Independence pilot, son, survive crash

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

"It was a very windy, very busy day," remembers Gary Stonerock.

His wrist is in a sling; the area around his eye is a purplish color, but he is happy and alive to tell about the emergency crash landing that by all accounts should have taken his life.

Stonerock, former Independence Township supervisor, is an aerial surveyor, and he and his son Mike, 26, were finishing up the last photo assignment of the season Monday, May 1.

They left Pontiac at noon, and after about three hours they began to circle Salem.

"I had put down the wheels and feathered the props when I realized I was not going to make it."

Over the radio, they asked Detroit-Metro air-traffic controllers for permission to climb to 9,000 feet.

"The engine sputtered," Stonerock recalls. "The gas in the main tanks was running low."

"My son, Mike, said, 'Dad switch over (to the auxiliary tanks).' But the auxiliary tanks were empty." After just a moment or two, the plane was completely without power.

Stonerock immediately declared May Day, which ironically happened to be the date on the calendar; but his plea was no joke.

Detroit Metro directed him to the Spencer airport about 10 miles away.

"It was too far away, which is too bad because Salem airport was right underneath me. It had been decommissioned; it was not a legal airport."

STONEROCK'S 30 years of flying experience were used in steering the plane between two large trees, which helps to slow it down and sheer off the plane's gas tanks.

Stonerock and his son were above Salem on a aerial photo assignment when they ran out of gasoline and piloted a crash landing on Monday, May 1.

13 laid off in Clarkston schools

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

On the recommendation of school administrators, the Clarkston Board of Education has approved the layoff of 13 non-instructional staff members.

The unanimous vote May 8 follows a move in April to cut 30 teachers and two administrators from the school staff.

In a letter to the board, Superintendent Gary Haner said the reductions were necessary for the following reasons: the overall financial posture of the district; program cuts to be made in the 1989-1990 school year; anticipated reductions in state aid funding; and anticipated loss of revenue created by the Headlee Amendment.

The dates of the layoffs varied, but all were to take place by June 30.

The reductions include: Secretary Kathy Garwood, Clerk Teresa Solwold, Special Education Paraprofessionals Joyce Lockwood and Linda Betz, Media Paraprofessional Karen Pidruzny, General Custodians James Farnsworth and Carl Blehm, Bus Driver Alaina Hawley, Lunch Room Supervisors Donna Jones, Linda Chew, Linda Hamilton and Joe Ann Veltigian and Mechanics Helper Jeffrey Hoffman.

If voters approve a reversal of the Headlee rollback in the June 12 election, some of the staff could be recalled, according to school board officials.

According to the Headlee Amendment, the millage rate is automatically rolled back whenever assessed property values increase at a higher rate than the rate of inflation. Voters can overturn the automatic rollback.

Cityhood has pros and cons

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Residents encouraged the Clarkston Village Council to explain the negatives of cityhood as well as the positives during a public hearing Monday, May 8.

The 11-page synopsis village residents recently received explaining the council's point of view didn't answer enough questions, said a Waldon Road resident, one of about 20 who showed up for the informational meeting.

"In every endeavor there are pluses and minuses," said Dr. Joseph Helpert of Waldon Road. "What are the minuses? Could the council address some negatives?"

How the new city, if Clarkston becomes a city, would provide fire and police protection remains an important issue for residents.

"Fire departments do cost a lot of money," said (See RESIDENTS, next page)

Holman resigns

Independence Township Clerk Richard Holman has resigned his position effective May 31.

Holman, who has served as township clerk for almost six years, is leaving township government to accept a sales position with New World Systems, a Troy computer software company.

Holman said he and his wife, Becky, will keep their home in Independence Township.

"I have enjoyed the challenges of the clerk position," Holman said May 9, the day his resignation became official.

"The good days far outweighed the bad. The governmental software field has been an interest of mine, and will better compensate me for my time and effort," Holman added.

In his new position, Holman will sell the governmental software to cities, villages and townships throughout Metro-Detroit and Lansing.

"I want to express my appreciation to residents, many of whom I won't have a chance to see before I go. I appreciate the opportunity to serve them," Holman said.

Supervisor Frank Ronk said he accepted Holman's (See CLERK, next page)

Residents request more information on cityhood

Harold Goyette of Main Street. "How are you going to handle fire and police (protection)? It should be looked into further."

Also, Goyette agreed with Helpert that the village's letter showed only the positive aspects of cityhood. Since the letter came from the village it should show both sides, he said.

The synopsis condensed about 250 pages of information that the village council filed with the State Boundary Commission. Since the packet answered questions Independence Township's board had, it's slanted toward approval of cityhood, said Trustee William Basinger.

"We had to respond to the township's negative comments," the trustee said.

Adding that the village council has nothing to hide, Basinger said copies of the township's argument against cityhood for Clarkston are available at village hall.

Residents also were concerned about taxes.

Karen Sanderson of Church Street has seen her assessments increase 106 percent in two years and wondered how cityhood would affect her.

"Cityhood cannot protect you from assessment increases," said Basinger. "But it can make it more fair."

If it became a city, Clarkston would have its own assessor and its own board of review. Currently, the township provides those services.

As soon as Basinger finished his explanation, Milford Mason stood to disagree.

"The implication is that if you become a city, assessing will be more in the village's control," Mason said. "It think that's a misnomer. I'm here to say that won't happen."

He also was curious as to the mood of the village council concerning an election on cityhood should the boundary commission approve of it.

If 18 village residents sign a petition asking for it, an election on the issue will be scheduled.

Residents also will have a chance to vote on the issue again when a charter is drafted.

"Something this important should be decided by the voters," said Basinger. "We (the seven village council members) will sign the petition."

A decision on approval or denial of cityhood from the boundary commission remains several months away, the trustee said.

Open door meetings

Superintendent Gary Haner has announced the first semi-annual community "Open Door" meetings for the Clarkston Community School District, set for Monday, May 15, at Clarkston Junior High School, off Waldon Road, Independence Township.

The meetings are designed to answer questions from the community about any topic of concern.

There is no agenda or presentation, and Mr. Haner says no concern is too large or small. He added that the meetings are part of a plan to expand district communication and are not intended as a presentation about the upcoming June election.

As the meetings are held at least once each semester, the location will change regularly. Each meeting will be preceded by a tour of the host building.

The schedule for Monday, May 15, meetings include:

- 9:30 a.m. Tour of Building
- 10 a.m. Open Door Meeting
- 1:30 p.m. Tour of Building
- 2 p.m. Open Door Meeting
- 7:30 p.m. Tour of Building
- 8 p.m. Open Door Meeting

For those who are unable to attend one of these meetings, a follow up news article will be published which summarizes the major points of discussion from these three meetings.

resignation with a degree of sadness.

"I'll miss Rick," Ronk said. "He does a super job. An outstanding job."

Ronk added that plans are already underway to replace Holman in the clerk position.

"I expect that I will have an appointment by next Tuesday's board meeting," Ronk said, adding that any other comment on Holman's replacement would be premature.

The clerk appointee would serve the three years remaining in the current term; he or she would be required to win an election to stay in the position beyond that time.

CROP walk for hunger helps

Hunger exists in Clarkston area, says minister

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

CROP Walk is in its third year as a fund-raising venture for Clarkston area churches involved in walking against hunger.

The Rev. Bill Schram, pastor for Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church, is in his third year as treasurer for the Independence Township Ministerial Association.

It is his job to pay the bills for the hungry in the Clarkston area.

The funds raised by CROP are to feed the world's hungry and provide famine relief, but 25 percent of funds raised will be returned to the Clarkston community to feed those who are in need in the area.

The idea has been "something various churches could work together on," said Schram, adding that it was a way "to share common beliefs."

"CROP gives Clarkston residents an opportunity to share what they have," he said.

Even the Clarkston area will have residents in need of financial help for food or possibly gasoline. CROP is "more needed in Clarkston than people think," Schram said.

Most of the need is short term: illness, accident, loss of job, or divorce, he said.

Residents eligible for funds are those who are financially strapped and who live within the churches' boundaries -- an area much like the boundaries set by the Clarkston school district.

Those determined to be eligible can redeem vouchers at designated food stores.

Schram has enjoyed being the treasurer for the past three years, he said.

"I like being part of it. The most tedious part is endorsing the checks," he said.

The amount of available money for this year depends on the amount of pledges walkers raise, and $10,000 is the targeted amount for this year's fund drive.

Schram hopes lots will be involved.

"Get a pledge sheet and walk and be open to pledge when asked," he said. "It's a way to do something good spiritually."

For information, contact one of the following participating churches: Sashabaw Presbyterian, Clarkston United Methodist, St. Daniel, Calvary Evangelical Lutheran, North Oaks Community, Drayton Heights Free Methodist, Church of the Resurrection, and First Church of God.

Walk for hunger

Walkers planning to participate in the CROP Walk Sunday, May 21, will begin their 10K route at the Clarkston United Methodist Church, 6600 Waldon Road.

Registration is set for 1:30 p.m. before the walk begins at 2 p.m. Persons of all ages are encouraged to walk.

Sponsors will pay for each kilometer walked. Pledge cards can be picked up at local Clarkston area churches sponsoring CROP.

For more information, call Steve and Kaylynn Potter, chairpersons of the event, at 623-2673.

OUTSIDE of work and volunteer activities, the Rev. Bill Schram likes to spend time with his family, including his 4-year-old daughter, Katie.

School bond to cover construction, not operation

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston Board of Education has made it official -- residents will be asked to vote on a $68.8 million plan to build and improve district schools in the June 12 election.

Last month the board voted 6-0 to send details of the improvements to the state board of education for approval; with that accomplished, members voted unanimously May 8 to put the improvement package before the voters in the June 12 election.

The resolution generated little discussion from board members but drew response from one member of the audience who questioned the size of the bond proposal.

The $68.8 million bond issue would be levied over 29 years and would be spent on the following improvements:

- creating a new high school,
- remodeling Clarkston High School and Sashabaw Junior High for use as middle schools,
- creating a new elementary school,
- adding to existing elementary schools,
- and creating outdoor equipment and facilities.

The above improvements include the furnishing and equipping of the facility; additional money would be needed to actually operate the improved structures.

In reading the resolution to the board, Director of Business Services William Jackson added that the improved facilities would have usefulness of at least 40 years.

During a public comment section after the vote, one resident asked board members about the size of the bond proposal.

Seventy-million dollars. That's an awful lot of money for this district," said Clarkston resident Jeffrey Huber.

"Why not take it slowly; (residents) are not ready for such a huge leap," he said.

"I want to see a breakdown of where the (1988) millage money went to and where the bond money is going. Have alternatives been discussed?"

In answering, board President Janet Thomas said the board's business manager would be glad to illustrate where the millage money was spent.

She added that the bond issue has been debated for four years and would likely not satisfy everyone.

"It's been a long process to come up with what's being proposed," Thomas said. "Options have been discussed; it's been a joint study between citizens, administrators and the board."

Thomas said there was a need for every improvement included in the bond issue, and isolating one improvement would not be as cost effective as including all improvements at once.

Completing just the high school would require five mills, while the entire package require just 5 1/2 mills, according to board members.

The maximum mills which would be levied under the bond issue would be 7.68, based on conservative estimates of projected State Equalized Value (SEV) increases.

By law, the district can only levy the number of mills necessary to retire the debt, so if the SEV goes up more than conservatively projected, the levy would be reduced below the 7.68 mills.

One mill is $1 for every $1,000 assessed property valuation. To the owner of a $100,000 home with an SEV of $50,000 the cost would be approximately $380 a year in the years when the millage was that high, but for at least half of the 29-year debt, the millage would be less than 7.68. For instance, the last year of the debt, it would be .85 mill, or about $40 for the same homeowner.

The improvement proposals were drafted by the architectural firm Greiner, Inc., after representatives visited schools, met with staff and presented options based on North Central Accreditation standards.

Mother's Day

Mothers around the nation should appreciate the contributions of Anna M. Jarvis. Without Jarvis' inspiration, Mother's Day, which is celebrated May 14 this year, might never have existed.

As it happened, Jarvis first arranged for a special mother's service in her Grafton, W. Va., church on May 10, 1908. The service was in honor of her late mother.

A simultaneous service was held in what had been her mother's Philadelphia church. Although never a mother herself, Jarvis believed that sons and daughters should pay tribute to their mothers at least once a year. The mother's services spread to more churches the following year.

In 1912, a Mother's Day International Association was founded to encourage greater observance of a special day. This led the Congress in 1914 to designate the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day.

In the same year, President Woodrow Wilson issued a proclamation urging people to display the American flag on that day as "a public expression of our love and reverence for the mothers of the country."

Five to receive Clarkston Community Awards

Five outstanding Clarkston area citizens or organizations have been chosen to receive the Fourth Annual Community awards.

The awards are granted in the categories of citizen, property beautification, volunteer, business person and historic preservation.

The winners will be honored at a breakfast at the Spring Lake Country Club 7:30 a.m. Wednesday, May 24.

Tickets are $12 per person or $100 for a table of 10 and are available at Independence Township offices, Village of Clarkston offices or area National Bank of Detroit offices.

Award recipients and the category in which they are honored are:

Harold A. Goyette, Citizen: Goyette, the owner of Goyette Funeral Home, Main St., Clarkston, has been in business for 32 years and is a member of Rotary Club and the American Legion Campbell-Richmond Post No. 63.

He works on Goodfellow drives as well as numerous other community services. His friendly personality, dependability and community service make him a model citizen.

Counting on their math skills to win

During the 22nd annual Math Field Day at the University of Michigan, Flint, five Clarkston High School students pitted their mathematical skills against students from several surrounding counties.

The contest, which took place on March 1, involved both individual and team events.

Meredith Higdon gave two presentations, one on hyperbolic geometry and another on 16th century mathematics in a "Chalk Talk Derby." Marie Powell and Becky Kar pooled their resources in a "Leapfrog Turnabout" session, and Matt Cook and Stacey Secatch each competed in separate "Mad Hatter Marathons."

The five students worked together as a team to

The Clarkston Farm and Garden Club, Property Beautification: The club was selected for its continued efforts and hard work for beautification projects in the Clarkston area.

The Clarkston Farm and Garden Club members maintain the flower beds on Main street in the Village of Clarkston as well as the Independence Township Library.

The dedicated group of area women spends many hours in various activities that enhance the beauty of the Clarkston area.

Steve Secatch, Volunteer: Secatch has worked long and hard hours for Clarkston schools, volunteering time and effort to help students and sports programs. In memory of his late son, Steve, Secatch has spent much effort in improving the weight room at the High School. Secatch also serves on the Independence Township Planning Commission.

Bruce Mercado, Business Person: Mercado, a dentist, has devoted many hours in the development of the new Chamber of Commerce.

He has been active in the community, is a charter member of the Optimist Club and is also a member of the Independence Township Planning Commission.

compete in the "Team Essay," the "Hare's Huddle," and the "Rapid Rabbit Relays."

CHS placed third in their division of 11 schools, with Detroit Country Day School and Southfield Lathrup placing first and second. Overall, the team ranked sixth out of the 33 schools competing.

Meredith Higdon received an honorable mention for her "Chalk Talk" presentations.

The five students were honored at the April 10 Clarkston Board of Education meeting. They were introduced to the board by Jan Modest, chairperson of the mathematics department at CHS, who congratulated them on their achievement and thanked them for giving CHS another reason to be proud of its students.

Jon Abbott, Historic Preservation: Abbott is responsible for the preservation of the Boothby House by moving it from the corner of White Lake Road and Dixie Highway to Main Street in the Village of Clarkston. The home is being restored in the Village's historic district and is a beautiful addition to the Clarkston area.

School bond awarded to Oxford Bank

Oxford Bank was the low bidder on a $415,000 bond for the Clarkston school district's new in-house computer system.

Bids from several banks, including National Bank of Detroit and Michigan National Bank, were received at 3:30 p.m. Monday, April 24, and the winning bid was accepted by the board of education at a special meeting that evening.

The good news from William Jackson, director of business services, was that the rate received was the lowest available in the state for school bonds on that date.

Oxford Bank's bid was at 7.0042 net interest. "It was a good sale and an excellent rate," Jackson said.

The in-house computer system for Clarkston schools was approved earlier this spring by the board. The contract is with International Business Machines/Computer Management Technology.

When the contract was approved, Jackson estimated that the in-house system could save the district between $175,000 and $450,000 over the cost of using the computer services of Oakland Schools, just during the five-year payoff on the contract. Savings would increase after that time.

Pilot runs out of gas, survives crash landing

so I progressed on." The plane was now just gliding, dropping 600-800 feet a minute, Stonerock says.

He remembers telling his son how to prepare for the inevitable crash landing as he prepared the plane.

"You can see a grass field; it's a little country airport. As you approach, the sink rates indicate where you're going to land," Stonerock explains.

"I had put down the wheels and feathered the props when I realized I was not going to make it."

The plane was sinking so fast that it was headed for a spot about 1,500 feet short of the field, a distance of about 1/4 mile.

"I said over the radio, 'We will not make it.' That was my last transmission. After that I did it by the book."

Stonerock called upon his 30 years of flying experience and remembered to head for a small opening in the woods. He had about ten seconds before impact.

"I veered right and picked the two biggest trees I could see. I put the plane right between them."

As the plane hit the trees, the wings sheered off, and the plane split in two. It came to a stop in thick overgrowth.

"We were just sitting there. The windshield wasn't broken, and I asked Mike if he was OK, and he said yes. We thanked God. That was the first thing we did."

Stonerock explains that landing between two trees is supposed to dissipate speed and sheer off the plane's gas tanks.

The plane, lying in a tangle of trees, was predictably destroyed. The Stonerocks now speculate that the thick cord of radio cabling winding around the wreckage was what actually saved their lives.

Stonerock suffered a broken cheekbone, a chipped wrist and a fractured finger from gripping the microphone so hard. Mike suffered just scratches.

"Detroit Metro might have suspected I was under a great deal of pressure because I kept in touch," Stonerock says wryly. "But I never cursed into the mike."

He recalls never doubting he would live through the crash and in fact remembers his last thought being that they were going to make it. Mike prayed the whole way down.

"There's just so much you can do," Stonerock says. "It's said that if you can walk away from a landing it's a good one. When I look at that plane, it looks like a bad one."

"If anything had not happened as it did, we wouldn't have been alive," he adds.

When asked how the plane could have run out of gas, Stonerock says that he's been thinking about the question for a long time.

"You get to be a creature of habit when you've been flying for 30 years," he says slowly. "There was a break in my routine."

Stonerock explains that he always "tops off his plane," or fills it up with gas after each flight, whether the tank is empty or close to full.

A few days before the crash, Stonerock had flown to Minneapolis and had noticed a few problems with his instruments, which are used to indicate direction.

He left the plane with his mechanic and on an unusually clear, sunny day asked the mechanic if the plane was ready to fly.

"I had about 2 1/2 hours of fuel in the main tank, and at no time did I or Mike or the mechanic ever notice that the auxiliaries were empty," Stonerock says.

"How does anything stupid happen?" he adds, shrugging.

"We must have circled Pontiac airport five times," he says.

"You can say if, if, if all you life."

Stonerock blames himself for the error but also finds fault with a portion of Federal Aviation Association policy.

Although a "black box" is used to determine what happened in the crash, Stonerock criticizes the lack of any device used to locate a plane once it goes down.

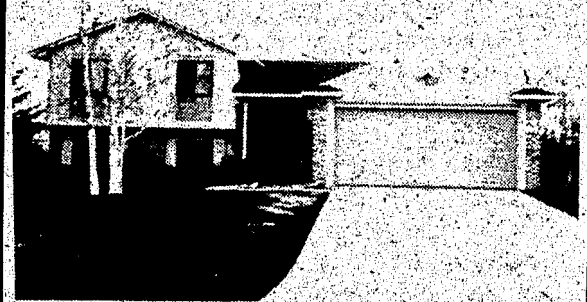

"It took (rescue workers) 45 minutes to find us. If we were bleeding, we would have died in that time. What if there was a fire?" Stonerock asks.

After telling the story and showing pictures of his wrecked plane, Stonerock shakes his head and declares his survival a miracle, an act of God.

He shares his favorite verse, one he has repeated several times since that day:

In all of life, the eyes of the Lord run to and fro throughout the whole earth to show himself strong to them whose heart is perfect to him.

Dusk

Julie Campe

Silently I waited, out of breath. I had a good spot on the Crigers' front hill, and I lay panting beneath the Climbing Tree, hidden by the bushes thick with leaves and thorns at the end of summer.

The air was turning cool, and dusk was enveloping the day. Wearing overalls, I lay on the grass, inhaling the smells of a rich, summer earth and scratching mosquito bites.

Ronny began rustling around further down the hill, and then I saw Dusty's white tail in the bushes by the house, and soon Ronny saw it, too. He crept around and saw that it was Cindy who the dog was following.

He hooted and took off to kick the can. Cindy, running, too, yelled at Dusty. As Ronny rounded the corner, he saw Steve already headed for the can.

"No!" he yelled, but Steve kicked it, and the dented Maxwell House can flew across the lawn.

Cindy and Steve laughed and ran to hide again.

The light was fading quickly, but our parents did not call us to come in. It was a Friday, one of the last before school began.

Ronny was retrieving the can. I had plenty of time. I lay down again and watched the pattern of the branches against the darkening blue sky. Nearly all the gold had vanished from the west of the sky, and stars were showing in the east.

"Psst," I heard.

I looked up, and through the branches I could barely make out Cindy crouching down the hill by the rock pile.

She motioned for me to join her. Carefully, I crawled through the bushes. I pretended I was an Indian and that I made no noise, but two birds squawked and flew from the bushes, and my daydream was shattered. I was not quiet enough to be an Indian, I realized.

So I crashed my way through the rest of the bushes and flopped next to Cindy.

She laughed at my hair, tangled with twigs and leaves. Still hiding, we spied on Ronny, who was searching for Steve and Andy on the other side of the yard. We were safe.

We sat on the ground, our backs to the rocks, and we whispered.

She told me that she had visited her Grandma Siple that day and that on Saturday she would be visiting her Grandma Criger. Maybe next weekend I could go with her to her Grandma Siple's, she said.

"She'll fix us hot water with just a few bits of tea leaves, and we can have graham crackers," she said. "We can play the organ, too."

Just then, we saw Andy scuttle toward us in the darkness.

Cindy, who was always nice to him even though he was little and a slow poke, made a spot for him beside her.

"You must have had a good hiding spot because nobody found you," she told him, and he glowed under her praise.

I did not groan at her attitude this time. She could afford to be nice to him because he was not her little brother, but even I felt like being nice to him in the dark of a late summer night.

We heard a door slam and saw Ronny and Steve outlined by the light in the house.

Cindy and I immediately jumped up.

"Hey, you guys! Why didn't you tell us you were quitting? You didn't yell, 'Olly, olly, unkin free.'"

They just laughed and ignored us. But we didn't care. We sat back down and chattered and watched bats darting across the sky.

Letters to the Editor

Honesty difficult but necessary

It has taken me a long time to write this letter and even though I work in the school system and care a lot about many people who will not be pleased with it, I must do it. We must always be willing to risk for the right reasons.

First, it is hard for me to believe you have printed in your paper the damaging letters attacking professional educators in this community.

Those without signatures gain no respect from me. Many of these letters give false impressions about folks such as Dr. Burek and other educational leaders.

The decision to transfer an administrator is an extremely difficult one, especially with someone who for so many years has done so many fine things. She has been a friend to many in this community including myself.

This is what makes it so hard for us not to be angry. Being angry and loyal often keeps us from seeing the truth. There has not been a witch hunt as many people have been led to believe. This has not been a cold manipulation.

This move should also not be used as an excuse for people to turn down what this community needs, the Headlee rollback.

Yes, it should have been explained that until we go out of formula as a district, we will probably need to continually override Headlee.

I know this community cares about kids, and I expect that as difficult as it is to continually bite the tax bullet, I believe you will know that this again is essential to keep the quality of classroom and auxiliary staff we now have.

It was so exciting last September to start school and see the many super new staff in our district.

The pain and waste of educators having to continually fight for survival is tragic. The hours it takes to develop lay-off lists and two budget plans is absolutely crazy. Tying this personnel decision to over 5,700+ kids' needs is an awful price to pay.

Much of the anger I have felt from staff at the high school still stems way back to the death of a homegrown administrator, John Kirchgesner. His warm style and popularity with staff made it real tough to replace him.

When the board brought in an outsider, some early lines of nonacceptance were drawn. It has been very difficult, but now with no local administrators on the high school staff, there is more anger and distrust among some staff.

When there is administrative talent in the district, it should be nurtured and developed. For staff who have worked many years in the system, it is one of the rewards to be earned.

The school board needs to look at the facts and together with the administration needs to unite behind a decision based on accurate information.

To those who so adamantly disagree with the decision that was made, I hope you are sure you have gathered all the information necessary to make an informed decision; that definitely means hearing all sides and being open to hearing things objectively.

An obligation of true friendship is to be able to be honest with one another. Sometimes it is easier not to be, but it is never right.

I believe there was merit in the decision made, and I hope all parties will remember that in the end we are here to serve the students. There was not merit in the way the decision has been handled; Jan deserved respect for her many years of fine work.

I ask my colleagues to end the divisive campaign that has begun. This should have been an in-house campaign with all issue and sides looked at honestly; instead it truly has turned into an out house.

A variety of thoughts this week.

If there was ever proof that people can afford to pay more taxes, state lotteries should prove it. What the minds in Lansing, etc. should do is program their computers to know who has so much money they can afford to gamble on more than million-to-one shots, and tax 'em. You're right, I don't buy many. $9,355,700,000 is spent by Americans on state lottery tickets.

Daughter Susan and hubby Tim gave me some tapes of old radio shows for Christmas. I love 'em. Will Rogers, who's on one of the tapes, wasn't one of the programs Dad and Mom selected for listening, and I can't get into him. Note: Dad and Mom selected their programs and we kids listened. Anyway, Fibber Magee and Molly was a regular at our house. Here's a quote from Molly on Fibber's musical abilities: "You couldn't stay in pitch shinnying up a pine tree."

When we were driving in Exxon territory I told myself to boycott their gasoline stations. I know the public will pay for all expenses Exxon has for doing such a lousy job cleaning up the Texas oil spill, but I wanted my little protest. Know what happened? When I saw empty on the gas gauge the next three stations were Exxon. Ah, well, so much for protesting.

Had a nice chat with Marie Hiatt, an Oxford senior who had recently returned from teenagers' break hangout, Daytona, Florida. She passed along two bits of advice for future Florida goers... Get a room for two, not six, and avoid guys who wear boa constrictors around their necks.

Want a quick fix for stress? Squeeze your thumb and finger together hard for two seconds, take a deep breath and hold it for a fraction of a second, then release the fingers and exhale slowly but quietly. Incidentally, one of the symptoms of stress is becoming accident prone. My, there's a lot of stress in the world.

Among the things I've said I'd never do are: wear seat belts, eat zucchini, and lock our doors. I do them all the time now.

Spring brings out the worst in some writers. Get this one about April I saw in a seniors magazine... "April dances across the land, tossing diamonds of rain on the awakening soil. New grass brushes green on the hillsides and little wayward flowers trespass the neighbor's yard." I wonder if these wayward flowers are dandelions, and if they are they are not just in my neighbor's yard.

This from the Dick E. Bird News of Acme, Mich. about hummingbird flight schedules for the spring of 1989. "May 1st: Many males have already made it to beautiful southern Canada. The girls are expected in about 2 weeks. They get to talkin' and the next thing you know they're 3 states behind."

I've heard the trouble with the stock market is that when you are rich it is on paper and when you're broke it's in cash.

A definition for closing: Consultation: a medical term meaning "share the wealth."

Editorial

We approved Headlee, let's adhere to it

State law mandates school board elections the second Monday in June. This year that's June 12. One would think state law also mandates schools to put a proposal on the ballot to override the Headlee amendment . . . not adhere to the state constitution.

We recognize that the amendment, passed in 1978, permits school boards to ask citizens to disregard Headlee. Therefore, it is legal.

However, it makes our nerves twing when school boards ask that our state constitution be altered. They are saying, "Oh, yeah, we know it's the law, but in this case the law also gives us an out, so let's go for it."

The amendment permits collection of additional taxes for all new construction and a portion of the increase in assessments. That portion is determined by the consumer price index. The index this year is 4.2 percent.

School administrators watch growth like hawks after mice. They know how much they will get from new construction, and budget it. They know, or have a very educated guess, how much assessments are going to rise. And, they pretty much know what the consumer price index is going to be. After all, it's their business (budget).

Through their contacts in Lansing and their lobbyists, school administrators also know about what to expect in state aid. With these figures budgets are made up and presented to the board and public.

That's the way it's suppose to work.

From our viewpoint all is fine until it gets to the increase in assessments, state equalized value, SEV. School administrators and boards don't seem to recognize that Headlee does not give them all the SEV. They refuse to recognize the purpose of the law, but do recognize the override clause.

So, along in April or May each year schools ask voters to give them money the constitution didn't allow them in the first place.

Administrators threaten cuts if Headlee is not overridden.

The 'cuts' should have been made when the budget was prepared.

This money, the difference between the 4.2 index figure and SEV, was not the schools to begin with. It should never appear in a budget. If boards want the override it should be to bring additional money into the district coffers.

By the way, school districts are not the only units of government affected by Headlee. All governments, townships, villages, libraries, etc. which rely on property taxes for revenue are included. How often do townships, villages and libraries ask for the rollback?

Michigan's governor and the state legislature are said to be not doing well for schools. We believe schools are not doing well by asking for money not allowed them by the intent of the amendment to our constitution. JAS

The Roads We Travel

No good alternative Brent Bair

There is a social phenomena that occurs these days whenever a perceived undesirable public or private project is proposed in a community or neighborhood.

Recent such projects have included prison sites, dump sites and even a recycling center. The phenomena is the reaction to these proposals, and I refer to this reaction as "NIMBY" (Not In My Back Yard!).

The expressed preference is to place the unwanted facility some place else. In other words, put it in somebody else's back yard.

This reaction also occurs with some proposed road improvement projects, and there is an interesting case study going on it Rochester Hills right now.

When the Oakland Technology Park was first proposed and the road agencies developed projections as to which roads would eventually have to be widened to provide the capacity to meet future traffic volumes, one of the roads identified was Adams Road in western Rochester Hills.

Just as soon as a map was released showing Adams as one of the roads that might have to be widened in the future, the residents along and near Adams Road reacted.

They voiced strong opposition to any widening and suggested that a road in Auburn Hills be widened instead.

They refused to recognize that even at that time, long before any work had begun on the Tech Park, Adams Road was already carrying in excess of 16,000 vehicle trips a day and was becoming congested just from traffic coming from or going to Rochester Hills.

It should be noted that Rochester Hills was (and still is) continuing to develop with new subdivisions going in, thus continuing to generate even more cars, some of which would use Adams Road.

The whole issue of development and road widenings became so volatile that homeowner associations were activated, and a couple of city council members were even replaced by a couple of people who represented this opposition.

The city council did recognize that traffic was a problem that would have to be dealt with, so they decided to hire an outside traffic consultant to study the problem and make recommendations.

In order to avoid any bias on the part of the consultant, they decided not to hire locally and hired a firm out of Minneapolis, Minn.

With all of the past concerns in mind, the consultants developed a plan that included the widening of several roads, including Livernois Road but not including Adams Road.

A public hearing was held recently and who do you suppose showed up in large numbers? The residents on or near Livernois Road.

They were opposed to the widening of their road, so which road did they propose to be widened instead? You guessed it: Adams Road. NIMBY!

The road agencies involved are simply sitting back waiting to see what the community decides. The road agencies are not about to build anything the community does not want. The problem will be getting the community to decide on what it can live with.

One alternative that comes up frequently is to do nothing and just live with the congestion. Consider the impacts of this alternative.

Congestion means that drivers are going to be delayed getting to work or getting home. When they do get there, they will be a little more tired and irritated.

The cars sitting in congestion both consume more fuel and add more pollution to the atmosphere. The property values of the homes along the congested roads will suffer.

And finally, and most importantly, the number of accidents with people getting hurt and even occasionally killed will go up as frustrated drivers take chances they shouldn't. Is this really an alternative worthy of consideration?

Rochester Hills has a tough problem with no easy solutions. We, too, will be facing some tough decisions in the future. I hope we can keep NIMBY to a minimum.

Ethnic
gases

Jim Fitzgerald

Roger Stanton wins, so far.

Stanton is leading in a contest I started in my mind only a few days ago. I'd just read that the town council of Boksburg, South Africa, banned Chinese people from eating in a local Chinese restaurant because they were Chinese.

When it comes to the racism category, I said to myself, that has to be the dumbest, most outrageous thing I've heard of so far this year.

But then I read what Louis Farrakhan, leader of the Nation of Islam, said during his speech given at a black summit meeting in New Orleans. He said there is a white conspiracy to kill black people with crack cocaine, the AIDS virus and "ethnic gases" that can be sprayed in a room and "affect only those of a certain genetic makeup."

Hey. That would be a good way - better than passing an embarrassingly stupid law - for the Boksburg council to keep Chinese people out of the Chinese restaurant. Just spray the place with an ethnic gas aimed at Oriental genes.

To reassure non-Chinese customers, it could be explained on the menu that it's not the food, it's the ethnic gas, and they shouldn't be worried about having to step over the Chinese bodies on the floor.

Hadn't counted on publisher

Surely, I said (still talking to myself), Farrakhan's charge had to be the dumbest, most outrageous thing I'd heard so far this year in the racism category.

I hadn't figured on Roger Stanton. Here's a successful businessman who publishes newspapers for football and basketball fans who want to read which way to bet. Surely he's in a position to realize the use of ethnic gases would not be economically feasible in un-domed stadiums.

So what does Stanton do? He writes a letter to Tom Brokaw that Brokaw says he won't dignify with a response. What does it tell you when a person acts so dumb and outrageous that not even a network TV anchor will pay any attention to him? It tells you how Morton Downey Jr. manages to make a living.

C'mon down, Roger.

Stanton told Brokaw that black athletes are "most likely to get into trouble" because they don't get enough discipline at home. I am thinking of the Red Wing hockey player who got into real trouble - repeated drunken driving and alleged cocaine smuggling. And the champion Olympic diver whose drinking and driving caused the death of two young people.

Both these troublesome athletes are white. One was the son of a police officer, and the other is the son of a university coach. Using the warped reasoning of Roger Stanton, I should chide Tom Brokaw for not exposing the ugly fact that it's unsafe to drive on the same roads used by the athletic sons of white authority figures.

Stanton guaranteed to Brokaw that any 20 black college football players are dumber than any 20 white college football players. Stanton also said black athletes won't "pay the price" of succeeding in non-athletic pursuits. Stanton surely earned his lead in my most dumb and outrageous contest, racism category, 1989. But it's only May.

Some unreal opinions

I might not have graduated from junior college without the help a black football player gave me in biology class. He was a much better student than athlete, and, 10 years after graduation, he was a janitor. But, 20 years after, he finally had a good job in his chosen field. To achieve that small success, he had to pay a price four times higher than I would have been charged to reach the same position. That price was so high because so many businesses are run by people who think like Roger Stanton but aren't dumb enough to write to Tom Brokaw.

In an apology, Stanton said his letter to Brokaw "was not the real Stanton talking." It must have been the unreal Roger Stanton.

All white publishers of sports newspapers are unreal. We should get 'em with an ethnic gas aimed at unreal genes.

Letters are vicious

For several weeks, vicious letters have been appearing in this newspaper assailing Principal Robert Burek and Superintendent Gary Haner in regard to an administrative decision.

Since the facts have not been made public, these authors do not have accurate information on which to base their opinions. I certainly do not find fault with anyone forming opinions or having loyalties, but I do have contempt for the method used.

People close to the high school system know this hate campaign is being orchestrated by a small group of high school teachers, hiding behind "name withheld," and some former students.

It is also a fact that this small group has opposed Dr. Burek, both passively and aggressively, since his arrival. Dr. Burek has initiated many new and positive programs and events since his arrival. I wonder if this is part of the resentment -- daring to make changes.

It is also unfortunate that this group appears to be intimidating many of the staff with the type of attitude, "If you don't agree with us, then you must be the enemy."

The Clarkston Education Association president discovered that last week when he suggested the staff needed to be unified and positive, in light of the upcoming vote on the Headlee Rollback.

He is indeed right, as a defeat on this issue would have a devastating effect on all children of the entire system and would also cause the layoff of several teachers. Apparently they do not see the connection or perhaps feel this is secondary to their "cause."

It would have been proper for this group to channel their hostility through the C.E.A., not the unprofessional manner they have chosen. Perhaps the C.E.A. should in turn look into their conduct.

I urge the many high school parents who appreciate the positive contributions of Dr. Burek to call him or thank him personally. Also, new Superintendent Haner needs to know that the community is progressive and positive, not vicious and vindictive.

I apologize for adding to the already negative impression of the schools these persons have created, but I have been privileged to be an employee of the schools and community for many years and am very angry a small group of fellow employees should act in such a negative manner.

You need only to read the news each week to learn of all the positive teaching of knowledge and ideas being done by the multitude of caring teachers and other employees.

Many community related projects, teaching love and positive involvement are also performed by those teachers.

Just three examples are: the reading project at Andersonville involving children, staff and parents earning $1,300 for the Rainbow Connection; Bailey Lake teacher Sally Seaman raising $2,200 in the Youth Assistance Bowlathon for camp fees for Clarkston children; and bus drivers and junior high teachers staging a volleyball benefit for SCAMP.

These are what education in Clarkston is really about. I know as I have been privileged to work alongside many of these educators and employees for many years.

Gordon Spelbring

Food for thought

What is Miss Jan Gabier's assignment at the Learning Center? Why is she filling in for a community education employee who left for a better position with a health club? Are her abilities being wasted? Has the problem been resolved?

Do Mrs. Srabian's dual roles of principal-counselor present a conflicting and/or confusing situation for the students? Should not a Class A high school have at least one full-time female counselor?

Are things running smoothly at the high school with two part-time administrators? Are all administrative responsibilities being met?

Think about these questions. The citizens of this community deserve answers and must inquire. Should the entire school district suffer the consequences of two administrators?

School cuts unfair

I am in the 9th grade at Clarkston Junior High School, and I recently read an article in The Clarkston News that really got to me.

The article was concerning teacher cuts in the district due to the Headlee Amendment. When I noticed that three of my junior high teachers were among the list of cuts, I felt I should say something.

These three teachers are some of the best I've ever had. It occurred to me that most of the teachers cut were the newer, more enthusiastic ones, and this doesn't seem fair.

I am not trying to say that you should cut the teachers who have been in the district longer; I am saying that you shouldn't cut anyone!

I also read about pay as you play sports next year, which bothers me because some of the athletes in our schools can't afford to pay $100 or more for each sport they play, so our teams will be affected.

What really bugs me is the rumor that a large amount of money was recently used to recarpet the board office! The board says that they can't afford my teachers but in my opinion teachers are a lot more important than carpet!

Outstanding show

son School in Ortonville. The program I received at the door was illustrated by unsigned artists enrolled in the classes.

Principal Helen Clemetsen warmly welcomed the parents, friends and LOTS of camera-toting grandparents who packed the auditorium.

"Uncle Sam" (Gaye Hellman Lawe) appeared and led 270 small, shining stars, boys and girls in the kindergarten classes, onto the stage.

I must admit that this grandma led the hand clapping, keeping time to "Coming to America," sung by Neil Diamond, that got the cast onto the stage.

Ruth Harvey's synopsis of history of the United States and Vicki Wilke's script for "Uncle Sam" were excellent. The parents and teachers are to be commended for the costuming. Charlene Tennant provided minimal but imaginative staging and props.

The EDUCATORS, who were on stage throughout the evening -- wearing cowboy hats, jeans and bandanas -- these LADIES gave up an evening of their time and saw that 270 potential wigglers and gigglers not only performed but were politely quiet while other classes had their turn in the "spotlight."

One teacher, Bev Beyer, even got her husband, Jim Beyer, to appear as Davy Crockett.

If I owned a cowboy, hat it would be off to Bev Beyer, Sara Burnside, Patty Ellsworth, Ruth Harvey, Kay Moreau, Charlene Tennant, Vicki Wilke and Nadine Vantine.

Near the end of the program they had a spot at center stage with an amusing song as they portrayed themselves as cowhands who, from late August to early June, kept all these little "mavericks" in line. Ruth Harvey twirled a mean rope during this song, but her sweet smile have her away.

Enough tickets for all prom-goers

I read with disappointment the typical but misleading letter in The Clarkston News, this one from the "concerned parent" regarding ticket sales for the senior prom.

As junior class sponsor in charge of organizing the senior prom, let me clear up a few issues.

No one who asked to go to the prom, through myself or the other class sponsors, was turned down. All students who were temporarily on the waiting list were called and were able to buy tickets.

All board members voluntarily turned down the invitation to attend. There were 22 administrators and faculty members in attendance as chaperons with the 535 students.

Petruzzellos was chosen as the prom site for the following reasons: it is a beautiful facility; it is convenient to get to, and there are no other groups there at the same time.

The prom was booked one year and eight months ahead of time. There are very few facilities in the Detroit area capable of holding a group of this size, especially considering the number of proms held in May and June.

This year's prom was a great success, thanks mostly to the great kids that attended. I would personally like to commend all those in attendance.

I would like to thank all the juniors for the hard work decorating Petruzzellos for the seniors. I would also like to thank the other sponsors, Lynne Charboneau and Eric Stromberg, for all the hard work and planning required to make the prom successful.

Thanks, Dr. Burek

These recent scathing indictments of (Principal) Bob Burek's performance at Clarkston High School are unfair and vicious.

Burek is one of the best managers in this school district. Above all, he cares about the kids. Look at this high visibility at high school events, long hours of work and positive support for students.

I have heard him voice his pride in both staff and students on many occasions.

He is efficient, professional, caring and conscientious.

And he doesn't back away from unpopular decisions.

Thanks Dr. Burek,

Time for change

Now that the "Bedtime story" has been told and has ended, the school's administrative "big guns" would be wise to awaken and come to grips with the political damage they have done to the school district.

How many of the electorate do they think will buy their latest money-grabbing scheme on June 12? If they aren't capable of handling personnel matters with a degree of finesse, who in the world is going to take their latest appeals for additional tax dollars as an honest need?

Perhaps it's time for a change once again -- but not in the physical plants which house the children 180 days each year, rather in the physical human bodies which house the brains that make the ludicrous decisions for our schools.

Walk a success

I want to thank the March of Dimes volunteers for such a well-organized walk with their donations of time and also thank you to the UAW for their donation of food.

The safety boys were so friendly and so eager to help! They helped stop traffic along the way, so we could walk across the streets safely. These volunteers along the route were such nice people. I didn't know that there were such loving and caring people.

At times, I was getting tired and sore. We came to checkpoints, and there were always people clapping, cheering and twirling party favors. These people really made you feel special.

One walker raised $500 in donations. She was applauded and high-fived. I only raised $50 and received the same cheers, high-fives and applause. They made me feel so proud to raise any donation.

If there was a theme for Walk '89, it should have been: "Walk and Feel Love."

Historical posters

The Clarkston Community Historical Society is gearing up for its 17th annual National Preservation Week May 14-20 with an historical poster.

This year's theme for preservation week, "Look Homeward America," was chosen to emphasize the vital role of old and historic buildings in the housing of America, from the simple rural cottages to the inner-city houses that we call home.

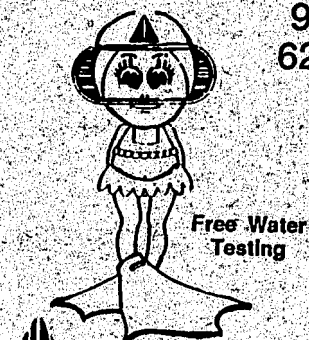

As part of the observation, the historical society presented a copy of the poster "You don't have to look far afield to find yesterday" to each elementary school teacher in the Clarkston school district. More posters are available by calling Susan Basinger at 625-0976 or Sally Robertson at 623-6949.

The Clarkston Community Historical Society promotes the belief that not only do "old" buildings provide valuable added housing stock but provide unique aesthetic experiences for those who inhabit them.

Perhaps more importantly, those projects of American imagination and craftsmanship are reminders of cultural heritage.

PARTY TYME

Wanda Wilcox left nursing 5 years ago and went back to college and got a 2 year culinary associate degree. It was during that time I had a college open house for my daughter and found I had to shop several different places to purchase the items needed.

The idea crossed my mind - why not have everything at one place. That's how Party Tyme Rental & Supplies was created.

You wouldn't believe what you might find - all under one roof.

Open Houses & Weddings are the popular items now. You'll find tents, tables, chairs, coolers, kool tables, chafing dishes, grills and more. Paper products, table coverings and skirting in 29 different colors. Graduation decorations, gifts, bumper stickers, banners and Class of '89 balloons can all be found in the store.

We get a lot of helpful hints on successful parties from customers - we'll be glad to pass on.

Weddings you'll find a beautiful new line of stainless steel and brass champagne and cake fountains, arches, unity candles, kneeling benches, table, aisle and floor candelabras and helium tanks. Pick up your wedding decorations, paper products, personalized banners and while you're in, order invitations.

Need to know who does cakes, limos, catering, vocalists and D.J.'s in the area? We can give you references on that also. Beautiful wedding baskets or baskets for any occasion can be made for gifts and delivered.

Whether it be birthdays, over the hill, luau's, casinos, 50's, 20's, anniversaries or gag gifts - we have something for all. If we don't have it, we'll try to get it.

Last but not least, you'll find costumes, make up, clown items, wigs, hats even Korean dresses. Halloween is our favorite holiday.

Yes, we are thinking of a much larger store - come in, we'd love for you to browse. See our talking balloons!

Alcohol prohibited in township parks

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A cold beer may sound good to a parched softball player, but the thirst will have to be quenched outside of Independence Township parks.

As of May 1, police and township officials began strictly enforcing a "no alcohol" rule on township park property.

"It's a long-standing ordinance, but it's never been strictly enforced," said Ann Conklin, director of the township parks and recreation department.

"Unfortunately, last season, a few people abused it quite a bit," she added.

Police said no major problems have resulted from drinking in the parks, but the potential exists.

"From time to time players would have a couple of drinks and get loud," said Lt. Thomas Quisenberry of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

"You'd have a close game or end up with a bunch of bleacher umpires, that sort of thing," Quisenberry added.

Over the May 6-7 weekend, sheriff's deputies conducted an education week, patrolling the parks to alert patrons that the alcohol ban will be strictly enforced. No tickets were issued.

"We wanted to give people a chance to see the signs and get the word out that it will be enforced," Quisenberry said.

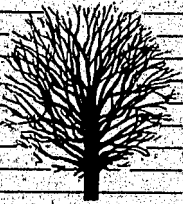

Parks within township boundaries include: Bay Court Camp, Deer Lake Beach, Sashabaw Plains Park, Sunny Beach on Walters Lake and Clintonwood Park.

Alcohol is not a good idea at sporting events, said Conklin.

"There are a lot of kids out there in the soccer program and some others, and it's just not a good combination," she said.

Police will issue tickets to those caught violating the alcohol ban; the fine is set in an appearance before a judge. The average fine is about $30 or $35, Quisenberry said.

Citizens for Orderly Growth

They'll need support

Doug Carlson

In last week's edition of The Clarkston News, fellow columnist Brent Bair wrote an interesting article on what he feels is in store for Independence Township both from a planning and development standpoint and from a roads standpoint.

Since Brent is chairman of the Independence Township Planning Commission, his observations should receive more than passing interest by residents of this area.

In his article, Brent forecasted that "the township will continue to develop at a rapid rate, and the traffic problems will get much worse before they get better."

He added that his projections were not based totally upon his own speculation. He cited a University of Michigan study which projected a job growth in Oakland County of 16,000 jobs per year for at least the next three years.

He also mentioned an article in USA Today which listed Oakland County as number 20 on a list of the top 50 counties regarded as hot spots for future employment.

Finally, a recent article in the Wall Street Journal stated that Troy will be one of the top five job generators in the nation between now and 1993, and one of the top 10 in the next five years after that.

The bottom line of all this, of course, is that the workers who will hold these jobs will find Independence Township a very desirable place from which to commute.

Recognizing this, developers will be looking very closely at land usage in this area and especially at Independence Township.

North of I-75, zoning patterns call for very low density single family residential. The predominant zoning categories are R-1R Rural Residential requiring three acre lots and R-1C Suburban Farm Residential requiring 1.5-acre lots.

Obviously, if a developer could acquire large parcels of land in that area and get it rezoned to 15,000-square-foot lots or even 33,000-square-foot lots, it would be a gold mine.

In addition, residents should be aware that less than one percent of the township's current land use is devoted to multiple family development. This is less acreage than any of our surrounding neighbors, although not by much.

The point is that developers could cite statistics such as these to pressure the planning commission into approving more multiple family development within Independence Township.

They would also cite such areas as Rochester Hills, Farmington Hills, Bloomfield Township, etc., where the percentages are considerably larger.

In summary, the planning commission and township board are going to be subjected to a great deal of pressure from developers in the years ahead.

As residents, we have to be continually alert to what is occurring and supportive of our township officials in ensuring the protection of existing neighborhoods, environmental resources, the rural residential character of the township and the small-town character of the Village of Clarkston.

Doug Carlson is chairperson of Citizens for Orderly Growth.

Decorator Showhouse

May 7 through May 26, 1989

A showhouse is a major Junior League fundraiser and an opportunity to share one of Flint's treasured old homes with the community. The J. Edington Burroughs House is an elegant stone mansion of Norman design in the tradition of an English country home. Among the many striking features of the house are its stone work, leaded glass windows, interior walnut doors, moldings and paneling and the low relief ceiling plaster work.

J. Edington Burroughs was a past president and C.E.O. of Citizens Bank. The Burroughs family lived in the home from 1927 until the death of Mr. Burroughs in 1966. At that time the house was donated to the Flint Board of Education. In 1988 the house was sold to Dr. John Brady who is now overseeing the restoration of the house. This historic home will be decorated and furnished by some of the regions most noted interior designers and then opened to the public. Please join us!

Woodglen #3 clears first hurdle despite opposition

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A subdivision planned between Woodglen Estates #2 and Pine Tree Valley along Waldon Road drew a capacity crowd to the Independence Township Planning Commission meeting April 27.

Despite opposition from the audience, commission members voted 6-0 to recommend tentative preliminary plat approval for the project, called Woodglen #3.

The plat proposal now goes to the township board, which has the final say in plats.

A tentative preliminary plat is a plan showing lot and street arrangements; the developer must also indicate water, sewer and drainage plans.

Voting yes were Chairperson Brent Bair, Joseph Figa, Jo Fussman, Bruce Mercado, Steve Secatch and Daniel Travis. Richard Oppmann was absent.

Woodglen #3, proposed by developer Arnold B. Gee of Independence Township, is planned for a 7.6-acre-parcel split into 11 lots of 15,000 square feet each. South of Waldon Road, the property is sided by Woodglen #2 on the west and Pine Tree Valley on the east.

Some of the estimated 50 residents in attendance told planners they didn't want Almond Lane to connect the three developments.

When Woodglen #2 and Pine Tree Valley were built, stubs from Almond Lane were extended into the vacant property between the subs with the intention that one day they would connect.

"We want to keep both subs closed," said Rick Hinzpeter, representing the Pine Tree Valley Association. "We have a concern about the safety of our children in the sub. If Almond Lane is kept open, our property values will be affected."

Association members gave commissioners a design which showed Almond Lane closed into cul-de-sacs.

Richard Carlisle, township planning consultant, told the audience that the stubs were there for a reason.

"The stubs are not there by mistake," Carlisle said. "When we started the layout (of the existing subs), certain proposed streets were to be extended to adjacent unplatted land. The ordinance requires road connection," he said.

Planners added that creating cul-de-sacs would prevent emergency vehicles from easy access to many homes in the developments.

"There is only one way in to those developments," said Secatch. "There should be two."

Chairperson Bair added, "Several agencies have lived with the expectation that (the road) would be connected some day."

Commission members also questioned the developer about plans for water and sewer in the development.

"I don't like to see lake lots with a septic field," said Figa, who was told that the development would use both existing sewer mains and septic fields and would pursue the necessary health department approvals.

One resident asked whether the developer would take responsibility for any road damage incurred during construction.

"If you run cement mixers in through there, what will be done about the roads after construction?" asked Terry Gunter of Pinewood Drive.

Township engineers answered that more would be damaged from trucks fixing the roads than from the construction of just 11 structures.

Residents also questioned the developer's financial ability to finish the project and whether one or many builders will actually work on the development.

Welfare worker honored for service

Garry Pullins, child welfare worker with the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance, was honored May 6 by the American Business Women's Association Charter Chapter - Tipacon.

Nominated by his secretary, Independence Township resident Marilyn Lash, Pullins was selected 1989 Business Associate of the Year.

A committee selected Pullins based on his community involvement, education, personal attributes and professional charisma, said Lash.

"He gives so much to youth assistance and so much to the community that I just thought it was time to get recognition," she said, adding that his concern for others is obvious.

"To his family and to me and to the kids that are his clients, ... he's caring. ... He's caring and sharing to everybody he deals with," Lash said.

In recognition of Pullins' attributes, he received a plaque and dinner at the annual business association appreciation event at The Palace of Auburn Hills.

Two wins good sign

Softball team wins twice to boost record to 7-13

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The varsity softball team returned to its winning ways Monday with an unusual double-header sweep at Clintonwood Park.

Clarkston High topped Greater Oakland Activities League rival Pontiac Northern 10-0 in an afternoon game behind the fine pitching of Jamie Law. She tossed a one-hitter against the Huskies, fanning six batters en route to the victory.

Staci Grutza provided the offensive punch with a 3-RBI triple among her two hits and four runs batted in during the game.

In the nightcap, Clarkston faced Rochester Adams and managed to squeak past the Highlanders 6-5.

Jenny McChesney was the winning pitcher. She struck out nine batters. In addition, she helped herself out at the plate by collecting two hits in three trips and slamming a three-run homer.

Late last week, the Wolves hosted Brandon but dropped a double-header to the Blackhawks 6-5 and 8-5.

Heather Behrens had two hits and two runs batted in while McChesney, Dana Austin and Law all had a hit for the Wolves.

Clarkston's record now stands at 7-13.

The Wolves remain busy this week with a double-header against Waterford Kettering, the GOAL leader, on Thursday and a tournament in Royal Oak over the weekend. They travel to face Lake Orion on Monday in another GOAL contest. Clarkston closes out the regular season with a double-header at Waterford Mott on May 18.

DANA AUSTIN prepares to field a ball at third base during the second game of a double header against Brandon last week.

JASON JARVIS is only one of the tough hitters Clarkston Junior High can throw at opposing pitcher's this spring. The Wolverines currently own an 8-1 record.

Tennis team keeps rolling with 10th win

With a 7-0 romp past Waterford Mott and a strong third-place finish in a weekend tournament, the boys tennis team at Clarkston High continues to roll.

Even playing without their No. 1 singles player, Keith Turner, who sat out due to injury, the Wolves had no problems grounding the Corsairs at Clintonwood Park Monday afternoon.

David Reading took over the No. 1 singles spot for a day and turned in a victory. Also winning were Ian Halleran, Paul Reading and Marc Swartout in the other three singles matches.

The doubles teams of Kevin Ortwine-B.J. Deloney, Eric Chambers-Matt Nowak and Grant Manley-Jason Gross also were victorious.

Overall, the Wolves boast a 10-1 overall record and a perfect 8-0 mark in the Greater Oakland Activities League.

On Saturday, the team faced stiff competition from Clio and Flint Central at the Lapeer West Invitational and wound up in third place.

"Only four points (in the team standings) separated the top three teams," Coach Dick Swartout said.

Turner won his match at No. 1 singles and the doubles team of Ortwine-Deloney also finished first at No. 1 doubles. Halleran placed second at No. 3 singles as did Swartout at No. 4 singles.

Clarkston could wrap up an unbeaten league dual meet season Wednesday, May 10 with a home match against Brandon. The league meet is scheduled for next Tuesday.

Wolverines win over Sashabaw

For the second time this season, Clarkston Junior High defeated rival Sashabaw in boys baseball last week.

The host Wolverines toppled the Cougars 13-0 on May 4 behind the hitting of Dave Smith (grand slam, four RBIs), Sean Halleran (three hits), Jason Jarvis (two hits) and Chris Cascone (two hits).

Matt Seitz was the winning pitcher. He went the distance and allowed only six hits while striking out eight batters.

Mark Peterson paced the Cougars with two hits in three trips to the plate. Chris White, Brian Miller, Bryan Hambell and Andy Lampela all collected one hit apiece.

On May 2, Clarkston hosted Brandon and won 3-1. Jeff Wagner was the winning pitcher. He threw seven innings of three-hit ball and fanned six batters. The only run off him was unearned.

Jamie Young singled home the game-winning run for the Wolverines. Currently, the team's record stands at 8-1 with five games left.

On May 2, Sashabaw lost to visiting Lake Orion 16-6. Lampela was the top offensive threat for the Cougars with two hits and three runs batted in. Mike Waggoner had one hit and two RBIs. Dave Hernandez scored two runs.

Sashabaw enjoyed better games early in the season. The Cougars beat Holly on April 14 behind the fine pitching of Jeremy Burke who struck out 10 batters and allowed only five hits to help his club to a 15-5 win. Miller had two hits and four runs batted in to lead the offense.

Burke had two hits, Waggoner, three RBI, Kevin Heidisch and Jeff Coxen two runs scored apiece as well for the Cougars.

Against Mason on April 19, the Cougars won a wild contest 14-12. Hernandez led the way with a grand slam home run and five runs batted in on the day. Lampela also homered for the Cougars.

Waggoner was three-of-four from the plate and added two RBIs. Heidisch had two hits and two RBIs, White had three hits and two RBIs, Scott Morgan added two hits and one run batted in.

Oakland Activities League title during a 3:30 p.m. double-header.

"This will be a big game," understated Coach Roy Warner.

Clarkston set up the tie for the GOAL lead with a 5-1 victory against league rival Pontiac Northern at home Monday afternoon.

Ben Underwood pitched a 3-hitter for the victory. He struck out six batters and walked only one. At the plate, he had hits in two of three appearances.

Bill Jawlik also had two hits in the game.

Clarkston's GOAL record now stands at 8-2, and its overall mark is 10-6.

On May 4, the Wolves swept a double-header from Brandon. Clarkston won the first game 10-0 in a five-inning mercy and the second, 6-5.

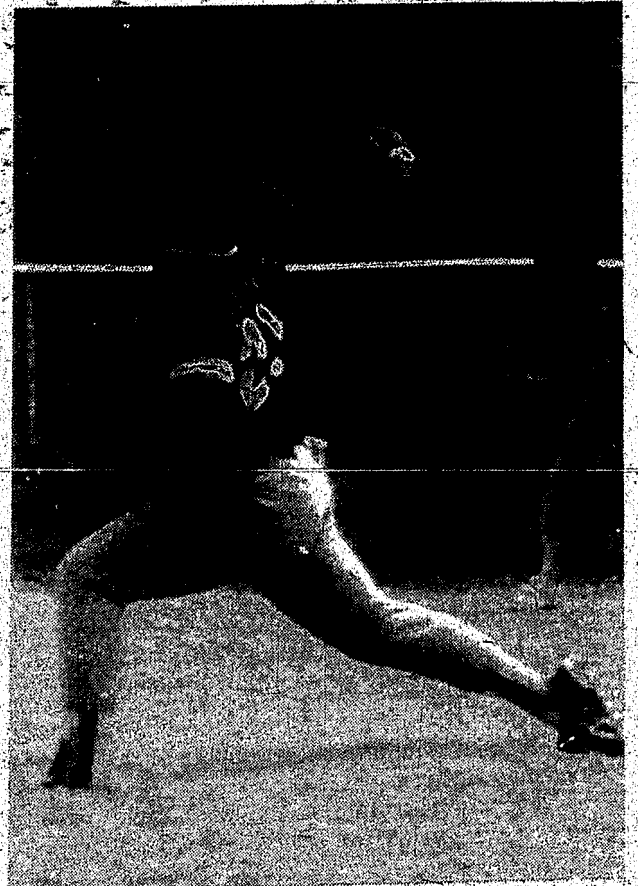

Underwood tossed a two-hitter, striking out four, to pick up the win.

John Koslosky was three-for-three as was Underwood to lead the offense. Corey Olsen and Darin Brandt each added two hits.

Kevin Keilitz won the second game, striking out five and allowing only five hits.

Koslosky continued to hit well, collecting two hits in three trips to the plate. Doug Letterman also was two-for-three. Erik Mackson and Olsen each had one hit.

"We've started hitting real hot," Warner said of his club. "If we can keep some pitching going for when we are not hitting, we'll be all right."

BEN UNDERWOOD not only pitched well for the Wolves but knocked home the game-winning run in the first inning of the double-header sweep against Brandon.

College update

MISSY ODELL, a Clarkston High School graduate, was named to the American Volleyball Coaches Association Division II Great Lakes Regional All-American team. The sophomore hitter-blocker led Wayne State University, Detroit, in attack percentage in 1988 at .232, collecting 374 kills on 865 attempts and making only 173 errors. She started all 31 matches and came up with a team-leading 137 total blocks, including 38 solos and 99 assists.

Time Out

On a roll

Peter Auchter

Let's go behind the scenes with Clarkston High school sports...

Hey, turn your back on a team for a couple of weeks and the next thing you know its on the top of the world, so to speak.

When last we heard of the tennis team on these pages (and its been a while, I regretfully admit), they were bounced around by Rochester Adams in the season opener on a dreary Friday afternoon.

The weather wiped them out in the next scheduled match against Pontiac Northern, and the season seemed destined to be dull. But, lo and behold, the Wolves ripped off 10 straight victories, including eight in a row in the Greater Oakland Activities League once the weather cooperated to show me a thing or two.

Let's see there was Milford, Waterford Kettering, another weather-out, Waterford Mott, Lakeland, Brandon, Pontiac Northern twice, Waterford Kettering again, Lake Orion and Waterford Mott again. Whew! I guess they are teaching everybody a lesson this year.

Clarkston will warm up for the league meet at Waterford Mott on May 16 with its last two dual meets of the year on Wednesday against Brandon at home and Friday against West Bloomfield on the road.

Regional play begins May 19. Who, the shadow excluded, knows how far they will go from there?

Thanks to Karen Lowe's 11 goals this season, the girls soccer team has stayed afloat during a tough rebuilding period.

Good defense and goaltending also has contributed to Clarkston's 3-2-1 record in the GOAL. But little else has gone right for the Wolves in non-league contests, they sport an overall record of 4-7-1.

Last week, the team got back on track with a couple of victories. Lowe scored all five goals as Clarkston beat Lake Orion 2-1 and Waterford Mott 3-1.

Although the offense isn't registering many goals these days, it certainly isn't a lack of effort. The Wolves probably lead the league, maybe the nation, in shots on goal. Soon or later some of them have to start going in.

Either that or Coach Hana Olsen won't have to worry about gray hairs in her golden years; she'll have pulled them all out long ago.

Oh well, at least the districts loom on the horizon and who (maybe not even the shadow) knows what can happen? The underdog role looks pretty tempting right now.

Stay tuned for all the details. (Trust me, ok?)

In the 1600 run, Kelly O'Neil was second (4:51.89), and Brisson was third (5:02.16). Chris Blimka won the 400 dash (53.67), and Vandermark won the 800 run (2:10.14). Trekman was second in the 300 hurdles (43.15), and O'Neil was third in the 800 with a time of 2:14.

Shupe won the 200 dash (23.22); Brett Kinzler was third with a time of 23.77.

Wenger won the 3200 run with a time of 10:24.37. Brisson was third with a time of 11:10.37.

Forward nets 5 goals in 2 games for Wolves

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The good news also is bad news for the girls soccer team at Clarkston High.

While the team works hard for plenty of scoring opportunities, the Wolves haven't capitalized, and it has cost them dearly. The result has been a sub-.500 record for the entire season.

"We are getting an average of seven to 10 shots on goal (a game)," said Coach Hana Olsen. "We are really struggling. Most of our goals are on direct free kicks."

Karen Lowe, with her 11 goals, has provided the scoring for the Wolves this season. In the Wolves latest victory, a 3-1 win over Waterford Mott at home on May 8, she notched a hat trick.

"Karen has been outstanding," the coach said. "The ball knows where to go for her."

Tami Mitchell added an assist off a crossing pass on one of Lowe's goals.

Lowe also scored Clarkston's two goals in a 2-1 win against Lake Orion on May 3. Both of those points came off direct free kicks.

As of May 9, the team sports a 4-7-1 overall record and still has the opportunity to finish at .500 if it can win its remaining three games against Detroit County Day, Brandon and Waterford Kettering.

"There is a lot of talent out there," the coach said of her young team. "We are coming along. The defense is OK, but we have a long way to go on offense."

Besides Lowe, Erin McAuliffe has played well at the sweeper position; Katie Rjeman is a standout in goal, and Sue Cohoon leads the defense.

"We are going to keep plugging away," the coach said. "We have lost some games by one goal that we shouldn't have, but we are a young team."

Girls track team wins again to keep GOAL mark perfect

A convincing victory against Lake Orion kept the girls track team's hopes of a perfect league season alive last week.

Even though Coach Gordie Richardson juggled the lineup a bit, the Wolves had no trouble downing the Dragons 99-29.

"We had some pretty good performances," said the coach. "The meet was fun."

For the May 9 meet against Waterford Mott, Richardson said the team will concentrate on improving performances to help athletes qualify for the regionals on May 20.

"Now is when we have to make our move," Richardson said.

The Wolves host their second annual girls invitational tournament on Saturday. Five other teams besides the hosts will participate in the event. Avondale, Lahser, Kimball, Marion and St. John's round out the teams involved. Field events get underway at 10 a.m., preliminaries begin an hour later and the finals start at noon.

Against Lake Orion, Carrie Roeser and Michelle Folwell were double-winners in individual events for the Wolves. Roeser won the 400-meter and 3200-meter runs. Folwell placed first in the 100 and 200 dashes.

Jenny Davis and Celeste Steinhilper won in the long and high jump, respectively, to provide Clarkston with points in the field events.

Bree Michelsen won the 100 hurdles, Michelle Darby won the 300 hurdles, Sonya Schaffer the 800 and Lisa Palazzola the 1600 run.

The 800 relay team of Nicole Hocking, Steinhilper, Stacey Secatch and Folwell were winners. Nichole Chinavare, Darby, Steinhilper and Schaffer combined their talents to win the 1600 relay. Davis, Hocking, Amy Rayner and Folwell won the 400 relay for the Wolves.

CHS student a champion

With a strong performance from Rhonda Jokisch the Greater Detroit Brick City Bombers girls basketball team recently clinched first place in an AAU/USA Junior Olympic Tournament.

Jokisch, a junior at Clarkston High School, averaged 10 points and nine rebounds a game for her team.

College Update

Mike Walters, an Independence Township resident, currently owns a 1-2 record as a pitcher for Albion College's baseball team.

Overall, Walters has an earned run average of 4.46 but he's especially tough against Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association opponents, sporting an ERA of 1.91 in just over seven innings of work.

So far, the pitcher has seen 26 2/3 innings of action, given up 34 hits, 24 runs (17 earned), 14 walks while striking out 15 batters. His victory was a 3-2 decision over Olivet in the second game of a double header to help his team split the twinbill.

On the season, Albion has a 11-11 overall record and a 6-2 mark in the MIAA.

Independence woman was mother to 166 children

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

On this Mother's Day, Dorothy Rice will likely be on the minds of more than 100 children -- not only for her recent death May 3 but for all of the love she gave the children while they were together.

Before she died of a heart attack last week, Dorothy was mother to 166 children. Three were her own; the others were put into her care at her Waldon Road, Independence Township, home during the 18 years she and her husband, Guy, served as foster parents.

"She never wanted any praise for what she did," said Carolanne Reed, also a foster parent. "She would never allow any publicity while she was alive; she thought of it as her gift to God."

The foster care program is conducted through the Catholic Social Services agency of Oakland County.

Participating families temporarily care for children, while their birth families rehabilitate themselves. Foster parents also care for infants going into adoption.

The Rices usually cared for infants, Reed said, and often had up to four at a time under school age.

"I remember the first time I saw her," Reed recalled. "We were at a high school function, and there was a couple sitting on the floor in the front row with two babies."

"I just sat there watching them, thinking they must be grandparents," she added. "Of course, that was the Rices, and they were the foster parents."

"We would see them at meetings; they would always have at least one with them," Reed said. "They would just sit and rock and take turns with them."

Guy Rice, a retired truck driver, said his wife as a private person.

"I retired in 1976 to help her, but before that she had a good time of it," Guy recalled.

"She was kind of stubborn when she had her mind made up; otherwise she was wonderful," he said.

The Rice foster children now are "spread all over the country," with one living in Africa, he said.

"We adopted him here; he was bi-racial," Guy explained. "After a while he transferred back to Africa."

Guy said Dorothy had kept in touch with some of the 166 children through the years.

"She would send them birthday cards and all," he said.

The foster families keep the children anywhere from a week to several years, depending upon the situation of their biological families.

"We try to maintain the parent and child bond," said Rhonda Schinke, a foster care license worker. "There is usually a weekly visitation (between the child and the biological parent)."

Reed, who has cared for 85 children throughout her experience as a foster parent, said the task requires love and patience.

"You deal with a lot. The separation, difficult parents -- the court system can be very frustrating."

"I considered Dorothy a strong person," Reed said. "She was a very nice, kind person. She was always gentle with a child."

Independence restricts street vendors

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Street-side vendors are no longer welcome in Independence Township without a special license.

Township board members on May 2 authorized the second reading for an ordinance regulating floating sales, making it effective May 3.

The ordinance affects commercial vendors selling goods for profit in a business that, if in a permanent location, would require a site plan in Independence Township.

Garage sales, charitable activities, park vendors and refreshment stands are still permitted.

The ordinance was drafted at the request of a local florist, who argued that the vendors hurt their business.

"We have to pay (sales tax, property tax and personal business tax) on what they're selling off of a truck," said Theresa Petherbridge, co-owner of Waterford Hill Florist during the regular board meeting March 4.

"That hurts us," said her partner Belinda Seal.

Charitable or nonprofit groups wishing to conduct a sale must obtain a license from the township clerk at least 14 days before the sale.

If the sale is conducted on private property, the applicant must have written permission from the property owner; if the sale is on public property, the applicant must have written permission from any business or organization within 25 feet of the proposed sale.

The applicant must also provide a written description of items sold, times and dates of the sale, and any promotional activity that will be used.

Sales are only permitted during daylight and only for five days within any six-month period.

Those conducting the sale must have identification and proof of licensure at all times during the sale.

Opinion of Bill Myers

Opinion is divided
on bank fee issue

William A. Myers is a retired Lapeer County editor and investments manager from Boca Raton, Fla.

In the Wall Street Journal, front page, Jan. 30, in Alan Murray's column, regarding the proposed tax on deposits held in savings institutions:

"Despite arguments a fee would cause depositors to withdraw their money... another quarter of a percentage point doesn't seem likely to cause a national bank run."

Same day, on an inside page, same section, in another article, where Alan Murray was credited as a contributor:

"So sensitive are consumers to their deposits that relatively slight turns in interest rates, let alone a proposal to charge a fee or tax on deposits, can spark a drain on deposits."

Dinner hour is out

Solicitors from Greenpeace have permission to canvass Independence Township for two full months, as long as it's not during the dinner hour.

A written fund-raising request from Greenpeace Action was approved by township board members April 18, two weeks after it was tabled to allow for more scrutiny.

The ruling allows Greenpeace representatives to go door-to-door from May 1 to June 30, from 6:30-9 p.m. weekdays and 1-6 p.m. on weekends.

"I'm all for restricting hours away from the dinner hour," said Trustee Daniel Travis.

When asked what he felt was reasonable, Travis joked that his dinner hour was from 6-9 p.m.

"As you can see I do eat," he quipped, as fellow board members broken into laughter.

Although Travis' "dinner hour" was not used as a guideline, the board did restrict Greenpeace's original request to solicit from 5-9 p.m. on weekdays.

Ho hum.

An old favorite of mine, DeLuxe Corp. (formerly DeLuxe Check Printers) came in with another good year and a good last quarter.

After taking out non-recurring gains of $16 million for the year 1987 and $8.3 million in the last quarter of 1987, we have the following income comparisons:

	1988	1987
Year	$132 mil.	$132 mil.
Quarter	$44.9 mil.	$34.3 mil.

In my memory, which some days goes back quite a ways, I recall no year the company didn't earn more than the year before. At the bank in Lapeer, we used to order their checks year after year, and always their product and service were the best around.

If you bought all of the 3,000-some stocks recommended by the top brokerage firms going back 30 months, your average stock would have gone up, including dividends, 5.8 percent. Average per year: 2.3 percent; after 28 percent tax: 1.67 percent.

In the same period, the Dow Industrial Average went up 21.5 percent and Standard & Poor's 500 gained 19 percent.

Should we conclude that we should buy an index fund that tries to match the market the market averages? Don't ask me. I don't own any stocks, except some call options on GM, done mostly for fun.

If you do want to come close to matching the averages, I think you can do it yourself without paying a mutual fund load charge. Buy a half-dozen of the Dow Jones Industrials that have low volatility. Financial analysts call this the Beta factor, which impresses their clients.

The Financial Weekly gives this number in their stock tables. The closer it is to 1.0, the closer the stock has in the past matched the averages, going up or going down.

In the municipal bond market, there are a few issues around that bear the "AMT" designation. It means "alternative minimum tax," which penalizes big investors.

For this reason, the AMT-designated bonds (mostly housing issues) pay maybe a quarter-percent more interest. It used to be a full half-point.

Anyway, until your income from AMT bonds runs over, say, $50,000, there's no penalty. If you like the particular bond in its own right, you might as well pick off the extra quarter percent.

Every little bit helps, as the old lady said.

Book Review:

"Bringing Home the Gold," by Joseph L. Shaefer. Published by Dow Jones-Irwin, 1818 Ridge Road, Homewood, Ill. 60430. 220 pp. $22.95.

The author has been in the brokerage industry for 20 years and is now a senior vice-president in the Charles Schwab discount firm.

He uses the analogy of training for the Olympics to approach investing. The events, the rules, the coaches, how you play the game are all part of your training. Then comes the game itself.

It's a comprehensive book and would help anybody about to start investing. Even a weatherbeaten old pro could learn a thing or two from it. Amateurs will be impressed at the very size and diversity of the investment field.

I was disappointed to see so little space given to zero coupon bonds, a great favorite of mine. They deserved more than a paragraph.

Cranberry Lake drain to help flooding

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Water levels at Cranberry Lake on M-15, Independence Township, have risen dramatically; but the threat of flooding receded with action by the Independence Township board May 2.

Board members unanimously agreed to petition Oakland County for a new drain system in the area.

The drainage problem came to a head with a 42-lot subdivision planned near the lake -- officials from the Oakland County Drain Commission said they would deny permits for the project unless something is done.

Township engineers told board members that the drain office had received several complaints about the lake level and that the lake had risen close to Cranberry Lake Road and some existing homes in the southeast corner of the lake.

"It appears the lake is at least 1-2 feet higher than it historically had been before the natural overflow was filled," said engineer David Lakin in a letter to the board.

"We believe this situation will only worsen as the Cranberry Lake basin develops," he added.

Lakin explained that the lake level is rising because recent home construction along Perry Lake Road is blocking the lake's natural overflow into the Clinton River.

The Chapter 20 drain district would create a pipe system connecting the lake with a drainage ditch along Perry Lake Road.

The estimated $17,000 cost of the project would be shared by the township and the county road and drain commissions. Each agency is assessed on how much it uses the drain -- the township would pay about 88 percent of the cost.

The developer of the proposed Cranberry Pointe subdivision, Biltmore Construction, has offered to help if the township petitions for the drain, Lakin said.

Biltmore would provide the costly engineering for the project and would obtain the contractor.

Lakin told the board that the township portion of the drain may be paid for with money held by the drain office for other township projects.

Township Trustee William Vandermark questioned what would happen if the township didn't create the drain district.

"If we didn't approve this, the developer would either not develop or foot the bill himself," Vandermark speculated.

"We need to create the drain whether that development goes in or not," answered Supervisor Frank Ronk.

"(Biltmore's) contribution is more than comparable to the amount of water they'll dump in there," he added.

Township board members also questioned how the system would be constructed and whether residents could control the lake levels.

Engineers told the board that residents could appeal to the municipality to change the levels once the drain is in place.

The Clarkston News SECTION 2

Beaumont Foundation picks '89 Poster Child

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Brandy Ryan, 1, greets visitors to her home on Birch Road, Brandon Township, with squeals of joy. She's eager to climb on any stranger's lap and will sit contently. "She's just glad she's here," said Brandy's mother, Cynthia Hubbard, and it's apparent in the first meeting with Brandy.

Born 12 weeks premature, Brandy has overcome many obstacles in her short life. Her attitude and unsinkable spirit have earned her a spot as poster child for Beaumont Foundation.

Brandy, who has a Clarkston mailing address with her family, has a special mission to perform as "miracle baby" for Beaumont's Foundation. She was chosen as Beaumont Foundation's 1989 poster child representing the best visible success for Beaumont's "miracle children" for 1989.

Miracle Children for the Children's Miracle Network Telethon will air Saturday and Sunday, June 3 and 4 on WKBD-TV Channel 50. Although a nationwide program, the money raised in Michigan will be forwarded to Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak, for research for children with life-threatening diseases.

Brandy serves as a good example of Beaumont's work. Her determination has given her life, put her on a poster and helped her make a TV commercial for WKBD-TV.

Brandy was delivered at 28 weeks gestation because the amniotic fluid in her mother's womb was infected, endangering Brandy's life. When Brandy was born, she was completely filled with infection.

Other problems resulted. Brandy had surgery when she was two days old to close a valve to her heart. Bleeding was discovered at the base of the brain causing hydrocephalus, an accumulation of fluid within the cranium. The problem corrected itself by the time she was six months old, and doctors feel she'll recover completely, said Brandy's mother.

Hearing loss was another obstacle for Brandy. Around three months, doctors discovered she only had about 90 percent hearing. Tubes were placed in her ears at six months of age to allow for drainage, and "that made a big difference; that's when we began to see a change," said Hubbard. Brandy now has only a slight hearing loss.

Brandy will eventually need glasses, but that seems like a small obstacle considering the hurdles she has already crossed in her first year of life.

For now, Brandy is content to crawl around in her home with her sister, Kelly, 10, brother, Shawn, 6, mother and stepfather, Arthur Hubbard.

Brandy's medical problems were difficult to shoulder for Brandy's mom. "It hasn't been easy," she said.

"She is such a joy; I thank God I have her," she added. It does seem that miracles have originated there before.

BRANDY RYAN, 1, and Mom, Cynthia Hubbard, equally share joy in the miracle of life. Born 12 weeks premature, Brandy has already overcome obstacles in her short life.

Clarkston cook tosses salad aside for retirement

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Reberta Allen started her career much like today's concept of the lunch wagon or Meals on Wheels. Clarkston schools delivered pre-cooked lunches to the districts' students in rural areas by van.

When Reberta was hired in 1953 by Ora Wells, now deceased, she was given the title of "salad girl."

Wells was responsible for starting the hot lunch program in Clarkston schools and started cooking soup on the wood stove at Sashabaw Country School on Maybee Road, where the Independence Township Fire Station now stands.

Reberta remembers serving lunch in the building that is the current Clarkston Junior High. At that time, they served 500-600 lunches a day, she said.

Reberta became supervisor of the lunch program after Wells retired, and by then they served 1,200 lunches a day, she said.

Once motherhood came along, Reberta left the school system, returning to work five years later but in a different field. She worked for two local physicians as a medical assistant.

In 1976, Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara called her to take the position as a para-professional aid in the

Heritage book out

The Clarkston Community Historical Society (CCHS) has reprinted "Heritage," a history of Independence Township.

Copies are $15 and are now available at the Village Bookstore, 26 S. Main St., Clarkston, or from the CCHS Merchandise Committee (Sally Robertson, 623-6946, or Susan Basinger, 625-0976).

The book consists of excerpts from "1817 History of Oakland County, Michigan," "Oakland County Book of History" (1820-1970) -- the sesquicentennial publication, and the "History of Oakland County" (1912), with numerous vintage photos collected by the society for the original publication in 1976 to coincide with America's Bicentennial.

Proceeds from the sale of the books go to further the work of the CCHS.

it and try the tasty recipes.

Some area restaurants have Heart Smart menus based on Henry Ford Hospital's program. When dining out, ask for this menu.

On April 19 the Detroit Area Home Economists In Action presented a Heart Smart Luncheon for members and guests.

Ann Connally, registered dietitian, discussed the guidelines for Heart Smart and then demonstrated some delicious Heart Smart recipes.

Here is a snack idea that I adapted to microwave preparation. Use the microwave for toasting the almonds and for sauteing the onion, garlic and mushrooms. You can save a few more calories by using vegetable spray. Foods do not stick to dishes when they are cooked in the microwave.

MUSHROOM ALMOND PATE

- 1/4 cup slivered almonds
- 1 teaspoon salad oil (optional when cooking in microwave)
- 1 small onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 3/4 pound mushrooms, sliced
- 1/2 teaspoon salt (optional)
- 1/2 teaspoon dried thyme leaves

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Spread almonds in a shallow pan and toast in oven about 8 minutes or until lightly browned. Set aside.

Heat oil in a skillet over medium heat. Add onion, garlic, mushrooms, salt and thyme. Cook, stirring occasionally, until onion is soft and most of pan juices have evaporated.

In a food processor or blender, whirl almonds to form a paste. With motor running, add mushroom mixture and whirl until pate is smooth.

Makes about 32 one-tablespoon servings on crackers or with vegetable sticks. Serve with low-fat and low-sodium crackers. Check labels.

For the microwave:

Place slivered almonds in a large (6-ounce) custard cup. Toast at high for 3 to 4 minutes or until almonds are brown, stirring every 2 minutes.

Treat a microwave browning dish with non-stick vegetable oil. Or for a more pronounced taste, add 1 teaspoon olive oil. Heat for 3 to 4 minutes at High. Add onion, garlic, mushrooms and thyme. Cook for 4 to 5 minutes, stirring every 2 minutes.

Proceed as with conventional recipe. Serve with low-fat and low-sodium crackers.

Sour lemon

Kristen Bilicki

I felt cooped up, and the humidity of the house closed in on me. I had an invitation to go outside to the open air. To clear my head of the worries and boredom that the confining walls surrounding me caused.

Instead, I chose to stay; maybe I had a certain amount of fear. After the long winter, maybe I felt out of place, going to the park, just to sit watching a group of guys playing basketball.

Yet, I know I was suffering from spring fever. My mind wandered; I longed to walk barefoot on the beach. I even bought a special bathing suit, hoping to induce 90-degree temperatures. Instead, I had to wait. What was I waiting for?

Everyone seemed to be getting in the mood for summer. Most people I see even have tans now.

I felt depressed, like I was somehow being left behind. The world continued to revolved, but I remained locked away.

I became fed up; my depression was beginning to become an annoyance. I wanted to be a part of the world. I wanted to see the greenness of the earth up close.

So I made the decision to take a drive out to the park. I figured that would be a good place to see the budding trees and the newly opened flowers.

It was 7 p.m., so the sun was beginning to set. It fell from the sky like a brilliant golden ball of fire.

I drove past a baseball game and parked by the basketball courts. There, I met my friend and went to sit at a picnic table. It was near a cluster of trees.

I tried to look for tiny green leaves, but the branches were still bare. Optimistically, at least there were plenty of budding dandelions -- that must be a sign of summer.

As I sat, a group of eight guys were playing a game of basketball. The eight split up into four groups of "one-on-one." I heard the cheers from the baseball game, and the patter of a jogger's fast steps.

Then, a mother pushed a stroller, trailed by three happily giggling blond-haired girls. Believe it or not, the American flag even blew proudly in front of me.

An occasional bug flew by (another sure sign of summer), and even though there was a strong breeze, the billowing white clouds seemed motionless. Through the trees, the sun made bright stripes along the green grass.

I felt content as I sat there. A police car even slowly made the rounds, adding to the security and peacefulness I felt.

So when my pale, sunless hands began to feel cold, I decided it was time to return to the still-air house. Maybe this time I'll leave a window open. Not to air it out, maybe I simply want to hear the giggles, the bouncing basketballs and the screams of the baseball fans.

Maybe then I could be warm, but the walls will not close me in this time.

Kristen Bilicki is a junior at Clarkston High School.

Winning expressions

Keirsten Deegan, 11, recently put her thoughts to paper and ended up with a first-place literature award in a statewide Parent Teacher Association Reflections contest.

A fifth-grade Bailey Lake Elementary School student, Keirsten wrote a story called "The Dragon Saver" for the theme, "Proud Expressions."

The story is about a boy named Nick who saved the dragons from the knights, said Keirsten.

"I like writing fantasy because you can make up more with fantasy," she said, adding that she enjoys writing a lot.

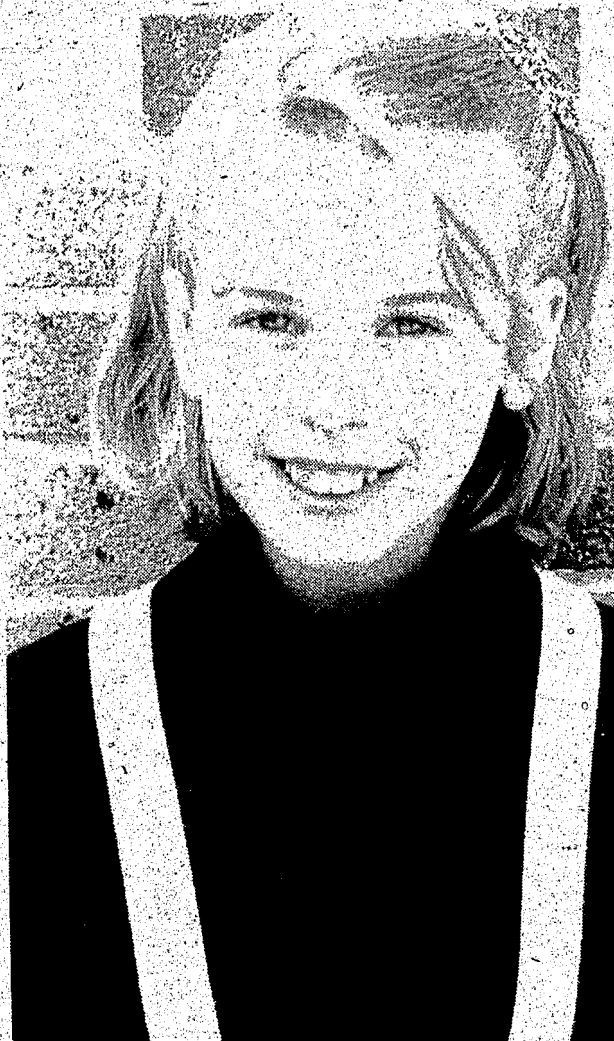

"It's fun. You can write whatever you want," she said. "I think it would be fun to be an author because I like writing."

However, her favorite subject at school is math, she said.

She is the daughter of Phil and Barbara Deegan of Mohawk Boulevard, Independence Township.

In her spare time, she enjoys swimming, writing and watching TV, particularly "The Cosby Show."

Poetry Corner

Eva Goins of Winell, Independence Township, wanted to share this Mother's Day poem with others. Her son, Wayne, a 1966 Clarkston High School graduate who now lives in Florida, wrote it for her a few years ago. Eva, a 46-year-resident of Clarkston, offered the following in explanation:

My son wrote this in 1986. His wife told me he brought it home for her to read and to tell him if it was all right to send.

The send me flowers, but he said he just wanted to let me know how he felt. I'm now 70 years old. I keep it in my Bible and enjoy reading it often.

Mrs. Eva Goins

Reflections of a Son

You gave me life; you gave me more.
You helped me through life's training door.
You taught me wrong; you taught me right.
You comforted me through long and sickly nights.
You taught me love; you taught me kindness.
A conscience I gained, not selfish blindness.
And through it all, you showed but cheer.
How secure I felt; there was no fear.
Now, fondly, I look back on days gone by.
Eyes filled with tears, I fight not to cry.
The words I know I seldom speak,
But I love you, Mom; you can't be beat.
Have a happy Mother's Day!

Wayne

WOMAN TO WOMAN

Betty Peoples is a registered nurse-practitioner in the field of family planning/gyn. She is the director of the Women's Clinic at the Community Health Care Center, Oxford. She sees patients there 4 days a week.

"Our primary concern is that health care be looked at as an asset, and to make sure that asset stays at the proper priority," she says. "I can't do much about the outward appearance. But come here and you will learn that a healthy body is part of your outward appearance."

"We are very anxious that women are very comfortable with their sexuality... We are sensitive of women's needs regardless of age," she says. Teens need one-time-only parental consent to be treated.

"The setting is a very warm, enticing environment; it's kind of a home-like setting," she says. During special Women's Days, fresh fruit and juices are served, and departing patients receive a long-stemmed carnation. It's pampering where you might least expect to find it. Peoples calls it treating "the wholeness of the woman."

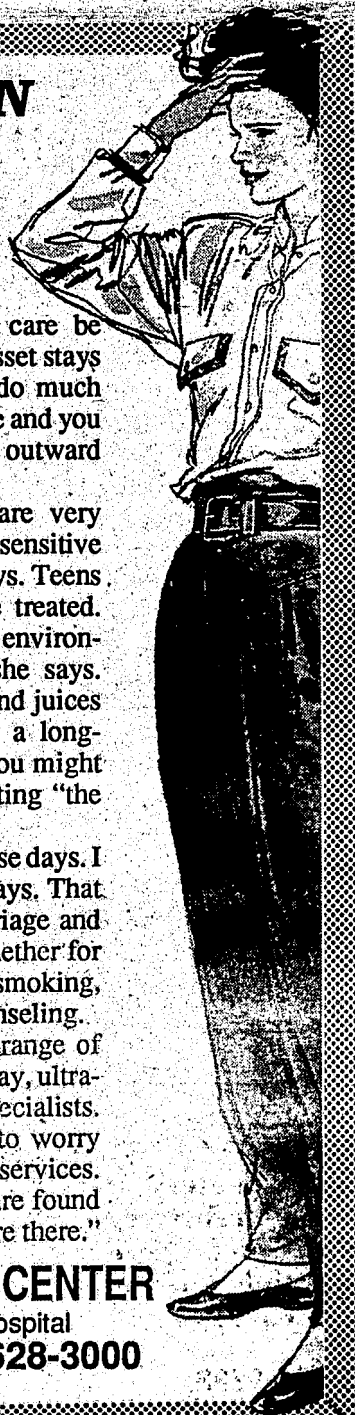

"The stress on women is tremendous these days. I really stress taking time for yourself," she says. That includes, in her book, balancing work, marriage and motherhood with taking care of yourself, whether for you that means diet, exercise, stopping smoking, lowering your cholesterol, or getting counseling.

The clinic, Peoples says, offers a full range of support services, including mammogram, x-ray, ultrasound, laboratory, counseling and various specialists.

"Once you're in here you don't have to worry about going out into the community for other services. They're all here... Once these (problems) are found you can go right around the corner and they're there."

Afternoon delight

A WINDSOCK with colorful streamers is the project at hand for Karen Emick. The after-school enrichment class she attends runs once a week for four weeks.

JOHN CHESOLEY concentrates on construction of his windsock, while Ian Louisigau (left) tries hard to distract him. The two attend afternoon enrichment classes once a week at North Sashabaw Elementary School on May-bee Road.

HOMEMADE ice cream sundaes are on the menu each week during the enrichment classes, aptly nicknamed the After School Ice Cream Shop. About a dozen students attend the classes each week to participate in arts and crafts and learn other creative skills.

Thirty-five students from Sashabaw entered along with many others from across the state, said teacher Dick Swartout. Three of the students who were honored earned excellence awards while

Bands are superior

Bands representing Clarkston High School, Junior High and Sashabaw Junior High are participating in the Michigan State Band and Orchestra Association State Festivals as a result of their First Division Ratings at the District Festivals in March.

On April 22, the CHS Jazz Ensemble earned a First Division Rating at the Regional Jazz Festival at Walled Lake Central High School.

Of the 17 bands participating at that site, the CHS band was one of two achieving firsts in all categories.

The CHS Wind Ensemble traveled to Livonia Clarenceville High School April 28 for the State Band and Orchestra Festival. Performing in Class B, the band earned a Second Division Rating.

On Saturday, May 6, Sashabaw Junior High was represented by the 9th Grade Band in Class A and the 8th Grade Band in Class C. Each earned a Second Division Rating under the direction of Doug Doty.

The Clarkston Junior High Bands performed at Farmington High School with the 9th Grade Wind Ensemble in Class A and the 8th Grade Symphonic Band in Class C, each earning First Division ratings directed by Cliff Chapman.

Clarkston ranks among the most accomplished instrumental music programs in the state based upon the number of bands participating at State Festivals and their superior performances.

Festival of the Arts a success with kids

Arts abounded in Andersonville Elementary on April 26.

A walk into one classroom revealed children with painted faces learning mime techniques from a professional troupe. In another, students learned folk dances originating in different countries. Down the hall, participants learned how to use liquid embroidery to transfer colorful designs onto clothing.

Festival of the Arts Day at Andersonville Elementary was a highly organized fair held in hopes of introducing students to the world of fine arts.

Each student took part in three arts sessions and attended two assemblies, which featured guests from various artistic fields.

After choosing areas of interest, the students were given colored coded tags to help them find their way to the classroom featuring their event.

Large banners hung outside each classroom, advertising what was happening inside; most included the name of the guest artist for the event as well.

The artistic guests, all volunteers, paraded for the appreciative students at the end of the stimulating and highly entertaining Festival of the Arts Day.

Snowplow Road-eo warms up drivers

In the chilly air surrounding the Oakland County Road Commission's Pontiac facility April 29, 20 of the commission's most skillful drivers raced each other and the clock in full-sized winter maintenance trucks equipped with ten-foot-wide snow plow blades.

The point was not speed, nor was it a display of machismo, it was part of the preparation to select three teams who could demonstrate outstanding safety skills in the operation of ten-foot-tall multi-ton snowplows.

Billed as the "Snowplow Road-eo", the competition has been ongoing in road agencies and public works agencies throughout southeastern Michigan.

On May 17, teams from all participating public agencies will gather to prove which team is the safest and most skillful.

Among the members on the Oakland County Road Commission team are B.J. Williams of Clarkston, Tom McArdle of Clarkston and Steve Ashley of Clarkston.

Friend to Friend

'I am overweight'

Dear Friend to Friend:

I am in the fifth grade, and I am overweight. People look at me and call me names. Even my brother calls me names. I have tried to lose weight. I also suck my thumb.

When I try to make friends they won't take me for what I am. When I make a friend, they're too embarrassed to play with me. They say, "I am not his friend," and they call me names too.

I have tried to diet for a long time. I need advice.

Overweight and Embarrassed:

It is painful to be overweight and to be teased by others. This is definitely not an easy problem to handle. We think you have a lot of courage to write us for advice.

We have a couple of suggestions that we hope will help you. The first one has to do with dealing with the problem right now. It is likely you have already been told to ignore people who tease you or call you names and we know that it is hard to do - even for teenagers.

The best way, however, to ignore others who embarrass you is to like yourself and think well of yourself. How can you do this? By knowing one or more ways in which you are special.

Learn what your special talents, skills and abilities are. If you don't think of any, ask a trusted adult or one of your parents if they can tell you what you are good at.

If you really don't think you have any, develop some. You could practice to be a good reader, speller, or math student.

Or you could practice to be better than most kids at some sport or activity; or you could learn a musical instrument, or learn more about some special topic, such as baseball cards, stamp collecting, a favorite animal.

Or you could practice just being a friendly, helpful person who is kind to others or a person who has a nice smile and a good sense of humor.

Having a special skill or talent will help you to feel good about yourself - no matter what others say or think about you.

The second suggestion we have is that you continue to work hard at losing some weight. While people should like you for who you are, you will get to know more people if you drop a few pounds.

The best way to start doing this is not by going on a diet but by setting some realistic goals (perhaps to lose a pound a month) and by changing your eating and exercise habits.

Since you are only in the fifth grade, you should be happy to hear that you will probably grow several inches in the next two or three years that will help you look slimmer.

Dear Friend to Friend:

I was just asked to the prom, and I was extremely excited. Now, I'm not because my parents don't agree with the plans my date has suggested.

I see my parents' point of view but I feel like I'm going to spoil the entire night for my date. I don't want to do that, obviously.

What do I say to my date so he won't be angry with me? And why do I feel guilty?

Can't Help It

Dear Can't Help It:

Prom creates many conflicts for people every year. The conflicts range from what dress or tux to wear to whether or not to rent a limo to what to do after the prom.

The nature of conflict is that you are caught between two opposing forces. You can't please both sides, so the big word is Compromise.

If you agree with (or at least see) your parents point of view, then you have no choice but to discuss it with your date.

You may be surprised at the response. After all, he probably doesn't want to spoil the night for you. It's not just his prom; it's yours, too.

You should not have to work out this kind of problem all by yourself. Why do you feel so guilty? Our guess would be that you like to please others, and when you can't readily go along with others you feel bad. Consider yourself once and a while. And, by all means, have fun at Your prom.

Dear Friend to Friend:

I'm a student from Clarkston, and I recently spent a weekend at PIP-Fest (Partners in Prevention). The experience was so beneficial to me that I wanted to share it.

The purpose of the weekend was to create a safe, accepting and supportive environment in which to share your feelings and deal with issues in your life.

Each person was a part of two groups of people. The large group was for information purposes, with speakers, mimes and skits dealing with feelings and relationships.

The neat thing about the smaller groups was that we all started out strangers, but through this weekend we all became such good friends because we could feel safe in expressing our feelings.

We could cry and laugh and feel for each other. We could let down our masks and be ourselves and feel support instead of judgment.

It was good to feel accepted for who I am without having to put on a show for other people. Even though this was an unrealistic environment, it had a positive influence on how I view myself and others.

I would like to thank Lake Orion Schools for letting Clarkston be a part of this great experience, and I hope that the next PIP-Fest is taken advantage of by more Clarkston people.

Pepped-Up PIP-er

Dear PIP-er:

It was nice to hear from you about your uplifting experience. It certainly sounds like it had a very positive impact on your life.

We hope your letter will encourage other students to become involved in future PIP-Fests.

Friend to Friend is provided by a panel of Clarkston High School students working under AWARE, a community organization dedicated to action and education against substance abuse. Some of the questions are actual letters, while others are formulated by the panel from real-life problems.

Let us show you our beautiful collection of contemporary wedding stationery. You can select your complete paper trousseau from a wide variety of styles in every price range.

Children see leader puppy in action

Dressed in an eye-catching forest green jacket complete with plenty of colorful patches, a dog named Motion caused quite a commotion in Clarkston Elementary recently.

Owner Carol Thompson of Independence Township, brought the five-month-old black labrador retriever to school to demonstrate the abilities of seeing-eye dogs.

Whenever the kids had the chance, they eagerly swarmed around the puppy in hopes of petting or playing with him.

Thompson picked up Motion in January from the Leader Dog School for the Blind in Rochester. He will return there when he's a year old for additional training and evaluation.

While under Thompson's care, Motion will learn what it needs to know to become a competent leader dog. Walking near traffic, learning different sounds and obeying voice commands are all a part of the animal's training, Thompson told a group of second-grade students at Clarkston Elementary during her presentation May 4.

"I'll teach him to be friendly and not afraid," she said of her long walks with the dog along the roadside, in crowded areas and anywhere else it may have to go with a blind person.

Motion is the fifth leader-dog candidate to stay with the Thompsons. Three of the previous four graduated and now assist a blind person, she said.

"It's a nice program," Thompson said of the leader dog school in Rochester. "They really need the volunteer families to raise puppies."

NEVER NEVER LAND has Wendy, (Aleesha Swett, right) and John (Jeremy Lafferty) saying their prayers.

Photos by Sandra G. Conten

JUSTIN NELSON as Peter Pan "just wants to crow" about his Grandparent's Day performance.

Lost boys (and girls)?

AARON CHAMBERLAIN has this performance under his hat.

THE LOST BOYS in Peter Pan flanked by Bryan Paolucci (left) have Kimberly Bartlett (center) and Matt Stockwell who are not masquerading as a male. She's pretending.
