Holly owners buy Pine Knob ski area

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Nov. 21 sale of the Pine Knob Ski Resort to the owners of Mount Holly Ski Area shouldn't change Pine Knob operations this season, according to the new general manager.

"For the most part, we've slipped in here and made a smooth transition," said Mark Tibbitts, former area manager for Mount Holly the last six years.

The staff will remain the same, with the exception of Tibbitts' position, he said, adding that Pine Knob employees are probably relieved.

"This has been a rumor for about a month," Tibbitts said. "We had hoped it would be quicker, so the staff wouldn't have to worry about their jobs."

Although daily operations probably won't change much this season, some additions are planned for the years ahead, he said.

With improved grooming and Mount Holly's high-tech snow-making techniques, the skiing conditions should be better. Plus, the ski hill should be open sooner and later each season.

Other changes would concentrate on the social experience at Pine Knob, he said. A "western flavor" with winter barbecues and other activities would be one addition.

"Our stress has always been courtesy and service," he said. "That's what we most pride ourselves on at Mount Holly."

In the past, Pine Knob and Mount Holly have been competitors. Although the same owners will control the two facilities, the attitudes will remain the same, said Tibbitts.

"My personal philosophy is that I will still be competing with Mount Holly, he said. "I would like to see Pine Knob up there with the best of them."

Tibbitts' archrival will be his boss, Bruce Firestone, general manager of Mount Holly and part owner of Pine Knob.

Firestone owns the ski resort operating company Wisconsin Resorts with his partner Joseph Kosik.

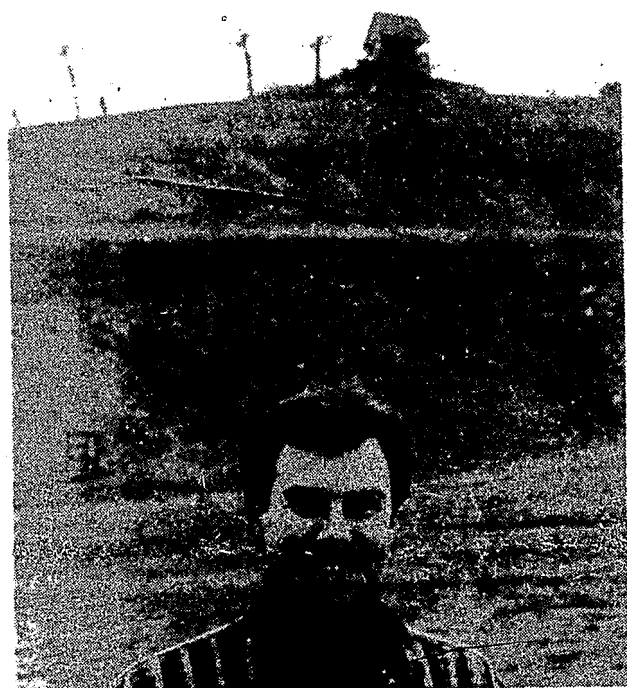

"We feel, obviously, after running Mount Holly 20 years, we can make a successful go of a ski hill," Firestone said. "I don't think you'll see a big change. That's a nice ski area."

Season passes already sold by Pine Knob will be honored. In the future, skiers will be able to buy one season pass that will be good at Mount Holly and Pine Knob.

Since Wisconsin Resorts also run Bittersweet Ski Area near Kalamazoo and Alpine Valley Resort in Wisconsin, the firm has a lot of experience, Firestone said.

"We care about skiers. That's our only business. We only live on what we make in the ski industry. It makes you

Fast calls reduce damages in 2 fires

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Two house fires over the weekend were extinguished before they could cause serious damage, according to Fire Chief Gar Wilson of Independence Township.

About 2:45 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 26, a faulty electrical outlet in a kitchen caused a fire at a residence on Maybee Road near Waterford Road. Damages were estimated at $12,000 to $15,000, said Capt. Neil Ashley.

The owner of the farmhouse was in his barn when he saw smoke coming from the house, and he immediately called the fire department, said Wilson.

"That fire was knocked down pretty quick," Wilson said. "The quickness of finding the fire and the quickness of getting the guys on the scene was the key there. It was one of those fortunate things."

A house fire on Pine Knob Lane at 2:41 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 27, was also extinguished quickly, said Wilson.

The fire started when a woman cleaning the laundry room of the house dropped a can of spray paint, puncturing the can. Paint started spraying out of the hole, and the woman left the room to get something to clean up the mess with. When she returned, the room was in flames.

The water heater in the room probably ignited the paint fumes, said Wilson.

Damages were estimated at $500 to $1,000, said Ashley.

Both fires could have been much worse, said Ashley, adding that the best remedy is a fast call to the fire department.

"That does wonders when they do that," he said.

Fire engine woes surface during bid discussion

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The purchase of a $53,630 Ford fire rescue truck sparked discussion over gasoline engines in two of the Independence Township Fire Department's existing fire trucks.

The township board accepted the low bid Nov. 15 from McCoy-Miller Inc. of Cadillac for a new fire rescue truck with a diesel engine. But members also expressed concern over two existing gasoline engine fire trucks.

After hearing that the gasoline engines can catch fire and of the problems with a recall effort, board members' suggestions ranged from a class action lawsuit to filing for new equipment under the "lemon law" to calling the top Ford executive.

Fire Chief Gar Wilson said two firefighters in a different fire department were killed when the gasoline Boiled, and the truck caught fire.

"They don't blow up, but they burn fast," he said. "Countrywide this is happening. ... We've always got the smell of gas when we get back from a run."

Trustee Dale Stuart said the township should consider starting a class action lawsuit with other Michigan communities that have problems, too. The situation is dangerous, and Ford should pay to fix it, he said.

The Ford dealership offered to perform the recall work, which would require dismantling the entire engine, said Wilson, adding that he had problems with that.

When buying fire, rescue or ambulance vehicles, a company orders a Ford chassis, but the firefighting or rescue components are fitted by a fire equipment manufacturing company, said Wilson.

Therefore, the equipment manufacturer should take the truck apart and put it together, and the dealership should only make the fuel system repairs, he said. Board members agreed.

Wilson said Ford Motor Co. would not pay for work performed by an outside company.

Trustee Daniel Travis said all contact with the dealership should be documented, and Wilson should contact the person in charge at the dealership or the regional service center, if necessary.

With other problems in the E-350 model, the trucks have been in the repair shop many times in the last year, said Wilson.

"They've had my trucks more than I have," he said.

Treasurer John Lutz said the problems might qualify under the state's lemon law, and Supervisor Frank Ronk said he would contact township attorney Gerald Fisher.

After the meeting, a Ford spokesperson said he didn't know of the specific problems with the Independence Township trucks, but other communities are taking advantage of the recall.

"The recall is in place," said Chuck Searly, public affair manager at Ford Parts and Service Division, Dearborn. "It does the job it's supposed to do. It's a very complicated recall. Not every Ford dealer can do it."

"Part of the problem is we don't make the ambulance (or rescue truck), we only make the chassis. ... (The dealership) didn't put it on. On the other hand, they were trained to do the repair. They know the dos and don'ts."

If the dealership has problems, they're trained to call for help, Searly said.

"It's worked in other areas," he said. "If they're having problems with the recall, I'm sure our local district would be happy to help them out."

Owners change at Pine Knob

give the skiers everything you've got," he said.

The sale was also a good move for John J. Nederlander, former owner of Pine Knob Ski Resort, who still owns Pine Knob Theatre.

"I feel good," said Nederlander. "We weren't really ski people. We're basically theater people. ... We had a hard time making anything from it. They know the operation. They know the ski business. We still control the theater. We'll still be here."

Pine Knob employees are also happy that the sale is final, he said.

"The staff was a little scared, but the Kosiks (and Firestone) took care of them," he said, adding that he hopes Mother Nature sends snow and that Pine Knob skiers will continue to hit the hills under new ownership.

"They're still our neighbors, and we don't want them hurting this winter," Nederlander said.

The new owners and the seller declined to reveal the sale price.

Decision's a year away

Commission hears cityhood debate

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It will take at least a year before the State Boundary Commission decides on Clarkston's cityhood bid, said Chairman David Rutledge.

A backlog of cases before the commission has forced a decision on the village's proposal to be placed on the back burner until sometime in 1989.

Rutledge and three of the other four members of the boundary commission traveled to Clarkston Nov. 22 to hear presentations from proponents and opponents on cityhood for the village, as well as what the residents had to say.

The boundary commission will also accept relevant information on cityhood from any interested party for the next 30 days, the chairman said.

During the almost three hours of discussion, the village council presented facts proving cityhood could be feasible for Clarkston while Independence Township officials offered an opposing point of view for the commission to ponder.

Attorney Tom Ryan spoke first for the village council and the cityhood petitioners. An eight-minute slide show of the village's historic buildings began his presentation to the commission members.

"Clarkston is a very unique area," he said. "The village would like to protect itself."

Trustee William Basinger, speaking as one of the petitioners, told the overflow crowd of 57 at Village Hall that Clarkston has 125 historic structures spread over 120 acres and needs to protect its valuable resource.

Also, he said, village residents would be better off under cityhood since they would be controlled by one governmental body, not two as is currently the case.

"The dual status (township as well as village residents) has led to constant conflicts," he said. "It's an archaic form. The township government is not good or bad. It just can't act in the best interest of the village."

He cited the boundary commission's recent approval of Linden's bid for cityhood as proof Clarkston could be a viable city with its current boundaries.

Linden's population is 2,300 and its State Equalized Valuation (SEV) is $24,840,650. In comparison with the village, Linden has 100 percent more people yet only 43 percent additional SEV to pay for services.

"We are more fiscally sound," he said. "Clarkston has nowhere to grow. We know where our costs will be. This is a village that can afford the services."

Also, the village's SEV has increased 25 percent since 1985, Basinger said. "That's what preservation will do for you."

In an effort to soothe long-time residents' fears of cityhood, the trustee said the only thing to change should cityhood be approved is the addition of the word "city" before Clarkston's name.

"Cityhood is the only way that Clarkston can remain the same," he said. "We stand the risk of becoming one in 14,000 voters and ultimately that would lead to the destruction of the village."

"The need is not to create an island -- a political island. ... On the other hand, there is a need to work together. We do not think (cityhood) is in the public's best interest."

Gerald Fisher
Independence Township Attorney

President Sharron Catallo agreed with Basinger's assessment and reassured residents that the township's association with Clarkston wouldn't end after cityhood approval.

"There isn't any reason to think we would be splitting up the community," she said. "It has no boundaries, and it should have no boundaries."

After a 20-minute presentation, it was the township's turn to speak.

Township attorney Gerald Fisher began by telling the boundary commission that Independence considered the public hearing a "critical stage of the proceedings." All three full-time officials from the township were at the hearing.

"Cityhood is the only way that Clarkston can remain the same. We stand the risk of becoming one in 14,000 voters and ultimately that would lead to the destruction of the village."

William Basinger
Village Council Member

Supervisor Frank Ronk, a life-long village resident, spoke first.

"I don't want to speak to you about why we are opposed, but how it will affect residents," he said.

With or without village cityhood, Clarkston will undergo changes in the years ahead as the township continues to grow, the supervisor said. He took offense to remarks made that said Independence was growing too rapidly and out of control.

"We are not running loose," he said. "Most assuredly we are going to cause an impact in the village with

OVER 2,000 CANNED GOODS were collected by Clarkston High School students in the annual can drive last week. The goods were donated to the Independence Township Senior Center, which gave food baskets to area senior citizens for Thanksgiving. Advertising was the key to success for the student council program, said Tamera Smith, who organized the can drive with Holly Edmunds.

All shiny and bright for Christmas

Thousands of bright lights at the Fulkerson residence have created a Christmas spectacle worth seeing.

Conard and Connie Fulkerson of 3201 Dartmouth in Brandon Township (just east of Sashabaw Road) expanded on the outside decorations they put up last year, which included a huge "Merry Christmas" sign lit up with Christmas lights.

The owners of Clarkston True Value Hardware Store on M-15 in Independence Township added another couple of thousand lights this year to several 60-foot trees in the yard.

"We brought in a 60-foot boom truck to help light them," Conard said.

The trees are lit up. The "Merry Christmas" sign is lit up. The whole house is lit up. Conard estimates the extra electricity will cost about $400 a month.

"It's just for the spirit of Christmas," he says. "And because people enjoy it."

Work on recycling facility site angers developer

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

An angry real estate developer didn't mince words Nov. 17 when he told planning commission members that he was against a cardboard recycling facility in the works for 10 acres next to his Independence Township property.

The final site plan for R.J. Hoffman's cardboard sorting building was scheduled for discussion at a special planning commission meeting Wednesday, Nov. 30.

Clarkston developer Dan Proctor, who plans to build condominiums next to the White Lake Road recycling site, told commission members Nov. 17 that the recycling facility was inappropriate for the area, and the developer was working without a permit.

"I'm really upset about this," said Proctor. "I think the township should take a look at this. I think it's a little blatant."

Trees had been planted, the pond was cloudy from soil disturbance, and it looked as if the roads had been graded, he said.

"Everybody is just taking this too d--- lightly," said Proctor. "This is the same guy who's supposed to police his own property."

Richard Carlisle, the township planning consultant, said the trees did not violate any township ordinances.

"There's nothing the township wants to do about someone planting trees on their property," he said, adding that the other charges would have to be investigated.

Chairperson Brent Bair said all the information would be available when the commission made its final decision.

"If we can make it work, it would be nice for Independence Township to step forward," he said. "If we can't make it work, so be it."

After the meeting, township building and planning director Beverly McElmeel said Hoffman wasn't grading roads.

"I think he was just balancing some areas," she said. "All he was doing was moving dirt around, and that's OK. I can't stop somebody from doing that type of activity, as long as there's no physical improvement to the property -- the building, the foundation."

To work near the pond, a wetlands permit is necessary from the township and a soil erosion permit is necessary from Oakland County, she said, adding that Hoffman stopped work near the pond as soon as he was informed of the requirements.

The building department did place a stop work order on a culvert that would have improved drainage because that construction also needed county approval, she said.

After the meeting, Robert Hoffman, former Waterford Township supervisor, said he had checked with the county on soil erosion permit requirements and was mistakenly told he didn't need one.

"We didn't think we were doing anything wrong," he said.

After he found out, he said, "We went down and quit what we were doing."

The trees were planted in advance to show the township that the recycling facility was headed in the right direction.

"Actions speak louder than words," he said. "I'm out here planting 20-to 25-foot white pines."

Part of a berm has also been constructed, and additional trees will be planted, Hoffman said.

Hoffman said he knew Proctor was opposed to the facility but that the recycling site plans were in accordance with all ordinances and laws.

"He wants me to disappear, but I'm going to do this," said Hoffman. "I've done everything. I've oriented my building so the doors face the opposite side. ... If this guy's going to be my neighbor, I want to get along with him."

"I think what we're doing is socially responsible. It's the wave of the future. People don't want landfills. ... I'm confident they're going to approve it," he said.

Residents share city opinions

traffic. We have no control over traffic on that highway (M-15). There is no way to bypass Clarkston."

Ronk said the current township administration has not sought cityhood for Independence, but he's afraid of what might happen should Clarkston become an unfriendly city.

Five or 10 years down the road, city council members may decide to annex areas of the township's business district in an effort to increase Clarkston's taxbase if costs for various services rise too rapidly.

"Fire and police (protection costs) are the important things we are talking about now," he said.

Ronk said should Independence and the city contract for fire protection, a per-run fee would be assessed. Last year, 140 runs were made in the village. Potential cost per run is $700, meaning Clarkston could have to pay $98,000 for coverage as a city. It paid only about $41,000 for the same coverage as a village.

The same would hold true for police coverage, the supervisor said.

Commissioner Max Graybiel took exception with the numbers the township provided concerning fire and police protection should cityhood be approved.

"You've tried to mislead us with your presentation," he told Ronk.

He asked how could calls to the township and village be separated, especially the police runs. For example, times when a speeding car was picked up on radar in the township but the officer didn't pull the offender over until he entered the village could cause payment problems.

"Who has to pay for that call?" he asked Ronk.

Township officials had no answer.

Fisher summed up the township's views by saying, "The need is not to create an island -- a political island. ... On the other hand, there is a need to work together. We do not think (cityhood) is in the public's best interest."

After both sides had their say, it was the residents' turn to speak.

Jennifer Radcliff, a village resident, was in favor of cityhood since it would allow the residents to protect the historic district.

"It is not a good track record that I see," she said of Independence Township's handling of its own historic sites. "They are not considered in the master plan. It would worry me greatly to turn over the district to be covered by township zoning. It would not make me sleep well at night."

Village business owner and former village president Carol Eberhardt said breaking away from the township is the best thing Clarkston can do at this time.

"I don't think the township acts in the best interest of the village right now," she said. "One of the things I like best (about cityhood) is the opportunity to control your destiny."

If Clarkston's bid is approved by the commission, an election on cityhood will be scheduled if 20 or more residents ask for it.

Should the vote be in favor of cityhood, a charter commission made up of village residents must be elected to write a city charter. If the charter was defeated by a vote of the residents, the commission would have one more chance to write a charter acceptable to the voters within a two-year period.

Whenever he watches one of those movies with characters that walk down dark hallways or dimly lit staircases saying, "Hello? Hello?" and end up victims of monsters or psychos, my friend Toby worries that he, too, might be a dispensable character.

At least, that's what he says. The thought is worth dabbling with a bit, even if the only reason is that it can make you laugh. Hear a strange noise? Try approaching it with that plaintive wide-screen mix of question and greeting.

We all know, of course, that life isn't a movie. It's usually not quite as neatly put together, not quite as romantic, not quite as frightening, and so on.

There are beginnings and endings -- and episodes. But no one I've ever known has been dispensable. We're all tied together in ways that become clear sooner or later, or perhaps not at all in an obvious kind of way. The process takes a bit more time than the standard 90 minutes in the world of cinema.

During the same week that Toby shared his dispensable character observation, a management philosophy that has struck me the wrong way the many times I've heard it was uttered by someone else in another setting and another town.

"Everyone can be replaced," he said, referring to the importance of anyone on any staff in any business. He also said that when he left his important job, part of him didn't think the business could continue. It did, of course.

I agree that there's always someone as competent or more competent to replace anyone who's leaving a job, but the replacement theory -- or dispensable theory, if you will -- neglects the fact that each person carries a combination of qualities that are different from any other.

Perhaps a simple "things change" would be a more appropriate management philosophy. We bring our strengths, and weaknesses, into every job -- and most of us strive to do our best.

The reason I'm bordering on the philosophical this week is because I'm grappling with the fact that after this week I will no longer be editor of The Clarkston News, a position I've held for over eight years (or, to put it another way, has meant writing almost 500 columns). On Monday, I begin a new job as a copy editor at the Flint Journal.

I will carry The Clarkston News with me in spirit. My years here have been a wonderful time. I'll truly miss all the good people I've worked with and met.

And I'll look forward to finding The Clarkston News in my mailbox on Thursdays. It was, is and will continue to be the best way to know what's going on in our community. Indispensable, you might say.

"IT'LL RUN YOU AROUND $200--OF COURSE THAT DON'T INCLUDE LABOR AND PARTS."

Clarkston News changes editor

The Clarkston News is a fine community weekly newspaper. As the community has grown The News has also grown in news and advertising coverage (pages) and in circulation.

It is the main source of news for many parents with students in the Clarkston School District, of many residents interested in the governments of Clarkston and Independence, and of many other people in its readership area.

Providing this "main source of news" is the responsibility of The Clarkston News editor. We, both you as a reader and me as a publisher, have been most fortunate through our 22 years of ownership to have some outstanding editors.

None have been more dedicated and more ethical than Kathy Greenfield.

This is the last Clarkston News that she will edit. The Flint Journal will now benefit from her employ.

Kathy has given of her time above and beyond our call. She took the responsibility of her editor position very seriously--challenging when she felt necessary, bending when it was best for the community, and remaining conscious always of the feelings of others.

One of the responsibilities of our editors is to hire reporters. In most cases, such as Kathy's, some reporters became News editors. This is true in her replacement. Eighteen months ago Julie Campe was hired as a reporter. Now, with the same amount of reporting experience Kathy had prior to being named editor, she becomes editor of The Clarkston News.

There is no doubt in my mind Julie Campe will continue to make The Clarkston News the "looked for" newspaper in this area for news of interest to the residents.

We wish Kathy Greenfield well in her new job on the Flint daily, and we extend public good wishes to Julie Campe in her job as Clarkston News editor. JAS

Jim's Jottings

It was the eve of opening day of the deer season. A roast beef, potatoes and gravy dinner had been devoured. The fireside chat completed.

It was time to lay out the cold (wet) weather gear for tomorrow. Thermo underwear, heavy socks, wool shirt, red bandana, wool mittens, orange hat with ear covers, boots and hunting suit.

Hunting suit? Oh, yeah, the one I'd left at the cabin following the 1987 season. I remember putting it at the end of the closet, out of the way from summer usage.

Hmmm, not there, must be in the downstairs closet. I know I left it up north. Since we only have two closets for clothes, it didn't take long to figure out where my suit was. I'd been so sure it was up north I didn't even check the closets at home.

It's another example of how that CRST (Can't Remember Simple Things) disease has attacked me.

The same disease had gotten to our bacon supplier. Elizabeth Baldwin had remembered to put jujubes in her husband's pants pockets, a childhood picture of herself in his suitcase, and a jar of camp prunes in with other groceries, but she forgot the bacon.

At our camp in Engadine, the most popular radio station is WNBX in Newberry. It's there we first heard da Yuppies' song, "Second Week of Deer Camp" last season. That song is nearing the million sales mark.

WNBX also tells where all the deer hunter's meals are. The menu proves there must be a lot of deer hunters with appetites considerably different than mine.

A lodge in Newberry had an all-you-can eat saurkraut dinner for $3. How about that for Saturday night out?

In Engadine the feature for hunters was Swedish meatballs for $5. Unless the Swedes use venison I see no appeal for deer hunters to flock to the VFW hall.

However, the deer hunter breakfast this hunting season sounded like it might be a big attraction. They were serving breakfast from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

There's really not much to do while deer hunting except look and listen, so I thought about what's IN and what's OUT from last season to this one.

Matches are out, butane lighters are in.

Toilet paper is out, paper toweling in.

Coffee is out, moucha in.

Hunting blinds made of non-natural material are out. Baiting with apples is in, carrots and sugar beets out.

Handwarmer packets with metal discs inside are in, charcoal stick warmers are out.

Orange hunting suits are definitely in, but only if you don't suffer from CRST disease.

War toys are wrong

As a mother to four daughters and a soon-to-be grandmother (in June) and a kindergarten teacher with a deep concern for world peace, I would like to call attention to something that frightens me very much.

Since 1982 the sale of war toys has increased 700 percent.

War toys are the leading category of toys sold today. These toys include action figures such as G.I. Joe, Rambo and Transformers; laser tag games, interactive toys; and an alarming increase in realistic toy guns including battery-powered Uzi submachine guns and hand grenades that really explode.

Promoting these toys are a growing number of violent cartoons seen daily by children before and after school and on weekends. These promotional cartoons have an average of 50 acts of violence an hour, one with as many as 114 acts.

Every time we purchase a toy, we communicate our adult values to children who receive these toys. Through play, children imitate our values.

Do we want children to assume that war has value to us by letting them play with war toys? Do we want them to think that disputes and differences are best settled by force?

Children do need to learn how to deal with aggression, but there are more constructive ways to do this than through war toys. Fear, anger and feelings of low esteem are often at the root of aggressive behavior, behavior that is encouraged by playing with war toys and watching violent TV shows.

The home and school environment must encourage communication, cooperation and creative ways to solve conflicts.

What we, as parents, grandparents and teachers can do:

1. Write Hasbro Inc., 1027 Newport Ave., Pawtucket, R.I. 02862 protesting G.I. Joe, Transformers and all their war toys.

2. Write Coleco Industries, 999 South Quaker Lane, West Hartford, CT 06110 protesting Rambo and Star Com toys.

3. Encourage friends and family to refrain from buying toys that encourage violence.

4. Participate in rallies to challenge the war toy makers. Two will be held as follows:

Friday, Nov. 25, 11 a.m. at Toys R Us, 27000 Telegraph Road, Southfield (south of the Tel-Twelve Mall).

Saturday, Dec. 10, 11 a.m. at Toys R Us, 10000 East Eight Mile Road, east of Van Dyke, Bel-Air Center, Detroit.

If you need more information, you may call ACT at 545-0371 or Elly Hann of PSR at 656-2725.

Criticism of park

Living in the Clarkston area makes one appreciate the watchful eye of our local building officials in trying to preserve the beauty of the area.

It's too bad their jurisdiction doesn't carry over into the county park system.

I would encourage our residents to walk the trails at Independence Oaks County Park and see the wanton

The Roads We Travel

Tough choices

Brent Bair

Have you ever heard or even made statements such as "They better do something or there is going to be an accident and somebody is going to get hurt or killed?"

Or how about "How many people have to get hurt before they do anything?"

I have sure heard them. Via an example, let's take a look at the safety improvement decisions facing road agencies.

Assume that you work for a road agency and you are in charge of making safety improvements. This year you have a budget of $1 million to make improvements anywhere on your road system. After extensive accident analysis, you find you have the following choices.

1. There are 10 intersections that if redesigned and rebuilt, a total of 10 injury accidents could be eliminated annually at each location. The cost of reconstruction at each is $500,000.

2. There are six curve locations where four injury accidents could be prevented annually if the curves are redesigned and rebuilt. The cost for each is $250,000.

3. There are 50 locations where you have been advised that if some improvement is not made, an accident may happen and someone may get hurt. Average cost of the improvements is $50,000 each.

OK, so where are you going to spend your $1 million? Did you decide on doing two of the intersections? Good for you. You have decided to spend the limited amount of money available in the most cost-effective manner. You will be able to prevent 20 injury accidents a year. Spending that money at any of the other locations would not accomplish as much.

But what about the other eight intersections? What about the curves and the locations where an accident may happen if you do not do something?

At $1 million a year, how soon will you be able to get to those locations, recognizing that with the growing traffic problems, new locations will show up on your list after your accident analysis next year?

How are you going to respond to the question "How many people have to get hurt before you do something?"

If you decide to spend some of your money at one of those locations where an accident may happen, and one of the people who is hurt at an intersection you passed up, you sue your agency for failing to correct the situation, how do you explain to a jury why you didn't spend your money where accidents were already happening?

So what is the answer? Spend more than a million a year on safety? Sure, but if your road agency gives you any more of its budget for that, then it will have to cut back on snow and ice control or something similar, and it knows that accidents and injuries will increase from that cutback.

Also, the taxpayers are not about to provide any more money for roads, so you'll just have to do the best you can with what you've got. Well, you've done that.

But what about those other locations? How can you just walk away knowing those injuries are going to occur? Are you really satisfied in knowing that you've done the best you can?

I doubt it. You're probably feeling pretty frustrated. You are a professional and you know that more could be done if only the funds were there.

You'll probably look for something else that might be done at those locations until you can get to them, such as additional signs. But you know that the major expenditures are really needed.

This was obviously a very simplified example, but it does reflect what really goes on within road agencies. There are a lot of frustrated traffic engineers out there.

And yet, they are the ones that repeatedly get confronted with the question, "How many people have to get hurt?"

Brent Bair is chairman of the Independence Township Planning Commission.

Sag in spirit

Jim Fitzgerald

Remember the date. On Nov. 19, 1988, after the Michigan State-Wisconsin game in East Lansing, MSU fans almost killed a security guard. That's what I call school spirit.

I haven't been so proud of my alma mater since 1976 when it was revealed that the university had paid more than scale to persuade husky young men they should be football players rather than concert violinists.

At the time, many people accused MSU of causing its alumni embarrassment, dismay and anguish. The football team was banned from playing in a bowl or appearing on TV during prime time. There was considerable wailing that the loyal alumni were being deprived of much pigskin ecstasy.

But there were no complaints from this loyal alumnus. I thought it was great that MSU was willing to do whatever was necessary to prevent a worldwide glut of concert violinists. If a university is really serious about curbing culture and discouraging intellectual enlightenment, it must be willing to pay the price.

It was, of course, a terrible loss not to be able to watch the MSU football team on TV for an entire autumn, except in reruns. Many Spartan fans were unhappy, but they were short-sighted. In the long run, the agony of one season with no TV and bowl glory was worth making an important point that will be remembered as long as college football is played - that MSU is willing to make the ultimate sacrifice to protect the integrity of its jockstrap. Fans prove their school spirit.

That was 12 years ago. Since then, not one MSU football player has defected in favor of a stringed musical instrument, thus saving concert-goers from seeing how a man with no neck gets the fat end of a violin under his chin.

Also, since 1976, MSU has won a Rose Bowl game and is about to play in the Gator Bowl. I think the point has been made, and no one will ever again doubt that MSU knows how to recruit athletes and keep them happy. The next step for my alma mater was to prove its fans have the greatest school spirit, and I think that was accomplished after the Wisconsin game.

It wasn't just that security guard Thomas Howard suffered head and back injuries when 2,000 to 5,000 MSU fans charged onto the field and tore down the north goal post. It wasn't just that, according to one published report, "Howard could have died from the injuries he received when he was trampled, kicked and stepped on by the crowd."

Howard got the most publicity, but it must be remembered that another guard - this one a woman - was also injured during the celebrating around the goal post. And MSU officials reported 37 people were ejected from the stadium for disorderly conduct.

That's quite an accomplishment for just one afternoon. When I read about it, I couldn't help recalling what I saw at the MSU-Michigan game in Ann Arbor earlier this season. After MSU lost badly, Michigan fans ran on the field and attacked a goal post. But some wimp on the public address system kept telling them to stop it before someone got hurt. And after a little while, they stopped.

No one was seriously injured. The goal post remained standing. What kind of school spirit is that? Writing could be in the sky.

The only people falling down were the usual drunks who always fall down laughing at the law that forbids drinking alcoholic beverages in the stadium. That's the same law that allows youngsters to get rich picking up refundable beer cans from under every seat after every game.

Many years ago, at big college football games, an occasional plane flew overhead, pulling a sign selling cars or chicken dinners. Today, at every game, there are so many advertising planes they blot out the sun. And the towed signs don't just sell products, they propose marriage, razz someone for being 40, and deliver all sorts of important messages.

That's progress. And that's why, at the first game in East Lansing next fall, I expect to see a sign in the sky saying, "Keep up that MSU spirit - He almost died."

I will be so proud of my alma mater.

Don't Rush Me

Blame it on Clarkston

By Don Rush

Though some of my English teachers are still shaking their heads in wonder -- how Dandy Don Rush, with his "C" to "C-" skills in such things as grammar and spelling ever landed a job in journalism, some of my math teachers understand.

In the world of high finance, things such as keeping a balanced checkbook are really beyond my mental capacities. As a matter of fact, my math teachers probably prayed hard I wouldn't pursue a career as an accountant or some such thing. Down deep in their hearts they knew I would drown in a pool of numbers.

It is quite possible had I gone that route, you'd see me on Skid-Row Lane. The beard I now possess would be longer, rattier and would probably be the home of things civilized men won't talk about at the dinner table.

Thinking back, my high school math teachers were: Paul Tungate and Ms. Pamela J. Kneeland. She was all the guys' favorite math teacher. Fresh out of U of M. She set some hearts aglow. I got a "C-" in her class, too.

Ah yes, Clarkston Senior High School. During those years, I majored in Woodshop. My first year as a high schooler was also the woodshop teacher's first year at Clarkston -- Leonard's good ol' boy Darrell J. Marsh. (He was a good ol' boy by Clarkston standards. He listened to country and western music.) I think I averaged about three hours a day in some sort of woodshop situation.

One of the neat things about woodshop was wearing the shop coat. What was even cooler was walking in the halls with that baby on -- all covered with sawdust, smelling like pine, pencil behind my ear. It was cool.

Of course, woodshop had its interesting group of regulars. One guy used to stop the band saw by applying pressure to the side of the blade with his thumb. One of the other guys saw this, tried it and had to be rushed to the hospital.

Then there was the time we put a dead mouse in DJ's shop coat pocket. That was good for a few yucks. Or the time we unzipped all the sawdust air bags that hung from the ceiling. When they were turned on the next hour, dust that once filled eight bags filled the shop's atmosphere. Another good one. I think I finished one project in three years. That's why I didn't become a carpenter.

I remember getting sick listening to Mr. Mackson's lectures on anatomy -- about how the heart works or how eyes look when they are out of the body. Scratch the medical profession.

Mr. Mahrle, American history/government instructor, wasn't hip on my tutoring the class, before the class or before his pop quizzes. I guess I wouldn't be a teacher.

That left Mrs. Meyland's classes, Writing I and II. And here I am today: having $200 deficits in my checking account, squirming when I watch a Freddy Krueger movie, reading history books and pounding the heck out of my thumb when I try hammering a nail. (Oh, and slaughtering the English language whenever I get a chance here in Oxford -- don't end a sentence with a preposition. I remember, Mrs. Meyland.)

If anybody's interested, that's how I left CHS and wound up in Oxford: Blame my high school teachers.

destruction of the picturesque trails and the total disregard of the natural habitat.

It's disturbing to see that the people operating the machines and the chain saws have so little or no understanding of preserving the natural habitat.

They are destroying trees and growth that have taken a hundred years to develop. It's especially disheartening when this destruction is approved by the very people we've appointed to protect the park.

We need people in our park system who understand the difference between destruction and improvement and who would heed their own sign entering the park concerning the protection of plants.

Evidently, taxpayers cannot remove any plant, but if you belong to the park service you have license to continually destroy the park.

It's understandable why park improvement proposals on the ballot are not receiving strong support from our local voters.

Condo plans change after denial

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Minus one building, plans for site condominiums on Deer Lake are once again up for consideration before village and township planners.

This time, the plans for the development called Village West Condominiums are different. Developer Rudy Lozano said the change followed a compromise with the Department of Natural Resources (DNR), which decided Nov. 1 that part of the six-acre site could not be filled because it would destroy about 1.7 acres of wetlands.

Lozano said he now plans to eliminate one building in the Independence Township portion of the plan and to shift another building location in the Village of Clarkston portion to avoid the wetlands. Eight units would be constructed if approved by the village and township.

Original plans for the development on White Lake Road were approved by the village but denied by the township planning commission. In April, commission members expressed concern about constructing condos in the flood plain of Deer Lake, which would require 7,600 cubic yards of fill.

The new plans are to appear before the village planning commission Monday, Dec. 5, and before the Clarkston Village Council Monday, Dec. 12. The township is to consider the plans in 1989, said Lozano.

After the DNR decision, Lozano said the new plans should be acceptable to all concerned.

"I don't anticipate any problems," he said. "It's going to be a nice project. I don't think anybody is going to be disappointed."

If all goes well, construction could start in spring, said Lozano.

"I feel good. I've only been working a year and a half," he said.

Beverly McElmeel, director of the township building department, said the DNR had sent her a copy of its decision to deny Lozano's plan. The report also included an alternate plan, but Lozano had not yet submitted any changes, she said.

The site condominium concept is comparable to a small subdivision, but the condo association would own the land and the homeowner would own the building site on which, in this case, a house of any design could be built.

Vote is corrected

When Springfield Township's official election results came back from the Board of Canvassers, there was a new winner in the write-in race to fill the sixth position on the library board.

Sue Parker, a current member of the six-person, non-partisan volunteer library board, won the sixth seat with five write-in votes. She had not filled out a petition in time to have her name on the Nov. 8 ballot.

Unofficial results from the township indicated that Parker had three write-in votes and another write-in candidate, Mary Kilcline, had the most write-ins with four votes.

According to Springfield Township Clerk J. Calvin Walters, there were a total of 59 write-in votes, but no other candidate had more than four votes.

The other five members of the library board, all of whom ran unopposed on the ballot, are: Mary Watson, Kristine Bower, Ruth Gruber, James Banes and H. Aldene Nihill.

Does your child have SCOLIOSIS?

Without formal knowledge about spinal anatomy, parents frequently detect only the most severe scoliosis after it has progressed. Trained experts, D.C.'s receive many hundreds of hours of classroom, laboratory and clinical education on the spine and its properties, while medical doctors and nurses receive far less formal training in spinal anatomy.

The common medical approach is to "watch and wait until it's bad enough to brace," or resort to surgery, which may or may not help. Chiropractic has proven effective in detection, prevention and correction of scoliosis. Medical cooperation in advanced cases may prove helpful, but chiropractic spinal adjustments may well avoid serious surgery.

Sophomore chosen to attend spring seminar

Amy Ginn, a Clarkston High School sophomore, has been selected to attend a Hugh O'Brien Youth Foundation (HOBY) seminar in the spring. The site, which moves to various locations throughout the state, has not been determined for 1989.

She and other high school sophomores on Hugh O'Brien sponsorships will meet with distinguished leaders in business, education, government and the professions. HOBY prepares outstanding students for leadership roles in their schools and for the future, while helping them develop thinking skills.

Amy, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Ginn of Independence Township, was chosen by CHS staff after filling out an application and going through an interview process.

"I am looking forward to going," she said. "I think I might learn things to help me, maybe to start new programs in the school or help with projects, and help other people with good ideas to put these to good use."

Amy Ginn

Location was incorrect

Due to an error in a legal notice, an article in the Nov. 16 Clarkston News incorrectly listed the location for a proposed rezoning.

The Thursday, Dec. 8, public hearing before the Independence Township Planning Commission is to cover John Mleczo's proposed rezoning from rural residential to suburban farm residential on 15.5 acres at the southwest corner of Clarkston and Sashabaw roads.

Hawaii is goal for pom pon star

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

She's been dreaming about her upcoming trip to Hawaii since August, but less than a month before Kellee Duty is scheduled to perform at the Aloha Bowl in Honolulu, Hawaii, she's still raising the money to get there.

Kellee, a senior at Clarkston High School, won the chance to go to Hawaii while attending a pom pon camp at Oakland University Aug. 2. She was selected as one of five outstanding pom pon girls out of about 500 to perform at the pre-show and half-time of the Aloha Bowl on Dec. 25.

The CHS pom pon captain is to leave Dec. 19 and return Dec. 28. The 10-day trip will cost about $1,600.

Her parents, Tom Duty of Northcrest Way and Bonnie McNeill of Georgetown Court, are helping as much as they can, Kellee says. Instead of presents under the tree, they are helping send her to the land of palm trees.

"I'm trying to get sponsorship from different groups, too," Kellee says, like Rotary and Athletic Boosters. "I really feel confident that (my parents and I) will get it together."

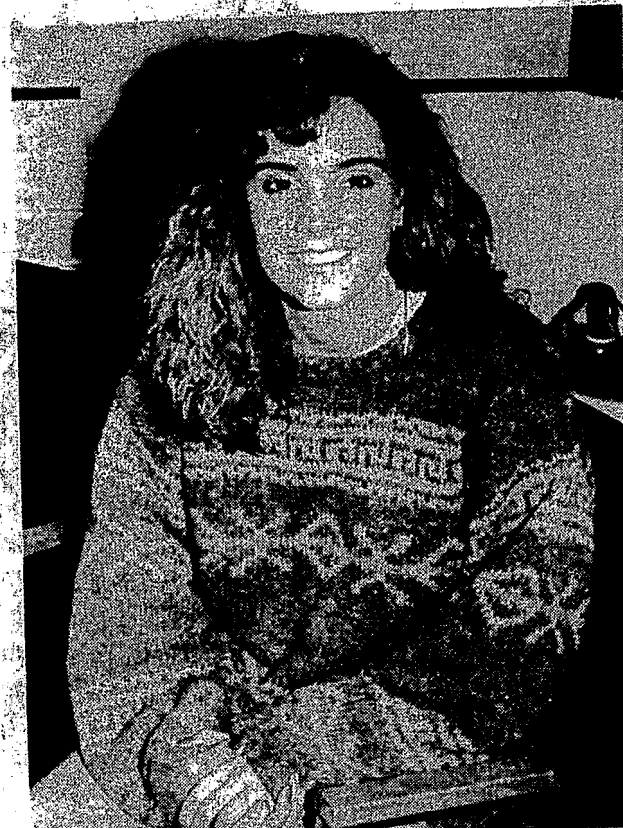

She works part-time at Dr. Daniel Bielak's office on Dixie Highway and has been saving her own money toward the trip.

At school, the busy senior is involved with many activities. She is treasurer of Student Council, vice president of National Honor Society, chairperson of Blue and Gold Club and a member of D-BUG (Dr. Burek's Unity Group), a problem-solving group of student leaders that acts as a liaison between the staff and students.

She was also recently chosen as the 1988-89 Clarkston Junior Miss.

"I just think it will be one of the greatest experiences," Kellee says of the upcoming trip to Hawaii. "I will meet new people; there will be new situations."

The time in Hawaii will be geared toward the actual game performances, with rehearsals and other preparations for the Christmas day bowl game between Houston and Washington State. Pom pon girls from all over the United States will be participating in the show.

KELLEE DUTY, a Clarkston High School senior, was chosen to perform Dec. 25 with pom pon girls from across the country at the Aloha Bowl in Honolulu.

"Others have told me it's really something. They still remember the trip like it was yesterday," Kellee adds. "I'll be in the sun and doing something I love -- dancing. I couldn't ask for much more."

The Prudential

Guidebook takes top planning award

The new "Site Design Guidebook" for Independence Township received a statewide honor recently from the Michigan Society of Planning Officials.

Prepared for Independence Township by planning consultant Richard Carlisle and Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May of Ann Arbor, the guidebook won the 1988 Community Planning Honor Award.

Judges called the guidebook "outstanding" and said the "organization of the subject matter, the character of the illustrations, the design of the pages, and the brief but ample descriptive narrative, all reveal a feeling for the value of good urban design in helping people to understand, and be nurtured by, their physical environment."

Carlisle and the township planning commission prepared the book to provide better direction for developers.

The book graphically depicts such aspects of the township ordinance as landscaping, signs, parking, lighting and the site plan review. The guidebook is available at the township building department.

Teen charged in nursing home theft

An 18-year-old was charged with two counts of larceny Nov. 22 after jewelry was stolen from patients at Grovecrest Nursing Home, the suspect's former place of employment.

Shana Marie Duncan of Pontiac was arraigned before Judge Gerald McNally at 52nd District Court. She was charged with stealing two diamond rings and a gold band worth over $3,000 from patients at the Clintonville Road, Independence Township, nursing home, according to Detective Steven Parker of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Personal bond was set at $10,000, and the preliminary exam was scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 2, at the 52nd District Court. Each of the two felony counts carries a maximum 10-year penalty upon conviction, said Parker.

Duncan worked at the nursing home for only a few weeks before the police investigation began. At the same time, Duncan's employers checked her job application and found the information to be false, so she was fired, according to the police report.

The rings have been returned, Parker said.

Commissioner to speak

Overcrowded jails, law enforcement and solid waste disposal are the planned topics of speaker Richard Kuhn at the League of Women Voters of Clarkston meeting Thursday, Dec. 1.

Kuhn is the Oakland County Commissioner representing the townships of Independence, Springfield and part of Waterford.

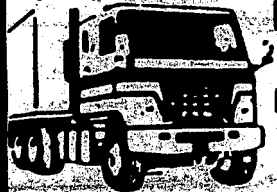

"If they're interested in finding out what a county commissioner does, they should come out," said Kuhn. "We seem to be an unknown entity."

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the Clarkston Village Hall, Depot Road, Clarkston.

DANETTE SPENCER, 19, prepares a wreath for the holidays.

New players vital for success in basketball

REGGIE REED is one of the new faces on the varsity squad this winter, promoted from the highly successful junior varsity program. Watching in the wings is another JV product, Gary Kaul.

Graduation of key athletes leaves Coach Fife looking for qualified replacements

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

How the many new players on the varsity basketball team will react under pressure remains Coach Dan Fife's biggest concern as the 1988-89 season opener nears.

The veteran CHS coach will have a better idea of his squad's strengths and weaknesses after the Wolves' season opening game Friday night against annual powerhouse Redford Catholic Central.

Last season, four seniors were looked upon to provide leadership during crunch time. But Josh Newblatt, Jeff Tungate, Mike Barnes and Chip Galley were graduated in June and won't be around to help the Wolves.

The only returning starter from last year's 15-7 team is senior Darrin Brandt. "He's our only experienced player," the coach said. "He had an excellent year last year, and I expect the same thing this year."

James Huttenlocher, at 6-foot-5, and Kevin McCormick (6-3) provide what little height Fife has to work with in 1988-89.

The coach said Huttenlocher, a reserve on the varsity team last season, has worked hard during the summer to make himself a better player. McCormick advances to the varsity squad after a successful campaign on the 17-3 junior varsity team last season.

Juniors Scott Weeks, Gary Kaul, Jason Brown, Reggie Reed, Mark Sanderson, Kelly O'Neil and senior Mel Hemminger along with freshman Dugan Fife round out the roster for the Wolves.

All the players are expected to contribute throughout the season, the coach said, since the Wolves face many top-notch opponents.

Ferndale, Flint Northwestern, East Lansing and Catholic Central provide formidable non-league opponents for Clarkston.

"It (the schedule) gets tougher every year," the coach said. "It's going to be quite a challenge. It's hard for me to say how we will do."

But that's not to say Fife is predicting gloom and doom for his troops. The enthusiasm they have displayed during practice encourages him, he said.

In the Greater Oakland Activities League (GOAL), Pontiac Northern should be the team to beat, the coach said. Last season, Clarkston beat the Huskies during both regular league meetings only to lose to them in the playoffs. The Wolves tied Lake Orion for the GOAL title.

Besides Northern and Orion, the remaining clubs should be tough as well, he said.

"It'll be an interesting year," Fife said. "This is better competition than we have every played at Clarkston."

Talent aplenty for varsity wrestling team

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Although wrestling coach Scott Strickler admits it'll be difficult to match the outstanding 17-4 record of a year ago, he certainly isn't lacking in the talent department.

Nine starters from the 13 weight classes return for another season of grappling at Clarkston High School including seniors Jason Campbell and Dave London, who went to the state meet last year.

The majority of the other spots are filled by inexperienced sophomores.

DURING PRACTICE Tim Kerr (on top) and John Terpstra square off against each other as the varsity wrestling team prepares for its season-opening tournament at Ferndale

"We are kind of young," said Strickler. "We are weak in the upper divisions where we graduated people last year."

Gone from the team are heavyweight Mark Oswald and 198-pound standout Troy Martin, to name two of the lost athletes.

Campbell, at 185 pounds, London (119), Chris Luzi (112) and Eric Wall (105) are the only seniors on the club. Juniors include John Terpstra (139), Jerry Lawrence (155), Matt Boucard (98), Tim Kerr (145) and John Anderson (132).

"In the low to medium weights we are pretty strong," the coach said. "We should be a real good tournament team."

Dual meet action in the Greater Oakland Activities League should be tough as usual. Lake Orion and Pontiac Northern once again appear to be the cream of the crop.

The coach, therefore, wants his team to finish in the top 10 in Oakland County and not worry about winning the GOAL.

"We will do some surprising," Strickler said. "I'm not really interested in winning the GOAL, but we can do some damage."

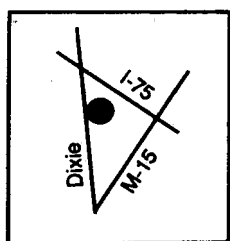

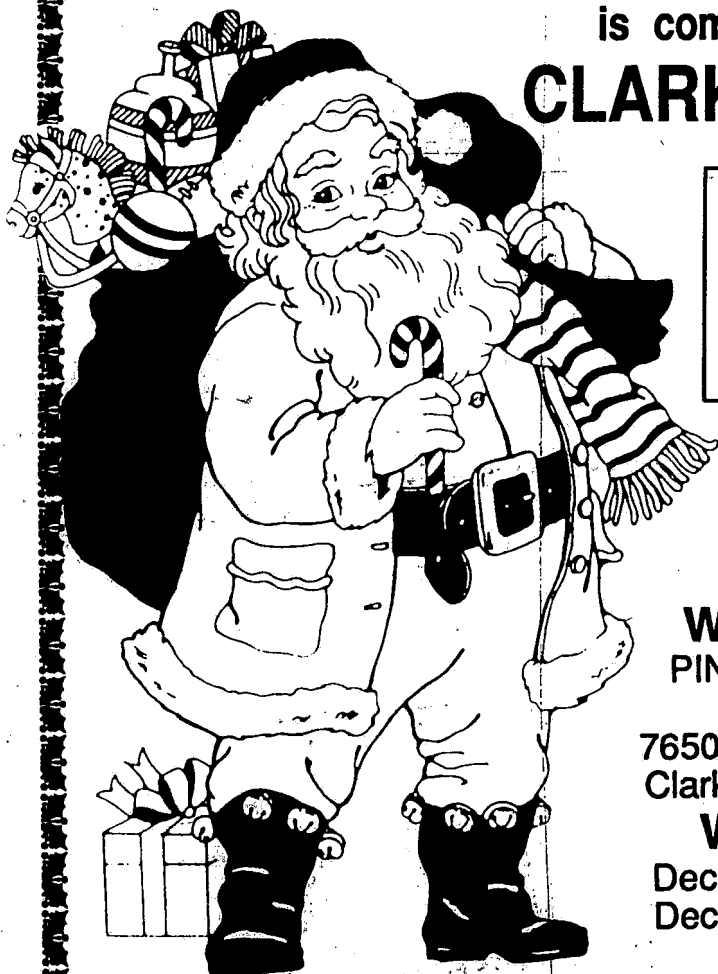

When London and Campbell qualified for the state meet last year, it broke a seven-year drought for the Wolves. The coach hopes to keep sending players annually.

"We've got some really good individuals and a good junior class," he said. "We'll hold our own, but we have a lot of work to do."

The season begins Dec. 10 for the Wolves in the Ferndale Invitational.

Springfield Christian grad ready for college

Perry's great play as senior earns him a scholarship to play baseball next spring

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When he enrolls at Bowling Green State University next semester, a Springfield Christian graduate will renew a few friendly sports rivalries.

Randy Perry of Pontiac didn't need much convincing when offered a partial scholarship to attend the Ohio school.

"I wanted to play in the MAC (Mid-American Conference) real bad," he said. "The coaches seemed real down-to-earth."

Perry completed his senior year of high school at Springfield Christian Academy after two years at Pontiac Catholic.

At Springfield, he competed in basketball as well as baseball. He finished his prep campaign with a flurry and garnered interest from pro and college scouts alike.

Batting, Perry collected 22 hits in 44 trips to the plate, knocked in 11 runs and stole 22 bases as the top offensive threat for his club. He also took a regular turn in the pitching rotation and had a team-leading 1.49 earned run average en route to winning six-of-nine decisions.

Overall, he completed his prep career with a 26-7 record as a pitcher.

Impressive statistics drew college scholarship offers from across the country, but the Michigan native decided to stay close to home and close to family members.

Washington State, Missouri, South Carolina, Kent State and Seton Hall in New Jersey all were interested in obtaining Perry's talents for the next four years. Scouts from the Cincinnati Reds' major league baseball organization also contacted him, inquiring about signing him to a minor league contract.

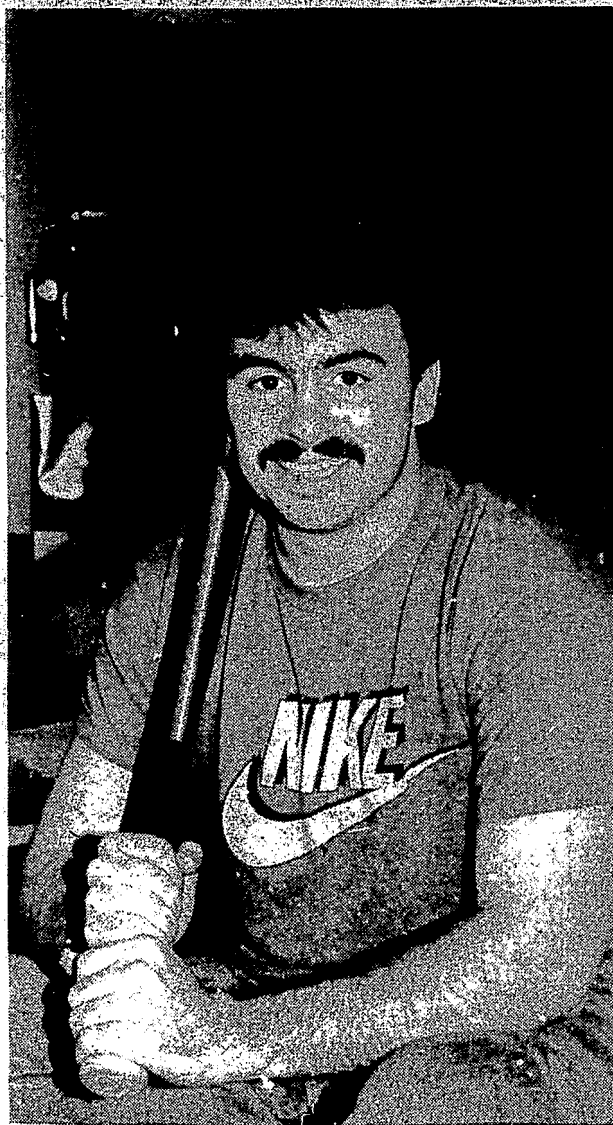

While being recruited, Perry was showered with attention, much to his liking.

"I used to get Christmas cards from them," he said. "It's kind of neat."

At Bowling Green, the left-hander will have a natural advantage over his teammates while fighting for a spot in the starting rotation. He is the only southpaw on the roster at this point.

Additionally, the coaching staff has indicated the switch-hitting speedster may play centerfield when he's not on the mound.

When baseball season rolls around in the spring, Perry will see some friendly faces in the Mid-American Conference. Clarkston High School graduate Jeff Tungate and Pontiac Central grad Shane Jackson are on the RANDY PERRY will begin his college days in January at Bowling Green and plans on playing for the varsity baseball team in the spring.

Eastern Michigan University team.

Perry and Tungate were teammates on the Pontiac Chiefs American Legion baseball team that made it to the 1988 World Series. Along with Waterford Mott's Brent Hayward, the threesome formed a powerful mound corps.

During his freshman year, the Springfield Christian grad hopes to establish himself as a force in the baseball program. If that happens, he'd like to try out for other sports.

"I might consider basketball or maybe football," he said. "I think that I can do it, but I have to prove it to the (baseball) coaches that I can handle it."

During his sophomore and junior years at Pontiac Catholic, Perry played football, basketball and baseball. When he graduates four years from now, he'd like to give professional sports a try.

"If it works out, great," he said. "If not, I still will have my education."

He plans to enroll in the business department during the upcoming winter semester and seeks a degree in business finance.

Free ski dates in '89

First-timers and senior citizens alike will be able to ski for free across Michigan in January on specific dates.

The Michigan Travel Bureau has just produced brochures outlining two special ski promotions: "Let's Go Skiing, Michigan!" (Jan. 20, 1989) for persons who have never, or have rarely skied, and Silver Streak Week (Jan. 30 to Feb. 3) for those 55 years of age or older.

The Learn to Ski Free brochure published by the travel bureau lists the 50-some resorts taking part in the "Let's Go Skiing, Michigan!" program.

Participating resorts will offer free beginner lessons and free beginner-area lift and trail tickets to novices who sign up in advance. Many also will offer free use of rental equipment to those who sign up in advance.

The Silver Streak Week brochure includes more than 40 downhill and cross-country facilities that will provide free lift tickets and cross-country trail passes to skiers who show proof that they are at least 55 years of age. Many will offer other special discounts, such as reduced rental prices, complimentary lessons and special lodging packages.

Copies of the brochures can be obtained by writing the state travel bureau at P.O. Box 30226, Lansing, MI 48909 or by calling 1-800-5432-YES. The hearing-impaired can call 1-800-722-8191.

Winter sports haven

Groomed cross-country ski trails, covering more than 8 miles, plus sledding are just two activities available at Indian Springs Metropark after a few good snowfalls.

The park, located on White Lake Road in Springfield and White Lake townships, also has a nature center with seasonal exhibits and park naturalists on duty. Nature trails are available for self-guided hikes.

Park hours are 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily. For more information, call 1-800-24-PARKS (toll free), ext. 182. A vehicle entry permit is required.

New outlook

Peter Auchter

Ah, the snow is falling on Main Street on a dreary Monday morning and all is right with the world once again.

Although plenty of people complain up a storm about Michigan weather, I couldn't imagine life being any better than what we experience every year around this time.

After a long hot summer (remember the long hot summer?) it's refreshing to experience a cooling off period. A time to bring the sweaters out of the closet and expand the old basic wardrobe.

It's also time for a whole new set of sports to watch.

Gone are outside games like football, cross country and golf. Basketball, volleyball and wrestling rise up to take their proper place in the hearts of all high school sports fans.

Let it snow, we'll go down to the basketball show. Or the wrestling show or the volleyball show. If that bores us to tears, there's always the ski team on the snowy slopes of Pine Knob.

Boy oh boy, do I remember the ski team, or more to the point -- the chilly weather. Standing at the end of the slope waiting for the skiers to swoosh down the hill with gloveless hands clutching an all-metal camera isn't a whole lot of fun. But it's worth the agony to see the team do well.

In fact, with the change of seasons under way everybody in the sporting world seems to be doing well.

Protect against overexertion after storm

Physical overexertion is one of the most serious side effects of a winter storm.

Overexertion can strike anyone, even the young and healthy. Elderly people and those with heart conditions are especially vulnerable.

"Everyone, regardless of age or physical condition, should take precautions to avoid becoming overworked," said Gail Christie, manager of Oakland County EMS/Emergency Management. "Staying inside during storms of severe cold is one easy way to avoid unnecessary risks."

Christie also suggests pacing outdoor activity or asking friends to help out as other simple precautions to avoid overexertion.

Oakland County EMS/Emergency Management offers several other hints to help residents stay warm and dry this winter:

Protect your lungs from extremely cold air by covering your mouth with a scarf or bandana.

Take a thermos of warm beverage with you when outside for an extended period of time.

Wear several layers of loose-fitting clothing to trap body heat while permitting air to circulate.

Remove layers of clothing to avoid perspiration and subsequent chill.

Wear tightly woven and water-proof clothing as outer garments.

Wear mittens snug at the wrist rather than fingered gloves.

Wear a wool cap to keep your body heat from escaping.

JV hoops team ready to repeat success in '89

If the junior varsity basketball team can avoid injuries to its starters, the Wolves should have no problems repeating last year's outstanding record.

Several players from the highly successful 17-3 team were promoted to the varsity squad, but plenty of new faces have provided Coach Tim Kaul with plenty of talent.

Center Bill Knight, who went down with a knee injury last season, should return strong and get the game experience he needs to improve.

Junior Scott Trekman, who played for Kaul last year, provides the experience the Wolves will need while the new players get their feet wet.

Players added from Sashabaw Junior High include Chris Wasilk, George Crouch and Greg Heaton. The coach considers Wasilk a talented point guard, Crouch a good intelligent player and Heaton a steady performer off the bench.

Another top reserve figures to be Clarkston Junior High product Chad Hetherington, who will sub at guard for the Wolves. Other former CJH students on the roster include 6-foot-2 Mike Stoutenburg and Jerrod Johnson. Stoutenburg has a decent shot and rebounds well, while Johnson is a strong and quick player, the coach said.

Despite facing another tough schedule in the year ahead, Kaul expects his troops to handle each obstacle as they arise.

"I think I'll have a decent team," he said. "I'm optimistic about the season. I'm looking forward to it."

Clarkston opens the season Friday on the road against Redford Catholic Central 6 p.m.

VARSITY PLAYERS surround the basket in search of a rebound during a practice session last week at the high school. The regular season begins Friday night.

Local boy captures role of Tiny Tim

His brother also appears in Meadow Brook Theatre's 'A Christmas Carol'

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Two Springfield Township children are part of the cast bringing "A Christmas Carol" to the stage of Meadow Brook Theatre on Oakland University's campus near Rochester.

Nine-year-old Chad Holmes, a third-grader at Oakland Christian School in Auburn Hills, portrays Tiny Tim Cratchit in the Charles Dickens classic.

The Clarkston News

Reflections

His brother, 7-year-old Bryan, a first-grader at Oakland Christian School, has several smaller roles. He portrays Ignorance (who, along with Want, appears with the Spirit of Christmas Present). He also plays one of Belle's children, one of the Fezziwig guests and a Londoner.

The boys are the children of Dana and Nancy Holmes of Clement Road in Springfield Township. They auditioned along with 30 children in mid-November for the four or five roles.

Both are "stage wise," according to their mother. Chad also performed in the Oakland University production of "Carousel" and both children have performed in numerous Oakland Christian School plays and concerts. Both boys also play the piano.

They have to miss 14 days of school to meet the demanding production schedule of "A Christmas Carol," but Nancy says they are good students and she worked it out with the school in advance.

Chad completed all two weeks' worth of his homework over the Thanksgiving weekend.

A technical rehearsal earlier this week from noon to midnight illustrates the kind of hours the boys have been putting in. There have been 16 rehearsals since the play was cast.

CHAD HOLMES of Springfield Township appears as Tiny Tim with Thom Haneline as his father, Bob Cratchit, in Meadow Brook Theatre's production of "A Christmas Carol."

But they don't seem to mind. Both say they enjoy playing the different characters that being in plays allows. And they both say being in this play was a lot of fun.

Nancy, while busy shuttling the boys back and forth to practices, is happy that her sons have the opportunity to perform.

"I suppose I do it because my mother had me on the stage at age 5," she says, and she continued to be involved throughout her school years. "It's just a natural part of me, and I think they have the ability."

"A Christmas Carol" stars Hollywood actor Booth Colman in the role of Ebenezer Scrooge. The production opens Dec. 1 at 8 p.m. for a 44-performance run through Jan. 1.

Tickets for "A Christmas Carol" may be arranged by calling 377-3300.

BROTHERS Chad Holmes, 9, and Bryan Holmes, 7, are performing in "A Christmas Carol."

Chamber workshop focuses on health insurance

A health insurance program available to small businesses that are members of the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce will be the topic of discussion at a workshop Tuesday, Dec. 6.

The session with area insurance providers is planned from 8:30 to 10 a.m. at the Spring Lake Country Club on Maybee Road, Independence Township.

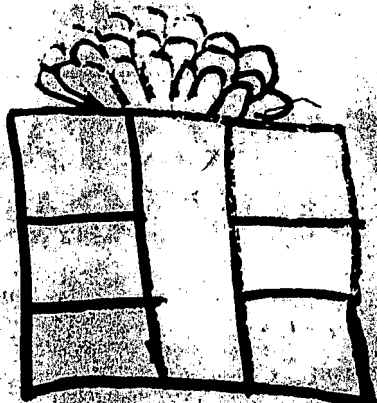

United Chambers Insured Plans is a small group health program available to businesses with one to 50 employees. The program, which has no occupational exclusions, allows the business owner and the insurance providers to arrange a benefit structure to fit the needs of each class of employee.

Members of the Chamber or those who plan to join may attend the workshop. For more information, call the Chamber office at 625-8055.

Christmas

Christmas is for loving.
Christmas is for giving.
Christmas is for having fun.
Christmas is for the delicious food.
Christmas is for the wonderful smell.
Christmas is for hearing the excitement.
Christmas is for decorating the tree.
Christmas is for being with your family.
Christmas is for being with your friends.

Help's available on winter gas bills

Consumers Power Company is alerting senior citizen and low income customers that they can sign up for the winter protection plan, which reduces natural gas bills during the coming months of high energy demand.

Under the winter protection plan, actual costs are then paid during the remainder of the year when energy demand is lower.

The plan assures participants of continued heat service during December, January, February and March. The program is administered by Consumers Power and was initiated by the Michigan Public Service Commission in 1981.

Senior citizens age 65 and older, and low-income customers on the plan make monthly payments in the winter equal to a portion of their actual bill plus a partial payment of any outstanding energy bill debt in exchange for protection from gas service shutoff. The balance of the payment is made up during the remainder of the year.

Consumers Power offers a number of other payment assistant programs. More information can be obtained by calling 858-2500.

HUGE SIGNS in the windows of an M-15, Independence Township, residence proclaim the news about owner Mike Madison's 40th birthday.

Birthday surprise

Marty Wilson felt good herself last week when she pulled one over on her brother, Mike Madison.

In honor of Mike's 40th birthday Nov. 22, Marty, a media paraprofessional at Pine Knob Elementary School, decorated his house during her lunch hour.

She planned it so huge posters telling Mike's age would greet him when he arrived at his M-15, Independence Township, home after work Tuesday.

"It's all in fun," she said. "He gave me one of those, 'Look who's 40' kits, so I wanted to be one up on him. He's usually on the perpetrator's side. He's never on the receiving end."

Laughing, she explained that the decorations were just a part of their "family, fun-type" jokes that they've played on each other over the years.

"It just seemed like the thing to do," she said. "He'll probably laugh. I hope he'll laugh. I hope he'll still speak to me when we have his birthday dinner tonight at my mother's."

Their mother, Eileen Madison, also resides in Independence Township.

New arrivals

Karl Lynn was born Oct. 26 at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac, to Jeff and Tina Fisk of Oxford. She weighed 6 pounds, 14 1/2 ounces and measured 20 inches long.

Waiting at home for his new sister was 2-year-old Ryan.

Great-grandparents are Vesta DaFoe of Sterling and Harry Boutin of Plymouth, Mass.

Cody John was born Nov. 9 at Crittenton Hospital, Rochester, to Dave and Debbie Bridgewater of Independence Township. He weighed 8 pounds, 2 ounces and measured 22 1/2 inches long.

Waiting at home for her new baby brother was Bliss, age 2.

Grandparents are Jim and Joyce Fisk of Independence Township, Mary Glover of Independence Township and John Bridgewater of Waterford.

Great-grandfather is Harry Boutin of Plymouth, Mass.

Alan and Melissa Solley of Brandon Township welcomed their third child into the world Oct. 3.

Annemarie Cynthia weighed 6 pounds, 15 ounces and measured 19 1/4 inches long.

She was also greeted by her sister, 4 1/2-year-old Ashley, and brother, Alex, 3.

Grandparents are Beatrice Solley of Brandon Township and Miles and Marilyn Wallace of Roscommon.

Great-grandparents are A. E. Anderson of Drayton Plains.

At college

Kimberly Foy of Goodrich and Lorna Hall of Independence Township have been elected president and vice president, respectfully, of the Student Government Council at the University of Michigan-Flint.

Foy, a senior majoring in education, is the daughter of David and Wilda Foy of Goodrich.

Hall, a sophomore majoring in accounting, is the daughter of Delray and Nina Hall of Independence Township.

Jeffer Kar has pledged the Beta Chapter of Gamma Phi Sorority at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, and will initiate in January. She is the daughter of Clarkston area residents Myron and Geraldine Kar.

Staff Sgt. and Mrs. Stephen (Jan) Finch of Moorehead City, N.C., welcomed the newest addition to their family on Oct. 18.

Abbey Sherron was born in North Carolina, weighing 7 pounds 10 1/2 ounces.

Waiting at home for his new sister was 3-year-old Zachary.

Grandparents are Marlin and Jean Sherron of Moorehead City, N.C., and James and Barbara Finch of Clarkston.

FELT BANNERS receive some final touches from Alternative High School teacher Betsy Travis and one of her students, Tina Estes. The 25 banners adorned the ceiling of the Clarkston Learning Center at a fall open house and ice cream social earlier this month. Each of the 25 flags presented a program offered through Clarkston schools Community Education. The learning center houses 10 of the programs and the remainder are provided in district school buildings wherever space permits.

Through The Eyes of a Homeless Child

Oh, how long have I looked at those Christmas lights on these cold and lonely winter nights.
My friends and I live on this street
longing for a nice toasty heat.
Oh, how we wish someone would care and bring us something warm to wear.
Those lights are the prettiest things I have to see and I wish somebody would be nice to me.

The smell of Christmas,
The pretty white snow.

On Christmas, I know.

When it gets to be 10 below,
I play outside in the snow.
When the wind begins to blow,
It freezes me from head to toe.
Now it's almost Christmas Eve,
And it's time for me to leave,
I'll try to get a good night's sleep,
I doubt I'll hear a mouse peep.
When I finally wake up,
I hope I'll see a baby pup.

Friend to Friend

Tired of listening

Dear Friend to Friend:

I have a friend that is having problems in her life. My problem is that she always comes to me for advice. I don't mind this part because I want her to be happy.

I try to be objective and make her think about what she says and how she feels so she can answer her own problems.

The thing is, she never seems to do anything about it. I feel that she only wants to feel bad and not solve the problem. I keep trying to help her, but I can't make her do anything she doesn't want to.

I'm tired of listening to her talk about it if she won't do anything to solve her problem. How can I help myself but keep her from being upset or feel she can no longer come to me?

TIED

Dear Tired:

You already answered this one yourself. Some people do like to wallow in their own misery. A good response to your friend is, "You have two choices -- you can do something to change this, or you have to accept the situation as it is."

Sometimes when you let someone keep talking on and on they don't have the energy to put their talk into action. By staying in the role of a listener, you don't make them do anything about their problems.

If you have the energy to keep listening this way -- where is the problem?

If your friend isn't willing to take action, then you only have two choices: Keep listening to her misery or do something to change this. (Sound familiar?)

Doing nothing to change this is making a decision, and you also have to decide how much you are willing to put up with.

Good luck!

Dear Friend to Friend:

I have recently turned 16 and am very anxious to drive. However, my parents won't understand that I want to drive. They claim I'm not mature enough, not responsible enough, not trusting enough.

I hate it!!! In my opinion, I am a pretty good driver in comparison with my friends. I got all A's in driver's training.

Being in 11th grade, it is hard to function without a license. My parents keep telling me to wait, but I have a feeling that if given the chance they'd put it off until I'm 18.

I can't wait. How can I convince them to give me a life? Thanks.

ON THE GO WITHOUT WHEELS

Dear On the Go Without Wheels:

We can understand how you feel about your situation. It's hard to get around at your age especially if you're very involved with school or other projects or if your parents are not willing to be a "taxi service."

Maybe we can give you some insight into how your parents might be feeling. First, what your parents see may be different from how you perceive yourself.

Do you act immature? Have they had reason not to trust you? Do you have a good grasp on your responsibilities?

You will have to take a good, honest look at yourself to answer these questions, and you might have to make major changes in these areas. After you come to term with these areas, you need to talk to your parents about your feelings.

Don't do this at a time when you are both tired, angry or there is tension. Try to compromise with what their concerns are and what you are willing to do to meet them half-way.

Think about saving up for a car of your own -- you don't have to expect your parents to get you one. Perhaps it is the car insurance that is concerning them. In that case, you should save up to pay for that.

It is important that you show them you are responsible and trustworthy, and that you are mature enough to handle all that goes with driving a car.

Friend to Friend is written by a panel of Clarkston High School students working under AWARE, a community organization devoted to action and education against substance abuse. Letters may be addressed in care of The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Nivy needs new home

This beautiful, long-haired white cat would add a touch of class to any home. Niveous is her name, but she's called "Nivy" for short.

She is a 1-year-old feline who belonged to a family that just had too many cats. So Nivy is looking for a new home.

Nivy can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The adoption fee for Nivy is $45, which includes her spaying before leaving the shelter.

BRAKE PRICES?

UNTIL THEY PULL
THE WHEELS,
THEY'RE PULLING YOUR LEG.

Think about it. How do some brake places know what your next job'll cost if they've never seen your brakes to begin with? Answer: they don't.

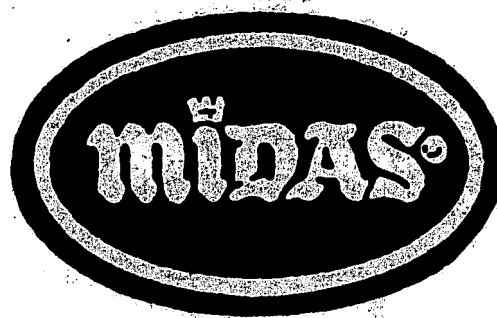

Fact is, there's no way anyone can figure out exactly what the price will be. There are just too many possibilities.

That's why at Midas, we pull all four wheels before every brake job. To get inside your brakes. To inspect them. To positively determine what's gone wrong. From a nine dollar can of fluid to a new master cylinder.

And when we're finished, we'll give you a pinpoint estimate of the entire job. With a price that won't go up when the job's done. That's our promise to you.

So when it comes time to pay, you'll have a leg to stand on.

Microwave Plus

Marvelous muffins

Betty Wagner

Last week, Anita Weston and I were exchanging a few pleasantries over coffee, salad and muffins at a local eatery.

As we discussed the various merits of muffins, Anita asked if cranberries could be added to the Bran Blueberry Loaf that was printed in Microwave Plus last August.

Little did Anita know the rich history surrounding the loaf batter, that I love to embellish on it and how far it's come.

I stopped at the store, bought the necessary ingredients with which to experiment and here are the results.

The base recipe I used was given to me by a former neighbor, Lorna Ostrander of Livonia. It has been a favorite of my son, Ron, since childhood.

I can remember carrying cans full of bran muffins to him in college. I especially felt they were my contribution to his success during exam week; kind of replaced helping during his early school years by asking spelling words.

So large boxes were shipped to Ron's room at the appropriate time. His roommates joked that they used to eat them until mold formed, and then Ron would finish them off.

The August recipe was for a microwave loaf, but I prefer to bake the batter as muffins in the traditional oven and reheat them in the microwave.

BRANBERRY-CRANBERRY NUT MUFFINS

Makes 3 dozen-plus muffins

- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 cup brand buds
- 1/2 cup vegetable oil
- 3/4 cup granulated sugar
- 2 large eggs

- 2 cups buttermilk
- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup whole wheat flour
- 2 1/2 teaspoons baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups all bran
- 2 cups fresh or frozen blueberries
- 2 cups fresh cranberries
- 1 1/2 tablespoons whole wheat flour
- 1 cup chopped walnuts

Measure water in a 2-cup Pyrex measure, cover, microwave 3 to 5 minutes or until boiling. Stir in bran buds. Set aside to cool.

In a large bowl, mix oil, sugar, eggs, buttermilk, flours, soda, salt and all-bran. Mix in the cooled bran buds.

Measure blueberries into a 4-cup Pyrex measure. Defrost at 30 percent power for 2 minutes. Stir and defrost for 1 to 2 more minutes. Ice crystals may still be on berries. Let stand for several minutes to completely defrost.

Wash and pick over cranberries. Drain and pat dry with paper toweling.

Mix chopped walnuts, defrosted blueberries and cranberries with 1 1/2 tablespoons whole wheat flour. Fold into bran batter.

Bake in preheated 400 degree oven for 20 minutes.

Tip: If you use foil laminated baking cups, you can bake about 20 at a time on a cookie sheet, but remove the muffins from foil liners before reheating in microwave.

Home economist Betty Wagner resides in Independence Township. Her "Microwave Plus" cable TV programs airs on Independence-Clarkston Channel 65.

Frozen battery alert

Beware of charging dead batteries during cold winter weather.

Oakland County EMS/Emergency Management personnel warn car owners to be cautious trying to charge or jump start frozen batteries. Attempting to charge a frozen battery can cause an explosion.

"Car batteries can freeze at temperatures below 15 degrees Fahrenheit. To avoid any risk of injury, remove the batter from the car and take it inside to warm up," said Gail Christie, manager of Oakland County EMS/Emergency Management.

Christie offers these tips to help motorists avoid mishaps caused by trying to energize a frozen car battery:

- Charge the battery only in a well-vented area.
- Be sure the water is at the proper level and place a damp cloth over vent caps.
- The charger switch should be in the "off" position and unplugged before connecting or disconnecting it.
- Make the positive (+) connection first, then the negative (-).

—CAUTION: Do not smoke or light a match when working with a battery.

When using booster cables:

- Make sure they are of the same voltage.
- Connect the positive to the positive and the negative to the negative.
- Start the engine and remove the cables in reverse order.

Flowery fund-raiser

Holiday poinsettias to brighten your home can also benefit Clarkston High School students.

The school's Parent Volunteer Organization is sponsoring the flower sale. Pink, white, multicolored and traditional red poinsettias are available for $10 apiece.

To place an order, pick up a form in the CHS office or call 625-0900.

The plants will be ready for pick up on Thursday, Dec. 8, from noon to 7 p.m. and Friday, Dec. 9, from noon to 5 p.m.

Best defense: Stay informed on bad weather

Ignorance can be your worst enemy during a Michigan winter.

Your best defense against winter storms is keeping informed about weather conditions.

"A few hours warning can be the difference between being caught in a storm or being safe at home," said Gail Christie, manager of the Oakland County EMS/Emergency Management. "We urge all Oakland County residents to stay informed about weather conditions in their area."

There are several ways for Oakland County residents to keep up with changing weather developments. The first, and easiest way, according to Christie, is to listen to local television and radio forecasts. Also, a tone alerting receiver system is available by purchase through EMS for businesses and residents.

The receiver system is activated when the National Weather Service issues a severe weather alert. The Oakland County EMS/Emergency Management's 24-hour personnel then broadcast detailed weather information over the receivers.

The second step to keep informed is to familiarize yourself with terms used by the weather service.

Terms commonly used in winter weather forecasts include:

Winter Storm Watch — Severe weather conditions may affect your area.

Winter Storm Warning — Severe winter weather conditions are imminent.

Blizzard — A heavy accumulation of snow accompanied by winds of more than 35 miles per hour.

Farm couple make home-grown crafts

Sheepskin creations, attic-dried flowers and herbs are country business

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

There really are swallows' nests in the wooden beams above the "Swallow's Nest" gift shop.

The little shop occupies a portion of a big red barn at the 40-acre farm of Bob and Burdette Chapman near Davisburg in Rose Township.

Customers who visit the shop are first treated to the visual delights of a picturesque rural setting: a long drive flanked by fences and swans swimming gracefully in a pond.

A neat white farmhouse built in 1907 sits on one side at the end of the drive, and the two-story barn, with a sign announcing the Swallow's Nest, sits on the other.

A trim white-haired lady bustles out of the house with a big smile when you drive up.

"I really don't have that many customers at the house here," she tells you.

Most of her customers come to the permanent stall she maintains at the Oakland County Farmers Market. The market is open on Thursdays and Saturdays, and in the winter, only on Saturdays. But the business keeps Burdette and her husband, a retired chemical engineer, busy building new crafts.

For the first time, they will also have a booth at the annual Davisburg Christmas Craft Festival this year. The eighth annual festival takes place Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 3 and 4, in the Springfield Oaks Activities Center on Andersonville Road near Davisburg.

At the Swallow's Nest, customers can find dried flower arrangements, grapevine and herb wreaths, and almost anything that can possibly be made from sheepskin. There are slippers, hats, mittens, vests, ear muffs, wool-filled comforters and even little decorative sheep on wooden stands.

The Chapmans raise an endangered species of sheep called Cotswold, with curly, mohair like coats, and another more common species known as Corridale. They also grow flowers and herbs that are dried for the crafts.

Burdette dries the flowers in the attic of their home. When winter weather made the attic too cold for drying, her husband invented a drying machine to do the job.

The couple also create their crafts in the home. There are six bedrooms, one for sewing, one for making wreaths, one for storing supplies. That leaves one for the Chapmans and two for guests.

"We had eight children when we moved here," Burdette says. "But they have all grown, and now we have the place to ourselves."

Burdette got plenty of sewing experience raising eight children but didn't begin her crafting hobby in earnest until about 10 years ago when she created a baby's breath wreath. When her husband retired, she got him involved in the crafts, too. He makes many of the sheepskin items.

Tucked among the gifts and crafts in the Swallow's Nest are antiques, prints and a picture of the Farmers Market that includes Burdette in her booth.

BURDETTE CHAPMAN shows some of the crafts and gifts available at her shop, the Swallow's Nest. She will display her wares at the upcoming Davisburg Craft Festival.

"An artist painted it, and I just had to buy it," she says with a smile.

Outside the Chapmans' barn, sheep mill around in large corrals. Sometimes, there are new baby lambs to delight visitors.

The Chapmans are the fourth owners of the farm originally built by a family named Gordon. Then there were the Suttons and the Kallases before the Chapmans bought the place to farm 15 years ago.

But the crafts are what keep Burdette happy.

"I just love doing it," she says. "I can't imagine what we'd do if we didn't do this."

Craft festival details

The eighth annual Davisburg Christmas Craft Festival will once again take on the atmosphere of an early 1800s Christmas village, where visitors can stroll through dozens of village craft booths and working demonstrations.

The Christmas Craft Festival will take place Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 3 and 4, from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Springfield Oaks Activities Center, 12451 Andersonville Rd. in Springfield Township.

The Springfield Township Young at Heart senior citizen group will have a "variety store" booth featuring many hand-crafted items. They will also sell raffle tickets for prizes including first prize of a linen chest filled with an afghan and other items for the home.

In addition to crafters offering everything from pottery and victorian crafts to artwork and Christmas decorations, there will be a variety of food booths.

Strolling Dickens characters and carolers will help Santa and his elves delight visitors.

Parking and admission are free.

Crafters interested in having a booth or anyone wishing more information on the annual Christmas Craft Festival may call Helen Vergin at 634-9410.
