Independence building activity rises for 1988

BY TRACY KING Clarkston News Staff Writer

Contrary to expectations, building activity was up slightly in Independence Township during 1988.

'I think it's going to continue," said Beverly McElmeel, township building department director.

Total building permits issued for residential and commercial structures were 675 in 1988, compared with 601 issued for 1987.

Although residential permits dipped slightly to 233 from 244, commercial permits increased from four to six.

"Ritter's car wash was brand new last year," McElmeel explained. "They developed a beautiful struc-

Apartment and condominium activity picked up substantially in 1988, McElmeel added. The number of permits issued in 1988 jumped to 178 for $8.1 million worth of building, from 74 for $4.7 million worth of building issued the year before

Mechanical permits issued for electrical, plumbing and heating activity fell slightly from 1987 totals. Mechanical permits for 1988 were 2,036 compared with

Overall building activity in 1987 had remained steady from the year before, despite a slowdown in residential and commercial building from the recordbreaking year in 1986. At the beginning of 1988, McElmeel predicted that the year might follow trends set in

The steady growth exhibited in 1988, however, set trends that McElmeel expects will continue.

Among projects slated for this year are the Great Scott shopping center planned for Dixie Highway near Maybee Road, and the Northview Drive, M-15 project -an office/retail center now in construction review, McElmeel said.

from the icy water with a hockey stick at a pond near their Springfield Township home.

A closeness, made stronger by the battle they recently fought and won, is evident in the way they sit together to recount the events of that memorable early January evening.

As the two younger Zerba children gather quietly on either side of their mother, 10-year old Steven moves to sit with his father in an armchair.

"All of us went to go out skating," remembers Jon Zerba. "I had checked, and the ice was six inches thick on the pond. I had my tractor on it to plow the rink."

The pond is across the street from his home in Ellis Creek Estates, an arm of the Clinton River.

Mary Zerba and the two younger children had just begun to tie up their skates when Jon and his son Steven began to push the puck around.

"I shot the puck into the bank (of the rink)," remembers Steven, a bright, eager 10-year-old. "I stepped over, and my skate went through the ice."

Minutes later, Jon also stepped over the bank, and the family heard a crack that they'll never forget. Jon Zerba plunged into the icy water about 12 shore.

"He screamed and his stick flew up in the air," remembers Steven.

"I don't think I've ever been so scared in my life," Jon says. "The water took my breath away.

"I remember saying 'Steven, get me out, hand me your hockey stick," he adds.

Mary remembers the fear she heard in her husband's voice. "I have never seen him afraid of anything before, but I could tell he was really afraid."

'My motion started to slow down; I could feel it happening. My temperature dropped, and it became hard to tread water," Jon says.

Steven, a Boy Scout, kept a clear head and worked to avert the tragedy. He first stood about a foot from where his father fell through the ice, and tried unsuccessfully to reach him with his stick.

Then, forgetting his brand-new ice skates, Steven rushed around to the edge of the pond and waded (See BOY, next page)

Chop House rumor untrue

BY TRACY KING Clarkston News Staff Writer

When The Clarkston News got a tip that we may have a London Chop House investor in our midst, we decided to check it out.

Just that very morning, news reports said that a group of investors had silently put together an investment package to save the financially-troubled Detroit landmark restaurant.

At three in the afternoon, the call was put through to the suspected investor.

"Is this Richard Kuhn Jr., (known to be an Independence Township resident and commissioner on the Oakland County Board of commissioners)?"

After answering affirmatively, Kuhn was asked the million dollar question.

"Are you one of the investors in the chop house, Mr.

The answer came with a whoop. "This is almost getting funny," Kuhn said incredulously. "You're the second person that has called me today with that ques-

"I just graduated from law school," he insisted, as if that would preclude any suspicion that he could afford a chop house investment.

'I do have an IRA," he offered, adding that he did not have the kind of money needed to save the chop

Kuhn surmised that he may be confused with a Mr. Kughn, a name that is pronounced "coon," like his own. Kuhn said he has read about Kughn and his dealings in Detroit involving classic cars. A case of mistaken identity, to be sure, but one that Kuhn didn't seem to mind too much.

Meeting on growth

Citizens concerned about growth are invited to attend a meeting of the Northern Area Citizens Conference (NACC), comprised of residents from Independence, Oxford, Addison, Orion, Metamora and Dryden townships.

The meeting is set for 12:45 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 4, at the Oxford Public Library, 20 W. Burdick St., Oxford.

NACC, a non-profit organization, plans to incorporate and to select a board of directors. One of the group's goals is to better local government.

Wint elected parks chairperson

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

Lewis E. Wint of Clarkston was appointed to his: sixth consecutive three-year term on the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission and his twelfth consecutive term as chairman.

Wint is funeral director of Lewis E. Wint & Son Funeral Home at 5929 M-15, Clarkston. He is appointed to the parks commission by the Oakland County Board of Commissioners.

"I guess I'd like to think (they appoint me) because I've done a good job, or it wouldn't happen," Wint said in a telehone interview.

"Of all the things I've done in community service, this would be the hardest to give up," he continued. "It's so positive, seeing people using the facilities. It's a happy thing and makes me feel

The Oakland County park system is known throughout the country for quality and variety, he said. "No other system in the world has two wave pools. Wint said one reason he wants to remain a part of the commission is because they are in the beginning stages of Orion Oaks, a park which will offer facilities for the handicapped.

"This is special to me," he said. "I've been a part of it since the original concept."

The Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission is a policy-making, 10-member commission for the nine county parks. The system includes two waterparks, four golf courses, campgrounds, a nature center, mobile recreation, activities centers, and special events.

"I think the make-up the commission has from around the county gives a great deal of credibility to the professional people who work at the parks," Wint said. And we are responsible to the residents. So many people feel they can't get close to government. But here are 10 lay people available. I think people appreciate the commission."

Ralph Richard, manager of the Oakland County park system, echoed Wint's words.

The commission has a commitment to better life for Oakland County residents. We're not competing with local parks and recreation commissions, but finding our own niche, offering things that towns can't, and leaving green space for people to enjoy."

He also had praise for Wirt, saying that he is a person dedicated to seeing that life is better for other

"He is a very open chairman and gives everyone a chance for input," Richard added. "He is sensitive to the things (the park system) is doing."

"He stepped on the ice, and went through it, but he never panicked," Jon says.

Steven finally reached his father, held out the stick and pulled him to safety.

"I just wanted to get (the stick) to him, and stay calm," Steven recounts modestly.

When Jon emerged from the water he says he undressed and just stood there.

"I was red as could be, and I just didn't know what to do next," Jon says.

The family spent a sleepless night "thanking their lucky stars."

"If he (Steven) wasn't there, to this day I don't know if I would've made it," Jon says.

"He's my hero," he adds proudly, hugging his son.

'Waste is not waste unless it's wasted'

Ardath Regan speaks to League and urges all to reduce, reuse, recycle and recover

BY JULIE CAMPE Clarkston News Editor

Standing tall in the Independence Township Board room last week before visitors from all over northern Oakland County, Ardath Regan talked, of McDonald's wrappers and milk cartons and empty glass jars. She spoke of "curb-it" boxes and of newsprint and plastic.

Her words of warning may have surprised some of the about 45 people attending the League of Women Voters meeting Jan. 23. Like most people, the audience members probably bundle their trash into nice, neat plastic bags and placed them at the end of their driveways only have them disappear before they return home from work.

But unless we face ourselves early, like right now, Regan told the audience, the future of Oakland County and the rest of the state and country will be filled with plastic foam Big Mac cartons and Styrofoam cups.

Water, earth, plants, wildlife and even humans could suffer from the waste that can no longer be buried beneath the sand and forgotten.

"Until recently, I thought all solid waste was in diapers," she said to start off her presentation.

Regan has since learned differently. Now she chairs Michigan's Toxic Substance Control Commission and is vice chairperson of Oakland County's Municipal Solid Waste Board. She also serves as president of the Holly Village Council.

The waste management problems in the entire world are at a crucial point, and counties across the U.S. are beginning to address them. But local communities should get involved now, she said.

Oakland County now has long-term waste management plans, which call for an incinerator and a large landfill.

"I celebrate it because years ago, Oakland County had one plan -- landfill, landfill, landfill," Regan said.

"We were so sure that if we just incinerated everything landfills would go away. Well, that's simply not true. Oakland County has approximately five years left in its landfills. No amount of recycling or incineration will keep us from needing a landfill."

A committee will soon be searching for a landfill site at least 360 acres in size that would last 40 years, she said.

"There's not a citizen in Oakland county that wants one of these things in their backyard. But you know, folks, we can't ship it to the moon. We can't send it all to Genesee County. We have to take responsibility for ourselves."

In the Village of Holly, the citizens have been doing just that by recycling some of their waste.

They received $15,000 from a special Oakland County fund set up to encourage such local efforts, and they bought curb-it boxes to give to their residents.

"We've become the planet where garbage barges float down the river with nowhere to land."

Ardath Regan

Young people went door-to-door and talked people into joining the program. All residents had to do was place newspaper (no shiny ads or magazine-type paper) and clean glass containers (labels are QK, but not the metal or plastic rings around the necks) in the new tough plastic (recycled, of course) boxes and place it at the end of their driveways every other week.

Employees from Holly's department of public works pick up the curbside boxes and take them to the village's processing center, where they're stored until sold to dealers.

While Holly employees run the center, people from all over -- from Genesee County to Birmingham -- use it, said Regan, adding that outside users are just people who are aware and concerned about the waste problems.

ARDATH REGAN explains the simplicity behind the Village of Holly's recycling program with: "Waste is not waste unless it's wasted."

Now, computer paper and school papers are being recycled, too. And next month, DPW workers will pick up hard plastic, such as milk cartons. An Ionia, Mich., plant will add the plastics together and make plastic wood, Regan said.

"If you happen to have a pig farm, it absolutely outlasts the pigs for a trough," she said, adding the substance is not toxic. She gave good reasons for recycling the other materials, too.

"Newspaper becomes a heat-effective insulation processed right here in Michigan," she said. "It's also used in kitty litter."

Recycling newspapers reduces the solid waste in landfills, and 50 percent of the solid waste in landfills is paper, she said.

Glass, about 8 percent of residential solid waste, can be crushed to make "cullet," which is mixed with sand, limestone and soda ash and is then melted. The molten glass can be molded into new containers.

Recycled glass can also be used in the manufacture of fiberglass, glass beads for reflective paint, road building materials such as glasphalt (asphalt in which glass is used as an aggregate) and construction materials such as sewer pipes.

"The Village of Holly doesn't want to go into business," Regan explained. "We want to kick it in the pants and get it going."

Before private enterprise gets started, though, Holly is filling in the gaps, said Regan.

Officials decided to offer an "adopt-a-truck" program; where residents can call and reserve a truck for an evening or a weekend and then fill it up with tree tops and trimmings that would normally be sent to a landfill; wasting valuable space.

After the allotted time period, a DPW person would pick up the truck and deliver the material to the processing center, which will turn the debris into compost.

"We have people standing in line for that truck," said Regan. "There's no liability, and it's one of our best programs.

"At times, leaves are as much as 50 percent of the solid waste flow that goes to landfills," she said. "Landfill space is very, very valuable, so it's ludicrous to put something there that can be reused."

Holly officials also will allow residents to "adopt-a-

me, you are paying dearly."

jug" that can be filled with used oil and then dropped off at the recycling center.

"One drop of used oil will destroy a bathtub of water," Regan said. "There is nothing that will destroy your groundwater faster than the material in that oil. And it can be recycled."

Other communities can and should start similar programs, she said. She used Canada as an example of great recyclers and reusers.

Citizens and industrialists alike are combining efforts there, she said. McDonald's agreed to stop using the plastic foam cartons and switch to paper.

"Canada got McDonald's to pull those off the market," Regan said. "These are the babies that when they go to the incinerators, they're the ones that cause PCBs (polychlorinated biphenyl -- a toxic chemical). Believe it or not, the Arches didn't mind becoming a leader."

Also in Canada, the biggest producer of Styrene egg cartons shut down and re-tooled to make only cardboard. "These people are committed," she said.

In the audience, state Representative Mat Dunaskiss (R-Lake Orion) said McDonald's had recently agreed to the same terms in Michigan.

Each person in the audience should think about recycling, reusing, reducing and recovering, Regan said.

"Somewhere in the next five to 10 years, every one of you are going to be faced with the decision of how many bags you will put to the curb. You will be charged per bag. This is the time for your savings account... If people learn now to divert their garbage flow, it will cost them less later when incineration starts."

Firefighting changes with the times

Now they're called to ice rescues, hazardous spills, medical emergencies

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

If the word fireman conjures up visions of a man whose only job is to put out fires, that vision is passe.

Even the name fireman is old-fashioned. Today they are firefighters, with many women among the ranks. And today, fighting fires is a small percentage of the many responsibilities of a firefighter.

Independence Township, with a population approaching 30,000, has a fire department consisting of 16 full-time employees and about 35 on-call firefighters.

Springfield Township, with a population of about 10,000, works with an on-call department only, consisting of about 30 firefighters.

While there is a big difference in population and department size in the two townships, they share a common phenomenon -- the diversification of the firefighter's role.

Medical emergencies composed between 40-60 percent of the two departments' runs in 1988. Assisting in hazardous spill clean-ups, ice rescues, and other emergencies are also a part of the firefighters responsi-

Fighting fires, including structures, vehicles and brush or rubbish fires accounted for less than half of the activity last year at either fire department.

Of the 1,343 runs in 1988 made by the Independence Township Fire Department, 776, or about 60 percent, were medical runs. Sixty-seven were for structure fires; 47, vehicle fires; 76, brush or grass fires; 47, trash fires; 87, lock outs, and 33, fuel spills. There are other services, too, some offered by the department for years, such as commercial building inspections.

From 1983 to 1987, the number of total runs in Independence Township increased from 943 to 1,278. Even in 1983, the medical emergencies comprised 343 of "The medical is changing, but now there is also hazardous materials," said Gar Wilson, Independence Township Fire Chief, "And mandatory firefighters training set by the state."

"All areas are getting more sophisticated," he added. "Look at the cold water rescue and the Jaws of Life.'

Rescuing people from icy water is done by personnel in specialized rescue suits. Jaws of Life equipment is used to extricate people from vehicles in accidents. It can even be used to cut the tops off cars to get at the victims.

The equipment is expensive, but if it saves lives, it's worth it, Wilson said. Much of it can be updated rather

E.M.S. (Emergency Medical Service) skills need constant updating as more sophisticated skills are needed by the firefighters, who work in conjunction with private ambulance services by stabilizing patients until the ambulance arrives:

Why have medical runs become so large a percentage of the fire departments activities?

Because doctors quit making house calls. It got to be too much," Wilson said. "And, it's a matter of timing. We're quick. If we're a minute away, we might be able to Timing is one of the reasons the department was involved in hazardous materials, too.

"We had to go on the calls, again because of timing, and the chance of fires," he said. Since they had the equipment, assisting with hazardous materials became the fire department's responsibility.

They are involved with minimizing the hazard, according to Assistant Chief Gordon Mason, including evacuating the area, getting rid of ignition sources, etc. Someone else still has to come in and pick up the spill.

Ford tanker, also a pumper, in the background at Station No. 2. Pictured is Capt. Neil Ashley of the Independence Fire Department.

Computers have changed the department, too. They are even working on a program to tell them exactly what's in a building that is hazardous to the firefighters, Wilson said.

It's a far cry from the fire department of 1952 -- the first year the Independence Township Fire Department began operation. Before that, they operated in conjunction with the Clarkston village fire department, which began approximately in 1928.

National Fire Protection Association standards keep changing; the population keeps growing; equipment constantly needs updating.

"Every time we turn around, there's something new coming up," Wilson said.

He sees the department needing more specialists, more training down the road, and a shift to a full-time (See SKILLS, next page) operation.

"I really don't know how people keep up with this part-time," he said.

Currently, 264 hours of state training are required to be a firefighter.

Mason added that it is harder to get on-call firefighters now because of the time involved.

It is a problem shared by neighboring Springfield

"It takes a more dedicated individual," said Marlan

Hillman, Springfield Township Fire Chief. "It's a lot of work."

To become an on-call firefighter today requires 66 hours of advanced first aid and 19 hours of cardiopulminary resuscitation (CPR) in addition to other training, he said. There are also optional bi-monthly meetings to

In 1988, Springfield Township had 337 total runs. Forty-two percent, or 142, of those were medical runs. Of those 337 runs, 62 were for grass or rubbish fires, 6 were for chimney fires, 33 were building fires, and 32 were vehicle fires or wash downs (from a spill).

Between 1983 and 1987, the total runs increased from 227 to 295, with the number of medicals becoming an increasingly larger percentage.

"When the department first started (in 1948), we ran no medicals, just house, grass and car fires," Hillman said. "Forty years ago, the firefighter was no better prepared for a medical emergency than the average man on the street."

Medical runs began perhaps four or five years after the department started when they were called out to assist in rescues, he said. But they didn't really begin seriously until the early 1970's when they began state fire

"Now, if people have an emergency, they call us," he said.

Hillman anticipates growth over the next 10-15 years in this rural township to create the need for a fulltime fire department and more equipment. Back in 1966, the department had a modest 45-50 runs.

On our first truck, we had six helmets, six coats and six pairs of boots," he said.

In either township, firefighters still assist with downed wires, investigations and other miscellaneous services and emergencies.

Sometimes the department's idea of an emergency differs from the individual's, however.

"Once a fellow pulled the outside alarm because he had a flat tire," Hillman said.

One thing these firefighters don't do, contrary to common believe, is rescue cats from trees.

"But we'll loan you the ladder," Hillman quipped.

Local doctors sued over claims

A lawsuit filed by Blue Cross and Blue Shield against two Clarkston doctors is provoking anger from at least one of those charged.

According to the lawsuit, Dr. James A. O'Neill, who has an M-15, Independence Township office, is being sued for fraud, breach of contract and unjust enrichment in a case filed Jan. 26 in Oakland County Circuit Court. The suit also names Dr. Charles E. Yee, who works in the Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan, (BCBSM) is suing for more than $160,000 it alleges was wrongfully paid to pediatricians O'Neill and Yee, as a result of claims falsely filed by the two.

After the suit was filed, O'Neill explained that the action comes after eight years of disagreement between the two parties - a disagreement he thought was settled by a consent judgment in December, 1988, that requires BCBSM to pay attorney fees incurred by both sides.

The point of disagreement remains the same, said

"Blue Cross and Blue Shield does not pay their bills for what they represent to their subscribers," O'Neill

"They represent to employee group subscribers a benefit package and then represent something totally different to doctors," he added.

O'Neill said the disputed claims were submitted for patients using emergency services at the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center on M-15 in Independence Township.

"We would bill them, and in some cases they would clearly be emergencies, and in some cases it would be hard to tell.

Three years later, they have someone come and audit our charts -- and that person would have never seen the patient and say half these wouldn't have been emergencies," O'Neill said.

"They're making out that we have done wrong; they're playing very fast and loose with my reputation,'

O'Neill and Yee have until Feb. 17 to file an answer or take other lawful action. If they don't respond, judgment may be entered against the defendants for the amount outlined in the complaint.

"We will respond," O'Neill said.

Computer John Julie Campe

The first time my former roommate, Ida, and I met John was at one of those get-acquainted meetings they always have at the beginning of each year in college dorms.

The R.A., Michael, asked all of us from fourth-floor Garneau Hall at Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, to sit in a circle and tell something unusual about ourselves.

When John's turn came up, he paused an uncomfortably long time, and his face showed great concentration. Finally, he said there was nothing unusual about himself.

Fortunately, Rudi piped up and said, "Yes there is. John is the nicest person in this dorm."

John blushed at that, and we all felt good that Rudi saved him from the awkward moment. Although she had only known him for a few short hours, what she said turned out to be true. Ida and I met no one nicer than John that year.

The next time we saw him, he was working hard in the cafeteria. Pale and dark-haired, he moved as if he were much heavier than his thin frame showed. He would always smile a hello to you, but he couldn't stand to look you in the eye for very long.

We got to know him a little better over a few euchre games.

He was from Evart, a tiny town in the western part of the state, and he loved everything about computers. In Evart, he worked lots of jobs to save enough money for school. His favorite was entering data into new computer systems and at programing new systems. It seems that Evart, while isolated from much of the 20th Century, indulged in computers.

After a while, we found out that John's father was blind and wheelchair-bound as a result of diabetes, and his mother worked as a secretary in an Evart real estate office to support the family. The family didn't even own a car. The whole community, it seemed, made sure John got enough breaks to go to college.

At Western, John's eyes were wide almost all the time, seeing so many things for the first time,

For instance, there was the time Ida and I went shopping with him. For a whole month, John saved his paychecks from his cafeteria job. Then, he asked Ida and I if we would help him pick out some clothes

We were surprised, but we agreed. When we arrived at the shopping mall, John couldn't believe his eyes. He stood in the middle of the mall and looked all around, his mouth gaping in amaze-

In the soft-spoken way he has, he explained that he hadn't been in a shopping mall since he was a young child.

When we got his attention again, he said he needed two pairs of pants, a sweater and a shirt. We went to a men's shop, and again, John's mouth fall open

"So many pants," he said. The salesman only confused him by pulling out different styles and colors. John just stood there, unable to choose or speak.

In the end, Ida and I chose for him -- cords in beige and navy blue, an off-white shirt, and a beige v-neck sweater.

When we got back to fourth-floor Garneau, he thanked us profusely and offered to cook popoorn for our euchre game that hight.

I changed schools after that year, but when I visited Ida a year later, I also ran into John again. He was sitting in a computer room, and he was yearing new cords.

Letters to the Editor

From Lockerbie to Athens

Jan. 22, 1989 Athens

Greetings from Athens. In two days it will mark the fourth week that Carrie and I have been traveling.

So far, our trip has been more "people-seeing" than sightseeing. We've visited with friends in London, Scotland and now Athens. On the 24th, we will leave Athens and fly to India. For both of us, India is where the trip begins. Our first month of traveling is getting us ready for journeying in and about the vast sub-continent.

We landed in London a few days before New Year's. London attracts every nationality you can imagine. The whole British Empire collapsed and caved in on London. Pakistanis, Indians, Zulus, Kiwis, Jamaicans, Fijians, Aussies, (at least two Americans) plus a few million other assorted nationalities have changed the face of London forever.

While in London, we joined company with two Clarkstoners, Mike Kaul and Polly Hanson. The four of us went to the New Year's Day parade, where 15 of the 25 bands marching were from the states. Early on Jan. 3, we left London on a bus headed for Scotland.

Glasgow is 400 miles north of London. The further north from London you travel, the terrain changes accordingly, from plains outside of London, to rolling hills, to the dramatic highlands.

The highest mountain in the U.K. is found in north central Scotland. It's called Ben Nevis. It's elevation is 4,000 feet. For an American, a 4,000 foot mountain may not seem very high. If you go to Denver the average mountain is 10,000 feet. All true enough, and yet the highlands, including Ben Nevis, start at sea level. Denver is already at an elevation of one mile high, so a 10,000 foot mountain is actually 4,500 feet above the city. Perhaps this will help to put the Scottish Highlands into a different perspective. They are most impressive.

Now I must touch upon a tragedy. On the bus ride from London to Glasgow, Carrie and I talked excitedly about Scotland, viewed the English countryside and read

While reading the newspaper, I was aware that we had crossed the Scottish border. A while passed, and I noticed a mile sign stating: "Lockerbie 38." Then every few miles the signs were a countdown to the site of the worst air-disaster in Britain's history.

The whole bus was aware of being near Lockerbie. As we passed the exit for Lockerbie the traffic slowed to a halt. Suddenly viewed from our bus windowwas a scene of unforgettable horror.

Literally next to the road was the deep crater surrounded by the shells of burned out homes. This horror was compounded by the fact that what caused the air disaster over Lockerbie was the result of human evilness. The next day we watched in numb silence the live BBC broadcast of the Lockerbie memorial service.

In Scotland, we stayed in the small village of Rhu (pronounced Roo.) My family lived in Rhu for a few years, and we visited several friends. We headed back to London for a few days and flew to Athens.

In 1982 and 1983, my wife Carrie lived in Athens, so these past ten days have been more "people-seeing." We are staying in a delightful small hotel which overlooks the Acropolis. Our terrace has two views: To the right, the Acropolis; to the left an 11th century Byzantine Church.

We have climbed to the top of the Acropolis, visited the National Archaeological Museum, eaten with the Greeks in a different tavern nightly and now are preparing ourselves for our next stop -- India.

More impressions of our next trip-around-theworld when we reach India.

All the best, Clarkston. Tom Wilford

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

I just had an employee give me her two week notice.

There is certainly nothing unusual about that. With over 45 people working for you it's expected there will be movement.

What makes this 'quit' unusual is her reason. She has a job in Cairo. I asked Barbara Markell if that was Illinois. No, it's Egypt.

Why?

Why in the world would an otherwise intelligent, attractive, American woman want to go to the land of sand, hot tempers, and wall to wall people?

She has a thing for the Middle East. At Michigan State University one of her three majors was Middle East languages. She learned to speak and write Arabic.

So, what's taking her to Cairo? A long-time friend has a business there and wants Barb to work for him. The company makes hand painted scarves for belly dancers.

Can't you picture yourself breaking the news to your mother. 'Hey, mom. I just got a new job.' 'Wonderful!' What is it?' 'I'm going to Egypt to work for a company that sells hand painted scaryes to belly dancers.'

Mom and dad immediately get this picture in mind of Egypti Pyramids. Desert with unending sand piles. Bronze people. Turbined men and masked women. Garbage in the streets. Women bent over washing clothes in the middy Nile. Camels. Open air markets with unlimited diseases. Beggars galore.

'No, no, mom. It's not like that at all. It's Westcm. It's the most Western city in the Middle East. There-are Mariott, Hyatt, and Holiday Inn hotels. The women don't walk six paces behind the men. The snake charmers are in India not Cairo. They're fixing the Sphinx and archeological people are finding all kinds of historical stuff. Just look at National Geographic.'

'At least we can be thankful you're not a blond. You know what they say about the fascination men over there have for fairhaired girls. And, not just girls, Thear. Oh, I hope you know what you're doing. Where did we go wrong?'

'You didn't go wrong. This is a great opportunity for me to do what I've always wanted to. And, even if it doesn't work out, I have all my expenses paid for in advance. It'll be a great vacation.'

'You know how much we worry about you. Now you'll be right there with those awful Iranians and Kudafyi. You know how long they 've held those Americans hostage? And, now they say Kudafyi is going to make chemicals for guerillas. Who's to say there won't be a leak at the plant and the fumes come right over Cairo. You know the prevailing winds are in the west

'Mom, don't worry about me. I'll be all right.
I'll call you every day and write in between, It's the most exciting thing that's ever happened to me.
Believe me, first thing, I'll send you a scart.

Tribute to president successful

Thank you for the generous support you have given 3 me on the tribute to the president.

My heart was warmed when President George Bush, in front of a nationwide audience, paid tribute to outgoing President Ronald Reagan.

Immediately after taking the oath of office and before starting his inaugural address, President Bush turned his attention to the outgoing president and said, "President Reagan, on behalf of our nation, I thank you for the wonderful things you have done for America."

With that, America stood up and applauded this

During the last two months, as public awareness of the tribute grew, we were blessed with help from so many. Media attention grew, and we were able to forward our proposal to the executive director of the American Bicentennial Inaugural Committee, Stephen

With the help and support of Congressman William Broomfield's office, we were contacted by John Rivers of the transition team, who ran the concept through the press team just three days before the inauguration.

The event may not have happened exactly the way we proposed it, but it happened. It's wonderful to live in such a great country, where the average citizen can have dialogue with its leadership.

More letters are on Page 24.

I join with you in offering my prayers and support to our new president. He is a wonderful man, and our nation is blessed to have his leadership.

Again, thank you for the coverage.

The Roads We Travel

Road agencies become welfare agencies

In my last column, I indicated that millions of dollars of tax revenues intended for road maintenance and improvements were being spent to defend and settle liability claims against road agencies.

That represented millions of dollars that otherwise would have been available to correct the deficiencies alleged in the lawsuits. Was I suggesting that road agencies should not be held accountable for their actions or failure to act?

Absolutely not. It used to be that way. Public agencies used to be able to hide behind a doctrine called "sovereign immu-

It came from English law and the concept that the king could do no wrong, and thus the agents (or agencies) of the king could also do no wrong.

That protection is, for the most part, no longer available to road agencies in Michigan, although it still exists in some states. Road agencies must be held accountable, and I believe that liability has provided an additional incentive to improve their operations and the safety of the road system.

However, it is often not that easy to determine the cause of accidents and the degree of cause or "fault" of any one element.

There are three general causes involved in accidents: the driver, the vehicle, and the roadway.

A driver may be speeding in a car with very poor suspension and encounter a rough section of road. The results are that the driver loses control and has an accident. If the driver had been driving at the speed limit, or the car's suspension had been in good shape, or the road had been perfectly smooth; the accident probably would not have happened. So what caused the accident? Who is to blame and should pay for the resulting injuries?

I mentioned in my last column that sometimes road agencies are required to pay the full amount of the damages even though the jury finds the road to be only a partial and even a minor cause of the accident.

How can that happen? Let's say that in the above example, the driver was also drunk, and that the accident involved his car crossing the center line and striking another car head on, resulting in the young female passenger of the other car becoming a quadriplegic.

The damages are in the millions because that is what it will cost to take care of that girl for the rest of her

Because a thousand other cars had traversed that section of road that day, driving at the speed limit, and had not had an accident, the jury decides that the road is only 10 percent at fault.

However, the drunk driver only had $40,000 in insurance, has no other assets; and there is nobody else to collect from but the driver and the "deep pocket" of the road agency. The court decides that someone has to take care of the innocent girl, and since the road agency can afford it, the road agency gets to pick up the full bill.

The road agency has thus been set up as a welfare agency, but all it has is the road funds given to it to maintain and improve the roads.

Did you read my column on safety improvements? I put you in the position of a traffic engineer who has identified ten intersections and six curve locations where accidents were occurring, and something could be done to at least reduce the number of accidents.

Unfortunately, the engineer was only given enough funds to fix two intersections.

Was he negligent for not fixing the others? He didn't have the resources to do any more.

Was the road agency negligent for not giving him more funds when they would have had to cut back on snow and ice removal activities to do it, thus resulting in more accidents at other locations?

As you can see, there are no easy answers to the liability problem,

Just when I thought I'd heard - and written - everything about smelly, foolish enforcement of Detroit's parking laws, I heard from a woman who received a "gutter

She said it was a Detroit cop who told her "gutter ticket" is a term often used to describe a rip-off committed by parking meter officers. She asked that names be withheld from publication, but, if officials of the Municipal Parking Department are interested, I'd be pleased to put them in touch with her.

Let's call her Betty. She lives in Grosse Pointe Park and probably should be bronzed and displayed in Cobo Hall because, she said, she always shops in Detroit. How many suburbanites have you heard say that lately?

On Dec. 16, Betty wanted to turn off Audubon onto Warren, near Outer Drive. But there'd been an accident and traffic was backed up on Warren, so she pulled into a corner bus stop to wait for an opening. She estimated she was there "no more than 10 seconds."

A few weeks later, to her astonishment, Betty received an overdue notice from the Parking Violations Bureau. It said she owed $20 for a "coach stop violation" on Warren, Dec. 16, plus $5 for late payment.

Betty recalled that, while pausing in the bus stop, she "one of those little white" vehicles driven by meter maids. It was double-parked across the street. The officer didn't get out of the vehicle or give any other indication of intending to ticket Betty's car.

The vanishing ticket

That officer had to see that the accident and backedup traffic forced me to the curb for a few seconds," Betty

Betty phoned the Violations Bureau to complain about receiving an overdue notice for not paying a ticket she never received and didn't deserve. It didn't do any good. "A clerk said such things happen a lot, and I'd have to go to court if I wanted to fight the ticket." She couldn't do it over the phone or through the mail.

Betty told her sad tale to a friend who is a Detroit cop. He said she was just one more victim of a "gutter ticket." The meter officer turns in the city copy of the parking citation, getting credit for a job well done, and throws the cited motorist's copy in the gutter.

Most gutter-ticket victims pay up when they receive overdue notices for tickets never put on their cars. They think maybe the ticket blew off the windshield, or was swiped by a chiseler and put on another car to fool the meter maid. Maybe the victim forgot the infraction and lost the ticket. What the heck, it's only $20, which is cheaper than taking time off work to go to court. And the capitalized threat on the overdue notice is worrisome: Pay up or YOUR LICENSE TO DRIVE MAY BE WITHHELD.

Mark it down as just one more scam against motorists who'd rather pay than fight. It already has been reported here how parking department insiders can fix tickets by altering them to fit cars belonging to out-of-towners. And how officers can incet quotas by using computer links to ticket cars that were never even in Detroit. Now you know how the gutter can be used to screw citizens. Some things never change

By the way: In June I wrote about Detroiter Philip Smith, who was ticketed in May for parking at a busted meter in front of the Neighborhood City Hall at Livernois and 7 Mile Road. A sign on the meter said it was out of order. And Smith arrived on the scene in time to demonstrate for the two ticketing officers -regular cops, not meter maids - that the imeter wouldn't accept coins.

The cops said they were sorry, the ticket was already written, but Smith surely wouldn't have to pay it after he explained the circumstances to the Violations Bureau; which Smith promptly did. Last week, seven months later, Smith received yet another overdue notice ordering him to pay up or YOUR LICENSE TO DRIVE MAY BE WITHHELD.

I think the parking department has a quota system requiring employees to drive a certain number of citizens. crazy each day, otherwise they're fired for failing to justify their employment.

Board ponders architect's contract, facilities

Clarkston News Staff Writer

A resolution to negotiate an architectural contract and a report on recently constructed school facilities could help the school board quicken its pace if it decides to ask voters to approve another bond issue in June for school construction.

After spending the better part of a week visiting about 15 schools in three states, Connie Bruce, director of personnel services for Clarkston schools, and Dr. Robert Burek, Clarkston High School principal, made a report to the school board on school facilities.

Bruce has a background in vocational education and is acting as the districts' representative monitoring school construction projects pertaining to the current

He and Burek visited facilities constructed by three architects interviewed by the board Jan. 23. Early Tuesday morning, Jan. 31, they reported on their findings, as the board ponders what to do about Clarkston school district's space shortage and what architect to use if new construction is approved by the voters.

The three architectural firms interviewed were Greiner, an 84-year-old firm with offices in Grand Rapids, Petoskey and Farmington Hills; TMP, a 30-yearold firm with offices in Bloomfield Hills; and WBDC, a 28-year-old firm with offices in Southfield and Grand Rapids.

After visiting sites completed by all three, Bruce and Burek told the board they "gave the edge to Greiner."

Based on that recommendation, the board unanimously passed a resolution that directs the superintendent or his designee to negotiate a proposed agreement for architectural services with Greiner, and also directs them to negotiate a proposed agreement for construction management services with Walbridge Aldinger of Livonia. The board approved the construction management firm at a previous board meeting.

Superintendent Gary Haner stressed that the resolution was only an avenue for the district to pursue a new contract while the board further studied architects and the facilities study.

"The significance is timing," he said.

If a contract is not pursued and an architectural firm ready to make a presentation to the board soon, it could jeopardize any chance of going to the voters for bond approval in June.

After the board hears a presentation and has cost estimates for construction, they must make a decision on what to go to the voters with. Then the district can go to attorneys in Lansing who put together the proposal which goes to the state for approval for a bond issue. After that, the board passes a resolution for a bond issue in the June school election. All this must be completed within the next couple of months.

The resolution to proceed with a contract negotiation with Greiner does not prevent the board from further studying other architectural firms and school facilities they have completed. This includes a recommendation by board President Janet Thomas to inspect the site of Brandon High School, constructed by Charles W. Sherman Associates, Inc., the firm whose five-year contract was recently terminated by the board.

"I'm just concerned about potential liability in the district over the cancellation of the Sherman contract," Thomas said. "Maybe there is none, but in my mind, there is a potential."

She said she just wanted to be sure the board didn't skip any steps, and compares "apples to apples," thoroughly inspecting the work of all the architects involved in current discussions, including Sherman.

Any architectural contract proposed still has to come back to the board for approval.

Bruce and Burek noted several reasons they leaned toward Greiner. Half of the firm's work is school work, and they were very favorably impressed with their work while visiting Greiner's school sites.

Also, they said a planning team would be brought to the community to work with the district, led by the chief designer. Other key people with Greiner are excellent to work with, Bruce said.

While the board grapples with what architect to use, they are also studying a facilities report given them in January by the 27-member citizen's Facilities Review Advisory Committee.

On Jan. 30, co-chairmen Durham Downs and Bob Wyatt met with the board to answer questions about the

In that report, the committee suggested constructing a new high school and a new elementary school; expanding the other five elementary schools; converting the current high school to a junior high or middle school, and converting Clarkston Junior High to the community education center.

Board member John Needham asked about alternative ways to gain space with less construction. In particular, the board discussed about 32,800 square feet which would be left over in the old high school if it were converted to a junior high.

The board queried the co-chairmen on many other aspects of the study, but there will be no formal direction approved by the board until they hear architect's proposals and cost estimates.

The committee's recommendations to the board were based on projected populations in the year 2000 at 85 percent utilization. If facilities were not adequate then, they said, there would be even bigger problems to deal with in the future.

After the Monday night meeting, Wyatt said, "The board is questioning and probing to more thoroughly understand (before) deciding what they want to do. They must move quickly.

Wyatt and Downs both said the board is correct in looking at a number of architects before deciding who would be involved with future facilities.

'We should go with the best architect for the job," Downs said.

Bill Bliesath, a Clarkston school district resident who was active in the last successful bond and millage campaign, added, "I think the community will buy the bond issue if there is unity on the board."

Flint publisher faces charges

BY MAGGIE I. JARUZEL

An Independence Township publisher was charged with writing a check for non-sufficient funds Jan. 30 in Central District Court, Flint.

Henry "Hank" M. Hogan Jr., publisher of The Davison Flagstaff, The Suburban News and five other Flint area newspapers (F.A.N.) was arraigned Monday afterbeing arrested in Grand Rapids over the weekend while he was attending the Michigan Press Association's Annual Winter Conference.

A Deerhill Drive resident, Hogan is charged with writing a $5,100 check to Morton "Bud" Stebbin, owner of the Grand Blanc Printing Co. and former owner of The Grand Blanc News. Stebbins contends that Hogan still owes him money for the purchase of that newpaper.

The printing company owned by Stebbins printed the seven twice-weekly newspapers for several years but quit doing so last year because, according to Stebbins, he received numerous payments with checks that would not clear the bank. This triggered Stebbins to take his complaints to court, he said.

"I just wish I had done this sooner," Stebbins said.
Although Stebbins said he hasn't been compensated for the paper that Hogan purchased from him about nine years ago, Gary Fait, former publisher of The Suburban News, stated, "I have an agreement with Mr. Hogan. I am being compensated. I am receiving payments."

Fait said he couldn't speak for his former partner, Jim Redd. He would not state whether Redd was being compensated for his share of the newspaper. Attempts to contact Mr. Redd were unsuccessful.

Jaruzel is editor of the Davison Index.

Every home runs danger of radon contamination

LEE DAVIS (left) and Joel Raymon set up shop to perform another test for radon, a radioactive gas derived from the breakdown of uranium mineral deposits.

By DON RUSH Leader Editor

You can't see it.

You can't smell it.

You can't even taste it, but the Enviornment Protection Agency, Oakland County Health Department and the American Lung Association all agree, you should check your home for it - radon.

According to Barry Wyatt, Oakland County's administrative assistant of environmental health, in 2 years 170 homes in the county were randomly surveyed for radon.

"Of course we have 1.1 million people in Oakland County, so that survey isn't really representative, but we found 85 percent of the homes tested had a concentration below the EPA's standard of 4.0 pico-curies," he said.

A pico-curie is the unit of measure for radon in the atmosphere. The EPA has estimated that 4.0 pico-curies is a safe level.

Wyatt said 15 percent of the homes tested in the county were above the 4.0 pico-curie level. Of that 15 percent, 12 percent had levels between 4-10 pico-curies; 2 percent tested at 10-20 pico-curies, and 1 percent had a concentration of over 20.0 pico-curies.

According to Wyatt, radon levels may vary from lot line to lot line. "Just because your neighbor's test turns out okay, doesn't mean your house is okay. We suggest everybody test their homes," he said.

According to the American Lung Association's Alex Johnson, tests in the Oxford area have shown 6 houses above the 4.0 level; the highest being 16.1. In the Orion area, 15 houses tested below the 4.0 level, with 12 testing above; the highest being 20.6. In Clarkston 10 tested above and 17 tested below, the highest being 18.

According to Lee Davis and Joel Rayman, of R.A.M. (radon Assessment and Mitigation) Inc., radon is a radioactive gas, derived from the breakdown of Uranium mineral deposits in the earth.

The radon particles seep through cracks or holes in basement floors, foundations, drains, through well water and through concrete walls. The radon particles attach themselves to dust. When the air with higher concentration levels of radon is breathed, the particles affix themselves to the inside of the lungs.

"It's the leading cause of lung cancer in America behind smoking," Rayman said. "Twenty-seven to 88 people die each day relative to radon-caused lung cancer - that's an EPA statistic."

Davis said though radon is not a new discovery, it has only been since 1984 that its hazards have been

"Children are more at risk than adults for a number of reasons," Davis said. "Their lungs are still underdeveloped, they breathe faster, are more active, and are closer

There are 2 common methods for testing your home for radon. One is using charcoal cannisters. These are left in an undisturbed basement room for 2 to 7 days. The cannisters are then sent to a labortory for testing. (If testing the home yourself, Wyatt said, make sure labs are certified

If the results are over 4 pico-curies, Davis, Rayman and Wyatt suggest, retesting your home over a long-term basis, using an alpha-track. This test will take from 1 month to a year to complete. The idea behind the longterm test is to get a consistant reading over a long period of time.

Mann Road manufactured home sub on hold

BY TRACY KING Clarkston News Staff Writer

After a packed public hearing, Independence Township Planning Commission unanimously tabled plans for 305-unit manufactured home sub on Mann Road.

The commission's action, after a three hour-long hearing, followed citizens' and commission members' concerns over: the township's master plan, mature trees in the area, taxes generated by the park, the number of children generated and whether the township has a duty to provide a variety of housing.

The board heard comments from about 20 township residents and scrutinized at least a dozen pros and cons of the project among themselves.

The commission tabled the developer's request for rezoning and conceptual site plan approval, pending further study of the township's master plan. The area is currently zoned rural residential, which calls for a threeacre minimum lot size.

The proposed park's developer, Gregory Christopher, told the board that he built, and now operates, several similar projects throughout Oakland County. When looking for a new park site, Independence Township became an obvious choice.

"Independence has the least amount of mobile homes of any township in the county," he explained.

Christopher plans to transform the gravel pit now on the site into a 76-acre manufactured housing community. The brand new 1,000-1,900-square-foot dwellings are to have uniform siding and shingle roofs, no wheels or trailers, and are to sit four to an acre, among parks and extensive landscaping on winding streets.

The plan drew praise, questions and criticism from the about 45 residents at the hearing. Image, traffic and the number of children were among the concerns.

"Mobile home parks don't generally add to the tax base," said Stuart Mahler, of Main Street, Independence Township. "How are they taxed, since they are user-

Township Planner Richard Carlisle answered that, although park residents would not pay property taxes, they would add to the community tax base in other ways.

Those concerned with compounding the overcrowded conditions at nearby schools were told that the park would generate about 60 children, based on studies of similar communities.

With 305 units, that's 610 more cars on the road," said Alma Turner of Pine Knob Road, Independence Township. "There's already too much traffic on Pine Knob Road."

National traffic data indicates that mobile home parks generate four to five trips per day per residence, in contrast to the 10 trips per day generated by single family residential homes.

Neil Wallace, former chairperson of the planning commission, also spoke in the public hearing, arguing against rezoning the parcel to a planned unit develop-

"It's an extreme step to pass this as PUD," said Wallace of Clarkston Road. "I don't believe (this project) isn't in compliance with anything (required by PUD zoning)."

Rezoning an area to PUD, instead of mobile home park zoning, allows a local government to maintain control over aspects of the project. If it were zoned as a mobile home park, the state would control the project under State Legislative Act 419, which gives the state control over all mobile home parks.

A PUD is a rezoning that's tied to a specific site plan and needs approvals from the planning commission and township board.

"There are three aspects of criteria in the ordinance, and none of the three have been met (with this project), no matter how nice it is," Wallace said. Among the criteria required for PUD rezoning is the following: *Recognizable material benefit to community.

*Consistent with public health, safety and welfare of a community.

*Does not have an unreasonable negative economic impact.

*Single ownership of the property is established. Commission members had mixed feelings about whether the manufactured home project did fit the PUD rezoning criteria.

"It's subject to interpretation, but I believe it qualifies," said Dr. Bruce Mercado, planning commission

"I'm concerned about lack of control (if the park is not zoned PUD)," said Daniel Travis. "I'm not sure if the benefits are PUD oriented. We'll be discussing that."

"It's being looked at very hard," Chairperson Brent Bair told the audience.

Commission members also discussed their role in providing different housing to the community.

"Do we have an obligation in the township to provide a variety of housing?" asked Jo Fussman. "We may be pricing our children right out of an ability to live here in the future."

"This township is at the low-end in providing this type of housing," Mercado added.

"Does this commission have a duty to provide alternative housing?" asked Bair. "If it does, is the current level adequate, and if not, as determined later, could we get stuck with something a great deal worse?"

The developer noted that he had developed a middle-of-the-road project, granting many concessions to the township.

Among the items he promised were an attempt to save mature trees along the roadway and on the park site, additional fire hydrants along I-75, and the paving of Mann Road, at a cost estimated to be at least $600,000

Carlisle told planning commission members that he was not prepared to advise them on the project because he had not completely studied the master plan as re-

This project requires further study with other engineers and other areas of expertise," Carlisle said.

"With this type of project you need to look at implications on other communities. I recommend you don't make a decision on this now."

Although commission members declined to set a date for reconsidering the manufactured home sub, Carlisle told members he would need about a month to complete his study of the master plan.

SACROILIAC STRAIN

You or someone you know may be suffering needlessly from back pain that could be effectively treated with corrective chiropractic adjustments. Sacroiliac strain is a common back injury involving slipping of the sacrum or tailbone, in relation to the bones of the hip. Movement usually aggravates the pain. If left untreated, this pain and strain may cause further complications. Why suffer when we can bring about rapid relief of the symptoms and correct the disorder? Make an appointment today.

Mother Nature spoils games

With the snow has melted the hopes and dreams of special Olympians in Oakland County.

Most of the Special Olympic Games scheduled for Jan. 28 at Independence Oaks were canceled for lack of snow on which to compete.

"It's so disappointing," said Nancy Joseph, Special Olympics area director. "People have been calling all week sounding so sad."

The 153 athletes, more than 100 volunteers and several sponsors were to gather at the park for Nordic skiing, snowshoeing and other special events.

'McDonald's had contributed $2,000 towards the event; hopefully we can move that to the summer games, or they'll support summer athletes," Joseph said.

An area restaurant was preparing to serve hot chocolate and lunch to the athletes, and an area band had planned to provide entertainment.

Although the Oakland county games were canceled, athletes and volunteers will now focus their aspirations on the state games to be held Feb. 7-10 at Sugarloaf Mountain.

Softball registration

The Davisburg Softball League will register girls ages seven through 17 from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 7; Wednesday, Feb. 8 and Thursday, Feb. 16.

College update

Just as he had hoped; Dave Jokisch is finishing up his college basketball career with a flurry.

Last week, the Clarkston High School grad scored a career-best 34 points against Northern Michigan to help Lake Superior State College win 87-70. He followed that stellar performance by notching 42 points against Michigan Tech two nights later as the Lakers won again

Jokisch currently leads the team in shooting percentage (.556), rebounding (4.9 per game) and scoring average in league games (24.9).

Lake Superior's record improves to 6-10 overall and 3-4 in league play with the two wins last week.

LAKEFRONT COUNTRY ESTATE Nestled on 21 acres of wooded & rolling property. Custom built home with great room, custom features inside and out. A four stall horse barn & fenced pasture. Two bedroom carriage house above 4 car garage. $550,000 (S-20).

ON 13% ACRES In Brandon Township is this 3600 sq. ft. cape cod in excellent condition surrounded by 200 apple trees, an inground pool, cabana, 40x60 2 story barn. Close to 1-75. $335,000 (S-22).

ELIZABETH LAKE PRIVILEGES Come with this neat home with three bedrooms that has been recently remodeled. 1st floor laundry and two decks. $63,500 (S-50).

treed lot. Home has newer double glazed windows, steel entry doors, furnace 5 years old, hot water tank 4 years old. 10x10 shed is 1 year old. The home is maintenance free brick with aluminum trim, $65,000 (S-01).

Finally. A three-year CD with a rate that can go up, but can't go down.

This new Old Kent certificate gives you something you won't get from any other CD. More interest if rates go up. Protection if rates go down. That means you'll get the flexibility of shorter-term investments. And the higher returns you've come to expect with longer-term CDs.

Here's how it works. Each year, your CD rate will be compared to the rate in effect at that time. If the new one is higher, you'll start earning it automatically. If it's lower, no problem. Because you'll never earn less than the rate you got when you bought your CD. Either way, you can add to your earnings by leaving your interest on deposit, allowing it to compound.

Old Kent's new three-year CD. It rewards you when rates go up. It protects you when rates go down. And there's only one place you can get it: Old Kent Bank.

't changed Don Borngesser

BY JULIE CAMPE Clarkston News Editor

Don Borngesser is becoming accustomed to fame. In the past few weeks, he's had word from all over the country that people have heard of him.

"I've got people coming in who jokingly want my autograph," said the Clarkston resident. "I've taken a ribbing on it, but I'm enjoying it."

First, it was his tea bag stint from Clarkston's Village Grill, which he owns with his wife, Carol. He provides free tea bags to customers who wanted to join the "Read my teabag, no 50 percent pay increase"

It's a small world

Judy Nichols was one of the people who couldn't wait to tease Don Borngesser after all of his recent publicity.

A Paramus, Independence Township, resident, Judy was visiting her parents in Palm Beach, Fla., and "feeling a long way from home" when she saw Tom Brokaw's show on NBC-TV.

"All of a sudden I heard, '... a small town like Clarkston, Michigan.' I was shocked," she said.

The show briefly talked about Japanese auto dealerships expanding in the midwest in such places as Oakland County. The show included comments from Borngesser, owner of Carol's Village Grill, Main Street, Clarkston; Tracy King, a reporter with The Clarkston News; and Randy Hosler, owner of a Pontiac dealership on Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

"I know Don, and I know the Hoslers. I didn't know Tracy King," said Judy.

So of course, when she returned to Clarkston, she made the rounds and talked about what a small world it

"I asked Don for his autograph," she said. "Randy said he heard from people all over the country. Don, too."

 That landed him on Page 3 of The Clarkston News. It was followed by an appearance on Roy Fox's talk show on WXYT-Radio, Southfield, which gave him even more

Fox started the whole tea bag revolution, said Don. "This new morning guy is really doing this out of sincerity. It's not a gimmick just to get publicity."

Next, NBC's Tom Brokaw showed a segment that featured Don's opinion on Japanese auto dealerships expanding into the Oakland County area.

All together, it added up to a lot of exposure, said Don.

"I got harassed from it," he said. "I'm surprised how many people saw it."

Three people in Florida and one in Kansas said they saw him on Brokaw's show.

"It showed quite a few places," he said. "My three seconds of glory."

It was interesting to see how the network put together that segment, he said. "It was different. The amazing part is that all the time they spent in Clarkston filming and the time it showed on TV. They spent 45 minutes in the Grill.'

He appeared on Fox's show after someone gave Fox a copy of The Clarkston News article, he said. That was fun, too, but the issue itself is what's important, he added.

Unless both houses of Congress vote against the 50 percent pay raise (from $89,500 a year to $135,000) by Feb. 7, the raise will take effect automatically.

But House Democratic leader Jim Wright sent the issue to the post office committee of the House, where it's expected to die, said Don.

"Unfortunately, (the raise) is probably going to go through," he said, adding that, as Speaker of the House, Wright has more to gain from the raise than others because he'd get extra money for his extra duties.

"I believe 50 percent is just too much," said Don. "They're asking people to tighten their belts, and they go up there and accept a 50 percent raise. That's almost unethical, as far as I'm concerned."

Don still provides free tea bags to anyone who'll join the protest.

"We wound up sending out 150 of them through the Grill," he said.

Some politicians have taken notice, he said. Sen. Carl Levin (who represents Clarkston and Independence and Springfield townships) issued a statement that he wouldn't accept the raise if it became law. And a special post office was set up in Washington just to handle all the tea bags.

Don recommends that people send their tea bags to their U.S. representatives, in this case, Rep. Bob Carr, as well as to Congress as a whole. And, he added, people should sign their names and give their addresses. (The special address: Tea Bag Revolution, P.O. Box 91011, Washington, D.C. 20090)

Until Feb. 7, Don will be providing those tea bags, he said. But afterward, he'll have a little more time.

"I tell people I'm looking at movie scrips, or else I'll have a Carol's Village Grill video," he said.

Anyone with a short story waiting to be written still has time to submit their entry in the Clarkston Short Story Writing Contest.

Entries must be submitted by 6 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 22, to the Village Bookstore at 26 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016. The winning entry will be published in The Clarkston News.

The stories, limited to 1,500 words, must be set in the Clarkston area, said Georgene Sloan, owner of the book store that's sponsoring the contest.

The contest is for 16-year-olds and up, and the winner will be announced in late March.

Contest judges are: Clarkston resident Dianne Evans, English teacher at Clawson High School; Julie Campe, editor of The Clarkston News, and Sloan.

Complete rules are available at the Sloan's book

Dixie water main expansion set for spring

After months of heated negotiations, the Independence Township Board has obtained the last easement it needs to expand a water main along Dixie Highway.

Attorney Gerald Fisher told board members Jan. 17 that an agreement had been hammered out with John T. Long, who had agreed to grant an easement to his property holding the Deer Lake Cleaners on Dixie Highway only after the township agreed to a few stipulations.

During recent months, the township has purchased easements from eight property owners along the east side of Dixie Highway. An easement grants the right to use land owned by another, usually in the case of roads, electrical wires or underground utilities.

Once all easements are obtained, the township plans to hook together two to three water systems to act as a back-up in case of water failure in the area.

Board members, frustrated in their attempt to obtain from the final easement they needed from Long, voted Jan. 3 to begin land condemnation proceedings which, if successful, would force Long to sell the land to the township.

Since then, Fisher said he had met with Long's attorneys and drafted a contract that was acceptable to both parties.

The contract stipulates the following:

*Tap in fees charged to the premises shall be limited to $1,000.

*Anywork done on the main shall be performed on a Sunday or when businesses are closed. In addition, the premises will be restored to their original condition promptly.

*Construction shall be completed within the day started, and the township will reasonably maintain the restoration of asphalt.

*If not completed in one day, the township will pay damages if business interruption is proven.

The agreement between Long and the township also requires Long's wife to sign the contract because as a married couple she is part-owner of the easements

Board members were told that construction on the water main could begin in early spring.

Ad misleads elderly

I want to bring to your attention a misleading advertisement that ran in The Clarkston News -- the Dean Witter ad regarding the Medicare "surtax."

While this advertisement may create additional business for Dean Witter, it also creates the false impression that ALL people who receive Social Security will be responsible for additional income taxes.

The Catastrophic Act of 1988 does not "push" anyone into a higher Federal income tax bracket. In fact, approximately 60 percent of the elderly will pay NO additional tax for improved Medicare benefits.

This type of misleading advertising, intended to "scare" the elderly into attending their seminar, should not be permitted. The ad gives no information about the Catastrophic Coverage Act, nor does it provide any facts about the supplemental income related premium based on Federal tax liability. It is a "come on" for a sales pitch.

The new Medicare coverage meets President Reagan's call to protect the elderly and disabled against financial ruin in the event of a prolonged hospital stay or other high medical costs.

The expanded coverage was designed to better protect the nation's 32 million Medicare eligible beneficiaries from "Catastrophic" hospital, doctor and prescription drug bills, without increasing the Federal budget deficit.

Teen charged with mail thefts

An Oxford teen was charged with larceny over $100 in connection with a number of mail thefts in Independence Township. The felony carries a five-year sentence.

Christopher Michael Diefenbach, 17, of Ramsey Road, Oxford, is scheduled for a preliminary exam at 9 a.m. Friday, Feb. 3, before Judge Gerald McNally in 52nd District Court, Independence Township.

He was released on a $1,000 personal bond, which he would be forced to pay if he misses the hearing.

A petition of arrest is expected against another suspect in the case, but because he is a juvenile he was not taken into custody, and his name was not released.

Diefenbachwas arrested Jan. 26 after a deputy, who stopped him for careless driving along Sashabaw Road near Pine Knob Road, recognized Diefenbach's vehicle from a description on a mail-tampering complaint, said

Detective Steve Parker of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Diefenbach is suspected in a number of mailbox thefts along Frankwill Avenue in Independence Township and in similar thefts in Brandon Township, Parker said

Witnesses told police they observed the two taking mail from several mailboxes along Frankwill Avenue on Ian 26.

As police handcuffed Diefenbach, they discovered a paycheck in his pocket addressed to a resident on Frankwill Avenue. Another piece of unopened mail was found inside the vehicle, according to the police report. It is not known what other items were missing from the mailboxes.

Diefenbach was also cited for careless driving.

Three to serve on board of review

Three Springfield Township residents were appointed to two-year terms on the board of review by the Springfield Township board Jan. 12.

Sheryl Wendt and Mary Miller, long-time members of the board, were re-appointed. The third member appointed last week is Rollin Bird, a recent township resident.

In making his suggestions for the appointments, Supervisor Collin Walls said that he was recommending Bird because he thought it was necessary for the board to have a new member and a little different-perspective.

Plus, he added, he didn't want all three members who previously served for a long time to all quit at the same time, leaving no experience on the board.

In not suggesting long-time member Bill Bishop for reappointment to the board, Walls said it was in no way a reflection of his service.

"He has been a fantastic asset and served through difficult times," Walls said of Bishop.

The board of review consists of three local residents whose job it is to review the assessment roll to insure that it is equitable and properly done. The board also hears individual appeals by property owners.

Nesting with big birds

When snowy owls fly south for the winter, they head for places that remind them of the empty open tundra back home.

Apparently, a big-city airport fills the bill because more snowy owls congregate at Boston's Logan airport than any other spot in Massachusetts.

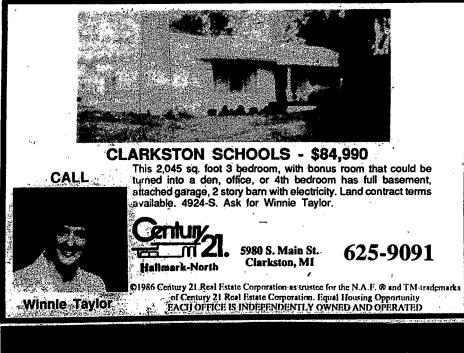

According to International Wildlife magazine, more than 100 of the birds have been identified and tagged since the early 1980s. The airport grounds offer the birds an ample diet of rodents and small birds, and the owls provide a valuable service by keeping flocks of birds off the runways.

Radon poisoning can occur in any residence

"radon levels vary with the weather, the wind, barometric readings," Rayman said. "We keep track of all this. It really doesn't mean a whole lot to the test, but we send our findings to the EPA. They're keeping track, and are trying to find correlations between the weather and radon levels."

While on one hand there is a push to insulate and make homes airtight for energy efficiency, this very push. may be contributing to the radon problem. Airtight homes have reduced ventilation. Officials for Detroit Edison said the problem is being looked into; however, no conclusions have been made.

In the winter, when a furnace turns on, it creates a negative pressure, Wyatt said. When this happens, the furnace will draw air from wherever it can, which can be from drains, or cracks in the floor — where radon is concentrated, radon-tainted air is then pumped through the home by the furnace.

Ventilation keeps the levels down. In the warmweather months, open windows let in fresh air (which also carries a certain level of radon) and help ventilate, but in the winter it isn't as feasible.

Wyatt said one way to eliminate the negative pressure problem is the installation of a sub-slab (concrete floor) suction system. This method has a sub-pump, which ventilates under the floor; a series of pipes lead into a central pipe, which pumps radon outside.

Another way is to pump in fresh air to the furnance. It is also suggested that cracks and holes in floors and walls be sealed. Davis and Rayman said EPA standards call for more than just calking.

Cracks in the floor, they said, need to be widened and deepened to 1/4 inch, and then filled.

Free information pamplets about radon can be obtained from the county and from the American Lung Association's Southfield office. Davis and Rayman are certified in Michigan for radon assessment and mitigation. Davis said he is also certified with the EPA for hazardous material incidence response. Both are certified with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. Their business is located in Waterford.

Radon test detects danger

Just what does it take to test for Radon?

Jim and Hazel Sherman, of Oxford, wanted to know. They also wanted to know what the Radon level in their home was. Enter Lee Davis and Joel Rayman, of R.A.M. (Radon Assessment & Mitigation) Inc., of Waterford.

Last Wednesday (Jan. 25), the duo came to Oxford with their Radon testing equipment. They asked the Shermans not to disturb the testing area for 24 hours prior to the test -- and to disturb the testing area as little as possible during the test.

The first step was a visual inspection for places where Radon may enter the home -- via cracks in the floor, through floor drains, holes in the wall, etc.

These were all noted. Then the temperature inside the home was taken, and noted, as was the barometric reading.

Davis and Rayman measured the basement's dimensions and located the best place to set their test. The best place is an area away from ducts, pipes, windows and movement. They found their location and placed a charcoal cannister (about the size of a chewing tobacco tin) approximately 20 inches off the floor and from the nearest wall. Then they left the home.

Two days later, Friday, they returned, saying the cannister had been exposed to the atmosphere. They would then send the cannister to a laboratory in Portage, Mich. There results of the twoday test would be compiled.

On Monday the results were

"They have a Radon reading of 7.9 pico-curies -- or about twice the level the EPA has set as safe," Davis said.

He added, "This is nothing to throw your arms up in panic about. The EPA suggests a long term test (one to 12 months long). The 7.9 level is nothing to die over, It is equal to about 200 chest x-rays a year. If the long term test is the same (as the two-day), they suggest action be taken within a couple of years."

Initial testing by R.A.M. costs $59; long term testing, $69. The cost to seal the cracks and mitigate the problem can vary. An unfinished basement, such as the Sherman's, would cost a few hundred dollars, he estimated.

Community service program debuts at CHS

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

A pilot program offering high school students the opportunity to get involved in community service is underway this semester at Clarkston High School.

Jeanne Molzon, district volunteer coordinator for Clarkston schools, and CHS principal Dr. Robert Burek will meet with interested students on Feb. 6 to explain the new program. Following a brief presentation, students will be able to sign up for their choice of placement.

Reflections

The Clarkston Newsendence tow

Section Page 29

Wednesday, February 1,1989

"This gives students an opportunity to look at a lot of different careers by getting involved," Molzon said. "And students get a great sense of satisfaction by helping others. It builds their self esteem."

Community service is not new to Clarkston High School. Students have volunteered their time to various service projects through the Blue and Gold Club, organizations and churches for a long time. But the new program will get more students involved.

"I think many students don't know how to go about this," Molzon said.

Through the pilot program, students can sign up in a field they might want to explore for a possible career. Volunteer time also counts as work experience on a

The program is just getting started but will have more placement opportunities as it grows, she said.

For this semester, students can sign up for community service at Pontiac General Hospital in a wide variety of areas, at Latchkey helping with children in the beforeand after-school care programs, at SCAMP helping in office and clerical areas, and at Clarkston schools in a variety of volunteer activities.

Molzon said she will be talking to businesses and agencies about the program to expand choices in the fall.

CHS JUNIOR Kathy Barnett plays with 2-yearold Scott Whitney in the Funshine Program at Clarkston Learning Center. School activities

Unlike a similar program in Bloomfield that deals only with agencies the Clarkston program works with businesses, too.

"I feel it needs to be career exploration as well as benefit the community," she said.

Last year, Bloomfield Hills schools made 40 hours community service a mandatory requirement for graduation. An administrator in the Bloomfield schools who lives in the Clarkston school district presented the idea of a community service program to the CHS parent advisory committee.

There was good parent responses to the idea, and Burek felt they should pursue the idea, Molzon said. She has been working since last spring to put the community service program together. But the Clarkston program is strictly voluntary, she stressed:

This type of program has been successful in many districts, she added. It not only provides students with experience that could later lead into paying jobs and gives them the satisfaction of helping others, but it gives them a chance to apply classroom skills and knowledge to real situations and gain awareness of career options.

"I see so many students go into college without definite plans or knowing what classes to take," Molzon said. "This (program) will help."

Businesses and agencies interested in utilizing the program or learning more about it may contact Molzon at the Clarkston Community Learning Center, 674-3141.

grad studies in Yugoslavia

CHS GRAD Karen Simunovic, 22, of Independence Township, is studying the Groatlan language in Yugoslavia on a one-year full scholarship.

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

In 1987, Karen Simunovie visited Yugoslavia with her father and her sister, Lisa. It was her first visit to the country of her heritage and one that later led to a wonderful opportunity.

Karen learned of a program offered in the Croatian Republic of Yugoslavia, a full scholarship to study the Croatian language for a year in the university city of Zagreb. (Several languages are spoken in Yugoslavia, including Croatian.)

To be eligible for the program there were some requirements, including a college degree and a Croatian background.

Karen's parents, Robert and Helen Simunovic of the Deerwood area, Independence Township, are both Yugoslavian. Her father is from Zagreb, which is the Croatian Republic, one of five republics in Yugoslavia. He later came to the United States, Karen's mother was born in the U.S., but her parents are from Yugoslavia.

A 1984 graduate of Clarkston High School, Karen attended the University of Michigan, Flint. In June of 1988, she graduated with a degree in communications, majoring in television broadcasting On June 24, she was headed back to Yugoslavia for a five-week language program that could lead to the scholarship, and did. The Croatian organization offering the program sponsors only one student a year for the scholarship, and Karen was chosen.

"I feel that this is one of the best experiences of my life," Karen says. She is back in the Clarkston area for a four-week break between terms. The trip home between mid-January and February was a gift from her family.

There have been many good times as well as hard ones associated with the experience, she adds. But it was something she really wanted to do, for two reasons. First, she wanted to learn the language her parents speak fluently because it is her heritage.

Also, Karen's long-term goal is to be an internal reporter, and she believes this is an important step in reaching that goal.

"I feel that, in order to be a good reporter, you have to really understand the way other countries live," she says. "The best way to do that is to live there. I would feel funny trying to report on something when I didn't under-

Arriving alone in Yugoslavia without being able to speak the language was cause for some pretty lonely times, she says. It was a "sink or swim" situation. You had to learn the language quickly, since there are not many English-speaking people.

But the loneliness was eased by the fact that Karen still has many relatives in Yugoslavia. She was also in student dormitory that housed perhaps 20 other foreign students, some of whom spoke English. She made many

Christmas in Yugoslavia was lonely, Karen says, "Imissed my family a lot. But the near thing is that I now have friends from all over the world. It was sort of an international holiday."

They'll quack you up

Looking for a little something to liven up your landscape? Pick up a Pekin duck at the Humane Society.

The shelter has five of these white, domestic ducks for adoption. They are friendly, about one year old, and comical to watch in the yard.

All you need is a penned area or fenced yard, and a little pool. They're perfect for the homeowner with a little acreage and a pond on the property. The ducks also need a hutch or shelter with straw to protect them against the elements.

These Pekin ducks can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The shelter asks for a small donation as the only adoption fee.

SJHS show choir sings in Macomb

The Encores from Sashabaw Junior High School will be performing with other show choirs at the Macomb Community Center (MCC) for the Performing Arts at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 3.

The $1 tickets are available at the door.

The show is the culmination of a week-long intense rehearsals, involving Dr. Stuart Scott, MCC choral director, and Andy Haines, a guest choreographer.

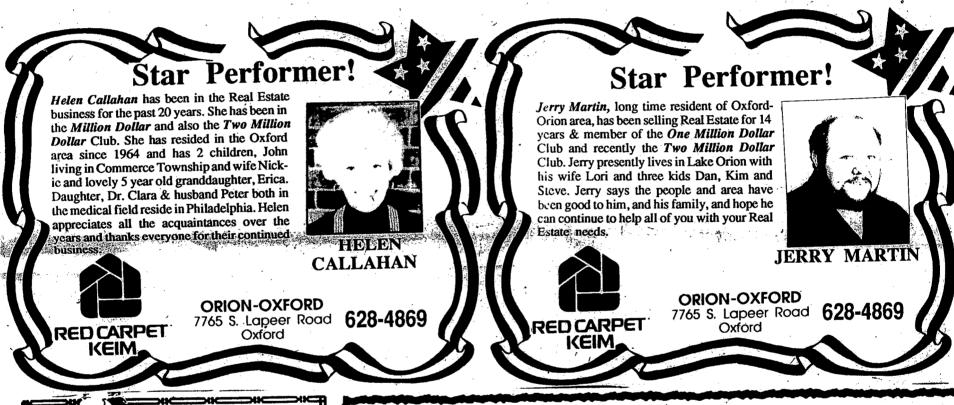

Each of six schools learned music on their own, and the director and choreographer visited the schools individually to teach them dance steps and to provide unity when the groups would eventually perform together.

The Encores, a select group of 18 eighth- and ninthgraders, are directed by Jan Merz. Following are the members.

Eight-graders are: Donna Cayuela, Mike Drysdale, Andy Howe, Jeff Kraft, Shannon Locher, Kristy Morris,
Danny Porter, Erika Srugis, Danette Stuart and Tim

Ninth-graders are: Bruce Avenall, Amy Allison, Kristi Bailey, Kirk Cohoon, Jenny Hahn, Amy Holland, Pella Lazaris and Angie Shaul.

Honors

Two Oakland University, Rochester, students from the Clarkston area are spending the winter working in cooperative education projects.

The program offers OU juniors and seniors a chance to alternate work and study semesters while gaining job experience in their major fields.

Beverly Merz, an Oakland University human resources management major in the School of Business Administration, has been assigned to TRW Technar.

John Tisch, a mechanical engineering major in the School of Engineering and Computer Science, has been assigned to Detroit Edison Company.

Gregory D. Hall, a 1987 Clarkston High School graduate, was named to the dean's list for the fall, 1988, semester at the Lyman Griggs School College of Natural Science at Michigan State University, East Lansing.

Eggs teach teens fragile lesson

BY JULIE CAMPE Clarkston News Editor

Senior Shawn Lambouris learned an important lesson from his family living class at Clarkston High School last semester. He found that he's not "eggsactly" ready for children.

One of the final assignments in the class required Shawn and his partner, Jennifer Blagg (Shawn's real-life girlfriend), to take an egg and treat it as if it were their child.

It could never be left alone; it had to be protected from cold and hot temperatures; and it needed lots of care.

Shawn and Jennifer chose two eggs (uncooked, of course) and named their twins Jordan and Michael.

Proud grandmother, Susan Lambouris, stopped by The Clarkston News office with them one day while Shawn was skiing for the CHS ski team. As a babysitter, she couldn't let the eggs, er, children, stay alone while she ran her errands.

She delightfully pointed out the eyes and hair on her grandeggs. It seems the children's features were not visible until babysitter Emily Winfield nurtured them to the surface.

The family had lots of fun with their charges for a while, but Shawn said he was "relieved" to turn them in when the assignment was over.

"I wanted to get rid of them," he said, adding that the eggs were very fragile. "It was just a hassle. I was always afraid of breaking them. I cracked the eggs. I felt bad about that."

In caring for the eggs, he noticed a few parallels to real children but found one major difference.

"Real kids would be bigger," he said, adding with determination, "I'm not ready to have kids for quite some time. ... I always had a hard time finding someone to babysit for them."

In general, Jordan and Michael received tender, loving care from their parents, said Shawn. But their grandmother, Susan, was once referred to as an "egg beater" at one of Shawn's ski meets.

"My mom cracked the boy a little bit," explained

Shawn. "I shattered the back of the girl, but I fixed her with nail polish."

Those things can be expected, said Shawn, sounding like a cool, experienced father.

"If a kid breaks an arm, you get a cast," he said.

Contest just for kids

Kids who have dreamed of winning a beauty or talent contest will get a shot this year at the Kids of America Beauty and Talent Competition set for Saturday, Feb. 11, at the Clarkston High School Kirchgessner Theatre.

Participants must register by Sunday, Feb. 5, by calling 653-9827 or (517) 348-8929.

The competition is open to boys and girls ages infant to 17 years old, and the winners from each category will receive an award plus a free entry to participate at the national finals in Dallas, Texas, later this year.

Pat Thayer, the organizer from this area of Michigan, said this is the first pageant of its kind in the Clarkston area. It's a good central location for the surrounding areas, she said.

"We're trying to pull from Sterling Heights, Flint, Pontiac," she said. "I'm hoping for a real big turnout."

For infants, three categories are available: beautiful baby, glamour-handsome, and playwear divisions. The age groups are 0-11 months, 12-23 moths and 24-35 months.

Other boys girls will compete in age groups of 3-6 years, 7-9 years, 10-12 years and 13-17 years. A beauty division will offer group interview, casual wear and formal wear competition. Awards will be given to the top five finalists in each age group.

An optional talent competition will be offered for boys and girls ages 3-17 years. A photogenic division will be held for all ages. Photos must be submitted with the official entry form and will be judged by agencies in the commercial advertising field for children.

Former teacher becomes sports shop manager

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

The perfect job for Kari Cook has turned out to be managing the new Courtside Shop in the Deer Lake Racquet Club, 6167 White Lake Rd. in Independence Township.

Cook, a former Clarkston teacher, says the job gives her the opportunity to still play tennis and do aerobics. (Her petite, less-than-100-pound-frame certainly promotes the benefits of keeping fit.)

The Courtside Shop opened the end of last September in a temporary location in the racquet club while construction was underway.

At the end of November, the shop moved to its permanent location -- a brightly lit niche handy to tennis and racquet ball players, aerobics and Nautilus buffs, people who come in to browse after eating in the Back Court Restaurant in the club, or just people stopping in off the street.

The new pro shop is owned by Jim Moore of the Detroit area, who owns four pro shops in racquet clubs around the metro area. The original Courtside Shop is located in the Square Lake Racquet Club in Bloomfield Township.

Cook took a year off teaching to travel with her husband, and at the same time, took up tennis. She met Moore and talked to him about how the Deer Lake Racquet Club needed a pro shop. About the time she was going to go back to teaching, he decided to open the shop and offered her a job as manager.

The shop carries clothing, shoes, equipment and accessories for tennis, racquet ball, aerobics and Nauti-

Friend to Friend

Teen rebellion is normal

Dear Friend to Friend:

Christmas vacation was great. It was nice have

There was a lot of people home from college I haven't seen in a long time, I was able to stay up later and sleep in later, shopping was fun, I even had time to read a "fun" book.

I think I was made for VACATION. I am now just hangin' in for mid-winter break.

Just wanted to shout about how good it felt to have time to myself.

Sincerely, R&R

Dear R & R:

We can all agree how good having the time off felt. Some of us can structure the free time better than others.

Try to build into your schedule some time for yourself so you aren't just putting in time until the next vacation. Great to hear from you.

Sincerely, F to F

Dear Friend to Friend:

I wrote you a letter before Christmas asking for a solution on how to spend the holidays since I have two sets of families due to divorce. I signed my letter "Season is the Reason."

I took the advice of arranging for two Christmasses, and it worked out great. I spent Christmas Eve at my dad's and Christmas Day at my mom's, and you were right -- I had double the holiday fun.

The nice thing about this is I can apply it to other situations like birthdays and other holidays.

Thank you for the advice, and I'm sure you'll be hearing from me again soon.

Sincerely, Season is the Reason

Dear Season was the Reason:

We are very glad to know our advice was helpful to you and you had a wonderful holiday.

It's nice to have follow-up letters to know what happened. It's helpful to us as well.

Thanks a lot.

Sincerely, Friend to Friend

Dear Friend to Friend,

I have recently seen the light. I have always respected my parents and everything they did. Whatever they said was always right and there was no question. I believed them and was happy with it.

Recently, however, I've had a different attitude with them. Because of this, I will purposefully do things they don't like just to be different from them.

I've always been the "example-perfect child," and maybe this is causing me to rebel. Maybe this is making me see my parents in a new way.

I just feel a "clone" of them. I want my own identity for a change. I don't like seeing them this way, but now that I have, I can't ignore it. Please help.

Sincerely. Rebel with a Cause

Dear Rebel with a Cause,

We couldn't stop laughing because each one of us saw a part of ourselves in this letter. This is part of normal adolescent development to find your own identity.

One member of this group has a cousin who would wear fringe knee-high boots because his mother always dressed immaculately. Given time and a few years, he also is a snappy dresser now.

One of us was on vacation and noticed how corny our parents act.

Another member is growing long hair just because the mom loves it short.

The only advice we can give you is to grit your teeth. Studies show us that we will turn out as our parents want us to by the age of 32.

The things that you dislike about your parents you have the ability to change within yourself. For example, if they have prejudices you can't stand, you can take steps to change that in yourself.

Time -- the big four letter word.

Sincerely. Friend to Friend

Dear Readers:

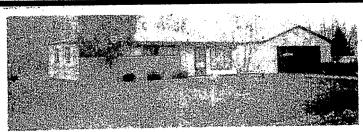

We would like to know the New Year's resolutions you have set for yourselves and how you plan to follow through.

Please write to us, and let us know what your goals are for the new year.

Sincerely, Friend to Friend

Fifth-graders dream of brighter days

After a discussion of Martin Luther King and what he stood for, Marlene Sewick, a fifth-grade teacher at North Sashabaw Elementary School, asked her pupils to pen their own dreams of the world in 25 years.

Below are excerpts of their responses.

"I have a dream that one day our children and our children's children will never know war, that the nations of this earth will be one in brotherhood and trust. Together we will expand our horizons toward the stars, colonize and bring life to the moon, and improve living conditions on earth."

-- Sun H. Lee

"...That we can...have a special club for people who rape, steal and cause violence for telling them not to do things like that."

-- Amanda Jenkinson

"I have a dream of a clean, clear, nice world. There will be no pollution, no weapons, ...or fighting; and the only war will be in movies."

-- Tim Rohlfing

"... That someday the United States and Russia can live in peace. I hope that we find a cure for aids."

"I want the air and water to be clean. I want the world to be safer everywhere."

-- Chad Auten

"...That someday there will be a negro or woman president or vice-president."

"I want more advanced technology so we can make settlements in space and under water. I want more advanced computers, ...microscopes, ...telescopes,

"My dream is for...less starving people in the world. Most of all...I want there to be no more drugs on the

-- Laura Witkowski

"I would hope we could...make a space station for people to live on just for a little while and make a spaceship so we can travel to other planets...and go to other galaxies."

"I want to find out what happened to the lost colony and know a lot more about how the dinosaurs died. I want to bring the wolverine back to Michigan." -- Chris Breeding

"I hope in 25 years from now that buildings will be restored, the homeless will have homes and jobs."

Kelli Mapes "My dream is to be a teacher for the fifth grade...In 25 years I'd like planes to be able to fly without crashing and cars not to put pollution in the air and without factories having smoke always coming out. And that's my

"My dream is that when my children look out the window they will see a world that is clean, with fresh air and no litter. And when they go out into the world they will get a good education."

-- Danny O'Hearn

"I have a dream that people...will save more land...I would also like more people to go to church."

- Faye Lloyd "I want all the money that we owe to other countries and things like that to get paid back without any problems."

-- Stephanie Seltzer

"In 25 years from now I'd like all the pollution to be stopped, ...that all my children and grandchildren can breathe fresh air and drink good water and have good

-- Jessica Schell

"When I get older the dream I've been dreaming is that we will have world peace." -- Brianne Summers

"I wish (people) would take all the junk away...instead of throwing stuff on the ground." - Tanya Miller

"I have a dream that I want to happen... I want the world to be clean and peaceful and beautiful."

-- Jecol Talbot "I want a nice and non-violent world...People can enjoy the world more than...they enjoy (it) now."

- Lisa Fournier "I would like to dispose of all nuclear weapons and

Record-keeping pointers for business expenses

Proper reporting and record-keeping requirements are essential for those taxpayers who claim business-related travel, transportation, entertainment and gift expenses, the Internal Revenue Service says.

The primary method of record keeping for most of these expenses starts with recording the expenses in an account book, diary, statement of expenses, or similar record at or near the time of the expense.

These entries must also include the date and location of the business travel or entertainment, the occupation or other information about the person or persons entertained,

Proper reporting and record-keeping requirements and the business purpose of incurring the expense, the IRS

A receipt or similar supporting evidence is required for all lodging expenses and any other expenses of $25 or more.

IRS guidelines state that all business expenses must be ordinary and necessary in the taxpayer's line of work to be deductible. Reasonable local transportation expenses such as the cost of driving and maintaining an automobile while on business, excluding any commuting and personal mileage, can be deducted.

For a business-related trip outside the area of their main place of business, taxpayers may be able to deduct expenses such as food and lodging in addition to the costs of transportation. The deduction for meal and entertainment expenses, however, is limited to 80 percent of the taxpayer's expenditures, and the meal or entertainment must either be directly related to, or associated with, the active pursuit of the taxpayer's trade or business.

Business gifts that the taxpayer may deduct are generally limited to $25 to any one individual for the year. The burden of proof of all business expenses lies with the taxpayer, who must show that a bonafide business purpose exists.

Rules for deducting these business expenses for 1988 can be found in the free IRS Publication 463, "Travel, Entertainment and Gift Expenses", or Publication 917, "Business Use of a Car".

The publications are available by using the order form in the tax package or by calling 1-800-424-3676.

Free CPR class offered

A free CPR class is offered through the Springfield Township Parks and Recreation Department and the Young at Heart senior citizens, with a little help from a Springfield firefighter.

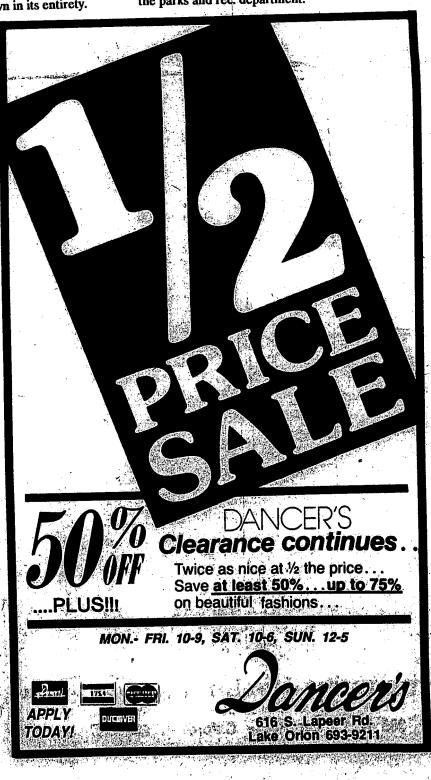

The two-session class is 1 to 3 p.m. Thursdays, Feb. 9 and 16, at the Springfield Oaks Activity Center, 12451 Andersonville Road, Springfield Township.

The class is taught by Dean Farner, a certified CPR instructor and member of the Springfield Township Fire Department.

The class will allow seniors and others to learn the basics of cardiopulminary resuscitation and the Heimlich maneuver for choking victims.

Interested people should call 625-9622 by Friday, Feb. 3, to reserve a spot, said Sherry Swindell, director of the parks and rec. department.

A "Festival of Music" should delight the ears at Clarkston High School's Kirchgessner Theatre Thurs-

The 7:30 p.m. free concert is open to the public and will serve as a showcase for top performers at the district solo and ensemble competition, said CHS vocal music director Grayce Warren.

The show is less than a week after the following groups compete in district competition: the Madrigal Singers, Mixed Chorus, the Choralaires and the Junior Girls Ensemble.

The concert will also serve as a training session for Varsity Concert Choir and Girls Select Ensemble, which are to compete March 16 in Novi.

The CHS Mime groups is to make a special appearance, and the Sashabaw Junior High School Encores and the Clarkston Junior High School Ovations are to sing, as well.

"We've invited them to perform to see what it's like here," said Warren. "We're encouraging all the junior high music students to attend the concert."

She added that she hopes the concert will garner enthusiasm for the high school music program as a whole.

The performers are spending hours after school preparing for the Michigan School Vocal Association Competition, so the concert gives them a chance to show their hard work, she said.

She enjoys life in Yugoslavia

(LIFE, from Page 29)

Though the Croatian Republic of Yugoslavia is mainly Catholic, as is Karen, the New Year, not Christmas, is the biggest holiday.

One of the hardest parts of being in a different country, she says, is that she is used to taking care of problems herself. "But now, I have to do everything in a foreign language -- one I did not know at first."

Living in a foreign country "helps make you a stronger person," Karen says.

When she arrived, she went through a long series of questioning about why she was there and who she was. But, she says, this is just part of the governmental system. Another part of the system is that packages sent to her are opened before they reach her.

"But there is a new premiere this year who is more pro-western," she says, "So I see things changing."

While Yugoslavia is a communist country, it is not like some, she explains. It is more liberal and open. Free enterprise is growing, with more businesses privately owned.

"They are even getting a McDonald's," she says. Before, if you had a "Big Mac attack," you had to travel

Food in Yugoslavia was a big shock to her system, she says. They cook with a lot of oil, But that too, she is getting used to. "Everything is so different from here," she says.

"But it's just a matter of adjusting."

The basic form of transportation is public trams or trolleys. Karen does not have a washing machine at the dorm, so must wash all her clothes by hand. Shopping is done mainly in open markets.

"That's when you need to be able to speak the language," she laughs, adding that it is especially interesting to watch the people bargaining.

The people of Yugoslavia are very helpful and willing to work with you when they see you are trying to learn the language, she says. They get excited about the fact that you are trying.

"I think they are a very open people," she says." Karen is interested in learning about different peoples and different cultures, and says that learning to adapt in another culture is "really a matter of determina-

One of her favorite experiences in Yugoslavia was spending five weeks on an island with her grandmother. It was the home where her Yugoslavian grandmother was born. There was no electricity, just candles at night, and cooking was done in a fireplace. So many people don't realize how much they have until they're away from it," she says. "It really opens your eyes to live in another culture."

Yugoslavia is a beautiful country, with much to offer both in geography and in culture, she says. "In one day you can be at the top of a mountain or at the seashore."

Karen says the cultural offerings in the city of Zagreb are wonderful. "There is always a ballet, a classical concert, an opera...'

Shortly after Karen returns to Yugoslavia, she will begin working in the Zagreb television station on a program for children. It is a prospect she looks forward

While the media is controlled and censored to some extent in Yugoslavia, she says the newspapers look much like ours, with a mix of features, news, women's sections, advertisements.

When Karen completes her second term in June, she will stay in Europe for another month or two traveling. When she returns home next September, she will be looking for a job in broadcasting.

Coming home this month was nice, she says. "When the plane's wheels touched down in Detroit, it was great."

But despite the fact that it is always nice to come home, Karen looks forward to continuing her experience. "I realize the opportunity I have and can appreciate it. I see myself becoming more fluent in the language. It is very rewarding."

Come Feb. 10, she will return to Yugoslavia, probably with a farewell from her family that sounds something like: "Sretan put." That means "happy traveling" in the Croatian language.

Video workshop for seniors

A free series of Retiree Workshops designed for the interests and concerns of senior citizens and their families will be offered this spring through Clarkston Community Education.

The workshops is to take; place in the Clarkston Learning Center, 5275 Maybee Rd; on three Mondays; Feb. 6, 13 and 27, from 3 to 4 p.m.

This video series includes such topics as: nursing home insurance; Alzheimer's support groups, home health care, make-over and good grooming as we grow older, legal aid, and adopt-a-grandparent programs.

Interested people may attend just one or all of the workshops.

"The videos were developed by Lake Orion Community Education," said Jeanne Molzon, Clarkston school district volunteer coordinator. "They are done inan informal type of setting. I viewed (the series) and thought it was excellent."

Refreshments will be provided at the workshop series. If transportation is needed, seniors may call Independence Township for senior van pickup at 625-

More information on the Retiree Workshops is available by calling Molzon at the Clarkston Learning Center, 674-3141.

They'll go wild over this

So, with the hearty recommendation of the entire, always-hungry staff of The Clarkston News, here is the recipe.

WILD RICE CASSEROLE

- 1 cup wild rice
- 3 cups boiling water
- 2 cans cream of chicken soup
- 2 cans sliced mushrooms
- 2 bouillon cubes dissolved in 2 cups water
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon each of celery salt, onion salt, garlic salt and paprika
- 1 crumbled bay leaf
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 4 tablespoons butter or oil
- 1 1/2 pounds ground round steak
- Pinch of thyme Chopped parsley
- 1/2 cup sliced almonds

Pour 3 cups boiling water over the rice; let stand 15 minutes; drain. Add all ingredients except onion, beef and oil. In separate pan, brown onion in oil; add beef and brown. Mix beef and onions into other ingredients and put mixture into buttered casserole.

Let casserole stand overnight in refrigerator. Then bake in 325-degree oven for 11/2 hours covered, plus 1/ 2 hour uncovered. (There's lots of moisture to be absorbed.) Makes 8-10 generous servings.

Note: If you can't find wild rice, use Uncle Ben's long-grain rice and wild rice, but eliminate the spice package. Regular rice gets too soggy in this casserole.

Carpenter gets OK for barn addition

A self-employed Springfield Township carpenter got the green light for an addition to his business at Andersonville and Crosby Lake roads but only if he removes two trailers on the property when the addition

Matt Gilford received site plan approval from the Springfield Township board on Jan. 12. He plans a 20-by-30-foot addition to a barn which has been converted into his carpentry business, Gilford, Inc., and an additional parking area in front of the business.

But the approval was given with a stipulation that he remove the two 8-by-40-foot trailers, currently used for storage of materials, within 90 days after final inspection of the addition.

Pennell appointed national manager

Richard A. Pennell of the Clarkston area has been appointed as national dealer operations and business planning manager for GMC Truck Division of the General Motors Truck & Bus Group.

Pennell is responsible for GMC Truck's dealer operations, marketing plans, and sales administration. He has been dealer development manager since January

A native of New York, Pennell, 52, earned a bachelor's degree in engineering and business from Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pa. in 1959. He completed Northwestern University's Executive Development program in 1973.

Clarkston man is vice president

Rick Doyle of the Clarkston area has been elected a vice president of N W Ayer Inc. of Detroit.

The former associate media director has been responsible for all media planning and research done in the Detroit office. He also supervised all media buying and auditing for all accounts. Before joining Ayer, Rick was the senior print buyer at Campbell-Ewald.

Doyle is president of the Detroit chapter of the Business Professional Advertising Association, a member of the board of directors and functional vice-president -- education of BPAA International.

Trustee Charles Oaks made the suggestion, because the addition is also planned for storage.

Gilford said he was hoping to keep the trailers there a couple more years for additional storage, but said, "If I have to move them, I have to. I guess that's up to the

Talk on self esteem 🌼

Ray Maloney

Parents, teachers and anyone involved with children may be interested in an upcoming free talk on self esteem.

The 7:30 p.m. presentation by author Ray Maloney is set for Tuesday, Feb. 7, at the Clarkston High School Kirchgessner The-

The talk will tell parents "how to talk so that your kids will listen and listen so that they will talk," said Merelyn Mallett, of the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance, which is sponsoring the program. "Self esteem is sort of a watch word now days," said Mallett. "And this is all he does. ... And he really does an excellent iob." Maloney is to talk about how adults can communicate to children that they are accepted, how adults can communicate their expectations and realistic responsibilities and goals.

A question and answer period will follow his pres-

Maloney is author of "How to Cure Low Self-Esteem" and "Pieces for Puzzled Parents," among other books, and he has published self esteem articles in Reader's Digest and Kidding Around.

azz greats visit

Jazz lovers will have a special treat Sunday, Jan. 12, when The Motor City Jazz Quintet visits the Clarkston

The group's performance from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. at the Deer Lake Racquet Club, White Lake Road, Independence Township, is organized by Ivan Rouse, director of The Clarkston Conservatory of Music.

A $10 donation is asked for the tickets, available from the conservatory or Tierra on Main Street, Clarkston, or at the door. The proceeds are to benefit the conservatory.

The jazz quintet plays all over the Detroit metro area and can often be seen at the Bird of Paradise in Ann Arbor, said Rouse.

The group is comprised of Walt Szymanski, Scott Peterson, Paul Keller, Jon Knust and Phil Kelly, On acoustic piano, was a former student of Rouse.

A CHAIN OF SKATERS whiz by the watchers on the sidelines at the end of the two-hour skating session last week at Bay Pointe Skating Center, Orion Township. Some Andersonville Elementary children were first-time skaters; others were experienced on wheels.

Rollin' along

HOLDING HANDS provides for a steadier trip around the rink for Scott Ziegenfelder, 8, Matt Mikola (center), 6, and Sabrina Treckman, 9. Matt's brother, Chris (not pictured), also enjoyed the free skating at Bay Pointe Skating Center, Orlon Township, given to Andersonville Elementary School students by the Parent Teacher Organization.

ROLLER SKATING turns out to be a great activity for parents and their children to share together, as shown by Maryann Carr and her son, John, 7.
