Cityhood issue heats up again

Independence board action angers village council trustee

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

As legal steps toward cityhood for the Village of Clarkston move forward, the rift between Independence Township and village officials appears to be growing.

The latest incident involves village council Trustee William Basinger's job. Basinger, who signed the petition for cityhood, is one of 250 assistant attorneys for the state attorney general.

Citing a possible conflict of interest, the township board voted 5-0 Oct. 18 to send a letter to the attorney general's office and the state boundary commission asking that Basinger not be consulted for matters relating to village cityhood.

The state attorney general office provides legal services to state agencies such as the state boundary commission, which will decide whether or not the Village of Clarkston can become a city.

At the meeting, township attorney Gerald Fisher said he had talked to Basinger about the upcoming letter (See DEBATE, next page)

Ghost 'n' goblin alert

Little ghosts, goblins and witches will be making their way through neighborhoods on Halloween, Monday, Oct. 31.

Trick-or-treating hours are 6 to 7 p.m. in the Village of Clarkston and Independence Township and 5:30 to 7 p.m. in Springfield Township.

Halloween fun

Saturday's party day as kids in the Clarkston community are invited to celebrate Halloween at a trio of free events.

The second annual Parade of Costumes is planned in Clarkston's Depot Park at 1 p.m. The free activity for all ages is sponsored by the Clarkston Farm and Garden Club, which also provides cookies and cider for the party.

A pair of parties sponsored by the Independence Township Library begin with a gathering of Pumpkin Carvers from 10:30 a.m. to noon at the Church of the Resurrection, across from the library on Clarkston Road.

Participants should bring a cleaned pumpkin and a knife. Children under 8 must bring an adult. Everyone will receive a certificate.

From 2 to 3:30 p.m., the library's costume party for children in grades kindergarten through sixth is planned, also at the church. Everyone in costume receives a lottery ticket to try for a prize. A magic show, movies and refreshments will round out the entertainment beyond the shared costume delights.

2 men arrested in connection with rural break-ins

Two men believed responsible for break-ins in rural areas of Independence Township and other northern Oakland County communities were charged with the crimes Oct. 20 and 21.

Ernie Lee Spicer, 20, of River Rouge and Matthew Ray Chapman, 18, of Detroit were charged with three and two counts of breaking and entering of occupied dwellings, respectively, according to Detective Sgt. Douglas Hummel of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

They were arraigned before Judge Gerald McNally at the 52nd District Court in Independence Township.

Bond was set at $10,000 for Spicer and $12,000 for Chapman. Both remain in Oakland County Jail, said Hummel.

Police charge that the two broke into homes on Reese, Rattalee and Oakhill roads in Independence Township and may also have broken into homes in Orion Township, said Hummel.

They were identified through fingerprints left at the scenes of the crimes, said Hummel, adding that police think another criminal was involved and is still at large. Also, the two are not believed to be responsible for all the recent thefts in rural areas, he said.

"But we figure that will take some of the heat while they're in jail," said Hummel.

He requested that homeowners still be on the alert for other thieves using tactics similar to Spicer and Chapman's.

Spicer told detectives they would knock on a door, and if someone answered, they'd ask for a certain name or for directions. If no one answered, they'd break in.

Hummel asks that residents approached by strangers write down the make and color of the car, the license plate number and a description of the suspicious people. Then, give detectives a call at 858-4960 during the day or 858-4950 in the evening.

Debate on cityhood rages on

and that Basinger had agreed that the letter should be sent.

After the meeting, Basinger expressed anger over the board's action. His interpretation of the conversation with Fisher was that the board should do whatever it feels it has to do, but any letter should be directed to state Attorney General Frank G. Kelley.

"I certainly did not agree that the letter was necessary or appropriate," he said.

Basinger said his job has nothing to do with the cityhood petition and he has never contacted or even considered contacting the state attorney who represents the boundary commission.

"Nor would I attempt to use my position to influence the boundary commission," he said.

Basinger hadn't seen the letter when contacted Oct. 21 but expressed anger that his ethics were being questioned. He added that in dealings with the village, township, state boundary commission and newspapers, he hadn't even indicated his employment as an assistant attorney general.

That he is in a career of public service is not "a reason to be more suspicious" of him, he said, adding that he should be able to petition his government like any other citizen.

"I can understand that the township may be concerned with the attempt of the village to become a city," said Basinger. "For some reason, the township apparently believes that somehow I have misled or widely influenced 142 village residents to sign the cityhood petitions."

The recent attitude of township officials "does a great disservice to the integrity of the other village trustees and citizens in general," he said.

After the township meeting, Supervisor Frank Ronk said the township was trying to prevent any possible objections that could show up after the cityhood process was completed.

"All we wanted to do was to let them know our feelings on the thing, so it is open and clear right in the beginning," said Ronk.

"We have no desire to cast any shadows on anybody's quality of services to the community," he said. "I don't want the village people to think we're trying to overpower the village actions. That's their business."

Proposal A on Nov. 8 ballot

Should Medicaid stop paying for abortions?

MILLIE HAM, of Springfield Township, relaxes with a cup of coffee in the Village Bakeshop after delivering meals to home-bound senior citizens in the Clarkston area.

"IT WAS A FAMILY DECISION," says Kurt Gebhard, of his trip to Atlanta, Ga., to protest at an abortion clinic. His wife, Elaine, fully supported his decision, he says.

Con: League rep says vote no

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

For Millie Ham, the issue of whether or not Medicaid funded abortions should be stopped is simple. It's a matter of justice, and the answer is no, says the Springfield Township resident and vice president of the League of Women Voters of Michigan Board of Directors.

After studying the facts, league members decided to join the People's Campaign for Choice, which encourages people to vote no on Proposal A to end Medicaid funded abortions, says Ham, mentioning other groups in the coalition such as the Business and Professional Women's Club and Catholics for Choice.

"The issue for league and choice coalitions is very simple," says Ham. "It's one of justice and fairness. The other side would like to make it a tax issue. For us, it's equal access."

The purpose of Medicaid, established in 1965, is to ensure equal access to health care for all citizens. The ban would deny abortions to poor women, which isn't fair, she says.

"We don't believe in discrimination just because you're poor. Why should I have access to health care of some kind that you would be denied just because you don't have the means to purchase it?"

"It's not just in our country to pick a certain group of people and deny them access to a certain health care procedure. There isn't a whole lot more to it than that. It's a matter of choice. It's a matter of rights. It's a matter of justice."

The ban would not make exceptions for victims of rape and incest, she adds.

In 1973, the Roe vs. Wade U.S. Supreme Court decision guaranteed all women in the country a choice. Abortion remains legal, so why make it inaccessible to only one group? asks Ham.

Most people who belong to the anti-choice campaign are also against the legality of abortions, and some are clouding the issue, says Ham.

"Whether abortion is right or wrong is not the issue," she says. For most, the difficult issue requires a personal decision, a decision that would be denied to poor women if proposal A is approved.

"For us, this isn't a political issue," says Ham. "For us, it's a matter of what our principles are. Everyone should have equal access to health care in this country. It's very elementary to us. Families should be able to make this choice."

The long-term goal of the anti-choice lobby is to outlaw abortions nationwide, says Ham. Since that has failed so far, they've been pushing for the Medicaid ban, which would only outlaw abortions for the poor.

Many arguments are given to support the ban, but Ham refutes them.

To people who say cutting Medicaid abortions would save taxes, Ham answers: "In the long run, it will end up costing more. Down the road, you'll have all kinds of additional expenses" in raising poor children.

To people who think abortion is wrong and don't want to pay for it, Ham explains that tax dollars will still continue to pay for it because taxes pay for health care for, not only the poor, but for the elderly and for government employees, such as people who work in schools and in local, county and state offices.

This isn't the first time Michigan residents have debated the points, says Ham.

"It has been an issue in Michigan for many years," she says, adding that Michigan governors James Blanchard and William Milliken vetoed legislative bills to end tax-funded abortions 17 times.

The referendum won't eliminate the problem of unwanted pregnancies, says Ham. It's a different issue and should be addressed with better education about contraception and family planning.

The League of Women Voters of Michigan, which has a Clarkston chapter, is a non-partisan organization that never supports or opposes any political party or candidate but carefully studies issues and makes a stand without regard to political parties, said Ham.

Pro: Minister says vote yes

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Five days in jail after placing himself between pregnant women and the doors of an abortion clinic didn't weaken the Rev. Kurt Gebhard's convictions. He's still working to convince voters to vote "yes" Nov. 8 to end Medicaid-funded abortions in Michigan.

Gebhard was arrested with 343 others Oct. 4 during an anti-abortion protest in Atlanta, Ga. A Waterford Township resident, he is the founder of North Oakland Community Church, which meets at Clarkston High School.

"The unborn child in this nation has absolutely no rights under the constitution," said Gebhard, the father of Kevin, 10, and Michelle, 8.

Abortion should not be legal, and citizens should not be forced to pay for abortions through tax dollars, he said.

Gebhard said his participation in Operation Rescue was a way to more strongly show support for unborn children as well as save a few lives.

After the Oct. 4 incident, pregnancy counseling centers around Atlanta showed an increase in activity, indicating that a few women may have changed their minds about aborting their unborn children, so the protest was successful at saving a few lives at least, he said.

The highly organized Operation Rescue involved strict rules, such as terminology. It's not a fetus inside a woman's womb, it's an unborn child, said Gebhard, explaining further.

"We were not demonstrating," he said. "We were rescuers. We were setting our bodies between the unborn child and the abortionist. ... This was definitely a non-violent attempt to rescue unborn children."

"We take our mandate from scripture," he said, quoting from Proverbs 24:11, "Rescue those being led away to death. Hold back those staggering toward slaughter," and Proverbs 31:8, "Speak for those who cannot speak for themselves."

"Obviously, the unborn can't speak for themselves," he said. "They are being led away for slaughter. We have a responsibility to be obedient to the scriptural mandate."

He acknowledged that the Bible calls for man to submit to the laws on earth but not "when laws contradict scripture," he said. "It's civil disobedience, but it's in light of Biblical obedience."

He was home from Atlanta in time to give a sermon about the issue on Oct. 9, an issue that other members of the clergy should also address, he said, adding that the Atlanta protest had the support of many religions.

To not take a stand would be the equivalent of clergy turning their backs on the murders committed under the Nazi regime in Germany, he said.

The ultimate goal is to make abortions illegal, but Gebhard knows what a difficult task it is.

To people who argue that abortions will continue whether legal or not and who advocate safe operating conditions offered with legal abortions, Gebhard answers: "It won't stop any more than making murder illegal has stopped murder. People will go on breaking laws to fulfill their own selfish motives."

To those who would rather pay for abortions for the poor than for the cost of raising poor children, Gebhard responds: "We're going to approach a time when the elderly are an economic burden. Using that logic, the next step would be euthanasia of our elderly. I don't think economics, when it comes to dealing with life, are where we should be, ethically."

Gebhard believes life begins at conception, so birth control devices that prevent fertilization of the egg would be OK, while anything that destroys the fertilized egg would be destroying life.

"We can talk abstracts, but doggone it, there are children being murdered at a rate of 1.5 million in this country," he said. "We're not talking about just tissue. It's not an appendix being discarded. These are children. We've become desensitized to it."

People speak for, against cityhood

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Before they endorse cityhood, village residents want to know how Clarkston's officials expect to provide complete police and fire protection without an enormous tax hike.

Village and township residents alike spoke Monday night during a cityhood hearing at Village Hall. They were mainly concerned about fire or police protection and on continuing the unity between Clarkston and Independence Township.

Trustee Frank Millard said the village council sought cityhood in an effort to protect residents from township tax increases.

"I think that if the village doesn't become a city the township will," he said. "The township will go for cityhood and include the village in its boundaries."

You're looking at a lot more expenses in the township, we (the village) are a confined area. We know who we have to provide service to."

No one in the crowd of 34 argued the point, but instead asked how the village expects to provide police and fire service economically should the township refuse to contract with Clarkston if it becomes a city.

"Has anyone checked the millages of other small communities like Sylvan Lake that are similar to ours?" ask Buck Kopietz, co-owner of Tierra Arts & Design on Main Street.

Trustee William Basinger said millage figures were available-but without corresponding state equalized value numbers to go along with it, the statistics were useless for comparison.

But when push comes to shove, village council members doubt they'll have problems with police or fire protection.

President Sharron Catallo said it's highly unlikely that Independence Township won't provide fire protection for Clarkston if and when it becomes a city.

"It's an area they need to be in relation to their other stations," she said. "We are a good deal for them and we will still be a good deal for them considering the number of runs and the amount we pay."

According to Catallo, only 80 of the fire department's 1,291 responses were to the village.

As far as police protection is concerned, Millard said village residents have a couple of options.

Clarkston could model its police department after Lake Angelus and hire retired officers on a part-time

"All the facts are not here. What I object to is that the entire community associates with the village, it's a community-wide association. If the village becomes a city, then that's lost."

Bruce Mercado

basis to eliminate benefit payments and cut down on overhead. Or, one Oakland County Sheriff's Deputy could be hired to work a day shift and then paid on an on-call basis for after-hour jobs.

"It can be done," Millard said of creating a police department. "It depends on what type of crime you are concerned with."

He then addressed those long-time residents who don't want the village to change.

"If anyone thinks this town will remain a village, you're mistaken," he said. "It's not going to happen. You can bet the township will seize the opportunity (if Clarkston's cityhood bid is voted down) to ram it down your throats."

One township resident was concerned with the way the village was presenting facts in the informational packet it handed out before the hearing.

Bruce Mercado of Snowapple Drive, Independence Township, asked the village council where it got its facts and voiced his displeasure with Millard's comment about the township's cityhood intentions.

"I didn't appreciate the comments that the township will surround and swallow the village," he said. "All the facts are not here. What I object to is that the entire community associates with the village, it's a community-wide association. If the village becomes a city, then that's lost."

Catallo disagreed with Mercado's look at the future should Clarkston gain cityhood. In her mind, nothing

"It's a nice place for everyone. We will not ask for passports (from township residents)."

Sharron Catallo
Village President

drastic will change between the township and the village.

"It's a nice place for everyone," she said. "We will not ask for passports (from township residents)."

Trustee James Schultz thought the most important aspect of Clarkston's cityhood bid was the opportunity to control its own destiny.

A township-wide cityhood plan would dump approximately 1,000 village residents into a bin with 24,000 township voters, he said. Clarkston residents no longer would have a say in what affects their lives.

"If there is a concern in the village, we move on it," he said of the current village council.

After two hours of discussion, residents left the meeting hall one-by-one slowly ending the public hearing.

The village council reminded residents of the State Boundary Commission's public hearing on Clarkston's cityhood bid at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 22, in the Village Hall, 375 Depot.

At that time, the commission will determine if cityhood is viable for Clarkston. Even at that point, however, the process to become a city is far from over, said Basinger.

"I don't see a (final) decision until next December," he said.

58 homes to face forced water meter purchase

Buy water meters or face double flat rate, says Independence Township Board

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Despite protests of the township's tactics and requests for free water meters, residents in the old section of Hillview subdivision must request a $125 water meter within three months and pay the cost or face double the current flat rate on their 1989 quarterly bills.

Following about two months of negotiations between residents and officials from the Independence Township Department of Public Works, the township board stuck to its original decree, first issued in August and rescinded in September after residents protested and asked for reconsideration.

Hillview residents were unhappy with the Oct. 18 decision, and Chris Graham expressed the frustration of the about 10 people in attendance.

"What we've done here is gone a complete circle and just delayed the whole thing," he said. "We haven't done anything different. ... I think (the fee) is unsuitable. It's a tactic to push people into (buying a meter)."

Hillview resident Mike Foos agreed that meters were necessary to help account for the loss of almost 18 million gallons of water a year, but he requested the township pay the $6,000 for 58 meters.

"It's a one-time situation here," he said. "It should never happen again in the township. We are unique in that the township took us over two years ago. ... I'm pleading for your understanding."

A mechanical engineer with nine years of construction experience, Foos calculated that for 18 million gallons of leakage to be attributed to the homeowners, the 15 automatic sprinkler users would have to run their sprinklers 24 hours a day for 86 consecutive days.

"That's impossible. Nobody does that," he said, adding that all 58 unmetered homes are already assumed to use 7 million gallons of water a year.

"There is no way that the 58 homes are consuming an additional 18 million gallons of water," he said. "I'm saying there's a leakage problem. It's an old system. ... We don't flush our toilet anymore than the metered homes."

If the township paid $6,000 to install the meters, it would be an inexpensive method to test for leakage, he said.

George Anderson, DPW director, said a leak of that size would require the pumps to run constantly, even in non-peak hours such as in the middle of the night.

"We've been in that pump house at 2 or 3 in the morning, and the pumps aren't running," he said. "We cannot find any appreciable leakage."

Anderson said it would be unfair to all other township water users who paid for their meters if the 58 homeowners in Hillview were not required to pay.

In this case, the township is willing to perform installation and plumbing for free, he said.

Hillview resident David Monroe, didn't like the attitude of the township, he said. Two years ago, he received a letter asking him to choose between a meter and a flat rate. This year, he received a letter saying he wastes water and is not paying his fair share.

"I'm not doing anything wrong," he said. "I'm paying my bills. This issue has caused animosity between neighbors -- the people who own meters and the people who don't."

By jacking up the flat rate fee, the township is coercing the homeowners to buy meters, he said.

Kirk Baker said the residents were being accused unjustly.

"We're being held responsible for water loss when it hasn't been proven we're using it," he said.

"It's the principle of the thing," said Monroe, explaining that people with new lawns paid $290 water bills and were upset that residents in the old section only paid $52.60.

Supervisor Frank Ronk said each homeowner should pay for his meter and added, "Regardless of the leak, ... in all fairness, all people in that subdivision should be billed for the amount of water they use."

While the township now requires all new water users to install meters, it can't legally force the Hillview homeowners to install meters, he said, adding that the township mistakenly gave the residents a choice two years ago and should have required the meters when it took over the system.

Trustee William Vandermark, who sat on the board at that time, agreed: "Frankly, I'd like to see us go back and correct it. ... The only way to ever have this sorted out is to have these homes metered."

He suggested spreading the $125 meter fee over four quarters, so people wouldn't have to bear the cost all at once.

Treasurer John Lutz said computers would make that type of billing easy and favored the suggestion.

"It would be better, especially with Christmas coming up," he said. "I have two little kids, too."

Water main for Dixie

An $84,239 water main is to be installed on Dixie Highway, Independence Township, in November if permission to run pipe across private property is granted by two or three more owners.

The township board accepted the low bid Oct. 18 from Pacentro Construction Co., Mount Clemens, for installation of the main on the west side of Dixie Highway between Maybee Road and M-15 and between M-15 and Northcrest Condominiums on Dixie Highway.

The project, to be completed within 30 days after construction begins, is to be paid through the Downtown Development Authority, which is funded through tax increment financing.

Opinions

Morning break

Kathy Greenfield

Thoughts over morning coffee:

The Village of Clarkston's quest for stronger legal separation from the township of Independence provides plenty of food for thought.

For instance, the pot really started to boil when township officials referred to the village some time back as just another subdivision.

The statement carried a disregard for village officials and for the importance the town plays in the entire community's identity. As the township has grown, it has become the most powerful of the two, but should that create a disregard for history -- or reality?

Personally, I don't like the tale of two cities now in the sprout stage. A major problem involves identity.

If I've learned one thing while working at The Clarkston News, it's that people in our community are proud to be from Clarkston. Almost no one says Independence when asked for place of residence.

When pushed, many become irritated over having to substitute Independence for Clarkston due to our paper's policy of using governing lines rather than post office address for place of residence.

I abhor the idea of taking away that identity. It has happened in Rochester, a community that once carried the same strong sense of pride. Now, it's Rochester Hills, Auburn Hills and Rochester. Gone, you may notice, is any name that evokes the slightest memory of Avon Township.

Parental observation: College students and newborn babes have something in common. They frequently throw their schedules in reverse -- awake all night, asleep all day.

Last week, I wrote a check for 65 cents at the post office. I knew when I walked in the door that all I wanted to do was mail one item and that I was experiencing a cash shortage.

The problem was time. To drive onward to go to my bank would have chewed up another 15 or 20 minutes, not to mention dealing with more traffic, traffic lights, left turns, and so on.

When I casually handed the clerk my check, he glanced down and said, "A check for 65 cents?!!" I told him I agreed that it was awful. But it got the job done.

As I drove back to my office in town, I thought about Clarkston when life was less complicated -- which was before my time here, but it's easy to imagine.

The building that was once the post office sits just a few steps from the building that is still a bank.

There's nothing like an answering machine attached to your home phone to get you hopping. We have a little over three rings to answer before the recording clicks on -- and people hang up.

With every technological innovation, it seems, there's a cost factor beyond cash.

The four propositions of 1988

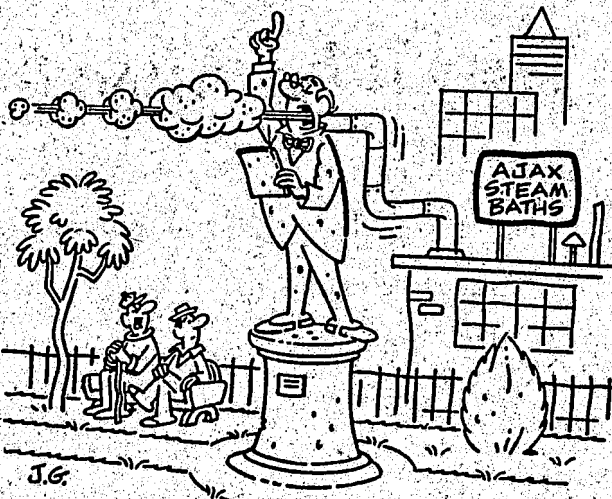

The four questions before Michigan voters Nov 8 concern abortion, crime victim' rights, environment and recreation.

Only the abortion proposal is controversial, or at least is provoking arguments and advertising.

The other propositions would draw only the most dedicated to the polls. And, in a year when the populace seems to be saying "none of the above" to the presidential candidates, and "who cares" to many of the others, voting will be lighter than usual on the proposals.

Proposal B, crime victims' rights, shouldn't even have to be on the ballot. It guarantees rights to crime victims by amending our constitution.

Apparently our constitution gives no such rights, so this proposition spells out the rights: to be treated fairly and with dignity, be notified of court proceedings, told of case disposition, etc.

"HE WAS ONE OF THE GREAT POLITICAL CANDIDATES."

Let's give crime victims rights, for heaven sake. Vote yes on B.

The environment and recreation proposals, C and D, respectively, call for borrowing money to improve these areas. The good thing is there will be no increase in taxes. The bad thing is there will be no decrease in taxes.

These two programs will be paid by continuing state obligations... that is, some bonds are being paid up, and if we vote no on C and D, we someday could experience a cut in taxes. These bond obligations will be continued with voter approval of the questions.

If we want to improve our environment, and a growing majority of us do, and we want our state park system improved, a yes vote on C and D will help.

On the abortion issue, a law was passed (initiated by a petition drive) in Lansing last year stating tax funds shall not be used to pay for an abortion for a person receiving public assistance unless necessary to save the life of the mother.

We think the legislature never should have passed the bill in the first place. Medicaid funding should be continued for abortions.

We think it's a mother-to-be's decision. And, should that be her decision, and state funding is the only way, let it happen. JAS

Jim's Jottings

I usually don't let this column get too serious. In that vein I'll review the presidential race.

It's what I call a "none of the above" contest.

I've complained before about going to the polls to vote AGAINST someone, rather than pulling the lever FOR someone.

When it comes to choosing between Michael Dukakis and George Bush I'll take Epsom salts.

It's amazing to me that these two men end up being the best choices of the two political parties in the United States. I predict a new low in voter turnout. The pandas in Toledo draw more interest.

If there's a worse political scenario than Mikey and Georgie it's in Michigan's Senate yawner, Donald (Mr. Union) Riegle and Jim (Mr. Angry) Dunn. Riegle says he won't answer Dunn's charges of accumulation of wealth in office, and Dunn sues his political party. How are those issues positions?

I, who listens to every presidential address and news report at every opportunity, listened to only segments of the two debates. I'm too disgusted with my choices. The cynical one-liners are the only thing that makes news the next day, which proves I made no mistake in not listening.

Issue stands they do not take. Here we have a national debt that can only be reduced by raising taxes or cutting spending, and Michael is saying, "I'm for Main street, he's for Wall Street", and George is saying, "That's as clear as Boston Harbor".

Neither is talking of their plans for securing the world against nuclear destruction. I hear nothing of how we are planning to protect and improve the country's social services. What is their plan for helping central cities?

Bush talks of what the Reagan administration has done in the area of national defense, and says he believes in a strong national defense, but they've been working on a rapid deployment force for 10 years and it isn't in place.

In speech after speech Dukakis says he's for the middle class, "the forgotten" class. But, the problems of the very young and very old are insufficiently addressed... by both men, as are the chronically unemployed and homeless.

These two leaders, one of whom will be president of the greatest country in the world, love status quo. They don't want to rock a boat. Stalemate is the game plan.

You know in a stalemate no one wins. And, I'm not talking about the two unexcited, milquetoast party representatives on the ballot.

I realize, of course, there will be one of the above. At this point Bush has a 17 point lead in a Times poll. One predictor of such things says Bush will carry 35 states.

Another said, "It's a case of it not being broke, so why change it". If he's right, expect Ronald Reagan to win on a write-in.

Letters to the Editor

Say YES to life!

This week you will notice special Red Ribbons displayed for Clarkston area business and homes to recognize the importance of Red Ribbon Week for Substance Abuse Awareness.

The Clarkston Area Optimist Club, the Clarkston Aware Group, the Clarkston Community Schools and the Clarkston Chamber of Commerce have all agreed to show their support for a Drug Free Lifestyle by participating in this week's activities.

It is important and essential that the youth in our community knows that their community is actually seeking alternatives to drug use and abuse.

Activities this week include:

Oct. 25 -- Wear Red Day and be Substance Free Day.

Oct. 26 -- Balloon release before Clarkston High School football game.

Oct. 29 -- 10 a.m. Saturday -- Just Say No Rally.

The Clarkston High School Just Say No Program will be providing student speakers at the elementary and junior high school.

This, the first annual Red Ribbon Week for Clarkston, is a kickoff for further community activities that will optimistically signal to the Clarkston residents -- SAY NO TO DRUGS AND YES TO LIFE.

Winning beats all

Regarding T. Miller's letter "Hard knocks best," what Miller fails to realize is that the father in question never came forward until after his son had quit football. The father is speaking for all the players who are not the "few favored ones."

Football in Clarkston schools has nothing to do with fair. It has nothing to do with working with each boy so they may all have a chance to shine. It only has to do with winning.

Jan Wolf

Questions remain

I read with interest the article by Pat Young entitled "Parent questions football decision."

While I learned of Dan Fife's many accolades I did not learn where parent Rich Oppmann went to school, what professional organizations he has belonged to since graduation or where he is currently employed.

A more informative approach may have been to expound upon the qualifications of the quarterbacks.

What criteria is used to choose a student for a position and in this particular situation, why was one player chosen over the other? What is the last paragraph of this article really saying to us about this situation?

Marcia Hubbard

They'll be missed

In admiration and loving memory of David Hertler Sr. and Bruce Embrey, I was determined to write some verse of my own but couldn't quite originate the feelings and logic of the old-world masters William Shakespeare and John L. McCreery.

I dedicate the next verses to a couple of men who played a key role in my growing up many times over. We will all deeply miss both of them.

"... To die: to sleep;
No more; and, by a sleep to say we end
The heartache and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to, 'tis a consummation Devoutly to be wish'd."

-- William Shakespeare

"There is no death! The stars go down
To rise upon some other shore,
And bright in heaven's jeweled crown
They shine forevermore."

The Roads We Travel

Not much to report

Brent Bair

Our roads are showing signs of wearing out, traffic volumes continue to grow, and the number of serious accidents continue to be a very real problem to us.

So what is planned in the way of road improvements in our area in the next three years?

Frankly, it looks like this is going to be one of my shorter columns. Unfortunately, I don't have much to say.

The widening of Dixie and I-75 should be completed by the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) and it is possible that MDOT may be able to widen M-15 from Dixie to the village, although that is questionable in my mind.

Congressman Carr obtained some federal funds for MDOT to widen the Sashabaw bridge over I-75, and that might happen in the next three years. I don't know of any major road improvements planned by the village.

Now for the roads in Independence Township:

1989

Complete reconstruction of bridges on Andersonville at Van Norman Lake and Green Lake.

Complete resurfacing of Sashabaw from Sally to Oak Hill.

Complete reconstruction of Sashabaw/Pine Knob intersection.

1990

Reconstruct Sashabaw/Maybee intersection.

1991

Do design and right-of-way work for future reconstruction of Sashabaw/Clarkston intersection.

Other smaller projects may be identified by the road commission and township in each of the above three years, but it still does not add up to much.

Why not more? Easy ... lack of funds. The principal source of road funds available to the village, MDOT and the road commission are the state fuel tax (last increased in January 1984) and license plate fees (which increase only when you buy a new car).

These represent a relatively fixed income, and each year a larger portion of it must go for outside maintenance such as snow removal.

That which is available for major construction, by necessity, must be spent where the traffic and accident problems are the worst, and that needs to be in the areas to the south and east of us.

All of the above could change significantly if the $25 vehicle registration fee passes Nov. 8. I'll talk more about that in my next column.

Brent Bair is chairman of the Independence Township Planning Commission.

'If it Fitz ...'

Uncheckable Czech

Jim Fitzgerald

In a 1986 newspaper interview, Detroit Red Wing Petr Klima complained about getting stuck in slow traffic: "Drivers here are bad, especially the older people. There should be hours, like nine to five, when they can drive. After that, get them off the road."

At the time, as one of "the older people," I was angered by Klima's remarks. Wings coach Jacques Demers had recently revealed that, when he was coaching the St. Louis Blues, he once threw pennies on the ice to slow down his opponents. That sounded like a neat way to damage the body of a speeding ice skater, so I decided to go to Joe Louis Arena and throw silver dollars in front of Klima.

I haven't done it yet. I've never even been to the arena for a hockey game. My problem is I hate to leave my TV for fear I'll miss a Jacques Demers commercial. I think he has a good chance to edge out Sparky Anderson as the most redundant face on Detroit TV, and, as a life-long sports fan, I want to be there when Demers does it.

Some tradition-bound fans like to brag they were in the ballpark the day Babe Ruth signaled he would hit a home run, and then did it. As a modern guy, it's my ambition to someday tell my great-grandchildren I was home watching when the Michigan-Notre Dame football game began at 4 a.m. to provide a high-rated lead-in for the CBS-TV morning news show, except on the west coast. Two dashes, one hyphen

Of course, there's no denying it can occasionally be disappointing to depend completely on the media for sports information. A good example was provided by television and newspaper coverage of the recent Olympic games. I watched and read for umpteen hours, day after day, but not once was I provided with the answer to the most burning question of the 1988 Olympics. It concerns the running/jumping sisters-in-law, Jackie Joyner-Kersey and Florence Griffith Joyner.

How come Jackie has a hyphen, and Florence doesn't?

The answer undoubtedly has something to do with the advantages of growing up on a cul-de-sac as opposed to a dead-end street or, worse, a blind alley. It wouldn't have hurt Bryant Gumbel to explain that.

On the whole, however, I'm satisfied with sports as brought into my home by the media, and that includes ice fishing, which is also on the hole.

I'm especially glad my staying home to watch the Demers-Anderson TV commercial competition prevented me from tripping Petr Klima with silver dollars. A recent traffic accident caused me to realize Klima wasn't insulting me when he said older people shouldn't drive after dark; he was warning me.

Klima was arrested and charged with drunken driving around 2 a.m. Sunday after his car checked another car and kept on skating. If I hadn't been home watching late night arm wrestling on ESPN, I might have been out where Klima was making the streets unsafe for people trying to become older.

Just what's the goal?

Today it is interesting to recall the merriment surrounding Klima's defection from Czechoslovakia to Detroit in 1985. No less than U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese and Max Fisher, Detroit financier and friend of presidents, helped persuade Washington to move swiftly on Klima's application to seek refuge in a Red Wings uniform.

"All I know is we need a successful hockey team to bring people downtown," Fisher told a reporter. Certainly. Grosse Pointers were getting tired of driving to Prague to see Klima play. Also, the Klima case provided a good example for all Mexican aliens who weren't smart enough to wear ice skates while picking potatoes.

The funny part came when a spokesman for the Immigration and Naturalization Service actually said: "Klima received no preferential treatment. That was almost as hilarious as what Jacques Demers said last month when Klima missed a scheduled flight to Albany, N.Y. Recalling Klima's past misbehavior, Demers said: "What happened today was icing on the cake."

I would have thought it was the last straw, or maybe the final blow. Klima's arrest for drunken driving must have been gilding on the lily.

Comprehension stressed in state reading program

BY PAT YOUNG

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Growing concern over literacy as the United States evolved from an agricultural to an information-seeking society led the State of Michigan to adopt a new definition of reading.

"The demand for literacy is increasing at a greater rate than the literacy level," Andersonville Elementary School Principal Sharon Devereaux told the Clarkston Board of Education in October, after attending a four-day workshop in Lansing with Andersonville teachers Bernice Rynders and Susan Powers.

"In 1980, there was a ratio of 5.6 unskilled workers needed to one skilled. Today, it's a direct match," she said. And more jobs demand a college education.

But she is quick to add that there are more literate young people than ever before.

"It's not that we're doing less," she said. "But we're not meeting the new, more stringent definition."

The new state definition of reading, prompted by a national report, reads: "Reading is the process of constructing meaning through the dynamic interaction among the reader, the text and the context of the reading situation."

More simply put, the stress is on comprehension, where in the past the stress was on skills, she explained after the meeting. Obviously, skills will still be a focus of reading, but comprehension will be strongly stressed.

The four-day workshop in Lansing, "The State of Reading Goes National," was sponsored by the Michigan Board of Education and attended by persons from 18 states.

"It's exciting that Michigan is in the forefront," Devereaux said. "Reading is the core of education."

The state is encouraging all districts to adopt the new reading model—to set goals for reading and to create comprehensive, interactive reading programs consistent with the new philosophy.

Teachers attending the workshop were trained to go back and share with other teachers in their districts.

The new teaching models can be immediately infiltrated into current programs, Devereaux said. Training for Clarkston teachers is to begin this fall, implemented by Dr. Judith Backes, director of staff development and curriculum. And as textbooks need replacing, they can be updated to meet the new criteria.

"We will then have the type of text to go along with the new focus," she said.

The traditional method of teaching was to read the lesson, then discuss it. The new method will be to discuss first with other pre-reading activities, then read, then discuss again to clarify, reinforce and extend.

The new reading model emphasizes information processing, critical and creative reasoning, locating and organizing information, and investigating and solving real problems.

"The children need to comprehend at more complex levels," Devereaux said. "And be able to think and reason beyond the printed page."

49 receive permits to knock on doors

Residents in Independence Township may be greeted by door-to-door canvassers giving printed material and asking for opinions, signatures and donations in the next month.

Forty-nine members of the Michigan Citizens Lobby were given permission to go door-to-door in the township from 4 to 9 p.m. weekdays and 1 to 6 p.m. weekends between Oct. 25 and Dec. 28.

Each of the canvassers will be wearing a picture identification card, and each is licensed with the township, said Clerk Richard Holman, who asked the township board to give blanket approval for the large group rather than give individual administrative permits normally issued by his office.

The non-profit Michigan Citizens Lobby is the state's largest consumer organization. It advocates the economic interests of working and middle-class citizens.

Holman said that homeowners may verify the identification of the canvassers by calling the township office at 625-5111. All door-to-door canvassers must have a township permit.

Show your support

On the Nov. 8 ballot, the residents of Springfield Township will be asked for approval of a 1/2 mill to be levied for operation, maintenance and development of their parks and recreation facilities.

By voting yes, they will show their loyalty and support for our children and our grandchildren to have good, sound recreation facilities in the future.

Currently, there is an extreme shortage of ball fields and there are no soccer fields. Springfield Township is growing very rapidly each year.

Springfield Township has acquired land that can be developed into ideal ball fields and recreational facilities.

Now the parks and recreation commission needs the important commitment from the voters so they can pursue their goals and provide the much needed facilities for both youth and adults.

Springfield voters please show your support of the parks and recreation commission by voting yes on the 1/2 mill they are requesting on the Nov. 8 ballot.

Glenn Guilds, Chairman
Springfield Township
Parks and Recreation Commission

Deceptive battle

The so-called "Pro-Choice" forces have certainly waged a deceptive and ugly battle in this elections abortion issue.

They, with Gov. Blanchard's support, manipulated the wording for Proposal A in such a way that one opposed to tax funding of abortion is to vote YES in order to stop this crime. Evidently they hope this will grant them a few more votes.

Their TV ads have attempted to convince us that ending tax-funded abortions will raise Michigan's already high taxes. Facts do not support this claim. Seven states where tax-funding of abortions have stopped, this is not the case. They have obviously placed an approximate $300 value on human life (the average cost of an abortion).

In the last few days, several yard signs, many from private homes, encouraging a YES vote to defeat tax-funded abortions have been removed. Several were stolen from the Clarkston area. It was reported that nearly 200 were taken down in Waterford Township.

The "Pro-Choice" crowd, it seems, is trying to either make my choice for me or deny me my choice, because it disagrees with theirs.

This latest attack on my freedom of choice is no surprise to me. After all, a person who sees nothing wrong with the murder of little babies would see no wrong in stealing someone's yard sign.

Todd Vanaman

Reasons for vote

We are independent voters, so friends have asked why we are supporting Joe Gorka for treasurer of Springfield Township, as we have never endorsed anyone before.

Our reasons are simple. Joe is the most experienced in financial management and investment policy to do the job. Joe has a bachelor's degree in financial planning from Michigan State University and has proven his skills in his own successful business.

Joe is very dedicated to our community and has volunteered hours upon hours to make our community a better place to live.

As a board member, the township treasurer must make decisions on growth and development issues, long-range planning and management, and know how to deal with county, state and federal agencies. The decisions that he will make when casting a vote at the township board meetings will be thought out and dedicated to what is best for the people of our community.

We have seen candidates that start showing up for the various board meetings just before election, so they will know what is happening in Springfield Township, but Joe is and has for many years attended township board meetings, economic development committee meetings, police protection meetings and many others.

He is also chairperson of the planning commission and has done an excellent job, so he already knows what is happening and where changes need to be made.

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., Oct. 26, 1988 9

If you haven't met Joe, try to do so, and you will find him very friendly and exactly as described. We are lucky to have someone of this caliber and dedication. Please cast your vote for "Joe Gorka for treasurer of Springfield Township" on Nov. 8.

Larry and Marge Reuter

Pro Proposal A

As local pastors, we would like to publicly endorse Proposal A.

We urge our own congregations and all Michigan voters to vote "Yes" on "A" this Nov. 8 in order that we may join the 36 states that currently do not pay for abortions with their tax dollars.

Campus closes

Few freshman force U of D to shut down Clarkston site

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Five years of decreasing enrollment contributed to the decision to close the doors of the University of Detroit-Clarkston campus.

Students were notified Oct. 17 after the board of trustees made the decision Oct. 14.

After the Class of 1989 graduates in May, the university will close, and the remaining students will be transferred to the Detroit campus, said Dr. Daniel Felicetti, vice president for academic affairs.

At one point, 90 students were enrolled at the campus set in the Colombiere Center's 400 acres off Big Lake Road, Springfield Township, and officials had hoped to raise the number to 250 students, said Felicetti.

But this year, only a few freshmen applied -- not enough to run a program, he said. At that rate, only 30 students would be enrolled next year.

"We were all disappointed that this experiment didn't attract more students," said Felicetti. "It was an extremely positive experience for the students up there."

The Clarkston campus was originally intended to serve students in the Oakland County area and Clarkston in particular, he said, adding that officials don't know why it didn't work out.

"For us, it's a puzzle because we have very happy students. The program is quite strong. ... We have no real explanation as to why. We like Clarkston very much. It was a very important part of what we're doing," he said.

While no plans exist for reopening the Clarkston campus or for opening another campus in a different northern location, it's a possibility, said Felicetti.

In the meantime, U of D employees will help the Clarkston students find programs to suit them.

"We've had an extremely fine director and assistant director, Professor Bruce Brorby and his assistant, Marty Kuechle," said Felicetti. "They've done a super job for us, and it's just unfortunate that not enough people found out about us."

Complaints heard on Clinton house condition

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The owner of a dilapidated residence on Clinton Drive won a little extra time to fix the problems before the Independence Township Board takes action.

Homeowners William and Pat Edwards, who were ticketed for the poor condition of their house, didn't show up for the Oct. 18 public hearing, but neighbors did, as did zoning enforcement officer Don Phillips.

After the meeting, Pat Edwards said she had called to tell the building department that her husband, who works afternoons, would not be able to attend the 7:30 p.m. meeting.

"That really upsets me," she said. "Nobody said he had to be there."

Money had been a problem in the past, but now they have enough to pay for the extensive repairs, she said.

"We're trying our best," she said. "I don't know what more we could do. My son goes to college. I go to work. My daughter works in Sterling Heights. It's a little bit unfair. We don't bother anybody. We don't go anywhere."

They've already repaired one wall in back and have picked up the garbage that dogs drag around, and they're planning to begin the other repairs.

"We told them we'd get on it as fast as we can. ... That's all we can do. We're not ignoring anything. We've got eyes. We see. It's not that we're saying, 'Forget it.' It's nothing like that," she said.

Instead of taking action following the hearing, the board asked Phillips to thoroughly inspect the residence off of Sashabaw Road, citing every violation inside and out, rather than only the three presented to the board:

Building to be added

A new, 60-by-104-foot metal storage building was approved for Beardslee Sand and Gravel in Springfield Township.

The site plan approval Oct. 12 by the Springfield Township Board will allow storage of heavy equipment at the business in Valentine Industrial Park off Andersonville Road.

rotting fascia board in front and rear of house allowing people to see through the house, a window falling out of frame due to deterioration and rotting roof.

Phillips was also asked to take a county health department official with him to investigate.

The citations should include a time limit for fixing the problems and, if not addressed, the issue will return to the township board for consideration.

The complaints about the residence off Sashabaw Road were first filed in the building department in 1984, and neighbors continue to complain about the unmowed yard, the empty in-ground swimming pool and the run-down condition of the house, said Phillips.

Supervisor Frank Ronk said he had heard of the complaints many times.

"This has been a real problem with the neighbors out there," he said. "Their concern is how it's downgrading the neighborhood."

Clinton Drive resident Bob Hatcher agreed that the three main repairs wouldn't be enough.

"It's not going to do a heck of a lot for this property," he said. "Clean it up. It's a disaster. It's just a mess. The house is beyond repair." He added that the empty pool is filled with debris and could be a health hazard.

Treasurer John Lutz said he wished the owner had appeared to explain his side of the story.

"My one concern here is if this family is financially strapped and has no money to make the repairs," he said.

The hearing was required under the township's new property maintenance ordinance, whereby the township first notifies the property owner in writing of the violations. If the violations aren't corrected within a period of time, a hearing is scheduled to allow the property owner to explain why the corrective repairs or improvements should not be required.

"That property has been a nuisance for years," said Clerk Richard Holman. "We finally have tools to deal with it."

More Letters

yet, the current Independence Township Board (running unopposed this election):

1. Originally reduced the size of our planning commission from the previous seven-member board to five, eliminating two long-standing commission members who supported contained and disciplined growth with detailed attention paid to the preservation of physical and environmental characteristics.

The two are Neil Wallace, who presumably had a less than attractive reputation with developers, and Holly Stephens, another resident with longtime experience on the planning commission who is a teacher in Clarkston with expertise regarding wetlands and environmental issues.

Since the initial reduction, and with much pressure from a few township board members and residents (who refused to support Supervisor Ronk's preferred appointees to the commission), the commission again has seven members.

Perhaps the board should consider the legally allowed nine-member commission due to the differing opinions regarding development and the effect it will have on our community.

2. Supports, by and large, the concept of cityhood for Independence Township and the broadening of our industrial base as the method to collect more taxes and continue growth. Perhaps with Michigan's emphasis on recreation and vacation for tourism, we in Clarkston should rethink our future.

Emphasis on a desirable residential community with the assets of open land, park-like settings and access to work environments via I-75 might be more conducive to our lifestyle than light industrial, heavy commercial and city concepts.

3. Has supported the interests of excavation and mining requests over resident objection and concern for environmental preservation and the quality of residential life.

4. Is currently remapping the zoning structure of the township to support their city/industrial attitudes regarding future growth.

5. Has shown little patience with residents who attend meetings and are outspoken or dispute prevailing board opinion/attitude.

6. Continues to spend hard-earned tax dollars repeatedly on expanded office support equipment and park and recreation services that offer out-of-area sport participants more than the children of our own taxpayers (i.e., Clintonwood Park on Clarkston Road with the best of everything -- lighting, bleachers, etc. -- which our own youth sports programs and residents have limited or no use of.)

Compare these facilities to the very poor equipment and field conditions our children must play on and at a high cost.

It should be noted that the youth athletic programs have had a declining availability to the children of Independence during the last few years (i.e., a reduction in girls softball team availability and, therefore, a reduction in the skills they could be improving).

Our youth recreational programs are poor in contrast to those found in Waterford or Lake Orion and many of our youth have found it far more advantageous and less expensive to participate in neighboring recreational programs.

Perhaps, as citizens of Independence Township, we should play the part of Watchdog more carefully than ever before and ask why our officials feel empowered to act contrary to their public's desires.

On a very personal note: I am truly saddened by the decision of Trustee Dale Stuart not to seek office this term.

Mr. Stuart was always an independent voice on our board and has shown concern for the "average" person who is busy raising children, working hard and who expects fairness and a receptive attitude from his government.

As I recall, Mr. Stuart was quoted in a news report earlier this year that he had grown tired of being consistently overruled and outvoted by a board insistent on pursuing secular interests and overspending.

Library neglected?

According to the Walrus, the time has come to talk of many things and perhaps it is time to talk of the bond issue for the projected library expansion.

During the past 25 years the amount of library building growth suffers by comparison to the growth of buildings associated with other community institutions. The increase in size and number of churches is spectacular, and schools have grown like fungus in a rain forest.

The library building, however, looks the same as it did when the mortar first dried.

Not so the library functions. The staff is substantially larger. The public, particularly the youthful public, is now offered a plethora of services. This burgeoning operation is constrained by the same four walls that were adequate at the time of the flood.

The bond issue should be passed, not only to correct the limitations imposed in the past, but to allow for the expansion in the future.

MARIGRACE MINI performed a mime routine in the talent portion of the annual Junior Miss pageant at Clarkston High School Saturday.

Election day substitutes wanted in township

The 68 slots for election day workers on Nov. 8 in Independence Township are pretty much filled; now all she needs is a list of substitutes, said Rosemary Howey, deputy clerk.

"I need people that would be willing to work and come in at the last minute," she said. "Quite often when I get an alternate group, I use them all by election day."

The workers are paid $4 an hour for the day that begins at 6:30 a.m. and continues until at least 10 p.m. Usually they make $60 to $70, Howey said.

"We tell them it's a long day, but most of them enjoy what they're doing. And they're doing a good deed for their community, too," she said.

For an application for the job, call her at 625-5111.

Shirley Lynch hurt in auto accident

Clarkston psychic Shirley Lynch is recovering from Oct. 22 back surgery, performed more than two weeks after she suffered multiple injuries in a car accident in Macomb County.

Around 10 a.m. Oct. 8, Lynch was driving eastbound on 26 Mile Road with her grandson Shawn Wawruck, 5, and her sister, Minnie Mae Steiner of Harrison, when a car southbound on Gratiot ran a red light and struck Lynch's vehicle broadside, said Shannon Wawruck, her daughter.

Lynch remains in stable condition at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital West in Clinton Township, recovering from hip, sternum, shoulder, back and bladder injuries sustained in the crash, said Wawruck.

Steiner was released after treatment for broken ribs, and Shawn, Shannon Wawruck's son, was treated and released for bruises and abrasions.

"She's doing pretty good," said Wawruck. "She's in some pain."

Family and friends have been supportive, added Wawruck. "She gets lots of visitors. We're getting lots of calls. She's going to be OK."

Lynch, an Eastlawn Avenue, Independence Township, resident, hosts a weekly cable TV program on Independence-Clarkston Channel 65 called "Shirley's World" and was the author of "The Third Eye," a weekly column that once appeared in The Clarkston News.

Dixie rezoning OK'd

A small residence on Dixie Highway in Springfield Township across from the Frosty Boy will become an office.

Purchased by the township Clerk Calvin Walters, the building has been rezoned from residential to office service.

A site plan for minor changes and renovations to the building was approved by the township board on Oct. 12. Walters abstained from the voting.

He hasn't decided yet exactly what his plans are for the small office building, Walters said.

7 parcels rezoned

Seven parcels around the intersection of Sashabaw and Maybee roads were rezoned to more restrictive categories last week.

The Independence Township Board voted 5-0 to approve the second reading and adopt the changes.

The back portions of four residential lots on Drayton Heights Road were changed from highway commercial to single family residential. Another parcel at the intersection was changed from planned shopping center to local commercial, and two parcels were changed from highway commercial to local commercial.

Recommended by the township planning commission, the zoning changes brought the non-conforming parcels at the intersection into conformance with the township zoning ordinance and made the intersection consistent with the township's master plan.

Man dies in Dixie crash

A 27-year-old Holly man was killed Oct. 21 in a two-car accident on Dixie Highway in Springfield Township.

James Frank Bailey of East Maple Road was pronounced dead by the Oakland County Medical Examiner shortly after the 11:56 a.m. crash on Friday, according to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department report. He was not wearing a seat belt.

Bailey was driving southbound on Dixie Highway about two miles south of Rattalee Lake Road when he ran into the vehicle in front of him that was stopped for a left turn. The pavement was wet, and it was raining at the time, according to the police report.

The driver of the other vehicle, Wesley James Smith, 51, of Otisville, was not injured. No tickets were issued.

3 churches robbed

Thieves who robbed three churches last week may have found one of the hottest paths to the alternative to heaven, said detectives at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Microphones, musical instruments, speakers, mixers, computers and computer accessories were stolen from three Independence Township churches last week, said Detective Steven Parker.

The First Church of God on Clarkston Road near Snowapple Drive was the first to be hit, followed by Sashabaw Presbyterian Church on Maybee Road near Mary Sue Street on Oct. 20.

A cleaning woman discovered the robbery of the New Hope Bible Church on Sunnydale on Oct. 21. The church office had also been ransacked.

The crimes are probably connected, said Parker, adding that the criminals must figure the final judgment is the same for one church robbery as it is for three.

Anyone with information should call the sheriff's department at 858-4950.

Gun-toting thief strikes party store

An armed robber, who apparently likes Marlboro and Camel cigarettes, used a handgun and stole cash and 28 packs of the cigarettes Oct. 18 from the Hop-In on Clarkston Road in Independence Township.

Around 10:15 p.m. last Tuesday, a man in his late teens or early 20s entered the store near Eston Road wearing blue jeans, a blue baseball cap and a winter stocking cap pulled over his face, said Detective Steven Parker of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

The man walked down aisle two, reached over the shelves and pointed a nickel-plated handgun at two clerks stocking the shelves in aisle three, said Parker.

He told the clerks to lie on the floor, walked around the aisle, still holding the gun, and demanded that they go to the counter and give him the money from the cash register and drop box.

He grabbed an undetermined amount of money and also took 10 packs of Marlboro and 18 packs of Camel cigarettes. He left on foot, walking southwest, said Parker.

The canine unit tracked the man, but lost the scent, said Parker.

Anyone with information should call the sheriff's department at 858-4950.

Wolves' hot shooters top Mott

SUSAN MCKOIN sets up to sink another free throw during an explosive second-half performance against Waterford Mott Oct. 20 that helped the Wolves win.

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Whether it was Jenny Grohs connecting from the perimeter or Susan McKoin popping one in from the paint, the girls varsity basketball team simply overpowered Waterford Mott.

McKoin finished with a game-high 32 points, including 27 in the second half to help Clarkston rally from a 18-17 halftime deficit to a 57-43 victory. The Greater Oakland Activities League match was on the road Oct. 20.

Grohs opened the lane up for McKoin with consistent shooting from the perimeter. The senior guard collected 13 points and dished off seven assists to perfectly complement the power McKoin displayed under the basket.

"Once Jenny hit a couple of shots it opened things up for Susan," said Clarkston's head coach Larry Mahrle. "(Grohs') senior leadership took over in the second half. She ran a good floor game."

The victory ups the team's record to 9-4 overall and 4-1 in the GOAL.

Mott started out of the gate fast, building up a 10-2 lead and had the visitors reeling. Mahrle wasn't upset, though. He knew what it would take to get his club rolling again.

"We had to execute better, make better passes," he said. "I knew we would be all right."

Sure enough, his troops regrouped to make a run at the hobbling Corsairs, who were set back with injuries to their top players. By the end of the first quarter, Mott's lead was sliced to 10-7.

Central falls, perfect mark stays intact

One team stands between the junior varsity football team and perfection.

For the eighth week in a row, the Wolves left the gridiron as winners when they hosted Flint Central on Oct. 20.

The victory was the team's 16th in a row, dating back to the second game of last season. The table is now set for Coach John Craven to enjoy his first unbeaten season during his 16 years of coaching.

Several times in the past, teams led by Craven have won eight-in-a-row only to lose the final game of the season.

"It feels good to go in with a shot at it," he said of Clarkston's final game against North Farmington. "If we can't get pumped up for this one, I wouldn't know what else we could do."

Against Flint Central, the Wolves scored twice in the first half and the defense played superbly throughout the contest for a 14-0 victory.

"We dominated the first half," the coach said. "It was our best effort of the year. Usually we are slow starters."

Chad Hetherington tossed a 30-yard scoring pass to Darren Master in the first quarter to open the scoring. David Marks kicked the successful extra-point attempt.

Jerrold Johnson collected his 10th touchdown of the season in the second stanza off an 8-yard run. Marks booted the extra-point attempt to close out the scoring. The kick marked the 21st straight successful point-after attempt for the sophomore.

Neither team threatened in the second half. It was a defensive struggle the entire way.

"The defense played extremely well," the coach said. "The second half was a little sloppy."

Flint Central's record falls to 4-4 with the loss.

Ski Patrol seeks new volunteers

First organizational meeting at Independence Oaks Sunday

Volunteers are needed for the Nordic Ski Patrol at Independence Oaks and Addison Oaks county parks.

The season's first organizational meeting is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 30, at the Independence Oaks Nature Center.

Through membership in the Nordic Ski Patrol, patrollers may also receive such perks as free season ski passes and reduced rates on top-of-the-line ski equipment.

Volunteers begin as associate patrollers, who do not administer first aid. Basic patrol candidates serve one year before they can take a ski skills test and complete a winter emergency care course.

Skiers at the intermediate level or above interested in volunteering at Independence Oaks can call Harry or Martha Frank at 659-2393. Those interested in working at Addison Oaks should call Steve Penn at 693-8656.

GETTING SET to release a throw during the annual Punt, Pass and Kick competition sponsored by the Clarkston Area Jaycees at Clarkston High School is Brian Schroeder.

Cold weather doesn't stop competition

Despite a cold, wet and gloomy morning, 45 kids entered the annual Clarkston Area Jaycees Punt, Pass and Kick competition Saturday at Clarkston High School.

First-place winners will be honored during halftime of Friday night's football game against North Farmington.

The entrants were divided into groups according to age from 8 to 13. Each participant had one opportunity to throw, place-kick and punt a football. The one who amassed the greatest distance was declared the winner. Trophies were awarded for those in first through third place.

The winners, in order of finish, are as follows:

8-year-old group: Justin Dionne, Jared Thomas and Mike Gabriel.

9-year-old group: Brian Oppmann, Jeff Cumberworth and Brian McGeogh.

10-year-old group: David Brown, Ben Gabriel and Chris Church.

11-year-old group: Andy Garrett, Corey Bildstein and Mike Turk.

12-year-old group: Marty McGeogh, Mike Bills and Pat Wall.

13-year-old group: Vincent O'Connor.

Wolves bomb Corsairs in second half

When the buzzer sounded to start the second half, the girls junior varsity basketball team answered the call like true prizefighters, rallying to knock out Waterford Mott.

After a listless first half, in which the host Corsairs managed to build a 16-12 lead by halftime, the Wolves played like a different team.

Clarkston's points equaled its first-half scoring total in the third quarter alone. The Wolves put the game on ice in the fourth quarter, outscoring Mott 16-10.

With the narrow, 40-36 win against their Greater Oakland Activities League rival, the Wolves boosted their overall record to 10-3.

"This was a tough one," said Coach Debbie Wilson. "We came back well in the second half. They finally made up their minds to play."

Pain in the Neck?

A pain in the neck could be the result of everyday stress and strain, as well as a jolt from an accident or sports injury. Emotional stress caused by one's job, family or bills can cause abnormal contraction of the neck muscles resulting in pain and stiffness. Jobs, like secretary or auto mechanic, that require a lot of leaning over, tend to make people force their necks forward and hunch their shoulders.

By releasing impinged nerves within your spinal column, chiropractors allow your nervous system to function properly, eliminating the cause of the pain, as well as the pain itself. Let us take care of your pain in the neck. Call today!

Time Out

Tough decision

Peter Auchter

Dreary weather greeted the participants at the annual Punt, Pass and Kick competition sponsored by the Clarkston Area Jaycees Saturday morning, but it certainly didn't dampen the spirits of the youngsters.

I say, let the games begin. Who cares if you can't feel the ends of your toes after five minutes? The thrill of competition more than compensates for the suffering, doesn't it?

A extra-special appearance by the Detroit Lions mascot in full battle gear also made getting out of bed on a gloomy Saturday a little easier.

Kids ranging in age from 8 to 13 happily buzzed around the Lions' faithful companion like bees near their hive. A dispute broke out later in the competition -- no, not about anyone's performance; the parents managed to behave themselves -- about whether the mascot was a man or a woman. Someone even asked to have the mascot remove "its" headpiece so the argument could be fairly settled. The mascot respectfully declined.

I guess some things are better left unexplained, like why people still pay real money to watch the Lions play.

Nonetheless, it was refreshing to see a sporting event without having to worry about any behind-the-scenes bickering and arguing. I doubt Nike wants to sign up any of these guys and gals at this point in their career.

Watching these kids perform on the field, some wearing Clarkston Chiefs uniforms, makes me wonder how many will continue playing football. I wonder which ones will be good enough to play at the high school level.

A new movie recently was released on videocassette called "Johnny Be Good," starring Michael Anthony Hall and Robert Downey Jr. It takes a comical look at the pressure talented athletes go through at the high school level when choosing a college.

Does a talented athlete choose a school that will provide him with money, friends and anything else he can think of for a shot at making the pro leagues? Or does he attend a place of higher learning where he will earn an education as a regular everyday student and play football on the side for fun and a possible shot at the pro leagues?

It's a tough choice for anyone to make. Doubly so when there are hundreds of people telling you they know what's best.

In the movie, Johnny Walker, the star quarterback, avoids the temptations of the crooked schools and decides to attend a legitimate university. The ending made me wonder how many kids would turn down the instant glory a big college offers (where the priority usually is making money) and do the right thing for themselves.

In light of the latest Reggie Rogers incident, I'd say not enough.

JV b-ballers win 2 games

(JV, from Page 22)

Mott came out shooting in the first quarter, building a 6-0 lead during the opening minutes of play and had the visitors on the ropes. But that was all the scoring the Corsairs could muster the rest of the period.

Beth Walker canned a couple of free throws to break the ice for Clarkston. She dished off a pass to Carrie Roeser for the Wolves' next basket. Midway through the quarter, Becky Kosek tied the contest at 6-6 with a jumper.

Lauren Caston provided Clarkston with its first lead of the night when she sank a bucket from the free-throw line.

Both teams struggled in the second quarter, especially in the early moments. The Wolves only hit on two shots during the entire eight-minute stretch, both by Roeser. Her last shot just beat the buzzer before falling into the hoop.

Mott led, 16-12, at the half and appeared in control of a sloppily played game.

The Corsairs stretched their lead to six points in the third quarter before Clarkston took control.

"Our press worked well out there," the coach said. "Jenny Graham did a great job."

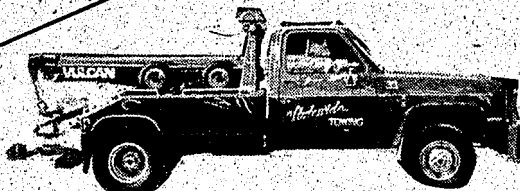

Kosek and Caston scored four points apiece in the third stanza to start the Clarkston comeback.

Graham sank a long shot at the end of the quarter to cut Mott's lead to a bucket heading into the final eight minutes.

Working off the press, Graham stole the ball and layed it into the bucket, pushing Clarkston out in front for good at 28-26 a couple of minutes into the fourth quarter.

A couple of free throws by Graham closed out the scoring and provided Clarkston with a little cushion during the closing seconds.

Earlier in the week, Clarkston hosted Brighton and won easily, 46-24. Roeser was the leading scorer with 12 points. Stacey Secatch also played well and chipped in 10 points.

Punt, Pass, Kick whiz ready for Silverdome

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

If his performance in several punt, pass and kick competitions is any indication, an 8-year-old Clarkston Elementary pupil has a promising athletic career ahead.

Wolves football fans would do well to remember the name of Justin Dionne of Hummingbird Lane, Independence Township.

Consider the following:

● On Sept. 26, Justin won first place in his age division in a contest co-sponsored by Independence and Waterford parks and recreation departments.

● On Oct. 15, he topped the pack at the Rochester regional to pick up another victory.

● On Oct. 22, he entered and won the annual Clarkston Area Jaycees competition at Clarkston High School.

Not a bad resume for someone who has yet to play organized ball. He'll probably try out for a team next fall.

But the best is yet to come. Justin, along with 47 other participants from across the state are invited to a final competition at the Silverdome during halftime of the New York Giants-Detroit Lions clash Oct. 30.

While two of the three parts of the contest are scheduled before the start of the game, the punt-pass-kick officials unknowingly saved Justin's favorite event for halftime.

"I like to pass," he said. "It's my favorite."

There's plenty of pressure since each contestant gets only one opportunity to pass or kick the ball, but Justin's become more confident with each victory. Therefore, playing before a large crowd in the Silverdome really won't affect him much, he said.

When he's not playing football, Justin enjoys other active sports including baseball and swimming.

CHS grad wins first

In his first appearance of the season, a 1988 Clarkston High School graduate earned a victory in the nets for Western Michigan University's hockey team recently.

Rob Laurie, an Independence Township resident, helped the Broncos defeat visiting non-conference foe Alaska-Anchorage 6-3 by making 23 saves. Western is 3-1-1 overall and 1-0-1 in Central Collegiate Hockey Association action.

JUSTIN DIONNE is proud of the trophy he won due to his outstanding football skills.

MEMBERS OF the varsity boys cross country team prepare for the start of the Oxford Invitational Friday evening. The Wolves finished in seventh place.

Strong finish

Boys cross country team posts season-best times in back-to-back tourneys

For the second straight weekend, the boys cross country team turned in a season-best performance during its best season in several years.

Clarkston finished seventh overall at the annual Oxford Invitational at the Oxford Hills Golf Course Friday evening thanks to outstanding performances from the entire team.

The Wolves' top two runners were Jason Wenger and Paul Brisson. Wenger clocked in at 17 minutes, 21 seconds and Brisson followed at 17:45. Both finished among the top 25 individuals and earned medals.

"The guys ran their best times," said Coach Mike Taylor. "They are running well and consistently."

A week before, the Wolves turned in a fifth-place finish at the tough Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard tournament.

At the Oxford invitational, Clarkston beat out all other competing teams from the Greater Oakland Activities League except Waterford Mott. The Corsairs finished in third place with 117 points. The Wolves had 173 points. Lakeland won the competition with a score of 34. Host Oxford finished a distant second at 108.

On Oct. 25, Clarkston hosted the GOAL meet at Independence Oaks. Results were unavailable at press time. Regionals are scheduled for Saturday.

Three harriers, three medalists

With only three healthy runners, the girls cross country team had to settle for individual accomplishments at the annual Oxford Invitational.

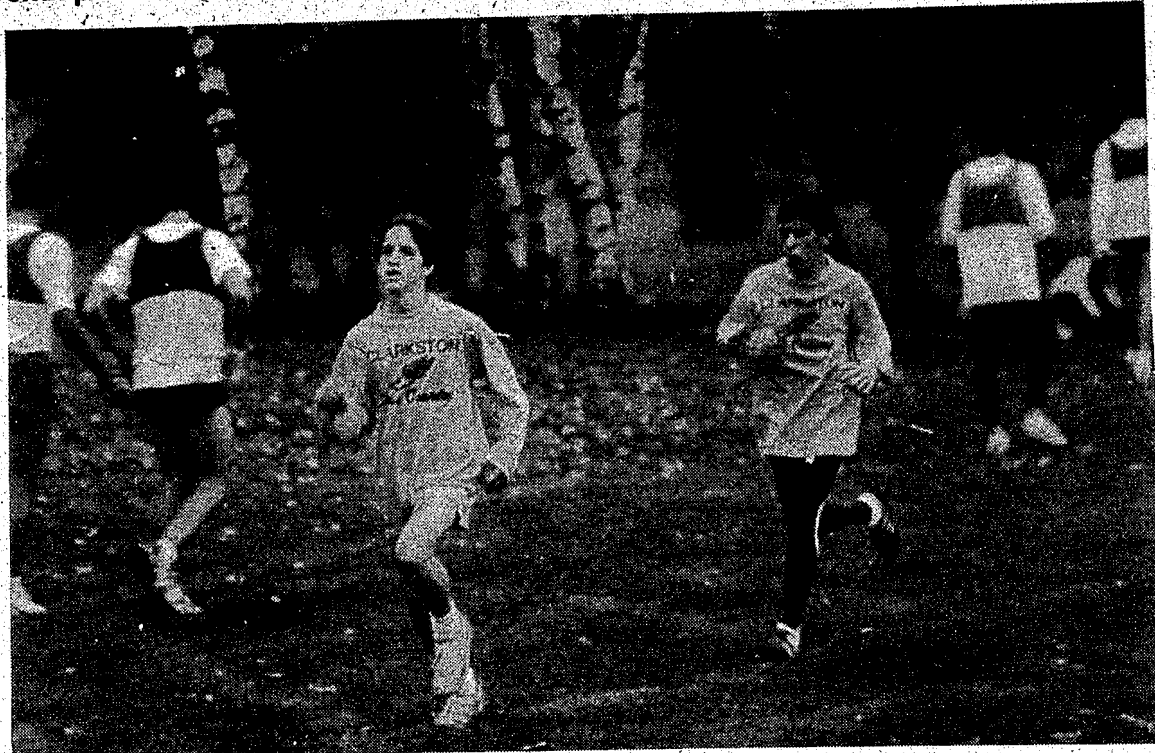

A minimum of five runners are needed for a team score to be recorded, meaning Clarkston couldn't win the team competition, but its entrants could go for an individual medal (top 25 finish).

Just as they have all season, Lisa Palazzola (20 minutes, 37 seconds), Nicole Chinavare (21:08) and Emily Winfield (22:17) ran well and all finished in the top 25 to earn medals.

"That's all you can ask, all three girls medaled," said Coach Mike Taylor.

Junior Sonya Schaffer and senior Bree Michelsen were nursing injuries and held out of the meet in preparation for the Oct. 25 GOAL meet at Independence Oaks, said Coach Mike Kaul.

Clarkston, which finished the dual meet season unbeaten, is the odds-on favorite to win the championship.

DUANE POOLE and Jonathan Moon ran side-by-side through most of the junior varsity cross country race at the Oxford Invitational Friday evening for Clarkston.

BRAKE PRICES?

UNTIL THEY PULL THE WHEELS, THEY'RE PULLING YOUR LEG.

Think about it. How do some brake places know what your next job'll cost if they've never seen your brakes to begin with? Answer: they don't.

Fact is, there's no way anyone can figure out exactly what the price will be. There are just too many possibilities.

That's why at Midas, we pull all four wheels before every brake job. To get inside your brakes. To inspect them. To positively determine what's gone wrong. From a nine dollar can of fluid to a new master cylinder.

And when we're finished, we'll give you a pinpoint estimate of the entire job. With a price that won't go up when the job's done. That's our promise to you.

So when it comes time to pay, you'll have a leg to stand on.

Celeste Steinhelper tied the game at 11 apiece with a bucket in the second stanza, but Clarkston couldn't get over the hump. Mott took a lead into the locker room at halftime.

The Corsairs tossed in a successful three-point shot to begin the second half to up their advantage to 21-17. But they proved to be no match for the Wolves once Grohs and McKoin took control.

By the end of the third quarter, Clarkston held a 35-29 advantage. McKoin polished off Mott in the fourth

Late fumble thwarts rally

Tough-luck Wolves lose

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

If the varsity football team's 1988 highlight film is ever put to music, Darryl Hall and John Oates' recent hit "Missed Opportunity" should be considered.

Throughout the year, the Wolves played tough only to lose the game on a big play or crucial mistake. Clarkston appeared jinxed as time and time again the other team struck it rich at the Wolves' expense.

Last Friday, their luck didn't change as the Wolves lost to host Flint Central, 14-8. A lost fumble in overtime and a bad snap on a field goal attempt late in regulation kept Clarkston from capturing its third victory.

"It was a good football game," said Coach Kurt Richardson. "We just got beat. Flint Central has only lost two games, against two ranked teams."

On the stat sheets, Clarkston dominated the game offensively gaining 15 first downs to Flint's 10 and piling up more yardage on the ground.

But the Wolves could only hit paydirt one time, on a run by John King.

quarter, scoring 18 points.

"We did a good job on the press offensively," Mahrle said. "We converted a couple of big buckets. Mott did a good job."

Mott's head coach Ray Robinson wasn't down on his charges after the loss. He knew what they were up against.

"(McKoin) pretty much owned things around the glass," he said. "We didn't do a good job of blocking out."

With the victory, Clarkston remains a game behind unbeaten and highly ranked Waterford Kettering in the race for the GOAL title. Robinson doubts anyone will be able to catch the Captains.

"King had an excellent game," said end Rob Himburg. "All the backs did. It's just one bad break."

Flint also had trouble moving the ball against a tough Clarkston defense.

"Our defense played an awesome game," said running back Brett Kinzler. "We played well."

The loss drops Clarkston's record to 2-6. The team has one game left, a home date against 7-1 North Farmington.

With nothing left to play for but pride, the Wolves are ready to come out kicking Friday night determined to end the season on a high note.

"We'll be up for this one more than we have all season," said Himburg.

Richardson also looks forward to the opportunity for the team to atone for early season miscues in the season finale.

"They'll get up for this one," he said. "They'll get up for it like they have for all the others."

Game time is set for 7:30 p.m. First-place winners in the annual Punt, Pass and Kick competition sponsored by the Clarkston Jaycees will be presented at halftime.

"It will be difficult to beat Kettering," he said. "Kettering is just too darn deep for both (Mott and Clarkston) of us."

Earlier in the week, Clarkston topped visiting Brighton, 76-45. The Wolves built up an impressive 50-19 lead by halftime and coasted to victory in the second half.

McKoin was the leading scorer once again, tossing in 17 points. Grohs and Ingrid Larson were next on the scoring parade with 12 points apiece.

Steinhelper had 11 points, and Rhonda Jokisch added 6 in a balanced attack for the Wolves.

A SPECIAL APPEARANCE by the Detroit Lions' mascot wowed the crowd at the annual Punt, Pass and Kick tournament Saturday morning.

Students hear straight talk on sex

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

About 250 ninth-graders at Sashabaw Junior High School heard a lot of good reasons why not to have premarital sex, but the most important reason given by Dr. Ray Short on Oct. 18 was: It helps avoid bad marriages.

Ninth-graders may not be thinking ahead to the marriages that nine out of 10 of them will have some day. But their actions now could affect the quality of that relationship, Short indicated, because there is a lot more to a good marriage relationship than sex.

Short is a well-known lecturer, author and college professor currently living in Colorado who last year alone took his frank discussions on sex to about 38,000 students throughout the country. Among the books he authored is the best seller, "Sex, Love or Infatuation: How Can I Really Know?"

Last week's visit was his second to Sashabaw Junior High.

He colors his discussion of a serious topic with a sense of humor, and answers almost any question students ask anonymously, writing their questions on cards, at the end of the program.

"There are two purposes of sex," he said. "There is the happy, 'whoopie' side of sex, but it can be a tragedy if misused. Second, each of us is privileged to create another human being."

The only perfect contraceptive, he said, is the oral one -- "the word no." All others are less than 100 percent effective.

Short gave the students a lot to think about.

One out of three girls get pregnant, one out of five of those get pregnant within the first month of becoming sexually active. And one out of two girls getting married today are already pregnant.

"Counselors know that girls say they didn't want to, but really liked a guy and were afraid he would cut out if they didn't," he said. "Girls, they are more likely to cut out if you do than if you don't."

"When it comes time to marry, 55 percent of guys prefer a girl who hasn't been pawed over by everyone else," he added.

Those who have premarital sex are more likely to commit adultery once married and more likely to break up, he said.

The only positive affect premarital sex has on a marriage, he added, is that partners adjust to a sexual relationship faster. For those who wait until marriage for sex, the adjustment may take longer, but the results are more satisfying.

If partners concentrate on the other aspects of a good relationship before marriage and put that relationship to the "test of time" for a year or two or three, chances are better that the marriage will work.

Short gave the students a lot of other reasons not to have premarital sex.

"It's like playing Russian roulette," he said.

Venereal diseases are at epidemic proportions. Three kinds are not curable: an Asian strain of a germ called gonorrhea, and two viruses, genital herpes II and AIDS.

"You will take it to your grave, or it will take you to the grave," Short said.

There is social disapproval of premarital sex, and by law, men are responsible for the pregnancies they cause: one-half of the cost of hospital expenses for the birth, one-half of the cost of prenatal care if the child is put up for adoption, one-half the cost of an abortion if that is the option chosen.

DR. RAY SHORT talks to the ninth-graders about premarital sex and reasons to wait.

"You may have to mortgage your bicycle," he said. And if the girl decides to raise the child, "you are responsible for one-half of the cost of rearing the baby to age 18."

"That ought to sober up some of the attitudes in the back seat of the car," he added.

Attitudes are something Short is good at changing among students. A survey done last year after his talks at both Sashabaw and Clarkston junior highs showed about a 75 percent upswing in attitude among students.

Many undecided students said they did not think premarital sex was a good idea after the program, according to Janet Colbrunn, chairman of Clarkston Area Youth Assistance family education committee.

Short's program was presented at the schools in conjunction with Youth Assistance, said SJH Assistant Principal Vince Licata, and was brought back this year because of the good response.

During his talk this year, Short noted the effects of "sexual salivation." Like Pavlov's dog, people become conditioned. If premarital sex causes guilt, fear and loss of self-esteem, those feelings may automatically be experienced after marriage, he said.

Also, he explained how the "sexual cement" of a good relationship, which peaks in the first year, can help newlyweds through the tough adjustment period of marriage, which happens in the first three years.

"I think you're a great generation of young people, much more open," Short told the ninth-graders. "I hope you don't buy the cheap physical aspects of sex, because good sex is more than a breathless bounce in bed. Sex is a joy, not a toy."

Good sex is the joining of two bodies emotionally and spiritually, he said. And if you settle for less, you'll cheat yourself out of one of the best aspects of human sexuality.

But he reiterated his point that a sexual relationship is only one aspect of a good marital relationship.

An average couple has sex two or three times a week, and an average length of time is 8 minutes.

"That's about 30 minutes," he said. "What will you do the rest of the time?"

Commuter relief due by Halloween

Southbound commuters from the Clarkston area should have an easier drive on I-75 for part of their trip, anyway.

The 6.8 mile segment from Square Lake Road north to Joslyn Road in Auburn Hills is expected to be completed by Oct. 28, eight months ahead of schedule.

The southbound lanes in the same segment will also be opened, according to Brenda Peek-Redhead of the Michigan Department of Transportation.

The expansion and improvements from four to eight lanes doubles the capacity of the freeway, which averages about 100,000 vehicles a day, 30 to 40 percent more than 1980 traffic counts.

MDOT officials did not expect such a quick completion of project, according to transportation director James P. Pitz.

An all-out, seven-day-a-week effort by the contractor -- Champagne-Webber Inc. of Fraser -- combined with good weather, contributed to the fast work.

Ninety percent of the $17.4 million project was paid for with federal money, with state money funding the remainder.

Besides adding four new lanes, the work includes repairing and resurfacing the existing lanes, new concrete shoulders, median barrier walls, widening six bridges and new signing and lighting.

Still to be completed is the 8.5-mile widening of the freeway from Joslyn Road north to M-15 in Independence Township. That $12.98 million project will add one lane in each direction to the four-lane freeway.

Throughout the winter, two lanes will be open in each direction, with the third lane to be opened next summer.

Names in the News/Michael K. Hofer

OCCUPATION: Owner of Welcome Homes, Dixie Highway, Independence Township; builder of 80 to 100 single family residential homes a year.

Founded in 1978, Hofer's business has brought satisfaction in various ways.

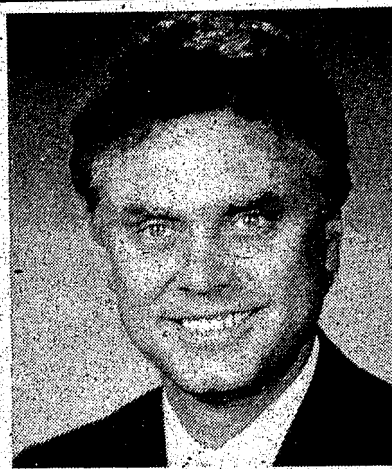

"At first, I enjoyed the hands-on aspect. Every day, you could physically see the results," said Hofer. "It's the business management aspect that I really enjoy now."

Family: Married nearly 23 years to wife, Charlotte. They and their children, Lisa, 21, and Eric, 20, reside on Boyne Highland Trail, Independence Township.

AGE: 42

DEVELOPMENTS: Waldon Woods, 38 lots on Waldon Road near Clarkston High School; Independence Valley, 13 lots on Pine Knob Road, owned by Dr. John Ylvisaker; Northpointe, a 139-lot subdivision off Clintonville Road, Waterford Township; and subdivisions in Commerce and Howell.

COMMUNITY INVOLVE-

Michael K. Hofer

MENT: Sponsor of the building trades program through the Oakland Technical Center -- Northwest Campus, serving high school students from Clarkston, Waterford, Holly and Brandon schools. Hofer's company will supply construction materials, lot and building designs for students who will build a house during the school year in Waldon Woods. They will work under the supervision of a teacher.

Hofer said the program is good for students and good for the building trades industry. Having hired several students from vocational programs, he is satisfied with the results.

"Students need to realize there are options in this world," he said. "When I was growing up, there was a real push for college. ... There are many vocational fields ... where rewards are very great. It's the way I opted -- vocational education as opposed to college."

With school districts facing financial problems, Hofer is pleased to help. "The more you try to give, the more you get back," he said.

ABOUT THE AREA: Hofer enjoys working so close to home and foresees continued housing growth in the area.

"From a business standpoint, the I-75 corridor is one of the fastest growing regions. There's no secret that there's going to be between 55,000 and 65,000 jobs created in this area. ... It's safe to say that for every new job that's created, a new home is built," he said.

"If there's not a national financial problem, I would expect the five-year expansion of the economy in this area to remain constant for another five to seven years."

Committee formed to study school building needs

Durham Downs and Robert Wyatt, both Independence Township residents, have been chosen to co-chair a facilities needs advisory group for Clarkston schools.

The committee, formed to act as an advisory group to the Clarkston Board of Education, already met twice with architect Charles Sherman to review recommendations for new and existing buildings, according to Superintendent Gary Haner.

The committee of residents will continue to meet, with school administrators, teachers and school support staff serving as resource people.

Downs and Wyatt were chosen by the citizen committee to co-chair the continuing effort. Both engineers with General Motors, they have children in the Clarkston school district.

After reviewing 12 proposals made by Sherman and Associates to solve the school space problem in Clarkston, the committee agreed to spend more time finding out how facilities will be used in the future before making any recommendations to the school board.

In addition, Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara will lead a separate group up of representatives of each district building to determine what needs still exist in current buildings beyond the bond issue, Haner said.

After studying the issue, the facilities review committee led by Downs and Wyatt will make recommendations to the school board regarding new buildings or additions to existing ones.

Grade configurations, size of schools, locations, class size and basic space for learning will be considered. Additional room for support services, art, music, computer programs, preschool and latchkey programs, senior citizen use and community education will be reviewed.

The committee agreed that curriculum plans for the future will be a driving force in what kind of school space is needed.

Projections show that student enrollment will continue to go up as new residents move to the Clarkston area. The current seventh grade class has grown from 358 students to 457 since second grade. This year's total K-12 enrollment of 5,708 has been projected to increase to 6,457 by 1993.

The projections, a requirement of the Michigan Department of Education for school districts planning to solve space programs, were provided by STANFRED, a consulting firm formed by two staff members of Michigan State University.

No-hunting zone may be expanded

Hunters who enjoy shooting ducks on Deer Lake or flushing fowl near Bailey Lake Elementary School may be interested in a Thursday, Nov. 3, public hearing.

Residents who have had car windows or residential windows shot during hunting season may also be interested.

The 2 p.m. Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) hearing at the Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, Clarkston, was requested by township officials after residents asked to expand the no-hunting areas of the township. The DNR controls hunting restrictions.

Currently, densely populated sections of the township south of I-75 are the only no hunting areas in the township. Other areas are restricted to certain types of hunting, and some areas have no restrictions at all.

Except for Walters Lake, where waterfowl hunting is not allowed, and the Cranberry Lake subdivision where no hunting is allowed, all types of hunting are allowed north of I-75.

Treasurer John Lutz noted that the township is more populated than when hunting restrictions were first instituted. Some changes may be necessary. As an example, he noted Deer Lake, where waterfowl hunting is presently allowed.

"That's got to be kind of scary for people living on that lake," he said.

He added that hunters should show up at the meeting, too, to give information from their perspective.

"It's kind of an open meeting," said Lutz. "I think they just want to gain input."

Soft walking ahead

New carpeting will soon cover the floors of the Independence Township Senior Citizen Center in Clintonwood Park on Clarkston Road.

The township board accepted the low bid of $3,507 from Spencer Floor Covering, Pontiac.

The new floor covering, the same type used in Oakland County facilities, should last a long time and wear well, said Cheryl Stickley-Schreefel, acting director of the township parks and recreation department.

Stroll sets the spirit for Halloween

TROLL BILL GUGAN, a county park employee, donates his time along with many other park employee volunteers.

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A long, long time ago there lived a pre-Christian people called Celts who observed the original version of today's Halloween. They believed that many spirits roamed the earth.

Perhaps it was the spirits of Halloween who parted the clouds Saturday night just in time to bathe the "Nature Fears and Halloween Fables" walk at Independence Oaks Nature Center with moonlight.

This popular annual event, always a sellout, drew over 200 adults and children to the nature center at Independence Oaks County Park off Sashabaw Road.

Park volunteers, employees and members of the Clarkston Village Players stepped into the otherworld of creatures and spirits for the Oct. 22 event.

But it wasn't necessarily fright they wanted to instill into the participants who trekked the one-mile walk past marshes and a glacial lake, through meadows and deciduous forests. They wanted to spread a little fun and a little knowledge of nature as well.

After an orientation session at the center, complete with a history of Halloween and a few magic tricks by "Magic Jack," the first of several groups set out on the trail, led by Melissa the witch.

There were elfin "little people" of the forests, a troll who guarded the wooden bridge, a scarecrow who climbed down from his wooden perch to address the group and a devil who offered to buy a few souls.

There was a snake who hissed out a few facts about ssssnakes, such as that the rattles on a rattlesnake do not tell a snake's age, but rather how many times it sheds its sssskin.

There were the vampires in the graveyard, who whispered out a few facts about bats -- vampire bats, that is -- and how they got their name because they feed on the blood of cattle. The gravestones themselves were interesting reading, such as the one which read: "Lizzie Borden Rest in Pieces."

There was "Moonman," who recited a few facts about his surface, including the name of the first astronaut to walk on it, Neil Armstrong. And a second magician appeared along the trail to perform a few illusions for the crowd.

There were kindly pumpkin people, who led the group in singing a few "pumpkin carols," and cackling witches, who offered up some brew (cider) and donuts.

The group headed back to the nature center and the real world, small children toting pumpkins given to them by the pumpkin people, their young minds filled with visions of Halloween spirits and some new facts about nature.

Author offers positive parenting tips

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Amid the juggling and joking, Art Fettig's message to Clarkston Elementary School pupils was clear: Be positive.

And the children responded in kind. Midway through the program, they squealed with delight and stretched their arms out to meet him when he walked through the assembly of kids sitting cross-legged on the floor of the multipurpose room.

After the assembly, Fettig stood at the door and made sure he shook hands with each child as he or she left the room.

The writer, humorist, speaker was invited to speak by Principal William Potvin, who staged a Be Positive Day devoted to teaching children, teachers and parents how to build self-esteem. Fettig spoke to all groups Oct. 20.

Before turning to speaking and writing full time, the Battle Creek resident worked 35 years for Grand Trunk Railroad in the public relations department, where he traveled the country speaking to accident victims and widows of employees. He began writing books on positive thinking for adults but soon realized that the people who used his books were in terrible shape -- people who had tried suicide, drugs including alcohol, and crime.

Ideally, people should be taught positive thinking when they're still young, before they get into such trouble, he said, adding that positive thinking and high self-esteem can curb such problems as teen suicide, teen pregnancy, juvenile delinquency and poor grades.

Adults in the lives of children can have a great impact, he said.

"You model, first of all," he said. "Parents should work at being positive people. You have control of your subconscious mind. ... We actually program ourselves for unhappiness ... by constant bombardment in our minds of negative images."

With TV, radio and newspapers highlighting bad news and some rock music centering around negative themes, the subconscious mind picks it up, he said.

In his children's books -- designed to be read by adults while hugging their children, Fettig uses three robots, Pos, Semi-pos and Neg, to illustrate his point, and he uses the same characters and definitions to explain the concepts to the children he speaks to.

"A pos says 'I'm happy, I'm healthy,' hugs himself and says, 'I'm somebody,' and every day comes out and finds one other person and tells them they're somebody, too," Fettig told the Clarkston pupils.

"A neg goes around saying, 'Hey, four-eyes' to someone who wears glasses and 'Hey, fatso' to someone who maybe is a little overweight.

"A semi-pos won't get involved in anything, won't try anything." A semi-pos is also known to say such things as, "Gonna", someday, not now, when I get around to it."

Instead, children and adults should immerse themselves in positive books, music and people, he said. "Surround yourself with people who have a positive philosophy."

Fettig suggested a few simple tips for promoting a healthy self-esteem in children.

- Take a photograph of your child succeeding at something -- anything -- and place it on the table beside your child's bed. It will be the last thing he sees before he goes to sleep. Keep the picture current by snapping shots often when your child learns new things.

- Take a photograph of a your child being hugged by a parent -- with no other siblings in the picture -- so the child will see he's loved. Place that photo beside the bed, too.

"The last 30 minutes of the day is when the child is most receptive to input," said Fettig. "Quite often, the last 30 minutes is a hassle about going to bed."

Parents can say nasty things before bedtime, or they can send a child to bed as punishment, but that time could be the most beneficial time for your child's self-esteem, he said.

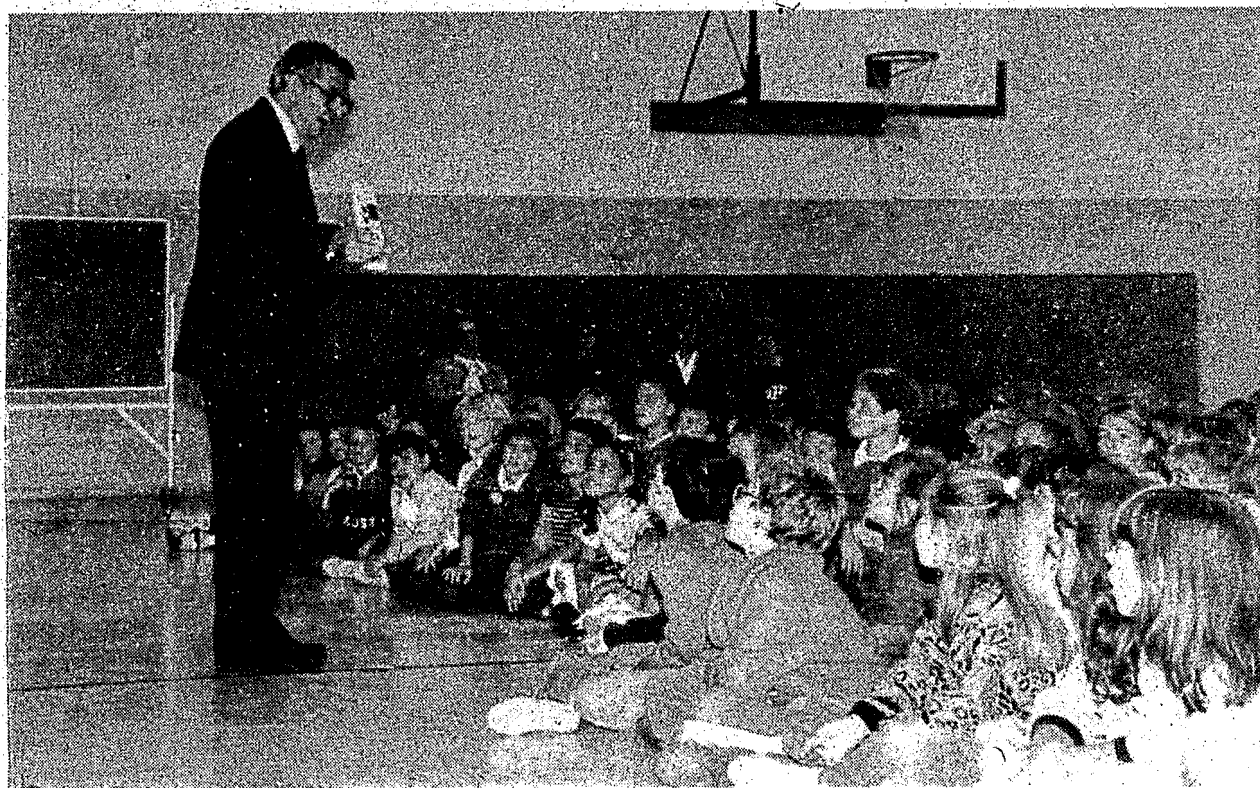

- Catch your child doing something right and reinforce it right before they go to bed.

"You just have to constantly bombard your child with positive statements," he said.

Positive thoughts should replace the negative thoughts that are pervasive nationwide, he said, citing the Just Say No to drugs campaign as an example.

"That's shallow. Saying no is not enough to build your life upon. You must say yes. That's our whole philosophy. We don't need a $2 million anti-drug program. We need a $10 million positive life program.

"These things (drugs, suicide) are to escape from who you are, and when you love who you are and what you're doing, there's no need to escape."

MUSIC, JUGGLING, jokes and squirts of water are the tools author Art Fettig uses to entertain and to leave his audience with positive thoughts.

The bride is the daughter of Alexander and Janette Zawacki of Bentley, Mich. The bridegroom is the son of Dale and Diane Fulcher of Clarkston.

For her afternoon wedding, the bride wore a white taffeta backless gown with a V-shaped waist and high cut angel-wing sleeves. The front was cut in a V with applique sprays. Her headpiece was French lace with strings of lily of the valley and pearls down the back.

Matron of honor was Debbie Zawacki and maid of honor was Lisa Hart. Bridesmaids were Sherri Schman, Eileen Woods and Judy Zawacki.

The best man was Andrew Zawacki. Groomsmen were John Zawacki, Steven Fulcher, Brian Fulcher and Dale Fulcher.

Following the wedding ceremony, the newlyweds were honored at a reception in Charbonneau's Hall, Pinconning. The couple make their new home in Clarkston.

NEWLYWEDS: Caroleigh and David Fulcher.

PARTY PEOPLE: A theme party for Sarah Hool's eighth birthday included costumes and making the rounds of theme dessert shops. Posing at Yogurt & Yesterdays in Independence Township in their outfits reminiscent of the '50s are (from left) Heather Brown, Sarah and Laura Hubbard. Sarah, a third-grader at Pine Knob Elementary School, and her nine guests also visited Peppermint Village in Waterford. "Everybody loved it because they were in those outfits," said Sarah's mom, Debbi Hool. The girls also enjoyed a pajama party — and one guest brought Sarah a gift tape of '50s and '60s music. Said Debbi, "They danced the night away."

Passing it along

The community was so generous in helping put on a post-graduation party in June for the Clarkston High School Class of 1988 that there was money left over.

Now the CHS Class of '88 is returning the favor by presenting a check for $1,200 for a new piece of playground equipment in Clarkston's Depot Park. It is part of the money left over from the party. Another portion was donated to the Class of 1989 for their post-graduation party.

A merry-go-round type of playground equipment will be purchased with the donation.

Not only was the post-grad party a big success, but the Class of '88 was fortunate enough to be able to repay the community for their caring and support, said Sue Rogers, who co-chaired the party committee with another CHS parent, Sandy Nelson.

It's her hope that when little children who play in the park are seniors at CHS, they will remember the Class of '88 and be able to help their community when they grow up as well.

Walking proof that cooking can make diet work

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Now more than 50 pounds lighter than she used to be, Susan Howard of Flushing told a Diet Workshop group that diet food doesn't have to be "boring and ugly."

"I have found that people think they have to do penance for being overweight," Howard said. "But diet food can be wonderful and exciting. And unless you create recipes you can enjoy, you'll go back to gaining weight."

Howard has a biology degree, but her culinary talent brought her to the front of this class to give a cooking demonstration. She was a member of the Flushing Diet Workshop when she shed her own weight and began creating diet recipes that her family would love, too.

Now she gives demonstrations at other Diet Workshops in the area, such as the one she addressed at the CAI Building in Waterford Township last week. This group meets four times a week at several local locations, including two evenings at Dr. James O'Neill's office on M-15 in Independence Township.

Instructor for the local Diet Workshop is Carol Hawley, who says it has been offered in this area for about four years. She introduced Howard to the group before the cooking demonstration.

"Never tell your family it's diet food, because it doesn't taste like it," Howard told the group. "We're eating what everyone should be eating -- good, wholesome food."

One technique Howard uses is to take regular recipes and remove the calorie-high sugars and fats. She also recommends serving the food in attractive dishes to make the whole meal look better.

Last week, she prepared a "Cheesy Chicken Casserole" for the group, which could also be made with turkey. She also prepared a cider gelatin, attractively served in clear sherbet glasses.

Below are the recipes for both dishes.

CHEESY CHICKEN CASSEROLE

- 1 cup low fat cottage cheese
- 2 cups skim milk
- 4 ounces cheddar cheese
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 pack single-serving dry onion soup mix
- 1 pack single-serving dry chicken soup mix
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder or salt
- 4 shakes butter substitute
- 1 cup instant rice (raw) or pre-cooked brown rice
- 1 small bunch broccoli (cooked)
- 1 small onion (chopped)
- 8 ounces cooked chicken (cubed)

Place the first eight ingredients in a blender and mix until smooth. Set aside. Spray a casserole dish with non-stick spray. Pour rice, chicken and broccoli with the onion into the dish. Pour the sauce from the blender over the rice mixture. Stir together.

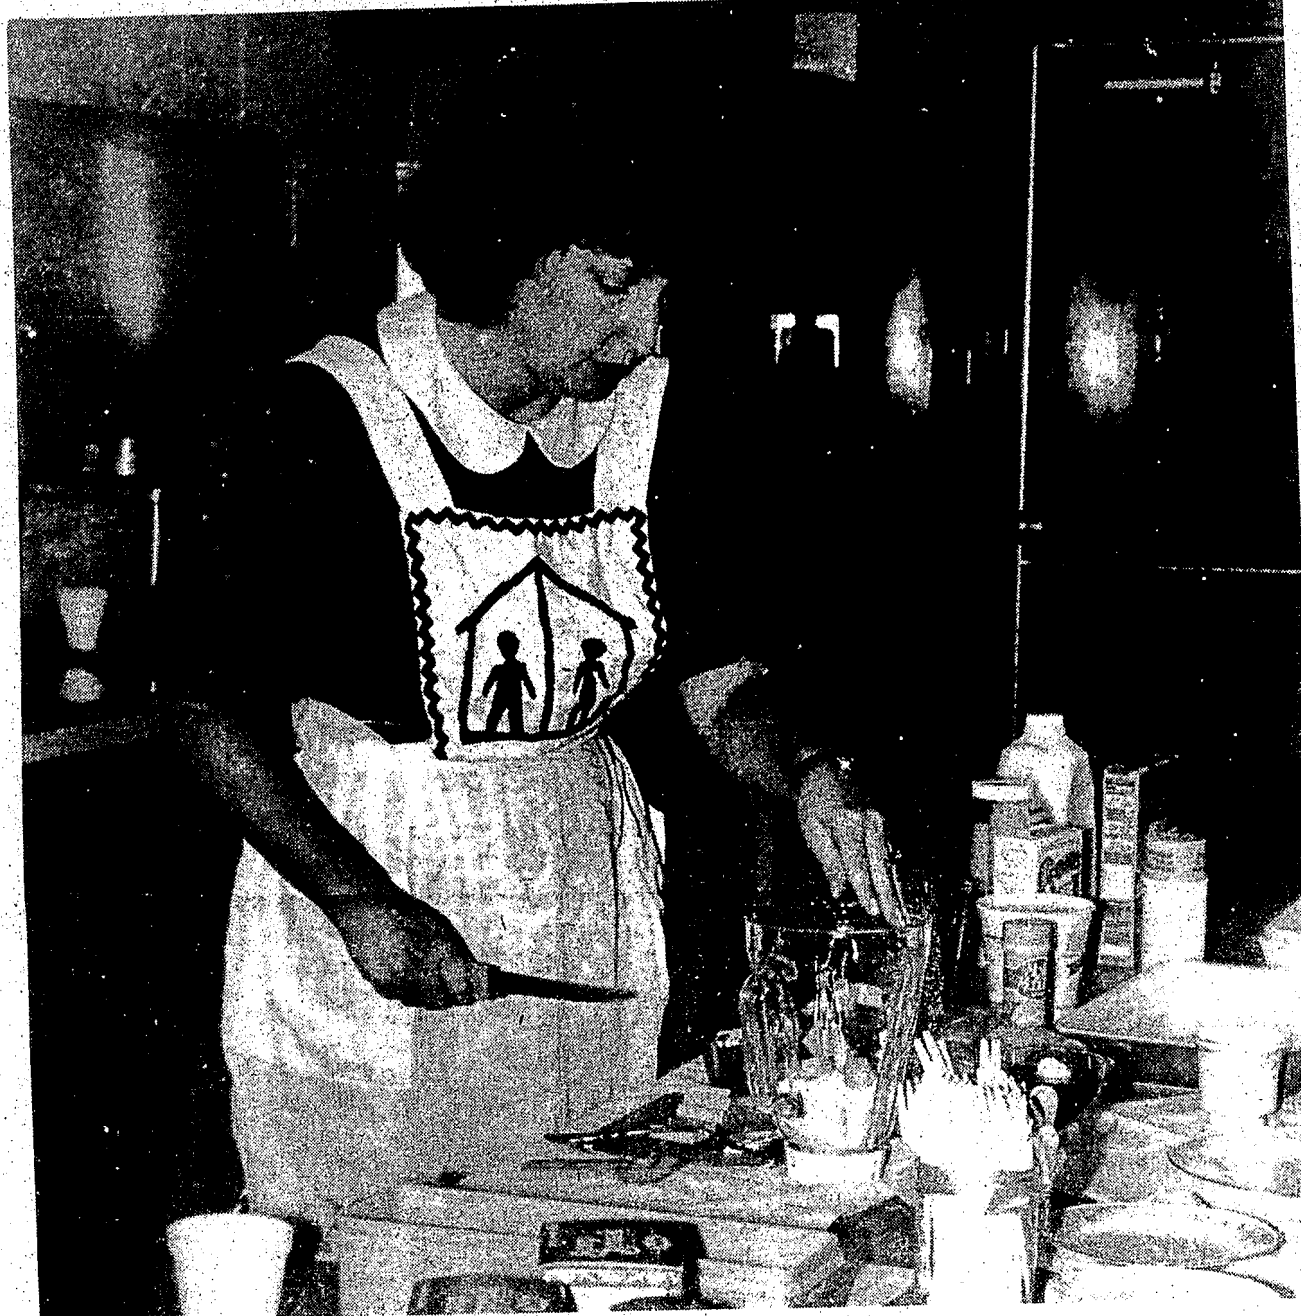

Place in a 350-degree oven and bake for approximately 45 minutes or until browned. Makes four servings.

CIDER GELATIN

- 4 packets sugar-free spiced cider mix
- 2 packets unflavored gelatin
- 4 packets sweetener
- Dash of cinnamon
- Sugar-free cinnamon candies
- 3 cups water

Dissolve the gelatin in 1/2 cup cold water. Add cinnamon candies to remaining 2 1/2 cups water and heat until melted. Stir occasionally. Add water and candy mixture to gelatin along with the cider mix, sweetener and dash of cinnamon. Stir until dissolved.

Divide into four dishes (about 6 ounce each). Refrigerate until firm. Serve with non-dairy topping, if desired. Makes four servings of about 35 calories each.

SUSAN HOWARD prepares a chicken casserole during a Diet Workshop cooking demonstration last week. The group meets four times a week, twice in Dr. James O'Neill's office in Independence Township. Howard demonstrated how diet food can be delicious.

Traveling class ring finds its way back to Clarkston grad

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Just six months after Doug Horecki bought his Clarkston High School class ring, he lost the prized possession.

"All of a sudden, it was gone," said the 1987 CHS grad. "I didn't think I'd ever get it back. I was bummed."

He was surprised a year and a half later to learn that his ring had turned up in the freshly dry-cleaned suit picked up in Hazel Park by a Ferndale man.

The man who found the ring, Fred Patenaude, was just as surprised to reach into his work suit and pull out a 1987 CHS ring with a skier and a wolf on it.

"I can't see that good, so when I got home, I used my magnifying glass and found the initials," said Patenaude, who worked at American Die in Hazel Park when he found the ring.

DOUG HORECKI'S class ring is still in good condition, despite over a year's sojourn away from its owner. He cherishes it even more since its return. He also keeps up his favorite high school activity, which is depicted by a tiny skiing figure on the ring.

"I thought that this belongs to some poor kid that's probably eating his heart out," said Patenaude. "I had a class ring, too. And I lost it, under different circumstances, but I missed it, too. All I could think was some poor kid working to save up money for this, and I thought he'd want it back."

He immediately called Clarkston High School and told them about his find and was told they'd return his call if they found the owner. But Patenaude never heard from them.

So he got a better idea. His 40th Royal Oak High School reunion was coming up, and he knew that his long-time friends, Harry and Donna Fahrner of Independence Township, would be there. He also knew that Donna Fahrner was the business manager at The Clarkston News.

So he passed the ring on to her at the reunion. When she got back to the office the week after the reunion, Fahrner got to work. She called CHS assistant principal Jan Gabier, who searched the yearbook for a 1987 graduate with Horecki's initials who was on the ski team.

"Jan Gabier is the one who deserves a lot of the credit," said Fahrner. "She found the initials."

Fahrner took the name from Gabier and called Horecki's mother, Darlene Owen, who had given her son the money for his ring in the first place.

When Horecki heard the news he was so happy, he sent Fahrner a bouquet of flowers.

"I couldn't believe that someone went to that much trouble to do something for me," said Horecki, adding that he felt grateful to Patenaude for working so hard to return it.

Horecki, assistant manager at Roma's of Bloomfield, figures he lost the ring when he forgot to remove it from a pocket in his three-piece suit one evening.

The suit ended up in a dry cleaners in Sterling Heights, so he's still puzzled about how it turned up in a Hazel Park dry cleaners a year and a half later.

"I was just excited to find it," said Horecki.

What's Cooking

Patch snack

Pat Young

Rather than throw away all those pumpkin seeds when carving Halloween jack-o-lanterns, why not turn them into a tasty snack for the family?

Below is an old-time recipe for making roasted pumpkin seeds.

ROASTED PUMPKIN SEEDS

Fresh pumpkin seeds

1/3 cup salt

10 cups boiling water

Rinse pumpkin seeds with water until all are clean. Sort out small or dark ones. Mix the salt and boiling water and add clean pumpkin seeds. Soak for 2 or 3 days.

Spread the seeds in a thin layer on non-stick cookie sheets and bake in a 30 degree oven until dry. Seeds will rattle when dry.

Cool and store in a plastic container. One average pumpkin makes about 4 cookie sheets full of roasted pumpkin seeds.

Friend to Friend

No one knew

AWARE

Dear Friend to Friend:

I saw in the paper where you are sponsored by a group that works to educate people on substance abuse. I have a "story" to tell and this seems to be the right place to do it.

The other day at work, a person who I very much respect told me something that kind of surprised me. She said that she is a recovering alcoholic and has been sober for six years (she is only 26). Now, I know this situation isn't uncommon, but she really got through to me.

She had a 4.0 all through high school but drank every weekend and even experienced long blackouts. No one knew. The teachers used to come to her to find out who was in the "partying" scene. The whole time, she was the one who needed help. Finally in college her grades fell and she looked for help.

To others she appeared to have it all. She was a "brain," a "jock" and, of course, a "partier." She got her problems under control and grew from it.

I was impressed by her truthfulness and honesty. I realize now it could happen to me. I guess the reason this story had so much effect on me was partly because it was a one-on-one situation, but maybe others can appreciate it.

I want to thank this person--she knows who she is--for sharing her experiences with me. Thanks to Friend to Friend for giving me a place to have my say.

IMPRESSED AND GRATEFUL

Dear Impressed and Grateful:

We are very impressed also and give both you and your friend a lot of credit. Obviously, you can't tell a person who is recovering from a substance abuse problem by their appearance or apparent success in life.

Chemical dependency doesn't care how old you are, what sex you are, what religion you are or what your grade point average is. It can affect everyone.

It is also a progressive disease, and that is why weekend drinking in high school is so dangerous. Everyone tends to start out thinking they can handle it, but many wind up experiencing a lot of pain.

Sometimes teachers make the same mistake as the rest of us do -- by judging people by their outside appearance and deciding if someone has a problem by the length of their hair, the kind of clothes they wear and how cooperative they are.

As students on this panel, we know you definitely cannot judge others by their looks. We also know that there is a change of attitude about drugs and alcohol.

There are more positive feelings toward people when they say no to drugs and alcohol than there ever has been in the past. That's why it's important for people like your friend to continue to come forward and tell their stories. They make an impact on individuals, and individuals can make an impact on society. Thanks for writing.

Dear Friend to Friend:

I have a problem with myself right now and I would appreciate some advice. I guess my opinion of myself is different than the one others have of me.

People think I'm doing great -- good grade point average, very involved, and I seem to have friends.

On the inside, I feel like I could and should do better at almost everything. I realize that is pretty unrealistic since I don't even have time to eat anymore. I continue to take on too many projects and can't say no.

Most of the time I feel like I'm letting myself and others down badly.

CLOSE TO DESTRUCTION

Dear Close to Destruction:

Don't feel alone! You're not. You sound like many other students we know.

The basic problem has to do with feeling better about yourself. There is a problem in the conflict between your self-esteem and the image you project to others. You will have to try to bring these two closer together.

It sounds like it is time for you to take an honest look at yourself. You may need to do this with a counselor or psychotherapist (or, at least, with an adult you trust).

There are undoubtedly reasons why you feel like you always need to do better and why you don't please yourself. You may have a too strong need to live up to others' expectations or to have others like you. To find this out and to change it requires the pain of self-examination and a determination to change.

But, take comfort in the fact that you are likely a typical teenager. Most teens feel some of the same conflicts as they make the sometimes difficult journey toward figuring out who you are and if others like you for who you are. That's part of growing up.

In general we would advise you to like yourself and do the things that make you feel good. Pleasing others may be important, but first look at your own feelings and don't disregard or discount your own feelings.

Another thing, don't be afraid to compliment or reward yourself. There are times when you need to pat yourself on the back -- particularly if no one else is doing that. For a great many teenagers, that's the core problem: feeling appreciated for your efforts and for just being you.

Milieu: For the artist in you

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Milieu, in French, means your surroundings. "And I think that really fits," says Denise Howard, owner of a new shop in Clarkston by that name. "It will be everyone's milieu. It could be anything -- the things you wear, the things you furnish your home with."

Milieu, which features art, wearable art, antiques and other interior design accents, opened Oct. 14 at 20 S. Main St. in Clarkston.

"The response was so much fun," Howard says, a bright smile enhancing her enthusiasm. "I had comments such as, 'I would expect to find this in New York,' or 'I have to go to Chicago for this.'"

Howard, who has lived in the Clarkston area for 32 years, has a background in country furniture and is an avid fan of art. She said she always wanted to have her own shop but was waiting until the right spot came along.

She considers her location in the two-story building next to the Clarkston Cafe to be exactly the right spot. "Everything just fell into place," she says. "So I knew it was the right thing to do."

She started back in July to collect work for the shop. "It took a lot of traveling and a lot of research," says Howard, who went to San Francisco, Springfield, Mass., and twice to New York City to make purchases, a process that will be ongoing.

"Next month I'm going to Philadelphia," she says. "It's the kind of thing where you can't predict what you'll find here. It could be anything. It's going to be unique and different and exciting."

Howard carries Thomas Mann jewelry, Julie Nudd dolls, jewelry designed by two Birmingham sisters, mugs by a newspaper cartoonist. All of her items are unique and some are one-of-a-kind pieces. The contemporary display shelves, glass cabinets and white walls give the shop a museum atmosphere that is fun to browse in.

"What I'm trying to do is develop a (shop) where people will come in two months later and see new things," she says.

The upstairs is currently accented with rich antiques, but Howard says that will be constantly changing with customer demand. "They might see some art nouveau or deco up there."

On the first weekend of the shop's opening, "Mickie Mink" (man-made fur) coats were a big hit, but Howard is hesitant to take too many orders on any one item. She wants everything to remain unique. The response did influence her to look for more wearable art items.

What's New in Business

"I wanted to feel the market a little," she says. "And I found that people love it."

She also discovered that men love the shop, and that young people have a keen interest in art. So she will be looking for more items of interest for them, too.

Her face brightens with a smile again when she talks about some of the new things she has coming in, such as a poster from Quebec featuring a scene with Elvis Presley, Marilyn Monroe, James Dean and Humphrey Bogart sitting in a diner.

She also has a VCR and television in the upstairs room and plans to make films of the artists to acquaint customers with them.

Because so many people stroll in after dining at the Clarkston Cafe, many from out of town, Howard plans to remain open until 10 p.m. on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays. She opens at 10 a.m., and looks forward to every day.

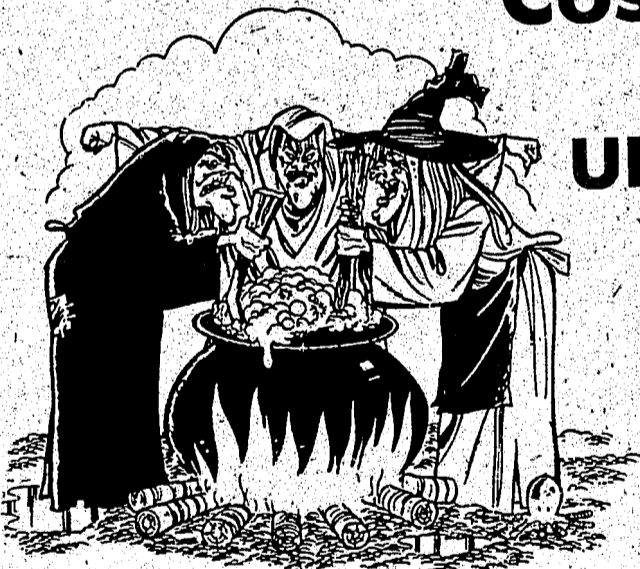

"I refuse to accept negativity," she says. "I think if I continue to do my part to bring in what people want, I will thrive. I feel comfortable with what I've done."

"It's going to be fun," she says. "I can have fun with my personality. I like everything, and I appreciate anything that's well done."

DENISE HOWARD displays an "urban doll" and some of the artist designed jewelry available in her new shop, Milieu, at 20 S. Main St. in Clarkston.

How to remove those stubborn stains

Children's school clothes sometimes seem to act like magnets for stains. You needn't despair, however.

According to Elaine Glasser, home economist for Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service of Oakland County, with quick action and some know-how, you can remove most stains.

Crayons: Crayon marks are easy to remove if you do it right away. A spot treatment with a dry-cleaning solvent (available in hardware stores or in the laundry section of most supermarkets) will take care of the crayon wax.

Next, wash the garment in warm water with a heavy-duty liquid detergent. If the stain is still there, it's probably because the color dye was strong. You may need to use an all-fabric bleach.

Don't iron a crayon stain. It's not true that ironing is a good way to remove wax. Ironing will only set the color and make the crayon stain worse.

Felt-tip pens: Felt-tip pens contain either washable or nonwashable inks. If you're not certain what kind of pen caused the stain, treat it as a washable ink stain.

First, spot treat with a heavy-duty liquid detergent. If the ink is water soluble, the stain will probably come out. If it faded but didn't come out entirely, try using an all-fabric bleach next. If the ink was the nonwashable type, nothing will budge the stain.

Pencil: If you want to get a pencil mark off a garment, first carefully erase as much of it as possible. An art gum eraser usually works better than the kind of eraser found on a pencil.

Don't try to erase on a fragile fabric--you could rub right through it. Then, wash as usual with a heavy-duty detergent.

Tempera paint: Tempera paint is water soluble, so washing immediately with a regular laundry detergent will get it out. One danger is that the paint will be deposited on other parts of the fabric or on other clothes in the washing machine.

treating the stained spot avoids this problem. If tempera paint stains dry, they can be difficult to remove and may require bleaching.

Fruit drinks: Fruit punch drinks often contain vegetable dyes that can be difficult to remove. Rinse in water first, then spot treat with a detergent.

This probably won't remove all the stain, so use a bleaching treatment next. Soak the garment for a half hour in a solution of one tablespoon bleach to one gallon of water. Then wash as usual.

Ferris State queen hails from Clarkston

Becki Carson, a Ferris State University, Big Rapids, senior from the Clarkston area, was crowned 1988 Homecoming Queen Oct. 14. A marketing/retail major in the school of business, she was voted queen by her peers who selected her from nine candidates. Sponsored by the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity and the Ferris Inn, the 22-year-old holds an FSU associate's degree in administrative assisting and certification as an aerobics instructor. She hopes to secure an executive buyer's position with a major retailing firm. The oldest of four children, Carson's hobbies include dancing and water skiing.

Winter checklist

Consumers Power Company encourages its customers to consider the following tips while preparing their homes for the upcoming winter.

- Caulk around windows and doors.
 - Weatherstrip windows and doors.
 - Caulk where two materials meet that are different.
 - Caulk where wires, faucets, dryer vents, etc., enter home.
 - Install storm windows or plastic on all single-pane windows.
 - Add additional ceiling insulation up to R-19.
 - Insulate electrical outlets facing outside walls.
 - Install three inches or R-11 insulation around water heater.
- In addition, Consumers Power advises its customers to consider the following conservation practices:
- During winter months, open your drapes, shades or curtains during the day to let the sunshine in.
 - Maintain room temperature at 68 degrees during the day and 55 degrees at night.
 - Close doors and registers in all unoccupied rooms.
 - Change furnace filters monthly.
- The utility also urges its customers to sign up for a free home energy analysis. A recent survey indicates that those customers who have had an audit save at least $100 annually on their energy bills.

'New Ritter's' market finds friendly reception

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston area beckoned, and Matthew Sassin and Jimmy Vermiglio answered by purchasing Ritter's Market.

"There was a screaming need for a market such as ours," said Jimmy, a Birmingham resident and 27-year veteran of the grocery business.

"The area is growing," he said. "It will support it. ... The population is expanding."

What's New in Business

The partners are retaining the name of the Dixie Highway, Independence Township, business but are adding one word to form "New Ritter's."

When it first opened, Ritter's was a thriving produce market, and the two wanted to keep the well-known name, said Matthew, owner for seven years of Orchard Ridge Farm Market and who started in the produce field at age 12 with his father, Louis.

Louis, who remembers original owner Tom Ritter from seeing him at Detroit's Eastern Market, is pleased that the name will not change.

"It seems when someone has done a good job with a place, you'd like to restore the good name of Ritter's," said Louis.

"It'll be better than ever, and we'll be here for a long time," said Jimmy.

Piles of oranges, apples, melons, potatoes, squash and more greet shoppers when they enter the store. One portion is devoted to delicatessen items with imported cheeses, top grade meat and homemade salads. All baked goods are natural, with no additives, as are the Amish chickens. And only the best produce available is sold, purchased fresh daily from Eastern Market and Detroit Produce, said Matthew.

ston area people who have visited their new business, New Ritter's.

Local products such as granola and popcorn are also carried in the store, as are specialty and gourmet items such as coffee beans, nuts, candy and hard-to-find ingredients for oriental and Mexican foods.

Fruit baskets and party trays are also available, and in the spring, bedding plants will be sold, said Matthew. Coming soon will be more health food items, and the owners are considering baking their items daily at the store.

So far, business has been better than expected, said Jimmy, adding that he's grateful for the kind comments from people.

"I fell in love with the area instantly," he said. "Everybody who comes into the store knows each other. It's like a meeting place. It's not like in the city where you don't know if your neighbor is male or female. ... I've never been this excited about any area as I am right here."

Matthew, who is considering moving to the Clarkston area from his Southfield home, said he enjoys every aspect of the business.

"I just love working with fruits and vegetables," he said. "I like displaying. I love selling it, pricing it and talking to the people that buy it. It's exciting to be in business. It gets me going."

Pet of the Week

Need a family pet?

This 3-year-old German shepherd mix is called Corky. Though he came to the shelter as a stray, he made his intelligence and his wonderful temperament known to the staff.

Since he was a stray, little is known of his training, but he is highly trainable. And because of his gentle temperament and playful nature, he would be good around children.

Corky may be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The $60 adoption fee includes his neutering before leaving the shelter.

Teen rebellion is speaker's topic

"Avoiding Teen Rebellion" will be the subject of a presentation by Dr. Martin Gold, professor of psychology and research scientist at the University of Michigan's Research Center for Group Dynamics.

The presentation is part of a series planned for the year by the Family Education Committee of Clarkston Area Youth Assistance. The free program, open to the public, will take place at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 1 in the Clarkston High School auditorium.

Gold has been active in research at the University of Michigan since 1961, and received his PhD there in 1962. He has authored numerous scientific publications on psychology, sociology and adolescence.

Dr. Martin Gold

His program will include a presentation of the research concerning the variables affecting parent-adolescent relationships.

"In reality, it's not natural for adolescents to be rebellious, and in fact, most are not," Gold says.

He adds that those teens who are rebellious and do not get along well with their parents are more likely to have trouble forming intimate relationships with their peers.

Also at the Nov. 1 program, Family Education Chairperson Janet Colbrunn will have the results of a survey she handed out to around 300 parents of CHS teens regarding different families' standards for their teenagers.

"You get the feeling as a parent of a teen that sometimes our standards may be out of step with other parents," Colbrunn said. "Are we too strict or too liberal?"

Interested parents and other area residents are also invited to attend "Sixty Minutes," a follow-up parenting discussion group led by Colbrunn at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 8, at Sashabaw Junior High School.

A "PUMPKIN WAGON" pulled by two 7-foot straw horses was created by Nick and Pam

Nichols at their Groveland Township home on Grange Hall Road. The Nicholises sell pumpkins and offer hayrides and sleighrides pulled by their team of Belgian horses.

Pumpkin people deliver the goods

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

No goblins here, just a kind-hearted pumpkin man. He also acts as "night watchman," driving a wagon pulled by two 7-foot straw horses called Minnie and Pearl.

The wagon looks as though it's just returning from the fields with another load of pumpkins in this Halloween scene on Grange Hall Road just west of Dixie Highway in Groveland Township.

The creators are Harold "Nick" and Pam Nichols, who live in the blue farmhouse. The front yard is currently "landscaped" with a thousand pumpkins, all for sale.

They also sell Indian corn and gourds at their home, called Oak Haven Farm. When they're not around to personally greet people, they trust customers to use the honor system.

About a week ago, the night watchman was abducted from the scene. Undaunted, Nick and Pam built a new one.

"I hope the new night watchman does a better job," Nick says jokingly.

By trade, Nick is a builder and general contractor and Pam is a postal carrier. But in their hearts, they are both "country folks," farming 80 acres around their rural home.

They are especially popular with visitors to nearby campgrounds in the summer who come to buy produce. But this year the drought did in about everything except the pumpkins.

They also raise Appaloosa horses and have a set of Belgian horses used to pull the hayrides and sleighrides they offer year-round.

A little warming shed sits behind the house, in sight of the barn where the horses are browsing. A wood-burning stove warms the shed, which is decorated with pumpkins and cornstalks for Halloween. Antiques and country accents hang from the walls.

"We both love to decorate," Pam says. At Christmas, the residence takes on a whole new look, with cedar roping and the sleigh hitched for rides. "We are even thinking of making straw animals at Christmas, too, maybe a nativity scene."

This is the second year for their Halloween scene. Last year, they had a family of pumpkin people. This year they added the wagon and straw horses.

"They're easy keepers," Nick laughs, adding that if all his horses were that easy to keep, he would have it made.

They also have turkeys, a pig and a dog named Bear. Nick says he is making a slow transition from builder to farmer.

"We enjoy people and have an opportunity to share with them," he says, "Maybe even make this pay for itself. We don't expect to get rich, but it's gone beyond a hobby."

What Nick and Pam have in mind is a "family oriented activities center," with the hayrides and sleighrides, and maybe a petting zoo someday. Nick says he wouldn't mind having a cider mill.

"Everyone is going forward so fast," he says. "We wanted to take a step back in time."

STEVE KIBBE stands tall as he reads a report on sharks to his fellow classmates at Pine Knob Elementary School.

Sharks, dolphins, wolverines and ...

Some were shy, some were nervous, and some ate up the attention as they stood before a whole room of fellow fifth-graders to give a report on their chosen animals.

The assignment in Marilyn Brown's Pine Knob Elementary School class was to find an animal and read about it. Next, the pupils wrote a report, then drew the animal in its habitat on poster board.

Then the children made three-dimensional portrayals of their animals and their prey or predators, using clay, pipe cleaners, Styrofoam, cotton, stuffed animals or whatever their imaginations summoned.

Finally, they presented the results of their work to the rest of the class, and their artistry was hung around the room for all to see.

"They're just beautiful," said Brown. "They did a wonderful job. They worked very hard."

The Night of the Troll

By Sandy Yaeger

It was a dark and misty night when I told my sister Julie that I heard a strange creature tap-tap-tapping on my window. She said it was just my imagination and to go back to sleep.

The next night there was another tapping noise; this time we saw what was causing it.

It was a pale white hand with bloody scars all over it. Julie was as pale as a ghost herself!

"Now do you believe me?" I asked with a trembling voice.

"This is no time to joke! I'm getting out of here!" she yelled, shaking.

"Wait, I'm coming with you!" I said.

But suddenly the hand turned blood red and a poison web-like foam paralyzed us in our beds. Then a deathly voice spoke. "Beware! Beware!" it screeched.

My sister fainted, and I couldn't move to wake her up.

Later ...

It was nearly midnight when I heard thuds coming from the stairs. My sister was still unconscious, so I had to go see what it was alone. The foam had worn off, so I got up and saw a troll with a murderous face and the hand we saw before.

Suddenly it charged up the stairs yelling, "Beware! Beware!"

"Beware of what?" I asked weakly.

"Beware! Beware!" he said again and knocked me down.

My head hit the corner of the table. I heard him say as he walked down the hall, "Beware of me, child. Beware of me."

My head hurt badly and all I could do was lie there.

Then I felt something cold and clammy on my face. Then everything went black.

The next morning when I woke up, everybody was in our room. My mom and dad were tending my wound, and my brother, Steve, was over with my sister.

"What happened?" I asked.

"We found you in the hallway unconscious; your head was bleeding. Do you remember what happened?"

At first I couldn't remember what had happened, but then I started to croak as I remembered. "The troll ... he ..."

"What troll? There is no such thing," my brother said.

"Ah-huh," my sister cried. "We saw this gross hand reach in and ..."

Thanks for these scary stories goes to Sharley Rose's 7th-grade English students at Sashabaw Junior High School.

"Yea," I tried to say.

"Here, have some water. Take a deep breath and try to tell us what happened," my father said.

I did that and started to tell my story. When I was finished my father mumbled, "So that crazy man was telling the truth."

"What are you talking about?" my mother asked.

"Well, down at the office we got a call from city hall that several people saw a troll-like creature running around yelling, 'Beware, beware.'"

"That's what he said to me, and before I fell unconscious I heard him say, 'Beware of me child, beware of me.'"

"Then I'll get right on the story," my father said with a little quiver in his voice.

That evening when we were eating, my father told us what he found out. "Well, today in the office we got a call again. It was the same guy. He said the troll creature was at city hall again and this time he wasn't just yelling 'Beware, beware.'"

The troll got a glass from the kitchen and put water in it and spit in it. He took it to this man's wife and said, "Drink it. Drink it."

She said no. Then he yelled "Drink it or die!" as he pulled out a knife.

The lady drank it and fell to the floor instantly. He laughed and jumped on her and she slowly disappeared into the floor!

"He killed her," people were murmuring. Then the troll laughed and cried, "Anyone else?"

"Wow," my brother said. "Gross!" Julie and I said in unison.

"We've got to catch this murderer!" my mother cried.

"I know, but how," said Dad.

"He'll probably come back tonight again," my mother said.

"Let's set a trap," Steve said.

"Oh yea, let's set a trap for a ghost. He's bound to get out easily. There's gotta be a better way," Julie said.

"Jessie, you saw him. What do you think?" Steve asked.

"I don't know. Just because I saw him doesn't mean I know how to catch him," I said.

"She's right," Julie said. "Let's just wait until tonight when and if he comes to decide. I know it's not something to put off, but we don't know how we could catch him. If we set up one trap, that just might be the one he knew how to get out of."

"Here, Julie and Jessica, take these alarms and if you see him, punch the button," Dad said.

That night around 11:30 after everyone had gone to sleep, Julie heard the tapping noise. "Jessie, Jessie," she cried in a hoarse whisper. "Where is the alarm? Jessie!"

This time I woke up and I didn't need any coaxing. I pushed the button.

Dad came in with a gun and Steve came with a knife. Dad shot and missed, the troll became aware there was a gun, and started for the window.

Dad shot again and got him squarely in the stomach. He fell to the floor and Mom screamed.

Steve ran up to him and stabbed him in the heart. The troll choked out, "I didn't ... mean any ... harm ... I ... just wanted ... some funnn ... on Halloweeennnn!" as he disappeared from our eyes.

There was nothing left except for the bullet and the knife.

Fright Night

By Chris St. Charles

It was a Friday afternoon in late October, and as usual, our group went to the old abandoned house to see what's new in old-fashioned country entertainment.

We hiked through the corn field that led to the path into the woods. We walked a quarter of a mile wondering who of us was going to scare us first.

When we entered the broken down doorway, the first thing we saw was strange wording on the wall written in German. Luckily, Brian knew the language.

It said, "He who enters this evil resting place shall burn in eternal fire."

Needless to say, we were all scared. But being so "cool," Brett said, "Oh, you guys aren't scared of some writing."

Suddenly a ghost-like figure was floating threateningly right in front of me. I was so scared that I looked like one of those machines that shake paint at ACO. I grabbed a 2x4 that was laying on the mice-infested dirty floor.

I started swinging and swinging at him. But when I got tired, the ghost took it away from me and hit me a couple of times.

Blood was gushing from my wounds and my nose. I thought I was going to faint, but I knew I had to stay awake.

I then saw a lighter that some burnouts must have left there. I tried to reach it knowing that the demon would be repelled like his hideous creator. It worked! The shrieking demon faded away.

My friends were screaming. The cabin was getting dark enough that we could barely see each other. What could happen next?

Then we heard a deep evil voice say, "Come here." Brian, Brett and Tim disappeared.

They were screaming like somebody was carving them with a K-bar. I crawled toward their screaming voices. The demon who attacked us earlier had come back for more. But I realized he made a mistake by doing that.

Since I always carry my hunting knife, I stuck my knife through his immortal brain. He was screaming with excruciating pain as his writhing, bloody body hit the floor, making a big thud.

Though his toes weren't straight yet, I knew he was dead. I rescued my friends from their cellar nightmare. We all felt our way through the dark night to freedom.

We ran for home not quite sure what had happened. But then I woke up, wishing I hadn't, to the voice of my mom. "Chris, it's 6:30. Time to get up."

P.S. There really is an abandoned house, but no German writing.

The Bedroom Window

By Leigh Seaman

One dark and stormy night as I was lying in bed I heard a jittery tapping on my bedroom window. It sounded like someone was trying to get in.

The tapping was so loud and scary, I decided to wake up my sister to help me figure out what was making the tapping noise.

She said, "Go back to sleep. It's just a tree," and she went back to sleep.

But I couldn't sleep. I was too scared. The tapping continued and I was determined to find out what was making that tapping noise.

So I slowly inched over to the window. Just as I pulled the curtain back, a flash of lightning struck and a claw grabbed at the window. I ran back to my bed, jumped in and hid under the covers.

My heart was beating so fast I thought it would pop out of my chest. I know someone or something was trying to get in. I woke up my sister and told her about the claw.

She said, "It's just your imagination. Go back to sleep."

I thought to myself, maybe it is just my imagination. After all, it is stormy out. But I still couldn't sleep. All I could think of was that claw and whatever was attached to it coming to get me.

The more I imagined, the more I was terrified. I had scared myself so much that my body was frozen stiff in my bed. I lie there stiff, staring at that window hour after hour until I finally fell asleep.

The next morning when I woke up, my sister said to me, "Well scaredy cat, I see you're still here. The claw didn't get you. Come over to the window and I'll show you it was just a tree."

She pulled back the curtain and we looked outside.

There by the window was a branch shaped like a claw.

She said, "See, it was a tree," and laughed as she walked out of the room.

I stood there feeling dumb and pulled back the curtain once more, and on the window sill was a finger-nail covered with blood!

Old Mag Hag

By Shawna Greene

It was a mellow but scary night, with trees scraping against the windows, wind blowing harshly, and coyotes howling in the background.

As I sat on the sofa watching TV, I could feel chills running up my feet to my head and back down again. So I picked up the vase that sat on the table in front of me, then I slowly tiptoed to the closet to get a blanket.

As I put my hand on the door knob, I felt another chill because it was so cold. As I opened the closet door, a blanket flew out. Ahhh! I picked it up and ran for my life back to the couch.

Now I can try to get more comfortable, but it will be very hard when there are cats crying, trees scraping against our house, coyotes howling, and also the wind whistling, not counting the scary sounds in our house like the door squeaking, the floor creaking, and the sink dripping and the refrigerator buzzing every few minutes.

I try to be rational about these noises, but I know it's the fifth anniversary of the death of Margret Harrington, the old widow woman on the corner of our block.

Behind her back, everyone used to call her old Mag Hag. We can't do that anymore, because five years ago her cats crowded up on her and took her life. Now every year on this day, her spirit comes back and takes a person with her.

After that, the people wouldn't be seen again. When I first heard that story, I about died laughing because I didn't believe it. I found out it was true the hard way when she took my best friend. Listen closely and I'll tell the story.

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., Oct. 26, 1988 51

Me and Sheri always used to walk to and from school together, until one day when I went to pick her up at her house. Through the picture window, I could see her mom sitting on the chair.

I knocked on the front door. When her mom answered I said, "Hello, Mrs. Samson, is Sheri ready to go?" She said she thought that she left to pick up me.

I said that couldn't be because I just left, and I would have seen her along the way. Mrs. Samson and I spent all day looking for her. We put ads in the paper, called the police, put her picture on milk cartons and sent out flyers.

Someone was bound to find her sometime, we prayed. I spent the night with Mrs. Samson to try and comfort her and her to comfort me. Early the next morning, we went out searching again. There was no sign of Sheri anywhere.

After about the tenth week, we gave up most hope. And until this day, she is still yet to be found. So watch, you could be next. Ha, Ha, Ha, Ha.

I never thought about it this way, but I could, too.

CREATIVITY FLOWS EASILY for painters Brian Ladd (left), 6, and Scott Jaumot, 6, who make puppet show backdrops during an after-school enrichment class taught by Dody Bayley, who plans to let the children learn every aspect of marionette puppeteering.

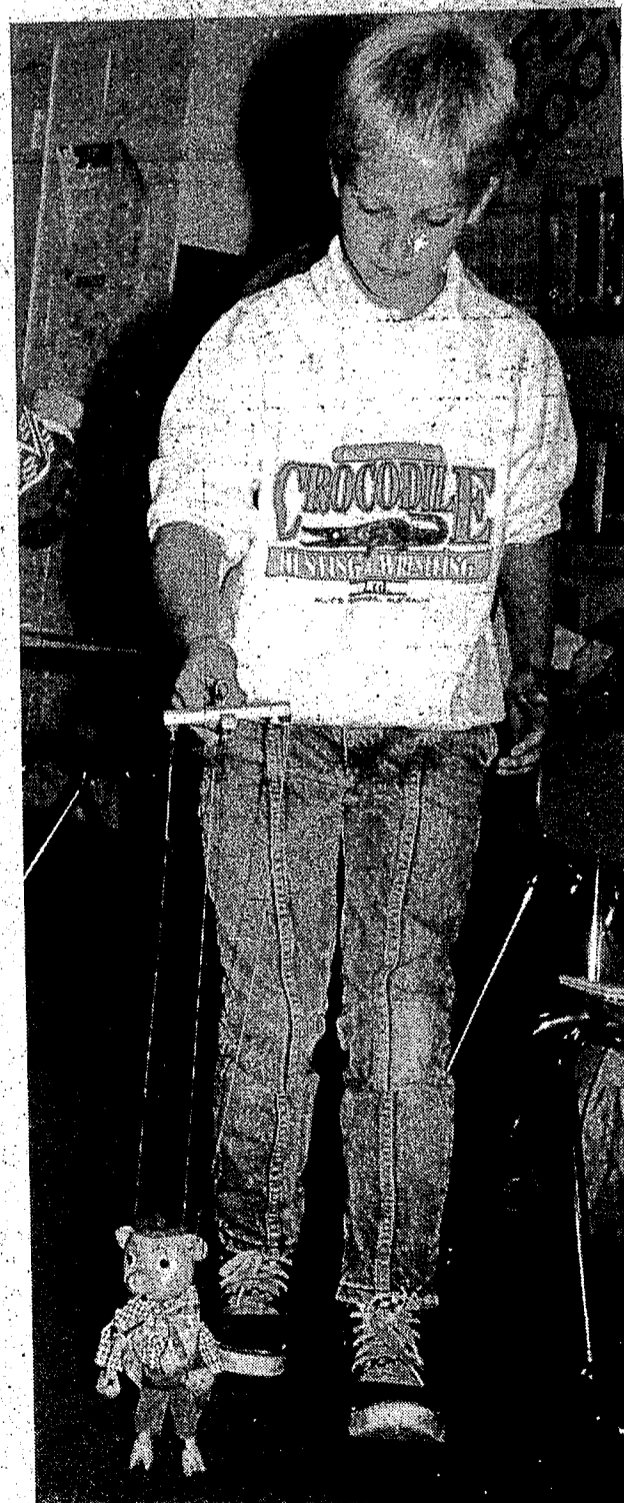

Playful puppetry

A POSTER BOARD SKETCH before she actually paints helps Erin Scott, 8, plan her scene for a puppet show.

JOSH JARVIS, 6, carefully paints a backdrop for "Pete's Dragon," which will be performed with puppets later in the year at Clarkston Elementary School.

A LITTLE PIG, one of the famous three little pigs, goes for a walk with aspiring marionette puppeteer Chris Himburg, 7.

Trick-or-treat tips

Halloween is a festive and fun time of the year for kids. But sometimes the fun turns to cruel tricks -- such as when people tamper with kids' treats.

Here are 10 things you can do to protect your children and make Halloween a safer and happier time for everyone.

1. Make sure children are accompanied by an adult or responsible teenager when they go door-to-door. Go with them yourself if you can.

2. Instruct children never to eat anything until they are home and the treats have been examined. Cut and wash fruit before eating. Throw away anything unwrapped.

3. Check the wrappers of commercial treats for signs of tampering.

4. Call the police if there are any suspicious treats.

5. Make sure children's costumes fit and they can see well.

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., Oct. 26, 1988, 53

6. Tell your children to trick-or-treat in their own neighborhood and in well-lighted streets. Daylight hours are best.

7. If children are going to be out after dark, make sure they carry a flashlight.

8. Teach your children to use the sidewalks if they can. If there are no sidewalks, walk on the left side of the street facing cars.

9. Know which friends your children will be with and which route they are taking.

10. Leave your porch light on so children will know it's OK to visit your home.

The above information was supplied by the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service of Oakland County.

Junior Miss title leaves Kellee Duty speechless

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Kellee Duty's facial expression went from a nervous stare to total exhilaration in a matter of seconds after she won Clarkston's Junior Miss pageant for 1988-89.

Duty had no idea where she would place in the competition -- when it came time to announce the first runner-up she considered her chances of winning slim -- making her victory a stunning surprise.

"I'm totally speechless," she said afterward. "When it came down to the final two, I was looking around to see who it would be."

In the talent show, Duty perfectly executed a jazzy dance routine much to the pleasure of the overflow crowd in the Kirchgessner Theatre in Clarkston High School Saturday night.

"I felt really good about my performance Saturday," she said.

As the 1988-89 Clarkston Junior Miss, Duty won a $1,500 cash scholarship and a $350 Patricia A. Stevenson Modeling Course.

The 1988 CHS homecoming queen also won a $100 cash scholarship Physical Fitness Award sponsored by American Legion Post No. 63. Four preliminary winners earned $75 scholarships each. They were Duty, Laura Postal, Kristen Martin and Michelle Spiece.

Heather Jackson won the Poise and Appearance Award, a $100 cash scholarship sponsored by the Clarkston Jaycees. Preliminary winners besides Jackson were Shauna Boggs, Tawnya Addington and Laura Postal.

For displaying her artwork, Jennifer Shoff won the $100 cash scholarship Talent Award sponsored by the Clarkston Rotary Club. Kristen Martin, Carrie Slade and Peggy Agar were the other preliminary winners of cash scholarships.

Two girls shared the Chairman's Award given by Barb Hamaker because of their outstanding ability. Tamera Smith and Sally Dunham won $150 cash scholarships apiece.

Slade won the $100 cash scholarship from the Judges' Award.

Marie Powell won the $150 cash scholarship for the Scholastic Award given by the Rotary Club and Dunham took home a $200 cash scholarship from the Clarkston Community Women's Club for the Spirit of Junior Miss Award.

In addition, five cash scholarships were awarded to the girls who placed second through sixth in the pageant.

Powell, the fifth runner-up, received $100, Martin ($150) fourth, Postal ($250) third, Ann McClellan ($450) second and Jennifer O'Heren ($700) the first runner-up.

A total of $5,000 in cash scholarships were presented to the 25 competing girls, said the master of ceremonies Marget Nelson. When she was in Junior Miss during the 1982-83 school year, only $1,500 was available.

RACHEL YOUNG, last year's Junior Miss winner, hugs Kellee Duty after handing over her title Saturday night in Clarkston High School's Kirchgessner Theatre.

TO THE VICTOR go the spoils, Kellee Duty has her hands full as she stands before the appreciative crowd after winning the Junior Miss title.

KELLEE DUTY is all smiles when the competition ended and she was declared the winner of the annual Junior Miss pageant in Clarkston High School's Kirchgessner Theatre. She also won the Physical Fitness Award, worth a $100 cash scholarship.

JUNIOR MISS candidates who won awards during the annual competition at Clarkston

High School happily gathered for a group portrait after greeting friends and relatives during a reception in the school's cafeteria. Junior Miss Kellee Duty stands in center.
