WET WEATHER forces pedestrians to seek cover Monday in downtown Clarkston. According to the National Weather Service in Flint, 1.13 inches of rain fell Monday raising the month's precipitation total to 3.61 inches. Even with all of the wet weather recently, the year-to-date total precipitation remains below normal by a tenth of an inch. A 30-day outlook by the weather service predicts warmer and drier than normal conditions.

Man charged in stabbing death

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A Grand Rapids man was charged with open murder June 16 in the stabbing death of 19-year-old Patrick Walsh of Springfield Township, less than a week after the brutal slaying occurred.

Police arrested Hezekiah Pulphus Jr., 20, of Grand Rapids after investigating a tip received through the Silent Observer program. The program was set up to receive anonymous tips from witnesses in exchange for a reward if the suspect is convicted in the crime.

Pulphus was arrested Thursday, June 15, at 5:30 p.m. and was arraigned the following morning before 61st District Court Judge Joel Hoekstra on the open murder charge. He was denied bond and is now being held in the Kent County Jail pending a June 27 preliminary hearing. Hoekstra will preside over the preliminary exam at 1:30 p.m.

Pulphus is a second felony offender, according to Grand Rapids police reports, which means that he has previously been convicted of a prior felony.

He is accused of fatally stabbing Walsh early on the morning of June 9 outside of a Stop-N-Go convenience store, where Walsh has stopped on his way to work. Walsh's family members had mixed feelings upon hearing of the arrest.

"It's a great relief," said his mother, Linda Lapinski, an Ellis Road, Springfield Township resident, and a former employee of The Clarkston News.

"But I'm also very upset that he's done something to be able to get out of jail (after his first felony conviction)," she added.

"That alarms me. The justice department has to do something to prevent that from happening," Lapinski said.

Walsh, a 1987 Clarkston High School graduate, attended Grand Valley State University in Allendale as a student of liberal arts and Russian.

His school term had ended, and he was living off-campus. He worked at the Vie de France bakery, where he was headed early on the morning of June 9.

According to reports at the Grand Rapids Police Department, someone at a gas station across from the Stop-N-Go at the corner of Michigan Street and College Avenue called the convenience store to warn of four suspicious looking black males around Walsh's car.

School cuts $1.6 million

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston students will return to school next fall with fewer instructors and programs, with pay-to-play athletics and activities, and with $1.5 million less in state aid as a result of the June 12 school election.

Voters turned down an opportunity to override the automatic Headlee tax rollback that would have allowed the district to collect the full 38.83 mills approved by voters in the June 1988 election.

Instead, the millage rate was rolled back, and 34.946 mills will be levied against property owners (34.946 mills is $34.95 for every $1,000 in assessed property valuation).

The Headlee Amendment automatically rolls back the millage rate whenever property values increase at a

Burro case to circuit court

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The man charged in the death of a Springfield Township burro was bound over to Oakland Circuit Court June 13.

Ronald Keen 48, of Andersonville Road, Springfield Township, appeared before Judge Gerald McNally in 52nd District Court, Independence Township, June 13.

Keen is to appear before Judge Jessica Cooper June 27 for trial on charges of malicious destruction of property over $100 and animal cruelty.

The charge of malicious injury to property is a felony and carries a maximum $2,000 fine and up to four years in prison. Cruelty to animals is a misdemeanor and carries a minimum sentence of 90 days and a $500 fine.

Attorney for Ronald Keen, Micheal Reeds of Walled Lake, would not comment on the case.

"This is only a preliminary matter at this time, and I don't make comments -- some attorneys do, but I won't," said Reeds.

Keen was charged with the crimes when the Michigan Humane Society investigated a complaint of neglected animals on the Keen property and confiscated the burro as a result of the investigation.

The burro, named "Milton Burro," by humane society workers, died five days later of malnutrition.

The case attracted nationwide attention because the burro was adopted under a Federal Bureau of Land Management program.

Election day political signs anger candidate

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

One Clarkston school board candidate was upset with the way signs were displayed by some of the other candidates during the June 12 school election.

Candidate Doreen Wright, who lost her bid for one of the two open seats on the school board, took pictures and protested to Independence Township officials about the signs of Robert Wyatt and Paul VanKlaveren. VanKlaveren won a seat on the board; Wyatt did not.

"I cannot believe the flagrant disregard of (sign) ordinances," said Doreen Wright, after the election.

Wright, who said she took black and white photos of the signs with a 35 millimeter camera, offered to let The Clarkston News staff see them.

Pollworkers said she also confiscated signs at some polling places.

A township ordinance governs the placement of political campaign signs.

Ordinance Enforcement Officer Don Phillips said, "The township ordinance states you cannot put political signs on public property announcing the candidacy of person or issues to be voted upon. The signs may be placed on private property but must be removed within 14 days of the election."

Wright placed a call to the office to complain that Wyatt's signs were on public property, said Phillips.

"I left a copy of the sign ordinance with Mr. Wyatt's wife, and I received a phone call from Mr. Wyatt apologizing for his overzealous workers," said Phillips.

Phillips said for the next election a copy of the sign ordinance probably would be sent to all candidates.

Still, Wright was upset. It's up to the candidates to obey laws, and no political signs should be placed on public property, she said.

"I own that public property," Wright said. "Voters expect a degree of responsibility from these people."

Parade preparation

It's time to pull out your red, white and blue attire in preparation for this year's Independence Day parade in the Village of Clarkston.

The theme for this year's parade is Frontiers of Old and New and is sponsored by the Independence Township Firefighters Association.

The parade will run from the parking lot of Clarkston Junior High on Waldon Road, west on Church Street to Main Street, north on Main through the Village of Clarkston to Miller Road, west on Miller where it will disperse.

Any organizations, schools, individuals or groups wishing to participate in the parade with bands, clowns, floats, vehicles, decorated bikes, etc. can contact the fire department at 625-1924 and be placed on a list for the parade.

Assembly will take place at 8:45 a.m. on Tuesday, July 4, at the Clarkston Junior High School in the parking lot.

Corrections

Beverly Raby's name was misspelled in a What's New In Business article that appeared in last week's edition.

In last week's sports story about Independence Township resident Don Lindsey, it should have said he defeated the University of Michigan 5-0 instead of losing to the Wolverines.

Marilyn Allyn's name was misspelled in last week's Clarkston News.

Group to raise funds for better public education

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Residents interested in better schooling gathered at Deer Lake Racquet Club last week to formally discuss the beginnings of the Clarkston Foundation for Public Education.

As Gary Haner, superintendent for Clarkston Community Schools, explained to the 23 people attending the breakfast meeting, talk of starting a foundation has been around a long time.

"This morning is a transitional culmination to action that started a year ago when I interviewed for Milford's position," he said, referring to Milford Mason, former superintendent.

"Our (the school board and himself) mutual goal as we interviewed that day was that Clarkston would support and benefit from a foundation," he said.

After a week on the job, others began discussing with Haner the possibility of forming a foundation to raise money from the private sector for schooling.

On June 15, those plans formally got underway with the first meeting. But much planning had gone on before that time.

BILL BLIESATH, a board member for the Clarkston Foundation for Public Education, speaks to a group of concerned residents at Deer Lake Racquet Club June 15.

"We want to get people involved. We will provide a vehicle for businesses to get involved in schools. It's hard for them."

Bill Bliesath

Three members of a foundation set up for Waterford schools, along with 11 area residents or concerned citizens, formed an organizational group to help the Clarkston foundation get off the ground.

The 11 who made up organizational group are: former teacher Virginia Walter, school board president Janet Thomas, former board member Stephen Werner, high school coach Dan Fife, restaurateur Don Borngesser, historical society president Larry Gilleland, teacher Tom Brown, secretary Connie Baumann, school publicist Susan Maciak, township supervisor Frank Ronk, and Haner.

Bob Coats, Tim Patterson and Ron Arnold were the three consultants from the Waterford foundation in attendance.

Sashabaw Junior High School principal Dave

Reschke was the administrative liaison. He spoke highly of the volunteers who attended the meeting.

"I'm so proud of Clarkston to see this group (here)," he said. "It's neat to live in a community where there is so much involvement."

The threesome from Waterford schools provided the Clarkston group with an idea of what they need to do in the coming weeks and months ahead to make the foundation successful.

Arnold warned the audience it shouldn't tackle more than it could handle, even though it may have the urge to do so.

"You have to find an identity," he said. "You can't serve all purposes."

Nine people were selected to serve on the board for the Clarkston foundation. One of those members is Bill Bliesath. He explained the bylaws of the organization and why he decided to join.

"The purpose (of the foundation) in my mind is to enhance the school system," he said. "To support the schools in areas that are hard to support."

Such areas as arts and sciences, which are usually cut first when a millage request fails, are where the foundation would help out financially, Bliesath said.

One way to raise funds for schooling is through an annual golf outing such as the one the Waterford foundation sponsors, Coats said. It's the biggest fundraiser of the year for their organization.

Also, the Clarkston foundation provides an avenue for concerned business people to use should they want to financially help the school system.

"We want to get people involved," said Bliesath.

"We will provide a vehicle for businesses to get involved in schools. It's hard for them (to get involved)."

In order to set the ground rules for the organization, the next meeting -- for the nine board members only -- will be 7:30 a.m. July 14 in the Independence Township Annex.

Besides Bliesath, the other eight board members are: Kim Beattie, Clarence Catallo, Roger Diederich, Barbara Johns, Robert Olsen, James O'Neill, Jean Saile and Martha Wheeler.

School board adopts $21.5 million budget after proposal fails

The budget hearing for Clarkston schools Monday, June 12, was speckled with comments of "if" from school finance director, William Jackson.

Jackson presented the budget in different variations: "If the Headlee override passes, ... " and, "If the override doesn't pass, ..."

With his presentation at 7 p.m., Jackson didn't yet know the results of the annual school election. By 10 p.m. there was no longer any doubt; the results from the polls were in, and the Headlee override failed 3,198 to 2,196. The board voted unanimously to adopt the smaller of the two budget versions, a $21.5 million budget.

Voters opted not to override the Headlee Amendment, which automatically rolls back the millage rate whenever property values at a rate higher than that of inflation.

Since the state's school funding formula is tied to the millage rate, Clarkston school district will receive $1.5 million less from the state for the 1989-90 school year than it received last year.

The budget for 1989-90 includes many cuts and is as follows:

REVENUES:
~ Local	$18,190,069
~ State	2,428,524*
~ Federal	492,326
~ Other	350,362
Total:	21,461,281

*The Headlee rollback as it affects the budget for '89-'90. State revenues for the current '88-'89 school year were $3,905,080.

EXPENDITURES:
~ Instruction	$14,031,483
~ Support Services	8,202,850
~ Community Service	1,550
~ Capital Outlays	225,308
~ Transfers and Other	618,895
Program Reduction:	(1,609,398) +
Total:	21,470,688

FUND BALANCE:

'Where else but Clarkston'

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston-News Staff Writer

When Freda Mason's cousins from Flint came to visit last week, they all got a big surprise.

"My cousin from Flint looked out the window and saw two baby goats going by on a leash," said Freda, a Northview Drive, Independence Township, resident.

"I thought, 'Oh, they must be dogs,'" said Freda, as she related her story to The Clarkston News. She said she didn't think her cousins, Don and Marge Walz of Flint, knew much about farm animals because they've lived in a city all of their lives.

"I'm 80, and I move slowly," said Freda. "I said, 'Wait 'til I get to the window.' I thought it must be Dobermans with long legs."

But when Freda got to the window, she was shocked to find goats being led on a leash by two little girls.

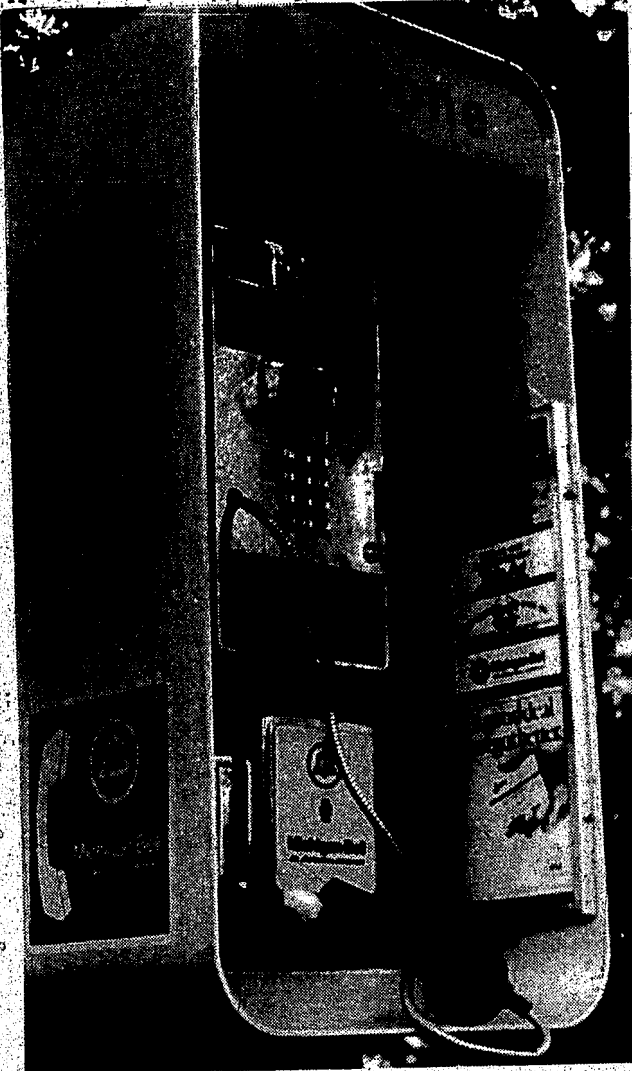

The goats "were stepping right along just like they knew they were going some place," said Freda. "I thought I would split. The people from Flint were tickled."

The baby goats were "soft-coated wheaten," said Freda, and she later learned from neighbor children that the goats and the children leading them lived on a farm on Perry Lake Road.

"That's the first time I've ever seen goats on a leash," said Freda. "You can imagine how surprised my cousin and her husband were, living in Flint. ... And they're not much surprised by anything."

Freda has lived on Northview for eight years, and she usually only sees "fast cars" when she looks out the window, she said, adding that the goats were so small that Freda's dog, Bridget, would have weighed more than they.

"It was a beautiful sight and a refreshing sight, too," she said. "My cousin said, 'Where else but in Clarkston could this happen?'"

MA BELL took a beating at the corners of Main and Washington streets in Clarkston sometime during the night of June 13. Defeat means $1.6 million cut rate higher than the rate of inflation. Since the state aid formula for school districts is partially tied to the millage rate of local districts, the state will contribute $1.5 million less to Clarkston in 1989-90.

Clarkston officials were saddened by the election results.

"It's tough cutting people -- it's tough on the children," said Janet Thomas, president of the school board.

The district will be basic, she said. "Additional dollars do always not mean quality education. We have administrators and staff who do a very good job."

William Jackson, director of business services for Clarkston schools, said more people could have voted. Last year, 1,600 more voters turned out for the school election.

The loss of $1.5 million of state money will cut deeply into Clarkston's programs, and Clarkston's millage rate is one of the lowest in Oakland County, he said. Only South Lyon has a lower rate.

"Holly is three mills above us; all the surrounding districts are above us," Jackson said.

In early April, the school board approved $1.6 million in cuts in case the override was not approved by voters.

Program and support services cut from the 1989-90 school year include special education aides, media professionals, social workers and counselors. The elementary keyboarding and foreign language programs will be eliminated. The gifted, music and physical education programs will be reduced.

SEARCH, the substance abuse program at Clarkston High School, will be eliminated.

In non-personnel areas, reductions are in retirement incentives, testing programs, junior high camping, thinking skills programs, administrative costs, substitute teachers and in-service expenses. The allocation for new textbooks will be cut in half.

In addition, costs will be reduced by eight percent for per-pupil building allocations, affecting teacher and student supplies. District insurance will be reduced from $4 to $2 million.

Under non-academic reductions, a junior-high lunch room supervisor's position will be eliminated, as will the high school community service coordinator position. There will be fewer department heads, media aides, grounds and transportation employees.

The athletic budget will be reduced by 50 percent, so athletes will have to pay a fee to play on a team.

Others will be required to pay a fee to participate in clubs, extra-curricular activities not part of academics.

Instructional staff will be cut by five elementary teachers, six and one-half junior high teachers and five high school teachers.

Voters say no to new high school

Students and faculty at Clarkston High School will continue to operate with the present building since voters turned down a $68.8 million bond issue June 12 that would have funded a new high school, new elementary school and additions at junior high and elementary levels.

The board plans to ask voters to approve another bond issue some time in the future, but it could be months before a date is set, said Janet Thomas, president of the Clarkston Community Board of Education.

"There is no question there is need for additional space in the district," said Thomas.

The present high school built about 1960 was originally intended for 1,000 students. Today it houses about 1,400.

There is no strategy yet on presenting it to voters, said Thomas.

Still swaying

Julie Campe

The room is shaking again. My computer desk is swaying, and the rose from Linda Andress that's sitting on my desk is vibrating. Another car in Rudy's parking lot must have hit our building. It used to be louder when my office was downstairs. The thud of some car cracking into the brick wall was always a shock.

Now that we're on the top floor, the building seems to sway a little more, but the noise is gone. I wonder how much this old building can take?

I guess cars haven't been running into it for too long. Before Rudy's lot was there, a building stood. The building burned down, and Rudy's lot was born, according to local legend.

Before that, there weren't many cars, just horses and buggies. I doubt many horses ran into the wall.

I wonder what stories this building could tell. Charles Gailbraith of Overlook, Clarkston, was in the other day to tell us about his new grandchildren -- 16 pounds of triplets.

While he was up here, he looked out the top floor windows and into the windows across the street above the Village Bakeshop.

Seems he used to work in an office up there when he was employed with the telephone company. Worked there for years.

It was an odd place for a phone office, but the old office back on Washington Street burned, he said, and the phone company needed an office quickly. All the time he worked there, nothing was in the top floor of this building.

Louise McLentock was in the other day, too, to identify photos of her classmates, who recently held a Clarkston High School class reunion for graduates of more than 50 years ago. She, too, remembers the top floor of this building.

Only she remembers it being used as a meeting hall. When she was a little girl, it was big and bare and was the top floor of Walter's Dry Goods store.

It must have been some dry goods store. Virginia Walter who lives in Clarkston has described the building to us as it looked when it belonged to her husband's family -- even before her time.

It was like a grocery store and contained other items, as well. The main floor displayed all the items, and other things were stored on the bottom floor.

Sometimes, if I'm flipping through the pages of the Clarkston Community Historical Society's "Heritage Book" or hearing some tale of times gone by, I almost think I can see the way it was back then.

The people were probably much the same as they are today, only dressed differently. Some probably stopped in for one little errand and then stayed to chat a while. Some probably complained about the kids being out of school, and why can't those youngsters work and stay out of trouble anyway?

Maybe a few talked about the illness of a neighbor, and they all probably made plans to take food over to the house.

Every once in a while, one might have come in and told a few jokes, and he probably got the entire store laughing.

Maybe when the people were finished with their errands, they went across the street to the apothecary and had a soda or coffee.

Perhaps they watched as buggy drivers pulled up alongside the building. They probably didn't even take note when the horses stopped a few feet from the bricks, without even a nose near the wall.

Letters to the Editor

Shooting students with ballots here

It confuses and saddens me. In China, the army, directed by government officials, shoots students with bullets. In Clarkston and Michigan, the citizens, by their free choice, and elected officials shoot students with ballots.

In both cases, all citizens lose, especially the defenseless students.

"When will we ever learn?"

Robert D. Walters

Think of them as your grandchildren

This letter is addressed to the Clarkston-area Tough Seniors.

"Congratulations to the Clarkston-area senior citizens" (as well as those voters who kept their heads in the sand). You sure showed the children of Clarkston how much they mean to you.

Another "congratulations" to the seniors whose children are grown and are raising their children.

Question #1: Who do you think was paying for the education of your children? Answer: Well, the property owners of course.

Question #2: Who comprised that group of property owners? Answer: Yourselves and seniors.

Question #3: Did those seniors whine and complain about their taxes? Answer: NO! They were mature enough to realize that each generation has an obligation to support the local school district.

Question #4: Who do you think is paying for your grandchildren's education? Answer: The property owners, of course. If it would help, perhaps you should think of the children of Clarkston as your grandchildren.

Would you be willing to deny them a sound and proper education? I certainly hope not!

Whether they live in the school district or not, would they be proud of how you voted? I think not.

The bottom line is the future is in our children and their education. Where would you and your children be today if your elders had the same narrow-minded tunnel vision that you are displaying?

Beef big business

Beef is back. That's good news news to those of us who enjoy eating beef, whether it's lean, tender steak; a convenient, flavorful roast; or a burger with all the trimmings. It's also good news to those of us who raise cattle.

Beef is big business. In Michigan, cash receipts from cattle and calves totaled $259 million in 1988.

And the dairy industry is an important part of the beef industry. Twenty percent of all beef consumed in the U.S. comes from dairy cattle, and on average, dairymen's income from beef sales can amount to about 10 percent of their income from milk sales.

There's an important reason why beef is back. Beef producers became part of a new era in the beef industry on Oct. 1, 1986, when the national beef checkoff program began.

Through the checkoff, beef producers invest $1 per head of cattle sales in a program which funds beef promotion, education and research at both the national and state levels.

June 27, 1989 marks the 1,000th day of the national beef checkoff program - 1,000 days of solid progress for us in the beef industry. Both personally and as part of a progressive cattle industry, I'm proud of this progress.

Michigan Beef Industry Commission

Jim's Jottings

Thanks, Wolverines!

Thanks, Red Wings!

Thanks, Pistons!

Now, let's get back to normal sleeping hours. Let the strain of hopeful anticipation ebb. Let's find something else to talk about. And, let's hope the Tigers don't change their ways and start winning.

I'm a nut about sports. I get all worked up with frustration when "my guy (gal)" doesn't do what I think they should at the time. When the contests are in the evening, my nerves don't let me get to sleep for two hours.

I say to myself, "Self, the outcome doesn't mean anything to you. Why get involved? The world will not be better or worse if the other guy wins."

Self doesn't believe it. Self is not controlled by reason.

I've never been to a horse race, but when the Kentucky Derby is run, I get as intense in those two minutes as I did when a downtown fire threatened our office.

Flicking through the tv channels on a weekend break from the lawn has brought volleyball and soccer into our living room. Games from across the sea. I know nothing of the scoring, players, or rules, yet I immediately pick a team I want to win and there I go... the stomach tightens, eyes stare, emotions show.

Why? For gosh sakes why do I look at a tennis match? I can't stand car races. Round and round, in and out, same names week after week... come on, A. J.

I do have a love of one sport above all the rest. Baseball. I turn on the Tigers whenever. Sometimes I have the Tigers on radios in two rooms of the house and on tv in the middle room. Even when they're having a lousy season, like right now, I pick them up on PASS, Channel 4 and WJR.

However, because they are at the bottom of the pack, I can walk away. It is my hope the Tiger travails will bring an end to the sports magnetism I have previously been unable to control.

If I can put music, the lawn, reading or sleep ahead of my favorite sport there is hope I can persuade self to shut down rugby, diving, pole vaulting, and cricket.

To do this the Tigers have to continue losing. At this point there appears to be little danger of their starting a winning streak of more than one game. Sparky's mirror he used to get winning seasons the last couple years is broken.

So is Trammel and Morris. When the best people are injured or traded, and the manager is exhausted, the president is retiring, and Ernie Harwell shows signs of losing enthusiasm in his voice it's time for me to learn to live without them.

And, by golly I'm going to. What's that? You say there's a double header set for Saturday afternoon? Aw, well, I'll get to the book and lawn Sunday.

Editor's note: The family of Patrick Walsh wanted to share the following poem after Patrick's death.

A Creed

By Edwin Markham, from
"The Best Loved Poems of the American People"

There is a destiny that makes us brothers;
None goes his way alone;
All that we send into the lives of others comes back into our own.

I care not what his temples or his creeds,
One thing holds firm and fast -- that into his fateful heap of days and deeds
The soul of man is cast.

Thank you, all

Heartfelt thanks to all who have offered to our family: prayer, cards, flowers, food, kindest of words, contributions to the Patrick Walsh Memorial Fund and most importantly their presence through this, our hardest of times.

Thanks especially to the ladies at St. Daniel Catholic Church for the wonderful luncheon; thanks to Harold and Norma Goyette; and thanks to Father Charles Cushing for the beautiful eulogy for Patrick.

We all give you thanks.

Thanks to senior party chairs

Mike and I would like to publicly thank the following committee chairpersons and co-chairpersons.

The hard work, extra time and energy expended by the following persons, as well as by their committee people, resulted in a successful Post Graduation All Night Party for the Class of 1989 at Deer Lake Racquet Club June 7 and 8.

All we had to do was watch the kids, and we knew we'd accomplished what we had started out to do. Your children, as well as the rest of the class of 1989, appreciated the memorable last class function.

Thank you, Dave Larkin and Bill Billig, clean up committee co-chairpersons; Patsy and Jim Carlson, door prize committee co-chairpersons; Marianne Gaulin, entertainment committee chairperson.

And thanks to Maureen Oppmann, favors committee chairperson; Elaine Billig and Carol Ranta, publicity co-chairpersons; Geri Allison and Kathay Chinavare, refreshment committee co-chairpersons; and Lew Allison, treasurer.

Additionally, our thanks to Phyllis Choops and Pat Kurz, senior dinner co-chairpersons, for the fabulous night had by those students in attendance at the Senior Dinner held at Spring Lake Country Club June 4.

And once again, thank you Deer Lake Racquet Club and Spring Lake Country Club for allowing us to use your facilities.

Growing up

Jim
Fitzgerald

"Do you know my father?" the little girl asked. I didn't even know her. And now I can't stop thinking about her. My two youngest grandchildren, Tricia and Emily, and I had been playing on the swings in the park next to my apartment building. But Emily left, and I had only one kid to push. So Tricia invited - commanded, really, as is her style - the little girl and her littler sister to join us.

"Hey, hey, my grandpa will push you," Tricia promised.

Emily's departure is another thing I'm still thinking about, two weeks later. It was a first, a milestone, and it caused a little twinge in my psyche. She simply said, "I'm going in now" and walked away toward the high-rise where she knew how to smile her way past the doorman and get on the elevator and go up 26 floors all by herself.

Emily was barely 1 when I began taking her to that park, and she was cautious to never stray far from my touch. She even insisted I accompany her down the slide, prompting discourteous giggles from passersby. But Emily is now an elderly 7, finally tall enough to reach the top row of elevator buttons, and doesn't even need me to accompany her back to my high-rise home.

So it begins. Another little girl is growing away from me. Two daughters did it, and two other granddaughters. Emily is already planning her wedding. It makes me feel old and disgustingly sorry for myself.

For Tricia, many polite words

But there is still Tricia, 3. It will be a long time before Tricia can reach the elevator button for the 26th floor, and all I have to worry about is stopping her from climbing up the outside of the building.

Tricia is the type of child who inspires euphemisms from family acquaintances. Speaking carefully, after being exposed to Tricia for a few minutes, they say she certainly is "independent" or "active" or "rambunctious" or "spunky" or "high-spirited."

"I've heard polite people come up with a hundred different nice ways of saying Tricia is a stubborn little brat," her mother told me.

That's a little harsh, as harried mothers sometimes tend to be. Tricia is mostly lovable and delightful. Her only real problem seems to be that Tricia is the only one who knows that a vote was taken and she was elected boss of the world.

Tricia always insists that I get down on the floor and join her in playing with her large collection of Little People dolls and their miniature cars, airplanes, homes and furniture. This could be fun, even for an old poop, except every time I dare take an active role in the fantasy, Tricia gives me a scornful look. She says I'm doing it wrong, and shows me how to do it right. And when I do it right, Tricia says she's changed her mind and I'm doing it wrong.

The kids doesn't want a playmate, she wants an adoring spectator (Tricia takes many bows) and when I'm not applauding her, I'm following her orders to fetch whatever is out of her reach. The only time I remember impressing Tricia with my playfulness was when I hung two long, skinny strips of Play-Doh from inside my nose. And that rare feeling of being appreciated lasted only until I had to exhale.

Feeling foolish by the swings

Tricia was in her dictator mode that day in the park when she demanded that I give swing pushes to two little girls we'd never seen before. I obeyed, and my conversation with the older girl - probably around 7 - quickly made me feel foolish for feeling sorry for myself just because Emily was suddenly big enough to tackle a high-rise without my guidance.

There may have been no basis for my dismay, absolutely no good reason for the sudden sick feeling in my stomach. But I couldn't help it. The little girl said something that reminded me of the horrifying articles that appear in the newspaper almost every damn day. The articles about the abused children of single mothers.

After telling me she lived with her mother, the little girls asked, "Do you know my father?"

And when I answered no, she said:

"Neither do I."

The Roads We Travel

Automation on the way

Brent
Bair

Our roads are becoming more congested due to the fact that the volumes of traffic to use the roads is exceeding the capacity of those roads.

So how is capacity determined? Just how many cars can a lane of roadway handle in one hour? Why not just get the traffic moving much faster so that you get that many more vehicles through an area in an hour?

If you look at the traffic engineering textbooks, you find that the optimal speed for moving traffic on a lane of roadway to get the highest number of vehicles through an area is about 32 mph.

So why not just increase the speed and get even more through? Because it is important to maintain a safe stopping distance between vehicles, and as you increase the speed that distance also increases. At 32 MPH, it is theoretically possible to move about 2,000 vehicles per hour on one lane of pavement. Any faster or slower, and the number is less than 2,000.

In reality, however, we move more than 2,000 vehicles an hour on some of our major roads. How is that possible? Because people frequently follow the car ahead much too closely for the speed involved. This also partially explains why we have as many rear-end accidents as we do.

Obviously, if we could figure out a way of safely running vehicles very close together at high speeds we would do a lot to solve some of our road capacity problems. Actually, there is ongoing research in this area. In the USA, the attention is being directed at special guideway systems. In Europe, the emphasis is being placed on something called "automatic chauffeuring." Both approaches fall under the general title of Automated Highway Systems (AHS).

With the fixed guideway approach currently being researched by the Federal Highway Administration, privately owned, specially equipped automobiles would be capable of operating in a dual mode.

Manual control would be used in reaching a fixed guideway. Once the vehicle reaches the guideway, automatic controls would take over, and the vehicle would be transported on a pallet-type system, either individually or in "trains," to an exit point close to the final destination.

While on the guideway, two-way communications would be maintained with the AHS command center, thus allowing for adjustments in spacing, speed, etc.

The European "automatic chauffeuring" would involve sophisticated monitoring and control systems that would operate the vehicle even on conventional roads, although those roads would have to be equipped with special sensing and transmitting equipment.

This system would be so sophisticated that it could even function on roads where not all the vehicles are specially equipped and thus are being operated in the usual manual manner we are used to.

Obviously, this would be several generations of technology beyond the cruise control and collision avoidance systems that are available today, but there are estimates that suggest that this advanced system could be available as early as the year 2000.

The traffic improvement advantages of both systems are similar, and some of those advantages are as follows:

1. Close consistent vehicle headways, thus more vehicles per hour (eg. 3,600 vehicles per hour per lane at 60 mph.)

2. Narrower lane widths, thus more lanes in the same amount of road right-of-way.

3. Increased safety, including the elimination of driver-induced fluctuations and errors. (Also, no more delays due to gawkers at accident sites!)

Obviously, the initial deterrent is cost. However, it would appear the we may be moving in the direction of some form of AHS, whether it is similar to one of the alternatives I described above, or some new variation.

Neighbors oppose 65-unit Scott Road cluster site

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Drainage and traffic were the concerns of about 10 residents who showed up June 7 to discuss a 65-unit cluster site condominium development proposed for Scott Road.

The Springfield Township Board voted unanimously to table the site plan for Country Lane Estates, proposed by developer Girard Weber, until more information could be provided.

Site condominiums are like homes in a subdivision, except the homeowner owns only his house and the small "building envelope" onto which the house is built. The condominium association, comprised of homeowners, owns all the property between and around houses and is responsible for such things as lawn and road maintenance.

Before the board's action, about seven residents expressed concern with the 100-acre site.

Scott Road resident Dennis Omell summarized many of the residents' concerns: the development would cause overcrowding in the school system, and additional schools will be needed; Scott Road is too dangerous for extra traffic; access is needed from Ormond Road; individual septic systems would cause problems.

Board members also voiced their questions and problems with the plans.

Trustee Charles Oaks asked about the private roads planned for the development.

"Who will open them up if we have to get in there fast?" asked Oaks.

While site condominium developments can have public roads, private roads are proposed for Country Lane Estates. That means the condominium association, comprised of condo homeowners, would be responsible for such things as snow removal and road repair on roads within the complex. If the roads were public, Oakland County would be responsible for those services.

Summer reading begins Monday

Children of all ages are invited to join Springfield Township Library's summer reading program beginning Monday, June 26.

Prizes and certificates will be awarded to children who read or have read to them 12 or more books.

This year's statewide theme is "Reach for the Stars." Special features of the program include: a space magic show, stargazing slide show, Origami space shuttle craft, puppet raffle, scavenger hunt, guessing games and a pizza/awards party.

Register for the program at the library or call 625-0595 for more information.

Parents are great

To The Parents:

We, the Class of 1989, would like to thank you for all of your support. Through the years, you have been there when we needed you and celebrated our victories along with us.

Graduation was a very exciting time for all of us, but the great party you gave us topped it off. Many memories were made; it was a beautiful way to say goodbye.

Thank you from the Class of 1989.

Community rallied around graduation

Following commencement exercises for CHS graduates June 7, close to 400 seniors were given a party at Deer Lake Racquet Club by junior and senior parents.

From 10 p.m. until 5:30 a.m., games, entertainment, food but most importantly, an opportunity to share memories and experiences from their school careers

"This particular development will have a definite effect on the road," he said.

He added that the schools would have to provide for the influx of families and that each site would have its own individual well and septic.

The board decided to table Country Lane Estates and requested information about Scott Road and drainage, to be provided by Kieft Engineering.

occupied the time of these young men and women.

For them, and on behalf of the staff and administrators at CHS, I would like to express appreciation to more than 75 parents who organized and orchestrated the post graduation party.

A very special thanks must go to Forest Milzow, who for the third year provided the facilities of the Racquet Club for this activity.

A real debt of gratitude is owed to the co-chairpersons of the post graduation party, Pam and Mike Morris. They gave the effort a sense of direction from the initial meetings in January and February right through the night of June 7. What a marvelous job they did!

Finally, the community of Clarkston again stood tall! The outpouring of support from churches, businesses, service groups and individuals is unmatched anywhere. We are privileged to work in this environment of support.

Health division warns of measles outbreak

Despite the end of the school year, a recent measles outbreak in southeastern Michigan may continue into the summer months.

"A potential new problem will be that measles cases will carry over to organized summer activities, such as summer camp programs," said Joel Blostein, epidemiologist at the Oakland County Health Division.

"And with schools not in session during the summer, we may not be able to track measles activity as well, since schools play an important role in our monitoring of disease patterns in the community," he said.

Rubeola begins with a high fever and cough, runny nose and itchy eyes. It is followed by a red, raised rash, which breaks out on the face and neck and spreads down the rest of the body, according to a news release of the Oakland County Health Division.

Complications include pneumonia, brain infections, hospitalization and death, although this is rare in the United States.

Recent outbreaks have hit preschoolers and high school and college-aged people the hardest.

Parents should check their children's vaccination records. Children and adolescents who received measles vaccine before 15 months of age should be re-vaccinated if possible; those who received it before 12 months of age should definitely be re-vaccinated.

Those with no record of having received measles vaccine and who never had physician-diagnosed measles (rubeola) should also be vaccinated. Adults born after 1956 should also be vaccinated if they have no medical record of measles disease or measles vaccination, or if they received an older form of the vaccine known as "killed measles vaccine" that was available from 1963 to 1967.

"First time in Clarkston. We usually play to the north. I'm sure the crowd will enjoy the music." The itinerary includes such sing-along favorites as "Sweet Georgia Brown," "Five-foot-two," "Celia," "Four Leaf Clover," and more. Soft drinks will be sold in the park.

Tips to help children have a safe summer

With the school year coming to a close, Consumer's Power Company is asking parents to discuss with their youngsters tips on having a safe summer.

The utility suggests the following safety pointers to children:

- * Never hitch-hike.
- * If you are approached by a stranger, go for help.
- * If you're home alone when you answer the phone, tell them your mom and dad are busy and can't talk now.
- * Never get into a car with someone you don't know, no matter what they say.
- * Be aware of suspicious looking people.
- * If you think you're being followed, run to where there is more people around and/or yell for help.
- * Travel in groups, never alone.
- * If the doorbell rings, look to see who it is. If you don't know who it is, don't open the door.

The utility advises parents to remind their children that anytime they need help to look for the Eyes and Ears decal on its blue and white vehicles.

According to R K Druke, district manager for Consumers Power Metro Region, the employees that operate these vehicles have a direct line to the nearest law enforcement agency.

Reporter's Notebook

Why does the pre-printed Clarkston-school board agenda show that items were approved unanimously — even before the vote?

One reader wrote to The Clarkston News in reference to a story of a bus that had hit a deer earlier this spring. The reader questioned why the story had focused on damages to the bus and had left out details of injuries to the deer, which to her, seemed more important.

Unfortunately deer/vehicle accidents happen frequently — certainly too frequently to write about in each instance. In this case, the story was made different by the fact that a loaded schoolbus was involved in the accident, threatening injury to the children on board. It's true that the story reported no injury to the children, focused on damages to the bus and left out information on the fate of the deer.

Most accident reports do not list the condition of deer involved in such accidents. And even if they did, readers might be even more disturbed by their inevitable fate than by the omission of this sad detail.

Reporter's Notebook is compiled by The Clarkston News Staff.

Couple robbed of $1,000

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

An elderly Independence Township couple was robbed June 15 by at least two men who made them lie down on the floor as the robbery was taking place.

Neither of the couple, residing on Elmdale, was injured in the incident; however, robbers were able to get away with a safe containing more than $1,000.

Police received a call about the robbery about 2:45 p.m. last Thursday, according to an Oakland County Sheriff's Department report.

When police arrived at the couple's home, the homeowners came to the door and said that "some guys had come into the house and told us to get down."

The couple was unable to provide a complete description of the assailants but said that two men had been in the living room.

The two residents were in the living room when the men burst through from the kitchen and ordered them onto the floor. The woman was allowed to stay on the couch because of a back condition.

According to the report, one suspect asked repeatedly where the gold was and said that he would get the gun if the two didn't behave.

One suspect tied the woman's hands with a red bandana and secured her feet with a pillow case, both which were on the couch when the suspects arrived.

The couple told police that one or two other people may have entered the house. They said they heard bumping sounds as the safe was being moved from the basement.

After the assailants left, the male victim was stood up and observed a small white vehicle leaving the driveway, heading towards Sashabaw Road.

The safe and a wooden bow was found missing. It was later noted that the robbers entered through an unlocked kitchen service door.

Detectives investigating the incident reported that the suspects appeared to know where to go for the safe and had obviously come to the residence for that purpose.

The incident remains under investigation; anyone with any information about the incident should call the sheriff's department at 858-4950.

Time Out

Three up

Peter Auchter

Should the Lotto grow to an enormous amount sometime soon or if a lucky charm is asked for, look no further than your home town Clarkston.

Just ask Coach Gordie Richardson to be on your team. As far as winning goes, he seems to have a lock on it during the 1988-89 school sports season.

Maybe we should bottle up him for the summer so that winning spirit doesn't evaporate in the sun? Just kidding, kids don't try this at home. The results won't be pretty. Besides, I think it's illegal.

The amazing streak that leads me to believe somebody is watching over him began last fall with an assistant position on the junior varsity football team.

Sure he was behind the scenes, yet he was there lending a helping hand. What happens?

Well, the troops go out and win one (every one, to be exact) for Coach John Craven to provide him with his first unbeaten season in 16 years. How sweet!

He then moved on to head coach the girls varsity volleyball team. Under his tutelage, the Wolves won the Greater Oakland Activities League title away from defending champion Lake Orion.

Two down, one more job left -- girls track.

Now, I know it may be a little difficult, but can anybody out there figure out what happened next? (Hint: It's a happy ending.)

Yes, sports fans you guessed it, another league championship for Richardson and his dutiful crew. Three up and three down. A true triple crown. A hat trick. A three-peat.

Wow, what an accomplishment. Even the mighty Los Angeles Lakers couldn't three-peat.

Hats off to the three winning teams this season and a special congratulations to the winning coach.

My only question is, what's left for an encore? Sweeping the gym floors after the games? (No, that job's already in capable hands.) Selling refreshments at halftime? (Nope, that job's under control, too.)

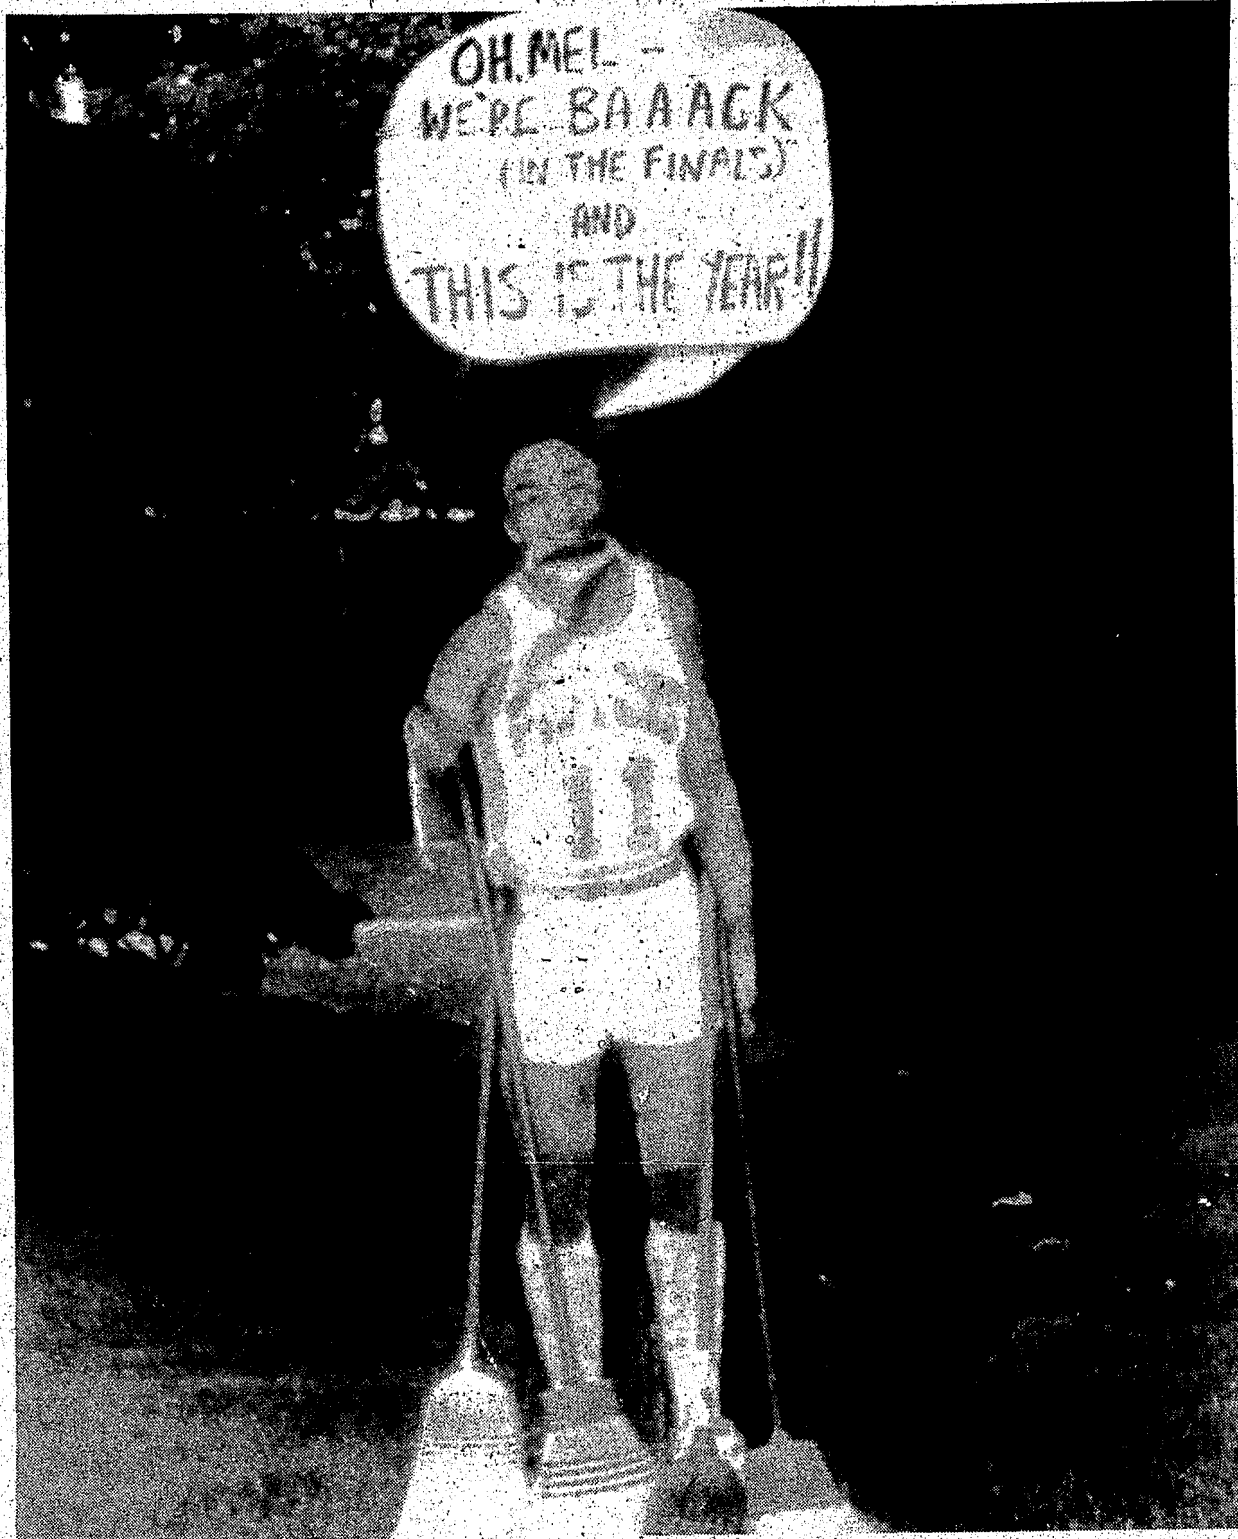

Oh well, a long summer awaits, and there will be plenty of time to sit by the pool and decide what comes next.

While I'm in the toasting mood, let's talk about those Bad Boys, the Detroit Pistons.

What a season!

Well, that pretty much sums it up. What else can you say about a sweep in a championship series?

I'm looking forward to next season and another shot at a championship. And then another after that. (Get the idea?)

DETROIT PISTON Isiah Thomas, or at least a life-size caricature, tells the Clarkston community of the basketball team's impending triumph in the NBA Finals against the Los Angeles Lakers. The person Isiah is playfully taunting is none other than Mel Vaara, Independence Township trustee and assistant superintendent of Clarkston schools, who admits home isn't always where the heart is. "I should be a Pistons fan but I've followed Magic since high school," said Vaara of his decision to root for the Lakers. West Church Street resident Judy Burns agreed that Vaara should have cheered home the Pistons. So she set up "Isiah" and his proclamation on her front lawn for all to see. "It's a good friendly rivalry," Vaara said of his relationship with Burns. "People have been asking if that's me (mentioned in the sign.)" For the record, Vaara predicted the Lakers would win in seven games, as they did last year.

Springfield offers loads of summer activities

Registration for summer events sponsored by Springfield Township Parks and Recreation is underway. This year's programs include the following:

Summer Day Camp, Davisburg Mill Pond Park, ages 6-12, July 10-21, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.; this is an organized program which includes sports, games, nature study, swimming daily, guest speakers, nature hikes, field trips and a cook out.

Youth Activity Group, ages 13 to 17, Davisburg Mill Pond Park. Meets once a week, includes sports, trips, parties, fundraisers, special events, social activities. Call office for more information.

Job For Teens Program, ages 13 to 17, Springfield Township Parks and Recreation will act as a referral service to match area teens with jobs people need help with. Teens need to complete an application and return it to the office. Area residents can call with jobs for referrals or workers. Examples of jobs include babysitting, household chores, yard work, landscaping, odd jobs, etc. Residents will be responsible for paying participants per job.

Walking Fitness Program for all ages, June 14 to July 13, one evening a week, 7 p.m. One-mile walks in area parks like Shiawassee River Basin, Mill Pond Park, Holcomb Road Park, Indian Springs Metropark and Karl Schultz Park.

For more information about any of the above programs contact the parks and recreation office between 8:30 a.m. and 4:40 p.m. at 634-0412 or 625-9622.

Two holes in one

If your golf game needs a boost, the Pine Knob Golf Course (PKGC) on Waldon Road, Independence Township, may be the place to get it, judging from two recent feats.

Kate Stevens, an employee of the PKGC, called The Clarkston News to report not just one, but two holes-in-one recently shot at the course.

For the benefit of non-golfers, a hole-in-one occurs when a golfer swings his club and the ball travels all the way down the fairway and into the desired hole in one stroke.

Murt Katt, of West Bloomfield, walloped his ball 160 yards onto the green and into the cup on the 15th hole May 26. The hole was a par three.

A few days later, Dan Hull of Mount Clemens shot a hole-in-one on the third hole, which is also a par three. The hole measures 165 feet.

Stevens says PKGC has hosted four golfers with holes-in-one so far this year.

As entertainer, she'll travel the world

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Kristin Whisner, a 21-year-old Independence Township resident, started in chorus in junior high by accident. She saw a movie about industrial accidents during the first day of metals class, and that was enough.

"I wanted out of the metals class after watching the movie, and the only class left was chorus," she said. She's been involved with singing ever since.

Kristin was recently chosen from 8,000 applicants to be one of 550 performers to travel with Up With People, an international group with members ranging in age from 18-25 who perform for hospitals, prisons, schools, centers for handicapped and for the elderly in homes.

"This is a community service for those who can't get out," Kristin said.

In existence for 22 years, Up With People was founded in 1965 by J. Blanton Belk, who saw a need for young people to channel their positive energies worldwide.

The groups have been formed by over 10,500 young people from 60 countries since the inception of the program in the mid-60s. Performances have been held in 48 countries.

Kristin is looking forward to traveling with the group after her graduation from Miami University, Miami, Ohio, in 1990; but it won't be her first trip out of the country.

"I was studying in Luxembourg when I signed up to interview with Up With People," she said.

After Kristin starts with the group next July, she won't have much time to herself.

"Out of 12 months, we get one weekend off a month and will have one week at Christmas time," she said.

Up With People members are only in one place for 3-5 days. Each new stop means a stay with a new host family. Host families provide housing for each of the participants.

Kristin will need to raise $8,000 as her portion of traveling expenses.

"I will be selling shares of stock at $100 a share, hoping to raise money for my trip," she said, adding that buyers won't be getting monetary rewards but instead will be rewarded by the goodwill spread by the group.

ALL THE WORLD will be the stage for Kristin Whisner after her 1990 graduation from college. She going to tour with Up With People.

Each participant is responsible for raising one-third of the cost for their travel. Kristin plans to contact local community groups for sponsorship.

Once the tour is over, each participant is encouraged to share what they've learned during the year-long trip.

The group not only performs but spends time meeting leaders of business, industry, government and the arts to discuss issues of local, national and international importance.

Kristin plans to write a column of her experiences during the tour.

"We have to give something back and learn some new and innovative ways to help out," Kristin said.

Encouragement for her challenge comes from her parents, Robert and Marilyn Whisner of Fawn Valley Drive, Independence Township.

"My parents think it's a great opportunity, and they want me to not give up this opportunity and be sorry later in life," she said.

Kristin is excited to try her new adventure, although she's not certain what she will be doing in the show. She's played clarinet in school bands from sixth grade until her sophomore year in college, and she still sings.

"I always loved (singing and performing). I always wanted to put on neighborhood shows when I was younger," she said.

Even so, Kristin said she doesn't think she has overwhelming talent.

"I love it, and it's a gift to enjoy, but it's not enough for a career," she said.

DNR lists 22 fishing hints for the serious angler

Just in time for summer vacation, the state's Department of Natural Resources offers the following tips on fishing:

- * Need a ruler, but forgot to take one with you on your fishing trip? If you have a dollar in your wallet, you'll be prepared just the same; a bill measures just over six inches in length.

- * Fish have a keen sense of smell. Always be sure to wash away tell-tale odors from your hand before handling line or lures, especially after applying insect repellent. The chemical ingredients not only repel mosquitoes and gnats, they can repel fish from your plug or spinner as well; they can also weaken your fishing line.

- * Don't toss your used fishing line on shore or into the water where it can be a hazard to birds, animals, and outboard motor props. Treat old line as litter and dispose of it accordingly.

- * Carry worms and nightcrawlers safely and neatly in a plastic margarine container. A bedding of wet peat moss will help to keep the bait lively. Be sure to puncture the lid for ventilation. If you accidentally drop the container into water, it'll float.

- * Successful live bait anglers know fresh bait attracts fish best. As soon as your bait begins to lose its spunk, replace it.

- * A bicycle pump is a handy device to keep minnows alive when you are traveling. Every so often, place the pump hose in your bait bucket and pump a few times to replenish the water's oxygen supply.

- * When approaching a prime fishing spot, cut your outboard motor well away from the spot and drift in or use a small electric motor. Bass and other sport species spook easily and a noisy approach may just scare them off.

- * One way to prevent squeaky oarlocks from scaring off the fish is to wrap the pins in plastic sandwich bags -- you'll then row in silence.

- * Boat anchors handled incorrectly often spook fish. Don't bang an anchor on the boat bottom or against the gunwale. Try to make as little noise as possible with the anchor and never abruptly drop it into the water; instead, ease it down so that the anchor creates a minimum of disturbance.

- * A piece of carpeting or rubber mat placed in the bottom of your boat will help deaden sounds that might frighten the fish. The mat or carpeting can be easily removed and shaken after each trip.

- * Scraps of carpet glued to the bottom of waders or hip boots will help to keep you from slipping when wading rivers or streams.

- * Sharp hooks catch more fish. Experienced anglers carry a small hook sharpener with them so that they can keep their hooks in "sharp" condition.

- * Avoid placing wet hooks in your tackle box. Damp hooks will eventually rust and need to be replaced.

- * Empty plastic pill bottles make excellent containers for hooks, sinkers, lures and other small items. They pack neatly and safely in your tackle box or pocket.

- * Always face into the sun when casting for bass. The reason? Even more so than most fish, bass are very shadow conscious and will often spook when a shadow falls on the water above them.

- * In muddy or stained water, try fishing when the sun is bright. The visibility in such waters is quite limited and the sun can't penetrate further than the top few feet or so making them oxygen rich. There's where you'll find bass, even in the middle of the day.

- * Big bluegills are more apt to be on their spawning beds on overcast days rather than on sunny ones. Successful 'gill fishing seems to relate to the amount of sunshine, with the least success coming on the brightest days.

- * Under high-glare conditions, it's often difficult to see a white or brightly colored bobber. Spray a bobber black and use it at the times that you need heightened contrast because of the glare.

- * Always try to net a fish head first. If you do, the fish can't jump out, and any wiggling motion the fish makes will only drive it deeper into the net.

- * More hatches of aquatic insects take place near dusk than at any other time of day. This fact makes the hours of fishing just before and after sunset many anglers' favorites.

- * A plastic gallon-size bleach jug makes an excellent boat bailer; simply cut out the bottom leaving the cap in place. It can also serve as a handy funnel by removing the cap.

- * Waterproof waterfowler's decoy gloves are great for ice fisherman; they'll keep you dry and warm, guaranteed.

Man, 20, charged

Moments later, Walsh stumbled inside the convenience store saying that he had been stabbed. His stab wounds proved severe, and he died two hours later at Butterworth Hospital.

One witness saw one of the men approach Walsh, said Lt. Vern Snyder, commander of the detective unit of the Grand Rapids Police Department.

Police were unable to determine a motive after the slaying because nothing was stolen from Walsh in the incident.

If Pulphus is convicted in Walsh's murder and the tip provider is paid a reward through Silent Observer, the Walsh family plans to reimburse the Silent Observer program for the amount paid out, Lapinski said.

"It's well worth it," she said. "I don't know how much it's going to be, but we're going to totally replace it."

A memorial fund was set up by Clarkston resident Rockwood Bullard, an attorney, in Walsh's name to fund the silent observer reward in Grand Rapids.

Any money left over will be donated to the Ileitis and Colitis Foundation in Walsh's name. The foundation finds research and treatment for diseases like Crohn's disease, a debilitating digestive disorder from which Walsh suffered.

To contribute, call Bullard at 625-0454 or 652-1444 or write: Patrick Walsh Memorial fund in care of Lyon, Colbert and Bullard, 431 Sixth St., Rochester, MI 48063.

Couple shares son's story

BY BONNIE WATTLEWORTH
Clarkston News Special Writer

Although it seems few stories have happy endings, "More Than An Average Guy," a book about a Waterford Township couple's handicapped son, is one exception.

"We wanted it to be written to be an encouragement to the parents of handicapped children," said Sue Patton of Athens, Waterford Township, whose 33-year-old son Larry has cerebral palsy.

The book's author, Janet Kastner, a friend of Sue and her husband, Bill, describes Larry's struggle to overcome his disability with the help of his family, friends and God.

The book, which can be found at the Village Bookstore in Clarkston, is "a book to encourage people's faith in God," Sue said.

Faith helped Larry overcome the disease impairing his muscle coordination and speech, she said.

Larry was stricken with cerebral palsy at birth.

"In Larry's case, the umbilical cord was around his neck so tight it cut off the oxygen to his brain," Sue said. But cerebral palsy does not affect the victim's intelligence.

"People with cerebral palsy are not retarded, although a lot of people make that assumption," she said.

When Larry was a child, the couple feared their son would spend his life depending on people to care for him, Sue said.

Blood needed, drive June 26 at Calvary Lutheran

Farmers and gardeners may not be experiencing a drought, but the American Red Cross Blood Services, Southeastern Michigan Region, reports the blood donation drought began early this year, as collections dropped by nearly 20 percent.

There is a critical need for Type O blood, either positive or negative, reports the Red Cross. However, all blood types are necessary if hospitals are to have an adequate supply to meet patient transfusion needs.

Locally, the annual community blood drive is scheduled for Monday, June 26, at Calvary Evangelical Lutheran Church on Bluegrass Drive in Independence Township from 2 to 8 p.m. Appointments can be made by calling 625-8032.

With the upcoming July 4th holiday weekend, the Red Cross announced special donor hours and will open a number of donor centers on Sunday, July 2, in an effort to bolster the blood supply.

The Ann Arbor, Livonia, Oak Park, Roseville and Southgate donor centers will be open on Sunday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. On Monday, July 3, donor centers will be open during their normal business hours.

For more information or to schedule a holiday blood donation, call 494-2800.

Parents write book about son's remarkable life

"The overall things that concerned us were we didn't know if he would be able to be independent and earn a living," she said.

But with his family's help, Larry worked to learn the skills that come easily to most children.

"One problem was Larry did not read well," she said. "We started in sixth grade having him listen to everything he read."

The family borrowed tapes and records from a state library for the blind and handicapped, Sue said. Larry listened to the material as he read.

Because of difficulties with fine finger coordination, Larry could not take notes in class. Initially, he taped the lectures, and Sue transcribed them.

But because this was time consuming, he developed a better system.

"Larry found the brightest person in the class and gave them paper and carbon paper to make copies of their notes," she said.

Because the Pattons spent a lot of time helping Larry, their other son, Steve, did not always receive as much attention as his older brother.

When Larry learned how to ride a bicycle, many family friends showered him with praise, Sue said. But when Steve mastered bicycle riding, it was not a special event.

"He was always aware of that -- that he wasn't getting as much attention," she said.

The Pattons said Larry's handicap shaped the family's lifestyle.

"Larry's handicap determined a lot of things, like our monthly budget and where we lived," Sue said. "It determined how we budgeted our time because we had to exercise him, make sure he got his school work done, take him to his doctor visits."

"It also determined our recreation," Bill said, adding that the family decided to give up skiing in favor of bowling so Larry could participate.

Ironically, Larry did learn to ski. "Now Larry's the only one in the family that skies," Bill said, laughing.

Despite all the difficulties, Larry succeeded in gaining his independence.

His main difficulty now is with fine finger coordination, but he has developed ways to overcome this impairment, Sue said.

"For example, he can't button buttons, so he uses Velcro on his dress shirts," she said.

He graduated from Wayne State University, Detroit, with a bachelor's degree in computer science. He has worked as a systems engineer at International Business Machines in Detroit since 1979.

Since he can't write because of coordination problems, Larry uses a terminal at work and types with his index fingers, Sue said.

Also, he has started a speaking ministry called "Hurdling Handicaps."

"He's talked all over the country at churches, men's groups, schools, to handicapped groups," Bill said.

Larry, who lives in Royal Oak, is also happily married. "It's one of the last things we were praying for that was answered," Sue said.

Pet of the Week

The color of a deer

Fawn's her name, and her name gives away her coloring. Even though she's a Doberman pinscher, her color is light.

Fawn would be happy to have a new home with a loving family. She'd also be happy to be with other pets.

Her lovely temperament would complement any home.

Fawn can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The adoption fee is $35 for Fawn. She's been spayed.

Citizens for Orderly Growth

If Massachusetts can, so can we

Doug Carlson

Just prior to leaving on vacation last week, I read the article in The Clarkston News about the serious accident at the intersection of Amy Drive and M-15, Independence Township.

I also read the accompanying articles in which residents in that area called for various reforms (a traffic signal, a lower speed limit, etc.) to prevent a recurrence of such accidents in the future.

It was especially interesting that two of the letters to the editor on this subject were written by members of the Independence Township Planning Commission.

The following morning (a weekday), my wife and I headed north on M-15 on our way to Massachusetts. Although it was only 6 a.m., we were surprised to see a steady stream of traffic heading south on M-15 at that hour of the morning. The concerns expressed the day before in the Clarkston News became readily apparent and understandable. In fact, we experience something of the same problem trying to exit our subdivision onto Dixie Highway.

As we passed mile after mile of vacant land bordering M-15, it did not take too much imagination to envision what traffic will be like as this area is developed.

Many hours later, we left the state of New York and entered Massachusetts. We crossed the entire state, finally arriving at our destination, a small town just west of Boston.

As we were crossing Massachusetts, we both commented on the fact that there were absolutely no billboards, no fast food restaurants and no strip malls.

In fact, there was virtually nothing but trees, as far as the eye could see. If Massachusetts residents need something, apparently they are willing to drive to town to get it.

The area reminded us of Clarkston, how it used to be and how most residents want it to remain.

As we drove along, I thought to myself, "This is what we're fighting for in Clarkston, a lifestyle where you're not surrounded by strip malls, where entire parcels of land are not stripped of every living tree and where you can pull out of your subdivision without fearing for your life."

Growth is inevitable in Clarkston. We all know it. But it must be done in such a way that we retain the naturalness of the area and the lifestyle which we all presently enjoy.

There must be housing for everyone but at the expense of no one. If Massachusetts can do it, so can we.

Doug Carlson is the chairperson of Citizens for Orderly Growth.

Mother Goose Lives

Suzanne Baumann

It has been rumored that the things you surround yourself with in sleep can influence your waking life. Occasionally I get to wondering about the things in my bedroom.

When I was younger, my bed was always made with a particular set of Holly Hobbie sheets. They were printed with little rhymes here and there. Mainly they spoke of helpful hints for domestic chores, plant and pet care, and the like.

Maybe as I slept in my early, impressionable years, the rhymes seeped into my brain and multiplied. For the past several years, I have been coming up with rhymes of my own. They loom around. Some mornings, I wake up and these stupid verses are the first things on my mind.

I've finally decided to write some of them down. This isn't exactly going to be a "fresh, new article." Although a couple poems are quite recent, others have been on my mind since I was 6 or 7 years old. I'll warn you, some are awful enough to groan at. Others might be found helpful and the rest, I hope, you'll find entertaining.

So here goes:

If a window is closed to the rain,
It drizzles down the pane.
If you open the window and rain's running still,
The rain falls on the window-sill.
If that window-sill-water drips down on the stove,
In time you'd have your own private cove.
If you turn on the burner, the rain starts to sizzle;
Now how's that for an afternoon drizzle?

The fingernail is a great tool to own.
They're right on your hand, and cheap when home-grown.

When they're long enough, you can develop the skill
To open an envelope, maybe a bill.

Society requires you to look your best,
So style your hair nicely and be neatly dressed.

Brush your teeth and don't miss a spot.
If you do, your choppers could possibly rot.
Take care of the gums, look after the crowns,
Or like the pictures at the dentist's, they'll break and turn brown.

Spring is never truly felt
Until the snow begins to melt.
And from your door a wind comes through
That no matter how cold, seems warm to you.

Always remember to pray to God
To keep a good soul inside your bod.

Some toilet papers are fluffy and thick.
Some have more sheets and won't run out as quick.
Both can't make one, it just won't work like that.
The roll dispensers can't take one that fat.

Keep greasy hands away from your face
So you won't have zits all over the place.

To look really hot and act really cool
Means you're lukewarm, you show-offy fool!

If you have a book, read it all day
Read, read, read all the way.
Read until bedtime, read until darker
And when you get tired, use a book marker.

Watermelon, watermelon-chewable drink:
The outside is green and the inside is pink,
So cool and refreshing those days in July-
As native to summer as a captured firefly.
We grow it, we hoe it, we pull out the weeds
We ice it, we slice it, we spit out the seeds.

Decide what to wear the evening before,
That way in the morning it won't be a chore.

Whoa! That's a lot of rhymes and to think I have more!
But I'll stop here, so not to bore.

Suzanne Baumann is a junior at Clarkston High School.

Youngster, 7, heads to Dallas for beauty pageant

BY BONNIE WATTLEWORTH
Clarkston News Special Writer

Beauty pageants usually bring to mind women tall enough to play for the Pistons. But there is a beauty pageant winner in Independence Township who stands under 4 feet tall.

Koriena Fantetti, 7, swept the 7- to 9-year-old division of the Kids of America pageant in Lansing by winning both in the beauty and glamour categories and finishing first runner up in the talent category.

"A tap dancer beat her out for talent," said Ruth Fantetti, 31, Koriena's mother. "But she made a good friend. When the little girl was done with her act, Koriena said, 'Mom, I was so proud of her.'"

Koriena's 10-year-old sister, Kendra, finished third runner-up in beauty in the 10- to 12-year-old division of the pageant. Both girls attend Pine Knob Elementary School.

Fantetti said she initially had reservations about letting her daughters participate in the pageant.

"I was really apprehensive," she said. "But they both really wanted to do it."

Fantetti said she did not want to be the type of mother who pushes her daughters to compete in pageants.

"Some of the kids were crying, and I felt like saying,

'Just take them home,'" she said. "But the two of them had a good time."

Koriena and her mother will travel to Dallas, Texas, in July to compete in the national pageant. Both said they are excited about the trip.

"Not everyone can go to Dallas with their moms for fun," said Fantetti.

But not everyone in the family is as excited as Koriena and her mother.

"My husband has the 'It-was-a-fun-Saturday-but-now-we-are-going-to-forget-it'-attitude," Fantetti said. Fantetti said her husband and 3-year-old son, Jack, plan to stay away from future competitions.

The family is hoping an organization will sponsor Koriena in the Dallas competition.

"Most kids are sponsored," Fantetti said. While the $300 entry fees are funded by the Lansing pageant, the Fantettis will have to cover all other costs.

KORIANA FANTETTI, 7, of Independence Township shows off the trophies she won at the Kids of America pageant in Lansing.

Deer tick causes disease

Lyme disease is spreading but not in Michigan

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

More than one headline this spring has sounded the alarm about the spread of Lyme disease, a somewhat dangerous malady carried by a deer tick.

Michigan certainly has its share of deer -- and may have more than the usual amount of outdoor enthusiasts -- so it should follow that the disease is as prevalent here as anywhere else.

But Michigan residents seem to be relatively untouched by the disease.

Lyme disease appears as a bright red, circular rash and is accompanied by headache, fatigue, low-grade fever and aching muscles and joints.

Throughout the nation, and especially in the east, Lyme disease has been diagnosed in record numbers, with cases more than doubling from 1987 to 1988, according to figures from The Centers for Disease Control.

Although the disease has spread to 43 states and last year infected close to 6,000 people Michigan has reported fewer than 100 cases since 1985.

"For some reason, public exposure to it is more minimal here," said James O'Neill, an Independence Township pediatrician. "With water all around us, we are a peninsula. Otherwise, I have no idea why."

O'Neill recently treated two patients with Lyme disease -- one from South Carolina, and the other, oddly enough, was a child who had been to a carnival recently arriving from South Carolina.

"There aren't a lot of ticks here in Michigan," O'Neill said. "We rarely see a tick bite in the office."

In November of 1988, state researchers conducted a study of Lyme disease, but the results added further

"We want the public to be aware that they shouldn't panic. We don't want them to be afraid to drink milk or to go hunting or something. Those concerns are unwarranted at this time."

Dr. Nancy Frank

confusion about Michigan's low case numbers, said Nancy Frank, a research and companion veterinarian with the Animal Industries Department in Lansing.

Lyme Disease is thought to be caused by the bite of a deer tick, which is infected with a spiral-shaped bacterium, or spirochete.

The state Department of Natural Resources and the Public Health Department studied 4,000 deer for the presence of the deer tick, called the Ixodes Damini. Not one of the deer had the tick, Frank said.

States like Minnesota and Wisconsin, which have large numbers of Lyme disease cases, were finding several of the ticks on deer and were fairly certain that the ticks were carrying the disease, Frank added.

"Nobody knows" why the Michigan deer are not carrying the ticks, she said.

Further studies conducted in a Michigan State University, East Lansing, laboratory found Lyme disease antibodies in dogs, cattle and horses, but Frank warned that the experiments do not show that the animals actually have the disease.

Frank listed the Upper Peninsula and lower parts of the Lower Peninsula as the areas where the ticks seem to be originating. There are few in the upper part of the Lower Peninsula, she said.

"It's an excruciating, serious disease -- even fatal."

Dr. James O'Neill

Researchers and medical officials have good reason to keep a watchful eye on the spread of the disease. "It's an excruciating, serious disease -- even fatal," warned O'Neill.

Those infected usually notice a very large welt like a bulls-eye target.

The disease affects the central nervous system -- the heart, brain and spinal column -- and will eventually produce arthritis-like symptoms such as aching joints, swelling and fever, O'Neill added.

"I want to yell loud and clear that it's treatable," O'Neill said.

Antibodies to the Lyme disease bacteria develop after a few weeks, and are detected with a blood test. The disease is treated with antibiotics.

Preventing Lyme disease is the most important step in curbing its incidence until a vaccine is discovered.

The tick doesn't fly, jump or drop onto prospective hosts; it simply stays at the end of tall grasses or other vegetation waiting to encounter a suitable host.

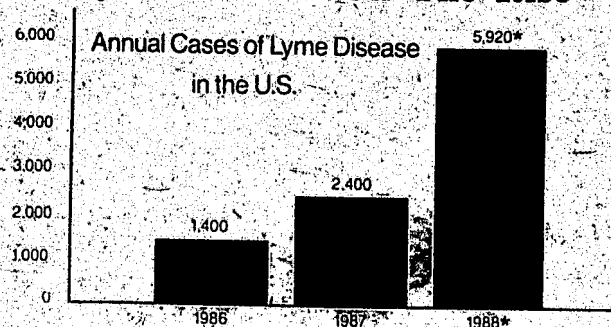

The tick can only transmit Lyme disease when feeding, usually in the mild weather during spring, summer and early fall.

The Michigan Department of Agriculture and the Public Health Department are jointly drafting an informational brochure about Lyme disease.

Those interested in the brochures will soon be able to obtain them by contacting their local public health department.

"We want the public to be aware that they shouldn't panic," Frank said. "We don't want them to be afraid to drink milk or to go hunting or something. Those concerns are unwarranted at this time."

Prevention best fight against Lyme disease

The tiny deer tick that causes Lyme disease is difficult to detect, but Roger Grothaus, medical entomologist and head of the OFF! Biting Insect Team offers the following precautions:

- Wear light-colored clothing to make the dark ticks more visible.

- Tightly woven clothing makes it more difficult for ticks to hold onto you.

- Wear a collared shirt with long sleeves tucked into pants and long pants tucked into high socks when spending time in woods or areas with tall grass.

- Protect exposed skin by applying DEET-containing insect repellent, avoiding lips and eyes. DEET (N-diethyl-metatoamide) is the only repellent effective against ticks that can be used both on skin and clothing.

- Check frequently for ticks while outdoors. Check pets carefully. They carry ticks into the home.

Speed limit review for gravel roads

Gravel roads in Springfield Township could have a new speed limit, depending on the results of a review by the Oakland County Road Commission.

The Springfield Township Board voted 6-1 June 7 to ask the commission to review the speed limits. Clerk J. Calvin Walters voted no.

Subdivision roads in Springfield Township not posted, or without speed limit signs, have speed limits of 25 mph because of a law known as prima facie.

Prima facie is the latin word for "on the face of it."

In terms of the speed law, it means that if a sign is not posted in a subdivision area, the speed limit is automatically 25 mph.

A few residents expressed concern recently, said Trustee Nancy Strole.

Some residents would like to see roads posted higher than 25 mph, for instance, 35 mph for Rattalee Lake Rd., she said.

Trustee Margaret Bloom agreed.

"I tried to drive 25 mph during the winter, and it was too slow to get up hills," she said. "I don't think it's realistic."

DAN TRAVIS is busy with summer stock in Oxford, Ohio.

Oxford, Ohio, where he has attended Miami University since graduating from Clarkston High School in 1986.

Dan started his college career as a communication major but soon found he was drawn to the theater and switched his major.

Now a full-fledged theater major, he's serving a summer internship that keeps him busy nearly all day on stage.

He spends mornings rehearsing for "Philadelphia Story," spends his afternoons doing scene construction for another production, "1940's Musical Comedy Murders"; and his evenings are spent rehearsing for "A Little Night Music."

All of the performances are running through July, leaving him without much leisure time, and no time to make a visit back to Clarkston.

Dan admitted that he misses his hometown. His parents are Dan and Betsy Travis of Perry Lake Road, Independence Township.

Dan said he'd like to get home for a while, but those plans will have to wait until his schedule allows.

After his theatrical stint is finished, Dan plans to spend the rest of his summer like most college students, working at a job that will help with college expenses.

When he's finished with college, Dan wants to take his acting career further.

"I'd like to become a professional, and I think I want to work in film," he said.

He's had some experience -- he was video taped during a recent performance for the Children's Theatre Ensemble.

"I really liked doing the takes and re-takes," he said. Dan's future plans include cities far from Clarkston, maybe Los Angeles, Calif., or Chicago, Ill., but he hasn't forgotten the people who helped him get started.

"I'm thankful to Mrs. (Barb) Gibson and Ms. (Grayce) Warren, teachers at CHS. They headed me in the right direction," he said. "They were instrumental in sparking my interest."

Clarkston village manager, others get pay raises

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Annual salary reviews by the Village of Clarkston brought raises for five employees.

After comparing salaries for area village managers with Manager Artemus Pappas' pay, the village council decided to raise his salary by $2,500 for a total of $20,230 annually.

Trustee Douglas Roeser, echoing the rest of the council's thoughts, spoke highly of the village manager's work.

"I don't know how we got along without him," he said.

Loyalty also played a role in the decision. Another governmental body recently inquired about obtaining Pappas' services, but he turned them down. After the meeting, Pappas declined to identify who offered him the job.

Considering the village's limited financial resources, President Sharron Catallo was pleased Clarkston didn't lose its only full-time employee.

"Although we cannot match those offers, we are glad he was loyal and willing to stay for less money," she said. "He's wonderful."

The raise is effective July 1.

At the same time, the village council also reviewed the wages of Department of Public Works (DPW) workers.

Supervisor Rick Carpenter's pay brought out the most discussion from the council before a $35 weekly salary and $9 per hour wage were agreed upon for the part-time job. His current pay is $25 weekly and $8 per hour.

While the other six council members believed a $1 increase in wages and $5 boost in salary for Carpenter was sufficient, Catallo said a $2 raise would be better.

The council compromised on the issue by raising

Carpenter's salary $10 instead of $5 and raising his hourly wages $1 instead of $2.

DPW workers Mike Thayer and Ronald R. Pursley earned 75-cent raises to $7.50 per hour. Village Marshal Charles Smalley and secretary Lillian Bauer had their hourly pay increased to $8.50.

How to treat summer health hazards

With the warmer, longer days of summer, most everyone turns their thoughts to the great outdoors.

Louis White, a physician on staff at the MercyCare Family Medical Center in Birmingham, notes that people are prone to bruises, sprains, fractures and other afflictions in the summer.

Below is a list of some seasonal health hazards and suggestions for treatment.

O Poison ivy and poison oak can cause blisters or allergic reactions like hives, swelling and itching. It can also cause shortness of breath if burned in a fire and inhaled as smoke.

It can be treated with calamine lotion, cortisone cream and benadryl, an over the counter antihistamine tablet which eases itching and swelling.

O Swimmers ear, a bacterial infection of the ear canal, is characterized by pain, redness and seepage. It can be treated with antibiotic lotion prescribed by a physician and by keeping the ear dry.

O Simple bee stings or insect bites can be treated with benadryl. However, if a person has an allergic reaction, seek immediate medical attention.

People who have life threatening reactions should always carry a special kit and should tell those around them about their conditions ahead of time.

O Heat exhaustion, which can lead to heat stroke, is a serious threat, especially on hot, humid days. Make sure people who are exerting themselves have plenty of fluids to drink and rest often.

Victims of heat exhaustion have a high pulse and a flushed appearance and feel confused, dizzy and nauseated. They should get out of the heat, seek medical attention and lie down.

White advises people to wear sunscreen and protective clothing while in the sun. He also recommends plenty of rest.

"Just take it easy and be careful when needed," he said. "A little prevention can be a big help."

Pool fencing should prevent child drownings

Many of the 330 children under five years of age who drown each year in backyard pools could be saved if homeowners completely fenced in the pool and installed self-closed and self-latching devices on gates.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) said child drownings are the second leading cause of accidental death around the home to children under five years of age.

A CPSC survey of home pool drownings and near-drownings in parts of three states revealed that most of these drownings occurred in a pool owned by the child's family.

Almost half the children involved in the accidents were last seen in the house, presumably safe from harm, prior to being found in the pool.

In three of every four of these accidents, the children were seen five minutes or less before being "missed" and subsequently discovered in the pool.

While there is no substitute for supervision of children, a barrier designed to prevent them from reaching the pool, even from the house, could have prevented many of these accidents.

CPSC said that many communities do have codes or regulations that require fences around residential pools, but they may allow the house to serve as one side of the barrier.

However, a fence completely surrounding the pool is better.

Fences should be a minimum of four feet high, although fences five feet or higher are preferable.

If the home serves as one side of the barrier, all doors leading to the pool should be self-closing and have self-latching devices beyond the reach of children to prevent them from opening the door and gaining access to the pool.

Homeowners who wish to upgrade the safety of their backyard pool may obtain a free 11-page pool safety checklist from CPSC by sending a postcard to Pool Safety, Washington, D.C. 20207.

Protect your ear now that summer's here

Summertime in Detroit brings many fun-filled activities, such as the annual Grand Prix, fireworks and outdoor concerts.

Dr. Brian Blakley, an otologist at Harper Hospital in Detroit, advises individuals to use hearing protection to prevent ear damage.

Exposure to a high intensity of sound, even for a half hour, can contribute to temporary or permanent hearing loss. Simply using ear plugs can prevent damage from occurring.

A real speedster

He's half tail and half feet. He's also a popular cartoon character that runs on blurring wheels. He's an odd bird but a real one. He's the roadrunner.

National Wildlife magazine reports the roadrunner's name is right on target. When these wildly colored birds shift into high gear, they can run as fast as 15 miles per hour.

At that speed, the bird's thin muscular legs take 12 steps every second. Those fast feet coupled with spectacular eyesight give this real-life speedster an edge when tracking lizards and insects.

Questions parents should ask about childcare

Let's face it, Moms and Dads. Just finding a childcare program for kids can be stressful enough without wondering whether they're getting a good head start in the world.

Stories about childcare are everywhere. We all hear about long waiting lists and how expensive childcare can be. And, every once in awhile, one of those awful stories comes out about a child who was injured or abused while in someone else's care.

Eubie Smart, a fictional character created to help the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs, decided to look into this, and found that parents have more choices than they think.

What kinds of options are out there? Well, there's family care in the home of a relative or neighbor; there are 200,000 licensed, for-profit childcare centers; and there are religious programs, too. Many parents hire a nanny or use plans paid for by their employers.

Just because a program is expensive doesn't mean it's good.

Experts say making the best choice means asking other parents how their kids do in a program, and visiting the program yourself - you are the best judge of how your own child will do.

Never use a program unless you can drop in any time, unannounced.

Here is a checklist for comparing options.

* Are first aid kits filled? Do fire extinguishers and smoke alarms work? Are cleaning supplies and poisons locked away?

* Do caregivers have references? Special training? How many kids per adult? (Many programs are licensed; most aren't. A license doesn't guarantee quality, but they do mean certain rules must be met. Call a local consumer office in the blue pages of your phone book to see if a license is required.)

* Is the playground fenced? If it's a large center, do visitors and children sign in and out?

* Is food stored and prepared safely? Do kids and adults use good cleanliness skills?

* Do sick children stay home?

* How much of each day is filled with planned activities?

* What about fees for half-days, overtime, sick children?

Here are some questions caregivers say you can ask while your child is in a program.

* Are kids' pictures or projects hung up and changed often?

* Do caregivers tell you what your child did that day? How is he or she doing overall?

* Does your child talk happily about the program?

* Do you know new employees? Do they talk to your children?

Many state consumer offices can help you find childcare in your area. And the Labor Department has a new hotline for all your childcare questions. Call 202/523-4486.

Good vibrations

Not all sharks rely on their sense of smell to locate prey. Many sharks have a highly acute sense of hearing.

Many sharks pick up sounds through a series of vibration detectors along their sides. These detectors allow sharks to sense movement several hundred feet away.

About the Bad Boys

Kristen Bilicki

I don't know why I do this to myself. My first week off from school, summer vacation finally, and what do I do -- I sleep in until 10:30.

Any day would have been better to be lazy other than today. I have too much to accomplish. Now half the day is wasted.

Instead of a nice leisurely breakfast, I don't even have time for lunch.

I need to call the mechanic first. Maybe after what seems like decades, my car will be fixed and ready. It's been so long since I've driven, I doubt I can remember how.

Well, now that stress is off my shoulders, I have a little more time. I can relax now; I can breathe.

Originally, I was going to write about the Pistons. I was asked to compare their "Bad Boy," underdog image to the blue collar workers they represent -- their fans.

I became too caught up in my own frustrations to even touch the topic.

If I must, here is a quick synopsis:

"Bad Boys." Oh, I give up. I read in another newspaper that society in general secretly wants the bad guys to win. Deep down inside, we all root for the guys in black.

Underdogs: They're the success stories, the heroes. They come from behind and beat the odds.

I wonder if I can relate this to my failure to wake up on time. Having to surge ahead to succeed and accomplish my goals. Na!

Anyway, blue collar workers are considered the underdogs. Then, sports teams, be it the Red Wings, Pistons, Tigers and I'll even mention the Lions, are often considered the losers.

Well, now they have won. Worldwide, Detroit is seen as the winners.

Still that's well and good for them, but what about me?

I guess sleeping in and waking up late, yet still having time to run my errands isn't as dramatic of a success story. Oh well! At least I tried to win public sympathy.

Kristen Bilicki is a senior at Clarkston High School.

New snack fatal to ants, roaches, scientists say

The goodies that ants and roaches bring "home" from raiding our kitchens might just be lethal to their relatives and friends.

U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists say this is the whole idea behind a new slow-acting insecticide they have developed.

The insecticide, sulfluramid, is coated on a bait. Household ants carrying the insecticide will share it with their nest mates, killing the whole colony including the queen, says Clifford S. Lofgren, a research entomologist with USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

Cockroaches forgo true nests, but the insecticide will kill neighboring roaches.

The insecticide killed 90 percent of household ants and roaches in laboratory tests.

Another pest, the imported fire ant, also had a 90 percent mortality in laboratory test when exposed to the insecticide. The fire ant is a stinging and mound-building pest in the south.

In the U.S., consumers spend $500 to $600 million annually to control household ants and roaches, and fire ants annually cause up to $200 million in medical costs, agricultural losses and damage to commercial equipment such as electrical circuits and air conditioners.

Against domestic termites, results of preliminary studies indicate that sulfluramid also works well, scientists report.

Recently approved by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for use against household ants and roaches, sulfluramid is made by Griffin Corp. of Valdosta, Ga., under an exclusive license from the Agricultural Research Service.

The company plans to apply to EPA to register the insecticide for use against imported fire ants.

Tips to help sell your home

As you prepare to sell your house, you may choose to take a quick inventory of things that need to be remedied before the property is shown to buyers.

The following list was provided by Dunlap Realtors/ERA of Clarkston.

* Are your closets so jammed with unused sports paraphernalia and clothes that you shout "stand back" every time you open the door?

* Can you track your three dogs and two cats just by the smells they leave behind?

* Has the city's weed inspector been seen wielding a yardstick in your front yard because your lawn is eclipsing your neighbor's lilac bushes?

A majority of 400 real estate brokers surveyed in a national poll agreed that a property's physical condition can affect its sale.

The most prevalent concerns were cluttered closets, reported by 66 percent of the brokers; pet odors, reported by 65 percent; and poorly maintained lawns and grounds, reported by 51 percent.

Problems encountered slightly less frequently by brokers included dirty kitchens and smoke odors (each 48 percent).

The poll also showed that brokers agree homeowners can facilitate the selling process by leaving the house when it's being shown, responding quickly to contract offers, being willing to negotiate on selling price and remaining flexible on the closing date.

How to beat the summer heat

Sizzling summer sunshine can zap your energy, appetite and desire to cook.

"It can also place an additional burden on the safety of the food you consume, especially when temperatures hover in the 90s and 100s for long periods of time, like last summer," said Sylvia Treitman of the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service, part of the Cooperative Extension Service at Michigan State University, East Lansing.

The higher the room temperature, the quicker food is apt to spoil when left out. Therefore, the rule about food being left out no longer than two hours at room temperature is really being stretched to the limit when it's 100 degrees outside.

Here are some ways to help you beat the heat and keep food safer this summer.

● Defrost all frozen foods in the refrigerator, never on the counter at room temperature. Replace milk, cheese and all dairy foods in the refrigerator at once.

● Plan no cooked meals using seasonal fruits and veggies. Pasta salads with meat, cheese or poultry are a great main dish.

● If you must cook, do it early in the day. Plan ahead and make extra to freeze for another day or use the microwave or barbecue.

● Refrigerate leftovers immediately. Do not let food cool to room temperature first.

● Make easy access to ice cubes and take the ice chest with you for grocery shopping and all food transports such as picnics, etc.

● To dissuade insects, refrigerate ripe fruits as well as staples or store fruit in airtight containers.

● Prepare frozen treats such as Popsicles from juice, frozen bananas or frozen yogurt.

● Last, just eat out if it's too hot!

Opinion of Bill Myers

Uncle Sam flushes money down drain

William A. Myers is a retired Lapeer County editor and investments manager from Boca Raton, Fla.

When the federal government sensibly stopped its easy hand-outs to towns for building sewerage facilities, it didn't stop another government agency from making stupid hand-outs.

All a town needed to do was to reach into Uncle Sam's other pocket - the Farmers Home Administration. The FmHA rivals the savings and loans in shelling out money to one and all at bargain-basement prices.

Maybe I shouldn't kick, because the beneficiary is my favorite summer wonderland, Benzie County, Mich. The towns in this case are Frankfort and Elberta, both on Lake Michigan.

Frankfort is a dandy little town, almost as nice as our true love, Beulah, tucked away at the northwestern corner of Michigan. Elberta is little village across Betsie Bay from Frankfort. It isn't a crossroads town, because there's only the one road.

Anyhow, the towns have been there since lumbering days a century ago. Their credit rating is all right, and the towns are stable enough. It would pay a higher rate than Grosse Pointe, Mich., or Boca Raton, Fla., or Manhasset, N.Y., or Burlingame, Calif. But they could borrow money easily enough. Local banks would buy their bonds, and so would I (and I don't buy junk).

When Frankfort and Elberta joined in an "Authority" to finance sewage disposal facilities, it found the Farmers Home Administration ready to buy their $2.3 million bond issue. And boy, did the FmHA give the Authority a good deal.

The FHA paid 5.875 percent as the overall rate for an issue running out 40 years. And most of the money is due out in the long end. Only 5 percent of the issue is due in the next 10 years.

An issue of this tiny size - $2.3 million - running out to 2029 would sell at over 8 percent.

A quick stab at the subsidy involved: FmHA is dishing out at least a half-million dollars to Frankfort and Elberta by giving the towns such a low rate.

The people there are quite capable of paying for their own sewerage. But if Washington wants to give them $500,000 in subsidy, who are they to refuse?

The federal deficit will go on and on when Uncle Sam has such deep pockets.

The FmHA is just as big a sucker on house mortgages.

A Michigan lawyer told me the story of a fellow coming to him for advice.

"I can get a house for only $300 down," the client told the attorney. "My aunt will loan me the $300. I need a house. What should I do?"

The would-be homeowner obviously wasn't much of a credit risk, if he had to borrow the $300 to make the down payment. But that didn't bother the FmHA. It was ready to loan enough to buy the house.

"Go ahead and get the house," the lawyer advised. "It will take the FmHA six months to get you out if you never pay another cent. So it will cost you only $50 a month for your house by the time you're thrown out."

This surely fits anybody's definition of "affordable decent housing."

Utopia is already here. You just have to know where to look.

Private Gifts to Public Schools

Brings Questions of Fairness

This was a headline on a New York Times story. It seems that in Chicago, parents donated funds for extra equipment for a neighborhood school.

At once, some sensitive sociologists questioned the "fairness" of such gifts, saying that schools in poorer neighborhoods wouldn't get such presents.

Such reactions discourage further gifts. You don't like to be criticized for doing what you thought was a good thing.

Should better-off youngsters be deprived of advantages just because their parents' funds aren't spread all over the city?

Some years ago, I gave a new school in Lapeer, Mich., 50 trees to improve the looks of the bare grounds.

Should I have felt guilty because I didn't give 10 other high schools in the county similar gifts? Or should I have given each five trees?

Maybe what the Chicago parents did wasn't "fair". Maybe my own gift wasn't "fair".

But who ever said life was fair?

Memory of historical events affected by generation

Twelve historical events or changes in the past 50 years dominate our national memory, but how we interpret them depends on our age and generation, according to a University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, study.

Howard Schuman, professor of sociology and director of the Survey of Research Center of the U of M Institute for Social Research, and Jacqueline Scott, visiting assistant professor of sociology, asked a cross section of 1,410 Americans ages 18 and over to nominate one or two of the most important historical events or changes that had occurred in the past 50 years, and then explain why they had mentioned them.

In descending order, the events mentioned most often were World War II, the Vietnam War, the exploration of space, the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, the struggle for civil rights, the threat of nuclear war, developments in transportation and communication, the Great Depression, the invention of computers, the growth of terrorism, the decline of morality and the fight for women's rights.

The researchers' findings are to appear in the June issue of the American Sociological Review.

Schuman and Scott found that the events people remembered most often had occurred during their adolescence or early adulthood. The researchers also found that the quality or meaning of the memory varied according to the age the respondents were when the event took place.

"Memories of events from adolescence or early adulthood were the most vivid. They went off like flashbulbs in the mind," said Schuman.

Why? Because that is the period in human development when individuals first learn about and comprehend the significance of political and social events, Schuman said.

"Someone who was aged 13-25 when President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in 1963 was likely to say, 'I'll never forget it. I know exactly where I was and what I was doing,'" said Schuman.

"On the other hand, older people who mentioned Kennedy's assassination often prefaced their comments

Twelve historical events or changes dominate our national memory, but how we interpret those memories depends on our age and generation, according to a U of M study.

with 'If he had lived ...' They were not as traumatized by the event because it lacked the primacy or first-time effect of events that occur in our youth. The assassination engendered a sense of political rather than personal loss."

It also is possible, however, for a generation to cite the significance of an event that happened before they were born. For example, many members of the 1960s generation mentioned World War II even though the event occurred before they were born.

But, said Schuman, "their interpretation of the event was quite different than their parents' or grandparents'."

The 1960s generation "remembered" World War II as the "good war" when the nation came together in a moral cause. Their elders, who actually fought in the war, however, remembered it as a time of great personal loss and, for those who were on the home front, as a time of shortages and austerity.

The Vietnam war most often was mentioned by people under the age of 40. Those in their 30s and 40s cited direct war experience and the national turmoil caused by the war.

Respondents now in their 20s were likely to mention the war as a time when veterans were ill-treated.

Those in their 50s focused most often on the disillusion and distrust caused by the Vietnam War. Older people rarely mentioned Vietnam at all.

Members of different generations were equally likely to mention space exploration, but their reactions to watching Neil Armstrong take his first steps on the moon tended to differ according to generation.

"Those who were close to 50 or older often expressed emotional awe and wonder over the feat," Schuman said.

"Younger people were less awed and more likely to feel intellectual excitement about the future. They often speculated about space-age developments yet to come, colonization of other planets and the like. Younger respondents also stressed their national pride in the accomplishment."

The civil rights and women's movements most often were mentioned by those who were most affected by them. Many blacks mentioned the civil rights movement, but those now in their 60s cited it most often.

Similarly, women were most likely to mention the women's movement, but again, age had an impact. Two groups were most affected: women in their 60s, who, as young adults during World War II, had taken on male roles while men marched off to war; and those in their 20s and 30s, who have been affected by more recent changes in women's roles.

"Clearly," Schuman concluded, "it is the intersection of personal and national history that provides the most vital and remembered connection to the times we have lived through."

LOCAL COUPLE REPAIRING STARS

Jay and Dani Karrow are not scientists but they do repair stars. The stars they repair are the ones made by stone chips in windshields of cars and trucks.

Dani and Jay opened their Oakland Novus Windshield Repair Service a year and a half ago at the foot of the Waterford Hill. Call 623-2310. They offer in shop and free mobile service for windshield repair, scratch removal and now windshield replacement.

"We wanted to locate in the Clarkston/Waterford area because this is where we live," said Dani, who was born and raised in Clarkston. "We like the area, and with all the gravel roads and road construction our service has been in much demand."

Most people drive around with stone damaged windshields because they don't know their windshields are fixable or they don't want to pay the deductible of getting a new windshield installed. The good news is if they choose repair instead of replacement most insurance companies will pay the total price of the repair. We bill them, not you!

Oakland Novus is so proud of their repairs that they offer a lifetime warranty that's good from coast to coast.

Our repairs are ecologically sound and we don't disturb the factory seal so your windshield won't leak after one of our repairs.

We also can remove scratches from windshields; side glass and plate glass of commercial buildings. Also stone damaged head lamp covers.

New to this area is plate glass repair caused from stone or bb shots. This is done by our Tri-County Plate Glass Division. Repairing holes in plate glass will save the high cost of replacement and usually will recover the cost of the repair in savings from heat loss in winter and cooling in summer. Call Tri-County Plate Glass Repair at 623-2770.

Our shop is at 5904 Dixie Hwy. and Rockcroft. You know, at the foot of Waterford Hill. A special offer for our Clarkston News readers - free gift with a copy of this story when we repair your windshield.

50th reunion draws about 50

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

There have been many changes in their lives, but time has not dulled the memories of about 50 former students gathering for their golden high school reunion June 14.

About 25 students from the Clarkston High School classes of 1935, 1936, and 1937 gathered with spouses and former teachers for a luncheon at the Spring Lake County Club, Independence Township.

Old friends were reacquainted, and many spent the afternoon recalling their high school days of more than 50 years ago.

These former students from the classes of 1935, 1936 and 1937 attended high school in the building that now houses Clarkston Junior High on Waldon Road.

Back then, not just high school, but all Clarkston students attended classes in the building. The former students recall that the building was only a shell of what exists today.

50-YEAR-OLD memories were helped along with the aid of several old photographs which showed the entire high school class posed before what is now Clarkston Junior High School.

Along with their stories, the former students browsed through tables of several old photographs to jog their memories.

One photo showed the entire school posed in front of the building; in another, the entire 9th grade class numbers just a few dozen. Several members of the high school football and basketball team attended the reunion to marvel at photos showing them at the beginning of adulthood.

Although many of the former students still lived in Michigan, many traveled from out of state to attend the reunion. The distance in miles, however, was nothing compared to the distance of years.

RECALLING GLORY days are former Coach Robert Waters (left) and his former football and basketball player Forrest (Bud) Irish. Early pictures of the basketball team show

Golden celebration

Len and Marge Bullard of Staghorn, Independence Township, and also of Apache Junction, Ariz., celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with friends and family Sunday, June 18, at the Campbell Richmond American Legion Post on M-15.

Their children organized the open house for the celebration.

The Bullards were married June 10, 1939, in Port Huron.

In town for the celebration were their 12 children: Pat O'Dea, Bette Eaglen, and Dan Bullard all of Independence Township; Jeff Bullard (who was married June 17) of Independence Township; Margie Studebaker of Springfield Township; Janet Millet of Rigby, Idaho; Barbara Kowalski of Houston, Texas; Orison Bullard of Houston, Texas; Len Bullard Jr. of Toledo, Ohio; Clara Moody of Boston, Mass.; Bill Bullard of Conn.; and Nancy Crosby of N.H.

The Bullards have 32 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

New arrivals

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hyde of Clarkston recently gained three grandchildren.

Benjamin Hyde Swartz was the second child for Dr. Gary and Nancy (Hyde) Swartz of Smyrna, Tenn. Born April 30, he weighed 7 pounds. He was welcomed home by his 2 1/2-year-old sister, Sarah.

His mother, Nancy, received her bachelor of science degree in nursing at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., on May 12 and even graduated cum laude.

Benjamin's other grandmother is Mrs. Samuel Swartz of Colon.

Rachel Lisa Hyde was born May 25. She weighed 9 pounds, 4 ounces. She was the third child for Alan and Laurie Hyde of Richmond, Calif. Twins, Nigel and Michelle, 21/2, were waiting at home for their new sister.

Elizabeth Ann Hyde was the first child for Stephen and Mary Hyde of Auburn Hills. She was born May 30 and weighed 6 pounds, 13 ounces.

Her other grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Ponsart of Royal Oak.

The Fulton triplets

Richard weighed 4 pounds, 13 ounces; Michael weighed 5 pounds, 8 ounces, and Charles weighed 6 pounds, 5 ounces.

Mary was confined to bed three months prior to their birth.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Galbraith of Overlook, Clarkston, and Mr. and Mrs. John Fulton of Westland.

Microwave Plus

Microwave accessories
make good gifts

Betty
Wagner

June is gift-giving time seemingly equal to Christmas -- except we are often buying for people whom we don't know as well as the people on our Christmas list. We ponder over what to give. We want to give a memorable yet practical gift to the graduate, wedding or anniversary couple.

And microwave active accessories just may be the answer.

Nordic Ware makes three popular active accessories that people might not buy for themselves but would love and appreciate receiving.

These new items are: The Micro Max, hamburger/sandwich grill; the Micro Waffler; and the Tender Cooker microwave pressure cooker.

All three were just introduced in the last several years.

The Micro Max, which browns and cooks a hamburger in 3 minutes, was a sell-out last Christmas.

And can you believe barbecue ribs in 20 plus 10 minutes? What is quicker than the microwave? The microwave Tender Cooker by Nordic Ware.

Package mixes as well as waffles from scratch are suitable for the Micro Waffler. It's so much easier than the traditional waffle baker.

But check the box for recipes and directions before leaving the store. Mine came without recipe and instruction insert.

BARBECUE SPARERIBS

2 pounds pork spareribs, cut in serving size pieces
1 onion
2 cloves garlic, chopped
1 cup barbecue sauce

1/4 cup water
(serves 4)

Place ribs, onion and garlic in Tender Cooker. Combine sauce and water; pour over ribs. Cover and add red pressure regulator weight.

Microwave at HIGH for 20 minutes. Allow pressure-indicating stem to drop. Remove red pressure regulator weight and uncover.

COUNTRY STYLE RIBS AND SAUERKRAUT

1 1/2 to 2 pounds country style pork ribs
1 (16-ounce) can sauerkraut, undrained
1/2 teaspoon caraway seed
2 teaspoons hot mustard
(serves 4)

Place ribs in Tender Cooker by Nordic Ware. Cut to fit if needed.

Pour sauerkraut and liquid over ribs; sprinkle with caraway.

Place a 7-inch diameter, single layer foil circle on top of sauerkraut. Lay foil across the top of the sauerkraut and carefully tuck the edges down the inside walls of the cooker.

Place cover on cooker according to manufacturers directions. Add red pressure regulator weight.

Place in microwave oven being sure that there is at least 1/2 inch clearance between the red pressure regulator weight and the top of the oven cavity.

Microwave at HIGH for 25 minutes. Allow pressure indicator stem to drop. (This takes from 8 to 10 minutes and is the standing time in microwave cooking.)

RICE PUDDING

2 eggs, beaten
2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1 1/2 cup whole or 2 percent milk
1 1/2 cup cooked rice
1 tablespoon butter, cut in pieces
1/2 tablespoons chocolate chips
(serves 6)

In a 1-quart (4 cup) microwave safe glass or plastic bowl (that is sized to fit inside Tender Cooker -- Rubbermaid makes a Servin' Saver 1-quart dual-oven bowl that fits), beat eggs; blend in sugar and milk.

Stir in rice, cinnamon, nutmeg and butter. Cover bowl with a single layer of foil, smoothing down about 1/4 inch around sides of bowl.

Pour 1/2 cup hot water into Tender Cooker, place bowl in water. Cover and add red pressure regulator weight.

Microwave at HIGH for 10 minutes. Let stand 3 minutes; hold Tender Cooker under cold running water until pressure indicating stem drops. Remove red pressure regulator weight and uncover. Carefully remove bowl from cooker.

Carefully remove foil cover and sprinkle chocolate chips over top of pudding. Replace foil and allow chips to melt from from pudding heat.

Serve warm or cold.

TIP: Cook the rice in the Tender Cooker -- 1/2 cup uncooked rice will take 8 minutes.

NOTE: Tender Cooker directions are for a 600 or 700 (See MICROWAVE, next page) wait full size microwave oven. A 400 to 500 watt microwave oven needs about 5 more minutes of cooking time for most recipes.

The Micro Max makes single-serving grilled sandwiches a snap to fix and is especially adaptable to low-fat grilling. By pretreating the top and bottom surface with non-stick cooking spray you can eliminate using butter or margarine.

GRILLED CHEESE SANDWICH

2 slices oat bran bread
1 slice Swiss cheese, low sodium, low cholesterol and lower in fat
Spicy mustard
Butter or margarine, optional

Spray top and bottom surfaces of Micro Max with a non-stick spray.

Preheat the Micro Max by turning the empty unit upside down in the microwave at HIGH power for 2 minutes. Turn right side up for cooking.

If using butter, eliminate step 1 and spread outside of sandwich with butter.

Place the sandwich on the bottom half, close cover, latch, place right side up.

Microwave at HIGH for 30 to 60 seconds. Checking

With a little experimenting I came up with these waffle recipes.

BASIC WAFFLES

Prepare basic waffle recipe using a buttermilk baking mix. Spray waffle grids with non-stick cooking spray. Invert Micro Waffler and preheat at HIGH for 3-4 minutes.

Pour about 1/4 cup batter on preheated grids. Close Waffler. Microwave at HIGH for 1 1/2-2 minutes. Check after 1 1/2 minutes. Add more time if necessary. Repeat using all the batter.

CHOCOLATE DESSERT WAFFLES

3/4 cup all-purpose flour
5 tablespoons sugar
1/4 cup cocoa
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt

TO THE OXFORD Prophet: Hear, and receive warning, and instruction. Anyone can write Bible verses, but it is the anointing that breaketh the yoke of bondage; which anointing you have not; neither has God given you words to speak, but you prophesy of your own heart; you walk in the spirit of error, you are deceived, grieving God's spirit and elect. Prophets have names mister, and come out openly, with signs and wonders following: not confusion. Shut up, Kay. IILX45-2

WHO IS ON THE LORDS SIDE let him hear what the Spirit is saying to the churches. Woe unto you that persecute the flock of God and lead others astray by your vain imaginations, traditions, and Jewish fables rather than holding forth the "Word of Life"- the truth of the gospel. For the Lusty of men you build cages filled with deceit to commend yourselves among yourselves rather than seeking commendation of the Lord only. Hirelings you are, by allowing your vain imaginations about the Lord of God, doctrines of the Will of men, and Jewish fables to Destroy the Workings of the Commandments of God. Woe unto you people that trust in men rather than hearing the Word of God and Doing it, not suffering persecution for the Words sake, denying my name. For all of you have your reward in this Life. When I come, I will come suddenly and will destroy those forever who obey Not the gospel, by the Word of My Mouth. You are being reserved (deceived- hardened against truth) for my Father's wrath to be cast out into outer darkness. Repent. I Come Quickly! IILX25-2

WILLS & PROBATE

If you HAVE a will-your estate must go through probate. The probate court of today has become an ugly, legal nightmare where lawyers, administrators, estate appraisers, and bonding companies bilk widows and children out of their inheritance. All across the nation greedy lawyers, along with the judges, plunder most and sometimes all of an estate. Avoid the tremendous cost and long delays. Keep your family matters private. Call:

CLARKSTON AREA Rotarians slice into one of two pigs roasted for the 4th annual senior's pig roast. The hogs roast for a full 24 hours over a controlled fire before a butcher works his magic. The Rotarians provide the pigs each year for the annual senior citizen event.
