Going up Officials get raises

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Salaries for Springfield Township elected full-time officials are going up about 5 percent from last year.

Trustees' salaries will remain the same, and other township employees will receive about a 10 percent pay raise.

Before the vote, Trustee Charles Oaks said he would rather talk in terms of dollars and not percentages when discussing salaries.

For the trustees, the board voted unanimously Dec. 13 to keep the $900 a year in salary and $70 per township board meeting.

The increases for other employees brought their wages in line with other government employees in the surrounding areas, said Supervisor Collin Walls.

"Not one employee working for this township has to be told what to do -- they go looking for work," Walls said.

The supervisor, treasurer and clerk received pay increases in a 6-1 vote, with Oaks voting no. Voting yes were: Walls, Clerk J. Calvin Walters, Treasurer Lois Stiles and trustees Nancy Strole, Margaret Bloom and Dennis Vallad.

The supervisor's salary, which was $32,300, will be raised to $33,900. The clerk and treasurer's salaries were $28,900 and will be raised to $30,350.

Other township employees received raises of about 10 percent: assessor from $29,500 to $32,500; assistant assessor from $17,400 to $20,800; office coordinator from $17,400 to $19,100; recording secretary from $11,800 to $13,800; building department secretary from $10,500 to $13,800; building inspector from $14,700 to $15,400; and planning coordinator from $23,000 to $24,800.

Also receiving an increase was the deputy treasurer, who will be paid $7 an hour, up from $6 an hour.

The recording secretary will receive $75 per township meeting and $60 per zoning board of appeals meeting.

27-year-old found not guilty on assault charges

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

An Independence Township man was acquitted Dec. 5 on charges of assault and battery in the attack of a jogger last August.

A four-woman, two-man jury deliberated for four hours in 52nd District Court, Independence Township, before delivering the not guilty verdict Tuesday, Dec. 5.

Raymond Perry, 27, of Lingor, Independence Township, was free on a personal recognisance bond while awaiting trial on charges that he assaulted a jogger on M-15 Aug. 23.

Lisa Weiss, 26, had been jogging on a path along M-15. When approaching Princess Lane on M-15, she noticed a blue pick-up truck and another vehicle beyond it, according to police.

She ran to the other side of the road, and when she passed some bushes, a man jumped out, knocked her to the ground and beat her around her face.

She asked the man to stop beating her, and he replied "I'll stop beating you when you stop screaming," said Detective Steve Parker of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

When she stopped screaming, the man reportedly helped her up and asked her to help him because he had lost his wallet.

The two began to walk towards the Quik Pik store on

M-15, when Weiss escaped to another vehicle.

She was treated at the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center for bruises and contusions.

The following day, deputies stopped a blue pick-up truck for improper plates, and the driver was found to have a suspended license, Parker said.

The vehicle was impounded, and as the driver set off on foot, Weiss happened to drive by and identified the suspect as her assailant.

She alerted the traffic deputy, and Perry was arrested on the assault and battery charge. He was arraigned the same day.

Sandy McCandless, Perry's sister, was relieved at the not-guilty verdict and accused sheriff's department personnel of not investigating the case thoroughly.

"I feel that the police department, in a situation of mistaken identity such as this, could have put more emphasis on the credibility of the defendant," she said.

1990 meeting dates set

The Springfield Township board voted unanimously to keep its monthly meeting schedule the second Thursday of each month at 7:30 p.m. for 1990.

The board meets in the township hall at 650 Broadway in Springfield Township.

New fire equipment

In January 1990, the Springfield Township Fire department will have a new emergency extraction device, 30 new pairs of coveralls and new hand-held radios.

The township board voted 6-0 Dec. 13 to approve $8,485 for the purchase. Trustee Charles Oaks abstained because he's a volunteer firefighter.

The extraction device, or Jaws of Life, was purchased from Golling-Levy in Oxford. The coveralls were purchased from Time Emergency in Rochester Hills, and the hand-held radios are from Motorola in Southfield.

"(Weiss) was an innocent victim, but so was my brother," she added.

Sheriff's department detectives say they pursued the case in good faith.

"Ms. McCandless claims a mistaken identity, but the sheriff's department was going on two separate identifications made by the victim," Parker said.

After a victim identifies a suspect, it isn't the detectives' function to look for other people who could have committed the crime, he added.

Now that the jury has reached a verdict, the case has been closed.

The halls are definitely decked at Sames' house

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It's hard not to know it's Christmastime at the Sames' residence on AutumnGlo Road, Springfield Township. Decorations of all types adorn almost every nook and cranny throughout every room in the house. "It takes me three days," says Mary Sames, proudly. "She lives for this," adds Mary's daughter, Kim. Boughs line most hallway banners and mantles throughout the house. Red ribbons and poinsettias add to

"This time of year everyone seems at peace. It's a wonderful time of year."

the blaze of red and green. Christmas trees blink in every single room. But it is the collection of objects that adds the most to the holiday theme.

Mary has collected santas of all shapes and sizes, angels of all shapes and sizes and several nativity scenes that take their place on various shelves and tabletops.

Arguably the most notable of her Christmas collections is a complete village, made up of antique houses, churches and tiny figurines.

The 90-year-old village is constructed on a huge blanket of cotton snow under the primary Christmas tree in the living room.

"Nobody touches the village," Kim says, looking sideways at her mother.

Mary collected pieces of the village from older relatives and at antique and craft shows. Her favorite item, a large santa made from German bisque, was purchased from the downtown Hudson's Department Store the year the store opened.

She points out several original figurines made from metal and compares them with later renditions of the same pieces made from plastic.

The village, likely worth thousands of dollars, was almost lost in a flood the Sames family experienced while living in Madison Heights.

"My husband was worried about appliances and things like tools," Mary recalls. "I was grabbing all of my Christmas things and moving them upstairs."

"Kim ran around in wet diapers that day, but my santa was dried out," Mary says, smiling.

All of the Christmas items are now carefully stored in the family's attic, where they stay until the first week of December. The items decorate the house until the week after New Year's, Mary says.

Mary has always decorated her house for Christmas, following a precedent set by her mother and grandmother.

"This time of year everyone seems at peace," Mary explains, when asked why Christmas means so much to her.

"It's a wonderful time of year."

A 90-YEAR-OLD VILLAGE is among the Christmas treasures you'll find at the Sames' house on AutumnGlo Road. The antique houses and figurines that make up the village have been collected from relatives and antique shops. The village is constructed atop cotton snow beneath the family Christmas tree.

MARY SAMES'S FAVORITE Christmas item among her extensive collection is this Santa Claus made from German bisque.

FROLICKING BELOW an antique village church are two dolls that have special meaning for Mary. The dolls were dressed with clothes made for her by her aunt.

Firefighters searching for lost pet's owners

The Independence Township Fire Department has made a temporary addition to its staff.

A blond cocker spaniel was found outside of station No. 2 on Sashabaw Road last week and has made the station its home.

The dog has even claimed a spot of its own inside the station—it sits and sleeps underneath a Christmas tree inside the station house.

Although the firefighters "fell in love with it right away," officials suspect the dog may be someone's lost pet.

"It was just a real friendly type of dog," said Chief Gar Wilson. "But we're thinking that some little boy or girl is real worried about it."

The fire department is asking anyone who lost a housebroken cocker spaniel to call the department at 625-1924.

Priest remembered for dry wit, Bible knowledge

BY TRACY KING

The Catholic community, and members of the community in general, are mourning the death of the Rev. Charles E. Cushing, pastor of St. Daniel Catholic Church on Valley Park Road, Clarkston.

Cushing, 59, died suddenly early on the morning of Dec. 14.

As a priest at St. Daniel for 12 years, Rev. Cushing was characterized for his dry wit and knowledge of the Bible, according to the Rev. Robert Walters, pastor of Calvary Evangelical Lutheran Church in Independence Township, who worked with Cushing on Independence Township Pastor's Association business.

"He was often so bogged down with his own responsibilities that he didn't work with us often, but I appreciated the times that he did," Walters recalled.

Others remember Cushing for his comforting words. "I guess I'll always remember him for his homilies," said Lewis Wint, owner of Lewis E. Wint & Son Funeral Home, M-15, Clarkston, where Cushing often officiated at funerals.

"I felt he gave so much to families; he had such a great knowledge of the bible and feelings and emotions," Wint said. "When he would give a homily at a mass, you could hear a pin drop."

"He was really great," Wint added.

Cushing was ordained on June 4, 1955. He served as assistant pastor at the Devine Child in Dearborn, St. Michael Church in Pontiac, St. Mary Magdalen in Hazel Park and St. Joseph Church in Lake Orion.

He was chaplain at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak and was appointed as pastor at St. Daniel Catholic Church in Clarkston on April 22, 1977.

He was a member and chaplain of the Knights of Columbus Pope John XXIII Council #5436, third and fourth degrees.

He is survived by sisters, Mary Ekert, Margaret Cushing and Dorothy Cushing, all of Detroit; a brother, Desmond Cushing of Sterling Heights; and many nieces and nephews.

A service of transference from Lewis E. Wint & Sons to St. Daniel Church was held Sunday, Dec. 17, with Bishop Dale Melczek officiating.

A mass of the resurrection was held Tuesday, Dec. 19, at the church with Cardinal Edmond Szoka officiating.

Burial was held at Holy Sepulchre Cemetery in Southfield.

Memorial tributes may be made to Guest House in Lake Orion.

Horse barn presents bigger problems to planners

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After lengthy discussion, Independence Township Planning Commission members tabled a measure that could set precedent for special land uses and their limits.

The discussion centered around an equestrian training facility on Oakhill and Reese roads, owned by Joseph Martines.

In 1984, Martines had obtained a special use permit from the planning commission, which allowed him to build an oversized barn and a horse track on his 30-acre parcel.

The training facility was no longer in operation, so Martines appeared before the planning commission at a public hearing Dec. 14 to request that the special use permit be lifted so he could split the property into three parcels.

The house and a 6,000-foot barn would remain on one parcel, and the rest of the property would be split into three parcels of three acres each.

Township zoning ordinances would allow the split if the special use wasn't in place; at issue was the large barn, which was much larger than what would normally be allowed on the newly created parcel.

Only four of the seven planning commission members were present at the hearing, which meant that all of them must vote yes to have the measure pass.

When it was found that one of the members was likely to vote against the special use reconsideration, in fairness to the petitioner, the measure was tabled until the

"The bottom line is that if we do split the property, the structure is three times larger than what would be allowable today."

Chairman Brent Bair

next meeting when more members would be present for the vote.

In indicating his disapproval of the reconsideration, Chairperson Brent Bair said the barn was just too large.

"The bottom line is that if we do split the property, the structure is three times larger than what would be allowable today," Bair said.

"The petitioner took a risk, with that risk being that the land (would be used as an equestrian training facility)," Bair explained. "The township granted special condition with the risk taken that he would do what was proposed and continue forever."

Township Planner Richard Carlisle questioned whether that was a fair policy.

"It's a tough issue," Carlisle said. "How long do you hold an individual when their circumstances change?"

"Is six years excessive?" Bair countered.

Other members stated some concerns but indicated that, in general, they approved of the split.

"Had I been on the planning commission years ago, I would have never allowed an 8,000-square-foot barn," said Jo Fussman.

(The planning commission approved 8,000 square feet for the barn in 1984, though the applicant used only 6,000 feet.)

"Since it's there we have to deal with it," Fussman added. "I would have to see special deed restrictions approved (limiting use of the track and determining the number of horses allowable)."

Members also questioned what would happen to the property if Martines sold it and where structures might be built on the parcels.

Two neighbors also spoke at the public hearing.

"Our house sits back quite a distance from the road," said Sandy Slater of Reese Road, Independence Township. "What kind of restrictions will he have in regard to size, etc. (of the houses on the parcels)?"

Slater was told that structures on the parcels would be governed by township ordinances.

"My house faces the three splits," said Mike Dean of Reese Road. "I trust Joe; he has good taste. But is Joe going to get to do what he wants to do?"

Dean was told that Martines could add deed restrictions to his property if he wanted it to maintain elements when it was sold.

The special land use reconsideration will be reconsidered at the planning commission's regular Jan. 11 meeting.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

DON'T COUNT ON ORAL PROMISE

Valerie Phaup
designated broker

QUESTION: I am about to close the purchase of a new home. The builder has promised me that all of the things that are wrong will be taken care of and that his handshake will save a lot of paperwork. Should I trust him?

ANSWER: Many a business agreement has been made with a handshake and enforced by the courts. But when it comes to the never-never world of real estate, you cannot and should not rely on oral promises. In fact, legislation in each of the fifty states specifically requires that all agreements and conditions relative to the sale of real estate specifically be in writing to be enforceable. The only way to put any teeth into oral promises is to insist that everything which you think is significant be put in writing.

HANDSHAKES don't count in real estate. Put it in writing.

Christmas Past

I am 8, and my brother, Ronny, is shaking me so early in the morning that it's still dark out.

"Shhhh," he says, as soon as I open my eyes.

But I am instantly awake and ready to burst. It is Christmas morning.

"Shhh. It's not 6 o'clock yet," Ronny says.

That means we can't wake up our parents yet. So we go to his bedroom, and we wake up Andy, our younger brother.

As soon as we make sure Andy is quiet, Ronny announces his discovery.

"Guess what," he says. "There's no Santa Claus, and I can prove it."

Andy and I are shocked.

"What do you mean?" I ask.

Gloating, Ronny explains the whole thing. Last night, he decided to stay awake and catch Santa in the act. Since he sleeps on the top bunk, he had a good view out the window.

And not long after he went to bed, he saw Dad and our brother, David, walk out to the barn and carry presents back to the house. The moon was bright, so he could see everything.

"So what," I say. "That doesn't mean there's no Santa. Maybe they were just bringing their own presents out from hiding."

"Nope," says Ronny. "They were bringing out presents from Santa. Just wait and see."

Then, Ronny tells what each of us will be getting for Christmas. Andy begins to cry.

But Ronny convinces him to be quiet. After all, we'd still be getting the same gifts, he says.

Soon it's 6 a.m., and the whole household is awake. Andy immediately asks my parents, "Is it true there's no Santa Claus?"

They look nearly as shocked as he does.

Later that day, Andy, 5, feels superior to our cousins, Danna and Gail, who still believe in Santa. He nearly blurts out his newfound knowledge twice, but Ronny and I stop him.

Christmas Present

It is snowing — so rare for Christmas in Michigan in recent years, it seems. How come it never snows as it did when we were children?

I watch Christmas shows while I wrap presents and decorate cookies. The shows bring back memories: "Little Lord Fauntleroy," "How the Grinch Stole Christmas," "Miracle on 34th Street" (except it's colorized — yuck!).

On Christmas Eve, we go to my dad's for food, presents and good company. Christmas morning, it's off to my mother's for more of the same. And on Christmas afternoon and evening, it's back to my husband's parents' house for even more.

It is hectic and fun. We talk to Ronny on the telephone. He is in Florida and doesn't miss the snow, he says.

Andy wants to talk about what people perceive to be the true meaning of Christmas. He is cynical — probably a direct result from having his dreams about Santa shattered at such an early age, we tell him.

Christmas Future

For the first time, we are spending Christmas with Andy and his family — everyone else is now retired in Florida.

We carry our luggage into Andy's house and overhear him telling his children that Santa will be climbing down the chimney to drop off their gifts under the Christmas tree.

We can't help laughing aloud, and Andy looks up, startled. He looks a bit sheepish as he continues his tale to the kids.

He's so convincing. He looks as if he believes it.

Letters to the Editor

Let's use bicycles instead of cars

I am very concerned with our ozone layer and the greenhouse effect. As human beings, we can do more to help this problem.

The ozone layer, our protector from harmful sun rays, is disappearing. It has holes. This will cause great damage, sooner or later.

Vehicles are one main reason. I think we could cut down on the making of cars and trucks. Why don't we make more bicycles? Some people need more exercise, and waste products from automobiles would not have such a large effect.

Jim's Jottings

Jim
Sherman

Last year we got our two grandchildren to join us in wishing Jottings readers a Merry Christmas. You seemed to enjoy it, so here's wishing you the same for 1989.

A couple notes from 4-and-a-half-year-old Danny. He saw Santa Claus on a Sunday. Two days later he got a phone call from Santa Claus, who asked, "What do you want for Christmas?" Danny, replied, "I already told you."

When his aunt Susan let him use her Nintendo game last week, she said, "If you're a good boy maybe Santa will bring you a Nintendo this year." Danny said, "I was good last year and I didn't get one."

And, his grandmother and I took Danny and sister Karen, 18 months, to see Snoopy at the Palace. On the way home we suggest he change his ways and be a good boy if he wanted Santa to bring him some gifts. His answer was something to the effect that he had already blown his chances this year, but maybe he'd try to be good next year.

Again, from Danny, Karen, and I and Grandma, Happy Holidays.

I Danced With My Mind and Found...

By Tom Erickson

I danced with my mind
And found, my heart
I moved with this in mind
And found a start
Lessons that are easy
Are so very hard to find,
Until you learn to see

Within your mind
Then one day, you'll awake
To find that within your mind,
Your heart speaks true to you.
And now,
You know exactly,
What to do.

'If it Fitz ...'

Working the kinks out

Jim
Fitzgerald

Speaking of mandatory uniforms for school students, in my neighborhood Saturday, a quarter wouldn't work in the Free Press vendor boxes. That was the day the price of the JOA-combined Detroit News and Free Press went up to 25 cents, but the boxes couldn't be opened with a 25-cent piece or any combination of dimes and/or nickels adding up to 25 cents.

Some of my neighbors, knowing where I work, asked me what the devil was going on. By Sunday afternoon, when the Sunday paper hadn't shown up yet, and the Saturday paper was still locked inside, unattainable for any price, their questions got downright vulgar.

I politely explained that the boxes had been adjusted to reject all money to prevent people from breaking into the boxes and stealing the money. That's the same as preventing the theft of fancy clothing by forbidding people to wear fancy clothing.

Sure, I was being facetious about the newspapers - not the clothing - but what the hell. The Detroit Newspaper Agency had nearly four years to figure out how to make the JOA work, so it was hard to explain why, at noon Sunday, there still were no newspapers in the boxes and stores where they always used to be in downtown Detroit and downtown Rochester (I searched both towns). It was easier to tell limp jokes.

But it's not funny that state Sen. John Kelly, D-Grosse Pointe Woods, is drafting legislation that would require all students in Michigan public schools to wear uniforms. It's not funny that all sorts of government and school officials strongly support Kelly's idea, at least for Detroit schools.

Several shootings have been connected with the theft of expensive jackets and shoes that youngsters were foolish enough to wear in public. The only way to stop the trouble is to force youngsters to wear the alluring duds only inside their homes, under their beds.

This is just one more example of how our brilliant society tries to make bad guys behave by wrapping barricades and restrictions around the good guys.

This unfunny brand of crime prevention began about 20 years ago when stores began forcing everyone to transact business through little openings in bulletproof shields. Some fearful merchant devised a way to handle dry cleaning through two doors that can't be opened at the same time.

Bus drivers aren't allowed to make change or accept a dollar bill for a dollar fare because they might be tempted to steal money they touch. If you don't like it, walk.

Life in the big city in 1989 has come to this: The way to stop the thieves is to forbid innocent citizens from owning anything worth stealing. The next logical step will be to stop murders, by making it against the law to die.

One of the reasons communism is dying is because it eliminates private property; everybody shares uniformly in the collective wealth, which is beans. But in the democratic United States, you're free to earn all the money you can, and buy the nicest things you want. But don't dress your children fancy for school, or a teacher will punish them for being out of uniform.

The ultimate arrived in Flint last week. There are public areas of that city where it is illegal for you to be. It doesn't matter if you never broke a law in your life. Signs say you are forbidden to stand still (loiter) in certain places, because someone else was seen buying or selling drugs there.

To protect your health and property, it may well be wise for you to choose not to visit such areas, and to choose not to send your children to school wearing expensive shoes. But the choice should be yours, not a government mandate.

Otherwise, the bad guys have won. In a few years we will be required to wear portable bulletproof shields at all times. Double doors will be strategically located, and eating and the opposite will be similar to making a deposit at a drive-in bank.

Don't laugh. A shielded life, enforced by law, isn't funny. It's the saddest damn thing I ever heard of.

That Santa scam

Tracy
King

Perhaps the greatest shock in a child's life comes when he learns that Santa Claus doesn't exist.

The resentment still boils within me to this day, as I sit and write this and recall my own experience.

Everything that year had been prepared like it had been years before.

We baked the cookies we thought Santa might like, we poured his milk, washed the carrots and celery for the reindeer and peered up the chimney one last time to make sure the coast was clear.

But this fateful year, I was one year older and had had many revealing experiences as a second grader. I was a little less gullible about life.

I questioned things. I observed.

And the things I observed about my presents from The Great Claus that year got me thinking.

Now my mom was pretty clever, she wouldn't write the gift tags in her own handwriting — she would have my grandmother do it.

I squinted at the packages again.

Wasn't that grandma's handwriting? Had Santa gotten sick and asked her to fill in?

My mother tried to explain the thing about Santa existing as a spirit, and my heart began to sink.

I had been lied to. Duped.

All those Christmas carols about Santa Comin' to Town. My favorite Christmas program "Rudolph" — only a fake. And that beautiful book "'Twas the Night Before Christmas." All lies!

It wasn't so much the loss of the man himself; the presents would still be there. It was the deceit. I learned then that the world was not always what it appeared to be.

As an adult, I now wonder what I'll tell my own children about Santa, should that time ever come.

Santa did create a sort of magic when you believed in him. He was sort of like God, all-knowing and all-good.

I remembered the tremendous joy I felt as I fell asleep all those Christmas Eves, with my ears wide open, waiting to actually see jolly old St. Nick.

It would be hard to deny a child all the good that this Santa character could create.

(Children probably could do without the trips to the mall for those Santa pictures; Santa should be busy in his workshop helping elves, after all.)

But would I want to deny my children all that joy? Thank goodness there is something called compromise.

"Yes, there is a Santa ... he calls your mom and dad throughout the year to see if you're good; and he actually has them buy your presents ... What? ... Yes, he pays them back..."

We don't have to pay more taxes

There is much activity about passing a millage to fund the school so that our students will get a proper education.

Wasn't anyone listening when Proposals A & B were so soundly defeated?

New taxes are not necessary to fund education; new priorities are.

Your state government has a large budget and enough money to spend on education. Instead, they have increased spending on salaries for themselves and their staffs, for maintaining numerous committees and other legislative branch expenditures by more than 70 percent since 1980.

Those who are considering putting their energy into getting an additional millage passed should instead be putting the pressure on legislators to put more of the money the government already has into the schools.

Call and write to your legislators and your governor.

None of us really wants to pay more taxes, and we don't have to.

Poor paving job

I live in Thendara Park, where they have just paved two of the roads (some others will be paved next spring).

I'm very disappointed in the quality of the pavement. Some places on Michigamme, next to the curb, are cracked deeply.

I'm not sure if they're done or not, but people are paying a lot of money for a good job, and if it's going to look like it is, it isn't worth the money.

Help available

During the holiday season, it is a pleasure to pick up a paper and read about warm hearted, charitable people reaching out to help those less fortunate.

Church groups, unions, schools, businesses, neighbors and our staff here at the Social Security office are all busy helping to make Christmas just a little merrier for those in need.

However, it seems that once the holidays are over, we often forget that the disadvantaged still need our help.

The homeless, the mentally ill, battered women and children, the unemployed, the disabled, the elderly, may have special needs for assistance all year, not just at Christmas time. As The Clarkston News readers go about the task of helping others this holiday season, I hope they think about how we can help the needy year 'round.

Social Security may be able to help. Nationwide each year there are estimated thousands of people who are unaware they may be eligible for Social Security benefits.

Supplemental Security Income (SSI) pays cash benefits to people of all ages who are in need. SSI is paid to individuals who are aged, blind or disabled at any age (even children) with low income and resources.

In some cases, people who are unable to work due to depression, alcoholism, drug addiction and learning disabilities can qualify for monthly SSI disability benefits.

Social Security benefits are paid on the work records of wage earners who are retired, disabled or deceased. The family of the worker can also be entitled to monthly cash benefits. The dependents include (but are not limited to) spouses, children under age 18, disabled "children" over age 18, divorced spouses and even disabled survivors.

In the spirit of giving this season, let us extend a hand up, rather than merely a hand out.

Be aware of possible sources of assistance. Refer someone who may be eligible for benefits to Social Security. Call toll-free, 24 hours a day, seven days a week for additional information about Social Security benefit programs. The phone number is: 1-800-234-5772.

Help us meet our goal, that everyone who is eligible for benefits is receiving them. My staff and I wish everyone the very best this holiday season and look forward to receiving those referrals.

Robert L. Clevenger,
District Manager

Majority rules

Hurrah for the school board! The cuts presented in The Clarkston News look great to me.

The teachers take no monetary loss; the kids can play outside after school, making less mess for fewer custodians; and bus services can be supplemented by you Moms who are on the road everyday anyway.

The most important thing to remember is academic standards will be maintained. There have been no valid reasons given for a millage request. If Suzy or Johnny can't learn something in five hours a day, it isn't lack of money.

To you 70 irate parents who want to make decisions for all of us, learn that the majority still rules. There will be no millage passed in February.

Plea to hunters

I am addressing this letter to those of you who are concerned with the problem of having people hunt in non-hunting areas.

I live in a rural area that is fairly populated. It has many school children, dogs and cats, babies and toddlers.

I have heard of at least one incident where a hunter was spotted in a tree right outside someone's yard. Behind their yard is a small wooded area and then a subdivision. Someone could have been seriously hurt.

I also have seen many deer and animals around this area. I believe that this adds to the beauty of this quiet area.

I hope after reading this letter, these people who do this will realize what a great danger this is to other people and will stop.

Thanks for help

The annual library holiday party for young area children had a special sparkle this year as entertainer Maureen Schiffman wove the best of two celebrations, Hannukah and Christmas, into a program of song and story so that all could learn about the common thread of giving and sharing.

Independence Township Library would like to thank the Friends of the Independence Township Library, Clarkston Rotary Club, Clarkston Area Optimists, the Clarkston Area Jaycees and a Waterford Township chain store for their support in presenting this party for the sixth year.

A special thank you goes to the Clarkston High School Blue and Gold volunteers chaired by Amy Ginn. The help of everyone was needed and appreciated by the library staff and certainly by the 120 children attending the party.

Head of Youth Services

Action requested

Tax increases in the name of education is their game. That's the position of the governor and a majority of our state legislators.

They propose excellence in education (and) indicate a need to make education the top priority; but their public pronouncements are hollow and empty as the actions they take in funding education as required under the Headlee Amendment.

On July 5, the Michigan Court of Appeals found the governor and legislature guilty of cheating local units of government out of monies that were guaranteed under the Headlee Amendment. Note: The Headlee Amendment guaranteed that 42 cents out of every dollar the state collected in taxes would be given to local units of government.

Instead, the governor, with approval and consent of the legislature, diverted $400 million from our schools, county, city and township governments to the state's mandated mental health program. They have thumbed their collective noses at the citizens of our state and our constitution!!

In 1980, the Macomb County Fitzgerald public school system filed suit (under the provisions of the Headlee Amendment) against the state. Their suit maintained that the state illegally cut money from special education, drivers education, bilingual education and the lunch supplemental milk program.

The case has gone to the supreme court twice, and the court has agreed that money is due the school district in the amount of approximately $300-plus millions per year or the difference between the state's current 39 percent funding of education and the Headlee mandated 45 percent.

A fact finder was assigned to the case, and in 1989, Macomb Circuit Judge George R. Deneweth, "resolved nearly every issue in favor of the plaintiff (Fitzgerald) against the state." The recommendations must be reviewed by the appeals and supreme courts.

Collectively, the state has cheated local units of government out of approximately $700-plus million each year. The state has used every legal trick in the book to defeat the Headlee Amendment and deny our schools, county, city and township governments' justice.

The defeated Proposals A and B on the 1989 special election ballot was another attempt by some "lawmakers?" and the governor to replenish their coffers. If the tax increases passed, that would have resolved the thorny issue of the Headlee Amendment and its effective control against overspending on the state's favorite programs.

The courts and our citizens have sent the same message to Lansing, and that message is loud and clear: "Stop lying, stop cheating, abide by the Headlee Amendment and give the local units of government the monies you've cheated them out of; don't raise taxes in the process." Reallocate and reprioritize existing revenue.

The Macomb County Taxpayers' Association urges every citizen to send letters to the governor and their legislators demanding justice; also send a copy to Richard Headlee, chairman of Taxpayers United for the Michigan Constitution. If you don't write, don't complain about the next tax increase, which is sure to come, in the name of education!

Michael C. Sessa

Taxpayers' Association

Legislators take away tax relief

BY SEN. RICHARD D. FESSLER

The Michigan Legislature had the opportunity to give the people of Michigan a gift; however, in the last hours before they recessed for Christmas vacation, they snatched an opportunity for property tax relief from you.

Homeowners can use all the financial help they can get these days. That's why it's extremely important for legislators to introduce laws that reward homeowners for investment in their homes.

In 1976, the legislature enacted The Mathieu-Gast Act, which prohibited an assessor from considering "expenditures for normal repairs" in determining the true cash value of a home. The act excluded the value of improvements from an assessment increase.

Subsequently, two court cases altered the act so that an assessor must deduct the actual cost of repairs from the true cash value of the house, and that all repairs made by the same owner must be included in the subtraction. Obviously, this amounted to a major tax break for homeowners who improved their homes.

On Dec. 13, the legislature passed House Bill 5172, which effectively eliminated the more than $500,000 million tax break. So it is, once again, the homeowner who gets cut out of the most effective property tax relief plan.

Just think of what maintaining this legislation would mean in cities throughout the state: If we could encourage the slum and absentee landlords there to repair the residences, duplexes and apartment buildings, we'd create a far better environment for the people living there; we'd generate jobs in the economy, and we would increase the tax value in the inner city.

The intent of this legislation was to allow people to improve and maintain their properties and not be dunned every single time by a local unit of government — the property tax assessor.

The court ruling meant the people in the state of Michigan were finally able to realize a tax break for owning and improving a home.

We need to make it an attractive proposition to own a home in Michigan. But by circumventing the original intent of the court ruling, as both the Senate and House have done, we are telling one of our most valued resources — the Michigan homeowner — that ever increasing property tax assessments and bills will be a reality in their future.

I urge you to write or call the governor today to express your dissatisfaction with this legislation and to urge him to veto this bill.

Meaningful property tax reform is an issue that we must continue to work toward. Let the governor know how you feel today; next week will be too late.

Township could restrict water setback distances

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Working on "weaknesses in the ordinance," Independence Township Planning Commission members voted to recommend beefing up requirements for developments near water.

The 4-0 vote came after members heard the comments of two residents during a public hearing on the issue.

The measure now goes to the township board. Voting yes were Chairperson Brent Bair, Joseph Figa, Jo Fussman and Daniel Travis. Richard Oppmann, Bruce Mercado and Steve Secatch were absent.

The amendment means that structures may be built no closer than 50 feet from bodies of water and that septic systems may be located no closer than 100 feet from bodies of water.

The change was proposed by the Deer Lake study committee, which recognized that the township had no minimum setback requirements from bodies of water in its ordinances.

At least one resident said it was about time the township included them.

"This past year, we watched a structure go up with no setback," said Richard York of Maybee Road, Independence Township. "Nothing was done about it; why create this (ordinance) if its not going to be enforced?"

Township Planner Richard Carlisle explained that the reason the minimum setbacks were being established is because the township had none in place previously.

In a letter to the planning commission, however, another resident said he was opposed to the establishment of water setback limitations.

"I have a number of problems with the ordinance proposed," wrote Neil Wallace, a Village of Clarkston resident and former planning commission chairperson.

Among his concerns was that requiring setbacks would impose hardship on owners of hard-to-develop lots.

After hearing Wallace's comments, planning commission members agreed that those cases could be fairly heard by the township's zoning board of appeals.

The ordinance is appropriate in safeguarding the waterways, argued Travis.

"While structures are a risk to the lakes, septic systems have the worst negative potential," Travis said. "With surface movement, most septs are only good for 20 years."

"We live in a township where sewers will likely reach only the south half of the township. I don't think this goes too far as stated," Travis said.

CHS junior wins essay contest

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Speaking clearly and loudly, Jennifer Fussman calmly read her award-winning essay to about 20 adults early Dec. 13 at Spring Lake Country Club.

Afterward, the Clarkston High School junior said she felt nervous. But no one would have guessed.

She's been through too many piano recitals to show her nervousness, explained her mother, Jo Fussman, of Glenburnie, Clarkston.

For writing the best essay on "Freedom: Our Most Precious Heritage," Jennifer took home a $200 U.S. Savings Bond from the Clarkston Area Optimists, which sponsors the annual contest for high school students.

Plus, her essay advances to the state level of competition.

Jennifer who has "always been pretty good in English," heard about the contest from her English teacher, Judy Medlin, she said.

But her favorite subjects in school are history, math and chemistry, and she didn't expect to win the essay contest, said Jennifer, adding that her principal, Robert Burek, broke the news to her.

"I was excited; I was surprised," said Jennifer. "Then he told me I had to read it; then I was nervous."

Jennifer is a member of the Blue and Gold Club, Senior Citizens' Committee, Spanish Club and National Honor Society. She also enjoys piano, skiing and swimming.

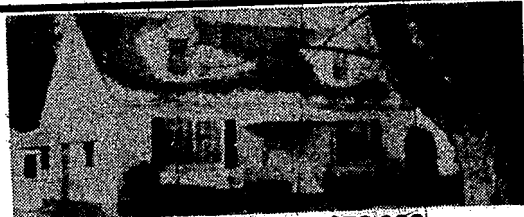

JENNIFER Fussman enjoys history, math and chemistry and hasn't yet decided on a career path. "I really have no preference," she says. "I'm must taking a whole bunch of different things."

Review of COG's premises

Doug Carlson

During the next several months, this column will be written by a variety of Independence Township residents who are members of COG.

Some of them have lived here for 35 years or more. Others have moved here within the past year or so. Each should provide an interesting and different perspective on issues that are important to them and to COG.

Part of the reason for doing this is so you can become acquainted with other members of our organization and with viewpoints other than my own. We hope you will find this to be an interesting diversion from past articles.

For those of you who still may be unclear as to what COG stands for, I would like to offer the following premises, which form the basis of our organization.

1. We are not against growth. Far from it, in fact. Growth is both inevitable and good. Growth brings in needed tax dollars, customers for our local merchants, students for our schools and, in some instances, jobs.

All COG is saying is: Let's not grow in such a manner that we destroy the basic rural character of Clarkston, which is the reason we moved here in the first place.

Also, let's not bring in so many commercial establishments that local merchants suffer and stores are either standing empty or changing owners ever few months or years.

How many strip malls do you see with half the shops standing empty? Near where I live are two office buildings that were built several years ago. One has never been occupied. The other may have been occupied at one time but now stands empty.

2. We sometimes hear the criticism that we've been fortunate enough to locate here and now want to "slam the gate" on everyone else. This is nonsense.

It's been my personal experience that the "new people in town" are extremely welcome additions to our community. They're active, involved, intelligent, friendly and upbeat.

However, many of them tell me that they moved to Independence Township because of its charm, rural character, small-town atmosphere, etc., and they're dismayed when they see shopping centers going in all around them. They say this is what they wanted to get away from when they decided to move here. And they're showing up in COG.

3. We would welcome the opportunity to work with our township officials in planning for the future. Our group is relatively small in number but large in effort.

We care about our township, about the people who live here and the people who have their businesses here.

We go to meetings. We vote. We're informed, and we have a lot of good ideas to offer. One of our main objectives for 1990 and beyond is to establish a relationship with our government officials in a mutual effort to maintain the integrity of our community.

As our column comes to a close for this calendar year, I'd like to wish each and every one of you a Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year. See you in 1990.

Doug Carlson is chairman of Citizens for Orderly Growth.

Condos may go on golf course

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A 49-unit site condominium development planned for the Pine Knob complex received conceptual approval from Independence Township Planning Commission members Dec. 14.

The project, known as Pine Knob Bluffs, would be developed to face portions of the Pine Knob Golf Course.

The four members present at the meeting all gave the site plan conceptual approval, including Chairperson Brent Bair, Joseph Figa, Jo Fussman and Daniel Travis.

Developer Alex Bruni told members condo owners would build what they wish as long as they chose building materials from a prescribed list.

The plan includes sod and sprinkler systems and a private road system developed for the location. Bruni compared the project to Deerwood on M-15, saying "its Deerwood all over."

Planner Richard Carlisle told members that this was the best plan he had seen for the difficult location.

"This is the best way to deal with the property," Carlisle said. "Any other form, such as a single family development, would be a disaster."

Planning commission members had few questions of the developer, saying most of their comfort with the project comes from knowing the good work that he does.

She makes township library a comfortable place

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

For children in Independence Township, the library is a fascinating place.

There are books, there are entertainers, there are story-tellers and there is a gentle, soft-spoken librarian named Anne Rose.

INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP'S Children's Librarian Anne Rose was recently elected to a position within the Wayne Oakland Library Federation administration. Rose, whose mother was a librarian at Detroit City Library, also recently pursued a dream to meet some of her favorite children's literature authors.

As children's librarian, Rose has the important job of introducing most children to the library for the first time. "We try to make it real interesting with the resources we have," Rose says. "It doesn't hurt to have things brought to their attention."

Rose attracts children to the library with a variety of programs including Wednesday morning story time, a summer reading program with entertainers and contests, a babysitting workshop for junior high students and holiday programs.

This year the Halloween program included a pumpkin carving jamboree, costume party and a ghost-a-lottery. Tickets for the Christmas program have already sold out, as children anticipate a performance by Marie Schiffman and her puppets and instruments.

Rose's own love for libraries started at an early age. Her mother was a librarian at Detroit City Library, as a child she spent many hours there while her mother worked. "I spent my time reading all kinds of things," Rose recalls.

Now a librarian herself, Rose's focus on her profession extends outside Independence Township. She was recently elected secretary of the youth services committee within the Wayne, Oakland Library Federation (WOLF), a network of most libraries in the Detroit area.

She modestly admits how much the election pleased her.

"We are a small library so it's hard to make yourself visible," she says. " (But) I believe in participating in my profession and this is how I can do it; it's nice to be part of what is going on."

Rose recently indulged her love of children's literature with a study tour to Great Britain to meet her favorite children's book authors in their homes.

She lists among her favorites John Burningham ("He deals with young children facing some aspect of life and works it out") and Joan Aiken ("She writes for children and adults; she is very prolific; she has a wild imagination"), both of whom she met.

She was so impressed with Joan Aiken, that she wrote an article about her life and work. It was accepted and published in Language Arts, a journal for the national council for teachers of English.

"I had done a lot of research on her before I went (to Great Britain)" Rose says. "She intrigued me."

Although authors interest her, Rose says she has no desire to become one herself.

"I'm a selector and a reader of children's books. I'm knowledgeable about them and a lover of them."

Murder charge for firefighter

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A Brandon Township man could be sentenced to life in prison if convicted on charges stemming from a traffic accident on Sashabaw Road, Independence Township, Oct. 28.

The accident took the life of 76-year-old Charles Delbert Robison, of Pontiac, who was forced off the road and hit a tree.

Howard F. Farley, 28, of Apple Street, Brandon Township, was charged with one count of second-degree murder, which carries a maximum life sentence upon conviction.

Farley was also charged with one count of failure to stop at the scene of a severe personal injury accident, a felony charge carrying a two-year sentence.

Farley, a Brandon Township on-call firefighter for two years, was arraigned Dec. 15 in 52nd District Court before Magistrate Lawrence Johnson. Johnson set a $5,000 cash assurity bond, which Farley posted.

Judge Gerald E. McNally will preside over Farley's preliminary examination, set for Jan. 12 at 2:30 p.m.

The accident took place at about 10:30 a.m. on Sashabaw Road south of Clarkston Road.

Robison was driving south at about 50 mph when a vehicle tried to pass him, according to reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

The report listed the testimony of witnesses, who said the driver of the vehicle couldn't pass Robison and instead stayed close to Robison's bumper, eventually turning into Robison's car, forcing him off the road.

Upon impact with a tree, Robison's car burst into flames.

Letter to Editor

Disposable diapers should be outlawed

Why aren't disposable diapers outlawed?

They are more expensive than diaper services, are harmful to our environment, and it has been proven that they never break down unless exposed to sunlight. Even that takes 10 years.

Since I have had a baby brother, I can see that babies go through 12-15 diapers a day.

Multiply this as to how many babies are born each day, and multiply that by the fact that babies are using diapers until the approximate age of two.

If we keep living like this, our world is going to become one big disposable diaper.

Millage failure will cut sports

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

If the Feb. 12 millage election doesn't pass, there will be no sports for students enrolled in Clarkston Community Schools, Athletic Director Paul Tungate said.

The school district's program already instituted a pay-to-participate program for this school year to help offset a $156,000 budget cut brought on by the last millage failure. High school students pay $164 to participate; junior high school students pay $100.

Contrary to rumors circulating around school, there will be no pay-to-participate program for the next school year should the millage request fail again, Tungate said. Some of the coaches at the high school would lose their teaching positions, and the athletic administrators would be eliminated. Without those people in charge, it would be impossible to run a program, the athletic director said. The cost per student also would be prohibitive, he added.

Other cuts that have nothing to do with athletics also loom on the horizon for Clarkston Community Schools. The possibility of five-hour days and larger class sizes probably are the most devastating effects the millage failure could cause, Tungate said. Since he's in charge of the athletic department, he decided to speak out on his area of expertise only, he said.

There are several options for students, parents and other concerned residents regarding continuing the athletic program in Clarkston. Students still have plenty of time to make a decision on their future, Tungate said.

"I'd like to inform the people," he said. "Some kids are starting to panic. I don't want them to panic. Let's work hard to pass (the millage). ... If we do, it's (going to be) OK."

First, if the millage does pass, sports will be restored to the 1988-89 school year level. In other words, no more pay-to-participate.

"We would not be in a luxury position," the athletic director said. "But we could maintain what we have."

Should the millage fail, then students interested in athletics have four options, said Tungate. They are listed below:

—Physically move the entire family residence to another public school district and become immediately eligible to participate in athletics.

—Remain in Clarkston and send student/athlete to a private school prior to Feb. 23. The athlete would be ineligible for the remainder of the second semester (winter and spring, 1990) at the private school, but would be eligible in the fall semester (fall, 1990).

—Remain in Clarkston and move to private school after Feb. 23. The athlete would be ineligible until the second semester of next year (winter and spring, 1991).

—There are special regulations for 18-year-old students as well as those from divorced families, but they still depend upon residence of the family.

Should students and/or parents have any questions regarding their options, Tungate welcomes them to contact the athletic office at the high school (625-0906).

In the 24 years he has been associated with Clarkston athletics, Tungate said the sports program has been in jeopardy on two other occasions. He hopes the response from the voters is the same the third time around.

"The community has always come through," he said. "The millage is a one-year shot. In two years, hopefully we will be out-of-formula. That would give us a real shot in the arm."

The worst-case scenario for Tungate would be the loss of athletics for a year. He's seen what that has done for schools like Pontiac Northern.

"A one-year loss takes five to gain back," he said.

Hoops team opens GOAL with victory

Dan Fife has a pleasant problem on his hand these days as basketball coach at Clarkston High School.

With a multitude of seniors on the team, Fife has to find quality playing time for them all while still attempting to win games.

Such was the case Friday night at Brandon. Luckily for the coach, foul trouble brought plenty of players off the bench, and many saw action during the Wolves' 68-35 victory.

Guards Reggie Reed and Dugan Fife scored 26 and 13 points, respectively, to pace Clarkston. Afterward, Coach Fife critiqued their efforts.

"I still think they can shoot better," he said, adding that he has been working with them on their shooting. "I've got to leave them alone."

Other top scorers for Clarkston were Chris Wasilk with 10 and Wally Winiemko and Bill Knight with five apiece.

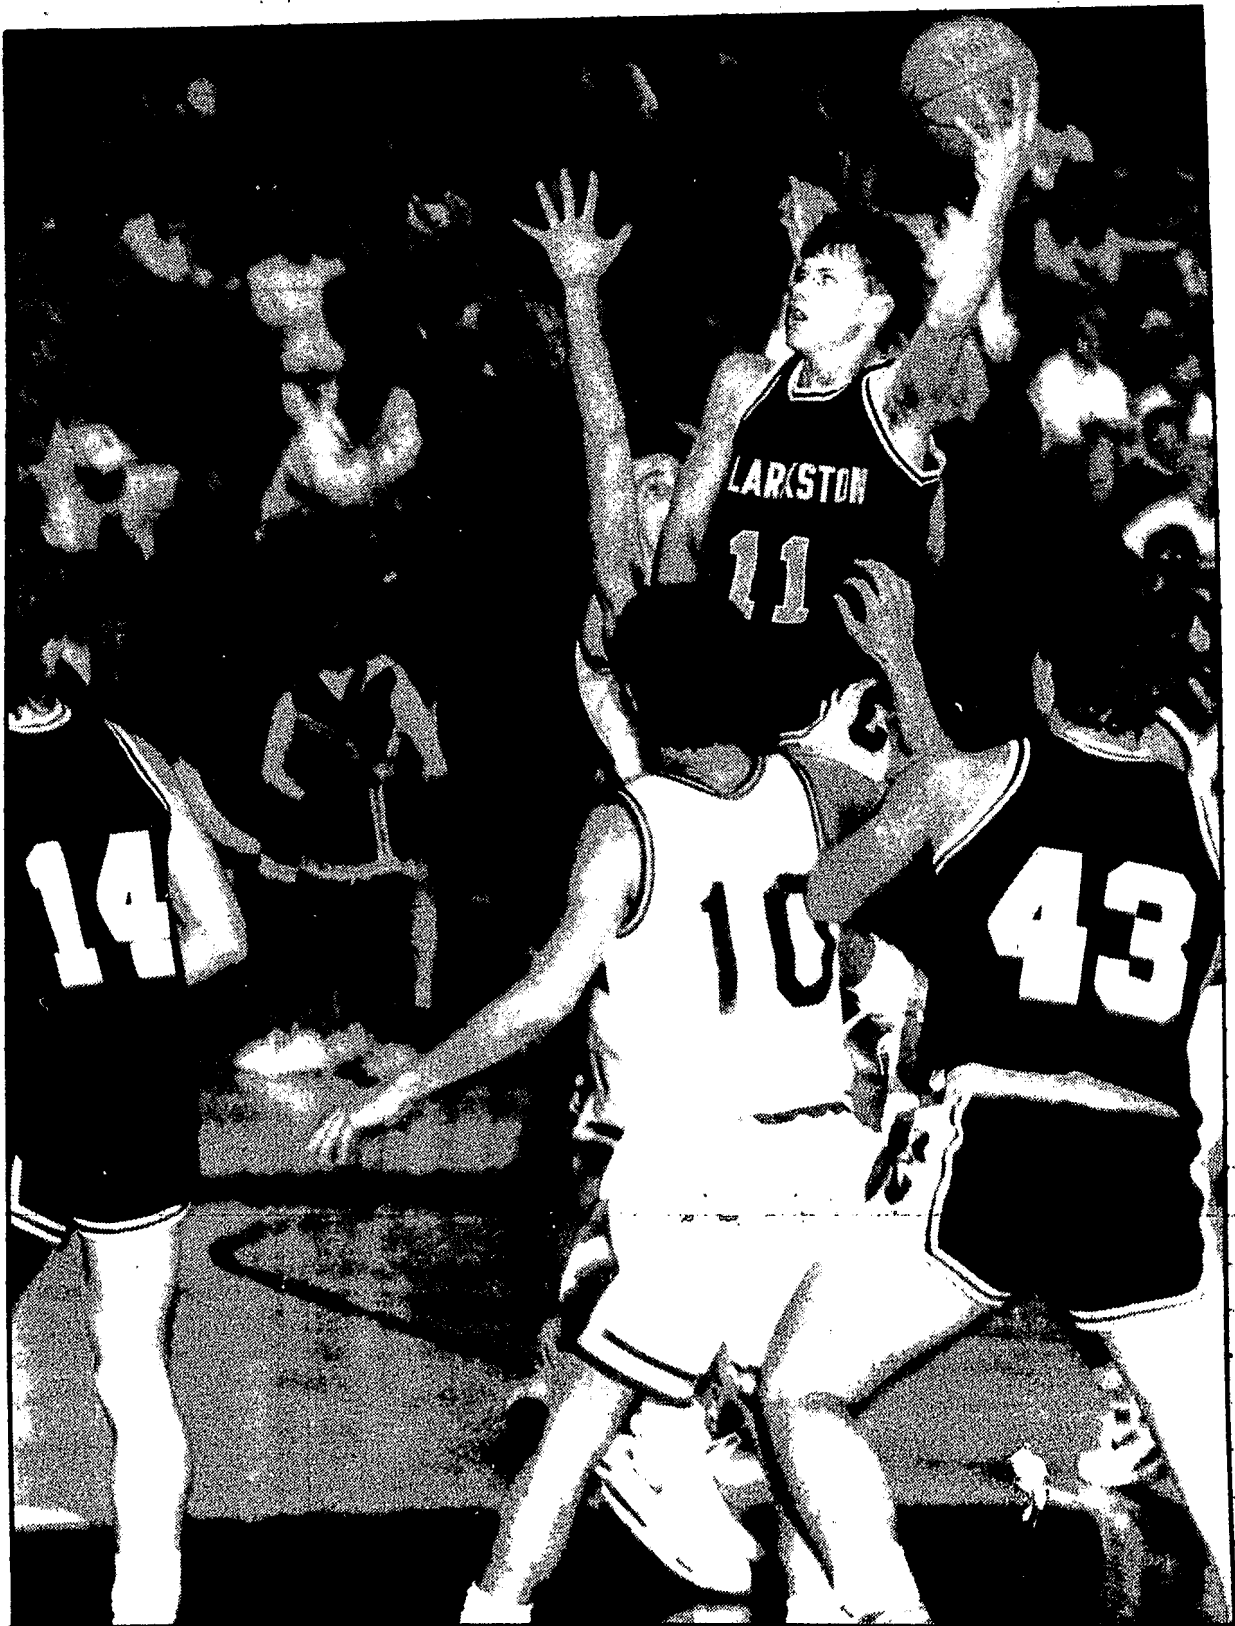

Brandon made two good runs at Clarkston in the first half, but neither resulted in the hosts gaining the lead. The Wolves scored first on a basket by Fife and never trailed.

The closest the game ever got was in the first half when Brandon trailed 4-3, 10-7 and 21-18. Each time Clarkston needed a basket, its guards responded.

Fife and Reed combined to score 11 points to Brandon's two to end the first quarter. Clarkston led 19-9. Later, Reed scored six points to key a 13-0 run heading into halftime. Clarkston led 34-18 at the intermission.

Things didn't get any better for the Blackhawks in the second half. They were outscored 34-17 in the final two quarters.

Clarkston hosts Catholic Central Thursday night in its final game before the Christmas break.

DUGAN FIFE of Clarkston is head and shoulders above the crowd as he scores two of his 26 points against Brandon Friday night in Ortonville.

Growing rivalry

Peter Auchter

Three games and three victories for the Clarkston High basketball team. Can't get no better than that. (Pretty obvious, eh?)

Clarkston manhandled Greater Oakland Activities League rival Brandon Friday night in its GOAL opener. The game turned into a typical Brandon-Clarkston clash as I have come to know them over the past few years. (Plenty of talk, a little pushing and shoving.) This rivalry should remain a good one for years to come. Especially if and when Brandon finally logs a victory against the Wolves.

On Friday night, the home team Blackhawks were playing shorthanded. I got that tidbit from inside sources (yes, a couple of Blackhawks fans have infiltrated our hometown Clarkston News and keep me well informed about Brandon athletics.) For the record, these misplaced fans thought those kids missing or playing at less-than-full-strength because of illness made the difference in the game.

Despite the handicap, the Class B Blackhawks managed to stick with the Class A Wolves in the early going, but Clarkston had too much firepower for Brandon to handle on this particular night. On another night, it might have been a little different story. That's what makes basketball such a great game to play—and to watch. One never knows who will win—unless one team chickens out and decides not to show up, that is.

Clarkston's outstanding backcourt scoring combo of Dugan Fife and Reggie Reed kept the Blackhawks at arm's length whenever the hosts made a run for the lead.

Early on, Brandon closed to within three points of the lead, at 10-7, but Reed canned a three-point shot, and then Fife proceeded to score six straight to hand Clarkston a comfortable 19-7 lead late in the quarter.

Midway through the second quarter Brandon made another run for the top and closed the gap to three points again, at 21-18. What happened next? Well, Reed canned two more triples to key a 13-0 run to end the half on a high note for the Wolves, who led 34-18 at the intermission and never were seriously threatened from then on.

I look forward to the result of the next game between these two schools. It should be a dogfight, as usual. If nothing else, give Brandon credit. They'll be ready for the next battle. There will be no white flags hanging from the bus as it makes its way down M-15 on Feb. 2 for the next clash between these two rivals.

Stay tuned.

The CHS wrestling team somehow managed to improve on its lofty third-place finish at the Oakland County Meet a year ago by placing second behind GOAL rival Lake Orion.

This group will definitely be worth watching this season. The Wolves are off until Jan. 4, 1990, when they host Brandon and Holly in a tri-meet. Let's show up and make some noise (just like you do so well during Friday night football/basketball games) to usher the wrestlers into the new year in style.

Three cheers for the Wolves. May their success on the mat continue well into March.

ROB LAURIE, a sophomore goalie from Independence Township, made a career-best 42 saves to help Western Michigan University's hockey team tie No. 1 nationally ranked Lake Superior State 5-5 in overtime on Friday, Dec. 8. On Saturday, Dec. 9, Western Michigan, Kalamazoo, lost 10-4. Laurie made 10 saves in the latter contest, replacing freshman Mike Power. Laurie has a 5-4-1 record with an .852 saves percentage for 241 saves. He also has a 4.38 goals against average. Western Michigan is 10-7-1 overall and 8-7-1 in Central Collegiate Hockey Association action for a share of fourth place as of Monday, Dec. 11.

Wolves take 2nd in county meet

Clarkston's wrestling program continues to garner statewide attention as the Wolves head into Christmas vacation after yet another fantastic finish.

The Wolves improved upon their third place finish in the Oakland County wrestling meet of a year ago by placing second behind Greater Oakland Activities League rival Lake Orion last weekend at Oakland Community College.

Lake Orion amassed 253 points in the two-day tournament to Clarkston's 215.5. Troy Athens was a distant third with 139 points.

"We're pretty happy about it," said Coach Scott Strickler, two days after the meet. "It's a long two days for these guys, and they showed a lot of composure."

As a reward, the coach gave the team a couple of days off before it would resume practice on Wednesday, Dec. 20, in the high school cafeteria.

At the county meet, Clarkston led in the team standings for most of the tournament. State pollsters in attendance must have taken notice — the Wolves are currently ranked fourth best in Michigan.

Four Clarkston wrestlers reached the finals in their respective weight classes. Joel Davis (189 pounds), Damon Michelsen (160), John Terpstra (145) and John Anderson (130) all finished in second place.

Jeff DeRoseau (103), Tim Kerr (152) and Jerry Lawrence (171) all finished in fourth place for the Wolves.

"There is no weak link in our lineup," said Strickler. "It has never been like this before while I have been here. Hopefully we will be able to do quite well (in the state tournament.)"

Clarkston also managed to escape the tournament without many injuries. Anderson, at 130 pounds, was the only wrestler injured, said Strickler.

JV hoops team wins

With an easy victory at Brandon, Clarkston High ran its junior varsity basketball record to 3-0 Friday night.

Luke Fedio was the leading scorer for the Wolves. He had 21 points in the 76-40 win. Jeremy Deloney added 15 points coming off the bench.

"Everybody scored," said Coach Tim Kaul. "It's nice to have a game like that."

Clarkston led 38-15 at the half.

After a sluggish start, the Wolves finally found their stride by utilizing their full-court press to down the Blackhawks.

Holiday season is difficult time to cope with stress

The holiday season, when people are expected to rejoice, can be a particularly difficult time to deal with long-term problems that cause stress and unhappiness. How best to cope?

A University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, researcher has come up with some answers to that and other questions about coping with stress.

In one of the most extensive studies of its kind, Ronald C. Kessler, U-M professor of sociology, asked a representative sample of 1,500 Detroit-area residents how they confronted their problems and about the effectiveness of their coping methods for dealing with a wide range of stressful situations.

"The popular song notwithstanding, most people do not really think that 'don't worry, be happy' is good advice for coping with many stressful situations," Kessler says.

"But 'positive reappraisal' — a coping method that puts the best light on a chronically bad situation, such as the death of a loved one — occasionally may facilitate acceptance of loss, even when no action is taken to adapt to the situation," he adds.

The study, titled, "Situational Determinants of Coping and Coping Effectiveness," will be published in the January issue of the Journal of Health and Social Behavior.

It was conducted by Kessler, who also is research scientist at the U-M Institute for Social Research; Jay Matlin of Temple University; and Elaine Wethington of Cornell University.

"Taken together, the study results demonstrate that efforts to investigate coping effectiveness cannot ignore the fact that certain stressful situations are more likely than others to elicit certain types of coping responses," Kessler says.

"Positive reappraisal," though occasionally helpful, is a surprisingly ineffective coping mechanism. It occasionally helps promote active coping by increasing the perception that situations are amenable to change and

"Don't worry, be happy,"
may not be the best advice in coping with stressful situations.

U-M researcher

helps reduce the distress caused by the death of a loved one.

But positive reappraisal actually may interfere with adjustment to "low threat" and to practical problems such as job loss, legal problems, burglaries, property damage, accidents or financial difficulties.

"This is particularly likely to happen when reappraisal is used without action, which means that reappraisal can be maladaptive in practical situations if it interferes with attempts to resolve the threat," Kessler says.

The study reports on other coping strategies and their effectiveness:

■ "Active cognitive," a strategy that thinks about possible ways to improve the situation, also is surprisingly ineffective in some situations. It can have adverse effects, such as anxiety and depression, when one fails to act on plans.

■ "Social support," talking to people about stressful events, is beneficial among people coping with illness but backfires when supporters trying to be comforting unintentionally say the wrong thing, causing unintended distress and tension, Kessler says.

■ "Avoidance," doing things to take one's mind off a stressful situation, is a comparatively uncommon strategy among people coping with practical problems but quite common among those coping with an illness or those who are in a situation they interpret as harmful to their health.

■ "Religion," relying on religious beliefs to help cope, is most likely to be useful in response to long-term illness or the death of a loved one and least likely to be useful in response to practical or interpersonal problems. Few respondents were "sort of" religious; they tended to use religion as a coping technique either a lot or not at all, Kessler says.

The survey involved interviews conducted in 1985 with 1,556 married couples in the Detroit area. The mean age of the respondents was 42; they had an average of 13.2 years of education, and their mean family income was $41,800.

The above information was provided by The University of Michigan News and Information Services.

FINANCIAL ADVICE from

James R. Filak, C.P.A.

Get the Most From Your IRA

Just because tax reform eliminated the IRA deduction for many people is no reason to forget about your IRA until you retire! Anyone with earnings is still eligible to make a nondeductible contribution, and many taxpayers still qualify for deductible contributions. Even if saving for retirement isn't enough incentive for you to make an annual $2,000 nondeductible contribution, the tax deferral on the earnings could be.

An IRA's earnings are not taxed as income until they are distributed to you. Therefore, tax benefits are maximized if you make your contributions at the beginning of the year.

With a self-directed IRA, you tell your trustee where to invest your IRA. Too often, IRA funds languish in low-paying investments simply because the owner does not monitor the investment markets and direct his funds to higher-paying vehicles as conditions warrant.

To illustrate how significant a few percentage points can be, consider this: Twenty years of $2,000 annual contributions invested at 6% will total $73,000; at 8% the total will be $91,000; at 12%, $144,000; at 14%, $182,000; at 16%, $231,000.

As the amount in your IRA gets bigger, diversify your investments. You can more comfortably invest some of the money in higher-risk, higher-yield investments without being concerned that you will lose your retirement kitty entirely.

Set-up and administration fees vary from institution to institution, so it can pay to shop around. A direct transfer from one trustee to another is considered a rollover, so if you find a better deal, consider switching.

Friendly Face/Jennie Linenger

SCHOOL: She's a second-grade student at Cedar Crest Academy. Art is her favorite subject.

FAMILY: Two sisters, Carrie and Kendra, and one brother, Kyle. Mom and dad are Linda and Ken. The family resides on Knox Road in Springfield Township.

AGE: Eight.

PETS: A dog named "Clark," a cat named "Kitty" and tropical fish.

THOUGHTFUL GIFTS: After missing the deadline to enter a coloring contest in Rochester, Jennie and her sisters didn't want to waste their artistic efforts, so they presented them to residents of a nursing home. Jennie visits her great-grandmother, aunt and uncle in a Bad Axe nursing home whenever possible. "It makes me feel good," she said of her donations.

ANOTHER GOOD IDEA: Jenni then thought it would be great to give away the coloring contest entries from The Clarkston News, instead of having them thrown in the trash. She wrote a letter to The News asking to have the entries saved for her. While she reluctantly admits the idea was hers, Jennie is quick to credit Mom with an assist. "She gave me the paper to write on," she said.

AFTER SCHOOL FUN: She sings in two choirs, one at school and another at her church, Clarkston United Methodist. She also enjoys ice skating.

PLEASANT SURPRISE: A record number of coloring contest entries -- 150 in all -- were presented to Jennie recently. Last year, only 80 kids entered the contest. But she doesn't anticipate any distribution problems. "There are plenty of lonely people out there," said her mother, Linda. "We just have to find them."

By Peter Auchter

CHRISTMAS spirit is embodied in Jennie Linenger of Springfield Township. With her entry in The Clarkston News Coloring Contest was her offer to distribute the entries to lonely senior citizens in nursing homes. The judges had never received such a request and were happy to comply with her 'giving' request.

Best wishes for the holiday season.

Win savings race

William A. Myers is a retired Lapeer County editor and investments manager from Boca Raton, Fla.

There were these two youngsters, Joe and Charlie. They were twins, but not very much alike.

Joe inherited some genes from a Scottish grandmother and started saving early. At age 19, he was socking away $2,000 a year into an IRA account, even while going to school. He worked summers and Christmas vacation and also worked for his room and board at school. He was young and vigorous; it didn't hurt him.

Since the money went into an IRA, there was no income tax for him to pay. He told the bank, the IRA custodian, to buy him some zero coupon government bonds with the $2,000 every year. Maturities were as long as he could get - 20 or 30 years.

He did this for eight years, and then his frugality genes got tired. So he just left the money in the account and didn't do the $2,000 a year deposit that he could have under the IRA rules.

"Let 'er ride," he told the bank. "When any bonds come due, buy some more, as far out as you can." In other words, let the income keep compounding. This he did until he was 65.

Figuring the rate of interest at what it is today for zero coupon government bonds - 8 percent - here's what he had when he was 65:

$815,000. That's right, $815,000.

He had put in $16,000 in those eight years between age 19 and 27. Subtract that, and he was $799,200 ahead. Tucking away $2,000 a year in his salad days had made him eight-tenths of a millionaire.

Now for brother Charlie. He was a good kid, too, and worked and made money. But the savings bug didn't bite him until he was 27. Then he discovered IRAs and how he could deposit money in such an account and not pay any tax on it. So he started and never stopped for 39 years, when he was 65, same as Joe.

You'd think that even though he started later, saving that $2,000 a year for 39 years would put him far ahead of brother Joe, who did the $2,000-a-year stunt for only eight years. You have another think coming. Take it.

Charlie's IRA account at 65 amounted to:
$706,400.

Subtract the $78,000 he put in it, and he was ahead $628,400.

That's pretty good, but ol' Joe, who started earlier and quit his IRA deposits after eight years, was $799,200 ahead, net.

These are not fanciful figures, and the stunt isn't impossible.

"A 19-year-old saving $2,000 a year for eight years? You must be kidding," holler the skeptics.

I admit it's unusual, but a lot of parents would be so happy to note that trait in Junior that they'd be glad to chip in some to the fund.

I showed the figures to a friend, Peter Howell, one of the top dogs in Westpac Bank of Australia. He was impressed.

"I've been telling my daughters I'd help them fill out the full amount for an IRA account," he said. "I'd loan it to them."

Now, if I were Stephanie and Betsy, I'd make a deal fast. Get the loan and say you'll pay it back when you're 65, if you can find him.

The basic figures came from Richard Russell's Dow Theory Letter of June 18. Russell used a 10 percent interest figure, which I cut down to today's market figure of 8 percent. He used annual compounding, but buying zero coupon bonds, as I suggest, you'd get semiannual compounding, which would make the figures better. The extra return would more than take care of IRA custodian fees and commissions on buying bonds.

My associate, Jennifer, and I have for some time been putting cash into zero coupons for some very young grandsons. The same magic of compounding will make modest gifts now become real important money when the Tiny Tims are out of school and on their own.

Since youngsters can have $500 a year in income before paying tax, you can get government zeros yielding 8 percent compared to tax-exempts at 7 percent. A 20-year bond will cost you 19 cents on the dollar. A gift of $190 now will become $1,000 in 2009. The "imputed annual income" is 8 percent of that $190, so the little fellers are a long way from owing any tax.

You may note that housing tax-exempts yield more than the 7 percent bonds referred to. The reason is that frequent calls pay you off earlier than you'd like, and you have to reinvest. The amounts are small and it's a nuisance.

I bought some Munsing, Mich., school district bonds yielding a tax-exempt 7 percent, maturing in 2011. They cost me 22 cents on the dollar and are non-callable. Several Michigan school districts have these non-callable zeros. They're general obligation bonds and perfectly good.

AREA CHURCHES provided hat and mitten donations to the under-privileged families. Barb Rivers (left) and Lynne Spillum, both from the Church of the Resurrection in Clarkston, volunteered their time; as did Ann Tyler from the Calvary Lutheran Church (not shown).

NEW SHOES were the order of the day for many needy families around Independence Township, thanks to the Clarkston area Rotary Club. The club purchased new shoes for 100 children using money raised with the township fire department during their recent Goodfellow newspaper sale. The children were allowed to pick out any pair of shoes they wished during the event Dec. 16. Kinney employee Karen Backlund was among those helping them to get the right fit. Rotary members dressed as clowns added to the festivities.

Planned Unit Development debate

Independence Township officials question expert on use of PUD rezoning

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Independence Township decision makers gathered Dec. 13 to brush up on a zoning technique that will shape the community for centuries.

Township board members, planning commission members, township consultants and the media spent more than two hours examining the use of Planned Unit Developments, or PUDs, with statewide planning expert Mark Wyckoff.

A PUD is a flexible type of zoning used in place of existing zoning ordinances. Although the technique is widely implemented in Michigan, its use is debated.

PUDs are typically used on unusual parcels of land or when a developer has a unique idea for developing a piece of property.

If a parcel is zoned PUD, the developer and the township work out the specifics of the project — regular ordinances don't apply.

PUD may be utilized only if the development offers some recognizable benefit to the community; if PUD rezoning is approved, a developer cannot deviate from the site plan considered for the PUD.

Those supporting the use of PUDs say they give a township power to create innovative projects, tailored to ning commission member Steve Secatch. "Could a development be built conventionally using a wetlands ordinance and get the same number of units as a PUD?"

Along with PUD questions, township officials took advantage of Wyckoff's planning expertise to inquire about rezoning Sashabaw Road.

Sashabaw Road is planned for research/office space in the township's master plan, which is used as a blueprint of growth for the area.

Trustee Frank Millard questioned whether the Sashabaw corridor should be rezoned for research/office now, or rather piece by piece as the projects come forward.

Wyckoff answered that it depended on how members felt about the existing ordinance. If Sashabaw would be developed over a long period of time, it might be wise to see what type of developments would be brought forward, he added.

In concluding, Wyckoff showed examples of projects that had been zoned creatively with PUDs.

"PUD is what you define it to be with your ordinance," Wyckoff said. "There is a lot you can do with zoning."

"I can see us developing more and more PUDs. Do you see it as a way for developers to circumvent zoning ordinances?"

Trustee Mel Vaara

the land and the needs of its residents.

Others argue that PUD rezoning is used by developers to skirt township ordinances and that the township board is given too much flexibility in planning the project.

PUDs are governed by state legislation, but they vary greatly from community to community, Wyckoff explained.

"If you looked at a (chart of communities), Independence would be near the end of the matrix that is most flexible," Wyckoff said.

Wyckoff is the editor of Michigan Planning and Zoning News. He was invited to Independence Township by the supervisor to present the facts about PUDs and to answer any questions that might arise.

"I can see us developing more and more PUDs," stated township Trustee Mel Vaara. "Do you see it as a way for developers to circumvent zoning ordinances?"

Wyckoff answered that Independence Township's PUD ordinance is not structured that way; rather the PUD ordinance offers another layer of control.

In fact, where density is concerned, two of three PUDs developed in Independence Township resulted in lower density, added township planning consultant Richard Carlisle.

Other questions centered on how to control mixed uses on a property, how to ensure a developer would stick to a PUD site plan in a multi-phase development and when to use existing ordinances to develop property.

"We have a strong wetlands ordinance," said plan-

Retiree takes the helm at Clarkston Farm Market

BY PETER AUCHTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Louis Sassin is confident he can change the fortunes of New Ritter's Farm Market on Dixie Highway — if customers give him the chance.

Sassin, who has more than 40 years experience in the business, took control of the Independence Township market Nov. 3 and renamed it Clarkston Farm Market. And that was just the beginning. He also changed the phone number to 620-1150 and brought in all new fresh products. The results speak for themselves.

"We are continually moving upward," said Sassin. "I'm excited about it."

So excited, in fact, that the Warren resident commutes to work each day and has no immediate plans to retire even though he had come out of retirement to help his son with this business venture.

"I feel born-again in business," he said.

During his 40-plus years in the business, Sassin has owned stores in communities such as Madison Heights, Farmington Hills, Warren, Mount Clemens, East Detroit and Livonia. But none compare to Clarkston.

"This is the best area I've ever been in," he said. "The best clientele. The kind of people I love being associated with. I feel at home."

His career began when he was 14 years old. He's been involved with farm markets ever since, except for a stay as a manager in a car dealership. But, even then, he knew he was destined to return to his first career choice.

"I liked (the other job), but I liked this better," he said. "You don't get the same satisfaction of owning a store."

Just as he takes pride in his work and products, Sassin boasts of his many faithful employees. Some have worked 10 or more years for him. And for that they are rewarded. After a decade of service, he sponsors the employees in their own business, he said.

Sassin doesn't prefer to sit back and let things happen. He's confident enough to push for the very best.

Some of the changes that are in store at the new market include the addition of Amish beef along with the Amish turkey and chicken already offered, an expanded meat department and discount prices.

He especially stresses the discount prices. Since he buys in volume for his three stores (Clarkston, Mount Clemens, Union Lake), he believes he can offer the best deal for the consumer in everything he sells.

"I've been doing it for 40 years," he said. "High quality at discount prices."

Sassin's quality standards are high. He hasn't advertised the business locally because he believes the store still needs some minor alterations. He likens it to an anxious new homeowner who works hard to make sure everything is perfect before guests come for a visit.

And Sassin hopes the customers will return in droves once the place is completely refinished and wipe out the bad memories of recent times.

"This place has had a lot of chances," he said. "But if you give the people what they want..."

Business Briefs

Business to move

The Prudential Real Estate network has more than doubled in size with the changeover of 450 offices from Merrill Lynch to Prudential, as of mid-November.

With its previous 407 offices and the addition of the 450 Merrill Lynch Realty offices and relocation network, the Prudential network has grown to 900 offices and 24,000 sales associates, all working under the Prudential name.

The addition of these offices enables us to better serve our clients as our listings will be exposed to a greater number of prospective buyers, said Dan L. Proctor, owner of The Prudential Proctor, Inc., in Clarkston.

With the Merrill Lynch Realty addition, Thomas W. Dooley of National Relocation Magazine, says the Prudential network will be fourth nationally in total market share, just behind Century 21, Coldwell Banker, and Re/Max.

The three firms in front of the Prudential, however, have been operating for a decade or more, whereas the Prudential entered the residential real estate business less than 18 months ago.

The Prudential Proctor Inc. Realtors was established in Clarkston in 1984 and became an affiliate in July 1989. The company will be moving to their new location at Clarkston Corners, Main Street, Clarkston, in early spring.

Elected secretary

Mike Hofer, North Oakland County area single family home builder and developer, was elected 1990 secretary of the Michigan Association of Home Builders (MAHB) at the annual meeting Nov. 9 in Lansing.

He assumed the duties of secretary of the 7,500-member trade association Dec. 1.

Hofer, a graduate of East Detroit High School, holds the Business Management Certificate of the Home Builders Institute of the National Association of Home Builders. Before starting his company, Welcome Homes, in 1978, he was a carpenter contractor for 15 years.

In 1987, Hofer was elected president and is currently a life director of the North Oakland County Builders Association. He has served as regional vice president for the MAHB for the past two years and serves on the Board of Directors for the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

He has been chairman of the Legislative Mortgage Finances Subcommittee and B-PAC committees for the MAHB and also serves as a trustee of the Michigan Construction Industry Self Insurers Fund.

Hofer is also active on the Business Management

Leadership Group, Business Management Education Committee and Medium Volume Builders Committee of the National Association of Home Builders.

Hofer and his wife, Charlotte, have two children: Lisa and Eric. Hofer is a member of the Detroit, Oakland County and Clarkston area chambers of commerce. He sponsors the building and trades program of the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus. Plus he finds time for racquetball and boating.

Music up for judging

Vudu Hippies, a Clarkston area band, entered MUSICIAN Magazine's third annual Best Unsigned Band Contest.

The original music of Vudu Hippies, as well as bands from across the nation, will be judged by the publishers and editors of MUSICIAN plus a panel of judges featuring recording artists: Robbie Robertson, Lou Reed, Lyle Lovett, Vernon Reid and Branford Marsalis.

Twelve finalists will be featured on a compact disk that distributed in the music industry across the country.

For pampering go to Clarkston's Glitz, Inc

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After almost 17 years as a cosmetologist, Cherie Clinton-Barnett decided it was time to open her own business — but not before carefully researching what area to open a shop in.

Glitz opened the last week in November in Independence Pointe on M-15, Independence Township.

What's New in Business

Cherie's not the only owner in Glitz Inc. Her husband, Nigel, is also part owner, but he remains behind the scene — working the financial end of the business.

But he's not completely behind the scene.

"He gets to answer the phone on Friday evenings and he loves it," Cherie chuckled. When Nigel's not answering the phone or taking care of the finances, he works full-time as an automotive designer for a Troy firm.

Cherie and Nigel have a son Nathan, 5, and a daughter Brittany, 3, and live in Lake Orion.

About two years ago, the Clinton-Barnett's found the Independence Pointe location and the research process began.

Checks with real estate companies and the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce confirmed that the Clarkston area was the place to open Glitz, Cherie said.

Glitz currently has eight stylists. When construction is complete, around Christmas time, there are plans for 15 stylists. The shop will have four manicurists, and one full-time and two part-time receptionists.

Glitz will offer a full line of hypo-allergenic skin care products, make-up and hair care products.

"We offer from wild to conservative (in hair styling and make-up)," said Cherie adding that Glitz's prices are competitive with other shops in the area.

The shop's specialty will be in hair color, and pampering the customers. There will always be coffee, tea and soft drinks for the customers, Cherie said.

"I'm a mother and I like to be pampered," she said. "I went for the pampering."

New theater employee

Newly hired employees of the Showcase Cinemas in Auburn Hills, including Robyn Castro of the Clarkston area, got a sneak preview of what a typical day at the theater is like.

The new employees, who were open the doors to the 12-screen Showcase Auburn Hills Dec. 8, spent four hours Saturday at a special training seminar in preparation for their new jobs.

The seminar, led by an industrial psychologist, covered topics ranging from how to handle youngsters asking to purchase tickets to an R-rated movie to how to present a positive image.

GLITZ is now open in Independence Pointe, and Cherie Clinton-Barnett, owner of the beauty salon, is looking forward to the grand opening scheduled for February.

Christmas lighting is inexpensive

Christmas lighting, when done correctly, is a safe and inexpensive option, according to Joan Bradley, Detroit Edison's lighting specialist.

"A good starting place," she said, "is to examine every light string, inch by inch, for frayed wires and chipped or damaged sockets. Any such items should be thrown out."

Also discarded should be any lights not bearing the Underwriters Laboratories (UL) seal indicating they meet specific safety standards, she said.

Holiday lighting is inexpensive, since most strings of lights have an operating cost of only three-quarters of a cent to 7 1/2 cents per string for six hours of use.

"So if you operate one string of lights six hours a night for 15 nights," Bradley said, "it will cost you a minimum of 45 cents and a maximum of $6.75 for that string for the full holiday season."

She added that twinkle-type lights use even less electricity because they're off half the time.

Bradley also offered the following safety suggestions:

Indoor Lighting:

■ Use no more than three sets of standard lights on each indoor extension cord.

■ Never use lights on a metal tree. Instead, a lighted revolving color wheel or low-wattage colored floodlights may be used to illuminate the tree.

■ Keep lights away from carpeting, furniture, curtains and drapes. Some standard lights produce enough heat to scorch or damage items they touch.

■ Use only flame-resistant ornaments and other decorations, including artificial snow, on and around the tree.

■ Don't put the tree near an active fireplace.

Outdoor Lighting

■ Use only weather-resistant equipment and lights manufactured for outdoor use.

■ Use only heavy-duty outdoor extension cords with molded plugs and sockets. Keep cords out of the way to prevent tripping over them.

■ Keep all electrical connections off the ground, and hang sockets downward to prevent snow or rain water from seeping into them.

■ Fasten extension cords or light sets to wood surfaces with insulated staples; never use nails or tacks because they may pierce the wires and cause shock or shorts.

■ Don't run outdoor lighting cords through door or window openings where they can be damaged.

Rotarian protects the past

History grows with Clarkston's Christmas tree

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Tom Murphy has collected precious pieces of Clarkston history over the years, and he keeps them in a big garbage bag in his garage.

The bag is filled with Christmas ornaments that have adorned the huge evergreen tree in downtown Clarkston each year.

The Rotary Club puts up the lights and oversees the tree's decoration, but Murphy has affectionately cared for the ornaments over the years.

"I would go out periodically and clean underneath the tree, rehang ornaments that had fallen," says Murphy, a Rotarian living on Poquosin in Independence Township.

"It's not anyone's job to take them down, so I just do it and save them," Murphy says.

He carefully lifts one after another out of the big black bag and lays them on the ground.

"It's not anyone's job to take them down, so I just do it and save them."

Tom Murphy

The glitter has fallen off some of them; others are torn from months in the wind and snow; and many of the colors have faded, but none have lost their value.

One shows a picture on one side and on the other these words: "Please bring my brother home, ... MIA, Waterford."

A copper star makes up another one; the artist cut it from the copper and pounded in designs. "Just look at these," Murphy exclaims, in wonder. "How could anyone throw these away?"

The Rotary Club first decorated the downtown tree back in 1940. When Detroit Edison put up six new light poles downtown in 1963, the club purchased ornaments for the tree and encouraged others to join in.

In 1985, the tradition was threatened, when the Rotary Club decided the wiring was too dangerous.

"The poles weren't individually electrified, so we had extension cords running everywhere," Murphy recalls.

Detroit Edison refused to electrify the poles, so Rotary Club presidents looked among their ranks for private financing.

Eleven past presidents, including Murphy, each agreed to "buy" a pole themselves at a cost of $280 each.

New lights were purchased at a cost of $8,000, and they continue to shine today in brilliant color.

Murphy says the act was an example of Rotary's desire to "do things people think just happen."

He has noticed a lot of new ornaments on the downtown tree this year, thanks to the girl scouts, Campfire and various individuals.

"I think it's great that parents come down with their kids to hang the things," Murphy says.

"This is a great community."

It's people like Murphy, who help to make it so.

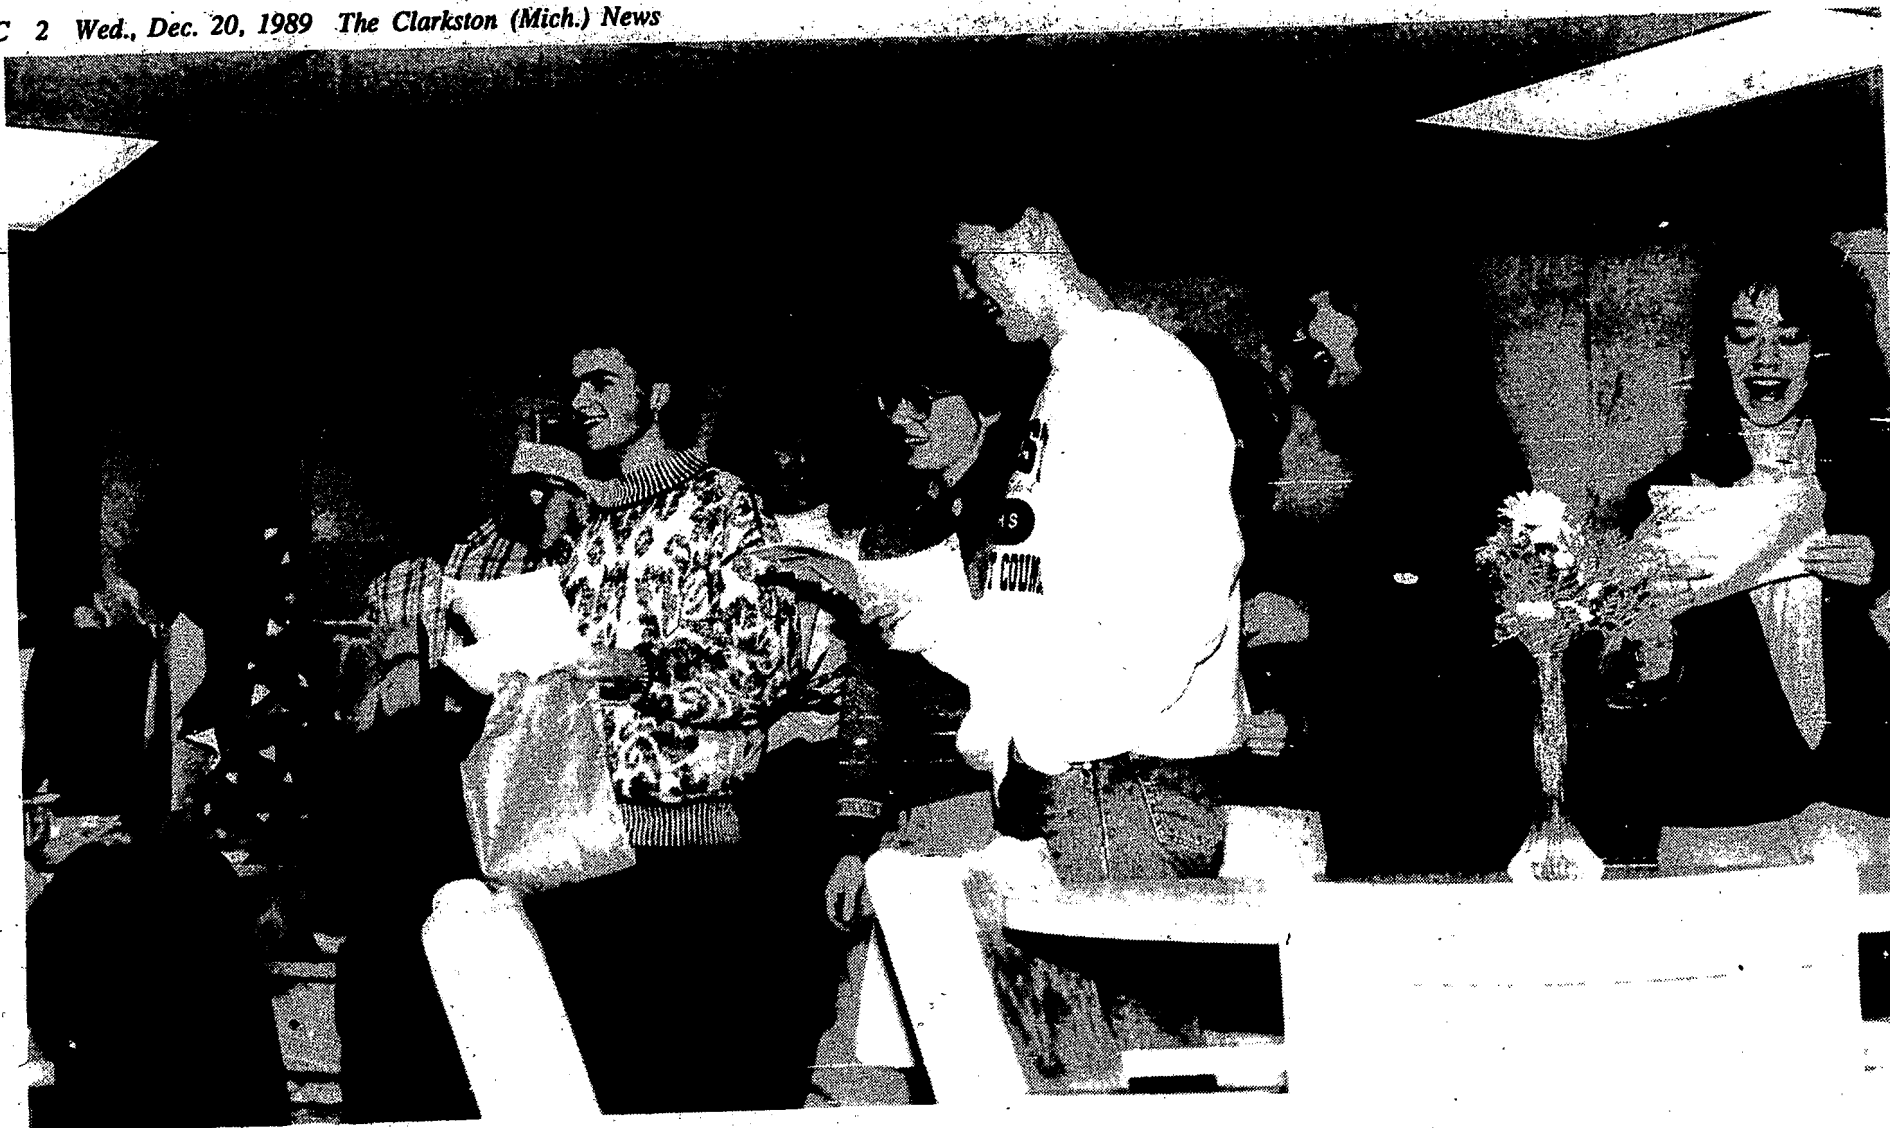

SOME REMINDERS of years past include tiny wooden ornaments that list among Tom Murphy's favorites. Tom has saved several ornaments from the downtown Christmas tree.

ANTIQUE BUFF Tom Murphy has acquired some historical memorabilia from Clarkston for his collection. He saves all of the Christmas tree ornaments that adorn the downtown tree and stores them at his home. Among his treasures are several homemade ornaments, some with pictures of their creators.

Merry Christmas

'WE WISH You a Merry Christmas' is one of the holiday songs performed by the Clarkston Blue and Gold Club at the Grovecrest Care Center of Clarkston on Clintonville

Road, Independence Township. Students from the Blue and Gold Club serenaded the center's residents with a variety of songs in the dining room and in the rooms of many residents Dec. 14. The young minstrels also decorated a small tree with ornaments they brought, and they brought gifts for the residents. (Photo by Tracy King)

Gift of energy

A Gift of Energy can be a Christmas blessing when shopping for a Consumers Power Co. customer.

Gift of Energy certificates, in amounts of $10 or more, can purchase natural gas for that special person during the season of giving.

"Sometimes it's difficult to find a gift that will be appreciated or needed," said Lucille Ivers, Metro Region consumers affairs director for Consumers Power.

"A gift of one or two months of natural gas for a relative or someone living on a fixed income may be your solution," she said.

Certificates may be purchased at any Consumers Power payment office or by calling the local Consumers Power office listed in the telephone directory.

Pets make a wonderful gift after the holidays

Christmas -- few words conjure up more excitement among adults as well as children. The spirit of giving abounds, and people just seem a great deal happier.

Christmas cards and holiday greetings often picture cuddly puppies and kittens popping out of gaily wrapped packages or decked out in ribbons and bows. These images have become so commonplace that we tend to forget what they depict -- pets as holiday gifts.

The Michigan Humane Society knows that while giving a pet for Christmas might seem like a good idea, all too often it is a negative experience for the animal and the recipient.

New pets need quiet time to adjust to their new surroundings. The excitement and generalized confusion of a holiday celebration can be a frightening experience to an animal unaccustomed to his surroundings. The human members of the family are especially busy during the holiday season and may not have the extra time needed to help the new pet become adjusted and to give him the extra care and attention he needs.

In addition, close surveillance of the new pet may not be possible. Potential holiday dangers of the new pet (as well as established ones) include chewing tinsel, ribbons or electric cords -- all dangerous things that can cause serious injury or even death.

Finally, having a pet is a personal choice and responsibility. Most people would prefer the opportunity to choose their own pet -- to select that certain pet that has the qualities and temperament that matches their lifestyle. When you give someone a pet, you are making a choice that they will have to live with for 10 to 15 years.

If a living gift is definitely the choice, try to wait until the holiday excitement and confusion has subsided to introduce him into your home. This little being deserves his best chance at a good loving home, and the post-holiday period offers the greatest likelihood of successful match-up.

Clarkston man tends tree farm

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

"How many trees have you got out there?" Del McCrary was asked one day before Christmas.

"How many do you think I've got out there," he answered, squinting down the rows of pine trees at his Rattalee Lake Road farm.

The correct answer was 5,000, but the number dwindled every day, as carload after carload of people drove off with this year's Christmas tree roped securely to the tops of their cars.

The dwindling numbers don't concern Del and his partner, Ron Hudler; they'll plant another 2,000 Christmas trees this year alone.

It takes about seven years to grow a tree of the Christmas variety.

Del and his partner planted their first trees in 1981 and are just now entering their second year of selling.

Before Christmas trees were grown, the Rattalee

Lake Road farm was filled with McCrary children and their collection of animals.

But "when the kids went to college, the animals went too," McCrary explained, and it was time to enter the tree business.

The yard of the farm is now covered with row after row of mature Scotch Pine, Norway Pine, Douglas Fir and Blue Spruce trees.

There is work involved in the Christmas tree industry.

Each spring the trees must be sprayed for weeds; two or three times a year the grass under the trees must be cut to ensure uniformity; the trees must be sprayed for insects and the tree must be trimmed.

The trimming is what makes it a Christmas tree, Del explains.

"Somewhere in that big mass of green is a beautiful Christmas tree," Del says. It's all in the shaping.

And in the decorating.

Practice moderation not deprivation

Dieters' good intentions often take a nose dive during the holidays. Part of the problem is a result of the "all or nothing" attitude that most people have regarding weight control.

Facing the fact that the holidays are a very poor time of year to stick to a perfect diet is difficult for many people. They try in vain to deprive themselves at festivities and end up binging or splurging when home alone.

Maintaining an attitude of moderation is the best advice this time of year, says Sylvia Treitman, home economist of the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

Cutting down on portion size and substituting some lower fat and lower calorie ingredients when preparing traditional holiday goodies is one of the best ways to have your cake and eat it, too.

Here are a few other tips that may help you through the holidays without gaining weight:

■ Don't skip meals or arrive at a party totally starving. Have some fruit or vegetables to take the edge off first.

■ Check out all the offerings before you fill your plate — there may be something you love at the end of the buffet table, so check it out first.

■ If it's a buffet, limit yourself to one trip. Fill your plate with a variety of salads and vegetables, and go easy on the combination foods where fats and calories may be hiding.

■ Practice moderation rather than deprivation for a happy holiday.

Secrets to safe cooking in preparation, serving

Good food is as much a part of the holiday season as good company. But many of the foods prepared for the holidays can attract the bacteria that causes food poisoning, warns Dr. Fred R. Severyn, associate medical director of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan (BCBSM).

Stuffing, eggs, meat, poultry or fish deserve particular attention, as well as salads, cream pies, egg nogs, dips and dressing.

The secret to safe holiday cooking is simple, says Severyn: proper preparation and serving of food. For example:

- Thaw frozen raw meat, poultry and fish slowly in the refrigerator. A quick method for thawing poultry that's also safe is dunking the poultry in its watertight package in cold water. This can take from as little as one hour to eight hours, depending on the size of the bird. Check the thawing process every hour. Never leave the food at room temperature for long periods of time.

- Make sure work surfaces are clean before you begin preparation of food. Utensils should also be clean, including cutting boards used for raw meat, fish or fowl. They can be breeding grounds for bacteria if not thoroughly washed with hot soapy water before and after use.

- No one with an infection should prepare or serve food.

- Wash your hands with warm water and soap before preparing food. If you've been handling raw meat, fowl or fish, wash hands thoroughly before beginning on another dish. This will prevent contaminating the new dish.

- Wash a utensil if you've tasted food with it. Keep hands away from the mouth, nose or hair while preparing food.

- Keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold. Bacteria breed quickly when temperatures are between 40 and 140 degrees. Foods left out for more than two hours within that temperature range could encourage dangerous bacteria.

Use a food thermometer to make sure meats and poultry have been cooked thoroughly, reaching at least 140 degrees in the center.

- Refrigerate foods as soon as possible to prevent them from reaching room temperature.

- Freeze cooked meat, poultry, stuffing or gravy if you plan to keep them more than a few days.

- Once you start cooking meat or poultry, don't stop. It's dangerous to partially cook these foods one day and finish the next.

- Don't use cracked eggs in dishes in which the eggs won't be cooked thoroughly.

Following these guidelines can help keep the holidays enjoyable for you and your guests, says Severyn.

Pet of the Week

GIVE Bear the gift of love this holiday season.

Cute and cuddly

Bear, a mix of chow and German shepherd, weighs about 40 pounds and probably won't get much bigger.

At seven months, he looks like a furry black and tan bear and has a cuddly personality to go with it. Plus, he gets along well with other dogs.

The $60 adoption fee includes the cost of neutering.

Bear can be adopted at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Flying corks can endanger eyes during the holidays

The holiday season is a perfect time to celebrate and offer toasts with champagnes and sparkling wines. However, a flying cork is like a small missile and can be a potentially blinding weapon.

A cork is just small enough to bypass the facial bones that normally protect the eye from larger objects. The sudden impact of a flying cork can cause painful surface damage to the eye or even interior damage that can lead to blindness.

STEPHANIE FARNATH spreads coconut on the chocolate butterscotch cookies she helps to bake for the holiday sing-a-long in the Funshine program sponsored by Clarkston Community Education.

To prevent a celebration from turning into a tragedy, take care to open champagnes and sparkling wines properly. Never point the cork at anyone's face, including your own. Professional restaurant employees who open many pressurized bottles during the holiday season are also at risk.

The American Academy of Ophthalmology recommends the following steps to safely open a champagne bottle:

1. Keep the bottle cold. A warm bottle is more likely to pop unexpectedly.
2. Remove the foil over the cork. Then carefully remove the wire hood while holding the cork down with the palm of your hand.
3. Place a towel over the entire top and tilt the bottle at a 45-degree angle away from yourself and others.

4. Grasp the cork firmly and slowly twist it to break the seal. Occasionally a cork won't move. Run the bottle under cool tap water for 20 seconds and repeat the twisting method described.

5. Keeping the bottle at a 45-degree angle, hold the bottle firmly; and with a slightly upward pull with the other hand, turn the cork until it is nearly out of the bottleneck. Then, using the slight downward pressure of a controlled roll, the cork will come completely out.

This technique will soften the traditional pop, and since the pressure of the bottle is released gradually, the bubbles in the glass will last longer.

It is possible to save some of the win's sparkle and eyesight by avoiding the popping of the cork.

OU professor dispels myths about holiday suicide

The holiday season is not a happy season for many people; it is a time when some loved ones or friends will contemplate or even commit suicide, warns Andrea Lindell, dean of the School of Nursing at Oakland University, Rochester.

But the belief that more suicides occur during this season than any other is a myth, states Lindell, who is an expert on the subject.

The myth does not minimize the effect the season can have on some people, says Lindell. And she has researched some commonly held beliefs about suicide to help people recognize friends or loved ones who may be having problems.

"Actually, studies show that most suicides take place in May or April," says Lindell. "During spring, when flowers and trees are in a stage of rebirth, the depressed individual may feel no personal improvement is occurring in his or her own life."

"Above all, do not deny the person is facing difficult times. Rather, agree that problems exist, but offer signs of help."

In general, it is the lack of hope that characterizes suicidal people, she says. But one of the myths is that suicide occurs suddenly.

"In effect, suicidal people send out numerous cues and clues as forewarning," she says.

"Believing that suicide strikes (suddenly) relieves our burden of not picking up on it," Lindell says. "It is a myth that suicide strikes or happens without warning.

"There are indirect verbal cues, like 'What's the use of going on?' or 'Why bother, I'm not going to be around' or 'Goodbye, I'm not going to see you again.'"

Obviously, a direct cue would be a statement about ending it all or killing himself or herself.

Lindell says an indication that a depressed person may be contemplating suicide is a sudden shift in personality.

"Someone may suddenly begin to make amends for past misdeeds and try to patch up disputes with family members. The suicidal member may give items away to friends. All of these actions lead those around the person to believe that the suicidal person is getting over it or recovering," she says.

Signs that a person could be headed toward depression involving suicidal tendencies include sudden loss of appetite, withdrawing socially, losing sleep, losing attention span, and not coping with life as one did before.

Lindell cautions that "not everyone exhibiting such behavior is suicidal, nor is the presence of just one or two proof that severe emotional problems exists.

"Helping a suicidal person means offering a lifeline to show concern," Lindell says. "When confronted, the typical suicidal person will react in one of three ways: laugh hysterically and suggest the other person is crazy, express anger that he or she has been discovered or express relief that someone cares enough to help.

"People are sending out cues and clues because they want help," Lindell says. She notes that suicidal people are usually ambivalent about death and that, if a better alternative comes along, they may accept it.

The dean says suicidal people act in four situations: some are impulsive following anger or disappointment (after having given numerous warning signs); some act because they believe life is not worth living and they do not understand their feelings; some kill themselves because of a serious illness or incapacitation, and others may kill themselves to communicate unhappiness about others' behavior.

Lindell suggests confronting someone who may be contemplating suicide and that person should be informed of sources of help, including ministers, health clinics and crisis lines.

"Above all," Lindell says, "do not deny the person is facing difficult times. Rather, agree that problems exist, but offer signs of help."

"It is a myth that suicide strikes or happens without warning."

"The suicidal person will not attempt it if he or she knows there is a lifeline like a pastor, a crisis center or a friend who says you can call at any time if you don't feel you can go on," Lindell says.

Noting that suicide is a leading cause of death among people ages 14-35, Lindell presents some final misconceptions about suicide. These are that people who talk about it do not act; that once a person is suicidal, he or she is suicidal forever; that it occurs more often among the very rich and poor; and that it runs in the family.

WHO IS ON THE LORD'S SIDE?

To the churches let him hear that hath an ear to hear the word of the Lord. Pastors and prophets are sent to represent the will of God. Do as they speak only when they speak the word of God. Observe the word and do it. However do not do or go after their works for they say and do it not, even their own vain imaginations. They bind heavy burdens grievous to be borne (law) and lay them on men's hearts and minds, so that they might not bring them to the light, that they may be esteemed of men. The pastors and prophets love the chief seats and to be called of men, master so and so! They clothe themselves with spiritual robes and will not speak the truth so they may create authority. They make up doctrines to exalt themselves and to make the temple of God, the person, a house of merchandise. Shepherds gone astray returning to their vomit. Woe unto you shepherds that have the key of knowledge that do not enter in and even refuse to allow others to enter, who hold the truth in unrighteousness, who have a pretense of godliness but do hate the truth. You strive to gain followers to a system (denomination) of fleshly works to make them haters of the truth giving burnt offerings and sacrifices rather than doing the will of God. You have promoted yourselves thru false doctrines and Jewish fables and entice and make others the same children of hell, even using praise and worship to snare. You now try to come into the kingdom over the walls, of faith and truth, as a thief and a robber and absolutely refusing the door. Christ and his word, whom God has ordained the only entrance. You are as graves that men walk over and do not know that they are there, speaking great swelling words. You, who knowing the judgement of God against such things, still even go and uphold other pastors, prophets, teachers and brethren that are of the same mind and even take pleasure in them who do the same thing, rebelling against Christ and his Spirit, by unbelief and hating the truth. Woe unto you for how will you escape the damnation of hell? (Luke 7:29-30) Men's religion is the grave of the dead. 'Her house is the way of hell, casting down many wounded and slaying many strong men, going down to the chambers of death. (Prov 7.) Many are called but few (have) are chosen. Repent! To Jesus Christ only, the Lord and Saviour, be glory and honor both now and forever. IILX50-2

PRAYER TO THE HOLY Spirit

Holy Spirit. You make me see everything and show me the way to reach my ideals. You give me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrongs that are done to me and you are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with you, and my loved ones, in your perpetual glory. Amen. Persons must pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking for your wish. After the 3rd day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this dialogue as soon as your favor has been granted. Thanks St. Jude for favors received. MC. KIDS IN the SPICE program at Sashabaw Junior High School performed a medley of Christmas songs for their Clarkston High School "friends" last Thursday at North Sashabaw Elementary. After performing a couple of numbers, the kids presented the little friends in the SPICE program made for them.

SOME KIDS had a starring role in one of the songs performed.
