Public safety complex put on ballot

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The fight to create a public safety complex in Independence Township has entered Round Two. Voters in the Nov. 7 general election will once again be asked to vote on funding for the public safety complex, which would house the township central fire station, an Oakland County Sheriff's Department substation and possibly a state police post.

Last fall, voters narrowly defeated the $1.5 million dollar bond issue that would have covered the costs of creating the complex. The issue failed by just 55 votes.

The bond issue is larger this time. The township is asking voters to approve a $2 million bond issue -- instead of $1.5 million -- in case the site they prefer isn't available, said Fire Chief Gar Wilson.

Township officials plan to borrow the $2 million by issuing general obligation bonds to be repaid in 20 years.

If the bond issue is approved, the township is to

Murder suspect will stand trial

BY TRACY KING

Hezekiah Pulphus Jr. of Grand Rapids will stand trial in Kent County Circuit Court for the stabbing death of Patrick Walsh.

Walsh, 19, of Springfield Township, was brutally stabbed to death outside a Grand Rapids convenience store last June.

Judge Joel Hoekstro of 61st District Court in Grand Rapids ordered that Pulphus be bound over to circuit court after a two-and-a-half-hour preliminary exam Aug. 18.

Pulphus is being held in the Kent County Jail without bond. A trial date has not yet been set.

Pulphus, 20, is charged with two counts of open murder and one count of felony murder. A charge of open murder carries a life sentence with no parole if the suspect is convicted.

Testimony at the preliminary exam support the negotiate the purchase of an 18,000-square-foot facility on the west side of Ortonville Road, north of the Village of Clarkston. The facility, now owned by Lehman Investment, is the former site of the Randy Hosler Pontiac dealership. Lehman also owns the Clarkston Mills on Washington Street, Clarkston.

"My hope is to get that building," Wilson said. "It's a perfect location for our fire station. It's our best prospect right now."

Wilson said the facility is sorely needed because the present station on East Church Street, Clarkston is badly cramped.

The new facility would be better located to quickly serve residents living in the north end of the township and would provide better access onto busy M-15, Wilson said.

The township will conduct a more aggressive campaign to get the issue passed this time, Wilson said. "We're going to have a door-to-door campaign," he said.

The language in a sample ballot, unanimously approved by the township board Aug. 15, reads as follows: Shall the Charter Township of Independence, Oakland County, Michigan, borrow a sum of money not-to-exceed Two Million Dollars ($2,000,000) and issue its general obligation bonds therefor, for the purpose of defraying the cost of acquiring, constructing, renovating, furnishing and equipping facilities for use as a public safety complex?

"We have got to have a new building," Wilson said. "We have never given up."

charges, said attorney Rockwood Bullard III, who is representing the Walsh family.

"The last witness, Steven Love, testified that Pulpus said Walsh wouldn't give him his wallet," Bullock said. "That testimony supported the felony murder charge. I wasn't surprised he was bound over."

Police arrested Pulpus, a second felony offender, after investigating a tip received through the Silent Observer program. The program was set up to receive anonymous tips from witnesses in exchange for a reward if the suspect is convicted.

Walsh was stabbed in the heart outside of a Grand Rapids Stop-N-Go convenience store on June 9. Moments before the slaying, a convenience store employee received reports of four suspicious-looking black men near Walsh's car.

Walsh, a 1987 Clarkston High School graduate, lived in Grand Rapids while attending Grand Valley State University in Allendale.

Fashion update

What's in style may be against the rules

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Barbara Peters loves the student fashions highlighted in The Clarkston News back-to-school sections each year, but this year, she decided to give a little advice of her own.

"I hope I can get to a few parents before they purchase the clothes," said Barbara, the mother of two.

Last year, she followed The News' guidelines on fashion and spent $300 on clothes for her daughter, Stacy, now 12, who was a sixth-grade student entering Clarkston Junior High at the time.

"I thought the fashions were right on," said Barbara. "They were cute."

But when Stacy went to school, "she was pulled in the office several times," said Barbara.

It seemed some of the clothing broke dress codes at the junior high school.

"My daughter just cringed," said Barbara. "She's appropriate. She doesn't wear a mini skirt where you can see her panties. You can't see her belly. She was clothed head to foot. ... We were quite shocked."

Stacy wore a big sweater dress and tight pants underneath on the first day, said Barbara.

"We had to go out and purchase jeans," she said.

Different from Andersonville Elementary School, where Stacy previously was a student and where her sister, Nichole, 6, now attends, CJHS doesn't allow jogging pants or tight bicycle pants, said Barbara.

Her daughters regularly wore jogging pants to Andersonville in the winter because the thick cotton pants kept them warm, she said, adding that she did not like the CJHS dress code.

"I was quite upset," she said. "I felt bad for my daughter. It was so embarrassing to her."

A quick check with the junior highs and high school confirmed Barbara's story.

According to Vincent Licata, assistant principal at Sashabaw Junior High School, certain clothing found to be disruptive is not allowed, including halter tops, tank tops, T-shirts with references to obscenities or alcohol and drugs and hats.

Skin-tight biker shorts are in fashion now, but they're not allowed at SJHS, Licata said.

"With this age child, there's fads that come and go; and we understand that," he said. "But when they become disruptive, we feel we have a right to intervene."

Maybee rezoning gets final OK

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A 213-unit single family development on Maybee Road has obtained the rezoning it needs to move forward.

Independence Township board members voted 5-2 to approve a second reading for planned unit development (PUD) rezoning on the 68-acre Maybee Road parcel south of the Spring Lake Country Club.

Voting yes were Supervisor Frank Ronk, Clerk Joan McCrary, Treasurer John Lutz and trustees Daniel Travis and Mel Vaara. Trustees Frank Millard and William Vandermark voted no.

PUD rezoning is tied to a specific site plan and allows the township to design development guidelines for each case. The zoning needs approvals from the planning commission and the township board.

Before voting against the rezoning, Millard told the board he was against using PUD.

"The zoning in that particular area is for multiple family dwellings. Granted, that would be more dense (than what is proposed). Changing the zoning attacks the credibility and integrity of our zoning ordinances," Millard said.

Some board members disagreed.

"The planning commission reviewed this for quite some time and had some real concerns," Lutz said. "They dotted all their i's and crossed all their t's. I think this is a development the community will be proud of in years to come."

Although the parcel is now zoned for multiple family structures, the developer, The Selective Group of Farmington Hills, approached the township with a plan to build single family homes on the property. The move would cut the allowable density on the property in half.

In obtaining PUD rezoning, the developer will be allowed to build the homes on 9,000-square-foot lots instead of the 15,000-square-foot lots required under the township's single family zoning ordinance.

At the request of the planning commission, the developer reduced the number of smaller lots and increase the number of larger lots. At least 75 percent of the lots were greater than 80 feet wide and at least 10,000 square feet.

The subdivision is to consist of six different home styles set among curved, linear streets and extensive landscaping.

Homes are expected to be priced somewhere between $100,000-$200,000.

are also against the rules.

At Clarkston Junior High School, jogging pants are not allowed; neither is torn clothing nor clothing with holes. Other rules are similar to Sashabaw's rules.

"Each junior high has a different dress code," said Ginny Farmer, former CJHS assistant principal and new assistant principal at Clarkston High School.

Rules at the high school are similar to the junior high schools, but Ginny added an extra reminder: no holes in jeans and no long underwear.

Purposely torn clothing is not allowed, she said.

At all schools, shoes must be worn at all times.

Students receive a copy of the dress codes at the beginning of each year, but if parents have questions, they should call their children's schools: CHS, 625-0900; CJHS, 625-5361; SJHS, 674-4169.

Fire department improvements OK'd by board

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Independence Township Fire Department is about to grow in size and in capability.

The township board unanimously approved four fire department requests Aug. 2:

* A driver-engineer will be hired to replace a firefighter on disability leave since October, 1988.

* The department will purchase a new two-way radio system from Motorola at a cost of $139,000. The new system will use a ultra-high radio frequency and requires a license through the Federal Communications Commission. The department now uses a frequency with channels that are overcrowded, according to Fire Chief Gar Wilson.

* The department will replace its lifesaving equipment, known as "Jaws of Life," with newer, more competitive equipment. The existing lifesaving equipment will be sold. Fire department officials told the board that the existing equipment would bring in about $9,000; the new equipment would cost about $14,000 per set.

Fire Chief Gar Wilson

* Three firefighters will attend a hazardous materials class at the St. Augustine Technical Center in St. Augustine, Fla.

The requests are necessary to ensure the safety of firefighters and to keep pace with the growth of the township and its activities, said Wilson, after the meeting.

"We're going to have to continuously grow," Wilson said. "We need to keep up with what the needs are."

The needs of the fire department change as the township grows in both size and activity, Wilson explained.

According to the National Fire Protection Agency (NFPA), departments should staff one firefighter for every 1,000 people.

"If that's the case, we're in the neighborhood of 25,000-28,000 people -- we should have 25, 28 full-time firefighters," Wilson said.

The township currently employs five full-time fire personnel and a staff of 35 on-call firefighters. Although the goal is to staff all three stations with four people at all times, it is often difficult to get the on-call people out, especially during the day when many work, Wilson said.

The fire department has felt the burden of a busier township as well.

Hazardous material emergencies have recently become part of the fire departments responsibilities; the department handles all fire and medical calls as well. About 60 percent of all calls are medical emergencies; 40 percent are fires.

"The busyness of the area has something to do with the nature of the activity," Wilson said.

The growth of the entire county has hampered the department in its ability to communicate during emergencies. The department's two-way radio system is used by 26 other fire departments in the area.

"If a storm comes into this area, you'll have six to eight departments all coming in," Wilson explained. He described other occasions where he was unable to communicate to firefighters inside a building or as they tried to radio for more help.

"There have been documented cases where firefighters have lost their lives (because of radio difficulties)."

Fire Chief Gar Wilson

"There have been documented cases where firefighters have lost their lives," he said.

Wilson acknowledged that many of his requests were costly but said the expenditures were necessary to keep the department and township residents safe.

"I work within a budget. I'm going to do the most I can for the least amount of dollars. But I am not going to jeopardize the people in this township or my own people," Wilson said.

"The people of this township (approved) three mills for us to operate," he added. "I don't feel like I should bank that money."

Alternative Education programs expanded

Students attending alternative education classes at the Clarkston Learning Center can expect some changes in the curriculum this year, ranging from typing classes to evening child care.

This year, the center on Maybee Road, Independence Township, will house electronic typewriters, enabling students to learn clerical skills.

Marilyn Allyn, director of community education, said technical classes are another change offered to students in Alternative Education this fall.

The technical classes offered at the Oakland Technical Center on Big Lake Road, Springfield Township, will include diesel machinery, floral design and automated office machines.

"We want to prepare the students for when they leave the building," said Allyn. "We nurture the students for six hours and prepare them for diploma, but they have no skills."

The new programs are intended to better prepare the student for going back into the outside world, Allyn said.

For the first time, evening child care will be offered for evening students at the learning center.

Classes for evening Alternative Education will be held in the Clarkston Learning Center this fall instead of Clarkston High School.

Kindergarten revisited

Julie Campe

On my first day of school, I knew right away that I'd have fun at that place.

Miss Johnson greeted me with a big smile and said I could play with the other children on the floor. I quickly let go of my mother's hand and joined them. I didn't even see my mother leave.

Kindergarten at North Sashabaw Elementary School had these big cardboard blocks, painted red. They were the biggest blocks I had ever seen. Yes, it was going to be a fun place.

Soon, we went outside to play. At the teeter-totter, I met Cindy Egress, who immediately agreed to be my friend.

We held hands and ran around the playground until Miss Johnson called us to come inside.

The teacher asked us all to choose a seat at one of the little tables, and Cindy and I quickly found one right next to each other.

While the other children were scrambling to choose a chair, Miss Johnson asked me to begin passing out Crayons, which I did. But when I returned, Todd (I can't remember his last name) was sitting in my seat.

Miss Johnson, who was starting to talk about coloring, didn't notice. So I politely drew her attention to it.

"Miss Johnson, Todd's in my seat," I told her.

Todd immediately yelled out, "I am not. Teacher said to pick a seat, and I picked this one."

"I had it first; didn't I, Cindy?" I said.

Miss Johnson said, "Please take a seat, Julie."

And she started talking about coloring again.

She must not have understood me, I thought. So I tried again.

"Miss Johnson, I had that seat first," I said.

I expected that explanation to do the trick, but Miss Johnson, whose smile was starting to look stiff, gave me a hard look.

"Just take a seat, any seat," she snapped, and I knew she didn't care if Todd had taken my seat or not.

So I took one of the only seats open, far, far away from Cindy; and I listened to Miss Johnson talk about coloring. Some of the kids were wriggling around and talking, and a few strands of Miss Johnson's pretty blond hair began to escape from her pony tail.

When it was time to color, I realized that I didn't pass out any Crayons to myself, and when I went to get a few from the other tables, only black Crayons were left.

I started to tell Miss Johnson about it, but I saw that look on her face. Her eyes were wide, and some kid I hadn't met yet was pulling on her skirt.

Soon it was snack time. We were going to have a cookie and some milk, Miss Johnson told us.

But before she could say anything more, a few kids on the other side of the room started yelling to her and pointing.

We all got up to see what was the matter.

It was Terry (I forget his last name). Somehow, he slipped his legs backward through the hole between the back and seat of the chair; yet he still faced forward. His back must have hurt, being bent that way.

Miss Johnson tried to pull him out, but he was stuck. Terry began to cry, though he bravely tried to hold it back.

Just then, a big kid came in with a crate of milk, and before he could retreat out the door, Miss Johnson enlisted his aid.

Together they lifted Terry and his chair and freed him.

Minutes later, we were in our seats again, happily eating our snack.

Yep! School was all it was cracked up to be.

Fun summers in Clarkston area

I would like to thank some of the people who, through their hard work and kindness, provided a very special summer for my children and the entire family.

First of all, thank you to the wonderful staff of swim teachers and lifeguards at Deer Lake Beach. Led by Jill Terry, they are fantastic role models for the children. They make learning to swim great fun and our beach a place we love to visit.

Secondly, thank you to Anne Rose and the library staff and volunteers who work so very hard to provide interesting summer reading programs for the preschoolers and school-age children. They truly exceed anyone's expectations of what libraries offer children in the summertime.

They enrich the love of literature that the schools foster during the school year and feed their interests until fall.

Lastly, thank you to Joan Kopietz and the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce for their unselfish work in organizing our fabulous Friday concerts in the park. We just love those nights at the park in summertime!

Thank you to all of the people who give of themselves to make Clarkston a terrific place to be in the summertime!

34 help library's summer programs

At the Independence Township Library, we did, as urged by the statewide summer reading program theme, strive to "reach for the stars."

With the help from 34 businesses and individuals we were able to have a truly rewarding Read-A-Lottery (a lottery ticket earned for each book read) for our grand finale on Aug. 8.

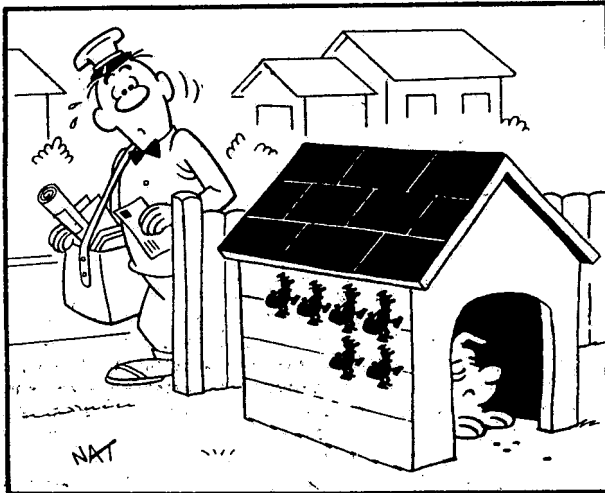

Contributors to this effort to offered several hundred of our young people a great place to spend time and to continue using their reading skills.

We thank them heartily for help in making the star-studded summer program a success.

Jim's Jottings

Hail to the victors . . . and I don't mean the University of Michigan. My spouse and daughter, Hazel and Luan, won their flight in the Indianwood Ladies' Invitational golf tourney.

With her championship trophy and a hole-in-one to her credit, Hazel has little to look forward to on the links. Kinda sad to think she's achieved such high goals and now has so little to look forward to.

I'm sure glad I still have a hole-in-one in front of me yet. Otherwise I'd probably be looking for another hobby. Poor Hazel, now listless, has lost her lust to hit the ball a mile — straight to the pin.

I couldn't live like that.

Had dinner with a local couple the other night when the conversation turned to husbands who stay out too late and reek when they come home.

She said to her husband when he came into the bedroom in such a state, "You smell up the whole bedroom."

He told her, "You should knock out that wall and make the bedroom bigger."

There's a 'breakfast only' restaurant in Harbor Springs you might want to try. Called the Cupola Room, it's on Zoll street across from the water works. Blueberry or peach pancakes or waffles, $6.95. Delicious.

Have your first meal of the day there, then go to the Crow's Nest or Teddy's near Boyne Highlands for dinner. Both are casual and comfortable and inexpensive.

The Anchor Bay Beacon reported last week that Lenox Township trustee Tom Ballor came to the meeting dressed in a brightly colored clown suit and wig.

He said, "I was looking for a way to get my point across to the community that the township conducts business like clowns in a 3-ring circus. I thought, they treat me like a clown, perhaps I should dress like one."

Seems some officials were having back room meetings where decisions were made, and then the no-discussion motions were made and passed at regular meetings.

Gosh, Tom, isn't that normal?

Another note about meetings . . . ever notice that when a person says, "I have a quick question for you" it runs longer than the average question?

Why don't scientists/inventors turn their attention to making a non-skid nose pad for eye glasses? I got lots of questions this week, but as usual, no answers, so I'll quit right here, okay?

Reporter's Notebook

The delays from construction on Dixie Highway may last longer than expected. The highway improvement project will not be completed on schedule, according to Independence Township Treasurer John Lutz.

Lutz told township board members Aug. 15 that he spoke with several business owners on Dixie Highway who got the bad news from highway officials that it won't be finished this fall as planned.

If you want to sell a vehicle in Independence Township, the cheapest method may, in fact, be to purchase an ad in the newspaper.

Independence Township Trustee Daniel Travis told the board that he had counted vehicles for sale in the parking lot of the A&P at M-15 and Dixie Highway, and his tabulations ran well into the teens on some weekends. Travis was told that the owners of such vehicles would soon be ticketed for the action.

A practical joker nearly made it into The Clarkston News Photo Inquiry this week.

Some young man wearing a black turtleneck answered, "Listening to too much Duran Duran," to this week's question, "What is your worst habit?"

The man said his name was Nick Rhodes, his occupation was musician, and his street was Rio Lane, Clarkston.

When no such street could be found on any Oakland County map, the fire department was called. But they said no such street had been platted recently, so we scratched the person from our Photo Inquiry this week.

It took intern Bonnie Wattleworth to put the puzzle together. Nick Rhodes is a singer for the rock group, Duran Duran, and "Rio Lane" is the name of a song. But the guy in Tony Pinho's photo was not a member of Duran Duran.

At least one Clarkston News reader took offense to a story about "Sadie," the granddog of Dave and Lorna Bickerstaff. Sadie received a dog biscuit when she went through the drive-through window of Dave's bank.

But one caller thought the article was negative about children and too much about dogs.

'If it Fitz . . .'

Fighting
favoritism

Jim
Fitzgerald

My friend Ralph accused me of suppressing the news to protect a neighbor.

"When the guy was jailed on an armed robbery charge and he told the cops he lived at your address, you didn't write a word about it," Ralph said. "You also didn't write anything when the same guy was involved in a street shooting. And that's the kind of stuff you usually jump all over. I think you are guilty of favoritism."

Ralph was referring to 19-year-old Christopher Collins, son of Detroit Councilwoman Barbara-Rose Collins who shares a Lafayette Park apartment building with me and around 600 other residents. You don't need this column to tell you that Christopher was recently arrested for allegedly holding up a store, or that earlier this year he was the target in a still-unsolved drive-by shooting.

Ralph's point was that when other council members deserve bad publicity - when Jack Kelley and John Peoples threaten to punch each other, for instance - I'm always quick to make fun of them. Do I have different rules for Barbara-Rose Collins simply because we're neighbors?

Not really. In fact, I've recently been planning to make fun of the evident improvement in Collins' mode of public-funded auto transportations.

Four years ago, when she and other council members complained about the Plymouth cars that taxpayers buy them, Collins' gripe was that her car seat fit her so poorly she had to lie on her back to drive it. And I wrote something smartly about the terrible danger of the councilwoman sliding head first through the back window while driving uphill to one of Mayor Coleman-Young's summit meetings.

Stung by what she considered my unfair implication, Collins retorted that she wasn't trying to squeeze a more expensive car out of taxpayers. She merely wanted to test-sit the Plymouth before city purchasing officials bought it and told her to drive it:

"You sit in a sofa before you buy it, don't you?" she asked.

That was in 1985. In 1989, it has warmed my heart to notice that, although the cheap city still restricts her to a Plymouth, Collins no longer needs to worry about having to lie down to drive it. She has a chauffeur.

Or maybe it would be fairer to call him a driver, or a member of her staff. Whatever, I often see him waiting for her in front of our building in the morning as I trudge off to the bus stop. I also see the sign in the back window announcing that the car's occupant is Councilwoman Barbara-Rose Collins. And I think what a shame it is that council members must give up their anonymity to avoid parking tickets, but all an ordinary taxpayer like me has to do is take the bus.

Another thing I intended to write about Collins concerns campaign signs. I wanted to thank her for not putting any in our front yard and boulevard, even though several other city candidates - such as John Peoples and Erma Henderson, both incumbents who certainly should know better - don't mind violating the law against these egregious eyesores.

Henderson has accused her opponents of taking down her yard signs. Not in my neighborhood, Erma. They were removed by city workers. How the hell else are they supposed to mow the lawn? (And please - all candidates - don't plead that your followers, not you, are responsible for the offending signs, and still expect anyone to swallow crap about your great leadership.)

There was even a skimpy yard sign for Coleman Young in our boulevard this week. I expected much more from the mayor. I expected James Earl Jones standing in the middle of the street, arms raised, intoning that Young was "built and hand-crafted in Italy." Or was that the Maserati?

But I digress from Barbara-Rose Collins. My friend Ralph was correct in charging I won't make fun of her limelighted domestic problems. But I'm being considerate of a mother, not a neighbor. Speaking generally, there is nothing giggly about the unfortunate fact that lots of parents, no matter how hard they try, don't always get the children they always want.

It's not like buying a sofa.

From This Perspective

Elvis lives

Tracy
King

Elvis Presley lives all right. I saw proof this past weekend.

Like everyone else, I had been thinking about Elvis; with the anniversary of his death and all, how could anyone do otherwise. But his death date also happened to coincide with a trip I made to Memphis for a wedding.

I joined hundreds, maybe thousands, of people who travel to Memphis in August as a sort of pilgrimage. I was there for a wedding, like I said.

Before I left, I had seen an old Elvis concert clip on TV. The audience was filled with prim, young women in full, buttoned dresses who had probably never even mentioned the word "sexy" much less seen it in the flesh. But there was Elvis -- with the wink, the grin, the voice and the hips. A phenomena, to be sure.

But it's been 12 years. And the adoration for this guy has not died. It lives. I saw it this weekend.

Throngs of people crawl all over the grounds. Huge, six-foot bouquets, sent this week by mourners, line the property line and driveway. Women sob at the grave.

The estate receives an average of 15 letters a day from fans. Fifteen doesn't sound like much, but every day? For 12 years?

Our hostess, a Memphis native, said it's been much, much worse. When Elvis died, her classes at school were canceled. You couldn't get through on the phone. A crawl on the television begged people to remain calm; interstates were blocked by people crying.

It's hard to match the man who caused all this fuss with his mere mortal surroundings.

Graceland, Elvis's home, is modest. You can see it from the street while standing in the parking lot of the souvenir shops. If it weren't for the crowds, you could probably drive right past the place and never guess who lived there.

The rooms are small and somewhat dingy; it's hard to elbow past the crowd for a better look.

It costs $8 to tour the house. It costs $2 to tour the plane and another $1 to enter the Elvis bus. For another fee you can enter the trophy room or walk past the plastic-flower-covered grave.

The trophy room holds all of Elvis' movie posters, plaques, trophies, costumes and mementos.

One in our tour, there just for the wedding, said he had an old ticket stub from an old Elvis concert.

We looked back at all the paraphernalia and told him he should sell it; at least he could make up the cost of his Elvis tour, we all said.

But hurry, we urged. This Elvis stuff was bound to die out soon.

Isn't it?

New position created

Board approves assessing growth

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A new, non-union position has been created in the Independence Township Assessor's office.

The township board voted unanimously Aug. 15 to create a chief appraiser position, a salaried job paying $28,890, annually.

The position will be filled by Connie Lipka, who currently works in an appraiser level one position in the township assessing office.

Two entry-level appraiser positions, including Lipka's and another left vacant by a recent resignation,

"I wanted to create a position of authority over the other appraisers. And I wanted to recognize that position with adequate pay."

Assessor David Kramer

will both be filled by union personnel.

"I wanted to create a position of authority over the other appraisers," said Assessor David Kramer, after the meeting. "And I wanted to recognize that position with adequate pay."

In a letter to board members, Kramer explained that his office had been affected by a large employee turnover. After entry-level appraisers gained experience in Independence Township, they frequently left for higher paying jobs.

Board members told Kramer they approved of his request but questioned how the township's union membership might be affected.

Union President Sandy Miller, who attended the meeting, told the board that this was the first she had heard about the move.

"I'm surprised. I don't know what to say," Miller said.

Kramer said he wouldn't expect the union to have a problem with the position.

"Both union positions still exist; I haven't taken any numbers from the rank and file of the union membership," Kramer said.

"I asked for a salaried position instead of hourly wage. There is no overtime paid to salaried people, whereas union member employees do get overtime."

Kramer also said it was not good practice to have a union person supervise another union person.

The chief appraiser will help maintain existing records and will assist with additional appraisals now required by the Michigan State Tax Commission, Kramer said.

In addition, the chief appraiser will act in the absence of the township assessor.

After the board approved the position, Kramer commented.

"I'm gratified that the township board recognizes and supports the needs of the assessor's office in light of the growing inventory of properties and the additional requirements that the state tax commission has put on assessors."

Nan's Beauty Talk

Here comes the sun, and along with it, a slew of environmentally caused hair problems such as dry ends, porous strands and color you never planned on. Heat and humidity are notorious for creating the frizzies. Fight back by using an anti-humectant sealer, which controls swelling of the hair shaft. Intense, dry heat almost burns hair. Respond with a deep conditioner that penetrates under a dryer and is sealed in with a cool rinse. A leave-in conditioner is also important. Faded hair color is a major issue. The sun depletes melanin and artificial color, lightening hair and causing dye molecules to come out. The use of a good haircolor can help put depth and lustre into hair for more shine. A five-minute semipermanent color refresher is another solution. Don't panic, you needn't wear a hat for weeks to hide your hair. Instead, give your hair our expert care. # Oakland landfill site will not be in the area

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Neither Independence nor Springfield townships were among the two proposed landfill sites for Oakland County disclosed Thursday, Aug. 17.

The first-choice site was 1,000 acres of farmland in Oxford Township west of Lapeer Road and north of Hummer Lake Road.

The second choice is a 624-acre site in Highland Township, north of M-59 and east of Hickory Ridge Road.

Computer-fed information picked the final sites after a 25-member committee set up criteria for the landfill location, using a "blind siting process."

The process -- in which the locations of the possible sites are not known, but all other pertinent information is known -- has never been used in Oakland County.

The committee, comprised of representatives from each area of the county, set up the criteria and ranked the importance of all the factors. Based on the information, the computer selected the best site.

Collin Walls, Springfield Township Supervisor, and Richard Detkowski, owner of Clarkston Disposal in Independence Township, served as members of the Landfill Siting Advisory Committee of Oakland County.

"I think the process used was as close to being ideal as possible," said Walls.

But wherever the landfill site ended up, people would be upset, he said.

"That would be true no matter what -- it's human nature," he said.

Walls said Springfield Township could have been chosen for a site if the township met the criteria.

"We had a better-than-average chance," said Walls.

From the beginning, it was obvious the landfill would be sited in the northern part of the county, he said, because larger parcels of land are available in the northern part of the county, while the southern portion is more densely populated.

Detkowski said he thought the process used for arriving at the site selection was very good.

"A lot of hours were put in, and we did the best to make it safe," said Detkowski.

It's understandable that people would be upset with a landfill close to their property, he said.

"But we are producing waste, and we must have a landfill to put the waste in," he said. "This will be safer than the landfills of past -- it's going to be lined and monitored properly."

CHS dropout rate debated

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Reports of high dropout rates at Clarkston High School prompted school board member John Needham to request a report from Superintendent Gary Haner about the issue at the Aug. 14 school board meeting.

Needham referred to a recent report of a 6.4 percent dropout rate for Clarkston printed in a local newspaper.

Brent Cooley, assistant principal at Clarkston High School, compiled student enrollment figures for further clarification of student dropout statistics.

On May 5, 1989, Clarkston High School listed a 3.6 percent dropout rate for the school year.

Students leaving Clarkston High School at the end of the first semester of the 1988-89 school year numbered 134, but that number reflects students who left and enrolled in another school.

Of the 134 students, 29 students did not re-enroll in another school, so the dropout rate was 2.03 percent.

In the second semester of the 1988-89 school year, 38 students left CHS, and 23 did not re-enroll in another school -- a 1.62 percent dropout rate.

CHS Principal Robert Burek said student records are sent to other schools that are enrolling students who have left CHS.

Burek also referred to numbers in the news article listing figures from Oakland Schools and Michigan Department of Education.

"Nobody knows how the state arrived at the count," he said.

Citizens for Orderly Growth

Maybe PUD not a good idea

Doug Carlson

At the last Independence Township Board meeting, the Maybee Road PUD (planned unit development) was discussed and voted upon.

Despite an eloquent and, I thought, persuasive plea by Trustee Frank Millard to reject the proposal, it passed by a 5-2 margin.

On the surface, the vote seems to make sense. The parcel of land in question is currently zoned multiple and holds the potential for 450 apartments.

The PUD proposed by the developer would result in a rezoning to accommodate 213 single-family homes instead.

Who could argue with trading 450 apartments for 213 single-family homes? Less density, less congestion, less traffic, etc. Isn't this what COG has been after all along?

Normally, I would say yes, but Frank Millard makes an excellent point when he warns against deviating from the zoning master plan.

A great deal of time, thought and effort went into the development of the plan, and changes to it should be made only if the zoning on a parcel of land no longer makes sense or is overly prohibitive. Zoning changes should not be made only so a developer can make more money.

To me, the most important aspect of the Maybee Road situation is that it allows for homes to be built on 9,000-square-foot lots. This is considerably less than the minimum standard of 15,000 square feet, which currently exists throughout the township.

Now that we've opened that door on a relatively large scale, what's to prevent other developers from coming in and asking for a similar PUD on their property?

I realize they have to show a "benefit to the community" and all those good things, but I wonder how a denial now would stand up in court. Once you establish a precedent, it can work against you with devastating results.

Another thought occurred to me regarding the Maybee Road project. Township Supervisor Frank Ronk seemed to think the proposed mobile home project on Mann Road was a good idea because we need low-cost housing within the township for kids starting out, retirees, etc.

Since the mobile home project was denied, wouldn't an apartment complex on Maybee Road fill that need? Where was the "low-cost housing" argument last Tuesday night?

Please don't get the idea that I'm advocating apartment complexes throughout Independence Township. Far from it. It's just that a reasonable number of apartments are necessary within the township, and why not put them where the master plan calls for them?

And, as I said before, I'm not sure the trade-off in the Maybee Road case was a good one. We'll just have to wait and see.

I'd like to conclude by quoting from Tracy King's excellent editorial on this subject in the Aug. 16 edition of The Clarkston News. As she said it so well, "Let's Make a Deal" is no way to govern the impact of growth on a community.

How true!

Clarkston school survey planned

Voters in the Clarkston school district may be surveyed this fall.

The Clarkston School Board is to meet Aug. 30 to discuss what the survey questions should be asked of Clarkston voters.

"We need to revisit some of the previous surveys to determine what is wanted," said Mary Jane Chaus-towich, secretary of Clarkston School Board.

Superintendent Gary Haner said George White and Bill Potvin, both elementary principals in the Clarkston district, are to review previous surveys. Potvin conducted a survey 10 years ago.

At the Aug. 14 meeting, President Janet Thomas voiced concern over delaying the survey meeting.

"You don't get a survey together in a day," said Thomas, adding that one survey would not accomplish everything.

Her job covers education from 'womb to tomb'

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston New Staff Writer

Marilyn Allyn, new director of community education for Clarkston Schools, is involved with babies from two weeks old to adults who are 70 years old.

"This is what we call the womb-to-tomb idea," said Allyn. "Community education means you have to know a little about everything."

In community education, students can learn through various programs and apply their knowledge toward a high school diploma.

Students in the 16-19 age range may apply classes from the Alternative Education program toward a high school diploma. The General Education Diploma (GED) will prepare adults who qualify for an equivalency test, thus earning a diploma. Adult Basic Education programs are for students with reading, spelling and math skills below 8th grade level.

Community education also offers enrichment programs for children and adults, ranging from woodworking to art classes.

"These are the fun programs," said Allyn.

Another branch of community service that community education has taken under its roof at the Clarkston Learning Center is child care.

weeks to five years also falls under the direction of Allyn, who has been involved with community education for about 10 years.

Allyn found her way into the field after being laid-off from the Pontiac school system, where she taught junior high students from 1974-78 in a traditional school setting.

The lay-off sent her looking for a job, and she found a position in the Brandon school district as high school completion coordinator. She's been involved with community education ever since.

Allyn spent five years in Brandon and said she's proud because when she was hired, the adult education program had five classes. By the time she left for Clarkston, the number had increased to 20 classes.

In 1984, Allyn was hired to work part time in Clarkston to start the adult basic education program. She also worked part time for Oakland Schools, monitoring the adult education programs.

Her job requires knowing a little about everything, said Allyn. There are grants to write, and state-aid forms to be dealt with. Plus, knowledge of early childhood development as well as other ages is necessary.

"It's always something -- and if anyone needs help, everybody jumps in," Allyn said.

Allyn said community education is a self-supporting program, and that fact keeps it separate from K-12 education.

The staff and Allyn work at keeping current with what the community needs. In K-12 education, they sit back and wait for the students to come to them; in community education they look for what the community needs, Allyn said.

"I'm lucky because the staff sees a vision of the future and doesn't want the programs to remain where we're at."

"We want to be tied down to what the community needs and not what we perceive as their needs," she said.

Last year, an advisory committee was formed to help find and fill community needs. The committee, comprised of 12 people who represent a wide cross-section of the community, also includes one student from Alternative Education.

One of the biggest problems facing community education in Clarkston is space.

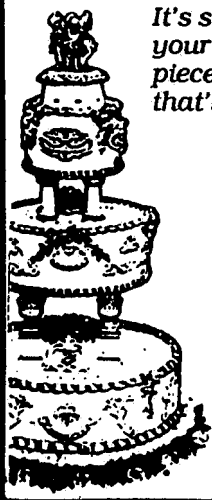

"The building size is limiting," said Allyn, adding that even so, some new programs will be added for this year, despite a staff reduction.

Because the school district received less money from the state this year, the administration cut two-and-a-half positions from the staff at the Clarkston Learning Center -- the alternative education coordinator, high school completion coordinator and a communication coordinator, said Allyn.

But Allyn considers herself lucky to have the staff she has.

Time Out

Making a list

I can relate to the anxiety that builds within Santa Claus each winter, leading up to the Christmas holiday.

Sportswriters in my shoes around the globe, waiting for the high school sports season to begin, can relate.

Working for The Clarkston News means that when school's in session you're busy -- especially when you try keeping up with every sport in town.

Santa delivers gifts to every little kid in the world -- all in one snowy night, no less. My job is a little less cumbersome, and computerized, yet hectic all the same.

Both Santa and sportswriters stay pretty busy during peak season. For me, there is high school boys soccer, football, girls basketball, boys tennis, boys golf and cross country in the fall. Don't forget the junior varsity teams and the junior high school teams. Toss in the Clarkston Wrestling Club, Clarkston Chiefs and Independence Township Parks and Recreation action, and you've got one hefty sack to lug around.

The sad part about the above list is I enjoy covering them all just as Santa probably likes circling the globe every year. Even though it takes much effort, the result is well worth it.

It'd be easy to trim the list to varsity sports only, but I find the other contests just as interesting -- even if most are scheduled for the same time slot. (Has anyone perfected cloning yet? Then I could double-cross the schedule-maker and be in two or more places at one time.)

The next best thing to being there is hearing about it from the players and/or coaching staff. A designated talker, if you will. Every team has to have one. I know you're out there dying to let the world in on your team's great success. Now's your chance to contribute. If you can't help the team with your athletic prowess, try talking (and explaining what I missed). It's a noble profession, trust me.

In past years, I've tried (with limited success) to handle the chore of rounding up data on every sports team in the Independence-Springfield area. Under deadlines, telephone tag is no fun to play. There has to be a better way.

For 1989 we'll open the phone lines to anyone who cares enough to call. If I'm not spotted at a sports event (Sorry, Independence-Springfield area only), feel free to let me in on the scoop. I do care.

If enough comments come in, maybe we'll print the best of the week.

Don't forget, the phone lines are open now. Call today (625-3370). If no answer, please try again. Otherwise, the results I miss may be your own.

***

P.S. -- Deadline for copy is 2 p.m. Monday for the following Wednesday (Thursday by mail) paper.

CHS alumnus takes golf tournament

A 1987 graduate of Clarkston High School continued to excel on the golf course recently.

Gunnar Karlstrom of Sashabaw Road, Independence Township, won the Mens Club Championship at the Edgewood Country Club in Union Lake the weekend of Aug. 12.

Winning the event at Edgewood was especially pleasing since Karlstrom began golfing there at age 7.

Karlstrom currently plays with the Michigan State University, East Lansing, golf team.

Girl, 12, hit by car while riding bike

A 12-year-old Springfield Township girl was injured when she was struck by a car while riding a bicycle at the corner of Northbay and Bruce Dale Drive, Springfield Township.

Andrea Lanning of Ute Pointe Drive suffered a broken leg, which was treated at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, her mother said.

"She's got some scrapes and bruises, but she's doing fine," said Belinda Lanning, Andrea's mother.

The car driven by Susan Felt, 35, of Northbay was traveling south on Bruce Dale when it collided with the bicycle, according to an Oakland County Sheriff's Department report.

"(Felt's vehicle) tried to swerve and avoid striking the bicycle, but was unable to do so," according to the report.

Lanning said she has no hard feelings toward Felt.

"She brought Andrea a card and a stuffed animal, and she is going to stop by and see her later," Lanning said. "It truly was an accident. They tried to avoid hitting each other, but they ended up in the same spot."

Two hurt in early morning head-on crash

Two Clarkston-area men were injured Aug. 16 in a head-on collision on Dixie Highway near Norman Road, Springfield Township.

Ronald Eaton, 31, of Farley Road, Springfield Township, was in serious but improving condition at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, a hospital official said Monday.

Randall Jenereaux, 26, of Marconi, Independence Township, was transported by a Fleet Ambulance to St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital, Pontiac, where he was treated. He was released Aug. 18, a hospital official said.

Jenereaux's vehicle was traveling north on Dixie Highway when it crossed the center line and struck Eaton's vehicle head-on at 2:30 a.m., according to an Oakland County Sheriff's Department report.

Jenereaux's car continued heading south about 130 yards and then collided with a tree, according to the report.

Jenereaux then left the car and was found near the accident scene about two hours later by police, an OCSO traffic official said.

No charges were filed as a result of the accident, according to the report.

Wanted: Labor Day parade floats, marchers

Organizers of Clarkston's Labor Day Parade are still looking for entries for the 10 a.m., Monday, Sept. 5, festivities.

Anyone with a float, marching unit, bicycle or unique vehicle should call Clarkston Rotary Club coordinators Leonard Gorz at 858-0211 or Marc Cooper at 673-1020.

The theme this year is: "Our Future Through our Past," and the best entries will receive awards from Rotary Club judges.

Opinion of Bill Myers

Yield from zeroes

William A. Myers is a retired Lapeer County editor and investments manager from Boca Raton, Fla.

Ben Webberman writes a pretty good column on bonds in Forbes magazine. He seldom stirs up an argument from this writer, and that is quite an achievement for anyone, anywhere.

His May 29 piece on zero coupon bonds had a lot of half-truths, enough to compel me to start up the typewriter.

"Zero coupon bonds have become popular with the brokers because they generate large commissions."

Larger than what? I saw a Paine Webber confirm today for $714 worth of stock, and the commission was $60. That's 8.4 percent.

While the transaction size was small, brokerage firms get about that same cut on mutual funds, annuities and other forms of insurance policies. On limited partnerships, the rate is even higher. On unit trusts, 5 percent is common.

When a new issue of zeros comes out, 1.25 percent of the dollar amount is a typical commission. The individual broker selling a par value of $100,000 in zero coupons with an offering price of 20, or $20,000, would get $250 for his firm, and he would keep $100 for himself.

On the secondary market, I admit there could be fat mark-ups if the broker has no conscience and he isn't in business for the long haul vs. a quick buck from rip-offs.

People who buy zeros (or any other bond, but zeros in particular) should do so on a yield basis and not the dollar price. If you don't have a bond yield calculator, then ask the broker to figure out the yield to maturity and the yield to call for whatever you are looking at.

For example, you're offered a good quality tax-free zero due in 20 years at 25 cents on the dollar: $2,500 for a $10,000 bond which will be paid off in 2009. A good deal?

Not really. That's only a 7.05 percent yield. And the salesman isn't likely to tell you that if you don't ask. His pitch is "four times money back, all tax-free."

You comb the Blue List in the zero coupon section at the back. You locate one with a listed yield of 7.5 percent. It might just be the same issue the salesman is trying to peddle at a dollar price of 25, or $2,500 for $10,000 par value bonds. At a yield of 7.5 percent, the price will be $2,293. That's $207 you can save.

The lesson is clear: buy zeros on a yield basis. The dollar price is so far from par that the yield is never apparent. The main thing that should interest you (aside from quality) is what the investment is going to produce.

Webberman says that because of the high commissions (which I dispute), you have to figure on keeping zeros to maturity. Again, you figure what yield basis similar bonds are going for and tell your broker that's about what you want.

It might cost a little more percentage-wise to sell them, but not much. I've sold a lot of them during interest rate cycles when rates were down and prices were up. If I do say so myself, the results have been pretty good, considering I'm but a simple country boy from Lapeer, Michigan.

Yep. Always has. What else is new?

* * *

My partner at the dinner table was active in an investment club. I asked her what the gals were buying these days.

One was California Energy, traded on the American Stock Exchange. It's a geothermal energy company.

"It's completely pollution-free," she said. "And it's low-cost energy, and it has a great future."

I remarked gently that nuclear and hydro were pollution-free, too.

A glance at the Standard & Poor's Stock Guide showed for California Energy:

1. No rating - not necessarily a bad sign, but one to produce a quizzical look.

2. Price range of $2.75 to $11.75 in 1988. And $7½ to $17 this year. At press time, $9¼.

3. No cash dividends, although a 4 percent stock dividend was paid early this year.

4. Book value $1.37 per share, compared to a price of $9¼.

5. Earnings last 12 months: 8 cents per share. Prior five years, either no earnings or losses of 1 or 2 cents per share.

Well, maybe it will turn out all right. Or maybe it will reflect the results of buying-by-committee.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Phyliss Braun

OVERPRICING CAN BE COSTLY

QUESTION: Several REALTORS have told me that my house is overpriced by about 20% and, in the long run, could cost me money. How can this be?

ANSWER: Because overpricing stops buyers from considering your home. No matter how much is spent on advertising, an overpriced home will not sell. Prime prospects who should have bought, have gone elsewhere to buy. When a home remains unsold too long, interest stops because buyers become wary. Eventually your house will sell, but for less than you could have realized had you priced it realistically. Use extreme caution in pricing your house more than 5 percent above its market value.

OVERPRICING A HOUSE will lose more good prospects than anything else.

Planning a baby? Get fit for pregnancy now

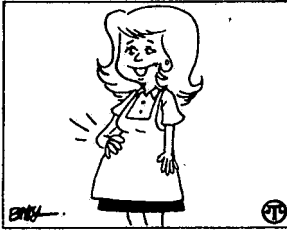

Right now is a good time for those women thinking of having babies to establish a safe and enjoyable fitness program -- one that can be continued throughout pregnancy and beyond.

Why now, when the reality of pregnancy may be weeks, even months, away? Because obstetric professionals agree that pregnancy is not the time to get in shape, especially for women who prior to pregnancy have led fairly sedentary lifestyles.

By beginning an exercise program before you conceive, you can improve your level of fitness and help ensure a healthier, more comfortable pregnancy.

The type of exercise you choose depends largely on your currently level of fitness. But for all levels of activity, moderation and good sense are key.

During pregnancy, it's important to avoid strain and fatigue. Be sure to take frequent rest breaks and avoid exercising in hot or humid weather. It's also important to eat lightly before exercise and to take in plenty of fluids before, during and after workouts.

The American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology recommends walking, swimming and gentle stretching as safe for most pregnant women. Cycling, jogging and tennis are OK, too, but only if you currently participate in this type of activity on a regular basis.

If you are currently involved in vigorous sports or fitness activities like long distance running or high impact aerobic dance, experts suggest cutting back. The reason? Heat generated by intense exercise may interfere with very early fetal development -- a hidden hazard if you're pregnant but don't know it yet.

Most physicians also advise against working out with weights during pregnancy because holding your breath for even short periods of time (an involuntary act during weight workouts) may be harmful to a developing fetus.

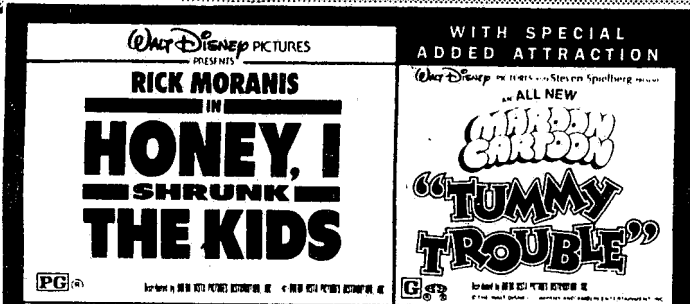

Once your pregnancy is confirmed, be sure to discuss your plans for keeping fit with your physician.

Minister visiting from Beirut tells it like it is

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Beirut, Lebanon, was a vibrant community years ago. Tourists from around the world regularly visited, and the 1.5 million residents prospered.

Today, the city remains center stage to a 15-year-old civil war. Only 250,000 residents remain. Most who could flee have done so, either to surrounding towns and villages or to other countries.

One resident who remains steadfast in his loyalty to the people of Beirut is the Rev. Victor Sadaka of the First Baptist Bible Church in Beirut.

"I could have left but I don't have a green light from the Lord to leave," he said. "Everybody has left; that's why I stay (to offer support and help to the remaining few)."

Sadaka visited with the Rev. Paul Vanaman of the Dixie Baptist Church on Dixie Highway in Springfield Township late last week. He knows Vanaman through the Baptist Evangelistic Missionary Association (BEMA) headquartered in Ohio.

While he's here in the United States, Sadaka will visit with family members, who are spread across the nation. One son is enrolled at Clemson University, Clemson, another at Rice Institute, Houston. Two daughters are attending Bob Jones University, Greenville, S.C.

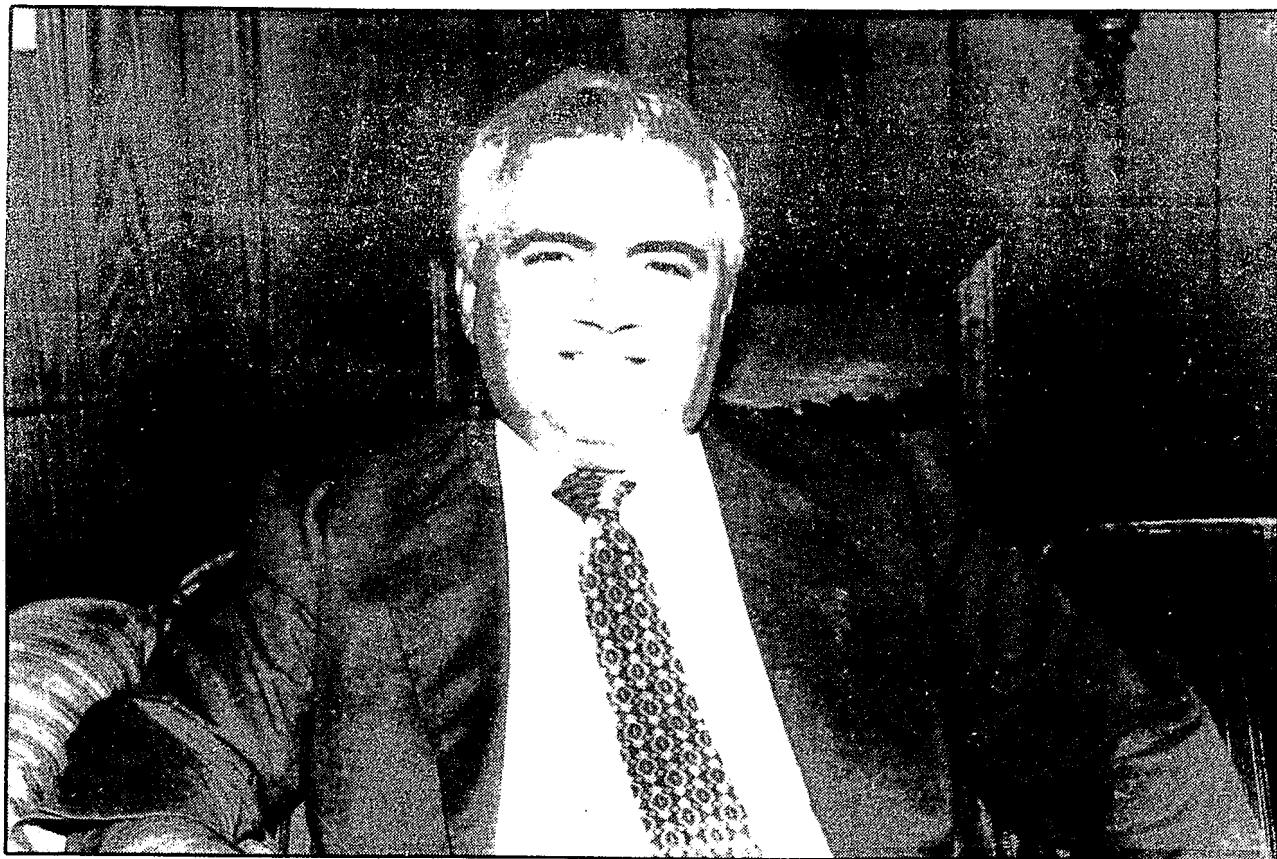

Everyone in the family graduated from the American University in Beirut. Sadaka, who has lived in Lebanon for 40 years, graduated in 1959.

He took time out from his talks with Vanaman, who is the president of BEMA, to discuss the war he's temporarily left behind in Beirut.

With family and former church members spread across the United States, Sadaka has traveled extensively and often is asked about the problems in his homeland. He keeps the explanation simple.

"Beirut was one of the most beautiful places in the world. Thousands visited Beirut. Now it's devastated. High-rise hotels are vantage points for snipers."

"One big problem in understanding (the situation) is that there are several conflicts going on at the same time," he said. "It's very hard to understand who is fighting who and what they are fighting for."

Israeli forces occupy a strip of southern Lebanon. Iranian agents operate in territory nominally controlled by Syria. Iraq, Syria's Arab archenemy, has armed the Maronite Catholic forces. "Instead of slugging it out, they fight through surrogates in Lebanon," he said. "All are trying to get control."

Peace-keeping units sent from abroad offer little help in bringing the long-running war to an end.

"Even the outsiders don't come in with an impartial attitude. There seemingly is no end (to the conflicts)," he said. "(Other nations) want to see things settled but only

Preparing for Fame & Fortune

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Ronald Martin, 47, of Meadowbrook, Independence Township, was a little disappointed that he didn't get to spin the wheel during the taping of "Fame & Fortune" Aug. 18, but he took solace in the $500 he won.

With the $1 ticket he bought at the A & P store in Orion Township, he won the chance to appear on the show taped at WDIV-TV, Channel 4 in Detroit.

He had a "great" time, he said Monday, Aug. 21.

As a contestant, he was awarded an overnight stay at the Omni International Hotel, VIP Limousine Service for travels around Detroit and a special luncheon at The Whitney Restaurant.

"It was first class," said Ronald, a millwright at the General Motors Corp. C-P-C Division in Pontiac. "They treat you just perfect."

He had been looking forward to taping the show all week, he said.

"I felt great about winning $500 but really felt lousy about being put off the show," he said, explaining that he lost in the preliminary rounds.

"I didn't get to spin the wheel," he said. "You feel so high all week, it was disappointing. But it was still fun."

"It was an excellent trip. For an average old shop worker, you don't get treated like that everyday. We went to a restaurant, and they didn't even have prices on the menu. I thought, 'Man, I'd never be here.'"

He ordered a steak plus cheesecake for dessert, but he was nervous about being on TV, so he wasn't sure if he'd be able to eat, he said, adding that he managed to finish his meal.

He and his wife, Donna, a cold food aide at Crittenton Hospital, Rochester, have four children and will celebrate their 30th wedding anniversary on Aug. 25.

Ronald, who opted for an inverse lay-off at work, said he planned to catch a Tiger game while he was off.

As for the $500 he won, he said, "We'll kind of spend it a little at a time."

RONALD MARTIN wins $500 on "Fame and Fortune."

Michigan state parks are 'incredible' says author

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The dog days of August have lumbered in, and you've begun to wonder why you're not on vacation like everyone else.

Before heading straight for the hammock, take a closer look around.

Affordable, memorable vacations are within reach in Michigan, says Jim DuFresne of Woodside Drive, Independence Township.

DuFresne has spent two years traveling through Michigan's state park system, researching his new book "Michigan State Parks: A Complete Recreation Guide for Campers, Boaters, Anglers, Hikers & Skiers," (The Mountaineers, Seattle). The book, published in June of 1989, is the only guide endorsed by Michigan's Department of Natural Resources.

"Michigan has dozens of places," DuFresne says. "What I've seen in the past two years is incredible."

He talks animatedly about his favorites: Silver Lake State Park, with its huge stretches of sand, "looks like the Sierra Desert; the dunes are at 60- to 70-degree angles" and Isle Royale on Lake Superior is "a real natural park, with a thriving moose population."

When talking about the state's fishing adventure, he gets downright excited. "You can catch huge spawn trout, 10 to 12 pounds, on a fly rod!"

DuFresne's attraction to Michigan is even more

"Michigan has dozens of places. What I've seen in the past two years is incredible."

Jim DuFresne

notable when compared with other lands he has documented.

He has written six books involving extensive travel throughout New Zealand, Alaska and Minnesota. Travel and outdoor writing began its attraction when DuFresne lived in Alaska, where he often participated in wilderness activities like kayaking and glacier walking.

Outdoor enthusiasts might also recognize his name above several local newspaper articles on travel and the outdoors.

Along with his books, DuFresne writes several articles each week for the Booth Newspaper chain, which includes The Flint Journal, The Grand Rapids Press, The Saginaw News and others.

Most mornings, DuFresne heads straight for his typewriter, not stopping to frolic with his two young children or to chat with his wife, Peggy, on her way to work at General Motors Corp.

He writes about six hours a day, four days a week. Travel and photography take up another two days each week.

His articles and books are the result of a busy, difficult agenda, which he pursues with discipline. But the rewards are great.

When his first book was published, he recalls being a bit taken with it.

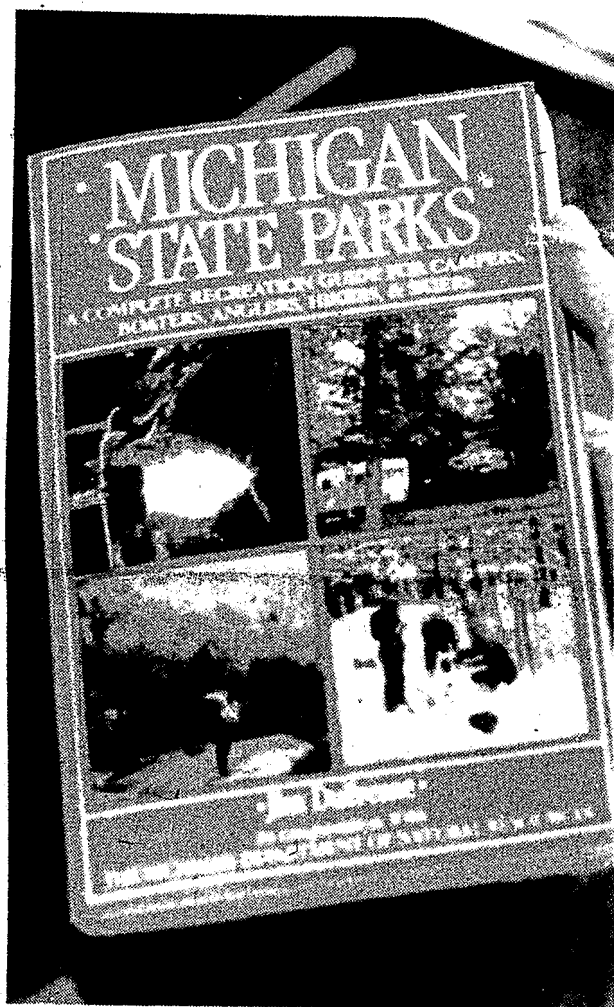

"I remember sitting on the couch looking at every page," he says.

Now, he admits, he writes for his paychecks.

Lovers of the outdoors can expect more books from DuFresne; he's planning a two-book series on Michigan hiking and is working on another book about New Zealand.

His book "Michigan State Parks: A Complete Recreation Guide for Campers, Boaters, Anglers, Hikers and Skiers" colorfully describes each of Michigan's 92 state park areas and their recreational opportunities. The entries include information on access and provide detailed maps with graphics.

Copies can be purchased for $10.95 at the Village Bookstore on Main Street, Clarkston, and at other area book stores.

THE SPLENDORS of Michigan are colorfully described in "Michigan State Parks, a Complete Recreation Guide for Campers, Boaters, Anglers, Hikers & Skiers," written by Independence Township outdoor writer Jim DuFresne of Woodside Drive.

Beirut minister visits Clarkston

in a certain way. If you look at it this way, it's not so hard to understand."

And so the war continues.

Fortunately, Sadaka and his church (located a half-block away from the American University in the Muslim leftist section of Beirut) haven't suffered as others have during the conflicts.

He's quick to point out that what deaths and damage have occurred had nothing to do with religion -- just bad luck.

"It has not been because we were Christians (that people have been killed) but as part of the population," he said. "We have suffered along with everybody else."

During the many years of struggle, the Lebanese people have learned to do without. Electricity comes from portable generators; public transportation is all but nonexistent, and gasoline is strictly rationed.

"There is a basic lack of commodities," he said. "The jobs have vanished, and the future is gloomy."

Yet Lebanese like Sadaka remain in Beirut, waiting for the war to end. But he won't hold his breath waiting for peace talks to begin.

"Right now it's wishful thinking; there is no light at the end of the tunnel," he said. "The prospects are not good, and there is no reason to think that will happen."

Only fond memories of what once was can fuel the spirits of the remaining people like Sadaka in the war-torn city. Maybe someday, Beirut once again will prosper as it did in its heyday.

"Beirut was one of the most beautiful places in the world," he said. "Thousands visited Beirut. Now it's devastated. High-rise hotels are vantage points for snipers. One-third of Lebanon (residents) has been displaced, either kicked out or moved. There seems to be no end to it.

"We hope for better, not worse."

Mortgage broker sees 'professionalism' in area

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The competitive world of mortgage lending just got tougher in Clarkston.

Mortgage Specialists, Inc., attracted by the growth and professionalism of Clarkston's real estate market, MORTGAGE SPECIALISTS, INC., headed by by Tom Untener, has opened a new office above the Clarkston News offices on Main Street.

has opened a new branch on Main Street, Clarkston.

The company has operated for about four years from Clawson.

Mortgage Specialists is different from a mortgage company because its officers actually broker mortgages, acting as a middleman between a bank and a homebuyer.

Say you have decided to buy a home in Clarkston, and a realtor finds the house of your dreams. To obtain your mortgage, you have a number of options. You can apply directly at a bank; you can obtain a loan from a mortgage company; or you can use the services of a mortgage broker, such as Mortgage Specialists.

What's New in Business

Unlike a mortgage company, which actually services or holds the loan itself, a mortgage broker will arrange a loan with one of its participating lenders.

Mortgage Specialists, Inc., has 14 such lenders, or investors; they include several banks, savings and loan institutions and large mortgage companies.

The difference might be reflected in the mortgage rate or in the number of programs a mortgage broker can offer because he works with a multitude of lenders.

The difference is also service, says Tom Untener, product officer for Mortgage Specialists.

"We do a lot of follow-up work. We'll meet with a client at night, Saturday, Sunday -- we work when the realtor wants us to work," he says.

Untener prides himself with being accessible to a client. A special phone service will forward his calls to any location where he can be reached.

Company representatives will typically spend just 30-45 minutes with a client to obtain necessary information. An immediate credit report can be obtained and homebuyers can be prequalified for their mortgages.

"Two to three months later they'll have their mortgage," Untener says.

Clarkston became a focus for the company because of its growth and professionalism, Untener says.

"Business is good here. I know people, and I'm comfortable in Clarkston," he says.

"There is a knowledge here, a professionalism," he says. "They're an outstanding group of people."

Man surprises wife with new hair care business

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

For her birthday in early June, Douglas Cass surprised his wife, Margaret, with a set of keys.

No, a new car wasn't waiting for her in the driveway at home. Instead, the keys opened the door to her first solo business venture - Family Hair Tec.

The Dixie Highway, Springfield Township, family hair care center in the Oakhill Plaza was nothing more than four bare walls in a new strip mall. With the help of her husband and five sons, ranging in age from 7 to 19, she decorated and outfitted the shop and opened for business in a month.

During the month of prepping her new building, she pretty busy."

Having worked in the hair care profession for 18 years, most recently in Holly, Margaret knew the ins and outs of the business. But she was reluctant to strike out on her own.

It took some prompting from her husband, until she was convinced. He also took the liberty of placing a sign along Dixie Highway advertising the new business the day she received the keys.

"My husband decided it was what he wanted to do," Margaret said. "I was scared to do it, but now I'm glad I have it."

Customers also have been appreciative of the new hair care shop in town.

"People have been saying, 'We have been waiting for you to open,'" Margaret said of customers' reaction since the July 5 opening. "(Business) has been pretty good so far."

With the shop-opening experience behind her, Margaret can look back and enjoy what's happened to her life in the past two months.

Her husband probably will have a tough time finding a better birthday present next year.

"That (the empty shop) was a fun birthday present," she said.

What's New in Business

worked a full-time job during the day and at her own shop at night alongside the rest of her family.

"It seems like home; I'm here all the time," Margaret said of her shop, while taking a break between customers. "I feel very comfortable here."

On top of becoming a business owner for the first time, Margaret also had to help in the family's move from Fenton to Davisburg recently. The Cass family finally settled into their new home in early August.

During slow times at the shop or when she has a free moment at home, Margaret stays busy with her crafts. She especially enjoys making porcelain dolls and quilts. Other times are spent with her sons Brian, Greg, Jamie, Jeffrey and Peter James.

"There is never a dull moment," she said. "I stay

Labor Day observed

Each year, after surviving the dog days of summer, workers look forward to Labor Day. The holiday, which honors workers across the country, is recognized on the first Monday in September.

First believed to have been celebrated with a parade Tuesday, Sept. 5, 1882, in New York City, N.Y., Labor Day has since evolved into a national holiday recognizing the nation's workforce.

The original parade was thought to have been organized by Peter J. McGuire, secretary/treasurer of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

By 1883, a resolution by this union declared "the first Monday in September of each year a Labor Day," and more than half of the states observed the holiday on one day or another.

During 1883, a bill to establish Labor Day as a federal holiday was introduced in Congress.

It was not until June 28, 1894, however, that President Grover Cleveland signed into law an act making the first Monday in September a legal holiday for federal employees and the District of Columbia. Today, Labor Day is observed in the United States and Canada.

Ask The Dentist

Q.) My dentist advised sealants for my 7 year old son. Why is this necessary?

A.) Sealants are among modern dentistry's best weapons against cavities. Before your child gets his "first cavity" a white or clear coating is bonded to the top of the molars. The process requires no removal of the tooth structure and numbing is unnecessary. Although, the sealant prevents or delays cavities, insurance companies are reluctant to pay for this service. Fees range from $35.00 - $65.00 for four molars.

Tips for finding peace and quiet

Sometimes it's hard to get some peace and quiet in today's noisy world. But for the sake of your hearing and your mental and physical health, it's important to try.

Following this advice from the E-A-R Group, the world's largest manufacturer of hearing protection devices, can help:

- Regulate the volume of your sound system. When using your headset, keep the volume at a level where you can understand conversations spoken at a normal level around you. In general, the volume of your sound system is too loud if you must raise your voice or shout to be heard over the music.

- Redesign your home or office. Bulky furniture, heavy carpeting and thick drapes all muffle sound, while bare floors and mirrors reflect and amplify sound. Place rubber mats under major appliances and foam pads under smaller items.

- If outside noise is a problem, try to plug cracks around pipes and electrical outlets. Use sponge-type weather stripping to cover openings around windows and doors, and install storm windows to help muffle aggravating street noise. An air conditioner or a fan can also help block out distracting sounds.

- Wear a hearing protection device such as foam earplugs whenever you're in a noisy setting -- whether it's going to a rock concert or working with power tools.

Gallstones and your body

An estimated 29 million Americans have gallstones. These stones, which can be as small as tiny specks or larger than golf balls, develop in the gallbladder or its connecting tubes.

The gallbladder is located behind the ribs in the upper right side of your body. Its function is to store digestive fluids produced by the liver.

You probably know someone who has gallstones, or perhaps you have them yourself. Test your knowledge about this common condition by taking this short quiz.

1. The most common gall stones are made of (a) cholesterol, (b) iron, (c) potassium, or (d) phosphorus.
2. Which one of the following is usually not a symptom of gallstone disease? (a) chest pain, (b) blurred vision, (c) intestinal gas, (d) indigestion, (e) belching.
3. True or False: Women are more likely than men to develop gallstones.
4. True or False: Surgical removal of the gallbladder is the only way to get rid of gallstones.
5. True or False: Gallstone disease is always painful.

Answers:

1. Cholesterol is the major component of about 75-80 percent of all gallstones.
2. (b) Blurred vision is typically not a symptom of gallstone disease. Pain behind the rib cage on the upper right side of the body is the most frequent symptom of this disorder.
3. True. Gallstones are three to four times more common in women than in men. Being overweight, being pregnant and consuming a diet rich in animal fats add to the risk. Women who have had one or more children seem to be more prone to this condition than those who have never been pregnant.
4. False. Although surgery is the most common treatment for gallstone disease, oral therapy with a natural bile acid is now being used to dissolve gallstones in patients who prefer not to have surgery or have a chronic physical condition, such as heart or kidney disease, that places them at high risk for surgical complications.
5. False. Many patients have what doctors call "silent" gallstone disease. The stones are present, but they do not cause symptoms. The disease can either remain silent indefinitely or eventually cause severe discomfort.

First day of school often makes children nervous

Shopping for new shoes, clothes and supplies are standard back to school rituals for many families, but it is also a time to "size-up" the anxieties that children and parents both face.

According to Anne Cairns Federlein, a nationally known expert in family development and consultant to Little Caesars Pizza, children are naturally fearful about the changes a new school year brings: new classrooms, new teachers and changing relationships with their friends.

However, she says, it is often the parents who become more anxious as they live out their memories of going back to school, as they remember the problems of adjusting to each school year's changes and therefore may fear for their children.

Parents also add pressure to the situation by trying too hard to be "good parents," which can result in tremendous pressure on children to achieve more at earlier ages, Federlein says.

She adds that parents need to recognize that their child is facing these anxieties, address the child's fears with them and then be supportive. Only then can parents help work out their own fears, too.

Federlein advises parents to admit to their children that they had many of the same fears when they were young and to share stories of their own experiences in school. She says this provides the opportunity for children to take out their anxieties by comparing fears. It can also be an ideal time for let children know that life's most uncertain, transitional times can also be life's most exciting adventures.

As children grow older, they talk less about their back-to-school fears, but that doesn't mean they are less fearful. Federlein says the parent often is the last person to know that a problem exists, or is developing, and counsels parents to watch for behavioral changes which often indicate the adolescent is under stress.

Setting up a comfortable dialogue for the adolescent with an adult, either a friend or relative, can be an ideal way to discuss his or her fears.

Here are some simple changes parents can make to ease the school transition for their children:

- * Re-establish a reasonable bedtime and eating schedule.
- * Limit television viewing time and increase the number of visits to the library. Set a time to read books, both together and alone.
- * Take a tour of the new school before classes start.
- * Ask a custodian on duty to show you around.
- * Visit your child's classroom periodically.

School requires caution from drivers

An estimated 1.4 million children will be back on Michigan streets each day, on their way to the state's schools.

AAA Michigan offers some safety tips to make their trip a safe one.

- * For the beginning days of school, parents should walk with youngsters who are attending elementary classes for the first time.
- * Cross only at intersections, never at mid-block.
- * Look in all directions before crossing streets, and watch for cars turning on green lights or making legal turns on red lights.
- * Obey safety patrollers and adult crossing guards.
- * Walk on the sidewalk. If no sidewalk is available, walk on the side facing traffic.
- * Follow the safest route to school, which should be planned on streets with low traffic volumes and controlled intersections.
- * While waiting for a school bus, stand in a safe place, well back from the road.

- * Assist with making phone calls to parents.
- * Serve as a driver or chaperon for field trips.
- * Get active on a policy-making board in your school district.

Federlein strongly advises parents to reinforce what a wonderful year their child is going to have and that school -- like life overall -- is a wonderful adventure.

After the hectic schedule of activities begins to fill the day, it is important to remember to continue setting aside time for a "family recess", to share the events of each day and the many new things your child has learned.

New building gives more space for pool business

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Pete Gannon is a goal setter.

Owner of Poolmart of Michigan on Ortonville Road near Dixie Highway, Independence Township, Gannon opened the business in 1980, renting the property for his adventure.

When he first opened, Gannon set a five-year goal to buy the property his business sits on, and he accomplished that goal within his established time period, he said.

His 10-year goal was to build on the property, and that particular goal is now in progress. The targeted date for completion of the 12,000-square-foot building is mid-September.

What's New in Business

The Clarkston area is a good place for a pool business, he said, even though he lives in Troy with his wife, Shirley, and son, William, 15. Another son, Gary, 27, lives in Sarasota, Fla.

But the Clarkston area suits him fine, he said.

"I didn't want to overlap areas with others selling pools," said Gannon.

With the new building, Gannon can keep his stock in one area. At present, he rents storage in Holly because he's short of space.

Gannon credits his success to his services, which limit pool owners' maintenance chores by diagnosing and preventing chemical and filtration problems, he said.

"Pools are a technically oriented toy, and I want to make it easier for the customer," said Gannon.

That goal inspired him so much that he became an inventor -- he designed a filter efficiency test to determine whether a pool filter is properly functioning.

Most people have jobs, he said, and they don't need another job in caring for their pools.

"We want customers to spend no more than 10-15 minutes a week caring for their pools," said Gannon, adding that prevention is the key to pool maintenance.

"I like to be on the leading edge," he said.

Gannon not only likes to keep abreast of the latest technology in pool maintenance, but he also use some different technology in his new building.

The building will use geo-thermal heat and air-conditioning -- a process that pumps water from the ground for use in heating and cooling.

He also has set aside a special area for pool chemicals.

"A customer will be able to walk up to the chemicals and take them out just like going to a large cooler where milk is stored and opening the door," he said.

Gannon said all chemicals enclosed in the storage area will be vented to the outside so that chlorine fumes, or smell, will not be present in the store.

The Poolmart business is to employ about 20 people during the season, and the building will house three companies under the same roof. In addition to Poolmart, Ralph Moran Associates provides in-ground pool service, and Sunscape offers vinyl liners for pools.

For the time being, Gannon isn't setting any long-term goals. Moving into the new building and serving his customers are enough goals for now.

POOLMART OWNER, Pete Gannon, is on the leading edge of reaching another goal. His business will move into a new building by mid-September.

Accidents: a leading cause in child fatalities

Noting that accidents kill more children than disease, the director of Hurley Medical Center's pediatric intensive care unit in Flint urged adults to be especially cautious as summer approaches.

Free time and warm weather often lead to drownings, burns, falls, traffic injuries and other accidents, warned George Y. Zureikat, a specialist in pediatric intensive care who treats many area victims.

Traffic accidents are the single most common cause of death for children and teens, Zureikat said. Bicyclists and pedestrians should be taught the rules of the road, and small children should not be allowed to play unsupervised near streets.

He advised wearing a helmet and bright, colorful clothes while riding a motorcycle or bicycle.

Using approved car seats and seat belts is one of the best ways to protect infants and children from death or injury in car accidents, the doctor said. State law calls for babies (to age 1) to be strapped in car seats in the front or back seat. From age 1 through age 4, it is permissible to use a seat belt for a child in the rear seat, but youngsters must be strapped in a car seat in the front seat.

To guard against drowning, which causes 7,000 deaths annually, Zureikat advised parents not to leave children unattended near pools or lakes and not to permit swimming in waters that might contain hidden, harmful objects under the surface.

Never dive -- or allow youngsters to dive -- into any body of water without checking the depth. Never swim alone. Follow proper boating rules, including the use of approved life jackets. Children should be taught to swim, and adults should learn cardiopulmonary resuscitation, the physician said.

Death is not the only water danger, Zureikat added. Near drowning can cause brain damage, lung complications and kidney failure.

Campfires and grills are burn hazards. Never use gasoline or kerosene to start a fire, and never squirt lighter fluid on apparently dead coals.

Inside the house, watch children carefully around hot water and stoves. Invest in smoke alarms and fire extinguishers. Put safety plugs in unused outlets to prevent electrical burns.

To lessen chance of cuts, fractures or other injuries, check play equipment, including wheeled vehicles and sports gear, to be sure it is in good condition. Be sure that children play with items appropriate for their age. Screen open windows.

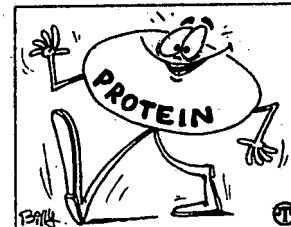

To protect against poisoning, Zureikat advised keeping medicines, cleaning materials, liquor and other toxic substances out of children's reach (preferably in a locked cabinet). Never transfer a poisonous substance (such as gasoline) into food or drink containers.

Learn which plants and common household items (such as nail polish remover) may be poisonous. Keep a bottle of Syrup of Ipecac on hand to induce vomiting in case of emergency, but do not use it unless a doctor or poison control center advises use.

In general, anticipate unsafe conditions, remove hazards, demonstrate and teach safety rules and supervise children's activities to reduce risks, the doctor said.

Protein and muscles

● About 15 percent of the calories of the average American diet comes from protein; 12 percent is the recommended allowance level. Surprisingly, proteins are not the most efficient source of energy.

● There's no evidence that extra protein intake enhances athletic performance, supplies extra energy or increases muscle mass.

● While protein is a major component of all body tissue including muscle, unneeded or extra protein is stored as body fat, as are all extra calories consumed.

● If not enough carbohydrates are ingested, the body will convert protein for energy, but carbohydrates are more easily utilized by the body.

● Only proper training increases the size of a muscle. An athlete may need to slightly increase protein intake if he or she is large enough and the training is intense enough to add one pound of pure muscle a week.

Youth Corps beautifies area

When it comes to the little things in the Oakland County Parks, the Michigan Youth Corps makes a big difference.

For the past five years, youths ages 18-21 have helped improve the appearance of the nine Oakland County parks and golf courses.

The Michigan Youth Corps is a state-funded summer job program whose participants work a maximum of 480 hours for non-profit organizations from June 1-Sept. 30.

At Independence Oaks County Park near Clarkston, four Youth Corps employees have worked on park beautification projects at the beach, contact station, nature center, hiking trails, Cohn Amphitheater and picnic shelters, said park supervisor Ray Delasko.

The parks system treats the workers to a day at the Waterford Oaks Wave Pool at the end of the summer to show their appreciation.

Jennifer Coates of Lake Orion is working at Independence Oaks for her third summer. She said she wanted a job working outdoors.

Coates, who will be a junior this fall at Michigan State University, East Lansing, studying veterinary medicine, said, "There's an added benefit of the job. You can see a lot of wildlife."

She has one complaint: the pay.

"I've been here three years, and I'm still getting paid minimum wage," Coates said. "I think the work we do is worth more."

"It is a problem getting workers at minimum wage," said Kirk Curtis of Orion Community Placement.

In 1988, Curtis said he had more than 80 participants. This year he has only 52.

Along with on-the-job skills, Youth Corps workers learn tips for writing resumes and applying and interviewing for jobs.

"If you want a job outside the retail industry with a pleasant work environment, the Michigan Youth Corps may be the way to go," Curtis said.

The program currently costs the state $22 million per year. However, Curtis said the state Legislature may cut the funding for the 1990 program to $3 million. The state would only offer jobs to residents of communities with high unemployment like Detroit.

"The Michigan Youth Corps was added in 1984 when there weren't many jobs," said Curtis. "Now it doesn't make sense to spend $22 million when employers are begging for workers," Curtis explained.

This proposed budget cut would have an adverse effect on the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission.

"Since that budget cut would decrease the work force we depend on, it would be significant to us," said Daniel Stencil, chief of Oakland County Parks Operation.

"We would have to budget more funds for seasonal staffing or obtain assistance from other public work opportunity programs."

Psoriasis and its treatment

To many Americans, the term "heartbreak of psoriasis" is simply an advertising slogan, but to those who suffer from this debilitating skin disorder, the phrase represents a lifelong search for an effective remedy.

Psoriasis is a non-curable, disfiguring skin ailment that leaves both physical and emotional scars on 3-5 million Americans. An estimated 56 million man-hours of work are lost each year by psoriasis victims, and more than $1 billion each year is spent on treatment to control the symptoms.

WHAT IS PSORIASIS

Psoriasis is a non-contagious, chronic and erratic skin disorder. Its most common form -- plaque psoriasis -- is characterized by recurring elevated red lesions or scaly silvery-white plaques on the skin.

Initially, psoriasis may appear as red, dot-like lesions, about 2 millimeters in diameter. Eventually, these lesions enlarge to elevated, scaly plaques.

Resulting from an accelerated rate of cell reproduction, plaques most frequently appear on the scalp, chest, elbows, knees, back and buttocks and often appear in the same place on the right and left sides of the body. Diagnosis for psoriasis can range from mild to severe, dependent upon the extent of body surface and area of the body involved.

TREATMENT FOR PSORIASIS

While there is currently no cure for psoriasis, a physician or dermatologist can prescribe treatments to clear the plaques and greatly improve the appearance of the skin. Therapies include:

- Topical steroids can dramatically clear plaques in a relatively short time and are frequently the first line of therapy prescribed by a physician.

- Coal tar products are used to treat psoriasis on the body and scalp. They are available by prescription or over-the-counter depending upon the strength required. Tar may be applied to the affected area daily or in combination with steroid medication.

- Ultraviolet light, type b, occurs naturally in sunlight. Artificial UVB therapy is the treatment most physicians will use in treating severe cases because it produces temporary clearance and few side effects.

- PUVA involves the combined use of longwave light, UVA and a photosensitizing medication, which enhances the ability of UVA to slow down cell production, bringing about a remission.

OFFICIAL NOTICE

Notice Charter Township of Springfield PUBLIC HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE TOWNSHIP BOARD OF THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF SPRINGFIELD will hold a PUBLIC HEARING at the regular meeting on TUESDAY, September 19, 1989, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the Springfield Township Hall, 650 Broadway, Davisburg, Michigan. The Public Hearing will cover:

ADDITION TO ZONING ORDINANCE NO. 26:

SECTION 15.10 - Alteration of Natural Resources and Features. Land balancing, grading, and trenching of land, the removal of topsoil, subsoil, sand, gravel and materials, and the filling of land with soils and other materials will effect temporary and/or permanent changes in the topographical, geological, hydrogeological and vegetative characteristics of land. Because of these changes, the operations create dangers and hazards by virtue of shifting earth, standing water, filtration into the underground water systems and other like considerations. In recognition of these facts and in order to preserve Township resources, prevent nuisances and hazards, and require reasonable control of such operations it is deemed necessary that said operations be regulated.

Except as hereinafter provided, no excavation, grading or filling of land or depositing or removal of soil shall be conducted within the Township without obtaining a written permit from the Township. The receipt of a permit from the Township does not relieve the applicant from applying for and obtaining all other necessary permits from other local, state and Federal agencies as required by law. The receipt of permits from other agencies does not relieve the applicant from applying for and obtaining a permit from the Township.

1. Administration and Enforcement. It shall be the responsibility of the official or officials designated by the Township Board to administer and enforce the provisions of this Ordinance.

2. Permitted Acts and Uses. The following acts and uses are permitted without first obtaining a permit under the provisions of this Section:

a. Land alteration customarily associated with maintaining and enjoying existing single and two-family dwellings such as septic system and well installation and repair, landscaping and gardening, driveway maintenance, foundation repair, and other similar activities.

b. Agricultural use of land.

c. Public road or utility construction or repair by public agency, public utility or their contractor.

3. Separate Permit Not Required: The following acts and uses which have obtained permits under other provisions of this Ordinance will not have to obtain a separate permit under this Section, but are subject to all provisions herein:

a. Land alteration associated with the construction of single and two-family dwellings for which a building permit has been issued.

b. Land alterations for a development which has received approval under 16.07 Site Plan Review or under Ordinance No. 27 Springfield Township Subdivision Regulations.

c. Existing extractive operations or new extractive operations subject to the provisions of Article XIII.A.

4. Requirements for Obtaining a Permit.

a. The application for a permit shall be filed on a form provided by the Township. The Township Board shall appoint a Resource Review Committee composed of one (1) Township Board member, one (1) Planning Commission member, and one (1) administrative staff to review and approve each permit application. The Committee may require such additional information from the applicant as is necessary to determine that the alteration for which approval is requested will meet the requirements of this Section. The Committee may consult with the Township Engineer, Township Planner, or any other appropriate expert to make such a determination. The Township shall issue the permit requested upon recommendation of the Committee that it is satisfied that the alteration:

(1) Will not impede drainage;
 (2) Will not alter the topographical features of the applicant's property causing a change in the natural flow of surface waters with respect to adjoining properties;
 (3) Will not be in violation of any condition of this Ordinance or other Township, State, or Federal law;

(4) Does not endanger health, safety or welfare of any individual;
 (5) Will not create an unreasonable hazard, annoyance, or inconvenience to the owners or occupants of nearby property; will not significantly change the character of the neighborhood or unreasonably reduce the value of nearby properties;

(6) Will not damage any public utility or road;

(7) Will not restrict further use and development of the existing or adjacent property; and/or

(8) Is the minimum necessary to accomplish use of the property under current zoning.

b. Where necessary to a proper consideration of the factors listed in Section 15.10.4, the Township is authorized to require the applicant to furnish any or all of the information described in this sub-section.

(1) The residence and business address of the applicant, including all members of any firm or partnership or all officers and directors of any corporation applying for a permit.

(2) Permanent parcel number(s) as on record with the County of Oakland of the subject site and all abutting properties, with ownership.

(3) The exact nature of the alteration; a description of the materials, natural resources and features to be altered, the approximate quantities involved, and; the anticipated starting date and duration of the alteration.

(4) A topographic map of existing land features prepared by a land surveyor or professional engineer at a scale not smaller than one hundred (100) feet to one (1) inch, indicating:

a) Identification of the area where alterations are proposed.

b) Existing ground surface elevations for the subject property and adjacent areas within three hundred (300) feet of said property boundaries by topographical contours at intervals not exceeding two (2) feet, U.S.G.S. datum.

c) All existing surface and subsurface improvements within the subject area such as buildings, roads, driveways, fences, culverts, pipe lines, electric and telephone lines, etc., accurately located and clearly identified and described.

d) Existing drainage courses with channel cross-section and profile information.

(5) A map or drawing of the proposed land alteration prepared by a land surveyor or professional engineer, registered in the State of Michigan, at the same scale as the topographic map indicating:

a) Proposed finished surface elevations and slopes, by contours at intervals not exceeding two (2) feet, on U.S.G.S. datum, with cross-sections as necessary to clearly indicate proposed slopes and drainage provisions around periphery of proposed site.

b) Clear delineation of limits of the proposed alteration, including any phasing.

c) Location of proposed access roads to or within the proposed site.

d) Stormwater drainage provisions, both during and following completion of operations, including drainage pattern, run-off calculations and detailed information for proposed temporary or permanent drainage facilities.

e) Type of proposed fill material and proposed placement and compaction methods.

f) Details of provisions for controlling soil erosion and for controlling sedimentation onto contiguous properties and into water courses, both during and following completion of operations.

(6) Seal of the surveyor or engineer that supervised the preparation of the map, on each sheet thereof.

5. The Township may attach such conditions to the granting of the Permit under this Section which are found to be necessary to insure that the intent and purpose of this Ordinance is in all respects observed, including, but not limited to, performance guarantees and time limits. Any violation of a condition(s) included in the Permit shall be construed as a violation of this Ordinance, shall give rise to the penalties provided in this Ordinance, and shall be grounds for revoking the Permit. The permittee shall submit a written request to the Township for approval of changes to the original plans, specifications, reports and methods of operation submitted with a Permit application. No such change shall be initiated until the written approval of the Township has been obtained.

6. Payment of Fees and Issuance of Permits: At the time of application, the applicant shall pay any application fee established by the Township Board. If the application is approved and all fees paid, the Township shall issue a permit.

7. Expiration, Termination, Suspension and Revocation of a Permit:

a. When an alteration, as described in the application and supporting information is completed, the permit granted shall terminate and no further alteration may take place on the site until a new application has been filed and a permit granted in the same manner as provided for the original application and permit.

b. In the event that any project for which a permit has been granted is not commenced within six (6) months from the date of granting of such permit or said work is abandoned for a period of three (3) months, then, the permit shall automatically expire by limitation and cease to be valid for any purpose, unless prior approval of extensions have been granted by the Township.

c. The permit holder shall confine his activities to those described in the permit and/or in the plans and specifications, as approved. Failure of the permit holder to conform to the activities described in the approved permit application and plans shall result in the suspension or revocation of the permit, forfeiture of any and all bonds furnished, and prosecution under the terms of this Ordinance.

8. Performance Guarantees: Before issuance of a permit, there shall be filed by the applicant a performance guarantee filed in accordance with the procedures set forth in Section 16.09.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that zoning ordinance texts may be examined at the Clerk's Office, Charter Township of Springfield, 650 Broadway, Davisburg, Michigan, during regular office hours Monday through Friday until the date of the public hearing.

J. Calvin Walters, Clerk

Healthy Helpings

A nutritious lunch is 'in the bag'

by Tracy King

There may be times when I unwisely skip breakfast, but I never skip lunch.

Whether I've eaten breakfast or not, my stomach gets very demanding during lunch hour, which can range anywhere from 10:30 in the morning to three in the afternoon.

My first instinct may be to pick a restaurant, but my second thought is often, "I wish I had brought something from home."

According to a USDA survey, about 20 percent of American women eat food they bring from home when eating lunch out. Brown-bag lunches are an American tradition.

While many people pack lunches for themselves and their children to enjoy at work or school, today's busy schedules may leave less time to pack something that's as nutritiously "powerful" as it could be.

This may be especially true where children's lunches are concerned. The USDA survey revealed that children who buy a hot lunch at school generally have a more nutritious lunch than children who bring their own.

Here are some suggestions from the U.S. Department of Agriculture in its new campaign "Eating Right...The Dietary Guidelines Way."

* Try different kinds of whole-grain bread like whole wheat, multigrain, rye and pumpernickel. Not all dark breads are whole-grain ones, so be sure to read the label.

* Use water-packed tuna instead of oil-packed tuna for less fat.

* Fill sandwiches with lean roast meats, poultry and fish instead of others like ham, bacon, hot dogs, or use luncheon meats that contain less sodium. Some meat from the deli like sliced turkey breast or roast beef may have salt added, however.

* Remember that natural cheeses, such as Swiss or cheddar, generally have less sodium than process cheeses, such as American, cheese foods and cheese spreads.

* Go easy on condiments that are high in sodium, such as ketchup, mustard, tartar sauce, chili sauce, pickles, olives and relish. Go light on others that are high in fat, such as mayonnaise, margarine, butter and cream cheese.

* Moisten your sandwich with lettuce or spinach leaves; sliced apples, cucumbers, onions radishes, zucchini or tomatoes; crushed pineapple; alfalfa sprouts; plain lowfat yogurt; or shredded carrots.

* Substitute some tasty lunchtime "sandwich side dishes" in place of the traditional chips or cookies. Add fresh fruit, a small amount of lowfat cheese or yogurt, or fresh raw vegetables. Or substitute lower-fat cookies and crackers, such as Melba toast, crisp bread, fig bars, graham crackers, gingersnaps or unsalted pretzels.

* Check the labels of instant, just-add-water mixes. Many are high in salt. Look for low-sodium, no-salt-added or reduced sodium versions.

Grief doesn't go away, but group helps in coping

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It's just over a year since Joyce Donahoe received the phone call that would change her life forever.

In July of 1988, a car accident took the life of her daughter, Faith Ann Matas, 33, of Independence Township.

The grief over losing her daughter hasn't really lessened this past year, but Joyce is learning to live with the pain.

"I can cry just as easily now," Joyce says. "The pain is different; it's a soft sorrow."

Michele Upchurch also knows what it's like to lose a child. Her son Grant died of an illness at age 4 1/2, and her son Matthew was miscarried one year later.

"It's a hole in your life," Michele says. "You don't fill it up or replace it -- you learn to carry it around with you. It's like an amputation."

The two women gathered to talk about a group that has helped in putting their shattered lives back together.

They call it their lifeline.

Once a month, the two join other bereaved parents at Pontiac General Hospital, forming the North Oakland Chapter of The Compassionate Friends.

It's not a counseling or therapy group, but it does give parents a chance to grieve among people who understand.

Visitors, sitting in a circle, first introduce themselves and give their child's name, age and cause of death. The parent can choose not to talk if he or she wishes.

"Some can't talk at first; they break down," Joyce explains.

"They say, 'I cannot talk,' but as the session goes on, they just start talking," Michele adds.

The two say talking about feelings, or about the child who died, is an important part of learning to heal. The type of listener is important, too.

The two describe friends or family members who mean well but really don't help at all.

"Someone will say 'It's been six weeks, or two months, you should be ready to snap back by now,'" recalls Michele.

"Or they'll say 'So and so down the street had a really rough time.'"

Joyce protests, "I feel like saying 'But I'm not OK. Quit telling me that I'm doing so well and that you're

Groups help in dealing with grief

Two area groups offer help with grief.

The Compassionate Friends are an international organization offering friendship and understanding to bereaved parents and siblings.

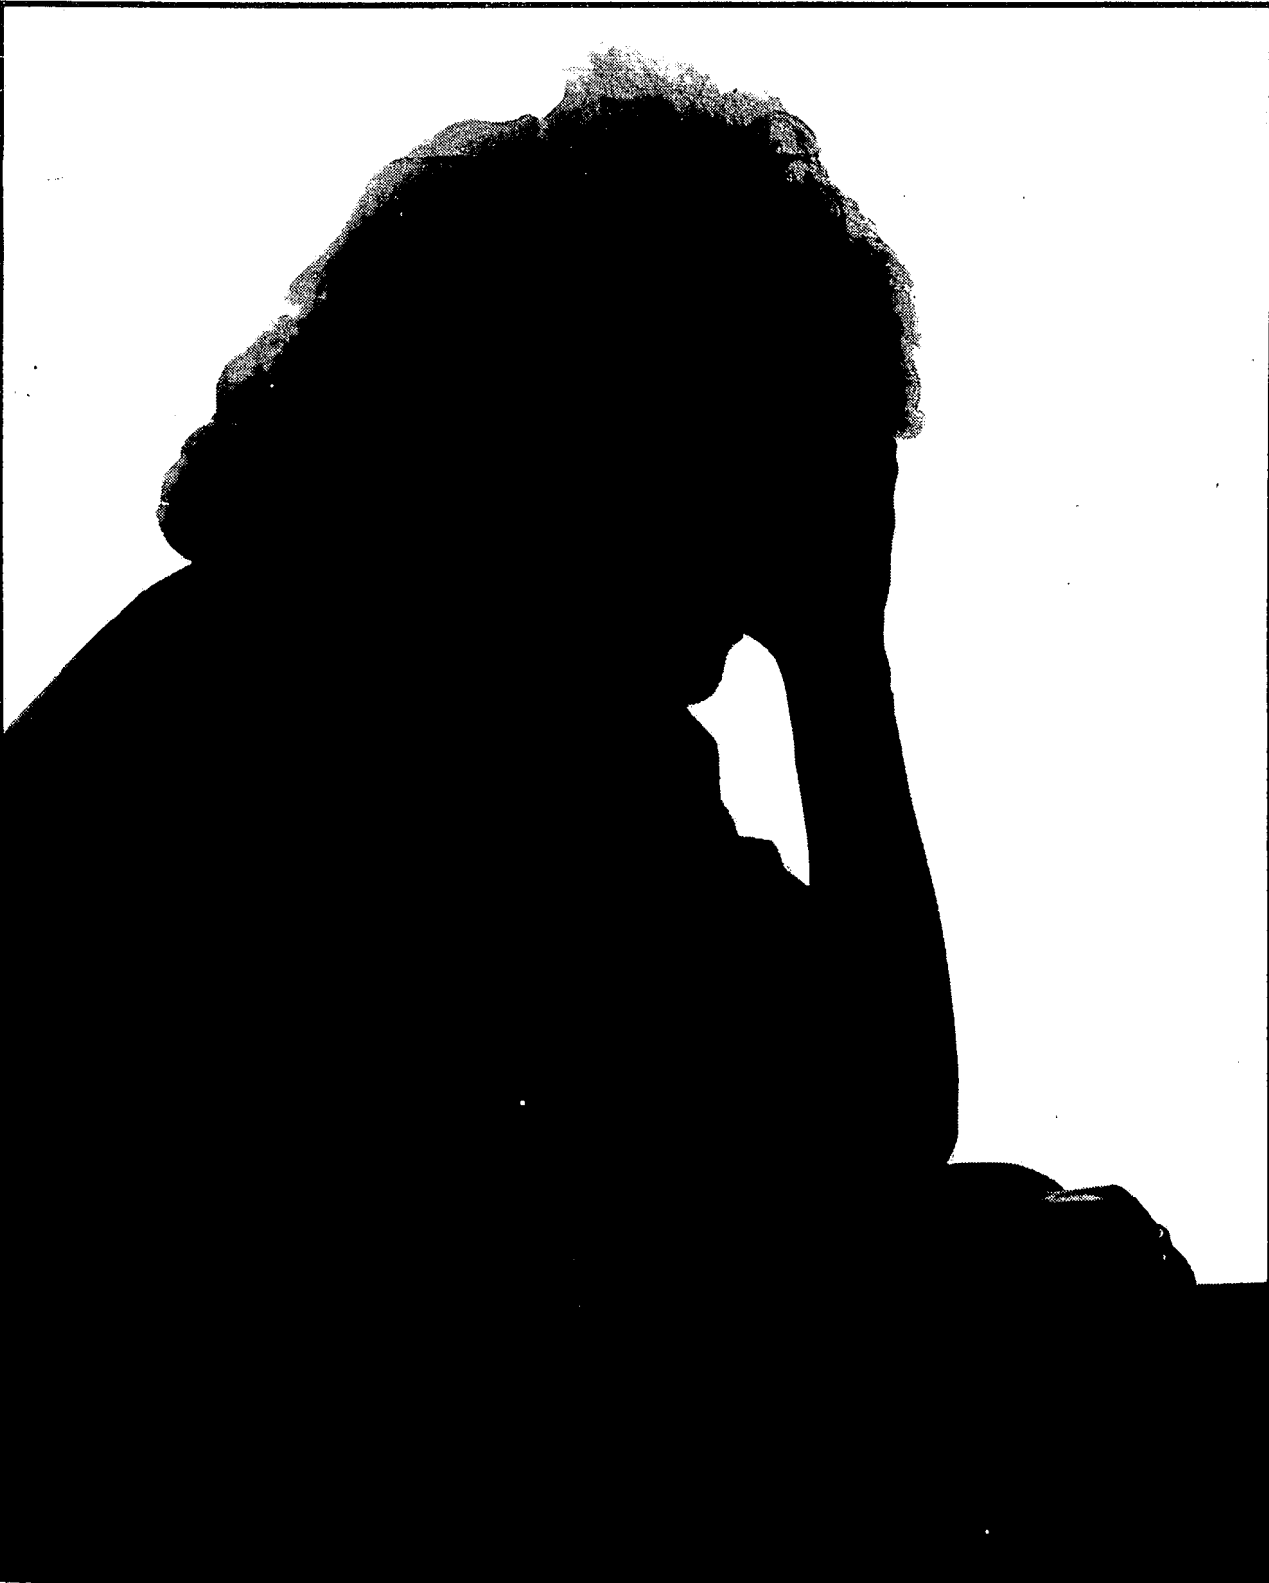

Founded in England in 1969, the first U.S. chapter was organized in 1972. More than 550 chapters are in the United States.

The North Oakland Chapter meets the fourth Monday of each month at Pontiac General Hospital, Seminole at West Huron, in Pontiac. The meetings are held in the cafeteria in the Executive Dining Room from 7-9 p.m.

For more information, call Kathy Hubble at 666-4556.

Widowed Support Group meets twice a month at 7 p.m. Thursdays at the Independence Township Senior Center in Clintonwood Park, Clarkston Road, Independence Township.

For more information call Jenni McGee at the Lewis E. Wint & Son Funeral Home, 625-5231.

'Everybody can heal,' says member of grief group

proud of me."

Both women smile as they recall times when they somehow managed to talk about their child and his or her death with any stranger that would listen.

"You tell the grocery clerk; you end up talking about it if there is the slightest edge where you can work it in," Michele says.

"You don't want sympathy or pity; you just want them to know that this could happen and that your child existed," she says.

Members of The Compassionate Friends, an organization with about 500 chapters nationwide, often struggle to be good listeners even though they are aching to share their own feelings and stories from the past month.

"That's where the compassion comes in," Michele says.

Some people come to the group just once or during crisis times such as anniversaries and birthdays; others might stay with the group much longer.

*"You tell the grocery clerk;
you end up talking about it if there is the slightest edge where you can work it in."*

Michele Upchurch

Michele, a long-time member of The Compassionate Friends, likes to encourage participants to stay on for "whatever length of time it took them to feel better," so they can help others that are in the process of healing.

"Everybody can heal; it's how you heal that makes a big difference," Michele says.

The Compassionate Friends publishes a newsletter to both regular members of the group and to those who might benefit from the sessions. The newsletter lists important dates for those who could use a card or a phone call, such as the day their child was born, or the day their child died.

The Compassionate Friends also maintains a library of print materials, and that may help in the grieving process.

Among the materials at The Compassionate Friends is a poem written by Joyce Donahoe, in memory of her daughter, Faith.

You think just because I can laugh or smile, or even tell a joke,
That I'm healed inside, that I'm well again, that it's mended the heart that was broke.

Oh no, my friends, it is not so,
there's scarcely a day goes by,
That I don't go to some secret spot, where the tears flow free, and I cry.

There's a pain in my heart that never leaves,
that's touched off by a memory or song,
And I look at her picture and hold it close,
and I wonder, how long, how long?

Will I ever be me, like I used to be,
so carefree and happy and gay?
And I say, dear Lord, just give me the strength, to get by for another day.

Ever so slowly time passes on,
into weeks and months, a year --
And perhaps some day I can think of her love, with a smile instead of a tear.

Falling is problem for the elderly

Falling is a serious problem for the elderly. For people over 65, it can mean the difference between independence and dependence, an active lifestyle or a passive one, and even the difference between life and death.

According to one study, each year 200,000 elderly Americans break a leg or a hip, mostly as a result of a fall. There are many causes of falling, and usually more than one factor accounts for a fall.

Physical contributors may include gait abnormalities, slowing of reaction time and decrease in strength, coordination, vision and balance. Illness and medication also play a part.

It is not uncommon for elderly people to mix medications prescribed by more than one physician. The elderly are also less likely to report drug side effects promptly to their physicians. An elderly person who establishes an ongoing relationship with a family physician, however -- and that includes regular visits -- will be less likely to encounter medication problems.

Environment also accounts for the high rate of falling among the elderly. Here are some tips to minimize the danger spots and help prevent falls:

- Install grab bars in the bathroom.
- Use night lights on the path to the bathroom.
- Rearrange furniture to provide sturdy items to lean along the most frequently traveled paths.
- Keep regularly used kitchen items within easy reach.
- Make sure all doors open and close easily.

In times of grief, show you care; avoid cliches

The importance of help can hardly be overstated; bereavement can be a life-threatening condition, and your support may make a vital difference in a mourner's eventual recovery.

Perhaps you do not feel qualified to help. You may feel uncomfortable and awkward. Such feelings are normal -- don't let them keep you away.

If you really care for your sorrowing friend or relative, if you can enter a little into his or her grief, you are qualified to help.

The following suggestions will guide you in communicating that care:

* Get in touch. Even if much time has passed, it's never too late to express your concern.

* Say little on an early visit. In the initial period, your brief embrace, your press of the hand, your few

* Keep in touch. If you are a close friend or relative, your presence may be needed from the beginning. Later, when close family is less available, anyone's visit or phone call can be very helpful.

* Attend to practical matters. Answer the phone, usher in callers, prepare meals, clean the house, care for the children. These things might be needed well beyond the initial period, especially for the widowed.

* Encourage others to visit or help. Usually the first visit will overcome a friend's discomfort and allow him or her to contribute further support. You might be able to schedule some visitors.

* Accept silence. If the mourner doesn't feel like talking, don't force conversation. The mourner should be allowed to lead.

* Be a good listener. When suffering spills over into words, you can do the one thing the bereaved needs above all else at that time -- you can listen. Is she emotional? Accept that. Does he cry? Accept that, too. Is she angry at God? God will manage without your defending him. Accept whatever feelings are expressed. Do not rebuke. Do not change the subject. Be as understanding as you can be.

* Do not attempt to tell the bereaved how he or she feels. You can ask (without probing), but you cannot know except as you are told. Everyone, bereaved or not, resents an attempt to describe his feelings.

* Do not probe for details about the death. If the survivor offers information, listen with understanding.

* Comfort children in the family. Do not assume that a seemingly calm child is not grieving. If you can, be a friend to whom feelings can be confided and with whom tears can be shed.

* Avoid talking to others about trivia in the presence of the recently bereaved. Prolonged discussion of sports, weather or stock market, for example, is resented even if done purposely to distract the mourner.

* Allow the working through of grief. Do not whisk away clothing or hide pictures. Do not criticize seemingly morbid behavior.

* Write a letter. A sympathy card is a poor substitute for your own expression. If you take time to write of your love for and memories of the one who died, your letter might be read many times and cherished.

* Encourage postponement of major decisions. Whatever can wait should wait until after the period of

In the initial period, your brief embrace, your press of the hand, your few words of affection and feeling may be all that is needed.

---

intense grief.

* In time, gently draw the mourner into quiet outside activity. He may lack the initiative to go out on his own.

* When the mourner returns to social activity, treat him or her as a normal person. Avoid pity -- it destroys self-respect. Simple understanding is enough.

* Be aware of needed progress through grief. If the mourner seems unable to resolve anger or guilt, for example, you might suggest a consultation with a clergyman or other trained counselor.

---

The above information comes from Amy Hillyard Jensen and is distributed by The Compassionate Friends, a support group for grieving parents.

---

Eat like a bird? Not likely. Birds eat at least half their own body weight in food every day.

---

A sympathy card is a poor substitute for your own expression. If you take time to write of your love for and memories of the one who died, your letter might be read many times and cherished.

words of affection and feeling may be all that is needed.

* Avoid cliches and easy answers. "He is out of pain" and "Aren't you lucky that..." are not likely to help. A simple "I'm sorry" is better.

* Be yourself. Show your natural concern and sorrow in your own way and in your own words.

Summertime blood shortages trouble some hospitals

BY BONNIE WATTLEWORTH
Clarkston News Special Writer

While publicity about the blood shortage this summer has died down, the American Red Cross reports that supplies are below the normal level.

"All blood types are still needed," said Noreen Peterson, director of public affairs at the American Red Cross. She said supplies of types O-positive and O-negative are especially low.

Peterson said blood shortages occur in the summer because facilities that sponsor blood drives close in the summer.

"We always have problems in the summertime," she said. "It's vacation time, schools are closed, some factories are closed, there are summer activities. People don't seem to put a high priority on donating blood."

Peterson said Red Cross officials are worried about the coming Labor Day weekend. To counter low supplies, some Red Cross offices will accept donations over the holiday weekend.

The closest location to Clarkston is the Bloomfield Hills office at 2388 Franklin Road. This office will accept donations Sunday, Sept. 3, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Red Cross officials are also worried about the situation at area hospitals, Peterson said.

"They're scraping by," she said. "We're monitoring it very closely."

Four area hospitals reported that they were holding up well despite the blood shortage.

Dr. John Libcke of Pontiac General Hospital said while the hospital currently isn't having problems meeting the demand for blood, it was a couple weeks ago.

"We had to be very selective in releasing blood in transfusions," he said.

This ensured that Pontiac General had enough blood to handle emergencies, he said.

Libcke said he expects hospital blood supplies will dip again over the Labor Day weekend. He attributes the decline in blood donations to low interest in the summer months.

"We always have problems in the summertime. It's vacation time, schools are closed, some factories are closed, there are summer activities. People don't seem to put a high priority on donating blood."

Noreen Peterson

"Larger companies are less willing to give time and space to host blood drives," he said. "And there is inadequate motivation on the part of people to meet the public's demand."

While Crittenton Hospital in Rochester reports a low blood supply, it is not having problems because it treats fewer patients during the summer.

"In the summer, our patients go down a bit, so supply has been keeping up with demand; but that can change," said a Crittenton Hospital spokesperson. "One major event can really use up a lot of blood."

Crittenton will be hosting a blood drive Thursday, Aug. 24, from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Anyone who wants to donate blood can make an appointment at 652-5100, but walk-ins are also welcome.

St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital in Pontiac also reported low blood supplies.

"We are a little low, but right now we are not affected," said a hospital spokeswoman. "We are not canceling any elective surgery."

The hospital has planned an emergency blood drive to boost supplies. It will be held Monday, Aug. 28, from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. For an appointment call 858-3062, but walk-ins also are welcome.

An administrator at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital said blood supplies are low, but POH has not experienced problems because of it.

"So far, we've been holding our own," he said. POH has not planned any blood drives because it sponsored one recently.

Eating disorders and what you should know

Here are facts to digest about eating disorders, anorexia and bulimia.

Many athletes strive to achieve a certain weight for their sport. However, losing weight to make their goal is beneficial only if the weight goal and rate of weight loss is realistic and the diet is well balanced.

For most athletes, weight loss should not exceed more than two pounds per week. Unfortunately, for some athletes, losing weight becomes an obsession. Techniques used to produce rapid weight loss often include fasting, crash diets, dehydration, induced vomiting, laxatives and diuretics (water pills). Any of these can endanger an athlete's health and impair performance.

A large weight loss, appearing nervous or wanting to be alone after eating can be signs of a serious eating disorder, such as anorexia or bulimia. Such disorders require immediate professional counseling from those who are trained in the diagnosis and treatment of eating disorders.

Family support, understanding help stroke victims

The physical problems that stroke victims face can be handled with therapy, but family support and understanding is an important treatment for the psychological problems that a stroke causes.

Rehabilitation can help people adjust to physical problems, such as paralysis on one side of the body, loss or slurring of speech, or loss or impairment of vision. But psychological problems may be much harder to handle.

"Emotional distress, especially anxiety, frustration and depression, are common problems after stroke," according to physician Andrew Lovy, stroke committee member of the American Heart Association of Michigan.

"Other difficulties include over dependence on others, inflexible and rigid thinking, impatience, irritability, impulsiveness, denial and lack of awareness of problems, insensitivity to others and poor social reception." Families need to understand that brain damage is responsible for these emotional reactions and that the patient has no more control over them than over the physical functions impaired by the stroke.

Families should not be discouraged by a patient's slow progress. Recovery of lost neurologic functions usually can be expected within six months after a stroke, but long-range improvements can occur later.

"Show love and care for patients while encouraging them to do as much as possible for themselves," Lovy said.

"Two out of every three stroke patients have a good chance of being independent again if the family supports them and helps them do as much as possible for themselves."

Types of behavior changes depend on which side of the brain was injured by the stroke.

Damage to the left side of the brain affects the right side of the body. These stroke victims often have speech and language difficulties. They may also appear to be cautious, anxious and disorganized when attempting a new task.

"Messages for patients with left brain damage should be brief and simple. Tasks such as getting dressed should be divided into simple steps," Lovy said.

Right brain damage, which affects the left side of the body, tends to diminish the ability to judge distance, size position, rate of movement, form and the relation of parts to the whole. Patients tend to say they can do things they actually can't. They may also appear to be impulsive or careless.

Many stroke patients may not hear or see from the impaired side. They may also read only parts of words or eat food from half the plate.

Memory loss is another possible effect of a stroke. Excessive crying, laughter or flares of anger and moaning, caused by brain damage, may also occur.

Those who stutter are in good company

If you stutter, you're not alone. In fact, you're in excellent company, according to the non-profit Speech Foundation of America.

Among those who have successfully overcome problems with stuttering to make notable achievements: Winston Churchill, James Earle Jones, Isaac Newton, King George VI, John Updike and Marilyn Monroe.

The Speech Foundation estimates that over three million Americans stutter. That number also includes nearly one out of four children who will go through at least a developmental phase of stuttering on their way to fluency.

"One of the most common myths is that stuttering somehow limits a person's potential, but people who stutter have the same capabilities and the same level of intelligence as non-stutterers," says Jane Fraser, president of the Speech Foundation.

How to help victims of stroke

The American Heart Association suggests the following tips to help stroke victims.

1. Consult with therapists as soon as possible to assess the extent of the damage.

2. Try to realize that neither you nor the patient is to blame for the trying situations that may occur or the emotional upsets stemming from the illness.

3. Be aware that indifference or resignations can be worse for a patient than anger or irritability.

4. Before the patient comes home, make sure all items such as handrails and wheelchair ramps have been installed, if needed.

5. Divide the duties of caring for the person among family members.

6. Be an active participant in the patient's therapy and exercise program.

7. Take steps to build the patient's overall health and prevent another stroke through proper nutrition, good health habits, drug therapy prescribed by the doctor and avoiding risk factors such as smoking.

8. Discuss mental changes or other concerns with the doctor. Additional therapy may be needed.

9. Encourage the patient to participate in family activities, develop a hobby, stay in touch with the world and be as independent as possible.

Smoking during pregnancy can harm unborn child

Question: I read the surgeon general's warning that smoking during pregnancy can harm the unborn child. Please explain.

Answer: Smoking constitutes a definite hazard to the unborn child. When a pregnant woman smokes, the unborn child is exposed to a wide range of poisons including nicotine, carbon monoxide, lead, mercury, cadmium, cyanide and others.

At the same time, the oxygen content of her baby's blood supply is significantly reduced. Consequently there is an increased risk of premature birth and low birth weight, even when the child is carried to term.

Low-birth-weight babies are more likely to have poorly developed lungs, which makes them susceptible to frequent lung infections or breathing problems. They may also have problems related to development, such as lower intelligence and hyperactivity.

If a woman stops smoking early in her pregnancy, her risk of having a low-birth-weight baby falls nearly to that of a non-smoking pregnant woman.

For more information on how smoking affects pregnancy and for help on quitting, write for the free fact sheet, "Women and Smoking," and the free booklet, "Clearing the Air."

Question: Several members of my family have a skin cancer called malignant melanoma. Is this cancer hereditary?

Answer: Ten percent of all malignant melanomas are familial (inherited through the family). In malignant melanoma, the skin cells responsible for skin color and sunburn protection undergo abnormal growth and become a life-threatening skin cancer.

Researchers using new techniques have discovered the location of the gene (that part of the cell that transmits hereditary information) thought to be responsible for familial malignant melanoma. This recent discovery may help doctors in the early identification of high-risk families.

However, until these techniques are widely avail-

Listen to mother; eat your breakfast

Mother's loving advice about taking care of yourself may not always be backed by scientific evidence, but often her words of wisdom do the trick for whatever ails you.

Take breakfast, for example. In the winter, mother said to eat a good hot breakfast to keep warm.

Scientific fact? Maybe not, but it does make sense: if you go to all the trouble of bundling up the outside of your body with layers of clothing, wouldn't it help to warm your inside with a nice hot meal?

able, skin self-examination will help in early detection of skin cancer.

Almost everyone has moles, and most are harmless. When a melanoma does develop, it differs from an ordinary mole in the following ways:

- One half of it does not match the other half.
- Its edges are scalloped, notched or blurred.
- Its color is not uniform. Mottled shades of tan/brown, black, red and blue can be present.
- Its size increases suddenly and continuously.

Consult a physician if you observe any sudden or continuous change in a mole's appearance.

For further information on detection of malignant melanoma, write for the free "Skin Self-Examination Card," and the free booklet, "What You Should Know About Melanoma."

Question: My doctor wants to test me for thyroid cancer. What tests are used to diagnose this disease?

Until recently, blood tests and different imaging techniques, such as thyroid scans and ultrasonography, were used routinely to evaluate thyroid lumps. Physicians will now often skip these studies and proceed directly to a needle biopsy to help determine if a thyroid lump is cancerous. In some cases, a surgical biopsy is needed.

A thyroid scan involves swallowing a small amount of radioactive iodine, which is readily absorbed by the thyroid gland. The gland's radioactivity is monitored by a special instrument that transmits the thyroid gland's image to a screen. A physician then studies the image, looking for abnormal tissue that usually cannot absorb radioactive iodine.

Ultrasonography involves scanning the gland by ultrasound to determine whether a lump in the gland is solid or cystic (fluid-containing). The likelihood of cancer is higher in solid lumps.

In needle biopsy, a very fine needle is used to aspirate tumor tissue in order to evaluate a thyroid lump. If needle biopsy leads to suspicion of cancer, then surgical biopsy, or removal of the tumor-containing portion of the gland, follows. Surgical biopsy is also required if a lump enlarges despite conservative medical treatment.

Although each of these tests is readily available, your physician will determine the best tests to use.

For more information about thyroid cancer, write for the free booklet, "What You Need to Know About Cancer of the Thyroid."

Question: I've heard there is a new drug for treating cancer of the testis. What can you tell me about it?

Answer: The anti-cancer drug, ifosfamide, has been approved recently by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for treatment of testicular cancer. Researchers are also studying ifosfamide to determine if it may be useful in treating other cancers.

Ifosfamide has proved successful in treating cancer of the testis when combined with other anti-cancer drugs, particularly when initial treatments have not been completely effective.

Another recently approved drug, mesna, may be used with ifosfamide in testicular cancer. Adding this drug allows larger doses of ifosfamide to be given without increasing the side effects.

Remember that routine testicular self-examination can help detect cancer early, which is important for successful treatment with any anti-cancer drugs.

For more information about detection and treatment of cancer of the testis, please write for the free brochures, "Testicular Self Examination," and "What You Need to Know About Cancer of the Testis."

Help is available for the many troubled people

There are a lot of troubled people out there. People like the woman who took a gun to an elementary classroom in a Chicago suburb or the man who shot kids in a California schoolyard.

Although these are dramatic examples, there are many more troubled people whom we rarely read about: the housewife who is a closet drinker, the father who sexually abuses his daughters, or a teen so depressed that he attempts suicide.

Troubled people may live in your town, in your neighborhood, perhaps even in your home.

Nearly one in every five Americans -- some 30 to 45 million people -- suffer from a clearly diagnosable mental illness to a degree which interferes with their job, school, or daily life, according to the American Psychiatric Association.

* About 12 million children under age 18 suffer from mental disorders such as depression and hyperactivity, conduct disorders, anxiety, mental retardation, schizophrenia and autism.

* Some 8 to 14 million Americans suffer from depression each year.

* 20 percent of the ailments for which we seek a doctor's care are related to anxiety disorders such as panic attacks that interfere with normal living.

* 1.5 million Americans suffer from schizophrenic disorders, and 300,000 new cases occur each year.

* Nearly one-fourth of the elderly who are labeled senile actually suffer some form of mental illness that can be effectively treated.

Sadly, only one in five people with mental disorders seeks treatment for it. The others try to cope as best they can, and their families must bear the emotional roller coaster ride and adjust to their moods and behaviors.

A mother of young children who has agoraphobia (fear of being alone or in public places) clearly affects family life when she cannot leave the home.

People who have these illnesses usually do not recognize that they can be treated. Often they see their doctor, yet 27 percent of those who seek medical care for physical problems actually suffer from troubled emotions. Most of the time their doctors do not recognize the emotional problems.

The costs to society of these untreated disorders are as high as the costs for heart disease and cancer. The Institute of Medicine says that the direct costs of mental illness total $23.4 billion a year, and those for substance abuse disorders come to $16.9 billion a year.

Indirect costs such as lost employment, reduced productivity, criminal activity, vehicular accidents and social welfare programs increase the cost of mental and substance abuse disorders to $249 billion a year.

Mental health services, which are usually reimbursed at lower rates by private insurance plans than strictly physical care, are more essential than ever.

Inability to afford care was one of the reasons cited in a recent National Institute of Mental Health study as the cause for the low percentage of people seeking care.

Another reason is that some are too sick to realize they need treatment. A third is the problem of stigma, the superstition and fear of mental illness and its victims held by many people.

As doctor Beth Ann Brooks, president of the Michigan Psychiatric Society, notes, "The cruel words used to describe mental patients cause pain and loneliness."

Heart attack or cancer patients don't have these words applied to them. Cruel words create attitudes that prevent people from seeking treatment.

"We need to be able to say words like 'schizophrenia' and 'bi-polar disorder' with a real understanding of what they mean and the suffering they cause millions of people."

The stigma attached to mental illness comes from a fear of the unknown, a set of false beliefs that stem from a lack of awareness and understanding.

Terming mentally ill people "loony," "nuts" or in the "funny farm," isolates them. Patients with physical illness are considered courageous as they cope with hospitalizations. But patients with mental illness are shunned or laughed at. We must learn to think of the mentally ill with understanding and compassion.

Researchers have made startling gains in pinpointing the physical and psychological foundations of mental illness.

* Scientists are fairly certain that some disorders are caused by imbalances in neurotransmitters, the chemicals in the brain that carry messages between nerve cells. These imbalances have been linked with depression and schizophrenia.

* Genetic research shows that people can inherit a susceptibility to some forms of mental illness, such as manic depressive disorder and schizophrenia.

* A new research diagnostic technique has shown that the brains of schizophrenic people use less glucose, a sugar, than do the brains of healthy people.

With suitable treatment, the vast majority of mental illnesses are effectively controlled. Treatment, which often combines medication and psychotherapy, can effectively stop acute symptoms in 80 percent of people with schizophrenia, end the terror of phobias and halt the downward spiral in about nine of 10 people suffering from depressive disorders.

What a waste for people with mental or emotional disorders to suffer needlessly. Asking for help is a sign of strength.

When mothers drink, it affects nursing babies

Regular, moderate drinking by nursing mothers seems to result in slightly slower motor development in their infants, according to a University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, study.

Mental development, however, appears to be unaffected, and the motor development of infants whose mothers consume less than one-half ounce of alcohol a day also does not seem to be affected.

The study, conducted by Ruth E. Little, an epidemiologist at the U-M School of Public Health, and researchers at the University of Washington appeared Aug. 17 in the New England Journal of Medicine.

"The amount of alcohol that a nursing infant is exposed to in the mother's milk is just a fraction of that consumed by the mother," Little says.

"In fact, when a 132-pound mother ingests four drinks with one-half ounce per alcohol in each, an 11-pound infant ingests a total of only .01 ounces. Nevertheless, that tiny amount appears to be related to motor development."

The average motor development index score of nursing infants in the study whose mothers drank moderately but regularly -- at least one drink daily -- while nursing was 98 points. Infants exposed to less alcohol than this had a score of 103. The average score for normal infants is 100.

"A difference of five points in the motor development score is not a major problem in terms of individual infants and is not predictive of future difficulties," Little stressed.

"However, when we test large groups of children and see a consistent developmental pattern related to alcohol consumption, then we must be concerned."

In 1982 and 1983, Little and her colleagues used the Bayley Scales of Infant Development to assess the motor and mental skills of 400 infants within two weeks of their first birthdays. The Bayley motor scale measures an infant's ability to walk, crawl, balance, throw and pick up items.

The infants' mothers, members of a health maintenance organization in Seattle, were nearly all white and middle class. Seventy percent of them had attended college.

Regular, moderate drinking by nursing mothers has slightly negative impact on mother development in infants, according to U-M study.

"Almost all the mothers were social drinkers, and no severe problems with alcohol were observed among them. Twelve percent did not drink at all," Little says.

One hundred of the infants were exposed to at least half an ounce of pure alcohol in breast milk daily -- about one drink consumed by the mother a day -- for at least three months. The rest of the infants were exposed to less than this.

After controlling for more than 100 variables including environmental effects, mother's age, drinking during pregnancy, smoking and other drug use, the researchers found that regular, moderate drinking during nursing did have an impact on motor development.

Surprisingly, they also found that an occasionally, irregular binge did not have an effect.

"It appears that when a nursing mother drinks regularly, small, serial doses of alcohol accumulate in the baby's system," Little explains, "and affect motor development. However, an irregular or occasional binge -- consuming, for instance, five beers on a Saturday night -- seems to result in less accumulation. It may be that alcohol is metabolized and excreted by the infant less efficiently than it is in adults, and the longer it stays in the system, the greater its impact."

Little notes that other drugs, such as valium, a tranquilizer; and theophylline, a bronchodilator, are metabolized or excreted more slowly in infants than in adults.

"And one study," she adds, "found that breast milk actually inhibited the secretion of an enzyme that metabolized caffeine. Alcohol may be similarly affected."

Little also says, "We know that the fetal brain is extremely vulnerable to alcohol towards the end of pregnancy when it is undergoing rapid development, so it seems reasonable that an infant's brain, which continues rapid development for some time after delivery, would also be vulnerable."

The U-M study is the first study to report a relationship between maternal drinking during breast feeding and infant development, "so we should not jump to conclusions," Little cautions. "The results of the study are significant, but preliminary and more research on larger samples of infants from other populations are required to confirm them."

Little's colleagues at the University of Washington included Kevin W. Anderson, a doctoral student in biostatistics; Bonnie Worthington-Roberts, professor of epidemiology; and Sterling K. Clarren, professor of pediatrics. Cynthia H. Ervin, a neuropsychologist in private practice, also participated.

Ten ways to help reduce stress

Stress can be good for you, getting you to do things you didn't think you could, but it can also be bad, perhaps making you ill. That's why learning to cope with stress is so important.

Here are 10 stress reduction tips that my help from University of Nebraska psychologist Mark McKinney:

1. Learn to "shut off" self-defeating or negative self-talks. Many over-achievers feel that unless they take on more tasks and responsibilities, they're not valuable.
2. Listen to your feelings of anger, anxiety and depression. Try to recognize their sources and take steps to eliminate them.
3. Set realistic goals for yourself. If you recognize you can only complete five tasks in one day, don't expect to complete 10.

4. Be pleased with accomplishing your goals, and recognize that sometimes you will fail.

5. Find humor in a situation. Laughter can greatly alleviate stress.

6. Try to place things in perspective and not take unfortunate occurrences personally.

7. Be neutral, objective and resilient. If your hot-headed boss screams at you, recognize it's he who is acting irrationally.

8. Change your environment. If you don't like constant deadlines, seek a job with fewer demands.

9. Exercise. It can help alleviate pent-up frustrations and anger.

10. Avoid alcohol and "recreational" drugs. Their long-range effects are far more stressful to the mid and body than any benefits you might think you derive.

Early detection healthy approach to prostate cancer

BY DR. TIMOTHY ISMOND

Men over age 40 who experience difficulty with urination may be developing symptoms that are characteristic of prostate enlargement (benign prostatic hypertrophy).

Frequent urination, small quantities of urine and difficulty beginning with the urinary stream are the most common symptoms.

Fifty percent to 75 percent of men over age 50 will develop symptoms of an enlarged prostate as an inevitable process of aging.

The known risks for developing enlargement of the prostate are the ability to produce male hormones and living long enough.

The average age of diagnosis is 65, and about 25 percent of these men will require surgery by the time they reach 80 years of age. The prostate is also the source of 19 percent of male cancers.

The only known risk factor for prostate cancer is being a member of the black race. Prostate cancer occurs in 8.7 percent of white males and 9.4 percent in black males.

Lifestyle patterns such as smoking, alcohol, industrial carcinogens, disease history, obesity and circumcision do not affect risk for developing prostate cancer.

Interestingly, benign prostate enlargement is also not clearly correlated with an increased risk. This means prostate cancer may be present without the common symptoms of urinary difficulties.

Unfortunately, the tumor is often diagnosed after it has already spread to the bones, liver or lungs. The rectal examination is the most accurate and cost-effective test for detecting carcinoma of the prostate.

During rectal examination, the physician carefully feels for the areas of the prostate that are hard or nodular. Usually the prostate is smooth and has a rubbery texture.

Fifty percent of nodules felt in the prostate are cancerous and may be present in more than one area of the prostate. Once a nodule is identified, physicians may differ on what to do next.

Most obtain a battery of tests to exclude other coexisting conditions and to identify the extent of the involvement. Some will perform imaging tests; others will test the blood for "prostate specific antigen" before making a decision to recommend biopsy.

Ultimately, the prostate nodule must be biopsied before a diagnosis of cancer can be made. This is usually performed through the rectum or through the penis.

The prostate specific antigen is a new blood test which is better than any blood test to date at identifying the presence and extent of prostate cancer.

Some studies suggest that this test is quite sensitive in its ability to identify cancer; however, we have not had many years of experience with this test. Benign prostatic hypertrophy can also sometimes cause elevated levels, thus further confusing the issue.

As in most cancers, the outcome for each individual patient depends on how advanced it is at the time of diagnosis and the cell type of the tumor. It is a great challenge to identify a malignancy at a stage that is early enough to be curable.

Because of this difficulty, a variety of new ways of visualizing the prostate are being explored. Magnetic resonance imaging and prostate ultrasound may prove to be effective in making an early diagnosis and providing accurate staging.

If a nodule can be identified early and biopsied, treatment can be started in an earlier phase of the disease. However, there are not studies yet completed which clearly show the benefit to cost advantages of widespread screening programs using these expensive new tests.

Despite the inevitable discussion which always surrounds new technologies, and despite the fact there is no known primary prevention for prostate cancer, there is still a practical and cost-effective recommendation to be made.

Males over age 40, regardless of urinary symptoms, should have yearly digital rectal exams as a routine screening examination.

Margarita's Pasta Primavera

Pasta is more popular than ever, and it's losing its undeserved reputation for being fattening. The fats and sauces added to pasta are what run up the calorie count. Pasta is low in fat and cholesterol and high in B vitamins, iron, fiber and protein.

Here's a healthy and tasty addition for pasta fans.

- 1 cup low-fat cottage cheese
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 8 ounces thin spaghetti
- 1 tablespoon oil
- 1/4 cup scallions, chopped
- 1/2 cup onions, chopped
- 1 clove garlic
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 2 cups mushrooms, sliced
- 1 cup green pepper, sliced
- 1 1/2 cups carrots, sliced
- 1 10-ounce package broccoli, steamed

Mix cottage cheese and lemon juice. Set aside. Prepare spaghetti according to package directions. Meanwhile, heat oil in skillet and saute scallions, onions, garlic and season with black pepper for 1 minute. Then add green pepper, carrots and broccoli and stir for another 3-4 minutes. Set aside.

Toss hot spaghetti with cottage cheese mixture and top with sauteed vegetables.
Yield: 4 servings.

Nutritional analysis per serving: 320 calories, 16.6 grams protein, 5.1 grams total fat (estimated), .9 gram saturated fat, 2 grams polyunsaturated fat, 1 gram monounsaturated fat, 2 milligrams cholesterol, 53.6 grams carbohydrates, 115.6 milligrams calcium, 639 milligrams potassium, 290 milligrams sodium.

What's your snack I.Q.?

Are you a sensible snacker? To find out, answer true or false to the following questions (the answers might surprise you).

1. People who snack tend to have poor dietary intakes.
2. An ounce of potato chips has less sodium than two slices of bread.
3. The "basic four" food groups are intended to provide 100 percent of the nutrients we need.
4. All snack foods are "empty calories."

Answers:

1. False. Researchers at Pennsylvania State University analyzed the findings from interviews with 30,000 people of all ages and discovered that people who snack have better diets than non-snackers and don't have a tendency toward putting on pounds as a result.

2. True. An ounce of potato chips provides no more than 200 milligrams of sodium, while two slices of bread provide 270 milligrams. Chips taste salty because the salt is on the surface.

3. False. The "basic four" foods guide is the foundation for a healthy diet and provides 80 percent of our daily needs. This allows us to add favorite foods -- like snacks -- to meet all our energy and nutrient requirements.

4. False. Snack foods can contribute important nutrients to the diet. Potato chips, for example, add carbohydrates, vitamins C and B-6, plus 11 other essential nutrients.
