Time to be festive

The annual Crafts and Cider Festival in downtown Clarkston this weekend will feature some new exhibitors, such as a herbalist, a quiltmaker and a woman who makes hand-knit sweaters.

But there will be many old favorites as well. Stained glass makers, potters, painters, photographers, furniture makers, jewelers, basket makers, weavers, rug makers, sculptors and many others will provide something for everyone among the 68 crafters at the 14th annual event.

Sponsored by the Clarkston Community Historical Society, the festival will take place from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 17 and 18, in Clarkston Village Park on Depot Road.

Both days at 3 p.m., musical entertainment will be provided in the gazebo. The drawing for a raffle to benefit the historical society will take place Sunday at 4:30 p.m.

Civic groups will have concessions for hot dogs, bratwurst, baked goods and other foods. The historical society will again sell cider and donuts, as well as mugs and other items.

There will also be free sidewalk tours of Clarkston conducted by society volunteers both afternoons. Interested persons may inquire at the society's main tent in the park.

Vandals strike gazebo

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Several arson attempts on the Depot Park Gazebo during recent weeks have forced the village council to seek protective measures.

For about $50, an infrared motion detecting photo cell will be installed this week to help prevent vandals and arsonists from attacking the gazebo after dusk.

"They are the best thing ever to happen to people," said Charles Smalley, village marshall, of the photo cell. "I also would recommend them for people's residences."

The infra-red beam will be placed up high and aimed through the front of the gazebo so the light will be triggered whenever someone walks into it.

The village council decided to approve the purchase after Smalley's report on rampant vandalism and arson

Springfield cuts tax rate

Millage rates for 1989 were set Sept. 8 at the Springfield Township Board meeting.

The board approved 1.2902 mills for the general fund, .9151 mills for fire and 1.8302 for police. A mill is $1 per thousand dollars of assessed property valuation.

Earlier this year the board elected not to hold a truth in taxation hearing, which would have allowed them to assess the maximum amount under the Headlee Amendment.

That would have been 1.41 mills for general fund, 1.0 for fire and 2.0 for police. The difference, said Supervisor Collin Walls, is only about a 4 percent reduction from last year's rate.

Township man killed in I-75 hit-and-run

A 44-year-old Independence Township man died Sept. 12 following a hit-and-run accident Sept. 11 on I-75 in Auburn Hills.

David Perry of Circle Drive died at 4:12 p.m. Monday at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, where he was taken after he was found injured Sunday along I-75 north of Featherstone Road, said Detective Clifford Blake of the Auburn Hills Police Department.

A relative had let Perry out of a car on I-75 a little after midnight Sunday, and Perry was found injured, lying in a ditch about noon Sunday, said Blake.

The hit-and-run could have occurred any time in those 12 hours, Blake said.

At the time of the accident, Blake was wearing a white, short-sleeved shirt and bright, multi-colored knee-length shorts with tan duck shoes.

Blake asks that anyone with information call the Auburn Hills police at 370-9448.

Clarkston student count down by more than 100

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When school opened, projected enrollment figures were up slightly from last year, by about 83 students. But by Sept. 9, that figure had dipped to 107 students below last year's fourth Friday figure.

"I think we'll lose some more before the fourth Friday count," said Bill Neff, director of administrative services.

They anticipated a drop at the high school level, he said, based on trends in recent years. Clarkston High School enrollment is 1,435, down by 164 students.

Clarkston Junior High is at 728, up by 64 and Sashabaw Junior High is at 970, up by 54. Junior high figures are up partly because all sixth-graders are included in the junior highs this year.

Elementary school enrollment figures on Sept. 9 were: Andersonville, 364 (down 43); Bailey Lake, 613 (down 28); Clarkston, 548 (down 7); North Sashabaw, 445 (up 10); Pine Knob, 595 (up 19).

Neff said they anticipated a "break even" at most of the schools, but they haven't had the move-ins and new students to make up the difference this year for students who left.

"I've watched requests for student residency drop off," he told the school board Sept. 12 meeting. Two years ago, the district had over 100 requests; and last year, only 16 (though last year school enrollment, K-12, was up by 97).

Enrollment figures will continue to change until the official fourth Friday count, he said, as principals are still "shaking down" the student lists. Some students may have moved or changed schools and others may be on vacation and still show up.

The lower enrollment figure is bad news for the school budget. Each student represents $3,191.25 in state aid. At 107 students, that amounts to $34,146.38 the Clarkston school district will not be receiving.

Though registration in Clarkston Community Education continues through Sept. 29, enrollment figures are down there, too.

"We are really tied to the employment picture," said Marilyn Allyn, adult education coordinator.

When employment is good, as it is now, enrollment is down in community education. But when unemployment is high, people take community education classes to prepare themselves for new jobs. The drop in enrollment has the potential to affect community education funding more this year, Allyn said, because the state has a different configuration for funding.

Only 90 percent of the funding is guaranteed, and the other 10 percent will be made up when students graduate, earn a G.E.D., or if students in adult basic education obtain at least an eighth-grade level, she said. Hourly attendance will affect a percentage of the funding.

Allyn added that the drop in community education enrollment is occurring in surrounding districts as well.

Buy bulbs from club

Flower lovers will have an extra treat if they attend the Clarkston Community Historical Society Crafts and Cider Festival this weekend.

In addition to the artwork, shoppers will be able to buy tulip, daffodil and crocus bulbs, cut flowers for drying and hardy mums.

The about 40 members of the Clarkston Farm and Garden Club will sell the plants during the festival in Clarkston's Depot Park on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 18 and 19.

The fund-raiser will help finance three college scholarships given to Clarkston area residents by the farm and garden club.

Village seeks gazebo protection

attempts in the park after dark. Nothing seems to be safe, the marshall said.

"I check it for vandalism every day," he said. "After 11 p.m. up to daylight they are out there. People are trying their best to set it on fire."

Decorative boards also are being knocked off the structure on a regular basis.

A spot check by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department on the afternoon and evening shifts also would be helpful, Smalley said.

Trustee Douglas Roeser said on several occasions he has seen school-age children congregating in the gazebo early in the morning on weekdays. "It must be a meeting place for them. I'd like to see a sheriff's patrol then."

Should the photo cell not deter the vandals in the coming weeks, the village council may approve a Silent Observer reward program, another suggestion from the village marshall.

The gazebo wasn't the only place vandalized in recent weeks.

Last week, Smalley stopped several skateboarders riding near Village Hall, adjacent to the park. Since it was late at night, he didn't notice the damage to carpeting leading to the front door and let them leave with a warning. Had he seen the destruction (a large chunk is missing), he would have impounded the skateboards.

Should the young vandals ever be caught in action, their parents will be held responsible, Trustee Frank Millard said.

"If we can catch the vandals, then we can sue the parents," he said.

Smalley agreed: "That's a good thing for parents to know."

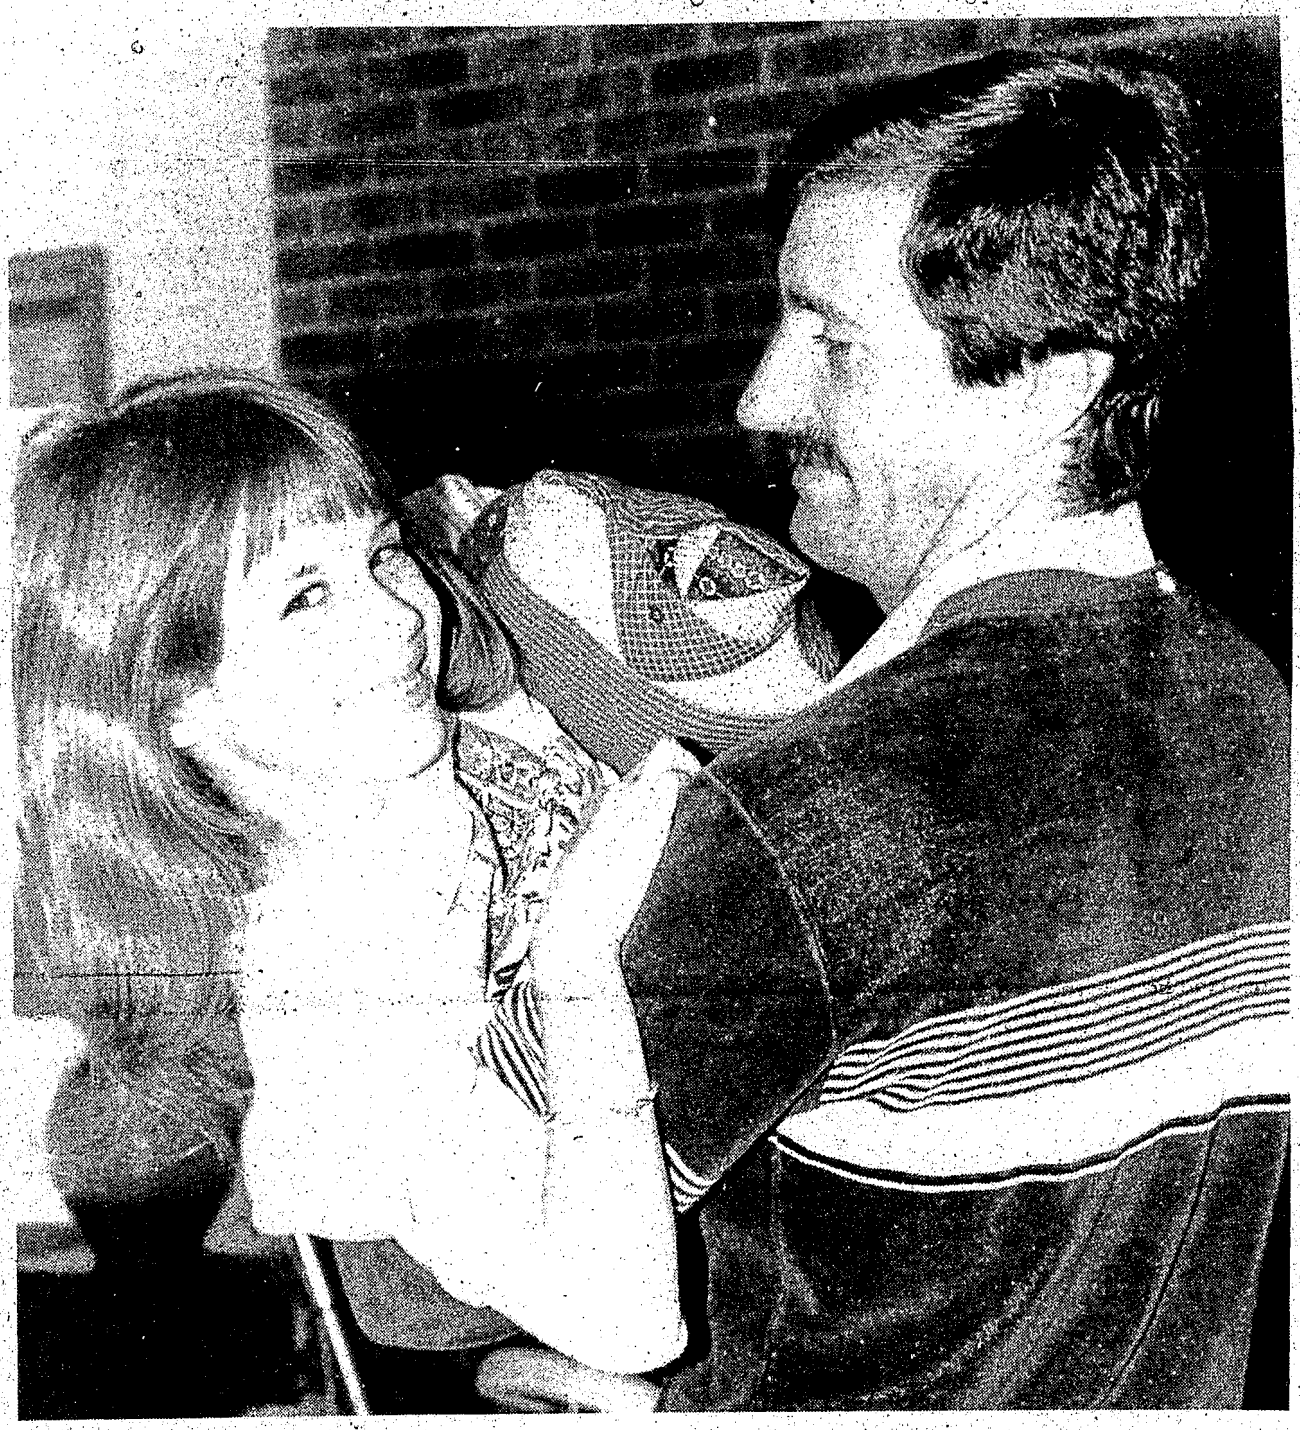
Matas family picks up the pieces

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Matas family moved into what was to be their dream home on Mother's Day this year. Problems with the local builder and work left undone when he walked off the job had already marred the occasion, but the real tragedy was yet to come.

A six-car accident on M-15 July 19 took the life of Faith Ann Matas, 33, of Independence Township, leaving her husband, John, 36, and children, Nathan, 6, and Hilary, 7, behind to put their lives in order again. Hilary and Nathan were also injured in the accident.



HILARY MATAS SMILES from the arms of her father, John. She is at home recuperating from a July 19 accident, but she hopes to be attending school by November.

The Matas' home sits nestled in the trees on rural Ellis Road. Unfinished decorating projects and unpacked boxes tell the story of family life disrupted.

But nearby relatives have been there to help, including Faith's parents, Raymond and Joyce Donahoe of Brandon Township, and John's parents, John and Clara Matas of Lapeer.

When Hilary spent over a month recuperating from her injuries in Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, the grandmothers took turns staying with her 24 hours a day, because she didn't want to be there alone, especially at night.

As they talked one day last week, Joyce was at the Matas home helping John with Hilary, now at home in a body cast while her broken leg mends. Nathan, a first-grader, was at Bailey Lake Elementary.

It seems more like gray clouds than the green canopy of trees is hanging over the Matas' home.

Still embroiled in legal battles with the builder, John says the home is a continuing problem. He's had to dip into savings to complete cabinets and finish rooms.

His job is a problem, too. A sales engineer for Step Engineering with headquarters in California, he must travel a lot. Right now, with two young children to care for, that just isn't possible.

Hilary came home from the hospital the end of August, but the body cast caused her so much pain they had to take her to the emergency room the day after her homecoming to have the cast opened, relieving the pressure.

The same day, a pipe burst in the home, causing a flood of water on the main floor and in the basement, nearly ruining the family photo albums -- John's last memories of Faith.

"I came over and John had about 500 pictures out drying with fans turned on," Joyce says. "He was dabbing at the pictures with towels."

Little by little, life returns to normal. Joyce says she has entered grief therapy. John, Hilary and Nathan will have counseling, too.

Right now, Hilary remembers nothing from the accident. She asked her grandmother what she was wearing the day of the accident.

But Nathan, injured the least, remembers a lot. At school, the special services staff is working with him.

"We all have our bad times," John says.

But there are good times, too. Hilary lies on the floor, all smiles in spite of her body cast. Next to her is a a pile of get-well wishes from her classmates in Sandy Sanford's second grade class at Bailey Lake, where Hilary hopes to be by November. There is also a get well card from the school bus driver, with signatures from pupils who ride her bus.

"I like the cards a lot," Hilary says.

Joyce says Hilary is a good-natured child who was popular with the hospital staff during her stay. She only complained once during her ordeal, and that was about the hospital food.

In the meantime, John is trying to figure out how to take Hilary out in her ungainly cast -- he's even borrowed a litter -- so she can get out of the house a little and meet her classmates.

"The school has been very good to us," he says.

Nathan has been bringing home his sister's school assignments, and they will soon have a home teacher to help with instruction until Hilary is out of the body cast and can attend class.

"I like school. I think I'll like the second grade," Hilary says, but for now, she enjoys visits from her friends at home. Her Brownie Troop is even thinking of having a meeting there.

One of the last things Faith did before the accident was to decorate Hilary's room with bunny wallpaper and frilly curtains.

"I told Hilary at the hospital her mommy did a lovely job," Joyce says. "I told her, 'You know, you're going to be surrounded by love there.'"

Hilary told her grandmother that she was going to touch the wallpaper when she got home, because it had her mother's love on it.

A lot of love is what the Matas home is filled with, as the wounds of the tragedy heal slowly.

"I'm hanging on as well as I can," says John, who would have celebrated his eighth wedding anniversary with Faith in August. "Right now, I have one focus, and that's the kids.

"There are a lot of 'depends' as far as the future is concerned," he adds. "But I know Faith wouldn't have wanted me to give up."

1 suspect still at large

Crime spree ends in 3 arrests

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Police are still looking for a fourth suspect in connection with a Labor Day weekend crime rampage, in which four Independence Township teens are suspected of committing at least six crimes in the township.

The teens are also suspects in five break-ins in Clare County over the same weekend, said Detective Steven Parker of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

First, the boys unsuccessfully tried to steal three motorcycles from a residence near Lancaster Apartments on Dixie Highway Sept. 2.

A homeowner chased the suspects but did not catch them. The motorcycles were recovered by their owner.

On Sunday, the teens allegedly ransacked a Buffalo Street, Clarkston, residence, ate food in the house and stole a video cassette recorder. Next, the teens allegedly broke into and searched several garages and cars along Church Street.

A four-wheel drive truck was then stolen, reportedly by the teens, but was later found abandoned on I-75, where the truck apparently ran out of gas.

Police think the suspects walked to Timber Ridge Trail, where another truck was stolen, followed by the theft of a tent, two sleeping bags and a purse containing $200 from a lawn near Round Lake in Independence Township.

The teens spent the rest of the day in Clare County, where they broke into five cottages, stealing two motorcycles and another pick-up truck, said Parker.

On Labor Day, the teens were back in Independence Township, where they abandoned the motorcycles and one pick-up truck.

Two of the boys drove the remaining pick-up truck to a field near Greenview in Independence Township, where they became stuck in mud. The boys fled when a tow truck driver became suspicious, said Parker.

The other two suspects were apprehended by deputies Sept. 5 on Sashabaw Road when deputies recognized their descriptions as they walked along the road after running out of gas again.

The remaining suspects were stopped when Deputy Gary Spalo sighted one of the stolen pickups and pulled it over. One of the suspects ran away.

Police are looking for the remaining suspect, and they plan to turn the juveniles over to the Oakland County Probate Court, said Parker.

Teen arrested

One person questioned about armed robberies

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After being free for two months following a one-year stint in the Oakland County Jail, a 19-year-old Independence Township man was charged Sept. 12 with three counts of armed robbery and larceny over $100.

Steven Douglas Evans, 19, whose last known address was Avalon, Independence Township, was arraigned before Judge Gerald McNally of 52nd District Court.

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) already had a warrant out for Evans' arrest for the larceny over $100 when he allegedly committed the three armed robberies, said OCSD Detective Steven Parker.

Around 2 a.m. Aug. 11, Evans allegedly stole one case of Budweiser beer worth $14 from Hop-In on Clarkston Road, Independence Township.

When the clerk told him to pay for the beer, Evans showed the butt of a gun in his jacket and replied, "Go ahead and try to stop me," said Parker.

Around 2 p.m. the same day, Evans returned to the Hop-In and allegedly stole two cases of Coors Gold beer worth $30.

A different clerk chased Evans out of the store, and said he would beat Evans if he didn't pay for the beer. Evans showed the handle of a knife in his pocket and replied, "I'll cut you," according to Parker.

The sheriff's department canine unit tracked Evans after both robberies, and deputies eventually found him in a nearby wooded area, containing a shed filled with empty beer cans, where Evans had apparently been living recently, said Parker.

After his arrest, Evans told investigators that he was also responsible for the Aug. 27 armed robbery of Budweiser beer and $450 cash from the Hop-In on Dixie Highway at Davisburg Road, Springfield Township.

If convicted, he could be sentenced to up to life in prison, said Parker.

Evans did not post the $30,000 bond and remains in Oakland County Jail.

He served the one-year jail term after being arrested for disorderly conduct, being placed in a patrol car with handcuffs on, stealing the police car and ramming it into a tree, said Parker.

The incident last year also occurred at the Clarkston Road Hop-In, Parker said.

CHS student seriously injured in motorcycle crash

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

An 18-year-old Clarkston High School student was seriously injured Sept. 3 when the motorcycle he was driving collided with an allegedly intoxicated truck driver on Dixie Highway, Waterford Township.

David Bookie, a CHS senior, was in stable condition Monday in the intensive care unit at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, said Dr. Robert Aranosian.

Around 9 p.m. Saturday, Bookie was riding his motorcycle about 40 m.p.h. south on Dixie Highway near Frembes when a northbound truck turned in front of Bookie, causing Bookie to collide with it, said Lt. Ron Morgan of the Waterford Township Police Department.

The truck driver, Ronnie Rae Kennedy, did not stop for the accident but continued and caused another accident at Dixie and Frembes, in which no one was injured, said Morgan, who was driving directly behind the motorcycle at the time of the accident.

A deputy in the patrol car with Morgan assisted Bookie, while Morgan pursued Kennedy, who was driving across a field, said Morgan.

Morgan caught up with the truck driver and pulled in front of the vehicle, but Kennedy drove around the police car.

Morgan blocked the truck again, and again Kennedy drove around Morgan's car. Morgan's third block of the truck was successful because the truck had no room to pull around the police car, said Morgan, adding that Kennedy was driving under the influence of alcohol.

Kennedy already had a felony warrant out for his arrest and was charged for those previous crimes Sept. 12 before Magistrate John McGrath in 51st District Court for a third offense of operating a vehicle under the influence of liquor, operating a vehicle with a suspended, revoked or denied license and allowing a suspended person to operate his vehicle.

Kennedy did not post the $1,000 bond and remains in Oakland County Jail, where he awaits another arraignment for charges connected with the Sept. 10 accident, said Morgan.

6-lot subdivision OK'd

Barnet Acres, a six-lot subdivision, received final plat approval from the Springfield Township Board on Sept. 8.

The new development, at Hall and Andersonville roads, has lots ranging from one to two acres.

According to developer Dave Carter of Carter MacIntosh Group Inc., all but one lot is sold. A house is under construction on Lot 1, he said, because one permit could be pulled.

The last step is paperwork signed at the state level before the new subdivision is official, and that should be completed soon, Carter said.

Police release composite of rock-thrower

Police are hopeful that a composite drawing will help Clarkston area residents identify a suspect in the Aug. 13 rock throwing incident that seriously injured an 18-year-old Farmington Hills girl following a Pine Knob concert.

Four eyewitnesses gave information that contributed to the drawing, said Detective Steven Parker of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD).

After the Aerosmith concert Aug. 13, at least four people saw the suspect throw rocks at passing vehicles on Pine Knob Road, Independence Township. One rock, about the size of a grapefruit, entered an open car window, hitting the passenger, Janet Cowen, who suffered a shattered jaw.

Witnesses say the man had a blackened left eye at the time, stood about 5-foot-10 and weighed about 180 pounds with a muscular build. He was also described as having sandy brown hair, slightly spiked on top, and acne on his face, said parker.

Cowen's father has offered a reward and combined with the OCSD Silent Observer reward it would pay up to $5,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the suspect.

Anyone with information should call Parker at 858-4960 or 858-4950.

FOUR EYEWITNESSES contributed information for the composite drawing.

Birthday musings

Kathy Greenfield

Birthdays are getting to be such agony.

Well, not really. I like the family gatherings, the office party, the festivities, the cards, chocolate cake, and so on.

The problem is that people are beginning to make little comments that let me know I don't look as if I'm in my 20s anymore. Not that I care.

For instance, one young man upon hearing that the day was my birthday said, grinning, "You're 25, right?" I didn't especially feel like grinning back.

A few days later in a group situation when it was obvious that I was the oldest person there, someone asked me if he could safely assume that I had the most years of work experience. "I suppose so," I said.

All this happened during the time when I was working on the senior citizen section that is in this week's Clarkston News.

Honestly, after the interview I was ready to join the Independence Township Senior Citizen Center -- not because of my age, of course, but because of all the interesting things they do.

This may be shocking, but there are times when the thought of whiling away a weekday morning playing bridge sounds awfully appealing.

The curious thing is that I've had wonderful role models for these happy almost golden years right now and the ones to come.

I can remember my grandmother expressing the thought that it was pretty terrific to be 80 ... and 85. When my mother turned 60, she celebrated by getting her ears pierced.

My father is always more than happy to talk about his age. In our last conversation regarding the topic, he told me he would be 70 soon and he feels as if he's 45.

The truth is that on his next birthday, which is just around the corner, he'll only be 69. I don't think you'll find me ever cheerfully adding a year, especially not during those cusp times when the decade number changes.

Anyhow, my personal sensitivity about this topic called age made finding photographs for the senior section difficult, so I decided I'd ask someone who couldn't refuse to be on the cover next to the Lewis Carroll quote, "All on the golden afternoon/Full leisurely we glide."

My father looked at me as if I'd just gone a bit too far, but I talked him into it. We were on our way out to the garden that he grows so well, and I wanted an action shot that illustrated a healthy hobby.

My mother thought it was a wonderful idea and also said it would be fun if I used his name.

So, the cover of the section features a photograph of Joseph Gentle in his garden in Rochester, Mich.

Cute, isn't he? And it's nice to know that he enjoys being almost 70 and feeling 45 inside.

Nothing to laugh about

Jim Fitzgerald

As reported here just last week, I'm trying hard to laugh in the face of crime in the big city, really I am. Let's see, what's funny? How about this: I got on the bus, put my money in the fare box, and then turned around and immediately jumped off the bus. Is that funny or what?

The explanation is that a few rolls of the bus wheels moved me from in front of my apartment entrance to within sight of the building parking lot where I keep my car. I always look to see if it's still there, although I know there's really nothing to worry about because security guards are on duty throughout the night, and there's also TV surveillance.

My car wasn't there.

I am now out of cars. I pay an exorbitant sum for two supposedly secure parking spots, but I have nothing to park in them. Maybe I could ship in dirt and plant tomatoes.

The hilarious total now reads like this: In the last 10 months, cars belonging to my family have been stolen and/or broken into five times while parked at my home. During one of the break-ins, my son and a friend were assaulted by four thugs who, fortunately, were apparently the only four teenagers in Detroit not carrying guns.

And I live in Lafayette Park, one of Detroit's best neighborhoods, within easy sight of police headquarters and a Greektown full of cops who keep busy guarding coffee shops from the inside. Another tenant of my building was so steamed about having his car ripped off that he turned out his apartment lights, put some good music on the stereo, and spent an entire night - eight hours - looking out his window at Lafayette Blvd. He didn't see one marked patrol car drive by.

It's enough to tee you off

But hey, let's keep it light. How about this for a laugh: My golf clubs have now been stolen twice, and maybe someone will holler "FORE, MOTHER------!" at me again.

It will be recalled that when my 1977 Olds was stolen in April, the first I heard of it was from a pawn shop that had just paid $10 for the golf clubs that were in the trunk, in a golf bag with my name all over it. According to law, the seller had to show his driver's license and be fingerprinted. According to real life, this didn't do any good because the seller subsequently told the cops he bought the clubs for $5 from "some guy named Larry," address unknown, and that was the end of that police investigation. The car was found later, fatally trashed.

After I recovered the clubs from the pawn shop, the profane "FORE . . .!" was yelled by a passing stranger amused by the strange sight of an old poop carrying the tools of a green-grass, tall-tree sport on the broken sidewalk of a mostly boarded-up, inner-city business strip. Looking for a sliced drive?

When my 1984 Olds was stolen Tuesday night, those same golf clubs were in the trunk. Wouldn't it be a riot if the same pawn show bought them again?

Score another for bad guys

Here's another funny thing, if your sides aren't yet split: The underground parking garage at my apartment building has been closed all summer for repairs. Most of the cars were moved into a commercial garage four blocks away, in Greektown. But I was fortunate; I could move my 1984 Olds only a few feet into the "secure" spot left vacant when my older Olds was stolen. Lucky me.

Would I have been better off parking in Greektown? I don't know. A chauffeured mini-van was provided to transport tenants between the apartment building and the parking garage. One night the mini-van was stolen at gunpoint.

Anyway, I had to leave that bus quickly so I could report my latest missing car to the police - something I can do now in my sleep, and sometimes do. I also had to report to my wife, with a chuckle, that she could stop getting dressed up for a much-anticipated concert at Meadowbrook because she had no way to get there.

If you think she chuckled in return, you are out of your mind. Try outraged tears. The bad guys are still winning.

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

It was a beautiful wedding and a grand party.

Tim and Susan Speed are honeymooning in the Boston-Cape Cod area. Isn't life wonderful?

If you didn't attend the wedding or reception or attend Sunday services at the Lake Orion Methodist Church, you may have heard about the marriage here first.

The Methodists heard about the Saturday wedding from the Rev Richard Peacock. The Reverend Rich told his flock he wanted them to 'hear it here first', that he united Tim and Susan. Egad! Scooped by a preacher.

High praise is due the minister and several others in getting the nervous couple and parents through the hours of anticipated chaos . . . which, of course, didn't occur.

Our organist, Lucille Ferrigan, who has played for many weddings, said pastor Peacock did the best job she's seen for the rehearsal. We don't have Lucille's experience, but we agree on his manner and method.

The service was traditional and simple. The only flaw, hidden from the audience, was when Hazel started to light the bride and groom's candle. Rev. Rich's quick hand saved further embarrassment.

Some might look at Susan and Tim's choice of get-away cars as a flaw. They had convertibles. When it wasn't threatening rain, it was raining. Pastor Peacock did get the sprinkles to stop long enough for an outdoor receiving line.

Our wedding was a 5 p.m. and there was another at the church at 7:00. It worried us that picture taking, by reputation a long procedure, would interfer. It didn't. Photographer Mel Pawl did what he had to do in the shortest possible time, earning our praise and the minister's, too.

Susan had to have her reception in the same hall as sister Luan's, Indianwood Golf and Country Club. Owner Stan Aldredge has made it considerably more attractive in between the weddings of 1981 and 1988.

He also brought in an outstanding manager in Victor Porto. I swear the man never goes home. His whole life seems to be dedicated to seeing that Indianwood guests have good food and a good time.

Of course, everyone is in a good mood at a wedding, and having a good time is easy. It's made easier when there's a fine band such as the Lorio-Ross group. During a break when the singer joined the spontaneous singing trio of John Hubbard, Tom Schaible and Mickey Hiatt, it was more fun.

Then there was the after-party party, when Tom and Diane Offer opened their home. It was a case though of the hostess having more fun than the guests.

So, September 3 was a great day for the bride, groom, et al. Then came Sept 4. The honeymooner's flight was grounded by weather at Metro. Ah, well, they'll survive.

Shocking thought

Your story last week about the fire which destroyed the old Reese Road farmhouse was excellent.

We were shocked, however, to read that "... officials speculated that residents may have started the fire to rid the area of the troublesome spot."

It's a sad state of affairs if our officials think that we, responsible, taxpaying citizens would 1) commit a felony, 2) put our firefighters at risk in the middle of the night, and 3) endanger acres of grassland and mature trees in our development.

The teens partying in the farmhouse were a nuisance, sure. But we were making progress in solving the problem the right way -- by working with the fire marshal and the ordinance enforcement officer.

Let's hope no one in Clarkston ever feels he has to solve his problems with a midnight torch job.

Can't understand

Could someone please help me? I'm having a hard time understanding a society that makes it illegal to destroy the egg (whether fertilized or not) of its national bird, the bald eagle, while at the same time allows for the legal destruction of an unborn child (up to the day of delivery) of its national future, its children.

Please help me understand how that same society, which demands "humane" methods of killing its unwanted pets, allows its unwanted babies' bodies to be ripped apart or burned to death with saline solution in the confines of their mothers' wombs.

Help me understand how a nation in which a child that is born as young as 4 months is considered a living miracle while the "product of conception" at 9 months can be mutilated and discarded in a waste can as nothing more than troublesome tissue.

Help me understand how the end of life can be determined by the absence of brain waves while the presence of those same waves cannot be used to determine the beginning of life.

Please help. I'm having a hard time understanding.

AWARE's thanks

On behalf of AWARE, I would like to thank Bill Wint for the fine job he did organizing the AWARE participation in the Labor Day parade.

Thanks also to the groups, churches, organizations and schools that he contacted who showed up on that chilly morning to show their support of the efforts to combat substance abuse in our community.

Special thanks also to Rick Huttenlocher who not only supplied the Jeep convertible but was gracious enough to be talked into driving it for AWARE.

The Roads We Travel

How safe?

Brent Bair

Here are a couple of statistics that amaze me every time I look at them: 672 dead and 100,284 injured. So what do they represent, the casualty figures for the last six months of fighting between Iran and Iraq?

No, they are the total highway casualties for Oakland County for the last five years. I find it hard to believe; 672 dead and 100,284 injured in one county!

Given the size of those figures, just how safe are our roads anyway? My opinion? Reasonably safe if you drive carefully, obey the laws and watch out for the other guy.

To give you an idea of how some of the roads in our area compare to others in the county, here are some examples using accidents occurring during the three-year period of 1984 through 1986.

I'll provide the total number of accidents for those three years and how the location ranked countywide.

Road Segments	Total	Rank
Clarkston Rd., Flemings Lk to Sashabaw	19	851
Clarkston Rd., Sashabaw to Clintonville	48	498
Clintonville, Mann to Maybee	14	949
Holcomb, Allen to Village Limit	9	1091
Hadley, Ortonville to Oak Hill	6	1236
Maybee, Dixie to Sashabaw	50	484
Sashabaw, Maybee to Waldon	76	325
Sashabaw, Waldon to Clarkston	123	170
Waldon, Ortonville to Sashabaw	60	413
White Lake, Andersonville to Dixie	44	538
Intersections
Dixie at Maybee	76	154
Dixie at White Lake	56	275
Sashabaw at Maybee	56	275
Sashabaw at Waldon	73	172
Clarkston at Sashabaw	37	506
Ortonville at Dixie	18	1183
Ortonville at Waldon	19	1101
Ortonville at Oak Hill	23	887

Interested in knowing which intersection had the highest number of accidents in that three-year period? The Big Beaver and Rochester intersection ranked number one with 285 accidents.

You might conclude that the above rankings indicate that we are doing OK. However, note that I have just accounted for over 800 accidents at just a handful of locations in our area.

Even over three years that is a lot of accidents, and to me, that is something to think about.

I'll discuss what is being done to improve the safety of our road system in a future column.

4 tax requests ready for November

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

In the Nov. 8 election, voters in Independence Township will face a renewal of a police millage, a bonding proposal for a library addition and requests for a library operating millage and a park improvement millage.

Not all township board members liked the idea of placing four requests on the ballot all at once. With increases in state equalized valuations and with the June Clarkston Schools millage increase, voters probably won't be receptive to more increases, said Trustee Dale Stuart.

"In people's minds, all these things are there," he said. "If the township comes at people in November with too many proposals, they're going to vote no (on) all of them."

Stuart and Clerk Richard Holman favored holding off on the park millage..

"There are other things that we need more desperately than we need this now," said Stuart.

Supervisor Frank Ronk said the money was necessary to get the newly acquired Baycourt Camp park operating sooner -- or else the vacant property would continue to suffer vandalism, which would cost the township more money in the long run.

Treasurer John Lutz said a recent survey by Citizens for Orderly Growth found that people in the community were pleased with the park system, and the millage would help raise the funds necessary to continue in that vein.

Trustee Daniel Travis said the park could serve a majority of township residents, which would be a good use of tax dollars.

Baycourt could also serve as a much needed community center, he said, adding Clintonwood Park on Clarkston Road is used constantly in the summer, and Baycourt could be used even in the winter.

"It hurts (to pay more taxes), but in this case, it hurts to have an investment sit," he said.

Stuart also recommended a wait on the library operating millage request and on the bonding proposal for a library addition. The township should have an overall plan of township structural needs, as well as a specific plan for a library addition, he said,.

"I think the library needs to be bigger, but I can't ask the people to vote for it if we can't explain how we're going to use (the money)," he said.

Holman, who supported the library request, said the specific plans could be made after the election.

"It's a question of concept," he said. "Either they approve it or don't approve it. ... If they turn us down, then we don't have to bother hiring an architect."

Voting to place each proposal on the ballot were Ronk, Lutz and trustees Carol Balzarini, William Vandermark and Travis.

Following are the proposals (one mill is $1 for every $1,000 in assessed property valuation):

Police Millage Renewal: A renewal of one and one-half mills for four years for part of the costs of police protection would generate about $542,540 a year. Township voters first approved the one and one-half mills for two years in 1986. Residents in the Village of Clarkston do not vote on this issue. In 1990, voters will be asked to renew a separate one-mill levy first approved in 1980 for the remainder of the police fund.

Park Improvement Millage: One-half mill for four years for improvements to the township's new Baycourt Camp Park in the parks and recreation department would generate about $189,539 a year. The 49-acre park on Greens Lake at Andersonville Road was purchased with a $375,000 grant from Federal Land Trust Fund and $125,000 from the township. A parking lot and improvements to the beach and structures are necessary to hold revenue-generating activities.

Bond for Library Addition: If approved, bonds would be sold to borrow up to $2 million to build an addition to the township library on Clarkston Road. To pay off the debt, the township would set whatever millage rate necessary to cover the costs over an undetermined number of years.

Assuming that the library addition will cost the entire $2 million, that the interest rate will be 7 percent and that the debt will be repaid over 20 years, about one-half mill would be levied to pay the estimated annual payment of about $188,785, said Holman.

Library Operational Millage: One-half mill for four years for library operations would generate about $189,539 a year. The money would be used to furnish the new addition and to pay for the necessary people to operate it. Some money would also be used to cover current operating expenses, which means more money would be available in the township general fund for other projects.

Plenty of applications for director's position

Forty-three people applied for the directorship of the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department, and the applicants have been narrowed to 15.

A special committee is to choose the top two or three candidates, and the township board is to make the final decision, said Clerk Richard Holman.

Although they knew the position was desirable, township officials did not expect so many people to be interested in the job.

"The number really took us by surprise," said Holman. "We've got some really fine applicants there. Independence Township has an excellent reputation for parks and recreation, and for good reason."

Applications came from out of state, as well as from all over within the state, Holman said.

Planners give green light to new shopping center

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

By October 1989, shoppers may be able to buy groceries from a new Great Scott store, proposed with eight to 10 other stores for eight acres on Dixie Highway across from Maybee Road.

Clarkston Oaks shopping center received its last approval Sept. 8 from the Independence Township Planning Commission, which attached a list of conditions to be met before construction can begin.

Voting in favor of the final site plan were Carol Balzarini, Joseph Figa, Jo Fussman, Dr. Bruce Mercado, Richard Oppmann and Steve Secatch. Chairperson Brent Bair was absent.

Conditions included marking a fire lane, adding stop signs in the parking lot, adding planters near the building and striping the pavement to show lanes in the driveway.

Commissioners were pleased with the grocery store building design, a prototype of Great Scott's "new look," said developer Edward Boutrous.

"Great Scott is a new, growing company," said Boutrous. "This is the look they want because it is a young, dynamic company."

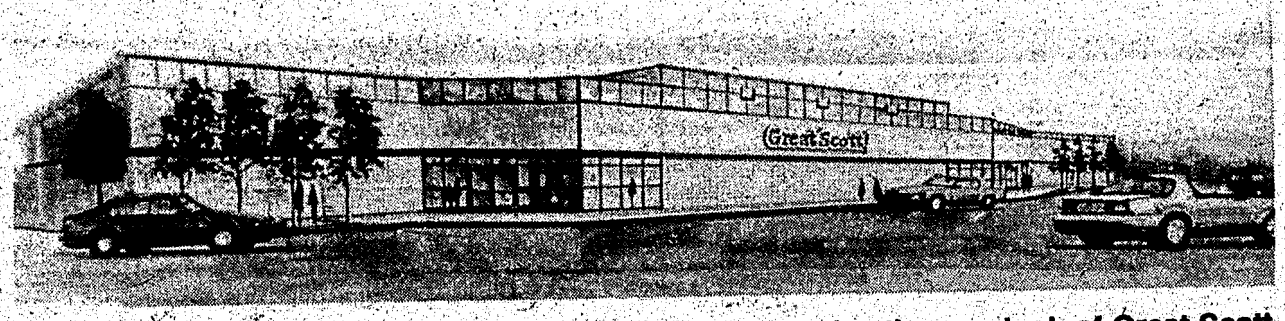
Light gray in color, the building is to be constructed of masonry and glass, with a horizontal red accent stripe around the building and simulated plaster material in front. The previous design called for a red awning, disliked by commissioners.

"I'm very pleased to see the awning go by the wayside," said Oppmann. "The front of the building does look better."

The landscaping, consisting of a berm, tall shade trees and flowering trees, also drew compliments.

"The combination of all these things is going to provide a very nice entry and a nice look along Dixie Highway," said Richard Carlisle, township planning consultant.

"It sets a (good) example for the township," said Mercado. "I'm happy about that. It shows good faith from Great Scott."



AN ARCHITECT'S RENDERING of Clarkston Oaks shopping center shows a horizontal red stripe around the 42,000-square-foot building, illustrating the new look of Great Scott grocery stores. Eight to 10 other retail stores are to fill the Dixie Highway complex.

The 72,000-square-foot center on the west side of Dixie Highway is to provide 42,000 square feet for Great Scott plus 30,000 square feet for other retail stores.

Boutrous also developed Harvard Plaza, the Kroger shopping center on Dixie Highway in Waterford Township. His partner, James Macksey, is currently developing phase three of Deerwood subdivision on M-15 in Independence Township.

Mall, home sites win rezoning OKs

A shopping center and a few houses are planned for two areas in Independence Township that were rezoned Sept. 12.

With no discussion at the second readings, the board unanimously adopted each of the rezonings.

For the 6.12 acres on M-15 between Northview Drive and I-75, a planned unit development (PUD) zoning was OK'd for Independence Pointe shopping center.

A PUD is a rezoning of a parcel of land in accordance with a specific site plan. It allows different uses on one site and requires approvals from the planning commission and the township board.

The new PUD is a change from the former zonings of planned shopping center and single family residential.

Developer John Poponea plans three structures in the shopping center: a two-story, 19,850-square-foot medical office; and two 9,450-square-foot buildings for retail use.

The other rezoning changed the use of about four acres on Indianwood Road from rural residential (three-acre lot minimum) to suburban residential (33,000-square-foot lot minimum).

Developer Donna Stephens plans to divide the parcel into three 1.3-acre sites and build and sell houses on them.

Firefighters enhance equipment of 2 sorts

Two additions to the fire department could help firefighters protect themselves and more efficiently save accident victims.

A $4,000 computer software package, approved unanimously by the Independence Township Board Sept. 6, will satisfy firefighters' "right to know," said Fire Marshal Gordon Mason.

Firefighters have a right to know where hazardous materials are used and if the business consistently violates fire protection laws, he said. With the computer, the information would be readily available in the event of a building fire and help prevent exposure to toxic fumes or other hazards.

Purchased from Curtis-Wilson Computer Corp., Waterford, the software will track any property entered for such information as hazardous materials, inspections and violations.

A set of Rams -- hydraulic tools powered from the same system that powers shears and Jaws of Life -- will allow firefighters to lift a smashed dash off an automobile accident victim, said Fire Chief Gar Wilson.

"With the smaller cars we're running into today, we're finding it comes down on people's legs," he said.

"With jaws, you've got to be so careful around people's legs (or you'll hurt them). With this, you can to go right in between their legs and push it right up," he said.

The $3,450 purchase from RDB Enterprise, Fraser, was approved unanimously by the township board.

No parole for Springfield murderer

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

In all likelihood, Jerry Strickland will never reside outside of prison again in his life.

The former Springfield Township resident was sentenced Sept. 9 in Oakland County Circuit Court to two life sentences in prison for the robbery, kidnapping and shotgun slaying of Elmer DeBoer, a courier for a Waterford Township Union 76 Gas Station.

Strickland, 28, was convicted Aug. 22 of first degree felony murder, which carries a mandatory natural life sentence -- no possibility of parole, said Charles Spiekerman, assistant prosecuting attorney.

Only a pardon or commutation by the governor could let Strickland out from behind bars, said Spiekerman.

Strickland was also found guilty of kidnapping and robbery and was sentenced to another life sentence, in which he could be eligible for parole after 10 years.

"He'll either be there for the rest of his life or he'll be very old when he gets out," said Spiekerman. "It was a justified sentence. He totally wasted a human life for almost no reason."

Even afterward, Strickland showed he deserved the sentence, Spiekerman said.

"He showed no remorse. He was, in fact, a cold-blooded killer," he said.

Strickland was found guilty of robbing DeBoer of about $11,000 when DeBoer stopped at the Dixie Highway gas station near Andersonville Road on his regular courier route.

DeBoer was then taken to a Rose Township field, handcuffed, and killed, execution-style.

A nationwide search ensued for Strickland and his girlfriend, Melissa Munday, who is to be tried in Oakland County Probate Court for her connection with the crime.

The couple were found with their infant son in Moses Lake, Wash., after the NBC-TV program "Unsolved Mysteries" outlined the circumstances of the crimes and showed photographs of Strickland and Munday.

Munday, 18, was a minor at the time of the May 12, 1987, crimes. She and Strickland now have two children.

EVER SINCE . . .

People often use this phrase in regard to their health. "I've been feeling bad ever since I moved the piano"

Many illnesses can be traced to some strain or injury to the spine . . . a fall, an accident . . . that seemed insignificant at the time. But there is a connection. All bodily functions are controlled through the nervous system. The spine encases the spinal cord and all nerve trunks stem from there. A sudden strain on the spine may slip a vertebrae out of normal position and thus irritate vital nerves. We are experts at restoring vertebrae to their normal position which causes a return to normal function and health. Here's a testimonial from a satisfied Clarkston customer:

Throughout the years, I've been to 4 different programs trying to loose weight. I lost weight but never have been able to keep off the weight. The difference that I have found at NEW LIFE WEIGHT CONTROL CENTRE is not only have I lost the weight, I have learned a new way of properly eating to maintain my weight loss. I also received the support and confidence to stick with the program FOREVER.

The program is very easy to follow - you don't have to cook one meal for your family and a separate one for yourself. Because of this wonderful program and the continual support of the staff, I've even lost 1½ pounds recently while on vacation in Florida. It really works!

Even though my maintenance program is over, I still feel free to check in. This constant reminder helps me keep on top of things so pounds don't start creeping up. I stop by also because I need them for their support and enjoy their company.

27 site condominiums on tap for Eliza Lake

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A new development on Eliza Lake in Springfield Township received a special use request, but a specific site plan is on hold until next month's township board meeting.

Developers Marvin Gottlieb, Marvin Heidenrich and Jeanne Moore Mair asked the board for approval of the proposal as a site condominium, under the Michigan Condominium Act, and as a cluster development.

Gottlieb and Mair, with Del Lohff of Kieft Engineering, were on hand when the board approved the special use request. But the board tabled the site plan until next month, until what Supervisor Collin Walls described as "90 percent technicalities" are cleared up.

Though the plan was tabled, board members agreed it will be an asset to the community.

"I was delighted when Springfield Township passed this new ordinance (allowing cluster options) last year," said Mair in a later interview. "It's good for unusual, beautiful land that you don't want to pull apart. It leaves common ground for the purpose of all."

Another good thing, she added, is they will not have to strike a 90-foot right-of-way for roads, "cutting down a swath of trees" at Osprey Bay. Instead, the private roads need only half the space, but they will be built to county road commission specifications.

Osprey Bay is on the north side of Eliza Lake, west of I-75 between Rattalee Lake Road and Davisburg Road. The area is sloping, with a southern exposure, Mair said, adding that they are cleaning and dredging the lake.

The developers plan 15 lakefront lots for single family residences. The ratio of land to house will be 1.5 acres, but not all the houses will be on that much land, she said. Due to the topography, there will be "common ground."

Minimums for the single family residences will be 2,000 square feet for ranches and 2,500 square feet for other style homes.

In addition, there will be six lakeview sites with two attached dwellings per site. These will be 1,600-square-foot minimums on each side, or 3,200 per building.

"There will be strong restrictions on all sites," Mair said.

The sites may be purchased by individuals or builders, but all will be under one association. Because purchasers will all build individually, the homes will not look alike.

Most of the technicalities to be cleared up deal with the master plan and not the layout. For instance, the township wants to ensure proper maintenance of drainage, etc. The township will perform the work if the association does not and will charge the association.

Attorneys Andrew Paterson of Troy and Gilbert Rubenstien of Flint are working on the Osprey Bay development.

"Building could begin on three sites immediately," Mair said, "And we are taking options on all of the sites now."

Banners back over Main St.

Thanks to the work of two Detroit Edison officials banners can once again hang within the village limits over Main Street.

After a Clarkston Community Education banner blew off its moorings on the corner of Main and Church streets downtown twice in late August damaging Edison's light post, banners were banned from the poles on the corner of Main and Church streets.

In an effort to continue serving the community, Edison installed two wooden poles south of Waldon Road on Main Street Sept. 8 just in time to hang the banner for the annual Crafts and Cider Festival this weekend, said village clerk Norma Goyette.

"They promised it would be up by the 8th and they did it," she said. "They put up guide wires for the banners and lines (to support the poles) and made it high enough for truck traffic."

Edison employees Ralph Mertz and Paul Normanden worked on finding a feasible solution for Clarkston's banner problem right from the start, she added.

Village president Sharron Catallo said the Crafts and Cider banner has enough air holes cut into it to help it withstand high winds better than most others.

"That's a perfect example for others," she said.

Fire forces Baldwin Road IGA to close doors

BY CHARLOTTE WALL
Lake Orion Review Editor

Although the store was closed Monday, the telephone line was in place, and several employees were working inside the Baldwin Road IGA store in the southwest portion of Orion Township Monday.

A fire that took place around 4 p.m. last Wednesday afternoon (Sept. 7) at Neumaier's IGA has closed the store for about four weeks, said Al Neumaier, who with his wife, Marilyn, owns and operates the super market.

There were no injuries to workers at the construction site, employees at the store, customers or firefighters, said Orion Township Fire Department Chief Jeff Key.

According to Key, the fire started when welding equipment that was being used on the roof of the store ignited insulation in the attic.

An addition was being constructed to the store at the time of the blaze, and Key said that the welder was working on the portion of the building where the new and old abuts.

He said that the store had not been gutted, but that severe smoke and water damage would most likely mean that all foodstuff would have to be thrown out. He said the Health Department was being called to the site.

Monday Neumaier said that all merchandise in the store - food, paper products, gift items, books - would have to be removed.

"The Michigan Department of Agriculture comes in and says what must go," said Neumaier.

Employees at the store were sorting through water-soaked debris and setting aside the merchandise for disposal Monday.

At the time of the fire, Key said that three OTFD fire stations, No. 1, 2 and 3 had been called to the scene, as well as firefighters from Independence and Oxford townships. He explained that a possible need for water was the reason for the extra firefighting personnel.

"Independence brought a 3,000-gallon tank, and Oxford brought two tanks," he said.

After the blaze was extinguished, the firefighters were busy inside the building picking up singed, and water-soaked ceiling tiles.

"We try to limit the damage from water at the property," said Key. He added that the store's emergency sprinkling system had been activated during the fire.

Neumaier said that the store was completely covered by insurance. He added that the construction of the addition and the repair of the current building would probably coincide in about four weeks.

"At that time, everything will be brand, spankin' new," he said. "We will have redecorated, we'll have all new merchandise; we hope to open both parts at the same time."

Neumaier praised the work of the fire departments that answered the call. "The fire departments were excellent," he said. "Very professional."

Neumaier said that it was his understanding that the additional departments had been called as a precautionary measure in case extra water was needed.

"We were very fortunate," he said. "It was a flash fire that damaged ceiling tiles and we have smoke and water damage, but did not damage the structure. And, no one was injured.

"Thank, God," said Neumaier as he returned to sorting through the rubble.

GROCERY CARTS stand in water as papers and other debris float by. All the contents of Neumaier's IGA on Baldwin Road had to be removed; nothing could be salvaged.

Wolves 30, Saginaw Heritage 0

Sept. 8 -- Jerrod Johnson scored two touchdowns, the offense racked up 463 total yards and Ken Clark registered a safety as the Wolves rolled to their second straight victory of the season.

Johnson opened the scoring with a 1-yard plunge in the first half. David Marks kicked the extra point. The score was set up by a 35-yard pass play from Dugan Fife to Darren Masters.

Davis hit paydirt off a 35-yard screen pass from Fife later in the half. Marks connected on the extra-point conversion to make it a 14-0 lead.

Johnson scored to open the second half on a 3-yard run. Marks once again added the point-after attempt to bump Clarkston's lead up to 21-0.

Ken Clark picked up a safety for Clarkston to push the score to 23-0.

Mike Herban closed out the scoring with a great second-effort on a 8-yard touchdown run. Marks split the uprights for the point-after to finish a perfect 4-for-4 in the kicking department.

Davis rushed for 114 yards on 10 carries an Fife completed 6-of-9 passes for 110 yards and one touchdown to lead the offense.

"Everybody is playing hard," said Coach John Craven. "I'm really pleased. The defense has allowed only six points in two games."

Wolves rebound to top Rochester Adams

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After two losses by more than 20 points apiece, Clarkston's girls basketball team desperately needed a victory to boost morale.

Host Rochester Adams proved to be gracious hosts and provided the Wolves with a lift -- a 57--45 victory for Clarkston.

Susan McKoin paced the victors with 22 points. Rhonda Jokisch added nine, and Jenny McChesney chipped in with eight.

Although the point total was the team's highest in its first four games, rebounding was the key for Clarkston, said Coach Larry Mahrle.

"Rhonda (Jokisch) boarded real well," he said.

The Wolves jumped out in front 6-3 midway through the opening quarter. Later in the stanza, Adams pulled ahead by a point.

The teams traded baskets during the waning seconds of the opening quarter with Clarkston's McChesney sinking the final shot to put her club out in front 15-14 after eight minutes of play. Her bucket sparked a 12-2 scoring run for the Wolves that put them comfortably in front for good.

Jodi Lopucki finished off the scoring in the first half with a bucket to extend Clarkston's lead to 34-22.

Both teams experienced problems in the second half. Adams played well but couldn't overcome the huge halftime deficit. The closest the Highlanders got to the lead was seven points.

"It wasn't pretty, but it was a win," said Mahrle. "I liked the effort the girls gave. They went after it."

The victory evens the team's record at 2-2. Clarkston still must face another tough foe in Flint Northwest (Sept. 15) before the Greater Oakland Activities League schedule gets under way Sept. 20 at home against Brandon.

Despite the slow start, Mahrle believes his charges can handle the rough and tough GOAL opponents that lie ahead.

"We are getting better with each game," he said. "Our goal is still to win the GOAL."

Host Swartz Creek whipped the Wolves Sept. 6, 54-33. McKoin was the leading scorer with nine points.

Wolverines beat rival Sashabaw in junior high football battle

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Nerves played a vital role in the bi-annual junior high football clash between Clarkston and Sashabaw. One team harnessed its emotions and won, the other couldn't and lost.

Both teams ran onto the Clarkston High School gridiron pumped up higher than the hot air balloons ascending from a nearby field and ready to claim victory at any cost in the first installment of the season series.

Clarkston Junior High remained calm and determined in its efforts to down the Cougars, and it paid off with a 30-8 victory.

"We were nervous but we turned it into intensity," said guard/linebacker Mark White, who led the victors in tackles.

Sashabaw, on the other hand, remained high in the sky emotionally long after the opening kickoff and suffered for it.

"I think we were a little overconfident," said Cougars' first-year coach Mike Stefanski. "They hammered us."

Sashabaw started the game out with a long drive behind the powerful running of Kevin Heidisch, but lost the ball on a fumble at the Clarkston 24-yard line. Dan Griffiths recovered the ball for the Wolverines.

Time out

Shooting for three

Peter Auchter

Three fingers stabbed into the cool night air. The Clarkston Junior High football team listened intently to the coaches after an emotional victory over cross-town rival Sashabaw, getting more and more pumped up every passing moment.

Cool weather normally associated with late fall returned just in time for the first installment of the annual Clarkston-Sashabaw extravaganza last week.

Some unprepared fools who decided against bringing jackets (me included) suffered a bit, but that's another story.

People from all walks of life filled the stands at the high school, eagerly anticipating the upcoming action on the gridiron. There probably were more interested fans in the stands then at a Detroit Lions football game.

The players, just as the above mentioned Lions, didn't disappoint. Oh sure, the Sashabaw side wasn't too happy with the outcome, but that's the ugly side to sports -- one side has to lose.

It could have been worse. For example, a last-second loss on a 100-yard kickoff return really would have hurt. Losses like that stick in your gut longer than Mom's liver and onion dinners.

Let's look toward the positive, not negative. Nobody likes a party pooper or a messenger sending bad news.

On the bright side, the Clarkston Wolverines emerged victorious behind a strong running game, marking the second straight week the team won.

Considering the awful tailspin the team went through last season (two wins), it doesn't take a rocket scientist to figure out why the players, coaches and fans on the Wolverines' side of the field were so darn happy.

Everybody likes to win once in a while. Now the team is taking a stab at three victories in a row.

Before, and during the game, fans showed off their cheering skills in a variety of ways. Most lacked originality -- how many ways can you say "Win the game!" without getting vulgar -- but they still got the message across.

Posters were plastered against the fencing in front of the respective bleachers, proudly proclaiming allegiance to one junior high. Cheerleaders screamed, "Cream the green!"

For some reason, I thought this was going to be just another game. I was wrong.

Oh well, there always will be tomorrow. And I'll bet the coaching crew over at Sashabaw has more than enough incentive from the 30-8 loss to fire up the Cougars for the next battle on Oct. 26, the final game of the season.

Maybe I'll outfit myself in army fatigues for that one. It should be a real doozie.

Maybe the coaches will be counting the victories with both hands by then -- for the Wolverines as well as the Cougars.

We want to hear your story ideas!

First-quarter fireworks shock football team

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Fans who missed the opening quarter of the Clarkston-Saginaw Heritage football game Friday night might as well have turned around and gone home.

Not only did almost all of the scoring occur during the first 12 minutes, but starting quarterback Dane Davis left with a season-ending injury.

The Heritage Hawks, a team combining the talents of Eisenhower and McArthur high schools, escaped with a 22-14 victory -- much to the relief of their coach, Mel Skillman.

"It was kind of scary," he said. "I was nervous because we didn't have the same intensity (as the week before)."

Even a 92-yard run around left end by Jon Halstead for a touchdown on the first play from scrimmage by the Hawks didn't settle Skillman's stomach.

"That was a fluke," he said. "It's a cheap one that doesn't count."

Although he didn't consider it a score, everybody else did and the Hawks were up 6-0 just 39 seconds into the game.

Darrin Brandt excited the home crowd on the next play when he returned the kickoff to the Saginaw 32-yard line. He was one tackler away from breaking to the clear.

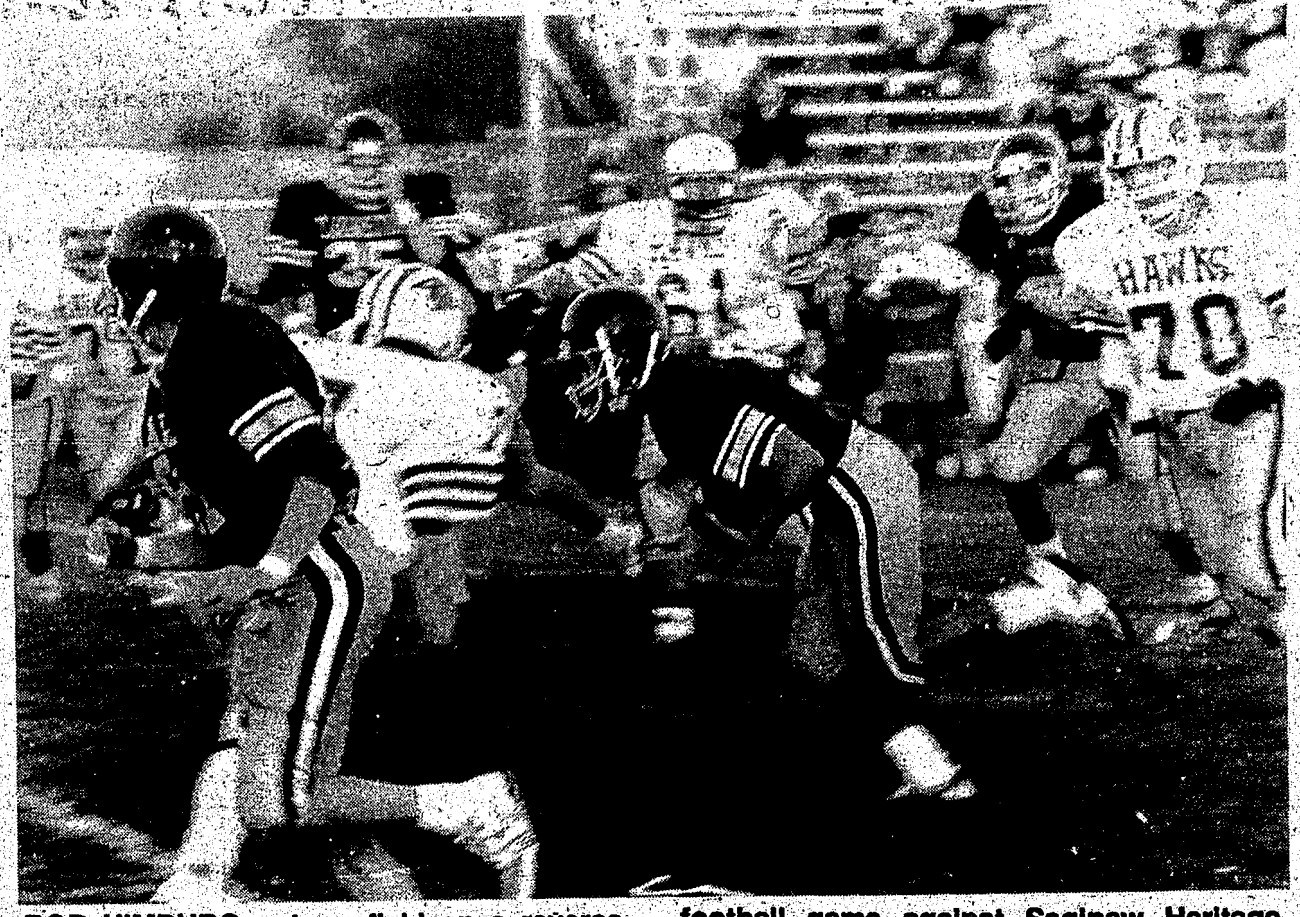
A series of running plays by Brett Kinzler and Tom Benedict brought the ball just inside the Hawks' 20-yard line.

Davis, who later broke his collar bone after releasing the ball on a reverse play, then scrambled out of the pocket and raced into the end zone to tie the game.

Ken Phipps kicked the successful extra point to give the home boys a 7-6 advantage with 6:52 left in the quarter.

Clarkston capitalized on a Saginaw miscue on the next series when John Anderson recovered a fumble at the Hawks' 20-yard line. The Wolves needed only five plays to score, with Kinzler going in from 9 yards out.

Phipps booted the extra point for a 14-6 Wolves' lead with 4:20 to go in the opening quarter.



ROB HIMBURG cuts upfield on a reverse play during the first half of Clarkston High's football game against Saginaw Heritage Friday night at home.

Saginaw began its next scoring drive at midfield. Chris Robinson ripped Clarkston for a 36-yard TD run to make it a two-point game. A run by Mike Beyer on the conversion attempt tied the contest at the 2:05 mark.

Davis left the game due to his injury during Clarkston's next offensive series and senior Scott Oppman took control of the team.

A Keith Keysor interception two plays later off a screen pass set up Saginaw's final touchdown.

"The screen pass turned it around," Skillman said. "I was real happy with the way we played."

Robinson scored on a 1-yard plunge as time expired

CJH gains 396 yards

Runners help Wolverines defeat rival

(RUNNERS, from Page 19)

Clarkston then kept the ball on the ground -- the team amassed 394 yards rushing for the game -- and drove 76 yards for the first touchdown. Dave Smith capped the scoring drive with a 24-yard run off a reverse, a favorite play for both teams.

Afterward, Smith (two touchdowns, 85 yards rushing) had plenty of praise for his teammates.

"This is the best feeling," he said of the victory. "The whole team did it."

Matt Seitz's pass for a two-point conversion failed, leaving Clarkston ahead 6-0 at the 5:40 mark of the opening quarter.

The Cougars began their next offensive possession deep in their own end at the 8-yard line. They didn't have the ball long, however, as Jason Jarvis fell on another Sashabaw fumble at the 5-yard line.

Penalties set the Wolverines back, but they eventually scored on a 10-yard jaunt by Smith off a reverse. Griffiths, who finished with a team-high 133 yards rushing, successfully ran on the conversion to put the home team up, 14-0, with 2:30 left in the first stanza.

Even with the edge after one quarter, the Wolverines didn't let up.

"We figured they might come back," said White.

And sure enough, the Cougars finally got untracked and put together a scoring drive early in the second quarter on a 2-yard run by Heidisch at the 11:58 mark. Heidisch also ran in the conversion to cut the deficit to 14-8. But that's as far as the Cougars' rally ever got.

Clarkston added one more touchdown before the half, starting the drive deep in Cougarterritory. Penalties again hurt the victors: They faced a 1st-and-29 situation from the Sashabaw 29-yard line and a 4th-and-10 from the 10-yard line before Griffiths rolled into the end zone from 10 yards out with 55 seconds left. Griffiths also scored the conversion to bump Clarkston's lead to 22-8.

Quarterback Seitz closed out the scoring with a 12-yard run late in the third quarter. He also ran for the two-point conversion.

Sashabaw never threatened in the final quarter and the 30-8 score went into the history books on a sour note for the visitors.

"We didn't capitalize. We were in the ball game but made mental mistakes," said Stefanski. "But it's early and a long season."

For Clarkston, now 2-0, the season is beginning to look fine.

"It feels good," said Wolverine Coach Steve Himburg. "The way they came together was great."

White and Craig Garnett were the defensive standouts for Clarkston, the coach said. Luke Fedio chipped in 106 yards rushing on offense.

Sashabaw's record falls to 1-1.

GEORGE WILLIAMS breaks free from the pack for a 18-yard TD run during the junior varsity team's 34-6 victory over Rochester.

JV Chiefs whip Rochester

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Parents' Night kicked off the new football season for the Clarkston Chiefs on Saturday and the junior varsity team provided plenty to cheer about.

The Chiefs routed visiting Rochester, 34-6, to continue where they left off last season as freshman -- winners.

Forty of the junior varsity players were on last year's Super Bowl champion freshman squad, providing Coach Bob Taylor with plenty of experience.

Eric Endreszl started things off with a fumble recovery on Rochester's first possession of the game. Clarkston then drove 35 yards for its first touchdown.

George Williams capped the short scoring drive with a 18-yard run around right end to put the home team in front for good at 6-0. The run for the conversion failed.

Clarkston started its next drive on its own 29-yard line and methodically moved the ball down the field for another score. Dave Davis plowed into the end zone from 7 yards out to bump the Chiefs' lead to 12-0 with 5:27 left in the first quarter. The run for extra point failed again.

Rochester got its only points of the game when it returned the kickoff 65 yards for a touchdown. The try for an extra point failed.

Near the end of the opening quarter, Clarkston capitalized on another Rochester mistake when Tim Wisser recovered a fumble.

Chris Jewell eventually carried the ball into the end zone from the 1-yard line with 5:15 left before the half. Quarterback Jeremy Fife passed to George Williams for the successful conversion. Clarkston now led, 20-8.

In the second half, the Chiefs continued to put on the pressure and scored on a 5-yard run by Trevor Slayton. Fife once again passed to Williams for the two-point conversion.

Clarkston closed out the scoring later in the quarter on a 1-yard plunge by Brett Walter. The run on the conversion attempt failed.

Taylor was extremely pleased with the Chiefs after the game.

"It was a good test for us," the coach said. "The kids deserve the credit. They deserved to win."

The freshman team opened the season for the Chiefs but lost to Rochester, 41-6. Everett Morris scored the only points for Clarkston.

Later, the varsity team didn't have any better luck as Rochester won, 6-2. The Redskins allowed a safety late in the game when they were trapped deep in their own end. Clarkston's defense only allowed three first downs.

Wolves blanked

The effort was there, but the results were unfavorable for the varsity soccer team during its last game.

Hosting the Oxford Wildcats, Clarkston did everything but put the ball in the net as the Wolves fell, 1-0, Monday evening.

Throughout the game, Clarkston players swarmed around the Oxford net but always managed to kick the ball just wide of the goal.

Goalie David Patterson stopped Oxford on a penalty kick in the first half, but a breakaway goal by Kevin Lang with less than nine minutes before the intermission provided the winning margin for the visitors.

In the second half, the Wolves outshot Oxford, 15-1, but couldn't score to save their lives.

"They did everything I asked of them at halftime in the second half," said Coach Neil Granlund. "The second half is the style you will be seeing from us this season. We just couldn't put the ball in the net."

Adam Adkinson made a couple of good saves for Clarkston in the second half to keep the team in the game, but the Wolves couldn't capitalize.

The defeat drops the team's record to 1-2.

On Saturday, Clarkston visited Royal Oak Kimball and suffered a 3-1 loss. Tim Cashin scored the only goal for the Wolves.

CHS graduate fills soccer coaching job

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Should a 1986 Clarkston High graduate win millions in the Michigan Lotto, he knows exactly what to do -- retire and spend the rest of his days on a soccer field.

Ron Forbes of East Washington Street, Clarkston, enjoys playing the world's most popular sport so much, he didn't hesitate when the opportunity to take over the junior varsity program at his alma mater arrived.

"I'd like to stay involved as long as possible," he said of soccer. "I can't get enough of it, that's why I'm doing this."

His cousins introduced him to the sport many years back, when he was in fifth grade. The 20-year-old coach has played as often as possible since then. In the spring and fall, he'd play for Independence-Waterford recreation teams. During the winter, an indoor league at Square Lake Racquet Club kept him busy and content.

The Clawson native also played baseball as a youngster but dropped the sport after his first experience with soccer.

"It's addictive," he said. "I can't play baseball. There's not enough action."

After graduating from Clarkston High, Forbes attended Spring Arbor College in Jackson for a year and played soccer.

"Things started off real well," he said. "I played quite a bit early in the season and I scored the first goal."

Forbes holds a record that never will be broken at CHS -- scoring the first goal in the school's first varsity game. Not wanting anyone to forget about his accomplishments, Forbes jokingly referred to himself as a "legend in my own mind" while introducing himself to the junior varsity team.

He plans on returning to college one day and working toward a degree in the business department. Currently, he works part-time for Computer Support Technology in Troy.

In addition to his coaching job, he's helping younger kids develop their interest and skills through his position as co-director of the Independence Township youth soccer program.

Varsity head coach Neil Granlund was glad when a CHS grad returned to fill the vacant junior varsity post.

RON FORBES scored the first goal for the varsity soccer team at Clarkston High School.

"Forbes has always had a special feeling for this program," the varsity coach said. "Even after he graduated he's been interested."

One final reason for Forbes' infatuation with the sport is his family connection. His father coached when he was younger, his brother Ryan currently plays for the varsity team at Clarkston and another brother, Patrick, will be ready to play next year.

Rain or shine, both parents provide their children with plenty of support.

"My mom is the biggest fan," he said with a smile. "She never missed a game."

For now, Forbes plans to coach at CHS until his brothers graduate. After that, anything's game -- as long as it involves soccer.

Mistakes costly

in the opening quarter to put Saginaw out in front for good at 20-14. The conversion attempt failed.

The only other score came in the third quarter when Saginaw defenders trapped the quarterback in the end zone for a safety. Gene Chamberlain had recovered another Hawks' fumble, on the Wolves' 10-yard line, for the home team on the previous play.

The closest Clarkston came to the Hawks' end zone in the second half was midfield.

A determined Coach Kurt Richardson knows what it will take to get his club out of its 0-2 tailspin.

"Consistency, consistency," he said. "Missed plays and assignments. It came down to that."

Doug Lederman, who sacked the Saginaw quarterback off a blitz on the game's final play, was singled out by Richardson for his fine defensive efforts. Others need to follow his lead, the coach said.

"We have to stop the big play," he said. "We gave them the big plays defensively."

K of C outing

Knights of Columbus members from the Eastern half of the state converged on Spring Lake Country Club over the weekend for an annual regional golf tournament.

About 150 golfers took part in the 44th annual tourney, including all K of C halls from as far north as Bay City and as far east as Howell, said director Dave Loersch.

The tournament used to be a one-day affair for K of C halls across the state, but the method was discontinued due to difficulty getting everyone to agree on a date. Today, there are four regional tournaments.

The Pope John Paul XXIII council on Maybee Road was the host for the competition. Milosch Chrysler Plymouth of Lake Orion donated a car as a prize for anyone who aced the 14th hole.

Organization turned out to be the key since the tourney went by without major delays or problems, said Grand Knight Bob Whissel.

"We got nothing but compliments on the organization," he said. "There were lots of bodies out there (caddies finding lost balls) and no wasted time."

Bay City will host the Eastern regional next fall.

See sights on bike

A scenic 8-mile journey around Waterford Township for families will be sponsored by the parks and recreation department in September.

The ride, designed for people ages 9 and up, begins at the Monteith Activity Center (Waterford Police Station), 2303 Crescent Lake Rd. at 8:30 a.m. on Sunday, Sept. 25.

For further information, contact the Waterford Township Parks and Recreation Department at 623-0900 Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

DEBBIE BELLOWS follows through on a good hit against Brandon during a girls tennis match at Clintonwood Park Sept. 7. The visiting Brandon team won 4-3 when a Clarkston player was injured and couldn't continue. Winners for the Wolves were Kim K. Morris (1-6, 6-2, 6-0) and Caroline Allison (6-3, 6-3) in singles play and the doubles team of Katie Rieman and Heather Shaw (5-7, 6-4, 6-2).

ROBERT HUBBACH and his daughter, Sarah, play their hammered dulcimers together on the porch of their Springfield Township home. Hubbach, also an artist, designed a mug to be sold by the Clarkston Community Historical Society at Crafts and Cider.

Art for work, pleasure; music for joy

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

At work, Robert Hubbach puts ideas on paper that may be brought to life in future car models. At home in his art studio, he captures scenes from life forever on canvas. And with his music, well, he simply reminds people of just how much there is to enjoy in life.

Hubbach lives on a wooded Bridge Lake Road setting in Springfield Township with his wife, Irene, and daughters, Sarah, 13, and Erica, 20.

Of his job as an industrial designer for Chrysler Corp., he says, "I am mainly involved with exterior styling of cars. My job is to portray concepts in two-dimensional forms and give the illusion of a three-dimensional car that doesn't exist yet."

If the idea is pursued, he then leads a team of modelers to complete the design in three dimensions.

Hubbach has been involved with art since he was a child, so it comes as no surprise that he took watercolor classes as electives while attending Art Center College of Design in Pasadena, Calif.

"I enjoyed them so much, I told myself, 'I'd like to do this more often,'" he says. One summer in the late 1960s or early 1970s, he did just that.

He still works mainly in watercolors, though he does some drawings, etchings and lithographs as well. When the Hubbachs moved to their Springfield Township home in 1973, he set up a basement studio, but it soon became too crowded. He started thinking of building a little studio near the house.

"I asked friends what size they thought I should build, and they told me, 'Decide what you think you need and then double it,'" he recalls with a smile.

With a lot of encouragement from his wife, Hubbach began to build the studio in 1976, one year after his first one-man art show. The studio was completed in the fall of 1977.

About the same time the family moved to their Springfield Township home, Hubbach began another hobby, just as delightful. He taught himself to play the hammered dulcimer.

"I was a member of the Detroit Folklore Society, and I met dulcimer players there. I had never seen a hammered dulcimer before and I was fascinated," he says.

(See LEARNING, Page 40)

His artwork adorns festival mugs

DETAIL REPRODUCED FROM Robert Hubbach's artwork to be printed on mugs sold by the Clarkston Community Historical Society at its Crafts and Cider Festival this weekend shows the Wilford home on Main Street, Clarkston.

Robert Hubbach, a Springfield Township artist, was chosen to design this year's Clarkston Community Historical Society mug, to be sold at the society's upcoming Crafts and Cider Festival.

It is not Hubbach's first creative endeavor for the historical society. In 1975, he designed a series of eight Clarkston sketches for Historical Society notepapers.

This year's historical society mug is the second in a series of four, with two more planned for future festivals.

"I used a similar format to last year," Hubbach says of his design.

Last year the mug, designed by Clarkston area artist. Sally Kubani, portrayed three historical Clarkston structures. This year, Hubbach created a design using three more familiar Clarkston sites, including two Main Street homes plus the Clarkston Conservatory of Music.

The mugs will be sold for $5 during the two-day Craft and Cider Festival on Sept. 17 and 18. The fourteenth annual festival will take place in Depot Park in downtown Clarkston.

Approximately 60 exhibitors of crafts ranging from pottery and painting to weaving and jewelry will be on hand for the festival. Hours will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. both days.

Potatoes taste great at home or campsite

Some of the prettiest camping weather is upon us, but perhaps you have the kind of family that expects more than beans and weenies on those weekend jaunts.

Never mind that the food processor may be hundreds of miles away and the closest running water is the stream babbling next to your campsite. Here's a recipe that can be made ahead and finished at the picnic spot.

This "meal in a spud" recipe is so good that your family will request it at home. It also makes great tailgate fare for football games.

MEAL IN A SPUD

Baking potatoes (one per serving)
Horseradish mustard (optional)
Butter or margarine (optional)
Shaved ham or chicken, or Canadian bacon slices
Tomatoes
Sliced cheese, any variety

At home, scrub potatoes. Leaving skins on, cut each crosswise into 4 slices, but not completely through to bottom of potato. Wrap each in foil and bake in 400 degree oven for one hour. Cool slightly. Unwrap and spread with horseradish mustard or butter. Rewrap and pack to go.

When camping or picnicking, unwrap potatoes, place bacon and tomato slices between potato slices. Rewrap in foil and heat over medium coals, about 15-20 minutes. Open foil and add cheese slices. Return to grill just to melt cheese.

Open and enjoy. The foil can even serve as a throw-away serving container.

Are we asking kids to grow up too fast?

A program on "The Hurried Child" is being endorsed by the Family Education Committee of Clarkston Area Youth Assistance.

The program, presented by Dr. David Elkind, is jointly sponsored by William Beaumont Hospital, Troy, and Troy Town Hall. It will take place at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 28, in Troy Athens High School, 4333 John R in Troy.

"We would have liked to bring him to Clarkston," said Garry Pullins of Clarkston Area Youth Assistance. But since that was financially impossible, he said they are encouraging people to attend the lecture in Troy.

"Many members of Clarkston Area Youth Assistance have read his book and feel it is excellent," Pullins said.

The $7.50 tickets may be purchased at William Beaumont Hospital or at the door. More information on tickets is available by calling 828-5589.

Elkind is a professor of child study and the author of the book, "The Hurried Child." He has made appearances on many television shows and is a contributing editor to Parent's Magazine.

He says that today's child has become an unwilling victim of overwhelming stress due to rapid social change and constantly rising expectations. The stress of child rearing often causes parents to hurry children to grow up, increasing the child's responsibility while decreasing a portion of the parent's responsibility and anxiety.

As a society, he says we have come to feel that it is OK to hurry our children through childhood, yet we do them more harm than good.

Raring to go

David Kwasnick

"Anticipation, Antici-pay-ay-tion -- It's making me wait."

Remember that old Heinz ketchup commercial? Yeah, the one with the little boy patiently waiting what seemed an eternity for the ketchup to come out of the bottle he was holding.

Well, I know how he feels. I hate waiting. And I'm also going to Michigan State. Now, there's a paradox.

State, State, it's making me wait. This is the time I knew I was going to hate, the time when everybody else has gone off to college except for us Statees.

At least I didn't let myself down. I do hate it but in a different sort of way. It's not that I dislike having too much time on my hands. To the contrary, I've been been kept quite busy preparing myself for MSU.

But that's just it. Dave is still hanging around counting how many pairs of underwear he owns while everyone else is off fully immersed in the "college experience."

Dramatic case in point. I spent Labor Day weekend visiting a good friend of mine, K.C. Baran. K.C. is Clarkston High's sole representative at the United States Military Academy -- West Point as it's more commonly called.

Now, I know that Michigan State and West Point shouldn't be compared. They're simply too unlike. One specializes in turning out U.S. Army officers while the other's forte is producing civilian professionals capable of downing an entire keg of beer through a straw.

Nevertheless, my visit with K.C. was a humbling, even envious, experience. And what made it so was not necessarily his immediate duty at West Point (mountain climbing with a rifle and 50-pound pack, no thanks), but what he was doing en masse, so to speak.

When K.C. left for the academy in late June, he was a freshly graduated high school senior, no different than the rest of us. Upon seeing him for the first time since then, however, it was evident he had changed.

A transformation had taken place. He was no longer K.C. Baran-CHS grad, but, instead, K.C. Baran-West Point cadet.

Yet even if his title was Spartan or Wolverine, or Golden Gopher for that matter, the end result would be the same. He had continued with his life; gone on to something higher, more consequential.

More importantly, though, he was a preview of things to come. And partly because of it, now more than ever, I can't wait to get my chance.

David Kwasnick is a 1988 Clarkston High School graduate. He begins his freshman year at Michigan State University later this month.

Maybe the way to solve the school prayer issue is for parents to start taking their kids to church.

The teachings of Christ can enrich your children's education. And their lives.
So bring your family and share the joy of prayer and divine worship with us.

Friend to Friend

Wardrobe worries

Dear Friend to Friend:

I am a new student at Clarkston High School, and although I have met a lot of new people, I really haven't met "my kind" of people -- friends I feel comfortable with.

At my old school, I was part of the popular group, and I feel that here people are looking down on me. They aren't being mean exactly, but I don't really like the ones who are being "nice," and the ones I want to be friends with aren't being friendly.

I hate starting over. Please, how can I get along here?

OUTSIDER

Dear Outsider:

You will have to start over many times in your life: from ninth to 10th grade, from high school to college, from college to a first job, from one job to another, from single to married, from married to parent.

The best advice we can give you is to get involved! You are lucky Clarkston High School offers many opportunities for students including computer club, drama, mime, band, the Spanish club, the Blue and Gold Club, SADD and "Just Say No."

Say yes yourself to football games and dances. Give people here a chance, and perhaps you'll find that your fist impression was not correct. Don't turn your back on the ones who are being friendly, because you may give others the impression that you are "too cool" or that you aren't a very nice person.

Keep in mind that you are the new person, and before you will be accepted others need time to check you out. Again, don't ignore those who are being friendly as you may find that you will be lonely.

The easiest way to meet new people and let others get to know about you and your talents is by becoming part of a club or organization. Please be patient; it does take time.

Dear Friend to Friend:

With the new school year beginning, everyone has new clothes. Clarkston High School seems like a fashion statement, and my family just can't afford it.

I really feel out of place wearing my older sister's hand-me-downs. Why do people have to judge me on the way I dress rather than who I am as a person? How can I feel more comfortable with what I have?

UNDERDRESSED

Dear Underdressed:

First, we think we should address the idea that you're being judged by others. Perhaps you are the one judging yourself so harshly. That aside, we have some suggestions.

The most important thing is to be clean and neat. Often it doesn't matter what you wear, what's more important is how you wear it. Clean hair, a shower before school and deodorant can work wonders.

Keep in mind that these days anything and everything is in style -- from sweats and blue jeans to fancy clothes. Look through current magazines for ideas on how to put clothes together in creative ways.

You might want to consider a part-time job so you can add some new items to your wardrobe. By looking for sales, being very selective and buying accessories to accent your clothes, you can look in style even if you haven't spent a lot on clothes.

We think the most important thing is to feel good about yourself. In the end, that's what people will judge you on.

Dressing in expensive clothes may get you noticed, but it won't make friends for you. Think of Molly Ringwald in the movie "Pretty in Pink." What you are on the inside is what counts.

Learn to appreciate yourself for the qualities and abilities you have. When you feel comfortable about yourself and others can see that, the rest will fall into place.

Friend to Friend is provided by a panel of Clarkston High School students working under AWARE, a community organization devoted to action and education against substance abuse. Letters may be addressed in care of The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Get tan, snack on yogurt in side-by-side shops

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The frozen yogurt is definitely '80s, but the decor of the '50s takes customers on a nostalgic trip through time.

Joe and Ruth Barnett, an Independence Township couple, opened their new business, Yogurt and Yesterdays, at 7012 Dixie Highway on Aug. 30. Already they have a steady repeat business.

"People are so health conscious today," says Ruth.

"There are a lot of runners and people who think a lot of themselves," adds Joe, a master electrician at General Motors and a contractor. "This is an area of high self-esteem."

The couple opened the Sunroom Tanning Center next door to the frozen yogurt shop in March of this year for the same reasons, and because they felt the area needed a tanning facility. When the space became available next door in the same building between M-15 and White Lake Road in Independence Township, they added the yogurt shop.

"We felt the businesses would really go well with each other," says Ruth.

They also knew they had three teenage daughters to employ at the businesses, 16-year-old Julie, 15-year-old Robin and 14-year-old Melissa. Between them, they also have two older children, Chris Marlowe, 25, and Kristi Barnett, 18.

What's New in Business

For drivers along Dixie Highway, a bright pink awning spanning the front of both businesses is highly visible. Inside the tanning center, decorated in crisp contemporary, are a room of tanning booths, a tanning bed and a selection of beachwear sold in the shop.

But inside the yogurt shop is the look of a soda shop of yesteryears, complete with shiny jukebox along one wall, red bar stools, black-and-white checked floor and neon lights.

They bought the 1955 V-200 Seeburg jukebox in Detroit and play all '50s' music -- three plays for a quarter or one for a dime. At a relative's comic book store in Saginaw, they purchased the era comic books and autographed photographs of entertainers from the '50s that decorate all the walls.

"We picked the '50s because it is the most recent popular era," Joe says.

"People relate to it because it was a happy time," adds Ruth.

Joe, 41, and Ruth, 43, relate to it themselves, and so do customers of all ages.

"It brings back happy memories," Ruth says. People come in and reminisce, but teenagers enjoy the era, too. And everyone enjoys the frozen yogurt.

The Barnetts chose Colombo yogurt for their shop for two main reasons. First, it allowed them to be independent owners and have their own unique decor; and second, they tasted it and thought it was the best around.

There are two kinds of Colombo yogurt offered, regular, which has only 99 calories and is low fat; and light, which has 95 calories and zero fats and cholesterol. They feature all fresh fruit toppings, cut daily, and 20 dry toppings.

Offerings reflect the theme of the shop: Marilyn Monroe malts and shakes, Buddy Holly sundaes, Low Fats Domino light yogurt.

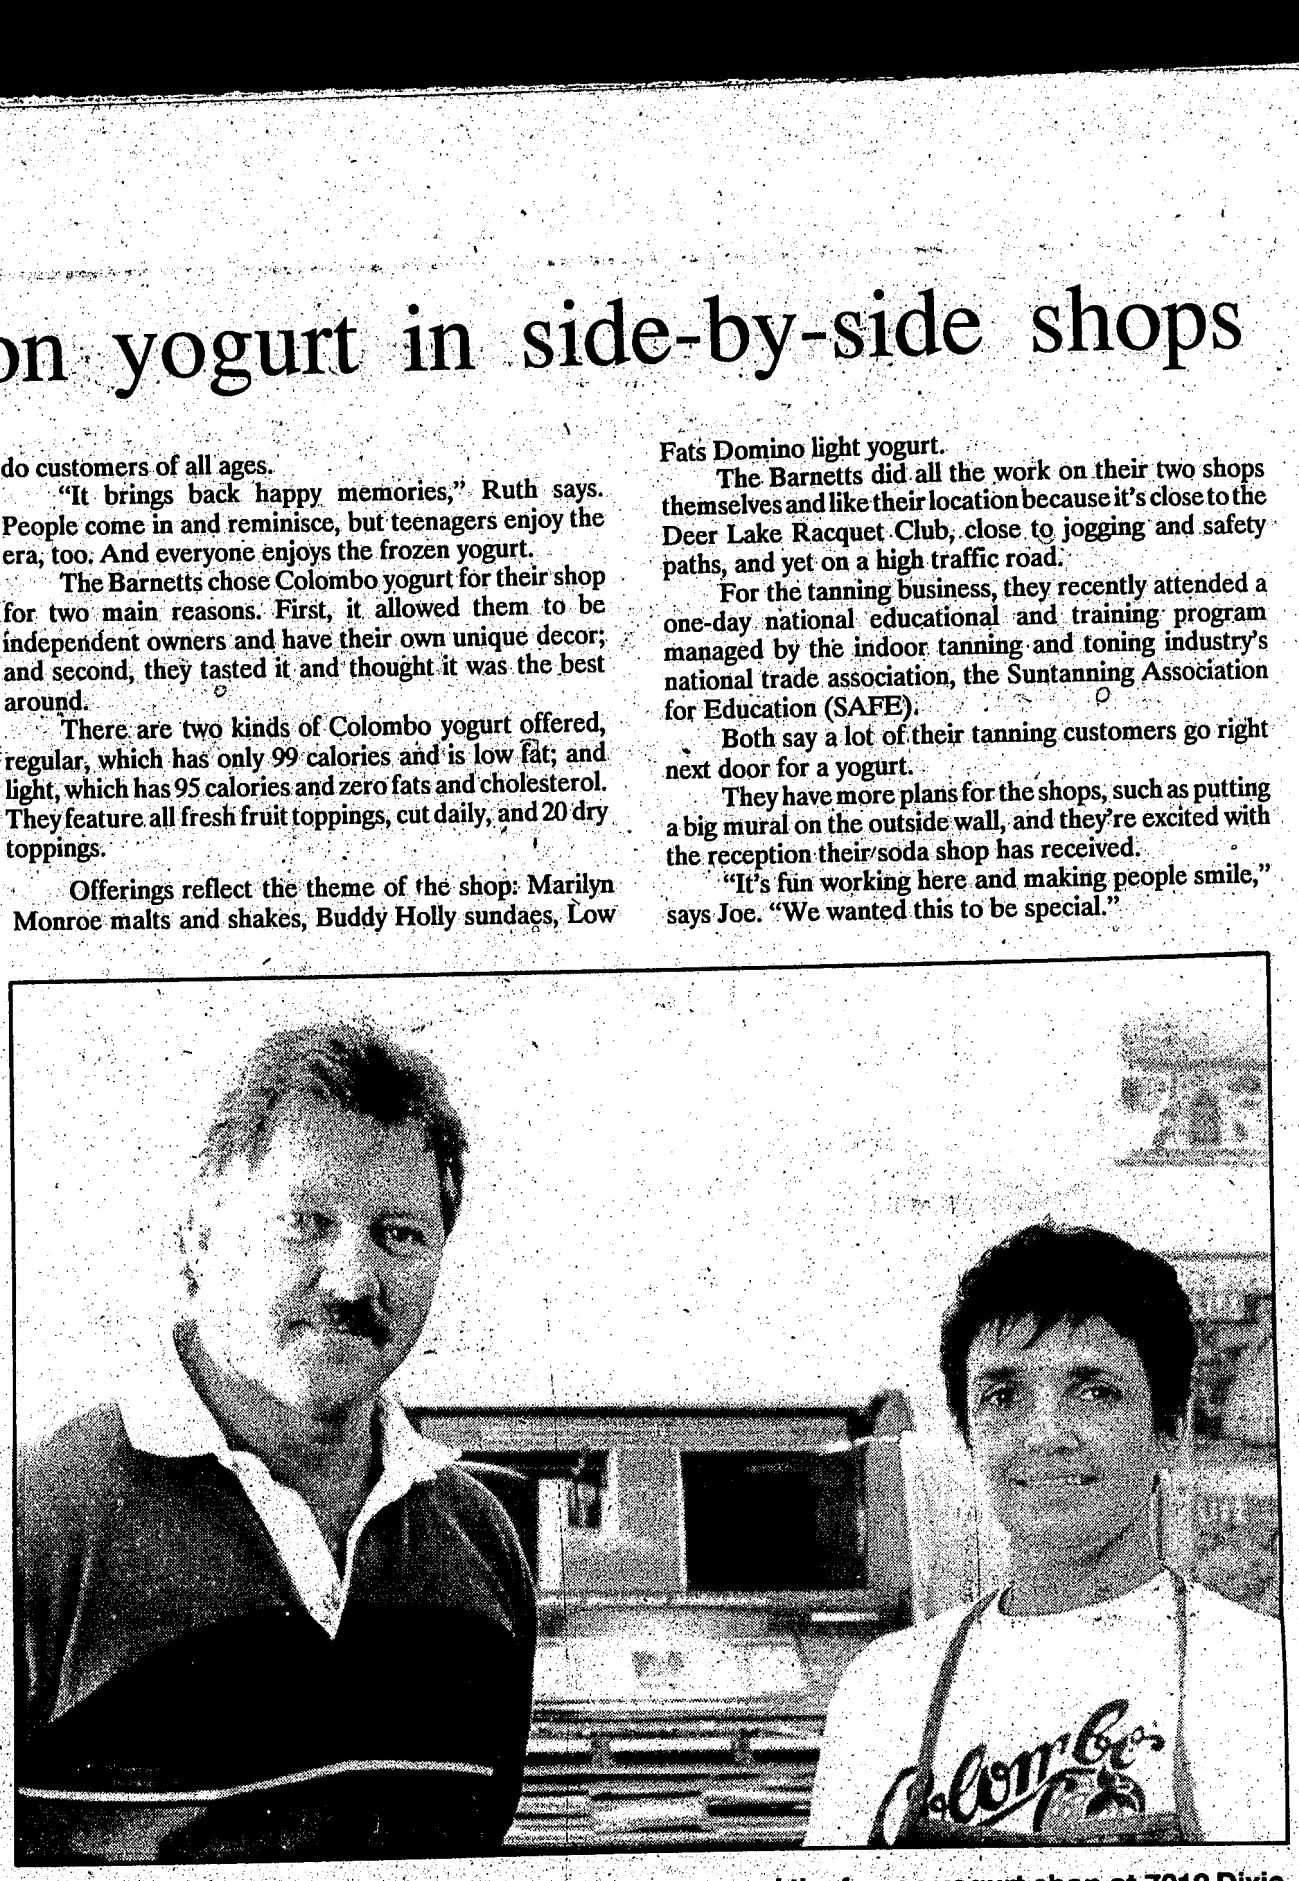
The Barnetts did all the work on their two shops themselves and like their location because it's close to the Deer Lake Racquet Club, close to jogging and safety paths, and yet on a high traffic road.

For the tanning business, they recently attended a one-day national educational and training program managed by the indoor tanning and toning industry's national trade association, the Suntanning Association for Education (SAFE).

Both say a lot of their tanning customers go right next door for a yogurt.

They have more plans for the shops, such as putting a big mural on the outside wall, and they're excited with the reception their soda shop has received.

"It's fun working here and making people smile," says Joe. "We wanted this to be special."



JOE AND RUTH BARNETT pause in front of the jukebox that highlights the decor of their new "Yogurt and Yesterdays" shop. They opened the frozen yogurt shop at 7012 Dixie Highway on Aug. 30. In March, they opened the Sunroom Tanning Center right next door.

Operator calls change

Michigan Bell customers in Clarkston must now use new dialing procedures to make local or long distance calls requiring an operator.

Customers won't notice any difference when placing direct-dialed calls, but callers dialing "O" will reach a Michigan Bell operator who will only be able to provide assistance on calls within the customer's local calling area, according to Vince Fordell, local public relations manager.

Customers who need operator assistance from a long distance company must dial "OO" or contact the long distance company for instructions on how to place operator-assisted calls, he said.

Customers in the 625 exchange will be affected by the change. Customers in the 394 exchange and 634 exchange have already experienced the change.

Clarkston-area residents to the north who have 627 exchanges will not be affected, because they are in the G.T.E. North telephone area and are not serviced by Michigan Bell.

CARES to meet again

Clarkston Concerned About Responsible Education and Schools (CARES) had an organizational meeting to kick off the 1988-89 school year on Sept. 7. The group formed during the last school year, providing much support for the successful millage campaign.

There was enthusiastic support for this year's Clarkston CARES, according to Bill Bliesath, president, and Durham Downs, vice president of the group, which currently has about 40 members.

The next meeting will take place at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 21, in the Clarkston High School band room. Any interested person is welcome to attend.

"The real focus is to establish a neighborhood network," said Bliesath, a communications line of volunteers to help distribute and collect information about Clarkston schools.

For further information, Bliesath may be reached at 625-5563, and Downs may be reached at 625-8146.

Knights of Columbus donate monies to needy

The annual Tootsie Roll drive conducted by Clarkston area Knights of Columbus last March netted $18,000. Last week, the group donated the money to eight organizations.

Adult Congress of Oakland County Mentally Retarded, Association of Retarded Citizens, Montgomery Development Training Center Parents Group, Judson Center, SCAMP, Handicapped Citizens of North Oakland County/Waterford, St. Daniel's 26ers and the Oakland County Coffee House all received donations, said Grand Knight Bob Whissel. He declined to provide individual amounts.

"We give according to need," he said, adding that there was a lot to give. "We topped all our records with the $18,000 we raised."

Pet of the Week

He'll strike your fancy

Thor is good with humans, though they have not always been good to him.

He is a 4-year-old shepherd mix who looks a lot like a big coyote, though he's certainly much friendlier. He loves everyone, he's great with kids, and he gets along with most other animals.

He came to the shelter as a cruelty case, nearly starved. All recuperated and rested now, Thor is ready for another life and a famly that will love him.

Thor can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The adoption fee for Thor is $35. He is already neutered and housebroken.

Learning process never ends for dulcimer player

(LEARNING, from Page 29)

One player, Paul Gifford, built him a dulcimer, but Hubbach says it sat on the shelf for about a year before he actually learned to play it much.

After he found out about the Original Dulcimer Player's Club of Michigan and went to their annual Fun Fest in Evart one July, he got serious about dulcimer playing.

"I could barely play, but I went and spent the whole weekend listening," he says. "I was so enthused I came home and started playing mine."

Hubbach also plays the banjo and can plunk out a few tunes on the piano. He plays by ear, the same way he taught himself to play the dulcimer, and the same way he taught his daughter to play it.

Both Erica and Sarah are musical, (Erica plays the oboe and piano, and Sarah, a Clarkston Junior High band member, plays the flute and piccolo), but it was Sarah who took an interest in the dulcimer.

When she was only five or six years old, her father built her a small dulcimer, but it was too difficult for her at the time. A couple of years ago, after she was playing around with the dulcimer a little more, he had a standard-size instrument built for her, designing the soundboard himself.

He gave his own dulcimer to a friend, then built himself a new, larger one that allowed him to play in more keys.

Now, father and daughter sometimes sit on the screened porch in the summer and play their dulcimers together. Or, sometimes Sarah plays her flute while he plays the dulcimer, and sometimes he plays a harmonica while she plays the dulcimer.

It's a pity there aren't more neighbors in the wooded area to enjoy the lilting music that wafts on the breezes.

"It's kind of like eating peanuts," says Hubbach about playing the dulcimer. "Once you start, you can't stop."

The hammered dulcimer is a percussion string instrument that dates back to early Persia. Today, numerous Middle East and European countries have varieties of the instrument.

> Playing the hammered dulcimer is "kind of like eating peanuts. Once you start, you can't stop."
> Robert Hubbach

Many of the tunes played on the wooden instrument are melodies from the British Isles, according to Hubbach. And there's a lot of Scotch- Irish ancestry in the Appalachian Mountains, where much dulcimer music originates in America.

There is a mountain, or Appalachian, dulcimer also made of wood, but it is strummed or plucked rather than hammered. Other than having strings and a similar haunting music, this simpler instrument is not really related to the hammered dulcimer. According to Hubbach, the hammered dulcimer actually preceded the clavichord.

He finds time for both his art and his dulcimer playing and is a member of the Ruffwater String Band. He is also a charter member of the Paint Creek Folklore Society in Rochester.

"There's always more to learn on the dulcimer. The more you know the instrument, the more proficient you are at it," Hubbach says, deftly playing the instrument with delicate wooden "hammers" as it sits perched on a stand in front of him.

"The music is lifting, happy music," he says, coaxing yet another tune from the soundbox. "It's just a very joyous instrument."

Committee to strive for school excellence

A Committee on Excellence for Clarkston schools will meet in the Clarkston High School auditorium on three upcoming Mondays.

The committee will be spearheaded by Gary Haner, Clarkston schools superintendent, and is open to interested parents, school staff and residents of the district. While these are not school board meetings, the school board will also be involved in the Committee on Excellence.

Meetings will take place at 7:30 p.m. on three consecutive Mondays, Sept. 19, Sept. 26 and Oct. 3. The purpose will be to share concerns about the district. The list of concerns will be prioritized and incorporated into goals set by the school board.

Dixie business plans million-dollar expansion

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Where an older greenhouse once stood at Bordine's Better Blooms on Dixie Highway, an expanded parking lot will be created. And the entire Bordine's parking lot will be redone, landscaped with trees throughout.

In addition, Bordine's is building a 7,500-square-foot garden store behind the existing business.

The Springfield Township Board gave the green light to the project Sept. 8 when they approved a site plan for the expansion.

Tony Macha, general manager of the Bordine's store in Rochester Hills, was on hand at the board meeting to answer questions. In a later interview, he elaborated on the project.

"This is all part of our master plan," he said. The aging greenhouse has already been removed, and there will be individual trees planted throughout the parking lot, promoting the various species offered at the garden store.

Macha said the trees were actually the Springfield Township Planning Commission's idea, because zoning requires a certain amount of trees in the parking area.

"Our intention is to have the trees lit at night with miniature lights," Macha said. "This is mainly for the Christmas season, but we would use them on occasion all year."

The trees, he told the board, were chosen to provide "year-round seasonal color."

The new garden store is projected to be completed by next summer, and Macha said Bordine's hopes to have the majority of the parking lot done by next spring. It is a major project, with water and electricity run to the landscaped islands where trees will be located.

"Although we took down a 12,000-square-foot greenhouse, we are building a 54,000-square-foot greenhouse next door," Macha said.

The new greenhouse, a high-tech facility, which he said will cost more than a million dollars, will be used for production. It is built on agricultural land next to Bordine's commercial site.

Now that the approvals are completed on the commercial site, Macha said, work will begin immediately on the garden store addition and parking lot.

Independence agrees to reconsider meters

Upset over a recent decision that would more than double their current water bills, about 15 residents from Hillview Estates subdivision protested at the Independence Township Board meeting.

The board voted unanimously to rescind the Aug. 16 decision that called for the increase to encourage Hillview customers to purchase water meters.

The board is to reconsider the increase at the Oct. 4 meeting after residents discuss the issue with George Anderson, director of the township department of public works.

At the Aug. 16 meeting, residents said they didn't like the township board making the decision without giving the residents a chance to express their views.

"I don't like having a $135 meter stuffed down our throats," said Dave Monroe, a resident in the subdivision off North Eston in the northeast corner of the township.

Chris Graham called for data to back up the decision.

Anderson had originally requested the increase from a $52.60 flat rate per quarter to a $125 flat rate per quarter for about 58 customers who don't have meters.

The DPW had received complaints about the unfair billing from some of the other 56 subdivision customers, who pay $83 to $300 per quarter, depending on the amount of water they use as monitored by a meter at each residence, said Anderson.

With a meter, each residence is billed for the amount of water consumed, so without a meter, the flat rate customers are not paying their fair share, Anderson said, adding that Hillview Estates subdivision contained the township's only water customers without meters.

Each resident would be required to pay for the about $135 meter, but the installation fee would be absorbed by the township, said Anderson.

Seniors in business enjoy themselves

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Leta Calcote and Dick Morgan each took a risk in opening businesses in Clarkston.

Now 73, Dick was just 16 when he opened Morgan's Service Station on Main Street. He had to borrow $200 to do it, and he remembers the experience as frightening.

Leta, 57, didn't open Calcote Country on Main Street until about two years ago, and she's had her moments of uncertainty, too.

"You want to give up one minute, and the next minute someone comes along and encourages you," said Leta.

For Leta, the most difficult part of running her business is record keeping, which she learned from friends Nate and Peg Anderson, who have owned small businesses for 32 years.

"When you're starting off, you do all that stuff yourself," said Leta. "When it comes to bookkeeping and the mathematical part, I would never be in business without Nate and Peg."

Dick said the task doesn't get easier: "I've just worked at it for quite a while."

Their memories have carefully recorded the early days of their work.

"I can remember the first gas sale I had," said Dick. "It was a Model A Ford. I filled the tank half full, and it was 50 cents. ... I can remember that clear as day."

The customer was Burt Landi, whose name still exists on the Clarkston Cafe building, where Landi operated a clothing store in 1932.

Leta recalls the encouragement from her husband, Sam; her pastor, the Rev. Loren Covarrubias; and many friends, including Lee Edwards.

"There have been so many people who have made it be successful," she said. "Lee and I used to talk about how nice it would be to own a shop and buy anything we wanted. Lee and I always loved to go antiquing and to go to country stores."

Perhaps it's the age in which they were raised, but Leta and Dick share the same philosophy when it comes to serving customers.

Leta sprinkles her service with friendly conversation, whether the customers are children, adults or people older than herself. And she'll cheerfully wrap a present or make a bow if someone asks.

DISPLAYS CHANGE daily in Leta Calcote's shop in Clarkston. "Everything in our life happens for a reason," says Leta, who attributes her success to good timing.

Senior center hums with activity

BY KATHY GREENFIELD
Clarkston News Editor

Truly quiet times are but a memory for Rina Chemin, manager of the Independence Township Senior Citizen Center.

The center in Clintonwood Park on Clarkston Road between M-15 and Sashabaw Road opened in October 1979 with Rina at its helm. She remembers early times when a few seniors would show up, note that nobody else was there and depart.

Last week on what Rina called a quiet morning, there were people playing cards, working in the wood shop and chatting while watching TV, and the kitchen hummed with preparations for the daily lunch.

The center now has about 550 members, most Independence Township residents although township residency is not a requirement to join, and the list of activities could fill a small book. The monthly newsletter for September is 24 pages long plus inserts. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday

IT'S NOT TOO SOON to think about Christmas, and Virginia Rotta's making a deacon's bench for a daughter. Fine sanding is a step.

Exercise makes older women's bones stronger

BY JUDY McBRIDE

Older women can maintain healthy bones through endurance exercise, even though the exercise makes them leaner and reduces estrogen -- two side effects usually thought to increase the risk of osteoporosis.

A study at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Human Nutrition Research Center on Aging at Tufts University shows it's never too late to start exercising, according to Miriam E. Nelson. She was a nutritionist at the center until becoming legislative assistant to Sen. Patrick Leahy (Vermont) for health and human services.

Nelson and colleagues compared bone density and hormone levels in 15 very active women and 18 sedentary women, 55 to 70 years old.

The active women began running only after menopause and ran at least 10 miles per week for two or more years before the study, she said. The other 18 women did not exercise regularly. None of the women took extra estrogen.

Being very lean is a strong risk factor for developing osteoporosis, Nelson said. But the runners maintained ideal body weight without compromising bone density.

The runners averaged 20 pounds less weight and 5 percent less body fat than the sedentary women. And their blood levels of estrone -- the primary circulating form of estrogen in postmenopausal women -- were about 25 percent lower.

But bone density was the same for both groups, meaning the runners had a greater bone mineral content for their weight, according to Nelson's research director, William Evans. He heads the physiology laboratory at the Boston-based center, which is funded by USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

Maintaining ideal body weight is so important in combating other chronic diseases of aging, such as heart disease, breast cancer and adult-onset (type II) diabetes, according to Nelson. You have to look at the total lifestyle and not try to treat each disease separately.

For instance, the benefits of running overrode the risks of osteoporosis. Most bone loss in women occurs after menopause when estrogen levels drop, because estrogen helps maintain bone density. And low body fat compounds the problem, said Evans. Low body fat is associated with low estrogen levels.

However, the runners had higher blood levels of vitamin D than the sedentary women, possibly because they spent more time outside. And they ate considerably more carbohydrates. Both are known to increase calcium absorption.

The above article was provided by the United States Department of Agriculture, Agricultural Research Service.

Plenty of myths touch golden years

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Do the golden years automatically bring declining health?

The answer is an emphatic no, says Julie Johnson, a certified nurse practitioner at the Women's Health Center of Clarkston who sees adults of all ages.

Johnson, formerly a geriatric specialist at Harper Hospital in Detroit, dispels some of the myths surrounding older people.

There are beliefs, she says, that older age means declining health, inactivity and less ability to function as well; that older people can't or won't change; that they have fading memory.

"I think a lot of people fear that," Johnson says. "But number one, I think people are much more interested in maintaining their health and in being active, and they are looking for the information to do that. They want to know how they can feel better and what's normal aging."

Sleep patterns do change as people get older. There is less deep sleep and people wake up more often.

Memories don't "fade," except, of course, if there is chronic disease or other factors involved, such as medication or diet, Johnson says.

"There are two types of memory, primary and secondary," she explains.

The primary memory, the "everyday" memory, is generally not affected. The secondary memory is the type where you put things in "storage," to be recalled when needed. The older you get, the longer it may take to recall something from storage, and that is normal.

Nurse practitioner Julie Johnson says the belief that you can expect failing health in mind and body is the greatest myth.

"The older you are, the more there is in your memory bank," she says.

Diet, as with all ages, is important. People need less meat as they grow older. They should concentrate on a good, basic diet from the four food groups, not overloading on fats or high calorie foods.

Johnson "individualizes" diets for each person.

"All of us probably don't have food awareness unless we study what is a good diet," she says, adding that information on diet and cholesterol has been well publicized these days.

Maintaining exercise and a good diet are "real important," Johnson stresses.

"You see people out walking all the time," she says. Plus, malls and schools provide facilities and times for walkers.

"It helps people to control a lot of chronic diseases, and helps them feel good emotionally and physically," she says. "And, it promotes restful sleep."

Older people do change and learn new things, "And they do it well," she says.

As an example, she talks of a 71-year-old patient who just went on insulin. She learned to give herself the injections and to test her own blood sugar at home. Johnson says she has several other patients over 60 who do this, too.

"They not only can learn, but they want to," she says.

Smoking is another area where older people

Do's and don'ts ease pain for arthritis sufferers

BY LAWRENCE T. SMEDLEY

More than one-third of the 31.6 million Americans suffering with arthritis are over 65 years old. For an arthritic victim, the simplest tasks can turn into difficult and painful projects.

The Arthritis Association says there's a lot that people can do for themselves to help reduce the pain of arthritis and deal more effectively with the activities of everyday life.

Here are some do's and don'ts they suggest:

Avoid Positions of Stress

Don't allow wrists to droop over armchair while sitting.

Don't rest your head on your knuckles or on bent elbows, or press down on your knuckles when arising from a chair.

Don't squeeze balls or other objects for "exercise."

Don't remain in one position for more than 30 minutes.

Tips for Seniors

Avoid Sideway Strains on Fingers

Hold a cup in the palm of your hand with fingers curled up on the sides rather than around the handle.

Hold a kitchen knife like a dagger rather than diagonally across the palm.

Use a scrub brush with a handle rather than a scouring pad.

Press water out of washcloths or hand washables between the palms of hands instead of wringing out.

As a general rule, avoid all tight grasps that force the fingers into closed positions, whether holding pencils or pot holders.

And, where possible, let the larger, stronger joints carry the burden rather than the smaller finger joints.

For instance, carry shopping bags or handbags on elbows or over the shoulder instead of on the fingers. The use of wrist and/or finger splints to reduce pain from hand use is also suggested.

Above all, respect pain and reduce strenuous activity whenever flareups occur.

For more information on self-help methods and devices, write to the Arthritis Association, 2424 Pennsylvania Ave., N.W., Washington, DC 20037.

Lawrence T. Smedley is the executive director of the National Council of Senior Citizens.

How can you cut your blood cholesterol level?

BY JANET HELM

"Let's Trim the Fat to Cut Blood Cholesterol for Life!" is the theme of this year's American Heart Association's Food Festival.

How can you cut your blood cholesterol level? One of the best ways is to trim the fat in your diet. Too much fat, especially saturated fat, will increase your blood cholesterol level. Too many calories may have the same effect.

Many people confuse dietary cholesterol with saturated fat. While they sometimes occur in the same food, they are different nutrients, with saturated fat being the major dietary factor in raising blood cholesterol levels.

These tips will help you reduce the total fat and saturated fat in your diet. Begin by reading your food lables -- if the list of ingredients begins with butter, cream, lard, hydrogenated vegetable fats, palm oil, palm kernal oil, coconut oil or cocoa butter, don't make it a regular part of your diet. These are all highly saturated fats.

Saturated fats are often hidden in processed foods such as cereals, crackers, cookies, snack foods, non-dairy creamers and non-dairy milkshakes.

Other things you can do:

Use less butter, margarine, mayonnaise and salad dressing. You don't have to cut it out, just trim it down!

Try lemon juice on salads instead of oil-based and creamy salad dressings.

Substitute plain low fat yogurt, blender-whipped low fat cottage cheese or buttermilk for sour cream or mayonnaise.

Steam or bake vegetables, or stir-fry them in a small amount of vegetable oil.

Nutrition Notebook

Season vegetables with herbs and spices rather than with sauces, butter and margarine.

Replace shortening with vegetable oil. Liquid oils are usually less saturated than solid fats.

Try oils high in mono-unsaturated fat, such as olive, peanut or canola oil.

Trim fat from meat and remove skin from poultry before cooking.

Roast, bake, broil or simmer meat, poultry and fish. Cook on a rack so the fat will drain off.

Use a non-stick pan to cook without adding fats and oils.

Aging is topic

The latest in aging research, education and current events will be explored by over 600 older adults and professionals in the field of aging at the statewide biennial Governor's Conference on Aging.

Heading the array of speakers is keynoter Dr. Joyce Brothers, noted psychologist, columnist and author. Brothers will present the main address at the opening session at 2 p.m. Oct. 17, at the Grand Plaza Hotel in Grand Rapids.

James H. Schultz, PhD, of Brandies University in Waltham, Mass. is the luncheon speaker on the first full day of the conference, Oct. 18. The professor of economics and aging policy will give a talk entitled, "The Continuing Battle: Private Versus Public Provision of Income in Old Age."

Closing luncheon speaker Deloris McBain of WMAQ-TV in Chicago worked with the station on the award-winning project, Your Golden Years. Intended to provide positive programming for the elderly, the project earned recognition from the Illinois Broadcasters Association, Helen Cody Awards and the Presidents Citation Program for Private Sector Initiatives. McBain, manager of community affairs and broadcast standards for the NBC affiliated station, will speak to "Ageism in the Media" Oct. 19, at 1:45 p.m.

Registration cost of $115 per person for the three-day event includes opening night activities and entertainment, three meals, exhibits, refreshments and all conference materials.

Persons interested in registration information should write the Office of Services to the Aging, P.O. Box 30026, Lansing, MI 48909 or phone 517-373-3052.

New business or old, seniors like their work

"I love the bow-making," she said. "They're fascinated, watching it, and you're enjoying the conversation together. It's people meeting people. ... That's just a part of me. It's reaching out."

Dick also believes that conversation goes along with the job, although people these days don't have as much time to talk as the customers during his early years in business, he said.

"People are different today in their every day walk of life," he said. "Everything has changed."

Back then, Dick had more time, too. He was a president of the Rotary Club and a volunteer firefighter, and he assisted Sheb Goyette's undertaking business when needed.

In the beginning, Dick had no telephone at his business.

"You could get one, but there was always the question of whether you could pay the monthly bill or not," he said.

He used a 1937 Ford pick-up truck to make service calls, which consisted of starting a car or changing a tire. His first wrecker was a 1949 Ford.

"At that time, it was a nice one. I've had a few since," he said.

Indoor and outdoor pits were used for such mechanical jobs as an oil change until Dick bought his first hoist in the 1950s.

"Everything changed after the war," he said.

Dick still works about 12 hours a day, but now his son, John, helps with the many customers.

"The older people like John," said Dick. "John was brought up with older parents and older people. ... He's learned to associate with the young and the old."

Dick is pleased that John, too, likes his business because it's been a good career choice for himself.

"It's been a rewarding, interesting life," he said. "It's never been boring. You don't have time enough in the day to get bored with it."

Leta, who began working as a photographic artist for Sayles Studio, Waterford, in 1959, enjoys the challenge of operating her own business, although she still helps out at the studio once a week.

With her own home decorated from floor to ceiling with antiques and country items, decorating the store came easily for Leta.

"Those kind of things come natural," she said. "It's not something you learn. There's just things that are God-given talents. I've never had any problem with decorating."

She finds her job exciting, particularly traveling to Dallas or Chicago to buy goods.

"That's the fun part," she said. "It's fantastic, going to the markets for gift buyers. It's like Christmas -- you can just buy."

She doesn't even mind keeping the long hours of a shop owner.

"It's just been great being here," she said. "I've loved every minute of it."

REMODELING was his son, John's, idea, says Dick Morgan (left), who's operated Morgan's Service Station for 57 years on the corner of Main and Church streets in Clarkston.

UNDERSTANDING SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE

Dealing with denial

BY JAMES ROOSEVELT

Medicaire beneficiaries needn't always pay if they get a letter from that agency denying reimbursement because it didn't find the medical service "reasonable and necessary."

First, of course, you or your doctor have the right to appeal that decision. Second, if your physician does not accept Medicare assignment and he has collected from you for services that Medicare insists are unreasonable and unnecessary, he must refund the money to you.

The only exceptions are if your doctor could not reasonably have been expected to know the service would be found unnecessary; or if he or she told you, in advance, that the service would not be covered and you, therefore, knew you would be responsible for the entire bill.

If you do not hear from your doctor within 30 days after you get the denial notice from Medicare, you should contact your doctor's office and ask for a refund.

Your doctor may decide to appeal the decision on the grounds that he could not have known the service would not be reimbursed by Medicare.

If he wins the appeal, you are liable for the charges. If he loses, he's required to give you the refund.

You can learn more about Social Security and other issues of special concern to older Americans by joining the National Committee to

Reserve officer leaves the parade

Trevor Wingfield is "a wee sad" to be leaving the reserve forces of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, he said.

"I've had a lot of fun, and I've met a lot of nice people," said Wingfield, after working his last parade on Labor Day.

The 57-year-old sergeant has been in charge of Clarkston parades, football games and other activities that needed extra coverage from the sheriff's department.

Wingfield, who resides on Rattalee Lake Road in Springfield Township with his wife Pamela, works in the research and development department of Delta Faucet on Dixie Highway in Independence Township. The Wingfields have one daughter, Kim.

Wingfield first joined the reserve forces as a mounted officer in 1970 because, he said, "I believe that everybody should do something for their community, and back in those days, I used to ride a lot of horses."

Born in England, Wingfield became a U.S. citizen in 1969. He's since filled his spare time with reserve activities, including time in the marine division.

He's not sure what he'll do with the extra time, he said, adding, "Travel, maybe."

IF TREVOR WINGFIELD looks familiar, it's probably from the many parades and football games he's organized in Clarkston.

Attitude is important ingredient for those healthy golden years have changed, Johnson says. "We've had good success. And sometimes they stop smoking before someone tells them they should."

People would rather decrease medications and are willing to change their lifestyles to do that, she says. But when medications are necessary, people should understand them thoroughly.

"They should know the name, the dosage, the action and the side effects," she says. "It shouldn't be just that little white pill taken once a day."

Johnson says the belief that you can expect failing health in mind and body is the greatest myth about growing older.

"Lifestyle has a lot to do with it," she says. "It doesn't depend on age as much as lifestyle."

Habits such as smoking, drinking alcohol (above occasional use), getting too much exposure to the sun and inactivity are sure to age you faster, she says. "Inactivity, like sitting in front of the television all the time, isn't good for mind or body."

A lot of it has to do with attitude. Johnson says she sees some people with impairments who want to enjoy life, and others with fewer problems who are non-functional.

"I try to find motivational reasons to get people to improve their health and lifestyles," she says.

But there comes a time for all of us, she adds, when we need to exercise a little restraint. For instance, it wouldn't be appropriate for an older person to be on the roof doing repairs, or drive a car after losing the ability to do so.

Depression is something that affects older people when they must develop alternatives in their lifestyles.

"But I think the majority of people look forward to retirement as another phase of their lives," she says. "Most are involved in activities they never had time for before -- traveling, gardening, senior citizen centers.

"They are looking for ways to stay active and maintain themselves in their golden years," Johnson says. "It's a very positive thing today."

through Friday with special events planned some evenings and weekends.

A former residence, the center could use an addition, something she expects to happen within the next few years, Rina said, but she's proud of the building's aura.

"We constantly have people say they don't mind it being smaller than others because it's a beautiful setting and more personal," she said.

The goal is "to enrich the lives of the retired people, the seniors of the area, and to provide them with daily needed services along with the enrichment of the educational and recreational programs," she said.

Among the needed services available for seniors age 60 and over are the lunch program that provides a hot, nutritious meal Monday through Friday for $1 donation or less; Focus Hope, a government surplus food program that provides free staples for low-income seniors; Outreach, an effort to find seniors in northern Oakland County who could benefit from existing government programs; and the Home Chore Service for northern Oakland County seniors who need help with such tasks as house cleaning, lawn mowing or raking, and snow removal.

The home chore service is for anyone over age 60 regardless of income. A donation is requested for the service, and seniors can request one-time or ongoing assistance, although it may be up to three weeks between visits.

Elaine Hartwick is the home chore supervisor, and seniors interested in the service can visit the center to fill out applications. Calling first - 625-8238 - for an appointment is recommended.

Hartwick is also looking for part-time employees for the home chore service. Workers, who must be 18 or over, can choose their hours, from five to over 30, and the pay is $4.10 an hour plus 20.5 cents a mile to and from the senior center to the job site.

The center's other activities are open to anyone age 55 and up. The list includes bowling, woodworking, shuffleboard, crafts, ceramics, woodshop, bingo and cards, steak roasts, dinner dances, pot lucks, day trips, extended trips to locations ranging from Mackinac Island to Europe, sing-alongs, and baseball and volleyball teams.

Also available are a Body Recall exercise class; speakers several times a month on health-related, financial and other topics; and such services as blood pressure tests and flu shots.

The seniors also strive for community involvement, and two programs involving Clarkston High School students illustrate the effort. Using food collected by CHS students, the seniors put together and distribute holiday food baskets for the needy, and they work with members of the CHS Blue and Gold Club on a spring cleanup around the center and intergenerational parties.

Visitors can also watch TV, play pool or simply meet to chat. Accordingly, the most important aspect of the center involves being with people, Rina said.

"It gets you out, it gives you social contact, and I think it's enjoyable to do things here," she said.
