Villagers to vote

State grants cityhood to Clarkston

RENEE GLOVINSKY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Village of Clarkston has been approved by the Michigan Boundary Commission to move forward in their plans for "cityhood." The decision was announced at a meeting in Lansing Tuesday, Jan. 16.

According to Clarkston Village Council President

Sharrca Catallo, the meeting only lasted 15 minutes.

"They understood exactly what we wanted," said Catallo.

Although the boundary commission has given its approval, there's a long way to go before the village actually becomes a city, said Catallo.

The next step is for council members to request an election. At least 35 signatures by voters must be obtained. Petitions will become available at the village hall after Tuesday, Feb. 6.

A second election would then be held to determine a charter commissioner, and, finally, a third election would be held to vote on the charter.

"There wouldn't be many changes if the village becomes a city," said Trustee William Basinger.

Some of these changes include:

- City would perform own assessment of property tax.
- City would hold all elections including state.
- City would no longer pay township property taxes.
- City would no longer vote for township officials.

Millage campaign in high gear

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

About 460 millage volunteers have their work cut out for them for the next few weeks. Convincing voters to approve an additional 5.5 mills for Clarkston school operations won't be easy.

But the millage workers have a simple strategy: just present the information to the public, said David Reschke, school district co-chairman for the Blue Ribbon Kids Committee.

"This is a digital election; you can either vote yes or no," Reschke said to a group of about 60 volunteers Jan. 10.

"Do you want this kind of school, or do you want that kind of a school?" he said, referring to the campaign approach.

The number of people interested in helping with the millage increases each week, said Reschke, who is principal of Sashabaw Junior High School.

"But the heart of the campaign is sitting in this room tonight," he said, addressing the audience.

The millage committee, which adopted the campaign slogan: "Clarkston Has a Heart for Kids," meets 7 p.m. each Wednesday at the administrative offices on Clarkston Road.

Millage workers are gearing up for the Feb. 12 election, when voters will be asked to approve 5.5 operating mills for Clarkston schools. The 5.5 mills are $5.50 for every $1,000 assessed property valuation.

Homesick stray

When dogs howl at night, they must be spreading the word — that Independence Township firefighters are tender-hearted under their tough exteriors and will help a lost stray find its home.

Firefighters recently reunited a cocker spaniel with its Perry Lake Road family after the dog wandered through a swamp at Independence Oaks and ended up at the fire station at Clarkston and Sashabaw roads.

Now, the firefighters at station No. One on Church Street have temporarily adopted another stray.

A beautiful black Labrador ran in and out of traffic for three or four days on Main Street, Clarkston, when firefighter Chris Norberg decided to open his home to it.

"I didn't want him to get hit by a car," Norberg said, adding that he already has a Labrador at home and would like to find the stray dog's owners.

All the firefighters wanted to help the dog out, but the fire station on Church Street has barely enough room for the firefighters and certainly no facilities for a dog, he said.

The animal is a medium-size male and is well behaved and well mannered. He obeys sit and stay commands and is in good condition, said Norberg.

However, he misses his owners.

"He's homesick," said Norberg. "We'll find him crying sometimes."

The dog is smart but does not wear a collar.

"Somebody's got to be missing this dog," said Norberg. "If nobody wants him, I'll keep him, but I'm sure somebody wants him. He's a good dog."

CHS plans June trip to London

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Merry ol' England will entertain some Clarkston High School students and their chaperons this summer. The Clarkston school board unanimously approved the trip Jan. 8.

Mike Kaul and Holly McCaffrey, teachers at Clarkston High School, are taking students for a 10-day tour of England June 18-28. The trip is billed as "London and the Theatre" and is sponsored by Cultural Heritage Alliance (CHA) in Philadelphia, Pa.

CHA is one of the five largest companies that arranges student trips out of the country, Kaul said.

Students pay their own way, $1,200, and chaperons pay $1,300.

About 11 students and 15 adult chaperons are scheduled for the trip, but interested students and chaperons have until June to sign up, said Kaul, who took students to London with McCaffrey in 1986 and 1988.

"Travel is my bag," Kaul said. "And I especially enjoy student travel."

Kaul has managed to take students on mid-winter break trips generally to New York for the last several years. This year he is taking the students to Toronto during the break. Higher air fare caused Kaul to look for a different location.

Students show a lot of excitement when they travel to new area, Kaul said.

"The enthusiasm is catching when I'm there (in New York) with a group of students for the first time," he said. "I get back some of the enthusiasm I had when I first saw New York."

The trip to London needs board approval, even if no funds from the district are involved in the trip. If the board approves the trip, the group is eligible for insurance protection by the state, Kaul said.

The 1986 trip was not approved by the board, but increased terrorism brought about the need for insurance protection, he said.

Kaul said the trip price includes round-trip air fare on a scheduled airline, eight nights in a London hotel, three full days of touring places such as Oxford, Stratford, Canterbury and Windsor Castle and plenty of time for shopping. Breakfast and dinner are also included in the price, as are three theater tickets.

For more information about the London trip, call CHS at 625-0900 and leave a message for Kaul.

Clarkston teachers hope for the best

If millage fails, elementary students hit hard; college admissions affected

BY DAVID KWASNICK
Clarkston News Special Writer

Clarkston Senior High School science teacher Bill Mackson said a defeat in February's millage vote will keep much-needed textbooks and lab supplies out of his already ill-equipped classroom.

But Mackson knows the real casualties of a defeat will be Clarkston students left with a sub-standard education and unprepared for college.

"They are going to go to college and find themselves behind," said Mackson, who has been teaching for 28 years at CHS.

Mackson's concerns are mirrored by Clarkston educators from elementary to high school. With $1.6 million sliced from the district as a result of last June's millage defeat, a second millage loss will spell an additional $2 million in cuts—a blow many say will devastate an already weakened school district.

"It means that many kids will get a lot less educa-

"I, as a teacher, will look at alternative schools to put my children in," Loveless said.

Classroom overcrowding would continue

Classroom overcrowding from June's millage defeat is another problem that would be enlarged by a second defeat. Sashabaw Junior High School teacher Tom Brown said studies have shown 25 to 28 students is the optimum classroom learning size. Yet classroom size at Sashabaw has swelled to as many as 40 students.

Clarkston Junior High School teacher Barbara Glover said she faces the same problems.

"I really don't know where to put any more desks in my room," she said. "I'm literally wall to wall right now."

Factors such as these are a key source of frustration to teachers used to taking pride in their students' academic prowess. Many said dealing with this is one of the jobs toughest facets.

"It's frustrating not being able to give the kids what they deserve," Loveless said.

North Sashabaw Elementary School teacher Norma Stations said she often has similar feelings, which a millage defeat would only compound.

"There just wouldn't be enough time in the day to teach," she said.

Younger teachers would be laid off

A defeat and its subsequent staff cuts will also force out many young teachers in favor of those with more seniority. Some feel this will disrupt the need exchange of ideas between newer and older teachers.

"It is important to have a balance in any system," said Clarkston Elementary School teacher Betty Kozna. "Some (of the newer teachers) are talented enough that they can go to a place where there isn't a problem with money."

CHS math teachers Karen Uchno and Charlie Carmady, who were hired two years ago, said they will be fired if the millage is defeated. Both said they would like to stay in Clarkston but will look elsewhere if they have to.

"We will go to business or to other teaching jobs," Carmady said, adding he and Uchno have spent stints in business.

Uchno said she is not sure if she would want to stay at Clarkston after a millage defeat.

"To have to be here under those circumstances, I wouldn't wish that on anyone."

"It used to be a matter of pride teaching here. Now I don't know what."

Teacher Jim Ashmore
Clarkston High School

tion," CHS computer science teacher Jim Ashmore said. "It used to be a matter of pride teaching here. Now I don't know what."

This time, cuts would be deep

Cuts include loss of staff, including counselors and support program teachers, on all school levels; no hot lunch program; and no elementary school music or physical education. High school cuts alone include loss of bus transportation, summer school, crisis counseling and all extracurricular activities, including athletics.

High school would lose accreditation

Perhaps the greatest blow to the high school will be loss of its accreditation status and reduction of classes to a five-hour day. Accreditation certifies that a school meets basic educational requirements and is a key factor for college admission.

CHS counselor Bill Hartwell said feedback about CHS graduates from state and national universities has been favorable. However a loss of accreditation would jeopardize that claim.

College admission would be difficult

Admissions officials from Michigan State University, East Lansing, and the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, said a lack of accreditation is a strike against any college-bound graduate.

"It would mean we would have less to evaluate them on," said MSU Associate Director of Admissions Jack Seibold. "It would definitely dampen their chances."

Seibold said CHS is currently one of Oakland County's top 10 contributors of MSU students, producing about 100 every year.

U-M Director of Admissions Richard Shaw said lack of accreditation will be taken into account when judging student transcripts, but not at a cost to his institution.

"We are not going to be lax in our expectations," Shaw said.

Len Loveless, a Pine Knob Elementary School teacher, believes the quality of education in Clarkston schools is surviving despite this year's cuts. But he said additional cuts will strike all education levels hard, especially elementary school.

Elementary levels could be hardest hit

"You start building with a good foundation, and the elementary school is where that foundation is built," said Loveless, whose three children attend Pine Knob Elementary School.

He said where they get their education may take a turn if the millage is defeated.

Millage campaign gears up

For example, the owner of a $100,000 home assessed at half the market value ($50,000) would pay an extra $275 a year in taxes if the millage is approved.

Millage workers argue that the extra money is actually a good deal. Among other services, the money will pay for extra-curricular activities, including athletics; bus transportation for middle school and high school students; and library, gym and music time for elementary students.

If the millage fails, those services would be eliminated. Plus, school would be reduced to a five-hour day, laying off 22 teachers and eliminating lunch programs, Latchkey and most elementary recess time.

Further, the high school would lose its accreditation, making it more difficult for high school seniors to get accepted into the college of their choice.

The extra millage money is needed to offset the loss of about $1.6 million in state aid money for the 1990-91 school year.

If the millage fails, $2 million will be cut from the budget—above the $1.6 million cut from the 1989-90 budget.

If the millage is approved, the money would restore the school budget to the 1988-89 level of operation.

Clarkston schools has continued to lose state aid despite the 5.5 mills approved by voters in June 1988. In the 1988-89 school year, Clarkston received $3.3 million in state aid; 1989-90 state aid is $1.7 million ($1.6 million less), and state aid for 1990-91 will total $196,000.

Reductions resulted from a loss of student enrollment—about 150 fewer students than expected—and the Headlee Amendment's effect on the state aid formula.

The Headlee Amendment automatically rolls back the millage rate whenever property values increase at a rate higher than the rate of inflation.

Since part of the state aid formula is tied to the number of mills levied in a community, whenever the Headlee rolls back the millage rate, the state contributes less money.

On Monday, Jan. 29, at the administrative offices, Superintendent Gary Haner is to give three informational presentations about the state aid formula, the Headlee Amendment and its impact, and a possible solution to the problem.

Sessions are set for 10 a.m., 1 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Each presentation will take between 40-45 minutes with time for questions afterward, Haner said.

Andersonville Road site named industrial district

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Spring construction is planned for a 147-acre industrial development district in the works on Andersonville and White Lake roads, Springfield Township.

After an hour-long discussion Jan. 11, the township board voted 4-3 to designate the site as an industrial development district.

Voting yes were Clerk Calvin Walters and trustees Margaret Bloom, Charles Oaks and Dennis Vallad. Voting against the district were Supervisor Collin Walls, Treasurer Lois Stiles and Trustee Nancy Strole.

After the meeting, Walls said an industrial development district is an industrial area developed with roads and sites for buildings. Each individual building still needs township approval.

Developers of the project, as yet unnamed, are Robert and Charles Harding, owners of Springfield-based Clawson Tank, which manufactures shipping and storage tanks for U.S. and Canadian chemical processing companies.

No businesses are lined up for the industrial park yet -- except for Clawson Tank itself, said Charles Harding, after the meeting.

Estimated at $1.4 million, a 16,000-square-foot office and a 14,000-square-foot industrial building are planned for Clawson Tank as the first development in the industrial district, he said.

In a public hearing before the board's vote, one resident questioned the road access planned for the development. Road access is planned for Andersonville Road.

"I would rather look at having industrial property instead of another subdivision."

Trustee Charles Oaks

Clawson Tank has access off of White Lake Road currently.

After the public hearing, board members voiced concern over a nearby residential section.

It should be protected from the industrial park with as much undeveloped land as possible, said Walls, adding that the park should be developed in phases.

Strole expressed concern about the broader implications of another industrial park in the township.

The township could end up looking like a "crazy quilt" because companies could develop industrial parks whenever they wanted to expand, she said.

For example, Holly Greens, an industrial park on Enterprise Road in the township, developed four of five lots in the first phase, which began in the mid-1960s, said Walls.

In the second phase, begun in the late 1970s, only three of 22 sites are developed, he said.

However, some board members liked the economic benefits industrial parks could provide to the area.

Michigan needs employment, said Oaks.

"I would rather look at having industrial property instead of another subdivision," he said. "It's already zoned light industrial. Of what benefit is it to deny (the industrial park)?"

Robert Harding said he planned to use the township's tax abatement to entice businesses to the park. Businesses are eligible for a 50 percent reduction in property taxes for 12 years, contingent upon township board approval.

Since the site is not served by sewer and water, the abatement could be a benefit, he said.

Another benefit is Springfield Township itself, he said.

"I live here and want to stay here," he said. "Other communities have (industrial parks), and it works."

Clawson Tank deals with the top 500-earning companies in the country, Robert Harding said, adding that the industrial park would be a boon to the area.

"This will benefit us and the community if we draw top clients," he said.

After the meeting, Charles Harding said the economy was right for such development.

"I see so much moving in this direction -- I think the time is here for this development to get underway," he said.

Since the site is zoned light industrial, typical manu-

Reporter's Notebook

The Clarkston News received its first press release on the FAX last week. However, it ended up in the trash as it regarded some out-of-town event we would never cover.

***

The Clarkston News missed its first letter on the fax this week because someone in our office gave the letter-writer the wrong number for our machine. Luckily, the author called about 5:30 p.m. just to make sure we received his letter. Since we hadn't, he rushed over to hand-deliver the letter since it was deadline day.

***

The Feb. 12 Clarkston school election comes at a difficult time, as far as elections clerk Rosemary Howey of Independence Township is concerned.

Many of her poll workers are retired, and most spend their winters in Florida or Arizona, she said, adding that she had a difficult time rounding up the minimum number of workers for each precinct.

To add insult to injury, some of the migrated poll workers have sent her their requests for absentee voter ballots, adding even more work to Howey's load.

Worse, they've sent notes with the requests, telling her how warm their weather is and how many holes of golf they played that day.

***

Absentee voter ballots were not even available last week for the Feb. 12 Clarkston school election, but a stack of requests for them were piled up on elections clerk Rosemary Howey's desk already.

It looks as if it's going to be a heavy turnout, Howey said.

facturing businesses might be attracted to the park, such as welding, assembly and plastics, he said, adding that he was happy to be located in the township.

"Springfield is a very beautiful place to do business," he said. "There is reasonable amount of talent available, yet it's far enough away from the Rochesters, Rochester Hills, Troys and Farmington Hills to give us more of a country atmosphere, ... a better quality of life. And that's the way this development will be done."

The above information was compiled from reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Mat Dunaskiss considers Senate

State Rep. Mat J. Dunaskiss (R-Lake Orion) has announced plans to file a Senate Campaign Committee with the Michigan Secretary of State.

The action is seen as a first step in his eventual announcement to seek the eighth state Senate seat being vacated by Sen. Rudy Nichols, who plans to run for a judge's position.

"I am taking a serious look at the race and will announce my intentions within 30 days," Dunaskiss stated. "I have been seeking support for the idea and am receiving enthusiastic endorsements districtwide. If this momentum continues to grow in the next few days, I will be in the race."

Filing a Campaign Committee allows Dunaskiss to begin raising and spending money for a potential race. Because the Republican control in the Senate is on the line, the Eighth Senate District could be one of the most heated races in the state.

Dunaskiss is currently serving his fifth term in the Michigan House of Representatives and is a former Oakland County Commissioner. In the 1988 race, Dunaskiss was reelected with 79.5 percent of the vote and is viewed as a popular incumbent.

Dunaskiss has a leadership position in the House of Representatives and currently serves on the Public Health, Transportation, Liquor Control and Corporations and Finance committees.

Outside view

Julie Campe

The Village Bakeshop in downtown Clarkston was a big hit with Roberto, an exchange student from Caracas, Venezuela, who is living with a family in Frankfurt (Mich.).

I met him over the weekend, when his host family visited their Clarkston area relatives — the O'Brien family of Almond Lane, Independence Township.

Roberto, two members of the O'Brien family and two members of the Campe family went with me to see "Glory," a recently-released movie starring Matthew Broderick, Denzel Washington and Morgan Freeman. The movie was good.

Roberto speaks excellent English but nevertheless warned us that he may have questions during the movie.

He did, but we couldn't answer them. (I think he caught more of the plot than we did.)

Throughout the evening, Roberto, 17, asked a lot of questions, presumably because there was a lot of English slang he didn't know. But I think he was really an acute observer of human behavior and would have asked his questions no matter what language he was speaking at the time.

For instance, he turns age 18 at the end of this month — the age he can vote and drive in Venezuela.

However, there is no drinking age in Venezuela, and because of it, teen-agers don't act stupid with alcohol as soon as they're let loose, he said.

In Venezuela, he and his family drink wine on special occasions — and drink moderately.

In Frankfurt, the teen-agers get together with beer, and they immediately gulp down three or four — without breathing practically.

He shook his head while he related the story. He was genuinely bewildered. That would make people sick, he said. Plus, what fun is drinking for the sake of drinking?

Of course, there isn't much to do in Frankfurt, he conceded.

That was quite a culture shock for him — more so than the language. He lives in Venezuela's capital city — with a population of 2 million.

Frankfurt has 1,500 people, he said.

He's tried everything the small town has to offer: skiing, going to the movies.

Before "Glory," the last movie he had seen was "Back to the Future Part Two." It was not as good as Part One, he said.

He was disappointed in the advertisements. Whenever someone opened a refrigerator or pulled into a gas station, a brand name glared out from the screen, he said.

I doubt many Americans — teen-agers or adults — would have noted that.

With clear, blue-gray eyes and dark hair pulled back into a neat, short pony tail, Roberto piped up with a bit of wisdom every now and then, while we enjoyed our late-night treats from the Bakeshop.

There was the matter of his hair, he said. His dad swore that Roberto would not come to the United States with long hair. But on Roberto's last day in Venezuela, he outwitted his father and managed to avoid the barber.

His father was not happy, Roberto said, laughing, as he drank his cappuccino. (That could be a universal hang-up with fathers everywhere in the world.)

He visited his parents in Florida over the Christmas holidays, and it was good seeing them, he said, admitting that he misses them.

But he's getting used to Frankfurt, he said. "I wish Frankfurt had something like this — open 24 hours," he said, looking around inside the Bakeshop.

"All we have is a Shell Minimart," he said, smirking.

Get information

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Jokisch:

You, of all people.

You, who have seen your own children earn full-ride scholarships after their athletic careers at Clarkston schools. You, whose son now coaches ninth-grade basketball at Clarkston.

What are those athletic scholarships worth to you? Do they not compensate you in some measure? Did not Clarkston's programs pave the way for your offspring?

Can it be possible that you think the schools have raised your assessments? Your school's millage rate has been going down steadily. The assessments are raised by township, county and state governments, not by the schools.

But the schools get to bear the brunt when people like you imply that our financial problems are not real. Get some information, for Pete's sake.

The rest of us have cheered you on, gloried in your children's successes and been mighty proud when they picked off those scholarships. Many of us can only dream of that success.

But we might have expected the same support from you when it comes to the educational needs of our kids.

A Clarkston Fan,
Name withheld
by request

Letter offered poor proposal

I cannot believe that a reader of The Clarkston News actually proposed that a separate millage election take place to finance sports.

With that kind of mentality, we would soon have separate millage elections for busing, purchasing new books, music, janitorial service and on and on.

My point is that quality education doesn't offer only one strong area; it offers many options. Schools should offer students well-rounded choices that allow learning to be not only challenging and exciting but also allows students the opportunity to explore many different fields. Our students should be offered longer hours and more choices, not less.

Young people will need to be better equipped for the future job market, and it is our responsibility as adults to make sure that they receive the best education possible.

Kathy Desrochers

Student worried about future

That time has come around again, time to vote on the millage.

It's also the time that kids in the high school have started wondering what will happen to them next year, and what choices they have for new schools.

It is ridiculous that Clarkston has come to this point where a day doesn't go by when you're wondering, "Will I be able to go to school next year in my home town with my friends?" "Will there be anymore things to look forward to like sports, or the Friday night games, or even homecoming or senior prom?"

Come on! This is high school. This is supposed to be the best times of our lives, not a time to constantly be worrying about what's going to happen next year if the millage fails.

So please vote yes to pass our millage.

Statistics show that in Oakland County, Clarkston is ranked fourth in highest income and last in amount of money put into the schools.

Clarkston schools are gradually becoming better and better in all areas, especially sports.

Clarkston now has some of the best athletes and the best teams we've had in a long time.

I'd rather be playing sports with my friends, not against them when they all go to different schools.

So let's keep Clarkston on its feet so we don't have to hear "Yeah, Clarkston was a good school, at one time."

Vote yes for the millage.

Letters to Editor

It's easy to say no

Yes, it is often easier to just say no. If we say no then maybe things will remain the same. But will they?

A recent publication entitled "Fiscal Update #10" from the office of David C. Hollister, state representative, stated the following:

"There are other aspects of the aging of American which must be understood. In 1950, 17 people worked in a job to support each retiree. By 1992, three people will hold a job to support each retiree, and one out of those three workers will be a minority.

"If we are to maintain a solvent retirement system and our current standard of living, it is imperative that our youth — and, in particular our minority youth — receive a quality education and be assured good paying jobs based on their skills.

"Several studies indicate strongly that a central problem with our educational system is an inability to prepare a sufficient number of youth for the expanding high-skilled jobs."

The short-term decision to say no to school funding will have a significant impact on the children but of equal significance is the impact such a decision will have on most of us in our later years.

A recent editorial written by two parents with one child remaining in our schools is a good example of this narrow, selfish and possibly self-defeating view.

Their children enjoyed a good education in the Clarkston schools, and as a result of our excellent athletic program, several of their children received college scholarships.

Now that their children are through with their education in the Clarkston schools, they believe it's time for them to say no to any further funding and thereby deny similar opportunities for the rest of the children in this school district.

Perhaps these parents aren't concerned about the rest of the children in this community and perhaps they hope to enjoy a large corporate pension and therefore won't have to depend upon Social Security, but to give them the benefit of the doubt, perhaps they are just uninformed about the condition of our schools and the tricks played on us by the Lansing bureaucrats and their school-aid formula.

Of course, the school district will continue to function without additional funds, but will an unaccredited program with no extra-curricular activities generate a scholarship for another deserving student/athlete?

Will such a program prepare our children for the high skill jobs of today and tomorrow and thereby ensure our standard of living and the solvency of our retirement system?

I would urge all parents and concerned citizens in the Clarkston community to read the latest newsletter published by the Clarkston Community Schools.

It is entitled the "Election Connection" and is full of useful information. Then plan to attend one of the informational meetings scheduled for Jan. 29 at the Clarkston Board of Education offices. Three sessions are available for your convenience at 10 a.m., 1 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Every effort will be made to answer your questions, such as how our assessments can rise an average of 14 percent while the school district receives only 1 percent. Find out how the state gets all the rest.

It's easy to say no, but before you do, be sure you have all the information and are confident that you are making the right decision both for yourself and for the children of this community.

William J. Bliesath

Too many ads

I am enclosing my check for a year's renewal to your paper, which I have enjoyed for many years.

But now I feel I must voice my displeasure at the increasing space used in it for advertisements and sports, thus crowding out local news items and others of interest.

Yellow monsters

Tracy King

On just another Wednesday last week, I was driving south on White Lake Road, beginning my long way home to West Bloomfield.

There are good and bad times to make this trip. Traffic driving into Clarkston is worse between 6 and 7 p.m.. Driving out of Clarkston gets bad, for some reason, around 4 p.m.

It was around 4 p.m. this particular Wednesday when I was stopped by my first obstacle: a Clarkston Community Schools bus.

This is going to be a long trip, I said to myself, contemplating the stops ahead, as the red lights flashed and flashed.

Then the bus did a strange thing.

The flashing stopped, the bus pulled forward, and it lumbered to the shoulder to let me pass.

I waved and smiled tentatively at the driver. Had my grimace been noticed? Was it passed to the driver by the students in back?

Friday afternoon came, and while driving to our publishing plant in Oxford, I was slowed by a Lake Orion Community Schools bus letting students off onto Indianwood Road.

I didn't grimace, and the bus pulled over to let me pass.

What was this? Benevolent buses? Had they changed?

At our high school we were (un)lucky enough to have a swimming pool, which meant that we had to swim for gym. In bathing suits.

If you were very vain, you would take gym last so you could just take your disheveled wet self home. If you were very, very vain — you would still try to pull yourself together before getting on the bus.

On more than one afternoon I raced out the front double doors, frantic to find my number displayed on buses stacked four deep, only to watch them begin to pull away.

Then there were mornings when, finally, I would reach the end of our very rural driveway in time to see the bus retreating in the distance.

Yellow monsters.

Not all bus drivers were bad. Some did nothing but growl "siddown," but there was one I actually looked forward to seeing.

He was labeled as "weird," not for the suspenders or black framed glasses, but for his blackboard.

Every day a new saying would appear, and occasionally prizes were offered to anyone who could find them in the Bible.

The sayings usually didn't make too much sense, and no winner was ever announced, but they were secretly sought out and read by some of us.

I loved that bus driver.

Didn't he used to pull over onto the shoulder a lot?

Roger's au pair takes le cake

Jim Fitzgerald

Speaking of General Motors ...

The woman behind the bar gave me a startled look. "Please don't lean on the bar," she said. The bar was moving toward her, forcing her to back up while pouring liquid on ice.

We were in the lobby of Ford Auditorium during intermission of the Nutcracker ballet. "This bar is on wheels," the bartender explained. "If you lean on it, it pins me to the wall."

I wasn't leaning on it, but I could understand her mistake. She couldn't see the nearest customer, Tricia, because only her tiny fingers were visible. Tricia, 3, was using the edge of the bar for a trapeze.

"I need an au pair for my granddaughter," I said as I belatedly snatched Tricia out of trouble. Au pairs probably aren't as belated as grandpooops.

A newspaper said GM Chairman Roger Smith and wife Barbara, "are taking their kids, spouses and grandkids down to the Caribbean for the holiday. The family group will number 11, with an au pair along to make the tally an even dozen."

In the same newspaper, a few pages away, there was an article detailing the travails of workers laid off from a closed GM plant. They were in for a meager Christmas, without much to give their children. I wondered how many of those unlucky parents knew what an au pair is.

My dictionary says an au pair is "a foreign girl who does domestic work for a family in return for room and board and the opportunity to learn the family's language."

Michael Moore, creator of the much-acclaimed "Roger & Me" movie, would undoubtedly have a pungent reaction to the ironic juxtaposition of the Smith au pair and jobless ah pooh articles.

He might say: "The Roger Smiths have a foreign babysitter, but they don't want you to have a foreign car. The difference is you don't have to pay for an au pair with cash, you just have to teach her how to say 'stock options' in English."

I haven't seen "Roger & Me," so I have no opinion on it except to say several people voiced opinions on it before seeing it, and my objective opinion is they're full of baloney. I also want to brag that I was the first member of the news media to give Moore considerable publicity. It was more than 20 years ago, when he became the first high school student elected to a school board.

That was in Davison, a tiny rural Flint suburb that deserves an unlikely reputation for nurturing rebels. Although it's never been mentioned in the recent countless articles about Moore, the infamous anti-establishment John Sinclair also grew up in Davison, and moved on to serve a wildly unjust prison term for possession of two marijuana cigarettes. John Lennon sang to raise defense money for Sinclair, which must be Davison's chief claim to fame, although few of its citizens bragged about it at the time.

As editor of a nearby weekly newspaper, I supported Sinclair when he said bad things about the American Legion, and I rooted for Moore when he refused to act like the typical school board member — conservative Republican and half-asleep. My stance was unpopular and I was roundly berated by the local citizenry.

But Lennon never sang for me, and I'll never win an Academy Award, drat it. Some rebels just don't have what it takes, or they have a wife and three children.

Anyway, I spent the holiday with children and grandchildren but sans au pair (I love to write words I never say). Even on New Year's Eve, I didn't lean on a bar. Tricia and her sister and I banged pans at midnight, but didn't drown out the sound of guns shooting near my Detroit home. I'm glad I didn't have to explain that to an au pair.

If I bought a foreign girl from Roger Smith, would she come with a rebate?

Not whole story

In response to the letter in last week's Clarkston News from the director of Michigan Department of Management and Budget, I feel Mr. Solomon did not present the whole story regarding the state's support of education.

I do not question his presentation as far as higher education is concerned but feel the state government has not demonstrated the same commitment to K-12 education in Michigan.

According to statistics from the Patterson-Anderson group, while Michigan ranks fourth highest out of the 50 states in property taxes, the state ranks 45th in percentage of the budget dedicated education, which ranks Michigan near the bottom in state support of the schools.

This level of support occurs at a time during which total state spending has reportedly been increasing at an average rate of $350 million per year. Also, percentage of the budget going to K-12 education has dropped from 30 percent in 1971 to 7.5 percent in 1988.

What the state has created, either by plan or happenstance, is a scheme by which the schools are essentially made to be the scapegoats in collecting tax increases to fund the expansion of state government.

A few examples of this can be seen in:

1) The state aid formula, which bases state aid on the local millage rate and penalizes districts that do not approve increases greater than the rate of inflation by reducing the amount of state aid the schools receive (Headlee override elections).

2) The state lottery, which offsets the total aid to schools by the amount the lottery generates, thereby adding an equal amount to the state's general fund.

3) Channeling the tax revenue generated from property tax assessment increases to Lansing in in-formula school districts, resulting in no increase to the local district in spite of rapidly escalating local property taxes.

4) Recent Proposals A and B, which sought to continue the "shell game" of using education as the means of pressuring the public into voting for an unwanted general tax increase under the guise of improving education.

While I wholeheartedly agree with the schools' need for additional funding for quality education, passing a school millage by itself is only a temporary Band-aid approach and will do nothing to solve the cause of the problem that exists, which will continue until the state reorders its priorities.

Therefore, we must put our efforts into supporting a permanent solution, which I believe the proposed Patterson-Anderson ballot initiative will do.

I think the time is rapidly approaching, if it has not already arrived, when many taxpayers may be financially unable to support further millage increases despite the need, so let's exercise our right as citizens and taxpayers to require Lansing to live up to its responsibility in deed as well as rhetoric.

Bill Molzon

Millage critical to community

I want to publicly thank the local print media, including your newspaper, for providing to our community a public forum for discussion and information regarding the proposed millage increase for the Clarkston schools.

That millage increase is critical to the success, in real terms, of our school system and also to the vitality of our North Oakland community and the unique environment and lifestyle, which we are privileged to enjoy for ourselves and our families.

In hard dollar terms, a nominal increase in the millage is a very small price to pay for the tangible benefits that accrue to this community as a direct consequence of a school system, which is an invaluable source of quality education.

Property values are directly and substantially affected by the availability of quality education.

There simply is no substitute, and for any community to allow its educational system to become generally known and dismissed as inadequate is irresponsible and even shameful.

As a parent of two preschoolers, I am obviously influenced by the immediate impact of this issue. I am also a property owner, which is clearly another influence on my own thinking.

However, I am fortunate enough to be able to live and enroll my children in any number of other communities, and the first and overriding factor which compels my ardent support of the school millage increase is the unavoidable necessity to all of us and to all of our children to insist upon and even sacrifice for the best possible educational opportunities for every future generation.

This country finds itself engaged in fierce global competition for limited resources, limited jobs, limited opportunity and limited profit.

The dominant culture — be it a united Europe, Asia or the United States — will owe its ultimate success and prominence to its collective brain power, and not merely its manpower.

Creativity, management, entrepreneurial spirit is prevailing and will ultimately dominate over the unskilled and the untrained.

If we as a community intend to be responsible to our children and the expanding needs of our country as a whole, and if we desire to very selfishly protect our own individual interest as a successful global competitor, we cannot avoid and should take great satisfaction from our commitment to education at every level.

The K- through 12th-grade years are acknowledged by every informed source to be critical beyond comparison.

It will not be the major universities but rather local community school systems that will determine our own collective grade in real terms, in the real world.

There's no better investment

For the last few weeks, the editorial pages of your newspaper have been filled with the letters of persons wishing to provide input relating to the Clarkston school district's request for additional operating funds.

As expected, some of the letters have included the usual list of items that will be cut if the millage fails, while others have cited the new tax assessments that always seem to come at the same time that the community is asked to support a millage increase.

Other letters remind us of the inadequacy of the State of Michigan to provide equity in school financing, and suggest that we are "stupid" if we support the school request for millage.

Editorial authors also remind us that this is the only time that we can let the government know about our displeasure in the increase in taxes.

There is no doubt that living is expensive.

None of these editorial comments are new. In fact, I recall the same comments being made by my own parents and grandparents over the past two generations.

Yet, they, like I, shall always support the request for school millage. I realize, like those who came before me, that there is no better investment for my dollar. In no other situation have I received so much for so little.

My children have been raised. Both were educated in the Clarkston schools, and both have earned college degrees. Both are well prepared for this world we now live in.

I cannot forget that their success and happiness was greatly enhanced by their educations — and that their educations were funded by many citizens, citizens who diligently paid their taxes to keep the schools relevant and well supplied.

I could not have educated my children without the assistance of neighbors and friends in this community. Now I have the opportunity to continue that road of success for others.

Yes, I was frustrated when I looked at the increase in my assessment. And I was frustrated when I saw the raise in prices at local shops and stations. And I am thoroughly disgusted with a state that does not provide equity in education for all of the children.

However, I cannot allow that disgust and frustration to be taken out on the children.

If our problem is high assessments, let's get together and fight them.

If our problem is poor financing by the State of Michigan, let's make a real effort to change their financing programs.

If our problem is the burden of tax placed on persons with fixed incomes, let's join together to right this wrong.

But let us not take our frustration out on the children. Vote "YES" for the most important quality of tomorrow — Vote "YES" for our children.

Donald H. Kevern

Our civic duty

It seems to me that millage opponents Paul and Debby Jokisch have overlooked their civic responsibility in providing the community with an excellent educational system in our schools.

Their total concern is based on rising assessments, without considering the advantages their family has received because of quality programs in the schools.

Three of their children, given the opportunity to show their individual talents in the Clarkston schools, have received full or partial athletic scholarships to Michigan colleges.

The citizens of this community have supported the schools, which provided the Jokisch children opportunities other school districts couldn't offer them. They should not forget that one's civic responsibility goes beyond personal gain.

A good community depends on good education for its youth in all endeavors, athletic or academic. There is no such thing as a "free ride" when it comes to civic responsibility.

If they have a problem with the recent assessment increase, let me suggest that they take their frustrations out on those who control the assessment rate, not on the children of our community.

I strongly urge the voters in the Clarkston school district to support our children and schools in the upcoming millage.

Dave Davis

Drivers running school bus lights

To The People Of Clarkston:

I, a Brandon school bus driver, am appalled at how some of you drive on Main Street.

Four days a week, I pick up a Clarkston student at Clarkston Elementary and drop him off in front of the township offices. I pull over to the curb and turn my red flashers on 200 feet before I stop.

Every day, at least one car runs my lights. The other day, three cars ran my lights. I have cars from both directions go through the red lights.

Red means STOP! Lucky for you and the boy I drop off, he doesn't have to cross in front of my bus.

It is a local ordinance to stop for a bus loading and unloading. A ticket can be issued for that offense.

But most important, let's think about the safety of the children who I may be dropping off or picking up.

Hopefully, someone is not running the red lights of the bus your child is on.

State says yes to Village of Clarkston cityhood

"I'm sure there will be a vote on the issue," said Catallo. "I hope the vote is positive."

"All the members in village council support cityhood," said Basinger. "Even though we would lose our jobs, it's an important step to obtain local control in the village."

Prior to the Clarkston hearing on Tuesday, the boundary commission denied Auburn Hills' request to annex a portion of Orion Township into its cityhood.

Currently, the Village of Clarkston exists within

"There wouldn't be many changes if the village becomes a city."

Trustee William Basinger

Independence Township boundaries. If cityhood takes place, the boundaries wouldn't change but would become permanent.

Independence Township Supervisor Frank Ronk was also present during the decision.

"I think the boundary commission did what most people thought it would," said Ronk. "They turned it over to the people."

If cityhood passes, both Ronk and township Trustee Frank Millard would have to make a decision on whether to move out of the village and into the township. Township elected officials are required to live in the township.

"We both have just started our second year," said Ronk. "I'm not sure whether I would move or not. It depends on the job."

The township board will act as a support group for the village people, said Ronk. It will provide information on various costs of cityhood that residents would have to provide for themselves, including police, sewer and parks and recreation.

"I don't think cityhood is a good move just for the purpose of protecting village boundaries," said Ronk. "It will end up dividing the community."

Ice enthusiasts should take precautions all winter

BY DAVID KWASNICK
Clarkston News Special Writer

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) keeps divers from its Marine Division on call around the clock to rescue people who have plunged through ice and into the frigid waters of area lakes.

However, while safety may often end with them, it should begin with precautions taken by all would-be ice enthusiasts, according to Lt. Barry Eriksen of the OCSD Marine Division.

"A lot of people call and ask if it's safe to do this or safe to do that," Eriksen said. "The ice is not safe until you check it yourself."

He said the Marine Division's 12-diver team responded to 16 calls for help last winter, including one fatality.

Clarkston resident Henry Richardson, 38, drowned Jan. 23, 1989, when he and friend James Allen Evans fell through ice on Deer Lake's north end while skating.

The team has yet to receive an emergency call this winter, Eriksen said.

He said it is impossible to tell the thickness of lake ice because it varies with each body of water. Factors such as shade from surrounding trees and underwater currents affect ice formation.

"You can have some areas on one lake that are 16 inches thick and some that are one inch thick," he said. Capt. Steve Ronk of the Independence Fire Department was part of the team that tried to rescue Richardson. Ronk said the section of Deer Lake that Richardson fell through was weakened by an inlet of running water. Ice formations on many area lakes are unpredictable because the lakes are fed by churning springs, he said. Recent above-freezing temperatures and rain com-

Ice accidents can be prevented

An average of seven people perish in ice-related accidents each year in Michigan, according to Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) marine specialists.

Last year, eight Michigan residents lost their lives, with the majority of ice fatalities involving snowmobiles, three- or four-wheel all terrain vehicles, people ice fishing and children playing on ice.

Extreme caution on ice is advised, particularly during the early and late winter months of January, March and April. During these months, temperatures often fluctuate, freezing then thawing the ice and rendering it unsafe in many instances.

Most accidents can be prevented. Following are some tips.

Ice safety precautions

- Never drive a motor vehicle on ice.
- Know the condition of the ice. Regularly test ice thickness with an ice spud or heavy bar.
- Avoid gray, dark or porous spots on the ice; these spots indicate soft ice. Remember, ice deteriorates first around stream mouths, lake inlets and outlets, shorelines and around tree stumps, pilings and docks.
- Have rescue gear handy during any ice activity. Life-saving equipment can include a ladder, 50 feet of rope or hose, tree limb, spare tire or an article of clothing.
- Make it a practice to wear a personal flotation device or life jacket when participating in any ice activity.
- Assist ice victims from solid ground. If a rescuer must assist from ice, lie flat with body weight spread evenly across the ice.

■ Cold water drowning victims can often be resuscitated. Administer cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and immediately transport the victim to a hospital. Procedures for unassisted ice victims

■ Turn on your back and kick to work yourself out of the hole.

■ Get out of the ice in the direction you walked on, where you know the ice will hold your weight.

■ Do not stand; rather roll away from the hole until you can safely stand.

■ Work fast; it takes only minutes before the cold water will affect your reasoning and grasp.

■ Your clothes will soon freeze; walk to safety quickly. Remove your car keys before they freeze inside your coat or pants pocket.

bine to create "honey-comb" ice on area lakes — a

Joe Haworth, owner and manager of Kelly's Sports, Inc., Dixie Highway, Waterford Township, said he has more than 25 years of ice fishing experience on area lakes and refuses to venture on ice less than six inches thick.

"It's just not worth it," he said, adding he tests thickness by boring through it.

Haworth also said he will not drive any motorized vehicles onto the ice.

Eriksen said the majority of distress calls divers responded to last year involved vehicles that fell through ice. Plus, it costs as much as $1,500 to retrieve vehicles from the water — a cost insurance companies refuse to pay.

"The poor owner really gets the bill for that," Eriksen said. "It's not a cheap venture."

formation of ice that remains weak despite its thickness, Ronk said.

Honey-comb ice forms when water from rain or melted ice refreezes on solid ice, layering and trapping air bubbles inside it.

"It may be six or seven inches thick, but it has the potential to break," Ronk said.

Eriksen said he considers five inches of ice a safe thickness for human travel, but because of varying ice thicknesses, people should check for themselves. Boring through ice with auger is a safe and effective way of testing thickness.

It's also important to use a "buddy system" or let someone know where you are when venturing on ice, Eriksen said.

"Anytime you are on water, winter or summer, you should use a buddy system," he said.

Ronk said when he ventures on ice he brings along an instrument to "sound" the ice by beating on it. A dull solid sound denotes thick ice while a hollow sound usually means it's thinner and potentially unsafe.

Maybee project may be the last multiples built

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Likely "one of the last apartments" planned in Independence Township received conceptual site plan approval from the township planning commission Jan. 11.

The 101-unit townhouse development, proposed by the Singh Development Company in Birmingham, is planned on a 20-acre parcel on the north side of Maybee Road east of Sashabaw Road.

The development is located on one of the few remaining parcels of township property zoned for multiple developments, a fact noted by planning commission member Steve Secatch.

"Land zoned for apartments is almost full," Secatch noted during his review of the plans.

Overall, Secatch and the other members were pleased with the project. After members suggested minor improvements, the site plan was approved with a 6-0 vote.

Voting yes were acting Chairwoman Jo Fussman, Joseph Figa, Bruce Mercado, Richard Oppmann, Steve Secatch and Daniel Travis. Chairman Brent Bair was absent.

The townhouses are planned as two- and three-bedroom units on curved linear streets. The development

"This area needed a family-type development that is two stories, with a basement; families need a lot of storage."

Amarjit S. Chawney

includes a clubhouse, pool, tennis courts and playground area.

The project is laid out with the majority of units in the center of the parcel, leaving open space surrounding it. There are five units per acre, which is the low end of what the township requires.

"The nature and style of the development makes this extremely low density from the standpoint of multiples," according to township planner Richard Carlisle. "Land coverage is extremely low."

Planning commission members requested that landscaping be increased in areas that face other developments, that sidewalks be extended to Maybee Road and that certain trees be saved.

In reviewing the plans, Oppmann asked developers what need they discovered when planning the development.

"Most of these (apartment developments) are not family projects," answered Amarjit S. Chawney of Singh. "This area needed a family-type development that is two stories, with a basement; families need a lot of storage."

As the site plan consideration neared the end, Singh representatives expressed their long-term appreciation of the township.

"This is a lovely community — one of the nicest in the area."

Accountants field commonly asked tax questions

(Prepared by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants)

To help taxpayers get a head start on their 1989 tax returns, the Michigan Association of CPAs has supplied the answers to some of the most commonly asked questions on 1989 taxes.

What are the tax rates for 1989?

They are the same as last year. The good news is that the brackets have been adjusted for inflation. As a result, you can earn a little more money before moving into a higher tax bracket.

I served on jury duty recently and had to surrender the check to my employer. Will I still have to declare the jury-duty pay as income?

Yes. But a new tax law will enable you to take a deduction for that same amount - even if you don't itemize. As a result, you will no longer be taxed on money you didn't actually keep.

My son received a scholarship for the past school year. Will he have to report the money as taxable income?

The answer depends on how the money is used and whether your son is a degree candidate. Scholarships or fellowships made after August 16, 1986 are tax-free only for degree candidates who use the funds for tuition and course-related expenses. You can no longer exclude from income any money awarded for such expenses as room, board and travel. Nor can you exclude any funds received in return for teaching or research services -- even if they are required for the degree.

I sold some stocks this year. How do I figure out how much capital gain or loss I need to report?

Basically, you calculate the amount of gain or loss by subtracting the amount you paid for the investment from the amount you sold it for. The latter information is provided on the 1099-B form that your broker or mutual fund will send you. If you haven't received your statement by the time you're ready to fill out your return, you're not off the hook - a gain must still be reported. Keep in mind that certain activities, such as participation in a dividend reinvestment program, may make calculating gain a tricky matter. In these cases, your best option may be consulting a CPA.

I'm self-employed and maintain an office at home. Will I be able to deduct my business expenses?

If the space in your home is used regularly and exclusively for business and is separate from your living space, you may be able to deduct a percentage of the costs of running your house, including your utilities and even a home security system. But keep in mind that the home-office deduction may be a red flag for IRA audits.

What are the guidelines for deducting IRA contributions?

You can still fully deduct your IRA if neither you nor your spouse participated in an employer's retirement plan in 1989, or if your adjusted gross income is under $25,000, if single, or $40,000, if married. Once you satisfy either of these requirements, you can shelter up to $2,000, if single and up to $4,000 if married and both spouses work. If only one spouse works, the most you can contribute is $2,250.

What happens if I do participate in a retirement plan and make more money than the limits allow?

If you (or your spouse) are covered by a company-sponsored plan, the amount of your IRA deduction will drop by $200 for every $1,000 of adjusted gross income over the income limits just mentioned.

Has the deduction for personal interest changed again?

Yes. For 1989, you can only deduct 20 percent of the interest charged on consumer loans and credit cards. This year, the deduction drops to 10 percent. And in 1991, the deduction will disappear entirely.

I recently bought my first home. What deductions are available to homeowners?

First of all, if you paid points to obtain a mortgage, you may be entitled to deduct these in full this year. Also, you can deduct any other mortgage interest you pay (within limits), as well as your property taxes.

Do I have to pay tax on the gain from selling my home?

That depends. Generally, you can defer the gain from selling your primary residence by buying another home of equal or greater value sometime within 24 months of the date of the sale. Alternately, if you are at least age 55 or older and meet certain qualifications, you may be able to exclude from taxable income up to $125,000 in gain by claiming a special provision of the tax law. Ask your CPA for details. In either case, you will still have to report the sale of your home on Form 2119.

Have the rules on miscellaneous and medical deductions changed?

No. The rules in 1989 are exactly the same as those in effect in 1988. Miscellaneous expenses are deductible only to the extent that they exceed 2 percent of your adjusted gross income. Medical expenses are deductible only to the extent that they exceed 7.5 percent of your adjusted gross income.

1980 films: Vietnam and family

In a recent poll, 54 leading film critics voted "Raging Bull" the best film of the decade.

While this recognition reflects an outstanding technical or artistic achievement, a University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, film historian believes that the films for which the 1980s will most be remembered are those that dealt with Vietnam and the family.

"Since 1930, the first full year of talking motion pictures, each decade of American filmmaking has had its defining characteristics," Prof. Frank E. Beaver said.

"It is my firm belief that popular culture, because of the way it pervades our lives, suggests a sense of the mood of the country."

U-M film historian predicts that the '80s will be remembered as the decade of Vietnam and the family.

Beaver, chair of the U-M Department of Communication, is the author of a number of books on film history, including "On Film: A History of the Motion Picture" (1983). His latest book is "A Dictionary of Film Terms" (1984).

Starting with such early films as "Breaking Away" and "Kramer vs. Kramer," more than 200 movies were produced in the 1980s that dealt with what Beaver characterizes as "people struggling to hold together the fundamental unit of our society."

Many of these, including "Terms of Endearment," "The Color Purple" and "Rain Man," now rank among the most popular and lucrative films to date.

While Vietnam films such as "Hamburger Hill," "Good Morning, Vietnam," and "Rambo" flourished in the 1980s, Beaver believes that their prominence reflects "a country and its artists still grappling with the complex impact of the nation's longest war."

Beaver acknowledged that part of the success of the domestic family film results from its prominence on television and the prevailing moral and political conservatism of the Reagan years. But he believes that there is also a larger force at work.

"Both the Vietnam films and the domestic family pictures of the '80s seem to convey a turning inward and a desire for more embracing," he said.

He cited as evidence for his claims a recent Yale University poll, which showed that Americans "overwhelmingly value the family over all else and find their greatest satisfaction in this institution."

In the late '60s and early '70s, Beaver noted, family films were almost completely absent, reflecting the political tenor of the times. "What we saw — and celebrated — were counterculture films portraying family rejection and alienation — 'Five Easy Pieces,' for example, and 'The Graduate.'"

In the early to mid-1970s, Beaver said, the American public still was reeling from the effects of Vietnam and was not prepared to accept its film incarnation.

"The '70s will forever be the decade of the disaster film and the special-effects picture. As the country rebounded from the long, painful ordeal of Vietnam, filmgoers seemed to prefer escapism, make-believe and increasingly, upbeat heroes."

Even as motion pictures in the '90s face stiff competition from VCR sales and the expected advent of high-definition television, Beaver predicted that they will continue to serve as significant indicators of our social climate.

"More than anything, no matter what Siskel and Ebert say, people flock to the movies because of word of mouth, a kind of grass-roots consensus."

The above information was provided by The University of Michigan News and Information Services.

Scoreboard

Clarkston High School Wrestling
The varsity and junior varsity Clarkston Wolves wrestling teams took first place at the Byron Invitational Saturday, Jan. 13.

Varsity, currently ranked fourth in the state Class A division, overpowered their rivals, scoring 206 points.

The JV team also took first scoring, 175.5 points. Brighton took second at 167, and Brandon took third place with 97 points.

"Everything went quite well," said Clarkston coach Scott Strickler. "It's encouraging to see JV do as well as they did."

The Wolves were getting psyched Monday for the Waterford Kettering match Tuesday, Jan. 16. Even with five wins behind them, they wouldn't be taking any chances with this undefeated team.

"It's tough to wrestle them," said Strickler. "They turn off all the lights in the gym and just keep one spot light on the mats."

Clarkston High School Junior Varsity Basketball

Waterford Mott took on the Clarkston Wolves in junior varsity basketball Friday, Jan. 12, winning 43-41.

"We shot the ball absolutely horrible," said Clarkston coach Tim Kaul. "If we had decent foul shooting, we wouldn't be beat."

"I felt we were evenly matched," said Waterford JV coach Les Hunt. "We are small, but we are quick."

Millage discussed at meeting

BY RENEE GLOVINSKY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

About 100 parents, students and coaches expressed their concerns about the upcoming millage election in an athletic meeting Jan. 11 at Clarkston High School.

Property values, high school accreditation, transferring to private schools and moving from the school district were some of the topics of discussion.

On Feb. 12, voters will be asked to approve an extra 5.6371 mills for school operations. One mill is $1 for every $1,000 assessed property valuation.

If the millage request fails, drastic budget cuts will eliminate many programs, including all sports.

When voters failed to override the Headlee Amendment last year, $1.6 million was cut from the school them. If it comes down to them having to leave Clarkston, I'll understand. I was brought up to vote for things that are good for the community because the quality of life is important."

Another issue that arose from the meeting was the fact that not only students will be affected. The value of homes will go down as well.

"People need to realize that property value will lower even if they don't have kids," said Dale Ryan, co-chairman of the Blue Ribbon Kids millage campaign.

According to Ryan, all areas are being targeted by campaign volunteers, from people with pre-schoolers to those with children no longer in school.

So far, it's going well, he said.

"We are trying to remain optimistic about the whole thing," said Ryan. "We are looking for volunteers to help get out information to people before they make their decisions."

For more information contact any school office.

"I'm tired of us not putting the kids first."

Coach Gordon Richardson

budget, including money from athletic programs. As a result, athletes had to pay $164 to participate in a sport.

The Headlee Amendment automatically rolls back the millage rate whenever assessments increase at higher rate than the rate of inflation. Voters have authority to override the amendment.

Answering questions last week were CHS Principal Robert Burek and CHS Athletic Director Paul Tungate.

"There is no question in my mind that we will pass the millage," said Burek. "It is vital that we pass it. If it didn't pass, the effects would carry on from year to year."

"This is like a ball game," said Tungate, whose position would be eliminated if the millage fails. "We are not going to lose. I'm very proud of our athletic programs, and I don't want us to fall apart like Pontiac."

Many students voiced concern about the accreditation of Clarkston High School if the millage fails.

"I'm concerned about where we stand with other colleges," said Clarkston 10th-grader Angie Smith.

According to Tungate, if the millage should fail,

"There really are no real good alternatives. You can't send a child to another school just because of sports."

CHS Principal Robert Burek

Clarkston would lose its accreditation. That doesn't mean that students wouldn't be admitted into colleges, he said.

"There really are no real good alternatives," said Burek. "You can't send a child to another school just because of sports. Clarkston loses $3,200 every time a student moves out. In addition, it's very expensive for the families to pay tuition."

Parent Linda Allen said that she has no plans of leaving the district.

"I've worked hard on elections and will continue to work hard," Allen said.

Coaches also said they would hate to leave Clarkston, although some depend on athletics as their primary income.

Gordon Richardson, full-time coach for three high school team sports, is very concerned.

"I'm tired of us not putting the kids first," said Richardson. "I told my players that I want what's best for is a big part of high school. How we stand with colleges is important." All four girls said they would leave Clarkston if the millage were to fail.

Wolves blow away Corsairs

BY RENEE GLOVINSKY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Some would say the Clarkston Wolves had a split personality Friday, Jan. 12, as they took on the Waterford Mott Corsairs, winning 61-49.

The first half showed Clarkston fans what basketball was all about, but the second half left the crowd concerned over the final outcome.

"The playing was super in the first," said coach Dan Fife. "Both teams were through playing at the half."

Mott coach Ray Robinson agreed. "There are two halves in every game," Robinson said. "We played one."

In the first quarter, Clarkston's Dugan Fife got off to a strong start with a three-point shot. The sophomore guard piled up 20 points in the first quarter.

In the second quarter, Reggie Reed and Dugan Fife hit back-to-back three-point shots for Clarkston. Reed, Dugan Fife and Bill Knight all showed flawless ability as they took turns shooting and assisting to bring the Wolves to a 17-point advantage.

"Knight had control of the board," said coach Fife. The third quarter as well as the fourth were messy for both teams. Only six points were scored by the Wolves in third.

High scorers for the Wolves were Dugan Fife with 26 points, Knight, 14 points, and Walt Wyniemko, nine.

"The first half was the best playing we've done so

"The playing was super in the first. Both teams were through playing at the half."

Coach Dan Fife

far," said coach Fife. "When the starters got tired, Mark Sanderson, Wally Wyniemko, Mark Galbraith and Kellie O'neil came in and kept it going."

The Wolves' next home game will be against Waterford Kettering, Friday, Jan. 19.

Sport Shorts

Home sweet home

Renee Glovinsky

Well, I guess I should start off by saying hello and introducing myself to you. My name is Renee Glovinsky, and I am a new staff writer for The News.

I will primarily be covering sports and Clarkston Village Council stories, although I've been told that writers at The News get a wide variety of topics to choose from. For me that will be ideal. It will give me the chance of meeting with more of you and really getting a feel of what Clarkston is all about.

As a newcomer, I can already tell you this: Your community is very close-knit. It seems as though the true meaning of home and family has never really left Clarkston like it has in so many other communities.

I can also see that community involvement plays an important role in day-to-day living. There are so many activities here to get involved in for all ages, needs and personalities.

A sense of nostalgia is felt when walking through the village. I think of it similar to that in which my great grandma may of experienced in her day. Each shop appears to be so personalized. It must be the ideal place to find that very unique gift for that very special person.

I plan on residing in the Clarkston area by the end of March. My first goal is to get involved in various sporting activities including softball and volleyball.

I also plan on visiting the parks as often as possible. Taking long hikes in the woods or riding my mountain bike through wooded trails sounds like a good way to rid "deadline" stress.

Being a resident from the Southfield area for most of my life, it will be so refreshing knowing that "real" parks and lakes are no longer an hour away but just around the block.

Of course, no place is perfect, and yes, Clarkston, ... even you must have your faults. I have been informed that there is a current millage problem that may prevent future generations from partaking in sports. This would be a shame.

Just from the few games that I have attended, there is a real sense of pride from the kids who participate as well as the coaches and parents. I really hope that this is a false cry.

I hope the threat of diminishing sports in Clarkston doesn't become a reality. As close-knit as you are, I'm sure the answers are there if everyone puts their heads together.

I'm anxious to see the outcome of this issue as well as others, and I'm also anxious to get to know the community as my new home. See you all at the games ahead!

Jogging can help shed extra pounds

Trying to lose those holiday pounds? If running or jogging is your answer, follow these hints to exercise safely:

■ Wear appropriate clothing. Layering is always a good idea.

■ Shoes are the most important single item. Make sure you have shoes designed specifically for running.

■ Work up to your level. If you've never run before, don't try to run 10 kilometers. Walk and run to get in shape gradually. Add a half-mile a week until you reach the distance you like.

■ Warm up. Don't just jump into your shoes and start running. Stretch your legs; strengthen your back with sit-ups and other warm-up exercises. You need not be stiff and sore after a run. Stretching can make all the difference.

■ Run at your own pace. Have fun while you're improving your health.

■ Invite your family and friends to join you.

Ski team races past Cranbrook-Kingswood

BY RENEE GLOVINSKY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston Wolves are headed for a great season, according to new ski coach Judy Roeser. After winning their first meet of the season against Cranbrook, the Wolves show little fear for the future.

Both boys and girls teams took a clean-sweep over Cranbrook-Kingswood, with the boys team winning 14-31 and the girls team winning 13-32.

Co-captain Matt Foyteck came in second at 45.43 seconds. Bryson Menke followed, placing third with 46.15. Justin Whitaker was fourth, with 46.33, and Dave Studt, fifth, at 46.81. The Wolves also took sixth through the eighth place.

Tammy Mitchell took first place for the girls with a score of 47.23 against Kingswood. Heather Johnson came in third at 50.26. Karen Lowe was fourth at 50.92 and Carrie Roeser, fifth, at 51.45. The girls continued to place through eighth as well.

"I'm pleased with both teams," said Roeser. "The girls team is very promising this year; the boys will have tougher competition."

The boys faced their first loss of the season against Lahser Jan. 8 with a score of 26-12.

The girls won the battle against Lahser 10-35. Tammy Mitchell took first place once again.

The race against Country Day Jan. 9 was a real squeaker for the boys with a score of 18-21.

"I didn't anticipate (Country Day) doing as well as they did," said Roeser.

The girls won the race against Country Day hands-down, 10-34.

The Wolves are working hard toward the regional as well as the state championship.

Last year the boys won the regional, and girls came in second.

"We have a great chance of repeating this," said Roeser.

MATT FOYTECK, co-captain for the Clarkston Wolves ski team, heads down the slopes at Pine Knob Ski Resort during one of many practices.

Area firefighters ski to first-place finish

BRUCE Rosengren of Allen Road, Independence Township, won two individual gold medals, helping his team take first place at Pine Knob Ski Resort last week. Joe Cerre, also of Independence Township, won two bronze medals.

BY RENEE GLOVINSKY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Pontiac firefighters ski team blazed down Pine Knob slopes Tuesday, Jan. 9, during the first Midwest Firefighter ski race, where they took first place in both events.

Bruce Rosengren and Joe Cerre, both Independence Township residents, were much a part of the winning team.

Rosengren, head planner of the event, took first in the slalom and giant slalom events, winning a gold medal in his division.

Cerre received a bronze in both events.

There were eight divisions total, said Rosengren, and each was determined by age group. Eight teams participated in the event, as did individual skiers.

According to Rosengren, this event was inspired by last year's National Firefighters Ski Race, held in Breckenridge, Colo., where the Pontiac team also took first place.

"After competing in the national race last year, I wondered why we couldn't have a similar race here that would be much cheaper," said Rosengren.

The one-day event, sponsored primarily by Miller Beer, Inc., began at 9:30 a.m. and consisted of many events including the Benefit Hose Race.

"The object of this race was for each three-person team member to hang on to a firehose while skiing the course," said Rosengren.

All proceeds from the $15 admission went to the Redmond Foundation, a research and safety organization for firefighters.

Cerre was also part of the three-man team that took first place in the hose race.

"Everyone was pleased and had a great time this year," said Rosengren.

The team has been practicing twice a week, not only for this competition but for the four-day national competition to be held in Colorado Jan. 30.

"Our ultimate goal is to make the local race bigger," he said. "We would like a competition that would last two or maybe even four days. If this occurs, we would have to move the event north because, as of yet, there aren't any overnight accommodations for the skiers."

Poe, Lee share birthday

Jan. 19 marks the birthday of two diverse yet significant contributors to American heritage, Edgar Allan Poe and Robert E. Lee.

Lee was born in Westmoreland, Va., in 1807. He is considered the greatest military leader of the Confederacy.

Known as "the Rebel General" during the Civil War, Lee was against slavery and the use of war as a resolution of political conflicts. He once wrote, "(If) strife and civil war are to take the place of brotherly love and kindness, I shall mourn for my country and for the welfare and progress of mankind."

Poe, born in 1809 in Boston, Mass., is considered the creator of the American gothic tale. He is most noted for his poetry and tales of suspense. His most famous work, "The Raven," along with his other tales of mystery, initiated the modern detective story.

Both died in the same month — Poe on Oct. 7, 1849, and Lee on Oct. 12, 1870.

Recreation Roundup

CROSS COUNTRY SKI LESSONS

After two years of waiting, it looks as if there will be enough snow to offer cross country ski lessons.

Anyone interested in learning how to cross country ski should meet the next Sunday, Jan. 21, at Independence Oaks County Parks.

Beginners age 13 and older ski from 1-2:30 p.m., youth beginners age 12 and under from noon to 1 p.m. and intermediates age 13 and older from 2:30 to 4 p.m.

The class fee is $18 for those 13 and older and $15 for those 12 and under. Rentals will be available at Independence Oaks on Sashabaw Road, north of I-75. Register at the parks and recreation department.

DISCOUNT SKI LIFT TICKETS

Any downhill skiers going to Boyne Mountain, Sugar Loaf or Shanty Creek/Schuss Mountain should take advantage of these discount prices by purchasing tickets through the parks and recreation department.

Sugar Loaf - valid seven days a week and applies to child and adult tickets. Cost: $20.

Shanty Creek/Schuss Mountain - Weekend and holiday tickets only. Ticket cost: $18 for 12 and under, $20 for 13-17 and $25 for 18 and over.

For ticket purchase, contact the treasurer's department in the township hall, Monday-Friday.

ICE SKATING AND HOCKEY

When the weather starts cooperating again, three ice areas at Clintonwood Park will be open for open skating and hockey. There will be designated times for both.

To find out the conditions of the ice and the hours of operation, call the skating hotline at 625-4334.

ADULT OPEN GYM

Tuesdays at Pine Knob Elementary from 7 to 10 p.m.; Wednesdays at Andersonville Elementary from 7 to 10 p.m. and Thursdays at North Sashabaw Elementary from 7 to 10 p.m.

It's a good policy to call the parks and recreation department at 625-8223 the day of each open gym to verify its availability. The schools will occasionally call and cancel gym times to facilitate their own activities. Cost is $1 at the door.

UNDER 19 AND UNDER 16 SOCCER TRAVEL LEAGUE

Teams travel to other communities to play. Games are normally played on weekends with occasional week-day games; home games are played at Clintonwood Park, Clarkston Road.

Games tentatively begin in mid-April. The $30 registration fee includes a full uniform. The number of games will be determined by the number of teams in the league.

VOLLEYBALL INFORMATION

Co-recreation volleyball mixers: 8-9:30 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays at Sashabaw Junior High. Fee is $12 per six-week session. The next available Monday session is Feb. 5. The next Wednesday session is Jan. 31. Pre-registration is a must.

Women's Volleyball League: A women's volleyball league begins play Thursday, Jan. 18, at North Sashabaw Elementary. Games are played 7:30 and 8:45 p.m. Thursdays. Teams play 10 weeks, plus playoffs. Each team plays five games per night.

The cost is $25 per player, and rosters must carry a minimum of eight players. Individual awards will be given to the first-place teams. Sponsor awards will go to the first and second-place finishers.

Recreational volleyball league: The parks and recreation department is taking names and numbers of those wishing to get on a team.

BASKETBALL INFORMATION

Spectator basketball: If you are a basketball fan and would like to watch some men's recreational basketball games, show up 4-9 p.m. Sundays at Clarkston High School. Three divisions exhibit different ability levels of play. Free admission.

ROLLERSKATING

Rollerskating is an excellent way to develop coordination, self confidence and have fun. Classes are available for all ages.

Kinderskate: designed for toddlers and pre-schoolers.

Youth rollerskating: features basic skating skills taught by nationally certified instructors.

Adult rollerskating: offers a fun way to exercise and socialize while skating to music. Skate rental is included in class fee.

DAILY HOT LUNCH PROGRAM

Delicious and nutritious lunches will be served at the Senior Citizens Activity Center, in Clintonwood Park, 5980 Clarkston Rd. Each home-cooked meal costs $2 for people 60 years of age or older, and $3 for people under 60.

Menus are available upon request by calling 625-8238 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Home-bound meals are available for those confined to their home. Special arrangements can be made for those unable to handle the meal cost.

Menu items include: Monday, macaroni-beef; Tuesday, crispy baked chicken; Wednesday, beef stew; Thursday, baked pork chop; Friday, lemon baked fish.

SENIOR CITIZENS WEEKLY ACTIVITIES

Join the senior citizens in weekly activities including: Monday, bowling, bridge; Tuesday ceramics, cards and volleyball; Wednesday, crafts and bridge; Thursday, Bingo and men's pool; and Friday, sing-a-long, cards and women's pool.

GENERAL RECREATION ACTIVITIES

The following activities are scheduled so far this year.

Pee Wee Bumper Bowling, Tuesday, Jan. 23

Youth bowling doubles, Tuesday, Jan. 23

Daddy/Daughter Dance, Thursday, Feb. 15

CPR, Thursday, Jan. 18, and Monday, Feb. 12

Karate, Tuesday, Feb. 13

Also, rollerskating classes for kids and adults begin in January, as do music classes for kids and adults.

New mental health facility offers unique services

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Typically, mental health centers are cast as places for people with mental illnesses or dependencies that need attention.

But the New Oakland Family center is different.

"My first thought was, Davisburg?... (but) studies show that we're right in the middle of one of the fastest growing areas, and it's underserved."

Wendell Jennings

The recently opened facility offers services to a wide range of clients — from those who need tutoring to those who need job training to those who want to evaluate their child's play habits.

The New Oakland Family Center, a division of Evergreen Counseling Centers, opened on Andersonville Road, Springfield Township, in October.

"One of the things we wanted to do was to drift out of the old mold for out-patient centers," says Clinic Administrator Wendell Jennings. "We would like it to be a place where people feel free to try new ideas."

The center does offer a full range of out-patient mental health services for children and adults, but most programs focus on the more common needs of individuals.

For instance, Webster Academy, a satellite center at New Oakland, offers tutoring, speech therapy and occupational therapy.

Other services offered at the center include programs on personal growth for professionals and a whole range of services to and for the elderly, such as individual counseling, family support counseling, senior groups and groups for families of seniors.

Parent groups are held monthly, offering an opportunity to share ideas and ask questions on things like school and parents' rights.

The center also utilizes a play therapy gallery on the premises.

An occupational therapist works with parents and children to evaluate and improve the quality of a child's play habits. A variety of developmental toys are also sold at the gallery.

Some of the newer programs at the center include those for hyperactive children with attention-span problems. In the future, the center hopes to add a temporary shelter for teens, foster care and in-home therapy for troubled families.

The center's Davisburg location was chosen to fill a need, Jennings says.

"My first thought was, Davisburg?... (but) studies show that we're right in the middle of one of the fastest growing areas, and it's underserved," Jennings adds.

"One of our tasks is to get professionals to do interaction with us out here," he says.

The center is getting a lot of support from community leaders. About 30 church, school and government

Boys and girls adopt roles early

Studies of adult conversational dynamics have shown that women work harder than men to start conversations and support their partner, while men are much more likely to interrupt.

Research at The University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, suggests that many of the same gender-linked conversational patterns appear in girls and boys as young as 4 years old.

U-M doctoral student and research assistant Julia L. Evans observed 30 pre- and elementary school students in already picked up on that social obligation. They do more than their share of the conversational work."

Because the boys and girls were matched for verbal ability, Evans' study measured what the child chose to say rather than what he or she was capable of saying.

In addition, Evans tested exclusively oldest or only children, since studies have shown that first-born children tend to be more vocal than others.

Evans videotaped conversations between child and investigator in both a structured interview and a 15-minute play session.

In the latter, the child was given the opportunity to play with a variety of toys and conversation was encouraged about the play activity. In both the interview and the free-play contexts, the adult's language was strictly controlled so as not to influence the child's responses.

Evans suspects that many of these early language patterns may be linked to parents' conversational habits. For example, some studies have suggested that both parents interrupt a daughter more often than a son.

Evans cautions against generalizing from her study, since her sample included only white, upper-middle-class children from professional communities.

Some studies have suggested that both parents interrupt a daughter more often than a son.

conversations with a female and a male interviewer.

Among 4-year-old girls, she found a strong tendency to provide more elaborated responses that help the conversation flow by actively maintaining the topic and adding new information.

The boys, she found, tended to interrupt the female interviewer much more often than the male interviewer, despite the fact that both interviewers were considerably older than their subjects.

As an example of elaboration, when asked "Do you like to swim?" a typical boy responded "Yeah," while a girl said, "Yes, but I only do it in the summer at the swimming pool."

When asked to tell something about her family, a 4-year-old girl responded, "Well, the first thing we do in the nighttime is we watch some TV, and then we read a book."

Asked the same question, a 4-year-old boy answered, "My dad is on a trip."

Overall, Evans said, the girls in the study volunteered considerable information, while the boys tended toward minimal responses.

"If you think of a conversation as a balance, you contribute some, and I contribute some. If you only contribute a little bit, I have to contribute a lot more," Evans explained.

"Even as young as 4 years old, these girls have

Many of these early language patterns may be linked to parents' conversational habits.

However, the fact that her results are consistent with adult studies suggests to her "the first impressions of what may be a consistent pattern."

"It's important to understand how status is encoded in our conversations," she says. "The fact that females do more conversational work and are interrupted more often may reflect a lower status."

"It isn't necessary that we all talk the same way, but I believe that further research on language patterns will bring us to a greater understanding of gender equity, both in our conversations and in our lives."

The above information was provided by The University of Michigan News and Information Service.

Opinion of Bill Myers

Easier now to get a piece of Morocco

William A. Myers is a retired Lapeer County editor and investments manager from Boca Raton, Fla.

Kings aren't all bad as rulers. Over here, we just got in the habit of democracy and haven't tried the old-fashioned system for a couple of centuries.

Consider the Kingdom of Morocco and a nice monarchical feature that could well be transplanted to these shores. Recently, King Hassan II of that country took a quarter-page in the Wall Street Journal to tell us 1. his troubles and 2. the royal solution.

The ad was headed:
ROYAL DECISION IN FAVOR OF FOREIGN INVESTORS

Excerpts to the lead-in to the New Deal in Morocco: "Economic development has always been . . . our major preoccupation. Our goal cannot be fully attained without investment and know-how. This contribution of the private sector could be effective only if assured of success. With this in mind, we have taken numerous measures . . . which are inciting factors which have not failed to produce effects.

"However, in view of the advantages she grants, Morocco is falling quite short of her expectations. This inadequacy comes from innumerable administrative procedures which are so slow as to discourage the most willing investors. Even when complete, files remain for months in various departments. Interested parties await in total darkness.

"We, therefore, have decided to put an end to that. Henceforward, any file consisting of an investment project shall be considered as approved when, two months after it is handed in, no action has been taken."

What a lovely plan! The bureaucrats are not being heckled on by the king; they're simply being told to go on as before, draw their paychecks and continue playing backgammon.

No pressure, no nagging. Every customer is taken care of in exactly two months from the time of applying to invest in Morocco. And best of all, the prospective investor can be assured of a "yes" answer. Man, two months is almost instantaneous in any government anywhere, any place in any hemisphere, on this planet or any other.

Two months and you've got an answer! And the answer is "Yes"! Truly, Morocco is the Promised Land. Look no further.

King Hassan does mention, "In case the application is rejected, the decision shall be fully justified."

Do you feel that the Moroccan civil servants would ever get off their ottomans to reject a plan, when, by loafing blissfully, each application will solve itself? Why, the kind would be happy, the investors would be delighted, and the country itself would get some quick Japanese capital.

Long live the king!

Language Dept.: The chairman of American International Group, one of the bigger and better insurance companies, was commenting on their workmen's comp line, which he said was underpriced.

"We have taken corrective measures in the class," he intoned.

In the pasture lands of Lapeer County, Mich., where my old company, State Mutual, operates, we'd just say, "We'll up the rates."

Our sentence would be 65 percent shorter, and 100 percent of our agents would know what we were talking about.

From a doctor's column comes this note of a corporation that cares:

"Searle & Co. of Skokie, Ill., a leading drug manufacturer, offers to provide all eight of its heart drugs free to patients who can't afford them. Doctors may request this service by phoning (800) 542-2526."

"The food additives don't bother me half as much as the price additives."

North Oakland area popular; officials maintain attraction

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

North Oakland County and South Lapeer County area townships continue to be one of the strongest markets for new construction this year, according to a recent publication produced by Oxford Bank.

The most popular townships for building a home are Independence, Orion, Oakland, Springfield and Oxford, the publication said.

The news comes as no surprise to Independence Township officials.

"It's a very desirable area," states building department Director Beverly McElmeel. "Look at what the township offers; look at the community; look at the schools."

Although growth is forecasted, new home construc-

"I think it's the leveling off that we're seeing, a stabilization. It may even by down again next year."

Beverly McElmeel

tion in Independence Township has actually slowed over the past three years.

In 1989, building department figures set new home construction at 192, compared with 233 tabulated the year before.

New home construction reached a peak in 1986, when 318 homes were built, McElmeel says. Successive years after 1986 show levels of 244, 233 and 192.

The slowdown is a predictable part of the growth cycle, McElmeel explains.

"I think it's the leveling off that we're seeing, a stabilization," she says. "It may even by down again next year."

McElmeel stresses that there is no real lull in activity in the township building department and that the 1990's will surely bring growth in the area.

A key area for future residential development exists along M-15.

"That's going to be a hot spot," McElmeel predicts. "Two developers looking for residential area are eyeing that right now."

A length of Sashabaw Road known as the "Sashabaw Corridor" will also be a focus of development over the next few years, McElmeel says.

"During the '90's, we'll see substantial growth on Sashabaw ... with water and sewer out there. It's a non-residential area (zoned for) office and scattered commercial," she says.

The plans for more office space have been questioned by some planning commission members, who point to existing township office space that remains unused.

McElmeel admits that open office space exists, but she says she expects the demand for the space to increase.

"I don't think there is an overabundance (of office space); I think we're going to need it."

Whatever the future holds for Independence Township, officials will be ready.

The township is putting finishing touches on a woodlands ordinance, which will affect existing vegetation in the township; and changes are planned for the existing sign ordinance, which will impose more limits on the type, size and look of township building advertisement.

"We have good controls in our ordinances," McElmeel says.

Despite all the indications of growth, predicting building and development trends is difficult, given the changing world of economics, McElmeel explains.

"It will slow down for a while. That gives us a chance to absorb the growth."

Beverly McElmeel

"Looking at this and trying to evaluate it — it's just a guessing game," she says. "I've heard that interest rates are going down; well, what about the job market? No one is going to buy a house if they don't have a job."

"Even economists can't agree," she adds.

McElmeel does conclude that, for now, Independence township will experience a slight downturn, at least in residential development. The change is healthy, she says.

"It will slow down for a while," she says. "That gives us a chance to absorb the growth."

Retail Flight

Clarkston merchants talk about diminishing retail business

BY RENEE GLOVINSKY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Village of Clarkston once had 35 retail shops within its community, but it now holds less than half that number. Some retailers are fearful of the future.

The increasing number of offices entering into the area are one of the major concerns. Some local retailers say the offices are taking up possible retail space.

"Five years ago there were two-times more retail shops in the area than there are now," says Don Borngesser, owner of Carol's Village Grill on Main Street. "I feel that this is the time to bring back retail to the area."

"We faced a slower holiday season this year," says Borngesser. "There were less shoppers, so we lost a lot of walk-in trade."

The restaurant has had to shorten its evening hours because of less volume.

Shirley Wilson is co-owner of Creation's Best Florist, tucked away on East Washington Street.

Although retail flight is on the move, her business

"I don't feel that there is a real problem, although I can understand why retail is leaving."

Diana Proctor

hasn't been affected, she says.

"We have only been in business for a year," says Wilson. "Considering our location, we have done very well. It does stress me to see so many offices going into good retail locations, even though we do a lot of business with offices. I wish that there was a way to have more retail."

Some merchants speculate about why retail spaces are being replaced by offices.

Georgene Sloan, owner of the Village Bookstore on Main Street, says rent in the area is too high, making it difficult for small retail shops to remain in business.

"I'm hoping to stay in the village," says Sloan. "We have countless customers who are eager for the business district to remain. People don't want office take-overs. I've considered moving out, but I'd rather stay here. ... From a business standpoint, that may not be too smart."

"I feel that the village should be zoned for retail," says Sloan, who was involved in a petition asking Clarkston Village Council members to address the issue a few years back.

However, the chances of excluding offices from current downtown zoning is slim, according to village officials.

"Retail zoning is not really an issue because we don't want to tell landlords what to put in their buildings," says Artemus Pappas, village manager. "This would cause hardship."

Diana Proctor, co-owner of Prudential, Proctor, Inc., realtors on Church Street, says the downtown area is a good spot for office.

"I don't feel that there is a real problem, although I can understand why retail is leaving," says Proctor. "They just don't get enough business. There needs to be enough retail in the area to make people interested in coming down here."

"Our problem is that we haven't had any cooperation from anyone."

Buck Kopietz

"We like the area," says Proctor. "We feel that the growth and location are what we want for our type of office."

Proctor, Inc., is to move to Clarkston Corners on Main Street in the early spring, replacing a few of the retail stores currently located in Clarkston Corners.

One such business is Daisy Chain Gifts, owned by Josephine Eisenstreicher.

"The city council doesn't care if retail is here or not," Eisenstreicher says. "They shouldn't let offices take over. I feel that within a few years, there will only be offices."

According to Pappas, almost an equal number of retail stores and offices are located in retail-type spaces in the village. His estimation excludes office buildings that are not designed for retail.

Although there is retail flight in the village, some of the more viable businesses in town seem to be improving with age, Pappas says.

"Most people in the village would like to see more retail to avoid crowded malls," he says.

Information Reporting Requirements

Unreported income accounts for billions of dollars of lost tax revenue each year. Stiffer reporting requirements have been written into tax legislation of recent years, and each year the IRS looks for unreported income by matching these reports to individual tax returns.

You can expect to receive a Form 1099 (an information slip much like a W-2 wage statement) by January 31st if you had income for the following sources: (1) $10 or more of interest, dividends, royalties, unemployment compensation, state or local income tax refunds, original issue discount, patronage dividends, or retirement plan or deferred compensation plan distributions; (2) $600 or more in a liquidating distribution from a corporation, rents, prizes, or awards paid by a business, or payments for services performed for a business where employee status did not exist; (3) any amount paid crew members of fishing boats on the sale of fish, sales of securities, future transactions or commodities, and bartering exchange transactions; (4) $5,000 or more for consumer products sold to someone else for resale anywhere other than in a permanent retail establishment.

The payor who sends the Form 1099 to you will also be submitting the same report to the IRS by February 28th.

Those who receive $600 or more of mortgage interest or $10,000 or more in cash in connection with a business transaction must file an information return both with the IRS and with the payor of the money.

Lenders who foreclose in a transaction connected with a trade or business must file a report with the IRS. Trustees of IRA accounts are required to report the amount of contributions and the year for which they are made. Real estate transactions and the sale of a business must be reported to the IRS. Contact our office if you need more information or assistance with these or other reporting requirements.

Downtown retail could thrive

Buck Kopietz, owner of Tierra—a department store on Main Street, says retail could thrive with a few improvements in the village.

"Villages are not designed for the invent of the automobile," he says. "We are lacking in parking convenience. I feel that we need cooperation from village government, landlords and tenants in order for the village to become viable.

"Our problem is that we haven't had any cooperation from anyone. Some landlords (in the area) could care less (about retail) as long as they get their rent money; a lot of businesses that lease out really do not have enough involvement, and village council members don't see the importance of maintaining retail."

Some retailers feel that it won't be long before village shopping is a thing of the past.

Considering a car phone? Check insurance

More and more people are driving and talking on the phone at the same time. Having a phone in your car may sound like a great idea, but here are some things to consider:

■ Always pull off to the side of the road to make or receive a call. Most accidents happen when full attention is not being given to driving.

■ Cellular or mobile phones may not be able to guarantee privacy because communication is transferred by radio waves and could be picked up by other drivers.

Order stamps by phone

Now the U.S. Post Office is as close as your phone. Operators are on duty to take orders seven days a week, 24 hours a day. Stamps will be delivered within three to five business days.

The Postal Service offers customers the convenience of ordering stamps by phone. Just call the new toll-free number 1-800-448-1000 to place an order and pay by VISA or MasterCard. There is a $3 credit-card handling fee.

Stamps in all denominations, in sheets and booklets are available as well as other first-class products such as envelopes, postal cards and rolls of stamps.

The new phone number was to begin service Tuesday, Jan. 16.

Never give a credit card number or other private information over a car phone.

■ The theft rate on cellular phones from cars runs about 2,000 a month in the 20 largest U.S. cities with the loss averaging about $1,000.

Insuring a car phone

■ If stolen from a car, unattached portable cellular phones that operate on their own batteries are not covered by most auto insurance policies.

A separate endorsement on your homeowners policy is required, says the National Association of Professional Insurance Agents.

■ If the phone was permanently installed by the auto manufacturer, meaning tools are required to remove it, the phone may be covered in your auto policy if you carry comprehensive or collision coverage.

■ Some homeowners policies may cover a car phone under a separate "floater" policy but generally not if the vehicle is used for business purposes.

Check with your insurance agent or company to find out what coverage you need.

Anti-theft tips

Anyone whose cellular phone is stolen should be concerned about its recovery to minimize their losses. Some steps you can take to reduce the possibility of theft include:

■ Remove the external antenna when you park the car. Cars equipped with phones are easy targets because of the external antenna, yet most people do not remove them when they park the car.

■ Engrave your social security number or other identification on the car phone.

■ Be sure to always lock your car.

■ Always park in a well-lit area and activate any security system your car may have.

Remember, too, a discount is given on auto insurance in some states if a vehicle is equipped with a security system. If you have an insurance question, send it to Esther Peterson, 400 N. Washington St., Alexandria, Va. 22314.

Peterson, a former White House Special Assistant on Consumer Affairs, serves as a consumer advisor to the National Association of Professional Insurance Agents.

Are you over your head in debt?

A nasty surprise may be lurking in your mailbox. All the holiday purchases you joyfully charged in December are about to come back and haunt you in the form of your monthly charge account statements.

If the bottom line on your credit card bills makes sweat break out on your brow, you're not alone. The average American owes approximately $1,600 in unpaid revolving debt. For many consumers, that amount is simply too high.

How much debt can you handle?

According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, you can determine how much debt you can carry safely by dividing the amount owed on your credit cards by your annual take-home pay. Multiply the result by 100 to get a percentage. The number you arrive at should be no higher than 15 to 20 percent of your annual salary.

For example, Bob's annual take-home pay is $15,000. He owes $3,500 on various credit cards. By dividing his debt ($3,500) by his take-home pay, we arrive at .23 or 23 percent. In other words, Bob is over his head in debt.

Another way to judge whether you are carrying too much debt is by calculating how much money you actually have available each month.

Start by dividing a piece of paper into two columns. In one column, list any form of monthly income you receive. In the next column, write down all of your fixed and variable expenses, including rent or mortgage payments, utility bills, car or tuition loan payments, insurance premiums and estimated food and transportation costs.

The difference between your net monthly income and your fixed expenses is the amount you have available for paying credit card bills.

Now you have a realistic and perhaps unsettling idea of how much you can afford to send to each of your creditors on a monthly basis. If you cannot afford to send more than the minimum, or to pay all your creditors on time, you may be on the verge of drowning in debt.

Know the warning signals

Even if your current level of debt is hovering below the danger zone, you may be headed for credit trouble. Here are some warning signs to watch out for:

- You take cash advances on credit cards to meet current bills.
- You ignore your credit limits.
- You charge daily expenses, such as groceries or gasoline.
- When you eat out with friends, you ask them for cash and pay with your credit cards.
- You buy items on impulse.
- You can't meet the minimum payments on your cards.
- It's getting harder to pay your debts on time.
- You have to postdate checks so your payments won't bounce.
- Your savings account is slowly disappearing.

If you identify with these statements, it's time to take some lessons in debt management.

Managing debt

Undoubtedly, we are a nation of debtors. According to the Federal Reserve, Americans carry more than $600 billion in consumer debt.

If you've been doing your share to add to that statistic, you have to remember that old habits die hard. But with a lot of willpower and some common sense, you can free yourself from the credit crunch.

First of all, hide your credit cards from yourself. Forget they exist. If your mail brings you a tempting application for a pre-approved credit card with a limit of $5,000, tear it up.

Mutual funds held by 25 percent of families, up from 6 percent

The decade of the 1980s has truly been the decade of the mutual fund. Assets grew tenfold from $95 billion to nearly $1 trillion today.

And the number of households owning mutual funds increased from about six percent to about 25 percent of all households in the United States.

Several basic trends contributed to this phenomenal growth. The 1980s was a decade of generally sustained economic growth worldwide.

Also, the development of money market funds in the 1970s introduced the mutual fund concept to many people for the first time, and the development of other new types of funds also contributed to the mutual fund boom.

Municipal bond funds became available to the investing public after enactment of the Tax Reform Act of 1976. Treasury bond funds, corporate bond funds, Ginnie

Mae funds and other specialty or sector funds also grew in popularity during the 1980s.

By the end of 1989, more than 2,900 mutual funds offered investors a wide range of options to meet varied investment climates and investor needs.

The decade of the '80s also saw a dramatic increase in the numbers and types of financial instruments available to investors.

Increasingly, institutional as well as individual investors have decided to take advantage of the mutual fund advantage — the opportunity to pool their investment capital with others who share the same investment objectives in order to receive professional management from teams of experts and at lower cost than often available to the individual investor.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

THE GREAT INFLATION HEDGE

QUESTION: Why does everyone say that home ownership is one of the great hedges against inflation?

ANSWER: For one thing, your monthly installment payments never change (unless you have a "rollover" mortgage). Also, your investment grows as the value of your home increases with rising prices. On top of that, you enjoy some fine tax advantages, especially the property tax and mortgage interest deduction. There is not better inflation hedge than the ownership of a home. And, most importantly, real estate values have always increased faster than the cost of living.

THERE'S NO BETTER HEDGE against inflation than ownership of a home.

Willpower, common sense can free you from debt

(WILLPOWER, from previous page)

Don't assume that the lender knows your financial situation better than you do. If you are already drowning in credit, another card will only drag you deeper into debt.

In many cases, debt consolidation via a home equity loan may provide you with an organized way to pay off debt within a specified time period.

However, if you are truly addicted to credit, the chances are simply too good that such loans will lull you into believing that you have paid your debts and can now resume charging.

Another option is to draw up an austerity budget to see if you can squeeze more cash free to pay your obligations. Try to pay off more than the minimum owed on each of your credit cards. Remember, the only way to reduce your balance is by paying off any new charges in full, plus the interest and at least a portion of the previous month's balance.

If you simply cannot find the money to meet your bills, you will probably need help from your CPA or credit counselor. Over 350 nonprofit consumer-credit counselors belong to the National Foundation for Consumer Credit and can help you work out a payment plan with your creditors.

The nonprofit counselors charge only a nominal fee or, in some cases, no fee. For a directory, write to the NFCC at 8701 Georgia Avenue, Suite 507, Silver Spring, MD 20910.

The credit counselor will help you come up with a budget and negotiate repayment terms with your creditors. Because they often work closely with the creditors, they can usually work out a better repayment plan than you could. When the plan is accepted, you write one check to the counselor each month, who then parcels it out to the creditors.

As a last resort, you may want to contact your creditors directly to see if you can work out an agreement, such as paying only interest for a few months.

While this may seem like an intimidating task, remember that your creditors want their money and may be willing to wait — if you convince them you want to pay.

But before things get that bad, CPAs advise you to take a close look at your credit levels. If your debt load is approaching 20 percent of your take-home pay, it may be time to cut back on your credit purchases.

New survey of businesses rates Springfield highly

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Business growth may not be booming in Springfield Township, but most companies like operating there, according to a recent survey.

The survey, conducted by the Springfield Economic Development Committee (STEDC), used information from interviews with every one of the township's 130 businesses.

Springfield Township business is made up primarily of service operations, retail trade companies, construction companies and manufacturing operations (see box).

"We have a pretty good mix," commented Doug Lewan. Lewan organized the survey as part of his newly-created job as township planning and development coordinator.

"I don't know about a big boom in business; I can't see that. But slow growth may occur."

Doug Lewan

dinator.

"The businesses for the most part felt that Springfield was a good place to do business," Lewan surmised. "We actually got very high ratings for township services, and in the quality of life ratings, we got not one negative response."

Among other findings: about 65 percent of all businesses operated with 10 employees or less, and about 24 percent of a businesses planned to expand within the next (See STUDY, next page)

MOST BUSINESSES in Springfield Township rated the area highly in a recent survey conducted by the Springfield Economic Development Committee. Many owners indicated, however, that they weren't aware of assistance programs that could help them. The findings of the survey and an improvement plan will be formally unveiled in March.

year. Businesses also indicated that they weren't aware of how the township, county and state could help them. "One of the main problems, or where many of the same flags came up, is that many businesses said they didn't know about the assistance programs that are out there," Lewan said.

"(The survey) is really going to help my direction over the next year," Lewan added.

The survey idea was conceived in September of 1988 as a way to open communication between the township and businesses and to see how township services were regarded.

The study gathered sponsors such as Michigan Bell, Davisburg Rotary, Bank One in Davisburg, Springfield Township and STEDC. About 30 volunteer interviewers were recruited and trained, and the laborious process of interviewing businesses was conducted over a four-month period.

Business owners answered about 140 questions on topics such as Michigan's business climate, the physical characteristics of the township, quality of life and the future of their business, to name a few.

The extensive information was compiled into a report by Michigan Bell and a data processing firm. STEDC plans to formally present the report and a proposed action plan in early March.

"What we're going to do from this is take the relevant questions and make recommendations on how to improve," Lewan said. "With this study we can improve the climate for business, and hopefully businesses will expand."

"When outside businesses see that the climate is good, hopefully they may locate here," he added.

Lewan predicted that new residential and business growth will occur in a controlled fashion in the future.

"I don't know about a big boom in business; I can't see that," Lewan speculated. "But slow growth may

One major deterrent to both large-scale business and residential development is a lack of major sewer and water systems to serve them. This factor has a tendency to attract more "clean businesses" rather than manufacturing and industrial businesses.

"I'm sure we'll get more business out here," Lewan said. "I hope we do."

Have you looked at an IRA lately?

Individual Retirement Accounts are still alive and well for almost all Americans. Almost everyone who earns income is still eligible to make an IRA contribution, regardless of their income level.

Even more surprising to many people — more than four out of five American households are still eligible to deduct all or part of their IRA contributions from their 1989 taxes.

Everyone who contributes to an IRA receives tax deferral on IRA earnings. Tax deferral combined with the magic of compounding your investment over time can achieve great benefits for you.

If, for just one year, you put the maximum $2,000 contribution into an IRA account that grows tax deferred for 35 years, and your account compounds at nine percent a year, that money grows into almost $41,000.

Mutual funds are especially compatible with the long-term objectives of saving for retirement because there is a fund to match any long-term objective and risk/reward preference.

Village Council

Minutes of Regular Meeting

January 8, 1990

Meeting called to order by President Catallo at 7:37 p.m. followed by the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

Roll. Present: Basinger, Catallo, Havan, Mauti, Roeser, Schultz. Absent: Symons.

Moved by Mauti, "That the minutes of the December 11, 1989, meeting be approved as read with the addition of the year of the criteria change for Community Development Block Grant Funds for Downtown Revitalization." Seconded by Schultz. Motion carried.

The Agenda was approved after adding one item of old business.

Moved by Havan, "That bills in the amount of $27,132.66 be approved for payment." Seconded by Basinger. Yeas 6, Nays 0. Motion carried.

Mr. Larry Etke was present to discuss the Village's insurance coverage and quotations that had been confirmed were reviewed. Mr. Etke recommended property appraisal on personal property, and that the Village consider receiving bids at five year intervals.

Moved by Havan, "That the Village Council select Michigan Municipal Liability and Property Pool (Broker: Meadowbrook) as the carrier effective February 1, 1990." Seconded by Roeser.

Roll. Yeas: Mauti, Roeser, Catallo, Schultz, Havan. Abstained: Basinger. Yeas 5, Abstained 1. Motion carried.

Trustee Basinger reported that recording existing ordinances on computer files is nearing completion.

Moved by Basinger, "That $220 be authorized for purchase of new word processing software." Seconded by Roeser. Roll. Yeas 6, Nays 0. Motion carried.

The Council was informed that there would be a primary election on February 19, 1990, for Republican candidates in the General Election on March 12, 1990.

Trustee Basinger reviewed Cityhood procedures and that in all probability the State of Michigan Boundary Commission would be presenting their ruling at the adjudicative meeting on January 16, 1990.

Trustee Basinger further stated that should the Boundary Commission approved Cityhood, there is a period of time for petitions to be filed for an election on the Cityhood issue. If the vote indicates Cityhood is desired by the voters, then further steps must be taken to elect a Charter Commission, and then the City Charter would be voted upon within a two-year period.

All corresponding and previous filings with the Boundary Commission are on file in the Village Hall should anyone wish to examine them.

Moved by Basinger, "That the following resolution be adopted by the Village of Clarkston." Seconded by Mauti. Yeas 6, Nays 0. Motion carried.

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, the Board of County Road Commissioners of the County of Oakland has had, since 1953, an adopted Master Right-of-Way Plan, established in accordance with applicable Michigan law, which Plan has been periodically reviewed and revised by said Board; and

WHEREAS, said Board intends to further revise said Master Right-of-Way Plan; and

WHEREAS, said Board has recently submitted to the Village, for review and comment, such portions of the proposed revised Master Right-of-Way Plan as relevant to the Village; and

WHEREAS, the Village has reviewed such submission; and

WHEREAS, in the opinion of the Village, the proposed revised Master Right of Way Plan, as it relates to the Village of Clarkston, is appropriate and consistent with the plans of this Village, subject to assurances given by the Managing Director in his letter of December 14, 1989, attached to this resolution.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that this Council of the Village of Clarkston approves and adopts said proposed revised Master Right-of-Way Plan of the board of County Road Commissioners as same relates to the Village of Clarkston.

President Catallo reported that additional personnel have been added to the Oakland County Sheriff's coverage of Independence Township, and Sergeant Quisenberry will be coordinating police coverage in Independence Township and the Village of Clarkston. The Council felt at the present time it wishes to maintain the quarterly payments for police coverage to Independence Township instead of billing the Village resident on their township tax statement.

Moved by Schultz, "The the following Earth Day Resolution by adopted by the Village of Clarkston." Seconded by Mauti. Motion carried.

RESOLUTION

Relating to Earth Day 1990
and the Global Cities Project

WHEREAS, The Village of Clarkston has long supported environmental protection and natural resource management programs and policies by cities/counties; and

WHEREAS, The Village of Clarkston has also supported state and national legislation which would help cities/counties develop strong and successful programs to protect the environment and conserve natural resources; and

WHEREAS, Public concern about protecting the Earth is rapidly increasing as new scientific information about environmental threats such as global warming, ozone depletion, acid rain, air pollution, and more becomes available; and

WHEREAS, Citizens and business leaders are now recognizing environmental protection and resource conservation to be essential pre-requisites to—indeed, the foundation of—sustained prosperity and economic development; and

WHEREAS, Cities have many critical environmental responsibilities, including land use planning, management of transportation systems, solid and liquid waste management, and much more; and

WHEREAS, Almost twenty years ago, millions of Americans joined together on Earth Day to express an unprecedented concern for the environment, and their collective action resulted in the passage of sweeping laws to protect our air, our water, and the lands around us; and

WHEREAS, Citizens and their governments must again renew their commitment to meet the global environmental challenge and stand up together in cities, counties, towns, and villages around the world for a day of collective action to declare our shared resolve;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED THAT THE VILLAGE OF CLARKSTON

1) Endorses Earth Day 1990, declaring that April 22, 1990, shall be designated and proclaimed as Earth Day, and that the day shall be set aside for public activities promoting preservation of the global environment; and

2) Endorses The Global Cities Project of Earth Day 1990, declaring its intention to join the project and, in that capacity, to sponsor one or more Earth Day 1990 activities in the community.

President Catallo requested that the Planning Commission be asked to study the parking requirements in the Village of Clarkston Zoning Ordinance and to review Ordinance No. 77, Anti Litter Ordinance, with regards to using municipal trash receptacles for household refuse.

Moved by Roeser, "That the meeting be adjourned." Seconded by Basinger. Motion carried. Meeting adjourned at 9:20 p.m.

Respectfully submitted
Artemus M. Pappas
Acting Clerk

A FRIENDSHIP Cake takes 31 days to make, and each day students must add new ingredients and stir the mixture 100 times. Mark Catanese, 6, gets a little help from teacher Lynda Reabe, while the rest of the class helps count strokes. After 31 days, the pupils plan to give a cake to each of the other kindergarten classes at Pine Knob Elementary School. Of course, they're making a cake for themselves, too.

Women hold purse strings, survey shows

Who pays the bills in American families? Nearly two-thirds (61 percent) of the women asked in a recent survey conducted by The Wirthlin Group for Payment Systems Education Association (PSEA) said they had the bill-paying responsibility for their households.

"The increase in the number of women working outside the home may lead to the sharing of other household duties," PSEA board member Don King said. "But keeping track of the household expenses doesn't appear to be one of them."

The survey found that just 10 percent of women share the bill-paying responsibility with their husbands. Other interesting findings were:

- More than half the women surveyed said they hadn't gone a week without writing a check.

- When asked which form of payment they would give up if they had to, 60 percent would relinquish credit cards, while less than 10 percent would part with check-books.

- For goods and services costing over $40, respondents said they used checks two to one over any other form of payment.

The survey was conducted by the Wirthlin Group on behalf of PSEA among 500 women age 18 or older who have a checking account.

Clerical class lights the way for blind woman

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN

The loss of her eyesight three years ago isn't going to keep Colleen Dwire, 23, of Sashabaw Road, Independence Township, from employment.

Colleen enrolled in the clerical office specialist class offered by Clarkston Community Education this past fall. The semester ended Jan. 12, and Colleen has her resume ready to send to prospective employers.

Colleen lost her eyesight when diabetes caused detached retinas. She was 20 years old at the time and was a clerical worker at Oakland County Parks and Recreation in Pontiac.

Prior typing skills have helped her re-learn how to type without the use of vision, Colleen said.

"My sense of hearing and touch have increased greatly since losing my sight," she said.

She has used a dictaphone throughout most of the class to help with typing skills, said Beth Beauchamp, Colleen's instructor.

Colleen now has a voice synthesizer to use on the computer.

"You punch in a letter (on the computer), and it says the letter back to you," said Colleen.

Placement consultant Kim Hassinger of Clarkston Community Education was instrumental in obtaining a federal grant for Colleen's voice synthesizer from the Elizabeth M. Wight Fund. The Greater Society for the Blind in Detroit informed her of the grant.

Colleen took lessons on operating the synthesizer Jan. 12 from Mike Gorin, who is also blind and was sent by The Greater Society for the Blind.

Colleen shouldn't have trouble learning, Beth said. "Colleen is very quick at picking things up," said Beth.

Colleen has worked on the computer and feels she will have no problems with learning by synthesizer method.

"I spell things in my head and can sense when I make a mistake," Colleen said. Beth nodded in agreement.

"If you watch her in class, you can see she knows when she makes a mistake," said Beth.

One by one, is Colleen is working at removing obstacles caused by her loss of vision, but one obstacle is difficult: transportation. Getting to class was a problem.

"Both of my parents work," Colleen said.

Independence Township doesn't have transportation for handicapped people, but after some phone calls,

Colleen discovered that the Independence Township Senior Center would provide her with transportation to her Monday-through-Thursday class on Maybee Road.

"The senior citizens have been excellent (about transporting her)," Beth said.

Colleen is also working to remove other obstacles. With her resume she is enclosing a statement about her disability. Following is excerpt:

"I gradually learned that blindness need not be a major problem. I also realized that I still had my most valuable resource, the same amount of good sense and intelligence I had as a sighted person. I have also learned that employers and others are frightened by blindness. I am determined to overcome this barrier as I have found methods to handle the others."

Three-hour block classes already showing success

SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

With federal grant money, a few good teachers and some enthusiastic students, a new semester-old Clarkston Community Education program has already shown success.

For the first time, three-hour classes are offered in clerical and medical assisting, said Kim Hassinger, a placement consultant with Clarkston Community Education.

And already, some students have found jobs with their new training.

The courses are designed to produce people with tion programs as well. For instance, alternative education students may use the typewriters since the equipment is in their classrooms, too, she said, adding that alternative education is for students age 16-19 who are not in a traditional classroom.

"Everyone gets something," said Kim. Typing was not offered until the grant funds became available.

In the clerical office specialist class, students learn typing, word processing, the 10-key calculator and general office skills from instructor Beth Beauchamp.

Medical assisting is taught by Sandra Joysey, a certified medical assistant. Most skills taught in her class would allow the student to perform procedures used in a general practitioner's office, said Sandra.

Students seemed enthusiastic about Sandra's class. "An inspiring teacher is the most important part," said Martha Berg of Union Lake.

"She's not just a teacher; she's a friend," said Antoinette Kritzman of Waterford.

Before taking final exams Jan. 12, three medical assisting students had already found jobs. Of the 25 registered for the class last fall, 17 completed the course.

Of the 20 students enrolled in the clerical class, three had already found jobs before final exams.

The winter semester begins Monday, Jan. 22. For more information, call Clarkston Community Education at 674-0993.

marketable skills, said Kim, explaining that the format of the class was requested by local businesses looking for employees. Previously, the subjects were offered in only one-hour evening classes.

The medical and clerical students are trained and screened for prospective employers who are registered with the community education program, said Kim.

It's only possible with about $96,000 in grant money from the Job Training Partnership Act. The money is contingent upon getting students placed with employers, she said.

For the medical program, the money paid for such medical supplies as swabs and syringes, Kim said, adding that the medical training classroom at the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus is well-equipped for students.

For the clerical program, the money bought 20 new typewriters and typewriter stands.

Frames Unlimited pictures tell a thousand words

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

If you have a hard time making decisions, don't let the new Frames Unlimited scare you away.

Although the selection of framing materials at the Dixie Highway store seems, well, unlimited—the staff is specially trained in the creative process of choosing the best framing for your artwork.

It's a good thing; the choices of frames alone cover almost the entire wall running the length of the store. Store employees estimate the selection of frames at Each picture looks so remarkably different from the one next to it that it becomes difficult to determine that the same piece of artwork is the centerpiece.

"There are a lot of creative people here," Heathman says. "That's the fun part."

Frames Unlimited, located at 6659 Dixie Highway in the new Damman Hardware complex, is part of a 29-store, family-owned chain based in Grand Rapids.

Along with its 29 locations, the company keeps three galleries and a warehouse.

Frames Unlimited sells framed posters and prints along with its framing service. The prints are pre-framed by employees and are displayed at the front of the store. A wide variety of picture frames, sculptures and other decorative pieces may also be purchased.

One of the most difficult aspects of the framing business is keeping on top of trends, Heathman says.

"There are different colors every year, not to mention textures and fabrics," she says.

1990 marks a more traditional look, according to Heathman. Prior to this year, southwest and florals gained in popularity. Oriental looks have also been big recently, she says.

Frames Unlimited has an extensive selection for whatever look a customer hopes to achieve—along with employees who make the decision process a little less painful.

What's New in Business

anywhere from 700 to 800. There are wood frames, flowered frames, metal frames, antiques frames and frames in just about every color of the rainbow.

Once the difficult framing selection is made, there are then countless numbers of mattings to choose from. Flannel matting, fabric matting, colored matting—the list goes on and on.

"It does get a little bit complicated," admits Manager Linda Heathman. "A big part of the decision is what a person likes. We put several choices down and usually something clicks."

A picture may tell a thousand words, but the framing has a tremendous impact on the mood of the artwork, as demonstrated in an interesting display in the store.

Employees were each given the same picture and were encouraged to "get creative" with the framing. The finished products now hang above the frame selection.

FRAMES UNLIMITED not only constructs the framing for your artwork, but employees will help in making a selection from their extensive framing materials. Picture frames and other decorative objects are also sold. The business opened in November.

Microwave Plus

Slim eating for the '90s

Betty Wagner

Every year beginning with New Year's Day, articles about resolutions appear in the print media.

And every year dieting seems to be at the top of most resolution lists. Maybe this is because the average American reportedly gains 5-10 pounds between Thanksgiving and New Year's Day.

With the information now available relating diet to disease, many Americans have already adjusted their food choices to reflect lower fat and salt consumption and more fiber intake.

So it's not a matter of dieting, but rather of returning to sensible eating after holiday feasting. And most of us need a few treats now and then.

Oftentimes, favorite recipes can easily be adapted to comply with these guidelines. The original Split Pea and Lentil Soup recipe that follows called for six slices of bacon and 1 1/2 teaspoons of salt.

But if you eliminate the bacon and salt, you may want to increase the amount of spices to keep a nice flavor or even experiment with your other spices. To enhance the flavor, I added some chopped green pepper and more oregano during the last 10 minutes of cooking.

SPLIT PEA AND LENTIL SOUP Serves eight

- 8 cups water
- 1 cup green split peas
- 1 cup lentils
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 1/2 teaspoon salt, optional
- 1 teaspoon parsley flakes
- 1/2 teaspoon oregano leaves
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 bay leaf

2 medium potatoes, peeled, cut into 1/2-inch cubes
2 medium carrots, thinly sliced

1. Combine water, peas, lentils, onion and seasonings in a 5-quart Pyrex or microwavable dish. Cover.

2. Microwave at HIGH for 40 minutes, stirring two to three times.

3. Add potatoes and carrots. Microwave at HIGH for 10 to 20 minutes or until soup is desired thickness. Remove bay leaf. Adjust seasonings to taste.

Tip: If you eliminate the salt, you may want to add more oregano. You may also add ham seasoning or a small amount of ham for added flavoring. But remember, the ham will also add salt and fat, so use sparingly.

OFFICIAL NOTICE

Charter Township of Independence NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Planning Commission of Independence Township, Oakland County, Michigan, will hold a Public Hearing on February 8, 1990 at 7:30 p.m. at the Independence Township Board Room, 90 North Main Street, Clarkston Michigan, 48016, to consider the following:

ZONING ORDINANCE AMENDMENT - WOODLANDS PRESERVATION

PURPOSE: Continued development of the Township has resulted and continues to cause an unregulated and, in many cases, unnecessary removal of trees and other forms of vegetation and natural resources and processes. Regulation of such removal of trees, vegetation and natural resources will achieve a preservation of important physical, aesthetic, recreation, environmental and economic assets for both present and future generations.

Parcel Identification Number:

Common Description:

Any further information regarding the above Public Hearing may be obtained at the Township Planning Office during regular office hours 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday thru Friday, or by phone at 625-8111.

WHO IS ON THE LORD'S SIDE? Hear ye this house of Jacob (the churches), which are called by the name of Israel, and are come forth out of the waters of Judah which swear by the name of the Lord and make mention of the God of Israel, but "not in truth nor in righteousness." For they call themselves of the Holy City, and stay themselves upon the God of Israel; The Lord of Hosts is his name: I that you had hearken to my commandments! Then had your peace been as a river, and your righteousness as the waves of the sea. There is no peace to the wicked, saith the Lord. Woe to him that covets an evil covetousness to his house, that he may set his nest on high, that he may be delivered from the over of evil! Have not sorrows taken hold of you as a woman in travail? For the greatness of thine iniquity are thy skirts discovered, and thy heels made bare. You that are accustomed to doing evil can you do good at the same time? You have forgotten me and trust in falsehood! I have seen your adulteries, and your neighings, the lewdness of your whoredom, and your abominations on the hills in the fields. Woe unto thee, I Jerusalem! Will you not be made clean? Thus have they loved to wander, they have not refrained their feet, therefore the Lord does not except them." He will now remember their iniquity and visit their sins. Then said I, AH! Lord God! Behold the prophets say unto them, you shall not see peace in this place." Thus saith the Lord, "the prophets prophesy lies in my name. I have not sent them, neither have I commanded them, neither spake unto them. They prophesy unto you a false vision and divination and a thing of nought, and the deceit of their heart. But there were false prophets also among the people, even as there are false teachers among you, who privily bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction. And many shall follow their pernicious ways, by reason of whom the way of truth is evil spoken of (unbelief). They do make merchandise of you through much speaking, professing to know God, but in works of faith they deny him, being abominable, and disobedient, and unto every good work (truth) reprobate (vain mind), giving heed to fables and endless genealogies, causing undo questionings, rather than godly edifying, which is in faith (action), belief, in and obeying Christ." THE PARALLEL bars at Bailey Lake Elementary attract all sorts of nimble gymnasts. Stacy Bowman (front), 7, prepares to mount, while Janelle Herzog, 7, smiles at the upside-down world she sees.

and Melissa Gourand, 7. The two worked well together.

Winter recess

A RUNNING start is best for a giant jump in the snow, according to Phillip Devries, 8, a third-grader at Bailey Lake Elementary School. He and friends Ryan Shaul, 8 1/2, and Nick Tucker, 9, took turns jumping from a slight incline into a pile of slushy snow Monday, Jan. 15.
