Thumbs up for Independence library, cops

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The majority of the 11,089 people who turned out to vote in Independence Township Nov. 8 selected George Bush as president, and approved the police millage renewal request and library bond proposal, but soundly defeated the Baycourt Park millage request.

The electors, representing 69 percent of the township's 16,000 registered voters, followed nationwide and countywide trends Tuesday by giving Bush and Dan Quayle 7,222 votes (as opposed to Michael S. Dukakis and Lloyd M. Bentsen's 3,146 votes).

Township voters also firmly defeated the Oakland County vehicle registration fee request.

The election process went well, although a voting machine broke at Clarkston Elementary School's Precinct 8, creating a long line for a while.

"I'm pleased we got a high turnout," said Richard Holman, township clerk. "We traditionally have a high turnout in the township. It's a little higher than what we expected."

"It ran relatively smoothly," he said, after finishing the last tally at 1:20 a.m. Wednesday.

Of the unopposed local candidates (all Republican), Supervisor Frank Ronk received the most votes, with 7,416, followed by Treasurer John Lutz with 7,277, and Holman, 7,256.

Of the trustees, newcomer Mel Leroy Vaara led the pack with 6,948 votes, followed by incumbents Daniel F. Travis, 6,902; and William D. Vandermark, 6,895. Newcomer Frank H. Millard received 6,826 votes.

The police millage renewal of 1.5 mills for four years was approved with 6,459 yes votes and 3,281 no votes. One mill is $1 for every $1,000 of assessed property valuation.

The library bond proposition to borrow up to $2 million to construct a library addition also met approval with 5,866 yes votes and 4,126 no votes.

However, the four-year one-half mill request to improve the township's newly acquired Baycourt Park on Greens Lake was solidly defeated with 6,801 no votes and 2,684 yes votes.

Businesses to show their wares

The Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce will stage its second annual open house from 6 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 16, in the Deer Lake Racquet Club.

There will be a cash bar, free hors d'oeuvres and door prizes throughout the evening.

"Last year was very successful," says Chamber President Bruce Mercado. "We had 29 businesses and approximately 250 people participating. Everyone I spoke to that night thought it was a good idea."

So they decided to do it again, he says. "It's sort of a combination business show and open house."

The Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce Open House is open to the public.

Stiles wins by 13 in Springfield

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Over 50 percent of the voters turned out in Springfield Township in a hotly contested local election that left just 13 votes between the winning candidate for treasurer and the loser.

Republican Lois Stiles was the victor in the race for treasurer with a total unofficial vote count of 1,718. Democrat Joe Gorka received 1,705 votes.

Reached for comment at 3 a.m. just after nearly 600 absentee ballots were counted, Stiles said, "I want to thank everyone who supported me. You don't run a campaign alone. And I will be a good treasurer."

Gorka, a mere 13 votes behind, said he didn't think the race was over yet. "I'd say it's too close to call at this time," he said.

In other local ballot issues, voters elected three new trustees and re-elected one incumbent to the township board. But the library and the parks and recreation department did not win millage issues that would have

With 8,654 no votes (1,537 yes votes) township voters also firmly rejected the county proposal for a $25 motor vehicle registration fee to fund local road improvements. Voters countywide also rejected the proposal.

The voters approved all statewide issues, with 6,070 yes and 4,482 no votes on Proposal A, ending tax-funded abortions; 8,407 yes and 1,815 no votes on Proposal B, adding crime victims' rights in the state constitution; 7,775 yes and 2,462 no votes on Proposal C, authorizing bonds for environmental protection programs; 5,897 yes and 4,155 no votes on Proposal D, authorizing bonds for state and local recreation projects.

All election totals are unofficial until the Oakland County Board of Canvassers confirms the vote.

At the polls, some voters were confused about forms asking them to declare a party preference, said Holman, adding that even more confusion followed when some precincts ran out of forms.

The declaration of party preference is necessary before voters can participate in the March 1992 primary, he said. The declaration is not necessary for the August primary in which candidates are selected for local races.

With 7,725 votes, State Rep. Mat J. Dunaskiss received more votes than any other candidate, including candidates for president.

Precinct 7 at the American Legion Hall served 1,070 voters Tuesday, more than any other township precinct.

About 200 voters did not cast a ballot for president.

Five write-in candidates received one vote each: Gary L. Swartz for president in the Republican Party, Bob Carr as U.S. Representative in the Republican Party, Shannon Stevens as Oakland County Prosecutor, Leo James as Oakland County Sheriff, and Spuds McKenzie as township supervisor.

given them new sources of funding in 1990.

Republican incumbent Charles Oaks was re-elected to a second term as trustee, while newcomers Margaret Bloom, Nancy Strole and Dennis Vallad, also Republicans, won trustee seats. Democratic incumbent Glen Vermilye, who has served on the board since 1974, lost his bid for re-election.

Vote totals for the trustees before absentee ballots were counted were: Strole, 2,045; Oaks, 1,837; Bloom, 1,825; Vallad, 1,774, and Vermilye, 1,031.

The parks and recreation department lost a request for a half mill for operation, maintenance and development of parks and recreation facilities. Unofficial vote totals before absentee ballots were counted were: yes, 1,238; no, 1,522.

The library was also asking for a half mill for operational purposes. Unofficial vote total before absentee ballots were counted on this issue were: yes, 1,263; no, 1,491. The library also narrowly lost a millage bid in the primary election this year.

"I'm a little disappointed," Supervisor Collin Walls said about the millage defeats. "But we just do the best

— Supervisor Collin Walls

we can with what we've got."

Walls (R) and Clerk J. Calvin Walters (R) ran unopposed in the Nov. 8 election. Before absentee ballots were counted, Walls had an unofficial vote total of 2,059, the highest on the local ballot, and Walters had 2,011.

High voter turnout -- nearly 3,500 voters, a large number of absentee ballots and two paper ballots in Springfield Township all combined to slow down the counting process Tuesday night. But Walters said he expected it to be slow.

Walls was pleased with the good voter turnout.

"One of the reasons was local races," he said. "We had new candidates. We had opposition. We had people out there knocking on doors."

Call For Directions

Starts Monday

Dial 911 for help

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Starting Monday, Nov. 14, 9-1-1 is the number to call for any emergency—whenever fire, police or medical attention is needed.

"I think it's going to be good, and I wish it was going to take effect immediately," said Gar Wilson, Independence Township Fire Chief, adding that the fire department's old number will still be in effect for a while in case residents forget to dial 9-1-1.

With the new countywide system, a caller anywhere in Oakland County simply has to dial 9-1-1, and, within a second or two, the caller's address and phone number will appear on a computer screen at a central dispatch office, which notifies the appropriate emergency department.

Also on the screen will be the police, fire and EMT (emergency medical technicians) departments assigned to that particular residence, said William Craig, Clarkston resident and senior account executive for Michigan Bell Communications, Southfield. The computer will tell whether the phone call was made from a business, residence or pay phone.

"It's going to have a big impact," said Craig, adding that nearly all of southeastern Michigan will be connected to the system by 1990.

Eventually, 9-1-1 may service the entire state, he said. Already, the system is being implemented across the nation.

Emergency personnel like the new system because it's easier for people to remember, and it will cut down on false alarms and prank phone calls.

"It will help a lot," said Gordon Mason, assistant chief in Independence Township. "We get a lot of them."

A WARM, SUNNY DAY provides perfect weather for planting bulbs in Clarkston's Depot Park. Clarkston High School senior Dave Woodruff, 17, of Kingfisher Lane, volunteered with other members of the Interact Club (a CHS youth Rotary Club) and the Blue and Gold Club to help the Clarkston Farm and Garden Club plant over 2,000 crocus and tulip bulbs Oct. 31.

Board cancels architect contract

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Following a closed session Monday evening, the Clarkston Board of Education voted 4-3 to terminate a five-year contract with Charles Sherman Associates Inc., architects for the Clarkston school district.

The motion stated that it is "aware of the total scope of the potential building program in the school district's immediate future" and is "aware that the nature of architectural services is largely subjective."

The motion also stated, "the board believes that it will be in the ultimate best interest of the school district to terminate the services of Charles Sherman Associates Inc. under the agreement ... dated May 17, 1988, as soon as current under construction aspects are completed."

The projects currently under construction or just completed are the re-roofing of the Pine Knob and North Sashabaw elementary schools and Sashabaw Junior High School.

The five-year contract, authorized at the April board meeting and signed on May 17, would have included all work under the $5.2 million bond issue, a new high school if construction was authorized in the next five years, and renovation of the existing high school to a middle school.

Voting "yes" on the motion were board members Carolyn Place, Elaine Schultz, Stephen Werner and Thomas Howard. Voting "no" were Janet Thomas, Mary Jane Chaustowich and John Needham.

At the September board meeting, Superintendent Gary Haner recommended that the board interview construction managers and architects. The board approved a motion to authorize a subcommittee of administrators and board members to perform the task and select those to be presented to the entire board.

Sherman and Associates has been the architectural firm for the Clarkston district since 1976.

Haner said the district was advised not to comment on the issue by its attorney, Mike Eschelbach, as a precautionary measure.

Charles Sherman of Sherman and Associates was not available for comment on Tuesday.

Roof bid accepted

A $26,925 roof repair to the main lodge is to be the first major improvement at Baycourt Camp Park on Andersonville Road in Independence Township.

Liberty Roofing Services of Rochester submitted the low bid and was appointed by the Independence Township Board to do the job on the township's newly acquired 49-acre park.

The company is to remove and replace rotten boards on in the roof. Afterward, township employees are to begin working on the inside, according to Sheryl Stickley-Schreefel, acting parks and recreation director.

Youngsters reveal strong feelings about presidency

The assignment for the fourth- and fifth-graders: Write in your journal about the qualities you feel an ideal president should possess.

Their teachers, Susan Banworth and Joanne Stroebel, were impressed with the results.

"Personally, I think the ideas they expressed were in a lot of cases sophisticated and showed a lot of knowledge about the presidential candidates," said Banworth. "The kids have very strong feelings about what a president should be like."

Four of the writings were selected to share with readers of The Clarkston News. The students are enrolled in the Clarkston Academically Talented program. Their class meets one full school day a week.

By Zac Bell, 4th-grader
Clarkston Elementary School

I think a president should think more about schools and helping lots of colleges. I disagree with the death penalty!

Personally, I don't like either person running for president, but I would vote Bush if I could.

I think a president should have a good sense of humor as well as a serious side. If he/she declared war I think he/she should provide bullet-proof suits for each soldier (masks included).

By Sun H. Lee, 5th-grader
North Sashabaw Elementary

I, Sun H. Lee, would like a president with the best leadership qualities. I want him to be serious but with a sense of humor.

Someone in our generation so he or she will understand us. Someone who will house the homeless and raise taxes only when necessary. A person who knows our country and most of all the People!!

Our country should be so that no wars should break out with our country. We know a leader will never be perfect, but we do want the No. 1 president.

What his family did in the past, good or bad, should not matter. What he did should be important! A man with a family to guide him and to support him is vital. If he has his own family he will understand what we go through.

A good president will be all the above and more!!!

By Colin McIntyre, 4th-grader
Clarkston Elementary School

I must face the fact that George Bush has a superior chance of winning, but I guess I'll always stick with the Democrat.

I want a president who will help make peace with the U.S.S.R., someone who will stop pollution and decrease the rate of homeless, starving people. I want a good leader who will aid the development of the United States of America. They must decrease drug abuse and crime.

A person who has all these qualities may be hard to find, but if there ever is a person like this, man or woman, they're definitely going to get my vote.

By Devon Ostrand, 5th-grader
Andersonville Elementary

My ideal president would probably be intelligent. I really don't care about humor, but he or she shouldn't be too serious.

I would like them to have a college education. They, of course, should be honest. I'd like them to put up houses where they don't have to tear down trees or animal environment. I'm very, very disappointed about that in particular.

I'd like them to be devoted to the obligations of their job. I'd like them to lower taxes, ban alcohol and try harder to get rid of drugs (watch out for people bringing it into the U.S.), and make a law protecting more animals. Try to get more food and homes and clothes for the poor. (And believe in the Constitution.) Definitely!

Hang up on these calls for donations

Phone solicitors posing as representatives from local fire departments are again asking for contributions, said Robert Cesario, firefighter in Independence Township.

Cesario, president of the International Association of Firefighters, Local 2629, said statewide organizations last year used the township fire department's name to ask for money or told residents that the money would benefit the local community.

The calling is happening again this year, he said. "It's not us, and we don't ever plan on doing that," said Cesario. "They're telling these people things that really aren't true. Really, (the money) doesn't help us at all. We don't get any of this money directly."

The problem arose when the statewide firefighters union hired a firm called Municipal Telemarketing to raise money. The union didn't know that the company would harass people or give a hard sell, and local fire departments have asked the statewide union not to renew the contract when it expires this year, said Cesario. "We're trying to hopefully put a squelch on this, to try to stop it," he said. "They're just misleading the people."

Before anyone donates money, they should verify the information with the Independence fire department, he said.

"Basically, just beware," he said. "It's like anything else. Just use a little common sense. If people call up asking for money, ask questions."

"Whatever organization calls representing their local fire department, that should be a tip-off right away," he said, suggesting that people ask for names, phone numbers, addresses and a list of products that would be sold as fund raisers and give the information to the fire department.

Organizations using the techniques are the telemarketing firm which calls itself the Michigan Professional Firefighters (or uses the local fire department name) and the Michigan Association of Firefighters, which is a new division of the Michigan Association of Police, a statewide union.

Tax penalty is waived

Senior citizens will once again get a break on the tax deadline in Springfield Township.

The Springfield Township Board voted in favor of renewing a 14-day tax collection interest and penalty waiver for senior citizens between the tax deadline, Feb. 14, 1989, and Feb. 28 when it is turned over to the county.

Planners embrace grocer's new plan

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Owners of the Food Town grocery store are considering a move to the southwest corner of Sashabaw and Waldon roads intersection, although no specific plans have been submitted.

Developer Arkan Jonna and Food Town spokesperson Ed Adler simply wanted to discuss the idea with the Independence Township Planning Commission before going further with engineering designs, said Jonna Oct. 27.

The planners responded with enthusiasm.

"It's a good opportunity to master plan a significant area of the township in a way that's consistent with the township master plan," said Richard Carlisle, planning consultant.

Adler told the commission that his lease on the present site at the Sashabaw and Maybee roads intersection would be expiring, and he wanted to expand. He added that he also wanted to improve the appearance of his store and would be able to do so at a new location.

Jonna first approached the planning commission in January 1987, to develop an eight-acre parcel at the southwest corner of the intersection into a grocery store and other commercial stores.

The planners granted conceptual approval, but Jonna said he didn't return sooner because he needed water and sewer service before he could proceed. Both projects are in the planning stages.

Since then, Jonna said he may be able to control another seven acres if a deal goes through to purchase the property from Paul Eghigian, who owns the property and pond surrounding Jonna's parcel.

Jonna said he would still like to build a grocery store and commercial space for other community services at the immediate corner but would like to build research office in the surrounding area.

Eight acres at the immediate corner is zoned planned shopping center, and the surrounding land is zoned residential, although the master plan calls for research office, said Carlisle.

Jonna said the property would require a lot of work before construction can take place, because it had been a gravel pit at one time and is composed of fill dirt.

Commissioners complimented the idea and expressed particular approval for the boulevard entrance from Sashabaw Road, which would be far enough away from the intersection to create a safe entrance.

Some commissioners expressed concern over a possible blight at the Food Town shopping center, as well as at the A & P grocery store, if the grocery stores move as planned. A & P owners plan to move to the southwest corner of the White Lake and Dixie Highway intersection.

Carlisle explained that the grocery store moves would probably be a positive change. With the landlords locked into low, long-term leases, money hasn't been available for improvements to the sites, he said.

If the grocery stores move out, the space will either be divided into smaller stores, which would bring in more money for the landlords, or would be leased out to a large business, such as a building supply store, he said.

With new uses, the landlords would be able to charge more money and would be able to afford improvements that could benefit the entire community, he said.

Springfield grants cash to help-group

Northwest Oakland Community Services (NWOCS), a group that reaches out to help others in the seven-township northwest Oakland area, got a vote of support from the Springfield Township Board last week.

The board not only voted to approve $450 for NWOCS seed money in the 1989 budget, but it also agreed to approve a letter stating that the township board supports the work of NWOCS.

The letter is part of an application NWOCS is sending to the state of Michigan asking for operating funds through the Neighborhood Builders Alliance Grant program.

The grant program supports innovative programming that improves the quality of life in communities, said Helen Vergin, an NWOCS board member.

There is a lot of competition for the grant, and NWOCS does not know if they will be a recipient or how much they might be awarded, she said.

Major projects of NWOCS are a Volunteer Literacy Program for those age 18 and up, Volunteer Tutoring Program for junior high school students and a Senior Calling Program providing weekly telephone calls to senior citizens.

Vergin says they are also organizing a youth program and a program for young mothers. NWOCS is a young group, formed only a year ago, but Vergin said it is growing.

The only request Springfield Township turned them down on was a request to buy 25 folding chairs stored in the township hall basement for $3 each.

Treasurer Patricia Kramer said she was not in favor of selling the chairs, because they might be needed in the future at the township and storing them was not a problem.

Vergin said NWOCS plans to ask all seven townships in the northwest Oakland County area for seed money until the group becomes self-sufficient. They work out of Springfield, but help in all seven counties.

Earlier this year, NWOCS asked for and received $450 from the Independence Township Board.

More information about NWOCS is available by calling 634-9410.

Pickles,
anyone?

Kathy
Greenfield

A morning radio station has a quasi-news feature called "The Editor's Wastebasket." Since I manage to fill a wastebasket a week with mail received here at the News, I thought I'd give the theme a try.

On the radio segment, they laugh a lot while reporting some pretty bizarre stuff. My mail doesn't get quite that good. Some of it is incredibly boring, some is almost funny and some is too good to throw away.

For instance, in case you get a yen to talk about the weather, you'll want to know that last month was the coldest October on record for lower Michigan in 63 years. The average high temperature was 54.2 degrees and the low was 37.7 compared to the normal average high of 62.5 and low of 41.2.

I've always wondered why I get news releases from the Michigan Agricultural Statistics Service, and I've always wanted to use something from their bright pink pages. So ...

Did you know that annual vegetables and strawberries were planted on 125,000 acres in Michigan during 1987 ... that cucumbers consumed the largest vegetable acres with 28,500 and 24,000 of those acres were planted for pickles... that asparagus was the second largest vegetable crop?

Also, farm prices were steady last month. Lower prices for hogs and eggs offset higher milk prices. (Save that to share at your next cocktail party.)

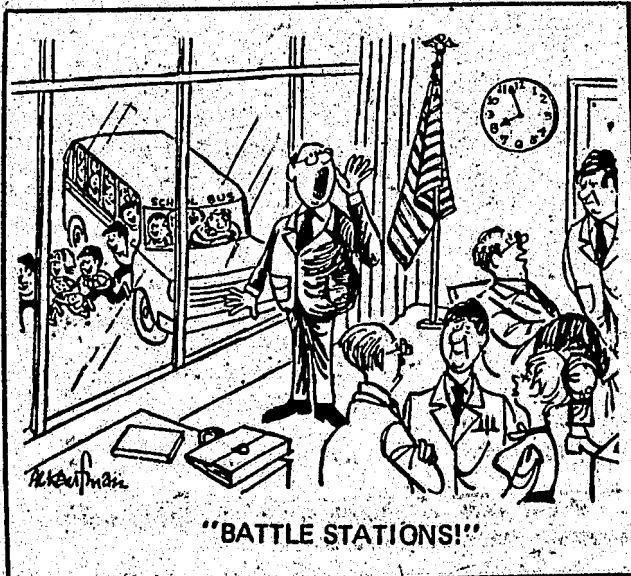

And it's estimated that there are 2,000 fewer farms in Michigan than last year, down to 58,000.

From the National Marine Manufacturers Association: "Imagine what four million residents of Michigan will do this year. They'll watch the 'Cosby Show.' They'll eat fast food (by the ton!). And for sure, they'll go boating."

That's quite a combination, don't you think? Frankly, I want to know more about the fast food, but everything else is all about boats.

And I don't have to look far, although it's not quite what I had in mind. A Utica resident has been awarded a Bachelor of Hamburgerology degree from McDonald's Hamburger University! Apparently the school is a bona fide place of study designed to provide advanced training in McDonald's restaurant operations. But a bachelor of hamburgerology? Moan.

And finally, more news perhaps related to Michigan pickle patches. As part of a school equipment swap program, parents of Davisburg Elementary pupils are being encouraged to save caps from a certain brand of pickle jars.

We have enough garbage

When it was reported recently that garbage from New Jersey was going to be shipped to a Michigan landfill many residents found it upsetting.

The infringement, apparently allowable, sounded something like a land grab. It provoked thoughts of protectionism. It made people mad ... to think those New Jerseyites (and any other state that wanted to) would bring their garbage to our state.

Remember New York putting some of their garbage on a barge and shipping it down the Atlantic, across the gulf only to have Louisiana reject it. The stuff ended up back in New York, lessened only by the amount taken by gulls.

A landfill in Port Huron is reportedly, we saw the letter, working with Norfolk Southern Corp to bring 5,000 tons a day of municipal waste by rail from New York.

The placement of our garbage is, to make a gross understatement, a major problem. It's as big a problem for Michiganders as Easterners. Many Michigan landfills have been closed, many filled.

If incinerators are the answer, and many believe they are not, the state sorely lacks these furnaces.

And, because garbage disposal is as big a problem here as elsewhere, the acceptance of out-of-state refuse will only speed our dependence on another source. When Michigan is full, then what? Do we all look eventually to filling the Grand Canyon?

No! New Jersey and all of us need to face the problem now. Toward this end we support House Bill 5524 introduced by Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion, and passed unanimously by the House of Representatives.

This bill requires county approval of out-of-state garbage.

In the state's solid waste management act of 1978, Michigan counties were required to submit a plan for disposing of waste. House Bill 5524 requires a state disposal area to get county approval, in writing, before accepting material not generated by their county.

This House Bill is now in the Senate. Opponents of the bill have hired, what Dunaskiss calls, "The strongest lobbying agency in Lansing" to fight its passage. They will likely seek to amend it, stretch out the dialog and otherwise delay the vote through senate closing.

Right now the bill is set for a November 15 vote in the Senate. We encourage those who support Bill 5524 to contact any or all state senators, urging their yes vote. If landfills turn out to be the only way to dispose of garbage, let's do it with our own. JAS

Jim's Jottings

This being the hunting season, we'll shoot this column with a scatter gun.

This really happened. Two weeks ago our Congress passed a new tax law. They passed it without our seeing it. It wasn't printed at the time Congress approved it. A tax lawyer told J. P. McCarthy on WJR he tried to get a copy of the new law and was told none are available because the wording hadn't been worked out by aides to our elected officials. Unbelievable? Nah! Not with our Washington hillers.

A Detroit area fast, seafood restaurant is promoting a meal on tv with their fish cooked in peanut oil, "no cholesterol". Also, on this plate are french fries, which dietitians tell me is nearly all cholesterol.

You probably don't pay any attention to such things, but the ads recruiting people for the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marines irritates me no end. Now, I don't mind our government asking our young people to choose a career in the armed services. I only mind it a little bit when the ads promise the recruits will get to pick their career and their place of duty, and I hear later they got no choice. That happened to a lot of us. But, in the good-old days, when I was recruited, the ads didn't say, "Paid for by U.S. Armed Forces." What I want to know is where did they get the money for all those television ads, selling candy bars in front of K mart? Do they have a source of income besides we taxpayers? The ads should be signed, "Paid for by U. S. Taxpayers." If a Congressional committee is named to look into it, the next signature will be, "Your tax dollars at work!"

Note to Cal Currier: Don't bring me any more papers like the one last week from St. Petersburg, Florida. It makes me too envious. The St. Pete Times of Sunday, Oct 16 had 266 pages and 12 inserts. Actually, I enjoy a newspaper like the Times. Any paper that can devote an entire front page of a section to a 4-color drawing of a Phillips screw must be a fine paper.

Have you heard the hypnotist's advertisement on weight control? He says "our appetite is in our mind". He has never heard my stomach growl ... about four times a day.

I got a call from a Lakeville Lake resident the other day saying he had this great idea for a cartoon, but he couldn't draw flies. He said, "You've heard about how someone wants to put condom dispensers in schools?" Yeah. "And, you've heard how some people want to have all Huckleberry Finn books taken out of public schools?" Yeah. "Well, my cartoon would have this guy hauling the dispenser into the school, and a guy yelling at him, 'While you're in there bring out the Huck Finn books. We don't want to contaminate our kids.'" I wish John Patrell would learn to draw.

Letters to the Editor

Private victory best

Dear "Name Withheld by Request":

1. If your convictions were as strong as your letter, you would have been proud to sign it.
2. I was in the same situation many years ago.
3. I quit.
4. My father gave me my support privately. (He sat through many a game I didn't get a chance to dirty my uniform.)
5. I regrouped, improved myself and got what I wanted.
6. It was a private victory my dad and I shared for years.
7. I was also a senior.

Going public with any complaint is being political and most political complaints are self-serving.

I do have a right to my opinion, the same as you do. I do not hide behind anonymity. Also, I do not apologize for my opinions no more than you would if you felt in your heart you were right.

It's been a pleasure sparring with you in the "letters to the editor." Maybe the next time we'll be on the same side.

Village president responds to letter

Last week an anonymous letter mysteriously appeared on the door handles of homes in the village. It's titled "Why Keep Clarkston A Village?" -- a wonderful, but likely impossible mission.

The facts, or so-called facts, and there are some of each, could have been discussed openly if the anonymous person had brought them forward at the public hearing held by the village council on Oct. 24.

I am pleased that people are giving cityhood serious consideration. However, the concept of distributing inaccurate information written by an anonymous person making assumptions does not promote understanding, only unnecessary fears.

We have attempted to distribute information as it becomes available. We also realize that not everyone is going to agree with us. However, the issues should be addressed in a public forum.

We are asking anyone with questions concerning issues raised in the letter to attend the next meeting of the village council, Monday, Nov. 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the Village Hall, 375 Depot.

Contrary to what this anonymous letter leads the reader to believe, the village is capable of paying its own way and does pay for services received from the township.

It is time to put to rest the notion there is a dispute of enormous proportions between the township and the village. It's a natural process to disagree, yet it does not mean that disagreement cancels understanding.

I suppose it's more sensational to think that we don't get along, but the village council has no immense problem with township officials. We only wish to remain a separate government so the village can continue to govern itself and determine its own destiny.

It's a hard concept to grasp, but if you want to remain the same -- independent with your own accountable, individual government -- we have reached the time when we can only accomplish that objection by becoming a city.

The Roads We Travel

Taking care of earth

Brent Bair

Our society is becoming increasingly sensitive about our environment, and rightfully so.

We are concerned about what corporations and even public agencies are doing that might damage the environment and make this a less pleasant place to live, especially for our children.

Road agencies are subject to this scrutiny, and yes, they can do things that could affect the environment. Fortunately, they too have become aware of the need to protect the environment.

With the passage of the National Environmental Protection Act of 1970 and the Michigan Environmental Protection Act shortly thereafter, road agencies must now carefully document all potential damage resulting from major federally funded projects and review alternatives to mitigate any damage.

Environmental staffs have been hired to review not only construction projects, but also maintenance activities to seek ways to mitigate damage. The road commission, for example, has a staff of two environmentalists working on the problem.

Construction projects in wooded areas are reviewed, including with field visits, to determine if significant trees could be saved by adjusting the road alignment or by any other means.

It is disgusting sometimes to put a great deal of effort into saving trees along a road during an improvement of that road, only to then watch a developer go in and totally clear all adjacent property of all trees.

Lakes and streams are now being protected from runoff from construction sites via the use of special drainage provisions, straw and in some cases, special fabrics.

New catch basins are now being installed that are designed to trap sediment and floating debris such as oil before it reaches our lakes and streams.

While road agencies such as the state Department of Transportation and Oakland County Road Commission do use some herbicides, they are now used only at selected locations such as intersections and around signs to keep brush down and maintain sight distances for the motorists. Massive sprayings of ditches, etc., are no longer done.

Other measures have also been taken. For example, all road commission staff handling the chemicals are trained and certified for the proper handling and application of the materials.

These materials tend to be contact herbicides, killing only what they touch, as opposed to those that are designed to be absorbed in the soil and kill roots. The latter type is more susceptible to being washed away and into our streams and lakes.

For dust control on gravel roads in the township, the road commission uses either brine from its own well or commercially produced calcium chloride. Calcium tends to bind with the soil and does not present a runoff problem. It can contribute to corrosion of vehicles.

The salt used for winter snow maintenance is drawing additional attention. Not only is it corrosive to vehicles, but it does run off into lakes and streams.

Sand or salt and sand combinations are used in some situations, but it is not as effective overall in keeping traffic moving safely as salt alone.

Also, the sand tends to fill up the storm sewers and adds to the lake and stream sediment problem. Salt has been used for a lot of years, but I know of no documented significant environmental impact or health hazard.

However, alternatives to salt (sodium chloride) are constantly being sought, but none that are as effective have yet been found.

Next week: The question of private roads.

Brent Bair is chairman of the Independence Township Planning Commission.

'If it Fitz ...'

Sad memories

Jim Fitzgerald

Last week, my 19-year-old granddaughter did the same thing I did when I was 19, in 1945. She returned to her Michigan home from Munich. It is something for an old poop to think about.

Michele was on vacation with two other girls. They were invited to stay in the homes of traveling Munich musicians they met at a German festival this summer in Frankenmuth. Forty-three years earlier, on my visit to the Munich area, with no invitation, I stayed in a tavern, sleeping behind the bar.

I arrived there toward the end of World War II, an inadequate replacement in the 12th Armored Division. I was an assistant half-truck driver, which meant I washed it.

Conquering soldiers moved in where they pleased and worried little about where the displaced enemy might go. My armored infantry company took over a beer garden in a tiny farming village near Munich. The second floor had been converted into a makeshift garment factory where women made military uniforms. In one big room, two dozen sewing machines were lined up like school desks.

The tavern keeper and his family lived on the job, and there were five bedrooms in the building. I remember clearly because, as one of the new guys, I didn't get a bed. I spread my sleeping bag behind the bar which, unfortunately, was dry. Not one full bottle or keg. Thirsty troops had preceded us.

Breaking the garbage rules

Those troops had done their job -- killing and destroying. The evidence of their effectiveness could be seen in the occasional charred German tank and in the shot-up buildings of Munich. This evidence could also be seen in the eyes of the German people on the streets. I avoided their sullen glances, but I felt them. I wondered which of them had to move out of the tavern building because I moved in.

There were almost no young German men on the streets. Just old men and women of all ages. And little children who snatched the American soldiers' cigaret butts as soon as they hit the ground. Children who stood beside the garbage cans outside our mess tent and silently begged us to scrape out our mess kits into their hands or containers.

Once in a while I drew garbage detail. That meant riding the garbage truck to a dump outside town and shoveling the stinking refuse into huge piles. The little children were there, too. They picked through the garbage, sticking the most choice bits of rotting food into tin cans to take home to their families.

Most of the conquering soldiers tried to steer the cleanest garbage toward the children. We also gave them candy. We weren't supposed to. During those last weeks of the war, and for a while after, there was a "non-fraternization policy" that forbade the occupying army from any sort of social contact with the enemy.

But what were we supposed to do, blame the children for Hitler and his followers? Punish them for the unbelievably obscene things that adults did in a Munich suburb called Dachau?

Progress, after 43 years

I hated it in Munich, mainly because of those children grasping for garbage. They were the same age as my little sisters back home. I was happy to get out of there, sailing for home on Aug. 5, 1945 -- my 19th birthday -- with no desire to return.

Forty-three years later, my 19-year-old granddaughter was sorry to leave Munich. She had a great time and wants to go back. Splendid! That's progress in international fraternizing, and I yearn for much more of the same -- everywhere.

And I wonder about those little children at that garbage dump in 1945. They'd be around 50 years old today. Did one of them, just by chance, pass near my granddaughter on a Munich street in 1988? Did one of them ever have a bedroom over a tavern, near two dozen sewing machines? Did he or she have to move out quickly when the Americans moved in?

It is something for an old poop to think about, and damn near cry.

More Letters

This is not the first village administration to consider cityhood, nor is it the first township administration to consider cityhood. There is no guarantee the village will remain the "Village" without cityhood -- what has made the Village of Clarkston so unique all this time may come from the fact we've done a decent job of governing ourselves. Cityhood is the only way to secure that in the future we may continue.

Taxes, fire and police protection are obviously the priority items to be clarified, and through the cityhood process, these issues will be addressed.

There is a need for everyone to understand the procedure for cityhood:

1. Petition signed by 142 registered property owners. The petitions are then sent to the State Boundary Commission.

2. Petition signatures are verified by the Boundary Commission.

3. (This is the point we are at now.) The State Boundary Commission holds a public hearing.

4. The State Boundary Commission studies the situation to determine if cityhood would meet statutory criteria. This may take up to six months.

5. If cityhood is approved by the Boundary Commission and 20 or more registered voters ask for a vote on the issue, an election will be held. If no vote is demanded or if a vote is in favor, then the following process continues.

6. A charter commission must be elected to write a city charter (at this point an intense study of taxes, fire and police protection will take place). The input of our citizens will be very important and many of you may want to be part of the Charter Commission. Also, the form of government you wish will be decided.

7. The City Charter will then go before the citizens for another vote. If defeated, the Charter Commission has one more opportunity to write an acceptable charter. The charter process has a two-year limit.

8. If the charter is passed, then and only then does cityhood become final and the voters choose the people to run the new city.

If cityhood is turned down by the Boundary Commission, at this point we will still be the Village of Clarkston and we will have lost the opportunity to even consider or to vote on cityhood. By this time, one would imagine the Township of Independence could have filed for cityhood.

The village council has been asking people to consider the question of cityhood, because it is inevitable that the township will eventually have to do the same. Indeed, many of their officials have publicly endorsed the idea.

The people in the village have for many years followed their own wishes concerning the way they want their town to be governed. It's hard to believe they wouldn't want to at least have the questions of cityhood to come to a vote as one more step in deciding their own destiny.

Remember: Anyone with further questions may want to attend the next village council meeting to openly discuss "the Letter." If it is not possible for you to attend and you are concerned, please try to contact me.

On a more personal note, answering all that's being said about a sense of community, I hope people realize that community reaches beyond forms of government.

The village and township have long been two separate governing bodies, and for as long as I'm aware, the village has always paid its way. In that respect, cityhood won't change anything. We should interact as we do now and as other neighboring cities, villages and townships.

What will be different is the village residents living in a long-established environment will not be burdened by the long-range growth of the up and coming township. Our need for certain services will remain the same.

As demands in the township for services grow, increased taxes will have to follow. It would be unfair to the village residents if at this time the council did not assume the initiative and take a more positive route.

There may have to be increases in village taxes, but there would be no more township taxes to pay. That should more than offset any village tax increase.

Township officials, I'm sure, understand. Although it's a very difficult decision to ask people to make changes, we are elected to represent the citizens and act in their best interests.

It's similar to medicine. It will make you better in the long run, but right now it's not easy to take.

Sharron Catallo, President
Clarkston Village Council

Sharing expertise

On behalf of the Clarkston Athletic Department, I would like to thank the Oakland County Sheriff's Department Reserves and the Independence Township EMS Unit for their help during the fall football season.

Both units do an outstanding job and we greatly appreciate their expertise in working with our athletes and students.

Clarkston is fortunate to have people with the professionalism of both groups. Since they have been working with the athletic program over the last several years, we have had very few problems, and for this we say thank you.

A snow plowing contract was awarded to Ace Cleaning by the Springfield Township Board on Nov. 3. Ace Cleaning was the low bidder for the job of plowing around the township hall, library and two fire stations with a price of $155 per plowing for all four locations.

The board expressed concern that Ace Cleaning did not have insurance. But Supervisor Collin Walls said the township can cover its own liability for a nominal charge on the township insurance and have Harry "Pat" Tinson of Springfield Township, the owner of Ace Cleaning, sign a waiver of liability.

Spending suggestions?

At a public hearing during the Thursday, Dec. 8, Springfield Township Board meeting, residents will have a chance to suggest ways to spend approximately $26,000 in Community Development Block Grant funds in 1989.

The money represents the township's share of Community Development Act (CDA) federal funds. It is approximately the same amount as in 1988.

Federal guidelines state that the money should be used to benefit low to moderate income families. But in Springfield Township, there is no documented area of low income, so the money is used on a communitywide project that will benefit everyone including low to moderate income as well as senior citizens scattered throughout the township.

The township board meetings take place at 7:30 p.m. in the township hall, 650 Broadway in Davisburg.

Cafeteria pact OK'd

The 38-member Clarkston Schools Cafeteria Association has a new contract, ratified by the board of education on Nov. 7.

The contract is effective from July 1, 1988, to June 30, 1989, and reflects a five percent increase in wages.

New salaries for the two classifications are: for helpers, $5.34 an hour to $6.39 an hour at the end of the second year; for cooks, $6.74 an hour to $7.52 an hour at the end of the second year.

Over 300 sites proposed in Independence

Public hearing set for manufactured home sub

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Negotiations are in progress for about 305 manufactured home sites on 76.33 acres off Clintonville Road just south of I-75 in Independence Township.

A public hearing for the planned unit development (PUD) is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 12, at the township annex, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

APUD is a rezoning that's tied to a specific site plan and needs approvals from the planning commission and township board.

Manufactured homes are like mobile homes, only the trailer and wheels are not left on the structure but removed after transportation, said developer Greg Christopher, who owns and operates seven such parks in Oakland, Macomb and Washtenaw counties including Hawaiian Gardens off Grange Hall in Holly.

Members of the planning commission expressed approval of the general concept but suggested many changes. No formal action will be taken until after the January public hearing.

"I kind of like what I see," said Chairperson Brent Bair. "I think the proposal is workable. You've got a lot of things to work on, but we don't need to get into more detail now. It will be taken care of as we get into the PUD."

According to national traffic data, said Bair, mobile home parks generate four or five trips per day per residence. In contrast, single family residential homes generate 10 trips per day.

Commission member Steve Secatch also complimented the plan, which called for winding roads and a common park area.

"I like the style of the park," said Secatch. "If we're going to have a park, that's the place to have it."

The park is located in the triangle of land bound by Clintonville Road, I-75 and the back property lines of residences on Mann Road.

Carol Balzarini voiced concern over the demand on township services (schools, fire, police) that would be created by the development and over the justification for allowing a mobile home park in rural zoning when the township previously denied permission for a park off of Sashabaw Road north of Clarkston Road.

Dr. Bruce Mercado liked the township control afforded under a PUD.

"This is our chance to control everything -- club house, setbacks, greenbelt," he said. "I am in favor of giving us that leverage."

Suggested changes included reducing the density from 4.5 units per acre (about 343 units) to 4 units per acre (about 305 units -- about the same number that would be allowed if the property were zoned single family residential), paving part of the nearby dirt roads that the park residents might use when commuting to and from work, preserving any existing mature trees and providing an evergreen buffer between the highway and the site.

Commissioners warned that area residents might not be very receptive to a mobile home park in an area currently zoned rural residential.

"You'll have to sell this to the community," Secatch told Christopher. "We'll have tons and tons of people there."

Christopher said he would be willing to work with township planners and citizens to achieve an acceptable plan. He noted that the proposed density is half as much as allowed by state regulations.

Planning Consultant Richard Carlisle was optimistic about the final plans.

"We have a creative planning commission and a cooperative applicant," he said. "Between the two, we could come up with something that could set an excellent precedent."

After the meeting, Christopher said manufactured housing is generally used by elderly or young couples and provides an affordable option for that segment of the population.

"I'm familiar with Oakland County, and there's a tremendous demand in Oakland County and, in particular, in Independence Township," he said. "There's always the demand here because it's such a nice area."

The decrease in density will allow a bigger park area and larger lot sizes, he said, adding that he favored the commission's suggestions.

The plans call for all homes to have shingle roofs and uniform sheds, sidewalks and curbed streets, on-site parking (rather than street parking) and a separate storage area for recreational vehicles.

Prices will range from $23,000 to $55,000 for a home, with $200 to $225 for monthly rent, which includes charges for snow and garbage removal.

2-page letter involves cityhood

Village resident takes views to every door

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After reviewing cityhood facts as presented by the village council during a recent public hearing, one Clarkston resident decided to double-check the material.

What was said at the Oct. 24 meeting inspired Steve Secatch of M-15 to spend his free time from work calling various communities similar in size to Clarkston and asking how much fire and police protection costs and about tax rates.

He was surprised to discover that his facts and those presented by the village council at the public hearing don't match.

Working with a about half a dozen concerned village residents, who he declined to identify at this time, Secatch hand delivered an unsigned two-page letter detailing the facts researched on cityhood to all village homeowners last week.

"I'm not promoting cityhood for the township," said the Independence Township Planning Commission member. "I'm happy with the way it is (now), but even if I was for (village) cityhood what they (village council members) put out to the people is not the truth."

Village President Sharron Catallo said any resident with questions regarding cityhood should attend Monday evening's council meeting in Village Hall, 375 Depot, and air their concerns publicly.

"There is a lot of information that can be misleading," she said of the circulated letter. "I'd like to address the issues and maybe we could clarify them. I don't know where they got their information."

Secatch disapproved of the way village council members told residents at the October public hearing that Holly's bid for cityhood was comparable with Clarkston's proposal. He said they didn't tell the whole story.

In Holly, the village already provides many of its own services and its residents pay 18.2 mills to their general fund. Clarkston residents pay a 8.5-mill tax rate and services are contracted through the township.

Should the village achieve cityhood and the township doesn't want to contract with the city, the residents would be hit with a huge tax increase, he said.

"They (village council members) are doing a lot of assuming," he said. "They went for cityhood before they checked the costs."

Village residents pay 1.3 mills (about $19,000) to the township's general fund for library use, assessing, building inspection, parks and recreation, code enforcement and senior center programs under their current agreement.

Orchard Lake is comparable in size to Clarkston and it pays West Bloomfield Township $25,000 for library use alone. Assessing services through Oakland County cost $14,000, according to figures compiled by Secatch.

He also disagreed with the village council's assessment of future tax increases in the township. Both Rochester and Farmington pay higher tax rates today than the surrounding townships they broke away from after gaining cityhood, he pointed out.

He's worried the same could happen in Clarkston. "I think the people need to know what they will have (to pay) in cityhood," he said. "I didn't want people to think everything was rosy. The people have to know, that's the bottom line."

He also wants to inform village residents on the high cost of complete fire and police protection.

If Clarkston becomes a city and contracts with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department for four police officers to provide three shifts of service seven days a week, it would cost $260,000 or approximately 15 mills.

Under the current police contract with the township, village residents pay 2.5 mills or about $43,000 for complete coverage.

At the hearing, Catallo said paying for one officer for a 40-hour shift ($65,000) and relying on the sheriff's department to handle emergencies on an on-call basis would be sufficient.

"I think that the village council is confused on what it costs for the police protection," Secatch said.

Fire protection presents the same type of problem for Clarkston should the township decide not to sell its service to the new city.

"They (village council members) don't realize what it takes to run a fire department," said the full-time firefighter in West Bloomfield Township. Besides all of the facts and figures, Secatch also worries about such intangibles as township-village unity should cityhood be approved in the years ahead, especially since village residents would no longer have a voice in township politics.

Both Supervisor Frank Ronk and newly elected trustee Frank Millard are village residents, thereby providing the residents of Clarkston with a voice in township politics, he said.

Millard's successful bid for a trustee position proves a village resident can make an impact in Independence, Secatch said.

"I want the village to stay the same and the township to stay the same," he said. "I'd like to stay one community. It's a shame they can't work together."

The State Boundary Commission will conduct a public hearing in Clarkston's Village Hall at 1:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 22, to discuss the cityhood issue.

Board funds formation of Clarkston Foundation

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston school board set the wheels in motion Monday night for a Clarkston Foundation to benefit students in the district.

The board voted to accept a proposal by the board of the Waterford Foundation for Public Education to serve as consultants in establishing a Clarkston Community Schools Foundation for a fee of $3,000.

Using the expertise of neighboring Waterford Foundation, Clarkston will be able to more efficiently set up its own non-profit foundation and "learn from their experiences," said Janet Thomas, Clarkston school board president.

The goal, as in Waterford, will be to provide financial support for innovative and creative educational projects that cannot be funded from the district's operating budget.

Some of Waterford's projects include Young Authors Conference, Young Artists Celebration, science fairs, student assemblies, Odyssey of the Mind competitions, Color in Computer Art and Career Days.

The Waterford Foundation Endowment, through contributions, grants and fund-raisers, has grown to over $20,000 in the first three years, and has funded more than $15,000 in enrichment projects.

Two of the Waterford Foundation board members, Tim Patterson and Bob Coats, as well as Waterford Schools Director of Elementary Education Ron Arnold were on hand to describe the Waterford Foundation to the Clarkston school board Monday night.

"We had a dream of establishing a foundation," Patterson said. They hired a consultant, got a loan from the school district to get started and have since not only paid back the loan but made considerable money. The Waterford Foundation was established in 1984.

Another plus, said Arnold, was "positive PR" between the schools and the residents, creating good will.

"At this time, when you've generated all this enthusiasm in Clarkston, it would be a good time to start," said Patterson.

Clarkston Superintendent Gary Haner said, "I think this is a unique concept, and rather than an outside consultant, we can use, for half the fee, the expertise of Waterford."

The Waterford Foundation board members would be volunteering their own time to help Clarkston. The $3,000 fee would go directly into the Waterford Foundation.

Thomas emphasized that the Foundation would be a separate entity from the school board, with its own board of directors, but would work in conjunction with the board.

Later she said the idea of a foundation has been discussed in Clarkston for several years, but now it will materialize. It could take a month or two before the paperwork and incorporation papers are in place, but things could be in motion for a Clarkston Foundation sometime after the first of the year.

Second-half surge

Girls basketball team's shooters heat up after halftime, defeat Pontiac Northern

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Sputtering along like an old car on a chilly morning, the varsity basketball team proved it was its own worst enemy in the first half of last week's games.

Once again, strong performances from several players fixed the problem after halftime to spark the Wolves to victory.

With the 50-36 win over Pontiac Northern Nov. 3, the Wolves are set for a showdown with Greater Oakland Activities League rival Waterford Kettering for a share of the title on Nov. 8. Both teams tied for the GOAL championship last season, and Clarkston needs to win both of its remaining games against league opponents.

The victory bumps the Wolves' record to 13-4 overall and 7-1 in the GOAL.

"It wasn't pretty, but it was a 'W'," said Coach Larry Mahrl. "I thought that we had a pretty good second half. We got the ball inside well."

Compared to the first half, a backyard pickup game would have looked good.

Both teams had trouble finding the hoop in the early going as evidenced by the score after five minutes: Wolves 4, Huskies 2. By the end of the opening quarter, the score was tied at 6-6.

The pace quickened in the next stanza as both teams found their offensive grooves simultaneously. Susan McKoin, who finished with a team-high 18 points and 11 rebounds, did most of the scoring for the Wolves in the quarter. She scored 12 of her points in the first half.

Rhonda Jokisch asserted herself in the third quarter, scoring eight points and helping Clarkston build a comfortable 33-25 lead heading into the final eight minutes.

Clarkston continued to pressure Northern until the last buzzer, slowly increasing its lead throughout the fourth quarter.

Jokisch scored 11 points and grabbed 10 rebounds for the victors. Celeste Steinhelper had six points, Jenny Grohs and Tammi Mitchell four apiece and Jenny McChesney three. Ingrid Larson and Michelle Darby scored two apiece. Grohs dished out six assists.

Two days before, the Wolves rallied to beat GOAL foe Waterford Mott for the second time this season.

A 17-7 surge by the Corsairs in the third quarter propelled them to a 27-25 lead heading into the final quarter. It took a bucket by Steinhelper with 17 seconds to play -- her only points of the game -- to win the contest for the Wolves.

Wolves rebound

After a down game against Mott, the junior varsity girls basketball team rebounded with an impressive victory over another Greater Oakland Activities League opponent.

Lauren Caston and Carrie Roeser tossed in 16 points apiece to pace Clarkston's powerful attack Nov. 3 at CHS against Pontiac Northern.

Both players also were strong on the boards, collecting nine and eight rebounds, respectively.

Beth Walker and Becky Kosec were tough defensively with five steals apiece, thereby preventing a Northern rally late in the game.

Combine the statistics and Clarkston winds up a 56-33 victor. The team's record now stands at 13-4 with a couple of important games still to play.

The Wolves didn't play well Nov. 1 while hosting Waterford Mott, especially when it came to scoring, much to the dismay of Coach Debbie Wilson. She was in a lot better spirits after the Northern game.

"This was a really good game for us," she said. "We needed it after Tuesday night (against Mott)."

After battling with powerful Waterford Kettering on Nov. 8, the Wolves close out the season with road games against Flint Northern on Nov. 10 and Lake Orion on Nov. 15.

CELESTE STEINHELPER concentrates on the hoop as she prepares to sink a free throw during first-half action in the varsity basketball game Nov. 3.

Seoul Olympics exciting

Memories remain vivid for race walker

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Color snapshots will always be there to remind Gary Morgan of his Olympic adventures in Seoul, South Korea.

But for now, at least, the Springfield Township resident is too busy to reflect on past accomplishments -- he's concentrating on dealing with his mini-celebrity status.

After spending a few extra vacation days in Seoul after the close of the 1988 Summer Olympics in October, Morgan hasn't had much time to catch his breath.

There was a ceremony hosted by President Ronald Reagan for all the American Olympians in Washington, D.C., a special Olympic awards dinner at the New York Athletic Club and several speaking engagements locally for the race walker during the past month.

The Marine Corps band played for the Olympians at the White House, plenty of media personalities turned out as did numerous well-wishers including office workers hanging out of windows to applaud as the athletic caravan went through the District of Columbia.

Locally, the Norman Road resident spoke to a Cub Scout troop recently and will be the guest speaker at Lakeland's cross country team banquet in the coming weeks.

All the attention has cut into the Pontiac Motors employee's practice time, but he's determined to keep in shape.

"I'm going to keep walking," he said. "It's been hard to stay in shape because other things have been coming up."

Although he finished 37th in the 20-kilometer walk, the first American to cross the finish line, it didn't spoil the experience.

"It wasn't as well as I wanted to do," he said. "I wanted a better time by two or three minutes, but it was a great trip."

After his event, the race walker had the opportunity to sight-see in Seoul and watch as many Olympic events as humanly possible.

Thanks to the Seagram's Cooler promotion that allows one relative free travel to Seoul for each athlete, his father went to keep him company.

Probably the one thing Morgan will remember most from the trip is the opening ceremony.

"The opening ceremonies were the most impressive," he said. "The crowds were fairly large. The games started out slow and picked up momentum."

The history of the city also intrigued Morgan. He took plenty of colorful snapshots of ancient temples and modern office buildings alike, photographically recording Seoul's contrasts for posterity. He collected all the pictures from the Olympic trials in July through the actual games to create a scrapbook.

Not wanting to rest on his laurels, Morgan recently entered a race walk in New York City but had to drop out due to injury. In the coming weeks, he will travel to Argentina for another competition.

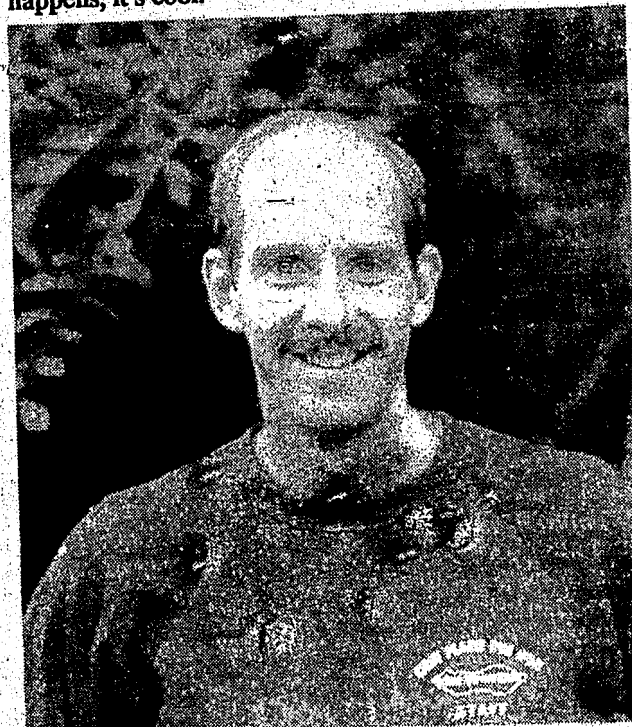

His goal is to reach the Olympics in Spain the summer of 1992.

"I know I can be a lot better," he said. "After Thanksgiving, I'll have to start to get the hammer down."

But if 1988 was his only shot at Olympic fame,

Morgan has no regrets.

"Hey, I got this far," he said. "If nothing else happens, it's cool."

GARY MORGAN has a scrapbook full of snapshots from Seoul, South Korea to remind him of his time there during the 1988 Summer Olympics.

Time Out

Rolling along

Peter Auchter

With the first snowfall in Clarkston behind us, the end of the fall sports season must be near.

To me that means only one thing. It's almost time for districts in girls basketball. Coaches' blood pressures begin to build, fans turn out in droves for the games as long as their favorite team is still alive and an ominous do-or-die atmosphere surrounds the gymnasium.

Just like last year, Clarkston is hosting one of the many post-season tournaments. We'll be home for the holidays.

Once again, the Wolves and Waterford Kettering are favored to be in the title game, if they don't meet in an earlier round. I guess some things never change. But I hope the final results are altered. I didn't like last year's ending too much.

Both Kettering and Clarkston have enjoyed tremendous success on the basketball court throughout the fall, with Kettering's Captains also gaining recognition as one of the state's best teams due to their outstanding record. When you have talent, you tend to win games on a regular basis, folks. It's one of those quirky sports axioms.

Our Wolves stumbled a bit early in the season, lost a game by an embarrassing margin and the general public wrote off the season as something less-than-special. But slowly and surely, the team rebounded to post an impressive victory total. Better than a senior-laden Wolves' team from a year ago.

Consider the following:

- After losing to Flint Northwest on Sept. 15, dropping their overall record to 3-3, the Wolves have been nearly unbeatable -- winning 10-of-11 games.

- Top teams like Rochester Adams, Milford and Flint Central all have gone down to defeat this season when playing the Wolves.

- One senior, three juniors and one sophomore comprise the starting lineup for Clarkston, yet the Wolves are all playing better than many seniors hope they could. Overall, there are only two seniors on the team. Good news for Coach Larry Mahle, who should be able to continue the basketball team success in the coming years at Clarkston.

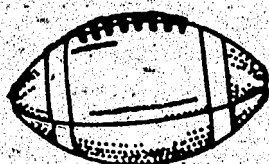

But that's getting ahead of ourselves. First things first. Let's take a peek at how well the team will finish the present season.

Besides Kettering, Grand Blanc, Holly and Lake Orion are in Clarkston's district.

We already know enough about Kettering, and Holly and Lake Orion were beaten by the Wolves earlier this season. The unknown is Grand Blanc. So far so good, but that's only on paper.

What happens on the court is anybody's guess. That's what makes this time of year so gosh darn special.

Salaries go up for Springfield Township officials

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

For the first time in two years, the salaries of Springfield Township elected officials are going up, $1,800 for each of the three full-time officials and $50 plus $7 a meeting for the part-time trustees.

The raises were approved in a 6-1 vote Nov. 3 following a lengthy discussion.

Trustee Charles Oaks suggested the board wait until December when the new board could make the decision, because he heard one person running for the treasurer's position wanted to make it part time.

But Supervisor Collin Walls said, "We can't reduce a salary during a term of office." He added that an official could voluntarily agree to less.

Joe Gorka, candidate for treasurer who was sitting in the audience, said he realized the candidate they spoke of was him, adding, "I intend to accept that position as full-time until I determine if it is." He had also stated earlier that he would reduce the pay if he reduced the hours.

Treasurer Patricia Kramer said, "I can tell you that it's a full-time job."

Trustee William Whitley added, "But do we set salary on the basis of the person holding that job or on the job itself?"

Trustee Ruth Ann Hines said the supervisor and clerk salaries should be raised, but not the treasurer, because either way, a new person would be treasurer (since Kramer was not seeking re-election).

Kramer disagreed, saying that it was a big job, and the new person would have to do the job. "We've already said it's the position, not the person."

Hines made a motion to set the supervisor's salary at $32,300, the clerk at $30,000 and leave the treasurer's salary at $27,100, but the motion was defeated.

Kramer made a motion to give all three an $1,800 raise, and that motion passed 6-1.

Glen Vermilye cast the only no vote. He said he was against raises for officials in an election year.

The supervisor's salary, which was $30,500, will be raised to $32,300. The clerk and treasurer's salaries, which were both $27,100, will be raised to $28,900 for 1989.

In a separate motion, the board voted 5-2 to raise the trustees' salaries from $850 to $900, and from $63 per township board meeting to $70.

Vermilye and Oaks voted against the raise.

Construction drops 1.9 percent

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Recent fluctuations in interest rates may be contributing to a leveling off in residential construction in southeastern Michigan, including Independence and Springfield townships, according to a recent report from the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG).

In the seven counties of southeastern Michigan, some 12,201 permits were issued in the first six months of 1988, representing a slight decrease of 1.9 percent over the same period in 1987, when 12,439 permits were issued.

Following a record low year for residential building in 1982, the housing industry began to rebound in 1983, increasing each year until 1986, according to the SEMCOG report, which attributes the economic recovery to declines in the region's unemployment rate and mortgage interest rates.

The slight decrease in the first six months of 1988 was due to a 5.2 percent decline in single family building, with 6,130 permits issued in 1988 as compared to 6,466 in 1987. On the other hand, multiple family construction increased by 5.4 percent, with 5,945 permits issued in 1988 and 5,643 in 1987.

Although single family construction decreased in Oakland County in that period, the county still led the region in total residential permits issued, with 4,209, according to the SEMCOG data.

Independence Township ranks seventh in the county with 117 single family permits issued in the first six months of 1988. Springfield Township issued 55, and the Village of Clarkston issued none.

Leading the county was Rochester Hills with 274, followed by West Bloomfield with 234 and Troy with 226. Rochester Hills also led the region.

The City of Westland led the region's communities in the total number of residential permits issued, with 745. Also issuing over 500 residential permits in the first six months of 1988 were Farmington Hills, Southfield, Shelby Township and Clinton Township, which combined with Westland accounted for 23.4 percent of the total permits issued in the region.

In the first six months of 1988, Springfield Township issued 69 permits.

In multiple family and two family construction, the City of Westland also led the region, with 672 permits for that type of housing.

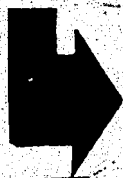

Southfield led Oakland County with 502 multiple-family and two-family units, followed by Farmington Hills with 408, compared to 14 for Springfield Township and none for Independence Township and the Village of Clarkston.

Suggest projects for $52,000 grant

Township officials would like some help in deciding how to spend about $52,000 in federal money targeted for low to moderate income families or blighted areas.

A public hearing is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 15, at the Independence Township annex, 90 N. Main, Clarkston, to receive suggestions on Community Development Block Grant funds.

Since no neighborhoods in Independence Township can be categorized as "low income" or "blighted" according to federal standards, the money can no longer be spent on helping with special assessments for the elderly or other fixed income residents, said Treasurer John Lutz.

Each year, the township usually allocates the maximum amount allowable by the federal regulations for donations to public service groups such as the Clarkston Youth Assistance, Consortium for Human Development and SCAMP.

A percentage of the money can also be spent on minor home repair (for immediate help with a furnace or water heater or some such repair), planning and management or the senior citizen center.

Get ready for fun day

A gift-making workshop provides a new twist to Super Saturday planned for Clarkston school kids next month.

Calico wreaths, friendship rings and Christmas stockings are some of the gifts elementary pupils will be able to make for their families and friends.

The holiday workshop is set for Dec. 3 at Clarkston Elementary School, but pupils must register at their own schools from Nov. 7-15.

Super Christmas Gift Saturday is open to kindergartners through sixth-graders. Parents may watch while their children work.

During registration, participants can enter a coloring contest by decorating a tree. Prizes will be awarded in three age categories.

Springfield board approves $1.2 million budget

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After a lengthy discussion, cutbacks in a few areas and additions in others, the Springfield Township Board on Oct. 27 approved a 1989 budget about $22,000 over the current budget.

The general fund was approved at $797,070, the fire fund at $133,900, and police at $261,700.

The biggest cuts in the general fund were made in the parks and recreation and the library budgets. The parks and recreation department asked for $94,955 and received $73,000.

"Someone has to show fiscal responsibility," said Springfield Township resident Peter Marchbank about increases in the proposed budget.

"I look at this and wonder what we (would be) getting for the increase," added another resident, Joe Gorka, who is also planning commission chairman.

But Trustee Glen Vermilye said, "I think the township is going to play an important role in keeping this a rural community, and I'm willing to go the extra mile for it."

Before the parks and recreation budget was approved at $73,000, Supervisor Collin Walls commented that the parks and recreation department will have to try to generate more revenue on its own as the township expands, such as fees for summer programs to cover the cost of instructors.

The library board asked for $80,300, and the budget was approved at $63,000. Board members said if they were going to send a message to parks and recreation to hold the line, they should send it to the library, too.

Both the library and parks and recreation have one-half mill requests for operating purposes on the Nov. 8 ballot. If passed, the millages would not affect their budgets until 1990.

Another $90,000 was adjusted out of the 1989 budget due to road improvements, which were completed in 1988 (chloriding roads for $40,000), and a paving project on Dixie Highway, which is currently projected to cost the township $50,000 instead of $100,000.

The general fund budget reflects approximately 5 percent increases in salary for employees and an increase in insurance costs. Salaries of elected officials (supervisor, treasurer, clerk and trustees) will be set at the township's regular board meeting Nov. 3.

There was little change in the police fund when it was approved at $261,700. Springfield Township contracts with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department for police coverage.

The fire fund, approved at $133,900, reflects a different salary structure for the fire chief, Marlan Hillman, and an increase in $1 per hour for all five levels of the firefighters, who are paid on an "on-call" basis.

The firefighters' hourly per-call rate ranges from $5 to $10, and hasn't been changed since 1982. It will go to $6-$11. They will also be paid $10 per meeting rather than the current $4.

Hillman's salary, which hasn't changed since 1985, will go from $300 a month, plus expenses and hourly pay, to $630 a month which will cover all his expenses. He will still be paid for runs as a firefighter.

The new approach to the fire chief's salary represents about a 40 percent increase, but the board agreed that their part-time fire protection remains a bargain.

Avoid 'Turkey Day Trauma'

A successful Thanksgiving dinner takes planning and organization. With careful planning you, too, can relax and enjoy the meal.

A few days before the holiday, begin defrosting the turkey in the refrigerator. Do not defrost the bird at room temperature. If you haven't purchased your turkey, remember the larger the turkey the less cost per serving.

"A good rule of thumb to use in purchasing a turkey is one pound per person," says Linda Exum, Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service Home Economist.

The day before Thanksgiving, make the gelatin salad, wash the lettuce and refrigerate in a plastic bag. Make the cranberry relish and cut up other relishes (carrot sticks and celery keep well when refrigerated in a jar filled with cold water).

Make the pie crust, roll out and put in pie pans and refrigerate or fill and bake the pies. Peel white or sweet potatoes and keep covered in cold water. Mix the dressing and refrigerate.

Thanksgiving morning, the challenge is to coordinate cooking times for the oven. Remember this number - 325! Roast the turkey at 325 degrees F. This low temperature assures better flavor, less shrinkage and less loss of juices.

For a turkey over 10 pounds, allow 25 minutes a pound for a stuffed bird, 20 minutes for unstuffed. Use a meat thermometer to make sure the stuffing temperature is 165 degrees, and the bird temperature registers 185 degrees. Let the turkey stand 20 to 30 minutes before carving.

While the turkey is resting, get the rest of the dinner ready to serve. Then pat yourself on the back. You have just put together a tasty, wonderful Thanksgiving meal!

Hunting to be banned near Bailey Lake school

DNR public hearing in Independence Township attracts hunting and non-hunting advocates

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Children at Bailey Lake Elementary School may be better protected during hunting season next year.

A no-hunting buffer zone around the school was the recommendation of a Department of Natural Resources (DNR) committee after a Nov. 3 hunting restriction hearing.

Another DNR public hearing is to be scheduled in December to discuss the recommendation. Afterward, the township board can accept or reject the suggestion. If accepted, the township board will adopt an ordinance containing the change. The process could take six months.

Currently, no restrictions are on the books for the area surrounding the school on Pine Knob Road just north of Clarkston Road in Independence Township.

The buffer, to be defined by signs and a clearing of brush, should improve the safety near the school, said Daniel Travis, a township trustee and member of the DNR committee.

Travis added that the committee is hoping that volunteers, such as hunting or sporting clubs, will help in the clearing of brush if the board adopts the change.

No changes were recommended for the other area of concern, Deer Lake, although the lake area is to be monitored this year by the DNR, the Oakland County Sheriff's Department and the Michigan State Police.

Before their decision, the seven-member DNR committee toured the sites of concern following the 2 p.m. hearing Thursday.

At the hearing, about 15 hunters and non-hunters expressed concerns over trespassing, poaching, vandalism and reckless use of firearms. Some also defended hunters.

Six spoke about damage to mailboxes and no hunt-

"We don't need more laws. We've got book after book of laws. We need citizen participation. We need that peer pressure. ... Give us the facts -- who, what, where, when."

Lt. James A. Dabb
DNR Law Enforcement Division

ing signs, hunters tracking wounded animals across private property without permission, hunters shooting on private property posted as no hunting, and hunters shooting animals as target practice and leaving carcasses to rot.

Connie Thompson of Shappie Road, whose property backs up to Independence Oaks County Park, said hunters are behaving unethically near the park.

"If we want to go out in the back of our property with our children, we feel we have to duck," she said.

Thompson said there were spots where hunters had torn down park fences, set lawn chairs and fruit just past the park property line, and sat and waited for deer to go to the fruit so they could be easily killed.

Lt. James A. Dabb from the DNR law enforcement division conducted the meeting. He said he referred to that type of hunter as a "slob," one who was lazy in probably every area of his life including hunting.

"That's that slob that I don't like to see in the ranks of hunters," he said.

Ingeborg Girschner, who owns 15 acres of unfenced agricultural property on Pine Knob Road, said her no hunting signs are repeatedly ripped off and destroyed and that hunters trespass on her land.

"I'm really intimidated to walk my own dog on the back of my property," she said. "The bullets are whizzing over our own heads while we're going horseback riding on our own property. ... They are shooting squirrels and rabbits and anything that flies. They don't care."

Dabb said poaching and trespassing complaints could be addressed through existing laws.

"We don't need more laws," he said. "We've got book after book of laws. We need citizen participation. We need that peer pressure. ... Give us the facts -- who, what, where, when."

He suggested that she and any others with complaints write down a description of the people, the car and the license plate number. Any illegal activity should be reported to the DNR, sheriff's department (858-4950) or state police (332-9132). A special toll-free hotline number is also available for poaching complaints: 1-800-292-7800.

Others at the meeting spoke on behalf of the hunters.

Chuck Myers of Sagamore on Deer Lake said hunting on Deer Lake wasn't a problem because the only good hunting spot was at a sandbar at the center of the lake. Not many people hunted the lake, he said.

"I hunt for the sport," he said. "I enjoy being outdoors. To walk down to the end of my dock and shoot two mallards swimming there, what fun is that?"

Hunters, non-hunters debate pros, cons of sport

writer for the Saginaw News and other Michigan newspapers, lives in Independence Township.

"There's a lot of hunter blasting going on today," he said. "The majority of the hunters are extremely safe and extremely careful. If you work with hunters, (you'll know) they have high ethics."

He added that hunting shouldn't be eliminated based on emotional reactions of non-hunters.

"A lot of us came up here and moved here because it is a rural area," he said. "We enjoy that aspect. There's an awful lot of mushrooming of growth. Hunting will be the first to be ruled out."

"It doesn't seem fair that the people who have been here a long time ... lose their activity because of this influx of new people who want to change things."

"We seem to have an almost unnatural fear here of seeing shells on the ground and assuming our lives are in danger."

Former Independence Township resident Craig Richardson, who now resides in Brandon Township, said non-hunters don't know the procedures for reporting illegal activities and assume all hunters are bad.

"The see us in camouflage, and they automatically think of Rambo or that we're out to rape and pillage," he said. "Hunters are getting a bad rap."

Rick Linseman of Mary Sue Street said his organization, Oakland County Chapter of Pheasants Forever, would be willing to help educate people about rules, regulations and procedures.

Slob hunters hurt the hunters who follow all of the rules, he said, urging the committee not to close the township to hunting but to improve existing hunting areas.

"Make it safe for people who want it safe and still make it (available) to people who want to hunt in the area," he said. "We want to hunt in this area. We'd rather see tight enforcement of the law than tighter hunting restrictions."

Dabb noted that the DNR has only three conservation officers to patrol the entire county and that greater enforcement is necessary but difficult.

"We recognize that we need more conservation officers," he said. "We could use double the forces. In the 23 years I've been in, (that's) been a dream."

Marinades may be the answer

A variety of wild game and fowl species are hunted in Michigan including deer, elk, rabbit, squirrel, pheasant, quail, duck and goose.

Wild game and fowl are good sources of protein and B vitamins. Fat content varies with species and the animal's diet.

"Careful handling, proper cooking techniques and appropriate seasonings result in safe, tender and tasty game," said Linda Exum, Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service Home Economist.

"Gamey" flavors are found in fat, so trim away visible fat and remove skin before cooking.

To prevent lean cuts of meat from drying out during cooking, add other fats. Before cooking, rub meat with salt pork, butter, margarine, beef suet, bacon fat or vegetable fat to keep the meat moist. Lean cuts may also be basted with broth.

Use marinades to tenderize meat and enhance and disguise wild game flavors. Marinades always contain an acid, various seasonings and sometimes an oil.

Allow one-half cup of marinade per pound of meat. Refrigerate any wild game in marinade if the soak period is longer than one hour. Marinated meat may be refrigerated for up to 12 hours.

Big game cuts are similar to beef cuts. For tender cuts, use dry heat cookery -- roasting, grilling, broiling and panbroiling or frying. Use moist heat cookery such as braising and stewing for less tender cuts.

Small game or wildfowl may replace and be cooked like chicken in most recipes. Because of the high fat content of waterfowl, prepare stuffing in a separate dish.

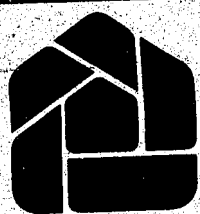

For additional information about using and storing wild game, call the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service Foods Hotline at 858-0904.

Chef brings culinary arts to Clarkston class

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

He made it look easy, whipping up vinaigrettes. On another night, he created a delicious meal using Michigan products. While the sights and smells may have tantalized the taste buds of the 10 or 12 people observing, they were really there to stimulate their minds.

Art Bokatzian, executive chef at the Michigan Bean Co. in Fenton, was teaching a specialty cooking series for the adult enrichment program of Clarkston Community Education. For three Monday evenings in October, the kitchen at the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus was a busy place.

"The good smells coming from that kitchen were driving us crazy," says Chris Scharrer, who is project coordinator for adult vocational education and the adult enrichment programs.

Bokatzian taught three two-hour classes on cooking: a Michigan meal, Cajun cooking, and sauces and dressings.

and dressing, he drew from the recipes he creates at the Michigan Bean Co., an upscale restaurant in a restored grainery built in 1865.

He deftly chopped ingredients and prepared several dishes at once under the watchful eyes of his students at the Tech Center. He explained the process as he worked, and students frequently threw out questions during the class.

At the end of the evening, the "fun" part came, when students sampled everything created during the evening.

"Any more questions?" Bokatzian asked as he began cleaning up.

"Yeah, will you come to my house and cook dinner Saturday night?" came the reply from one student as she busily cleaned her plate.

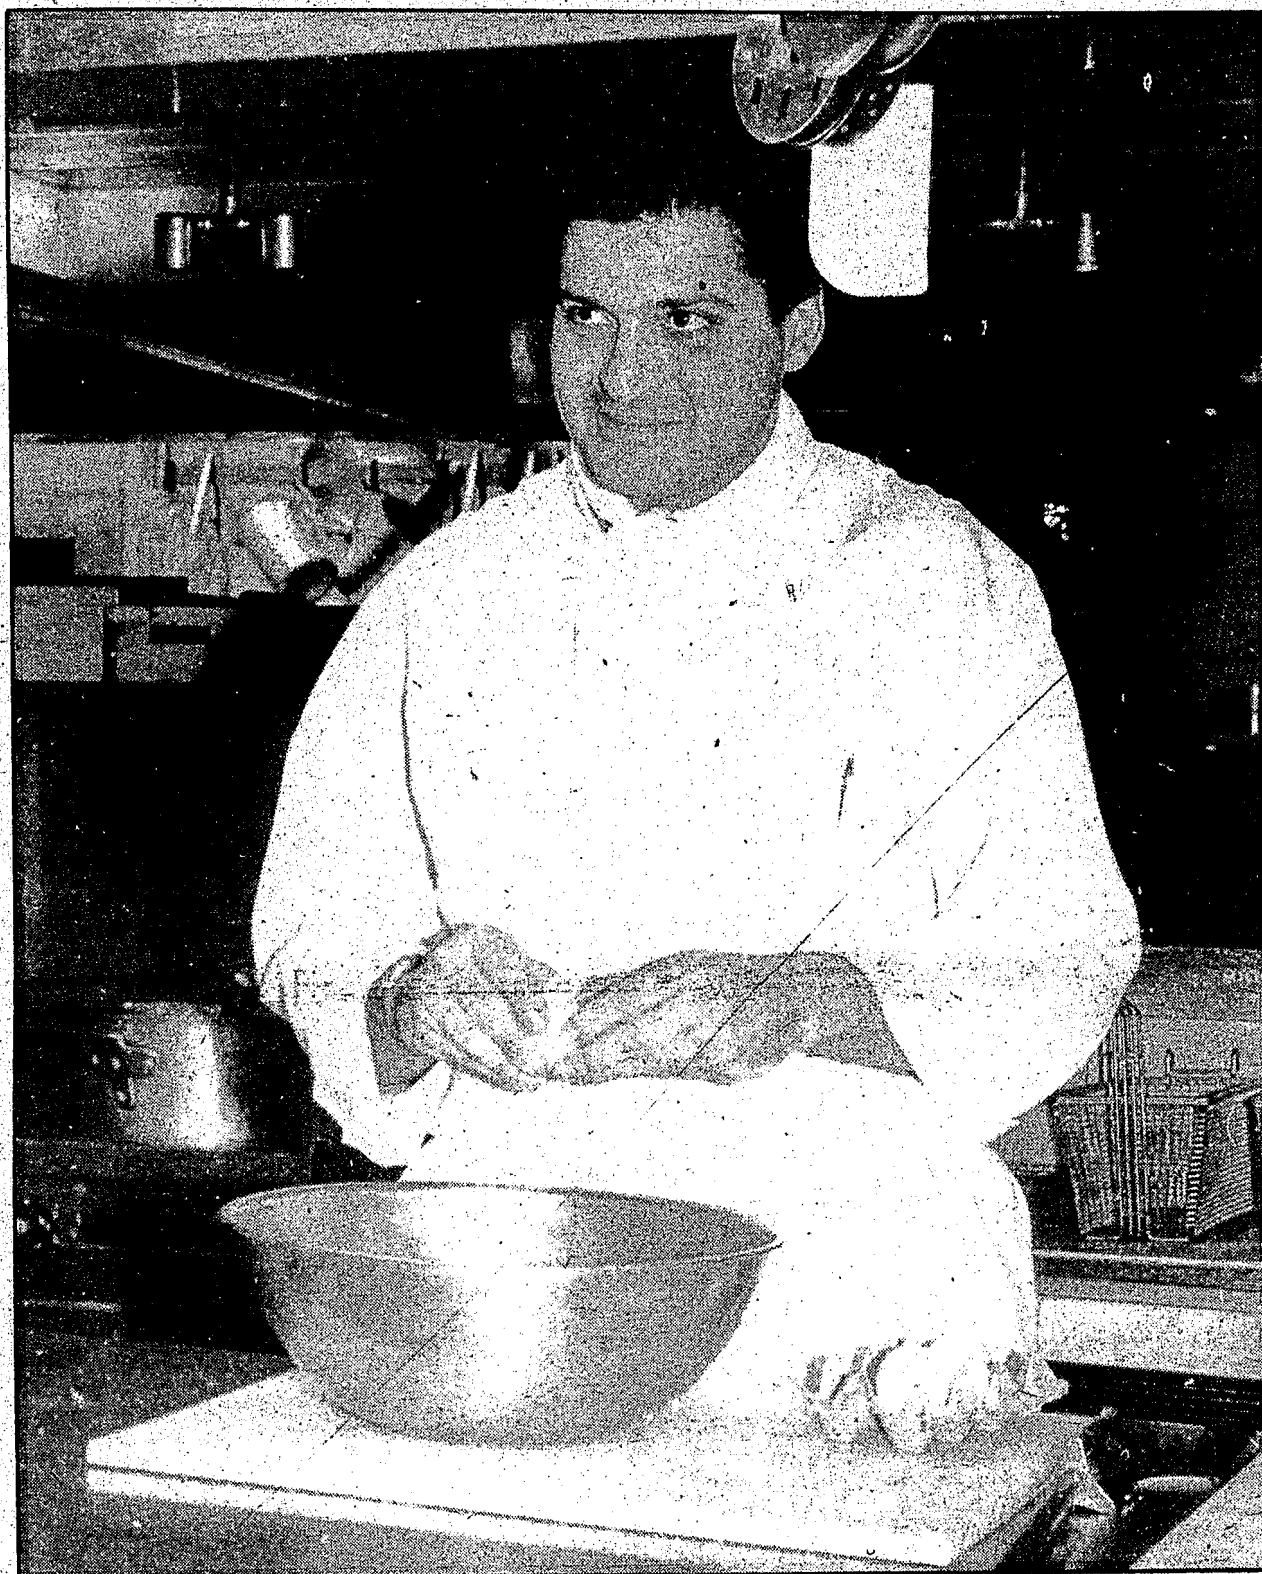

Bokatzian has been the chef at Michigan Bean Co. since November 1987. Before that he was chef at Lord Fox in Ann Arbor, the Hoffman House in Warren and Sparky Herberts in Grosse Pointe.

He earned a degree in the culinary program of Henry Ford Community College, interned under Chef George Riley at the Dearborn Inn and apprenticed under Master Chef Milos Cilheka at the Golden Mushroom in Southfield. The 34-year-old chef just returned from a culinary tour of Europe, where he spent a month sampling the creations of European chefs.

"I have always loved to cook and have been doing it all my life," says the Dearborn native. "I love food, I can work 80 hours a week and it doesn't bother me."

He says teaching adds another dimension to his expertise as a chef.

Sitting in her "other" office at the Tech Center (she also works out of the Clarkston Learning Center), Scharrer says that Bokatzian "bailed them out" when the first chef they lined up had to back out after a dozen students were already signed up for the class. She says they are ing techniques to students in Clarkston's adult enrichment class.

delighted to have Bokatzian for the instructor.

"The students are really excited, because of him and his down-to-earth manner and the things they are learning," she says. "And because of the enthusiasm he has generated, we're hoping to offer more cooking classes."

Scharrer says they have tentatively set up a series of cooking classes with Bokatzian that would begin in February, starting with basic cooking and building on that to more elaborate recipes.

"We'll have a whole revamping of the enrichment program," she says. "We're always looking for new ideas."

The program offers such diverse classes as stained glass and other crafts to career development classes. Scharrer says she is putting together a lecture series, as well, and another special offering, the Franklin Time Management seminar, is coming up on Dec. 8 and Jan. 24.

More programs, including Bokatzian's cooking classes, will be listed in the new brochure in January.

A few of Art Bokatzian's recipes used in the specialty cooking class are offered below. They were tested and written for the home kitchen by home economist Betty Wagner.

More information on the cooking classes or other enrichment classes can be obtained by calling Scharrer at 625-6113 or 674-0993.

WILD MUSHROOMS

- 1 1/2 pounds wild mushrooms, sliced
- 1 tablespoon unsalted butter
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped shallots
- 2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
- 1/2 teaspoon kosher salt
- 1/4 cup dry sherry
- 1/2 cup whipping cream

Combine unsalted butter, shallots, garlic and mushrooms in sauce pan. Softly saute until liquid has been absorbed. This will take a while. Stir every now and then to keep mushrooms from sticking and prevent burning.

Add dry sherry; cook slowly for 5 minutes, or until mushrooms absorb sherry. Add whipping cream and cook slowly to reduce.

Serve between puff pastry.

TO MAKE PUFF PASTRY:

Puff pastry (found in freezer case).
Egg wash (2 oz. milk to 1 egg, whip with fork to blend)

What this world needs

Suzanne Baumann

If your house is anything like ours, you receive an average of three each month -- two on the same day, the third one on the following day.

They're slightly larger than a Reader's Digest, only not as thick and with three staples down the middle.

Of course I'm talking about mail-order catalogs. The ones with rows and rows of photos and descriptions of useless gadgets that look like they might have a purpose. The ones they keep sending whether you buy their products or not.

Each catalog is set up like the others, complete with the same interchangeable merchandise.

There have been a few things, however, that I haven't seen. To get in on the action, I've created my own catalog: Baumann's Fantastic Land of Big Bargains. (Sorry, none of these items is actually for sale. See, there is no company to go along with this catalog.)

Below is a small sampling:

DO YOU OFTEN MISSTARGET when brushing your teeth or spraying your hair? Many times sticky substances end up on the mirror. Remove them quickly and easily with mirror peels.

Simply fasten our special clear plastic over your bathroom mirror and peel a sheet off each time you slop. A clean sheet underneath every time until it runs out! No more scrubbing and polishing. 100 sheets. $19.95.

IF YOU THOUGHT the princess had it bad with a pea, remember how it feels to roll over with a seam sticking you in the side. Our seamless pajamas solve that problem. Made of nylon, they feel a lot like seamless pantyhose. They're not warm or durable, but very comfortable. Only $19.95.

YOU LOVE THE PARTY ... and you love the food so much you want to take it home with you. Be neat, be discreet -- use our "doggie purse."

This generous, plastic-lined handbag works under the same principle as a thermos bottle. It's perfect for any type of food from the office picnic's watermelon to Cousin Harriet's Swedish meatballs. Or for real fun, mix them both together!

Comes in solid black or attractive paisley print, complete with a key chain that converts into an actual working fork! Just $19.95.

So there you have it. A collection of completely necessary household tools you could buy if I had a mail-order business. Watch this column next week for more.

-- Suzanne Baumann is a 10th-grader at Clarkston High School.

GETTING INTO THE MOOD for the holiday bazaar planned Friday and Saturday, Nov. 11 and 12, at the Church of the Resurrection are chairpersons Lynne Spillum (left) and Jan Baxter. Hours for His Handiwork are 9 to 5 p.m. both dates. About 35 artisans are expected, and church members will provide a bake sale, raffle and snacks and food including hot spiced cider and a luncheon of soup and fresh baked goods. The church is located at 6490 Clarkston Rd., across from the Independence Township Library.

Pet of the Week

Instant companionship

Buddy thought her life was all in order two months ago when she was adopted, but her new owner died, which left her homeless once more.

Buddy is a 2- or 3-year-old Lab mix, black with a few white markings on her face. She is an exceptionally calm, quiet dog and would be good with either children or older people. She is already housebroken and has no bad habits, but she has not been around other pets.

Buddy can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The adoption fee for Buddy is $35. She is already spayed.

Exotic recipes shared by Fenton teacher-chef

(RECIPES, from Page 27)

Roll out puff pastry according to package directions. Cut 3-by-1 1/2-inch pieces of pastry. Place one on top of the other. Score with the back of a knife. Brush with egg wash.

Bake at 350 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes, or until golden brown and baked through.

Gently separate layers of baked pastry; spoon some of the mushrooms on bottom half and replace top half. Serve immediately. Serves 6 to 8.

Note: Take care not to slam oven door while baking puff pastry. It is very delicate. Also, you may choose fancy mushrooms like shiitake, crimini, oyster and chanterelle, or use regular fresh mushrooms.

SNAIL BUTTER

(Garlic Butter)

2 cups chablis (don't use expensive wine, as only flavor is desired)

1 1/2 bay leaves

6 black peppercorns

Pinch of dried thyme leaves

Pinch of ground nutmeg

Combine the above ingredients in a stainless steel sauce pan; boil on high heat until it is reduced in half.

2 sticks unsalted butter (1/2 pound)

2 ounces garlic cloves (about 7-8 cloves)

1 ounce shallots

1 tablespoon granulated sugar

1/2 tablespoon kosher salt

1/2 cup clam juice

2 to 2 1/2 tablespoons corn starch

Peel garlic cloves and shallots; place in food processor. Chop finely. Add to butter and softly saute until garlic and shallots are transparent and soft, but not brown.

Strain reduced wine into butter. Add sugar and salt. Cook until sugar and salt have dissolved. Mix cornstarch into clam juice. Stir into above mixture with a whisk and cook until thickened, stirring every now and then.

Remove from heat. Let cool. Then add fresh chopped parsley.

Serve with escargot or use as a garlic sauce for other foods. Keep refrigerated.

BULGAR PILAF

1 cup cracked wheat

1/3 cup broken linguine, spaghetti or other pasta

2 cups chicken stock

4 tablespoons (1/2 of 1 stick) unsalted butter

Melt butter in skillet or sauce pan. When butter is melted and hot, but not brown, stir in cracked wheat and broken pasta. Stir quickly to coat all surfaces and until grains and pasta are golden brown.

Add 2 cups chicken stock. Cover; bring to a boil. Stir after stock boils. Reduce heat and cook covered for 15 to 20 minutes. Stir and set aside for grains and pasta to absorb any remaining moisture.

Season to taste with salt and pepper and fresh herbs or pine nuts, if desired. Serves 4 to 6.

Friend to Friend

Not enough time

Dear Friend to Friend:

I just started going out with this new guy. It's going great so far, but since I have so many different things to do, I only have a certain amount of time to socialize.

The problem is the time that I used to spend with my friends I am now spending with my boyfriend. I don't have enough time to spend with both groups, and it seems like my old friends are drifting away.

How can I make time for both groups and not make the guy think I'm brushing him off?

IN LOVE BUT LONELY

Dear In Love:

In our busy world it is often tough to keep in touch with friends. Then it gets complicated with being "in love" and even "in like." You want to be with him, but at the same time you miss your other friends.

Part of the problem, we think, is that new relationships demand more time. Even the closest relationships, however, tend to level off and require less time. This may not be happening yet, because your relationship with your boyfriend is rather new.

Therefore, the only thing you can do is schedule your time differently. Friendships are important, even when you're in love.

One idea we have to deal with this time-management problem is to throw a party or get-together at your house so you can be with your boyfriend and other friends at the same time. Double-dating is another way of seeing your boyfriend and a girlfriend on the same evening.

Don't neglect your old friends. Chances are they will still be there between this love and the next.

Dear Friend to Friend:

Lately I've been spending a lot of time alone. I've been thinking about what I want in life and who I am. My friends, who have always been important to me, do not seem important right now.

I feel as if I'm too attached to them, and now I want to make new friends. That means trying not to spend too much time with my best friends. I have been so close to them for so long that we all think we can run each other's lives.

Do you know the saying, "You're too much alike. That's why you don't get along"? Well, that's our group! We all talk about each other. We have no secrets and we always fight.

It's cool in some ways, but lately I can't stop feeling negatively about most of my friends. I don't really want to stop hanging around with them, but I feel hurt a lot by them.

We don't seem to respect each other, and it seems as if we can't be our own people because we are too open and close to each other. Sometimes I feel taken for granted, and sometimes I feel that everyone is very selfish.

I want a friend who will always be there for me, never lie to me and who cares for me. That's what I want to give to my friends, and right now I can't seem to find anyone who doesn't let me down in one way or another.

Am I wrong? Should I seek new friends to be with? Does this happen to everyone? Please give me some advice. Thanks.

WITHOUT A REAL FRIEND

Dear Without a Real Friend:

Perhaps the one thing we disagree with is your calling yourself "Without a Real Friend." You are your own best friend, especially when examining yourself and your friendships.

It is certainly normal during adolescence to question what you want in life and who you are. These periods of reflection often lead to greater understanding of who you are and where you're going with your life.

Feeling isolated and alone is not unusual for teenagers, either. As you grow, though, you will often look at your friends and decide a change is in order. In your situation, it sounds like a good time to decide if you have any "real" friends and make whatever changes are needed.

It is very likely true that the friendships in your group have become stale and everyone is taking everyone else for granted. One thing you can try as you strive for changes is to talk with those in your group on a one-on-one basis and see if others aren't feeling some of the same things you are.

You may decide to drop some of the friends or try to initiate changes in the kinds of activities the group is involved in together.

We think it is healthy for you to try to expand your horizons. Keep in mind that you and the others are comfortable in the group, even if things are boring.

Changes are often scary. Perhaps as you continue to work on changes you will try new activities or meet new people. That may mean you will add to your friendships as much as dropping some older friends with whom you have less in common these days.

Students play politics to gain better insight

The "presidential candidates" were grilled by the students, and both sides had done their homework on current events.

Questions on taxes, capital punishment, abortion, pollution and selling weapons to foreign countries were bounced off the candidates by their classmates.

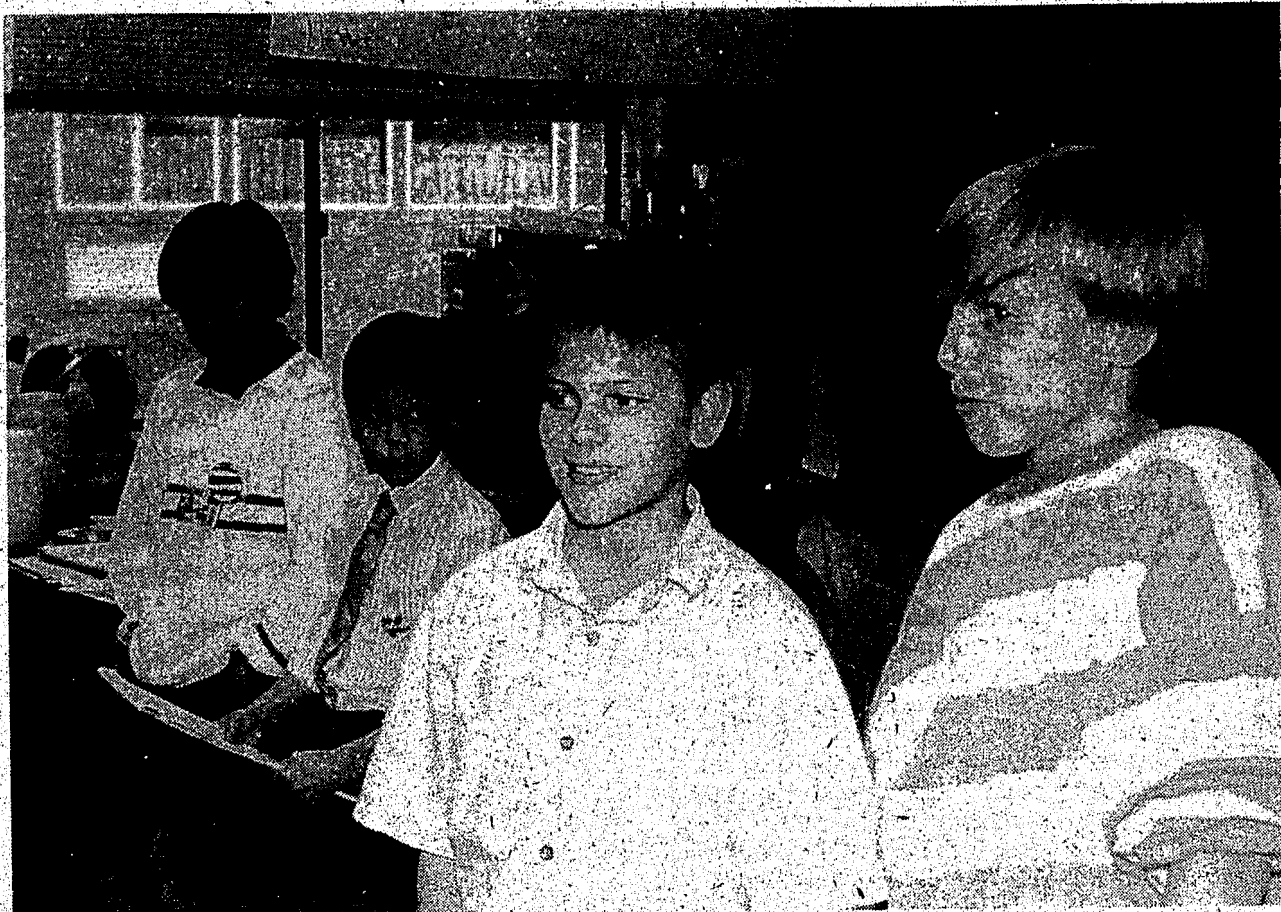

Pupils to portray the candidates were elected in "caucuses" held earlier. The mock debate was part of a social studies unit on elections, but was fueled by friendly rivalry among some of the students. Most who portrayed the candidates had eagerly volunteered for the opportunity.

The debate took place twice, once for each classroom.

From Dave Smith's class, Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis was portrayed by Mike Weverstad and his running mate, Lloyd Bentsen, was portrayed by Arthur Sese. Republican candidate George Bush was portrayed by Lee Darrow and his running mate, Dan Quayle, by Matt Slavin.

From Keith Conklin's class, Dukakis was portrayed by Mac Kern, Bentsen by Katie Kildal, Bush by Claire Kammer and Quayle by Chad Konzen.

Conklin, who teaches fifth grade social studies, was moderator for the debate.

Listener wins for whole class

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Fiestada and ravioli were the lucky lunch items for Laura Montney and her entire fifth-grade class at Pine Knob Elementary School.

Laura, 10, had been after her mother, Margret, for a long time to enter some radio contests, and finally her mother relented when Laura asked her to send in Pine Knob's lunch menu to 100.3 WNIC Radio.

If it was read on the air, Laura would win a book bag and school supplies, she told her mother, who works at the Clarkston Learning Center.

Laura was in school when the fiestada and ravioli lunches were announced in September for all of WNIC's listeners to hear, although Laura didn't hear it herself, she said.

Neither did her mother, although Margret's friends quickly informed her at the learning center, and Margret went to Pine Knob to tell Laura that same afternoon.

"I was surprised," said Laura. "I was right in the lunch line, too. The rest of the week I was hyper."

She was even more surprised when Friday rolled around, and again her mother showed up to tell her that Laura's name had been drawn from all of the menus read at WNIC that week, and that all of Laura's classmates in Rosemary Krause's room would receive book bags and school supplies and free passes to a movie.

"They went totally hyper, and it was the day of the Halloween party, too," said Laura, smiling at the memory.

"It was kind of a nice day. Everybody was saying thank you. My favorite word that day was, 'You're welcome.' One of the kids in my class, her name's Jamie VanNatta, she gave me a great big hug."

The teacher managed to cope with it all, although Laura admits the excitement may have been too much.

"The first words out of her mouth were, 'I've never seen so many spills,'" said Laura, explaining that some of the party beverages ended up on the floor or on papers instead of in the students' mouths.

"At least no (book) bags got spilled on," she said.

Among the supplies in the bags presented last week were mechanical pencils and pens, comb and brush or toothbrush and toothpaste, folders, compasses, protractors and rulers.

Laura, who received double the goods, generously gave two folders, two pencils and three pens to her brother, Benjamin, 12, a seventh-grader at Sashabaw Junior High School.

She noted something peculiar about one item in her book bag, a Pippi Longstocking ruler.

"I was Pippi Longstocking for Halloween," she said. "It was quite a coincidence."

LAURA MONTNEY, winner of a WNIC Radio lunch menu contest, resides on Felix Drive, Independence Township, with her parents, Donald and Margret, and brother, Benjamin.

What's Cooking

Yummy yams

Pat Young

With Thanksgiving just around the corner, I couldn't resist pulling out one of my favorite holiday recipes.

Kahlua, or any coffee liqueur, gives a special flavor to this traditional holiday dish. It's sure to earn raves from holiday guests.

KAHLUA CANDIED YAMS

4 medium-size yams,
Or 1 can (1 pound 3 ounces) yams
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/3 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup Kahlua or any coffee liqueur

In large saucepan, boil yams until tender but still firm. Remove from pan and let cool slightly. Peel, then cut into serving size pieces.

In heavy skillet, melt butter with sugar. Add Kahlua and cook one minute. Add yams; turn until brown on all sides.

Cover and reduce heat. Cook for about 15 minutes. Turn yams once more before serving.
Serves 4 to 6 people. ***

Oops! For any reader out there making roasted pumpkin seeds, there was an error in the What's Cooking recipe on Oct. 26. It should have said bake in a 300-degree oven until dry (not a 30-degree oven!).

ARTIST AT WORK: Gary Lewis, 23, attracted attention Nov. 1 when he painted a design on his Main Street apartment window above Coach's Corner. The letters, "NPG," with an arrow and a heart-shaped "YES" were painted in fluorescent orange. When asked about it, Lewis answered, "I'm still goofy. I went to the Prince concert last night. It's the theme from one of his albums." NPG stands for New Power Generation, and the symbol was the logo from the Prince album, said Lewis, a recent Oakland University, Rochester, graduate, who majored in communications with minors in journalism, advertising and theater.

School kids raise cash for Unicef

Pupils at Cedar Crest Academy in Springfield Township spent part of their Halloween helping other children.

The students collected $428 for Unicef, the United Nations children's fund, which helps children in third world nations enjoy the basic necessities of life.

This is the second year the students have collected for Unicef, according to Dolores Imbrunone, administrative director for the private school. Last year they collected just over $200. This year they doubled that amount, with the largest collection coming from the third and seventh grades.

"The students are already taking up the challenge to double their efforts again next year," Imbrunone says.

Through Unicef, 25 cents feeds one child for one day in an emergency, 50 cents saves five children from life-threatening dehydration, $1 buys vitamin A for 30 children to prevent blindness and $5 immunizes a child against six childhood diseases.

"Learning these facts led the students to raise money for Unicef," Imbrunone says. The theme is "Children Helping Children."

Third-graders organized a bake sale, with students from all grades helping with the effort. Also, all pupils collected money in their orange Unicef boxes on Halloween in conjunction with trick or treating.

"The students were really enthusiastic to support this project and help children less fortunate than themselves," Imbrunone says.

Birthdays are celebrated Guatemalan style in the Beckman household -- all gifts are opened the morning of the festive occasion.

Thanks to the rigid tradition, a birthday surprise was pulled off without a hitch.

Much to Wendy Cumming's dismay, the automobile she personally picked out three weeks ago was not waiting for her in the driveway when she woke up Nov. 3, her 16th birthday.

Her parents, Tom and Lilian Beckman, knew their surprise plan was working to perfection when their daughter took the time to survey the driveway before opening her other gifts.

"Since she was 14 all she ever has said was that she wanted a car for her 16th birthday," her father said. "I knew when she came back in the house, she was disappointed."

Not to worry, her day in the spotlight was just beginning. The best was yet to come.

First, she knew she'd get her driver's license that afternoon. Her parents told her to meet them outside of Clarkston High right after school and they would take her to the Secretary of State office to complete the necessary paperwork.

What she didn't know, however, was that her dream car would be waiting in the parking lot along with her parents.

The black 1984 Subaru was wrapped with a band of yellow paper with a computer-generated message reading, "Happy 16th Birthday, you spoiled brat!"

Several students beat Wendy to the car and did double-takes while passing by, wondering who it belonged to. Unfortunately, the birthday girl didn't see the present at first and had to be directed by her father.

Needless to say, she was shocked when told the car was really hers.

"Oh, my God!," she said while slowly peeling the paper birthday greeting off her first car. "I can't believe you guys did this."

But the gift didn't come without strings attached. Wendy will be responsible for gas and insurance costs, her father said.

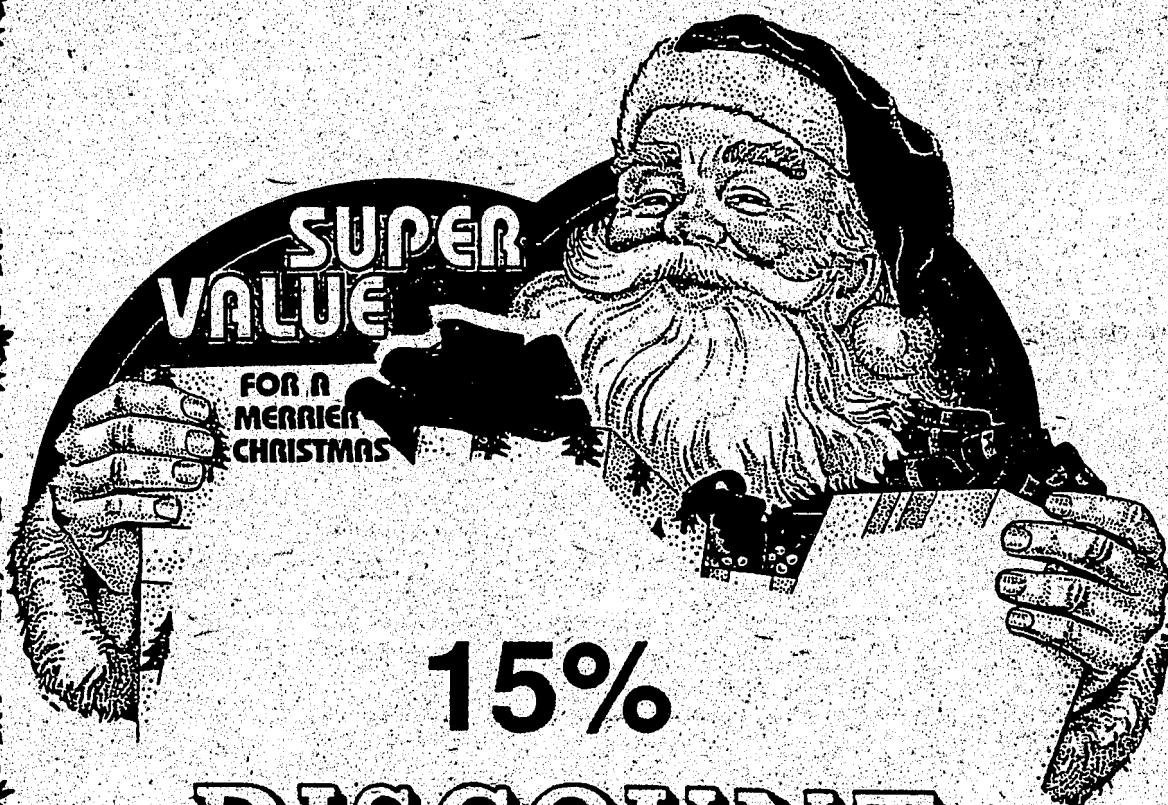

The family originally went car shopping three weeks ago and Wendy found the Subaru. Along with the help of a cooperative salesman, her parents made up a convincing story, telling the Clarkston High junior the car was out of the question.

Her father returned to the lot later and bought the car. He then hid it at his brother's house in Oxford to keep it a surprise.

The rest, as they say, is history.

WENDY CUMMINGS smiles after discovering her 16th birthday present waiting for her in the parking lot of Clarkston High School -- a 1984 black Subaru.
