Rabies case discovered

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

A raccoon found March 11 on Gibbs Road, Springfield Township, tested positive for rabies March 17, so area residents should take extra caution with their pets and should stay away from wildlife.

"I don't want panic created, but I also don't want it ignored," said veterinarian John Bruggeman of the Springfield Veterinary Clinic in Springfield Township.

According to Bruggeman, the rabid raccoon was found in the backyard of a Gibbs Road residence.

"The animal was acting in a strange way, wouldn't leave the area and was active in daylight hours," he said. "These are all things that are unusual for raccoons."

The symptoms indicated the "dumb" form of rabies, when a wild animal acts out of character, rather than the more unusual "furious" form of rabies, when an animal foams at the mouth and goes "completely wacky," he said.

All warm-blooded animals can contract the disease, even birds on rare occasions. However, rabies are most often found in raccoons, skunks and bats, he said.

Bruggeman was particularly concerned with this case of rabies because spring weather means more people will be outside.

"Easter break is coming, and all the kids are going to be playing in the woods," he said. "We need to make the public aware."

Adults should make sure their children stay away from all wildlife and should immediately vaccinate their dogs and cats against rabies. Also, they should keep their pets at home, he said.

"I don't think we're being alarmist about this. I'm

SPRING ARRIVED MONDAY in a cloak of ice and fresh snow. And while the ice, left over from a St. Patrick's Day ice storm, may have turned the area into a crystalline wonderland over the weekend, it was hard on trees. Some broke under the weight of the icy build-up, which had not melted by Monday. Weather reports indicate that temperatures will remain below normal this week. (Photo by Pat Young)

Election Tuesday

Don't forget to vote Tuesday, March 28. Polls in Independence Township are open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. for a special election on a proposed $1.5 million bond issue for the fire department.

If approved, the money would pay for the acquisition, construction, renovation, furnishing and equipping of the former Pontiac dealership property on M-15, just north of the Village of Clarkston.

The public safety complex would house the central fire station for the Independence Township Fire Department, as well as an Oakland County Sheriff's Department sub-station and possibly a state police post.

To repay the debt, the township would levy about .403 mills, or 40 cents for every $1,000 in assessed property values, for about 20 years.

For an average homeowner with an $100,000 house, assessed at half its market value ($50,000), the cost would be $20.15 in taxes per year.

According to Township Clerk Richard Holman, voter turnout is expected to be light, but residents are encouraged to have their say about the complex.

Storm causes 3,300 to lose power

BY PAT YOUNG

Luck was not with the Irish this St. Patrick's Day, at least not with those traveling any distance during last Friday evening's ice storm.

But while the storm blanketed the area with a layer of ice, there were surprisingly few accidents, according to Independence Township Assistant Fire Chief Gordon Mason.

"We had a few wires down and a lot of guys out much of the night (because of this), but not a lot of other incidents," Mason said. There was only one accident reported during the storm in Independence Township.

The ice storm caused power outages for some 3,300 Detroit Edison customers in the Independence Township-Springfield Township area, according to Detroit Edison spokesperson Lorie Kessler. Most of the downed wires were caused by ice-laden branches falling on them, she said.

Power was out to about 50 customers in the four-corners area of Independence, Springfield, Waterford and White Lake townships.

Two more circuits out in Clarkston caused loss of power to about 2,150 residents, and two circuits out in Springfield Township caused another 1,100 residents to be without power.

By Monday, all 3,300 customers had power back, but 750 in Clarkston experienced another power loss Monday due to more problems caused by the storm, Kessler said.

Rabid raccoon found in Springfield

concerned," he said. "This is absolute confirmation of rabies in Oakland County. We have one positive sign. That's enough of a danger sign."

When a rabid cat was found in Auburn Hills last December, Bruggeman's wife, Sue, had to undergo treatment because she had come in contact with the cat, he said.

A veterinarian with the Oakland County Animal Control Division, she told Bruggeman the treatment was painful.

"It isn't as bad as it used to be," Bruggeman said. "It's much less painful, much less uncomfortable."

But the best way to avoid the treatment is prevention, he said. If residents find a wild animal that's acting strangely, they should stay away from it.

"Don't handle it; if it won't go away, don't shoot it in the head," he said, adding that the brain tissue is needed to identify rabies.

If the residents do kill the animal, they should place it in a plastic bag and call the county animal control division, he said.

But testing is expensive, and the state only pays for animals that have come in contact with humans or domestic animals. So people should be cautious.

"We don't want everybody panicking," he said. "We don't want them so upset that they're shooting every poor raccoon in Oakland County, but they have to be aware."

Pipe not a bomb

Police were called to Rudy's Market on Main Street, Clarkston, to investigate a possible pipe bomb March 15.

Rudy's co-owner Robert Schwarze told police that he was checking groceries when he noticed a pipe on the ground.

He thought it was a pipe bomb because it was covered on both ends, according to an Oakland County Sheriff's Department report.

After investigating the pipe police found no fuse or holes, so the device was taken to the Oakland County substation on Main Street where it was dismantled.

Mother Nature puts taxpayers in the dark

Sometimes the Springfield Township Board of Review faces stormy situations; but these are usually created by irate taxpayers rather than Mother Nature.

Last Tuesday, when thunderstorms rolled through the north Oakland County area, the Springfield Township Hall lost electricity from about 2 until 7:30 p.m.

When residents began arriving about 6:30 p.m. to discuss their tax assessments with the board of review, they found the lighting a little rustic -- Coleman lanterns and candles.

Supervisor Collin Walls said they were getting a lot of comments like, "You'd think with higher assessments, the township could afford to pay its electric bill."

Area grocers toss Chilean produce from shelves

BY MARALEE COOK
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Grapes, peaches, plums and other produce imported from Chile were removed from area grocery stores early last week as store owners and employees complied with a Food and Drug Administration directive to clear store shelves of the produce.

The FDA directive was issued after testers found traces of cyanide in two grapes that were part of a Chilean shipment in port in Philadelphia on Sunday, March 12.

"We won't be stocking anymore Chilean produce until it has been cleared by the federal government," said Don Moody, produce manager of the A&P at M-15 and Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

Moody said A&P employees sealed 100 to 150 pounds of Chilean grapes, peaches, nectarines and plums in cold storage where they would remain for four or five days before they would have to be disposed of.

"Surprisingly, we've only had one or two phone calls about the problem," he said, adding that A&P is accepting returns of grapes or any other produce customers are concerned about.

The main office of Food Town Super Markets, located on Main Street, Clarkston, received many phone calls about the Chilean produce scare, according to Bob Roth, vice president of the company.

Food Town's produce supplier removed the grapes, nectarines and plums from the stores, Roth added.

BOB SCHWARZE of Rudy's Market stocks apples from Porter's Orchard in Goodrich. He estimates that the largest loss in Michigan from the produce scare was suffered by chain stores and produce suppliers serving the Eastern Market in Detroit.

Employees at Rudy's Market and Sons on Main Street, Clarkston, threw away a few bunches of grapes and plums from Chile, said Bob Schwarze. He added that Rudy's carries mostly U.S. produce.

According to Fred Schwarze, Bob's brother, their strawberries and tomatoes come from Florida, the cauliflower from Mexico and the onions from Idaho.

Some Granny Smith and Red Delicious apples come from Washington, while Ida Red and other Red Delicious apples come from Porter's Orchard in neighboring Goodrich.

Alleshia Walker, manager of the Cracker Barrel General Store on Sashabaw Road, Brandon Township, said that by the time the scare began, they were out of grapes, nectarines and plums they usually stock from Chile.

"We can't make our fruit salad to sent out, but other than that, it's not a big problem," said Walker.

Gloria Florez of Pierre's Orchard on Clarkston Road, Independence Township, said they had to dispose of their produce from Chile and have restocked their shelves with strawberries, bananas and apples from Florida.

"No one has returned any fruit or asked for their money back," said Florez. "Most customers have been concerned if she (store owner Colette Viviano) would be reimbursed for the loss."

Florez said they're not expecting any compensation.

RUDY'S STOCKS mostly U.S. produce. These Granny Smith and Red Delicious apples are from Washington.

Business as usual at technical center until dispute is resolved

Until they can agree on a new contract for the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus, Oakland Intermediate School District and Clarkston Community School District will continue under the old contract.

A year ago, the Clarkston school board approved an extension of the existing 20-year contract on the administrative recommendation not to replace it with the new contract.

This March, the board reconfirmed the March 1988 decision to continue under the original 20-year contract until such time as Oakland Schools and Clarkston can mutually agree on a replacement.

Some of the concern to Clarkston, according to business services director Bill Jackson, included changing of wording in the contract from "mutually agreed to" to "Oakland Schools requires us to" in various instances.

Also, Clarkston was concerned with the change of wording from payment of funding money in "such amounts as shall be necessary" to "such amounts as (Oakland Schools) deems necessary."

He also said the contract locked Clarkston into a 20-year contract, yet gave Oakland Schools an out at five, 10 or 15 years.

Vocational school laws 20 years ago said the property had to be owned by the local district, so legally, Clarkston school district owns the property at the Northwest Campus Tech Center. The staff is part of Clarkston district, but the programs are funded by Oakland Schools.

Doug Pierson, assistant principal at the Tech Center, said, "I feel comfortable in Clarkston School's evaluation as to the fairness of the contract."

Dr. William Keane, superintendent of Oakland Schools, said Clarkston is the only host district of the four technical centers which has not signed a new contract.

He said they brought schools together from the area and studied contracts. Because contracts were for such a long period of time, the general feeling was that the world is changing rapidly, and Oakland Schools didn't want to be bound for 20 years.

"Basically, the changes were not wildly different," he said. "If anything, it gives the sending districts (such as Holly, Brandon, Waterford) a say in how the host district is handling the facility."

Keane said there was really no intent to change anything between the funding agency (Oakland Schools) and Clarkston.

"I suspect there was more significance put on the language than was intended," he said.

Airplane marshmallow drop called off this year

An airplane marshmallow drop originally planned for Saturday, March 25, at Clintonwood Park has been canceled.

To drop the 8,000 marshmallows from an airplane, special permits from the Federal Aviation Association would have been needed, according to Sheryl Stickley-Schreefel, from the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

Bomb threat at apartment complex

The manager of an Independence Township apartment complex got a scare on St. Patrick's Day when a telephone caller threatened to blow up the building unless his demands were met.

The 27-year-old manager of Greens Lake Apartments on Parview Drive called police after he received the message on the complex's answering machine late March 17, according to an Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) report.

According to the report, the message on the machine said "My name is Karem Progala. I'm part of the People's Society. A bomb will go off at 8 a.m. tomorrow, and you're to be there and meet my demands."

The manager was unable to recognize the voice on the recorder, according to the report.

The apartment building owner was notified and was told that a decision to evacuate was up to her.

The deputy making the report said he felt the threat was a hoax because of a fake accent used in the call.

No further incident was reported.

School architect OK'd for bond, site work

Clarkston school district's new architect, Greiner, Inc., received approval from the school board to re-evaluate the current bond project and do preliminary site evaluations on possible future bond projects.

In the first motion, the board gave Greiner the nod to confirm and re-prioritize the scope of building renovation projects included in the 1988 $5.2 million bond issue.

The approximate cost of that service is $11,000, but Superintendent Gary Haner said that once plans for the actual work were drawn up, it could be a savings for the district over what was previously anticipated.

Completion of the actual work pertaining to the 1988 bond issue would probably be done by either a general contractor or a construction manager, he added. This would be a future decision made by the board.

In the second motion, the board gave approval to preliminary site evaluations by Greiner, once the board decides on possible sites for a future high school.

By giving the approval ahead of time, Haner said, the board was expediting things when a site was chosen. "It's a time line thing," he said, since one site they were considering has already sold.

Public meeting set for March 28

Architect offers new building proposals to board

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

High school classrooms where teachers can "beam up" social studies plans, "team teaching" areas in the middle schools where staff can lay out study plans for sixth, seventh and eighth graders -- sound like something from the future?

Tom Chen, vice president of the architectural firm of Greiner, Inc., hopes it will become a part of Clarkston's present. But if the Clarkston Board of Education doesn't like the idea, he has over 20 options ranging from bare bones to frills for them to consider.

All of the proposals, he said, were "cast in Jello" and could be changed.

The board heard the Greiner proposals to alleviate Clarkston's overcrowding problems at a special board meeting Monday night.

Another special board meeting is planned for Tuesday, March 28, at 7 p.m. in the Clarkston High School library to further discuss and review the proposals. The public is welcome to ask questions regarding the proposals.

The board must finalize and adopt a final building program by April 17 to take to the voters in the June 12 election.

Chen said the proposals were drawn up after visiting schools, meeting with staff, studying needs and then presenting options based on North Central Accreditation standards.

The proposals were also based on anticipated increased enrollment in the district based on StanFred statistics.

A new proposed high school would have 81 teaching stations where the current school has 69.

Options include integrated technology such as video capabilities in the classroom, with the ability to have just a few or all of the classrooms hooked up to the system.

Options, including site purchase and preparation for a new high school building and equipment, ranged from an estimated $43.6 million to $44.8 million, depending on the extent of the integrated technology.

At the middle school level, it was proposed to renovate Sashabaw Junior High and move Clarkston Junior High into the current high school, using additional space at the high school for expansion of the autistic program (funded by Oakland Schools) and school maintenance areas, as well as utilizing the current auto body shop.

A unique addition to both middle schools would be a "team planning" room and a career guidance area. Integrated technology could also be incorporated into the middle schools.

The estimated cost for the Clarkston Junior High proposal was $7.46 million, and for Sashabaw, about $4 million.

At the elementary level, proposal I was to put additions on all five elementary schools, utilizing the available space to the maximum, with student populations of about 700 per school.

Proposal II was to put smaller additions on the elementary schools, allowing for approximate populations of 500, and to construct a sixth elementary school. In both options, the goal was to bring the entire elementary population within North Central Accreditation standards.

Proposal I was estimated at $17.93 million and Proposal II at $22.38 million.

The elementary proposals included art, music and science rooms, as well as cafeterias. The philosophy, Chen said, is to make learning a pleasant experience because studies show that good learning habits are set by the time a student is in the sixth grade.

The difference between going to the voters with a $40 million bond issue versus a $60 million bond issue, under the current school bonding loan fund through the Michigan Department of Education, is minimal, Chen said.

A $40 million proposal would necessitate levying 7.11 mills, for $60 it would be 7.44 mills. The difference of $20 million amounts to .33 or about one-third of a mill. That translates into 33 cents per $1,000 assessed property valuation (state equalized value -- SEV -- of a house). For the owner of a $100,000 house (with an SEV of $50,000), that would be $16.50 more to fund the $60 proposal.

The proposals include everything from building renovation and new building construction to lighting improvements, environment improvements such as carpeting and chalkboards, as well as library program improvements, computer and science rooms, latchkey rooms, space for the gifted and talented, special education, and integrated technology.

It also includes site improvements, such as traffic and safety considerations, and the actual computer and visual aid equipment.

"We look at the total picture. You have to understand the curriculum, too, in order to effectively deliver the program," Chen said. "We're not here to just brick and mortar but to address how kids are taught."

"You need to provide from the elementary level a pleasant environment in which kids can learn and teachers can be effective in delivering this education," he added. "We feel it's very important to do this."

Repairs cost $5,500

Repairs to a pump which siezed up on a fire truck and repairs to another piece of firefighting equipment in Springfield Township will cost about $5,500.

The township board voted 6-0 March 9 to transfer $7,000 of unallocated money in the fire fund to cover the cost of the repairs on the equipment. Trustee Charles Oaks, an on-call firefighter, abstained from voting.

CHS' first-place effort wins Big League Challenge

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A group of Clarkston High School students decided to take the Big League Challenge, and it paid off with a first place trophy.

The Big League Challenge, an anti-drug campaign competition organized by the prosecutors in Oakland, Wayne, Macomb and Genesee counties, kicked off last fall and culminated with an awards ceremony at the Palace of Auburn Hills this March.

Also issuing the challenge were the Detroit Pistons, Lions, Red Wings, Tigers, and WDIV/Channel 4. Pistons guard Isiah Thomas, Lions quarterback Chuck Long, and Channel 4 newswoman Carmen Harlan, among others, spoke at the kick-off and the awards presentation.

CHS students involved in the challenge are members of the Just Say No Club, including Lizz Webb, Amy Newmarch, Michelle Darby, Shawna Jordan, Susan McKoin, Kelly Avenall, Jeff Locher, Joe Cote, Jeff Shupe and Kevin McCormick.

CHS SEARCH coordinator Katie MacKay and special education teacher Bill Curtis, who is also co-facilitator of SADD, put together the applications for the Big League Challenge.

But it wasn't the two teachers' project or the work of 10 or 15 kids, MacKay says. "It was community people, teachers and a large number of kids involved in trying to make a good preventative program surrounding substance abuse."

At the awards ceremony, Webb and Locher gave an acceptance speech for CHS, but many of the students involved were also in attendance.

Two of the areas the school scored well in, MacKay says, were the high number of curriculum areas where substance abuse is taught, and preventative measures the high school students took upon themselves by going into the elementary and junior high schools with the Just Say No drug education.

Since a large percentage of students have tried drugs or alcohol by the time they are in high school, the philosophy is to reach children with an anti-drug message while they are young.

The Big League Challenge was begun two years ago by the prosecutors in an attempt to get more schools to incorporate substance abuse preventative programs. Points were awarded to schools for anti-drug measures, such as posters, rallies, or talks in the elementary schools.

T-shirts and sports passes were some of the incentives offered, and now CHS has an engraved first place plaque to display for their efforts.

Criteria for judging, in addition to the substance abuse curriculum, included the school's training in techniques of drug abuse resistance, its strong anti-substance abuse provision in the student-adopted code of conduct, participation in project graduation, and having a community/school advisory council as well as peer leadership and support groups.

CHS also has a "memorandum of understanding" with the law enforcement agencies, which means they work in cooperation with them. The school intervenes on a student's first offense. If it is a continuing problem, the legal system is used.

Having a SEARCH (Support, Education, Awareness, Resources for Chemically free Health) program at the school helped in their first-place score, MacKay says. So did having D-Bug (Dr. Burek's Unity Group) and Interact, a new Rotary-sponsored club involved in community projects like this, and the support of community groups like AWARE.

"It was all the little extras," MacKay says.

And it was especially rewarding for the students to see their efforts pay off at the end of the challenge.

"It was neat at the Palace to see so many kids from so many schools involved," MacKay says. "The prosecutors told them that anyone who got involved is a winner."

A FIRST - PLACE effort in the Big League Challenge, an anti-drug competition among high schools in southeastern Michigan counties, earned Clarkston High School an en-

Easter peals

Julie Campe

This Sunday, I expect I'll see the Aunts together again, their heads thrown back, eyes squinting, guffawing at some sisterly jokes.

My mother is one of them, probably the loudest of them. I can describe the scene perfectly this Easter.

She will walk in the front door to Don and Nancy's Clarkston Road house, and she'll spot her sister Leone across the room.

They'll look at each other just once, and then their mouths will split open wide, and peals of laughter will fill the room.

We cousins will not leave the room, as we did as youngsters. We have outlived our embarrassment.

There was a time when my cousin Penny and I would refuse to sit with my mother in the movie theater.

My mother gets so prepared for movies that if it's a comedy, she starts laughing at the introduction credits. Any self-respecting teenager would be humiliated to be caught with such a squealer.

But on this Easter, we will simply talk above the Aunts' noise.

It's not much different from the old days, I guess. In childhood, the Uncles would hide Easter eggs (although we children went along with their little game and pretended the Easter Bunny hid them), and we would search the bushes, trees and grass for the colored treats.

The Aunts would stand at the top of the hill, where they said they had a good view of all the activity.

But we knew the real reason. They liked the peak of the hill because their laughter would peal out for miles around like bells ringing. You could hear it reverberate from the hills.

There will be a little less reverberation this year. The Aunts' children are mostly grown, and the Aunts are no longer required to watch all the activities.

They're at that age now where they have license to act goofy but still receive respect from their grandchildren, grandnieces and grandnephews.

This Easter, their elder, more mature sister, Geneva, will be in Florida; and their prankster brother, Red, will be in California. To compensate, the Aunts will undoubtedly talk about them.

"Oh, Leone, did you hear--" my mother will say.

"--Yes," Leone will interrupt, and they will break into laughter.

Quiet Pat (their mother's favorite daughter) will probably even let loose a few guffaws -- but only from her sisters' influence.

We cousins will not contribute to the conversation but instead try to grasp the meaning behind their sentence fragments.

That is, until our own brothers and sisters arrive. In my family, only Carol and Andy will be around. David is in Massachusetts; Valerie is in New Jersey; and Ron is in Florida.

To compensate, we'll probably talk about them.

"Oh, Carol, did you hear--"

"--Yes!" she will say.

Help for seniors

Sometimes we need problems to find out what life is all about. I am a 64-year-old senior aide at Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency (OLHSA).

Seventeen years ago I was a success in the grocery business when a stroke brought me down. Not able to provide for my family, pay heating bills or do most jobs, like many seniors with problems like mine, I became very depressed. I found out what down and out is all about.

I was directed to OLHSA where, after being trained as a senior aide, I was hired. I work part time answering phone calls from others who need help. I direct their inquiries in the right direction where they can get aid for heating, insulating their homes, home chore services, educational help for their children and lots of other types of assistance.

Sixty-four seniors are presently working through the senior aide program. My part-time earnings along with social security enable me to support myself and my family once again.

I would encourage anyone who isn't making it financially to give OLHSA a call at 858-5180 to find out what programs are available to them.

Sign her petition

You bet'chum. The biggest change in the history of Medicare did occur with the signing of the Medicare/Catastrophic Act.

Any senior, with an income of $11,100, will pay a new sur-tax (supplemental premium) which is a 15% increase on their tax return for 1989 payable, in 1990. By year 1993, it will creep to 28% and it is payable to IRS on their income tax return.

To all other age groups, we seniors are doing you a favor to eliminate this Catastrophic Act with its new tax, as one day you too will reach the golden years.

Help us by signing a petition circulating throughout the U.S. to repeal this Act.

We now have 210,100 signatures and three basket fulls yet to be counted. Have you signed yet?

Answer: Recycling

Here in Oakland County, Michigan, we must recycle everything. Do not landfill. Do not incinerate. Why? Because you will poison the water and the air for our grandchildren.

Crazy idea? Technically very difficult to do, but not impossible to do.

Seattle is asking that you visit your neighbors to see if they can use up your old paint, oven cleaner or drain cleaner, etc. Do not put bug killers, etc. in the garbage.

The Oakland County Landfill Advisory Committee should refuse to site any landfill until the county has composting underway as well as picking up newspapers

Speak out about catastrophic care

President Reagan and President Bush both vowed they would NOT raise taxes or cut Social Security, but as it turns out, neither of them has looked out to see that his would not help senior citizens when they allowed the new Catastrophic Law to take effect on Jan. 1, 1989.

Allowing a 15 percent surcharge on senior citizens' income taxes is certainly a raise in taxes if you ask me, at least a raise to the senior citizens.

Jim's Jottings

An interview with me:

What's upset you most, lately?

At the top of my list right now are musical interludes while on hold for a long-distance call I don't think I should have to make in the first place.

Detroit Edison is the target of my wrath. I let the local 335- number ring 20 times before I opted for their long distance number in Bingham Farms or whatever.

The answerer immediately put me on hold and on came songs. The salesman who convinced the utility to hook their phones to a radio signal probably got an award. The company that keeps that connection should have competition we can go to.

Cool it. Who are you rooting for among women golfers on their way to Lake Orion and the U. S. Open in July?

That's easy. Danielle Ammaccapone, 23, or her sister, Dina, 21, of Phoenix. Their dad owns a Ralph's Hideaway restaurant in Cave Creek, AZ, a place I'm looking forward to visiting next month.

Did you follow the John Tower tear up and put down in Washington?

Loved it. We saw the entire gamut of human emotions come from our somehow duly elected representatives in Washington: Good 'ol boy, fellow Texan from the President. Sometimes threatening, then compromising (give him 6 months trial) GOP senate leader Dole.

Armed service committee chairman Nunn saying, "Yes, I was arrested for drunk driving, but that was 20 years ago." Democratic Texan Bentsen voting for fellow Texan (what is there about Texans?). The Pentagon, the news editors, the "I shall not drink" statement of Tower, the whole thing made me proud. Yuk.

Seen a good bumper sticker lately?

Yeah, two of them. One read, "Of all the things I've lost, I miss my mind the most." The other: "Don't tell me what kind of day to have."

One more question. Do you favor an increase in sales tax and a decrease in property tax?

Of course. Just about everyone should who owns property. Take a homeowner who makes $20,000 a year. His un-sales taxed groceries amount to about $60 a week, $3,120 a year. If he spends all the rest for taxable goods the 2 percent increase is only $337.

That's surely less than his property tax. Besides that, all the tourists that come to our fair state can help Lansing meet its ever-growing budget.

You know the problem with the above scenario as well as I. Our ever-growing governmental budget makers will not allow property taxes to stay at whatever level they might be reduced to.

Property taxes were doubled when the constitution was re-written, and they'll continue to rise. Guaranteed.

Help for George

As if 15 percent weren't enough, in 1990 the rate goes to 25 percent. If these rates are allowed to escalate asset up, senior citizens will eventually be paying a higher percentage on their income taxes than the millionaires.

When one considers that for each dollar a senior citizen pays on the new surtax, he is losing a dollar from his benefits, this also has to be considered a means of cutting social security.

Are the senior citizens of this nation going to overlook the president's promises simply because Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and Rep. Dan Rostenkowski have dictated it?

Are senior citizens going to allow two congressmen to take over their social security pay checks? Sen. Bentsen says the law is passed, and that's it. But we all know it was passed without the seniors' knowledge, and laws can be repealed if enough people get on the backs of our leaders.

If you don't mind letting the government rape your income, then let it be; however, if you wish to fight this act, please get on the bandwagon with the rest of us and write to your congressman or call them, if nothing else.

I am tired of trying to inform people who don't know a thing about this act. Call the IRS ... call the social security offices ... write a letter to your congressmen ... better yet, write a letter to your president. This is what I did.

There is an old there, "Let George do it," but George can't do it all.

Successful shamrocks

Again this year, our "Shamrocks Against Dystrophy" campaign was a great success. The participation and generous donations by the employees and patrons of American Speedy Printing, Carol's Village Grill, Clarkston Big Boy, Pete's Coney II, Village Bake Shop and Wonder Drugs helped to raise over $500 for muscular dystrophy.

The funds raised in our community enable the Muscular Dystrophy Association to continue providing free clinics, medical and camping services to muscular dystrophy families in our community. Thank you for caring and helping in such an important way.

Getting
cranky?

Jim
Fitzgerald

Bernard W. Joseph of Berkley asks how to be a nice older person. He is worried that he and I are getting cranky in our 60s.

"What do we do to continue to be part of what President Bush wants, to be kind and gentle, to be one of those thousand points of light, when we are constantly assailed by sheer stupidity and lack of concern?"

Joseph, a retired GM employee, began thinking about the question long before he hit 60. "Some years ago I observed many old people who were mean and cantankerous." He determined that this crankiness wasn't a necessary part of growing old, but simply "a magnification of the young person."

"I realized that, if I were to age into a kind old man, I had better become a kind young man. I began to actively pursue, capture and tame goodness ... With all humility, I think that I can say I have accomplished the task, and am a kind, gentle 60-year-old."

Joseph is so kind he even says kind things about me: "I have always admired your writing, in which you have, to the most, conveyed the idea, without any holier-than-thouness, that you are a kind and gentle man. In a small way, you have been an example. I believe we are a lot alike: about the same age; we both have grandchildren whom we obviously love; and we have comparable wits. Perhaps I see myself moving along a parallel path to the one you tread."

Crankiness replaces niceness

But Joseph feels that path getting prickly. He sees crankiness replacing niceness in his attitude, and in this column. Why? It's that aforementioned "sheer stupidity and lack of concern" that seem to lurk wherever we tread.

Joseph has most recently been upset by such aggravations as the legal roadblocks that prevent decent people from getting crack houses immediately and permanently removed from their neighborhoods. "It's enough to make a person so mean that he would encourage the neighbors to burn the F-ing (did I follow the Stylebook?) house down. That's what I said to my wife."

Oh, yes. There are the huge irritations, like crime and the Ayatollah Ignutz. And there are the comparatively minor aggravations that readers continually send across my desk and make me mean.

One example: Larry Urbin of Plymouth was in a traffic accident Dec. 2 and needed a part to complete the repair of his 1989 Ford Grand Marquis. It wasn't in stock, so a Ford dealership ordered it. The wrong part was ordered - or delivered - five times! The correct part finally arrived Feb. 10, an astonishing two months later. Urbin is out around $900 in car rental costs and might go to Small Claims Court to seek reimbursement from Ford.

"The part in question is used in assembly every day and has been on all Marquis from 1983 to the present," Urbin said. Per the owner's manual, Urbin phoned customer assistance and wrote Ford's Consumer Appeals Board. Mostly he was met with - you guessed it - sheer stupidity and/or lack of concern. "And a surprising lack of courtesy."

A Ford motto is "Your satisfaction is important to Ford Motor Co." It makes Urbin cranky. Enough to turn cantankerous.

Another example: As instructed, Ted MacManus of Birmingham dialed the number given in a Michigan Employment Commission-TV spot. After countless busy signals, he got a recording that "provided me with a number to call for almost any contingency anyone could imagine." Finally, the recording told MacManus to phone the same number he'd phoned to get the recording!

"Fortunately, I am not seriously seeking employment, but what about poor SOBs that are?" MacManus asked. Are they the victims of sheer stupidity or lack of concern? Take your choice.

It's enough to make anyone - of any age - cantankerous. Joseph asked: "Are you and I condemned to tread parallel paths to meanness?" He answered:

"Perhaps we are, but I intend to go down fighting. I certainly hope that you do also. Let us walk kindly and gently but, when necessary, hit them with a big stick."

OK, Bernard. Let's stay parallel.

The Roads We Travel

Road calls

Brent
Bair

In my last column, I noted that in 1988, Independence Township residents had called in more with road concerns in a couple of topic areas than residents of other communities in Oakland County. Since the calls consisted of complaints, questions and notices of problems, I chose to call them contacts.

Here is a listing of some of the more frequent contacts in 1988. The column labeled "highest" represents the greatest number of calls received from any single community for that topic.

Subject of call	Independence	Highest	County Total
Surface condition
Gravel primary roads	23	50	258
Gravel local roads	434	434	3,520

Scheduling: local roads	13	50	258
Quality: local roads	15	39	211
Drainage problems

Construction area problems	16	135	564
Requests for information	66	130	979
1988 totals (including other topics)	1,234	2,092	16,928

Want to know which community accounted for the highest number of calls? Waterford Township, with 2,092 calls, representing a 12.4 percent increase over 1987.

So what does all of this mean? Are the county roads really in that bad shape?

Yes and no. First of all, recognize that many people do not know how is responsible for the roads they travel. Many of the above calls involved state highways or city streets. Thus, the above numbers are not reflective of just county roads.

However, Oakland County has been suffering from growing pains. More people are moving out to the rural areas, thus traveling and affecting the condition of the gravel roads.

Since they usually came from areas with paved roads, they expect the surface of the gravel road to be maintained to the condition they were used to.

Also, road funding has not kept up with the growth. Sure, property taxes have gone up, but they do not go for county road maintenance.

So what happens to all these calls? Are they ignored?

No. Approximately 95 percent require investigation by the appropriate department staff. About 80 percent of the road maintenance related calls result in work being scheduled, with the remainder being advised that what is requested cannot be provided.

About 60 percent of the traffic engineering related requests (eg. signs, signals, etc.) result in scheduled work, with the remainder advised it is not possible.

Virtually all of the calls result in a return call indicating the results of the investigation (unless the work is already completed). This means that the total of 16,928 contacts may increase to over 30,000 contacts a year when you include call-backs.

The number of calls by type of area concern are reviewed by the various departments of the road commission and other affected public agencies to determine where adjustments in services may be in order. This is why these statistics are kept.

Note that these days an "adjustment" usually means taking something away from somebody in one area in order to provide more of something to somebody else in another area.

Why? Because taxpayers (including me) tend to expect more but are unwilling to pay for more, or mistakenly think they are already paying more for a particular service.

Fire department bond issue worthy of support

A $1.5 million bond issue is up before Independence Township voters in a special election Tuesday, March 28, and whether you're for it or against it, you should show up at the polls.

Property owners are screaming louder than ever over increasing assessments, and the impulse for most would be to vote against this proposal because nobody likes higher taxes.

But I encourage you to think hard about this one.

If approved, the money will be used to renovate an old Pontiac car dealership on M-15 and turn it into a central fire station for the township. The bond would cover everything needed to put the station in action (furnishings, equipment, construction).

There would also be enough room to house the substation for the Oakland County Sheriff's Department and a post for the Michigan State Police, should they choose Independence for their new location (they're looking at northern parts of the county at the moment).

The current central fire station is on Church Street, just a little east of Main Street, Clarkston, (behind Morgan's Service Station).

With cramped quarters and a list of needed repairs, the tiny building will have to be replaced sooner or later.

Township officials have kept their eyes open for spots along M-15, but terrain and space limitations have thwarted their efforts until this parcel became available.

Fire Chief Gar Wilson says the M-15 location is ideal because it provides much easier access to M-15 (Main Street), is close to I-75 and is still in the township's most populated area. Two other fire stations serve the rest of the township.

For the buy, it's not much money for the average homeowner. Spread over 20 years, .403 mill levy means the owner of a $100,000 house assessed at half its market value ($50,000) would pay $20.15 a year in extra taxes. One mill is $1 for every $1,000 assessed property valuation.

In exchange, residents will get a building that should meet the growing needs of the fire department, which these days responds to more medical emergencies and traffic accidents than to fires.

And by acting now, residents can take advantage of an ideal location and structure without the cost of new construction.

I encourage a yes vote on the bond issue Tuesday.

Vote yes on bond issue request

BY FIRE CHIEF GAR WILSON

On Tuesday, March 28, the voters of Independence Township will be asked to approve a bond issue to purchase, renovate and furnish the existing building known as the old Pontiac Dealership at 7151 M-15, to replace the present station at 3 E. Church St.

1. How much is the bond issue?

The bond issue will be for $1.5 million.

2. What will the bond issue cover?

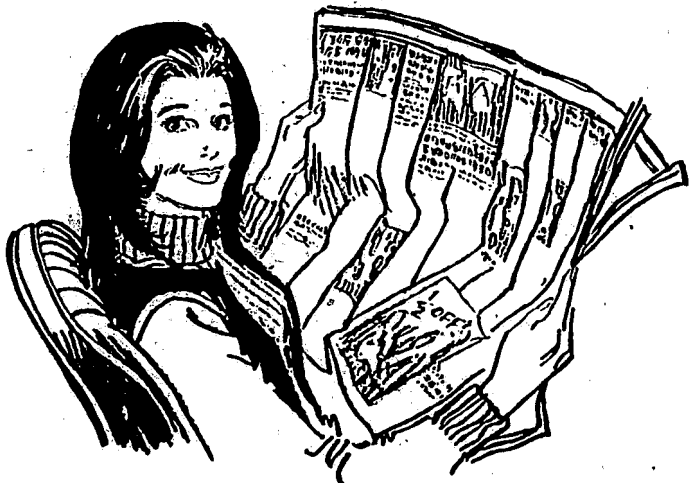

This money will be used to purchase, renovate and furnish the existing building at 7151 M-15.

3. Why do we need this building?

The Church Street station is in dire need of replacement. It serves as the township's central station, yet it was designed to house an auto dealership during the 1920s. It is extremely inefficient for heating, cooling and fire equipment maintenance. The office, dispatch and housing space available are very inadequate for a central fire station.

4. Why do we need to purchase now?

Much consideration has been given to the cost of property and construction at today's rates vs. what the costs may be in three or four years. For this reason, it is much more sensible to proceed now with the central (See CHIEF, Page 11)

Sherry Lynn Stigall, 21, of Mary Sue was driving south along Mary Sue in the afternoon of March 20 when she failed to yield to a car traveling east along Sunnyside.

She entered the intersection and was hit by a car driven by 23-year-old Patricia Louise Barrett, of Oak Vista, Independence Township.

According to an Oakland County Sheriff's Department report, Stigall told police she didn't see the other car approaching.

Stigall was cited for failure to yield the right of way.

Assistant principal at Clarkston High to change posts

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

An administrative recommendation made but not acted on at the March 13 school board meeting to give Clarkston High School Assistant Principal Jan Gabier notice that her contract might not be renewed has been withdrawn.

Instead, Gabier will be assigned to an administrative position in community education. The move is a permanent reassignment, with a job description yet to be finalized, according to Conrad Bruce, director of personnel services for Clarkston schools.

The announcement to withdraw the previous recommendation was made by Superintendent Gary Haner at the March 20 special board meeting.

"After the matter was studied further, I am personally withdrawing my recommendation," he said.

The action erased the need for a special meeting scheduled last night, so that meeting was canceled.

Gabier's new administrative assignment in community education will be effective April 3, according to Bruce. But Gabier said later she had received no information regarding reassignment from the board office.

"Obviously when Mr. Haner investigated, he determined there was no merit to the allegations," Gabier said in a phone interview the next morning. "I feel the administration's haste in proposing reassignment to the board was a mistake. I plan to continue my devotion to Clarkston schools, faculty, staff, students and community."

At the March 13 meeting, the administrative allegations listed complaints from students and parents regarding conduct in discipline and attendance situations and problems with managing crisis and confrontations.

Plants for sale

Students in the floral design and greenhouse program at the Oakland Technical Center will conduct a Easter lily and house plant sale on Thursday, March 23.

The sale, running from 8 a.m. until 2 p.m., will be at the northwest campus at 8211 Big Lake Road in Springfield Township.

Sale items include hanging baskets, holiday arrangements and silk flower designs. All live plants are student grown, said instructors Donna Papatheodoropoulos and Linda Allen.

The greenhouse needs to be emptied to make room for spring plants, so shoppers can expect good buys, the teachers said.

Planners recommend zoning change

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A request to rezone almost three acres along Sashabaw Road across from Pine Knob for Main Street U.S.A. Real Estate Services, Inc., headquarters met with approval from Independence Township planners March

2 administrators could be laid off

There is one annual event that the Clarkston school board does not look forward to, and that is announcement of layoffs in anticipation of budget cuts for the next school year.

Because administrators, by law, must have 90 days notice as compared to 60 days for teaching staff, the Clarkston Board of Education approved a recommendation on Monday that two administrators be given notice that their contracts may not be renewed.

The two administrators involved are Sharon O'Leary-Johnson, alternative education principal at the Clarkston Learning Center, and Susan Maciak, communications coordinator.

The recommendations were made, according to Connie Bruce, director of personnel, due to the overall financial posture of the district, program cuts anticipated in the 1989-90 school year, and anticipated reductions in state aid funding.

The action was a 30-day advance notice of further action on the contracts.

Teacher layoffs will be considered at a special board meeting on April 24.

The planning commission voted 6-0 to recommend that the township board change the zoning from single family to office. The planning commission makes recommendations about rezonings, but the township board has the final say.

Voting yes were Chairperson Brent Bair, Joseph Figa, Bruce Mercado, Richard Oppmann, Steve Secatch and Daniel Travis. Jo Fussman was absent.

Michael Clark, representative for Main Street U.S.A. owners Dexter and Sharon Mayworm, told the commission that the two planned to use the entire parcel for corporate headquarters, housing training facilities, computers and franchises.

Main Street U.S.A. was formed March 1 when the Mayworms ended their affiliation with Century 21.

Clark said the owners planned a three-phase building project on the site and would add on as the company grew.

Township Planner Richard Carlisle told commission members that the proposal complied with the township master plan, which was drafted to map out future growth in the area.

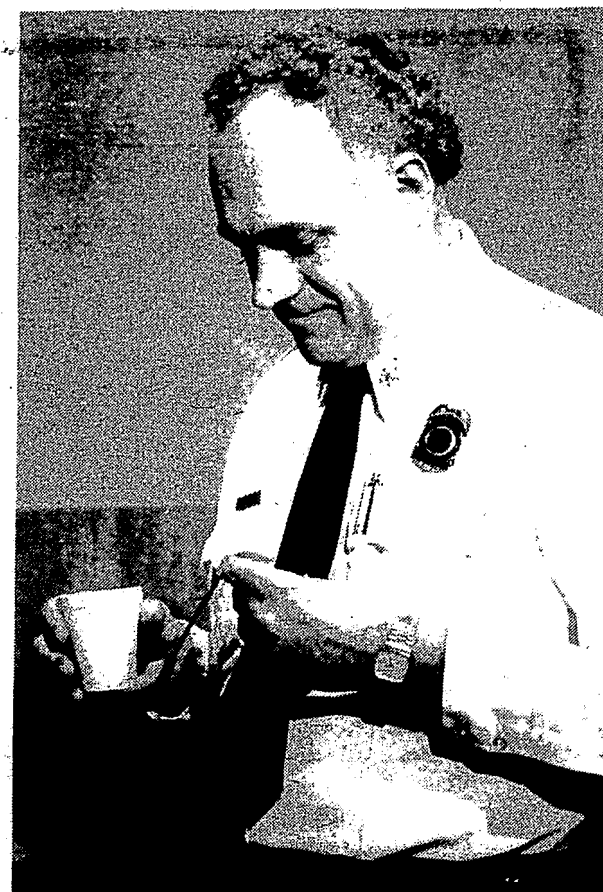

"There is a compatibility with the use of Pine Knob in terms of noise and traffic," Carlisle said.

"The site can capitalize on the use of Sashabaw and I-75. It will not have an impact on other single family homes in the area," he added.

One resident, speaking against the rezoning, told planners he didn't like the types of buildings that are created with the zoning.

"How can you make an industrial park on my lot; how can you do away with my property?" asked Delray Hall of Sashabaw Road.

Travis asked that a letter be drafted to Hall explaining that the master plan is a suggested use for the property and does not mean Hall will lose his land.

A MICROPHONE in one hand and a cup of water in the other show the preparations for Fire Chief Gar Wilson's interview on Cable-TV. For the program, Clarkston News Reporter Tracy King asked him questions on the $1.5 million bond proposal facing voters March 28. The program will air on Independence-Clarkston Cable-TV Channel 65 on Wednesday and Saturday, March 22 and 25 at 6:45 p.m. The interview took place at the United Cable studio on Waldon Road.

Springfield gives $3,600 for youth assistance

Holly and Clarkston Area Youth Assistance groups will benefit from donations approved by the Springfield Township board last week.

Served by both youth assistance groups, Springfield Township unanimously approved donations to each group of $1,800, or a total of $3,600. The contributions were up $300 from the $1,500 donations last year.

Dick Jacobson and Doug Quinn were before the board representing Holly Youth Assistance, and Garry Pullins and Steve Himburg were there representing

Bowl-a-thon supports summer camp for kids

If you like to bowl, here's a chance to help a good cause and enjoy an afternoon of fun and prizes.

The annual Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Bowl-a-thon is coming up on Sunday, April 9. It will begin at 1 p.m. in the Cherry Hill Lanes North on Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

Interested people -- you don't have to be a good bowler to have fun -- can pick up pledge sheets from any Youth Assistance volunteer or obtain one by calling Garry Pullins at 625-9007.

Participants collect sponsors, at so much per pin, or just a set donation. There is no charge to participants for the three games of bowling during the Bowl-a-thon.

Money raised by the annual Bowl-a-thon goes toward the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee's summer camp for children.

Last year, over 100 kids enjoyed eight days at Camp Oakland in Oxford, according to Merelyn Mallett, CAYAC secretary and former chairperson. For many, it is the highlight of their summer.

This year CAYAC has reserved the same number of spaces in camp, but the cost has gone up to about $100 per student. The Bowl-a-thon is CAYAC's major fundraiser.

Further information on the Bowl-a-thon can be obtained by calling Pullins.

Clarkston.

"We are a unique program," said Pullins, who is a child welfare worker with Oakland County Probate Court Juvenile Division.

The program was started by Probate judges who saw pre-delinquent youth, Pullins added. But the main ingredient of the organization is local sponsorship.

Both youth assistance groups have a variety of programs for youth and families alike, including family education programs, youth involvement, summer camp, fundraisers, youth recognition banquets for youth who have done positive things in the community, PLUS programs one-on-one relationships with an adult and child, and counseling.

Trustee Nancy Strole asked if Youth Assistance kept track of youth to check the success of the program. Quinn said the majority of youth are turned around.

Pullins added that about 3 percent are return offenders in youth assistance. "We feel that's a successful rate," he said.

Supervisor Collin Walls and the board complimented both youth assistance organizations for the detailed reports given to the township with the requests for donations.

"It helps when Jackie Fromm used to be the Youth Assistance secretary," Pullins laughed.

Fromm, who works in the Springfield Township offices, remains active in Youth Assistance and acts as the township board's liaison with the organization.

New history book for CHS juniors

A new 11th-grade history book, "A United States History Since 1861," was approved by the Clarkston Board of Education March 13.

The book was ordered in conjunction with a curriculum review committee recommendation. The recommendation, approved by the high school and social studies committee, was to split the study of U.S. history, according to Dr. Judy Backes, director of staff development/curriculum for Clarkston schools.

Students in the eighth grade study U.S. history through the reconstruction period, and then review that period briefly before moving on with U.S. history in the 11th grade. In the ninth and 10th grades, other aspects of social studies are emphasized.

Part of the philosophy was to avoid reteaching the same materials over again, Backes said.

A total of 500 books will be ordered at a cost of $27 per book, or a cost of just under $14,000, which also includes resource and test books.

Good samaritans sought

Know any youngsters who have done a good deed or two?

The Clarkston Area Youth Assistance (CAYA) is accepting nominations for youth who deserve recognition their positive contributions to the community.

Names and a description of the praiseworthy deed should be submitted to the youth assistance office by calling 625-9007.

CAYA was started by probate judges who saw pre-delinquent youth and wanted preventive measures. The organization conducts programs for families and children and offers counseling and summer camp.

Time Out

March madness

Peter Auchter

For the first time in my life, it felt weird sitting on the sidelines watching a basketball game in my role as a roving reporter for The News.

Last Sunday, the Independence Parks and Recreation Department closed out its winter basketball campaign with a "Super Sunday" competition. The Pony, American and National league champions were crowned for the 1988-89 season.

For those who enjoy watching a good game -- and I know you people are out there somewhere -- it was the place to be. It wasn't the Lakers vs. the Celtics or the Pistons against the Cavaliers, but it wasn't a playground adventure either.

Teams went for the jugular at every opportunity. If a referee happened to be in the way, they'd get taken out, too. From the Pony League on up, all of the games were hotly contested and usually were thrillers down to the wire. (The way basketball was meant to be played.)

The moves on the court also were first class. At times, the teams thrilled the sparse crowd at Clarkston High School with a good play here and there. March Madness goes on!

After completing my initial season in the league -- the lower division, that is -- I missed the game and wanted to get back out on the court. But like all the other teams that didn't qualify for the playoffs, I'll have to wait until next year for my moment in the sun.

Hopefully, it won't snow on my parade.

Let's take Time Out to analyze the NCAA basketball tournament.

As of this writing, Michigan remains alive and well in the sweet sixteen and in my eyes has a legitimate shot at the Final Four. Who knows, a couple of lucky breaks and continued hot play from Glen Rice and Terry Mills, and the boys in blue could have some serious fun in the tournament. Too bad, former coach Bill Frieder won't be around to savor the fruits of his labor.

It seems as though everybody has an opinion about Frieder's untimely move from U of M to Arizona State just before the playoffs began. As luck would have it, so do I.

Although I admit it was horrible timing, I can't fault the guy for taking the job. I also agree that he shouldn't be coaching the Maize and Blue once he became coach of ASU.

Who knows, maybe it'll help inspire the team to greatness and a berth in the Final Four. From there, anything can happen.

Quick Pick: Georgetown will take it all, despite the Hoyas' stumbling bumbling way of play-off basketball.

MARK BAILEY practices the shot put at Clarkston High School last Thursday afternoon. The boys and girls track season gets underway in early April.

Six win basketball skill contest

About 43 kids showed off their basketball skills recently during a competition at Clarkston Junior High sponsored by the Clarkston Area Optimists Club.

Contestants shot free throws, dribbled a basketball around orange cones and tested their passing accuracy. Winners were named in six age groups from eight to 13. The top two finishers in each age group are listed below.

Eight-year-old: Steve Pew, first place. Kevin Mason, second place.

Nine-year-old: Justin Dionne, first place. Sam Graham, second place.

10-year-old: Tim O'Rourke, first place. Joe Jenson, second place.

11-year-old: Billy Goforth, first place. Ryan Schroeder, second place.

13-year-old: Kristi Swartout, first place. Marty McGeogh, second place.

Lions to play hoops at CHS for charity

With raising money for the Clarkston Chiefs in mind, some members of the Detroit Lions football club will face a hodge-podge group from Clarkston on the basketball court in early April.

The little league football organization is sponsoring the event in order to buy equipment and fund scholarships for four high school seniors, said Don Marietta, who is organizing the event with his wife, Kay.

Ken Fantetti, a former Lion and current coach for the Chiefs, helped get the professional football players out for the April 6 game at Clarkston High School. The contest begins at 7:30 p.m., and admission is $3 per person.

Junior high and high school coaches and faculty from Clarkston as well as coaches from the Chiefs organization will oppose the Lions.

Tickets are available at the door or from Margaret Davis. She can be reached at 625-0430.

Kay Marietta encourages everyone in the community to turn out for the game.

"It's a good cause," she said.

SCA cheerleaders win title under pressure

With two other schools gunning to unseat the defending champion in the final round, Springfield Christian Academy earned its second straight state cheerleading title under pressure recently.

But it wasn't as easy the second time around by any means, said one of the squad's captains.

"Last year our squad went into the competition as the underdogs ... we had nothing to lose," said senior Tracy Adams. "This year was different because we were defending champions. But this year's squad worked well under pressure, and we were able to take first place."

Springfield Christian, who has won the state title seven times during the past eight years, hosted the Michigan Association Christian Schools finals on March 11. The competition consisted of three rounds with two cheers each. One school was eliminated after each round.

SCA advanced to the third round along with their biggest competition, Genesee Christian and Calvary of Roseville.

After a season of practices that sometimes lasted three or four hours and a boost of inspiration from the boys basketball team, the girls pulled out a victory.

Although the boys basketball team was playing in a tournament in Ohio during the weekend cheerleading competition, they remembered the girls' support during the season and sent nine yellow roses and balloons.

Coach Vanessa Vanaman also played a large role in the squad's success this season, Adams said.

"She is the key, and she deserves a lot of credit," the cheerleader said. "She works us hard; ... that's why we give the credit to our coach."

Close clashes in basketball title games

Parks & Recreation finals

Three close exciting contests closed out the 1988-89 Independence Township Parks and Recreation season with a bang.

Condon TV, who finished the regular season in first place with a record of 10-0, topped Grinnell's Landscape, who finished third in the regular campaign with a 7-3 mark, 94-83 to win the American League championship.

Don Smith scored a game-high 30 points and Tom Lloyd chipped in 27 to pace the victors. Scott Woodhull had 27 and Conrad Gardner 26 for Grinnell's.

Over in the National League, Tri-County Power Rodding (8-2 in the regular season) squared off against Oxford Big Boy (8-2) for the championship. Thanks to 20 points from Troy Russell and 16 more from Chris Mize Tri-County was able to top Oxford Big Boy 60-50.

Troy Rysnell led Oxford with 19 points and Ken Stahl added 13.

The Pony League championship game closed out the day as the Brothers beat the Air Bevers 39-35. Sam Brown led the way to victory for the Brothers by scoring 22 points. Todd Haines added nine in support. Tony Simmons was top man for the Air Bevers with 19 points. Sanon Molahan had 14.

League honors 2 with Secatch Memorial Award

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Throughout the Pony League basketball season, good times and bad, two players stood out from the rest of the pack.

Their leadership skills and good sportsmanship caught league director Steve Nicholson's attention and helped him decide to split the Steve Secatch Memorial Award between Clarkston High School seniors Matt Eby and Mike Haslock on Sunday.

"They are an asset to the community," he said. "Both were in the league for two years, and they presented themselves well. Picking one or the other would have been hard."

The Steve Secatch Memorial Award was created last year in honor of a Clarkston High School graduate who was active in Independence Township Parks and Recreation programs, said Nicholson. Secatch died in the summer of 1987 during a freak accident.

Eby, a Bitterbush, Independence Township, resident and Haslock, who lives on Hillsboro Drive in Springfield Township, were kept in suspense until the winners of the award were announced.

"It was a big surprise," said Eby.

Eby was the captain of the Smurfs, and Haslock captained the Bad Boys.

MATT EBY (left) and Mike Haslock are surprised when they are announced as the winners of the Steve Secatch Memorial Award last week.

Wrestler wins title

Capping a remarkably successful season, a former Clarkston resident won a state wrestling title in Flint recently.

Andy Storrs, who used to reside on Eastlawn Avenue with his parents Dennis and Sue Storrs, brought home first-place honors in the Mid-Michigan Wrestling Association's State Finals Tournament at Flint Carmen-Ainsworth High School on March 12.

He wrestles in the 55-pound division for kids age nine and 10 and is a member of the Goodrich Wrestling Club. His father is a coach on the team.

One of Andy's biggest fans, his grandfather, still lives in Independence Township.

"I can't believe it," Rizzuto said. "He's a state champion. It's just incredible."

Andy, who lives in Hadley, completed the year with an outstanding 51-3 record and compiled 42 pins.

Overall, the Goodrich team placed fourth in the state and won the sportsmanship award to boot.

Girl earns AQHA title

Kristy King recently won the 1988 Youth High-Point Showmanship title awarded by the American Quarter Horse Association.

Exhibiting her horse, Forged Impression, she earned 147 points in the event during 1988 AQHA youth horse show competition -- more than any other contenders.

High-point trophies and additional awards were presented at the AQHA Convention Awards Banquet on March 5 in Phoenix, Ariz. More than 700 American Quarter Horse enthusiasts from the United States and several foreign countries attended.

AQHA, the world's largest equine breed registry, has more than 140,000 members worldwide. AQHA-approved show competition is offered in novice, youth, amateur and open divisions, and Quarter Horse racing is conducted at 127 approved racetracks.

AQHA's youth division, the American Junior Quarter Horse Association, is the largest of its kind. During 1988 AJQHA membership (only youth 18 years and under qualify) topped 11,905 and youth competition was offered at 2,302 shows. Contestants earn points based on their placing in relationship to the total number of entries in a particular class.

Opinion of Bill Myers

Gold digging

William A. Myers is a retired Lapeer County editor and investments manager from Boca Raton, Fla.

Would you like to buy some gold at $250 an ounce?

The price is around $390. Call it $400 for the sake of discussion. There is no trouble selling it, through your bank or broker.

Well, there's a fellow in Beverly Hills, Calif., who has been calling me every day for a week to let me in on this deal. It happened because I sent in a coupon. I do this a lot to see what the boys are up to.

The scheme goes like this, so I'm told:

You pay in half of your contract now. If the contract calls for $5,000, then you send $2,500. That gives you the right to the first 20 ounces of gold from a 133-ton chunk of ore in a California mine.

When the mining and refining process starts, then you chip in the balance of $2,500. In maybe nine months, you are supposed to get your 20 ounces of gold. If the price level is around what it is now, it would be worth $8,000.

That's a 60 percent return in nine months - or 80 percent on an annual basis. Boy oh boy!

A question-and-answer period took place. I was doing the asking.

Q: You talk of a deal that has an 80 percent return. Why do you call me, peddling $5,000 chunks? I'd think investors would be beating down your door.

A: We don't like to get bank financing. They turned us down once, and we're not going to let them in now.

Q: What about mining companies? Lots of them have capital.

A: They would want a piece of the mine. We don't want to give it to them.

Q: What happens if this 133-ton block of ore

I'll have the rights to doesn't refine out 20 ounces of gold?

A: You'll get your money back. We guarantee it.

Q: What's behind the guarantee?

A: The assets of the company.

Q: Suppose in nine months, at the end of this plan, the company is broke?

A: We have lots of assets.

Q: How do you know you will nine months from now?

A: We have sold $10 million of these rights already.

Q: When the first ones get paid off with 20 ounces of gold for their $5,000 investment, send me their names and addresses, will you?

A: Yes.

Q: Okay, See you later.

Barron's had a big article on some Nevada gold mining schemes that promised gold instead of dollars as return on your investment. The magazine said then this was one way to skirt securities laws.

It was a busy week on the phone for gold bugs. Another outfit in California wanted to sell gold on margin.

"Gold has been making important moves lately," said the pleasant woman on the phone.

Mostly downward, I reflected. From $500 in January '88 to under $400 now.

"How much is the margin rate?" I asked.

"Twelve percent," she said.

So the price has to go up 12 percent in a year for you to break even. That would put the stuff around $440 based on February 1989 prices.

"I don't like buying on margin in this case," I said. "How much commission just to buy, have you store, and then sell when I feel like it?"

"Total charge, 9 percent," she said.

Say I buy $10,000 worth of gold this way and keep it a year. Commission and storage, $900. The same $10,000 invested in government bonds would bring me back $900. So I've lost that $900 and paid out another $900. Total cost $1,800. That means that for me to break even, gold would have to gain 18 percent in the next year, which would put the price around $460.

If I wanted to sell in less than a year, the 9 percent commission-and-storage would still apply, driving my total percentage cost higher.

The commission rate sounded high. I called Maria Brown at Thomson McKinnon, one of the big NYSE brokers, to ask their rates. Their figures:

Buying.....	2%
Selling.....	1½%
Storage (one-time charge).....	0.9%
Total.....	4.4%

And only 2.9 percent of this was upfront. The selling charge didn't apply until you got out.

Thomson McKinnon's whole fee was less than half of that of this phone-selling outfit in California. And with Thomson McKinnon, I would be dealing with an old, trusted and fully capitalized concern.

The answer is so simple, I'm hesitant to offer it:

When a stranger phones with a hot deal, hang up.

SECTION 2

Cindy Omans, elementary school

Kindergarteners in Cindy Omans' class are learning about the number five.

They're building little sculptures with five sugar cubes, part of a learning approach at Bailey Lake Elementary School called Math Their Way.

Children interact with various materials in groups of the number they study in the Math Their Way program.

"It's active, hands-on activity," Omans said. "It makes math fun."

Omans has been helping kindergarteners learn and have fun for 23 years and this year has been recognized for her efforts by her colleagues and principal.

She was chosen the Clarkston Community School District's outstanding elementary teacher of the year in a contest sponsored by WDIV-TV.

"I'm really positive about what I do, so it was nice to get that reinforcement," Omans said about her nomination.

"A lot of other people put in a lot of work to make it happen," she said.

Omans double teaches with Sharon Thomas, which means the two share a double-wide classroom and a lot of ideas.

"Creative-wise we share ideas, and I get to know all the kindergarten students that way," Omans said.

Their two-classroom structure is the only one of its kind at Bailey Lake Elementary, but Omans said it gives her a "double perspective" on the children she teaches.

Although Omans first thought she would teach fourth graders, she has remained a kindergarten teacher throughout her entire career.

During the last five to six years, Bailey Lake Elementary has added a developmental kindergarten class to its offerings; children are tested each spring and with the consent of parents are enrolled based on the results of the tests.

"Working with a young child is very rewarding," Omans said. "They're so spontaneous, and there's so much growth."

"The teacher is a very special person to them; I'm treated very well."

~ By Tracy King

BAILEY LAKE Elementary's Cindy Omans is Clarkston Community School's Elementary Teacher of the Year. She advocates a "hands-on" approach to learning in her regular and developmental kindergarten classes.

Barb Glover, middle school

Barb Glover was Clarkston school district's choice from middle school for the WDIV-TV Teacher of the Year award.

One thing that makes it special, Barb says, is that she was nominated by a committee of her peers.

Barb has been teaching for 30 years. She began her career in California teaching third grade for a year, then taught mentally impaired students in the Detroit school district for three years. She taught for many years in Ferndale before coming to the Clarkston district in 1969.

She began here teaching sixth grade and now teaches both sixth and seventh grade, including a seventh-grade honors English class, under the new middle school concept. She teaches at Clarkston Junior High School.

A graduate of Syracuse College in New York, she went on to earn her masters degree in education at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. Among her honors is a special citizen's award as an outstanding educator in Clarkston.

(See MIDDLE SCHOOL, Page 42)

BARB GLOVER was nominated as WDIV Teacher of the Year from Clarkston middle schools.

RON SANTAVICCA was named Clarkston Community School's outstanding high school teacher of the year. When not working in one of his many automotive projects, he likes outdoor sports.

R. Santavicca, high school

When the Clarkston Community School District hired Ron Santavicca right out of college in 1967, he wanted to be just an auto service teacher.

Throughout the next 22 years, however, he acquired a list of activities and accomplishments that fill close to two pages -- single spaced.

Most recently, he was named Clarkston Community School's outstanding high school teacher of the year in a contest sponsored by WDIV-TV.

"I think the guy that nominated me realized that (automotive teachers) work down in the trenches," he said. "It's really a hard job."

In addition to teaching auto mechanics and power

Three honored

Three Clarkston area teachers have been recognized for outstanding efforts in a contest sponsored by WDIV-TV and Newsweek.

Ron Santavicca, an auto service teacher at Clarkston High School; Barb Glover, a sixth-grade teacher at Clarkston Junior High; and Cindy Omans, a kindergarten teacher at Bailey Lake Elementary, were named outstanding teachers at each level within Clarkston Community Schools.

Teachers throughout the Clarkston Community School District were asked to fill out a survey of questions about their fellow teachers. The results were evaluated by principals at the schools.

The winners from the Clarkston District were nominated as Teacher of the Year in a competition of district winners from other Oakland County districts, according to Clarkston High School Principal Dr. Robert Burek, who served on the evaluating panel.

The nominations required letters from the teachers' colleagues and a parent spokesperson.

Although the Clarkston teachers did not win the county teacher of the year awards, they were champions in each of their respective schools and in the district at large.

Teacher speaks French, Spanish, Latin and teen

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Kathy Lutz is a French teacher, but if you're a high school student, she likely speaks your language as well.

Her rapport with students and the unique activities she involves them in recently earned her high honors within the Warren Consolidated School District, and the pride of her husband, John.

"I would like to announce that my wife has been named Teacher of the Year at Sterling Heights High School," Independence Township Treasurer John Lutz announced during a recent board meeting.

A little more than a month later he told the board that his wife had also been named Teacher of the

Think before you give live animals for Easter

The Michigan Humane Society cautions adults not to give gifts of chicks, ducks or bunny rabbits to children for Easter.

Statistics indicate that many such animals are not properly cared for, hurt or killed accidentally soon after the holiday.

After the initial excitement of owning a cute, baby animal is over, the reality of feeding, housing and caring for it sets in.

Every year following Easter, the Michigan Humane Society receives these "unwanted gifts," and the grim reality is that it's very difficult to find homes for chickens, ducks and rabbits.

If an animal is the gift of choice for Easter, the Michigan Humane Society recommends plush, stuffed toys or animal-shaped chocolate.

The Michigan Humane Society is a private, non-profit organization operating three shelters, three veterinary clinics and a wildlife rehabilitation center. For more information, call 872-3400.

District.

The award was based on Lutz's "portfolio," which required her biography, her philosophy of education, her personal teaching style and five letters of recommendation from students and the community.

She'll now compete for teacher of the state honors, which requires an even more detailed portfolio, but she still finds time to practice the teaching technique she has proven effective.

On any given day, French students at SHHS are on their feet involved in some "crazy" classroom project Lutz has dreamed up.

"I like to do something different every single day," she said. "I try to find some way to motivate them and keep them interested."

"French is an elective class; students don't have to take it. I try to make it worthy to learn."

Enrollment in the elective classes has doubled since Lutz began teaching French at SHHS, and two additional levels of French have been added to class offerings.

Lutz formed an active French Club; she organizes an annual Mardis Gras celebration involving students and their parents, and she developed an independent study program for high school students to teach French to elementary school students.

In addition, Lutz escorts a student group through France each summer. The students are each required to develop a scrap book and deliver an oral report after the trip is over.

Lutz agreed that the trip is a big undertaking but said its value is even larger.

"If you travel, you have to learn to communicate with the rest of the world. You learn why they act the way they do."

"I never have had any problems (on the trip); I know each student real well before we go," Lutz said.

Lutz made the decision to teach language when she was a child.

Her parents are Italian, but they were hesitant to teach children their language because they used it to talk about things children were not supposed to hear, Lutz said.

In high school, Lutz studied Latin because it was close to Italian, French because she liked it, and Spanish because it replaced a math class she had trouble with.

As for her unique ability to relate to teenagers -- she learned to speak their language along the way.

KATHY LUTZ is a candidate for Teacher of the State honors after being named Teacher of the District within Warren Consolidated schools. Lutz, a French teacher, is the wife of Independence Township Treasurer John Lutz.

Four CHS students named National Merit Finalists

BY PAT YOUNG
Clarkston News Staff Writer

At Clarkston High School, Jennifer O'Heren is involved in Blue and Gold and Interact clubs. Marie Powell is president of National Honor Society and Drama Club. Matt Plec plays a guitar and works part-time at the Clarkston Cafe. Doug Treder plays with school bands as well as with his own jazz band and a rock band, "The Bungalow Men."

What do these four CHS seniors have in common?

All four are outstanding honor roll students in Advanced Placement classes, and all four were informed the first of March that they had advanced from National Merit Semi-finalist status to finalists. They will know in April if they are included in the elite group of some 6,000 merit scholarship winners.

There are around 15,000 finalists nationwide vying for the National Merit Scholarships, worth about $23 million. They were selected from 50,000 semi-finalists.

The four CHS seniors qualified as semi-finalists by taking the PSAT/NMSQT test as juniors, along with nearly 1.2 million students from 19,000 high schools across the country.

Then the semi-finalists took another scholastic aptitude test and completed extensive applications before they were selected as finalists. They were also nominated by administrators and counselors at the high school.

"Every student who gets this far is very capable," said Bill Bonnell, a CHS counselor who worked with several of the merit finalists. "I think all four stand good chances (of winning a scholarship)."

Four finalists in one year is a higher than average number for CHS, but then, these four students are not average students.

Jennifer, who is the daughter of Jon and Judy O'Heren of Independence Township, is a member of NHS as well as Blue and Gold and Interact. She used to be on the swimming team at Grand Blanc High School before coming to CHS in her junior year.

She wants to attend G.M.I. (General Motors Institute) and study engineering, then pursue a masters degree in business.

Jennifer said she was surprised and happy to become a merit finalist. She has already received a $700 scholarship from the Junior Miss Pageant.

Marie is the daughter of Carolyn Cottick of Independence Township and Thomas Powell of Dryden Township.

She is number one in her class and has already earned a $250 Junior Miss scholarship, as well as $2,000 and $1,000 scholarships from the University of Michigan Engineering School and the Michigan Society of Professional Engineers respectively should she choose U of M.

She would also like to attend the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge and is still waiting for results of other scholarship contests.

In addition to NHS and Drama Club this year, Marie is involved with girls select ensemble, Just Say No Club, community relations committee, student leadership group and quiz bowl.

Marie aspires to be a nuclear or electrical engineer when she completes her education.

Matt, the son of Bob and Carol Plec of Independence Township, has attended CHS all four years. Before his senior year, he participated in Blue and Gold Club, but this year spends his spare time working at the Clarkston Cafe or practicing his guitar.

He plans to attend either Michigan State, the University of Arizona or the University of Southern California. He says he will study either aerospace or electrical engineering.

Matt has received the Presidential Scholarship from USC and another from MSU, should he choose either of those universities.

Doug, who is the son of Michael and Anna Treder of Independence Township, keeps busy with his music.

He is in symphonic band and jazz band at CHS, and he formed his own jazz band. He also plays with "The Bungalow Men," a local rock band. Matt plays both tenor sax and keyboard, but for competitions, he performs on tenor sax. He has won numerous awards in competition.

Doug says he will probably attend the University of Michigan, studying computer science or aerospace engineering. Scholarship money will play an important role in financing his college education, Doug says, and he is awaiting word on several scholarships at the moment.

He says he will continue with his music, too, perhaps working toward a minor in music.

Jennifer and Marie and Matt and Doug are four seniors with different interests pursuing different goals, but when you ask an administrator at the high school about them, the response is the same for all.

"They're great, upbeat kids," says Dr. Robert Burek, CHS principal. "We're tremendously proud of them. Not only are they outstanding in the classroom, but real leaders in extra curricular activities as well."

CLARKSTON HIGH SCHOOL National Merit Finalists (from left) Matt Plec, Doug Treder, Marie Powell and Jennifer O'Heren will know in April if they have won scholarships.

WARNING: The following article mentions and deals with several flags of the world. If you're not familiar with them, you may find it helpful to have some sort of reference ready before proceeding any further into this article. Try a world map, almanac, atlas, trip to the United Nations building, whatever your budget and convenience permits -- anything with flags on it -- for maximum enjoyment.

NOW, HERE IS THE REAL BEGINNING:

Imports, goods of foreign origin and influence are nothing new. But suddenly, national flags are used as trademarks for products.

Don't ask me why. Patriotism perhaps, or a try to identify with a particular place. For some reason, though, it doesn't seem right.

Why should the Union Jack that flies above the United Kingdom adorn Reebok running shoes all over the world? Does the flag of Switzerland by the Swatch watch company really remind of us of a fine swiss clock?

Does the Maple Leaf of Canada really belong on a Labatt's beer bottle? And how many people are really impressed by the sight of the Norwegian flag on a bottle of Neutrogena hand lotion?

(These are rhetorical questions, of course. You don't see any blanks in which to fill in the answer. Just think about it for a moment.)

The flags are everywhere! Perhaps our nation is under an international invasion we're unaware of. It makes sense. Take chalkboards at school, for instance. At one time, chalkboards were actually black. Eventually that changed, and now they're a dull green color.

It just so happens that around the same time of this transition, the flag of Libya was going under a change itself. The star and crescent design was dropped and replaced with what? A solid dull green. What a coincidence.

The American flag is usually hung in front of a classroom, along with the chalkboard. Students, it's easy to spot a Libyan in class. While the majority is pledging allegiance to the stars and stripes, someone's always gazing at the green rectangle next to it instead.

Poland and Indonesia are secret allies trying to reach us through Campbell's soup labels. We all know where that white-above-red-stripe design comes from. Indonesia does the same thing, only upside down, so not to be suspected of anything. Again, this hits the schools, too, whenever soup label collections come up. School children are the easiest to corrupt.

People generally consider Scandinavian countries to be rather neutral in world matters ... at least that's what they'd like us to think.

Actually, there's a conspiracy of Danes and Swedes behind every gift-wrapping booth. Notice the next time you have a gift professionally wrapped. Ignore the color of the wrapping paper and ribbon, remove any cards, flowers and doilies that may be placed on top, and you have one of those Scandinavian flags. The pattern is undeniably there.

Well, I'm certain by now many of you readers have been doing a little thinking yourselves and have been detecting international flags around you. A few of you, I suspect, have already asked yourselves where the Rising Sun of Japan fits into Mainstream America.

Yes, I agree, the Nissan logo and bad acne are distinct possibilities. Personally, however, I'm sold on Bactine. Can you think of any other reason an antiseptic from Elkhart, Ind., would glare that big red spot at us?

I don't mean to scare anybody. All in all, our foreign relations aren't too bad. This can't be the start of another world war, but it's a good idea to keep your guard up.

Pet of the Week

Balls of fluff

These two 10-week-old collie-mix puppies are fuzzy little balls of fluff in need of good homes.

Sable and Sargeant (you could rename them!) are both male puppies who have been fostered since they were four weeks old. They are very friendly and people oriented and would make great pets.

Sable and Sargeant can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The adoption fee is $55 for each puppy, which includes a neutering fee. The puppies have been wormed and are current on all their shots.

Microwave Plus

Ham the easy way Betty

Wagner

Do you plan to serve ham for Easter? Would you like to cook it in a jiffy so you have more time to hunt for Easter eggs?

The "Kenmore Microwave Cookbook" published by the Benjamin Co. offers these guidelines:

Ham, boneless, precooked	70 (roast) 5-7 minutes per pound	Turn over. 70 (roast) 5-7 minutes per pound	or 10	12x7-inch dish with microwaveproof roasting rack.
Center cut ham slice	1-1 1/2 pounds 70 (roast) 5 minutes per pound	Turn over. 70 (roast) 5-6 minutes per pound	or 10	12x7-inch baking dish.
Smoked ham shank	70 (roast) 4-5 minutes per pound	Turn over. 70 (roast) 4-5 minutes per pound	or 10	12x7-inch dish with microproof roasting rack.
Canned ham	3 pounds 70 (roast) 5-6 minutes per pound	70 (roast) 5-6 minutes per pound	or 10	12x7-inch dish with microproof roasting rack.
	5 pounds 70 (roast) 4-5 minutes per pound	Turn over. 70 (roast) 4-5 minutes per pound	or 10	12x7-inch dish with microproof roasting rack.

Before cooking, cover the ham with waxed paper to prevent oven splatters and to hold in the heat. You may use a temperature probe if you wish, but I prefer to use minutes per pound. If you would like to glaze the ham, spread the glaze on during the last 10 to 15 minutes.

Here are two delicious glazes that you might try this Easter day. Both are from "Microwaving Meats" by Barbara Methven, Publication Arts, Inc.

CRANBERRY GLAZE

3/4 cup apple juice
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 8-ounce can whole cranberry sauce
1/4 cup barbecue sauce

In a two-cup measure, blend cornstarch into apple juice. Stir in remaining ingredients. Microwave at high 4 to 6 minutes until cranberry sauce dissolves and glaze is slightly thickened, stirring once during cooking.

SAVORY APRICOT GLAZE

1 cup apricot preserves

1 8-ounce bottle Russian dressing
1 envelope onion gravy mix

Combine all ingredients in a 1-quart measure. Microwave at high 3-5 minutes or until jelly dissolves.

As fungus grows, so does list of awards for teen

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Naveen Chandra likely thinks about cars and girls like most 17-year-olds, but he also spends a great deal of time thinking about the shotgun fungus and how fast its spores grow.

Chandra, son of Clarkston pediatrician Shobha Chandra, recently earned honors in the nation's most prestigious science competition with his three-year fungus experiment.

He was one of four Michigan students and 300 students nationwide to be named to the Honors Group of the 48th annual Science Talent Search, sponsored by Westinghouse Electric Corporation.

Naveen's innovative experiment is set up downstairs in the family's Bloomfield Hills basement.

What looks like a reel-to-reel tape player sits atop a table. The tape player is part of a sensitive electronic apparatus Naveen has designed to measure how fast spores from the fungus grow.

Naveen's first experiment tested the fungus's response to wave lengths of blue light. He started the velocity study after two years, when he became "frustrated" and wanted to see what else he could do.

"I first saw a videotape about the shotgun fungus, and when I saw it, it seemed kinda' neat," Naveen said.

Contrary to the stereotype of science students who are reserved or undemonstrative, Naveen talks about himself and his work with openness and enthusiasm.

When asked what motivated him to stick with his experiment, he explained that it was pure curiosity.

"It's some kind of drive, I guess. My friends have changed their experiments each year, but I stuck with this one."

"When you specialize in one area, you really comprehend your subject matter," he said.

Naveen first started his experiment as a ninth-grader at Detroit Country Day School in Birmingham, where he has attended since kindergarten.

Now a senior, Chandra has captured first place in the Science and Engineering Fair at Cobo Hall three years in a row. In another contest, Chandra's paper was chosen from among 40 others, earning him an opportunity to speak at West Point, seat of the U.S. Military Academy in New York.

"It feels good to share what I know," Naveen said of his speaking honor. Naveen added that before his work, the last information gathered on the shotgun fungus was in 1964.

One of the most important benefits of being recognized in the science talent search is that all honors group members are recommended for admission and scholarship awards to the colleges and universities to which they have applied.

Naveen, who plans to study medicine, has applied to Harvard, Princeton, Yale, Johns Hopkins, the University of Michigan Inteflex program, the Northwestern University Honors Program in Medical Education and the Boston University pre-med program.

"It was like a class in itself," Naveen said about application requirements, which at many colleges requires essays and detailed letters of recommendation.

Naveen plans to continue his fungal experiment at college, "depending on the college load."

"I still have a lot to learn," Naveen said.

NATIONAL SCIENCE Contest honoree Naveen Chandra has developed a sensitive apparatus to measure the growth of fungal spores.

Clarkston Short Story Writing Contest winner

The Outlaw Mystique

By Donella Reese Vogel

I consider myself a serious thrasher. Sometimes, it's pretty hard to maintain the lifestyle in a village like Clarkston ... far away in miles and attitude from the ultimate in skateboard action which takes place in our great coastal state of Cali (immortalized in one of L.L. Cool J's more stylish raps). California is where probably all skaters (and I don't mean "ice" or "roller") would really like to be.

I mean, Clarkston is OK, I guess. My mom carries on about the distinctive historic architecture charmingly set along the serene beauty of the Mill Pond, but it looks like a bunch of old houses next to a creek to me.

Anyway, there are a few of us hardcore skaters who do our best to find skatable terrain in the village. One guy has a half-pipe built in his backyard right on Main Street. We go there after school to practice ramp skating, but a lot of times it's fun just to cruise the streets, ollie up the curbs and trying to avoid the old ladies and little kids.

One thing about skaters ... they look a little different than a lot of kids. They like to wear baggy pants in some pretty wild colors and patterns and T-shirts which often feature skulls and bones.

And take hair. Mine is short everywhere except for some long bangs to one side. My mom bleached the bangs platinum blond last summer. I had to put on a tight rubber cap, and she pulled the long strands of hair through holes in the cap. Then I had to sit for an hour while foamy chemical goop bleached out the bangs. She got quite a kick out of it. Quite a picture, she said.

Some skaters wear an earring, too. Once I told my dad that I wanted one, and he said I could get my ear pierced as soon as I graduate from Harvard. Very humorous.

A lot of adults don't tolerate the dedicated thrashers' somewhat radical looks or their skate-no-matter-what aggression. Many times, adults, especially store owners and cops, hassle skaters and chase them off property just because they are in the way or are making too much noise. They don't appreciate that every time we master a particular move, it really pumps up the old self-esteem.

Skating is an individual challenge and also a way of life. My mom says that skaters like to cultivate the mystique of being a little bit outside regular society, kind of like outlaws; but she has the boring habit of always analyzing everything to death. Skating simply gives me the most fun and satisfaction of anything I do.

The greatest feeling is to meet some of my hardcore buddies in the village on a Friday afternoon ...

school out, no homework and perfect freedom.

My parents never like me "cruising aimlessly with a gang" in Clarkston, but once in a while they soften up and let me go with the usual warnings about "not getting into trouble," etc., etc. I can't tell you how often I've heard that one. In fact, I DON'T hear it anymore.

One Friday last spring, I finally got the big go-ahead, and I took off down Main Street, pushing along on my stick, smelling the warm day. The red bud tree in front of the Cook's house that my mom always raves about was in full pink/purple bloom, and I had to admit it looked real good. I was already building up a light sweat along with heavy anticipation of some major skating sessions.

I met the other dudes in Rudy's parking lot, and we headed up to the Dairy Queen where there are some excellent parking blocks for rail-sliding. Everyone was in a great mood, laughing and ripping on each other just for fun.

Next stop on the circuit was an awesome set of stairs near the city hall building next to Depot Park. Stairs provide a skater the opportunity for stair-blasting (use your imagination) and also ollie up the stairs, which, I admit, does chip the edges of the steps.

It was pretty noisy, too. Well, wouldn't you know, some guy came out and flipped out, said he would call the cops. Major alert. We immediately dispersed in all directions with immense speed.

I managed to get lost fast down in Depot Park and ended up hiding out behind that crazy gazebo, sitting on my board, keeping quiet and listening for sirens. My shirt was wet, and my face was steaming. I didn't hear a thing, but I didn't dare to move for quite a while. I wondered where my friends went. So much for a perfect skating afternoon.

I must say I kind of liked being in the park by myself thinking how different it felt from the times when it was crowded with Villagers of all ages gathered to enjoy the summer concerts.

The grams and gramps would sit in folding chairs, the families would kick back on blankets; and the little dudes and dudettes would dance around to the music performed by a Dixieland band or a country band up in the gazebo. (They'll probably never feature rap music, let alone the Dead Kennedy's Greatest Hits.)

Everything was graying down, and the trees and bushes were starting to blacken into spooky shapes. I was ready to ease out when I heard laughing and some popping sounds.

Dark figures were moving toward one side of the gazebo. I saw specks of flame and some metallic reflections. I could figure it out. Rootbeer cans being opened ... (you can probably strike out the "root") ... Bics being flicked ... (either that or some very fat fireflies!) Then something scary. A whiff of gasoline drifted toward me.

I suddenly remembered The Clarkston News writing about vandals trying to deface the gazebo in Depot Park. This could be a little more serious than spray-painting dirty words.

Now where were those cops and sirens.
(See CONTEST, Page 42)

About the author

Donella Reese Vogel, 46, lives on Fawn Valley Drive, Independence Township, with her husband, Tony Vogel, and their son, Reese.

An artist by occupation, the short story was a new venture for Donella, she said.

"This is the first story I've ever written," she said. "It came over me. I just wanted to try."

She was surprised to win. "I'm just thrilled. It was a challenge I set for myself. ... I feel rewarded."

She got the idea for the story when she heard of the rules that the action must be set in Clarkston.

"I was trying to think of something that could get around town," she said, adding that a skateboarder did the trick. For the character, she was inspired by her son, Reese.

"I pretended to be my son, telling about my adventure," she said. "When he read the story, he liked it, so I guess it came out all right."

Reese, almost 16, has been skating for years, she said.

For those who need a glossary, a "thrasher" is another name for a skateboarding enthusiast. "Ollieing" is the term used when a skateboarder becomes airborne with the skateboard still sticking to his feet (jumping over something or going up stairs, for instance).

In addition to painting, Donella enjoys aerobics classes from Doreen Schwarze at the Deer Lake Racquet Club.

About the contest

Nine short stories were submitted to the Village Bookstore's Short Story Writing Contest, and all of them were interesting to read, according to the judges.

"We had so many good entries," said Georgene Sloan, owner of the Main Street, Clarkston, store that sponsored the contest.

"Many of the stories had merit. ... I was pleased with the quality," she said. "We hope that each of the entrants will continue to write and submit their work."

The stories were required to be set in the Clarkston area and were limited to 1,500 words.

Sloan plans to offer a similar writing contest next year, she said.

Friend to Friend

Should I let my daughter go to Daytona for spring break?

AWARE

Dear Friend to Friend:

My senior daughter wants to go to Daytona with five female friends for her senior trip. My son a couple years ago went to Colorado on a ski trip with four friends for his senior trip. Not only did he have a wonderful time, but we felt it was a good learning experience.

The boys learned about trip planning, car packing, making reservations, working on a budget, for rooms, car, food, lift tickets, etc. They came home with tan faces, wonderful stories and a few dollars left over.

But I have heard the Florida horror stories (especially Daytona). Does the good outweigh the bad as far as her proposed trip?

Looking for guidance,
A concerned parent

(Who does not want to squelch learning and independence but is worried about safety).

Dear Concerned Parent,

As the group is made up of a number of seniors, we are all looking forward to Spring Break (so are the members who are not seniors.)

Several of us are going places with our families, such as to California and Florida; and we are really looking forward to it. We agree with you that planning a trip like this is a very educational experience. Our concern is the place your daughter plans to go.

We have heard that the only reason people go to Daytona is to party. (By party, we mean drinking A LOT!).

We have heard the stories of fights breaking out and people end up in jail, friends participating in wet tee-shirt contests and taking chances that they normally wouldn't take.

A lot of kids say that just because they go there, those things won't necessarily happen to them, but you should hear the stories when they get back! We are surprised that more kids aren't seriously injured. The sad thing about it is that they come back and brag about their whole vacation being one big drunk.

There are a lot of other options available. Actually "kids" can party anywhere, but Daytona is so inviting.

If they plan a vacation around some other activity, such as skiing, the time is a little more structured, and the atmosphere is different.

Often times, kids use the reasoning that "I'm going to college next year anyway. You won't be able to watch me then."

We think that your response should be that college is a different atmosphere where goals are important, and there is another six months' maturity involved also.

Our final thought is that if you've had any problems with your child through 12th grade, why would you feel comfortable turning them loose in a totally wild environment with no adult supervision (remember they at least have to come home to you every night of the school year) like Daytona?

Dear Friend to Friend:

Do things seem a little depressing lately?

It seems like people are really tense lately; something that shouldn't bother people normally, it seems as though they are flying off the handle.

For example, a friend and I were chit-chatting, and I was teasing, and she started snapping at me. Another day in a class this guy was tying and untying my shoes, and normally I would just say, "Please don't do that," (maybe... "Knock it off") but I just felt like kicking him! What is going on?

Short rope

Dear Short Rope:

It is quite typical this time of year for people to be short-fused. The weather is dreary, and we are all awaiting spring -- same old routines need to be broken; and spring break is still a ways away.

What we need to do is become conscious of this and make an effort to be nice and "check" our short fuse -- you could try bringing spring in a little early by buying some daisies and putting them in your bedroom or on your kitchen table.

Try to break your routine (instead of fast-food restaurants, eat in the cafeteria). Bundle up and go for a walk outside.

Make sure you are exercising, getting enough sleep and eating correctly to help with your "short rope." Most important to keep in mind is that this should pass with the weather and to give it time.

Dear Friend to Friend:

This doesn't sound like much of a problem, but it bothers me. I met this guy, and we went out to dinner and had a really nice time.

The next time we played racquetball on Valentine's Day, and he brought me a really nice flower arrangement. Then, we went to dinner a couple of weeks later on a Saturday night, and he asked me out for the following Monday night. He again brought me a beautiful bouquet of flowers, not just a flower or two but an expensive bouquet. I feel uncomfortable receiving these expensive flowers, but I think it is really nice, and I love to receive flowers; but I hardly know him, and to receive these expensive flowers --, HELP!

Flower Child

Dear Flower Child:

The way we see it, you have two choices -- you can sit down with this guy and tell him how you feel about him. You can tell him that you really enjoy his company, but he has no obligation to buy you expensive things because you would just like a casual friendship.

You might want to consider this option if you feel at all like he might have ulterior motives behind these gifts. If this thought is totally out of the question -- go to the next choice!!

Sit back and enjoy the gifts and have fun. Maybe he's just the kind of guy that would like to make you happy.

Dear Friend to Friend:

This may sound trivial, but I have this friend who never takes anything seriously. When I'm upset or not feeling well, I try to tell him; but when I do, he makes a joke out of it.

This is really hurting my feelings. I tried to tell myself that I should just go along with his jokes and be happy, but that only makes me feel worse. Am I just being childish, or is my friend the one who's immature?

Not Sure

Dear Not Sure:

In a friendship when you depend on someone to listen to your feelings and they don't react exactly the way you want, your feelings are bound to be hurt. But you can't control their reactions, just as they can't control yours.

Different people view situations differently. Just because this friend doesn't respond to your needs, that doesn't mean he doesn't care -- he might just feel uncomfortable.

In this situation, maybe one of your other friends would be a better support system. Don't blow off this person because of this; just realize maybe he can offer you his humor and jokes when you feel a little more lighthearted.

This is a reason for why you need to try to have many friends -- because each is unique and can offer varieties of ways to enhance your life.

Friend to Friend is provided by a panel of Clarkston High School students working under AWARE, a community organization dedicated to action and education against substance abuse. Some of the questions are actual letters, while others are formulated by the panel from real-life problems. Letters may be addressed in care of The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main, Clarkston, MI 48016.

Business loans offered

Small-business owners have a chance to borrow money through a county development corporation.

The Oakland County Local Development Corporation (OCLDC), a private, non-profit organization, is granting loans ranging from $100,000 to $2,000,000 to owner occupied businesses, said Robert Olsen, a Clarkston business person chairman of the OCLDC.

The owner of the business puts down 10 percent of the borrowed amount, and a bank and the OCLDC each finances half.

The owner obtains the loan at a 20-year fixed rate of interest.

For more information call Olsen at 625-0000.

Contest winner

I could think of only one way to get their attention fast.

I tucked my board into an awkward crouch and blended slowly into the shadowy trees behind me. Luckily, skaters favor black T-shirts quite a bit.

I ran up Depot Road, plunked my board onto Main Street and skated like a maniac straight to the Clarkston Cafe. I knew that Friday night was a popular evening there for many out-of-towners looking for a tasty meal.

Sure enough ... a Birmingham-type lady in her fur coat (Hey, lady ... it's spring!) was just stepping toward the door. A smooth move by the Skater from Hell, skull and crossbones gleaming off the T-shirt, knocked that poor lady right on her raccoon!

Her husband missed the grab for my arm. I heard screaming and threats while I oiled down the curb and into the street. A little bumper tag amidst the traffic and then I heard the siren at last, not quite masked by the honking horns.

Iskated back toward Depot Road slowly enough to make sure the oncoming squad car had a glimpse of me before I laid on the power down toward the park.

I suddenly swerved right ... into the alley leading toward the back of Rudy's. I just missed being caught in the beam of headlights, which instead illuminated several figures running wildly from the park directly ahead of the police car.

I could hear car doors slamming and Voices of Authority. I hoped Our Men in Blue had interrupted the Gazebo Terrorists before they had a chance to put their Bics into action. I hoped Our Men in Blue would forget about chasing the lone renegade skater.

Meanwhile, I raced slickly around the corner, rustling up the pigeon night shift next to Rudy's Market, ... and there was faithful Dad waiting to pick me up.

Yeah, Dad. I had a rad time. Well, yes, I did bump into a lady, but ... I know, I know ... that's the reason so many towns want to ban street-skating, but ...

Well, I didn't tell him the whole story.

I couldn't totally destroy that skaters' "outlaw mystique."

Middle school teacher of year

(MIDDLE SCHOOL, from Page 29)

She has lived in Clarkston for 20 years, and her two children went through Clarkston schools.

"I really do love teaching," Barb says. "I consider it not just a vocation, but an avocation."

She instills in her students a desire to learn, and many surprise their parents by outguessing contestants on the television show Jeopardy with their knowledge.

Teaching is more like a hobby, she says, something she thinks about all the time.

She also loves traveling and the theater and recently introduced a theater unit to her class.

"When I travel, I always think about things I can bring back to inspire the class," she says. "I try to do everything I can to make the classroom live and be vibrant."

She is also a firm believer in connecting the old world and the new world so that it is relevant when her students study ancient civilization.

"It is important to make connections so kids understand," she says.

A special part of teaching for Barb is turning a child around.

"It's my greatest joy," she says, "To see their faces when they turn (into children who start to understand and enjoy learning). Now that is affective education."

He belongs to no less than 11 committees and clubs and lists about a dozen hobbies.

But Santavicca says his greatest satisfaction comes from the accomplishments of his students.

"The kids come back to talk. It's good to see them graduate and making it in the world," he said.

Santavicca proudly displays a list of some of his former students.

Kevin Bickerstaff, transportation supervisor of Clarkston Schools; John Morgan, Morgan's Service in Clarkston; Mike Wright, school bus technician at Clarkston Schools, and Jeff Brantley, service manager at Owen Chevrolet in Ortonville.

"One of my students is enrolled in the automotive service education programs," Santavicca added.

The program, known as ASEP, allows students to attend community college classes under the tutelage of a sponsoring automotive dealer. The student works at the dealership throughout the program.

"If you want to go into teaching, you have to really love it," Santavicca said. "If you're not, the kids know it."

"You're either out there for them or not," Santavicca added.
