Winter 'white-out': 100-car pile-up

'The roads were just coated with ice,' says Springfield Township fire chief

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Driving was next to impossible throughout Oakland County Feb. 24, when the area was hit by one of the worst storms so far this winter.

Likely the worst area to navigate was a section of I-75 north of Dixie Highway in Springfield Township, the scene of an accident involving more than 100 cars.

Heavy winds and blinding snow combined to make the highway a sheet of ice. Motorists described seeing virtually nothing in front of them as conditions created a total "white-out."

"The roads were just coated with ice," recalled Springfield Township Fire Chief Marlan Hillman, who with dozens of emergency personnel tried to cope with the multi-car accident.

About 2 p.m. Saturday, police received a report of a accident in the southbound lanes of I-75, involving a rolled-over semi and about 30 cars.

By the time officers responded, the number of vehicles involved was estimated as high as 100.

Three ambulances and fire personnel were requested, along with all available manpower.

"Our first clue was a report of a (personal injury) accident on I-75," Hillman said. "After we got out there, we just took care of what we got."

Four people were injured in the huge pile-up and were transported to area hospitals by ambulance. None of the injuries appeared life-threatening, according to a report at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Between 1 p.m. and 10:30 p.m., officers took reports of 88 accidents in the Dixie Highway area; 20 cars simply ran off the road at the location, and police estimate another 29 cars were involved but were able to disengage from the wreckage on their own without injury or damage.

Information on individual accidents was not compiled as of Monday, Feb. 26.

The semi-truck had actually jack-knifed, not rolled over as was initially reported; it was later cleared by a wrecker. Another semi-truck that had jack-knifed earlier Friday evening remained stuck on the highway Feb. 26.

Hillman added that the accident actually could have been worse if the weather had been better.

"Fortunately, I think the weather was bad enough that it slowed traffic down," he said. "They didn't hit as hard as they could have."

School out again

Extra day added to end of year

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Students arrived at Clarkston High School, Clarkston Junior High and Sashabaw Junior High on Thursday, Feb. 22, only to find that school was called off.

Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara and Transportation Supervisor Kevin Bickerstaff jointly decided to call off school at 7:15 a.m., Vaara said.

Buses slid sideways; others needed wrecker service, and some couldn't make it up roads with inclines — but no injuries were reported, Vaara said.

Rains began about 6 a.m. and then became heavier at about 6:50 a.m. causing the icy conditions on gravel roads, he said.

Neighboring districts Holly and Brandon also called off school on Feb. 22 because of the icy weather conditions.

Due to the late decision for school closing it was difficult to get word to the public, Vaara said.

Students will now have an extra day to make up at the end of the school year. The school calendar year was to end June 12 but now will end June 13.

The school calendar year only allows for two school day closings. The state mandates that each child must attend 180 days of school. Time missed beyond the two days allowed for closing must be made up.

Independence Township department heads get raises

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Five Independence Township department heads will receive salary and benefit increases effective during the next pay period.

Township board members voted unanimously to approve three benefit changes; members voted unanimously to approve each salary increase individually.

The raises ranged from eight to 13 percent, and were drafted from discussions with each department head, explained Clerk Joan McCrary, in a memo to the board.

The salary levels were designed to better reflect an individual's experience level and job performance, which replaces the current system of paying all department heads at the same level.

One of three additional benefits to department heads affects medical insurance.

The employees had requested fully paid Blue Cross upon retirement, after 25 years of service and 55 years of age. The board approved a modified version which awards medical health insurance paid at half cost after 25 years of service and 60 years of age. This would be effective until the retiree turned 65, and would then apply for Medicare.

The second benefit affects the township's deferred compensation plan. Employees requested raising deferred compensation from $625 to $1,500 annually; the board approved $1,000 annually.

A third benefit increase affects long-term disability. Although department heads requested long-term disability that guarantees 60 percent of the employee's annual salary, regardless of any other income, insurance carriers advised the township against approving the request.

Instead, the employees' monthly disability income was raised from a maximum of $1,500 to a maximum of $2,500.

Salary increases included the following: director of public works was given a 12 percent increase from $38,850 to $43,500; the fire chief salary was increased 13 percent from $38,850 to $44,000; the director of building and planning received an increase of 11 percent from $38,850 to $43,000; the director of parks and recreation salary was increased nine percent from $38,850 to $42,500 and the assessor's salary was increased eight percent from $38,500 to $42,000.

The township librarian did not receive a salary increase, the only department head not to do so. The librarian is currently under a review status, which, under township policy, prevents him from receiving a salary increase.

Township officials refused to disclose the reason for review, explaining that it was an internal personnel matter.

New library committee

The construction of the addition to the Independence Township Library will be overseen by a committee of township officials and a member of the community.

Board members approved the creation of a library building committee made up of Supervisor Frank Ronk, Clerk Joan McCrary, Treasurer John Lutz, Library Director Jim Hibler and a community representative to be chosen.

The representative will likely be selected from the existing library planning committee.

The committee will serve as a liaison between the architect and the township.

The architect for the library project has yet to be chosen.

Correction

A story in last week's Clarkston News about the primary election for the Clarkston Village Council should have said that incumbents William Basinger, Dominic J. Mauti and Eric Haven won the right to appear on the general election ballot as trustee candidates in the Republican Party.

Leslie L. Haight and Charles L. Weber did not win trustee seats on the council.

President Sharron Catallo is to appoint a resident to fill the remainder of the term of Trustee Gary Symons, who resigned Feb. 1.

Most property assessments up in Independence

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

If you own property in Independence Township, you likely found your annual assessment notice in your mailbox this week.

If that assessment seemed higher than last year, you're not alone.

The residential class of property went up as a whole eight percent for this year.

Residential property values throughout Independence Township went up eight percent as a whole this year.

Of the 10,691 notices mailed, almost all were higher, according to Assessor David Kramer.

"Virtually all of the township went up in value," Kramer said. "It doesn't surprise me at all; other communities had similar and, in fact, higher increases in the overall residential class."

Commercial and industrial property owners also likely received higher assessment notices this year.

In response to changing market conditions, these property classes were re-evaluated this year, the first time since 1987. Assessments on the commercial and industrial properties rose 4 1/2 percent as a whole, Kramer said.

Assessments are used in determining the property taxes an owner will pay on a parcel.

Here's how it works:

The township was broken into 100 neighborhoods, or group of homes that economically complimented one another in the same general area.

Park meeting changed

The date is the same, but the location has changed for a meeting on the development of Shiawassee Basin Preserve park in Springfield Township.

The meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 7, at Davisburg Elementary, Davisburg Road, Springfield Township.

Originally scheduled for the township hall, the location was changed do to assessment hearing conducted by the Board of Review, said Sherry Swindell, parks and recreation director.

During the past two years, the assessing department studied land values in each neighborhood as they compared to sale prices and eventually determined a market value increase for each neighborhood.

State law mandates that all property be assessed at 50 percent of its market value, an amount known as the state equalized value (SEV).

Once SEV is determined, that amount is multiplied by the area's millage rate, which determines the amount of property taxes the parcel's owner is required to pay.

For instance, the owner of a $100,000 home, assessed at half the market value ($50,000) could calculate this year's property taxes by multiplying $50,000 by the overall millage rate — about 58.1437 for Independence Township residents in the Clarkston school district. Then divide that number 1,000 because 58 mills is $58 for every $1,000 in assessed property valuation.

That homeowner would pay $2,907.19 for 1990 property taxes.

Kramer emphasized that not all properties appreciate at the same rate. Although not one parcel decreased in value, the value of some parcels can remain the same. The highest assessment increase in the township was about 19 percent, Kramer recalled.

Property owners who wish to dispute their assessments may schedule an appointment with the township board of review, which has scheduled hearings for March 12, 13, 14 and 16 (see box).

Anyone with questions about their assessments should call the assessing department at 625-8114.

Appealing your assessment? Here's how

Assessment appeals are heard each year by a three-member panel making up a board of review.

The three members are recommended by the township supervisor and are appointed by the township board.

The board of review studies the township assessment roll, hears appeal cases, and then confirms the roll with changes before it's sent to the county.

Cases considered before the board of review include hardship, in which the property owner simply cannot pay his property taxes; issues of value, in which the property owner disputes how much his property is worth; and issues of classification, in which the property owner feels his property has been evaluated in the wrong category.

In Independence Township, about 10 1/2 percent of all assessments are changed after notices are mailed out, according to Assessor David Kramer.

Village residents raise questions about cityhood

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Zoning and boundaries were some of the concerns of a standing-room-only crowd at a Feb. 26 public hearing on cityhood for the Village of Clarkston.

Before the meeting began, the council distributed a paper explaining the eight remaining steps to cityhood, and petitions were circulated among the audience.

Petitions became available Friday, Feb. 23, and before the public hearing, council members had 40 of the 41 signatures necessary to request an election on cityhood.

The tone of the meeting was tempered and not

"As a city, we will have more clout; as a village we have no voice. We are subordinate to the township."

Jerome Wilford

hostile, said Trustee James Schultz, after the meeting.

More than 40 people showed up for the hearing. Carol Eberhardt, former village president and a resident of East Washington, asked for more about the required signatures to become a member of the Charter Commission, whose job it would be to draft a proposed charter for the new city.

"Anybody who lives in the village can run for one of the nine seats," answered Trustee William Basinger.

The village is now under general law and can only do what the state law says, but if Clarkston becomes a city, it will adopt a charter under home rule and adopt what it wants, Basinger said.

"We have many other charters to look at," he said, holding up a stack of charters drawn up by other Michigan cities similar to the size of Clarkston.

Not all audience members agreed with cityhood.

One person said preserving another government would produce nothing.

President Sharron Catallo said that the charter would limit the size of government.

"Having our own government would be quite a loud voice," she said.

A few voiced concern for boundaries and zoning.

Jerome Wilford of Main Street said that becoming a city would allow better control of the village boundaries.

Tierra owner Joan Kopietz said the nature of the downtown area has changed in the last five or six years, and she would like to see retail become more vital with zoning changes.

"Spot zoning is something we can't do," Basinger said.

Roads were another concern for one citizen. He questioned the council about the county gaining more control if cityhood comes about.

Catallo said cityhood would not affect the roads, and the county would not have control.

Main Street (M-15) is a state road, and the council wants to pursue getting it back from the state if Clarkston becomes a city, Basinger said.

Clerk Norma Goyette expressed concern about cars

President Sharron Catallo

possibly hitting her home. She lives on Main Street at Clarkston Road.

"Lowering the speed limit is not the answer; it's enforcement," said Frank Millard, a former village trustee, who now serves on the Independence Township board.

Wilford agreed with Millard.

"As a city, we will have more clout; as a village we have no voice," Wilford said. "We are subordinate to the township."

Cityhood requires many steps

Before the Village of Clarkston can become a city, the following procedures must be followed, according to Clarkston Village Council members who distributed the information Feb. 26 at a public hearing on cityhood.

1. File petition with the Michigan Boundary Commission containing signatures of at least 5 percent of the registered voters residing in the village and requesting an election on cityhood.

2. An election is called by the Boundary Commission, to be held only in the village, on the question of cityhood if the Commission verifies that the minimum number of signatures have been submitted. The proposed name of the new city is also put on this ballot.

3. If cityhood is not approved by the electorate, the entire cityhood process ends, and the Boundary Commission's approval order is voided.

If cityhood is approved by a majority of the electorate, the village still does not become a city. Approval of cityhood at this election merely allows the process to resume.

4. An election is ordered by the Boundary Commission and held to elect nine Charter Commissioners whose job is to draft a proposed charter for the new city.

5. Charter Commissioners must meet to set their procedures within 10 days after approval of their election by the Boundary Commission.

6. After the commissioners agree on a proposed charter, it is submitted to the state for approval and resubmitted, if necessary.

7. After approval of the charter by the state, an election date is set for an election on the approval of the charter and also to elect the officials for the new city.

8. If voters approve the charter, those elected as the officials take their offices, and then and only then does the village become a city.

If the charter is not approved, the Charter Commissioners must redraft the charter, obtain state approval again, and an election is held on the new charter.

If the second charter is approved, the village becomes a city. If a charter is not adopted within two years from the date of the Boundary Commission order or if the second charter is not approved, the entire cityhood process ends.

Pine Knob project met with approval by planners

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

A 43-unit development within the Pine Knob complex was given final approval by the Independence Township Planning Commission, of which one member called the plan "an example of what can be done" in the township.

Members offered few changes on the plan for the 26-acre site, located along the Pine Knob golf course off Waldon Road.

Voting yes were Chairperson Brent Bair, Joseph Figa, Bruce Mercado, Richard Oppmann and Daniel Travis. Jo Fussman and Steve Secatch were absent.

Developer Alex Bruni told the commission that the architecture," which allows owners to determine architectural design, each plan must meet with Bruni's approval.

Under questioning from commission members, Bruni outlined results of a costly tree survey he had performed on the property.

Of 1,106 trees existing on the site, he expected he could save all but 87 in the building process.

"That's a pretty good batting average," Bruni said.

In commenting on the plan, commission members praised the developer.

"I wish all developers would do this and take that much care on a site," said Figa. "This looks like another fine design of yours."

"We have a great deal of trust for how you're going to put this together," commented Bair.

About 10 residents attended the review, and when asked whether they wished to comment, they asked about architecture and access.

"Will construction crews come in the back way?" questioned a resident living near the project. He also questioned whether existing water supplies would support additional growth in the area.

"What do you mean by open architecture?" questioned Bruce Harrington of Bristol Park Drive, Independence Township.

Bruni explained that each resident would submit a site plan, outlining a design for their home. Although Bruni will accept a variety of styles, he said in no way would the development result in a lot of "geometric domes."

He also assured residents that construction crews would use an emergency exit into the parcel and that adequate water supplies existed.

"I wish all developers would do this and take that much care on a site."

Joseph Figa

plan had changed slightly from what they had considered in the past. The number of units was reduced from 49, and the lot sizes were increased.

Bruni explained that although the plan utilized "open

Long train repair delays deputy

Motorists traveling on Big Lake road near Andersonville Road in Springfield Township waited longer than usual at the railroad track intersection Feb. 20.

According to a report at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, a Grand Trunk train developed mechanical problems early that evening and blocked the road crossing the track for more than 40 minutes.

Among the motorists waiting to cross was a sheriff's deputy, on his way to Hillsboro Road, Springfield Township, to make a report.

The deputy recorded the identifying numbers of the three engines that blocked the roadway and called Grand Trunk to find out why.

An interview with a dispatcher at the Grand Trunk office in Pontiac revealed that the engineer had called to report an emergency.

The engineer had lost an air line, which took 35 minutes to repair.

A section of the train was left along the siding prompting the train company to deactivate the gates, the report said.

Because of the nature of the delay, the report was listed as closed. No further action resulted.

Expectation in the air

Julie
Campe

It is almost a ritual now — going to the movies with my husband, Chris.

We arrive 10 minutes before the movie begins and, with popcorn, napkins and diet soft drinks in hand, we find a seat close to the front of the theater — hopefully close enough that no one would want to sit in front of us, obstructing our view. (Of course, we try not to block the view of others, too.)

Even the theaters themselves are important — we try for cushy seats with ample leg room and not-too-sticky floors. The sound should not be too muffled, and the screen shouldn't have too many holes in it.

We try to avoid movies and theaters that attract too many of the younger set. No offense intended — we just like to hear the words.

(Have you noticed that a lot of teens talk non-stop throughout movies? My husband thinks it's a result of being part of the television generation — they grew up with the TV running constantly, and they ate, talked, played and performed chores with it on. So naturally, they think nothing of talking during a mere movie.)

We didn't have to worry about much of that last weekend. We went to a new theater in Rochester — the Star (comfortable seats, clean floors). And the movie we chose wouldn't exactly draw junior high kids.

It was a first for us — the combination of two great loves: Shakespeare and the big screen.

The impact hit me right in the beginning. Right up there in big letters, it said:

Henry V

By William Shakespeare

It was amazing — there he was, nearly four centuries after he wrote the play, still entertaining people with his work.

I've always enjoyed his plays and make an annual trek or two to Stratford, but somehow, seeing his name and work on the big screen — larger than life — made his greatness seem even greater.

(If the teens of today are of the television generation, then I guess I'm from the movie generation — Rita Bell and Bill Kennedy on television, and then scores of films at the theater, from "Bambi" to "Jaws" to "Star Wars" to "My Left Foot.")

Kenneth Branagh's production of "Henry V" did not disappoint us. And the 28-year-old British actor was right. Taking Shakespeare to the big screen was a way to bring his work closer to the people — though I doubt many will see it.

But they should — not necessarily because it's by Shakespeare, but because it has all the elements of a good film — strong plot, depth of character, lots of action.

It's a classic war film — heroes, clashes, fighting against great odds, morality and mortality, love and the eternal question: "Why are we fighting this war?"

"Every subject's duty is the king's; but every subject's soul is his own," is one line from the play and movie.

But the conflicts are resolved at the end, and the viewer is left feeling the destruction of war yet admiring Henry (played by Branagh).

Plus, there's a great scene at the end when Henry — by now a respected war hero and on his way to being a great king — tries to woo Katherine, whose country was conquered by the British.

At one point, her father and entourage enter the room, and Henry, startled, says, "Here's your father," as the couple quickly separate — not too different from the young of today.

Romancing robins

A few days ago, a group of students learned of an early advent of a robin here-about, while visiting the Clarkston nature center.

In describing the supposed-disaster, they were told by the instructor or teacher that it is too early for robins to return here and that so-called Mother Nature had played a mean trick on the robin that fooled it into returning so early.

The instructor further explained that robins only feed on worms that are not available now and that their beaks are too soft to crack the seeds that are available now.

While no fatal error has happened here, our experience shows that the robin, as well as nearly all other winged creatures, eat a wide variety of things and that the birds don't grind the hard seeds with their beaks anyway but have a phenomenal digestive system that breaks down rock-hard substances such as seeds, sea shells, calcified substance, along with fruits, vegetables and grain — to develop the egg and wrap it in a neat, hard-shell container for delivery.

The robins, jaybirds, blackbirds and crows are DREADFUL at cherry-picking time. The robin's chirp is unfriendly then. The jay's squawk is threatening the blackbirds, and crows come in greedy flocks at that time and lift off a whole crop of cherries in a few hours.

With other, later, fruits and vegetables, the birds simply drive their peckers into the fruit at ripening time and destroy its marketability.

Farmers — having planted, cultivated, nurtured and nursed their plants through frost at blossom, insects, mildew, blight, worms and viral infection of the growing season — have a serious bird problem at ripening-harvest season.

Is there a question why the birds are perceived as a larger flying insect? When they don't eat the worms, they eat the fruit — or the fruit that has a worm in it, or other defects, diseases or viral infection.

If someone questions the above perception, they should surely try to make a living producing fruits and vegetables for a while.

Not at all unlike the ill-informed instructor at the Clarkston nature center are the proponents of the ridiculous wetland preservation act that perpetuates the habitat and breeding place of most of the known pests that impair our ability to produce marketable quality produce.

Further, how many of you would prefer having a swamp in your back yard for your baby to play in instead of a clean, dry sand box?

In the name of health, safety and welfare, why do we impose the mosquito and the worm, the rodent and the snake, the insects and the virus upon our children by local wetland ordinances simply because some official uninformed people have been convinced improperly that they're a benefit?

Anyone who has been alive, and awake, for 10 years would surely observe the fault in such a law, especially so in this state of Michigan, where a greater abundance of fresh water exists than any other similar area in the world.

The motive and thrust is: while Eastern Europe is trying to gain their individual rights to own and use their land, Michigan bureaucracy and officials are confiscating our property rights, while we are romancing the robbing and continue, as the instructor, to slumber in ignorance.

Jim's Jottings

In recent years Detroit Free Press columnist Judd Arnett has headed his twice-weekly remarks, "All in a lifetime."

Last Sunday the curmudgeon, as he refers to himself, wrote about tax assessors ("keep your eye on him"), big tax spenders (about Bush, "after listening to him for a while you didn't know whether to read his lips or hide your pocketbook") and tax revolt.

On the latter Arnett said, "We hear talk about the 'tax revolt,' but when you come right down to it, Americans have been open-handed in support of government, even though there has been the general feeling that a lot of money has been wasted. But after a while the Zilwaukee bridges and the constantly potholed highways and the gross extravagance of the Pentagon with the cooperation of some industries and the kids who don't give a whoop about school and their parents who are worse, really — these things get to people, finally, and it is hard to get government help for those who really need it."

Yes, it's that "revolting" time of year again. Just about the time you think you've figured a way to pay the property tax bill you got as a Christmas present from your local tax collector, you have to prepare to file your income tax return.

You can hope you've overpaid, but you know the IRS will want another dollop to pay for a B1 bomber, a legislative junket, or aid to every other country in the world.

However, two months before April 15 gets here, the local property tax assessor sends notice that your land is now worth more than you could ever afford to pay for it.

But, wait, he/she cries. It isn't my fault. There's nothing I can do. The state/county made me do it. If I don't raise your property 1600 percent the county will put on a factor and you know that isn't fair, don't you?

Incidentally, no, I don't know that a factor is unfair. What seems to be the case is that no one is fighting for lower taxes for the people who elected them to office.

Oh, yeah, right, John Engler, whose been running for the governor's job since grade school (he's never had a non-dole job to my knowledge) says he's for lowering property taxes. Ever heard that before from a politician?

There was a time I even believed some of that campaign oratory.

Local officials say, take your message to wherever/whomever. Why don't they take it to wherever/whomever?

It didn't take a genius to figure out by now that there's a burr in my bonnet as there is just about every year at this time.

I just got the receipts from paying my Christmas-time taxes. I more recently collected the family figures for IRS accounting. And, I even more recently was notified of a 40 percent increase in property tax.

Added all up they spell R-E-V-O-L-T, which rhymes with jolt, which calls for a bolt to put assessing on hold (poet's license).

Expectation in the air

Julie
Campe

It is almost a ritual now — going to the movies with my husband, Chris.

We arrive 10 minutes before the movie begins and, with popcorn, napkins and diet soft drinks in hand, we find a seat close to the front of the theater — hopefully close enough that no one would want to sit in front of us, obstructing our view. (Of course, we try not to block the view of others, too.)

Even the theaters themselves are important — we try for cushy seats with ample leg room and not-too-sticky floors. The sound should not be too muffled, and the screen shouldn't have too many holes in it.

We try to avoid movies and theaters that attract too many of the younger set. No offense intended — we just like to hear the words.

(Have you noticed that a lot of teens talk non-stop throughout movies? My husband thinks it's a result of being part of the television generation — they grew up with the TV running constantly, and they ate, talked, played and performed chores with it on. So naturally, they think nothing of talking during a mere movie.)

We didn't have to worry about much of that last weekend. We went to a new theater in Rochester — the Star (comfortable seats, clean floors). And the movie we chose wouldn't exactly draw junior high kids.

It was a first for us — the combination of two great loves: Shakespeare and the big screen.

The impact hit me right in the beginning. Right up there in big letters, it said:

Henry V

Time for teacher union concessions

Yes voters won the day! Our Clarkston school millage has passed. Parents have done their part. Now, as I see it, the school board, administrators and teachers must do their part.

Most of our millage money will be spent on salaries and benefits, so come on, teachers, it's time to take concessions.

Most other large unions have done it — even the UAW. Besides, a 6 percent salary increase is ridiculous when our schools are in trouble. Every dollar in your pocket is a dollar my child won't receive in education.

Administrators and school board members, listen to us like the private schools listen to their parents. When we as parents have problems, solve them. Or give us honest answers why they can't be solved.

School board members, before you authorize an expenditure, question the educational value first. It is your responsibility to question the spending priorities of the school administration.

Parents and no voters, let's all continue to do our part and monitor spending in the Clarkston school system.

'If it Fitz ...'

Take a ride

Jim Fitzgerald

Next Christmas, I'm going to send cards featuring a large photo of the tools of my trade — my pen, note pad, keyboard and computer screen. I got the idea from Executive Deputy Police Chief James Bannon. Last Christmas, the front of his cards was devoted exclusively to a color picture of a police helicopter.

Now you understand why the city needs a fleet of nine aircraft. Top police executives don't want to send boring Christmas cards with photos of pistols, handcuffs or something similarly humdrum.

One of the city's four Aerospatiale helicopters was assigned to Bannon's Christmas cards. It is pictured in flight over downtown Detroit; apparently the photo was taken from another aircraft. That's probably why we taxpayers also own (just ask Chief William Hart for a ride) a Rockwell Sabreliner jet, two Bell helicopters, one Cessna Skyhawk and one Piper Chieftan. A city has to own more than one plane so it can take close-ups of its aircraft in action for Christmas cards.

I'm reminded of the several times I've watched a police helicopter land in the Lafayette Park playground next to my apartment building. Each time, a uniformed officer got out, waved to the pilot, and walked to a car parked nearby. If the cops owned only one helicopter, and it was in the hangar for repairs, how would that officer get to his car?

The alarming possibility of the officer walking or taking a bus, like a hapless civilian, makes you realize how much worse crime would be if our cops didn't have an air force.

To show your gratitude for all this airborne security, you'd probably like to do something nice for our Board of Police Commissioners. Like wake them up, you say? Don't be smart. The commissioners' job is to oversee the police department, and it's not easy to oversee cops way up in the air.

You may wonder where the commissioners were when the police secret service fund was — says Chief Hart — robbed by former Deputy Chief Kenneth Weiner. Why do the commissioners allow Hart to be so suspiciously secretive about the narcotics forfeiture fund? Can't they learn from past oversights in overseeing? Aren't they afraid it ultimately will be discovered that Weiner used forfeiture money to pay for Hart's haircuts without Hart's knowledge?

Relax. Recently the Board of Commissioners briefly suspended a cop for being involved in a really big scandal. I'm not talking about missing police money or missing police cars. I'm talking about a missing police hat.

An on-duty cop left his hat at the precinct and when he got where he was going, phoned back to say he was sending his nephew to pick it up.

That's what happened. And the officer on the desk who turned over the hat was disciplined for giving police property to a non-department person.

I'm not surprised. A 20-year Detroit cop recently assured me one of the department's top three priorities is making sure cops wear their hats in public. The other two are making sure they live in the city and their white T-shirts don't show in the summer when they don't wear ties.

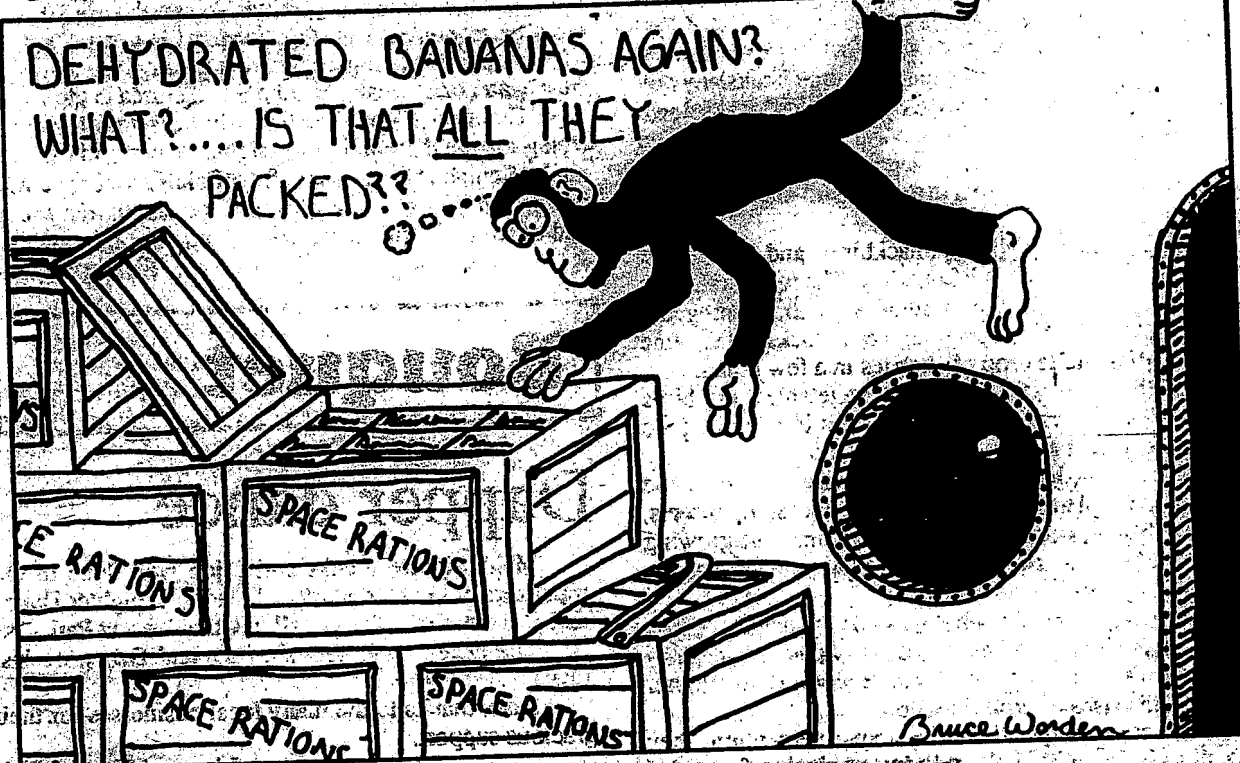

In a two-page, single-spaced typewritten letter, the officer included this: "This letter isn't long enough to fill you in on the thousands of incidents that you could use in your column to describe the incompetence of this department."

Maybe, but you have to admit the department is dynamite in the wild blue yonder and on Christmas cards.

From This Perspective

Needling experiences

Tracy King

Designers and clothes manufacturers everywhere have discovered rayon.

In the unlikely event you've never owned a garment made of rayon (it's in absolutely everything) the material wrinkles the moment you move, it visibly sheens when you touch an iron to it, and worst of all, it must be dry cleaned, only.

Have you ever added dry cleaning costs to the price you pay for a garment? You may as well buy two for what you'll pay to clean the original a few times.

All of this rayon adds another layer of impatience to an already frustrating task.

I hate clothes shopping.

"Obviously," my husband would say, peering into my brimming closet.

I do own a fair share of clothes, but most of them have been acquired without extensive trips to clothing stores.

For years, my mother bought my clothes. It was only after I was too old to wear plaid skirts and ruffled blouses that I took over the chore myself.

By then, I was in college and was too poor to buy clothing, so I devised my wardrobe through the borrow and trade system.

On my own, I learned to avoid shopping through the use of catalogues. I quickly cured myself of this when I discovered I was choosing anything I liked whether I needed it or not. Without the benefit of trying on the items, half of them never fit properly anyway.

Once store shopping became unavoidable, new levels of anxiety were born within me.

There were too many choices. I became paralyzed by garments that didn't match every shoe or scarf I already owned.

I had frequent bouts of buyers remorse. The thrill of discovery would slowly sink to the very bottom of my stomach as I sat in the car reviewing my choices.

I tried to shop for things only as I needed them; frustration reached new heights as I combed an entire suburban mall — every store — for the simple black dress that must be worn that very evening.

And then there were the unattainable items, those perfect garments that no argument could rationalize well enough. Silk chantreuse lounging pajamas? Sure they're gorgeous, but who would see them?

This clothes shopping is nothing but trouble. I think, as I impatiently slide garment after garment across the rack, checking the tag for the despised rayon.

Aha! An item with cotton is yanked from its hanger and is thrown to the sales clerk.

"I'll take it," I say quickly, before the remorse can set in.

Wage freeze, not more money

The Clarkston school administration and board have always claimed that the student comes first. I cannot see that your actions have proved this to be true at all.

When the school district is in so much financial trouble that half days, accreditation, elimination of many bus runs, no more sports, no more band, no more this, and no more that are threatened, salaries are increase by 6.5 percent and benefits are increase by 20 percent.

And this is months before an increase in school millage is passed. It appears that after the pocketbooks of the administration and staff are overflowing from highly outlandish pay and benefit raises the pittance left in the budget is not enough to keep the schools open.

Then the taxpayers must think of our students and vote an increase in school millage.

I believe a pay freeze should have been enforced for at least one year, not an increase in pay, if the student truly comes first.

The largest increase we ever received in 32 years of employment with one firm was five percent. Most of the time it was 1.5 percent to 2.5 percent, and this included benefit improvements.

In three years we will be eligible for Social Security when we hope there are still inflation increases.

But in the past three years our pension — and this is retiree Brown living in a comfortable home which at the moment has an assessed valuation of $32,500 — has not increased one cent (nothing to keep up with inflation or property assessments).

But during this period our property tax has increased $271, and with this new school millage our property tax will increase another $181 or more.

Just where is this money supposed to come from?

I can tell that your heart truly bleeds for the peon senior citizen, (Supervisor Gary) Haner.

For years now we have been told that nothing can be done about higher taxes because of scapegoats — Lansing, Headlee, etc.

I believe you (administration and board) can do something constructive (beginning with your salaries and economical management of all funds) and accomplish lower property taxes yesterday, not 20 years in the future.

And why must strategic planning sessions be held at the Holiday Inn instead of our administrative board building?

To me, Tom Howard and the rest of the school board that voted "yes" should go soak their heads in a barrel — extending a contract when there are still two years left of the existing contract.

Thank you Thomas, Chaustowich and Foyteck for not getting caught up in the hoopla of the moment and using common sense.

The "wolf" has been kept from the door for one year to quote the newspaper.

Just what is being said and what is being manufactured behind closed doors, Foyteck, that should never reach the public's ears?

What can be up your sleeves as to threats next year at this time so that salaries and benefits can be increased and students receive their pittance once again?

If my pension, and it doesn't even begin to compare with your salaries, but even if this minute amount were increased as your salaries were, I would have no more of a problem with the new school millage than any of you have. I'd even have a little left over for an inexpensive mini-vacation.

We pray that the Lord will guide us seniors and give us insight on how to handle this impossible situation.

Strategy planned

There are tax increase cancer agents in Lansing. Cigarette smoking did not cause this cancer. When Michigan property taxes began to grow, we did not notice how fast they were going up. Now the fantastic growth rate has turned malignant. Only drastic surgery in Lansing by voters can save your home.

Your state senator and state representative are now controlled not by home owners, but by unions and special interest groups. They do not care how much property tax you must pay on your home every year. Those you elect to office in Lansing have clearly demonstrated their lack of courage and ability to lower the tax on your home.

You now must take direct action at the next election. The solution is basic democracy and very simple.

V.C.R.

VOTE CUT REMOVE

We have tried "radiation" treatments on the Lansing cancer with public information to the senators and representatives, but it has not stopped the property-tax cancer's rate of growth.

At the next election DIRECT SURGERY by Michigan voters will be needed. Before the next election call your city (village, township) clerk on the phone and ask for an absentee ballot application form. You do not have to be a senior citizen to vote this way. Those under 60 years of age can vote absentee by checking off the "not at home" box to get the ballot. It is legal to vote from the comfort of your home. Be sure to mail back the ballot to be received before election day.

PLEASE REMEMBER, ONLY YOU WITH YOUR ANTI-INCUMBENT VOTE HAVE THE CHANCE. REMOVE THE TAX CANCER AGENTS IN LANSING!

Credit cards replace petty cash at township hall

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Charge cards will be made available to Independence Township department heads to replace the current petty cash system.

After tabling the move at a previous meeting, board members unanimously voted to approve the credit cards — but only with strict controls.

The credit cards would better track expenses and offer greater convenience, explained Clerk Joan McCrary.

"It takes nine sheets of paper run through to get a check of $2," McCrary said. "And then it takes two weeks to get the checks."

McCrary distributed a letter from township auditors, who supported the use of credit cards as long as certain controls were established.

The board agreed on controls, which include establishing credit limits of $500 or $1,000, limiting the number of cards to five, keeping the cards in the supervisor's office while not in use and requiring department heads to read guidelines as they sign for use of the card.

Although department heads would have sole access to the card, other employees may use the cards under department-head responsibility.

Board members said the controls were important. "If I vote in favor of this, it will be under the condition that there will be absolutely no personal business under any circumstances," said Trustee Frank Millard. "(Personal) use should be condition for dismissal."

If state helps city, reform needed

The recent decision of Judge Marvin Stempien on the city utility tax provides an important opportunity to review the state's policy in this area.

The legislature regularly includes "sunset" or expiration dates in legislation. This is a valid practice because there are certain laws or policies that are best suited for only a short time, or which warrant future review.

Tax increases in particular are government policies that should be made cautiously and for the shortest time possible.

The legislature in 1970 recognized this and stipulated that the utility tax would expire in 1972. That expiration was pushed back five separate times with the final expiration date being June 20, 1988.

However, as the case made clear, this tax was collected even after the last expiration date because of an Attorney General opinion that the legislation drafting the final expiration date was flawed. Now, Judge Stempien has essentially stated that the legislature intended for this tax to end despite the precise language in the legislation.

— Since this tax was collected for several months without legal authorization, that revenue really belongs to those who paid it.

At this point, there is discussion of an injunction to allow the collections to continue. There is also the matter of whether or not the tax should be revived through action at the state level. These are valid questions.

There is no question that the utility tax has provided a very large amount of revenue to the City of Detroit for many years.

There is also no question that specific policy decisions by the City have diverted scarce funds to questionable programs and undermined voter confidence.

The Chrysler-Jefferson project, the expansion of Detroit City Airport, the ownership of the city jet, the ongoing subsidy to the Downtown People Mover and the various complaints about smaller expenses have done much to damage the credibility of the city's stewardship.

Detroit's citizens, like citizens everywhere, want and need a few basic services most. The assurance that a policeman stands guard or that an ambulance will soon arrive is at the heart of a government's responsibility. Taxes are a payment from citizens for the provision of those and other services.

Any move to reinstate the utility tax — either by injunction or legislation — must recognize a few facts.

Additionally, the sudden loss of this tax, and the potential shortfall in revenue, raises ever louder the call for a responsible use of tax revenue in the City of Detroit. Government is not bound to levy any tax. Government properly levies a tax when it makes responsible use of the revenue.

Therefore, any movement to reinstate the utility tax must be accompanied by the recognition and requirement that it will only be used for essential services.

The statute that provided for the utility tax stipulated that the majority of the tax must fund police officers. Any proposal for reinstituting this tax without at least this provision should be rejected out of hand.

No reinstatement of this tax should be considered until a commitment to sound fiscal management is made. Even simply assuring that money will go for "police" has not prevented abuses, and these must end.

Finally, over the past several years, there has often been the attitude in Michigan that the problems of Detroit were only Detroit's.

Now, the rest of us need to realize our role in revitalizing this city. At the same time, when Detroit asks for state action, it must offer something in return.

The new City Council has made encouraging statements about fiscal reform. Those policies and bold action must accompany any revision of this tax.

Mat J. Dunaskiss,
State Representative

Intruder ransacks Dixie cleaners

Police are investigating a break-in at Troy Cleaners, Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

Sometime during the early morning hours of Feb. 24, a subject broke into the cleaners and ransacked the office, according to reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

The front counter was damaged, and several bags of clothing were dumped out. A safe was damaged by a hanger and tools the intruder apparently used in attempt to gain entry into the safe.

The subject apparently gained access to the store by scaling the rear wall of the structure using the gas pipe network.

The subject used the pipes to cut power to the facility and entered the business through the heating and air-conditioning system, the report said.

A manager at Damman Hardware told police that as he was leaving his store, he saw a white male with a slim build leave the cleaners and enter a dark blue station wagon.

A clerk at the cleaners also told police that earlier that day an alarm salesman had spoken with her at the store. He had placed a business card on the counter but retrieved it before she could note the phone number.

Anyone with any information about the break-in should call the sheriff's department at 858-4960.

Shoppers won't see Great Scott until mid-July

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Clarkston Oaks, a shopping center on Dixie Highway across from Maybee Road, will be without its largest retailer for at least four more months.

Great Scott will not move into its space within the 72,000-square foot center until mid to late July, according to Paul Coleman, a spokesperson for the company.

Coleman said the company has run into delays getting needed equipment into the store.

Both customers and neighboring retail stores are anxious to see operations begin.

"Business will be much better when the supermarket opens," said Bonnie Wolfe, owner of Bonnie's Hallmark.

Added Linda Heathman, manager of Frames Unlimited, also located in Clarkston Oaks, "Well, I'm sure it would be a great help; fortunately we're doing much better than anyone realized."

Clarkston Oaks is currently anchored by Damman Hardware and is home to six other retail stores.

District judge announces candidacy

Judge Gerald E. McNally, district judge, has announced his candidacy for re-election to the 52nd District Court, second division, in Independence Township.

McNally is a graduate of the University of Michigan Law School, Ann Arbor. He formerly worked for the City of Dearborn as legal counsel and the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office. McNally has served the district court since its inception in 1969.

The 52nd District Court, second division, serves the townships of Independence, Brandon, Springfield, Holly and Groveland, and the villages of Clarkston, Ortonville, Holly and Davisburg.

McNally has filed the appropriate Affidavit of Candidacy with the director of elections in Lansing. The primary election is set for Aug. 7, and the general election is Nov. 6.

A St. Patrick's Day reception, co-hosted by pediatrician James A. O'Neill and L. Brooks Patterson, will be held Tuesday, March 13, at the Deer Lake Racquet Club, White Lake Road, Independence Township.

Tickets are $50 single, $75 couple, and may be ordered by writing the Committee to Re-elect Gerald E. McNally, District Judge, P.O. Box 336, Clarkston, MI, 48016-0336.

Plan introduced to cut school taxes

A new plan introduced to the state senate by Republican legislators Feb. 22 could cut school property taxes by 20 percent.

The legislative initiative would be phased in over a three-year period and would amount to more than $500 billion in property tax savings the first year alone.

Specifically, the plan would reduce the State Equalized Value (SEV) for school operating purposes from 50 percent to 45 percent in 1990, 42.5 percent in 1991 and 40 percent in 1992.

The plan calls for the following changes:

- Reduces the (SEV) taxes by 20 percent for all taxpayers
- Exempts senior citizens from paying school taxes on their homes.

- Expands the Homestead Property Tax credit
- Reduces the Single Business Tax rate by 20 percent

- Eliminates industrial property tax abatements
- Resolves the state's legal problems with the Single Business Tax capital acquisition deduction

- Eliminates financial penalties to local school districts when Headlee rollbacks occur
- Forces the state to abide by the Headlee Amendment

To become law, the plan needs a majority vote in each chamber. Residents would not vote on the issue.

CONSIDER NEW TAX LAW
IN 1990 PLANNING

On December 19, 1989, President Bush signed the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 which included tax provisions in a section called the Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1989.

The new law extends certain credits that were scheduled to expire, including the low-income housing credit, the business research and development credit, and the targeted jobs credit. The law eases the corporate minimum tax for certain industries. It also includes provisions for simplifying the tax penalty system.

The law did not cut the capital gains tax, nor did it change the rules for tax deductibility of IRA contributions. Both items may become issues again this year.

Among other provisions in the law are those that:

- Require that cellular telephones be used more than 50% of the time for business before any accelerated writeoff is permitted.
- Extend for a period the 25% tax deduction for health insurance premiums paid by self-employed individuals.
- Extend the exclusion from income for educational assistance provided by employers to employees.
- Make deferred income, such as pension contributions, part of the calculation for the social security tax wage base.
- Speed up collection of federal payroll taxes from large companies by requiring payroll tax deposits to be made within one banking day after federal taxes exceed $100,000.
- Impose a tax that increases each year on ozone-depleting chemicals.
- Repeal a 50% income exclusion given to banks on interest from loans used to acquire securities for an ESOP, unless the ESOP owns more than 50% of the employer stock.

As you begin your tax planning for 1990, keep these changes in mind. Contact us if you would like more information about the new law or assistance with your tax planning.

Wolves clench GOAL title with 69-61 win

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Seniors Scott Treckman and Wally Winiemko made the difference in Clarkston High School's 69-61 overtime win against Waterford Kettering Feb. 23 in Kettering's home court.

The effort secured the fifth Clarkston basketball championship of the Greater Oakland Activities League — though it may be shared with Pontiac Northern this year, depending on the outcome of Monday's Lake Orion-Northern match-up.

"Scott and Wally played well in the game," said coach Dan Fife after the game. "Neither are starters, but they played like starters."

Treckman shot 10 for 14 from the foul line, including 7 of 8 in overtime. Winiemko grabbed some crucial rebounds, said Fife.

Clarkston was up by one point in the final seconds of regular time, when there was a loose ball. Everyone dove for it, said Fife, but a foul was called against Clarkston — "a strange call," he said.

So Kettering had a chance at a one-and-one at the free throw line with no time on the clock. The player made one shot to tie the game, sending it into overtime.

Clarkston ended up the victors, said Fife.

"I'm happy for the kids," he said. "We played well together."

Many contributed to the win throughout the game, though the team "struggled," he said — particularly with defensive rebounds.

But "there were lots of highlights," he said.

Bill Knight pulled down 15 rebounds and scored 13 points. Reggie Reed scored 18 points, and Dugan Fife scored 17 points, including a timely 3-pointer to put Clarkston ahead with 14 seconds to go.

Kettering, who lost by 36 points at Clarkston's home court earlier in the season, played hard.

"We're not big, and we're not strong, so we have to play together as a team."

Coach Dan Fife

"They're much improved," said the coach. "They're playing more together as a team. ... Generally, whenever someone plays Clarkston it's their season."

Kettering and Clarkston traditionally are rivals in every sport.

"It's a strong rivalry," Fife said. "I grew up in Clarkston. It's been a rivalry ever since Kettering opened its doors."

However, nowadays, Clarkston basketball has lots of rivalries — especially with Pontiac Northern and Lake Orion.

Face Lapeer West in District play

For the Class A District basketball tournament, Clarkston High School drew Lapeer West High School Feb. 26.

The Wolves meet the 3-15 West team at 7 p.m. Monday, March 5, at Lapeer East High School, said Coach Dan Fife.

Though Lapeer West's record isn't great this season, "you never know," said Fife about the outcome.

If Clarkston wins, the Wolves will play Lake Orion High School at 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 7, at Lapeer East High School.

The Lake Orion Dragons are in the Greater Oakland Activities League with Clarkston, and Clarkston has beaten the Dragons twice this season.

"They're good rivalries — not malicious," said Fife. If Lake Orion beat Northern Feb. 26, then Clarkston is the sole champion of the GOAL. If Northern won, the two teams share the championship.

Clarkston was to face Ferndale Feb. 27 in the last game of the regular season — "a game of pride," said Fife. The Wolves don't play again until the District tournament, scheduled for Monday, March 2, at Lapeer East High School.

Clarkston will be ready, said Fife, adding that the nine seniors on the team have provided essential leadership and strong attitudes all season.

"You're only as good as your seniors," he said. "We're not big, and we're not strong, so we have to play together as a team."

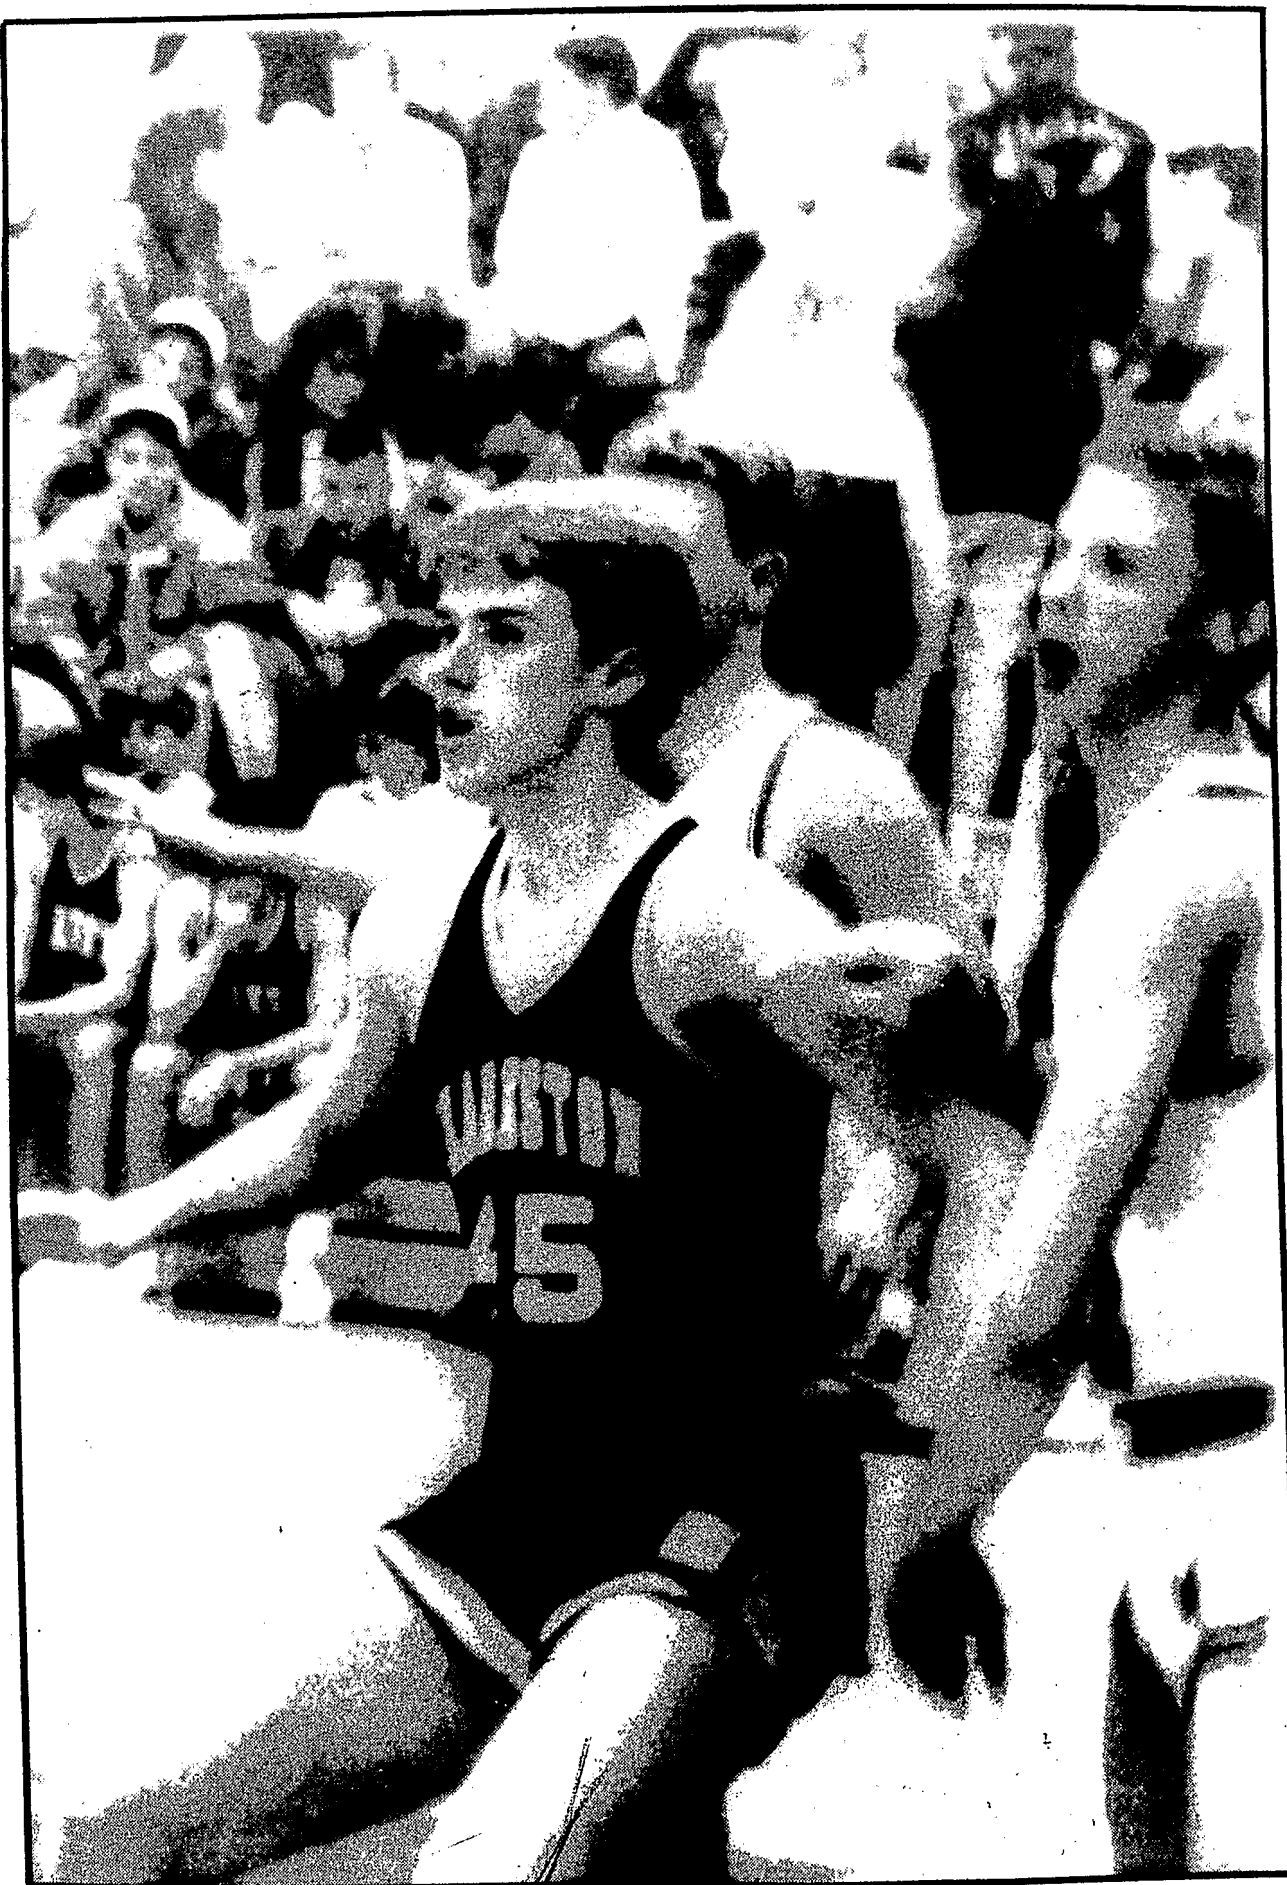

"Sometimes everybody really prepares for you, and mentally, your kids have to come out."

This team has the right attitude, he said.

"It's kind of like a tradition. Every one of these kids almost has grown up in Clarkston and Saturday morning basketball and seen the success of the basketball team and wanted to be a part of it."

"I've watched most since fourth grade. ... I guess that's what makes Clarkston special."

Breathe deep

Renee Glovinsky

I was in a plane this weekend. As we pulled out of Detroit City Airport, the pilot made an announcement. "This is a smoke-free aircraft. There will be no smoking permitted on the plane." The passengers cheered, myself included.

I thought about how nice it would be to be able to take deep breaths without coughing. Even though smokers have always been forced to sit in the rear of the plane, it really didn't prevent the smoke from creeping up to the middle and front. I thought about how society has become so health conscious as I drank my Coke and munched on my extra salted peanuts and peanut butter crackers that the stewardess graciously handed out.

As we pulled into the Dallas Airport I took in a huge breath as I counted my blessings. Maybe I counted them a little too soon. As we picked up new passengers and changed the crew, I realized that a mother and her baby were about to become my new traveling companions. How cute. I love babies.

But lo and behold ... the baby had extra baggage of her own.

All at once I thought about how refreshing the smell of burning nicotine would be and how maybe smokers do take a beating in society.

Honestly, though, I am happy to see that non-smokers are standing up for their rights -- they do mind if you smoke.

In the Southwest, the non-smoking establishment trend has begun. In several restaurants I visited, there was not an ash tray to be found.

Of course there are always going to be smokers.

Much of that is attributed to the advertising, which attracts vulnerable targets. Just recently a tobacco company revealed its marketing strategies. The plans were to go after the young, lower-class females in order to sell its latest cigarette. It's sad to think that sales are more important than the health and welfare of the society.

As our plane began descending into Detroit, I noticed how smoggy the skies had become. The clean mountainous air that I had just experienced was now a faded memory. It seems that for every small gesture we make to improve conditions, there are still so many challenges ahead. As we exited the smoke-free air tight plane and boarded onto the airport shuttle bus, we non-smokers became the minority once again.

Area skiers help team

A few Clarkston area players helped the Marian and Brother Rice ski teams take a few championships this season.

At Marian — an all-girl Catholic high school in Birmingham — sophomore Natalie Burge of Springfield Township and junior Laura Maierle and senior Victoria Quinton of Independence Township contributed to the wins.

The Marian team was undefeated all season and placed first in the divisional meet. Individually, Burge placed third in the slalom and first in the giant slalom. Quinton placed 10th in the giant slalom.

Marian also won the regional meet, with Burge placing sixth in the slalom and eighth in the giant slalom.

At the Southeast Michigan Ski League, Marian place first with 55 points, followed by Lakeland with 75 points and Clarkston with 100 points.

From Marian, three girls finished in the top 10 places, including Burge, who finished seventh in the slalom and eighth in the giant slalom.

From Brother Rice — an all-boy Catholic high school in Birmingham — seniors Fred Hehl and Dan Foley of the Clarkston area contributed to the team's success.

Brother Rice was undefeated in the season and won the divisional meet. The team tied for second at the regional meet and placed third in the league meet.

At the divisional meet, Hehl placed seventh in the slalom and 10th in the giant slalom. Foley placed 13th in the slalom and 17th in the giant slalom.

At the regional, Hehl placed 11th in the giant slalom.

Brother Rice finished in third place with 120 points at the regional meet, behind second-place Bloomfield Hills Andover (105 points) and first-place Grand Blanc (91 points).

Volleyball team closes season 2-8 in league

BY RENEE GLOVINSKY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When the Wolves varsity volleyball team has been good, it's been real good. But it's also had a lot of difficulty this season, according to Coach Gordon Richardson. During a Feb. 10 invitational at Clarkston High School, the Wolves put forth a good effort. When up against Davison, which is ranked 10th in the state, Clarkston ended up losing 10-15 and 6-15. The leading server in that bout was Michele Sikes, who went 11 for 11 with 1 ace.

"We didn't play real well defensively. Good defensive play only occurs when you want it badly enough."

Coach Gordon Richardson

But against Ferndale, Clarkston showed no mercy, winning 15-3 and 15-7. Ingrid Larson had 5 kills, and Susan McKoin had 4. Sikes served 12 out of 12 with 3 aces. Jami Lerner was the best defensive player with 6 digs.

The Wolves split the match against Rochester. "We should have won the first game," Richardson said. "We just missed too many serves."

McKoin was successful with 19 of 20 attacks at the net, including 9 kills.

Sikes served 13 for 13 with 2 aces. "She did a real good job in defense, too," Richardson added.

The momentum built up again, and Clarkston crushed Warren Woods Tower 15-2 and 15-5.

Lerner and McKoin tallied up 9 kills apiece. Wendy Cummings helped with 11 assists, while Sikes served 14 of 15, with 2 aces. Becky Kosek also served well, going 8 for 8, with 2 aces. The top two defensive players were Lerner and Sikes.

The semi-finals brought the Wolves' winning streak to a halt — they lost 6-15 and 9-15.

The leading hitter was Lerner with 14 of 14 attacks and 8 kills. Amy Blome went 5 for 5 with 5 kills. Cummings had 8 assists and also served 13 for 13 with 2 aces.

On Monday, Feb. 12, the sun shined brightly for the Wolves, and they beat Pontiac Northern 15-8 and 15-0. Lerner had 8 kills, and Larson and McKoin had 7 kills each.

On Wednesday, Feb. 14, the wolves did a complete turnaround losing to Brandon 7-15 and 4-15.

"They put it to us," said coach Richardson. "We had no enthusiasm, and our movements were slow."

McKoin went 6 for 6 with at the net with 3 kills, while Law went 5 for 5 with 2 kills. Kosek helped with 4 assists.

Leading servers were Sikes, who served 7 of 7, including 1 ace, and Cummings, who was 6 for 6. Susan Cohoon served 4 of 4.

On the same night, the Wolves challenged Montrose, winning 15-12 and 15-10.

The regular season is over for the team, but strategies are already underway for the District tournament set for Saturday, March 3.

The Wolves' record is 2-8 in the Greater Oakland Activities League and 11-8 in tournament play. The team's serve reception was 3 percent lower than last year, and they had 300 less digs, Richardson said.

"We didn't play real well defensively. Good defensive play only occurs when you want it badly enough," Richardson said.

District schedule

If you've only seen volleyball played on televised portions of the Olympics, you've missed some fast action this year.

But there's still a chance to witness some of the best play in the area during the district tournament Saturday, March 3, at Clarkston High School — when high school teams battle to earn the district title and a spot in the regional play-offs.

The day starts at 11 a.m., when Clarkston High School plays Lapeer East High School. At the same time, Grand Blanc will play Holly.

The winner of the CHS-Lapeer East game will match up with Lake Orion High School — probably around 12:30 or 1 p.m. At the same time, the winner of the Grand Blanc-Holly game will play Lapeer West.

The winners of those two matches will battle it out for the district title and will advance to regional competition March 10.

Flatlanders ski team takes all in Colorado

BY RENEE GLOVINSKY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Pontiac Firefighters have done it again. They took first in the hose race and the overall National Ski Championship Breckenridge, Colo., Jan. 30 through Feb. 1.

The Pontiac Firefighters ski team, better known as the "Flatlanders" since they're from the Midwestern states, entered the race as last year's defending champions.

"It's a strong rivalry. I grew up in Clarkston. It's been a rivalry ever since Kettering opened its doors."

Coach Dan Fife

Two Independence Township residents contributed to the win in a big way. Bruce Rosengren, who had earned the "number one" bib throughout most of the race, and Joe Cerre, who took ninth overall. About 230 firefighters competed in the four-day event.

The race was divided into divisions. Rosengren placed first in the expert division, first in the expert team division (two-man team) and received an award as one of the first-place national champions.

Cerre took fourth in the expert division and took third place in the expert team division.

Rosengren was also part of the three-man team that won the National Hose Race Competition. This was a separate race in which all proceeds were donated to the Redmond Foundation, a research and safety organization for firefighters. The object of this event was for each team to ski while hanging on to a firehose.

The Pontiac team practiced long and hard at the Pine Knob Ski Resort in Independence Township, which also hosted the Midwest Firefighter Ski Race in January.

"We had a great time," said Rosengren. "We thought that the competition would be a lot stiffer than it was. We did as well as we thought we would."

Already, the Flatlanders are gearing up for next year's national as well as local competitions.

ONCE AGAIN, Bruce Rosengren (right) and Joe Cerre of Independence Township helped their team — the Flatlanders — win a national ski championship.

Three CHS Wrestlers are All-State

The Clarkston High School wrestling team closed out the 1989-90 season with three All-State wrestlers, ending a record-setting season.

Senior John Terpstra (145 pounds) and freshman Jerry Anderson (119 pounds) both finished fifth at the Class A state individual wrestling tournament Feb. 24 in Battle Creek. Anderson is the first freshman from Clarkston ever to be an All-Stater.

Junior Damon Michelson (160 pounds) finished sixth.

Also qualifying for the state tournament from Clarkston was freshman Jeff Deroseau (103), who finished in a Coach Scott Strickler, explaining that the top six in every weight class are All-State.

"With a few more breaks, we could have placed as many as four wrestlers," said Strickler. "Jeff Deroseau lost his first match on a bad call, then won his next two before being eliminated on Saturday morning."

The state meet was exciting, said Strickler.

"This year at the state meet we brought all the varsity wrestlers along to cheer on their teammates who qualified," he said. "This, along with the large group of wrestling parents in attendance, made the Clarkston hopefuls one of the more vociferous groups in attendance."

Overall, the entire season was successful and enjoyable, Strickler said.

"I am more proud of this team than any other — and not because of their accomplishments but because of all the adversity they faced with pay-to-play and the idea of no sports hanging over their heads most of the season," he said.

"These 25 guys hung together like no other team at Clarkston High School before. I'm proud to have been associated with these fine young men and look forward to another record-breaking season next year," he said.

Goalie saves 37

Sophomore goalie Rob Laurie of Clarkston, a member of the Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, hockey team, made 37 saves in the Feb. 17 6-1 loss at home to nationally ranked Lake Superior State, Sault Ste. Marie.

The broncos also lost the Feb. 16 match-up with the Lakers 4-3 in overtime. Laurie is 6-8-1 for the season and has an .840 saves percentage and a 5.06 goals against average.

Western Michigan is 13-21-2 overall and 11-17-2 in Central Collegiate Hockey Association action for fifth place.

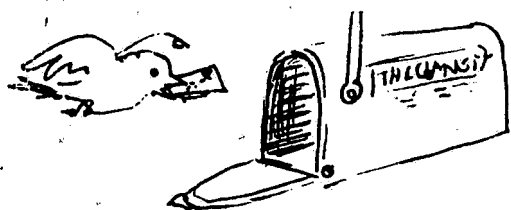

The Broncos were to meet Ferris State Feb. 23-24 in a home-and-home series to close out the regular season. They were then to face Bowling Green State or Michigan in the first round of the CCHA playoffs. It will be WMU's seventh consecutive CCHA playoff appearance.

"These 25 guys hung together like no other team at Clarkston High School before."

tie for seventh place, with a 2-2 record.

Seniors Jerry Lawrence and Tim Kerr "both wrestled outstanding but were unable to place in the top six," said

Answers to common questions about 1989 taxes

If you haven't already returned your 1989 tax forms, the Michigan Association of CPAs has supplied answers to some of the most commonly asked questions on 1989 taxes.

What are the tax rates for 1989?

They are the same as last year. The good news is that the brackets have been adjusted for inflation. As a result, you can earn a little more money before moving into a higher tax bracket.

I served on jury duty recently and had to surrender the check to my employer. Will I still have to declare the jury-duty pay as income?

Yes. But a new tax law will enable you to take a deduction for that same amount — even if you don't itemize. As a result, you will no longer be taxed on money you didn't actually keep.

My son received a scholarship for the past school year. Will he have to report the money as taxable income?

The answer depends on how the money is used and whether your son is a degree candidate. Scholarships or fellowships made after Aug. 16, 1986, are tax-free only for degree candidates who use the funds for tuition and course-related expenses.

You can no longer exclude from income any money awarded for such expenses as room, board and travel. Nor can you exclude any funds received in return for teaching or research services — even if they are required for the degree.

I sold some stocks this year. How do I figure out how much capital gain or loss I need to report?

Basically, you calculate the amount of gain or loss by subtracting the amount you paid for the investment from the amount you sold it for. The latter information is provided on the 1099-B form that your broker or mutual fund will send you.

If you haven't received your statement by the time you're ready to fill out your return, you're not off the hook — a gain must still be reported. Keep in mind that certain activities, such as participation in a dividend reinvestment program, may make calculating gain a tricky matter. In these cases, your best option may be consulting a CPA.

I'm self-employed and maintain an office at home. Will I be able to deduct my business expense?

If the space in your home is used regularly and exclusively for business and is separate from your living space, you may be able to deduct a percentage of the costs of running your house, including your utilities and even a home security system. But keep in mind that the home-office deduction may be a red flag for IRS audits.

What are the guidelines for deducting IRA contributions?

You can still fully deduct your IRA if neither you nor your spouse participated in an employer's retirement plan in 1989, or if your adjusted gross income is under $25,000 if single or $40,000 if married.

Once you satisfy either of these requirements, you can shelter up to $2,000 if single and up to $4,000 if married and both spouses work. If only one spouse works, the most you can contribute is $2,250.

What happens if I do participate in a retirement plan and make more money than the limits allow?

If you (or your spouse) are covered by a company-sponsored plan, the amount of your IRA deduction will drop by $200 for every $1,000 of adjusted gross income over the income limits just mentioned.

Has the deduction for personal interest changed again?

Yes. For 1989, you can only deduct 20 percent of the interest charged on consumer loans and credit cards. This year, the deduction crops to 10 percent. And in 1991, the deduction will disappear entirely.

I recently bought my first home. What deductions are available to homeowners?

First of all, if you paid points to obtain a mortgage, you may be entitled to deduct these in full this year. Also, you can deduct any other mortgage interest you pay (within limits), as well as your property taxes.

Do I have to pay tax on the gain from selling my home?

That depends. Generally, you can defer the gain from selling your primary residence by buying another home of equal or greater value sometime within 24 months of the date of the sale.

Alternately, if you are at least age 55 or older and meet certain qualifications, you may be able to exclude from taxable income up to $125,000 in gain by claiming a special provision of the tax law. Ask your CPA for details. In either case, you will still have to report the sale of your home on Form 2119.

Have the rules on miscellaneous and medical deductions changes?

No. The rules in 1989 are exactly the same as those in effect in 1988. Miscellaneous expenses are deductible only to the extent that they exceed 2 percent of your adjusted gross income. Medical expenses are deductible only to the extent that they exceed 7.5 percent of your adjusted gross income.

For more information on 1989 tax rules, you may request a copy of "The CPA's Survival Guide for Taxpayers" from the Michigan Association of CPAs by writing to P.O. Box 9054, Farmington Hills, MI 48333. Include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Opinion of Bill Myers

Phones past

William A. Myers is a retired Lapeer County editor and investments manager from Boca Raton, Fla.

My favorites in the taxable bond market are the securities of Bell Telephone and General Telephone. The yields are a little less than those of electric utilities, but that's a small price to pay for sleeping better.

Look at the advantages:

- No labor problems. Oh, now and then there's a strike, but it doesn't make any difference. Takes a little longer to reach Directory Assistance, but your phone keeps working during the strike. After maybe a couple of weeks, the strike is over and your monthly bill is up maybe 50 cents.

- No raw materials problem. No fuel problems. Electric utilities are bagged quite regularly by oil price jumps, by coal shortages due to strikes. And nuclear regulations.

- No weather problems that beset electricity distribution. Nearly all long distance is by radio waves, which so far don't have the annoying habit of icing up and falling down.

- Freedom from cultists who think the solution to energy problems is to cut down the use of electricity, for example, and put up a windmill in the backyard.

- A non-cyclical industry, pretty much. The only thing that could cut down on telephone use would be to eliminate teenagers.

- The support of an educational system that refuses to teach students to write. So what's a kid going to do to communicate, besides holler, or use a phone? Even smoke signals are out; Ralph Nader objects.

Anyhow, I like telephone bonds. Boy, if something ever happens to them, I'll have to move to Mars.

Mary Fletcher of Alpena showed me a phone book of 1905 for all Michigan. That's right, one book with all the phones in all the state. It was no bigger than a typical novel.

In the county of Lapeer, then about 30,000 population, there were five phones. One of them was my grandfather, and he had one because he was a sheriff and might have to call Flint for reinforcements.

When I was growing up in northern Michigan in World War I days, phones were widespread. They also had many features that today's contraptions sadly lack.

You didn't have to dial a number with seven digits. You just told the operator whom you wanted to talk to.

You got the operator's attention by turning a little crank on the phone box. If she didn't answer quickly, you cranked harder. It made you feel you were a part of the system.

Oh, we had phone books, but you didn't need them. Why, as late as 1935, when I was running the paper in Gladwin, Mich. (pop. 1,200), I'd just ring the operator and say, for instance, "Tom Wolohan, please."

"I can't reach him now. This is when he walks home to lunch. I'll ring him at his house in about 10 minutes and call you back."

That was real service. Like so many other examples of the good old days, it has gone with the wind.

Down in the fox-hunting area of Metamora, Mich., the operator was a community bulletin board. If the hunters wanted to know at what farm to gather next Tuesday, they'd ask the phone operator. She had all the dope.

Over in nearby Hadley, even smaller than Metamora - maybe 100 people - the phone operator foiled a bank robbery.

The robbers had cut what they thought was the long distance line out of Hadley. When the operator heard all the commotion over at the bank, she tried to call the Flint police, but her regular line didn't work. Quickly, she patched into an old private line to another village and had them relay the call for help to Flint.

The cops came and rounded up two of the robbers, who had fled into the Hadley hills. Meanwhile, the fellows hanging around the hardware store grabbed some guns off the rack in the store and, in the best vigilante fashion, nailed one of the bandits as he ran down the street.

The small towns of America had this fine, personal phone service until the 1960s, when dial phones had taken over. You still couldn't dial direct long distance, though, to many places.

Sam McCool, the public relations director for Michigan Bell, tried to call his grandmother down in Mississippi one New Year's Eve. The operator down in the little town came on and said, "No, I'm not going to call Annie McCool at this hour of night."

"Why not?" asked the Michigan toll-line operator.

"I'll tell you why," came the reply. "That man calling is just old Sam McCool, Annie's grandson, and he's been drinking. You tell him to call back tomorrow at a decent hour."

While this sort of service has deteriorated in recent years, I still like Bell Tel bonds.

* * *

An admiring grandparent (aren't they all?) in 1984 bought $50M par value zero coupon government bonds to welcome Tiny Tim to the planet earth.

They cost grandpa $4,926.

Today, they're worth $17,125.

When they mature, they'll be worth $50,000.

The gain in five years has been $12,199. That's 247 percent in five years. Aw, call it 50 percent a year, and let's change the subject.

WHY A TITLE SEARCH?

QUESTION: Why is a title search necessary when you buy a home?

ANSWER: Skipping the title search is like buying a new car without a warranty - except the stakes are higher. Although you may be the only buyer, others may also claim rights to the property. There may be an easement to restrict the use of your land or unpaid taxes. An heir to a former owner may claim a share of the property. A title search will check for any such possible claims and determine if the title is clear. Your deed does not eliminate claims that others may have. It simply transfers the seller's right of ownership to you.

A TITLE SEARCH will check for clouds on the title.

Easter Seal ambassador hails from Independence

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston has an ambassador in its midst. Frank Glowzinski, 59, will serve as the 1990 Easter Seal Telethon Ambassador. The telethon airs on WDIV-TV Saturday and Sunday, March 3 and 4.

Frank's been living with multiple sclerosis (MS) since 1967 and attends weekly therapy sessions provided by the Easter Seals Society rehabilitation services.

Although Frank experienced symptoms of MS in 1962, it was not diagnosed until 1967, when it hit him in his mid-30s.

Frank and his wife, Patricia, had built a home on Eagle Scout, he said.

Frank served as an anchor at scout camp. If the scoutmaster had a group of boys out scouting away from the camping area, Frank was at the campsite to watch the others, he said.

"Scouting builds character, and it's a good thing for boys to get into," Frank said.

Frank hasn't let his disease stop him from being a teacher to his sons. With Frank's guidance, the boys built a room on the back of the house on Warbler.

"They knocked out the wall in the utility room," Frank said.

He instructed them through the whole process, right down to putting bricks on the addition, he said.

"They did the work, and I was the supervisor," Frank said.

Frank also uses his hands for SCAMP, a summer camp program for mentally and physically handicapped children.

Money collected from the fountains at Summit Place Mall is delivered to him, and he puts the change in money rolls.

The executive director of SCAMP, Bunny Newmarch, set him up with the coin work.

"It's a lot of work, but I enjoy it," Frank said, estimating that he's rolled over $2,000 worth of pennies the last three years.

MS hasn't kept Frank from singing and socializing either. He's been a member of the choir at St. Daniel Catholic Church, Independence Township, for the last five years.

His wife started singing in the choir first, and when Frank found out they liked to party, he joined, too.

Warbler, Independence Township, in 1965 and were busy raising a family of five children when his disease was diagnosed.

The diagnosis left Frank with a feeling of helplessness because he wasn't certain what the future would hold for him.

"God did not see in his eyes for me to work until age 65 and enjoy traveling (after retirement)," Frank said.

Although Frank continued to work at his job as a tool and dye maker for General Motors until 1974, the disease made traveling in the car difficult for him.

MS caused a numbness in his legs, making driving an impossible task. Frank uses a walker to get around today. He wears braces on both legs, which help as support, but most of his support comes from his upper body strength.

"I'm slow," he said. "But I have the use of my hands and my head."

To drive, Frank now uses hand controls on his van. His ability to use his hands helps him when he visits the rehabilitation center. Frank has made hooked rugs for his grandchildren, and the rugs have been sewn into pillows.

He has four grandchildren and two more expected this year. Three of his children are married: Paul, 32; Kathleen, 31; and Patrick, 26. Michael, 30, is engaged; and Charles, 23, is single.

Frank's family and his desire to remain a father and husband has sustained him through his illness.

When his sons were younger, he would attend Boy Scout Camp in Clare with them. Paul and Michael achieved the rank of Eagle Scouts, the highest honor in scouting. Patrick and Charles are Star Scouts, one rank below the

FRANK GLOWZINSKI will be spreading the good news about Easter Seals during the telethon on WDIV-TV Saturday and Sunday, March 3 and 4.

Sophomore gets a taste of the United Nations

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Natalie Burge, 15, of Springfield Township is not your average teen-ager.

Sure, the Marian High School sophomore likes skiing and softball—but she's also immersed herself into such topics as drug trafficking, refugees and law of the sea.

A Rattalce Lake Road resident, Natalie recently returned from a long weekend in Washington, D.C., where she took part in Molly United Nations with about 3,000 other students from across the country.

It all began when she participated in the Molly United Nations season at her all-girls Catholic high school in Birmingham.

At the end of the season, the four officers—all seniors—of the group and the moderator chose five other students to go to the national competition, where each was judged on what she said, how well she spoke and her ideas in general.

Natalie, tall and athletic, was one of the chosen school representatives.

To prepare, she researched her assigned committee topics at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, libraries two months prior to the trip.

That's where they have the best collection of actual United Nations resolutions and such, explained Natalie, who is also a member of Amnesty International and Students Against Drunk Driving at Marian.

She also writes sports articles for The Marian News, the school newspaper.

The weekend was a good experience, Natalie said. "It was unreal," she said. "There were so many people there. I was overwhelmed when I walked into my committee."

Marian High School was assigned to act as the United Kingdom in this mock United Nations, and Natalie volunteered to serve on the legal committee, where the challenge was to find solutions from a legal point of view to such problems as drug trafficking, refugees and law of the sea.

On the final day, the students met in a general assembly, and Natalie was the only student from her school who got to speak.

The audience of 3,000 didn't phase her—until afterward when she thought about it, she said.

It's all going to contribute to her career, though. She plans to minor in law and major in journalism and media, she said.

"Law just seems like it would be something I'm good at," she said. "I don't have trouble speaking in front of people. And I can usually understand a problem from everyone's point of view."

"And I really like to write. ... Journalism seems like the obvious place to go."

Her mother, Barbara, couldn't agree more.

"She's just so outgoing," said Barbara, recalling that Natalie appeared on stage in youth theater at age 6 and did not seem nervous at all.

"It's always been encouraged at home that just because you're a girl, it doesn't mean it's not OK to express your opinions," said Barbara.

NATALIE Burge skis and plays softball at Marian High School, Birmingham.

Happy birthday Dr. Seuss

March 2 marks the 86th birthday of one of the most beloved authors of modern-day children's books, Theodore Seuss Geisel, commonly known as "Dr. Seuss."

Born in 1904 in Springfield, Mass., Geisel developed his unique drawing style as a young boy and later worked as a cartoonist.

The success of his first book, And to Think That I Saw It on Mulberry Street, which Geisel both wrote and illustrated, led to his career in children's literature and the subsequent publication of numerous other children's books.

Among the most famous are "How the Grinch Stole Christmas" and Geisel's favorite, "The Lorax," an environmental tale about a Sneed factory chopping down Truffula trees.

Geisel's creative approach—combining nonsensical verse with moralistic values—has made his books a favorite among children of all ages.

Geisel, who now lives in La Jolla, Calif., receives as many as 20,000 birthday greetings each year.

Disease doesn't slow this ambassador

"I like to party," he said with a laugh. "They have a picnic every year."

But the most frequent task Frank's hands perform is making dinner every evening for his wife, Pat.

Frank thought he would be the breadwinner when he married Pat in June of 1956, but illness sent his lifestyle in a different direction.

Pat went to work in 1975 and is now the accounts payable clerk for Independence Township.

Each evening when she arrives home from work Frank has dinner waiting for her.

"She's not fussy; she'll eat anything I prepare," Frank said.

When the Easter Seal Society learned of Frank's cooking, they arrived with a TV crew to tape his work for the upcoming telethon.

Frank didn't want to leave the woman he married out of any of his stardom.

When he was approached by Sue Beauvais of Easter Seals, he wouldn't agree to serve as ambassador until he was certain Pat was available.

"She loves it, too," he said.

Pat and Frank are to spend March 3 and 4 as guests at the Ponchartrain Hotel in Detroit. And they'll dine with news anchor Mort Crim of WDIV and Gary Danielson, former quarterback for the Detroit Lions, before heading to the TV station for the telethon.

"Pat asked me this week, 'Are you ready for your second honeymoon?'" Frank said.

At the end of the interview, it was time to take a photograph of Frank. He moved around to sit tall in his chair and quietly said, "I wish Pat was here."

The Telethon is scheduled air on WDIV-TV Channel 4 from 11:30 p.m. Saturday, March 3, through 7 p.m. Sunday, March 4.

Frank is to appear with Jeremy Dawson, 3, of Sterling Heights who serves as the 1990 Easter Seal Telethon poster child.

The Other Side of Things

The visionary

Ashley Ball

When I told my family that I would be writing a column in The Clarkston News, they each received my news differently. My mother worried if it would be too much for me ... would I have time to do my homework ... what about riding lessons?

My dad wondered if it meant that I would be moving out on my own soon.

"Dad, I'm only 13!"

He looked at me in absent-minded surprise.

"Do you mean that your room has gotten that messy in only 13 years?"

My little sister, though, has vision.

"You mean you're going to be a columnist?" she asked in awesome disbelief. "You mean a real live columnist?" her eyes grew wide.

She turned her gaze skyward, lost in her own little world. "I can't believe it ... my own sister ... a famous columnist!"

I tried to put things in perspective for her.

I explained that it wouldn't be that big of a thing.

Other students from Clarkston had been asked to write for The Clarkston News in the past and, as far as I knew, it was for them as it would be for me: a fun, challenging, rewarding experience. No fame. No fortune.

A few days later, I went for my final interview with the editor, Julie Campe. As I got out of the car, my mother gave me some last-minute words of wisdom about the interview. "Don't talk about boys. And don't say anything about the 'C' you made in art."

The interview was fun ... everyone was so nice to me. I was looking forward to my first day at work.

After the interview, I met my mom and sister across the street at the Grill. We ordered hot chocolate and I began telling them about my office (upstairs next to Tracy King's), my hours (after school Wednesdays and Thursdays), and my computer (the one with the broken "C" key).

My mother then conducted a second interview. "What did they ask you?"

"Well," I said, "first we talked about Jordan and Danny, then I told them that I did not make a 'C' in art." My mother went pale.

I laughed, explaining that Julie had simply asked me if I liked "New Kids On The Block." And I assured my mother that the subject of art had not come up.

My sister cut right through to the important stuff. "Will your column be on the front page? Will they put your picture at the top of the column? How soon will it be until you're famous?"

It was fun talking about all this with my mom and sister, and I was already looking forward to re-telling it to my dad at dinnertime.

After we finished our hot chocolate, we put on our coats and left the Grill. Heading for our car in Rudy's parking lot, we waited for the white walk signal, then crossed at the light. A car skidded slightly toward us and we took a step back towards the curb.

My sister reached out and grabbed me, relieved that we hadn't been hit.

"I can see the headlines now," she said, once again gazing into the sky. She swept her hand in the air as she read the imaginary headline: "Famous Columnist Hit By Car Before First Day At Work!"

My sister, the visionary.

More medals than ever from instrumental festival

On Saturday, Feb. 10, students from Sashabaw and Clarkston middle schools participated in the District 4 Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association Solo and Ensemble Festival held at Farmington Harrison High School.

Events comprising students in grades 7 through 9 performed solos and small ensembles before MSBOA judges for comments, ratings and medals.

Sashabaw entered 16 events, with every event earning a medal — 13 events received First Division Ratings, and three received Second Division Ratings.

"In my 20 years here at Sashabaw, this is the first year every students has received a medal for their performance," said Douglas Doty, Sashabaw band director. "I am proud of these students. They were well prepared and are good players."

Clarkston entered 33 events, 18 of which received First Division ratings; 15 received Second Division Ratings; and one received a Third Division Rating.

In addition, three events entered the High School Festival the previous weekend, and two qualified for the State Festival as 9th grade entries with First Division ratings.

Instrumental music instructors Julie Mathews and Cliff Chapman are pleased and proud of the growth and accomplishment of the young musicians.

Microwave Plus

*Heart-healthy chili-potato
good for Ash Wednesday*

Betty
Wagner

Is there a way to commemorate American Heart Month, Potato Lover's Month and Ash Wednesday with an easy microwave recipe?

February is American Heart Month, according to the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute. To keep my American heart in shape, I have been doing cardiovascular exercises; skiing for stress reduction, fun and challenge; and visiting my children and parents to express the emotional dimension of my heart. And then, of course, there is my sweetheart for whom I cook when I am home.

Food choices mindful of a healthy heart keep my physically fit for exercise, sports and tending to my loved ones.

Instead of focusing on the foods I like that are not particularly beneficial for my heart, I choose foods that are and that I like.

According to "Tufts University and Diet and Nutrition Letter," February is also Potato Lover's Month, and a baked potato is a great way to treat my appetite and my heart.

But 60 percent of the potatoes that people eat yearly contain a lot of fat and sodium, which in excess are not good for our hearts.

What a thing to do to a nutritious potato, but that's what happens when the spud is processed into French fries and chips, is canned or dehydrated into instant mashed potatoes, and made into frozen specialties.

So bake that potato in the microwave at HIGH power for about 5 minutes for a large pierced potato and top it with something low in fat after it stands 5 minutes.

The following recipe is an adaptation of a Southwestern chili that I ate while visiting my son in Utah. It follows all the heart healthy guidelines. It is even appropriate to serve for Ash Wednesday, which is observed today by many Christians who abstain from meat on this day.

SOUTHWEST CHILI

- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1/2 medium green pepper
- 1 tablespoon olive or canola oil
- 1 (9 1/2-ounce) can chunk light tuna in water, drained, or 2 chicken or turkey fillets, cooked and shredded
- 1 (4-ounce) green chilies, chopped
- 1 (10-ounce) can no-salt added stewed tomatoes, undrained
- 1 (15-ounce) can black beans, undrained
- 1 (12-ounce) can sweet corn with peppers, undrained
- 1 tablespoon chili powder

1. Saute onion and pepper in oil for 2 minutes or until tender. Add tuna, green chilies, tomatoes, black beans, corn and chili powder.

2. Cover; microwave at HIGH for 5 minutes; reduce to 50 percent (MEDIUM) for 30 minutes. Add water if thinner chili is desired.

Note: You may add your favorite package of chili mix instead of chili powder, but check the label for fat and sodium content.

Serve over hot baked potato.

Tested in a 650-watt microwave oven.

Home economist Betty Wagner resides in Independence Township. Her "Microwave Plus" cable-TV program appears on Independence-Clarkston Channel 65.

Women's History month

Each March, National Women's History month is celebrated in schools and communities throughout the country.

The concept evolved 10 years ago with the National Women's History Project, first organized to celebrate "Women's History Week."

In 1987, Congress approved a resolution extending the celebration to the entire month of March.

"Since we started the organization 10 years ago, more people have come to the realization that women's activities have touched every aspect of American life," said Mary Ruthsdotter, projects director of NWHF.

The month is designated to honor women of every race, class and ethnic background who have made historic contributions to the growth and strength of our nation in countless recorded and unrecorded ways.

This year's theme, "Courageous Voices Echoing in Our Lives," recalls the words of deeds of previous generations of women.

It also symbolized the lives of women who have sustained and passed on their families' unique cultural heritage.

Buzzin' around

Buzz, 4, is a brown Australian and German shepherd mix dog, and he'd like to be buzzing around your home.

Brought to the shelter as a stray, Buzz has been neutered and is housebroken.

But his good temperament should help him adjust to his new home, according to shelter workers, who say he's playful, likes children and is good with other dogs.

Buzz can be adopted for $35 at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Dentist moves to Independence Pointe

The dental office of Thomas G. Santarossa is moving from Walton Boulevard, Waterford Township, to a new office in the Independence Pointe complex on M-15 at I-75, just north of the Village of Clarkston in Independence Township.

Santarossa offers complete dental care for adults and children and is expanding his practice, he said.

He resides in Independence Township with his wife, MaryAnne, and son, Michael, 5 months, and has always wanted to practice in the Clarkston area.

Safe guard important nutrients

So much emphasis is placed on good nutrition today. However, good nutrition involves more than just the issue of wise food selection.

"The nutritional value of the food people consume can be adversely effected by various factors, including both methods of storage and cooking," says Sylvia Treitman, home economist from the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

Foods that are improperly wrapped and stored in both the refrigerator and freezer may lose many valuable nutrients before cooking begins. The fresher the food, the higher the nutrient value in most cases.

To help retain valuable nutrients in cooked foods, it is advisable to keep foods covered and use the smallest amount of liquid possible. This is especially true when cooking vegetables.

Following are tips to help retain valuable nutrients in cooking and storing:

■ Keep fresh produce covered in refrigerator and use as quickly as possible.

■ Save water from cooking vegetables for soups or gravies; freeze for later use.

■ Wrap baking potatoes in foil to retain Vitamin C.

■ Keep milk and orange juice in paper or opaque containers and out of direct sunlight when in use.

How do you know which foods are still safe to consume if the freezer has been out for some time?

"This is probably the most commonly asked question at the Food and Nutrition Hotline," says Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

Don't wait until the next day after power is restored to check the condition of contents — it may be too late to tell by then if everything is refrozen.

"Extreme diligence in examining all partially defrosted foods is essential for safety's sake after a power outage," says Treitman.

Guidelines for freezer failure:

■ Resist the urge to open the freezer. A full-loaded freezer will keep food two days. A half-full freezer will keep food one day.

■ Examine all foods as soon as power is restored. Discard any meat, fish or poultry that has thawed to room temperature. Dispose of any foods that have directly come in contact with raw meat or poultry juices.

■ If foods are still partially frozen (contain ice crystals and still cold to the touch), they can be safely refrozen.

If in doubt, throw it out

■ For a free booklet entitled "When the Freezer Stops Working," please send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Cooperative Extension Service, 1200 N. Telegraph Road, Pontiac, MI 48053.

For food and nutrition questions, call the Food and Nutrition Hotline at 858-0904, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

WHO IS ON THE LORD'S side? To the churches. He that hath an ear to hear the word of the Lord let him hear. Jesus says to beware of the leaven of the pharisees and the sarducces which is nullifying the commandments of God by their tradition, washing the outward, and swallowing a camel and straining at a gnat. (Luke 18.9, 11, 12) (Job 32:18, 21, 22) (Job 34:5-9) (Job 34:35-37) (Job 35:1-3) (Job 35:7, 8) (Job 37:23-24) (Job 35:10-13) (Ecc 7:15-18) (Mat 9:13) The leaven of the pharisee is hypocrisy. The blind leading the blind and both shall fall in the ditch. (Acts 15:1-5) (Acts 15:24) (Acts 13:39) (Gal 2:21) (Gal 6:12, 13) (Phil 3:2) (conscience being hating the truth against Christ) (Gal 1:10) (Rom 8:13, 14) (Gal 2:4) (Acts 13:46) (Mat 15:3, 8, 9) (Mat 16:2-4 which was repentance or be destroyed which they were.) (Mat 16:23 is the attitude of the false religion that leads to domination of men and conforming to the world. Rev 13 "the lamb with two horns, like Rev 5.6 only this one looks like christ (truth) but speaks like the devil (the dragon) mindful of the things of men, hates truth of God's word. It also leads to conformity to serving money just like the governments. Its number 666-mammon-God of riches.) (Mat 21:15) (Mat 21:32) (Luke 7:30) (Mat 23:3-7) (John 14:24) (Mat 10:25) (Mat 7:6) (Mat 12:24, 28) The pharisees still preach and teach that today "Baptism of the Holy Spirit" with the evidence speaking in other tongues is of the devil. Anti-Christ. (Mat 12:31, 32) (Mat 12:10, 13, 14) (Mat 15:12-bondage of self-righteous works-unbelief in God) (Gal 6:12, 13-same as Rev 13:11-14) The first beast being the leaven of herod-antichrist government. (Gal 4:29-31-same as Rev 12:15, 17) (Rom 10:3, 4) (Gal 6:15) (II Cor 2:15-17) (II Cor 7:19) (Gal 1:10) (Acts 5:32) (Gal 4:29) It is the Spirit that quickens. The flesh profits nothing. The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit and they are life, says Jesus. IILX9-2

WITH a country style, Tiffany Reger and Melissa Schoeneweg belt out music during their duet last Wednesday before fellow students at Pine Knob Elementary School.

Talent abounds

SARA COOK, a second-grader, easily performs a backbend during her gymnastics routine.

HEIDI BROWN tap dances across the stage, much to the delight of the audience.
