Hearing nears for Clarkston cityhood

Clarkston's bid for cityhood will be up for discussion next week during a public hearing by the State Boundary Commission.

The meeting is planned Tuesday, Nov. 22, at 1:30 p.m. in Village Hall, 375 Depot. The entire five-member Boundary Commission will listen to a presentation by all concerned parties as well as any comments from the general public before deciding whether or not it would be feasible for the cityhood process to continue.

Police seek suspect in nursing home thefts

A former nursing home employee is wanted in connection with thefts from the patients at the Clintonville Road, Independence Township, center.

A warrant was issued this week for the arrest of Shana Marie Duncan, 18, of Pontiac, said Detective (See WARRANT, next page)

"They have a host of criteria to look at," said William Basinger, Clarkston Village Council trustee. "If it is reasonable, then they will give their approval."

A decision from the boundary commission could take up to six months, said village President Sharron Catallo.

At that point, if cityhood is approved and 20 or more registered voters ask for a vote on the issue, an election will be scheduled.

Should the vote be in favor of cityhood, a charter commission made up of village residents must be elected to write a city charter. If the charter was defeated by a vote of the residents, the commission would have one more opportunity to write a charter acceptable to the voters within a two-year time limit.

"That takes a lot of time," said Village Manager Artemus Pappas. "We are not going to become a city overnight. The charter commission takes a long time (to draft a suitable charter)."

Once the charter is passed, the residents elect people to run the government and cityhood is final.

911 makes quiet debut

BY JULIE CAMPE

In its first official day, the new 9-1-1 emergency number didn't get a lot of use, according to emergency dispatch personnel.

No calls entered the Independence Township Fire Department through the 9-1-1 system, said Fire Chief Gar Wilson, who said he was looking forward to trying the new technology.

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSO) only received one or two calls through the system, and they weren't urgent, said Sheila Bowman, supervisor of the afternoon shift at OCSO, who said she talked to the day shift about the system.

"It was a slow day," she said. "There were no problems. They went fine. I think it will be good. Within time, it will work great."

The emergency system was adopted by all of Oakland County, starting Nov. 14, said William Craig, Clarkston resident and senior account executive for Michigan Bell Communications, Southfield.

The enhanced 9-1-1 system gives a speed dial directly to the police, fire or EMT (emergency medical technicians) district that's responsible for the area from which the phone call is made, said Craig.

Within two seconds of the call, the address and phone number of the phone caller is flashed on a computer screen -- which should especially benefit children, the elderly, hearing impaired and non-English speaking people, he said.

The computer screen will also show whether the phone call was made from a residence, business or pay phone. With the new system, prank calls should quickly become a nuisance of the past, Craig said.

Michigan Bell updates its information daily, so by the time paperwork is finished, only two or three days will pass before updates in the case of a move or change in

Election surprise

Since only five candidates were running for the six-member, non-partisan volunteer library board in Springfield Township, it seemed likely that a write-in candidate would earn the sixth seat.

What wasn't likely was that this sixth person would be unaware that she had won the position two days after the election. Even more unlikely was the fact that she has never been to the Springfield Township Library.

But Mary Kilcline, who won the seat on the board with four write-in votes, was delighted to hear she won. She learned of the "victory" when a reporter from The Clarkston News called to check the spelling of her name.

Kilcline said that she knew her neighbor had written her name in. She added that she is interested in libraries and reads a lot.

There were two other write-in candidates for the library board, each with three votes, Sue Parker and Carole Meyers.

Local, county, state voters agree on proposals

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Voters in Independence and Springfield townships followed the voting trend to defeat the Oakland County $25 vehicle fee and adopt four state proposals in the Nov. 8 election.

By a four-to-one margin, Oakland County voters turned down a $25-per-vehicle fee proposal for road improvements, with 82,710 voting yes and 327,765 voting no. The proposal lost by even larger margins in Independence and Springfield townships, 1,537 to 8,654 in Independence, and 420 to 2,839 in Springfield.

If the proposal had been approved, residents would have paid $25 for each renewal of a registration on cars, trucks and motorcycles. The money would have been returned to their communities for road work.

Oakland County Road Commission officials said after the election that voters were sending a message to Lansing. This was not the way taxpayers wanted to pay for roads.

Citizens in Independence Township approved Proposal A with 6,070 yes votes and 4,482 no votes. In Springfield, the totals were 2,024 to 1,429. Oakland County totals were yes, 216,845 and no, 209,766. State totals were 1,853,313 and 1,378,044.

Proposal A asked whether or not tax money should be used to fund abortions for poor women. The approval of this proposal means that Medicaid (health coverage for the poor funded by tax dollars) will stop paying for abortions unless the woman's life is in danger.

On Proposal B, regarding crime victim's rights, Independence residents voted 8,407 yes and 1,815 no. Springfield voters said yes, 2,763, and no, 608. County totals were 344,581 and 70,259. State totals were 2,479,129 and 618,647.

With approval of this proposal, the state constitution will be changed to include specific rights for victims of crimes, including permission for courts to require convicted criminals to pay for the victim's court costs.

The vote totals on Proposal C, regarding environmental programs, were: Independence, 7,775 yes, 2,462 no; Springfield, 2,431 yes, 1,147 no; Oakland County, 330,980 yes, 84,346 no; and state, 2,338,324 yes, 732,771 no.

Approval of Proposal C means that the state is authorized to borrow up to $660 million dollars to finance environmental protection programs to clean up sites of toxic and other environmental contamination and to preserve land.

Proposal D voting was: Independence, 5,897 yes, 4,155 no; Springfield, 1,899 yes, 1,443 no; Oakland County, 265,561 yes, 144,554 no; and state, 1,930,689 yes, 1,126,478 no.

Approval of Proposal D authorizes the state to borrow up to $140 million dollars for state and local recreation projects at existing parks.

All election results are unofficial until certified by the Board of Canvassers.

Bills will go up

information at a particular address, he said.

While the cost of the computer hardware itself will not be borne by phone users, a charge of about 20 or 25 cents will appear on each monthly phone bill to pay for maintaining the network and updating the data base, said Craig.

The 9-1-1 emergency system is spreading nationwide, and Michigan is no different, he said. Next year, Wayne, Livingston and Genesee counties should be connected to the system, and Macomb County is to be hooked up in 1990.

With widespread use, emergency calls will be made more easily by visitors or for addresses bordering more than one municipality.

Warrant issued

Steven Parker of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

In the few weeks she worked at the Grovecrest Nursing Home, Duncan is suspected of stealing two diamond rings worth over $3,000, a $75 Sony Walkman, $40 Reebok walking shoes, $60 AT&T telephone with large numbers and letters, and a $1,400 diamond ring.

After the police investigation, Duncan's employer reviewed her job application and found the information to be false, and she was fired, according to the police report.

The warrant contains charges of two counts of committing a felony, each carrying a maximum 10-year sentence, said Parker, adding that anyone with additional information should call 858-4950.

2 men charged with residential robberies

The arrests of two men caught breaking into a White Lake Township residence also cleared up some break-ins in Springfield Township, said Detective Sgt. Anthony Velat.

"We haven't had a problem since they were arrested," said Velat.

John Wayne Troxel, 21, of Highland and Mark Wayne Lamb, 18, of White Lake Township were arraigned before Judge Gerald McNally in 52nd District Court and bound over to Oakland County Circuit Court on two counts each of breaking and entering (B&E) in Springfield Township and one attempted B&E in White Lake Township.

If convicted, each count of B&E carries a 15-year maximum sentence, said Velat.

4 new members for Springfield board

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When the Springfield Township board meets in December, four of the seven members will be new -- the treasurer and three trustees.

While incumbent Republican Supervisor Collin Walls and Clerk J. Calvin Walters, ran unopposed in the Nov. 8 election, gathering 2,505 and 2,460 votes respectively, the treasurer, Patricia Kramer, did not seek re-election.

The treasurer's spot was won by Republican Lois Stiles in a close race with Democrat Joe Gorka. She received 1,718 votes to his 1,705.

In the trustees' race, incumbent Charles Oaks (R) was re-elected with 2,221 votes, while Democrat Glen Vermilye, on the board since 1974, lost a bid for re-election with 1,266 votes.

Three new trustees, all Republicans, were elected to the board: Nancy Strole, 2,446; Margaret Bloom, 2,171; Dennis Vallad, 2,101.

Six Republicans ran unopposed for the Springfield Township Park Commission: Robert Clark, 2,255; Helen Vergin, 2,176; Betty Hull, 2,161; Roger Bower, 2,137; William Leddy, 2,111; and Tim Holmes, 2,084.

Five candidates ran unopposed for the non-partisan Library Board: Mary Watson, 1,897; Kristine Bower, 1,874; Ruth Gruber, 1,866; James Banes, 1,745; and H. Aldene Nihill, 1,629.

There were three write-in candidates for the sixth library board position: Sue Parker with 3 votes; Carole Mayers, 3; and Mary Kilcline, 4. As the write-in candidate with the most votes, Kilcline won the library board spot.

Walls, who received the most votes in the township, said working with such a new board would be a "new experience." Never in his 12 years as supervisor has he worked with so many new board members at once.

Stiles, elated with her victory, said she was surprised that the treasurer's race was that close. Before absentee ballots were counted, the count was 1,508 to 1,353, and she expected the absentee ballots to follow the same pattern as the precincts.

"I appreciate the support of the township," she said, adding that she ran a "low-budget" campaign, hand painting signs in her garage. "I feel I'm qualified and will be a good treasurer."

"I would expect Joe to ask for a recount," Stiles added. "But I feel the election board did a good job, and I wouldn't expect any errors."

Both Stiles and Gorka serve in township government. Stiles was deputy treasurer and Gorka is chairman of the Planning Commission.

Gorka confirmed that he is asking for a recount. "We just thought it would be prudent," he said, considering the 13-vote margin.

He added, "We feel pretty positive about what we were able to accomplish. We had the support of a lot of good people in the community. Everyone's reaction was, 'Oh, if we just did a little more.'"

"I'm telling people to be proud of what they did," Gorka said. "It was strong support, with a lot of crossover votes."

Strole, the top vote-getter among the trustee candidates, said she is grateful to residents of the township for their support. She received the most votes in all four precincts and the absentee ballots.

"I enjoyed the opportunity to meet so many people, and I noticed a consistency of support throughout the township," Strole said. "I consider this evidence that I share the concerns of residents all over the township."

Some of the concerns, she said, are seeing how the township as a government handles developmental pressures, and being strong and interested and cautious with respect to controversial government programs.

Oaks said he felt good about being re-elected.

"The biggest challenge will be four new board members to work with," he said. "And to see how everyone else (on the board) thinks."

Bloom, a secretary in the township offices, said she is "elated" about her victory. Due to conflict of interest by working in the office now that she is an elected trustee, she has already found a new secretarial job.

"I really appreciate the support of the residents," she said. "I'll do the best job I can as a trustee. I'm honored."

Vallad said he, too, was happy with the victory.

"I'm looking forward to working with the other board members to help the township," he said. "I have a strong desire to preserve the township's character and natural resources."

Vermilye said he had "mixed emotions" about his loss in the election.

"You know, I served 15 years on the planning commission, some of that before becoming a trustee 14 years ago," he said. "When you put the two together, that's 30 years, and maybe that's enough."

He said he actually considered bowing out this time, "just fading away like old soldiers do," but filled out a petition and ran anyway.

"I guess I'm more disappointed to see the millages lose, because they need the money," he said, referring to the library and the parks and recreation department, which both lost one-half mill requests for operational money.

All election results are unofficial until certified by the Board of Canvassers.

Armed man tries to hold up pizzeria

A gun-wielding masked man attempted to rob a Clarkston Road, Independence Township, pizza shop around 11:35 p.m. Nov. 12 but did not succeed.

Shortly before midnight Saturday, an off-duty employee and her boyfriend visited co-workers at the Pizza Peddler restaurant next to Hop-In, according to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

The off-duty employee went outside with a new employee to show him where to dump grease, and a man jumped out from behind the grease trap. He was wearing a beige or gray ski mask and carrying a gun. He yelled at them to go into the store and said, "Get the money."

He pointed the gun at the off-duty employee's head and kept her at the back of the store while the others went to get the money, according to the police report.

The girl's boyfriend attempted to return to the back of the store, but the robber yelled at him to go back up front. The manager also attempted to go to the back room, but the robber shoved the girl at him and then ran out the back of the store.

The suspect was described as about 5-foot-8, 200 pounds, with a heavy build. His blue eyes were bloodshot and many wrinkles surrounded them. He walked with a raised step, according to the witnesses.

He was wearing blue jeans, hiking boots and a blue hood. He drove a Sunbird, Cavalier or Celebrity.

The attempt is under investigation, said OCSO Detective Sgt. Douglas Hummel.

Anyone with information should call the sheriff's department at 858-4950.

Rejected tax requests will rise again

Springfield Township voters turned down two millage requests in the Nov. 8 election.

The Springfield Township Library lost a bid for a permanent one-half mill for operating purposes by a vote of 1,406 to 1,805.

The parks and recreation department lost a bid for a five-year, one-half mill for operation, maintenance and development of parks and recreation facilities by a vote of 1,440 to 1,877.

"We'll regroup our forces and get another millage question on the ballot in two years," said Sherry Swindell, director of parks and recreation.

She said the parks and recreation board had calculated the 1989 budget and figured they would be able to get through the next year without too many cuts.

"I really thought (the millage) would pass," Swindell said. "I guess people think their taxes are too high already. I don't know."

The Friends of the Park Committee will try to get new members, she added, and help out with fund-raisers to finance parks and recreation programs.

Library Director Cathy Phillips said she expected their millage to pass, too.

"We're sorry it didn't, and actually, we don't understand why when the average cost to a homeowner was only about $20," Phillips said. "We'll just have to go back to the people again in the future."

In the meantime, she said, "We'll just have to do the best we can with what we have."

They won't be expanding materials, she said, but rather maintain the status quo.

She also said they might explore some foundations or grants, but that takes time. They would also put the word out that the library happily accepts donations.

"One person recently gave us a large donation to buy materials that he uses," she said.

"I'm happy for Independence Township that their (library) bond issue passed," Phillips added. "At least not everyone lost."

Independence voters created some happiness

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

James Hibler was all smiles Nov. 9 just one day after voters approved a $2 million bond issue for a library addition.

"Everyone feels just great about it," said Hibler, director of the Independence Township Library. "Everybody around here is smiling today. The staff is smiling. The patrons are smiling."

Already, Hibler was busy on the next steps in the bond process. He and other township officials plan to gather information about what features to include in the 15,000-square-foot addition, choose an architect and let bids, he said.

"It's an involved process. It's going to take some time. I hope people will be patient with us," he said, adding that residents should jot down some suggestions for the new addition and leave them at the library.

The Love My Library committee deserved credit for getting the information out to the voters, said Hibler, noting that they worked long hours on the cause.

The library bond issue received 5,866 yes votes and 4,126 no votes. After the cost of the addition is determined, the township board will set whatever millage rate necessary to raise up to $2 million to pay for the addition. The rate will probably be around one-half mill over 15 or 20 years. One mill is $1 for every $1,000 assessed property valuation.

Supervisor Frank Ronk also expressed pleasure over the passage of the library bond proposal. "I'm excited. I just think it's great," he said.

Although the 1.5 mill police millage renewal was approved with 6,459 yes votes and 3,281 no votes, Ronk was still puzzled by the outcome, he said.

"I don't understand how 3,000 people could vote against police services," he said.

He was also disappointed that the one-half mill request for improvements to Baycourt Park on Greens Lake was defeated with 6,801 no votes and 2,684 yes votes.

The improvements, such as a parking lot and structural repairs, will now take years, he said, noting that the park could have been used much sooner if the millage had been approved.

Sheryl Stickley-Schreefel, acting parks and recreation director, was also disappointed with the park improvement millage defeat.

"I didn't feel very good about that," she said. "We didn't really have enough time to get the word out to the people. ... The people who have been out there have been supportive of the plan."

The park will be open for cross country skiing and ice fishing this winter, she said, adding that residents will be able to get to know the park and maybe will favor a millage request the next time around.

"It's not going to be a palace, but we'll get the fireplaces roaring," she said. "It was too soon this time. If you don't understand, you're going to vote no."

Since township board members -- all Republicans -- were running unopposed in the election, the local issues were the only opportunity for excitement at the township level, said Ronk.

"We're either doing a good job or nobody wants the dirty job," he said.

Satellite cooking program grows

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

While satellite food programs are not new to the Clarkston school district, the latest satellite program was initiated only this fall at Pine Knob Elementary School.

Clarkston Supervisor of Food Services Mary Claya and Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara reported on the satellite food program at the November school board meeting.

The report was informational, and the board will consider a proposal for expanding the satellite food program at a later meeting, said Superintendent Gary Haner.

"The satellite food program has actually been in Clarkston 34 years," Claya said after the meeting. It began with food brought in to Clarkston Elementary, which has never had a kitchen, from what was then Clarkston High School (now a junior high).

About 15 years ago, the program grew to include lunches brought to North Sashabaw Elementary and what was then South Sashabaw Elementary from a satellite kitchen in Sashabaw Junior High.

This fall, Pine Knob Elementary also began the satellite food program after the cook at Pine Knob retired. Limited satellite food service is also provided to the Clarkston Learning Center, Claya said.

Clarkston Elementary food is prepared at Clarkston Junior High. Sashabaw Junior High provides the rest.

Depending on buildings and if space becomes available to add a satellite kitchen, the food programs at Bailey Lake and Andersonville elementary schools could also be added to the satellite program. Currently, these are the only two elementary schools with self-contained kitchens.

"We have found we can use the satellite food program more efficiently," Claya said. According to studies, the system is more cost effective than individual kitchens.

"Rising costs in the (food) programs dictate that we make changes to break even," she added. Schools would still need some kitchen facility to serve from, but the cost of a satellite kitchen is less, even adding in the cost of transporting the lunches, she said.

The satellite food program works this way. Elementary schools take a student count in the morning and phone in an order to the satellite kitchen. Three entrees are offered, two hot and one cold.

The satellite kitchen prepares the lunches and ships them in thermal containers by van to the school, usually less than an hour before serving time. If the food is shipped hot, it is left in the thermal container, kept at constant temperature with the use of a temperature probe.

If it is shipped cold or frozen, it goes directly to cooler or walk-in until serving time.

The goal, Claya said, is to ship the food frozen and cook it on site when possible. "It makes a better product."

The one drawback, she said, is that there is the possibility of running out of food, which has happened on occasion. But this can be quickly remedied when the situation arises.

It happened once this fall at Pine Knob Elementary, but Pine Knob Principal George White complimented the satellite food program, saying it has worked well so far at his school.

Cart caper

Kathy Greenfield

Starting about Halloween time, there was this traveling grocery cart in our neighborhood. It never occurred to anyone that a spirit moved it, or anything like that, but we all agreed that it was ugly.

As these things tend to happen, the cart wound up alongside the driveway of someone who would take care of it. No problem. The cart's store of origin was stamped on its handle.

My neighbor decided to call the store, tell them a cart had been found and let them come pick it up. Each one costs somewhere in the hundreds, she thought, so she figured they'd be thrilled at the prospect of its return.

Several phone calls followed, plus an attempt to stuff the wayward cart in her mini-van and drive it home. Alas, the cart wouldn't fit.

Then, in the dark of the night, my responsible and by now thoroughly frustrated neighbor did the only thing she could think of to get the cart out her yard.

She rolled it down Main Street and parked it near Township Hall. Surely, with the sheriff's department substation there, and all, someone would make sure the cart got back to its original place of residence. She thought.

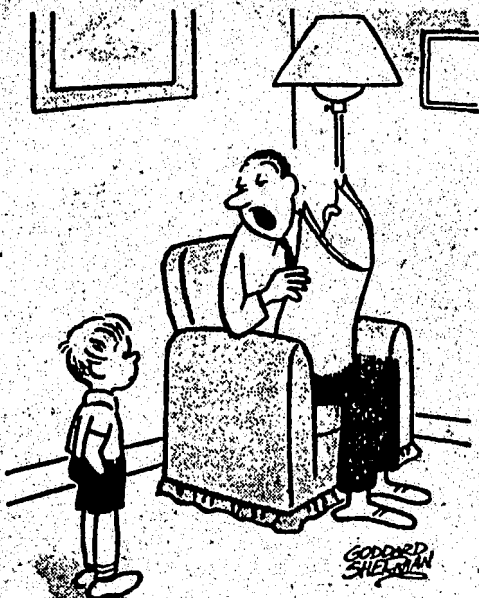

Several days later, the bit of neighborhood blight still sat there.

MORAL: Beware of large carts with small wheels. They just keep rolling along.

Frequently, I purchase raffle tickets when I consider the cause to be worthwhile. I never, ever win anything.

No one, therefore, was more shocked than I was when I won an absolutely wonderful stained glass angel from the raffle at the Church of Resurrection's bazaar last weekend.

It was fun, and I honestly considered testing my luck by buying some lottery tickets. I didn't succumb, however. The state just isn't at the top of my good cause list.

Guns kill

Jim Fitzgerald

Aha! Last month a man shot and killed two Detroit cops before he was shot and killed by police. Various government agencies, as well as his family and neighbors, knew this man had been diagnosed as mentally ill years earlier. Soon after the shootings, a mailing from the Anti-Handgun Association (Aha!) said:

"One question leaps out at us: To our knowledge, no city official or member of the media has publicly asked it. HOW WAS IT POSSIBLE FOR SUCH A MENTALLY ILL PERSON TO HAVE A GUN?"

As one member of the media, my answer is: If the city stopped mentally ill people from owning guns, they wouldn't be able to defend themselves against mentally well people, who do much more shooting and killing than mentally ill people do.

It wouldn't be news

Newspaper stories say: "A mentally ill man shot and killed two police officers Tuesday." You'll never read: "A mentally well man shot and killed two police officers Tuesday." That wouldn't be news. Everyone knows most shootings are done by mentally well people who simply have the bad luck of temporarily losing their tempers while pointing their hand-grafted guns at someone's head.

Beside, if mentally ill people were forbidden to own guns in Detroit, they would only move to Grosse Pointe and own guns there. That might cause a dinky drop in gunshot deaths in Detroit, but we must ask ourselves if it's really fair to force mentally ill people to wear green and pink clothing.

The Aha! mailing pointed out that when a Detroitier applies for a gun permit, police can't obtain mental health records to check on his or her stability. Also, registered owners of guns can sell them to anybody without a police check; if your gun is stolen, you don't have to notify police, and you're never required to re-register your gun. Council downs freeze

So what can be done to keep guns out of the hands of mentally ill people, not to mention mentally well people? Enlightened legislation from the Detroit City Council? Forget it.

Last Wednesday, the council voted, 5-3, against a measure that would freeze the sale of handguns in Detroit and require licensed handgun owners to take safety classes and re-register their weapons every three years.

Councilman Nicholas Hood explained his opposition vote: "As long as guns are available across Eight Mile Road . . . I just don't see that this is effective."

Of course. If Detroit citizens are forced to go to another city to buy guns, some of them will stay there. That will be economically disastrous. Unarmed crack houses will fold, causing our tax base to deteriorate. The gun-seeking expatriates will shoot people in Ohio, instead of here, causing a drastic drop in our sales of bulletproof cocoons to convenience stores.

Worst of all, the shortage of stray bullets will cause our children to live so long they'll have to pay adult prices at the movies.

Take the pledge

I'm not always this sarcastic. In June, I wrote: "I'll continue to support a ban on handgun sales and private ownership in Detroit and everywhere else. I'd be proud if Detroit were the first big city to enact such a law. And maybe other cities will follow the example. Progress toward becoming a civilized society must start somewhere, and it isn't going to start at the same time in 50 states."

Every Monday at noon, the Anti-Handgun Association holds a vigil in front of the Spirit of Detroit statue outside the City-County Building. On Nov. 21, there will be a special vigil at which participants, including many community leaders, will be asked to pledge: "I will not carry, keep or own a handgun."

Aha! That's a pledge that should be exported across Eight Mile Road for the benefit of good mental health everywhere, and for our children and grandchildren.

Jim's Jottings

Ah, it's time for the annual sleeps in the woods. Yes, plural. a.m. and p.m.: two days.

It's the culmination of 363 days of longing for two days of deer hunting. Planning gets started about Labor Day. It begins with, "Are you going up this year?", "What day are you leaving?" and doesn't end.

Somewhere around the middle of September our deer camp number climbed to 12: minimum. My son planned to be the first in camp, arriving about November 10. His envious peers started scratching and squinting, trying to figure a way to get more time off work and earlier permission from their Mrs.

You know, honey, there's wood to be cut, blinds to be built, swaths to be widened, probably snow to be shoveled and surely bull to be thrown.

I figured my buddy Pansy and I could get away (he could leave in June) November 11. You know, honey, there's food to be bought and meals to plan, water to be softened, (we use big hammers) toasts to prepare, buck poles to be cut, deer census taken, and rules of conduct to be spelled out for these young whippersnappers.

The Davidson trio, Greg, Jeff and Tim, would be in camp early enough to defend their straw and can monument construction championship at The Cove. Jeff has held the title two years and the locals have been practicing what they can remember of his technique since last November.

No trouble getting the Offer brothers, Tom and Bob, in camp early. You know, honey, we're the steady influence, without us those guys would be lost in the woods, leave in the morning without paper, have no one to do dishes, or bring in the firewood, or shovel the roof, or iron the curtains.

Now we jump to November 1. And, the real, "You know, honey", speaks up. Oh, did I promise to take you there Saturday night? I'll be picking Pansy up November 13 after a short night's sleep.

Oh, oh! I've got to work that weekend, said one. My wife's got to be out of town for two weeks, said another. My company's into the final stages of a buy-out, was another excuse, and Tom Offer tore his knee and wouldn't be able to get to the bathroom door, let alone find we who are lost in The Cove or woods, which ever happens. He won't even be there to play Da Yuppies tape, "The Second Week of Deer Camp."

The 12 is down to six for sure . . . maybe.

The planned sleep-in-the-woods is by no means certain, either. The day may not be sunny and cool. The pine bough I bend down to lay on may not be dry and inviting.

But, you know, honey, it doesn't matter. Six or sixteen in camp, rain or shine, sardines or sirloin, see deer or don't, a good time will be had by all who attend. This is deer season.

Letters to the Editor

Help out the poor

The Clarkston High School Student Council is sponsoring a canned good drive starting Nov. 14.

The food will be donated to the Senior Citizen Center and will provide 30 to 50 families with a Thanksgiving dinner. We are asking the readers of The Clarkston News to help.

During Nov. 14 to 22, there will be a box in the main office at CHS where the cans can be dropped off.

The food cans will be going to the needy, and we hope to see as big a turnout as possible.

Clarkston Student Council
Kristen Gilbert, Vice President

When it all began

Too bad that the 1,000 villagers consider themselves to need the privilege of having "a say in what affects their lives" if the whole township were to become a city.

The trouble started way back when Clarkstonites didn't want to spend to fix their own village septic field situation.

By having to bring those sewer mains across the township, we, in the township, had to fork over our money because poor little Clarkston wanted its own way out. Tit for tat! Nobody gets everything throughout the years their way (Clarkston's way).

Not everybody in this entire community associates with the village, either.

Out of 1,291 fire runs with the 80 responses to Clarkston, the ratio of assistance would greatly outweigh that to the township -- with 1,000 to 24,000 population. So who would be skewered?

I do not believe all the 1,000 villagers have the mentality of the "chosen ones," either -- only the few.

Bringing those sewers that year to benefit Clarkston, with no voted approval by township voters, will have boomeranged.

Iva Caverly

More on solicitors

A recent article appeared in The Clarkston News titled "Hang up on these calls for donations" (Nov. 9). It addressed the issue to solicitors representing themselves as the Independence Township Fire Department and asking for donations for safety products.

Although Julie Campe did a good job reporting our telephone conversation, I felt the article needed more clarification.

I have addressed this issue several times in the past, at the state level of our union and through the News.

What has happened in the last few years is that two new fire unions have formed. They have been canvassing the local fire departments for members and the communities for donations by selling safety products to establish their unions.

Thanks for efforts

The Love My Library Committee would like to take this opportunity to thank the many volunteers who have worked for the successful passage of the Library Bond Proposal on the Nov. 8 ballot.

Their hard work will enable the Independence Township Library to expand and provide our community with an excellent facility for years to come.

Family appreciation

We want to thank all of the relatives, friends and neighbors, and especially Coats Funeral Home and the Rev. Richard Hanna, for the cards, flowers and expressions of sympathy during the illness and loss of our loved one.

The Family of Pearl Frick

In the process they have been misleading people to believe that the money collected will benefit their local fire department, either by helping with fire prevention programs in the schools or by maintaining the fire department in one way or another.

We do not belong to, nor support these groups. What the taxpayers of Independence Township must understand is that the fire department has never, nor plans to, solicit donations for such programs.

All these functions, as well as operational expenses, are paid through the fire budget, which is collected through a millage.

It should also be understood that we have sponsored functions to collect money for organizations such as Muscular Dystrophy and the National Burn Institute for Burn Medicine. This usually occurs during the Labor Day weekend and is well known in this community.

In the past, we have had problems with a marketing group hired by the State Union to sell products for them. Due to problems with the group and through the combined efforts of several departments in the Tri-County area, we have convinced the State Union not to renew their contract in January 1989.

It would be confusing to you for me to try and list all the names that have been used or the name of the unions and associations that have called in this area.

So I just want to suggest that if you should be contacted by any organization representing the Independence Fire Department and asking for a donation, please obtain as much information as possible and call us immediately at 625-1924.

The last thing we want are any misunderstandings with the members of this community.

Robert Cesario, President
Independence Professional
Firefighters Association
IAFF Local 2629

New trustee writes

An open letter to Springfield residents:

I just want each of you to know how fortunate I feel to be a resident of Springfield Township and how much I appreciate the support shown for me as a trustee candidate for the Springfield Township Board.

My special thanks to all of those who have made these past few months such a rewarding and educational experience for me:

-Residents who believed in my candidacy and worked so hard and so selflessly on my behalf;

-Strangers, now friends, who so graciously invited me into their homes to share hospitality, concerns and ideas for Springfield;

-Residents who took time from their busy lives to complete and return my questionnaire on township issues and programs (I plan to compile and share the survey findings as soon as responses stop coming in);

-Those of you who went out of your way to offer me small words of encouragement -- words which meant more to me than you can imagine.

Collectively, all of you have confirmed what I already knew: that Springfield is composed of thoughtful, special people who care about each other and about the community.

I can't promise you the world. As a "wonder woman" I'm not! What I can promise is that I'll work hard on your behalf, that I'll continue to listen and to reach out and that I'll do my best not to let you down.

I would like to make one request of you, however. I ask that you continue to share with me your questions, your gripes, your concerns, your ideas. I want to hear them, because I believe they all have value.

Springfield faces mounting challenges. With your guidance and your help, however, I believe we can make Springfield the best that it can be -- what YOU want it to be. I look forward to working with you, and with fellow board members, to make that happen.

Nancy Strole, Trustee-Elect
Springfield Township

Rainy day people

Thank you so much for featuring our church as one of those having bazaars in your article last week.

It rained all day, but we had a super turnout. Lots of people, lots of food, lots of fun! Thanks again.

Village council is not hiding truth

In the last edition of The Clarkston News, the author of an anonymous letter opposing cityhood for the village, Steve Secatch, asserted that the information on cityhood provided to residents by the village council is "not the truth." In support of his claim, he listed "facts," which supposedly contradict those provided by the council.

It is unfortunate that while Mr. Secatch attended our public hearing on Oct. 24, he chose not to share his "facts" or views with those in attendance so that they might be openly discussed.

It is also unfortunate that his letter did not note that the council expressly stated it was still gathering and analyzing figures, had reached no formal conclusions, and intended to hold further public hearings as more figures became available.

Many of Mr. Secatch's facts only confuse the issues

The Roads We Travel

Private problems

Brent Bair

Developers who approach the township planning commission and zoning board of appeals with proposals to build large residential developments with extensive private roads find they do not receive a very warm reception.

Extensive private residential roads are not viewed very positively in our community. The reason is that too many locations have experienced a breakdown in the maintenance agreements, resulting in the adjacent property owners seeking ways to make the private roads public and get better maintenance.

Not all private roads have experienced this problem, but too many have.

In the past, it would appear that developers have gone with private roads in order to be able to build a cheaper road and thus offer houses at a lower price.

Unfortunately, this is another area where the phrase "pay me now or pay me later" applies. Eventually the people who bought those homes for less are now finding that they are having to dig deep to reconstruct the roads to meet their needs.

It appears that the residents of Thendara Park are currently experiencing this problem.

Even though there may be proposed binding agreements that all property owners will chip in for the cost of snow removal, grading and other maintenance, those agreements seem to break down over time.

This is not just a problem for Independence Township. A couple of months ago, the board of road commissioners received a request from Orion Township to accept as public roads no less than 11 road segments that have previously been private.

In some cases, the residents seek public status in order to have access to the special assessment program to pay for their streets.

Due to the number of such requests and the problems involved with some of the roads, the board is beginning to question whether it wants to accept any more of these type of roads.

Regardless of the road commission's growing making it a public road, either for maintenance or special assessment paving, contact the Street Improvement and Development Division of the Oakland County Road Commission, phone 645-2000.

Brent Bair is chairman of the Independence Township Planning Commission.

Local votes closely parallel county, state, U.S.

The same as most of Oakland County, voters in Independence and Springfield townships voted almost exclusively for candidates in the Republican Party, with the exception of selecting Democrat Bob Carr to serve another term as United States Representative in Congress.

Springfield voters also cast more ballots for Democrat Donald Riegle, who won another spot in the U.S. Senate. Independence, however, chose his opponent, Republican Jim Dunn, who lost to Riegle by nearly a 2-1 margin.

Following is a comparison of how local voting compared with the county, state and nation. Winners are printed in capital letters.

More Letters

since they deal with communities not analogous to Clarkston.

To give only one example, he notes the high tax rates in Rochester and Farmington, but the populations of these cities are 7,400 and 10,618 respectively, compared to Clarkston's 968.

Obviously, one has to look at a lot more than the tax rates to decide whether the experience of these much larger cities is applicable to Clarkston.

The village council, on the other hand, is attempting to gather relevant facts to review in depth and will fashion an actual budget to determine whether cityhood is feasible. This takes time, but we have some time since the council is committed to holding an election on cityhood and such election is still many months away.

While I support Mr. Secatch's right to circulate and argue his facts, I object to his assertion that the council wants to hid the truth and raise residents' taxes.

Council members are also village taxpayers who have a vested interest in assuring their own taxes remain reasonable. Moreover, we are essentially volunteers receiving only $600 a year for our efforts.

Cityhood will not benefit us with higher paying positions. In fact, current council members lose their positions if cityhood is approved and will have to run for office again if we choose to continue to serve.

Finally, I would not that Mr. Secatch urged residents to attend the Boundary Commission hearing on Nov. 22. I agree, since attending the hearing is important to an understanding of the cityhood process.

However, citizens should remember that Boundary Commission approval only allows the process to continue. It does not automatically make Clarkston a city.

Clarkston's residents will get the further chance to consider, analyze and vote on the question of cityhood and then, if cityhood is approved by the voters, a city charter.

Certainly, regardless of present disputes about facts or differing viewpoints, it is important that the Boundary Commission give its approval so that the process can continue.

Only then can all citizens of the village express their views at the ballot box, thus themselves determining the destiny of the village.

Trustee, Clarkston Village Council

Tribute to Scouts

I am writing this letter in recognition of Boy Scout Troop No. 44 and their parents who helped with the Haunted House held at the Mill Pond Park in Davisburg.

The Boy Scouts volunteered for their Community Service Project and worked many hours over what was required. Several boys and their parents worked over 30 hours from Oct. 26-30 to staff and help run the haunted house.

The Haunted House was sponsored by the Friends of Springfield Township Parks Committee that could not have held it without the help of the Boy Scouts and their parents.

With the help of the Boy Scouts, their parents, committee members and other volunteers, the project turned out to be a huge success. I would like to thank all who helped, who are listed below. I hope I have not missed anyone.

Parents -- Larry and Sally Blaszyk, Jim and Sharon Guersney, Jim Brown, Don and Terry Bell, Dennis and Janet Sundwall, John and Diane Krause and Cathy Utter.

Boy Scouts -- Steve Robinson; David Sundwall; Tim Lawson; Keith Ward; Brent Brown; Todd and Paul Birmingham; Tony, Jeremy and Jason Krause; Bobby and Brian Korsedal; Jim and Bradley Guersney; and Vince McGregor.

Assistant Scout Masters -- Robert Blaszyk and Lyle and Brent Caunt.

Friends of Springfield Township Parks Committee Volunteers -- Glenn Guilds, Tom Urbin, Roy Urbin, Tanya Lawson and friend, Karen Last, Robin Clark, Marlana Saucier, Helen Vergin, Margaret Bloom, David Bloom and Tim Holmes.

Other volunteers -- Doug Lewan, Francis Downs and friend Marion, Cody and Sheryl Vollick, Jim Fox, and Angie Clark and friend Kim.

The Friends of the Springfield Township Parks

Committee really appreciates the help and hard work the volunteers contributed.

Sherry Swindell, Chairman
Friends of Springfield Twp. Parks

Early deadlines for next week's News

Due to the Thanksgiving holiday, there are early deadlines for the Nov. 23 edition of The Clarkston News.

Council addresses cityhood questions

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

In an effort to separate rumor from fact, Clarkston Village Council members and a concerned resident debated village cityhood for an hour and a half Monday night.

Steve Secatch of M-15, Clarkston, circulated a two-page letter recently detailing how much it would cost village residents after cityhood when similar papers drafted by village council members were distributed at earlier meetings.

"That's basically why I came up with the letter," he told the village council. "The information (in the village council packet) was basically untrue."

In a letter to the editor last week, village President Sharron Catallo asked concerned residents to voice their opinions directly to the council Nov. 14 during its regular meeting in an effort to sort out the conflicting data from the two reports.

She attempted to ease village residents' fears of facing unbearably high taxes under cityhood to rest right off the bat.

Catallo promised village residents the council would hold the line on tax increases as much as possible in the future whether or not cityhood is approved.

"I think we have been very frugal," she said of the current administration. "We are not going to raise taxes. I wouldn't be able to go home. The man who pays the taxes wouldn't let me in."

Before taking any comments at the meeting, she said collecting all the facts for this complex issue is difficult for council members at this time.

"We've tried to gather some information, but we are not full time here," she told the 17 residents at the meeting. "When we hear from the Boundary Commission (on whether or not cityhood is approved) we would jump into it full time."

Trustee Eric Haven said he appreciated all the time and effort Secatch put into his cityhood letter and asked him for help during the upcoming Boundary Commission public hearing in Village Hall, 375 Depot Road, 1:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 22.

"If you can help us bring in some data, that's a value to us," he said. "I think you value the village entity."

Using Secatch's letter as a guide, the village council presented its side to every argument against cityhood and allowed time for responses from the public.

Trustee Frank Millard said Secatch's claim is false that the only reason Independence Township would seek cityhood is to avoid annexation. He said Supervisor Frank Ronk wrote a letter to the village council recently

"We are not going to raise taxes. I wouldn't be able to go home. The man who pays the taxes wouldn't let me in."

Sharron Catallo
Village President

saying he's against village cityhood and favors a townshipwide city instead.

The village already has the power to annex township property and if that was its goal it would have been far easier to increase Clarkston's boundaries during the incorporation process than through annexation, said Trustee William Basinger.

"We are not doing cityhood for annexation," he said.

Catallo said keeping Clarkston a separate entity was the reason the village filed for cityhood.

As far as police and fire protection are concerned, Basinger said Secatch unfairly presented a worst-case scenario in his letter.

"The amount of service we are getting (from the township currently) is minimal," he said. "We are not talking about a full-time police department."

Clarkston residents currently pay 2.5 mills for 20 hours of patrol plus emergency service from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department through its contract with the township.

Should the new city opt for its own coverage, a deputy would cost $65,000 (or approximately 3.8 mills) for a 40-hour work week, Millard said. With the new countywide 9-1-1 system in effect emergency help would come from the nearest car, Basinger said.

Under the current agreement, village residents are not even getting 40 hours of protection per week that they would get by not contracting with Independence, Catallo said.

"We are hoping to get patrol of M-15," she said when and if Clarkston hires its own deputy. "You must realize it needs to get taken care of. They (the township) want to consider us another part of the township."

As for fire protection, Catallo is confident Clarkston will be able to continue contracting through the township if cityhood is approved.

"I think that we have the greatest fire department," she said of the township firefighters. "I'm glad they're there. We are a good deal for them."

Trustee James Schultz agreed: "You (Secatch) make it sound like the second we go cityhood, they (the township) will drop us."

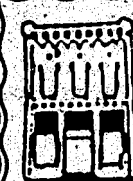

Basinger objected when Secatch compared Holly's cityhood bid with Clarkston, especially that Holly would have no problems breaking away from the surrounding township due to its larger tax base.

According to figures compiled by the trustee, Clarkston has a higher state equalized valuation per person than Holly and, therefore, could fully serve its residents as a city without a huge tax increase, he said.

Holly has $36 million in SEV and 5,514 residents while Clarkston has $14,751,000 for its 970 citizens. Per person, Clarkston ($15,270) has a decided advantage over Holly ($6,616), said Basinger.

In addition, nearby Lake Angelus (which recently incorporated) has an SEV of $15,531,000 and has managed to provide full service for its residents, the trustee said.

When all the points in Secatch's letter were addressed, Catallo thanked him for presenting his views and ended the informal discussion.

Independence intervenes to clean up sewer site

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

On Greene Haven Drive, the mountains should soon be molehills again.

After six months of damaged bushes, broken telephone wires, blocked driveways, a crumbled road, litter and piles of dirt, the 600-foot-long sewer project is to be finished in about a week, said George Anderson, director of Independence Township Department of Public Works.

On Tuesday, Nov. 15, Anderson was lining up a contractor to finish the job starting the next day. Done-Rite Construction, in charge of the construction of new residences on Greene Haven, didn't follow up on the job by a subcontractor, Anderson said, adding that Done-Rite would be charged with the expenses.

All the sewer lines are in, but manholes must be adjusted, the street still has to be repaved, and the entire area must be cleaned up and restored to its condition prior to the construction, said Anderson.

"It's the part that's most inexpensive but looks the worst," he said. "It looks like a war zone out there. People have been more than patient."

The action followed a Nov. 10 meeting between Anderson, township Supervisor Frank Ronk and about 10 Greene Haven Drive residents, who brought their complaints to the township.

Karen Weaver, a Greene Haven resident, explained that the township is always glad to get sewer lines installed for free, but this time the plan backfired.

"Their motivation was good, but there really was no such thing as a free lunch," she said. "This has gone on too long. As a subdivision, we have been too patient, and as a township, they were too patient."

Ronk said Done-Rite is a new construction firm and had never done business in the township before.

"He's extremely slow," said Ronk. "He ran into a lot of things he didn't expect. He ran into some ground water, and God sent some rain. It's no excuse. ... We're just trying to push him to get it done."

KAREN WEAVER and other Greene Haven Drive residents are frustrated with the piles of dirt and equipment left behind on their street near Little Walters Lake.

Marilyn Zawacki, another Greene Haven Drive resident, said school buses refused to use the roads. She expressed the frustration of a summer filled with noise and mess.

"They have dug up the property. They have dumped. They have broken up the roads. There's water standing. There's mud. It's an absolute disgrace," she said.

"The dust, the danger, the hassle -- all of this has been going on since summer," she added. "I think the township owes us a rebate because we have been paying (taxes) all year for improved roads."

Calls to Done-Rite Construction were not returned.

Bill seeks to stop out-of-state garbage dumping

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A bill regulating out-of-state waste disposal in Michigan could have long-term effects for Oakland County, according to state Rep. Mat Dunaskiss (R-Lake Orion).

In the past, Springfield Township has been considered as a site for another landfill, and if imported trash remains unregulated, the need for more landfills will "Currently, Michigan is a magnet for out of state waste. We import 900 tons of waste and export only 200," he said.

The bill passed unanimously in the House but is likely to meet some opposition in the Senate this week, said Dunaskiss.

Powerful lobbyists hired by operators in waste industries will probably be prepared to debate the bill during Senate hearings, which were to begin Nov. 15, he said, adding that the House passed the bill before the waste industry could get organized.

Dunaskiss' bill (House Bill 5524) calls for restrictions on out-of-state waste disposal in Michigan by requiring agreements between the exporting state and the county in which the trash will be dumped.

"We have a plan for solid waste with agreements between counties on disposal," said Dunaskiss. "But the plan overlooks out-of-state trash."

"Right now, it's harder to bring a load of trash from Oakland to Macomb County than it is to bring, from 1,000 miles away, trash from New Jersey," he said.

Frank Ronk, Independence Township supervisor, said he hadn't seen the bill but supported the concept.

"If we're looking at building an incinerator with the goal of eliminating landfills, we shouldn't be importing waste," he said. "I have a real problem importing waste that would create more landfills."

Railroad cars are now being used to haul trash from the east coast, where landfill dumping fees are double or triple the cost in Michigan, said Dunaskiss, mentioning a "mega-landfill" in St. Claire County that's quickly filling up due to imported trash.

The bill would require long-term agreements between counties and the importers and would require permission from each county in which the trash will be dumped.

"That makes sense. If we don't do this, we're going to be looking at a landfill in the Springfield Township, Groveland Township areas and in other rural areas," he said.

While the importing of trash makes money for the waste industry, it harms the state's environment as a whole, Dunaskiss said.

"The whole direction of state government has been, 'What can we do about reducing the dependency on landfills?'" he said. "Landfills aren't even disposing. It's just putting it in storage for future problems."

Other plans to combat the landfill problem are incinerators based in individual counties, which would still require the use of landfills -- but only for the ashes, not massive trash piles.

Recycling is another option, and soon, local officials will be asked to require recycling in their communities, by asking consumers to sort their trash into paper, glass and metals -- perhaps using a certain color garbage bag to differentiate the trash, he said.

Smoke detector works

A smoke detector that awakened a 19-year-old probably saved his life, as well as a pet bird and most of the house. The Nov. 12 fire at the Allen Road, Independence Township, residence broke out in the middle of the night.

"We can chalk another one up to smoke detectors," said Fire Chief Gar Wilson. "It could have been a real disaster if they hadn't had one."

The fire department received the call around 4:52 a.m. Saturday, said Capt. Steve Ronk. Flames were visible from the roof, but the attic fire hadn't yet invaded beneath the ceiling of the rest of the house, he said.

"Thank God for the smoke detector," Ronk said, adding that many homeowners let their batteries run out or don't have them installed yet or may not even have one.

The fire was out in about 10 to 15 minutes, he said. About $12,000 to $15,000 damage was caused, but no one was injured.

Apparently, the attic fire was caused by electrical malfunctioning, Ronk said.

The 19-year-old, whose parents were on vacation, was awakened by the smoke alarm and called the fire department. He didn't see flames only smoke, because the fire didn't break through to lower floors, said Ronk.

Robbery report called embezzlement scheme

A Jet Gas Station clerk was charged with embezzlement Nov. 3 after she allegedly made up a story about an armed robber Sept. 28, apparently to cover herself after stealing $220 from the Dixie Highway store in Independence Township.

Wendy Lynn Black, 24, of Waterford Township was arraigned before Judge Gerald McNally at 52nd District Court. She was charged with embezzlement by agent over $100, which carries a maximum 10-year prison term if convicted.

The crime was reported to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, and a police sketch was released on the fictional robber, said OCSA Detective Steven Parker. Several newspapers, including the Clarkston News, printed the sketch.

Parker said he suspects Black used the money to make a delinquent car payment.

Wolves' furious rally falls short

If nothing else, the varsity basketball team can be proud it has the complete confidence of first-year coach Larry Mahrle.

Down by 30 points after three quarters of play against Flint Northern on Nov. 17, Mahrle refused to believe his troops couldn't rebound to make a game of it. Maybe even pull off an upset.

Thanks to the outstanding play of several Wolves, the unbelievable became believable but Clarkston still lost the ball game.

"You never give up in a basketball game," the coach said. "Strange things can happen."

For the first 24 minutes of play, nothing too strange happened. Just a talented Northern squad pounding on a young Clarkston club. By halftime, the host Flint school was cruising along with a 36-22 lead. After the next quarter, its advantage increased to 58-28.

A couple of 3-point bombs by Jenny Grohs and Jenny McChesney inspired the Wolves during a 32-7 fourth quarter that almost brought victory from the depths of a possible demoralizing defeat.

Clarkston also canned 12-of-16 free-throw attempts during the fourth quarter to help get back in the game. And the team turned the tables on Northern by utilizing a press defense, something Flint Northern enjoys doing to its opponents.

In the end, however, time ran out on the Wolves and they lost, 65-60. Considering the Wolves were blown out against Flint Northwestern earlier this season and Northern in turn beat its cross-town rival, Clarkston had nothing to be ashamed about, the coach said.

"The girls really played hard in the fourth quarter," he added. "I'm pleased with their effort."

Besides Grohs and McChesney, Celeste Steinhelper, Tammi Mitchell and Susan McKoin all played well during the Wolves' final surge, the coach said.

"Different people are coming through for us every night," he said.

McChesney was the top scorer for the Wolves with 17 points. McKoin was next with 15 points. Rhonda Jokisch had 10 points, and Grohs chipped in with nine.

While the loss dropped the team's record to 13-6 overall, Mahrle was far from disappointed with his charges.

"We can find a lot of positives," he said. "I'm proud of the girls' efforts on and off the court."

Earlier in the week, the Wolves lost to Greater Oakland Activities League rival Waterford Kettering, its opening round opponent when districts begin Nov. 17.

The host Captains jumped out to an early lead and never looked back en route to capturing the league title outright for the first time in three years. The last two seasons, Clarkston and Kettering tied for the GOAL championship.

Once again, the Wolves trailed by a large margin heading into the final quarter (39-22), but this time there was no heroic rally and Clarkston lost, 53-35.

"We didn't play real well," the coach said.

McKoin was the team's leading scorer with 17 points. Grohs added five points to the attack.

The loss dropped the team's record in the GOAL to 7-2 with one game remaining against Lake Orion on Nov. 15. Results were unavailable at press time.

Springfield Christian senior ends season with memorable contest

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

On and off the basketball court, a Springfield Christian senior leads by example.

From shooting hoops to singing solos in the church choir, Kim White of Overlook Lane, Clarkston, provides plenty of inspiration for her classmates at the Dixie Highway school.

Last week, she completed an excellent basketball career at S.C.A. by scoring a team-high 35 points in a 72-58 Friday night romp over Flint Holy Rosary.

For the season, she averaged more than 25 points per game. Only superstar Lori Montante of Milford has a higher scoring average in Oakland County.

"I think she is the best player in Oakland County," said her coach, Kim Ball. "She's not intimidated at all, an excellent player."

Considering White's basketball experiences as a youngster, it's no wonder she's one of the best players around the county today.

A cousin to Mandi Armstrong and friends with Mikki Bryce and Nicole Leigh, she was able to fine-tune her basketball skills against a tough bunch of players. Armstrong, Bryce and Leigh are the main reasons for Waterford Kettering's outstanding 17-1 record this fall.

On the basketball court, White shares her expertise with younger teammates -- dropping helpful hints whenever possible for the 10- to 12-year-old Eagles.

Although she still has volleyball and softball to look forward to at Springfield, the end of the basketball season was special.

"I was excited, but I had mixed feelings since it was

Fond farewell

Two seniors lead Eagles

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When it came time for a couple seniors on the Springfield Christian varsity basketball team to say goodbye, they did it with style.

Kim White and Vicki Rose played their final game for the Eagles at home Friday night -- a convincing 72-58 thrashing of Flint Holy Rosary.

The victory avenged an earlier loss this season and made Springfield's 10-12 season a little more bearable.

"Tonight was one of our best nights," said first-year coach Kim Ball. "We managed to stay out of foul trouble."

White lit up the scoreboard for 35 points to pace the victors. Rose was next on the scoring parade with 23 points.

Rosary started out of the gate fast and staked itself to an early 6-0 lead before Springfield took control.

White scored five of the Eagles' first seven points to swing the momentum in the home team's favor. From then on, Springfield cruised to victory.

By the end of the first quarter, the Eagles had built up a 19-13 advantage. At the half Springfield led, 38-28.

Thanks to a 16-point quarter by White, the lead kept growing in the third stanza. Rosary rallied in the fourth quarter but never got closer than 12 points.

Chants of "S.C.A., S.C.A.," rang out in the gymnasium during the final seconds of the game, providing the seniors with a proper send-off.

Other scorers for Springfield included Andrea Mullins with eight points and Dayna Cox and Bernadette Domroese, the only other senior on the club, with a basket apiece.

Earlier in the week, the Eagles fell against Oakland Christian in a foul-filled game, 70-44, with White again leading the team in scoring with 18 points.

Rose chipped in with 12 and Melanie Sadler added four.

The sale is from 10 a.m. until noon on Saturday, Dec. 3, at the Monteith Activities Center, 2303 Crescent Lake Rd., Waterford Township.

If you are interested in selling items, drop them off on Friday, Dec. 2, from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. or the following day from 9 to 10:30 a.m. The Waterford Recreation Department will sell your equipment for a 15 percent charge. Tables are available for rental for $20.

For more information contact the recreation department at 623-0900.

Time Out

Quiet please

Peter Auchter

Leave it to an overzealous parent to ruin an otherwise good time at a high school sporting event.

Last Friday night, Springfield Christian's girls basketball team closed out the regular season with a 72-58 victory over Flint Holy Rosary.

The Eagles dominated from start to finish, at times leading by as many as 20 points, but controversy crept into the limelight.

At first one parent and then several others from the visiting Flint team loudly voiced their displeasure with the officiating at every opportunity -- whether it was warranted or not.

The very least they could have done was make their back-talk coherent, since they were determined to make themselves heard.

I may be mistaken about this, but I'm 99 percent sure people with eye problems usually see better with their glasses on instead of off, folks.

Sure, the black-and-whites may have missed a few calls, but by no means was it going to change the outcome of the game or did it show favoritism to one team.

In fact, whenever a call went Flint's way, nobody heard a peep out of the visitors section.

It's the players that make the difference in a game, especially when it's a rout. Come on now, how do you expect the kids to show any respect for the officials when their parents don't? What's next, a ref catching a piece of furniture with his face? It's just plain stupid -- and a little old considering all the publicity Geraldo has received recently.

Why is it that all the loudmouths are blessed with strong vocal chords as well? I guess insults and a meek voice aren't a match made in heaven.

To their credit, the officials at the game ignored the catcalls -- as hard as it must have been in the small gymnasium. The last thing we needed was a fight. We'll leave the fist-fighting for the thugs in the National Hockey League.

By now I'm sure I've riled some parents' feathers enough to ring my neck (probably 'cause I watch too many Morton Downey Jr.), so allow me to explain before you begin to yell and scream.

I don't mind an occasional boo or hiss for a blown call against your favorite team. Hey, that's just part of the game. But, please, leave it at that.

Put yourself in the place of the official for a moment. How would you like it if someone stood over your shoulder at work and insulted you after every mistake?

"What's that, a typo?!" a booming voice would yell.

"Hey buddy, your mamma wears army boots!"

Now, is that the way your parents taught you to act?

Harwell coming to town Sunday

Baseball Hall of Fame broadcaster Ernie Harwell will explain how his Christian lifestyle relates to his profession when he visits town on Sunday, Nov. 20.

Harwell, who has been behind the microphone for the Detroit Tigers since 1960, has been invited to speak by the Clarkston United Methodist men's organization on "God in the Locker Room."

The Farmington Hills resident began his radio-television career in 1940. His first experience with major league baseball was 1948.

Although there will be no charge, goodwill donations will be accepted. Money collected will be contributed to the church where Harwell's son serves as minister.

The church's men's club will host a chili dinner following Harwell's presentation. Everyone is invited, said program director Don Hall.

The program begins at 4 p.m. at the church on Waldon Road, 1/4-mile south of Main Street.

Springfield Christian girl stars on, off court

my last game," she said. "This was the best game of the season."

Besides her athletic endeavors, White takes pride in other extra-curricular activities.

Last summer, a group of 15 students from Springfield drove to Mexico for a three-week assignment to assist missionaries in their daily work with the poor.

While in Mexico, far from the tourist attractions that draw many Americans annually, she gained an appreciation for the suffering people of other nations experience day-after-day without much hope for relief.

"We went to villages where the homes were huts and pigs were tied up to trees," she said. "There are people with needs not only here (in the United States) but in other countries as well."

Sometime this summer, White and her classmates will once again journey to a far-off land to help missionaries. This time the group is headed for Costa Rica.

For now, White will concentrate on finishing her high school career and preparing for college. Sports aren't part of her future plans.

She will attend Bob Jones University in Greenville, S.C., next fall, leaving behind plenty of fond memories of Springfield Christian Academy.

"I love this school," she said. "It's a great school and I wouldn't want to be anywhere else."

KIM WHITE ends her basketball career at Springfield Christian on a high note by scoring 35 points.

Wolves, Kettering clash at CHS

Without much time for rest, the top two teams in the Clarkston girls basketball district will square off in the opening contest.

Greater Oakland Activities League rivals Waterford Kettering and Clarkston, unfortunate as it is, must face each other at CHS on Nov. 17 to begin the playoffs. In the single-elimination tournament, only one can advance to the next round.

"It's too bad we drew them in the first round," said Clarkston coach Larry Mahrle, adding that they would approach it like a championship game.

The game will mark the third time the teams have met this season. Powerful Kettering, highly ranked in the state polls with only one loss, has topped the Wolves in the two previous encounters.

Holly and Lake Orion, the other two first-round contenders, face each other Nov. 18. Grand Blanc, the fifth and final team in the Clarkston district, must play the winner of the Clarkston-Kettering clash.

The remaining two teams advance to the finals Nov. 22. All games begin at 7 p.m.

JV basketball team loses twice on road

Tough competition meant a couple of tough losses for the junior varsity basketball team last week.

First, Waterford Kettering raced past the Wolves for a 52-36 victory on Nov. 8 in its own gym. Carrie Roeser was the high scorer for Clarkston.

The Wolves took the initiative in the early part of its next game two days later against Flint Northern, said Coach Debbie Wilson.

"We had an excellent first half, one of our best of the season," she said. "But for four minutes in the third quarter we didn't do anything, and they went ahead for good."

Northern built up a 20-point lead at one point before a Clarkston rally near the end of the game made the score respectable.

Roeser once again was the leading scorer for the Wolves, netting 13 points. Beth Walker added 11.

Clarkston closed out its season on the road against Lake Orion Nov. 15. Results were not available at press time. The team's record before the contest against Orion was 13-6.

The buck that didn't get away

Donna Frick got her eight-point buck, so to speak, a week before deer hunting season opened Nov. 15.

It could also be said that the deer got her -- she has about a dozen stitches in her hand from where the animal's small antler punctured her finger.

The unusual story unfolded Wednesday morning, Nov. 9, when as she and her husband, Allan, of Reese Road, Independence Township, were helping his uncle Earle Frick close up his summer home in Kalkaska.

They had placed a sheet over a 2-by-4-foot window and were sitting in the kitchen area of the large room when they heard what sounded like an explosion.

They quickly realized that a buck had come flying through the window, slid over a table, hit the wall and landed literally at their feet. It quickly shed the sheet that had ended up wrapped around its body.

As the injured deer, which had glass lodged in its neck, tried frantically to find a way out, it veered toward the group. That's when Donna Frick grabbed its antlers.

Her quick action turned the deer around and it finally came to rest on the floor. Earle Frick called over two neighbors. After realizing they couldn't carry the 200-pound deer from the house, one of them shot and killed it.

Donna and Earle Frick rushed to emergency room to have her hand cared for. Meanwhile, the man who shot the deer received permission from the DNR to take it home.

Frick said she was sad at the deer's fate, but she would have liked to have received the antlers as a trophy to show her hunting family.

"I had him right by the horns," she said. "So, I have to tell my kids, 'I got my eight-point and I didn't even have to hunt him.'"

She soothed herself by realizing that the outcome could have been worse.

"We're just thankful we didn't get hurt any more," she said.

Residents in the area, who are used to the ways of deer, surmised that the buck saw its reflection in the sheet-covered window and charged to protect its territory.

Independence to hold hearings on rezonings

Residents concerned about growth in the township may be interested in proposed rezonings for a multiple family development and two single-family developments in Independence Township.

Public hearings on the rezonings are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 8, before the planning commission at the Township Hall annex, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

On the agenda is a rezoning proposal from Occidental Development, Wixom, to change about 62 acres at the southeast corner of Clarkston and Sashabaw roads from rural residential to multiple family residential.

John Mleczo proposes a change from rural residential to suburban farm residential on 15.5 acres at the southeast corner of Clarkston and Pine Knob roads.

Gerald Anderson proposes rezoning 32.94 acres of rural residential to single family residential on Maybee Road, east of Chestnut Hills subdivision.

Robbers hit 3 homes

Thieves were busy over the weekend -- breaking into three residences in Independence Township.

Sometime between 5:30 p.m. Nov. 11 and 12:30 a.m. Nov. 12, thieves broke into a Pelton Road residence and stole an $80.22 caliber rifle, $1,000 in Mexican and U.S. silver coins, $500 in old U.S. bills and $5,000 worth of jewelry. The house was ransacked, and the TVs and video cassette recorders (VCR) were disconnected but not taken, according to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department report.

Between 9 a.m. and 1:20 p.m. Friday, a Flemings Lake Road residence was hit. A $538 VCR was stolen as well as a portable TV, a gun and jewelry.

Between noon and 2 p.m. Saturday, thieves broke into a Clearview residence, stealing a VCR and a jewelry box and its contents.

Anyone with information on the crimes should contact the sheriff's department at 858-4950.

Blanchard's mom was even at school

BY PAULA BLANCHARD

It was tough being a kid in a family of teachers, especially when your mother taught in the school you attended.

When you did well on a test, everybody said that your mother got the answers from her teacher friends and gave them to you. The only thing she got from her teacher friends was a daily report on me!

It was really tough when you were in junior high and you were walking down the hall holding hands with your first boyfriend, and your mother was patrolling the hall outside her classroom.

I was late to more classes because I took the long way around the building to avoid going by her door!

I knew that the teacher chaperones on our senior trip to Washington, D.C., would give my mother a full report of my activities, so I tried doing some outrageous stuff just to prove to her that I was independent and "all grown up."

To my mother's enormous credit, she rarely gave me a hint of what she was seeing or hearing, and she tried to give me a chance to have a normal school experience at which she succeeded to a great degree.

My mother is Genevieve Parker, who taught school in the Clarkston school system for many years. I never had her for any classes, but I knew from my friends that she had a reputation of being a "hard teacher."

I could identify with that because she set very high standards for all of us at home. Most of her students liked her, however, because they knew she tried to be fair and make the subjects she taught interesting.

She taught seventh and eighth grade geography, science, and home economics. Her favorite subject was geography because she loves to travel, and she and Dad did so with enthusiasm during school vacations.

She conveyed that love of people and places near and far to her students, and they responded. Many of her former students have told me that she was strict but that her class was one of their all-time favorites.

Mother was always talking about the value and importance of education. An often repeated quote was, "It's something that no one can ever take away from you."

I didn't understand until I was older and I began to get an inkling of what it must have been like to grow up in the Depression as she and Dad did.

When I started college, she made it clear that I was expected to earn my degree in four years and could not even think about leaving school for a job or marriage until I had my degree in hand.

She wanted me to have the security of being able to take care of myself, in or outside of marriage. I'm very thankful for her foresight.

I got that degree and a teaching certificate to go with it. I added my name to the family list of teachers that included my father, my maternal grandmother, her sister and my mother.

I taught for four years before my son was born and since that time have tried to instill in him the same belief in the value of education that my family instilled in me.

Mother and Dad retired from teaching and are living in Gaylord, where they are leading very busy lives, still learning new things and trying to teach them to me!

HAVING A MOM for a teacher provided some important values for Paula Blanchard.

Ronk played football, was in band

BY FRANK RONK
Supervisor of Independence Township

I have been asked to write a short article telling how my school experiences might compare to students who are attending Clarkston schools today.

Having had a son graduate from Clarkston High School two years ago, it is my feeling that children today have a much greater opportunity to acquire a variety of vocational oriented classes, which were not available

SUPERVISOR FRANK RONK has some advice for students: Take advantage of all that is offered.

Tribute to education

To highlight American Education Week, Nov. 13 to 20, the Clarkston Education Association asked some newsworthy people with Clarkston ties to write a relevant piece. Two individuals are products of Clarkston schools.

when I was a student at Clarkston.

The electronic or high-tech type instructions, which are provided at the high school level, are most certainly a great stepping stone for students to prepare them for the challenges they may face as they continue their education and ultimately become a part of working society.

There are some things that were present when I was in school that are not possible today due to the size of the school operation and the student body.

Today it is difficult, if not impossible, for a student to know all of the other students in his or her grade. When I was in school, we were able to know most of the students in the entire high school, not to mention our even closer acquaintance with the students in our own grade.

My class was graduated with a total of 55 students (1946). As you can see, we had less than half the number of a graduating class of today at Clarkston High in our whole high school enrollment.

One of the conditions that I recall was present in my high school days was a shortage of students or participants to accomplish the activities that were provided within the school.

I was involved in all sports offered at the time, plus I played a musical instrument in the band. There were three or four other athletes who also played in the band.

When there was a football game at Clarkston, we few would play football for the first half of the game. During half-time when the band played and marched, we would slip on our band uniform capes and hats, and march and play with the band. At the end of half-time, we rejoined the football squad and finished the second half of the game.

In my senior year the football team went undefeated and the band received recognition at the Michigan State Fair. Could this happen at Clarkston High School today?

No matter what the condition might be relative to the old and new approach to education, it is important that our kids take advantage of all that is offered them during their school years, whether it be in class study or extracurricular activities such as sports, band, student government, etc. - also to prepare themselves to be the best citizens possible to deal with the challenges that will be presented to them as they progress throughout life.

Catallo would like to say thank you

BY SHARRON CATALLO
President of Clarkston Village Council

Part of the definition of education is: "showing evidence of having been taught or instructed."

Looking back on my own education, which, by the way, I consider ongoing, there is one particular teacher I would enjoy meeting again. That person was my high school government teacher.

Just seeing his name on a class schedule made you think of impending doom. When he would grin or roll his eyes, you could almost see your diploma going back to the printer for a change of date.

He was very serious about the subject he taught and thought everyone should feel likewise. Needless to say, instead he was faced by a wall of seniors who only saw him as a final roadblock on their way to graduation.

But he held his ground and never gave in, even though he was outnumbered. His mind was made up - students were not leaving that government class without showing some evidence of being taught or instructed.

Back then we could not have imagined that what he taught us would end up being so important. It certainly would be nice to say thank you.

An excerpt from the highly prestigious, highly fictitious "Baumann's Fantastic Land of Big Bargains" catalog:

MONOGRAMMED DENTURES: Won't you be proud to say you got your teeth through the mail? The three front pearlys on the top row are emblazoned with your very own monogram.

You'll never get them confused with your spouse's again -- unless, of course, the two of you have the same initials! State name and mouth size. $19.95.

BE THE FIRST ONE ON YOUR BLOCK to own a zorange. This oddly shaped piece of purple plastic was personally authorized by Dr. J. B. Zoran. It has no real use, but at least now there's something that rhymes with orange. A steal at $19.95.

RELIVE THE CHARM OF THE '70S in this luxurious polyester leisure suit. We've had this item in stock for nearly 14 years and can't get rid of it. In goldenrod or avocado. Let us choose. $19.95.

THIS FAUX-NY DIAMOND ring has two giant faux diamonds set in 17 faux rubies, and a faux sapphire all set in faux gold. The perfect gift for the woman who has no idea what "faux" means. $19.95.

YOU HAVE THE PIN, the watch and the T-shirt. Now get the whole outfit when you have your favorite photo made into a pair of pants. Comfortable drawstring pants are great year-round. Only $19.95.

STOMACHACHES? "Miracle Needle" uses the ancient Chinese practice of acupuncture to cure your pains forever. Just swallow our needle and things will be fine ... if it doesn't catch on your throat first. $19.95.

CAN'T STAY AWAKE for those late night shows? Watch them whenever you please with our actual videotape of a local station's entire night's networking. See the renowned one-star movie "Kung-Fu Masters from Uranus," jewelers and used car salesmen who look and act exactly the same, more. Fantastic price -- $19.95.

So there you have it. If it wasn't enough, just write to me for more. Just $19.95.

Love one another, says war veteran

In honor of Veterans Day on Friday, an Independence Township senior encouraged pupils at the Clarkston Christian School to avoid armed world conflicts.

George Thompson of Snowapple Drive, Independence Township, spent 189 consecutive days in combat on the front lines in the Armed Forces from 1943-45 and had plenty of information to pass along to the fifth-graders.

His message dealt mainly with avoiding the mistakes people have made in the past.

"You young folks of today are more fortunate to miss most of the terrible conflicts of war that other countries are going through," he said. "So please, be friends and love one another."

After a short presentation and question-and-answer period, the pupils were allowed to hold the various weapons and memorabilia. Thompson dressed in full uniform for the show-and-tell session.

School full of kids go to Moscow Circus

When the opportunity to purchase special-price matinee tickets to the Moscow Circus came up, Pine Knob Principal George White didn't clown around.

The entire student body went to the circus on Wednesday, Nov. 16. There were 708 people including the students, the staff, bus drivers and 70 parents.

It took 12 buses to transport the group to the new Palace of Auburn Hills for the 10:30 a.m. special matinee for school children. Another four buses took sixth-graders from Sashabaw Junior High School to the circus.

White said a group salesperson from the Palace offered the special rate tickets to various area schools last spring, and he took them up on it.

The tickets were $5 each, and the Pine Knob PTO (Parent-Teacher Organization) is paying for half. The students paid the other half.

The circus trip ties in with learning about the culture and geography of Russia, White said, plus it gave the students an opportunity to see the new Palace in Auburn Hills.

The PTO is financing five cultural events at Pine Knob during this school year including the Moscow Circus trip.

Cowie, Woodward wed in Birmingham

Dawn M. Cowie and Douglas Scott Woodward exchanged their marriage vows at the Birmingham Unitarian Church. The Oct. 1 ceremony was performed at 4 p.m. by Dr. Doug Gallager.

The bride is the daughter of Robert and Virginia Cowie of Wagoner Circle, Independence Township. A 1985 graduate of Clarkston High School, she is a senior at University of Detroit and is employed as a producer by WCSX and WHND Radio.

The bridegroom's parents are Grant and Erma Woodward of Millington. A senior at Lawrence Institute of Technology, Southfield, he is employed by Albert Kahn Architects and Engineers.

The bride wore a white gown adorned with lace applique and a six-foot cathedral train. She carried a bouquet of peach and champagne roses, Gerber daisies and baby carnations.

Maid of honor was Amy Jo Pearson of Clarkston. Bridesmaids were Amy Jo Cowie of Clarkston, the bride's sister, and Edie Bohl of Madison Heights. They wore peach satin tea-length gowns and carried bouquets of peach and champagne roses and baby carnations.

Best man was Scott Jensen of Millington. Groomsmen were Steve Schnettler, Mark Kowal and Mark Whitcomb.

The wedding reception was held at the Southfield VFW Hall.

The couple took their wedding trip to Puerto Plata, Dominican Republic. They are residing in Farmington Hills.

NEWLYWEDS: Dawn and Douglas Woodward.

Engagement

The bride-to-be, a 1981 graduate of Clarkston High School, is employed by Sea Ray Boats, Oxford. Her fiancé is a 1978 graduate of Clarkston High School and is employed by Machine Engineering, Davisburg. A spring wedding is planned.

At college

Robert C. Barnes is among 125 new medical students entering the Michigan State University College of Osteopathic Medicine this fall.

Barnes, son of Shannon Barnes of Independence Township and Robert E. Barnes of Aurora, Colo., received a bachelor's degree in social science from MSU in 1988 and was graduated from Clarkston High School in 1984.

***

Michael Peterson is one of the featured soloists at the "Big Band Jazz Night" planned Nov. 17 at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant.

A pianist, he is a junior at the university. Peterson's will perform as a soloist during the performance of Richard Rogers' "My Romance."

Club notes

Kim Rudaitis was chosen as senior Miss Poppy and Nikole Rutterbush was chosen as junior Miss Poppy by the Chief Pontiac No. 377, American Legion Auxiliary recently.

The two young ladies will be telling the public about the poppy program and how it benefits veterans and their families. The poppies are hand made by hospitalized veterans.

Kim appeared on the Labor Day telethon and presented a check for $2,400 from the Post, Auxiliary, Juniors and S.A.L. The money was earned during the post's annual benefit in March.

Engagement

GABRIEL-PALAZZOLA: Joan and William Gabriel of Newcastle, Pa., announce the engagement of their daughter Kimberly Ann to Anthony S. Palazzola, son of Barbara and Tony Palazzola of Oakhill Road, Independence Township. The bridegroom-elect is a student at the University of Nevada in Las Vegas. A June 1989 wedding is planned.

Friend to Friend

Too many accidents

Dear Friend to Friend:

It really seems like there have been an awful lot of car accidents lately involving teenagers in our area. Last weekend I heard of a student who ran into a house (hard to believe, huh?).

Last Tuesday night there were two accidents. One involved four cars, two of which had student drivers. The other involved two students driving.

Why do you think there are so many accidents lately?

GETTIN' AFRAID

Dear Gettin' Afraid:

A couple of factors might figure into this. One, it has been raining a lot lately and that makes for very dark nights; and two, many students are paying for private companies to teach them driver's training. They might not be getting in as many hours of driving experience as in the school program.

Teenagers in general don't have the driving experience that adults have. Along with this, teens may have poor impulse control and less maturity than older drivers. Sometimes we know teenagers are showing off or chit-chatting and not paying attention.

These problems are also complicated by the possibility of students sometimes driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs. The accidents involving students we on this panel have heard of are the reason we make these remarks.

In closing, we'd like to caution student drivers to be defensive drivers. Stay alert and be prepared for the worst. Watch out for the other drivers and try to expect the unexpected. But always, be careful.

Dear Friend to Friend:

Just wanted to share a few thoughts on the "Just Say No" program in the Clarkston schools. We were two of the high school presenters and we want to emphasize what a great program this is!

We think the message is a good message; it shows many kids that there are people in the high school who not only are straight but are proud to be that way.

It makes us feel good about ourselves and we no longer feel like the outcasts in the back of the room. It helps having positive recognition and makes us stronger.

In our fourth-grade class, the kids were very responsive and asked a lot of questions. It was surprising how many of them had been affected by drugs, including alcohol. We really encourage everyone next year to feel proud to be drug free and join this group. It will make you feel great!

THE FEW AND THE PROUD WHO DO SAY NO!

Dear Few and Proud:

Isn't it a great feeling to give of yourself to helping others! No wonder you are proud. You invested a lot of time and effort to make a positive difference in our community. You did something for unselfish reasons and we think this is very important.

The nice thing about the program is that it is growing. The numbers have doubled this year and many more wanted to be in it, but couldn't afford the time.

The thing we like best about those students who are involved is that they are giving all students permission to be straight, to feel proud of it, and to get people (including parents, teachers and other students) to start talking about it.

Keep up your great work!

Counselor sees necessity for parenting classes

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Low self-esteem and high anxiety were two common threads that Stan Garwood was seeing woven into the lives of young people he was counseling at his Independence Township office.

"During adolescence, there is this breaking away, going toward independence," says the Independence Township youth and family counselor. "So I think one reason for the anxiety is that there is some conflict, some guilt feelings."

In other words, young people are breaking away from those who have raised and nurtured them, as if to say they don't need them anymore.

Another is that teens have to make decisions regarding drinking, parties, relationships, etc. There are responsibilities they have not had before, and they are going toward more relationships outside the home.

There are anxieties about being accepted: "Some kids like me, some don't."

There are anxieties over fitting into the groove: "If I'm like them, I'll be more accepted."

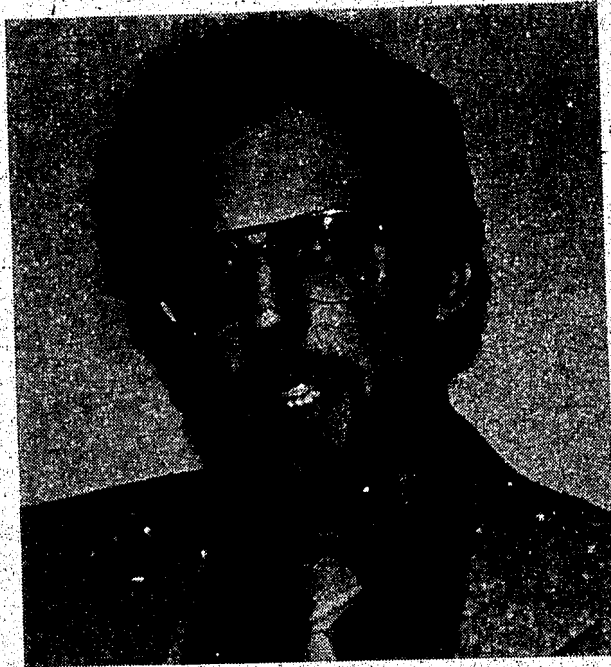

Concern about these issues has prompted him to organize a class on self-esteem and emotional development -- one for parents and perhaps a spin-off group for teens.

For the parents, he offers points on fostering a good self-image and sense of self-worth in their children. And parents need to feel confident about their parenting skills, too.

"There's no one who teaches us parenting," Garwood says. "We all need help and support."

"If we could get people into classes like this, less money would be spent on therapy," he adds. "It's a prevention kind of thing."

For example, parents need to express love -- hugs and kisses, verbalizing -- to let their children know that they are loved. Even children who seem to have it all on the surface may feel underneath that they're not loved for themselves. They may feel they are loved because of what they achieve.

STAN GARWOOD has an M-15 office.

"Which brings up another point," Garwood says. "Accept them for what they are and who they are, not what you want or society expects them to be."

Avoiding criticism is another important point he makes to parents. Criticizing children when they make mistakes is the least helpful and most damaging in terms of motivating them.

Adolescents should be treated as individuals who can speak and think for themselves, he says.

"Let's face it, we have parents who make kids do things," Garwood says. "And I would rather see kids do things because it's right for them to do."

Parents need to trust that teens will make good decisions. "It will make kids feel good about themselves. And if a parent can allow this to happen, they'll feel good about their past parenting, too."

Garwood believes that most parents do a good job, but teens today have an easy life. "Things come easy and quick in our society," he says.

Parents can change that right now just by saying, "OK, we're not going to run you to your friend's house every day," he says. Instead, they could offer to do it twice a week or weekends. Parents can say, "We're not going to buy you everything you want right now."

Parents also need to give responsibilities around the house to children, Garwood says. It teaches them confidence.

He uses his son as an example. He grew up working on snowmobiles and now feels confident about working on cars.

"Kids say, if I did well at that, maybe I can do something else," he says. They take that sense of confidence from one area to the other.

Parents can help by focusing on the child's effort with encouragement and comments such as, "You must have put a lot of effort into that." It takes the emphasis off the parent and puts it on the child. It lets children know they can achieve through their own efforts.

"And he's not doing it to please the parent, he's doing it because it's right for him," Garwood says.

When counseling teens on self-esteem, Garwood tells them to "look at all the things they've done, analyze that and feel good about what they've accomplished."

Any youth has done some really neat things, he says, even if it is getting B's in school or excelling at baseball.

We learn about ourselves through experiences in life, Garwood says. And we learn about ourselves by setting expectations high enough so that when we achieve, we're going to know we had to put in the effort to do it.

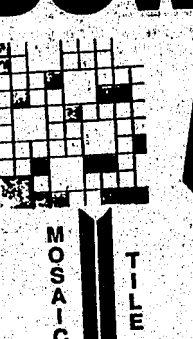

It goes back to teens doing what's right for them, and parents making them feel good about themselves.

Garwood and his wife, Kathy, have raised three children of their own.

As a father of three children and with his clinical background, he hopes to help parents understand their teens and help teens through this transition period of their lives.

Nephew's hearing problems inspire his career

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clifford Carr chose the right time to begin a career in clinical audiology. With rapidly improving technology, Carr, 28, found that the field offered excitement and a better opportunity to help people with hearing problems.

"The hearing aid technology is always pressing ahead," said the Royal Oak resident. "The hearing aid of today is vastly improved to the hearing aid of 10 years ago, in both the sound quality and the ability to hear in noisy situations."

A common complaint from users of older model hearing aids is the inability to hear when there are many noises in the same room. In the old models, the tiny aid would amplify all sounds, making it difficult to hear conversation. Even the sound of walking on carpet would be amplified.

Through compression, some hearing aids today can decrease the background noise, making it easier to understand speech.

"It's not perfect by any means, but they have made improvements," he said, adding that a slight model change could make all the difference, depending on the specific needs of a patient.

In June, Carr joined ear, nose and throat specialist Romuald Szymanowski at his Independence Township office on Lorac Drive, in the 52nd District Court building.

The move was a good one for Carr, who is finishing his master's degree in audiology at Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant.

First inspired to enter the field after his nephew Tony Carr was born with profound hearing impairments, Carr thought the field would allow him to help people.

"I got to see how (it affected someone), and I wanted to help other kids with similar impairments," he said.

Working with Szymanowski gives him that chance, he said.

"He's also eager to help people with hearing impairments. Together, we want to provide the best services to help the person," he said.

Before Carr joined the staff, patients would have to travel somewhere else for tests to determine the degree of hearing loss and to what extent it interfered with communication. Now, Carr can test the patient in Szymanowski's sound room.

After determining the type of hearing loss, Carr will test the patient for different types of hearing aids, to see which would be the most effective. Carr will also test patients who use older hearing aids, to see if an improved model would be better.

Patients then purchase the hearing aid at a lab of their choice, similar to purchasing eyeglasses from a lab after the proper prescription is determined.

Ear infections and old age are common causes of hearing loss, although they result in distinctly different types of impairments, said Carr, adding that with gradual hearing loss, a person may think others aren't speaking clearly.

"As a person gets older, they tend to lose their hearing gradually," he said. "It doesn't come over night. ... They'll hear things, but they won't understand them. By far, that's the most common complaint we see."

Everyday circumstances may also contribute to hearing loss, he said.

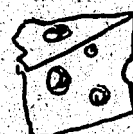

Teens (or others) who use ear phones to listen to rock music are in great danger because the sound is generated directly in the ear canal instead of a distance away as in regular speakers, he said. The cumulative exposure could affect the hearing at a later time.

Adults who use a chain saw or shoot a gun or create other such noises also run a great risk of impairing their hearing, he said. Ear protection should be worn when exposed to noises, and Carr recommends ear muffs rather than ear plugs.

"Loud noise can damage the hearing if it's over a long period of time," he said.

Transfer student is shocked by DAR Award

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When Jennifer O'Heren transferred from Grand Blanc to Clarkston High for her senior year, she traded longtime friendships for uncertainty.

After winning the DAR (Daughters of the American Revolution) Award on Nov. 11, she was congratulated by unfamiliar students and new friends alike while walking the halls between classes.

"It's fun," she said of the extra attention she received after the announcement was broadcast over the public address system during second hour. "I was in a really good mood that day."

While at Grand Blanc, Jennifer stayed busy after school by competing for the girls swim team. At Clarkston, where no swimming program exists, she found other ways to get involved.

She is one of the co-chairpersons for the Blue and Gold Club, vice-president of the Rotary-sponsored Interact Club, a National Honor Society member and first-runner up in the recent Clarkston Junior Miss Scholarship Program.

"I always wanted to get involved," she said. "If I hadn't started (joining groups), I would still be by myself."

Jennifer had no idea she was in contention for the award, so it was a shock when her name was announced.

"It was a huge surprise. I had no idea at all," she said. "I've only been here for a year and the teachers picked me."

Her parents, Jon and Judy O'Heren of Langle Drive, and younger sisters, Lori and Colleen, also were overjoyed when told Jennifer won.

The DAR Award is, traditionally, the first award announced for a member of the graduating class. At the high school level, the award consists of a certificate. In December, Jennifer will complete a two-part written questionnaire to be eligible for state and national honors.

At CHS, the DAR Award is sponsored by the national organization's Sashabaw Plains Chapter.

The winner is chosen by high school administrators, department chairpersons and class sponsors. The criteria for selection include leadership (personality, self-control, assumption of responsibility), dependability (truthfulness, loyalty and punctuality), service (cooperation, courtesy, consideration of others) and patriotism (unselfish interest in family, school, community and nation).

"We are very proud to have her here," said Jan Gabier, CHS assistant principal. "She is a remarkable young lady. If you meet her, you'll understand that better."

JENNIFER O'HEREN knows her decision to get involved at CHS was a good one.

After graduating from Clarkston High in the spring, Jennifer plans to attend General Motors Institute in Flint and major in engineering or Oakland University in Rochester and take up finance.

For now, though, she is contented with what she's accomplished so far.

"I'm really having a good year," she said.

Open house at learning center

American Education Week will be celebrated with an open house and ice cream social at the Clarkston Learning Center from 6:30 to 8 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 17.

The preschool, adult education, career center and latchkey program will be part of the open house, with school and township officials on hand to visit with people. Ice cream sundaes will be available for 50 cents.

The students enrolled in the alternative high school planned the open house events.

"We'd just like to invite as many people as we can, because we'd like the community to see what we do over here," said Sharon O'Leary-Johnson, coordinator of Adult Education.

The Learning Center is located at 5275 Maybee Rd. in Independence Township.

In addition to the preschool, adult education, career center and latchkey, the center also houses the adult enrichment, G.E.D. preparation, adult basic skills and performance level programs.

Microwave Plus

Good-for-you ingredients

Oatmeal and yogurt are certainly not new foods, but they have taken on a new appeal, especially for the health conscious.

Some sources claim that oat-bran, a component of oatmeal, lowers blood cholesterol. And low-fat yogurt is a good source of calcium.

Even though the following recipes contain fat in the form of butter and shortening, they may ease your conscience when you indulge because of the oatmeal and yogurt.

YOGURT PUMPKIN PIE

Adapted from "Kenmore Microwave Cooking," a Benjamin Co. Book, 1981, Page 175.

- 1 1/2 cups canned pumpkin
- 1/4 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- 2 teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 16-ounce carton vanilla yogurt
- 1 9-inch oatmeal pie crust

In a 2-quart measure, mix pumpkin, sugar and spice. Microwave at high for 2 to 2 1/2 minutes. Let cool. Fold low-fat yogurt into cooled pumpkin mixture. Refrigerate 4 hours or until set. This pie has a tangy taste. For a mellower taste, use half sour cream and half yogurt.

OATMEAL PIE CRUST

From "Tout de Suite a la Microwave" by Jean K. Durkee, 1977, Page 194.

- 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup vegetable shortening
- 3/4 cup uncooked oats
- 7 tablespoons cold water

Combine flour and salt. Cut shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Stir in oats. Sprinkle with water by tablespoonfuls, mixing until dry ingredients are moistened. Form into ball. (Divide in half.) Roll out on floured board and press into pie plate. Prick lightly with a fork. Microwave on high 6 minutes or until flaky. Rotate plate two times. Yield: 2 two 9-inch crusts.

CRANBERRY APPLE CASSEROLE

This is from the recipe file of Bunny Newmarch, executive coordinator of North Oakland Scamp Funding Corp. I've adapted it to the microwave and saved more than three-quarters of the cooking time.

- 3 cups apples, sliced and peeled
- 1 1/2 cups raw cranberries, washed and picked over
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar

Combine apple slices and cranberries. Sprinkle with sugar; mix and spread evenly in 8-inch round Pyrex or microwavable plastic cake dish. Cover. Microwave at high for 2 minutes. Stir. Microwave at high for 2 more minutes or until cranberries and apples are just tender.

Sprinkle with oatmeal topping. Microwave at high for 1 minute, then place under electric or gas preheated broiler and cook until bubbly and brown. Serve hot with vanilla yogurt.

OATMEAL TOPPING:

- 1/2 stick (1/4 cup) butter
- 1/4 cup flour
- 1/4 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- 1/4 cup chopped walnuts

Melt butter in small Pyrex bowl at high for 60 seconds. Stir in oatmeal, flour and nuts. Sprinkle over apple-cranberry mixture.

Precious Ashley

She's well-behaved, housebroken, playful, friendly and precious as any puppy. And she can be yours today.

Ashley is a 5-month-old Australian shepherd mix with blue merle coloring -- a blend of grays, blacks and other shades. She will be a medium-sized dog when full grown.

She has already had some obedience training and knows basic commands such as sit and stay. And she loves to play ball.

Ashley can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The fee for Ashley is $55, which includes a deposit on her spaying when she is six months old.

Catalog of inns is free of charge

The newly published edition of "Michigan's Bed & Breakfast and Historic Inns" has grown with the industry it catalogs. It is more than twice the size of the first edition.

The Michigan Travel Bureau's book has grown from 100 listings to 150-200 listings in just three years, according to Michigan Travel Bureau Director John Savich. Another 50 or so came in too late to be included in this edition.

The 68-page directory lists bed and breakfast establishments, inns (small establishments, sometimes historic, which may or may not include breakfast) and historic hotels.

Pamphlets about mental health issues are a specialty at Minerva Press

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When families are faced with mental health related problems, they turn to specialists in that field. But they still need resource information to turn to at home.

James and Ellen Windell, both psychotherapists, began work toward filling the need several years ago.

Through Minerva Press they have distributed over 300,000 pamphlets nationwide on subjects that range from attention deficit disorder and successful parenting to teen suicide and battered women.

The pamphlets are most frequently purchased by public schools, particularly special education departments, and by hospitals. They are given out to patients and clients by physicians, counselors, teachers, hospitals and self-help groups.

"Minerva Press began in our minds many years ago," says James Windell. "We thought there should be a company which published mental health and educational pamphlets, authoritatively written by experts, but at the same time be easy to read."

The pamphlets are aimed at the layperson, he says, but that's not always the way it turns out. They are frequently used for in-service programs and by professionals.

Minerva Press was launched about four and a half years ago from Windell's Independence Township home, where the administrative offices remain. The pamphlets are printed at Spectrum Printing, near the corner of Maybee and Sashabaw roads in Independence Township, and can be purchased there by individuals, most for 99 cents.

The company was launched by a pamphlet Windell co-authored with Samuel J. Nichamin, M.D., called "A New Look at Attention Deficit Disorder: A Problem Not Outgrown But Treatable."

Windell says it turned out to be the "trendy psychiatric diagnosis of the '80s," and the pamphlet turned out to be the "right thing at the right time." It still remains one of their best-sellers.

But at the time, no one was interested in the idea of mental health pamphlets, Windell says. So he and his wife, who are both on the staff of Women's Health Center of Clarkston and maintain private practices, began their own publishing company in February 1985.

He says two businesses, Spectrum Printing and the accounting firm of Thomas and Wiar believed in their endeavor wholeheartedly, "even when we doubted ourselves."

Minerva, also the name of the Roman goddess of wisdom, may help spread a little wisdom about mental health to families around the country.

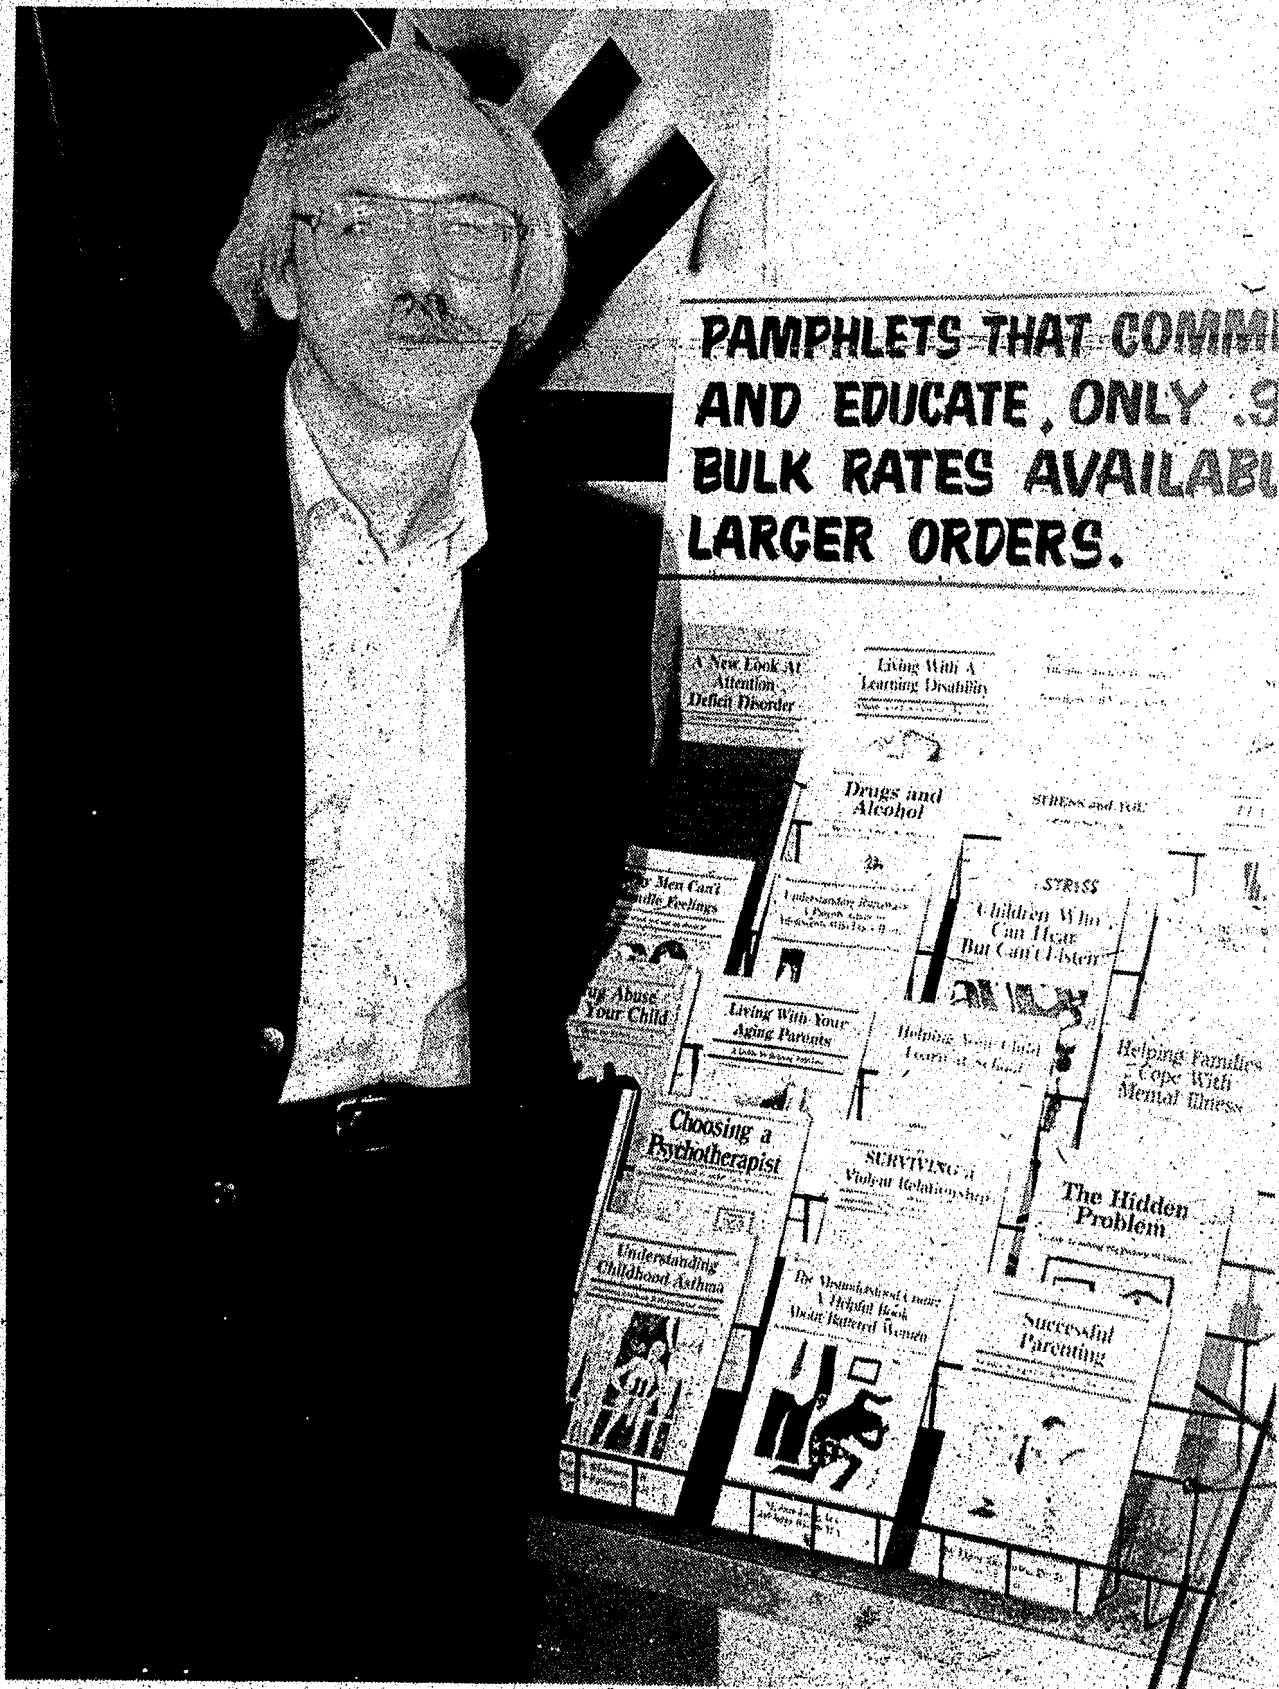

Windell and his wife have co-authored some of the pamphlets, but they also receive manuscripts from professionals around the country for many of them.

One pamphlet titled "Understanding Runaways, A Parents' Guide to Adolescents Who Leave Home," was co-authored by Windell and his daughter, Jill. Windell says she did some invaluable research for the pamphlet.

She had one brief experience as a runaway, says Windell, who also has a 15-year-old son named Jason. As part of the research for the pamphlet, Jill later posed as a runaway and called the national hotlines. This gave Windell accurate information about how a runaway would be treated when she called the hotline.

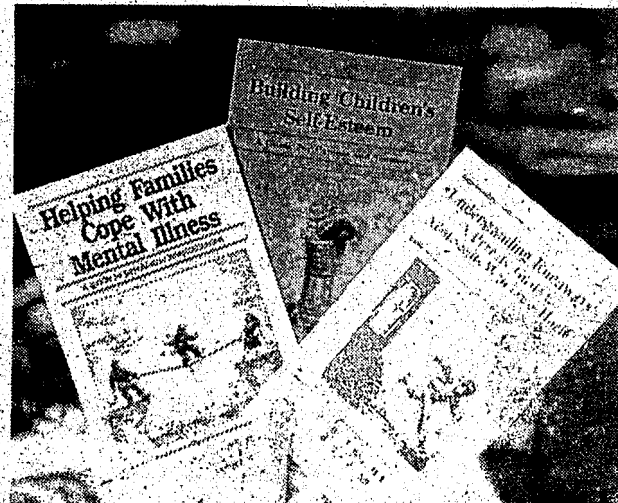

Windell also gave the hotlines an opportunity to offer input for the pamphlet. Many now use the pamphlet as handout including the Adam Walsh Foundation and the American Mental Health Fund.

(See PAMPHLETS, Page 10)

JAMES WINDELL founded Minerva Press Inc. with his wife, Ellen, who is president of the company. The pamphlets are aimed at educating families about health-related issues.

MINERVA PRESS offers about two dozen title selections including this sampling.

Cancer detection machine can be brought to you

BY CHARLOTTE WALL
Lake Orion Review Editor

Judith Anderson R.N., B.S.N., believes all women need complete information regarding breast cancer.

To that end, Anderson is part of an Oakland County team that will bring mammography machines to various sites in the county. The mobile units will provide easier access to the breast cancer detection device for many women.

"What we have here in Oakland County is so unique for women, and so many are not aware that we are here," says the Oakland Township resident, who is the Program Coordinator at the Oakland County Health Division.

Located in Southfield, the county Breast Cancer Detection/Education Center has been a non-profit quality service for the community since 1976. The new Mobile service will provide screening and education to women, as does the center. The goal of both the on-site Southfield program and the mobile unit is to increase the survival rate of women by detecting breast cancer at an early stage.

"If found early, the rate of cure is high," says Anderson.

The center follows the guidelines of the American Cancer Society, Anderson says. Those recommendations include having a baseline mammogram between the ages of 35 and 40. From age 40-49, the ACS recommends annual or biennial mammograms, then annual mammograms for those age 50 and over.

Women over 60 are examined free of charge when they visit a mobile unit. There is a charge for those under the age of 60.

The appointments at either the center or a mobile unit usually take about one hour. Although there is a rate schedule, Anderson says no one is ever turned away due to an inability to pay for the service. Third party insurance payment is accepted, she adds.

The mobile unit is already scheduled to go to sites in Novi, South Lyon, Orionville, Milford and Clarkston/Independence, according to Anderson. Her hope is to get the service into other communities.

"People must be made aware that this is available," she emphasizes, citing studies and statistics to prove her point.

The statistics indicate that the disease strikes one of every 10 women in the United States. The statistics may be even higher for women in Oakland County, she adds.

One reason for the high incidence of breast cancer among Oakland County women is the high socio-economic class of the area. "When women are more educated, they tend to put off child-bearing; there's a higher risk factor when women have no children, or when their first child is born after the age of 30," she says.

Also, she adds, people in higher income brackets tend to eat diets that are richer in fats. A woman's weight is also a factor - not necessarily in the incidence of the disease - but in the detection of breast cancer. "Obesity makes it harder to find," says Anderson.

Another reason for Oakland County's higher rate is the high Jewish population. "Jewish women have a higher incidence of breast cancer, according to a 1981 study," says Anderson.

"We want to change all this," adds Anderson. "The busy, professional women could use this service because breast cancer risk does increase with age; we also want to meet minority groups and the senior citizens."

She said the services include breast exams, mammography, instruction in self breast examination, personal counseling and referral service. Those providing the services are all women.

"We provide consultants to patients who may need surgery," says Anderson. "And we provide support groups and help with prosthesis after surgery."

The center's work has become known for its quality, she says. Dr. Kenneth Krabbenhoft, M.D. leads the center and is the secretary of the American College of Radiology.

"We have good quality x-ray equipment, good technicians, and they are all knowledgeable," Anderson says.

Because of the center's commitment to quality and to the patient, it won the Award of Excellence from the Michigan Department of Public Health as an outstanding county program.

Anderson said the appointments are necessary at the center, but emergency situations are taken into consideration. The center's hours are Monday, noon-8 p.m. and Judith Anderson, R.N., wants all women to have a chance for cancer information.

Tuesday-Friday, 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m.

The Southfield center is located at 27725 Greenfield Road. For further information about the center, the mobile unit, or to make an appointment for either, call 424-7100.

Key Findings

1988 Gallup Survey on Sleep Problems in the Elderly

O Forty percent of a nationally representative sample of 568 people over 60 years old (267 men and 301 women) were found to suffer from a variety of sleep problems.

O One out of five respondents reported their sleep now is worse than in the past.

O One in three of those questioned believed their poor sleep was related to worry about health, housing, family or finances.

O Active retirees had fewer sleep problems than those who were less active.

O Respondents averaged 6.8 hours of actual sleep at night; their average time spent in bed was 7.7 hours.

O Napping was much more prevalent among seniors in fair or poor health than among those whose health was good.

Sleep disorders in elderly can be fixed, says doctor

Forty percent of Americans over age 60 -- approximately 16 million people -- experience some degree of sleep difficulty, according to a recent nationwide Gallup survey of older Americans.

"The problems the elderly have sleeping are widespread and need serious attention," said Robert N. Butler, M.D., professor of geriatrics and adult development at Mount Sinai Medical Center in New York City. "Physicians should know these problems and be ready to investigate any possible disturbances of sleep in an elderly patient."

Butler presided over a symposium in New York City in October titled "Sleep Disorders in the Elderly: The Health Consequences," sponsored by the American Association of Retired Persons and The Upjohn Co.

Research experts in sleep, psychobiology and sleep disorders in the older adult highlighted recent advances in the knowledge and treatment of these problems.

"There is now a wealth of new information on sleep disorders and sleep problems in the elderly," Butler said. "In the past decade, a variety of studies have yielded insights into the problems and consequences older adults face when their sleep becomes disturbed."

The survey, designed to study the quality of sleep among older adults, also found that the healthier the individual, the less likely he or she was to complain of sleep problems.

"Older adults must contend with changes in lifestyle and reduced activity, making them more subject to illness and disease," Butler said. "Often their sleep is adversely affected by worries over health, housing or money. Loneliness and depression can afflict them and damage their sleep."

Sleep disorders afflict a greater percentage of older adults. These disorders disturb nighttime rest; sleep is fragmented and sufferers wake up tired, irritable and unable to function properly.

"Persons with sleep disorders are hamstrung by them," Butler said. "Their health and inability to sleep become the center of their attention. Their activities can taper off. With that, the quality of life for them becomes poor."

"Research has yielded important information and effective treatment for those elderly with sleep difficulties," he said. "With proper diagnosis and care, the consequences of having a sleep problem or disorder can be avoided."

A four-ounce glass of orange juice fulfills an adult's daily requirement for vitamin C—about 60 milligrams.

The skin is the largest organ of the body, accounting for about 16 percent of total weight.

Seniors and alcohol: The results of drinking

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY

"I would not drink if the world were not so grey."

Lillian Gish

Retirement is commonly thought by working people to be something to look forward to.

From the distance of youth, it looks pretty rosy; a time to pursue things neglected during more hectic years. But apparently, for a lot of people, that image changes as the time becomes nearer at hand.

A 1981 Harris poll found that 79 percent of workers approaching age 65 wanted to continue working, at least part time. Only 20 percent of men over 65, however, are employed or actively looking for work.

The desire does not spring purely from income considerations. In the United States, statistics show that the elderly have a higher per capita income than the rest of the population. Only 5 percent are in nursing homes; the average age of nursing home residents is 80.

Experts say senior citizens in significant numbers suffer from isolation, loneliness, depression and despair.

Retirement is coupled with other common problems of aging -- children moving away, illness, widowhood -- and soon, all the things that commonly support a sense of self-worth are gone.

"Booze is cheap and you have it in your house all the time," says Dr. Douglas Macdonald, president of the Oxford Institute, an alcohol treatment facility affiliated with St. John's Hospital in Detroit. "If you have no party to go to, what's left? Booze and TV."

He says the attitude that commonly comes through in patients is, "Let's get drunk and be somebody."

"They (senior citizens) are an ever-increasing minority to whom we pay little attention. We really haven't changed our attitude in the last 50 years toward old folk," he says. "We don't let mom and dad live in the house when they're older. That's their significant loss. Or all the kids move away."

In addition, medical problems mount up in old age.

"The '60s are a time when significant illnesses appear in otherwise healthy people," Macdonald says. "Things you used to do with ease, you don't do anymore, and a number of things begin to appear."

Many seniors will also experience, sooner or later, the death of a spouse, which Macdonald calls "the most stressful event." It's a pretty bleak picture, and the end result is a loss of feeling of self-worth.

"I've never met an old person without pain who was ready to die," he says. "They want to live as long as possible in reasonable comfort and with purpose."

But that part about purpose isn't easy. Many end up turning to alcohol, an anesthetic, because it makes them feel better, psychologically and physically.

"It reduces discomfort, adds color to life," Macdonald says. "People drink to help them sleep and to just plain feel better. Not everyone is going to feel better, but many do perk up after a couple of drinks."

There is no single profile of the senior citizen who will become an alcohol abuser. It can happen to anyone. Macdonald says alcohol abuse among senior citizens is at least as common as the general population (5-7 percent).

Those people fall into a couple of different categories. Some drank heavily all their lives. If they live to old age, they already have significant medical problems; the reasons they drink are buried in the past.

Others have a history of binge drinking. Jobs and family responsibilities used to keep them in line. Old age gives them a lot more time to drink.

A third group are those who never drank significantly until old age. About a third of older drinkers are thought to fall into this category, according to one researcher.

These are the ones that usually can be helped, both by preventive and therapeutic methods.

"Retirement has to be a very carefully planned event, whether you drive a bread truck or run General Motors," says Macdonald. "Everyone in life should have an avocation, preferably more than one, which they pursue with the same intensity as a job, clearly having in mind some day transferring their energy to the avocation."

Macdonald goes on to say that couples approaching retirement should plan to include at least one activity they can pursue together.

In addition, they should mind their nutrition and stay out of "the old rocking chair." And they should keep alcohol consumption in the same perspective that they did in their younger days. Macdonald says nursing homes have instituted "happy hours" with just that in mind.

"A couple of martinis harkens back to a happier time," he says.

Even when the problem is recognized, sometimes treatment is avoided, either because of a lack of adequate medical insurance or an attitude that says, "Hey, they're old. They're going to die anyway."

The result is an earlier-than-necessary death, whether from medical complications, accidents or suicide; senior citizens account for one-third of all suicides in this country.

"Looked at as a major progressive illness, the outlook is good," he says. "They can be brought back to a more purposeful life, so every effort should be made to treat them."

There are special programs tailored to the needs of senior alcohol abusers.

"It's certainly worthwhile shooting for a quality life," Macdonald says.

Annette Kingsbury is a staff writer for the Oxford Leader.

Free immunizations available for children

The Oakland County Health Division will offer an immunization clinic for Lake Orion and surrounding areas at the United Methodist Church, 140 East Flint Street (at Slater) Wednesday, Dec. 14, from 1-3 p.m.

Immunizations for measles, German measles, mumps, polio, diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough and Haemophilus influenza Type B (HIB) will be available.

A parent or legal guardian must accompany a child under the age of 18. Participants are requested to bring any previous records of immunizations, including notices which might have been sent home from the child's school pertaining to immunizations.

Immunizations are given at the same time on the second Wednesday of every other month.

For further information, call 858-1301.

Environmental lead still poses threat to children

Although lead in the environment has been significantly reduced in recent years, hard-to-remove sources of this toxic metal continue to threaten the health of between three to four million children in this country, most of whom live in our cities.

According to a report released last month by the Public Health Service's Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry, exposure to lead remains a serious public health problem in the United States, particularly for young children.

Lead, all parents should know, is very poisonous. Just one little chip of lead-based paint, a chip the size of a fingernail, can send a small child who eats it to the hospital with acute lead poisoning.

At high levels, which scientists define as 80 or more micrograms of lead per deciliter of blood, lead poisoning can cause coma, convulsions and death.

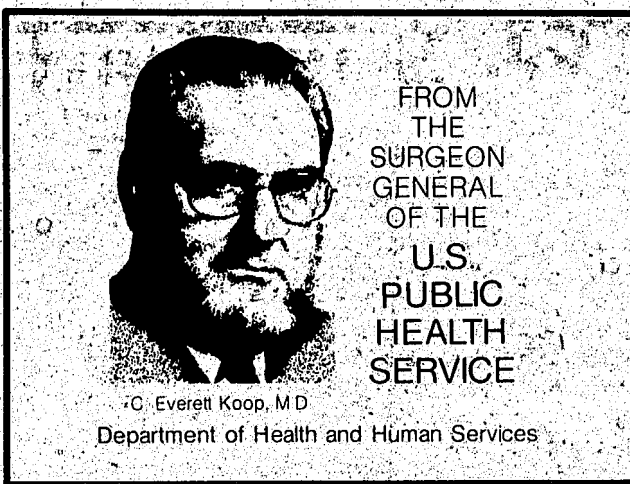

At half that amount, it can cause permanent damage to the brain and central nervous system, perhaps resulting in amnesia and retardation and interfering with the synthesis of vital blood products, vitamin D and calcium.

The more scientists investigate lead, the more they are seeing its effects at lower and lower concentrations, even as low as 10 micrograms per deciliter. Levels once thought safe are considered safe no longer.

Exposure to lead is particularly hazardous for young children because their systems absorb lead more readily than do the systems of adults and because, unlike adults, they are unable to store lead in their bones.

Instead, the lead that young children ingest and absorb goes directly to their vital organs. And because lead crosses the placenta, which means that it moves freely from the body of a pregnant woman into the body of her unborn child, the human fetus can be badly damaged, just as its delicate nervous system is being formed.

The Federal Government has done quite a bit to limit human exposure to lead. Lead based paint was banned in 1977 by the Consumer Product Safety Commission. The Environmental Protection Agency has reduced the use of leaded gasoline.

It also has limited industrial, air-borne emissions of lead, and it is working to lower lead levels in drinking water. Beginning this year, lead pipes and lead solder can no longer be used in connection with public water supplies.

The new lead report also notes that actions taken by the Food and Drug Administration and the canning industry have lowered lead levels in canned food.

Despite all of these corrective actions, including the removal of lead-based paint from federally funded public housing and other buildings, serious lead-exposure problems remain.

Lead based paint was used extensively prior to 1950, and much of it remains in place on the walls of older buildings and other structures. Regulations have halted lead emissions from new motor vehicles, but many older vehicles still burn fuel that uses lead as an anti-knock additive.

Emissions from industrial plants, such as smelters, have been reduced but not eliminated, and lead residues often are found in the dirt and soil around industrial and manufacturing areas and in areas where industrial plants once were located.

The upshot is that while we have made progress in reducing the average level of lead exposure in this country, the problem remains; and the more we study it, the more we learn about it, the more we realize that it is much greater than we previously thought.

It behooves all of us -- from physicians and public health workers to teachers and, especially, parents -- to keep ourselves and each other fully informed about this toxic and ever-changing threat and to make certain that our children are not being exposed in their varied and daily environments -- in nurseries, day care facilities and schools, in public housing, community playgrounds and even in our own back yards.

Young lives are depending on our vigilance.

Jerusalem artichokes offer large amounts of calcium, sodium, phosphorus, sulfur, iron, chlorine and magnesium.

If a 170 pound man expended energy at the rate of the tiny hummingbird, he would have to eat 285 pounds of hamburger or twice his weight in potatoes each day in order to maintain his weight.

Both flies and frogs have been known to catch athlete's foot.

People believe if you carry a potato with you, you will be healthy.

Monitoring the growth of children

The Human Growth Foundation (HGF) has developed a checklist to help parents monitor their children's growth.

While not necessarily indicating a problem, if you answer yes to one of more of the following questions, you should discuss your child's progress with your pediatrician or family physician.

- > Is my child the shortest or tallest in the class?
- > Is my child still wearing last year's clothes or outgrowing clothes much faster than usual?
- > Is my child unable to keep up with other children the same age in physical activities?
- > Has my child between the ages of 2 and 14 grown less than 2 inches or more than 3 inches in the last year?
- > Is my child complaining about his or her size?
- > Is my child showing signs of early sexual development (before age 7 in girls and before age 9 in boys)?
- > Has my 13-year-old daughter or 15-year-old son failed to show any signs of sexual development?
- > Is an older sister shorter than a younger sister or is an older brother shorter than a younger brother?

For more information on growth disorders, write to the Human Growth Foundation, The Montgomery Building, 4720 Montgomery Lane, Bethesda, MD 20814.

should make up less than 600 calories -- or be equal to 67 grams. One gram of fat equals approximately 10 calories.

Fatty acids are the basic chemical units in fat. They may be saturated, monounsaturated or polyunsaturated. All dietary fats are made up of mixtures of these fatty acid types.

Saturated fats, found mostly in animal products, have a hard quality, such as the visible fat on beef. Saturated fats tend to raise the cholesterol level in the blood. A high blood cholesterol level is considered to be one of the three major risk factors contributing to cardiovascular disease-- the leading cause of death in the United States.

Because of the effect on blood cholesterol, the AHA recommends reducing saturated fat in the diet.

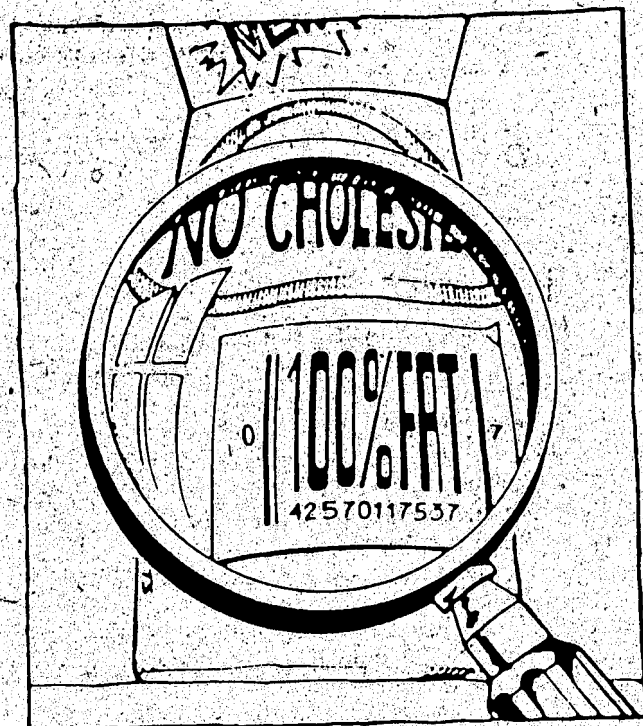

Saturated fats are found primarily in whole milk, cream, cheese made from cream or whole milk, butter, beef, veal, lamb, pork and ham along with palm kernel and coconut oil.

Monounsaturated fatty acids, found in fats of both plant and animal origin, appear to have a slight lowering effect on blood cholesterol. Monounsaturated fats are contained in peanuts and peanut oil, olives and oil and avocados.

Polyunsaturated fats lower blood cholesterol levels, helping reduce a major risk factor for heart disease. These fatty acids are found in fats of plant origin. Sunflower, corn, soybean, cottonseed, sesame seed and safflower oils are examples of fats high in polyunsaturated fatty acids.

Total fat in the diet should be limited to less than 30 percent of daily calories, limiting saturated fats to less than 10 percent of calories and substituting polyunsaturated fats at a level less than 10 percent of calories.

Americans currently eat about 40 percent of their total calories as fat. The American Heart Association recommends limiting intake of meat, seafood and poultry to no more than 5-7 ounces per day to help control the amount of fat in the diet.

Include chicken or turkey (without skin) or fish in most main meals or substitute "meatless" main dishes. Choose from lean cuts of meat, trim the visible fat and throw away the fat that cooks out of the meat.

Use low-fat dairy products and limit use of fats and oils to no more than 5-8 teaspoons per day for cooking, baking and salads.

Diet changes should be made slowly and steadily. The American Heart Association wants people to know that virtually all foods properly selected, properly prepared and served in appropriate portions can be incorporated into an AHA-approved diet.

Vision of older drivers is called key to safety

The signs that dot the nation's highways and tell drivers what to do and what to watch for are changing. In an attempt to make sure that the signs are understood, changes are coming in the vision tests that are used to certify drivers that use those highways.

The new technology and its impact on 18 million drivers over the age of 65 was the subject of a recent colloquium at the National Academy of Sciences. Oakland University psychologist Frank Schieber gave one of the invited papers.

The colloquium was titled "Improving the Mobility and Safety of Older Persons." It was sponsored by the National Transportation Research Board.

"Basically, the government is interested in the graying of America, both on the highway and in the work place," Schieber says. Two meetings were scheduled, one on mobility and highway safety, the other on work place safety and productivity.

Schieber delivered a paper on the new technologies in vision testing and collaborated on a paper for the second meeting on work place safety productivity. Other papers presented dealt with the actual changes that take place in the eye with aging.

The researcher says the government's concern for the elderly is increased because the decision has been made to move to symbolic highway signs. The symbols replace the written instructions drivers have dealt with all their motoring lives.

The highway changes will require adjustments to new vision stimuli, and these stimuli or signs must be designed to maximize the time which is available to respond, both for young and older drivers.

Also, Schieber says, vision testing varies from state to state, and the new technologies have proven that these tests are "terribly inadequate and are not sensitive to the problems of vision and aging."

Schieber explains that vision is the major sensory information we rely on to drive, but that current tests are measured using only high contrast stimuli, testing only the ability to see black on white, and do not reveal how we can see in the real world. He says several people who tested 20-

Road signs should be easier to read, says psychologist Frank Schieber.

20 on a driving test were in serious danger of hurting themselves or others when tested under the new procedures.

Within a decade, Schieber says, drivers will no longer be looking at letters, but at stimuli that are like striped patterns that measure ability to see grays on grays or grays on whites. This stimuli will measure the ability of the driver's eyes to see under low luminous conditions, a common problem with older drivers.

The researcher says "these tests will be able to show us things like the need for cataract surgery and other problems. Many of these problems will be correctable once a driver knows they exist or at least they will be problems a driver can compensate for, like lack of perception of motion."

Schieber emphasizes that "the goal is not to get people off the road, but to improve the safety of people who are on the road."

Schieber says that in addition to the vision testing, he and other researchers are trying to help the transportation board come up with symbolic signs that will give added response time to a 70-year-old eye, the target viewing goals based on population figures. Schieber reasons that if the 70-year-old eye sees the sign in time to respond, the 20-year-old eye certainly will.

He explains that previously, there were only 26 letters and 10 numbers, so it was not hard to come up with a formula stating that a 70-year-old can see a sign of "X" dimensions at "X" number of feet. But now with pictorial and symbolic signs, there are infinite combinations. The symbols may be too small, the distance too great, the stimulus too vague to comprehend.

"There are some poor symbolic signs on the road already," Schieber says, "and we don't want to have to live for a generation with poor freeway symbols." Schieber has developed a computer-based model which may help designers generate signs which are well-suited to the limitations of the older visual system.

Schieber and others are working on vision-testing devices that could be installed in Secretary of State offices that will accomplish the desired tests in two minutes, a critical factor when you are testing hundreds of thousands of drivers a year.

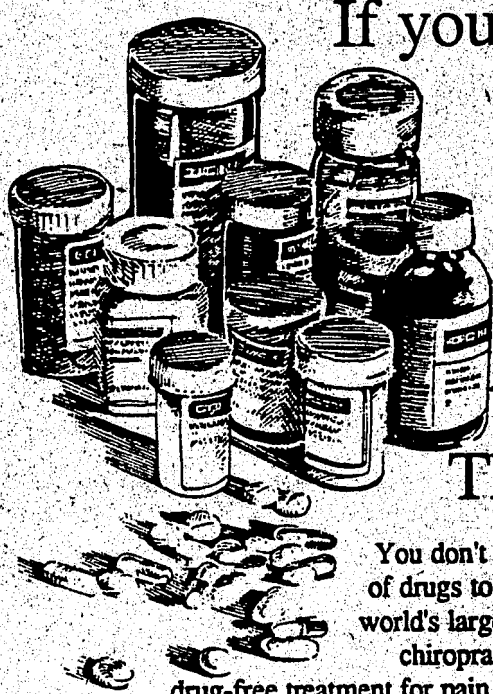

He emphasizes again that the goal of government and of researchers is to create a safer environment and to alert people of their problems, not take a category of drivers off the road.

Schieber performs his tests in his OU lab and in Baltimore, Md., where he is ad hoc director of vision research for the Baltimore Longitudinal Study on Aging, the major study on aging in the United States being performed for the National Institute on Aging.

The experimental psychologist says he has always had an interest in vision research and credits mentor Don Kline in getting him interested in vision and aging. Kline was with the University of Notre Dame and is now at the University of Calgary where the two still collaborate. Schieber also consults with the American Association of Retired Persons and is on a National Institutes of Health Study panel.

NUTRITIONALLY SPEAKING

By Dorothy J. Cheal, R.D.
Lake Orion

Down, but not out

"We are what we eat," "We eat what we want to be," or "Eat well to be well." All good statements; all probably true.

"We are what we eat" because if we don't take nutrients we need our bodies won't have them to use to keep them in good shape.

"We eat what we want to be," is a newer statement. If we want a healthy heart, we can choose the diet recommended by the American Heart Association. If we, hopefully, can prevent cancer, we can do what might help by eating the foods recommended by the National Cancer Institute.

If we want to lose weight, we can reduce the calories we take in daily; to gain weight, we add more. If we want to prevent osteoporosis, we can make sure that we get enough calcium to keep our bones strong.

"Eat well to be well" is the message United States Surgeon General Dr. C. Everett Koop gave us last summer, with his emphasis on reducing the fat, especially saturated fat, in our diets. He state that diet plays a part in five of the leading causes of death -- heart disease, cancer, stroke, diabetes mellitus and arteriosclerosis.

Overconsumption of fat, especially, is one major health problem in the U.S. Keep recommends that American adults reduce consumption of fats, especially saturated fats and cholesterol.

The USDA Dietary Guidelines for Americans tell us to eat a variety of foods, maintain desirable weight, avoid too much fat, saturated fat and cholesterol, eat foods with adequate starch and fiber, avoid too much sugar, avoid too much sodium and, finally, if you drink alcoholic beverages, to do so in moderation.

How can we do all these things, anyway, especially with the holiday season coming up soon? Also, "cut down," "use less" -- what does it all mean? What is saturated fat?

Here are some ideas for a typical Thanksgiving dinner, with some suggestions: roast turkey, stuffing, mashed potatoes and gravy, broccoli, fruit salad and pumpkin pie. Let us see how we can make it fit the recommendations without too much trouble.

Roast turkey: Remove any loose fat, rub with margarine and herbs, place on rack in roasting pan. When you make the stuffing, use margarine for the fat in the recipe, only one-half as much, and use one-half the salt. Salt substitute can be used sparingly, as it is bitter if too much is used. Try using more herbs.

Mashed potatoes: Use as little margarine as possible, skim or 2-percent milk, and just enough salt to make them tasty. Gravy: Discard the fat in the bottom of the roaster and thicken only the meat juice.

Broccoli: Cook only until tender in order to conserve the vitamins and minerals.

Fruit salad: Use fresh, colorful fruits; use lemon juice for dressing. To increase the fiber, add a few nuts on the top.

Pumpkin pie: Use oil or margarine for the crust and cut the sugar down to as little as one-quarter cup per pie.

To complete the dinner, have cranberry sauce and whole wheat or oatmeal rolls. So, here is your "low cholesterol, low fat, lower salt and sugar" dinner. It will still taste mighty good, and you will be able to pat yourself on the back. You will be doing what you can to follow the recommendations for healthy eating.

Just a note of warning: Be sure to handle any fowl carefully in order to avoid salmonella poisoning. Wash your hands well and all the tools you used in preparing turkey, chicken, goose or duck for the oven.

Also, when you buy margarine, read the label and get the kind made from vegetable oils. Diet margarine is usually not good to use for cooking and baking.

Saturated fats are the hard fats on meats, and palm, palmitic and coconut oils. Olive oil is good, and all the vegetable oils are not saturated fats.

How to spot substance abuse problems

Substance abuse is a problem facing tens of millions of Americans, yet 90 percent of substance abusers do not receive treatment, according to information compiled by personnel at the Harold E. Fox Center at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital-Pontiac.

Statistics indicate that about one in four Americans is affected in some way by substance abuse. "That means for Oakland County alone, there are about 250,000 people who are affected," says Bob Kercorian, Administrator of the Center. "Early detection is the key. In this case friends and loved ones often detect the symptoms, not the victim."

General warning signs include: changes in normal behavior patterns, withdrawal/secrecy, moodiness and defensiveness, frequently distorted speech, denial of a substance abuse problem, smells of alcohol or marijuana, and work and/or home problems due to substance abuse.

"If someone has two or more of the signs, a problem may exist," Kercorian says. "Substance abuse is a disease which can be fatal. It is important to remember that when a family member has a substance abuse problem, it affects everyone and the whole family should seek counseling."

The Department of Psychiatry at the Center provides a wide range of psychiatric and substance abuse services for all ages. For further information, call the Center at 858-3177.

What is Reflexology?

Reflexology is a therapeutic technique in the Natural Health field, which deals with the nerve endings that are located in the hands & feet. These nerve endings act as reflexes to each gland, organ & part of the body. (7,200 nerve endings in one foot).

Toxic acid deposits form & crystallize causing blockage of proper blood & nerve supply to reach the reflex area. These deposits are caused by stress, improper diet, lack of exercise, injury to a gland, organ or part of the body. These deposits are formed in other areas of the body, but more so in the hands & feet for they are the farthest from the heart.

Reflexology's purpose is to free these nerve channels which is done by the hands of the Reflexologist. Once these deposits are broken down - they are picked up by the blood stream, dissolved instantly & brought through the eliminating system. Since 24 qts. of blood pass through the heart every 3 minutes & the blood transfer is made in the hands & feet, one usually notices results during & after the 1st treatment.

Is radon gas a more serious health hazard than asbestos?

Questions may be directed to: Cancer Answers, The Cleveland Clinic Center, One Clinic Center, 9500 Euclid Ave., Cleveland, Ohio 44195. All questions will be answered by mail.

Question: My father was just diagnosed with chronic lymphocytic leukemia. Can you tell me about this cancer?

Answer: Chronic lymphocytic leukemia (CLL) is a cancer of the tissues in which blood is formed. It usually occurs in individuals over age 50 and more frequently in men.

CLL usually does not have warning signs and develops slowly. Signs or symptoms may not appear for several years. Commonly seen symptoms resemble those of acute leukemia: fatigue, more frequent infections, weight loss, joint pain, a tendency to bruise and bleed easily, and excessive sweating.

Many individuals are diagnosed during routine blood tests. CLL is diagnosed by microscopically examining cells from the blood and bone marrow (the spongy tissue where red blood cells are made). Abnormal white blood cells are found in excessive numbers and identify the specific type of leukemia.

Many individuals with CLL, despite an increased number of white blood cells, can easily maintain daily activities. If a patient develops anemia, repeated infections or other complications, chemotherapy is usually given to reduce the number of leukemic cells. Infection-fighting proteins (antibodies) are also sometimes given for repeated infections.

Research continues to find new and better methods of treating all types of leukemia.

For more information about CLL and other forms of leukemia, write for the free brochure, "What You Need to Know About Adult Leukemia."

Question: I've read about the Surgeon General's report on nicotine addiction. How does nicotine become addictive?

Answer: Nicotine from tobacco smoke is quickly absorbed through mucous membranes of the mouth and lungs. Once in the bloodstream, nicotine is rapidly distributed throughout the body and increases heart rate and blood pressure.

Regular exposure to nicotine quickly leads to tolerance and physical dependence. Dizziness, "heart-pounding" and nausea -- the unpleasant symptoms a new smoker experiences when inhaling a cigarette -- usually disappear after long-term tobacco use.

But the smoker must continually take in nicotine to prevent unpleasant withdrawal symptoms.

However, withdrawal symptoms are only temporary. If nicotine-addicted individuals can completely avoid smoking for two to three weeks, they need no longer depend on nicotine to avoid withdrawal symptoms.

If you would like more information about tobacco use, write for the free brochures, "Why Do You Smoke?" and "Clearing the Air."

Question: I read a recent article in which National Cancer Institute officials said that clinical trials offer cancer patients the best hope for survival. How can I obtain more information?

Answer: Clinical trials are not appropriate for every cancer patient. Through such trials, researchers hope to establish whether new or combined treatments are more effective than traditional treatments for specific cancers. But surgery, standard chemotherapy and radiation therapies are still effective treatments for many cancers.

The National Cancer Institute (NCI) has given colorectal, bladder and non-Hodgkin's lymphoma the highest priority for clinical study. Pilot studies have demonstrated that investigational treatments for these cancers could be better than standard therapies. But to confirm this, more research is needed.

Specific guidelines (such as location of the cancer and whether the cancer has spread outside the immediate area) must be met before patients can be entered into a clinical trial.

Individuals should ask their doctors whether a clinical trial would be appropriate for their particular cases.

For information about which NCI-sponsored clinical trials are available, call 1-800-433-6327. To obtain general information on clinical trials, write for the free brochure, "What Are Clinical Trials All About?"

Question: I read that radon gas is now believed to be a more serious health hazard than asbestos. What can you tell me about this?

Answer: Radon is an odorless, invisible gas that is a by-product of decayed uranium. Uranium can be found in granite, shale and soil that is porous or contaminated with industrial wastes from, for example, phosphate mining.

Radon can enter homes through cracks in basement wall-block or slab joints and sumps. Whether exposure to elevated radon levels increases the risk of developing lung cancer has not been firmly established.

As yet, no studies indicate whether, and in what amount, indoor radon levels pose a health risk.

The United States government and many states are trying to identify areas in this country where indoor radon levels are increased. The Environmental Protection Agency is encouraging people to have their homes tested if they are concerned about the presence of radon.

PERIODONTAL DISEASE (GUM DISEASE)

by

Mark E. Frenchi, D.D.S., M.S.

Your teeth are intended to last a lifetime and they can, with proper care. This means thorough daily brushing and flossing and regular professional cleanings to avoid periodontal diseases. Periodontal diseases are the major cause of tooth loss in adults. But they can be prevented.

"Periodontal" comes from two Greek words that mean "around the tooth." There are several types of periodontal diseases. All are started by a bacterial infection which attacks the gums, bone and ligaments that support the teeth and hold them in the jaw. Periodontal diseases are usually painless, and may develop slowly or progress quite rapidly. Unless you have regular dental checkups, you may not be aware you have a periodontal disease until your gums and bone have been so seriously damaged that tooth loss is inevitable.

More than half of all people over age 18 have at least the early stage of some type of the periodontal diseases. After age 35, about three out of four adults are affected by some form. However, periodontal diseases can occur at any age. Even children as young as five or six can have signs of some of these diseases.

To prevent periodontal diseases, you need to understand what causes them, learn and practice good oral health habits and seek regular professional care. Some of the warning signs of periodontal disease include tender or bleeding gums, pus between the teeth and gums, loose teeth, receding gums, change in the fit of partial dentures, shifting teeth or persistent bad breath. If you have or suspect any of these warning signs, it would be a good idea to have it checked. A periodontist is a dentist with additional training to diagnosis and treat periodontal diseases as well as other disorders of the mouth.

The medical waste that recently washed up along the shore of Lake Michigan prompted state Department of Health officials to offer suggestions for handling syringes and other medical waste.

The following suggestions were designed especially for children, who may not realize that such findings require careful handling. The list that follows was also mailed to every school district in Michigan by the health department.

1. Children who find needles should not pick them up, but should ask an adult to help.
2. Syringes should be picked up at the end away from the needle.
3. If the needle is capped, do not remove the cap.
4. Place needles or syringes in hard containers such as plastic bottles.

There are many pamphlets aimed at women's issues, such as surviving a violent relationship. And there are pamphlets that address the issue of drug and alcohol abuse.

Minerva Press also publishes health pamphlets, such as "Understanding Childhood Asthma," "Understanding AIDS" and "Stress and You."

Windell and his wife have master's degrees in clinical psychology and social work, but Windell's background in writing set the stage for Minerva Press.

He wrote a column called "Make a Mental Note" for The Clarkston News in the early 1970s. The column was later called "Coping with Kids" and is still published in The Oakland Press. Windell branched out to music reviews and other reporting and wrote for the Observer/Eccentric papers and the Detroit Free Press. Many of his features were mental health related, and through the Free Press he met the doctor with whom he co-authored his first pamphlet.

All pamphlets published by Minerva Press deal with mental health or health education in the broadest context. Windell says the publications are unique because they specialize particularly in the mental health fields and are authored by professionals whose names appear on the pamphlets.

"We wanted to give something else to our clients," he says.

For example, they saw the need for advice for the parents of hyperactive children.

"We wanted something for the family to take home to read," he says. "And there was nothing to fill that need."

Apple Cobbler

One of America's great traditional dishes is apple cobbler. Here's a recipe you'll save for your recipe file and use again and again.
5 cooking apples

3/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 cup cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 tablespoon margarine
1/4 cup skim milk
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup water

Peel, core and slice the apples. Place in a 9-inch baking dish. Combine the sugar, cinnamon and lemon juice. Sprinkle over the apple slices, and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

Meanwhile, sift the flour and the baking powder. Using a pastry blender, cut in the margarine. Sprinkle in the milk and press the dough into a ball. Turn the dough onto a floured board and pat to 1/3-inch thickness.

When the apples have cooked for 30 minutes, remove from the oven, place dough on top of apples and cut slits for steam. Raise oven heat to 450 degrees and bake cobbler 20 minutes more.

Boil together the 1/4 cup sugar and the 1/4 cup water. Pour this over the cobbler and continue baking 10 minutes longer.

Yield: 9 servings.

YOU'LL FEEL BETTER IN THE MORNING

YOU DON'T HAVE TO WORRY ABOUT YOUR MONEY AT NIGHT

If something goes wrong, if the market runs out of steam, if anything changes too suddenly, you could lose a lot more than sleep.

You could lose money.

But at Oxford Bank, the safety of your money isn't subject to 'ifs' - no matter what happens. Because the deposits you have in our bank are insured.

What's more, at Oxford Bank, your money is in the care of professionals who are right there when you need them.

Talk with our professionals and they'll show you savings and investment plans that not only earn competitive interest rates, THEY EARN PEACE OF MIND!

FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE
ALL OXFORD BANK LOBBIES will remain open until 3 p.m. Wed., Nov. 23rd. Drive ins remain open until 6 p.m. as usual.
