Bruno lives

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Bruno, the Independence Township pit bull, has been given a new lease on life from Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Richard Kuhn.

After hearing oral arguments in the case, Kuhn issued a written agreement that keeps Bruno from being destroyed.

"Bruno lives," said a clerk for Kuhn, in advising of the judge's decision.

The year-old pit bull mix was accused of being dangerous after the dog allegedly chased a next-door neighbor and her dog into their Pine Knob Lane, Independence Township, home. The neighbor, Mrs. Henrietta McIntyre, suffered a heart attack that she said was caused by the dog's behavior.

In October 1989, Judge Gerald E. McNally, 52nd District Court in Independence Township, ordered the dog destroyed.

The dog's owners, Joseph and Gale Gatton, appealed the decision, claiming that Bruno was not a menace — he had never actually bitten anyone.

Pending the appeal decision, Bruno was sent to the Oakland County Animal Shelter where he lived for three weeks. He was later transferred to the home of his owners' attorney, after the Gattons complained about his ill health.

As part of the appeal process, Kuhn issued a 14-day restraining order to keep Bruno alive while attorneys prepared oral arguments.

Following the judge's written agreement, Bruno was freed from custody, the clerk said.

'Roger & Me' includes Springfield scene

"Roger & Me" by Flint filmmaker Michael Moore is gaining attention everywhere it plays — even in the Clarkston area.

The satirical movie "documenting" the closing of 11 General Motors plants in Flint includes a scene from Springfield Township.

It's quick, but if you pay attention, you'll notice a shot of the towering Dixie Baptist Church sign, showing a huge picture of Jesus, on northbound I-75, west of Dixie Highway.

Dixie Baptist Associate Pastor David Vanaman said Moore did not ask for permission to show the sign, but he didn't mind.

"They can put it in — it's OK with me," he said. "Maybe we'll get recognized."

Vanaman said he did not see the film and probably wouldn't in the near future.

"I don't go to movies," he said. "Someday it'll come out on video or TV, and I'll see it."

High winds cause power outages

While Springfield Township reported no damage from high winds on Jan. 25, Independence Township suffered some minor damages and power outages.

Oakland County reported winds at 46 mph with gusts as high as 63 mph.

In Independence Township, about 11,000 residences were without power 2:30-5 p.m. after high winds caused wires to come off of the insulators, said Chief Gar Wilson of the Independence Township Fire Department.

Near Oakland Woods subdivision on Maybee Road east of Sashabaw Road, a stockade fence blew over, and a cab top blew off a truck, Wilson reported.

"It seems a big gust of wind hit that area because that's where the damage was reported," he said.

Panel speaks on millage

Voters have a chance to hear all sides to the Clarkston millage request at an upcoming panel discussion.

The panel is to meet 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 1, at the Independence Township Annex, 90 N. Main, Clarkston.

Sponsored by the League of Women Voters, the panel members will present statements, and the audience will have a chance to ask questions.

Panel members include: school Superintendent Gary Haner; Bill Curtis, president of the Clarkston Education Association; Dave Kramer, Independence Township assessor; Sally Coe, president of the Bailey Lake Parent Teacher Association; Leigh Bonner, retired teacher; and representatives from the Independence Township Senior Citizens Center and Clarkston High School Student Council.

Reporter's Notebook

One woman's actions may lead to an amendment of the litter ordinance in the Village of Clarkston.

Legally, the woman did not break the law — she put her trash into the garbage can. However, village officials don't want a repeat of her actions — she emptied bags of household garbage into the village's cans.

On Jan. 22, the Clarkston Village Council decided to ask the planning commission to reconsider amending the litter ordinance.

Sewer hearing Feb. 6 for Green Acres

Residents of the Green Acres subdivision are one step closer to obtaining sewers for their neighborhood.

After reviewing two petitions submitted by residents, Independence Township Board members unanimously agreed to set a Tuesday, Feb. 6, public hearing on the issue.

The public hearing will determine need of the sanitary sewer and its related improvements. If the majority of those attending the hearing show a desire for the hearing, another public hearing will be held on the assessment district created to pay for the project.

The estimated $172,000 cost of the sewer project will be shared among owners of 24 lots in the subdivision.

The Green Acres subdivision includes Langle Drive, Church Street and Townview Street.

Maps showing the location of the improvements and the special assessment district, specifications and a cost estimate for the improvements are on file at the township clerk's office for public examination.

The public hearing will be held in the township annex, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston.

Flash photographs are not usually allowed during live performances, but the Clarkston Village Players made an exception during a benefit performance for the Clarkston Foundation Jan. 18.

They knew the evening was for a good cause — plus, it may have satisfied their actors' egos to see their pictures in the paper again.

Loss of accreditation wouldn't hurt in-state college admissions; out-of-state: Look out

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

If Clarkston High School loses its accreditation, college-bound students who get good grades shouldn't have much trouble with college admissions in Michigan.

But students who want to attend out-of-state colleges may have problems, as could "borderline" students — pupils who aren't at the top of their classes but still plan to go to college, according to admissions office employees from area colleges and universities.

Currently, CHS violates the North Central Association's standards with the size of its media center. It violates the University of Michigan accreditation standards on its number of counselors.

But if voters don't approve the Feb. 12 request for an extra 5.6 mills, $2 million in budget cuts would put the school district in further violation. One mill is $1 for every $1,000 assessed property valuation.

If the millage fails, all extra-curricular activities would be cut — violating the NCA requirement of a "well-rounded" program.

Plus, the school day would be cut to five hours; the NCA requires six.

High school students would be required to take language arts, mathematics, science and social science courses and would have only one elective to select in the junior and senior years. Sophomores are required to take health and physical education and would have no room for electives.

"We're projecting that we're going to lose accreditation if the millage fails," said CHS Principal Robert Burek.

The cuts would hurt all students, said Burek. For instance, it would be difficult for students to attend the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus and still satisfy graduation requirements in a five-hour day.

"It's more dramatic with the college-bound kids," Burek said. "The colleges are increasing their requirements in such areas as foreign language. That's going to leave some in a real bind."

Most college-bound students would probably take foreign language classes to improve chances of admission at the colleges of their choice. That means they wouldn't have exposure to business, industrial arts, home economics, music and art classes.

William Bushaw, NCA state director, said he gets six to 12 calls a week from parents and media people asking about accreditation around the state.

Usually, high school accreditation doesn't play a big part on whether or not a student is admitted to Michigan colleges, he said.

"His or her record will stand on its own," he said.

"It still is important in certain contexts. Typically, if a student from a reputable school applies in state, normally someone in the office knows the school. So they tend not to look at the accredited status," he said.

However, students hoping to attend military academies, out-of-state colleges and schools such as Harvard, Southern California and Stanford will probably have trouble.

"It does make a difference," said Bushaw, especially if there is only one opening for every 12 applicants, as with some of the "high prestige" schools.

Feb. 5 and 6, the state committee will convene to recommend accreditation status for the 460 Michigan schools currently in the NCA, he said.

The schools will be reviewed again in March or April, when the entire NCA will convene to review more than 7,000 member schools in the region.

Typically, the NCA won't drop a school if there's a chance that funding will become available soon to correct the problems, he said.

"Often, accreditation status is directly related to financial support," he said, adding that he didn't know the specifics of Clarkston's situation.

Some students 'precarious' without accreditation

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

An informal survey of a few Michigan colleges and universities shows that most Clarkston students' chances of admission wouldn't be affected in the short term if CHS lost accreditation. However, out-of-state admissions would be more difficult.

Following are the comments from college and university admissions office personnel:

■ Oakland University, Rochester. Loss of accreditation probably wouldn't hurt Clarkston students' chances of admission to OU, according to Jerry Rose, director of

"It wouldn't affect us in our decision making."

Secretary Vicky Arno
Hillsdale College Admissions

the Admissions and Scholarships Department.

At OU, officials examine an in-state student's test scores as well as grades in college preparation courses to determine entry.

"We don't just pull the rug immediately," he said. "That would be very unfair to the young people."

The loss of accreditation could hurt a student's chances at scholarships and out-of-state admissions, he said. Out-of-state colleges and universities go by a book and don't know the individual schools in Michigan.

At Oakland, Clarkston High School has a "reputation of excellent preparation" of its students for college. CHS graduates perform above average at OU, Rose said.

The loss of accreditation could have an "intangible" effect, though. For instance, if a library is deficient, the student won't spend much time there and won't be as well rounded, he said.

■ Michigan Technological University, Houghton. "We'd be concerned about" the loss of accreditation, said Fred Gunnell, director of admissions.

As long as students still performed well in college preparation courses, there wouldn't be a problem.

But if students didn't have the core classes, they would be denied entrance or would be required to make up the work, he said.

Since 80 percent of MTU's students are in engineering, math and science classes are important, he said.

"We have such close ties to the high schools in Michigan, we know about them," he said, adding that most accreditation losses are short term.

■ Hillsdale College, Hillsdale. "It wouldn't affect us in our decision making," said Vicky Arno, secretary in admissions. "We review the transcripts and look for college preparation courses."

■ Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant. Loss of accreditation "wouldn't put qualified students in jeopardy," said Betty Wagner, associate director of admissions.

"We review each and every student's record on its own merit," she said, mentioning courses, test scores and recommendations of school officials.

However, "the university supports a high school having accreditation. It's a seal of approval saying this high school has certain things in place," she said.

■ University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. "For a short time, this would not cause any difficulty," said Don Swain, associate director of undergraduate admissions. "If over time (the violations) are not corrected, then we

"We'd be concerned about" the loss of accreditation.

Admissions Director Fred Gunnell
Michigan Technological University get concerned," he said.

For students from new schools or private schools, a series of achievement tests are used to determine admissions, he said. The same could be used for students from a school that has lost its accreditation.

To determine admission, U of M also uses grades in college prep. courses, strength of curriculum (whether or not there are advance placement or honors courses), overall school profile, standardized test scores, recommendations and unusual accomplishments.

Students hardest hit would be those trying for out-of-state colleges, Swain said.

"It does put the student in a precarious position," he said. "A community needs to look very closely as to why they're not supporting a school."

About accreditation

Currently, Clarkston High School violates accreditation standards in the following areas:

■ Inadequate media center seating. Currently, the media center has 78 seats; the North Central Association requires over 80, based on Clarkston's enrollment of 1,325 students. This has been a problem since 1987.

■ Number of counselors. While OK by NCA standards, it violates University of Michigan accreditation requirements, based on enrollment.

However, the school district stands to lose about $2 million in state aid for the 1990-91 school year, in which case massive budget cuts would be instituted, resulting in more violations to the NCA standards.

Voters have a chance to levy an extra tax on themselves Feb. 12 to make up for the deficiency in state aid.

If the request for 5.6 mills is defeated, bus service would be discontinued for the high school, and all extra-curricular activities would be cut.

The 5.6 mills is $5.60 for every $1,000 assessed property valuation.

If the millage fails, the school day would also be cut to five hours; the NCA requires six hours.

In the shortened day, students would be required to take core classes such as language arts, science, mathematics and social studies — with only one elective class available in junior and senior years (sophomores are required to take health and physical education).

If the millage fails, further accreditation requirements would be violated. The school district would have one year to fix problems before receiving a second warning. If not fixed within one year from the second warning, it would be dropped from the NCA.

Planners nix 40-acre M-15 site condominiums

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

A 40-acre site condominium development planned for M-15 failed to get support from Independence Township Planning Commission members Jan. 25.

The commission voted 3-3 on conceptual approval for the project; a split vote means non approval. Members later voted to table the project, telling representatives of the First Commercial Realty & Development Co., Southfield, that they needed to show better regard for natural resources on the site.

"When I hear things like flush-cutting and grading, it makes my blood boil," said commission member Jo Fussman.

Added Richard Oppmann, "My general impression is that this is going to be a situation of grade, fill, plant some trees and that's going to be the extent of it."

Both Oppmann and Fussman voted no on conceptual approval, joined by a Figa. Chairperson Brent Bair, Bruce Mercado and Steve Secatch voted yes. Daniel Travis was absent.

On the 5-1 vote to table the measure, Mercado cast the no vote.

The site condos were planned for the northwest corner of M-15 and Cranberry Lake Road. The detached structures are placed in a circle, with exits onto both M-15 and Cranberry Lake Road. Developers told the commission that the condos would be priced between $180,000 and $250,000.

Chairman Brent Bair

mission that the condos would be priced between $180,000 and $250,000.

Site condos are individual units similar to those in a platted subdivision. The term condominium refers to a type of ownership, rather than a type of structure. Homeowners would own a "building envelope" in which their homes would be built. The property between the houses is owned by the condominium association, comprised of homeowners.

About a dozen residents spoke out against the development, citing concerns about traffic and the reason the property was developed as site condos rather than as a regular subdivision.

"Why don't you bring this in as a plat; isn't this just a way to circumvent subdivision rules?" questioned Gerald Rennell of Cranberry Lake Road.

Township Planner Richard Carlisle explained that site condos are governed by the same rules as platted subdivisions; however, the site condo approval process is usually shorter for a developer.

"It's a sign of the times," Carlisle said. "There are just a lot more site condos proposed now. There are advantages and disadvantages to the developer, one advantage being the amount of time it takes to develop."

"I'm opposed to it," said Nancy Crosby of Cranberry Lake Road, Independence Township. "The road is too crowded; it's hard enough now to get in — there's just too much right there."

Bair reminded the audience that there was no way to prevent more traffic on township roads.

"Zoning indicates the amount of development that can occur. There is no way this township can prohibit development of that (property)," he warned.

As an aside, he added that the township could decide to significantly raise taxes and buy up the vacant property for parks, or residents could do the same thing if that was their wish.

The News
625-3370

One resident spoke out in favor of the project. "North Oakland County is going through a growth explosion, and there are several areas around zoned like this that will be developed as these are," said Michael Clark, an Independence Township resident.

"You can educate yourself by looking at zoning and the master plan and choose where you want to live," he added.

In making their comments, commission members expressed concerns about landscaping, grading and the developer's wish to keep private roads inside the development.

"I'm totally against private roads," said Secatch. "The school district won't send buses onto private roads, and I don't want to see school kids having to cross M-15."

In order to create private roads in the project, the developer must get permission from the zoning board of appeals.

The planning commission formed a committee to work with developers before they bring the project back for approval.

Hearing on township woodlands ordinance

Has development prompted the unnecessary removal of trees in Independence Township?

Residents are being asked to state their opinion on an ordinance that would regulate the number of trees lost to development.

The township has scheduled a public hearing on a woodlands preservation ordinance for Thursday, Feb. 8, at 7:30 p.m.

The purpose of the ordinance is to achieve a preservation of important physical, aesthetic, recreation, environmental and economic assets for present and future generations, according to a township notice.

Continued development of the township has resulted in unregulated and unnecessary removal of trees and other forms of vegetation and natural resources and processes, the notice says.

The hearing will be held in the township board room, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston. For more information, call the building department at 625-8111.

Sashabaw sewer on schedule; some without water

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Construction of sanitary sewers on Sashabaw Road is going "right according to plan," says an Independence Township official.

But to residents living along the sewers route, the project is a grim reminder that progress can be painful.

Paul Henry and his family live on Sashabaw Road. "About two weeks ago, we got home and had no water whatsoever," Henry said.

Since then the Henry family has worked its way through 10 gallons of distilled water provided by the township and is using water routed to the home through a garden hose.

"There is no pressure to take a shower," Henry adds. "As far as taking a bath, we put it on the stove, heat it up and use a washrag.

"The family next door has four small children," Henry says, adding that several neighbors are also without water.

Sharon Ashton also owns a home on Sashabaw Road.

"We were living like normal people and now, because they want a sewer, we have no water," Ashton complains. Ashton says it's her wish for the township to dig her a new well.

Sashabaw Road residents get water from underground well systems.

When a sewer system is constructed, water must be to the wells in about 10 days.

In the meantime, the township is rerouting water from working wells to Sashabaw Road homes through garden hoses, which send in water through spigots where the water usually comes out.

In addition the township will continue to supply distilled water to residents.

Apart from the loss of water to residents, the rest of the project is moving along schedule and is more than halfway completed, Anderson says.

"It's going great guns," he says. "They're laying about 150 feet of pipe a day."

The C. D. Cole company began work on the $390,000 project in early December. When completed, the sewer will cover the length of Sashabaw Road between McDonald's and Waldon Road.

"There is no pressure to take a shower. As far as taking a bath, we put it on the stove, heat it up and use a washrag."

Paul Henry

pumped from the earth to lay in the piping.

The reason the Henrys and others are without water is because their wells are too shallow, explains Independence Township Department of Public Works Director George Anderson.

"Those wells would never be allowed under today's standards," Anderson says.

The sewer trenches are not abnormally deep, he says. In fact they are being dug at a minimum grade.

Although the situation is inconvenient to homeowners, it is not permanent. Anderson expects water to return

What will they think of next?

Now, from the comfort of your own home, you can become informed about the Feb. 12 millage election for Clarkston schools. Just think: no more meetings, no more lengthy newspaper articles.

Instead, an informational video tape may be borrowed from Independence and Springfield township libraries or from any school building in the district.

The video will also be shown on Independence-Clarkston Channel 65 on United Cable Television; check local listings for times.

The tape features Clarkston schools Finance Director Bill Jackson explaining the financial issues about the millage request. Comments from local residents are also included.

Barbara Johns, publicity chairwoman for the Blue Ribbon Kids Committee, credited Clarkston High School senior Derek Hackbardt for the project.

He spent many hours in production, she said.

Julie Campe

Sharon Devereaux, principal of Andersonville Elementary, and Jack Hayden, principal of North Sashabaw Elementary, have done a fine job rounding up the first two pupils for our new profile, Student Standout.

We told them that we were looking for a good student who deserved recognition. The person didn't necessarily have to be an all "A" student — just someone who had been giving a strong effort.

Jamie Barnett, 11, of Andersonville not only was interesting and nice, but she also helped me with the interview.

Since she was our first profile, I was trying to think up questions during the interview.

"You didn't ask me what my favorite sport was," she piped up. So I asked her.

"Basketball," she said, with a gleam in her eye — the same gleam that you see in high school athletes' eyes.

She explained that she loved the Pistons and played sports with her brothers.

I'm sure we'll write more about her in about five years, when she's on the high school teams.

Our second profile, Carrie Porritt, 10, of North Sashabaw also contributed good questions. For example, when we were nearing the end of the interview, I asked if there was anything else that should be included in the profile.

Immediately, she came up with this questions: "What college do I want to go to?"

So I asked her.

"Harvard," she said, with a big grin. Then, I noticed she was wearing a shirt with large letters spelling "Harvard."

Carrie's goal is to study law, and since she knows Harvard has a good law school, she decided to aim for the highest. It's reassuring to know that we'll have someone with such high goals to turn to with our legal questions someday.

If you've written a letter or two to The Clarkston News lately, it may not appear in the paper. We've received a slew of unsigned letters or letters signed with only a first name or letters with unreadable signatures.

While our policy states that we'll withhold names on request, we won't publish unsigned letters or letters for which we can't confirm an identity.

***

As of Sunday, The Clarkston News staff had every single letter entered into the computer and ready to print, so you can imagine our surprise when we received what seemed to be a record number of letters on Monday — 18 (long letters, too).

We were typing well into the night to have them ready for this week's paper, but many of the letters were extremely long. So if your letter doesn't appear this week, look for it next week.

Most of the letters regarded the Feb. 12 millage election. While many supported the request, a few did not support it.

Some of the con-letter writers said they feared retribution against their children and asked that their names be withheld.

Jim's Jottings

I love picking up the morning newspaper and seeing headlines like, "MSU may up the ante in its battle to keep Perles".

News like that let's me know right off that the world is ok, that it survived another night. I mean, ya know, if the big, front page news of the days, ya know, I mean, is that the jocks are dominating the headlines, I mean, wow, are we safe or what?

We've got our emphasis in the right place when what happens to a football coach is more important, or sells more newspapers, than the Supreme Court's decision on juries, expenditures from Detroit's secret fund, and the civil strife in Azerbaijan, which were also headlined that day.

Never mind that the stock market has just dropped 77 points. Forget that GM, Ford and Chrysler are laying off people and closing plants right and left. Pay no mind to increasing unemployment.

No sir and mama, it's vital that we get the details on this man Michigan State wanted so bad it hired him when he was under contract with someone else... a move that cost MSU lovers and taxpayers $175,000 in a payoff to settle a $1 million suit against our state university.

I mean, ya know, we're setting an example here for our young students and athletes to follow. Oh, did I mention how the university also kept that deal secret for three months in keeping with high standards of ethics expected for academic surroundings?

Whereas I'm being cynical about the Perles-MSU headlines, I'm serious about liking to see headlines in the morning paper that are non-violent.

We can assume a night did not go by without a murder, rape, or armed robbery. But, lacking the screaming headline we can also be pretty sure no one went berserk and killed a street full of people, that no natural catastrophe took place and we are still not in a declared war.

When we see the main story of the day is of a cardinal being called to the Vatican to work, we know some drug cartel didn't try to kill the President in the previous 24 hours.

Headlines like, "Bush, Congress are likely to have troubled session" help keep my nerve endings from becoming too frayed as I start the day. It's so much easier on my constitution to have a relaxed morning before facing my publishing duties on our weekly newspapers.

Probably our readers like it better when our headlines are non-disruptive emotionally. Emphasis on reporting bad news is the reputation newspapers have (printed because readers like to read bad news). However, there are undoubtedly several readers who would prefer our lead story decision was between closing a road and starting a senior meals program. Those were the biggies in our Auburn Hills Argus recently.

As a newspaper reader, I'll take the road closing and Perles over death and destruction every day.

Comparing apples with apples

Residents of Springfield Township now have to search The Oakland Press for legal notices. The township board voted 6-1 Jan. 11 to take them away from The Clarkston News.

Two reasons were given for the change, money and timing.

Only the money reason is valid. The Oakland Press underbid The News by $1.50 a column inch of advertising. Our price is $4.50, The Press, $3.

In 1989, Springfield spent $3,879 with The News for legal notices. Had the Pontiac paper had those notices the cost apparently would have been $2,586. That's a good savings if apples are being compared to apples.

Knowing very well what the profit margin is for The Clarkston News, we can only wonder why the Pontiac daily newspaper offered to print the legal notices for such a low figure.

Maybe they want to make a statement, like The Lapeer County Press did last year. They offered to print legal notices for all townships in the county free for one year. All but three took them up on the offer.

Maybe The Oakland Press is pressing for circulation in Springfield Township, hoping more residents will now buy their paper.

More likely, however, is some pressure being felt by The Oakland Press by the merger of the two Detroit daily newspapers. It's possible some circulation will be lost and some advertising revenue will be diverted from The Press to the Free Press and News combo, and Pontiac management is in turn pressing the weekly newspapers to the north.

The Pontiac paper offered the same $3-per-inch rate to Rochester and was turned down. The difference in price was not as great there as in Springfield.

With this pattern established, lower prices in Springfield and Rochester, we can expect the same bid cutting in Lake Orion, Oxford and Holly. Such may be the ramifications of the JOA.

We really have no problem with public officials trying to save taxpayers money, even when it's directed at us. We hope they all look as carefully at other expenditures.

The one complaint we have on the Springfield board's actions is the published excuse that Monday meetings make it impossible to meet Clarkston News publication deadlines.

The deadlines are the same for Addison Township, Clarkston Village, Lake Orion and Orion Township, and they all have Monday meetings. Our Clarkston News, Oxford Leader and Lake Orion Review carry the legal notices for these governmental units. No problem. JAS

'If it Fitz ...'

alumnus...

Jim Fitzgerald

You read it here first.

In 1977, I wrote: "Michigan State University has been making a lot of news lately, all of it exceedingly education if you're an ape."

Those words were in response to the revelation that MSU had been caught paying more than scale to persuade husky young men to be football players instead of concert violinists.

The football team was banned from playing in a bowl or appearing on TV. There was considerable wailing that the loyal MSU alumni were being deprived of much pigskin ecstasy.

I disagreed. I confessed to being one MSU alumnus who didn't care if the Spartans were stripped of their jockstraps and sentenced forever to the library. I said it was sad for an entire university to smell like a locker room.

There was quick response from Ron Karle, then editor of the MSU Alumni Magazine. In an article cleverly headlined "I Don't Believe It, Fitz" (in some newspapers, my column is titled "If It Fitz"), Karle said the alumni could be proud of their school for many reasons that didn't smell like dirty sweat socks. He said I'd realize that if I would visit the campus and talk to someone besides locker room attendants.

My answer was I visited the campus several times a year. "I like to walk slowly through the long lobby in the university hotel and listen to university employees urge 7-foot boys to enroll at MSU because the literature department needs tall poets."

During the same 1977 week that Karle told me sports weren't that important to MSU, I received another communication from the university. It was an invitation to join the MSU Alumni Association, along with a fancy brochure offering to sell me a table lamp that looked exactly like an authentic-size Spartan football helmet and face guard, $34.50.

The association also was selling a radio in a Spartan helmet, a book detailing 80 years of Spartan football, and beer mugs with Spartan helmets on them in green-baked enamel. Influenced by Karle's article, I was compelled to write:

"It is probably just an oversight that the brochure didn't advertise a lamp shaped exactly like the brown fedora worn by the MSU botany professor who was first to pollinate a rose artificially."

But that's enough old quotes from me. Let's listen to Peter Fletcher, the Ypsilanti businessman and well-known Republican activist who was an MSU trustee in 1981, when I wrote about my reluctance to donate money to universities that award degrees to graduates, especially athletes, who can't speak or write decent English. I cited an MSU senior who said, in a TV interview: "We was a good football team." Fletcher responded:

"Your dismay carried to its logical extreme would end all private philanthropy for all major universities as these same circumstances prevail on virtually every campus."

"You misdirect the blame for these sins. Universities remain struggling islands awash in a sea of public indifference to correct language. By the time students arrive in our midst, linguistic slovenliness is rampant. The zeal of spectator sports is also in response to societal demands. A quick review of your own newspaper will confirm these claims. Shall I cancel my subscription because your reporters employ improper English and you devote many more column inches to sports than scholastics?"

Oh, yes, Fletcher was right. We get what we deserve, and that includes:

•Special newspaper sections when the University of Michigan football coach retires, as though God had stepped down, and tons of front-page hysteria when the MSU football coach decides to be athletic director, too, no matter what the university president says.

•Five trustees dumb enough to expose MSU to national publicity that gives the university a terrible jerk-jock image.

Where does an MSU alumnus go to resign?

From This Perspective

From the mouths of marketers

Tracy King

The marketers have really done it to us this time. They haven't just sold us on a product or two, they've succeeded at entirely changing the way we eat.

If you think about it, the doomsdayers about fat, oats and the like are really marketers and manufacturers of foods themselves.

When was the last time you heard about fiber, or a certain type of vegetable oil? Probably in a commercial.

Sure doctors and scientists have made their findings about our health, but they are carefully worded to say "preliminary studies show..." or "tests on laboratory animals indicate..."

Besides, once the studies are published, they're always refuted with another one anyway.

No, it's the marketers that have led us right toward their "better choice" foods, and we have followed, in mass.

Take a sidelong glance at your neighbor in the checkout line.

There's the flavorless bran cereal. The salt-free, fat-free, microwave popcorn is next to the skinless chicken breasts and the low-fat, low-sodium processed cheese food. The extra-lean, Lean Cuisine is on top.

Remember how enjoyable eating used to be? Remember meat loaf? Fresh cured bacon and over-easy eggs? When was the last time you saw a good slab of double-chocolate cake?

There was a time when the marketers actually peddled fat as the ingredient of choice.

Turn the flap of the book "Balanceo Daily Diet," a recipe book by Janet McKenzie Hill.

The very first sentence, reads "Fat is life's fuel — the greatest producer of human heat and human energy. No diet can be well balanced which does not give fats their proper place in daily food."

A cookbook actually stressing fat? Shocking. Until you notice the publisher, which is none other than Crisco Oil, a subsidiary of Proctor and Gamble. The copyright is 1916.

The recipes actually sound pretty good, and include relics such as Corned Beef and Potato Hash, Custard Souffle and Breaded Lamb Chops, fried.

The way things are going, the really good foods will soon disappear from the recipes books and store shelves forever.

We'll be eating freeze-dried, vitamin-particled matter in colorful packages all the 146 years of our lives.

They're more expensive to make and buy, which will make them a sure attraction, and they're easier to get scientific about, too.

Letter to Editor

Reporter welcomed

Dear Renee Glovinsky,

Welcome to Clarkston!

We moved here from Oak Park about 11 years ago.

I'm not certain if we ever crossed paths in Oak Park. I was principal there for about 25 years — Roosevelt Elementary, Frost Junior High and Dewey Elementary.

I guess I get pleasure out of reading about Oak Park grads — whether or not the persons passed through one of the above schools.

Fact is — a Howard Schwartz, now a vet on the Dixie Highway across from M-15, was one of my kids at Roosevelt Elementary, so you're not alone!

At any rate, good luck to you in Clarkston.

Harold Flacman

Mail stolen

I would like to alert the folks who live in the Allen Road, Ellis Road area that mail postmarked Dec. 18 through Dec. 20 was stolen from rural boxes, torn open and later discarded in culverts along the road in the snow.

The Sheriff was called and supplied with a description of the car and a license number. The post office is also aware because they have (or had) a pile of torn scraps.

As recently as Jan. 24, after the thaw, more mail was found; so please be aware for your neighbor's sake.

Sally Kubani

Paper's story policy discriminates

It is my contention that The Clarkston News discriminates against retail advertisers outside the Clarkston area.

I own and operate Crispell's Cover to Cover in Waterford Township.

I recently asked my advertising sales representative about having an article written about my business. Her reply was: The Clarkston News policy is that stories are only written about Clarkston area businesses.

This reply angered and insulted me.

Policy makers at The Clarkston News readily accept advertising dollars, dollars that pay their salaries. It doesn't matter if the money comes from outside of Clarkston.

However, when it comes to having an article written about these "outsider" businesses, we're told "Oh, no, The Clarkston News doesn't do that."

Policy makers, take a look at your advertising revenue — what area generates the majority of your retail advertising dollars?

That area outside of Clarkston, not Clarkston itself.

The Jan. 10, 1990, issue of The Clarkston News makes this abundantly clear. There are 40 retail advertisers from outside Clarkston, 15 from Clarkston.

Retail "outsiders" run nearly 50 percent of the ads in The Clarkston News — we generate a great deal of revenue for this paper.

And how are we treated by The Clarkston News? In a discriminating manner.

Sorry, retail "outsiders." The Clarkston News will only take your money — don't ask us to write an article about your business!

Talk about biting the hand that feeds you!

Eula Crispell

Remember past

Being a Clarkston graduate, the millage of Feb. 12 resembles highly the millage of the 1988-89 school year.

While I was in school, the millage subject came up several times in school and the newspapers.

This, as suspected, involved many talks of how "bad" schools in the area will be without the increase.

As a student during this period, the only increase I saw in the school budget was in the paychecks of the teachers and administrators.

Not that they shouldn't get a raise, but to tell voters it is toward other educational needs is just not right.

I feel that if they are going to cut the programs they say they are, then do it, instead of getting the money and using toward things never mentioned.

Independence Township and the Clarkston area is one of the wealthiest communities in the Detroit area. If we do not have enough money to run even our schools, there is a definite mismanagement of funds somewhere.

I am not arguing whether we need this increase or not, I'm asking voters to remember what administrators did with this increase in the past, once they got their hands on it.

Erick Phillips

Don't unplug the schools yet

No one likes to be shoved up against a wall and a gun put to their head and given the choice "your money or your life," but that is precisely the situation in which the upcoming millage election has placed us.

But please understand the local school board is not holding the gun; it's Lansing that is holding the gun to our heads.

Taxpayers' rage is well founded but misplaced.

Our schools are victims, like the taxpayers of a very bizarre and incomprehensible method of financing our schools.

Please don't unplug our schools yet; just give them one more year of life support and give our elected officials an opportunity to straighten out this mess in Lansing.

Any savings you realize by voting "no" on the school millage would quickly be eaten up by the high costs of crime, prisons and welfare.

We are lucky our children want to go to school. This is not always the case.

It is inconceivable that the present level of Clarkston education would be further reduced. When your child asks for bread, do you give your child a stone?

This could be the most significant and far-reaching vote you will ever cast.

You might want to pray about it first.

"What you do for yourself dies with you; what you do for your community lives forever." (Abraham Lincoln).

We have drunk from many wells that we did not dig, and we have been warned by many fires that we did not build.

Please don't let the fire go out.

Gerald E. McNally
District Judge

Clarkston allowed kids to excel later

On May 18, the last of our three children will graduate from college. This will be a milestone for our family, as we strongly support education. Our children attended and graduated from public grade, junior and high schools. They graduated from private universities. We sent them to public schools so they could stay and participate in their own community and attend with neighbor's children.

Our job as parents was to cooperate with the schools to educate our children. They are our children, and we felt responsible for directing their education.

When we moved to Clarkston, we considered it fortunate that the school system allowed seven hours. Our sons and daughter didn't have to choose between academics, sports or music; they could do it all and at no extra cost to our family.

Because of our sons' experience in the Clarkston High School Marching Band, they qualified for their university's marching band. And the wide spectrum education all three of our children received at CHS prepared them to be accepted and excel at a highly competitive college and university, most of whose students come from private preparatory schools.

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., Jan. 31, 1990 9

We thank the taxpayers of Clarkston and Independence Township for our children's education. Because of their education, they will be contributors to society.

We happen to think that what is good enough for our children is good enough for other's children; therefore, we will support any school millage.

There are some who say that a "no" vote on a millage sends a message to Lansing about how to support education. Maybe it does, but in the meantime, while Lansing decodes the message, we ask whose education and community are we sacrificing?

We're glad it wasn't our children's education, but we fear that it will be our community's future.

Please join us in supporting our most valuable resource — the education of our community's children. Vote yes.

Betty and Ron Wagner

House or home?

Your home has for years been synonymous with your house because it served as a place to live and your largest investment.

Do you expect this to continue?

In the Dec. 18, 1989, issue of Time Magazine, Andrew Tobias noted with alarm that a lot of people are talking about falling house prices. Washington, Boston, New York City, Houston and Los Angeles were mentioned.

But why not Clarkston? We are too small to be noticed, I suppose, but we are nonetheless in a similar predicament.

To quote Tobias, "the baby-boom of the '50s has given way to the baby-bust of the '70s and with it will come a drop in the demand for housing."

Will we be affected by a similar drop in demand?

As of now, prospective home owners are still interested in our community. This demand has caused the value of our homes to rise by over 14 percent last year alone.

But what if the citizens of this community continue to make short-sighted decisions and reduce or eliminate any demand?

Then we, too, can expect to see a reduction in property values.

I have heard that some otherwise intelligent people, who think their taxes are too high, are voting no on the school millage. They may save $200-300 this year as a result.

That's a lot of money, so they make a similar decision over the next several years and maybe save a $1,000.

But such decisions will also kill the demand for our high-priced housing. No sensible parent with kids will move here, and only people looking for cheap housing might.

I'm sure most of you have proudly told friends about how much you have made on your house. Great, you made the right move when you came to Clarkston.

But what will you say when your value drops because the biggest single point of attraction, our schools, are so bad that no decent parent would move here.

The $200 you saved will be insignificant when compared to the thousands of dollars lost when and if you finally sell your home.

Waterford school children were victims of similar short-sighted "citizens." But so were the homeowners who watched their property values fall, and who, in many cases, were unable to sell their homes at all.

Is this what you want for Clarkston or yourselves?

Most people will sell their home within seven years after purchase. Do you want to enjoy the growth in value like Rochester, Birmingham and West Bloomfield; or would you rather save a few hundred dollars now and later try to sell your home in a real estate market similar to Pontiac's?

You get what you pay for.

Your continued short-sightedness will hurt the kids, the community and, most importantly to you, your biggest investment — your house.

The choice is yours — just a home or an investment, too.

William J. Bliesath

Not whole story

Shame on you Mrs. Jokisch! You didn't tell the whole story now did you? Inquiring minds would like to know the truth. I checked around; it wasn't hard.

The Jokisch neighborhood was targeted for reassessment. (Homes in that area have seen extensive remodeling, and there are newer, larger homes, too.)

These people all received notice of this, yet Mrs. Jokisch did not let the assessors in to measure their home and visually confirm the unfinished basement and number of bathrooms.

What were the assessors left to assume? At least one resident who let the assessors come in had a substantial decrease in SEV.

Next time, don't blame the school system for your mistake.

Name withheld
by request

Our decision will impact the '90s

As a parent, teacher and coach for Clarkston schools, I look around and see many problems facing our schools, and I ask why.

Why do many teachers have to teach three and four different subjects in our secondary schools and many of these out of their area of expertise? Why do we have 35-40 students in a classroom?

Why do we still use buildings that are literally crumbling around us? Why do we not have enough textbooks for all our students? Why do we lose good teachers to layoffs and other school districts every year?

Why are we on the verge of losing our athletes and coaches to other schools? They are actively being recruited right now!

Why are we going to lose our high school accreditation? Why are we going to lose many more students to private schools?

Why, because the state of Michigan refuses to accept its responsibility to finance schools. The state aid to Clarkston has gone from $3.2 million in 1988 to $1.7 million this year to a projected $200,000 for next year.

As a community, we have two choices. We can sit back and allow the state to continue to ignore their responsibility to our schools and children, as they have done for over 10 years with no signs of changing, or we as a community can pull together and support the millage Feb. 12.

Many of us cannot afford higher property taxes, but can we afford to let our school deteriorate further, taking with it our property values?

I hear many reasons why people are opposed to this millage. Some are upset with the state and rightly so.

Some are upset with the school board. Some are upset with the school administration. Some are upset with the teachers.

Stop, and ask yourselves who suffers if this millage fails. It will be our children, grandchildren and the Clarkston community.

Whatever happened to good old pride in one's community and schools? Is this something that went out with the '80s? What message are we sending our young people?

The time has come when everyone must make a decision that will have a lasting impact on this community well into the '90s. Either vote yes and support your community and its schools or vote no and then ask yourselves what this community has to offer.

Please vote yes Feb. 12 and allow the community of Clarkston to move forward into this decade and not backward.

John Craven

Dare to try for children's future

It is rare indeed in today's complex society that one is privileged to decide anything, let alone something as wonderful and important as the excellence of our children's educational system.

Ultimately a society's excellence is measured by its commitment to its own spiritual, educational and material well-being, both present and future.

In search of excellence in education, some people say we cannot and dare not try. The ones in search of excellence don't ask why but say "Why not?"

Some say we dare not try. We say we dare to try and shall not fail ourselves and our children's future.

The Clarkston Foundation For Public Education unanimously and very strongly urges you to join us in making a resounding and strong yes Feb. 12 to the millage for excellence in our Clarkston school system.

School volunteer urges yes votes

As a concerned parent of three sons, (one at Clarkston High; one at Sashabaw Junior High and one at North Sashabaw Elementary), I feel it very necessary to write this letter.

I'm not only a working parent, but I'm also a very active volunteer in the three schools. I feel that it is very important for each and every voter in this district to take a look at the facts.

I would like to urge you to vote YES on Feb. 12 to support the millage for the betterment of our great kids!

Since I am as involved as I am, I realize all the good things happening in Clarkston schools, and without your financial support we stand to lose a great deal of them.

Please exercise your right to vote on Feb. 12. All our kids need a yes vote!

Seniors aren't to blame for dilemma

We seniors do care! We care enough to send the best — to the tax collector! We can spread our best just so far.

Quit blaming us for school finances. Put the blame where it belongs — on our state legislature's big, broad shoulders and their collective mentality level.

As long as we voters stand meekly by and vote "yes" we, you included, are allowing that state legislature to continue to treat us as mentally deficient in the taxing department.

Surely taxing is complicated, but we seniors aren't to blame for education's dilemma.

Every year the state legislature lowers its part of the school's finances but increases its demands on the systems — not just Clarkston's but all other of the state's systems.

It would be nice to see such concentrated efforts exerted by those "yes" promoters to hound each state senator and each state representative instead of hounding us seniors.

Maybe a taxpayer revolt will get enough attention in Lansing.

Iva Sommers Caverly

Look beyond

The quality of the future is determined by decisions made right now. No matter where the funding should come from, our schools need support now.

No one wants higher taxes, but the alternative is 10 times worse: Clarkston graduates (our future work force, leaders and parents) not achieving their potential.

Everyone would suffer, and the whole community would start to slide downhill.

We have to look beyond the short-term sacrifice of higher taxes to the long term benefits of a strong school system.

Eric Pilarcik

Push legislation not seniors

I take great affront to the article written by Sherry Regiani, Jan. 24, 1990, in which she stated, "seniors when you raised your family, someone else paid for their education," and "we pay taxes to support your programs: Medicare and Social Security."

You have opened mouth and inserted foot, lady.

We seniors paid taxes; we paid for our children's education and have continually paid for grandchildren.

How can you say "someone else" paid? You didn't pay for mine, but I'm paying for yours!

You say "you" are supporting our programs; thanks for your help, but lady, we paid into Social Security all our working years and reaped very little revenue. What for? To supplement our income in our retirement years, not glorify it.

You have the audacity to insinuate that we don't pay or care! Two-thirds of my property taxes go for school taxes. Where would the schools be without our support? We don't pay? Don't care? Give us a break.

Many seniors' only income is Social Security, and in many cases pitifully small, due to short working periods and low wages in the '40s and '50s. Yet we still have to pay school taxes.

Seniors struggle to keep their homes — their prize possessions — that which they worked years to attain; yet lose, because of inability to pay high taxes. School taxes!

Hopefully in the near future, legislation will say "seniors, you've paid enough in school taxes," and relieve us of this monkey on our back; then we'll see how much you gripe about us seniors, when you lose our support and you take over.

Your attitude toward us seniors doesn't earn you any brownie points, nor does it stir my voting decision. Talk about negativism!

We seniors are intelligent, caring and giving people. We're loyal and continue to do our part. However, any intelligent voter knows that increased millage is not the answer, only a drop in the bucket.

Why don't you expend your energy to support, and yes pursue, legislation to force the state to act more responsibly instead of pointing at us seniors!

You never supported my children, but I am supporting yours.

We seniors do our part; you do yours.

Push legislation, not seniors.

Choice is ours

The Clarkson school system is facing a loss of accreditation in the 1990/91 school year should the projected cutbacks in expenditures be implemented.

Independence voters are facing on Feb. 12 a critical decision: either to allow their schools to lose the accreditation, with devastating consequences for the school children and the community, or to approve a 5.6-mill, one-year temporary revenue increase and thus enable the schools to maintain their present, although austere but nevertheless marginally adequate program, thus buying time for the upcoming revision of future school financing.

I would like to urge all of the voters to support the millage, and share here some of my concerns regarding the consequences that would follow if we do otherwise.

In the early 1980s, when we first moved to Independence Township, Clarkson was billed as the "future Bloomfield Hills of North Oakland County" — and justifiably so!

Its quaint, historical village, beautiful countryside, excellent school system and progressive and responsive government, represented all the essential elements necessary for building an outstanding residential community.

This motivated me to work toward preserving such a beautiful area for posterity and assuring that its future development proceeded in a planned and deliberate manner during the anticipated rapid growth in the 1980s.

My appointment to the township planning commission and to the zoning board of appeals, where I served for five rewarding years, offered an opportunity to help assure an orderly growth of the township through enactment of a township master plan and several other important ordinances and zoning decisions.

Also, this provided me an opportunity to study other communities and assess the consequences on them resulting from a variety of poor decisions.

Experience teaches us that good schools and good zoning laws are dominant factors which determine the future of a community and that communities which began their downward slide did so by first neglecting their school systems.

Good schools encourage an influx of families who care about education, culture and the general quality of life, and are willing to support it.

Conversely, neglected schools tend to attract families who have other priorities and vote accordingly. Statistics indicate that it is a snowballing process.

It leads to a skewed demographic composition and results in a negative voting pattern which is very difficult to reverse.

Clarkson is still not there, but another millage failure will undoubtedly point it in that direction.

The proposed 5.6-mill increase (about $200 for the average home in North Oakland County) is a negligible sum compared to the loss in property values, and particularly in Clarkson home prices, which will occur should our schools lose their accreditation.

This loss is in addition to the immeasurable loss to the future graduates of our school system, many of whom will not even be considered for admission to the better universities in this and other states.

Already, a number of major local companies are cautioning their new hires and employees transferring into this area against choosing residence in Clarkson because of the deteriorating school situation.

It suffices only to walk through one of our school buildings to note that the school system has not been adequately funded for some time now.

Many buildings are in dire need of repairs, maintenance and upgrading, as are the outdoor facilities.

We still don't even have a swimming pool!

How many potential future swimming champions did not even have a chance to try their talents and test their limits at this wholesome, healthy and popular sport — we will never know.

Not only did our school funding not keep up with inflation and reductions in state funding, but it was allowed to slide downward until today the Clarkson school system is dead last in expenditures per pupil in Oakland County (less than half of what Southfield spends) — hardly the "Bloomfield Hills of North Oakland County" situation.

What went wrong? Whose fault is it? Certainly not the students — they are doing their share; they are studying well; and we are all proud of their academic achievements.

Certainly not the teachers — statistics disclose that their salaries are near the bottom third in Oakland County; nevertheless, Clarkson schools, have, for the most part, an excellent and dedicated professional staff, mainly thanks to careful hiring practices over the years.

Certainly not the administrators — they are well-qualified, efficient and prudent, as manifested by the fact that their salaries are near the bottom in Oakland County.

Further, due to their careful fiscal management, Clarkson schools, of all Oakland schools, spend the highest portion of their expenditures directly on student instruction.

They also, year after year, repeatedly have highlighted the school needs and worked on improving the financial situation.

The basic problems are twofold: first it is the unfair, inconsistent and shortsighted method by which the state funds the schools; and second, are we, the voters, who failed to influence the lawmakers to change this poor way of school funding.

But whatever were the causes of past failures, they cannot be allowed to penalize our children now.

It is not yet too late!

By approving the proposed millage for one year, we can ensure, with a minimal cost, the continuity of our educational programs so essential to the future of our children and to the good of our great community.

The alternative is too cruel to contemplate.

It would eventually cost the homeowners not hundreds but thousands of dollars (estimates are that a 30 percent or more drop in home prices was experienced by other communities when schools lost their accreditation).

Not to mention the academic damage, which may take years to repair once Clarkson is perceived as having a deficient school system.

The choice is ours!

Some issues overlooked

Taxpayers! Before voting yes on the proposed millage, I would like to address some issues many of you do not know or may have overlooked.

Administrators, administrative costs and spending, teachers and other personnel are consuming most of the money.

We are being asked to approve a 5.6371-mill increase to restore and prevent budget reductions. The main reason the reductions are occurring is not because we don't care but because the board has projected a $1.5-million increase in the budget for increases in salaries and benefits for personnel.

In March 1989 the teachers received a six percent pay increase across the board, even though their contract was not up until August 1989. Presently the board hopes to have a new contract established by March 1990.

How many of us receive a six percent pay increase every year? I haven't. Most of us have to work eight to 10 hours per day, five to seven days a week and 12 months a year to earn what teachers earn working six hours a day, five days a week and 180 days a year.

There is nothing to say a teacher can't take a summer job to increase his or her income.

William Curtis (president of the teacher's union) stated, "It would not be fair to ask teachers, who are working professionals, to take a pay freeze because the community does not support education."

Give me a break! No professional would delegate their work out to a parent volunteer or students.

In our elementary schools, parent volunteers are correcting papers at home — in our junior highs, student aides are correcting other students' work during class time and taking papers home for correction.

An elective at junior high is either band, study hall or student aides. The practice breaks all confidentiality of your child's work and does not allow that teacher to adequately evaluate your child's progress or difficulties.

When teachers from surrounding districts were asked about this practice, many were appalled.

When the automobile companies were in trouble, wages were frozen while the companies were in trouble, wages were frozen while the companies reevaluated their financial obligations, but the workers still supported them.

Our teachers are "professionals" who can't support their schools when a crisis is evident. Consider the facts:

* Michigan teachers are the fourth highest paid in the nation.

* Clarkston spent the highest percentage of its budget directly on teacher's salaries and benefits.

* Sixty-five to 70 percent of all Clarkston teachers are at their maximum salaries.

* Examples of salaries:

- Six supervisors: (transportation food service, two in community education, data processing and central office) 1988-89, $22,691-$38,846.

- Seventeen building principals, assistant building principals, director of special education, community education and athletic director: 1988-89, $41,581-$58,540.

- Gary Haner (superintendent) receives $74,000 plus $5,000 tax-sheltered annuity, medical and life insurance plus an automobile with car phone.

- We pay for automobiles with phones for the superintendent and assistant superintendent!

* Let us look at benefits:

- Hospitalization (MESA - one of the Blue's best plans), dental and vision, group term life and long-term disability, cost approximately $6,400 a teacher, a year.

- Our board spends $13.996 million a year on benefits for instruction staff.

- Also all district employees participate in Michigan Public School Employee Retirement System, on which the board spends $16.68 million a year.

- Staff Development - when a teacher requests classes for further education, the district covers tuition, fees, mileage, meals and all other incidental expenses; if a class or course is required, then they pay the above, plus the hourly salary.

* Past millages approved:

- June 1986, 5 mills were renewed until 1992.

- October 1987, 4.25 mills (increase) were approved for operational purposes (salaries).

- June 1988, 5.5 mills (increase) were approved for operational purposes (salaries) and a 5.2-mill bond issue was approved for repairs.

We approved a 5.2-mill bond issue for repairs in June 1988. In 1989, the school district received a cash settlement from a roofing contractor in the sum of $23,889.

The money received was part of the moneys for repairs — but instead of setting the money aside for repairs or even to purchase new textbooks, they spent it on new band uniforms! Brilliant!

On the subject of elimination of busing, it is proposed this will save $400,000 to the system. On March 1, 1989, the system bought itself a $400,000 in-house computer with the knowledge an additional $10,000 would have to be spent on maintenance yearly.

If they had not bought the computer at this time, our children may not have been faced with no buses.

Also, $135,000 will be lost from state aid by the elimination of busing. Another smooth move.

Now what about the five-hour day. Presently, the teachers instruct five class periods a day, they have a one-hour planning time, which will be at the end of the day. I wonder how many will stay?

Their salaries will remain the same plus a six-percent increase will be added for less time spent.

What about next year? The board will ask us to renew this millage and I imagine also additional millage for operating expenses (salaries).

I don't begrudge anyone a raise, but six percent during a crisis is a little high — what about a three percent or a freeze for a year?

Presently, there are new options concerning school funding in Lansing, and Mr. Patterson has only begun to fight for us; why can't the teachers hold off for one year until this is better under control?

If the state adhered to the Headlee Amendment as it is supposed to do, we would not be facing this.

I suggest our board better reconsider their options or resign.

Oakland County has already stated increased assessments are on the way, but did you know Independence and Springfield townships are going to increase your assessments five to 20 percent across the board the last day of February or the first of March after the millage vote?

Call them, they'll tell you.

Happy taxes to all.

Rewards exceed the sacrifices

How sad I was when a friend once said, "I toured a few Clarkston schools buildings and when I saw the crumbling brick, my decision was to place my child in a private school."

Her assumption was: if the building was crumbling, the educational opportunities weren't far behind.

Please ponder the message here. It's happening time and time again, and unfairly so. My husband and I have two children attending Clarkston Elementary, and we are very pleased with the innovations used by the entire staff to deliver quality education in buildings that are outdated and circumstances less than ideal.

There are few lasting gift that we can give our young people today, and, of course, education is the most important.

Expensive? Most quality items are. Higher taxes? Unfortunately yes — in Michigan, but perhaps reduced at some time in the future.

Look around Clarkston and take pride in the children you have helped educate.

The rewards far exceed the sacrifices. Please vote yes.

We, the undersigned Atheletic Booster Club Members, support the upcoming February 12th School Millage Election. The purpose of our organization is to support any activity which we deem favorable to futher the course of Athletic Programs in the Clarkston Community School District.

The passage of this very important millage Proposition would return our Athletic Program back to the 1988-1989 level, with no pay-to-play. Also it would recall 22 laid off teachers, maintain a 6 hr. day at the secondary level, keep bus transportation for the junior and senior high schools, and also maintain all extra-curricular activities at the 1988-1989 level.

Chiefs say yes

The directors of the Clarkston Chiefs are in support of the increase in school millage for the year of 1990. Please support our millage so we are able to move out of formula.

Clarkston Chiefs

Underhanded methods used

I am a Clarkston graduate; our four children are, too. We now have five grandchildren in the Clarkston schools. I care, and I love children.

The methods used to reach voters are — as always in this school district — underhanded, threatening and detrimental to the children.

The parents of every student are being bombarded with literature (if you have four students you get four of everything). No lack of money for this or continuous elections.

Parents — take time — and ask your children what they're being told. In junior high — if the millage does not pass, then on Feb. 13 there will be no bus to pick them up. Latch Key — on Feb. 13 you will have to wait for your parents out by the road and etc.

When they get through with brainwashing the children, if the millage does pass, it will need to be used for school psychiatrists.

Clarkston still has a declining enrollment. We used to educate more students in these same buildings with a lot fewer employees.

As usual, everyone on the payroll will be getting a raise; it's in their contract, and they deserve it. Always money for this, too.

Well, I also care about the parents trying to provide food, clothing and shelter for their children; senior citizens; people on fixed incomes; the unemployed; the working poor and all others who deserve and are working for something besides a school, which puts everything else before education.

Perhaps all would benefit if we had a few years of what schools were set up for.

Why do you think foreign students who spend a year here get no credit for it?

I do not think much of the reasons for holding the elections in February either. The township budgeted extra money for board of review to handle those expected because of increased assessments, so we know even if notices have not been sent yet.

As for the "snowbirds," that is really a degrading blow. They paid taxes while their children were in school and continue to do so now.

This millage is for only one year, but next year, they will ask us to renew it. We are told over and over again, if it does not pass, our property value will go down, so vote NO, and you will save two ways.

Most of us want to be able to live in our homes, not sell them.

Zona Y. Somers

U.S. falls short

The Clarkston School District ranks at or near the bottom of Oakland County in per-pupil spending.

The State of Michigan also ranks near the bottom of the nation in the percentage of budget spent in support of its schools.

To add further insult to our injury, an article in The Oakland Press, Tuesday, Jan. 16, states the "the United States spends relatively less on elementary and secondary education than 13 other industrial countries. Only Australia and Ireland invest less on elementary and secondary education, relative in the size of their economies, than does The United States."

These startling findings were published in a paper "Shortchanging Education," compiled by the Economic Policy Institute based on data supplied by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) and our own federal government.

According to the report cited by the article, the nations ahead of us in providing K-12 education for their youth were Sweden, Austria, Switzerland, Norway, Belgium, Denmark, Japan, Canada, West Germany, France, the Netherlands, Britain and Italy.

The U.S. Education Department disagreed with the report because it insisted that the report focused on K-12 support relatively more than those nations listed when resources devoted to higher education are shown. The fact remains, K-12 spending falls short.

While it will take some time to move the forces in Lansing and Washington enough to provide the support currently needed for our Clarkston students, we have the opportunity to make sure they are not shortchanged on the local level.

Join me and concerned others who care about the education of our young people. Vote "YES" for the February millage.

Put heat on Lansing

It seems to me that a lot of people are missing the point in this whole millage campaign.

Where can you live and not pay taxes? Even if you rent, the costs are passed along in monthly charges. In Detroit, residents pay not only school millage, but city taxes, as well. It's not cheap, either.

I'm old enough to remember how $5 would buy a tank of gas (pumped by a uniformed attendant), oil and wiper fluid levels checked and a free glass to boot! In those days, my father was a well-paid executive at $100 a week. Times have changed.

I have a few suggestions, things that I am going to do.

First, write your congressman, senator or even Gov. Blanchard, himself. Tell them you'll help bail out the school system for the sake of the kids, but they'd better come up with a school reform package that will work, or you won't vote for them in re-election. And don't.

Second do vote, yes on Feb. 12. We certainly don't need to lose what we already have, do we?

Third, investigate the Patterson-Anderson proposal. It's just getting started and may have real answers to help our schools.

Fourth, keep an ear open to what goes on in Lansing and find out who is working for the type of school reform you believe in.

At election time, vote for someone who believes the way you do. (This takes time and effort on your part, but remember, your tax dollar pay this person's salary.)

It takes commitment to be involved, but in the long run, you can win.

When our system of government was established oh, so long ago, it was intended that the people run the government, not the other way around. ("We the people...")

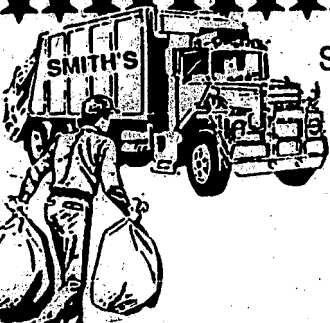

Our small community of Clarkston may look like a drop in the bucket to Lansing. I know that if that bucket gets filled with the many letters from registered voters committed to keeping this a quality neighborhood with quality schools and willing to vote out any legislator who wants to do otherwise, they'll look at us with enlightened eyes.

So don't cut yourself short. You'll pay taxes no matter where you go. You moved to Clarkston because you liked it, didn't you?

Put the heat on Lansing to do their part. In the meantime, do your part by voting YES to keep the quality in our schools and pride in our community.

Clarkston High School Varsity Rochester Kiwanis Invitational, Jan. 27

The Clarkston Wolves varsity volleyball team is running hot and cold. After taking second place in the Rochester Kiwanis Invitational on Saturday, Jan. 27, and then facing a severe loss against Brandon High School, it's really hard to tell where the team is headed.

"Saturday was a very good day for the Wolves," said Clarkston varsity coach Gordon Richardson. "We started at 8:15 a.m. and didn't finish until 9 p.m."

With seven game wins and only three game losses throughout the tournament, it is hard to believe that the team is only 1-4 in the league and 8-9 overall.

The victorious day began for the Wolves as it went up against Milford, beating them in both games; 15-5, 15-6.

Playing against Port Huron ended in a draw for the Wolves as it lost the first match 10-15 and won the second, 15-11.

Walled Lake Central offered the Wolves their biggest challenge of the day. "The team played real well. Losing these two matches put us behind in pool play," Richardson said.

With only a few minutes of rest, the Wolves faced its next challenger, Birmingham Groves High School, winning both games 15-9, 15-7.

Carrying on the momentum, the Wolves stomped on Berkley High School, winning 15-4, 15-5.

Entering into the quarter finals, best two-out-of-three, was not going to slow the Wolves down either.

Clarkston lost the first match against Walled Lake Western, 10-15, but came back hard winning the next two matches 15-11, 15-5.

With only a 10-minute break, the Wolves had to be ready for Anchor Bay, a team that it had lost dramatically to last year. In the first game the Wolves lost 9-15 but ended up taking the next two games, 15-13, 15-5.

By the time the girls played Bishop Foley, they were tired out, Richardson said. The team lost both games 12-15 and 2-15.

Susan McKoin and Jami Lerner both won an award for putting fourth an outstanding effort. The team itself received a trophy for second place.

Outstanding players during the tournament included Lerner with 43 kills, McKoin with 31 kills and 22 aces, Michele Sikes who was leading server with 68 out of 68 services and 6 aces, and Amy Blome with 23 aces.

"For the most part we took advantage of the opportunities and played well," Richardson said.

Jan. 29
CHS vs. Brandon

Richardson thought that the tournament's prosperous results would be a turning point for the Wolves, but as it lost miserably to Brandon Jan. 29, 10-15, 2-15, he had no answers.

"I can't explain it," Richardson said. "We played hard Saturday, and I thought we did great. We have to start thinking as a team. They have no one to blame but themselves, and it's time they were responsible for their own actions."

The two best servers during the evening were Wendy Cummings who went 9 for 9 with 1 ace and Susan McKoin who was 8 for 8 with 2 aces. In hitting, Jami Lerner had 3 kills; and getting 2 kills apiece were Amy Blome, Jody Lopucki, Michelle Folwell and Jennifer Graham.

The Wolves will compete in the Garber Invitational Saturday, Feb. 3.

READY TO ACE THE BALL, varsity player Michele Sikes concentrates on new strategies during practice.

Clarkston High School Varsity Don Thomas Ski Meet, Jan. 26

The Wolves junior varsity ski team participated in the Don Thomas Ski Meet Friday, Jan. 26. The girls took second and the boys took 8th.

Andrea Raymond took second at 52:34; Lisa Carter took 5th place at 52:99; Courtney Whitaker took 6th place at 53:03; Becky Rumph took 8th at 55:52; Susan McNally took 15th at 58:11; and Gina Shilling took 28th at 66:55.

Steve Hall came in 12th at 46:68; Ryan Noll took 15th at 47:04; Brad Stricklin took 41st at 49:04 and Rob McKee had a time of 59:52 coming in 97th.

"There were over 150 participants," said Clarkston varsity coach Judy Roeser. "I was pleased with the results. The girls did outstanding, and the boys did extremely well with only four participants."

TYLER DAVIS of Clarkston gets psyched up for his bout during the Wrestling club's all-day tournament.

Youngsters take to the mat

BY RENEE GLOVINSKY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It was a day of tears and fears as the Clarkston Wrestling Club hosted its annual all-day wrestling tournament Sunday, Jan. 28.

The tournament included over 403 wrestlers ranging in ages 8 through adult. According to club president John Vega, there were 150 more wrestlers than last year.

"Everything ran smoothly," Vega said. "We were even out before the Super Bowl began."

Divisions included Bantam — those born in 1982 and after; Midget — born in 1981 and 1980; Junior — born in 1979-78; School Boy — born in 1977 and 76; Cadet — born in 1975 and 74; Elite — born in 1973 and 72; and Open — born in 1971 and before.

Casey McCormack, 6, and brother Ryan, 9, participated. "The kids love to wrestle," said father Jordan McCormack. "I think it's great."

In the Bantam division Clarkston scored 35 points. Casey McCormack at 40 pounds, took third place; Christopher Haag at 45 pounds, took second place; Charlie Myer at 50 pounds, took third place; Michael Brattain at 65 pounds, took first place; Chris Lawrence also at 65 pounds, took third place; and George Green, Heavy Weight, took first place.

In the Midget division Clarkston scorers included A.J. Grant at 55 pounds, who took first; Franco Vega, 85 pounds, took second; Randy Gates at 100 pounds, took second; Jeff Corrico, 75-pound novice, took third; Robert Allyn, 75-pound novice, took first; Brad Bailey, 70-pound novice, took first; Mike Bennett, 70-pound novice, took second; Nick Upchurch, 65 pound-novice, took second; Steven Bradford, 80-pound novice, took first; John Bowser, 80-pound novice, took second; Adam West, 80-pound novice, took third; Kevin Turnbull, 60-pound novice, took second; Rocky Bills, 55 pound novice, took second; Chad McCormick, 55-pound novice, Chad McCormick, third place; Ryan McAleer, 55-pound novice, took first.

In the Elite division, Clarkston scorers include Terry Melvin, 143 pounds, first; Kevin Brown, 165 pounds, first; and Travis Robertson, 178 pounds, second.

In the Junior division, Clarkston scorers include

Sports

Brandon Rank, 70 pounds, second; Dennis Busch, 70 pounds, third; Andy Miller, 100 pounds, third; Jeremy Brown, 148 pounds, second; Tom Belgan, 85 pound novice, first; and Joshua Melvin, 108 pound novice, second.

In the School Boy division Clarkston scorers were Corey Grant, 85 pounds, placed second; Armin Michelsen, 100 pounds, second; Jason Cain, 133 pounds, first; and Kevin Haynes, 148 pounds, third.

In the Cadet division the Clarkston winner was Richard Bair, 99 pounds, taking third place.

"I want to thank everyone that helped out this weekend along with the entire season," Vega said. "Especially Paul Tungate, who has been very supportive. You can't have a winning wrestling program without the cooperation of the athletic director. I also want to thank the Clarkston Booster Club. It was my first time working with them, and they were great."

Varsity wrestlers place first in tourney

BY RENEE GLOVINSKY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It was no contest Saturday, Jan. 27, when the Clarkston Wolves varsity wrestling team took first in its own invitational, scoring 215.5 points.

This was quite a turn-about from its major defeat Thursday against the Lake Orion Dragons, 17-49.

"I'm happy that we rebounded from the big defeat," said varsity coach Scott Strickler. "We had no ill effects from the loss."

The Clarkston Invitational Wrestling Tournament was comprised of 10 other teams, including Burton Bendle, which finished second with 136 points; Grand Blanc, third with 124.5 points; and Oxford, fourth with 59 points.

"This gives me hope for Saturday's league meet," Strickler said.

The Wolves need to take first at the Greater Oakland Activities League meet on Feb. 3 to become league co-champs. Otherwise they will end the season in second place behind Lake Orion.

Individual scores of Clarkston High School include: Jeff DeRoseau (C), 103 pounds, over Bryan Perkins (Milford), 9-7; Matt Boucard (C), 112 pounds, decision of 4 against Rob Shingles (Berkley); Jerry Anderson (C), 119 pounds, majority decision against Mike Malkiewicz (Oxford), 13-0; Aaron Lawrence (Bendle), 125 pounds, pinned Jason Roughton (C).

Also: John Anderson (C), 130 pounds, decision of 4 against Brian Link (Farmington); Matt Seitz (C), 135 pounds, decision of 4 against Jarrett St. Amand (Grand Blanc); Joel Barbeau (G.B.), 140 pounds, decision of 4 against Alex Martin (C); John Terpstra (C), 145 pounds, over Chris Kresl (Farmington), 6-0; Tim Kerr (C), 152 pounds, over Jim Kimball (Bendle) 5-3; Damon Michelson (C), 160 pounds, over Bill Butash (Berkley) 12-6; Jerry Lawrence (C), 189 pounds, decision of 4 against Mike Hommell (Milford); John Finley (Milford), 189 pounds, technical fall over Joe Webb (C), 19-4.

Goalie grabs 30 saves against OSU

Sophomore goalie Rob Laurie of Clarkston, a member of the Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, hockey team, made 30 saves Saturday, Jan. 20, in a 7-5 home win over Ohio State.

The victory enabled the Broncos to hang onto its fifth-place ranking in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association after losing Friday's contest 4-3.

Laurie did not see action in the first game. Western Michigan is 12-15-1 overall and 10-11-1 in league play for 21 points, one point ahead of the OSU Buckeyes. Laurie is 6-6-1 this season with an .848 save percentage and a 4.84 goals against average. He has made 350 saves for a 26.1 average per game.

CLARKSTON varsity wrestling coach Scott Strickler gives encouraging words during the dual meet against Lake Orion Thursday, Jan. 25.

Little guys are so aggressive

Renee Glovinsky

Sunday afternoon was quite an experience for me. It was the first time I had ever been to a junior wrestling tournament, and it caused me to have mixed emotions.

It was so surprising for me to see little guys, no more than three feet tall, suiting up and actually wrestling other opponents. I couldn't imagine how these kids could comprehend all the moves and understand the rules at such a young age.

Actually, I think they really and truly only comprehended winning and losing. The details in the middle may not have had quite as much a bearing at that level.

Looking at those expressions and seeing such determination — and I'm not just speaking of the kids, but the parents and coaches as well — I almost thought that there was too much emphasis being put on winning. But then it happened.

Little Tyler Davis of Clarkston faced his opponent Dale Halpin of Hazel Park and was pinned after an intense struggle. Davis' eyes filled up with tears; his face was beet red, and he looked for a reassuring hug from daddy or from coach. Both reached out to Davis with not only one but several hugs. Messages like "You'll get 'em next time," or "You were great anyway," were emphasized to the mini-athlete. In minutes flat, Davis was a happy little boy once again.

Another concern that I had was how these little boys could have so much aggression at such a pure and simple age. It made me think back to the book "Lord of The Flies" by William Golding. In this book it shows how "man" is naturally a competitive and aggressive being. It actually shows how humans need to have power and control to feel a sense of worth and importance.

The book was a rather negative portrayal of little boys growing up in an extreme situation. Personally, I think some aggressive behavior is important for the growth and maturity of children. It is also very natural and healthy. The old expression "Boys will be boys" allows for that unconditional behavior, not only for boys but for girls as well.

After getting over the shocking realization that some of these kids were born as recently as 1982, I started to enjoy the sport. I figured that kids wrestle with each other whenever they get the chance anyway — whether it be in the car or on the kitchen floor, so why shouldn't they be involved in an organized sport?

After all, it teaches them the rules; there is less chance of them getting hurt, and above all it teaches them that "sometimes you win, and sometimes you lose," a valuable lesson to carry with them throughout life.

On the slopes

BECKY RUMPH, a Clarkston High School junior varsity skier, races down the slopes at Pine Knob during an intense practice earlier this season.

Wrestlers fall to tough Lake Orion team

BY RENEE GLOVINSKY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It was a shattered evening for the Clarkston Wolves as they challenged the Lake Orion Dragons Thursday, Jan. 25, losing 17-49.

The meet was to determine who would be this year's dual-meet champs for the Greater Oakland Activities League. The Dragons have won the GOAL consecutively for the past six years.

"They wrestled well," said Lake Orion varsity coach Tim Fagan. "The real key for us was when Chris Dewey (of Lake Orion) pinned Matt Seitz. This was different from the last time they wrestled, and Dewey lost on points."

Another setback for the Wolves was when 189-pound junior Joel Davis suffered a dislocated elbow while wrestling Marc DesRosiers. That match along with the following heavyweight bout were won by default.

Davis was carried out on a stretcher and taken to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac. "The season is probably over for Davis," said Athletic Director Paul Tungate. "But he is young, and he'll be back."

During the hard-fought battle, Jeff Derouseau (C), 103 pounds, won 6 by decision against Matt Henry; Matt Henry (L.O.), 112 pounds, pinned Matt Boucard; Jerry Anderson (C), 119 pounds, tied with Jeff Baker; Jason Roughton (C), 125 pounds, won 8 by decision against Ryan Bissell; John Anderson (C), 130 pounds, won 9 by decision against Matt Steffens; Chris Dewey (L.O.), 135 pounds, pinned Matt Seitz; Jeff Wiscombe (L.O.), 140 pounds, pinned Alex Martin; Rich Vellucci (L.O.), 145 pounds, won 6 by decision against John Terpstra; Tim Kerr (C), 152 pounds, tied with Dan Snyder; Eric Zimmerman (L.O.), 160 pounds, pinned Damon Michelsen; and Todd Garris (L.O.), 171 pounds, pinned Jerry Lawrence.

"The season is not over.
We are coming into the League meet second. And this is for all the marbles."

CHS Coach Scott Strickler

Standings

These are the standings for the Independence Township co-rec volleyball league as of Jan. 18.

Co-Rec Volleyball	W-L
Strike Force	6-3
Diggers	5-0
Stars & Stripes	3-2
Spiked Punch	3-3
Stripe Force	0-9

"I thought we put in a good effort," said Clarkston varsity coach Scott Strickler. "We had a couple of kids who got pinned basically because the momentum switched in their favor."

The junior varsity also suffered a blow, 18-46.

"They did the same thing to us," said Junior Varsity coach John Vega.

"The season is not over," said Strickler. "We are coming into the League meet second. And this is for all the marbles."

Heart to Heart

How were the cuts selected?

Editor's note: This column was produced by a group of students, parents and friends of Clarkston schools called The Blue Ribbon Kids Committee. They are working to communicate school issues, clarify financial questions and promote the passage of the upcoming millage. Additional questions may be sent to P.O. Box 443, Clarkston, MI 48016.

1. How were the cuts selected?

The administration knew they'd have to cut about $2 million from the budget because of millage reductions required by the Headlee Amendment and because of subsequent reductions in state aid to Clarkston.

These cuts would have to be in addition to the $1.6 million reductions already made for 1989-90.

Administrators from each building plus central staff thoroughly discussed each proposed cut and its impact on the core curriculum and the dollar value of the cut.

In many cases, programs were eliminated entirely, such as extra-curricular activities and athletics.

All efforts were made to spare absolutely essential "reading, writing and arithmetic" and other core classes, while cutting support programs.

Finally, the cuts were prioritized to take the least damaging first.

2. What do other districts pay in millage? How do we compare?

Operating millage rates, as well as costs per student, vary widely across our county. Compared to other districts, our current levied millage of 34.94 is one of the lowest. Approving the new millage will bring our total rate to approximately 38.78 (after a reduction by the Headlee Amendment).

The table below shows levied millages of some surrounding school districts.

Pontiac	39.48
Brandon	38.96
Holly	38.8758
Waterford	37.69
Oxford	37.665
CLARKSTON	34.94
South Lyon	33.8271
Rochester	32.53

School districts that are out-of-formula and have a broad base of high-valued commercial and residential properties typically have lower millage rates.

Rochester is representative of this group. Waterford, Pontiac and Oxford went out-of-formula this year.

3. If the millage is approved, doesn't it just mean big raises for the teachers and administrators?

No! Teacher contracts, as well as those of the district's 10 other bargaining units, are scheduled to expire in June, and negotiations are currently underway.

Financial projections for the 1990-91 school year include a six percent salary increase for teachers.

That is slightly less than that given teachers in neighboring districts and equal to the state's average increase.

Currently, Clarkston teachers rank 18th out of Oakland County's 28 school districts in the average salary paid to teachers.

Even with the projected increase, Clarkston teachers will still be paid less than those in at least half the other school districts in the county.

We see no point in apologizing for giving our teachers raises. After all, this is an organization that is driven by teachers, and, as such, it is highly labor-intensive.

As for administrative costs, auditors confirm that Clarkston spends the highest percentage of its budget on instructional time — a high percentage — than any other district in the county.

This means a lower percentage of the budget goes to non-instructional costs like administrators, support staff and building maintenance.

4. Why aren't millage workers using energies to change the way schools are funded? We need to send a message to Lansing by voting no.

Several years ago, Waterford and Brandon faced the same drastic cuts that we are now facing.

They lived with the reality of shortened high school days and bare-bones curriculum offerings.

Obviously, Lansing failed to "get the message" when that happened to them.

We do not think they will get the message if our children are subjected to the same cutbacks!

Detroit and Pontiac have been in deficit-spending situations for years, yet Lansing somehow has failed to "get the message."

Sure, we millage workers wish we didn't have to do the work of communicating issues and finding supportive people. But frankly, we are highly skeptical of Lansing's ability to change educational funding for the better in time to help Clarkston out for the 1990-91 school year. Efforts seem especially unlikely in a gubernatorial election year.

We millage workers feel the choice is clear. We are voting yes to help ourselves on a local level. And if anyone wants to mount a campaign to motivate Lansing, count us in.

5. Why is this millage proposal for only one year?

The primary reason for asking for only a one-year millage is because of the many unknown factors which must be "projected" whenever the district estimates its income and expenses.

These variable factors included changing state equalized valuations, changing enrollments, changing state aid formulas, the changing of cost of living (Consumer Price Index) and the subsequent impact of the Headlee Amendment.

Obviously it is easier to make accurate projections for one year than it is for two, three or more years.

The good news is that Clarkston schools expects to go out-of-formula next year.

If this occurs, we should be able to continue to offer next year's program levels in the years to follow without resorting to new millage requests.

At this time, we anticipate being able to do this through ordinary millage renewals only, maintaining our millage level at the voter-approved number of 38.83 mills.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

A FAMILY DECISION

Valerie Phaup
designated broker

QUESTION: In your opinion, how much of the home-buying decision should be a family decision?

ANSWER: It's desirable that house-hunting be done by husband and wife whenever possible. However, in the case where a move over a considerable distance is involved, the best arrangement is for either the husband or the wife to look separately and then for both to get together to make the final decision-making inspection.

It's not a good idea to involve very young children in the initial house visits. It generally works out that children are happy with a house that makes their parents happy.

Military requires sign-up by 26

Young men who will turn 26 in 1990 will be reaching an important milestone, according to the Selective Service System.

Beginning Jan. 1 this year, men who were required to register with Selective Service in 1982 will be turning 26 and will no longer be eligible for induction should draft be reinstituted.

Selective Service does not have the authority to accept late registrations after a man reaches his 26th birthday.

Officials warn that with few exceptions, a man who fails to register before turning 26 will permanently forfeit his eligibility for certain benefits, such as federal student aid, job training and most federal employment in addition to facing possible prosecution as a felon.

Some states also require registration for state student aid, entrance to state supported colleges and universities, state employments and permission to practice law.

Failure to register is a felony punishable by a fine of up to $250,000, up to five years in prison, or both.

Men ages 18 through 25 who have not yet registered can avoid the risk of prosecution and loss of benefits by registering promptly at any local post office.

More than 14 million men are currently registered with Selective Service. Of those, 605,387 are from Michigan.

Opinion of Bill Myers

Odds against unity for Germans in '90

William A. Myers is a retired Lapeer County editor and investments manager from Boca Raton, Fla.

My longtime friend and student of world affairs, Bob Taylor of Lapeer, Mich., says that the two Germanys, East and West, will be united this year.

We're far apart on that one. I think of the late '50s, when Alaska and Hawaii were taken in as states. After the territories and the mainlanders agreed it would be a good thing, it still took three years to bring it about.

In those cases, both the newcomers had the same currency as ours. They had Congressmen in Washington, even if they couldn't vote. Their economies were about the same as other Western states. Their domestic system of government was in place and working.

Their borders didn't include 300,000 Russian soldiers to be gotten rid of. Instead of 40 years of non-productivity under Communism, Alaskans and Hawaiians were ambitious and in the habit of working. And no outside forces were trying to influence them to join or not to join the United States.

In other words, it was a simple deal. And yet it took three years.

I'm going to bet Bob a straw hat that the Germanys will still be two countries in 1992.

As the saying goes, time will tell.

Just as my readers (who consist of Jennifer Birdsong and the compositor at the newspaper) get tired of reading about the glories of tax-free bonds, so do I get weary. What depletes me are the constant writings and mouthings of people who say that the only way to make money is in stocks.

First I hear that stocks are an inflation hedge, because you own part of a company that goes up in value to march along with inflation.

Tell that to the people who bought Eastman Kodak and Avon Products and Xerox and IBM and GM and Chrysler, for example. The prices of these stocks have fallen off from 30 to 70 percent from their highs. Some hedge!

Then, "buy the market," claims this crowd. They say I can't pick just a few casualties.

Well, the market today is about where it was 29 months ago. Meanwhile, inflation has eroded about 9 percent from the values of 1987.

Their diversifying and taking the market as a whole yielded them dividends in this two-year period of maybe 7 percent. Take 28 percent tax out of that and you have 5 percent, for an average of 2.5 percent a year. Ho boy, they're getting rich!

Meanwhile, the bond market in that same stretch of time went from an index of 100 to around 110 now. Tax-exempts have yielded, say, 8 percent a year, for 16 percent. That's a total return of 26 percent for two years, or 13 percent after tax per year.

Of course, the long-term trend of the market is up. But it's these short-term plunges that make your hair fall out. People who were up to their armpits in stocks in October 1987 watched the value of the Dow Industrial Average wither from 2700 to 1700, in between house payments.

Well, into 1988 the stockholders walked with a jerk and suffered from facial twitches. Now that the market has recovered its 1,000-point loss, stock-lovers are starting to "get back in" and beat inflation and get rich, they hope.

More power to them. I hope everyone makes a million.

Owning stocks is fun. It's fun reading the market figures every day and seeing how your horses are doing in this race. And you hit a winner every now and then. I know - I've had a few in years gone by, and it's a pleasant sensation.

The thing that stocks don't do, though, is make you money year in and year out, compared to bonds, for two reasons:

1. Dividends are low, averaging around 4 percent.
2. Dividends are taxable. After 28 percent IRS tax, plus state income tax in most of the USA, you're left with maybe 2.5 percent. Compounding that, your investment will take 28 years to double.

Look now to the alternative: tax-free bonds at 7.5 percent. Reinvest the income and you'll double in less than 10 years.

Oh ho! says the opposition, but the market over the long term keeps going up.

So it has, except about every decade since the 1920s it seems to get plastered. Surely you-all can remember 1987. A few of us recall 1929 and 1937.

Bonds go up and down in price, too. But with few exceptions, they end up paying 100 cents on the dollar when they mature. If interest rates go up, bond prices will go down, but they still pay off at maturity at par.

I'm assuming you paid no more than 100 for them to begin with. There are always plenty around at par or less, so you don't need to watch your investment shrink.

If you want to see your capital grow in high-interest years, buy discount bonds. For example, my friend Jim bought some Romeo, Mich., school district bonds in 1983 at 70 because they had a low coupon of 5.3 percent. Four years later, he sold them at 91.50.

Test your driving knowledge with quick quiz

This AAA Michigan winter driving quiz is not like the television game show that puts contestants in jeopardy if they forget to put the answer in the form of a question.

But you could place yourself, passengers and fellow motorists in jeopardy if you can't correctly answer true or false to the following 10 statements.

1. Avoid using your brakes when in a skid.
2. Pump the gas pedal when starting your car in cold weather.
3. Driving on hard-packed snow is more dangerous when the temperature is 32 degrees than when it is 0 degrees.
4. Stay with your vehicle until help arrives if your car becomes stuck during a snowstorm.
5. When driving on wet or icy pavement, keep a six-second gap between your car and the vehicle ahead.
6. You can increase traction by letting some air out of your tires.
7. Keep your gasoline tank at least half full in winter.
8. The best way to free a frozen lock is to pour hot water on it.
9. If visibility is limited, hug the center line to prevent driving off the roadway.
10. Antifreeze mixture should be 50 percent water and 50 percent antifreeze in winter.

Answers to the 10 questions listed above:

1. True. Instead of braking, declutch on a car with manual transmission or take your foot off the accelerator and shift to neutral on a car with automatic transmission. Carefully steer in the desired direction of travel and release the clutch or shift into drive when the car straightens out.
2. False. Pumping your gas pedal is not recommended. Check your owner's manual for specific cold-weather starting instructions.
3. True. At 32 degrees, stopping distances on hard-packed snow are twice as great as at zero degrees.
4. True. In most cases, remain in the car to avoid exposure, the risk of getting lost and the possibility of becoming a pedestrian casualty.
5. True. To determine the gap, pick a distinct road marking or sign. Begin counting when the car ahead passes that spot. Count "one-thousand one, one-thousand two..." If you reach the spot before reaching six, reduce speed and increase the gap.
6. False. Keep tires inflated to recommended levels.
7. True. The more gas in your tank, the less chance for fuel-line freeze.
8. False. Use a commercial de-icer or repeatedly heat key with a match or lighter and insert into the lock.
9. False. Position your car in the center of the lane. This provides a margin of safety on both sides.

10. True. Check manufacturer's specifications, but most recommend this mix.

How you rate — Eight to 10 correct: Forget the sled dogs, you're ready for winter motoring. Five to seven correct: Lived here long? Four or less: You might consider letting someone else drive this winter.

FINANCIAL ADVICE

James R. Filak, C.P.A.
GETTING A BUSINESS LOAN

You and your banker have something in common. Just like you, your banker wants to earn a profit. But there's no profit for a banker if a loan is not repaid. Put yourself in your banker's shoes if you want the best deal on a loan. Show that you share the banker's concern about repayment. Here are the steps.

Do your homework before applying for a loan. Put together financial statements. Don't inflate your asset values. Never hide a liability. Show how you determine the value of your inventory, and make an "aging" schedule of your receivables.

CPA-audited financial statements are best, but a "review" or "compilation" may be satisfactory. Check with your bank to determine which type of statement is needed.

Describe your business, where it's been, and where it's going. Name your major products, customers, and suppliers.

Develop profiles of owners and managers. Highlight your experiences in your business and industry.

Forecast your needs for cash. Be specific about how you'll use the funds. Then work up a repayment schedule using hypothetical terms for interest and maturity. Be realistic about your ability to repay.

Jump the gun on your banker by getting your own credit report. Explain any unfavorable item that might appear.

Be ready to negotiate when you go for the loan. Example: If the banker wants a "compensating balance" (a no-interest deposit that you leave in the bank), offer to pay a service charge instead. It may cost less than the foregone interest.

Remember, bankers aren't "hard" or "cold". They are just good businesspeople. Give them reassurances, and you'll have the best chance of getting the loan you want.

Petitions out for tax cut-school reform proposal

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

For those fed up with property taxes, repeated school millage requests and the state legislature, Springfield Township resident Nancy Strole has an alternative.

The Patterson-Anderson Property Tax and School Finance Reform Proposal should solve lots of problems without raising taxes, says Strole, a trustee on the Springfield Township Board and a member of the Patterson-Anderson group.

Lansing's proposals A and B were soundly defeated by voters last year — probably because both called for a tax increase, Strole says.

"They (legislators) are simply incapable of addressing the problem without resorting to new taxes," she says. "So we're just going to do it ourselves."

The proposal — named for former Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson and economist Pat Anderson — calls for an amendment to the state constitution for tax relief and school financing.

Since it's being introduced by citizens instead of the legislature, 239,000 valid signatures of registered voters are needed on petitions to get the proposal on the ballot.

Organizers are aiming for 310,000 to 320,000 signatures just to provide a safe margin, says Strole.

Tax relief
The proposal includes the following remedies for tax relief:

- Roll back and permanently cap school operating taxes to no more than 30 mills. (One mill is $1 for every $1,000 assessed property valuation.)

- Limit property tax increases on existing property, caused by assessment growth, to the rate of inflation.

- Reduce the ceiling on the percentage of personal income the state can take from the people in taxes. (Currently, 9.4 percent of personal income in the form of all taxes is the ceiling. The new proposal lowers it to 8.4 percent — the approximate rate in practice right now.)

- Mandate truth in balloting and limit the number of tax ballots to two per year on any one proposal. (There's an emergency provision for a third ballot.)

- Prohibit any new sales or use taxes on services. (Important to business owners who fear the burden will simply be shifted to them.)

School financing

The proposal includes the following remedies for school financing:

- Starting in the 1991-92 school year, require the state to ante up a greater share of the general fund to schools by creating a guarantee of $4,100 per pupil in state and local aid, indexed to inflation, with all school districts to reach parity in five years.

- Require lottery proceeds to go to the school aid fund. (Currently, this is not a constitutional requirement.)

- Require the state to continue funding the same proportion of school categorical programs, such as special education, as well as Social Security and retirement contributions. (So if the state decides to mandate a new program, it must also provide new money.)

Property tax reform linked to school funding reform

Members of the Patterson-Anderson group call the proposal a "surgical strike because we are going to the heart of the problem — the school operating millage; it's 70 percent of property taxes," says Strole.

According to Strole, property tax reform is linked to school funding reform.

"The two are mirror images of one another," she says.

The 30-mill cap on school operating taxes is important, she says.

"As a taxpayer, I like that. I know I won't get hit again next year," she says, adding that the cap does not apply to bond issues.

Since most school districts currently levy more than 30 mills, the new cap would reduce local property taxes without raising new taxes.

The state would be required to kick in the extra money — linking state aid directly to the number of pupils, rather than linking it in part to the millage rate, as does the current formula.

Currently, whenever the Headlee Amendment rolls back the millage rate, the state also decreases its contribution to the schools. The new proposal would require the state to stick with the original contribution and increase that amount by the rate of inflation each year, she says.

Opponents of the proposal — mostly state legislators — say the state will have to cut other programs to provide the money.

"They'll scream like stuck pigs," says Strole. "They'll say we can't afford it."

But Strole says that isn't true.

"The money is there," she says.

If voters approve the plan, the state would need an extra $685 million to contribute to local schools. Right now, there's $7.2 billion in the unrestricted general fund, and it increases by about $350 million a year.

"The state's revenue will grow as the economy grows," she says.

By the time the proposal takes effect, the general fund will have grown by over $800 million to over $8 billion.

"And that's not even a hot economy," Strole says. "We've given the state fair warning that this measure is coming down the pike. If the state simply planned and didn't gobble up the extra millions, it would be there."

Further, a "plain English provision" requires that future ballot issues be clearly stated.

"In the past, ... it would take a constitutional lawyer to determine what was on the ballot," says Strole.

Clarkston High School senior wins $1,600 national leadership scholarship

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Michelle Darby, 17, is already gaining political savvy.

The Clarkston High School senior — president of her class — recently won a $1,600 Century III Leaders scholarship from Shell Oil Co. and is eligible to win a $10,000 scholarship at the national level of competition.

"I was surprised," said Darby about the award. "It was right during exams, so it was a good upper."

Tall, pretty and confident, Darby expressed her appreciation for the national award.

"I was really excited. ... It's not even the money; it's just an honor," she said, adding that it would be put to good use on her college expenses.

The daughter of Mike and Darlene Darby of Reese

"I was really excited. ... It's not even the money; it's just an honor."

Michelle Darby

Road, Independence Township, Darby first competed with other Clarkston High School students on a current events test in her government class taught by Jim Wenger.

She also had to write a short essay on a problem of the future and a solution. Her writing took first place.

"It was pretty tough competition just within our school," Darby said.

At the state level of competition, Darby, one of 10 Michigan finalists, was required to expand her essay to two pages and appear before a panel of judges for an interview.

For her problem, Darby chose the environment.

"It has been proven that styrenes and aerosols are a direct result of the production of free radicals, which contain an unpaired electron," wrote Darby in her essay.

THROUGH National Honor Society, Michelle Darby volunteers at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac. She is also active with St. Daniel Catholic Church, Clarkston; SCAMP; and community cleanup.

"As a result, the formation of the ozone is not able to equal the rate of its consumption."

"That was hard because I'm not an expert on the environment," said Darby, adding that she did lots of research at the library.

The interview itself was also difficult, she said.

"It was really nerve-wracking. But it was a good experience because you had to keep looking at everyone," she said.

In March, Darby and the other state finalist are to attend an all expense-paid national conference in colonial Williamsburg, Va. She's somewhat familiar with such conferences.

As last summer's Clarkston representative to Girls State, where mock governments are set up on a college campus as a learning experience, Darby was chosen to represent the group at Girls Nation in Washington, D.C.

In the process, she became a "senator" and even introduced a bill to help the environment, she said.

That's not too far from her real-life goals.

She hopes to attend Notre Dame, Notre Dame, Ind., and plans to study political science, international relations or law. Eventually, she hopes to become a U.S. senator, she said.

For now, she's concentrating on finishing high school, where she's a member of National Honor Society, student council, Blue and Gold, Debut and varsity track team. She also played varsity basketball her junior year.

"I've received a lot of great opportunities from being a student at Clarkston High School, and I hate to see any opportunities taken away if the millage doesn't pass," she said. "I don't know if you can say that because it (might be) too political."

Not to worry. Speaking up on issues is a requirement of lawmakers.

CHS Junior Miss contestants enjoy state contest

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Clarkston's two representatives to the 1990 Young Women of the Year Scholarship Program found the experience rewarding.

"It was a lot of fun," said Nicole Kidder, 17. "I met so many people. It was the best. The experience was good."

REBECCA Abdoo plans to study elementary education at Grand Valley State University, Allendale.

The Clarkston High School Pom Pon team member ended up winning the physical fitness award — a $300 scholarship.

"All I really wanted to do was go and do my best," she said. As Clarkston's Junior Miss Young Woman of the Year, she won over $2,000 in scholarship.

The competition at the state level was difficult, she said.

"It was really hard. Everyone was so talented," Nicole said.

She plans to attend the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, where she hopes to study law. In high school, Nicole is a member of National Honor Society and Senior Leadership Committee. She also likes to play the piano, "hang around with friends" and ride horses.

She is the daughter of Connie and Wayne Kidder, Allen Road, Independence Township.

Clarkston's first runner-up, Rebecca Abdoo, also enjoyed the week in Marshall. This year, for the first time ever, the first runner-up competed for the state crown.

"It was the neatest thing I've ever done," Rebecca said. "We met a lot of interesting girls. We were a lot alike, ... but we were different as individuals. ... Everyone was really friendly."

At CHS, Rebecca is a member of the Madrigal Singers and Drama Club and plays "Annie" in this year's musical, "Annie Get Your Gun."

She worked for SCAMP in the summer and formerly took dance and voice lessons.

Rebecca plans to attend Grand Valley State University, Allendale, where she hopes to study elementary education.

"I love little kids; they're the best," she said. She is the daughter of Dennis and Mary Jo Abdoo of Andersonville Road.

Folk singing makes its mark in Clarkston area

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Folk music lovers don't have to travel to Ann Arbor, Detroit and Lansing anymore to find enjoyable entertainment.

Traditional music and dance are scheduled in Independence Township for eight more weekends through April.

JOEL MABUS of Lansing is the featured artist this weekend in the Possum Corner Music Association's second concert of the winter 1990 Coffee House Series.

Sponsored by the non-profit Possum Corner Traditional Music Association, the 1990 Coffee House Series began Jan. 20 with Michael Smith, who wrote the musical score for "Grapes of Wrath," which opens on Broadway

"It's amazing how much good talent there is out there."

Mike Baker

in March.

The next show — Friday, Feb. 2, at Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church — features singer-songwriter Joel Mabus of Lansing. Though he can play nearly any stringed instrument, he usually brings his guitar, fiddle and five-string banjo to the stage.

Drawing from traditions of folk, bluegrass, Western swing, country blues, old-time and Irish dance tunes, Joel calls his style "Folk-a-billy."

For two years, the Coffee House Series took place at Upland Hills Farms, Oxford. But the move to the Clarkston area this year was a good one, according to Clarkston physician Mike Baker, founder and president of the group.

"The Clarkston location is more central, more accessible," he said, adding that outdoor concerts at Independence Oaks County Park last year were well attended.

Eventually, the winter concerts will be moved to the historic Century Chapel of Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church, Maybee Road, Independence Township.

It's currently being remodeled and will be an ideal setting for the acoustic music, Baker said.

Possum Corner series continue to improve, he said. "Artistically, the concerts have been great.

"It's amazing how much good talent there is out there," he said. "I like this kind of music. It's not really presented that often in this area. The north Oakland County area had sufficient people to support this."

Possum Corner also sponsors and Open Mike Night once a month at the Lakeview Inn, Lake Orion. Any acoustic musician may perform for 20 minutes on stage. So far, there have been 10 acts or so each night — talented people, said Baker.

About the concert

Set for 8 p.m., the performance takes place at Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church, 5331 Maybee Rd., Independence Township.

Mabus of Lansing plays guitar, fiddle and banjo plus sings originals and old favorites.

Watch for Punxuatawney Phil's forecast this week

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY

Each Feb. 2, no matter what the weather conditions, a merry band of men known as the Punxuatawney Ground Hog Club dress up in top hats and tails and make a pilgrimage.

They climb Gobblers' Knob, and the president of the club raps a special acacia-wood cane at the stone door of one Punxuatawney Phil, alias the ground hog. Phil emerges from his deep sleep, looks around for his shadow, then has a few intimate words of ground-hog talk with the president, and returns to the burrow.

As the world breathlessly awaits, the president interprets what Phil has said. Either there will be six more weeks of winter or spring is just around the corner, depending upon whether or not Phil has seen his shadow.

What perhaps the rest of the world doesn't know is that it's all a hoax. Phil really lives in a nearby park with his mate, and each year somebody disturbs his sleep and drags him kicking and screaming to a heated burrow so the guys in the club will know exactly where to find him. Since ground hogs usually hibernate at this time of year, Phil isn't real glad to see them. One year he actually bit one of his visitors on the finger.

But nevermind, of such things are American legends made. And the ground hog idea actually has its roots in ancient rituals heralding the advent of spring and the planting season. Apparently, that's something people in cold climates have universally longed for each year throughout history as February has rolled around.

Sunny weather in February usually accompanies cold weather, and thus was seen as a poor time to plant seeds by the early Europeans, who marked February 2 with a candlelit procession to purify their fields.

In Germany the badger came to be known as a weather forecaster, in England and France the bear, and by at least 1841 the ground hog had taken on that duty in the United States. All three animals hibernate in the winter and were thought to come to the surface on the Christian festival of Candlemas (Feb 2) to observe the state of the weather.

American Indians even had a version of the ritual, known as the Bear Dance. They refrained from the dance all winter, then performed it in the spring to depict the awakening of the bear from its winter sleep.

Which ever legend you prefer, it's clear it all has to do with the human longing for the return of spring. The triumph of light over darkness. The return of the sun in the form of longer days. The regeneration of the earth. Or as they say in TV land, life goes on.

Healthy Helpings

Begin with barley

Tracy King

You've heard it before, "Breakfast is the most important meal of the day."

As a former no-breakfast eater, I remember grabbing just coffee and juice, claiming I just wasn't hungry first thing in the morning. Why eat 300 or so calories if you didn't feel like eating?

By 10 a.m. I was famished and would eat the calories whether they were healthy or not. Not only that, I lagged in energy late in the afternoon, which stemmed from skipping breakfast.

Begin eating breakfast, and you'll start to develop an appetite for the meal. Try these barley cereal recipes, designed by Quaker Oats, which may be prepared in bulk and served over time either hot or cold.

ORANGE NUT MUESLI

- 3 cups orange juice
- 3 cups water
- 3/4 cup pearled barley
- 1/2 cup oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked)
- 1/2 cup toasted sliced almonds
- 1/3 cup raisins

In large saucepan, combine juice and water. Bring to a boil; add barley. Reduce heat. Cover; simmer 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Pour into large bowl.

Stir in oats, almonds and raisins; mix well. Cover; refrigerate overnight. Serve cold with either yogurt or milk, if desired. Store covered in refrigerator up to one week.

About 7 servings
200 calories per 3/4 cup

CRANBERRY APPLE BARLEY CEREAL

- 6 cups cranberry juice cocktail
- 1 cup pearled barley
- 1 cup chunky applesauce
- 1/4 teaspoon grated lemon peel

In large saucepan, bring juice to a boil; add barley. Reduce heat. Cover; simmer 30 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Combine applesauce and lemon peel in large bowl. Add barley; mix well. Cover; refrigerate overnight. Serve cold with yogurt or milk, if desired. Store covered in refrigerator up to 1 week.

About 7 servings

Shocking, isn't it?

Static shock can occur in your home when certain temporary conditions exist. For example, when humidity is very low, it's not uncommon to get a shock when handling a wool garment and then immediately touching something metal.

It's the same static electricity that causes trousers to cling to socks and slips to cling and creep up, according to Elaine Glasser, Cooperative Extension home economist.

You can also experience static shock when vacuuming. Static charges can accumulate on the vacuum cleaner and also on you as a result of the soles of shoes rubbing the carpet. These charges will remain until you make contact with a metal object. When you touch the metal wand or handle of the cleaner, the static is discharged, and you feel a shock.

Static shock should not be confused with electric shock received from home power lines. Static will produce a sting or spark. An electrical shock produces a continuous sensation as the current passes through your body.

Watercraft safety package would regulate Jet Skis

A five-bill watercraft safety package introduced to the Michigan Senate includes new restrictions regarding the operation of personal watercraft, principally Jet Skis.

Sponsored by senators Richard Fessler and Michael O'Brien, the package includes three bills that cover Jet Skis and two that address licensing and regulation of marine dealers and repair facilities.

While part of the legislation was introduced this week, the remainder of the package will be introduced next week.

"This package has been developed to further insure the safety of Michigan boating enthusiasts," said Fessler, chairman of the Senate State Affairs, Tourism and Transportation Committee.

"While we are blessed with many lakes and other waterways, we need to make sure Michigan boaters are taking the utmost care while enjoying their time on the water."

Marine safety officials from Oakland County said that Michigan lakes are becoming increasingly crowded and there is a need for stricter legislation governing the operation of watercraft.

"With the lakes becoming more crowded each year, we recognized a need to strengthen marine safety regulations," said O'Brien, vice-chairman of the same committee. "We feel this package will do just that, without compromising the enjoyment of Michigan voters."

Under the package, the operation of Jet Skis within 100 feet of another vessel would be prohibited. Another bill prohibits the operation of Jet Skis between one-half hour before sunset and one-half hour after sunrise.

The bill also prohibits the use of Jet Skis by anyone under the age of 14 and would allow the operation of Jet Skis by people 14-16 years of age only when accompanied by someone 16 years old or older.

Related legislation stipulates that a boat livery cannot hire, lease or rent a personal watercraft to anyone under 16.

The other portion of the package would require licensing and certification of boat mechanics and boat repair facilities. A written test, written estimates and the return of replaced parts would also be mandated.

The final portion of the package would require that marine dealers register with the Secretary of State's office. Dealers will be required to abide by fair advertising standards, similar to those guidelines met by automobile dealers.

Attitudes toward marriage, family changing again

A 30-year look at American family values shows a revolution in attitudes regarding marriage, divorce, sex and other issues during the 1960s and early 1970s.

Other changes in attitudes are continuing, however, including increasing support for equality for women.

A study by a University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, social researcher indicates that much of the "ought" or "should" has been deleted from former social imperatives about marriage and family, but the new tolerance does not replace old-fashioned values held by individuals.

According to Arland Thornton, professor of sociology and research scientist at the U-M Institute for Social Research, "The data suggest that the vast majority of Americans still value marriage, parenthood and family life. Most Americans still plan to marry and to have children, and optimism for success in marriage remains high."

However, he adds, "there has been a dramatic and pervasive weakening of the normative imperative to marry, to remain married, to have children, to restrict intimate relations to marriage and to maintain separate roles for males and females."

Thornton's analysis is based primarily on three major sets of data, including the General Social Survey conducted annually by the National Opinion Research Center; Monitoring the Future, a survey of high school seniors conducted by the U-M's Survey Research Center; and the Study of American Families, a panel study of mothers and children begun in 1962.

Thornton's study appears in the November issue of the Journal of Marriage and the Family.

Thornton says the most substantial changes in attitudes toward family issues occurred in the 1960s and 1970s, while the period since 1975 has seen little change except for a continuing increase in support for greater equality for women.

Changed attitudes toward family issues, with "the decreased emphasis on conformity and an increased emphasis on individual freedom, also are consistent with value shifts in other domains of life, including socialization values, religion, abortion, civil liberties and political allegiance," Thornton says, with major changes observed throughout the 1960s and into the 1970s, followed by an apparent "leveling out" after the mid-1970s.

In addition, the trends in changing attitudes toward family issues since the 1950s have been broadly reflected in changes in behavior in such areas as birth rates, divorce, cohabitation and premarital sex, according to Thornton, with rapid changes occurring in the 1960s and 1970s followed by a much slower pace of change in behavior in the late 1970s and early 1980s.

Some other findings:

Sex roles: All of the surveys indicate "a very substantial and continuing transformation of sex role attitudes in the United States" supporting women's equality.

In the Study of American Families, substantial increases in egalitarian sentiments were found between 1962 to 1977, a trend that apparently has continued through 1985.

Among high school seniors, the "data clearly confirm a historical shift in attitudes between 1976 and 1981," Thornton found.

Marriage: While the survey of high school seniors does not suggest any decline during the late 1970s and early 1980s in the importance of marriage, or in their expectations that they will marry, Thornton notes that in national surveys between 1957 and 1976 negative attitudes toward remaining single declined significantly.

The same survey documented an increasing negative orientation toward marriage and a growing emphasis on the "restrictive" aspects of marriage.

Divorce: "Trends in attitudes toward divorce between 1962 and 1977 are both clear and dramatic," Thornton says, with a substantial increase in the social acceptance of divorce.

In 1962, 51 percent of the women in the Study of American Families disagreed with the statement that (See MARRIAGE, next page)

"I Did the Best I Could....."

Every year the facts are these:

*Falls, second-leading cause of death for people over 65 years of age.

*3,000,000 Americans die every year from heart attacks. More than 500,000 could have been saved if help had arrived in time.

*Crime, nearly 1 of 3 break-in victims are Raped, Robbed or Assaulted.

We've all heard stories of families or friends say "I Did The Best I Could" for their loved ones, yet are filled with anguish thinking they might have been able to do something else.

If you care about someone close to you, call this number, it might save their life, or avoid a disabling injury. Avoid that pain of regret, so someone YOU love, your Spouse, Parents, Grandparents, or a Sister, or someone you care for is not one of those statistics.

toward divorce ended around 1977, with little change from then through 1985, according to Thornton.

Childlessness: While 85 percent of the mothers participating in the Study of American Families in 1962 said that all married couples who can have children ought to have them, the number had fallen to 43 percent by 1980.

Despite the growing acceptance of childlessness and less favorable attitudes toward parenthood, there is no indication that young adults do not want to have children, Thornton emphasizes.

"Apparently, what has happened has been the weakening of norms so that childlessness is acceptable, but the desire to have children continues."

Premarital sex: There was a strong trend toward less restrictive attitudes toward premarital sex in the late 1960s and early 1970s, according to the U-M study.

In a 1969 survey, 68 percent said "it is wrong for people to have sex relations before marriage," while only 48 percent said it was wrong four years later.

Extramarital sex: In 1965 attitudes toward extramarital affairs were strongly negative, with more than 80 percent saying it was always wrong.

By 1973, there was a 10 percent drop in the number of men and women older than 30 who said an extramarital affair was always wrong; among younger men and women the decline was twice as large, according to the U-M scholar.

During the late 1970s and early 1980s, however, there was a trend back toward more restrictive attitudes concerning extramarital sex among young people.

"Whereas 63 percent of the young men and 80 percent of the young women in 1973 said extramarital sex was always or almost always wrong, the numbers in 1985 were 84 percent for the young men and 88 percent for the young women," Thornton says.

General guides on the role of parent

A general guide for parents is provided by the Michigan State Board of Education, as printed in the Davisburg Elementary School newsletter.

1. Try to take time to listen when your child wants to tell you something. If you cannot stop what you are doing at the time, remember to ask your child later about the subject.

2. Share things about yourself with your children. Let them see you as a full human being who has many different feelings. Tell them about what makes you feel certain ways, such as sad and happy. Be sure to tell them your positive feelings about them, how much you care about them. Also, if you are upset with them, tell them how you feel and why you feel that way.

3. Let children learn about description and explanation. Explain things you are doing as you are doing them, such as following a recipe or repairing a broken toy. Ask them to tell you how they do this, such as their rules for a game or how they made a particular drawing. Ask for their opinions and feelings on a variety of issues.

4. Encourage your children to learn to make decisions on their own. A child who has learned to respond to simple choices, such as "which sweater do you wish to wear, the red or the blue one?", will eventually be willing to make decisions about more complex problems.

5. Be willing to listen to a child's persuasive message — encourage him or her to take stands and explain reasons for them.

6. Let your child see that you are willing to admit a mistake or change your mind on occasion.

OFFICIAL NOTICE

Village of Clarkston

375 Depot Road
Clarkston, Michigan 48016
Village Council

Minutes of Regular Meeting
January 22, 1990

Meeting called to order by President Catallo at 7:35 p.m. followed by the pledge of allegiance to the flag.
Roll Present: Basinger, Catallo, Mauti, Roeser, Schultz.
Absent: Haven, Symons.
Moved by Roeser, "That the minutes be accepted as presented." Seconded by Schultz. Motion carried.

The agenda was amended by one addition and one deletion. Trustee Schultz reported that he had just received information regarding the "Tree City" program.

The Michigan Municipal League 7th Annual Achievement Award information was tabled until the next meeting in order to give trustees time to study the applications.

Trustee Basinger reported on the Boundary Commission hearing. The Order from the Boundary Commission will probably be issued by February 6, 1990, at which time petitions will be circulated for an election as previously stated would be held in the Village. To hold an election on the issue of cityhood, five percent of the registered voters are needed on the petitions. A draft of the petition has been sent to the Boundary Commission for approval. The Boundary Commission will set the election date which would most likely occur in April or May. If the majority of voters approve cityhood, then a charter commission would be chosen by election. The charter commission would not include any members of present village government or commissions. Nine people would write the charter which must be approved by the majority of people before cityhood would be realized. Trustee Basinger estimated that it would take 12 to 14 months before cityhood if the charter vote comes to pass.

Moved by Basinger, "That the Village Engineer be contacted to develop specifications for repaving North Holcomb using the present width, and further to seek bids for the repairs and to determine if adding a new surface layer or repaving will have an effect on weight limit restrictions." Seconded by Roeser. Yeas 5, Nays 0. Motion carried.

The Council will have a Cityhood discussion meeting on February 26 at the regular Council meeting.

Moved by Mauti, "That the Village of Clarkston accept the Police Contract as offered by the Charter Township of Independence pending study by the Village Attorney." Seconded by Roeser. Yeas 5, Nays 0. Motion carried.

President Catallo will request that Jerry Wilford compare December, 1989, and January, 1990, police reports for a summary report to the Council.

Mr. Harold Goyette was present to request permission for an addition to the rear of Goyette Funeral Home and to provide additional parking at the rear of his residence. He requested that the Council consider rezoning or a special use in the single residence zoning district to permit funeral homes in order to eliminate the present non-conforming status. Mr. Goyette had several neighbors present who owned abutting property and he also had signed petitions from other neighbors indicating their approval of the plans submitted.

The funeral home has been in this location since approximately 1923, before current zoning laws and Mr. Goyette pointed out that the majority of funeral homes in small towns are in residential areas. The additional parking would permit safer conditions in assembling vehicles for funeral processions by not using Main Street. The use of Main Street for forming lines of vehicles is becoming more and more difficult and dangerous.

Moved by Catallo, "That the plans of Mr. Goyette be forwarded to the Planning Commission for recommendations to the Council." Seconded by Schultz. Motion carried.

It was further pointed out that there are two issues to be studied by the Planning Commission, parking on a residential lot and the addition to the existing funeral home.

Correspondence from Clarkston Disposal was discussed and tabled for future consideration.

A memo and minutes from the Planning Commission were discussed. It was felt that the Council and Planning Commission will continue to work for better communication and representation at each of the meetings.

The Village attorney was given copies of the Police contract and memo from the Planning Commission. Trustee Basinger will contact the Planning Commission Chairman to discuss the Anti Litter ordinance. The Village attorney will send some draft information to the Planning Commission for the Anti Litter Ordinance.

The Village Manager was instructed to obtain from the property owner at East Church and Main Street drawings of the use and parking per the memo from the Planning Commission.

Moved by Roeser, "That the meeting be adjourned." Seconded by Basinger. Motion Carried. Meeting adjourned at 8:40 p.m.

Respectfully submitted,
Artemus M. Pappas, Acting Clerk

Food preservation booklet perfect for college

Many college students living away from home for the first time must fend for themselves at mealtime.

"Dorm" meals solve this problem for some students, but there are numerous others living in apartments, co-ops or rented rooms where meals are not provided. Often their only cooking facilities are microwave ovens and "mini-refrigerators" for food storage.

"A requirement for all incoming freshman should be a course in food safety," says Sylvia Treitman, home economist of the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

Service.

"This is not spoken in jest," she adds, after hearing tales from her own son's recent experiences at Michigan State University, East Lansing.

Armed with recipes and a microwave, students may be able to manage a pretty well balanced diet.

An area often neglected, however, is how to keep the food safe from spoiling and causing food poisoning.

Many students are unaware of which foods need refrigeration and how long to store them safely.

Sometimes, foods are left out too long and then consumed. Food poisoning symptoms (dizziness, stomach upset, an headaches) may then appear.

If your college student is becoming a "microwave maven," you may wish to send him or her some tips on food safety, provided by the Cooperative Extension Service. For a copy of the "Safe Food Book," send 50 cents to cover postage to Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service, 1200 North Telegraph Road, Pontiac, MI 48053.

For further help with food and nutrition questions, call the Food Hotline, Monday through Friday, 8:30-5 p.m., 858-0904.

Business Briefs

Re-elected chairman

Lewis E. Wint

ters and special events.

Lewis E. Wint of Clarkston was elected by the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission to his 13th consecutive term as chairman.

Wint is a funeral director of Lewis E. Wint and Son Funeral Home, Clarkston.

The Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission is the policy-making body for the nine-park system that includes two waterparks, four golf courses, campgrounds, a nature center, mobile recreation, activities centers and special events.

Second-ranking Road Commission executive

Brent Bair of Independence Township became the second-ranking executive in the Road Commission of Oakland county following recent restructuring.

John L. Grubba, managing director of the Road Commission for Oakland County, told road commissioners that he wanted to more sharply focus on two elements of his responsibilities — strategic planning and day-to-day operations.

With the retirement of William J. Fognini, a deputy managing director, the structural changes were implemented within the Office of the Managing Director.

Grubba requested that the Board of Road Commissioners redefine the position formerly held by Fognini to that of county highway engineer-assistant managing director.

Bair, who shared responsibilities with Fognini as the other deputy managing director, assumes responsibility for the strategic planning and actions with entities external to the Road Commission.

As the sole deputy managing director, Bair is the second-ranking executive of the Road Commission.

Gerald M. Holmberg, formerly director of the Engineering Department, has been elevated to the position of county highway engineer-assistant managing director. Holmberg will concern himself with monitoring and guiding the day-to-day actions of the Road Commission, in particular, those of the operations department. He is a Troy resident.

Bair, a 12-year veteran of the Road Commission, is university trained as an engineer and is skilled in urban transportation planning as well as risk management, highway accident investigation and reconstruction.

He received his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa, and has completed course work and comprehensive examinations toward his doctorate degree in transportation planning.

Bair lives with his wife, Linda, in Independence Township.

Architect promoted

Tom Kowalski, a resident of Clarkston, was recently promoted to senior associate at TMP Associates, an architectural-engineering firm.

Kowalski, who is a project manager for TMP, has been with the firm for eight years. He has worked on a variety of projects including the Student Recreation Center for Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant; a new elementary school and administrative office building for Novi Community Schools, Novi; and the Third Housing Unit at the Milan Correctional Facility, Milan.

Kowalski received his master of architecture degree from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. He is a registered architect in Michigan and an active member of the American Institute of Architects.

TMP Associates, established in 1959, is a full-service architectural and engineering firm based in Bloomfield Hills.

Old Timer Award

Robert Thiesen, general manager of Bordine's Better Blooms, Dixie Highway, Springfield Township, was among 12 Michigan residents to be honored recently.

Thiesen and the others received an Old Timer Meritorious Award from the Michigan Association of Nurserymen during the recent 1990 Great Lakes Trade Exposition in Grand Rapids.

The winners received the award for a minimum of 25 years of dedicated professionalism to the heritage of Michigan's nursery and landscape industry.

Catastrophic Health Act rears its head again

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY

After all the fuss about the Medicare Catastrophic Health Act, which was repealed by Congress late in 1989, senior citizens age 65 and older have one more hoop to jump through.

When they file their income tax returns, seniors will find instructions pertaining to the CAT act in the 1040 and 1040A booklets. That's because the booklets were printed before the act was repealed. The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) now says to ignore the instructions.

"We are trying to publicize that those lines (line 54 on the 1040 and line 23 on the 1040A) should be ignored," says Elcy Maccani, public affairs specialist for the IRS in Detroit. "Indeed it was repealed, and they should ignore it."

Though the status was uncertain at the time of the printing, the IRS did include a caution in the 1040 instructions. It reads, in part: "When Congress completes its action, IRS will take steps to publicize the final rules."

The Cat Act would have applied to those cases in which a member of the household was either receiving or eligible for Medicare, including those who had never even applied.

"I think it's going to be relatively easy to ignore that line," says Michael DeVries, a certified public accountant with an office in Oxford.

"A good chunk of people don't do their return anymore," he adds, some 60-70 percent by his estimation. They go to professional tax-preparation services, which should avoid any errors that might have arisen.

DeVries says those who would have been affected by the Cat Act are a select group anyway.

"Most people were probably on (tax) estimates already," he says. "They have income without withholding (such as interest, pensions). They were paying in quarterly anyway."

The IRS says in its booklet "Your Federal Income Tax" that some seniors may have increased their withholding or estimated tax payments in anticipation of what they'd have to pay under the Cat Act. Not to worry.

"Those who overpaid their taxes for 1989 will receive credit for the overpayment when they file their 1989 tax return," the booklet says. As with any other overpayment, the taxpayer will have the choice of whether to credit it to their 1990 taxes or get a refund. The IRS doesn't care which.

"That's on a case-by-case basis," Maccani says. "Some individuals that do make estimated tax payments have it credited forward. Some just want a check. The only thing I would say, too, is individuals who do want to get their money back fast may want to consider filing electronically. It may result in a faster refund."

DeVries says for most people, the overpayment will not be a large amount.

"I didn't necessarily have them prepay," he says of his own clients. "Most of mine I just set up with a safe haven. Even if the Act had stayed, they might have owed money."

DeVries advises his clients to make estimated payments based on what their tax liability was the previous year. That way, in the event some portion of the Act should be restored, they won't be far enough off on their payments to incur a penalty.

Annette Kingsbury is editor of The Oxford Leader, one of Sherman Publications.

WHO IS ON THE LORD'S SIDE? Hear ye this house of Jacob (the churches), which are called by the name of Israel, and are come forth out of the waters of Judah which swear by the name of the Lord and make mention of the God of Israel, but "not in truth nor in righteousness." For they call themselves of the Holy City, and stay themselves upon the God of Israel; The Lord of Hosts is his name. O that you had hearken to my commandments! Then had your peace been as a river, and your righteousness as the waves of the sea. There is no peace to the wicked; saith the Lord. Woe to him that covets an evil covetousness to his house, that he may set his nest on high, that he may be delivered from the power of evil! Have not sorrows taken hold of you as a woman in travail? For the greatness of thine iniquity are thy skirts discovered, and thy heels made bare. You that are accustomed to doing evil can you do good at the same time? You have forgotten me and trust in falsehood! I have seen your adulteries, and your neighborings, the lewdness of your whoredom, and your abominations on the hills in the fields. Woe unto thee, O Jerusalem! Will you not be made clean? Thus have they loved to wander, they have not restrained their feet, therefore the Lord does not except them. He will now remember their iniquity and visit their sins. Then said I, AH! Lord God! Behold the prophets say unto them, you shall not see the sword, neither shall you have famine. But I will give you assured peace in this place. Thus saith the Lord, "the prophets prophesy lies in my name. I have not sent them, neither have I commanded them, neither spake unto them. They prophesy unto you a false vision and divination and a thing of nought; and the deceit of their heart. But there were false prophets also among the people, even as there are false teachers among you, who privily bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction. And many shall follow their pernicious ways; by reason of whom the way of truth is evil spoken of (unbelief). They do make merchandise of you through much speaking, professing to know God; but in works of faith they deny him, being abominable, and disobedient, and unto every good work (truth) reprobate (vain mind), giving heed to fables, and endless genealogies, causing undo questionings, rather than godly edifying, which is in faith (action), belief in and obeying Christ." PANDA BEAR Lynn Conover, who moonlights as an assistant naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park, visits with the a group attending a program about endangered species on Saturday, Jan. 27. Pandas only number about 900 in the world, and in China it's against the law to capture one.

Endangered species lesson leads to Earth Day

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Man must be ecologically conscious of the earth if the earth is to survive.

That was the message of Tim Nowicki, Assistant Naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park. Nowicki rainforests, Feb. 10; groundwater, March 17, and an Earth Fair, April 20.

Earth Day, set aside to make inhabitants of the earth aware of ecology, is about to celebrate its twentieth anniversary.

Tim spoke to both parents and children about the importance caring for the animals that inhabit the earth. He also discussed the importance of the food chain, in which one animal feeds on the one below it in the series of the animal kingdom.

Protecting endangered species will keep them from becoming extinct, Tim said.

Animals can become extinct because they eat something very specific, he said. Tim used the panda bear as one example of an endangered animal that likes specific food.

One of the assistants, Lynn Conover, dressed as a panda to delight the children in the group.

"The panda eats 20 to 40 pounds of Bamboo each day, and it sometimes takes a half a day to eat all its food," Tim said.

China, home of the panda, has set aside large areas to protect the animal and has designed laws against capturing pandas.

"There are about 900 pandas in the world and 70 are in zoos," Tim said.

Michigan is home to the Kirtland Warbler, a bird on the endangered list. About 214 males and around 214 females now exist in an area around Grayling.

"That's all that is left in world," Tim said.

Tropical forests play a large part in survival of animal species, and many of the forests are being cut down, he said.

"Fifty percent of the species on earth live in the tropics," Tim said.

Tim had the adults and children stand in the center of the room while he held a fan, which simulated the wind. He demonstrated that as forests were cut down, or people moved away, the animals would want to be protected from the wind.

Throughout the two hour presentation, the group learned that every living thing depended on one another. Not all animals have become extinct, Tim explained. With special effort to protect some animals, their numbers can actually increase.

SARA KRZYCYKOWSKI, 9, of Pine Knob Road, Independence Township, listens for the name of another endangered animal presented at Earth Day Primer: Endangered Species at Independence Oaks County Park on Jan. 27.

The park is presenting the series to highlight Earth Day, which is officially April 22. Other topics include:
