

Super Saturday

Most showed deep concentration as they worked, snipping here and sewing there. All ended up with a showy project and a sense of a job well done.

Super Saturday Sept. 23 was a day just for grown-ups. Sponsored by Clarkston Community Education, the day-long craft sessions were offered to Clarkston children last year.

Last year, the kids brought home two or three gifts to give to Mom, Dad or grandparents. This year, Clarkston area residents shouldn't be surprised if they get a hand-made gift from an adult.

Classes such as painting and making wreaths and baskets were offered to the adults last weekend at the Clarkston Community Education Center on Maybee Road, Independence Township.

Couple honeymoon with hurricane

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Mike Solcz and Roberta Flynn-Solcz had visions of crystal blue ocean water, warm Caribbean breezes and candle-lit dinners during their honeymoon on the tropical island, Antigua.

But on Friday, Sept. 15, just three days into their trip to the eastern edge of the Caribbean, 250 miles southeast of Puerto Rico, Hurricane Hugo hit the island with 150-mph winds, uprooted palm trees and walls of water.

"It was the worst experience of my life," said Mike a week later. "I haven't been able to sleep since I got back -- nightmares."

Mike, who travels a lot for his company, Valiant Machine and Tool of Windsor, Canada, and Roberta, a Flint social worker, reside on Amy Drive, Independence Township. The second marriage for both, the honeymoon trip began with a pleasant visit to Niagara Falls, said Mike.

Next, they journeyed to Antigua and stayed at the Jolly Beach Resort on the southwest corner of the island.

"The first three days were nice and sunny," said Mike, adding that the island was a little primitive with service and supplies, and he and his wife became ill from the foods.

On Friday, minimal preparations for Hurricane Hugo began.

"The hotel informed us that there was a hurricane," said Mike. "They said to stay in our room, close the curtains and take all the patio furniture inside."

So the Solczes -- still ill -- kept to their rooms.

"We were frightened," Mike said. "When the wind started blowing, we heard coconuts falling all over the place. The power went out -- no lights, no water. We were all wet. Water was coming in the hotel room through the Car blows tire, kills woman

A 22-year-old Lake Orion woman was killed in a head-on collision Sept. 23 on M-15, Independence Township.

About 2:25 a.m. last Saturday, Andrea Sue Higdon was driving north on M-15 near Deer Ridge when a southbound vehicle driven by Kurt Anthony Lair, 20, of Washington Street, Clarkston, blew a tire, according to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department report.

Lair's vehicle crossed the center lane, crashed into Higdon's car head-on and rode up on top of Higdon's vehicle, according to Capt. Steve Ronk of the Independence Township Fire Department.

"The roof section collapsed onto Higdon, and we had to use tools to get her out," said Ronk.

Higdon was pronounced dead at the scene. Lair was treated for minor injuries at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital.

No charges have been made, and the accident is under investigation, said Deputy Frank Willyard of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Second Truth in Taxation hearing set for Oct. 3

BY CAROLYN WALKER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Confusion over the proper publication of a Truth in Taxation notice has forced the Independence Township Board to wait another week before it can vote to adjust the township's millage rate. It will be the board's second vote.

At a public hearing in the afternoon Monday, Sept. 25, board members voted to adjust the millage rate despite a motion by Trustee Frank Millard that the issue be tabled because of the publication confusion.

He told the board he had checked with officials at the state level, and the meeting was being conducted, improperly, a day early.

State regulations say a notice of public hearing must be published in a newspaper six days, not counting the first day but counting the last day, before the hearing can be conducted, Millard said.

Monday's meeting came only five days, not counting the first, after a public hearing notice was published in The Clarkston News Sept. 20.

Millard's motion died for a lack of a second, and the board voted to make millage rate adjustments, agreeing that Supervisor Frank Ronk should check their validity with state and county officials the following day.

When contacted at his office Tuesday morning, Ronk said Millard was right and that a second publishing of a public hearing notice and a second meeting and vote by the board would be needed before the millage adjustments could take effect.

The second hearing is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 3, at the Independence Township Annex, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

At the first hearing, the board approved in a 5-1 vote four separate motions to adjust the general fund, fire, police and safety path millage rates.

In total, the proposed .0204-mill upward adjustment will generate $190,282 additional funds for the township in 1989, said Clerk Joan McCrary.

One mill is $1 for every $1,000 assessed property valuation.

While voters have approved a 7.41 millage rate, under the Headlee Amendment, the township can levy a maximum of 6.999 mills with a public hearing. Without the hearing, the township could levy only 6.4232 mills.

The Headlee Amendment automatically rolls back the millage rate whenever property values increase at a rate higher than the rate of inflation.

Last year, the township levied 6.9795 mills. They were divided as follows: General Fund, 1.30; Fire, 3.00; Police, 2.23; and Safety Path, 0.43.

Following the upcoming hearing, if approved by the board, the rates would be: General Fund, 1.25; Fire, 2.87; Police, 2.39 and Safety Path, 0.47.

Two residents attended the public hearing, where board members explained they were not raising taxes, merely adjusting the rates within the 7.41-mill amount allowed by the voters.

Millard voted against the motions. Ronk, McCrary, Treasurer John Lutz, and trustees Daniel Travis and Mel Vaara voted for the adjustments. Trustee William Vandermark was absent.

Corrections

A story in last week's Clarkston News should have said that Springfield Township's millage rate was decreased to 3.6822 mills. One mill is $1 for every $1,000 assessed property valuation.

In last week's Clarkston News, an article about new band and color guard uniforms at Clarkston High School should have said that the Clarkston Band Boosters donated the money for the new color guard uniforms.

In last week's Clarkston News, a story about the Clarkston Community Historical Society's Crafts and Cider Festival should have said that Kathy Phillips won a $25 award for the painting category in the festival. The award was sponsored by Charles Jackson Interiors.

Juvenile delinquency: No easy answer, says judge

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

There's no easy answer to juvenile delinquency, and it's a serious problem, according to Oakland County Probate Judge Joan E. Young.

Young spoke to an audience attending the annual Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Luncheon at Clarkston United Methodist Church on Sept. 18.

Young said it would be good to find a vaccine for juvenile delinquency. Young referred to the vaccine that has helped eradicate polio, and if a cure were found for juvenile delinquency, she said she would be happy to be out of her current job.

Clarkston Area Youth Assistance Committee (CAYAC) was established in 1961 to help develop programs aimed at the prevention of juvenile delinquency. The organization's motto is "Delinquency Prevention Through Community Involvement."

This year, CAYAC spent $9,000 to send 85 children to such camps as Camp Oakland, Michigan Christian Youth Camp, SCAMP and Independence Township Parks and Recreation Day Camp, said Gordon Spelbring, vice-chairperson for CAYAC.

The organization's purpose is to build children's sense of self-worth, strengthen families through education, healthy recreation and counseling.

Camping is not the only program CAYAC sponsors: AWARE is a program designed to increase public awareness about substance abuse; PLUS is a program in which a volunteer establishes a one-to-one relationship with a child who needs an extra supportive relationship; the shoplifting prevention program has a welfare worker visit fifth-grade students each year; family education programs are also sponsored by CAYAC.

Teen hurt on M-15

A 16-year-old Goodrich boy was injured during a rain and wind storm Sept. 22 when another car crossed the center lane of M-15, Independence Township, and struck his vehicle.

David Dean Knowles was taken to Wheelock Memorial Hospital, Goodrich, where he was treated for a sprained ankle and cuts to his knee, according to his mother.

"He's super lucky, thank God," she said, after the accident.

About 11:40 p.m. last Friday, Knowles was driving northbound on M-15 near Rattalee Lake Road when a southbound car driven by Gary Morse, 19, of Holly, crossed the center lane and struck Knowles' vehicle, according to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department report.

Morse was not injured. He was cited for driving under the influence of liquor and was transported to the Oakland County Jail, where he was released on $100 cash bond.

Morse's blood alcohol level measured .14 percent. The legal blood alcohol level is .10 percent, said Deputy Frank Willyard of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

North Holcomb Road public hearing set for Oct. 11

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Comments, criticisms and complaints about North Holcomb Road are welcome at the next Clarkston Village Council meeting.

Before approving any kind of resurfacing or repairs to the roadway, the Clarkston Village Council wants to hear from village residents who live there.

"I'd like to hear their input," said Trustee Eric Haven when he called for a public hearing during the 7:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 11, meeting. "I don't think they understand the conflict."

The conflict began when village engineer Dave Lakin presented a report on road repair needs to village council members as they had requested earlier this summer.

Three roads were considered in "a sad state of repair." One of those roads was North Holcomb. The others were Wompole and East Washington.

To alleviate the problem at North Holcomb, about $116,000 worth of work is required, said Lakin. The road's base needs to be redone. Resurfacing at this point is only a stop-gap measure that would last just one season, he said.

The repair work on North Holcomb would include a curb and gutter system to help drainage and widen the road to 24 feet. President Sharron Catallo disagreed with the village engineer on the latter point.

"We are shooting ourselves in the foot," she said. "When we repave, we will make it a speedway and allow the trucks back on it. That's not fair to the people who live there."

Catallo balked on the road repairs when she discovered the weight restrictions on North Holcomb that began in May would no longer be valid. With a new base underneath, weight limits would increase, Lakin said.

"I don't see a problem in replacing," Catallo said. "We are not looking for new and improved. We don't need to change. We don't have to widen our roads. We want to keep it the same; that's the charm."

Trustee William Basinger agreed that truck traffic should stay off North Holcomb.

"Maybe by leaving it we would eliminate truck traffic," he said. "Just patch the holes. It'd be satisfactory for residential traffic."

The trustee went on to suggest adding the curb and gutter system to the current roadway in hopes of solving some of the drainage problems and thereby preserving the road surface.

Lakin couldn't guarantee Basinger's idea would work but said, "Anything would be an improvement."

Before deciding what to do, or not to do, village council members agreed it would be best to hear from the residents of North Holcomb.

Stop-work order on gravel operation

The Charles Nunn mining operation and Independence Township are still having their problems.

Though the township board had agreed to let Nunn proceed with mining under an amended consent judgment two weeks ago, township officials were forced to issue a stop-work order recently.

At the Sept. 19 meeting, the board told attorney Alan Green, Nunn's representative, that work would have to cease until Nunn could supply acceptable landscape plans for 20 acres at the site off Sashabaw Road near I-75.

Nunn had recently come under fire from board members William Vandermark and Frank Millard for not meeting previous commitments.

Nunn failed to meet the Sept. 15 deadline set for delivering acceptable landscaping plans, said township attorney Gerald Fisher.

In response, Green told the board that the Nunn organization did not understand the specifics of what was required.

"What we particularly want to see is a plan that meets the berm and landscaping ordinance," said township planner Richard Carlisle, who was at the meeting.

The board unanimously approved a motion to enforce the stop-work order. According to the motion, the landscaping plans must be approved by Carlisle before work can resume.

Leaf disposal dates set in village

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Like it or not, leaf disposal for Village of Clarkston residents begins Saturday, Oct. 21.

With a leaf burning ban in effect, the village council decided several weeks ago to contract with a disposal company to remove residents' leaves. On Monday night, the village council tentatively set the disposal dates for three fall Saturdays, Oct. 21, Nov. 4 and 18.

Residents must have the leaves bagged at curbside by 8 a.m. each Saturday. Smith's Disposal will then transport them to the Waterford Landfill. Smith's was awarded the contract recently with a low bid of $2 per household for the three days.

After approving the disposal days, the village council decided to buy 2,000 55-gallon clear plastic bags at a cost of $494 to help residents collect leaves. The council approved the purchase by a 7-0 vote.

The bags -- free to residents -- will be available at the village office, 375 Depot Road, beginning Monday, Oct. 9, during the office's normal working hours of 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. For those who can't pick up bags during the week, the village office will be open on Saturday, Oct. 14, from 9 a.m. until noon.

There will be a 10-bag limit for each household. Residents will be asked to sign for the bags when they pick them up.

Opinion of Bill Myers

Spending, saving
the Yankee dollar

William A. Myers is a retired Lapeer County editor and investments manager from Boca Raton, Fla.

Just back from a trip to Costa Rica, a cruise down the Pacific Coast to Panama, through the canal, over to the San Blas Islands and finally to Cartagena, Colombia, for a flight home to Florida.

Impressions: Costa Rica remains our favorite country south of the Rio Grande. You have a sense of greater industriousness, less poverty, more Yankee-type ways of doing business.

San Jose, the capital, is a nice town. Banco Central has one of the best exhibits anywhere of pre-Columbian gold artifacts, displayed museum-style. It is open to the public now only on Saturday and Sunday.

Taxis are cheap. It would be easier on us gringos if the drivers talked a little English.

The day-long trip through the Panama Canal was a great thrill. I had done it some 50 years ago, but it didn't mean much to me then. This time, I had read the absorbing book, The Path Between the Seas, by McCullough, a prize-winning book that is indeed a suspense story. If you ever plan a canal transit, by all means read the book first.

I was also impressed by the finances of the canal operations. Since 1914, when it opened, the canal has paid its own way. Indeed, it didn't raise the toll of 90 cents per cargo ton until 1974 when it was increased to $1.14.

I heard no one who was happy about our deal to turn over the canal to Panama in 2000. People simply don't think the Panamanians can run it properly. It is a most complex engineering problem just to operate it. Just why we made this agreement during the Carter administration is beyond everyone I talked to.

"We have great plans for you," is the motto for Equitable Life, a highly rated insurance company that has been around a long time.

One of Equitable's "great plans" is a split annuity. It looks like one of these no-lose deals, with security and tax advantages to attract the investor. Here is what Equitable offers on a $100,000 single deposit (you can make a deposit as low as $20,000):

The large part, $65,744, goes into a five-year deferred annuity. In five years, this grows to $100,000, providing the buyer's return of principal.

The rest, $34,256, goes into a five-year immediate annuity, providing annual income of $8,226, of which 86 percent is tax-free, because 86 percent of the total amount you get is the return of your own money.

(Say you put $34,256 in a money market fund and withdrew $8,226 each year. Most of it is your own money. Naturally you wouldn't be taxed on it.)

The tax liability on the $65,774 deferred annuity is passed over. The IRS won't pass it over, though, when that $65,774 annuity is cashed out at $100,000. There'll be tax on it of 28 percent under present rates. So instead of $100,000, you will get what's left after the 28 percent deduction, a net $90,408.

Over the annual income side, where you start out with $34,256 and draw out $8,226 a year: that's a total of $41,130. The difference is taxable income. Apply 28 percent tax to the $6,874 difference and you have $4,949 left. (Tax is $1,925).

Time for a re-cap:

Your five-year after-tax return on the deferred annuity is $90,408. The five-year after tax return on the immediate annuity is $39,205. That's a total five-year after-tax return of $129,613. You put in $100,000 to start with, so your net income after five years is $29,613.

Now for the simplified country-boy approach. Take the $100,000 and put it in a tax-free municipal bond, yielding 7.5 percent.

Result: You receive income each year (with no tax) of $7,500, a total of $37,500 after five years. (You also get back your original $100,000 investment.) That's your net income: $37,500.

Compare the two plans: you're $7,887 ahead. Mainly, that's because you haven't paid a high commission to some life insurance salesman.

Nitpickers will point out that your "draw" of $7,500 in tax-free interest isn't as much as your after-tax "draw" of $7,841 of the insurance plan. But the grand total is what matters.

One way, you get a five-year total of $137,500. The life insurance route, you get $129,613. Pay your money and take your choice.

New watershed representative

Independence Township Assessor David Kramer was recently approved to serve as the township's representative to the Clinton River Watershed Council.

He was unanimously appointed to the position by the township board Sept. 19. He will replace former township Clerk Richard Holman.

They're weakening right to know

Two special meetings in Independence Township -- though legal -- violated the intent of Michigan's Open Meetings Act of 1976.

The first -- a special public hearing on the tax rate in Independence Township -- was held at 5:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 25.

It turns out that the hearing had to be rescheduled because it was a day shy of the six-day publication requirement for public hearings.

Regardless, the time was inconvenient for most residents of the township.

Granted, not many people normally show up for a Truth in Taxation hearing. But with the recent increase in assessments, the millage rate is a hot issue for many residents. It would have been nice if the residents could have had the option to attend. A 5:30 p.m. meeting does not give a realistic option, since a majority of males and females commute to daytime jobs.

Plus, it's not smart politically. People become suspicious if there are too many special meetings at inconvenient times. They think officials are trying to hide something.

The second -- a special dinner meeting with the township auditors set for 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 27, at Indianwood Golf and Country Club, Orion Township -- is not only inconvenient, but it's awkward and expensive.

As a special meeting, it only has to be posted 18 hours in advance -- no notice is published in the newspaper. Not many people knew about the meeting.

Further, while the auditing firm of Plante - Moran was to pick up the tab for the township, it would be an expensive dinner for anyone from the public -- not to mention how awkward it could be, sitting all alone at another table, trying to hear the business of the informal meeting. While open to the public, the very setting discourages onlookers.

Plus, it's in Orion Township, not a very convenient location for most Independence Township residents.

While the subject matter -- township finances -- could be considered dry, it also could be considered important. This summer, the auditors said the township was in good financial shape overall, but they recommended a few crucial bookkeeping improvements.

According to Public Act No. 267 of 1976, the basic intent of Michigan's Open Meetings Law is "to strengthen the right of all Michigan citizens to know what goes on in government by requiring public bodies to conduct nearly all business at open meetings."

Township officials said both special meetings were open, but the meetings were inconvenient and actually weakened the right of citizens to know what goes on in government.

Story's postscript

I would like to add a postscript to the lovely story on Marian Terry in the paper Sept. 13.

We moved to Clarkston in 1955. We raised our five children, now adults with families, there. They all graduated from Clarkston High School.

Six years ago we moved to Venice, Fla., however, we come back every summer to be with our families and grandchildren. Our youngest son, Ron, and his wife, Nancy, and their three children bought our house on Middle Lake Road, so it's still like going home.

To get back to the subject, Marian forgot to tell how supportive she and Earl were to the high school students.

Having them work in the store, mind you, they didn't just hire one or two full time but used a lot of young people so they could earn a bit of spending money.

Our son, George Miller, was among them. When he had a chance to work at the sporting goods store on the corner -- that's a restaurant now -- and work a few more hours, he went to Mr. Terry and asked if he would feel bad if he took the job.

Mr. Terry told him, "Anytime you can get ahead in this world do it."

George went on to college and is head laboratory analyst at Historical Williamsburg, Va. He is a specialist in glass, pottery and ceramics. He just has received a three month Fellowship at Winterthur at Delaware.

Marian and I played in the same bridge club for years, and I miss this. When I came back this year, they invited me to play and have lunch with them. We also were on the golf league, too -- first when there was a golf course at Waterford Hill then former Holly Greens. Life has been good to both of us.

Warm cookies

When Andy and I were little, we used to bake cookies together. So it seemed funny to see him in his own home last weekend, cooking an entire meal all by himself for six adults.

When we were kids, we had it down to a pretty good system. Usually, I was the boss and would read the recipe aloud. He would measure and mix. Sometimes, we would switch, and he would read, and I would mix.

If we knew the recipe almost by heart, we'd alternate jobs. We rarely got into each other's way. And we always enjoyed the outcome of our efforts -- usually sitting down with a tall glass of milk and warm cookies.

Then, we'd play act, pretending to be mean witches or fast race-car drivers or glamorous movie stars -- all the time eating those warm cookies.

Last Saturday, Andy wasn't pretending at all, but it seemed so funny. There he stood in his new Canton apartment, deftly tossing bamboo shoots and pea pods in his newly seasoned wok.

He's 23 years old, but it seemed as if he were an 8-year-old boy, holding his head at just the right authoritarian angle, perfectly playing the part of a gourmet chef.

He wasn't wearing an apron. He had told his girlfriend, Michele -- a master seamstress, that he didn't need one. Instead, he tucked one of his brand-new kitchen towels into his pants and wiped his hands on it.

"Andy," I said. "You need an apron."

"Nah," he answered, switching to his tough, race-car driver face. But he wasn't play-acting. It was really him.

"Is there anything I can do?" I asked.

"No, not really," he said.

I could see that. He was perfectly organized. He must have spent hours preparing everything. Each vegetable had been chopped and placed in a small bowl and then covered with plastic wrap. All the spices sat on the counter, ready for his command.

The plates were on the table.

"You can get the silverware out," he said.

I did. But that was all.

I didn't know how to handle this. So my sister, Carol -- who 22 years ago had changed Andy's diapers and a few years later had rescued him when he had played cowboys by himself and had tied himself up to his top bunk and then slipped and hung himself upside down by his ankle -- and I started acting like the child we remembered him to be.

We giggled and peeked in all his cupboards.

In the bathroom, we looked in his medicine cabinet. On the left were the items he used every day

-- razor, deodorant, comb. On the right were the items he used only occasionally -- Maalox, Band-aids.

So organized. Just like the kid who used to set out all his school clothes the night before and then time himself in the morning to see how fast he could get ready.

His closet was the same -- nice, neat, orderly. So were the files in his oak filing cabinet, even the file marked "personal."

Carol and I giggled at him and then at ourselves. Would we do this at anyone else's house? Nope. But Andy had done the same to us so many times. He knew the contents of any personal and important note I had received as a teen-ager.

And he treated Carol as if she were his mother, not hesitating a bit to ask her anything in the world.

At the dinner table, we savored the meal he had cooked. Yes, he had followed a recipe (all by himself). But he added a few extra touches.

Sitting at the head of his new, maple-top table, with Michele -- blond-haired and blue-eyed looking at him, he seemed like the glamorous movie star he used to pretend to be. Carol and I giggled through the whole meal.

For dessert, Andy stuck a plate of cookies in the microwave and served them to us warm.

Good Samaritans

Please help me thank two unknown Samaritans. In the early hours of the morning of Wednesday, Sept. 13, I let my dog out into the back yard as usual. Then, I forgot he was outside. When I finally went looking for him about an hour later, it was still dark outside, and I discovered that the gate had been left open and the dog was gone.

I immediately ran down the street calling for him. Coming down the street toward me were two men, one of whom was checking out the house number on a neighbor's home (my dog wears a tag with our address on it).

The other gentleman was holding something in his arms, and I called to him and asked if he had my dog.

He did, indeed, have my dog, and he told me the dog was out in the middle of M-15 when they found him. He wasn't hurt, but he was sure scared.

I was crying when I thanked them for bringing back my dog but was so upset I didn't think to ask them their names. I'd like to thank them from the bottom of my heart for caring enough to help my dog, who, I might add, is blind.

Jim's Jottings

Before they are old enough to be told differently, kids look forward to going to school.

They watch their brothers and sisters head out each morning for fun, games and merriment. They beg their mothers to let them go to school.

Mothers, while openly admitting they want to send them to school, soothe their tikes with reasons of age, size, and "But don't you like being home with mommy?"

I realize with so many working moms, that last reason is replaced with, "You'll be in nursery school soon," or "You'll have a lot more fun with your sitter."

I'd like to interrupt this column long enough to tell you about the call we had to change the references in our want ads from babysitter to child care person. Why would anyone want to eliminate the word "baby"? What better description of those sweet, cuddly things? The word "child" will never do it.

Now, back to our story, as old-time radio used to say. Grandson Danny reached nursery school age this fall. Knowing that, he started on his mother the day he was four and kept at her at least twice a day thereafter, with, "When do I get to go to school?"

Mother's answers were run of the mill until she came up with, "When the leaves turn color."

Ah, come that day in September and they're headed toward nursery school. Danny looked out all the windows of the car he could from his locked-in seat and announced, "I can't go to school yet, the leaves haven't changed color!"

Mother drove around until she saw a wayward maple or dead oak and pointed it out to him.

Ok, first day (2 hours) is up. Mother goes to pick up the red head. He's not ready to go home. He says, "I can't go home yet. I haven't learned anything!"

Went to Wing Lauk's Chinese restaurant for lunch recently. The background music was country western. Glenn Campbell and Kenny Rogers with egg rolls and chow mein don't do it for lunch.

Went north with 19 other golfing swingers and swearers last weekend. We played Gaylord area's Michiway Pines, Hidden Valley and Gaylord Country Club. Consensus was that Gaylord Country Club is the best layout and most appealing of the trio. It is also the least expensive.

Gaylord remains the "Alpine Village" of Michigan. It was over 20 years ago chambers of commerce types flocked to Gaylord to see how they accomplished the unified Swiss motif. Never heard anyone copied it. I do know that they had a lot of financial help from the bank, and leadership from the president of U. S. Steel who had property at Hidden Valley, and the man who built the Chalet eating/lodging layout.

A new Days Inn motel was announced for Gaylord last week. It too will continue the look. However, the downtown isn't the same as 20 years ago. The Alpine decor stayed downtown, but south Old 27 and west M-32 grows with shopping centers and stand alone stores.

Downtown added parking, but it's out back. Downtown has 2,000 sq. ft. stores, outskirts 20,000. Downtown has specialty shops, services, banks, professional offices and vacancies. Sounds like any other town, doesn't it?

Nevertheless, Gaylord's good reputation, started many years ago, grows. They did something right and became a mecca. We're proud of 'em. Next year we're going to Boyne.

Something on TV grabbed my attention away from my newspaper. There was a man walking swiftly while holding a large piece of cloth in two hands stretched as far apart as his arms allowed. The cloth was apparently a coat. The man kept thrusting it toward the camera, and then withdrawing it, rather like a brave toreador tormenting a bull.

Which reminds me I'm glad the State Fair has closed after a successful run that included some creep who torments frogs for a living. TV news programs love to show this type of "trained animal" act because it gives the anchorman, anchorwoman, weatherman and sports guy all a chance to laugh charmingly at how clumsily the animal expresses its terror.

I saw the frog trainer on three channels. He claims to have trained a frog how to lie on its back and pump iron - a tiny barbell carefully placed on its front legs. Except the frog won't perform unless adequately stimulated by a jab in the midsection. When the trainer pokes it, the frog jerks its legs in protest and - look at that! - the iron is pumped. Is that cute, or what?

Stay tuned for setting cats on fire. But back to the man waving the cloth. He wasn't fighting a bull; he was screening a star. He was trying to prevent the camera from taping LaToya Jackson who was attempting to sneak through an airport terminal without attracting attention to her braided military jacket, ship captain's cap, tight pants, dark glasses, wild hairdo and skittering bodyguards.

"That's real class," I told my wife. "Most people who don't want their picture taken in public hide behind their own coat collar, or put their hands over their face. That woman has a cloth wall with legs. That's almost as private as staying home, or wearing ordinary clothes and traveling without an entourage for a necklace."

It should be admitted right here that I didn't know who LaToya Jackson was until my wife told me. LaToya is Michael Jackson's sister, and there were nude photos of her in a girlie magazine. Which gives you some idea of the difference between a portable cloth wall and a plain brown wrapper.

A few years ago I wrote that Michael Jackson was more annoying than entertaining. Does a grown man really have to talk like a hush? Reader response was unusually organized. Elementary school teachers assigned students to write me politely insulting letters. Ever since my exposure to that inspired scholarship, I have regarded every school tax election as a strong challenge to the generosity of my spirit.

My wife said LaToya Jackson was in the TV news because it had been alleged that she had married her manager in Las Vegas, but she denied it, saying the bride must have been someone pretending to be LaToya. I figure a smart impersonator would get married behind a coat held up by the maid of honor, with vows exchanged through a buttonhole.

Anyway, I don't always watch strange people on TV. Because I never turn out the lights before 2 a.m., I will start to read any book that gets inside my home, even one left behind by a relative with questionable taste. Which explains why I read the first couple of chapters of "Secrets" by Danielle Steel. But why did I read the whole thing? Usually I discard a book as soon as I discover it's lousy. Reading time is too precious to waste on crap.

I read the whole thing for the same reason some people watch Geraldo Rivera and Sally Jessy Raphael on TV: It's unpleasant but you have to keep looking or you won't believe what you're seeing. I couldn't believe "Secrets" could be so consistently rotten - so poorly written, so childishly plotted, so lacking in interesting character - from the first page through the last. But it is.

Steel sells more novels than almost anyone. She was recently appointed to head a national campaign urging parents to get library cards for their children.

It's depressing to realize millions of people think Danielle Steel is a good novelist. It's depressing to realize the news media think LaToya Jackson is almost as newsworthy as Zsa Zsa Gabor.

It's enough to make a frog pump iron.

Don't cloud issue

An open letter to Mr. Weber:

I have read and re-read your letter of Sept. 20 many times and still remain completely baffled regarding your exact intent. Are you truly concerned about taxes and your ability to pay, or is this an excuse to make derogatory remarks about past and present members of the fire department as well as the operation of it?

Approximately 90 percent of the members of the fire department are fellow taxpayers of this community and fully understand the present tax burden and the potential impact of a tax increase. We are also aware of the services our community expects us to provide.

Reduced staffing would not be mentioned because it has happened naturally over the years through attrition and the lack of citizens in the community with the time and inclination to become a part of the fire service. We are at minimum staffing levels or below now.

Alluding to your analogy using a fire truck in a car wash, if you worked for Gar Wilson you would have known better than to have asked such a dumb question.

Washing a fire truck is an everyday part of our department procedure, whereas the need to replace a building and location outdated for the requirements of the fire service is mandated by community growth, deterioration of the structure, or, as in this case, both. They are comparable only in that they are done to maintain a standard of service to the community.

Commercial property on M-15 is more expensive because of the ease of access for the community. What type of mentality does it take to understand how important ease of access is to emergency vehicles responding to alarms in the community? Entering heavy traffic from a blind, narrow side street, as we presently do, is dangerous for everyone involved.

Your assumed expert knowledge of the fire department and what it requires allows you to declare the township supervisor and the fire chief of building the fire department into an "empire."

I have been a member of the fire department for 20 years, and either your definition of an "empire" differs greatly from the dictionary and mine, or I missed something over the years.

That brings up another point. Who are you? With all your proclaimed knowledge of the fire service in our community, I would think we would have met at the stations or on alarms at some point during the last 20 years. Or maybe you went into seclusion to do your fact finding.

Your attempt to soothe the on-call (volunteer) firefighters with a paragraph declaring your letter as a testimonial to them verifies your total ignorance of our operation. The on-call (volunteer) and full-time personnel work together to provide fire and emergency medical services to our community.

The on-call (volunteer) firefighters alone have not provided the required fire protection and service in this community for more than 15 years. The level of fire service responsibilities required in our community are beyond the resources available to provide the initial response required with on-call personnel and off-duty personnel providing back-up.

Chief Wilson's job is to provide and maintain the fire service for a growing community. The process includes determining requirements and working with township and village officials for guidance in satisfying those requirements. This includes going to the people in the community for funding when necessary.

In the April election, the bond issue was defeated by a low margin along with a low turnout at the polls. This may not reflect the true feeling of the majority of the voters in our community.

Over the past five months, input from the community suggested going to the polls again. The need is there. If the Chief did not try again and keep trying, he would not be doing his job. He does not give up easily. It is not in a firefighters' nature to give up easily. It doesn't go with the job.

I do not question your right to disagree with the proposal, Mr. Weber, but I do question your practice of clouding the issue with misinformation.

Neil Jay Ashley

P.S. Vote on Nov. 7--it is not only your right but also your responsibility.

Proposed increase is irresponsible

Obviously, the Independence Township Board is moving quickly to increase taxes, so my comments will be brief.

As near as I can tell from reviewing the information publicly available, this township proposal will raise an additional $100,000 or more in township taxes.

An increase in taxes at this time is not only surprising, but I suggest an irresponsible move by the township as a member of the overall community.

It comes at a time when our schools meet with strong resistance to increased taxes, despite the very obvious need. In the view of many taxpayers, the township and schools are just one tax-spending entity. This action by the township board, particularly without a referendum, will undoubtedly doom any school millage request in the near future.

The "blame" for your action will be unfairly but inevitably visited upon the school children of this community.

If there is a genuine and demonstrable need for the township to have these funds, the case should not be made to and decided by the entire electorate not after a hastily called afternoon meeting.

Water protection

BY CAROLYN WALKER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Following the old adage, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," several local people are doing their best to keep Independence Township's groundwater drinkable.

Approximately 20 residents and business people turned out for a Sept. 18 meeting sponsored by the East Michigan Environmental Action Council (EMEAC).

Funded by a grant from the Kellogg Foundation, EMEAC selected Independence and Brighton from several possible sites for a three-year, public awareness program.

Oakland University, Rochester, chemist Paul Tomboulion and his wife, environmental consultant and EMEAV president Alice Tomboulion, were guest speakers at the meeting.

They presented a film about groundwater and discussed the problems created by household wastes, fertilizers, pesticides, road runoffs and similar issues.

According to Kevin Mills, EMEAC's project director, Independence does not currently have a groundwater pollution problem. He hopes that education will keep it that way.

Unseen and, therefore, under-appreciated, groundwater is collected in spaces between clay, soil and rock below the earth's surface. It is, as in Independence, a primary source of drinking water.

It can be polluted by naturally occurring chemicals, such as salt, or by man-deposited chemicals such as gasoline, oil, sewage and the like, Mills said.

Independence was chosen as a location for the EMEAC program because residents and government officials showed concern, because the water is not yet contaminated and because there were a number of local groups willing to help, Mills said in a telephone interview.

"They've got a resource that's in good shape and worth protecting," he said of the township groundwater. "We all have to focus on what needs to be done to protect what we've got."

Interested citizens are encouraged to attend EMEAC's future meetings. Meetings are set for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 11, and Monday, Oct. 30, in Room 403 at Clarkston High School, 6595 Middle Lake Road, Independence Township.

Doug

Several weeks ago the Wall Street Journal had an interesting article about historic major league baseball stadiums.

It seems that Smithsonian Institute is sponsoring a week-long, four-game road trip to four of the few remaining historic ballparks in the United States.

The parks included in the tour are Wrigley Field, Comiskey Park (scheduled for demolition in 1991) Tiger Stadium and Municipal Stadium in Cleveland. The trip, which costs $1,450 plus air fare to Chicago, is being taken by 26 baseball lovers who want to visit these historic parks before they are torn down and replaced by glittering new stadiums with artificial turf, garnish scoreboards and climate controlled temperatures.

Those taking the trip say that it is "a trip back to a time when a strike was a pitched ball, not a labor dispute, and the game was played in sun-kissed parks with lush lawns, not covered canyons with plastic grass." They want to pay their respects to dinosaurs that may soon be replaced by more profitable modern sports facilities.

As old gives way to new, baseball fans are wallowing in diamond nostalgia. Lithographs of old ballparks are selling beyond wildest expectations, and the Smithsonian Institute trip is oversubscribed, despite the price.

Those involved in all this say, "The parks are safe harbors, unchanged and unspoiled, in a world of wrenching changes."

When the tour got to Tiger Stadium, they said, "It's like walking into the Sistine Chapel."

The stadium reeks of baseball history: it's where Ty Cobb played, where Reggie Jackson hit his historic home run in the 1971 All Star Game and where Lou Gehrig's streak of 2,130 consecutive games played came to an end.

The group was so taken with Tiger Stadium they offered moral and financial support to those who are trying to save the stadium from demolition.

Why are these memories so important?

One view is that "people want those things they had in their youth, and they want to pass them on to the next generation."

What does all of this have to do with Clarkston and with COG? To me, it embodies what most of us in Clarkston want very badly -- to preserve the past, to retain the historic atmosphere of the area, and to keep it from becoming a "glitzy stadium" like Auburn Hills or Rochester.

One by one, the historic old towns are disappearing, only to be replaced by modern new office complexes, huge shopping centers and high-rise apartments and condominiums. The historic atmosphere is plowed under, right along with the old structures that are torn down to make way for the new.

To Clarkston's credit, we have saved structures like the Ritter House, the Boothby House and others; and we seem to be making every effort to maintain the historical significance of the area.

But the future is coming up I-75 at a rapidly accelerating pace, and you have to wonder how long we can hold out. One can only hope that the township board members will use their power wisely in the years ahead, for they're the ones who will determine whether our "stadium" will be historic or just another in a long line of Rochesters.

Doug Carlson is chairperson of Citizens for Orderly Growth.

School superintendent to address residents

Gary Haner, superintendent of the Clarkston Community School District, is scheduled to address district residents on the past present and future of Clarkston schools.

The League of Women Voters of the Clarkston Area is sponsoring the talk at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 5, at the Independence Township Annex at 90 N. Main St., Clarkston.

A question and answer period is to follow Haner's presentation.

Haner said one of the most important subjects of his presentation will be the future and the need for technology in schools to help take the students into the next century.

He said he also intends to discuss what the future is for schools with and without funding.

"Clarkston schools, as well as many other in-formula school districts in Michigan, are at a cross-road in history," he said. "Decisions must be made by our community in the next few months that will dramatically effect our children. Education is literally at a point of crisis in Michigan."

Ann Glen of the League of Women Voters said the League is an organization concerned with giving citizens more access to knowing and understanding political issues.

* Science classrooms with inadequate electrical outlets and no running water. We cannot expect the best teachers to teach under these conditions.

* English books that are so old that they are worn out, and science books that are out of date.

* The failure of the fall intramural program to attract enough students because of the pay-to-play policy. Those students that did sign up were disappointed that they were unable to play any sports at this time.

* The lack of social activities for our students.

* The loss of over two teachers while we gained 20 students.

* The physical condition of the building and the flooding of the classrooms during the recent rains.

While all of these were high on our list of concerns, our biggest worry is "what happens next with the financing of our schools?"

Can we afford to wait for Lansing? What will happen to our school with the next Headlee Rollback that is coming in the spring? If anything fails, we can look forward to our children receiving a substandard education, split sessions, larger class sizes, no books, no busses, no sports, no music or arts, NOTHING!

If this happens, may God help us and our children because we as a great nation will be finished.

A and B are bad

The Michigan State Chamber of Commerce supports using existing state government revenue to increase equity and improve the quality of education.

Voters will be asked on Nov. 7 to decide whether or not to increase the sales tax in Michigan by voting "yes" or "no" on Proposals A and B on the special election ballot to increase funding for schools.

We are opposed to both proposals, and we would like the opportunity to adequately inform the voters that there is a third alternative: voting "no" on both proposals.

Proponents of higher taxes are being given ample opportunities to explain why voters should vote "yes" for higher taxes, yet the alternative viewpoint is being neglected.

There appears to be a gentleman's agreement between the proponents of the tax increase not to criticize each other's proposal. This has stymied a healthy, open and critical debate on the substance of each proposal. Additionally, we believe the ballot wording approved by the State Board of Canvassers is both confusing and misleading.

Trisha Kane,

Director of communications,
Michigan State Chamber of Commerce

Say "no" to "B"

As you know, I have been concerned for some time about school finance and the abuse of the constitutional protections that so many of us worked hard to place in the constitution a decade ago. That's why I am writing to tell you about the hidden damage to our Michigan constitutional rights contained in Proposal B.

Like many Michigan citizens you are probably confused about the Legislature's Proposals A and B on the ballot this November. Proposal A is straight forward enough, a $400 million tax increase. Proposal B, however, is terribly confusing. It combines a 50 percent increase in the sale's tax with dramatic changes in school property taxes and school finance.

First, Proposal B establishes a new state property tax. Instead of sending you local school property tax dollars to your local schools, Proposal B would send a big chunk of it to the state Legislature. Local control of local tax dollars would be the first casualty of Proposal B.

Second, the state property tax doesn't tax everyone the same. Business property would pay 1-1/2 times the rate of non-business property. This breakdown in the long-standing principle of uniform taxation places every group of taxpayers at risk for the future.

Third, and most importantly, the new state property tax, along with the local foundation property tax, would never be subject to voter approval, renewal, or review. Today voters get the opportunity to periodically vote, up or down, on their school property taxes. After Proposal B, that type of voter control would be just a memory. Discussion of this major change in voter control is cleverly avoided by the proponents of this devastating proposal.

Fourth, the new state property tax and a new local foundation property tax would be joined by yet another set of property taxes, four mills of "optional" taxes. While Proposal B promises "property tax relief" in fact that relief would be only temporary. One of the ways that relief will be eaten away will be from these four optional property tax mills.

Five, Proposal B would exempt most school property taxes from the provisions of the Headlee Amendment to the Michigan Constitution. Today assessment increases alone cannot increase taxes faster than the rate of inflation plus new construction.

Assessment increases that exceed this limit rollback the millage rate so that the total property tax bill grows at the rate of inflation plus new construction.

Under Proposal B that limit is gone, except for the four optional mills. If you are one of the many citizens who saw double digit assessment increases in the past year, you should be especially concerned about Proposal B.

If Proposal B passes, there will be no limit on the growth in your property taxes caused by increasing assessments. The rollback provision would be eliminated.

Finally, Proposal B contains a shocking clause that should scare every citizen of this state, whether they pay property taxes or not. Section 11 of Proposal B contains these words, "The legislature may provide by law for the revision or elimination of any of the requirements of this section."

Unbeknownst to most citizens of this state, Proposal B would allow the Legislature alone to amend this state's constitution without the approval of the voters.

In looking over Proposal B, I cannot believe that the supporters of Proposal B actually understood that their amendment would destroy so many constitutional protections that the citizens have worked so hard to place in their constitution.

Whether you think a major tax increase is justified or not, I urge you and your readers to actually read Proposal B. After you understand what it would do to our constitution and your efforts in the past, I am sure you will vote NO.

Dinner meeting on township finances

A dinner meeting between members of the Independence Township Board of Trustees and the township's auditing firm, Plante-Moran CPA, has been scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 27, at the Indianwood Golf and Country Club, 1081 Indianwood Road, Orion Township.

At the dinner meeting, which is being paid for by Plante-Moran CPA, the auditors and board members will be discussing the recent audit, three new state laws about funding, auditing and investing, and the township's plans for the future, said Clerk Joan McCrary.

The township and auditors have a dinner meeting every year, said township Supervisor Frank Ronk.

The meeting is open to the public.

Book promotes family wellness

A new book on family wellness is being promoted by the Oakland County Youth Assistance.

The "Family Fun Book and Wellness Guide" was printed for families as a guide to help in raising healthy children.

In the Clarkston area, the books are available for $5 by calling the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance office at 625-9007.

The first section of the book provides information about things to do and places to go, and the second section is about wellness: coping with loss, how to teach children about sex, how to handle the teen years and information about helping services and fees.

The publication is the result of 30 members who gathered a broad cross section of information about communities in the tri-county area. The book took more than 2 1/2 years to produce.

Clarkston Area Youth Assistance recently donated books to elementary school libraries in the Clarkston school district and to the Independence Township Library.

Independence couple honeymoon with hurricane front door. There were no towels to clean it up.

"We feared our safety. We didn't think we were going to make it for a while."

Antigua is 40 miles from Montserrat, a British Crown Colony that was totally demolished by the hurricane because it was directly in its path, said Mike.

Montserrat was hard hit, but the death and destruction toll was also high on Antigua, Mike said.

The next morning, Mike saw a note tacked to a hotel wall. It said no one in the complex was injured, and the hotel was closed -- there was barely enough food to last two days, and there was no refrigeration.

"When I looked out the window after the hurricane, it was like a war zone -- 30- to 40-foot palm trees just ripped from the ground," said Mike. "We're used to fancy accommodations, and there was no water. There was some water, but it was dirty and salty. There was no soap, no towels."

In the afternoon, hotel managers said a few words in German, and the Solczes and a few other non-German-speaking couples couldn't understand.

They later found that the Swiss management told some of the Europeans where to get food. The Solczes found only a few pieces of bread and a few sips from bottled water they had bought previously.

Mike and Roberta stayed in their hotel room all day Friday, Saturday and Sunday. On Monday -- their last scheduled day on the island -- the hotel management told everyone that a plane was going to leave and that everyone had to check out and go to the airport.

So they did.

On the way to the airport, they witnessed the devastation. Animals lay dead beside the road. Rivers of water raged where they did not run before the storm. Houses lay flattened. Women and children stood in throngs, staring at the mess, while men scrambled to make money before every tourist was gone.

At the airport, it was more chaos. There were no communications, no fuel and certainly no planes. But the hotel would not let anyone check back in, even though most guests had pre-paid for their rooms.

Mike and Roberta quickly made friends with couples from New Hampshire and Philadelphia, whom they met at the airport. No one could find a hotel, so they spent the entire day at the airport and shared whatever food they could find -- crackers and granola bars.

Finally, around 9 p.m., British Airways located a hotel -- the Sugar Mill -- a short distance from the airport.

After the hurricane, all rates skyrocketed, and the Sugar Mill was no exception. Rates went from $70 a night to $168 a night, even though accommodations were horrible.

"This place had rats," said Mike. "There was a roof in the pool. No air conditioning, no hot water."

Guests could take short showers only when told they could because the water was run by generators, which used gasoline, said Mike. There was no gasoline

Mike and Roberta crouched on the soaking wet mattresses all night, holding a candle, he said.

"We couldn't sleep. We heard fighting at night, babies crying," said Mike. "You could hear the rats, and the cats fighting, and there were huge spiders."

The manager, an American, did manage to round up some canned pea soup, however, so the Solczes had their best meals at the Sugar Mill.

On Tuesday, they went back to the airport and were placed on the stand-by list but to no avail.

All flights were canceled -- winds were too high, and there was no fuel.

Finally, at 6 a.m. Wednesday, the Solczes were the first on the list to leave the airport. Their friends from

Help from Hugo

Relief help for those struck hardest by Hurricane Hugo will be on its way to the Salvation Army next week.

Two Clarkston Elementary teachers decided Tuesday to organize a collection of goods to send down South at the elementary school on Monday, Oct. 2, from 7 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Fifth-grade teachers Dave Smith and Keith Conklin say this benefit isn't for the students only.

"Anybody in the community who wants to get involved can come and drop things off," said Smith. He thought of the relief idea since he vacations in Myrtle Beach, S.C., one of the hard hit areas.

Once at the school, the donated items will be boxed and then shipped to an area Salvation Army Post for delivery, Smith said.

A list of needed items follows:

Bottled water, canned foods (especially Spam, tuna and canned hams), beddings, powdered milk, baby food and disposable diapers.

For more information, call Clarkston Elementary at 625-4900.

Instead of sending relief to Puerto Rico or other U.S.-connected countries, people should send contributions to places like Antigua and Montserrat, he said. And travelers should take his advice in another

"I would not recommend a resort in Antigua," he said. "I would not recommend an independent island, especially as primitive as Antigua."

on the plane," Mike said. "We were crying. ... (When we got back,) we called, and we can't get a hold of them. To this day, we don't know if they made it off the island."

The entire flight home was filled with delays, but they finally reached JFK airport in New York.

"It was good to get back," he said. "I felt like kissing the ground when we got back to New York."

A woman on the airplane helped them find a room, and, though they were still feeling ill, the first thing they did was order pizza at 2 a.m., he said.

"We were so tired, but we ate it anyway," he said.

Back in the U.S., he was appalled at the media coverage of the storm, he said. It centered on looting in Puerto Rico and pending storms on the East Coast.

"These other islands got it really bad," Mike said. "A lot of people were killed; but the U.S. media only covers U.S. territories, not even the areas hit hardest ... There's no wealthy people on Antigua. It's going to take them years to build up. It's the worst hurricane in a decade for them."

Rohr paving improvements on hold

BY CAROLYN WALKER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Residents of Independence Township's Rohr Road may get writer's cramp before they get improvements to their road.

That is if they get improvements.

In 1987, 51 percent of the 22 Rohr Road, Independence, property owners signed a petition asking that Rohr Road be paved. Rohr road is also scheduled for improvements in Orion Township.

Later, some of those same residents, totaling well over 20 percent, signed a second petition circulated against the paving. They cited concerns that too many trees would have to be removed.

According to township Clerk Joan McCrary, the second petition needed only 20 percent of the property owners' signatures to void the first petition.

At a Sept. 19 public hearing, the township board told some 10 residents in the audience that they would have to present a third petition in favor of improvements, with at least 51 percent of the property owners' signatures, before the project could move forward.

Many of the residents said they favored paving the road because of dust and speeding problems.

But several also spoke against the proposal saying they feared the potential loss of trees and the rural atmosphere.

The board took no official action on the matter other than to vote unanimously to add three lots with easements on Rohr Road to the special assessment district.

Pending the receipt of a new petition, the board agreed to hold a public hearing to prove necessity and establish a special assessment district on Tuesday, Oct. 17.

Residents must present a third petition to the township prior to Oct. 3 before further action can be taken.

Township buys lot

Hoping to facilitate the Thendara Park road improvement project, the Independence Township Board has authorized the purchase of a vacant lot on Algonquin Road.

The cost to the township, gleaned from money set aside for special assessment districts, will be $19,500.

Voting to approve the purchase were Supervisor Frank Ronk, Treasurer John Lutz, Clerk Joan McCrary, and trustees William Vandermark, Frank Millard, Mel Vaara and Daniel Travis.

Street light hearing

A public hearing regarding the proposed installation of street lighting at Reese Road and Bitterbush Drive, Independence Township, is scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 3.

The hearing is to be held at 7:30 p.m. at the township hall annex building, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

The $1,508 project is to be paid for by residents in a special assessment district established for that purpose.

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It looks as though the new graduation requirements for Clarkston adult education students are easier, but that's not the case, according to Marilyn Allyn, director of Clarkston Community Education.

Fewer credits are required to graduate, but graduate requirements no longer include classes taken in ninth grade, said Allyn, adding that students also will be required to take more math, science and English classes and fewer electives.

The Clarkston Board of Education voted unanimously Sept. 11 to adopt the new graduation requirements established by Allyn.

In 1986 or 1987, the board already adopted new graduation standards for the 1989-90 school year -- the standards required 21.5 credits accumulated by students in grades 9-12, said Allyn.

The standards adopted this year require only 16 credits for graduation, but they're accumulated by students in grades 10-12.

The change in calculations came because the state funding only covers 20 credits, said Allyn.

It looks as if the program is going backward, but that's not the intent of returning to grades 10-12 only, Allyn said.

Students today are required to take more core curriculum classes -- English, science and math -- than last year, she said.

English now requires three credits compared to two and one-half credits last year, Allyn said. Math and science each moved from one to two credits.

"Our core classes are up and the electives diminished, and at the same time I feel good about what we are offering," she said.

Allyn said the requirements have gradually increased from 1984 when it took only 14 credits to graduate from the adult education program. The last few years it was required that students have 16 credits in the equivalent of grades 10-12.

Smoke detector saves century-old farm house

A smoke detector saved the 100-year-old Dumas family farm house on Mann Road, Independence Township, Sept. 12.

At 8:01 a.m. last Tuesday, the family was on its way out the door, when the smoke alarm went off, said Chief Gar Wilson of the Independence Township Fire Department.

A serious loss was averted by the use of a smoke detector, he said. Damages were estimated at $25,000.

"Fire was visible from the upstairs bedroom window when we arrived," said Wilson, adding that the upstairs bedroom is shared by two sisters.

"We were able to hold the fire to the bedroom," said Wilson. "There was some water damage to the lower level. We had to open all the walls and ceiling around the room because of the open construction of older homes."

No one was injured, said Wilson, adding that the cause of the fire was under investigation.

QUESTION: I plan to buy a home in the near future. When should I decide on whether to select a fixed or variable mortgage?

ANSWER: Actually, this should be a last-minute decision. The financing market changes often enough so that the best financing mode one month may not be the best next month.

If you expect to live in the house for a long time and you feel that interest rates will increase, you may lean toward a fixed rate. An equally sound case can be made for the lower initial interest offered on variable rate mortgages. If you don't expect to live in the home for a very long time, the variable rate mortgage would be the answer.

FOOTBALL FANS filled the stands at Clarkston High Friday night in anticipation of an upset of Lake Orion. The Wolves almost send the fans home happy, but a late drive ended at the Orion 13-yard line. Clarkston now travels to face Kettering and Pontiac Northern in the coming weeks.

Wolves push Dragons to limit

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Offense, defense, special teams -- the varsity football had good efforts from each unit Friday night, the coaches said.

But not even a four-play goal-line stand at their own 2-yard line could take away the pain of a 14-10 loss to Greater Oakland Activities League rival Lake Orion.

"The kids played so hard," said Coach Kurt Richardson. "They deserve better. (The goal-line stand) is what these kids are all about."

Richardson tried everything he could -- egging the defense on to new heights and switching quarterbacks were the most obvious moves -- but the Dragons still prevailed before a full house at Clarkston High School.

All season Richardson wasn't pleased with the inconsistent intensity level of the defense. After watching the goal-line stand, however, he was pleased.

"We got much better defensively," he said. "This is the best group of kids I've had."

The game began as a defensive struggle and remained that throughout the contest. Lake Orion punted, fumbled and turned the ball over on downs before scoring on a long pass play with 3:38 to play in the first half.

Brett Kinzler brought the Clarkston crowd back into the game on the next play when he raced down the field for a 100-yard kickoff return. David Marks added the extra point to tie the game at 7.

After another Lake Orion punt, Clarkston took control on its own 35. The Wolves moved the ball as far as the Dragons' 5-yard line before settling for a 35-yard field goal by Marks with 10 seconds left in the half.

Damen Michelsen recovered a Lake Orion fumble to end the Dragons' first second-half possession. Unfortunately, Clarkston returned the favor later in the third quarter and gave the visitors the ball back.

Lake Orion drove 91 yards for the winning touchdown after the Clarkston fumble. Jim Vackaro completed the drive with a 1-yard TD plunge with 2:41 to play in the third quarter.

Clarkston threatened to score late in the game, with quarterback Dugan Fife hitting end Erich Becker for a 30-yard pass play that brought the ball to the Lake Orion 15 with 46 seconds to go. But the Wolves could go no further.

Fife replaced Dane Davis at quarterback for this game in hopes he could beat the Dragons' defense.

"We thought we could hurt Orion with the short passing game, and that is Dugan's strength," the coach said.

Had they won the game, Clarkston's goal-line stand early in the second quarter definitely would have been the key.

Lake Orion moved the ball from the Clarkston 47 to the 2. The Dragons pushed their way to the 1 but not into the end zone. Each time the ball was snapped, the defensive line surged forward and stopped the progress of the Lake Orion runner.

After four plays, the ball rested on the 4 and Clarkston took possession as the bench celebrated the victory in the trenches.

Unfortunately, Clarkston came up one great play from victory in the end.

The Wolves' record is now 1-1 in the GOAL and 2-2 overall.

Harriers running well

In step with its early season progress, the boys cross country team won its second straight GOAL meet last week.

Clarkston hosted and bested Waterford Kettering 19-45 with Jason Wenger leading the way. Wenger finished the race first with a time of 17 minutes and 36 seconds.

Kellie O'Neil was third with a time of 18:09; Paul Brisson was fourth and Jim Haviland fifth for the Wolves.

In the girls race, Clarkston's lone entrant won. Sonya Schaeffer outdistanced the competition with a time of 21:12.

Clarkston will host Lake Orion next Tuesday.

RHONDA JOKISCH along with Susan McKoin continues to dominate the opposition. The girls varsity basketball team currently is ranked first in Oakland County and owns an 8-0 record.

BRETT KINZLER tries to shake off a Waterford Mott defender during a varsity football game between Clarkston and the Corsairs Sept. 15 at Clarkston High.

JV gridgers down Orion

Another bites the dust! The junior varsity football team kept its perfect record intact thanks to five interceptions last week.

Clarkston High defeated Lake Orion 12-8 on the road Sept. 21 to up its record to 4-0. Eric Ryan, a freshman, led the defensive surge with four interceptions. Mike Stanton had the other theft.

Afterward, Coach John Craven couldn't say enough about the defensive unit.

"The defense is really improving," he said, crediting assistant coaches Mark Trager and Eric Hutchins for their good work.

The coach also singled out the defense for its effort against the Dragons. They are Kevin Heidisch, Brian Davis, Craig Garnett, Nathan Smith, Dave Smith, Brian Miller, Rick Detkowski, Dan Griffiths and Jon Wyniemko.

Lake Orion opened the scoring on a two-yard run in the first quarter. A 30-yard pass play set up the score. A successful two-point conversion put the Dragons up 8-0.

Clarkston's offense sputtered throughout most of the first half. Wyniemko passed 55 yards to Davis for a touchdown for the visitors first score with three minutes to go before the half. The conversion attempt failed, however, leaving Lake Orion in front 8-6.

A short punt left Clarkston in good field position at the Lake Orion 36 just before the half, and Griffiths took advantage, rushing in from 17 yards for the winning touchdown. Griffiths finished with 109 yards on 22 carries.

Nobody could push the ball into the end zone after the intermission.

"It was a tight ball game from the opening kickoff to the end," Craven said. "I'm proud of them."

The victory was especially sweet for Craven since it was his 20th in a row, dating back to early 1987.

Q: HOW LOW CAN YOU GET?

A: How low can you get your blood cholesterol depends on you. Most people can lower their high blood cholesterol level by reducing the amount of fat, saturated fat, and dietary cholesterol in the food they eat. If you're overweight, losing weight can also help lower your high blood cholesterol, as well as your blood pressure.

Have your blood cholesterol checked by your doctor. Most people should have their blood cholesterol level under 200 mg/dL.

Soccer team struggling, improving daily

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Game by game, the varsity soccer team has shown improvement since practice began in August. Unfortunately, their latest game was their worst.

Oxford defeated Clarkston 6-0 Friday night to extend the Wolves' losing streak to four games.

"We never were in the game mentally," said Coach Neil Granlund.

What makes the Oxford game strange is that it followed one of Clarkston's best games of the season, a 3-1 loss to Greater Oakland Activities League rival Brandon.

"Brandon was an exciting match to watch," the coach said. "Brandon is still a very good team. We played them even."

Devin DuPree scored the Wolves' goal against Brandon unassisted.

Granlund has had his work cut out for him from the start with many new players on the varsity roster. Only two field players return from a year ago, Ryan Forbes and Dennis Miller.

"The sophomores and juniors have been coming along," the coach said. "Nobody is ready to give up yet."

The Wolves 2-5-1 record as of Sept. 25 reflects the tough lessons the team has had to learn. Despite the losses, Granlund has seen some good come of the team's rough start.

The coach singled out Matt Warren and DuPree for their fine play. On defense, Brian Ludwig and Chris Graves have been doing a good job away from the limelight, the coach said. Dan Tassen and Kris Wikle switched spots on the field, with Tassen moving to the sweeper position and Wikle now leading the defense. The move has paid off with improved play of the team, Granlund said.

Granlund looks forward to hosting Oxford Friday night in hopes of avenging last week's loss.

Township boxer working on Olympic goal

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

With an eye on the 1992 Olympics, Ron Olsen sees nothing but good boxing opportunities ahead while completing a military obligation.

His latest assignment from the Marine Corps will take him to Guam early next month. A little luck and a few victories in the ring could bring him back early.

"Guam should be exciting, but I should have no problem returning," Olsen said.

The Independence Township resident plans on fighting in the All-Marine trials in December with hopes of landing a spot on the Marine Corps Team. If that happened, he would be transferred back to a military base in North Carolina.

Once on the Marine fighting team, the junior welterweight would face opponents from around the world. Facing such competition certainly won't hurt his Olympic chances.

"It's my goal to make something out of boxing," he said. "My mom and dad give me support and my brother Michael, the competition."

Olsen's foster parents are Dale and Rose Grable of Oak Park Drive, Independence Township.

Mike Grable has won his first seven fights as a professional. Olsen hopes to follow in his footsteps and turn pro after competing in the 1992 Olympics.

Since graduating from Clarkston High School in 1985, Olsen has thrived in situations where others thought he would fail.

He enlisted in the Air Force after graduation but soon transferred to the Marine Corps. Then he began boxing, finishing second in the Marines and fourth in Armed Forces division. Olsen is proud to note he was eliminated from the competition by the eventual champion.

In 1989, he qualified for the Golden Gloves state regionals in North Carolina. For his Marine Corps fights, he earned letters of commendation and awards from generals that will some day join other awards in his collection when he settles down.

As if his accomplishments in the ring were not enough, he also recovered enough from two leg operations to continue his career unhindered.

"Everybody said I couldn't (comeback as fast as he did)," Olsen said. "Every time they tell me I can't, I try harder to do it. And I've done it, numerous times."

He credits the Marine Corps for his resilience to adversity.

"It's rough; it's pretty tough in the Marines," he said. "But it's a lot of good."

RON OLSEN hopes to fight in the 1992 Olympics and then become a professional fighter.

Golf team unbeaten in league

Clarkston High continues to excel on the golf course as the annual Oakland County meet draws near.

The varsity golf team won all three of its matches last week to run its record to 5-0 in the Greater Oakland Activities League and 8-0 overall. Seven dual matches remain.

Clarkston opened with a home win against pre-season GOAL favorite Lake Orion. The Wolves won 168-174 at Spring Lake Country Club. Dave Studt and Sean Clauw both shot 40 and were the match medalists.

Brandon was next on the Wolves' hit list. The Blackhawks fell 167-215. Studt once again was the match medalist, carding a 40. Clauw finished with a 41, and Gary Kaul and Steven Brown shot 43s.

On Friday, the Wolves bested Milford 165-184 at Spring Lake. Dan Scribner shot a 39 and was the match medalist. Clauw finished at 40, Brown at 42; and Studt, David Coin and Kaul all finished two shots behind Brown.

Coach Jim Chamberlain hopes the team's good play will continue through the Oakland County Meet Oct. 2.

"It's always a team goal to finish in the top 10," the coach said. "That's always a good finish. It's one of the biggest meets."

JV hoops team hits hot streak

After a slow start, the junior varsity basketball team has found its stride after eight games.

The Wolves swept their two games last week, topping Grand Blanc 36-33 on Tuesday and then whipped Holly 66-23 on Thursday to even their record at 4-4.

"They are coming around real well," said Coach Kay Pearson. "I think now that they can compete against any team we come up against."

Against Grand Blanc, Heather Steinhelper and Heather Austin scored 14 points apiece to lead the offensive attack. Stacey Tinkis added seven points. Kariann Sikes made four steals to lead the defensive effort.

Clarkston played "outstanding" according to the coach in the win over Holly. Austin was the leadingscorer with 19 points. Steinhelper had 15 and Jennifer Gill, a freshman just added to the squad, chipped in with 10 points.

The Holly victory was the team's third in a row and fourth out of their last five games.

Cougars still perfect

With Lake Orion looming ahead, the Sashabaw freshman football team knocked off its fourth straight opponent last week.

The Cougars beat Pierce 24-6 thanks to an all-around effort by Jerry Anderson. He had a 35-yard touchdown run on offense and a team-high 11 tackles on defense.

Mike Wood scored twice, once on a 35-yard run and again off a 21-yard pass from quarterback Nick Shires.

Shires and Aaron Powell hooked up for the other touchdown, a 31-yard pass play. On the day, Shires completed seven-of-14 for 99 yards despite several dropped passes.

"Things are rolling for us right now," said Coach Mike Stefanski. "Pierce is not a bad team."

Time Out

Tennis/golf anyone?

Peter Auchter

Tennis and golf are the most interesting and most unusual sporting events to cover as a sports-writer. The weather, if it cooperates, is a definite bonus.

Both sports are alike at the high school level in that neither have officials to settle disputes. Players are expected to act like gentle people and be good sports. That doesn't always happen (yes, bad apples can be athletic), but the good times usually outweigh the bad.

No time clock is another factor. Very good or very poor tennis players pitted against each other remain on the court until the sun sets or they drop from exhaustion. The contest becomes a mind game as well as a physical one.

In golf, poor drives can keep one on the course for an extended period. The leaders can't sit on the ball and stall waiting for the clock to run out on their opponent, they have to finish strong and earn a victory. Very noble yet very tough.

Probably the most important common factor is that both require a fair amount of talent to play. Hustle and effort won't do much if you can't hit the ball in play consistently. Nobody would think to nickname a tennis or golf athlete "Charlie Hustle" unless they thought he was some kind of cheat.

Imagine a 6-foot-4 wall of flesh standing at the opposite side of the court or in your foursome. Or a 5-foot walking and talking pencil.

Now, before anyone writes to complain, there are exceptions to the rule. That's another thing that makes all sports great. Determination can do a lot for a person, but there must be some underlying talent. I know from experience. I try my darnedest, but Isiah Thomas remains a better basketball player. Go figure!

Tennis and golf also are favorites of the rich and famous, making them the sports of choice in the business world.

Heavens, if some poor sap doesn't golf and a prospective client can't go without it. Inside of reading the Wall Street Journal, business people head off to the driving range.

President George Bush, that manly-man, enjoys a good game of tennis. Yes, he's trying his best to make it a kinder and gentler nation. It wouldn't look right if he challenged Vice-President Dan Quayle to a game of touch football on the White House lawn.

Then again, such a contest would make unusual sports copy. Who wants to kick off?

Netters top Brandon

Three matches and three different results for the Clarkston High girls tennis team last week.

The Wolves opened with a loss to Greater Oakland Activities League leader Lake Orion Sept. 18 at Clintonwood Park.

Clarkston rebounded to top league foe Brandon 6-1 two days later.

Caroline Allison won 7-6, 6-3; Kathy Krier won 6-2, 6-0; Heather Shaw won 7-5, 6-2 and Kate Morris won 5-7, 7-6, 4-3 in singles play.

The doubles teams of Nancy Carosella and Debbie Bellows won 6-1, 6-4 and Stephanie Gay and Jenny Brown won 6-4, 6-0.

On Friday, the Wolves' match against Pontiac Northern was wiped out due to the weather. As of Sept. 24, the tennis team's record was 4-2 in the GOAL.

CJH runs wild

Excellent blocking by the offensive line helped Clarkston rack up 390 rushing yards against Bishop Foley last week in freshman football.

Justin Tappero was the main benefactor of the good blocks, gaining 171 yards and scoring two touchdowns. The Wolverines won 28-8.

"We played real well in the second half," said Coach Steve Himburg. "The offensive line deserves credit for that."

Jayson Roughton and Aaron Kirk scored the other touchdowns for Clarkston. The victory was the team's second in a row and boosts its record to 3-1.

On defense, Steve Blank made 14 tackles to lead the team. John Hanson also played well, said Himburg.

THE BLOOMS of summer are fading, and Lorraine Studebaker of Holcomb Road, Clarkston, is trimming away at her garden Sept. 20. Her garden gives off a wonderful display of color each year for travelers passing by Holcomb and West Washington.

SUZANNE ZANOTTI is starting her grandchildren out young by having them help her pick vegetables from her Clarkston Road, Independence Township, garden. She holds grandson Tony Fuller, 15 months, while Devin, 2 1/2, picks tomatoes on his own.

Vegetables 'volunteer' to grow in Zanotti garden

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The word volunteer generally applies to people, but that's not the case in Suzanne Zanotti's garden on Clarkston Road, Independence Township.

"A lot of the vegetables in my garden are volunteers," chuckles Suzanne.

She doesn't plant all of them -- many grow from table scraps she throws out during the winter months or from the compost she liberally supplies her garden with, she says.

A compost pile takes up the back of her garden. Suzanne gardens organically and says the earth was here growing long before chemical fertilizers came about.

Companion planting is another gardening practice Suzanne uses. She follows directions from several books -- careful to plant a certain plant with certain herbs, for example.

But flowers and plants aren't the only companions in her garden.

Raccoons, skunks and woodchucks also visit the Zanotti plot, but Suzanne doesn't seem to mind.

"I share my garden with the animals," says Suzanne. And she's not fussy about having the biggest and the best garden, but she says, "I like to try new stuff."

"I do it for therapy. I have to get my hands in the dirt."

Suzanne especially likes to try the new and unusual in vegetables.

"I've grown soybeans -- and snowpeas when they first came out. When I was into spaghetti squash, so many grew that I sent the kids around with a wagon full and told them they could have any money they made," she says.

"I've always been close to nature. I like looking at bugs and snakes. I feel everything is connected."

Her daughters, Andrea, 21, and Gina, 19, are students at University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. Her eldest daughter, Lisa, is married and raising a family. With a garden of her own, Lisa is following in her mother's footsteps and has remarked how lucky she was to have the knowledge gained from helping her mother in the garden.

It runs in the family. Suzanne's own mother was a gardener, and that's where Suzanne began to nurture her own love of the activity -- now she's glad to see one of her children enjoy working with the earth.

For Suzanne, gardening was a pleasure as a child, she says, but it became "forced labor" as a teen-ager when she was made to go out and weed.

It was much the same for her daughters, says Suzanne. But when the kids were small, gardening turned into an adventure on some days.

When the children were young and demanded much of Suzanne's time, she mulched the garden with straw and grass clippings to hold the weeds down.

She could get straw from a farmer, but finding enough grass clippings sometimes was difficult. But Suzanne was resourceful.

Sometimes, she'd put the children in the car and go around collecting plastic garbage bags full of grass clippings set out at the curbside on garbage days.

"It got so I could tell which bags were full of clippings by feeling them -- they were soft and light. One day I brought home a bag and opened it up -- it was full of disposable diapers!" she says, giggling.

Her garden is plentiful -- tomatoes, parsley, Jerusalem artichokes, zucchini, China hybrid cucumbers, herbs, flowers and more.

She plants so much that she can feed herself as well as give some to others. It also feeds her in other ways.

"I do it for therapy," she says. "I have to get my hands in the dirt."

Not even a broken leg has stopped Suzanne from working in her garden.

"I broke my leg on Father's Day (June 18) this year, but I put a plastic bag over my cast and still worked in the garden -- I found all my stuff -- it was great," she says.

Gardening is not Suzanne's only source of bread and butter. She's been a waitress at the Clarkston Cafe for about 12 years, and for the last five years, she has been a massage therapist while continuing her waitress job.

Massage therapy encompasses a holistic view of life, which Suzanne adheres to. Holistic belief holds that the body, mind and spirit are not separate.

Suzanne says that gardening, earth and nature have always been her God, but the body work -- massage therapy -- has introduced her to the more spiritual side of things.

"I share my garden with the animals."

"I've always been close to nature. I like looking at bugs and snakes," she says, laughing.

"I feel everything is connected."

Balled, burlapped, container-grown plants best

Autumn planting has advantages. The milder days encourage outdoor activity, and gardening is one of America's favorite outdoor pastimes. In addition, most of us seem to have more time to devote to the yard in the fall than we had during spring.

But there was a time, not long ago, when our choices were limited. Almost all the living plants available to the consumer were "bare root" -- meaning that the trees or shrubs had no soil on the root system. Bare-root plants must be returned to the ground as soon as possible after they're harvested. That means the planting must take place in the spring to ensure regeneration of new roots in the fall.

The good news, according to the American Association of Nurserymen, is that times have changed, and so have many methods used at the nursery.

Generally speaking, your autumn planting choices will be either "container-grown" or "balled and burlapped."

Most varieties available in these forms can be added to your landscape just about any time the soil can be worked, providing you follow a few common-sense steps.

Here's some advice about autumn planting from the AAN:

- * Stick to balled and burlapped or container-grown plants; mulch the new plantings, especially groundcovers; and watch moisture levels, but avoid overwatering.

* As for the trees and other plants we put in now, neither container-grown nor balled and burlapped varieties will experience the "shock" from the transplanting process because their roots remain in their original soil. Their growing energy then will aid the development of strong roots during winter, rather than new growth above the ground. That means healthier plants next spring.

* Mulching is even more important for new additions than established plants. Water new plantings late into the fall. Wrapping tree trunks will help reduce moisture losses from the trunks during winter.

Call on your favorite nursery or garden center professional for advice and assistance -- especially regarding the right trees and other living plants for autumn installation in your corner of the world.

A few steps now make spring care easy and fun

With official arrival of fall on the horizon, take a few steps to make the most of your lawn and garden come spring. Your efforts now, according to the American Association of Nurserymen (AAN), will make a world of difference later in the look and health of your landscape.

To get the best results, contact your favorite garden center or nursery for professional advice on the most effective products and methods you should use. Then look forward to a beautiful spring when all your efforts will come to fruition.

Here are some recommendations from the AAN:

- ~ Start by testing the soil from your garden, lawn and landscape beds. Contact your county extension service or your local garden center or nursery for more information on this.

- ~ Follow test recommendations for applying lime and fertilizer.

- ~ Next, select your plantings. Most trees, shrubs, lawns, bulbs and herbaceous perennials will do well this time of year.

- ~ Where necessary, apply broadleaf weed killers.

- ~ After a dry spell lasting 10 or more days, water plants with shallow roots, particularly broadleaf evergreens.

- ~ Spread mulches around roses, landscape beds and herbaceous perennials.

- ~ Get a compost pile going.

- ~ Consult with garden professionals, and apply lime, phosphorous, and composted organic matter where needed.

- ~ If you have evidence of pests, talk to your garden professionals about ways to protect susceptible varieties and follow through on the experts' recommendations.

Crisp, mild autumn weather is the perfect time for working outside. When you see the benefits, you'll be happy you took the time to give the outdoor area of your home the attention and care it needs.

Pot holders will stay cleaner longer if given a heavy treatment of spray starch.

House plants can brighten indoor environment

Brightening up your indoor environment with fresh paint and new carpeting and furnishings can be fun, but the price can dim the enjoyment of creating an attractive living space.

A less expensive alternative, with the same creative rewards, is interior decorating with plants. According to the American Association of Nurserymen, the beautiful living plants you bring into your home not only improve the appearance of the interior, they serve practical functions as well.

An attractive planter can divide a room as easily as a structure of wood and chrome. A small indoor garden can round out an awkward living-room corner less expensively than a wedge-shaped china cupboard.

And unlike pieces of furniture, which should be accessible, plants benefit rather than suffer from being tucked into hard-to-reach spots away from traffic.

Strategically placed, plants can camouflage architectural problems and better organize your living space. Massed foliage gives an empty fireplace an elegant look in summer. Used imaginatively, plants create stunning displays, add pattern and color, modify straight lines and soften harsh contours.

Don't overlook the special rewards that flowering plants bring, but keep in mind that to thrive and blossom, most require more light than foliage plants. If window light is not available, consider artificial fluorescent lighting.

House plants offer the indoor decorator a wide assortment of sizes, shapes, textures, colors and scents. Visit your garden center and speak to the professionals about the kind of look and feel you want to achieve by decorating with plants. Because they work daily with plants of various colors, sizes and shapes, they'll have innovative ideas and suggestions.

When you begin getting tired of the same four walls, start your creative juices flowing with an indoor landscape plan to brighten your environment and lighten your spirits.

What trees, shrubs shouldn't be planted in fall?

I've heard fall called a "second spring" because it's such a good time to plant landscape ornamentals. Are there any trees and shrubs that shouldn't be planted in the fall?

Those better planted in the spring include magnolia, tulip tree, yellowwood, dogwood, sweet gum, red maple, birch, many oaks, pear, poplar, golden rain tree, hawthorn, hornbeam and most stone fruits, such as cherries and plums.

Why is it so important to water evergreens in the fall?

Evergreens, particularly the broadleaved types, continue to lose moisture from their foliage through the winter. Sending them into winter well watered enables the roots to replace at least some of that lost moisture. This minimizes winter injury to foliage and stems.

How can I start a ginkgo tree from seed?

The immediate question is, "Why would you want to?" Though ginkgo trees are lovely in lawns and streetside plantings, starting one from seed means you have a 50-50 chance of getting a female tree. The female ginkgo produces seeds in an obnoxiously smelly fruit that makes the tree no asset to the landscape.

Besides, to collect the seed you will have to collect some of the fruit and keep it around until it's ripe enough so you can wash the pulp from the seeds. You'd be better off to buy a known male ginkgo from a reputable nursery. The male produces no fruits and so makes no smelly mess in the lawn.

How do I know when onions are ready for harvest?

Harvest when about half of the tops are starting to dry out and fall over. Spread bulbs out in a shaded, dry, well-ventilated place for as long as it takes all the green leaves to dry. When they are dry to the neck of the bulb, trim them off with scissors, being careful not to cut the bulb or the roots.

Divide the onions into two groups: those with thick necks that still have some moist, green tissue and those that are completely dry. Use the thick-necked bulbs first. Store the rest in mesh bags, slotted baskets or boxes in a dark, dry, cool place.

The Garden Corner

My Christmas cacti bloom at odd times all through the year. How can I get them to flower between Thanksgiving and Christmas?

Provide 15 hours of complete darkness each day for eight weeks, starting about mid-September. Keep temperatures between 60 and 65 degrees. Or, if it's easier, expose plants to temperatures of 55 degrees -- this will cause them to set flower buds without the short-day treatment.

What are those red and black bugs that seem so plentiful on the south side of my house in the fall? Sometimes some get inside, too.

These are boxelder bugs. They gather in large numbers in the fall and search for someplace to spend the winter. Attics and wall voids are favorite spots. They do not bite or sting or eat wood or fabric, so they're a nuisance more than a pest.

The best way to deal with them outdoors is to spray the exterior walls, foundation and strip of earth around the foundation with an insecticide labeled for that purpose. Indoors, swatting the occasional individual or vacuuming larger numbers of the insects usually gives adequate control.

What's killing my blue spruce from the ground up?

It's hard to tell without actually seeing the tree, but a common cause of the death of branches of blue spruce is Cytospora canker, a fungal disease.

Usually the branches nearest the ground die first. Infected branches can not be saved and should be pruned as soon as the disease is detected.

Watch for needles turning grayish green, then brown, and a heavy pitch flow. Removing infected branches reduces the possibility of disease spread. Fertilizing and watering trees during dry periods will help them resist infection.

Garden Corner questions may be addressed to Leslie Johnson, extension lawn and garden editor, ANR Information Services, 1 Morrill Hall, Michigan State University, East Lansing, MI 48824-1036.

For a "Go-Go" shake, combine a small banana, 1/4 cup smooth peanut butter, 1/2 pint vanilla ice cream and a cup of milk. Whirl in a blender until smooth. Serves two.

Laundry: Coming clean

The increase in outdoor activities that often comes with autumn usually brings a proportionate increase in the amount of laundry to be done. It also brings its own kind of spots and stains -- from grass and mud to fruit juice and barbecue sauce.

Here are some suggestions to help lighten the laundry load and give you more time to get back to the fun:

- Sort into loads by color (white, light, dark), weight (heavy- or light-weight fabrics), and by amount of soil (very soiled, average or light soil).
 - Close zippers, button buttons and empty pockets. Mend large tears before laundering.
 - While sorting, keep an eagle eye out for spots and spills. Treat these items with a stain remover before items are laundered.
 - Laundry labels on washable items give clear instructions for laundering and drying methods. Likewise, laundry product labels and laundry appliance booklets provide information on water temperature and amount of laundry products to use.
 - Select water temperature as hot as the fabric can stand and use a measured amount of detergent. If the machine has a choice of spin cycles, choose the one that matches the type of fabric in the load.
 - Avoid overloading the washer. Items need room to move freely so soil -- and stains -- can be flushed away during the washing process. Overcrowding is a sure way to encourage unwanted wrinkles.
 - Wash loads as they accumulate. This way you avoid mounds of laundry and can wash a load while reading the paper or preparing a meal.
- Doing the laundry still takes time, but doing it right saves time in the long run and lets you concentrate on enjoying yourself.

Safety reminder: Test smoke detectors; replace weak batteries

At least once a month, especially during the home heating season, consumers should test their smoke detectors and replace batteries if needed, according to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC).

Owner neglect of testing and battery replacement has been a cause of smoke detector failure, often resulting in tragedy.

Every year in the United States, about 5,000 people are killed by residential fires. Most fire victims die from inhalation of smoke and toxic gases, but as a result of burns. Most deaths and injuries occur in fires that happen at night while the victims are asleep.

Properly installed and maintained, the home smoke detector is considered one of the best and least expensive means of providing an early warning when a fire begins, before the concentration of smoke reaches a dangerous level, or before the fire becomes too intense.

There is no doubt about it -- smoke detectors save lives, prevent injuries and minimize property damage by enabling residents to detect fires early in their development. The risk of dying from fires in homes where detectors are not installed is twice as high as in homes that have functioning detectors.

Smoke detectors should be tested monthly to make sure they are operat-

PLACE ONE DETECTOR ON EVERY FLOOR

MAKE SURE detectors are placed either on the ceiling or 6-12 inches below the ceiling on the wall. Locate smoke detectors away from air vents or registers; high air flow or "dead" spots are to be avoided.

ing properly. Test the smoke detector and replace batteries according to the manufacturer's instructions.

Fresh batteries should last about one year. If your battery-powered detector begins to emit its low-power warning, remove the weak battery and replace it immediately with a fresh one.

If you are bothered by "nuisance" alarms, don't disable your smoke detector -- you could be sorry. Consider relocating your detector. Smoke from the kitchen may cause the detector to alarm.

Emissions from a space heater or fireplace may set off the detector. You may wish to try a different type of smoke detector.

At least one smoke detector should properly be placed on every floor of the home. The most important location is in the bedroom area.

CPSC also urges that consumers develop and rehearse an escape plan so when the smoke detector sounds, family members will react appropriately.

Smoke detectors don't need much attention, except for regular testing and prompt replacement of weak batteries. But neglect these few requirements and your detector won't do its job if a fire starts.

Indoor, outdoor tips to control bothersome pests

Unwanted guests, such as ants, crickets and mice, like to share the homes of humans. Following are tips from Orkin Exterminating Co., Inc., on how to outsmart such pests

INDOORS:

- ~ Use plastic garbage bags instead of paper; dispose of garbage promptly.
- ~ Keep cupboards clean; transfer dry products to airtight containers.
- ~ Screen windows and vents, especially in attics and eaves; replace or repair damaged screens.
- ~ Repair plumbing leaks.

- ~ Keep drip pan under refrigerator dry.
 - ~ Don't keep a garbage pail under the kitchen sink; store in pantry or other dry area.
 - ~ Check firewood before bringing it inside the house; only carry in what you will burn right away.
 - ~ Keep garage clean of old newspapers; don't stack indoors for extended periods.
 - ~ Inspect house plants for pests before moving them indoors.
- OUTDOORS:
- ~ Keep firewood away from direct contact with the house; move it off the ground.

- ~ Caulk around cracks, pipes, windows, door frames.
- ~ Inspect around the outside of your home monthly for potential pest entrances.
- ~ Trim trees so they don't touch or hang over the house.
- ~ Keep grass short; don't let leaves and grass clippings accumulate.
- ~ Keep gutters and outside drains clean.
- ~ Keep garbage cans closed tightly; empty often.
- ~ Minimize exterior lights.

Roach

- Size: 1/2-2 inches.
Color: Light to dark brown and black.
- Two can become 20,000 in six months.
 - Can survive on plants, glue, hair, wallpaper and starch in book bindings.
 - Can carry six known diseases such as salmonella and streptococcus.

Silverfish

- Size: 1/2-5/8 inch.
Color: Silver, gray.
- Eat anything with starch and attack wallpaper and books.
 - Lay eggs behind baseboards, attics and other protected areas.
 - Run rapidly.
 - Found anywhere in the home, not just bathrooms and kitchens.

Cricket

- Size: 5/8-3/4 inch.
Color: Tan to light brown to black.
- Invade homes seeking moisture and warmth; readily attracted by house lights.

- A "chirping" male cricket can attract female crickets to the home.
- Can damage clothing and carpeting.

Spider

- Size: Various.
Color: Various, often patterned.
- Legs don't readily absorb pesticides, making them difficult to control.

- Most bite; generally little danger from the venom, but wise to consult a physician.
- Black Widow and Brown Recluse spider bites are dangerous; consult a physician.

Rodent

- To enter the home, a mouse can squeeze through an opening slightly larger than 1/4 inch. A rat can get through a hole the size of a quarter.

- Each mouse can contaminate 10 times more food than it eats.
- Carry diseases such as typhus.

To remove odors from smelly bottles, pour a little hot water with a generous pinch of mustard powder. Shake and let stand overnight. Then rinse with hot water.

- Two can become 100 in four months.

Ant

- Size and color vary.
- Once food is found, most leave a chemical trail for others to follow.
 - Colonies may have large number of reproductive females.

- Will invade home through cracks around doors, windows and plumbing.
- Some can inflict painful bites or sting.

Centipede

- Size: 1-6 inches.
Color: Yellow to brown, often patterned.
- Invade dark, damp locations like basements, closets and bathrooms.
 - Some may bite if accidentally injured, causing minor pain and swelling.
 - Run rapidly.
 - Do no damage to food or furnishings; eat insects and spiders.

You can be your own plumber and save money

I would like to replace an ancient toilet in my home. Can I do this myself, and, if so, what kind of tools will it require?

If you don't mind getting your hands dirty, you can save money by doing this project yourself. With the increased use of compression fittings instead of soldering copper pipe, a pair of adjustable wrenches or vice grips are the only tools you will need.

When buying the new fixture, or toilet, check with the salesperson to make sure that a new water supply line is included. This is the tube that extends from the shutoff valve behind the toilet to the underside of the tank.

Also buy a new wax ring, a gasket of wax that seals odors between the bottom of the fixture and the flange base. If new "closet bolts" are not included, purchase those also as the old ones are probably rusty. A small roll of Teflon-type tape also is needed.

First, turn off the supply valve behind the toilet and flush the water out of the tank. To make sure the supply valve is off, lift the tank cover and check if water is still being fed into the tank. When the water has stopped, remove the supply line connection under the tank, to be re-connected to the new tank.

If this connection has been stripped and does not work with the new tank fitting, remove the nut on the supply line from the valve. This is a compression fitting with a ring-like plastic or brass ferrule, which is crimped down on the tubing when tightened.

It can be used only once, so the old, nut, ferrule and supply line can be discarded with the old fixture after the bolt covers and nuts have been removed from the base of the fixtures.

Now scrape away the old wax ring, insert new closet bolts in the slots in the flange and follow the directions that came with the fixture.

The supply line should be attached like the old one. But first wrap some Teflon tape around the threads to seal the fitting. If it is too long, it can be bent, but be very careful not to kink the tube. Use a pipe cutter if you need to shorten the new line.

The HANDYMAN

After everything is installed, turn on the supply valve and check for leaks. The compression fitting may need an extra turn or two.

I own a home that has storm windows, but there still is a draft at the windows. What could be the problem?

Storm windows can be great energy savers if installed properly. Open your window and look at the inside of the window casing where the storm window is attached.

When the windows were installed, a bead of caulk should have been applied at this joint to prevent air from penetrating. If the caulk has deteriorated, scrape away the old and re-caulk with an exterior caulk available at any paint or hardware store.

Now that summer's over, the weather is perfect for working indoors. Taking off the old wallpaper is my first chore. Are there any tips for this job?

First, try to get behind the wallpaper with a putty knife, and you may be surprised that the paper can be pulled off sheets at a time.

However, wallpaper is applied with a water-based glue. To remove it you will probably need to saturate the paper with a solution to break down this glue, which will loosen the paper, allowing it to be scraped off.

You can buy a solution at your paint or hardware store, or you can make your own. Warm water alone sometimes works. If not, add a small portion of vinegar (1/8 cup) to a gallon of water. Depending on the type of surface on which you are working, a hand-held spray bottle, sponge or garden mister can be used to wet the paper.

It is better to work in small portions so the solution does not dry by the time you begin scraping. A fairly rigid putty knife is better than a flexible knife for the heavily glued areas.

Using a combination of 3-inch, 6-inch and 10-inch blades will shorten the time it takes to do the job.

If you own an older home, don't be surprised if you find a few layers of paper. Don't be discouraged, as they often come off in layers.

After you get down to the original wallboard or plaster, patch all cracks and holes and re-caulk the joints where any trim meets the wall.

Remember to protect the floor covering with water resistant drop cloths or plastic before you begin.

How to save energy, money

If you're shopping for a new kitchen appliance, you probably know that the new features are great for saving time and for making cooking a whole lot easier, but did you also know they'll lower your energy bills as well?

SAVE energy by only using as much hot water as the need calls for.

While you're looking for that perfect color, be sure to also look for the federal "Energyguide" label; it will tell you how much your estimated annual operating costs will be each year. Use it to compare with other brands and styles.

When looking for a new refrigerator or freezer, you can save money by buying one that's just large enough for your family's needs. Any larger and you're wasting energy.

And if your new refrigerator is equipped with a power-saver switch to prevent "sweating" on the outside of the refrigerator doors, try turning the switch off and see if condensation is a problem; if not, turn the switch to off, and you'll save money.

With your current kitchen appliances, you can save energy, too. Always match the size of the cooking utensil to the heating element, and use lids to keep the heat in the pots and pans.

If your oven has a self-cleaning cycle, use it only for major cleaning jobs -- a few times a year. Whenever possible, use your microwave oven instead of your conventional range or oven. You'll use less energy.

When it's time to clean up, remember that your dishwasher uses the same amount of hot water to wash a half load of dishes as it does for a full load. Also, if your dishwasher has an "air dry" setting, using it to dry your dishes saves you about 10 percent of your total dishwashing energy costs.

In the winter, turn the dishwasher off when it reaches the drying cycle, and open the door. You'll add humidity to the dry air and save money by air drying your dishes naturally.

You can also cut your energy bill while washing and drying your clothes. For big savings, use warm or cold water whenever possible. And always use cold water for rinses. When drying clothes, don't overdry them, and clean the lint filter thoroughly after each complete drying cycle.

There you have them, simple energy-saving steps that, when practiced regularly, will go a long way in lowering your home's monthly energy bill.

Water facts

The water present on earth today is the same water that was formed with the planet itself. The amount of water cannot be increased or decreased.

Yet, while 75 percent of the earth's surface is covered with water, less than one percent is fresh water and less than three percent of that is usable for humans in its natural state.

Gas grill cooking tips

Fall weather should provide a few more opportunities to use the grill before winter comes.

The American Gas Association recommends these energy-saving tips when using a gas grill:

- Limit preheating time.
- Use only one burner on dual-burner grills unless both burners are needed.
- Use the lowest flame setting possible.
- Cook with the grill cover closed for more smoked flavor and shorter cooking times.

- Prepare slow cooking foods on the grill to keep heat out of the kitchen and to save on air conditioning.
- Cook several foods or entire meals at one time on the grill.
- Cook a full grill of steaks or burgers.
- Thaw frozen foods before grilling unless otherwise noted.
- Use a thermometer or timer to eliminate overcooking and guesswork.
- Keep "burn-off" cleaning time to a minimum.
- Keep grill clean and properly maintained.

Mulch—sounds ugly, looks great and saves water

Take a look at the landscaping in any industrial park, and you'll see mulch. It's that layer of pine bark nuggets, wood chips or stone spread around the plants and flowers that gives the whole job a clean, finished appearance.

Popular in commercial installations, mulch is mostly overlooked by homeowners, and that's too bad. The right mulch in the right place will not only give your garden and landscaped areas a nice, manicured look, it will save you literally tons of water by holding moisture in the soil.

Mulch also keeps weeds in the dark, so they don't come up. And, if you use organic mulches, they'll improve your soil as they decompose. Mulches can be bought at the garden center, or you can make your own using a garden shredder. Here are some mulches to consider:

1. Pine bark or needles: Pine bark comes in shreds, chips and nuggets of various sizes. It has a soft brown color and pleasant texture. Pine needles are also a lovely, good-smelling mulch. All will last several years, gradually breaking down and improving the soil.

Pine mulches acidify the soil, so they're best around evergreens, rhododendrons, azaleas and other plants that like this condition. Elsewhere, apply limestone to offset acidity.

2. Wood chips: You can buy wood chips, but it's easy to make your own using a garden shredder, which usually can handle grass clippings, fallen leaves and garden waste. They're available in gas and electric models at hardware stores and garden centers.

3. Leaves and grass clippings: Shredded, both of these natural byproducts of your yard make excellent mulches. Neither grass nor leaves should be used unprocessed as they will compact and form an impenetrable mat.

4. Salt hay and straw: Not as attractive as bark or chips but great for the vegetable garden, salt hay and straw decompose in one season and improve the soil. While in place, these and other mulches keep vegetables clean and minimize weeding and watering.

5. Stones and other inorganic mulches: Gravel, river stones, sheet plastic and various synthetic fabrics all have some value as mulch — black plastic is great for tomatoes but won't improve soil quality as organics will.

6. Exotic mulches: Depending on where you live, you may have access to one or more unusual mulch materials. Cocoa bean and buckwheat hulls, corn cobs, shredded sugar cane ("bagasse"), ground oyster shell and sawdust all make serviceable mulches.

Mulch should be spread in four-to six-inch layers around landscape trees and shrubs, between rows of vegetables, in annual and perennial beds, wherever there would otherwise be stretches of bare soil.

Some have thought thunder to be caused by the hooves of celestial horses.

COCKLEBUR IS NATURE'S VELCRO

Inspiration for developing VELCRO fasteners is attributed to the lowly cocklebur weed.

But the spiny seeded cocklebur is also rated as one of the most troublesome weeds in Midwest fields.

Studies show that a single cocklebur plant can produce a root system 9 feet deep and 14 feet wide. Seedlings can emerge from 6 inches deep, in all types of growing conditions.

No wonder this clinging weed is one of the country's most despised row crop weed!

Plan ahead to enjoy year-round garden color

If you plan ahead, you can have a garden or landscape of year-round color, according to the American Association of Nurserymen.

When your garden is in the planning stages, select plants for continuous color. You'd be surprised at how few people take this into consideration.

Consequently, though their gardens produce abundant color from the middle to the end of spring, little or no color appears during the rest of the growing season.

Fall is ideal for planting, so begin plotting your all-year colorful garden. Remember that if you plant certain kinds of flowers trees and shrubs this fall, you can start reaping the rewards as early as winter's end.

Like many gardeners, you may have just a smattering of tulips and daffodils. Complement them with some of the so-called "minor" bulb flowers that bloom early.

At the tail end of winter, you'll see blossoming snowdrops or golden-yellow winter aconites. Soon after, blooming will continue with blue glory-of-the-snow, Siberian squill, and blue- or white-grape hyacinth.

Some tulips bloom one month before the popular Darwin and Darwin hybrid varieties. And flowering daffodils and narcissus may last up to six weeks.

Minor bulb flowers adapt to various settings, which assures that they'll continue to flower each year. If you plant them in the lawn, you'll discover that they usually mature before it's time to mow the lawn. Under trees or flowering shrubs, they mature before the leaves form a thick shade.

Daffodils need more time to mature. Plant them in an area of the yard that doesn't need mowing until the daffodil's foliage has started drying.

Summer annuals will give you plenty of ongoing color right up to the first frost of fall. But plant them only after the last spring frost. Perennials are hardier -- perfect for fall planting. They come in various heights, colors, forms and textures depending on the type.

Different kinds of perennials bloom at different times, so although each may flower two to four weeks only, you can achieve continuous color by planting a variety.

Warm days will bring out flowers of Chinese witch hazel that will fill the garden with delightful fragrance. The succession of bloom continues until fall.

Golden-yellow forsythia and mauve, pink and white

Korean azaleas bloom simultaneously and complement each other. Viburnums, lilacs, spireas, mock oranges and others follow throughout the spring.

Flowering shrubs that provide summer color include: rose of Sharon, cinquofoils, Saint-John's wort, chaste-tree, budleja, and Anthony Waterer spirea. Many types of hydrangeas keep their blossoms into the fall. Abelia may bloom as far into the fall as late November if the weather is mild.

Spring flowers of Star and Saucer magnolias may start early enough to encounter a late frost. Next come flowering cherries, crabapples, dogwoods, hawthorns and other spring-flowering trees.

Attractive foliage and ornamental fruits provide a great deal of fall color. Trees with outstanding fall color include maples, birches and sweet and sour gums. Among the most colorful shrubs are viburnums and winged euonymus. Many ornamental fruits last into winter. They include hollies, dogwoods, crabapples, hawthorns, cotoneasters, viburnum and deciduous hollies.

In winter, red, coral and golden-stemmed shrub dogwoods will contrast colorfully with the snow. Trees with another element of interest include varieties that have attractive peeling or mottle bark. Among them are Stewartias, Chinese dogwood, lacebark pine and London plane.

These are just a few of the plants that will keep your garden vibrant with colorful beauty all year long. Plant this fall, and you'll have color in early winter. Check with your local garden center or nursery to find out about the best trees, flowers and shrubs for your area.

Library phone book key to the past

Independence woman, adopted at age 4 1/2, finds she's one of nine children

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Libraries can present ideas unknown to a reader, but for Dolly Schenk, the Independence Township Library opened a whole life previously unknown to her.

A Clarkston area resident for over eight years, Dolly knew that she and her younger brother, Bill, had been adopted from a Kansas City, Kansas, orphanage when they were about 4 1/2 and 3, respectively, after living in the orphanage about two years.

Their adoptive parents, Joseph and Lucille Renn, eventually adopted two other children; and Dolly and Bill grew up in the stable, happy family in the Detroit area.

But when Dolly was in her early 20s, her curiosity grew about her birth mother and father.

"Who you are depends on where you're coming from," said Dolly, recalling her reasons for her curiosity.

"And for a woman, it's good to know your roots medically," she said, adding that she knew none of her hereditary medical data when she and her husband, Frank Jr., were expecting the birth of their son, Frank III, now 16.

Plus, she remembered being teased in childhood. "You are singled out when they know you're adopted," Dolly said. In a sing-song voice, she recalled the taunts: "Little Jenny Renn comes from a garbage can."

So she wrote to St. John's Orphanage in Kansas City and received her birth certificate, as well as Bill's.

She found that their birth parents were Frank M. and Sarah Rabbits Dewdney and that Sarah was dead.

Next, she set about finding her father. She sent for Kansas City phone books, but no Frank Dewdnays were listed. "Dewdney" was an unusual name, she found.

She even tried to locate Godparents but with no luck. Year after year, she tried various phone books and various sources but still without success.

Eventually, she decided to get on with her life, and she more or less gave up her search.

She worked at General Motors Corp.; she and her husband spent lots of time with their son, and they made plans to build a house on Walters Lake.

Then on April 19 this year, Dolly took her son, Frank, to the Independence Township Library so he could work on a book report for a class at Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes High School, where he is a student.

Dolly, almost out of habit, leafed through a pile of phone books. She was surprised to find a Kansas City book, but she dutifully opened it to the "Ds."

"I opened the book, and I found Frank M. Dewdney," she said. "I was shaking like a leaf. I was so excited I didn't know what to do. So I didn't do anything for a week."

"I thought, 'This is great news for me. But what if my real father is remarried, and his new family knows nothing about me?" ... My husband agreed it could be a problem. ... I stewed about it for about a month."

To eliminate the risks, she decided to pretend to be a third party in order to gain information without giving information.

No one ever answered the phone at the Kansas City listing, so she wrote a letter -- a form letter. She was influenced by her work, she said.

"GM has forms for everything," she said, laughing. Dolly sent the letter -- which asked for name, birth date and parents' names -- on May 22.

Almost immediately she got the reply from Frank M. Dewdney Jr. -- her brother, born Sept. 25, 1932.

She noted the irony that her father, brother, husband, son and father-in-law all shared the same name.

By this time, Dolly had accepted the early buy-out deal at General Motors and was spending her time searching for her roots as well as making custom jewelry.

On June 7, she carefully formulated a three-page letter to her brother, Frank. The first page told the facts: "My name is Dolores (Dolly) Schenk; husband, Frank Jr.; son, Frank III; we live in Clarkston, Mich. ..."

The last page said it all: "Do we have any other family? Are our parents still alive? Are you married? Children? I have 1,000 questions and answers for all of yours. ... I'm so happy I found you. Please write."

The following Sunday, Dolly received a call from a woman named Nita, who turned out to be Dolly's sister. She also spoke with Marialice, another sister.

Dolly was shocked to find that her birth parents, Frank and Sarah, had given birth to nine children, one of whom died in childhood. She quickly learned that Sarah twice lived in a sanatorium for treatment of tuberculosis and had died of the disease on Christmas Eve 1943.

All of the young children had been sent to the orphanage during Sarah's illness, and their father -- overwhelmed -- had never picked them up after her death. He died in 1971, Nita said.

The older children ran away from orphanages and never were adopted. Led by Nita (Juanita, born in 1937), the children had been searching for Dolly and Bill for years, Nita told Dolly. Only they had been searching for the name "Wren" instead of "Renn."

A reunion was quickly planned in California, where most of the brothers and sisters live. Dolly and her son, Frank, left July 6 and on the way connected with a flight in Dallas, where they picked up Dolly's brother, Bill, and Frank -- who had received Dolly's letter and passed the information on to Nita.

The 10-day trip turned out to be "one amazing thing after another," said Dolly. The entire clan gathered at the airport, and hugs and tears went all around.

"It was hard to keep a dry eye most of the time," she said.

Dolly learned that her parents had the following children: George, 1928, Arthur, 1929, Marialice Fisher, 1931, Frank Maurie Jr., 1932, Paul, 1933, John (Jack), 1935, Juanita (Nita), 1937, Dolores (Dolly), 1939, and William (Bill), 1940.

All had unusual and sometimes sad stories to tell. Two brothers had spent time in Boys Town; the girls had run away to find their father -- which they did but were bitterly disappointed in him; Frank somehow ended up in a state institution where he lived for 20 years (he now holds a job, lives by himself and is considered the "hero" for uniting the family); George, the oldest, lives on a boat.

Dolly found that she and her brothers and sisters looked alike, spoke alike and laughed alike.

"Humor -- that's what we have most in common," she said. "It's pretty dry."

They exchanged stories and experiences, yet Dolly still has a lot of questions.

"They bent over backwards (with hospitality)," she said. "But it's like having a serious discussion at Thanksgiving."

Sitting in her Independence Township home, Dolly pulled out crisp white linen with fine needlework trim.

She gently touched it and explained that Nita had given it to her. It was a pillow case and a drawer top that her mother, Sarah, had neatly embroidered while she was in the sanatorium.

"It makes you want to cry," said Dolly, softly, as she refolded it and carefully placed it in its protective plastic wrap.

Dolly paused before talking again.

"It's funny to reflect how close I was to saying, 'Forget it,'" she said.

In a way, Dolly's search is over; yet in another way, it's only just begun. She plans to visit her new relatives again soon.

"It changed my thoughts because I think about them everyday," she said. "There's a little more peace in me that I don't think was there before."

"And to think it happened in the Clarkston library."

Parents can help shape college eating habits

Parents' emotions when sending their children off to college for the first time are a mix of joy -- "he's growing up!", dread -- "he's growing up!", relief -- "no more towels on the bathroom floor!" and fear -- "how will she survive?"

Anxiety may outweigh other feelings when parents remember their introduction to college -- sleepless nights, studying, parties and the stress that comes from this drastic change in life.

The "freshmen 15" (excessive weight from late-night pizzas and exam-cramming cookies) doesn't automatically disappear during college or through the parenting years. Nor do bad habits necessarily wane without support and help.

Raiding the refrigerator at midnight is one of the bad eating habits often carried to adulthood. However, parents today are more aware of health risks associated with gaining weight, according to Florine Mark, area director of Weight Watchers.

Many Weight Watchers members attribute part of their weight loss success to the program's group support and guidance. Parents can encourage their college-age children to balance the foods they eat and overcome the hazards of late-night eating or skipping meals.

Following are tips for parents to help their college students:

~ Be supportive, not pushy. By acting as a role model, your positive attitude will rub off on your child.

~ Send your child a pair of running shoes -- urge them to re-energize themselves by taking a quick run around campus as a study break.

~ Send care packages that include healthy snacks such as fruit, unbuttered popcorn, pretzels, raisins, reduced-calorie hot chocolate -- great when the temptation for late-night snacking hits.

~ Send health and nutrition related articles from newspapers and magazines. Words from experts might sink deeper.

~ Send money-saving coupons for healthy foods. Cost-effective alternatives for a student allowance can help your child make good food choices.

~ Give your child a dorm-warming gift of audio or video exercise tapes that they can share with other students.

The goal of higher education, both in and out of the classroom, is to learn skills and develop habits that give young people an edge in life. Good health is essential to holding that edge.

Grass clippings

According to recycling tips at Calvary Lutheran Church, Independence Township, don't bother bagging all those grass clippings. That takes extra time plus takes extra space in landfills. Instead, leave the clippings on the lawn or compost them.

Pet of the Week

Playful puppy

Murphy's looking for a new home.

The eight-month-old female shepherd mix puppy is eager to find a family to live with.

She'll be a medium to large size dog when fully grown. She's still a pup and playful, but because of her size the shelter workers suggest the adoptive family have older children.

Murphy's housebroken and spayed, and her adoption fee will be $35.

Murphy can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF INDEPENDENCE NOTICE OF PROPOSED ORDINANCE

At a regular meeting held on September 19, 1989, the Township Board of the Charter Township of Independence proposed an ordinance to be added to the Townships Code of Ordinances. The proposed ordinance is summarized as follows:

CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF INDEPENDENCE SUMMARY OF ORDINANCE NO.

On September 19, 1989, the Charter Township of Independence adopted Ordinance No. , an ordinance to provide for the regulation of private and public sewage disposal systems; sewer connections, waste pretreatment facilities; discharge limitations; pollutant limitations; data collecting, monitoring and sampling; and providing for penalties for the violations of the ordinance.

It is the purpose of this ordinance to protect public health and safety by abating and preventing pollution through the regulation and control of the disposal of sewage and the quantity and quality of wastes admitted to be discharged into the Wastewater Collection and Treatment System of the Charter Township of Independence, the Oakland County Department of Public Works, and the City of Detroit. The ordinance applies to every property and property owner which is a source of sewage and/or wastewater to the Charter Township of Independence Sewage Disposal System, the Evergreen-Farmington Sewage Disposal System, and the City of Detroit Publicly-Owned Treatment Works.

The ordinance provides definitions of the terms employed by the ordinance and sets forth the general regulations of the Oakland County Department of Public Works which apply to all sanitary sewer systems connected directly or indirectly into the intercepting sewer or sewers of the Oakland County Department of Public Works. These regulations address the plans, permits and bond requirements of the Oakland County Department of Public Works, the testing requirements of the County prior to acceptance of any connections, the Department's control of ground and storm water entering the sewers, and the prohibition of any new combined sewer systems except when no prudent or feasible alternative exists.

The ordinance authorizes the City of Detroit Water and Sewerage Department as the state-approved control authority to act as agent to the Charter Township of Independence for the administration and enforcement of Section 7. The Township is authorized to enter into a contract with the City of Detroit Water and Sewerage Department which sets forth the terms and conditions of the delegated authority consistent with the requirements of the ordinance. Section 7 sets forth general wastewater disposal regulations which prohibit the discharge, directly or indirectly, of any pollutant or wastewater which would cause interference or a pass through at the Detroit-operated, publicly-owned treatment works. Specific pollutant prohibitions are set forth for industrial users as defined in the ordinance, and the ordinance adopts the National Categorical Pretreatment Standards and requirements promulgated pursuant to federal law as of the effective date of the ordinance. Forms of pretreatment are prohibited, and protection from accidental discharges of prohibited materials is required. Notification requirements of unlawful discharges are imposed upon industrial users, and users discharging in violation of any of the provisions of the ordinance are made liable for any expense, loss, damage, penalty or fine incurred by the Township or the City of Detroit as a result of an unlawful discharge. Significant users as defined in the ordinance are required to secure from the City of Detroit Water and Sewerage Department wastewater discharge permits. The applications and issuance procedure for such permits are detailed in the ordinance. Conditions may be attached as set forth in the ordinance to the issuance of a permit. The duration, modification, custody and transfer of permits are also set forth. The significant users are required to provide monitoring facilities and to conduct inspection sampling and record keeping. Enforcement methods, including emergency suspension and orders, administrative actions, public participation and legal actions are set forth.

Any person in violation of any of the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof, be subject to a fine not exceeding Five Hundred Dollars ($500.00) or imprisonment not to exceed ninety (90) days in the Oakland County Jail, or both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court, plus costs of prosecution. This penalty may be imposed above and beyond any civil penalties, fines or costs as set forth in the body of the ordinance.

The proposed ordinance will be voted upon on Tuesday, October 3, 1989, at 7:30 p.m., at the Independence Township Hall Annex. A complete copy of the ordinance is on file in the Clerks Office for public review Monday through Friday, 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Respectfully Submitted,
Joan E. McCrary

County flu shots at senior center

Flu shots for anyone over age 65 (and even for those under age 65) are available for a small fee 10 a.m. to noon Friday, Sept. 29, at the senior center in Clintonwood Park.

The Oakland County Health Division is offering the vaccinations at the park at 5980 Clarkston Road, Independence Township.

Elderly people and those with underlying health problems are at increased risk for complications of influenza and are more likely than the general population to require hospitalization if infected.

More than 40,000 excess deaths occurred in each of several recent epidemics, and about 80-90 percent of the excess deaths attributed to pneumonia and influenza were among people 65 years of age and older.

Influenza vaccine is strongly recommended for household members who may have close contact with high-risk people.

This year's vaccine protects against three viral strains: A/Taiwan, A/Shanghai, and B/Yamagata. A nominal fee will be charged to those able to pay. People will be asked to read and sign an Informed Consent Form.

Getting a flu shot before next winter can reduce the risk of infection and lessen the severity of disease if infection occurs.

An Apple for the Teacher

Pam Dunlavey,
third-grade teacher

By Donna Dick

Pam Dunlavey teaches third grade at North Sashabaw Elementary. She has taught for 18 years -- all in the third grade.

Pam has never had a desire to change grade levels because she has always enjoyed nine year olds.

"I enjoy the age," Pam says. "Children in the third grade are still very loving, open and enthusiastic, but they are independent and ready to learn some very sophisticated material."

Pam's hobbies are sewing, reading and traveling. She has been to nearly every state in the continental U.S. She has also done a lot of traveling in Canada and Europe.

Pam Dunlavey

"I find that travel experiences come in very handy to make a social studies or a reading lesson more interesting to the students."

Pam's husband, Dennis, is a teacher in Grand Blanc. They have two daughters, Sarah, going on 5, and Leanne, 20 months.

They enjoy family outings to the zoos, parks and children's museums.

Pam has lived in Clarkston since she began teaching.

"I have seen so many changes to the community and the schools," she says. "The school district is growing in a positive way. Programs at the elementary level that were not around when I began, such as gym, the gifted program, computers, foreign language, remedial reading and math, are excellent for children. I feel very fortunate to be teaching in Clarkston."

An Apple for the Teacher is provided by the Clarkston Education Association. This week's author, Donna Dick, is a fourth-grade teacher at North Sashabaw Elementary School.

Fashions and food

Good food, good fashions and great company combine to help a good cause at noon Saturday, Sept. 23.

The annual fashion show and luncheon at the Sashabaw Presbyterian Church, 5300 Maybee Rd., Independence Township, features 20 models, plus about 10 child models.

Fashions for children, men and women plus large sizes will be modeled from Dancer's Fashions, Kids Mart, Shifman's Men's Wear, Women's World and Deb Shop, said Kay Patterson, who is organizing the event. About 20 models and about 10 children are participating.

The $10 admission pays for salad, goulash and sweet and sour meatballs, as well as supporting the church's general fund, which finances local missions and other worthwhile causes.

Tickets are sold at the door and in advance by calling 623-6422 or 673-3103.

Time for pledge sheets

A colorful autumn walk set for Sunday, Oct. 1, should prove to be fun, as well as provide help for a good cause.

The North Oakland SCAMP Funding Corp. is sponsoring the 13th Annual Walk for Scamp. The walk consists of two routes -- the 8-mile MAXI and the 3-mile MINI. Both begin at Depot Park in Clarkston with registration from 11:30 a.m. until 1 p.m.

All proceeds will benefit Clarkston SCAMP, a five-week summer program for 200 North Oakland County youngsters who have special needs and handicaps.

For pledge sheets or more information, call 625-3330 or 625-1187.

September is National Cholesterol Education Month. The United States Department of Health and Human Services provides a host of information about dietary guidelines through Department of Agriculture bulletins.

Home and Garden bulletins No. 232 provides overall dietary guidelines for Americans. It expands on the directives that Americans should:

1. Eat a variety of foods;
2. Maintain desired weight;
3. Avoid too much fat, saturated fat and cholesterol;
4. Eat foods with adequate starch and fiber;
5. Avoid too much sugar;
6. Avoid too much sodium;
7. If you drink alcoholic beverages, do so in moderation.

In the chapter entitled: Avoid Too Much Fat, Saturated Fat and Cholesterol, the pamphlet offers the following suggestions for doing so:

- * Choose lean meat, fish, poultry and dry beans and peas as protein sources;
- * Use skim milk or low-fat milk and milk products;
- * Moderate your use of egg yolks and organ meats;
- * Limit your intake of fats and oils, especially those high in saturated fat, such as butter, cream, lard, heavily hydrogenated fats (some margarines), shortenings, and foods containing palm and coconut oils;
- * Trim fat off meats;
- * Broil, bake or boil rather than fry;
- * Moderate your use of foods that contain fat, such as breaded and deep-fried foods;
- * Read labels carefully to determine both amount and type of fat present in foods.

There are several bulletins to assist consumers in following these guidelines when eating out, planning menus, making bag lunches and snacks, and food shopping and for quick meal preparation.

The following recipe is adapted from Home and Garden Bulletin No. 232-10, Shopping for Food and Making Meals in Minutes Using the Dietary Guidelines.

INDIVIDUAL MEAT LOAVES
 1/3 cup crushed oat flake cereal
 1 tablespoon instant minced onion
 1/3 cup skim milk
 1 egg
 1/2 teaspoon dried basil leaves
 1/8 teaspoon salt, optional
 3/4 lean ground beef

1. Soak cereal flakes and onion in milk until soft and milk is absorbed.

2. Add egg and seasonings. Mix well.

3. Gently mix ground beef with milk mixture.

4. Place into 4 small (175 ml) Pyrex custard cups.

Place custard cups on a microwavable plate or turntable. Cover with wax paper.

5. Microwave at HIGH for 5 to 7 minutes. If not using a turntable, rotate dish halfway through cooking.

6. Remove from oven and let stand for 3 minutes.

There is not a microwave owner around that hasn't popped corn at least once in their oven. Popcorn is a nutritious and popular snack. The following recipe is from Home and Garden Bulletin No. 232-9, Making Bag Lunches, Snacks and Desserts.

CHILI POPCORN

1 quart popped corn (about 1/4 cup unpopped)
 1 tablespoon melted margarine*
 1 1/4 teaspoon chili powder

1/4 teaspoon ground cumin

Dash garlic powder

1. Use a microwave popcorn popper or a package of unseasoned, no-fat microwave popcorn.

2. Melt margarine in microwave oven at HIGH for about 20 to 30 seconds. Cover the dish to prevent splattering on oven.

3. Mix hot popcorn and melted margarine.

4. Mix seasonings thoroughly; sprinkle over popcorn. Toss well. Serve immediately.

* I used reduced calorie margarine because I don't know anyone who can eat just one cup of popcorn.
