Planners kill White Lake recycling plans

BY TRACY KING Clarkston News Staff Writer

After almost a year of debate, plans for a cardboard sorting facility proposed for White Lake Road, Independence Township, were killed by planning commission members March 9.

Planners voted 6-0 to withdraw permission for special land use at the site, saying the project was not what they envisioned when they granted that permission

Recycling facilities need special land use permission in Independence Township, so planners did not consider the final site plan for the project as scheduled.

Voting yes were Chairperson Brent Bair, Joseph Figa, Bruce Mercado, Richard Oppmann, Steve Secatch and Daniel Travis. Jo Fussman was absent.

The unique sorting facility had captured the attention of many who see recycling as a necessary step in dealing with solid waste disposal problems in the state.

Independence man charged with POH fire

BY TRACY KING Clarkston News Staff Writer

Operations at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital are back to normal after a fire spread through the facility's first floor March 9, according to Dr. Robert Aranosian, director of the emergency room operations. Johnny A. Stewart, 37, of High Street, Independence Township, was charged with arson in the incident and, if convicted, could face up to 10 years in prison.

After the fire. Stewart was taken to Pontiac General Hospital for smoke inhalation. He was held at PGH on a $50,000 cash bond set by Judge William Waterford of 50th District Court. On March 13 he was transferred to the Oakland County jail.

As of March 13, no preliminary exam date had been set. The fire started sometime after 1 a.m. Thursday in Stewart's hospital room and quickly spread throughout Ninety people were evacuated, and nine people suffered from smoke inhalation.

The blaze damaged an area surrounding four hospital rooms at an estimated cost of $250,000.

"An investigation revealed that the fire was intentionally set," said Pontiac Police Detective Gary Kraft. Kraft declined to say how the fire started, however.

"The investigation pointed to Mr. Stewart, and a warrant was obtained." Kraft said.

Kraft could not say what a motive in the incident may have been.

Davisburg man killed in car crash

An accident along Big Lake Road near Andersonville Road, claimed the life of a Davisburg man early March Daniel Scott Weishaar, 33, of Long Pointe Beach, Springfield Township, was killed just after midnight when the car he was driving left the roadway, stuck a tree and flipped over.

Weishaar was not wearing a seatbelt at the time of the accident. He was later pronounced dead upon arrival at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital.

Weishaar's wife, Despina, described her husband as an avid outdoorsman. "He was the kind of guy you couldn't help but like," Despina said.

"He loved to hunt; two weeks out of every year, he would go bow hunting. He liked to get the kids involved with it, Despina, who is four months pregnant, has two other children, ages nine and eight.

"They're back in school now and talking about their friends again; children are resilient," she said.

"He (Daniel) got them a BB gun and a target to shoot

"We were a typical two-dog, two-cat family," she said.

"When it first happened, it was hard — it's still hard — but we're getting better."

Springfield burro uproar sparks animal care tips

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

Following the widely publicized story of a neglected burro in Springfield Township the end of February, Trantee Nancy Strole gave a brief report on how to avoid a repeat situation with any animal.

"It seems incomprehensible (that a situation like the burro could happen)," she said at the March 9 board meeting. "Yet, I think the greater question is, after it recedes from the headlines, what happens next week, next year."

She spoke to Michigan Humane Society officials and asked what the township could tell residents to increase awareness and avoid future tragedy. The humane society related the following four points:

1. With any animal, recognize that commitments are long term, not just a spur-of-the-moment thing.

Four re-elected to village council

Four Village of Clarkston Republican trustees were re-elected March 13 in a general election. Twentynine ballots were cast. About 8 percent of the registered voters turned out.

Trustee James Schultz of Robertson Court and Trustee Dominic Mauti of Buffalo Street were the top vote-getters with 26 apiece.

Trustee Douglas Roeser of Church Street was next with 22 votes and Trustee Gary Symons of Main Street

Three of the trustees were running for re-election to their two-year posts, while Mauti was running to complete the final year of Frank Millard's term. Millard gave up his seat when he was elected trustee on the Independence Township Board.

 Realistically assess your ability to take care of an animal, with respect to both time and finances, before taking on the commitment.

3. If you find you cannot care for the animal, contact the Michigan Humane Society. They'll try to find a good home for the animal.

4. If you suspect animal neglect or cruelty, please notify the Michigan Humane Society. They would rather check a complaint and find out you are wrong than have an animal that has been neglected or abused, but it's too late to belo

"People are reticent about contacting the society," Strole said. But they should if they think there is a problem.

The number to call is 1-872-3400, the Michigan Humane Society's Cruelty Division in Detroit.

"Maybe we can help prevent problems in the future," Strole said.

The Springfield Township office has the Humane Society number on hand, as well as numbers for other services available in the county.

At the township board meeting, several residents asked what was happening in the case of the neglected burro. They were told that the investigation is still continuing, along with a federal investigation because the burro taken from a Springfield Township farm was

School contracts extended for year

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

A contract mutually agreed to by the Clarkston ducation Association and the Clarkston Board of Education March 13 extends the current contract for one year, updates the current school calendar, and gives across-the-board 6 percent raises to school employees.

It also sets in place a unique, continuous negotiation process designed to address mutual contract concerns and needs in a non-confrontational format.

The goal, according to Superintendent Gary Haner, is to have a fully negotiated contract in place by March 1 of next year. In this new, continuous negotiation format, Haner will personally sit in on negotiations, with a minimum of at least monthly meetings scheduled.

Haner said he was pleased with the one-year extended contract and the new negotiation process.

The continuous bargaining, he said, is much more desirable than "waiting until every three years and then dumping everything on the table."

He also said the process is a reflection of mutual confidence in one another and a respective desire to enable harmonious labor relations.

The updated calendar, while not finalized yet, will follow the same general format of the 1988-89 calendar. It will have the same number of school days and work

Haner said the 6 percent pay increase is the same as the average of recently settled contracts for 1989-90 in both the north Oakland County area and the state.

when you consider our employees ar end of the Oakland County pay scale, the pay increase is reasonable," he said.

Consideration of the one-year contract extension was also based on the hope that proposed legislative change to the state's support of local districts will provide increased revenues and financial stability.

Board President Janet Thomas added that the contract extension and continuous bargaining process would give them time to study alternative ways to handle fringe benefit packages. There were no fringe benefit changes made in the contract extension.

Clarkston Education Association President Al Bartlett, a Clarkston High School teacher, said they were satisfied with the agreement.

"For what it addressed, it is an equitable proposal," he said, adding that other areas could be dealt with in the continuous negotiation process.

"The continuous negotiations is a new thing in Clarkston and something we're looking forward to," he said. "We're optimistic going into it."

Independence to hire recreation programmer

Help wanted: A programmer for the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

The $17,000-$20,000 position was established by township board members by a vote of 6-0 Feb. 22, clearing the way for the advertising and hiring of a qualified applicant.

Voting yes were Supervisor Frank Ronk, Clerk Richard Holman, Treasurer John Lutz and trustees Frank Millard, Mel Vaara and Daniel Travis. William Vandermark was absent.

The programmer position had at one time been filled by Sheryl Stickley-Schreefel, who left the position while serving as interim director of the parks and recreation department until current Director Ann Conklin was hired. Stickley-Schreefel now holds the newly-created position of assistant director of parks and recreation.

Conklin told the board the programmer would develop new activities and special events which would increase the department's revenues.

The proposed programmer would be able to perform the duties of some of the supervisors currently hired for specific sports, Conklin added.

Although parks and recreation funds were not budgeted for the position, Conklin told board members that there was money available within the department to support the position.

Approval by the board allowed the immediate posting of the position.

No action on CHS assistant principal's contract

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston school board listened to an administrative recommendation to give Clarkston High School Assistant Principal Jan Gabier notice that her contract might not be renewed but declined to take action on the recommendation until next week.

The administration's recommendation listed two points: receipt of several complaints from students and parents relative to Gabier's conduct in discipline/attendance situations; and her "unacceptable" style in managing crisis and confrontations.

The administration further recommended that Gabier be reassigned to a full-time classroom teaching position for the 1989-90 school year.

"My background in personnel says I'd like to hear both sides before you lay out something as formal as this," said John Needham, vice president of the school

"I feel very ill prepared," said Mary Jane Chaustowich, board secretary, adding that in her 11 years on the board, they had dealt with only a couple of similar situations (where they had to inform administrators of intent of contract nonrenewal), but it was for more serious reasons.

"I don't put this in the same class as past issues," she said. "I could not in good conscience support this based on student and parent complaints."

Chaustowich's comment drew loud applause from a portion of those in attendance in the packed board room, which virtually emptied after the board's decision to table the issue until a special meeting next week.

Legally, the board is bound to give 90 days notice to an administrator if there is consideration to not renew a contract, Superintendent Gary Haner said, and that was the reason the issue was brought before the board in March, three months before the end of the school year. Any final action would be taken at a later date.

Haner also said Gabier has requested a closed hearing before the school board, as is her right under the Neither Gabier, CHS Principal Dr. Robert Burek, nor Haner would comment further on the administrative recommendation to the board.

The board will meet again at 8 p.m. Tuesday, March 21, in the administrative offices in either an informal setting, or a closed session, depending on what is legally advised in the situation by the school attorney.

But one way or the other, the board will have to take some action on the recommendation, according to Board President Janet Thomas.

"We can't leave it up there forever," Thomas said. "But any action on the (recommendation) won't solve the apparent underlying problem."

Gabier came to the Clarkston school district as a teacher in 1961. She left for one year, 1964-65, and returned to the district in 1965-66. She was named assistant principal at the high school in the 1970-71 school year and has served in that administrative capacity ever since.

Call for finance, property tax reform

BY TRACY KING Clarkston News Staff Writer

Stating that it's time for state legislators and the governor to put politics behind them, the Independence Township Board March 8 passed a resolution urging immediate steps for property tax and school finance

The resolution, passed by a 6-0 vote, will be sent to the governor, all state legislators, all municipalities within Oakland County and nearby jurisdictions, Michigan's U.S. senators and representatives, and just about every other Michigan league, board and association that operates within the realm of government.

Voting yes on the resolution was Supervisor Frank Ronk, Clerk Richard Holman, Treasurer John Lutz, Frank Millard, Daniel Travis and Mel Vaara. William Vandermark was absent.

The board approved the document after receiving a similar resolution from Springfield Township, which passed the resolution Feb. 9.

The resolution states, in part, "Michigan property tax rates are among the highest in the nation, and Michigan has one of the nation's lowest rankings with respect to state funding of local school districts.

"(The combination) is creating an unconscionable tax burden on Michigan property owners."

The document further states that "the broad interest and welfare of Michigan tax payers and Michigan school children have too often taken second place to political considerations and to pressures exerted by special interest lobbying groups.

The document urges the governor and the state legislature to take immediate steps to implement meaningful property tax and school financing reform, using existing state revenues and without resorting to more tax increase or new taxes.

As part of the resolution, the Independence Township Board resolved to seek out and work with other township boards, local boards of education and other groups interested in actively supporting meaningful property tax and school financing reforms.

Independence Township Fire Chief Gar Wilson got some heat from on-call firefighters who March 5 voted down a pay raise package proposed by Wilson and approved by the township board Feb. 22.

The raises were less than what the firefighters asked for, but the fire department budget couldn't afford what was requested, said Wilson.

"We extended ourselves pretty good there, not that they're not deserving of it," he said, adding that he planned to negotiate further with the firefighters before putting the raises into effect.

The two-year pay raise package covered wages for the Independence Firefighters Association (IFA), comprised of 27 on-call firefighters.

After the IFA meeting, IFA President Rod Shaul said members objected to only one point of the raise package -- a year delay of a $1 raise to firefighters with advanced first aid and firefighting I status. Because of this, the IFA members unanimously voted against the package

The IFA vote was sought by Wilson as a courtesy, Shaul explained. The association's vote does not prevent Wilson from putting the package into place

"We are underpaid; we've acknowledged that," Shaul said. "It's now a matter of how we're brought up to an acceptable level."

Shaul said he first asked Wilson for pay raises after studying on-call firefighter wages from other townships, including Springfield and Orion.

Wilson presented the firefighters' proposals to township board members Feb. 22, with a warning that he could not afford the requested raises.

'On-call firefighters asked for raises -- I budgeted $5,000 this year for some type of raise -- but I never thought (the request) would go that high," Wilson said. "I cannot come up with that type of raise," Wilson told board members.

listed the firefighters' requests:

* A $1 per hour raise for Advanced First Aid and Firefighter I class.

A 25 cents an hour raise for firefighters trained on the heart-start machine.

* The same hourly rate for training as runs. * No step-down in wage for extra hours worked.

Under the step-down practice, the pay for firefighters drops down as the number of hours in their shift increases. The practice was adopted because most activity happens within the first hours firefighters are on duty,

After listing firefighter proposals, he presented the board with a two-year compromise he had come up * Firefighters with training on a heart start machine will receive increases of 25 cents an hour.

Pay for training hours will be increased by $1 to $4.50 per hour.

* And the current step-down practice for all hours worked after one hour will be deleted.

*A $1 per hour raise would be granted to firefighters with advanced first aid and firefighting I status.

* And pay for training hours would increase $2 to $6.50 an hour.

The raise package would amount to $2,950 in 1989 and $6,555 in 1990, Wilson estimated.

Township board members approved Wilson's raise proposal by a 6-0 vote.

But firefighters were not happy with it, said Shaul, after the meeting. He added that the money for raises this year could come from a reduction in the step-down

"Gar will look at it," Shaul said. "It's just a matter of do we have the money."

New lawsuit echoes old Springfield dispute

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

A lawsuit filed by AHR Packaging against Springfield Township reopens the same zoning dispute on the same 188 acres of land as a lawsuit dismissed in July of

The township board, following a closed session at the end of the March 9 meeting, authorized its attorney, Gregory Need of Booth, Patterson, Lee Karlstrom and Stickling, to prepare all the necessary legal documents to defend the township in this new litigation.

They also authorized the attorney to seek recovery of all legal fees, and to notify the plaintiff of their intent.

In 1987, the former owner of the land in dispute, the Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council, dismissed the suit

AHR Packaging has now filed suit against the township over the same issue -- zoning. The land owner wants a higher density.

In the original suit, the scout-owned land -- formerly a scout camp at Hillsboro and Crosby Lake roads was zoned recreational, and the scout council wanted it zoned a higher density residential than the township was willing to approve.

In the meantime, said Supervisor Collin Walls, the township rezoned the land to the lowest density residential under the new master plan and zoning map for the township, which is 2 1/2-acre-minimum lots.

Walls said that the township board doesn't know why the suit is being reopened.
"It isn't logical," he said.

It was an innocent enough statement. But that one sentence opened the doors to the wrath of the infamous Irish temper. Mixed with a little Catholic mercy, it was a curious combination.

I was a student at Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, and I was talking to Chris (now my husband), who was visiting his parents in Clarkston during the phone call.

"By the way," I said. "I won't be home for St.

Patrick's Day. I have to work."

Then, I changed the subject and started talking about more important things. But for some reason, Chris couldn't drop the subject of St. Patrick's Day.

"What do you mean?" he asked. "I don't believe it. You're not going to be home for St. Patrick's Day?"

"No," I said, laughing. I thought he was jok-

"I'm working that weekend," I said and again changed the subject.

"It can't be. You've got to come home for St. Patrick's Day," he lamented.

I laughed again.

"What's the big deal?" I said. "It's not like it's Easter or something. St. Patrick's Day is like ... it's like Ground Hog's Day."

I heard a gasp. Then silence.

Then, in the background; I heard his mother asking him what time I would be home so she could plan the St. Patrick's Day dinner.

"She's not coming home," he told her. "She said St. Patrick's Day was like Ground Hog's

I heard another gasp, this time in the back-ground.

I thought I heard a thud. Did someone faint? Iwas beginning to regret my choice of similes.

After putting the bits and pieces together from various past conversations, I realized the comparison would not be taken too favorably by this family.

I could imagine Chris' blue eyes alternately flashing in anger and in sadness that I wouldn't be home for such a day.

Yes, I really did say that -- and to a family who is so Irish that they eat corned beef and cabbage all year round,

... so Irish that Chris' mother's name was Molly Malone.

... so Irish that Chris' winter beard grows in a reddish color.

... so Irish that Ireland itself practically flows in their veins.

On his mother's side, the family tree is filled with such names as Malone, Mulhenny and Madden, and it stretches back to County Kings and County Queens, Ireland.

On his father's side, it's the same sort of thing — the Toumeys and Nolans of Chicago, and those families, too, can be followed to that island across the Atlantic.

Fortunately, they had good Catholic upbringings. They forgave me and even felt sorry for me that I couldn't join their celebration.

Within two days, I received in the mail little green plastic pins in the shapes of shamrocks and leprechauns. They were from Chris', mother who thinks I had a deprived childhood.

I wore them that March 17, and you can bet I'll be wearing something like that again this Friday. Fortunately, I'll be home for the holiday.

Chamber supports fire bond issue

The Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce would like to publicly support the bond issue proposal for the purchase and renovation of the old Randy Hosler Pontiac building.

The purpose would be to install a much needed public safety facility. The building will house the Independence Township Fire Department central station, an Oakland County Sheriff's Department substation and possibly a substation for the Michigan State Police.

The amount of the bond issue is $1.5 million over 20 years. Please vote on March 28 in favor of the bond issue to show your support.

Interesting, in an era of "why Johnny can't read, or let's upgrade the academic standards," we actually are questioning our educators because they are making our children work? It must be difficult to our educators with so many conflicting signals ... too much homework ... not enough homework ... etc.

Thank you, educators, for loving our kids enough to go that extra mile. We appreciate that our kids have to put forth extra effort to critically think -- knowledge is power -- hopefully, our children will have the background necessary to compete in this ever changing competitive world and at the same time learn his strengths and weaknesses.

The administration offers dialogue meetings regularly, giving the parents an opportunity to meet and express concerns. The letter from these concerned parents, it seems, has some legitimate concerns; but what purpose does it serve to libel well meaning; hard working people? We find your method of writing a P.O. box mysterious.

We cannot write to an anonymous group, nor can we write our concerns anonymously.

CJHS staff worthy of praise, respect

Thank you, Clarkston Junior High School (CJHS) staff. We find you a caring, hard-working, energized and experienced staff.

Last week, a letter from CJHS concerned parents (names withheld by request) expressed some concerns and noted teacher negativism. A few weeks ago, a letter was written declaring teacher negativism about self-esteem week. It was later learned the complaint was unfounded. How can such generalizations be made so easily?

A CJHS teacher has anywhere from 150-180 students a day ... 300-360 parents ... a possible total of 540 varying opinions. Thankfully, most teachers are confident about their abilities and stick to their principles.

An experienced teacher has a certain grade or age for a number of years and basically become experts on what their "special age group" can or cannot do, where we as parents have that "age" for only a year.

Farm dairy great

I am writing to express my family's gratitude and appreciation to Cook's Dairy Farm for our year's supply of complimentary milk after we won the drawing at last year's Open House.

Their dairy products, milk and ice cream are unsurpassed in quality and freshness.

Their employees are wonderful, friendly people.

Visits to their dairy farm are educational experiences for the entire family.

We fly commercial airlines 2 or 3 times a year. It doesn't matter which one. We've flown many of them and they are all fine... as long as they take off and land reasonably close to schedule.

There was one time on a flight back from Florida when even the "reasonably close to schedule" wasn't that important. Especially when compared to "take off and land"

I've never paid much attention to pilots, assuming they are initially trained and then re-trained once or twice a year. I have glanced into the cockpit as I entered some planes to see if a pilot might have grey hair.

Grey hair to me means a person has lived long enough to have better judgement, more concern for continuing the good life, and less likely to take a chance. I like those qualities in a pilot.

Through all my good experiences of taking off and landing I've overcome white-knuckling. Kicking the jet into second gear and even the bumping from passing through clouds doesn't bother me much.

What I'm saying is that I have grown to feel very safe in jet airplanes.

It came out last week that my sense of safety was false. I didn't know until last week that these pilots of passenger planes have not been following all the rules for getting us to and fro safely.

Last Tuesday the Air Line Pilots Association, their national union, announced that its members would begin to strictly follow aviation safety rules.

That makes me feel very good about my upcoming flight, but it gives me the shakes to think the ALPA members have not been following all the safety rules up to now.

Is that what's meant when a crash investigating team reports 'pilot error' was the cause?

What kind of a group of people, who are responsible for flying so many frightened beings, would tell their future customers, "Ok, from now on we are going to observe all the rules for safe flying."

Who would admit they had not been doing things the safe, non-risk way before?

Then, get this, the Federal Aviation Administration Associate Director Anthony Broderick said the FAA "is prepared to deal with the pilots action."

The way I interpret that remark, I'm back to white-knuckling take offs and landings again.

Some of my recent comments prompted this letter to Jottings:
Dear Jim,

Thanks for your article on my views of personal hygiene, but I hope you can find a place for me to send all the soap and underwear I've received due to your article.

Middle school is getting better

The letter published in the March 8 edition of The Clarkston News regarding the state of sixth-grade students currently enrolled at Clarkston Junior High School is both irresponsible and incorrect.

On the one hand; the person or persons who penned this tirade refuse to identify themselves after attacking a program that is in the process of improving.

On the other, no student in the sixth grade has seven teachers. All have at least seven classes, but those classes are taught principally by two teams of three teachers each. Some students can have as many as six teachers if they have opted for vocal music and foreign language.

The "Concerned CJHS Parents" should be aware that students currently enrolled in Clarkston's elementary can have as many as five teachers if teachers in the grades form teams to broaden the experiences of their students, and the gym, music and foreign languages are taught by separate qualified individuals as they should Elementary schools and teachers have engaged in the practice of departmental offerings for several years, to improve the quality of the programs being presented. My own fourth-grade daughter has as many as five teachers on certain days of the week.

I, too, experienced strong concern in the early stages of my sixth grader's year at CJHS. However, I do not believe it is better to mutter in the dark than it is to act quickly to alleviate those concerns before they have a chance to fester.

That is why I chose to take a day from work to discuss my concerns with the teachers involved and Mr.

Lewis, the principal.

It was in that meeting last September that I was informed of the coordinated effort going into the program. I was also assured that the teachers knew who I was, that I was concerned over the way things were starting, and that I expected positive change to occur. I have not been given great cause to be further concerned.

Why do the Concerned CJHS Parents choose to ignore the positive things being done by the sixth graders who have taken part in two band concerts thus far?

Why don't they view the field trip to Lansing at election time last November as a concerted and positive effort on the part of all the sixth-grade teachers of the academic subjects?

Why do they choose to cloak themselves in anonymity and toss jibes at people whose efforts to achieve their own and others' high expectations are showing positive

Have any of the Concerned CJHS Parents attended Mr. Lewis' scheduled monthly parent dialogues to express their concerns?

I invite the Concerned CJHS Parents to recognize the value of the middle school program in preparing our students for the years ahead. Education is an experiment; it has always been an experiment, and it shall always be an experiment. It is only through doing things in a new and different way that we are able to learn and to teach others to learn.

Cliff Higdon, Also A Concerned CJHS Parent

The law firm of Barbier & Tolleson recently mailed out a formal announcement that "L. Brooks Patterson, former Oakland County Presecutor, A. Benjamin Henson and Sally Lee Foley have joined the firm and reside in the Birmingham office."

Reside? "What do you make of that? Some kind of hanky-panky? Menage a trois?"

The suspicious questions were asked me by Mark Beltaire, retired Free Press Town Crier. And I mean retired. Beltaire is not one of those depressing retirees who, immediately upon leaving a lifetime job, get a new job, or maybe two part-time jobs, and delights in saying: "My goodness, I'm working harder now than before I retired.'

I phoned the Beltaire home at 3:30 on a weekday afternoon and was told, "Yes, Mark is home but he can't come to the phone right now because he's taking a nap." The Town Sleeper.

Later I asked Beltaire what he was resting up from. He said he was tired from sleeping so long the night before. That's the type of retirement I'm looking forward to. If a retiree is working for wages, he (she) isn't a retiree, he (she)'s something else.

If his pension and savings are inadequate, and he needs the money to pay the bills, he's still a worker, doing what has to be done. I understand, and sympathize. But if he's employed simply because "I have to have something to do; I can't stand doing nothing," I don't understand at

A time to savor the doozies

The world is full of books to read, places to visit, movies to see, saloons to inhabit, music to hear, golf to be played, large leather chairs to sit in, grandchildren to spoil and so on. Ever since I got my first job at age 14,12 ve never had enough time to stop and savor the doozies. I figure that's what retirement is for.

People often say to me, "After you retire, you'll probably keep writing." What in the devil do they think I'm going to retire from? They wouldn't tell a bricklayer that, after he retires, he'll probably keep on laying bricks. I've been writing or editing for a living for almost 40 years, and it's a job that, when you're not actually doing it, you're constantly thinking about how you're going to do it, how you did it, or how you should have done it.

The truth is, I'm not an artist, not a compulsive creator who must get his thoughts down on paper, even if no one will pay to read them. It's always been work, to pay the bills. I lay words instead of bricks, and I'm looking forward to stopping.

But not until I'm an old man, like Beltaire.

Of course, none of this ranting should be interpreted as criticism of retirees who don't need the money but keep working for wages anyway. To each his own. So what if, by refusing to really retire, they're keeping young parents from securing the employment they need to feed their children?

If I did that when I retired, I wouldn't be able to sleep well at night. Or in the afternoon.

Product of lawyer language Bul I digress (like Niagara Falls drips). Today's column started out to be a cultured comment on the three new employees of the Barbier & 1 oneson 12 has offices in four cities. In the past, I've often called him L. Bizarre Patterson; but is he so bizarre that he would live in an office with Sally Lee Foley and A. Benjamin Henson?

Tasked five college graduates what it means to say three people "reside" somewhere: They all said it refers to where they live, where they make their home, or residence. So what is the meaning of the Barbier & Tolleson. announcement? Are Patterson and friends working the ultimate overtime; living on the job with mattresses on the

No. Because Mark Beltaire is a retired columnist, he didn't have to look "reside" up in a huge dictionary. I did. An exceedingly obscure - though prominent - definition of reside" is "to be in residence as the incumbent of a benefice or office." That's how lawyers talk; to fool you into believing they're worth what they charge you. They don't use under-standable words until they retire, which serves them right, because, by then, they're too old for hanky-panky.

The Roads.... We Travel

Independence, Springfield top list

Bair

Guess what? Independence was Number One! Independence led all other communities in complaints called in to the Oakland County Road Commission in 1988 regarding the surface condition of local gravel

The number of such calls more than doubled from the previous year, with 434 in 1988 versus 213 in 1987. Springfield was number two in 1988 with 353 such calls.

Independence was also number one in terms of the number of complaints per mile called in regarding snow and ice condition problems, with 140 calls versus 138 miles of county roads in the township. Again, those calls were primarily related to local roads.

One of the reasons for the significant increase in calls related to gravel roads appeared to be a call-in campaign in February of 1988 by residents on or near Pine Knob Road just south of Sashabaw Road.

The director of the road commission's department of citizen services drove out and inspected Pine Knob Road as soon as the calls started coming in.

He noted that the road was not invery bad condition for a gravel road at the time of year, so he talked to township officials about the calls in an attempt to determine what might have initiated the call in campaign.

The township officials noted that property assessments had just gone up for residences in that area and suspected that the residents were upset that their taxes weregoing up, and they did not feel that they were getting adequate road services in view of the property taxes they were paying.

Obviously, they did not know that mone of their property taxes: go to the road commission to maintain

The 140 snow, and ice-related calls, up from 90 the previous year; are a bit of a mystery, surce the snowfall in 1988 was significantly less than in 1987, and the road commission increased its winter maintenance service by adding a half million dollars to the overtime budget so that the trucks could be sent into the subdivision streets sooner. It is interesting that Southfield came in second in this category.

I have used the term "complaints," but in truth not the calls to the road commission's department of citizen services are complaints. Some are inquiries looking for information, others are requests for some sort of service, and others are notices of problems that the caller observed and thought somebody should know about. Perhaps the term "contacts" would be more appropriate.

In terms of total contacts on all topics, Independence moved from sixth place in 1987 to third place in 1988 with 1,234 calls, an increase of 7.3 percent. Countywide, contacts increased 7.8 percent, to a 1988 total of 16,928

It has been suggested (not too subtly) that part of the reason for Independence's increase was this column. I hope that is true.

If taxpayers have questions or concerns with any public service; they should have someone to contact.

Whether it involves the village, the township, the county, the Michigan Department of Transportation, or the Oakland County Road Commission, there should be someone to call, and they should receive an answer. Especially if it involves a safety concern, public agencies want to learn about it.

In the case of the Oakland County Road Commission, which is responsible for most the roads in our area, a department has been set up to receive and investigate such calls: The Department of Citizens Services, 858-

In mynext column, I'll give you some more detail on the type of contacts made by Independence residents as compared to other communities and the county as a whole, and I'll comment on how all this information is used.[\ne___and[\ne_a=

No new school money from assessment hikes

Last week at a Springfield Township board meeting, I watched sympathetically while the principal of Davisburg Elementary School tried to explain to residents why the Holly School District needs an operational millage increase.

It was the same valid explanation people in the Clarkston school district heard last June when this district asked voters for a millage increase. Unfortunately, what I heard were the same questions and same lack of understanding from residents that I found so frustrating last year.

Why can't the district make concessions and workwithin its present budget, you say? Why can't the teachers take pay cuts?

Local school districts like Clarkston and Holly and Brandon are already near the bottom of the Oakland County pay scale, and teachers aren't exactly in a high-paying profession in the first place. They teach because they enjoy their jobs, and to some people, that means more than a high Districts like ours are "in-formula," which means the state uses a formula to determine its contribution to local school budgets because the districts can't collect enough money on their own.

This sounds like it should be a big help, but in

Newspapers vital to commmunity

BY DON RUSH

How important is a community newspaper to the community? We think quite important.

According to the United States Department of Commerce:

There are 504,404 popularly elected officials in the nation's 83,237 governments ... less than 4 percent of the total were federal and state government officials. The largest category of elected officials are in local government, with 485,691 ... of that, 120,790 are township elected; 86,772 from school districts and 137,688 from municipalities.

What this shows is that the community newspaper industry covers the activities of almost all U.S. elected officials.

A community newspaper is the lifeline of a community, bringing events, local opinions, tragedies and triumphs to local residents on a regular basis. It can be the binding that holds a community together, helping it thrive by promoting self pride.

A community newspaper doesn't directly bring the world to the community's doorstep, but it does report when a member of the community has experienced the world and has returned.

The community newspaper brings the community to its own doorsteps. It promotes the good neighbor policy by promoting service organizations and the deeds of merit our neighbors have performed.

The community newspaper is a source of local information. By law, local governments are to publish in a paper of general circulation changes in ordinances, bid proposals and when officials are planning to hire somebody.

Thursday, March 16, is National Freedom of Information Day; and so we are reminded of the role we play in our community. It is an important role. Mistakes are and will be made, to be sure, but we promise to strive forward to better keep our community informed.

fact it provides little, if any, assistance to informula districts.

Rich; out-of-formula districts with big tax bases don't rely on the state formula. They collect far in excess of the $3,000 or so per student allowed under the state formula, and keep every cent -- sometimes as much as $7,000 per student.

But what about all the new houses going up and assessments going up. Doesn't that increase in taxes help the schools, you ask?

Most people's assessments did go up this year, but it doesn't add one red cent to the school's coffers. Again, because of the formula, it just means the taxpayers pay more of the per student , allotment, and the state pays less, dollar for dollar

Let me try to put that in the kind of words that my own financially simple mind understood last year when Clarkston's Director of Business Services Bill Jackson explained it to me.

Here is how the formula works (incidentally, the legislators made up this God-awful thing, and it changes slightly each year). It looks like this for 1988-89: $77.71x (the local operational millage, in Clarkston's case, 36.5622) + $350.00 = the amount per student (for Clarkston, $3,191.25).

But that $3,191.25 is all that's guaranteed, so if the local taxes pay a larger portion of that, no matter how much the assessments go up, the (See UNDERSTANDING, next page) state's share simply becomes less. The schools get no more money even though your tax may have gone up significantly.

So how come a millage increase will help, you ask? You were just told that the state pays less if we pay more.

Because, you see, when you increase a number in a formula, the end result is also bigger. For instance, if you change a number in the formula, 2x2 to 2x4, the amount increases from 4 to 8. Likewise, if you change the millage in the state aid formula to a higher number, the end number, the amount spent per child, also goes up, and the state pays more to make up the difference.

School funding isn't fair, you say? Why aren't we doing something about it?

We're trying, folks. The Michigan Education

Association has a huge lobby in Lansing, but so do a lot of other powerful special interests groups, and obviously the out-of-formula areas have no incentive to change the school funding plan.

In-formula superintendents have consolidated their efforts into the Michigan Association of School Administrators In-Formula School District Caucus to legally fight for a fairer and more equal educational funding program.

In-formula school boards have also banded together to fight for fair funding, and many boards -- certainly I can vouch for Clarkston since I cover their meetings -- have burned the midnight oil trying to put together the best educational package they can for their students with the money they have to spend.

It's not going to change overnight, and it's probably going to be painful for those of us who pay taxes in the meantime. But educating our children, the future resource of this country, is important. It's just too bad the state doesn't think

Unfortunately, another school aid plan-just went down last week when the Senate voted against the latest bill which just passed the House. Maybe the bill wasn't perfect, but at least it would have helped. There will be another, no doubt, and maybe the state legislators will think about the students before their own political interests when they vote the next time. Just maybe.

CAYAC seeks youth who deserve praise

An annual Youth Recognition Banquet organized by Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee (CAYAC) is planned for April 13, and now is the time for people who know of a young person who deserves recognition to let CAYAC know.

The purpose of the annual banquet is to recognize youth who have volunteered to help an individual or an organization, without compensation for their time.

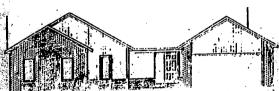

A young person may have shown he or she is outstanding in such ways as: personal acts of heroism, hospital or nursing home service, ecology activities, school service projects, Special Olympics, church youth projects, or many hours contributed to such causes as SCAMP, Muscular Dystrophy or March of Dimes work. The youth could have done something as simple as prepare a meal or done odd jobs for a neighbor in need.

The youth must be a resident of the Clarkston school district. Nominees are screened by the Youth Recognition Committee.

Persons who know of an outstanding youth who deserves recognition may contact Garry Pullins of Clarkston Area Youth Assistance at 625-9007.

community; we wanted to do our share," said Bair. "(But) there are a lot of unresolved questions about whether this is truly a workable site for this operation."

The planners questioned the protection of a pond on the property, the function of the facility, the materials accepted in the operation and past actions of the applicant.

"These are major changes needed here for environmental monitoring," said Oppmann. "I honestly don't see solutions -- it's been (months); I don't see them forthcoming."

The 9,800-square-foot sorting facility was proposed in July, 1988, by R.J. Hoffman Management Inc., made up of former Waterford Township Supervisor Robert Hoffman and his brothers, James and Richard.

The facility was planned for a 10-acre parcel along White Lake Road, next to a pond that's part of the Clinton River chain, connecting lakes in Independence and Waterford townships.

The project was granted special land use on July 27. subject to several conditions; and planners granted conceptual approval on Sept. 28, subject to additional concerns. Final-site plan approval for the project was tabled in December due to environmental concerns and legal questions.

Attorney Gregory Need, representing the Hoffmans, told planners he was confused about the

"There is a strong possibility there is no basis to reconsider, much less take away, (the special land use) granted in July," he said.

"I see no justification to take away what's been granted. We've spent time and money getting here,"

Need also objected to quotes about Hoffman attributed to planning commission members in various

"Mr. Hoffman's record in Waterford Township is not material in this consideration," Need said. "He has not been found guilty of the violations, and no court action has been brought. "Personalities should not be considered here," he added. Several planning commissioners disagreed.

"With special land use, you have to look at the owner," said Secatch. "Mr. Hoffman in the Sept. 22 meeting minutes told us he runs a good business.

"I don't know him personally, but (Waterford Township Fire Department) records show that he's been cited for burning carpet and drywall. I don't know if that's a violation in Waterford Township, but in our township that would be a problem," Secatch said. Hoffman was cited for illegal burning on his Waterford Township property on Hospital Road in November. He was recently cited for illegal dumping on the same site, according to Waterford Township Engineer Thomas Blust. Most of the planners' comments, however, addressed the site itself.

"My main concern is the site itself and the location of the pond in relation to the recycling center," Figa said.

I have a real concern about environmental containers," Secatch added. He told planners he had conducted an informal study of a garbage container that morning and found 10 unopened garbage bags, four couches and a 55-gallon drum of ash.

"That's just an example of what can be put into those containers," Secatch added.

Other planners questioned Hoffman's past practices regarding the White Lake Road parcel.

"There was some premature development at the sight," said Oppmann. "That shouldn't have taken place; it doesn't speak highly of the integrity of the applicant."

In November, Hoffman was told to stop work on the site because he was operating too near the pond, which would require a soil erosion permit from Oakland County.

More than one planner also objected to changes they perceived in the facility's function.

During the last meeting, you said it was a sorting facility -- that was my understanding," said Mercado. "Since then, I feel there has been additions to that, and the project is no longer a sorting facility but a processing facility.'

"There was a new use -- a chipper (to recycle wood pallets) brought in later," Figa added.

In response, Need said the recycling shouldn't deter tal to this project. Shredding goes on now in this township," Need said.

Need said the applicant would supply a "gate" to protect the nearby pond, and would agree to monitoring devices that were suggested.

"This (project) is a real asset to the community," he said. "It's far less intense than what is permitted now."

Although the meeting was not scheduled as a public hearing, Bair accepted comments from those in attendance.

Herbert Greenberg, of Balmoral Terrace, Independence Township, told planners "special land use should never have been issued in the first place. Sorting facilities should be on flat property away from all water and lakes."

Other neighbors to the property argued that Hoffman could not be policed. One resident suggested that video monitoring devices be used in and around the

File now to run for school board

Election is Monday, June 12

Clarkston school district voters will have a chance to consider candidates for two Clarkston school board terms which expire this year as well as other school related issues in the annual election, set for Monday, June 12.

Carolyn Place, who has served on the Clarkston Board of Education for four terms (16 years) said it she plans to run for re-election.

Steve Werner, the other board member whose term expires this year, has been out of town and was not available for comment by press time.

For Clarkston school district residents who might be interested in running for a school board seat, the last day for filing nominating petitions is Monday, April 10, and they must be received prior to 4 p.m.

Petitions must be signed by a minimum of 21 registered school voters. The figure of 21 is based on one percent of the highest number of votes cast in the last school election, which was 2,026 votes for board member John Needham.

Nominating petitions, affidavits of identity and information on the Campaign Finance Act may be picked up at the administration office, 6389 Clarkston Road, between 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

During spring break (March 24-31), people should call the board office first at 625-4402 to make certain it's

The board adopted a resolution at the March 13 meeting officially calling for the June 12 election.

School aid plan voted down by state

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

A school aid package was turned down by the state Senate last week by a slim margin, four votes short of the necessary 26, after passing the House by an overwhelming margin a week earlier.

But until Thursday of this week, the bill still has a 50-50 chance, according to Rick Simonson, lobbyist for Oakland Schools, who gave the Clarkston school board an update on the bill at the March 13 board meeting. It would still have to be approved by the voters in May if it passed, which Simonson also gave about a 50-50 chance.

"So we still have a long way to go," he said.
The Oxender/Nye school funding bill would raise the sales tax by 2 cents and lower property taxes.

But critics said it would also make the gap between rich and poor school districts even larger within five years. And many said it would not get past the voters if it came to an election in May, because it gives the state more control over taxes.

Clarkston Superintendent Gary Haner said, "While the plan is not without its flaws, it is the only thing being considered at this time that would provide critically needed money for the 1989-90 school year.

"I remain optimistic because of the critical plight of in-formula schools that either legislation or a petition drive will yet result in school finance reform, even if it's not in time for this year," he continued. "In the interim, the in-formula schools will need to continue to seek increased financial support at a local level to compensate for ever decreasing state funding."

Simonson said at the board meeting that "with every proposal there are ups and downs," as he outlined the positive aspects -- such as the cut in property tax -- and the negatives such -- as the 2-cent sales tax increase.

The bill addressed one concern by locking a certain amount of money into schools. There would be no way for the state to take it away, even if the economy took a downturn.

He also said the bill would help rural districts like Clarkston, but rich districts would be "burned a little" by

The Michigan Education Association is strongly supporting the proposal, he said. Most of the current lobbying going on to save the bill is focused on two local senators who voted against it last week, Senator Rudy Nichols and Senator Richard Fessler.

If the Senate does not vote in favor of the bill by Thursday, there would be no school aid legislation passed in time for a May election, Simonson added, and probably no chance of any relief for in-formula districts until 1991.

Special school meetings on architect, contract

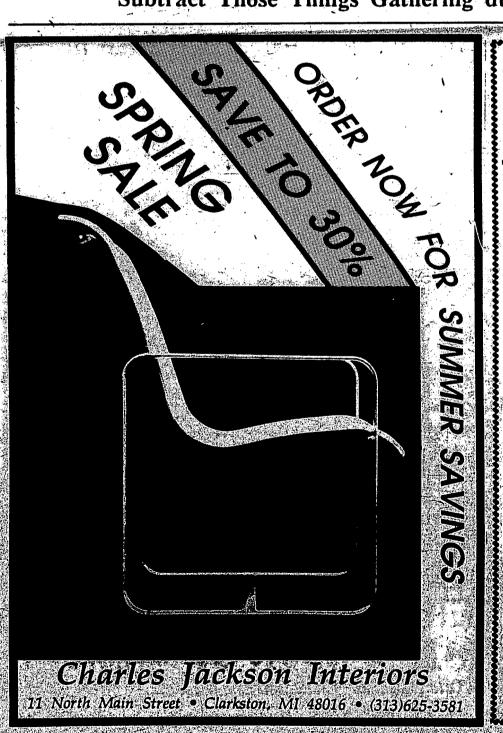

The Clarkston Board of Education has scheduled a special meeting at 6:30 p.m. Monday, March 20, in the administrative offices, 6389 Clarkston Rd., to hear an update on elementary and secondary school proposals from architect Tom Chen of Greiner, Inc., the school's new architectural firm.

The board will also conduct a special meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday, March 21, to deal with an administrative recommendation to consider not renewing the administrative contract of and reassignment of Clarkston High School Assistant Principal Jan Gabier.

The next regularly scheduled school board meeting is Monday, April 10, at 7:30 p.m.

Sweetheart Ball raises

A benefit Sweetheart Ball March 4 at the home of Clarence and Sharron Catallo of Clarkston raised $3,500 for Rainbow Connection.

"It was a wonderful evening," said Pati Campbell, executive director of Rainbow Connection.

There was great entertainment provided by a combo and excellent hors d'oeuvres, she added. "Everyone had a great time."

Campbell said she was pleased with the amount raised for Rainbow Connection. The non-profit organization, based in Clarkston, grants wishes to terminally or chronically ill children in Michigan.

crash in 1980. Fifteen-year-old Timothy and 11-year-old Jennifer Dobson died, along with their father, Ronald, in that accident. Their mother, Janet (Dobson) Vernier, was the sole survivor.

The organization began in the memory of the Dobson children, with former Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson spearheading fundraising efforts. Patterson and Vernier both serve on the board of directors.

About 40 couples attended the gala benefit at the Catallo home. Black tie was optional.

"It was fancy," Campbell said, "but warm and friendly."

Independence man to help Bush in quality awards

BY TRACY KING Clarkston News Staff Writer

Richard Ellis of Independence Township has concerned himself with quality for most of his adult life.

The energetic retiree is seated in his dining room to talk about his recent appointment to the National Board of Examiners -- he'll help to choose a company that will be recognized by President Bush for its quality.

Throughout the conversation, Ellis jumps up to point out several items of fine craftsmanship that he, himself, has collected.

Ellis opens a antique cabinet and pulls out a huge hole-punched metal disc. He puts the disc atop an original 1890's music box, turns the handle on its side, and stands back, smiling to hear the clear, musical tones that are played. The music box dominates his bare living room, which awaits the furniture he has ordered.

Ellis' attraction to quality is best revealed in a trip to his basement, however.

He turns on the light in a tucked-away cellar to reveal shelf-after-shelf of ornate clocks, dating back to 1840.

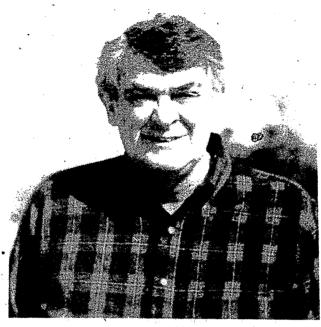

"Some of the mechanisms are wooden," Ellis says

Ellis has collected the antique clocks throughout his lifetime, replacing their parts to ensure that each one works

The clocks are being stored in the basement until he receives the shelving that will properly display them upstairs.

Ellis' concern for quality was developed primarily during his 35-year tenure at General Motors Corporation

He worked with suppliers of GM parts, helping them to bring their systems and products in line with GM expectations.

RICHARD L. ELLIS of Independence Township was recently appointed to the National Board of Examiners, which evaluates companies for quality.

"Someone I worked with must have recognized me," Ellis says of his selection to the National Board of Examiners.

The board was created to judge applicants of the prestigious Malcolm Baldridge National Quality Award. The late Malcolm Baldridge was the Secretary of Commerce in the Reagan Administration.

Companies in manufacturing, service and small business are evaluated in areas such as leadership, planning, customer service and quality assurance.

"It's a very prestigious award. Most major auto companies and suppliers recognize this and apply," Ellis said.

Last year's winners were Motorola, the Commercial Nuclear Fuel Division of Westinghouse Electric, and Globe Metallurgical.

The Board of Examiners for the award is comprised of quality experts selected from industry, professional and trade organizations and universities.

Ellis, who learned of his appointment a month ago, noted that part of the qualification was recognition of peers.

Ellis retired in September of 1987 and formed his own management consulting company and now travels the country to instruct others on maintaining quality control. He has developed a two-day training seminar for companies, has co-authored a book entitled "A Practical Guide To Continuous Improvement," and is a senior member of The American Society for Quality Control.

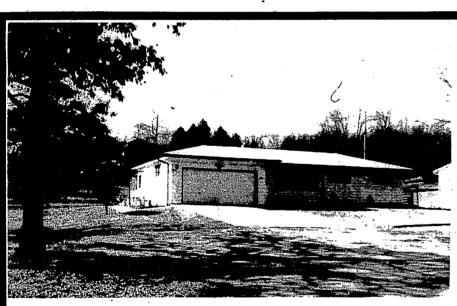

"Toughness was always expected, but now teamwork is essential," Ellis says of his teachings.

"Management must work more closely with employees, and management must work more closely with

"There has been a tremendous change in U.S. quality in the past five years; it's been brought about by competition," he adds.

Competition may have been the motivator, but Ellis himself can be credited for helping it along.

Speed-limit dispute splits up residents

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

They came to the Springfield Township board meeting mad, and they left even madder.

Residents of Clark and Dilley roads in Springfield Township differ in opinions as to whether the gravel roads should be posted 25 mph. And to make matters worse, a petition to post the road 25 mph turned in last fall to the township has been lost in the interim as residents disagree about whether the required 51 percent of them signed it.

Some of the residents also said the petition was only for the portion of Clark Road to Hogback Lake Road rather than the entire length.

After listening to residents engage in a heated discussion of the situation, the township board voted to table a decision to request the Oakland County Road Commission to post a speed limit until a new petition has been circulated and signed.

Clark Road runs between Andersonville and Bridge Lake Road, and Dilley Road runs from Andersonville Road to Clark Road, where it ends.

Keenan Riepen, a resident in the first house on Clark Road, argued strongly for the 25 mph speed limit, saying that he was concerned with safety.

But John Campbell, who lives at the other end of Clark Road, asked, "Do we have concrete evidence that it should be 25 mph?"

His wife added, "I would rather have signs like caution, curves, hidden driveways, (etc.) instead of 25 mph."

Township Treasurer Lois Stiles said that even posting 25 mph doesn't seem to make a great deal of difference. "One sheriff's deputy can't possibly cover every section of road all the time."

Trustee Nancy Strole, before making the motion to table the issue, said, "Unfortunately, the board is without a record of the petition. We're caught between a rock and a hard place."

As angry residents filed out of the meeting after the board's decision, those in favor of the speed limit said they would be at the township office first thing in the morning for a new petition. And this time they would make a photocopy of it.

Recycling is topic of SEMCOG forum

Recycling is the focus of a Solid Waste Forum sponsored by the Council on Environmental Strategy (CES) of SEMCOG, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

It's set for 1 p.m. Friday, March 17 in the SEMCOG Conference Room, 660 Plaza Drive, Suite 1900, Detroit. Speakers include:

David Dempsey, environmental advisor to Gov. James J. Blanchard and author of the state Solid Waste Policy Implementation Plan. Dempsey will talk about the state's recycling goals.

Ardath Regan, president of the Village of Holly, chairperson of the Oakland County Recycling Subcommittee and chairperson of the state Toxic Substance Control Commission. She will discuss municipally operated recycling programs.

Robert McClellan, of Recycle America, a program operated by Waste Management, Inc. McClellan will talk about how communities can contract recycling services from commercial operators.

Les Vilcone, resource recovery coordinator, Wayne County Department of Public Works. Vilcone oversees a recycling project that involves Wayne County employees. He'll talk about in-office recycling projects and creating a need for recycled materials.

Americans throw away enough office paper each year to build a wall 12 feet high from New York to Los Angeles. Disposed glass products could fill the World Trade Center every two weeks. And 88 percent of all Sunday newspapers (half a million trees worth) will never be recycled.

For many, these are meaningless statistics. But for a growing number, the statistics are leading to a change in consumer habits and lifestyle. Rather than ignoring the mounting solid waste problem, many are choosing to recycle.

SEMCOG is a voluntary association of counties, cities, villages, townships, intermediate school districts and community colleges in the seven-county southeast Michigan region.

The council's principal functions are short- and long-term planning for housing, transportation, education, land use, public safety, recreation and open space, economic development and the environment.

Recycling statistics were provided by the Environmental Defense Fund in New York City.

Learn to navigate

A class in Great Lakes navigation is being offered through Clarkston Community Education this year.

The class meets 7:30 to 10 p.m. Wednesdays, April 12, 19 and 26 at Sashabaw Junior High School, and the cost is $40.

To register, call the Clarkston Learning Center at 674-0993. The class is limited to 30 people.

The course, taught by Capt. Jonathan Hart, is to cover Loran-C, Micrologic, King and Interphase. Hands-on instruction will allow people the perfect opportunity to become familiar with top-of-the-line equipment. Other topics covered will include: correcting compass, chart plotting and coastal piloting.

Participants should bring: a Loran chart of Lake St. Clair, a pair of parallel rules, a pair of dividers and a small pocket calculator.

St. Patrick—the man with the too-heavy halo

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY

Everyone knows the Irish are the world's best storytellers.

That's not blarney; Irish folklorists have so far collected half a million pages worth of stories that have come down through oral tradition.

That, plus an inherent belief in the magical, are probably responsible for the enduring, yet fantastical story of St Patrick, a man credited with so many miracles one writer calls him the saint with the too-heavy halo.

Patrick is credited with making himself invisible to his enemies, throwing curses and turning them to stone, and casting all the serpents out of Ireland.

Yet, he has never been canonized by the Catholic Church because so little fact exists about his life they're not even sure if he was one man or a composite of several. It seems pretty clear that the St Patrick remembered every March 17, by masses and merriment was a hero Ireland needed at the time.

St Patrick is thought to have been born around 389, somewhere in what is now Great Britain, but possibly in France. His father was a Roman-British official, possibly already a Christian.

At the age of 16, St Patrick is said to have been captured by Irish marauders and taken back to slavery in Ireland. There he toiled for 6 years, herding sheep and praying constantly but also learning to love the language and the people. Then he heard a voice, telling him to prepare for an adventure. A ship would be waiting to take him to freedom. He escaped, traveled 200 miles om foot, found the ship, and made his way to present-day France.

There he entered a monastery, and eventually became a priest, then a bishop. Again he heard a voice, this one saying that the people of Ireland, the land where he had been enslaved, needed him back. History records that Pope Celestine I then named him Patricius (he had been born Maewyn) and sent him back to Ireland.

He must have been pretty good at what today would be called PR. He traveled the country, always with an entourage led by drummers announcing his arrival. He chose heathen religious sites, already revered by the locals, to do his preaching and miracle working. He appointed the sons of local kings to run his churches.

Nevertheless, he was a true ascetic, not interested in personal gain or glory. He fasted extensively, slept on a stone, and immersed himnself up to the neck in cold water twice a day to pray.

Historians credit St Patrick with organizing the Christian religion in Ireland, bringing the country a written language, and codifying its laws.

It is that combination of the spiritual and the practical that probably made him the smashing success he is remembered as today. Perhaps the story of the shamrock best exemplifies the gift he had for combining the two.

In an effort to explain the Holy Trinity to the Irish people, Patrick plucked a shamrock, a clover-like wild-flower that is now recognized as the national flower of Ireland.

He said the three leaves represented the three persons of the Trinity, and that the stem on which they grew represented the one God. The shamrock, therefore, was a perfect example of the unity of three in one.

25-unit apartment complex on hold, need permits

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

Steve Dickson said the permits were in the mail, but the Springfield Township board tabled his request for a site plan approval on the Courtright Dickson Apartments until proof was actually in hand.

The two-building, 25-unit apartment complex is planned for the west side of Dixie Highway, near Lowrie Landscaping in Springfield Township. Dickson had received conditional approval from the township planning commission, pending permits from the Oakland County Health Department and Road Commission.

He had neither permit with him at the township board meeting on March 9, and the board voted 4-3 to table his request until next month.

"There were too many conditions," said Trustee Nancy Strole when she made the motion.

Supervisor Collin Walls agreed and voted in favor of tabling the motion, along with Treasurer Lois Stiles and Trustee Margaret Bloom.

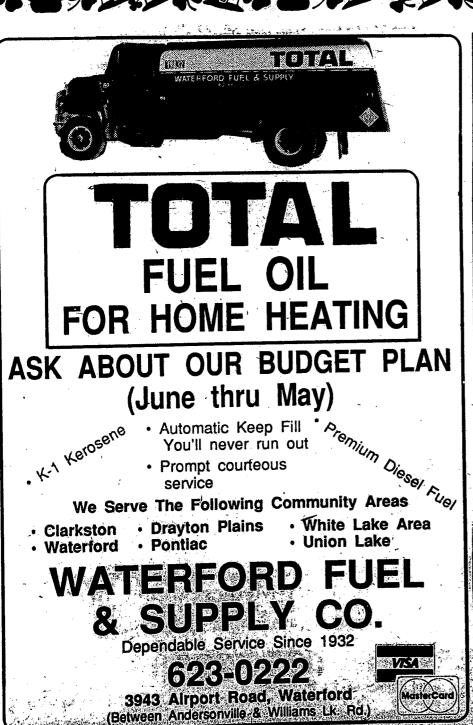

Trustee Dennis Vallad, who voted against tabling, said he didn't see why they should hold the project up a month, since Dickson had verified by phone that both permits were approved.

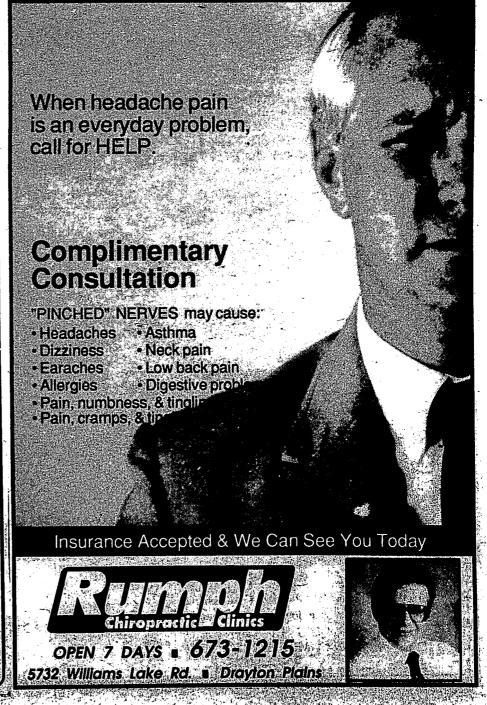

Dickson told the board, "I wish I could convey to you the time and effort in this. Putting it off another month is like a year."

He said it was vital to have it completed by fall, because rentals fall off after that.

Dickson had already revised his plans to comply with another planning commission request. He extended the driveway entrance to make it easier for emergency vehicles to service the apartment complex.

Season complete for Wolves

Loss in regional play ends season at 18-6

Throughout the season, the varsity basketball team thrived in its role of the underdog against some of the best basketball teams around.

Unfortunately, the Wolves couldn't pull another rabbit out of the hat during a Class A regional game against Flint Northern last week and were eliminated from the playoffs:

Clarkston dropped a 66-40 decision at Flint Central March 9 to finish the season with an 18-6 record. The Wolves also captured a share of the Greater Oakland Activities League title and a district championship.

Despite the lopsided victory, Northern coach Randy Hodges was impressed with Clarkston.

"Clarkston has an excellent ball club," he said, with lights from local TV cameramen glaring in his eyes.

Flint Northern effectively closed out the wintersports campaign for Clarkston High School when it knocked the varsity basketball team out of the regionals last week.

With the beginning of spring sports still a few weeks off, it's time to reflect on a season gone by.

All of the teams provided much entertainment for fans and friends alike. They accomplished more than anyone had a right to expect. Nobody has to hang their head while waiting for a new season to begin.

As mentioned, the basketball team finished off its season in the regionals against a powerful Flint Northern squad. With an 18-6 overall final mark and a district championship, the team did itself proud—winning 75 percent of their games.

The volleyball team closed out its season in district play against Rochester Adams (sporting a 44-2 record and a spot in the Class A final four) in the finals. After a rocky start, the Wolves peaked at the right time and won the Greater Oakland Activities League title.

Although they couldn't overtake Lake Orion in the GOAL, the varsity wrestling gave them a run for their money before ending the season with a disappointing loss to Howell in the team regionals

Two wrestlers in individual competition, Chris Luzi and John Terpstra, managed to reach the state finals to mark the second consecutive visit to the meet for Clarkston wrestlers under Coach Scott Strickler.

Both the girls and boys ski teams raced to unbeaten seasons and returned to the state meet under first-year coach Jane Huling. Individually, Rob Brown won a Class A state crown for the boys.

Yes, all in all a good season for fans of Clarkston athletics. With the warming trend underway this week, maybe it's a sign of good things to come from the spring sports teams. (We can hope, anyway. That's the true meaning of spring, isn't it?)

From the onset, it appeared the game would be nipand-tuck the entire way as the teams traded baskets throughout the first quarter.

The Wolves pushed the ball up the court with regularity thanks to Darin Brandt, a decision that caught Hodges off guard.

"I thought that they would slow the game down," the coach said. "They were a little more up-tempo than I thought."

Foul trouble hampered the Wolves' efforts throughout the game. Only poor shooting from the free-throw line by Northern kept the game close in the opening quarter. The Vikings missed all five of their attempts during the first eight minutes of play.

"You could tell that they (Flint's players) were not mentally ready for this game," Hodges said.

Scott Weeks scored a couple of baskets early on to key a 9-6 run for the Wolves. Northern made the final two buckets of the opening stanza to take a 10-9 lead into the second quarter. They led the rest of the way.

Northern outscored Clarkston 19-7 in a disastrous second quarter for the Wolves to build a comfortable lead.

"We shot absolutely horrible," said Fife. "I don't think we played particularly bad -- we had our shots, we just didn't make them."

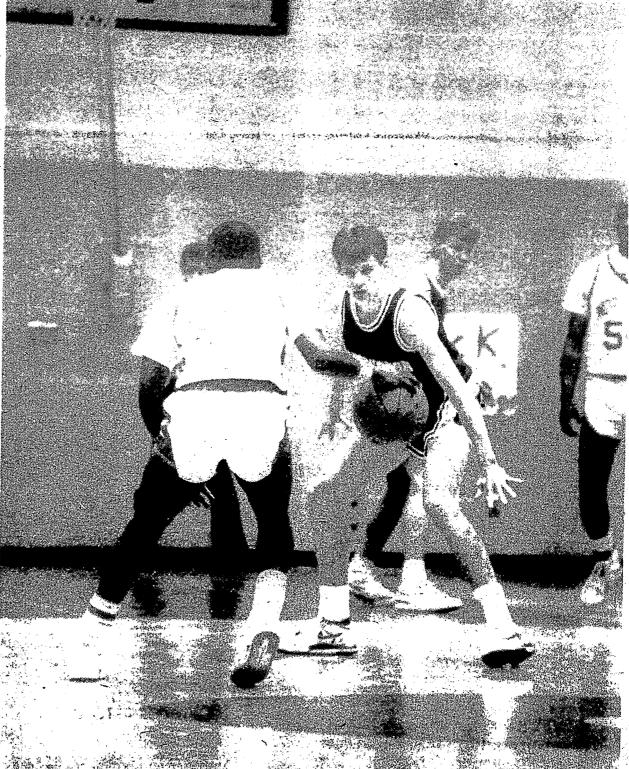

The situation didn't improve in the second half for the Wolves as Northern rolled on to victory and a date with Saginaw High in the finals.

Late in the fourth quarter, with the game out of reach, both teams substituted freely -- much to the joy of Clarkston fans who chanted, "Melvin," when Melvin Hemminger checked into the game.

Hemminger, a senior, didn't disappoint his loyal fans, scoring five points in his limited time on the court.

Kevin McCormick was the Wolves' leading scorer with 15 points. Weeks was next with 11 points. Jim Huttenlocher and Jason Brown added six and four points, respectively

Watch for the coaches' All-GOAL picks for the basketball team in an upcoming edition of The Clarkston News.

Baseball-card class brings kids together

BY PETER AUCHTER Clarkston News Staff Writer

Young boys' imaginations run wild in a little room at Clarkston Elementary where baseball cards are spread over a circular table.

Trades that would make any major league general manager's head spin are completed without so much as a handshake. It's just business as usual for the students involved in a Clarkston Community Education afterschool youth enrichment program.

A junior from Clarkston High School has been volunteering his time to teach these youngsters the tricks of the trade, so to speak.

Ben O'Rourke of Townview Drive, Independence Township, used to collect and trade cards when he was in elementary and junior high school, just like the kids he is teaching are today.

Although he drifted away from the hobby, the elementary school students' eagerness in the cards renewed his interest, so he decided to teach.

"It's more fun to do when there are more people around to trade with," O'Rourke said of his reasoning for taking on the project. "They (his students) are really interested in baseball cards."

O'Rourke originally became involved in afterschool programs when there was an opening to teach two ball classes. Clarkston El. facilitator Kathy Ladd then ask him if there was anything else he'd like to tackle, and baseball cards came to mind.

For the past three weeks, the Boy Scout has taught the students in his charge about the value of cards, the different brands and of the joys of trading and collecting in general.

The program was to end after three weeks, but the students' interest in baseball cards helped O'Rourke decide to keep it going for another three weeks.

Culminating a long season, the Independence Parks and Recreation basketball leagues close out the 1988-89 season with a "Super Sunday" competition at Clarkston High School this weekend.

The Pony, American and National league championships will be determined on Sunday and the public is invited to watch all the action for free—beginning at 2 p.m. with the semifinals of the Pony League.

Teams will play full-court ball and a portion of the bleachers will be open for the fans' comfort, said league director Steve Nicholson.

Young ski racer from area boasts top-rating nationally

Independence Township boasts a top-ranking young Michigan ski racer.

Aaron Lutz, 5, of Lakeview Drive, Independence Township, placed fourth among Michigan's one- to fouryear-old ski racers' National Standard Race (NASTAR)

Lutz, son of township Treasurer John Lutz, earned the ranking during the 1987-88 ski season at Boyne

Lutz has been skiing since the age of 2 1/2; his personal season-best 69 handicap earned him a certificate of accomplishment, a patch and a listing on select rankings posters distributed statewide.

"He really knows how to turn well," said Kathy, Aaron's mother.

Aaron himself, admits that he's never afraid while competing in races.

The Coca-Cola Junior NASTAR program ranks the top 10 boys and girls from six age categories in all 50

In addition to national and state rankings honors, young skiers can win gold, silver and bronze NASTAR medals each time they race.

CHS students get a close-up look at government

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

They toured the city. They sat in on Senate hearings and Supreme Court cases. They discussed current events with other students from across the country. And by the time they left Washington, D.C., nine Clarkston High School students had a new perspective on the human dynamics that make this country work.

The students, all juniors and seniors, and Larry Rosso, who teaches government, law and society as well as international relations at CHS, were participating in a Close Up Foundation program that gives students an intense look at the workings of federal government.

The nine students and Rosso left Sunday, Feb. 26, and returned home Saturday morning, March 4, joining students from all over the country for the week-long visit to the country's capitol.

"If I had to pick a favorite part, it would be the workshops (on current events)," said junior Lisa Brinn. "We would get together with maybe 20 other students with the same interests as ours."

The students not only attended workshops, but they heard various government officials, including members of Congress, journalists and foreign and domestic issue experts. They even heard a panel from the Pentagon speak on military issues.

"My favorite part was seeing Ted Kennedyspeak on the confirmation hearings for William Bennett at drug czar," said junior Nicole Nelson.

Jennifer Pescor, also a junior, said it was a great experience going into the Senate to see how it really works. "We saw the debate on John Tower's confirmation."

"When you're at home, reading the paper, it doesn't seem real," added senior Scot Greetham. "But after going there, and seeing raw government working at its peak, it hit me, there really are things going on. I feel a part of the issues."

He was also impressed with the students who had come from around the country, like him, to see Washington at work. "When you all come together to discuss common issues, you open up and see inside. They are just like me, regular kids, with the same ambitions, even if they do live 2,000 miles away."

Senior Marie Haggitt was particularly impressed with the people in Washington, D.C., because they were friendly and helpful.

"It was good to see that government is real people working, not just an organization," added senior Susan Williams.

Senior Jonathan Phelps said it was fascinating to see a court case in the Supreme Court. "And the monuments, it was impressive to see them other than on the pages of a book."

The monuments, the seminars, all were fascinating

NINE CHS STUDENTS recently went to Washington, D.C., to participate in a Close Up Foundation program that gives kids from all over the country an intense look at the workings of federal government. In the back row, to junior Jenn Leech. But she says what really made the week special were all the friends that she made.

"What is important about Close Up is getting students involved, our discussions and input, and learning from each other," added senior Romy Tappero. It was an intense week, she said, and it confirmed her desire to go into political science.

The students were eligible by their desire to make the trip, and they had to have good character, said Rosso. They sold candy to help defray the cost of $788 each for the trip.

Also, he said, Clarkston Rotary and Optimist clubs contributed money to the cause. And a couple of the students were eligible for Close Up Foundation fellowships due to economic need.

"The impact of this trip on kids is overwhelming,"

Rosso said. "It really puts the whole perspective of social studies in a new light. It totally personalizes government."

This is the fourth year CHS has participated in the Close Up Foundation program. In addition to Rosso, government and current events teacher Jim Wenger has also made the trip to Washington, D.C., with students in past years.

While the students are participating in activities, there are also separate Close Up events for teachers designed to provide them with new insights and materials for classroom use.

Opinion of Bill Myers

My parameters

William A. Myers'is a retired Lapeer County editor and investments manager from Boca Raton, Fla.

He was another of these "nice young men" who phone at dinner time to tell about some choice buys in the securities market. He was from some brokerage outfit in New Jersey. The conversation went along these lines:

"Mr. Myers, I see by your inquiry you are interested in bonds."

"Sure enough."

"We happen to have a position in a new issue that we think quite attractive, but first of all I would like to pinpoint your parameters."

I don't even know what parameters are, and I'm not sure I want anybody pinpointing mine, anyhow. I'll look the word up later. Meanwhile, send me your bond letter or market sheet or whatever it is your firm has. You do have one?"

"Yes, we do, Mr. Myers, but we don't access it

I snorted. "Never heard such a phrase, 'access it out.' Does everybody in Jersey talk that way?"

"I'll send you some material," he muttered. "Thank you. I'm going to find out about my parameters.'

So I got out Webster's. Definition:

"PA-RAM-E-TER: 1. Math. A quantity or constant whose value varies with the circumstances of its application. 2. Any constant, with variable values used as a referrent for determining other values."

I still think they're hard to pinpoint.

More solemnly, "parameters" is a popular corporate buzz-word. Like most of them, it doesn't apply to anything in ordinary talk. But it does sound impressive.

Next day, we read that some of the Jesse Jackson gang wants us to quit using the term "black" for colored people. The group wants a hyphenated combination, "African-American." They say "black" is demeaning.

Golly, I was just getting used to using "black," although I never saw the point of it. What was wrong with "Negro"?

Again, I went to Websters. Definition:

"NE-GRO (Sp. & Port. negro, black, black person (from) L. niger, black). A member of the dominant group of mankind living in Africa, living chiefly south of the Sahara, and characterized generally by a dark skin. 2. Any person with some Negro ancestors. Other terms, as black or Afro-American (for U.S. Negroes) are preferred by some."

So what's wrong with "Negro"? I don't ask people to call me "European-Angelican-American."

My acquaintances have pithier descriptions.

Please don't try to read any racist feeling into these remarks. The topic is the English language. Let's keep politics out of it.

While we had the dictionary out, the pictures of flags drew our curiosity, as usual. Under the heading of "Trivia You Can Get Along Without":

Only eight of the state flags meet the standards of proper flag design. The National Geographic says that flag design should be simple, distinguishable at distances, without state seals or pictures. It should be something, basically, that can be run up on a sewing machine, and not something gussy.

States that qualify as having the good and proper sort of flags are Alabama, Colorado, Hawaii, New Mexico, Ohio, Tennessee, Texas and Mississippi. Maryland's looks like a coat of arms.

More trivia, on an international scale: Bhutan is the only country with two diagonal colors - like a Boy Scout semapahore flag.

Uncertain about a line of work for your teenager, when he quits going to school at, say, age 32? Consider being a weathercaster on TV.

The work day is short - guess nine minutes, including script preparation and combing his hair.

The pay is obviously good. I have yet to watch one who has been on the job for a year whose jacket isn't two sizes two small for him. It comes from eating too much and working too little.

Diabetic injured on I-75

Aone-car accident on 1-75 March 10 may have been caused by the medical condition of the driver, according to an Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD)

Just before noon last Friday, Jon Allen Zartman, of Warren was driving north on 1-75 near Davisburg Road, Springfield Township, when he drove off the roadway, into a gully and struck a tree head-on. Zartman never braked, the report said.

An investigation revealed that alcohol was not a factor but that Zartman was a diabetic and may have suffered some sort of reaction.

An emergency medical technician on the scene confirmed that Zartman's blood sugar was out of a tolerant level at the time of the accident.

Zartman was not wearing a seat belt at the time of the crash; he was taken to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital were he was treated and released.

No tickets were issued.

Adopted woman traces Irish roots

Reunites with mother, father and finds eccentric ancestor and castle

BY PAT YOUNG Clarkston News Staff Writer

Like the people she searches for in her Irish ancestry, Judy Hite of Clarkston has an indomitable spirit. This spirit, plus a life-long curiosity about her real family, eventually fueled yet another gift from her ancestry—the Irish gift of storytelling.

And Judy has a wonderful story to tell.

It all began in June of 1939 when a baby named Anne McConnell was born at the former Florence Crittenton Hospital in Detroit. The baby was born to a 17-year-old unwed mother, a pretty young woman from the small farming community of Tecumseh, who was madly in love with a handsome young man named Lyle Grigg.

"I always fantasized that I was an Irish lass."

In those days, Judy says, seniors in high school just didn't find themselves in such predicaments. But if they did, they would go off to "Aunt Lucy's house" for six months to have the baby and give it up for adoption.

Anne was adopted by Paul and Marion Cardwell and renamed Judy. A year later, the couple adopted a baby boy named Tim, and the children were raised on Grosse Ile.

"My birth mother was a strong-minded woman. She made up her mind she had to give me up, thinking she had seen the last of me," Judy says.

As the two adopted children grew up happily in the Cardwell family, she says they had "no more than typical curiosity" about their real parents. The Cardwells told them as much as they knew of their birth parents.

"I think there are no better people on earth than the Irish."

Judy learned that her mother's name was McConnell and thought that she might have been from the Tecumseh area of Michigan. Since she had a certificate of adoption rather than a certificate of birth, her roots were difficult to trace.

"I always fantasized that I was an Irish lass," Judy laughs.

Years passed; Judy grew up, married and had three children of her own. Divorced for many years, she teaches American literature and English at Andover High School in Bloomfield Hills. She also pursues a long-time hobby as an herbalist and has a booth at the Michigan Renaissance Festival where she sells her "Wenchwork" products.

In 1970, she went to Ireland looking for her roots, but discovered there were "a million McConnells in Ireland." She came home, determined to get more information.

She managed to obtain a copy of her real birth certificate, which had her birth parents' names. At last,

JUDY HITE, a teacher at Andover High School, pours over information she has collected on her Irish ancestry in the living room she had a real place from which to start her search.

"I went racing down to Tecumseh Public Library and found a yearbook with my mother's picture," Judy says.

She then went to Adrian, which is the county seat of Lenawee County in the Irish Hills of Michigan where her birth parents were from. She discovered that her parents had married two years after she was born.

of her Clarkston home. When she turns 50 in June, she is legally taking her birth name, McConnell.

"I always believed that I was conceived out of some wild, passionate love," she says, another bright smile flashing across her face.

She went racing back to the library to look for a wedding announcement in the newspaper file that might tell her where they lived, and then looked up their phone number.

Four children from Clarkston win in kid pageant

Four children from the Clarkston area were among the winners in a Kids of America pageant at Clarkston High School last month.

Hope Manuel, Julie Marshall, Trevor Manuel and Kymm Heyman all won in their respective age groups during the Feb. 11 contest in the Kirchgessner Theatre. Kids under 17 years competed for the right to enter the national finals in August.

"It went really well," said director Pat Thayer of the all-day competition. "We had a really nice pageant. The high school was very cooperative."

Awards were given to the top five finalists in each age group. Winners are as follow:

Beautiful baby:

Alexanderia McClenathen of Flint in the 0-11 month age group; Kael Transou of Mount Clemens in the 12-23 month group and Amy Harris of Swartz Creek in the 24-35 month age group.

Beautiful baby playwear:

McClenathen in 0-11 month age group; Francesca Barretta of Mount Clemens in the 12-23 division.

Photo session March 30 for senior I.D.'s

If you're age 60 or older, you can take advantage of senior citizen discount programs offered by various merchants in Oakland County.

All you have to do is show your identification card from Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency (OLHSA), which shows your photograph, name, address, birthdate and social security number.

OLHSA is holding a series of photo sessions in March for those who would like an I.D. card.

In the Clarkston area, a photographer will be at the Independence Township Senior Center in Clintonwood Park, 5980 Clarkston Rd., on Thursday, March 30, from 10 a.m. to 2 pm. The phone number there is 625-8231.

Just to save the day

They've banned Dial-a-Porn, and millions of preadolescent Americans are left upset and confused.

"Oh no!" they wonder. "Now what number can I dial that will force my family to sacrifice daily meals to afford the phone bill and will tear away at my 'moral fiber' at the same time?"

I'm usually not fluent when it comes to coming up with working solutions to world crises, but in this case it was surprisingly simple. Here's my contribution to 976:

THE SCENE: A phone number, along with the microscopic phrase, "A Dramatization," appear along the bottom edge of the screen. Two boys are seen. The older one holds a toy above his head with one hand, a telephone receiver in the other. His younger brother repeatedly punches him on the back, yelling into his own cordless phone at the same time:

Give it back! Give it!

BIG BROTHER: No! It's mine!

LITTLE BROTHER: Mom said it belongs to both of us. Right, Mom?

BIG BROTHER: Liar! Liar!

LITTLE BROTHER: Did you hear that? Did you hear what he just called me, Mom?

BOTH BROTHERS: Mom! Mom! ... Mom?

The scene divides to show a woman in an office, typing one-handed into a computer, holding her phone at an arm's length, trying not to listen.

ANNOUNCER: Kids, chances are your best arguments are being ignored. Are you tired of having to settle matters by yourselves? Trust the Argument Line to drag in a third person to hear both sides. For just 50 cents per minute, the Argument Line lets you quarrel in the presence of one of our attentive operators.

Scene switches to an operator in head phones, eating two chocolate bars at once and doing crossword puzzles. LITTLE BROTHER: Did you hear what he just called me, operator?

OPERATOR: Yeah. (munch munch) You're both (smack) bad boys. Did you (slurp) know of any (smack) six letter words that begin with (gulp) "L" and have an "X" as the (munch) fourth letter?

ANNOUNCER: Yell; scream; say things your parents would normally spank you for saying. Bicker your brains out for any length of time up to five hours. By then, we guarantee a solution!

OPERATOR: You're two evil little brats who should have never been born. You're both grounded! (Pulls a lever to disconnect the conversation. Dial tone is ANNOUNCER: So kids, dial the number on your screen daily until justice is done.

BROTHERS: (in unison with strong heartfelt apathy) Oh boy.

MOTHER: (one hand on computer keyboard, other hand wiping brow) Pheew!

OPERATOR: (waving paycheck) Yippee!

ANNOUNCER: Keep fighting, kids. It's good for

So I saved the day. No thanks needed.

High tech paint shop, body work under 1 roof

With state-of-the art equipment and friendly employees, the owners of Clarkston Auto Body don't find it necessary to advertise often. Satisfied customers spread the word around town.

"Business has been real good. This month (February) will be the best in our history," said Dale Verhey, who runs the shop on Sashabaw Road near I-75 in Independence Township with his father, Paul.

One of the reasons for the steady stream of customers is the downdraft spray cure paint booth, an item no one else in Independence can offer, Dale said.

The air in the booth is filtered, eliminating the possibility of airborne dirt settling on the finish before it hardens. Also, the paint is cured at 165 degrees, providing an oven-baked finish.

Clarkston Auto Body doesn't skimp when it comes to selecting a color for your car either. A paint mixing machine allows the employees to match the car's paint job exactly.

"We definitely have one of the best painting facilities in Oakland County," Dale said.

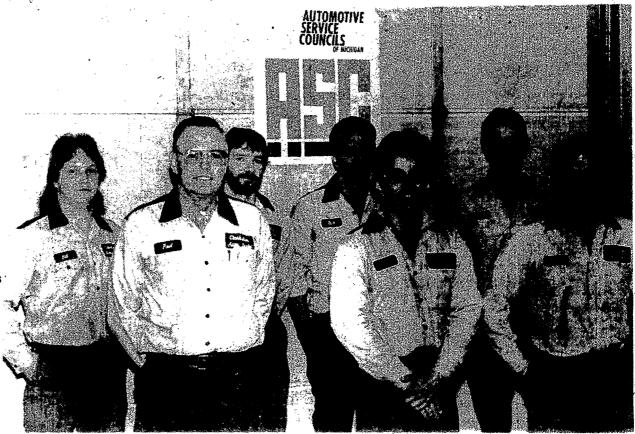

Besides their expert work in painting, the business does all collision work, insurance claims and installs auto glass.

The employees at Clarkston Auto Body take pride in finishing their work quickly and being courteous to customers, said Dale, adding that they usually can have a car back on the road in three days.

"We give personal and honest service," he said. "A lot of body shops are slow, but we'll get it done when we say we will."

Besides father and son, five others work at Clarkston Auto Body. In the body shop are Kevin Wilson and Richard Burleson. The painters are Michael Fetter and Bill Mateer. Kent Price is the parts manager.

The business began in a building with only 2,400 square feet but has grown to 7,600 square feet by 1989, Dale said. His father first thought of opening a shop after working on cars as a hobby for many years. When requests from friends began piling up, the business was

Phoenix Enterprises are for all car care needs

Phoenix Enterprises is a diversified auto and truck care center dedicated to quality workmanship at reasonable prices. It is located on Rhodes Road in Lake Orion, Owner Ron Cottick moved to that spot in July 1987. He started out in a three-car shop in Clarkston.

"The reason I moved here is because I outgrew the (Clarkston) location. I only had one employee at the time," says Cottick. "The new location seemed suitable at the time. Now it's even better than I thought.

"The area is growing in residential. It's almost virgin territory for businesses like mine."

His 6.200-square-foot building is on four acres. It can accommodate both large and small vehicles, including motorhomes. Phoenix works closely with businesses, as well as individual customers. No job is too big or too

The facility has the latest in high-technology equipment, including a steam cleaner, a power washer, welding equipment and compressor.

Phoenix Enterprises can do any size collision job. If frame straightening is necessary, it is sent to a highly competent shop. Everything else is done in-house.

The company is an expert at under-coating. All inner panels have accesses drilled to get the undercoating into the smallest places. The accesses are plugged to insure quality. The under-carriage is completely under-coated.

Phoenix will do a total vehicle body restoration. That includes restoring a finish to complete parts and panels replacement.

Cottick says that he does custom installation of specialized body parts - anything from spoilers to air

"We also do custom painting, from the smallest touch-up jobs to the most complete repaints. We use everything from lacquers and enamals, to the latest hightech acrylic urethanes. Special graphic and custom shaded paint jobs are available," he adds.

Anyone can have his car reconditioned for $150. That includes a re-undercoating of the chassis, steam cleaning the engine, rubbing out and polishing the exterior, an application of silicone protection for the tires and rubber parts, shampooing and siliconing of the interior and a touch-up of exterior paints.

Right now Cottick has six full-time people and one part-time person working for him. He usually hires more in the summer. The two body men have 25 years of experience between them. The painter has four.

"We have a high standard of excellence and we're conscientious," says Cottick. "We do a thorough and routine cleaning on each car. I think people want their car back just the way it always was.

We're a good harmonious team and I try to be part of that team. We're all happy and I think that helps with customer service."

Cottick says that he often provides one day service on some of his custom services if an appointment is made.

He is already thinking about the future. "Ultimately I want to be a complete automotive care center. I want a lounge area where customers can be comfortable while they are waiting. I will build a spray paint booth. There will be streamlining of traffic through the shop. This will make everything more efficient," Cottick adds.

Phoenix Enterprises is open Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-6 p.m. Saturday work is done by appointment only.

What's Cooking

Not for Irish only

Just as sure as everyone is Irish on St. Patrick's Day, you're bound to love the following quick bread recipe. It features Irish whiskey, which the Irish have skillfully distilled since the early 1600's.

IRISH WHISKEY SODA BREAD

1 cup raisins

1/2 cup Irish whiskey

3 cups all-purpose flour (or use half whole wheat flour)

1/2 cup sugar

1 tablespoon baking powder

1 teaspoon salt 1/2 teaspoon baking soda

1 tablespoon grated orange peel

1 1/3 cups buttermilk

4 tablespoons melted butter or margarine

Soak raisins in whiskey overnight. In a large bowl, combine flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and baking soda. Mix well, Stir in raisins and orange peel. Blend in buttermilk and melted butter or margarine.

Turn into a greased, 2-quart casserole. Cut an X on top of the batter.

Bake in a 350-degree oven for 1 hour and 10 minutes, or until a wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Serve with whiskey butter (recipe follows), if desired.

Whiskey Butter

Mix together 1/2 cup softened butter or margarine and 1 to 2 tablespoons Irish whiskey.

Make Monica's day

She may be a German shepherd mix, but 3-monthold Monica could use the "luck o' the Irish."

This white and brown fluffy puppy has been fostered, but now she needs a good home and a loving family.

Monica is used to a home environment and other family pets. She is housebroken with a crate. She's smart, trainable and friendly, and she would make a great family

Monica can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The adoption fee is $55, which includes a deposit for her spaying.

ANNOUNCING SERVICE CHANGE, OPTIONAL FEATURES EFFECTIVE MARCH 18 FOR CLARKSTON CUSTOMERS

Your Michigan Bell Public Relations Manager, Vince Fordell, announces that beginning Saturday, March 18, 1989, new electronic telephone switching equipment will begin serving customers in the Clarkston 394 exchange. There will be a change in your phone service, and some optional features will become available.

The service change is:

 You'll hear a noticeable difference in your dial tone. Here's more information about the optional features:

CALL WAITING.

You won't miss incoming calls while you're on the phone. When another call comes in, a beep tone tells you another call is waiting. Monthly charge: Residence, $3.74; Business, $5.91.**

CALL FORWARDING

Missing important calls while away from home or business? Call Forwarding lets you automatically forward incoming calls to another number, local or long distance. Monthly charge: Residence, $2.30; Business, $3.74.**

THREE-WAY CALLING

Talk to two other people at the same time to arrange meetings, reunions or just to enjoy an old fashioned gabfest. Monthly charge: Residence, $3.74; Business, $5.24.**

SPEED CALLING

Save time, make fewer mistakes and make it easier for children to make calls, especially in an emergency.

Dial fewer digits. Monthly charge: Residence, $2.30 for 8 numbers, $3.74 for 30 numbers; Business, $3.74 for 8 numbers, $5.24 for 30 numbers.**

TOUCH-TONE CALLING

Only Michigan Bell Touch-Tone Service transmits a special high-speed signal that gets you from one phone to another with great speed and accuracy. Monthly charge: Residence, $2.43; Business, $2.50 per line.**

These services have a one-time connection charge of $30.50. To start enjoying them soon, residence customers call toll free 1 800 482-8055 and ask for extension 156; business customers call 1 800 445-5MBT, Ext. 340.

If you have any questions about your service, you'll find the telephone number on the Michigan Bell Current Charges page of your bill.

*Cancel Call Waiting is provided automatically with Call Waiting at no additional charge where available *Rales effective April 28, 1984, subject to change on · approval of the Michigan Public Service Commission Taxes not included. These features (except Touch-Tone Service) are available only to customers with one-party service.

Win an Academy Award award

our contest!

Hurray for Hollywood!

For if there were no Hollywood, or all the glitz and glamour, you wouldn't get the chance to view 30 movies . . . free.

Oxford Twin Cimea, Video Rent-All and Sherman Publications Inc. (publishers of this newspaper) are sponsoring an Acadamy Awards Award Contest. There are about $1,000 worth of prizes, split in a lot of different ways, so chances of winning are not too shabby. The first place winner will receive 10 tickets to movies at Oxford Twin Cinema, in downtown Oxford; plus a coupon for 20 free video rentals. Second place wins 6 movie tickets and 12 video rentals; the third place winner will receive 4 movie passes and 8 free video rentals.

There will be 43 (count them, that's 4 with a 3 next to it) honorable mention winners. The first 40 will receive 2 tickets to the Cinema; 3 will receive 4 video rentals.

The next question is, how do you win?

Fill out the back of an envelope or postcard with your name, address and phone number where you can be reached during the day, along with your predictions on the 6 major categories, plus the tiebreaker. (We encourage you to use our handydandy form, but whatever you do, don't put your guesses inside the envelope.) If you bring to our office, make sure we date it, with the time.

As soon as the Oscars are presented March 29, we'll sort entries, looking for the one with the most correct answers, including tiebreaker. The entry with the most correct guesses and the earliest postmark will win first prize; the entry with the most correct answers and the next postmark will finish 2nd, etc. If more than one entry contains the most correct answers and the same early postmark, the winner of the first prize and following prizes will be selected by a drawing from correct entries with the same early

Irish roots bring new name for Clarkston woman

But there Judy hesitated, afraid to go further and intrude on their feelings. "I didn't know what to do," she

When a unit on heritage came up in her class, she set the tone for her students by relating her own story. "They started bugging me to call the number," Judy Months later, Judy did pick up the phone and dial the number, but there was no answer. She tried over and over with no success.

Finally, on Dec. 10 of about 1980 or '81, "a sweet voice answered the phone," Judy says. "I was so scared. But the voice was so sweet, I continued."

She asked if Lyle Grigg was there, and the woman said, "No, but may I help you?"

Judy told her, "Well, actually I'm looking for Dorothy McConnell," and the woman said, "You're speaking to her."

Judy asked, "Didyou give birth to a baby girl in June of 1939 at Crittenton Hospital?"

There was a long pause before the woman replied, "Who is this?"

"I think I'm your daughter," was Judy's response. Her mother reacted by saying, "Praise the Lord!"

Such was the beginning of a warm and wonderful

The family made arrangements to get together in the spring when Lyle returned from a trip. Judy lived in Birmingham at the time and remembers watching out the window for her parents to arrive.

When they did, she flew out the door, and the three of them stood in the yard "hugging and hugging and hugging," Judy says. It is an experience that, even with her gift for storytelling, she is at a loss to describe. The family tried to catch up on 40 years in that one evening.

Judy's adopted mother died of cancer in 1967, before she met her real parents. Her adopted brother, Tim, died of a heart attack in January of 1984, and her adopted father died that April. So the family she knew and loved all her life is gone, but the family who gave her life is now there to enjoy.

Judy discovered she has two other brothers, Norm and Marv, and a sister named Camilla. She has nieces and nephews to love as well. In May of 1938, Lyle died. Judy says she is glad she was able to know her real father, if only for a few years.

Meanwhile, Judy's search for her Irish roots took on new dimensions when she discovered her mother was a "saver" like herself. She had a wealth of information with which to continue her search.

She went back to Ireland again and again. She discovered her family came from Ballymena, a little town in Northern Ireland in County Antrim. Her maternal great-great-grandfather who lived there was Hugh McConnell.

She also discovered that Hugh's wife's ancestor was Dr. Alexander Colville, a Presbyterian minister and a well-known eccentric in Irish history, one whom all Irish schoolchildren read about in their history books.

Colville built Galgorm Castle in the 1600's in County Antrim, and Judy was able to talk her way into a visit in 1984, even though the castle is privately owned and rarely seen by outsiders.

Judy's dream is to take her mother, Dorothy, who is now 68 years old, back to Ireland with her for a visit. She has another dream, too.

When she turns 50 this June, an event she looks forward to with excitement, she is throwing herself a big Irish party in the backyard of her century-old, Washington Street, Clarkston, home. She has already hired an Irish band. Her family and friends will be there to celebrate with her.

And she is legally changing her name to McConnell, in honor of the ancestry that is now evident in pictures and memorabilia throughout her home.

"I think there are no better people on earth than the Irish," she says.

Out of respect for her adopted family, she is leaving her first name Judy.

But in her heart she is Anne. Anne McConnell. Irish

I took a voyage on dirt for a fireside chat. Rouge wax in pewter tears from the flame.

A hickory fire warms the walls and caresses our wicker chairs.

This house is the one you and I have felt and shared. Walked the floors and have closed the dream-filled

History is draped on its matured and tired walls of lath and mud.

No longer of any use, they watch cautiously over us. I sit, talk and heed of the worlds past and present. We are the judges tonight and give the universe a half-hearted grade.

Cold steel rain falls where grass once laid. Graciousness seeps through their pores and clutches a chill in the spine.

So much retrospect though so little sunshine. Glen Miller on the set and barley in the box. We chat into the night with the silver-haired fox. Bruce Stewart resides in Independence Township.

A TASTE of sap is all that Cathy Hoffman, 8, is after, as the crowd watches during a maple syrup-making demonstration at Indian Springs Metropark March 12. Supervising Naturalist Steve Horn said 40 gallons of sap makes one gallon of syrup.

Visiting the sugarbush

SAP IS COLLECTED all day from dozens of trees and then boiled by naturalist Mike Broughton (tending the fire) and maintenance man Chris Johnson (looking into the glant vat). Guided tours are offered for the next two weekends at the park in Springfield and White Lake townships. For more information, call 1-800-24-PARKS.

FIRST, a hole is drilled about two inches into the maple tree. Here, Eric Hoffman, 5, gives it a-try.
