fail objectives.

Bernard explained the Math Their Way philosophy, begun by Mary Baratta Lorton.

"It looks at the child first, and the curriculum second," Bernard said. "We need to look at our children and their needs. ... They will learn the skills, but when they're ready. You can't push them. You wait, and let the children take the lead."

Ready for 'What I did this summer'

Fifth-grader makes solo journey for month's visit in Netherlands

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It hasn't exactly been the lazy days of summer for Michael Romein. Rather, it has been a summer of firsts that should keep him wellstocked with school essay ideas for a long time.

This summer he took his first airplane ride. It was also his first trip overseas, and the first time he had ever traveled by himself or even been away from home by himself.

Michael is a 10 1/2-year-old, soon-to-be fifth-grader at Pine Knob Elementary School. After his four-week trip (July 5 to Aug. 2), he sat in his Independence Township home with his parents, Tom and Carolyn Romein, excitedly reliving his experiences.

Michael was invited to Europe by his uncle and aunt, Ron and Martine Romein, who live in Austria, while they were visiting here last year with their children, Emily and Antony.

Tom and Ron are both originally from the Netherlands (Holland, as it is commonly called here). Tom came to the United States in 1962.

Michael was invited because he is the oldest child of Tom and Carolyn. They have a younger son, Eric, who is 8.

"We decided if we could somehow get a connecting flight between Detroit and Vienna, he could go," Carolyn says. "He was old enough to make the decision."

What they found was a round-trip ticket from Detroit to Frankfurt, where his relatives picked him up. But on the return flight, Michael had to go from Vienna to Frankfurt and change planes to Detroit.

Michael says the trip didn't scare him at all, adding, "I was glad to be going."

His mother says, "I was more nervous than he was at the Detroit airport."

There was a "red-tape" problem, Carolyn says, because Michael was the first minor to travel portions of the flight alone, but it was straightened out and his trip went without a hitch, though his luggage almost didn't.

While returning home, he was escorted off Austrian Airlines in Frankfurt by an employee and told his luggage was checked through to Detroit. But the airline employee at the counter said it was not. They checked, and found it there, "all by itself on the conveyor belt," Michael says.

"It might still be there today," Tom adds, if they hadn't checked.

One airline employee, after hoisting the suitcase, asked Michael if he was bringing home souvenirs or European rocks.

One look around the Romein living room will attest to the fact that it was souvenirs - lots of them - for the whole family.

Michael went from Frankfurt to Paris with his relatives, and he found the Eiffel Tower to be a highlight of his trip. One of his favorite souvenirs is a replica.

"We had to change lifts going up," Michael says of his trip up the famous tower. Coming down, they walked the last part.

From Paris they went to Holland, back to Paris, and then to Vienna before Michael's visit was up.

While in Europe, the precocious youngster befriended people from Budapest and Hungary, and from Sweden with whom he will exchange stamps. The man from Budapest also gave him a book in which he wrote "to the Master of Geography."

Michael earned the "nickname" by reciting the capitals of almost all the European countries.

In the Netherlands, Michael says he liked the boat rides, some of which were in the canals. He rode boats in Amsterdam, then went to Groningen where they celebrated a friend's 50th birthday. In Friesland, he enjoyed another boat ride.

All of Michael's travels are documented in a detailed journal he kept every day.

"We asked him to make it," says Carolyn. "It is our way of experiencing the trip, too."

He also studied French before he left and was able to converse a little in France. Then, he picked up a little German in Austria.

Michael says he had such a good time, he didn't want to come home.

"I told my aunt to lose my return ticket," he says, with a wide grin.

The two Romein families are thinking of keeping the summer tradition going. Next year, Tom and Carolyn hope to reciprocate by giving one of Michael's cousin an American version of his summer experience.

Almost human

David Kwasnick

Cats are a curious lot - not exactly a revelation to feline owners or anyone familiar with Andrew Lloyd Webber's Broadway spectacle "Cats."

Actually, it is this very point that the musical "Cats" emphasizes: Cats are as crazy and incredibly diverse a species as the earth's ever seen (humans excluded).

To quote T.S. Eliot, whose collection of poetry "Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats" the musical is based upon:

"... Cats are much like you and me
And other people whom we find
Possessed of various types of mind.
For some are sane and some are mad.
And some are good and some are bad.
And some are better, some are worse -
But all may be described in verse."

If this is so, then I have two additional candidates to be placed light-heartedly among the ranks of Old Deuteronomy, Rumpelteazer and Eliot's other Jellicle felines.

These, namely, are my own cats, the twosome of Old Neuteronomy and Dumpeoplepleazer. (Eat your heart out, T.S.)

Old Neuteronomy

Old Neuteronomy is not as old as he sounds. He is merely a confused cat ... who weighs 90 pounds. Confused, he will tell you, with a certain lack of elation on account of a vet and his cruel operation. And thanking to this Neuteronomy no way has of knowing.

Quite the exact situation whether he's coming or going. So inside he does dwell, stalking about in a brood. His best friend a huge bowl of Purina Cat Food. But I must confess he mustn't be blamed for this state. If you were Neuteronomy think you could find a mate?

Dumpeoplepleazer

With dumpeoplepleazer his name is the key. He is as cute as a button, as dumb as a tree. On his own he does things most uncatlike for certain. Stumbling down stairs, falling off curtains. Yet give him an audience, one human, that's all. And dumpeoplepleazer's in glory, he's having a ball. He'll prance and hop and chase after string. If you smile he'll play with 'bout anything. And when he is done performing his feats, He'll look up expectantly, begging for treats. For it is food he will get at the curtain call - Maybe Dumpeoplepleazer's not so dumb after all.

David Kwasnick is a 1988 graduate of Clarkston High School. He'll begin his freshman year at Michigan State University in the fall.

An Apple for the Teacher

Dorene Cutshall

By Nancy Van Wagner

Dorene Cutshall, a fifth-grade teacher at Pine Knob Elementary School, grew up in the mountains of North Carolina near Asheville.

She got a taste for education as a job-training instructor at Enka Corp., an early manufacturer of rayon and nylon.

Dorene is a graduate of Western Carolina University where she earned a bachelor's and a master's degree with a specialization in the social sciences.

Somewhat later, she completed a course of study in school law at San Diego State University. And finally, she has earned an education specialist degree in curriculum development from Oakland University.

Twenty-four of her 27 years of teaching experience have been at Pine Knob School. She has been involved in setting objectives and goals in all academic areas and presently serves on the school system's language arts curriculum committee.

Dorene's mountain heritage is very much alive and well. Her husband, Chester, comes from the same part of the country, and her son, Alan, was born in North Carolina. The family is involved in a North Carolina real estate business.

The Cutshalls enjoy traveling and have visited most of the United States and parts of Canada. Their travels have also included England and Scotland. Dorene's hopes of traveling to the Orient and Australia are as yet unfulfilled.

For relaxation, Dorene enjoys reading, biographies and autobiographies being her favorites. She would some day like to write a book about life back in the hills or a book containing amusing anecdotes about her experiences teaching students.

She enjoys vegetable gardening and stocking the Cutshall larder with home-grown produce, time permitting.

FIFTH GRADE is Dorene Cutshall's favorite grade to teach.

Fifth grade is her favorite grade because the children are at an age where they are eager to learn and to try newly acquired skills. For Dorene, there's nothing more rewarding than to have a child say, "Oh, I understand it now!"

An Apple for the Teacher is provided through a committee of the Clarkston Education Association. This week's author is Nancy Van Wagner, second-grade teacher at Pine Knob Elementary School.

Microwave Plus

Blueberry delights

Did you know that Michigan is second only to California in the diversity of products grown?

And we are first in the production of blueberries, red tart cherries, cucumbers, eastern winter wheat and, of course, navy beans.

Blueberries, at 84 calories a cup, are sodium free, contain no significant cholesterol and are a good source of vitamin C.

And don't they taste good? I love them on top of cereal, ice cream or just to nibble plain instead of peanuts.

BRAN BERRY LOAF

I was inspired to develop this breakfast or snack treat because of the wonderful bran berry muffins that I often enjoy at the Village Bakeshop in Clarkston.

1 cup bran buds
1 cup boiling water
1/2 cup oil
3/4 cup sugar
2 large eggs
2 cups buttermilk
2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
2 1/2 teaspoons soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cups all bran
1 cup fresh blueberries
1/2 tablespoon flour

Measure water in a 4-cup Pyrex cup, cover and microwave at high power for 4-5 minutes, or until boiling. Stir in bran buds. Set aside to cool.

In a large bowl, mix remaining ingredients; add cooled bran buds. Cover and refrigerate. This batter will keep for several weeks.

Measure 2 1/2 cups batter. Add 1 cup washed and drained blueberries that have been tossed with 1/2 tablespoon flour. Pour into a greased and sugared 6-cup microwave bundt dish.

Elevate on plastic microwave rack. Microwave at 50 percent power for 9 minutes, turning half way through. Continue cooking at high power for 4 more minutes, or until no longer battery.

Let stand for 10 minutes on a heat-proof surface. Turn out onto plate. When cool, cover and store in refrigerator.

Note: This is a good time to use a microwave turntable. It eliminates the need to elevate the bread and provides more even cooking.

BLUEBERRY CRISP

1 quart blueberries
1/2 tablespoon granulated sugar
1/4 cup butter, melted
1/3 cup whole wheat flour
1/3 cup dark brown sugar
1 cup rolled oats

Place washed berries in a 8-inch round Pyrex baking dish. Sprinkle with granulated sugar.

Melt butter at high power for 1 minute. Stir in flour, brown sugar and oats. Sprinkle over blueberries. Microwave at high power for 8 to 10 minutes or until top appears barely cooked. Serve warm with ice cream or vanilla yogurt dusted with cinnamon.

Home economist Betty Wagner resides in Independence Township. Her "Microwave Plus" cable TV program airs on Independence-Clarkston Channel 65.

Pet of the Week

MAYA would make a great pet.

Make Maya yours

A little akita, a little shepherd, a little of almost everything make up this active, 10-month-old female dog named Maya.

She's a brindle-colored, black and tan shorthair, with darker coloring on the tips of her fur and a dark face. She's housebroken, playful, friendly and everything else that makes up a good pet, but she has not been around young children.

Maya can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The adoption fee for Maya is $35. She is already spayed.

TWO GOOD THINGS come from a bath at the 4-H Fair. The water cools Louis the sheep in the 90 degree temperatures plus gets him ready for competition. Louis' keeper, Nicholas Thornhill, 11, of Holly, also washed his other sheep, Lambert, at the 4-H Fair.

Signs of summer

Photos by Julie Campe

A BOY, HIS RABBIT and cowboy boots characterize the 4-H Fair last week. Robert Keen of Andersonville Road, Springfield Township, won the prize for best in show with his Jersey wooly rabbit. The 10-year-old also polished his boots in honor of the week-long fair, and they looked good, even on the fourth day of the fair, in spite of the dusty conditions.

MELTING FASTER than she can lick it is a scrumptious chocolate chip ice cream cone from Cook's Farm Dairy, which had a special booth at the 4-H Fair last week. Pam McHugh, 12, of Fenton was grateful for the relief of the cold treat during the 90-degree weather.
