Two men were killed in a head-on collision on M-15, Independence Township, about 2:35 p.m. Monday, March 19.

Marvin Elton Dafoe, 39, of Augres was pronounced dead at the scene, said Mark Newman, accident investigator for the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD).

Rudolph Lynn Orlick, 37, of Snowapple, Independence Township, died later during surgery at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital (POH), said physician Robert Aranorian, head of POH's emergency room.

"Both victims had gone through multiple trauma including head, chest, legs and lots of internal bleeding," said

The cause for the accident was unknown Tuesday, and an investigation is underway at the OCSD.

"The roads were not a problem," said Newman. "We don't know what caused it."

According to the police report, Orlick was driving northbound on M-15 in a 1979 Chevy van when he crossed over the center line striking Dafoe's oncoming (See CRASH, Page 30)

Election date set for cityhood

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The question of cityhood for the Village of Clarkston could be voted upon as soon as Monday, May 14.

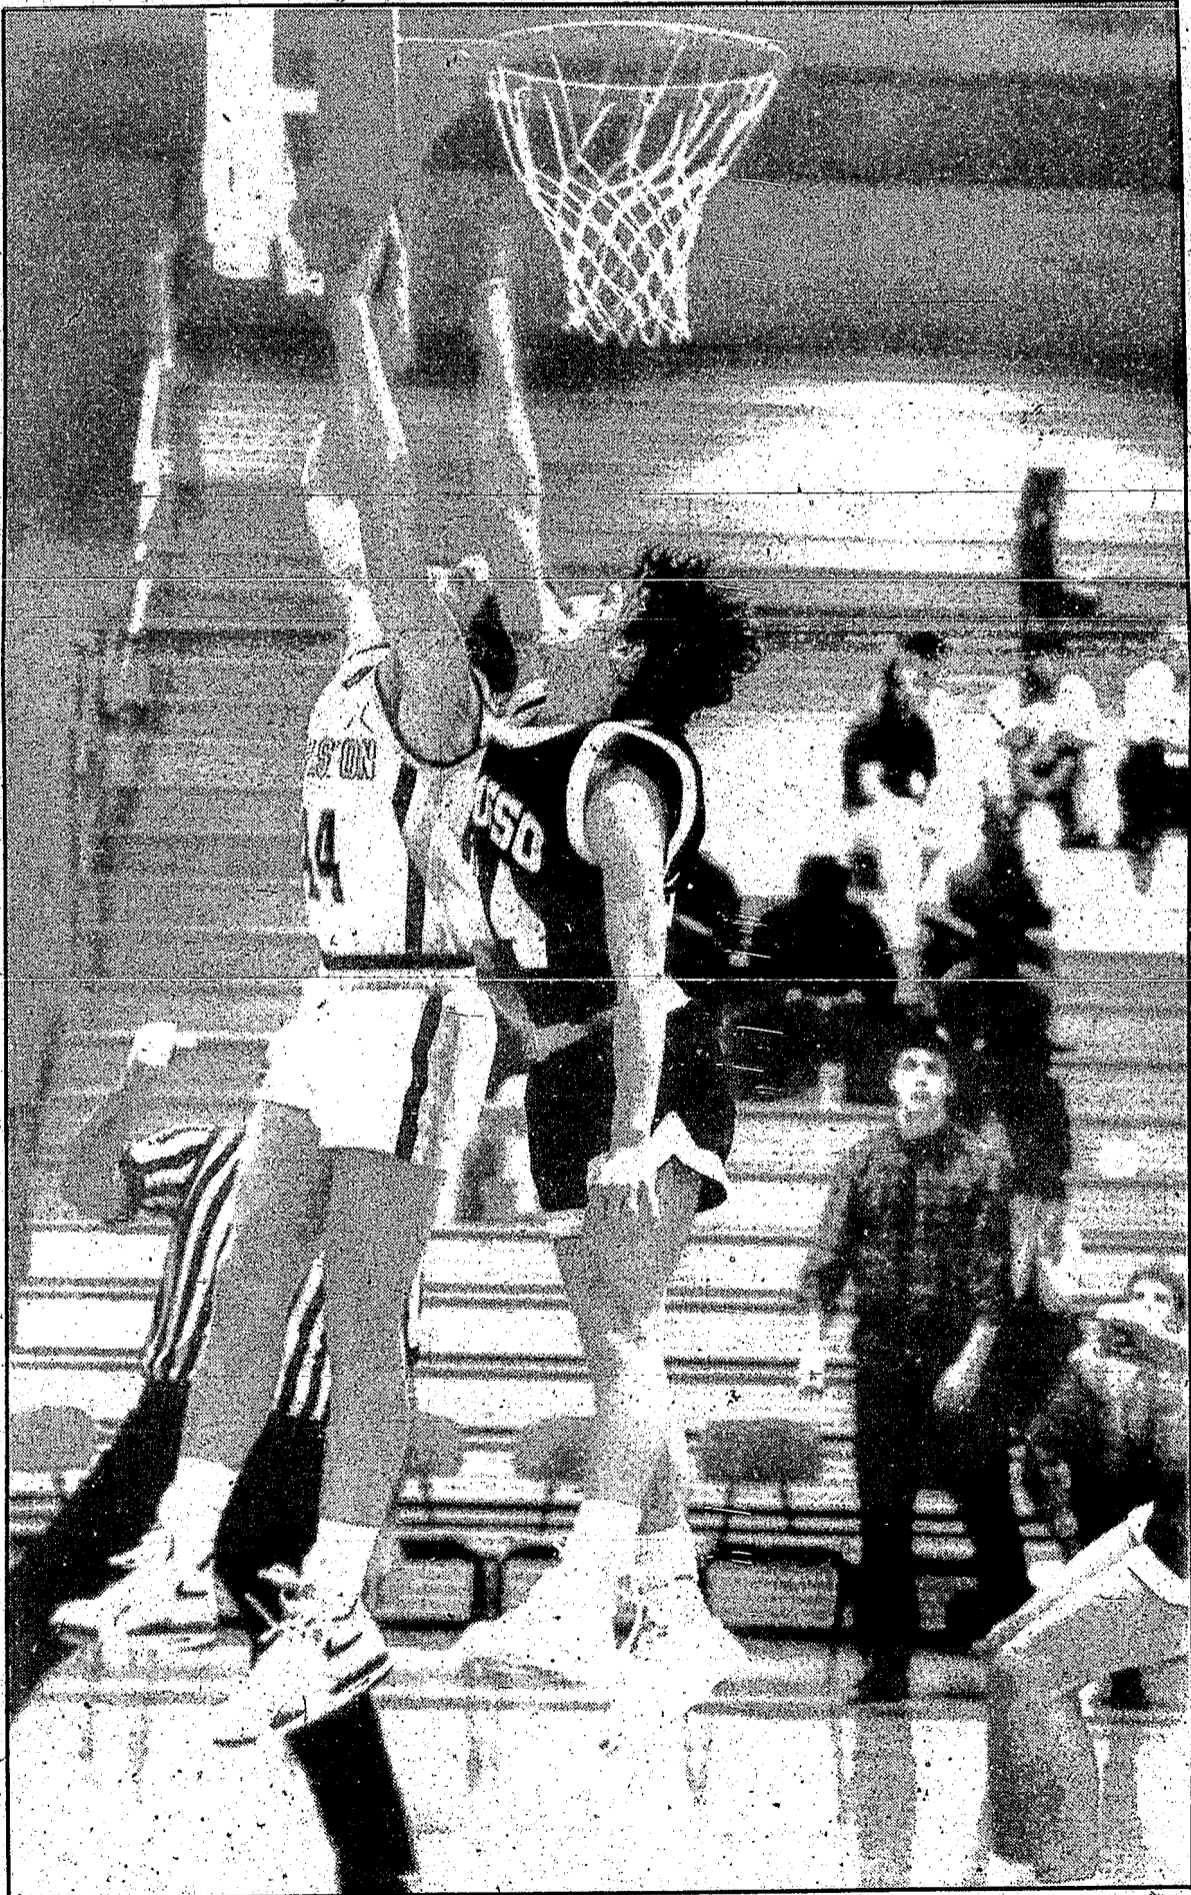

The Michigan Boundary Commission received petitions with 67 signatures on March 5, after village officials submitted the petitions for review.

Each signature must be verified; the signee must be a registered voter and live within the village limits of Clarkston.

The Boundary Commission meets on April 3, and the Clarkston Village Council set the election date for about 30 days after the commission meets — May 14.

After the March 5 meeting, village President Sharon Catalo said that even if the residents vote for cityhood, another vote is needed on the charter that could cause the cityhood process to stop.

If the residents vote down cityhood, "nowhere does it say that you can't be a village again," said Catalo during the meeting.

Orion measles outbreak may spread to Clarkston

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A measles outbreak that has hit neighboring Lake Orion community hasn't invaded the Clarkston area yet. But Clarkston area pediatrician James O'Neill has had an outbreak of incoming phone calls concerning the disease.

Adding up

Students in Cliff Irwin's science class at Sashabaw Junior High School wanted to see a "million of something," said Kristine Bania, a seventh-grader.

So the students are collecting pop can tabs—the little metal rings on the top of the cans. After they reach a million, they plan to donate them to a leukemia foundation, which can sell them for money.

Though she's not a member of the first-hour class that instigated the project, Bania is helping promote it.

Each morning the students count the tabs—as of Monday, March 19, they had 4,862.

To find the tabs, students are raiding the cans at home, as well as accepting donations of tabs from grocery stores.

"People are going everywhere more or less," Bania said, adding that the whole school is getting in on the project.

"I'd like to see the million things, and it's good that it's going to the leukemia foundation," she said. "Everybody is getting into the spirit of this."

Especially their teacher, she said.

"Mr. Irwin was really proud of people when they thought of the idea," she said.

If anyone would like to donate to the cause, pop can tabs may be dropped off at Room 302 at Sashabaw Junior High School Maybee Road, Independence Township.

"We've had a ton of phone calls," O'Neill said, adding that there have been no reported cases in the Clarkston area as of March 15.

"We have a high degree of immunity in this area," he said.

On Friday, March 9, O'Neill diagnosed three cases of measles in his office on Ortonville Road, Independence Township, but two of the cases were patients who live in Lake Orion, and the other case was from Oxford.

However, everyone should take notice, he said.

He recommends the same advice to patients as the does Oakland County Health Department: If you were

Integration watched carefully

Pine Knob welcomes second cerebral palsy child

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Bryon Beutler is taking a spelling test. As words like "teacher" and "student" are called out, Bryon leans close to his typewriter and, with hands cramped by cerebral palsy, successfully taps the keys that correctly spell the words.

Bryon is making great progress during his first year at Pine Knob Elementary School, his teachers say.

His transition from the "center program" in Pontiac, where most of the county's physically handicapped children are educated, has been fairly smooth, they add.

Educating a severely handicapped child like Bryon in his home school is a fairly new undertaking in the Clarkston school system.

Although state law dictates that every child be educated in his or her home school unless the school cannot serve them well there, only a handful of Clarkston's 70-80 severely handicapped children attend school in Clarkston.

For a variety of reasons, the state has fallen behind in this area, according to Robert Brumback, director of special services for Clarkston Community Schools.

"Michigan has always been a leader in education, but they are at the back of the pack in integration," Brumback admits.

Other states have fully adopted "inclusion," a term describing the full integration of the severely handicapped in home districts. But in Michigan, the subject remains the source of real controversy, Brumback says.

What should the school be required to provide for the student? Will additional teacher and staff training be needed? Is the student better off in his home district?

In Clarkston, district officials have begun to examine these and other questions on a case-by-case basis. Last spring, a committee of teachers, administrators, health officials and parents decided that, for Bryon Beutler, a home school education was the answer.

A severe case
Like most third-graders, Bryon has a mind of his own. He has just chosen the new, attractive, wire-rimmed glasses he wears and admits that he doesn't like math.

He has a real temper, his mother states, and will occasionally try to "run away from home," powering his electric wheelchair to the end of the street.

He was recently caught plotting with a younger cousin on how to move a barstool to the counter to reach the candy cupboard, his mother adds.

Bryon's cerebral palsy doesn't affect his mind; it restricts his motor skills in things like writing, walking and eating.

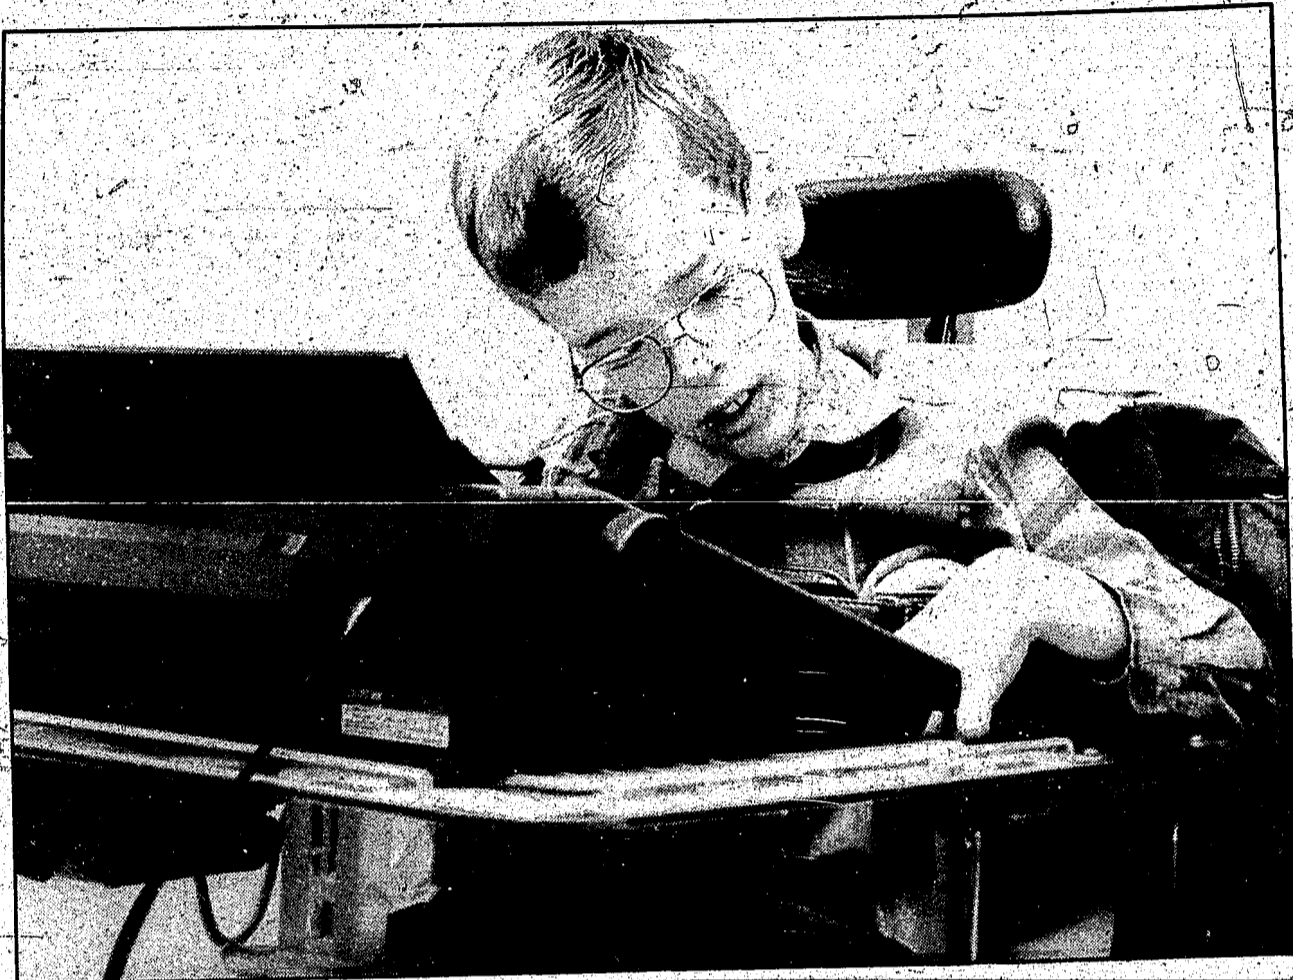

The disease was not immediately apparent to the Beutlers when Bryon was born, prematurely, weighing only 3 pounds, 1 ounce.

When Bryon failed to develop as quickly as his older brother, Wayne, a hospital representative suggested that Bryon needed therapy and could be treated at the Easter Seals facility in Pontiac. It was there that the disease was revealed to Beutlers.

"I was shocked," recalls Karen Beutler, Bryon's mother. "I had seen 'c-p' written on Bryon's recommendations, and I didn't even know what 'c-p' was," she adds.

After attending the Easter Seals program for a number of years, Bryon was evaluated by school officials utilizing a procedure known as IEP, or Individual Education Plan, which determines a program of physical therapy, occupational therapy and special education.

Bryon was sent to his first "center" program, Cherokee Hills in Waterford. When he outgrew that, he attended Herrington in Pontiac, the next step in the educational system for severely handicapped students.

CONCENTRATED EFFORT has led to the success of Bryon Beutler's transition into

It was during Bryon's stay in Herrington, that the Beutlers began to re-evaluate Bryon's education.

"He made all of his friends (at Herrington)," Karen explains. "(During weekends and summers), he had no one to play with; he would have to depend on Wayne's friends."

The Beutlers' early decision to educate Bryon in his home district was met with opposition from officials at Herrington, Karen recalls.

"Bryon was the last person they thought would leave," she says. "Of all the kids there, he was the most involved; he needs so much help."

Eventually meetings with school officials led to the decision that Bryon would be best educated in his home district. Bryon would start school at Pine Knob in September in 1989, the first time he would attend the same school as his brother, Wayne.

Life at Pine Knob

"Bryon was no stranger to us here at Pine Knob," says Pine Knob Principal George White.

Bryon has always attended school fairs and back-to-school nights at Pine Knob with Wayne, White adds.

By the time Bryon started at the school, another kindergartner with cerebral palsy had already finished her first year there. The school was also home to a child with spina bifida.

Still, Karen worked to lay the groundwork for Bryon in every way she could think of. She spoke to Bryon's classmates about the disease and allowed them to ride in an old wheelchair the family owned. She spoke to children in Wayne's class, so that he would not be "embarrassed" about his brother. She even spoke to the classmates of a cousin who attended school at Pine Knob.

The preparation paid off.

"Kids get along with kids," she says. "Bryon now likes to brag that two different girls want to go with him," she laughs.

Bryon has taken particular pleasure in the fact that classmates have begun to come over to play with him, she says.

Although the Beutlers' goal for this first year was "socialization," Bryon's studies have also been progressing.

Bryon's day is split between his regular third-grade classroom for social studies, science, music and gym, and the learning center room, where he studies reading and math.

An adult aide assists Bryon throughout the day, both with academics and with toileting and eating.

Pine Knob Elementary School from a "center program" for handicapped children only.

"The main thing that we provide for Bryon, as we would any child with a physical handicap, is the health-care aide," White says. "(Otherwise) we don't separate him from any other child with special learning needs."

The school itself, ironically, was modified for the handicapped two years ago, as part of the bond issue, White says.

Bryon's transition, and any handicapped child's for that matter, was not without its rough spots.

In the area of school funding, not all state and county money used to educate Bryon in the center program followed him to Pine Knob. Brumback estimates that Pine Knob gets about 17 cents from every dollar spent on Bryon.

According to Karen, certain teachers were uncertain in how to handle Bryon, arguing that they were not certified in special education and that the special attention he required would unfairly detract time from other children.

Other obstacles could surface over time, Brumback predicts.

"It's not perfect; the environment presents problems in small classrooms with high classroom size," he says, "You're also asking teachers to take on a bigger burden."

"But I'm biased," he adds. "I see the circumstances and see what this does for all the children who benefit from (integration.)"

Future integration

Educational funding and teacher certification are just a few hurdles that must be crossed before more integration can occur, Brumback says.

In some cases, the parents simply don't want their children to attend school outside of their center program, he adds.

"We haven't really developed a philosophy yet," Brumback states. "It's so new; we're just entering the awareness state — collecting data and visiting other programs around the country."

Brumback has formed an advisory committee made up of parents, therapists, teachers, parents and administrators to study the elements of integration.

Most of the work so far has been to study Bryon Beutler and his progress.

Karen admits that being a "pioneer" in such a program has "taken guts," but it has been worth it.

"Bryon's brain is what's going to make him a living being," she says. "He wasn't stimulated enough (at the center programs)."

"Maybe he's too stimulated now," she adds, thoughtfully, "but that's the real world."

Upcoming ZIP code changes due to rapid growth

BY RENEE GLOVINSKY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Due to major growth in Oakland County, residents in the Clarkston, Lake Orion and Oxford areas can expect to see new ZIP codes and possibly new mail carriers as of July 1.

"The 480-series has been used up," said John McClue, manager of address information of the Royal Oak Post Office. "We will now have a new series of 483-numbers."

According to Charles Pearson, address information systems analyst, the area is growing heavily. Clarkston is a prime example of that, he said.

"For the people who live in (the south end of) Independence Township residing north of the Clinton River, their new mailing address will become Clarkston," said Pearson. "Presently these addresses fall under Pontiac, Waterford and Drayton Plains."

The Clarkston area will also have use of three ZIP codes after July 1. The dividing line for the area is determined by I-75. Residents living on the south side of the highway will have a 48346 ZIP code; residents on the north side will have a 48348 code, and all P.O. box numbers will have a 48347 ZIP code, said Pearson.

Orion Township will also change its mailing address. Pearson said those portions of Orion Township that now have a Pontiac or Auburn Hills mailing address will become Orion. Pontiac addresses in Orion Township will have a 48359 code.

In other parts of Orion Township, Clarkston Road is the dividing line. Those living on the south side will become 48360, and those on the north side will become 48362. All P.O. box numbers in the area will become 48361. Oakland Township residents who now are served by the Orion Post Office will have a 48363 code.

Oxford postal customers will receive two zip codes. In Addison Township, everything west of Lake George Road and east of the Oxford Township line will become 48370, and everything outside of Addison Township that remains in the Oxford delivery route, omitting the Lake George area, will become 48371.

"A lot of people will be mad with the confusion in the beginning, but they'll be happy with the end results," said one Lake Orion postal worker.

"The public won't see a difference in the delivery," said Bob Dugas, Clarkston Post Office supervisor of delivery and collections. "They may see a new carrier on their street."

Although these new addresses won't go into effect until July 1, postal workers wanted to make business owners aware of the upcoming changes to prevent them from ordering office stationery they would no longer be able to use.

Maps of all changes will be available at each post office in the near future. A notice will be sent out in May to all residents, as well.

Health-o-rama offers screening

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

How's your health?

A full range of health tests are being offered at this year's Health-o-rama, scheduled for Tuesday, March 27, at the Church of the Resurrection.

Sponsored by WXYZ-TV, Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan and the United Way, the Health-o-rama features a number of health screenings, many of them free.

The free services include height and weight measures, glaucoma testing, blood pressure, vision, hearing, oral and dental, medication testing, nutrition counseling and a health hazard appraisal.

For a $10 fee, participants can get blood panel work done, which includes a profile on 21 tests.

For those who wish to screen for blood sugar, the test should be taken no less than four hours after eating. Plain coffee, tea or water may be consumed without any change in the result, according to health officials.

Breakfast won't affect the results of the blood sugar tests, as long as participants wait four hours after eating to take the test.

Results of the blood panel tests will be mailed to participants within two to four weeks, unless the test results indicate a problem that needs immediate attention.

Take-home colo-rectal cancer screening tests will be available for a $3 fee.

Registered nurses from the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center will assist with the medical procedures; the event is staffed by representatives of the Clarkston Community Women's Club.

This year's Health-o-rama will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Episcopal Church of the Resurrection, 6490 Clarkston Road, Independence Township.

A project-health hotline has been established at 424-8600.

Parcel for sale

A parcel of property located in the Goodrich Farms subdivision will soon be up for sale.

The property, located on Griggs Street off of Maybee Road, is owned by Independence Township and houses a pumping station, which will soon be demolished.

The Department of Public Works was granted permission to sell property at the township board's regular meeting March 6.

The value of the property hasn't been determined; the township assessor must appraise the parcel before further steps are taken.

Plans to grade and seed the site are underway, said Township Clerk Joan McCrary.

HELP FROM HOSPICE

A painful, terminal illness can cause great distress to a family, to both the patient and those who care for him or her. It is in this area that a hospice may be of great value.

The hospice movement is growing rapidly all across the country in small and large communities. The purpose of the hospice is to provide personal care to the terminal patient and family as a unit, and to provide an environment and medication that allow the patient to be essentially pain-free. The family is given assistance with psychological and practical problems as well as the medical ones.

The result, in many cases, is that terminally ill persons are able to actually enjoy and live the last days of their lives, rather than anxiously watching the clock, anticipating the return of the pain and enduring the time until the next pain shot. Many times, patients are able to stay in their own homes, which often helps ease the tension.

Township reserves right to water

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Steve Dickson, owner and developer of Springfield Oaks Apartments on Dixie Highway, Springfield Township, lost the right to retain water rights for the complex.

The township board voted 5-2 Feb. 8 to reserve the right to take over wells at Springfield Oaks Apartments, a 25-unit complex currently under construction on Dixie Highway.

Voting yes were Supervisor Collin Walls, Treasurer Lois Stiles and trustees Nancy Strole, Dennis Vallad and Margaret Bloom. Voting no were Clerk Calvin Walters and Trustee Charles Oaks.

Currently Springfield residents and business owners use individual wells on their property.

However, developer Steve Dickson of Troy installed two wells to serve his apartment complex and would have been allowed to retain water rights if the township gave the OK.

At first, Dickson was angered by the board's action to take control. But in a later conversation with Supervisor Collin Walls, he clarified the language of the township's rights. The legal document was amended to say that the township would pay legal fees and engineering costs.

After the Feb. 8 meeting, Supervisor Collin Walls defended his position concerning the township giving up the water rights.

"There may be a time when Springfield needs the water use for fire hydrants," Walls said.

Dickson installed two eight-inch wells, which pump about 500 gallons of water per minute.

After the meeting, Dickson said he wanted the water rights because he feared the township would charge a monthly-fee to tenants using water.

During the meeting, Walls expressed other concerns about water rights, particularly the impact of growth.

"We are growing faster than even expected," Walls said.

No raises in village hall

No raises will be given to Village of Clarkston employees this year.

The Clarkston Village Council voted unanimously March 13 to keep salaries at their current levels.

With cityhood as an upcoming issue it would be better to hold off on raises, said Trustee James Schultz.

The clerk's salary will remain at $6,490 per year; and the treasurer's salary is $6,270 per year. Part-time department of public works employee salaries will remain at $9 per hour for the supervisory position and $7.50 per hour for the two helpers.

The village secretary and the parking enforcement marshall will continue to be paid $8.50 an hour.

The village also pays salary for the crossing guard at M-15 and Middle Lake Road at $6.75 per hour, but the cost is shared with the school district, said President Sharron Catalo, after the meeting.

Asbestos work set for break

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Two Clarkston elementary schools will undergo work to remove asbestos this spring.

The work, scheduled for the April 13 Easter recess, includes removing asbestos from Clarkston Elementary School and Andersonville Elementary School.

School board members unanimously voted March 12 to grant the construction bid to Howard Abatement, Redford, for a cost of $12,600.

State law mandates that schools remove the substance from school buildings when it can come loose. Asbestos is a substance that can irritate the lungs and can cause respiratory problems.

Officials chose to do the work at Clarkston Elementary immediately to prepare for the construction of a new kitchenette, according to Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara.

At Andersonville Elementary, asbestos will be removed from the boiler to prepare for the purchase of a new one.

Although the work will be completed when the school is vacant, several precautions will be taken by the company, Vaara said.

The entire work area will be enclosed by plastic, and special vacuums will be used. The men are required to shower immediately after working in the area to prevent the spread of the substance, he added.

This ide of March was not much different from previous March ides, though it certainly smelled different.

With nearly a week of unseasonally high temperatures, the earth thawed, and the warm, wet smell of new growth and old decay filled the air.

The smell immediately conjured up odor-scenes from the past.

First comes the memory of a brisk morning walk to the bus stop with Toni Biagini, my neighbor in junior high school.

She arrives at my house on Shelly Drive a few minutes early, and I am a few minutes late, so she waits awhile. Finally, we go, books and gym bags in hand.

The grass is wet. Our older brothers walk ahead, markedly ignoring us while they talk about fishing. They point out night crawlers struggling on the pavement.

Toni and I carefully avoid stepping on the worms' long, soggy bodies, and whenever I can, I throw them to the edge of the road.

It's tricky. If you throw them back into the grass, they may drown. According to our brothers (who pride themselves on knowing such things about worms), they crawl out of the ground when it rains because water floods their holes in the earth.

But if you let them stay on the pavement, cars or even unaware pedestrians will squash them.

Toni and I do our best, one-handed, to save the worms. But time is running short — we hear the bus.

We break into a run for the bus, trying not to look where our feet land and wincing if our footfalls don't thud on the pavement.

Breathless, we sit on the bus and survey the situation. We are not too successful in our rescue mission, but maybe the robins will have an easy meal this day, we think.

This warm spell brings with it warm breezes that gust into powerful slaps, whipping my hair into my face.

This makes me think of elementary school at North Sashabaw Elementary School.

When it rains too hard in the spring, the principal calls for recess to be held on the pavement rather than the mud puddle-filled playground.

We don't mind. We play four-square with the red rubber ball, but the chalk doesn't stay well on the wet pavement — we smear the lines with our feet.

We don't notice because it always sounds the same to us, but the air outside is filled with shrieks and laughter and an occasional whistle from the playground supervisor. The wind is so powerful that the swings and Maypoles on the playground clang like bells, though nobody is using them.

Soon, we switch to dodgeball against the wall — no boys allowed. The person who's "it" must throw the ball at the rest of us, who are lined up against the building. We try to dodge. If we're hit, we're it.

When Betsy Spiker is it, she easily gets us out — she is not afraid to throw hard, and we try to be like her.

Next to us are the experts — a group of girls who say rhymes and jump rope, rarely messing up their verses or the swing of their ropes. Some swing two ropes at once, while others take turns jumping in the middle.

We stand watching until we are invited to try. But immediately, we goof up — each one of us in turn.

They decide to let us turn the rope. But we only tangle it. Brenda, the jump rope leader, sighs with impatience. We voluntarily go back to dodgeball.

The bell rings, and we line up to go in. Sheltered by the building, the wind no longer bellows at us.

Already, the temperatures of March have plunged again, taking with them misty days and memories.

Are you ready for a new ZIP code? Have you started using the old one yet? The United States Postal Service (USPS) says it's changing ZIP codes for over 300,000 customers. Residents in areas served by this newspaper are among them.

This is being done to "meet the challenges of growth into the 21st century," says Daniel Presilla, Management Sectional Center Manager/ Postmaster Royal Oak.

"We are confident our customers will understand the reasons for the changes" . . . "We are confident that the ZIP Code adjustments . . . will help both the Postal Service and mailers" . . . "The Postal Service views this change as an opportunity to improve service."

Those quotes sound familiar? We think they were used when the ZIP code was introduced 25 years ago.

Before ZIP codes, it took a week for our newspapers to get delivered to subscribers in Florida. Since ZIP Codes started it takes 7 days.

We believe Presilla means his quotes. He and the Postal Service believe the new ZIPs are necessary because the current numbers can no longer be used with the increased volume.

Why else would he subject himself and all postal employees with the abuse they will receive when this plan is implemented prior to July 1 and afterward?

However, while Presilla is "confident" customers will understand the reasons for the changes, we are just as confident customers will not understand the reason for the changes.

He says, "We expect the changes to be smooth and to cause no disruptions".

We expect the changes to meet as much resistance as the initial ZIP introduction.

We also think the Postal customers are wondering what happened to the 9-digit zip code that was supposed to solve overcrowding and speed service. Has this plan been abandoned in favor of the re-numbering?

We tried to get the answer to that question by dialing their information number, 1-800-654-CODE, but no one answered after 4 minutes of ringing.

Anyway, look for specific ZIP Code information in your mail in early June. And, please, don't use your new ZIP Code until July 1. JAS

Reliable source

We commend The Clarkston News reporting for its thorough, unbiased, carefully-articulated facts, so that, next to being there, it is most informative.

Our reference in point is the article by Staff Writer Sandra G. Conlen on the Springfield Township board meeting that appeared in the Wednesday, March 14, 1990, edition of the newspaper.

With so many things that we need to know and can be at only one place at a time, it is comforting and reassuring to know that there exists such a reliable source as The Clarkston News.

Jim's Jottings

I'm the guy who never breaks a speed limit in my car.

Hazel never observes the speed limit. I get stopped for speeding. Hazel laughs.

Isn't there a Gumperson's law there someplace?

We were driving through Webberville on a recent Sunday afternoon. We were in no particular hurry. Traffic was nil. Streets were clear, visibility good, health fine.

Heading east out of town I saw in the rear-view mirror some red and blue blinking lights coming from the grill area of a car behind me.

I knew right away he wasn't trying to pass to get to the car-ahead of me. There were no cars ahead of me.

I stopped, got out and walked back to the 2-cop police car. The passenger side said, "Would you get back in your vehicle, please?" The last time I was stopped, a hundred years ago, I got out of my car, and the state trooper ask me to get in and set a spell . . . while he wrote the ticket.

As the dark-blue-uniformed policeman walked up to my window, one of our two daughters with us said, "Get out your drivers license, registration and proof of insurance."

How did she know that's exactly what the cop would say?

As I dug out the details, Hazel, between yuks, said to the policeman, "He's still trying to figure out why you stopped him."

"How about doing 46 in a 30 mile an hour zone. He was still doing it while I was right behind him."

Still digging for paperwork I thought of reminiscing with the officer about my high school basketball days in Morrice when we used to play Webberville and they beat us all the time.

Then I reasoned such conversation might work on his dad, but would mean nothing to this smiling, friendly man of the law.

The three female family members in the car continued their chuckles and smart remarks as my 6'3" frame shrank to 3'11", and the officer waited, asking, "You're not in any hurry, are you?"

My family was no less "funny" with the officer gone. Lead foot Hazel thought it was especially funny, my getting a ticket for speeding after all the years she's urged me to drive 160 to make up for her being three hours late getting out of the house. I'm supposed to make up 45 minutes on the 3 mile trip to Lake Orion.

When this extremely nice officer came back to our car, he said, "It's a nice day and we're really nice guys, so we're not giving you a ticket. But, slow down!"

Then the blue-uniformed man added, "When you get to the next town (Fowlerville) you better observe the speed limit. Those guys in the brown suits over there aren't as nice as we are."

We crept through Fowlerville, but it didn't stop the yuks.

Letters to Editor

Carpetbaggers good sometimes

This refers to Neil Wallace's letter to the editor on March 7 regarding the possibility of someone moving into the area to run for the state house seat being vacated by Mat Dunaskiss.

In order to add credence to Neil's article, it sounds like a person has to move to the area, live here for a while, establish some seniority, then run for a political office.

My question is: How many years do you need to qualify, and did Sharron Catalo, president of the Clarkston Village Council, have enough? How much seniority did she have? Who sets this policy Neil is obviously referring to?

Mr. Wallace was probably one of those people who accused Jack Lousma (the famous astronaut) of being a carpetbagger when he moved back to his home state of Michigan to run for the U.S. Senate several years ago.

I wonder if Neil called Claude Trim a carpetbagger when he intentionally moved to Waterford in order to run for the state house seat in that community.

Well, I for one will support any candidate that offers the best credentials, is as close as possible to my personal philosophy, can do the best job possible for the state, county or district he or she wants to represent, regardless of where they come from.

That's why I have supported and will continue to support people like Jack Lousma, Sharron Catalo, Claude Trim and next year's new state rep. for the 61st District (that covers Clarkston), that great TV personality, Tom Greene. (Welcome to Clarkston, Tom.)

'If it Fitz . . .'

Recruiting in Lamaze class

Jim Fitzgerald

It is expected that large universities will soon begin hiring genetic experts to coach football and basketball. I don't know if I'll be able to stand the excitement this newest development in recruiting athletes will generate in maternity wards, doctors' offices and wombs - all to be reported in excruciating detail by the ever-jock-vigilant news media.

The stress is already bad enough. The football letter-of-intent season, just finished, drove me wild. Which college would sign Eddie Baety, a 5-11, 170-lb. wide receiver from Southwest Dekalb High School in Decatur, Georgia? How about Ryan Abraham, a 6-3, 235-lb. linebacker from North High School in Cedar Falls, Iowa?

Detroit sports pages told me about the rugged national competition to provide a college education for these and hundreds of other high school boys with no necks. University coaches said they recruited one boy at a time and expected a good crop barring last-minute weakening of thigh muscles. The boys called press conferences to announce they'd choose the college offering them the best curriculum to become playground slides, just in case they weren't drafted by a professional team.

The media rated the prospects, naming an All-American Recruit Team, and university coaches were seen sleeping in the bedroom doorways of 280-lb. linemen. Colleges were ranked according to letter-of-intent success and a climactic Free Press headline blared: "Irish win recruiting wars; U-M top 5, MSU top 10."

Eddie Baety went to Indiana and Ryan Abraham chose Iowa. When the suspense was finally over, I was suffering from nervous exhaustion and worried I wouldn't be in shape for the opening games, only seven months away.

Recruiting wars aren't limited to college coaches. High school coaches compete for junior high prospects. Sports Illustrated recently reported charges that some high school coaches use free athletic shoes to induce extra-tall 14-year-old basketball players to defect from schools near their homes to schools in distant cities. Residence requirements are thwarted by having the boy adopted by local wolves.

Obviously, the next step is genetic recruiting warfare. All coaches, from junior high school through college, will be on the lookout for women impregnated by former - or present - star football and basketball players. But it's likely that only large universities will be able to afford coaches with degrees in genealogy as well as in playground slides, and with the experience and talent required to get around NCAA regulations.

In my opinion, the most inspirational recruiting story involved Bill Frieder in 1985, when he was still coaching hoops at Michigan, and Terry Mills, now on the U-M cage team. For 90 minutes, during a Pistons game in the Silverdome, Frieder sat on the floor next to Mills - the high school player he most coveted - but didn't speak one word to him because NCAA rules forbid it.

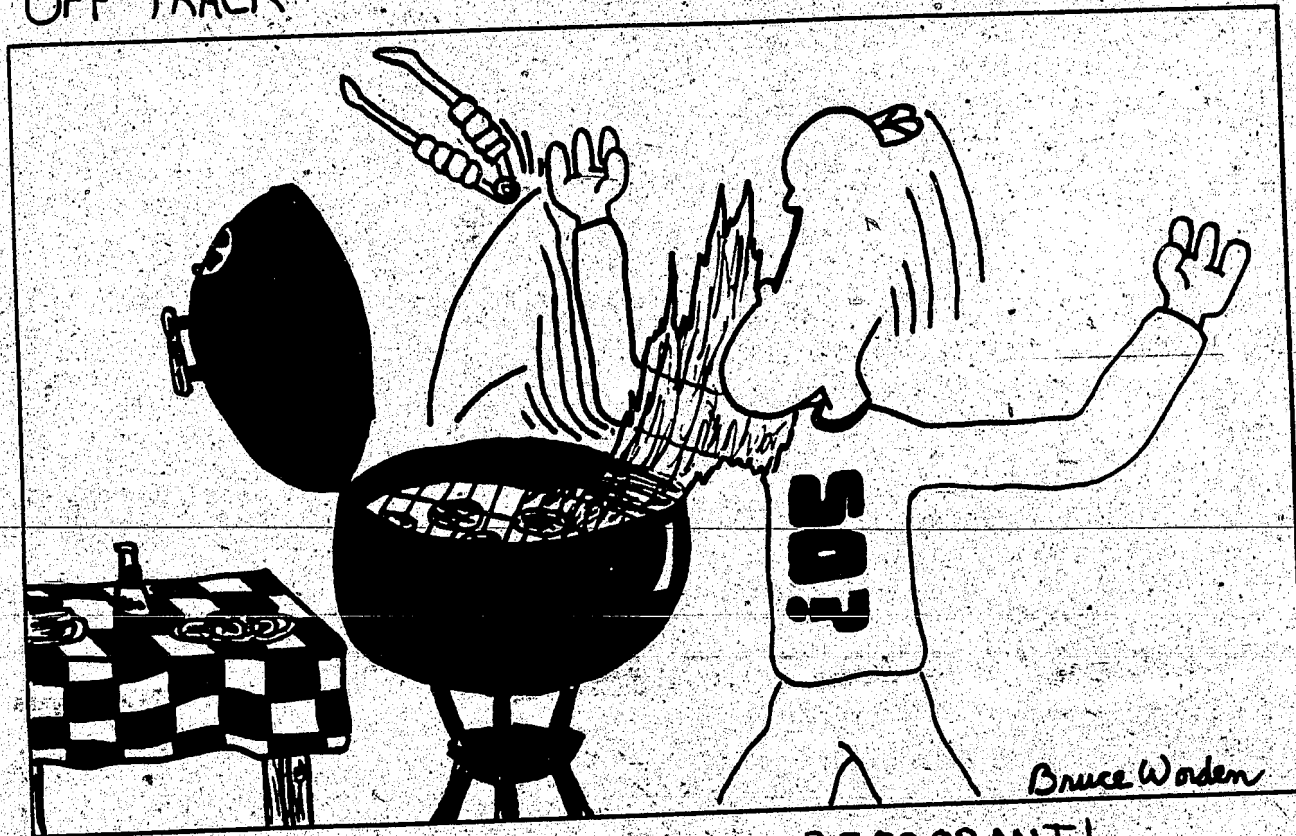

However, Frieder spoke continually to Mills' high school coach, sitting on the other side of Mills. There was no NCAA rule against Mills overhearing Frieder tell the coach that U-M had a law curriculum especially suited for students who could touch courtroom ceilings without standing up. Certainly such talk would not go over the head of Mills, then 6-10.

This type of ingenuity will be invaluable when recruiting reaches the level of the unborn athlete. Modern medicine accurately forecasts the sex and physical structure of a fetus. If Daddy was a super athlete, university coaches will be on the scene shortly after conception.

The cleverest coaches with the most resources - including free booties endorsed by Michael Jordan's infants - will make the best use of parents, obstetricians and maternity ward nurses without breaking NCAA regulations against talking to embryos with no necks.

Onward and Upward. I'm already excited about watching TV coverage of a press conference in which a letter of intent is signed with a footprint.

From This Perspective

That scorching spotlight

Tracy King

Not many junior high school students would endure the painful experience of speaking in public.

Even fewer would volunteer to deliver a formal speech in an oratorical contest to an audience of parents and judges.

Yet 10 students bravely agreed to put themselves to this test March 15 in this year's Optimist Club Oratorical Contest.

In the echoing silence of the Clarkston Junior High auditorium, with the huge podium placed disarmingly close to the rows of folding chairs, the students put weeks of practice to the test.

They had been instructed to speak on "The Dream Is Alive," for no less than four minutes and no more than five.

Interestingly, their interpretation of the topic varied from ecology to homelessness to drugs.

As I often am, I was surprised to hear these young people talk about drugs, especially with the conviction that using drugs leads to devastation.

In the suburbs of Chicago, we never heard about drugs from parents or teachers; we learned about drugs from our friends, who knew people who actually used them. The lessons we got weren't always that drugs were harmful.

The students were commended for their thoughtful topics by Optimist Club President Bruce Mercado, who admitted that his junior high oratorical speech was about football.

I wince when I think back to my own public experience. I had allowed myself to be entered in a state piano contest by my beaming parents, who transported me in my long dress to McCormick Place, the massive downtown convention center.

By the time I arrived I could barely breathe, much less play; yet my number was called, and I woodenly walked past an entire auditorium of strangers to the piano.

To the horror of my parents and long-time piano teacher, who had heard me play this piece more times than they cared to remember, I froze halfway through my piece and forgot my way.

Somehow I finished and made the long trip back to my seat, furious at everyone.

Safely seated in the audience at the Oratorical Contest, I recognized that feeling of terror in some of the presenters.

There was a difference in these students, though. They beamed when they finished, and they earned the right to do so.

Board nixes plans for Davisburg church addition

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Members of the Davisburg United Methodist Church will have to wait a little longer before construction can begin on an addition to their building on Davisburg Road.

A motion to approve site plans for the church was defeated in 3-4 vote by the Springfield Township Board March 8.

Voting yes were Clerk Calvin Walters and trustees Dennis Vallad and Margaret Bloom.

Voting against the approval were Supervisor Collin Walls, Treasurer Lois Stiles and trustees Nancy Strole and Charles Oaks.

Members who voted against the expansion of the church on Davisburg Road said the church's bid for approval was premature. Before township board consideration, the plans need approval from the Oakland County Health Department.

The township ordinance requires a health department test to prove the soil will percolate properly for septic purposes.

Christopher Romney and Frank Grocki of Chenoweth and Associates Architects, Inc., of Fenton represented the church.

"All we want to know is, do we have a project?" Grocki asked the board.

Romney said the planning commission expressed concern over the road right-of-way, and the Chenoweth firm didn't want to cause the church undue expense if the project wasn't not going to be approved.

Further, no records show where the current septic field exists, Romney said.

If the field is disrupted and then the board doesn't approve the building, the church may have the expense of repairing or putting in a new septic field, Romney said.

The usual advice given to septic field owners is: "If it works don't touch it," Romney said.

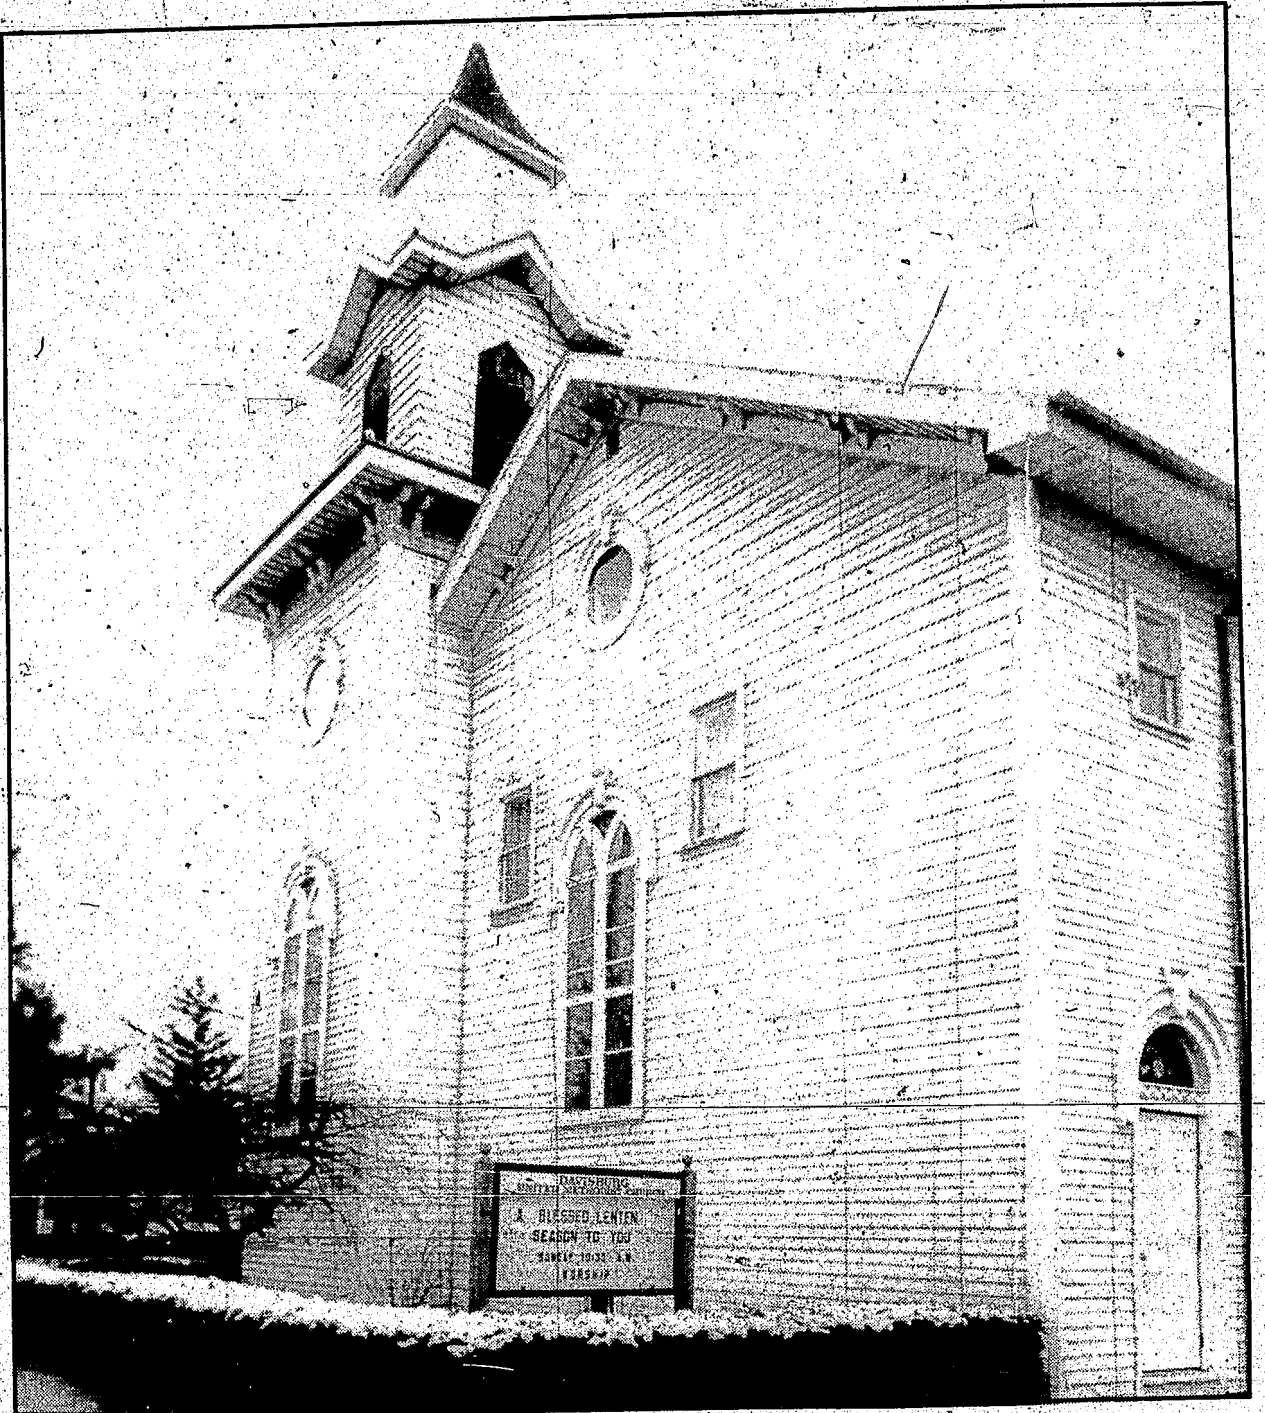

The church also stands in the road right of way on Davisburg Road, but the building, erected in the 1890s, didn't have the current building codes to conform to at the time it was constructed.

Strole said the project should not be approved before the health department gives approval.

"This is like putting the horse before the cart," she said.

"All applicants must be treated equal," Strole said. "Why are you asking us when you can't proceed before the health department approval?"

Romney and Grocki said they plan to return to the township board after the county gives approval.

MEMBERS of Davisburg United Methodist Church plan to add a new Fellowship Hall and classrooms as an addition to the structure built in the late 1800s.

Environmental honors

THESE three Clarkston Junior High eighth-grade honors science students recently received awards in a poster contest sponsored by the City of Detroit Water Treatment Facility. Earning first-place honors and a $600 savings bond was Ashley Ball (left). Awarded third place and a $400 savings bond was Sara Klopfer (middle), and honorable mention was captured by Meg Bliesath.

The theme of the contest was "The Importance of Wastewater Treatment in our Environment." The contest was open to various age levels of students throughout southeast Michigan. The posters will be on display at various locations throughout the Detroit area during the year. Last year two of the sites were the Fisher Theater and the Detroit Institute of Arts. ORATORICAL contest winners Lisa Herron, 12, and Mike Miller, 15, display their first-place medals. The March 15 oratorical contest at Clarkston Junior High School was sponsored by the Clarkston Area Optimist Club.

Top orators

Ten area junior high school students bravely delivered speeches to an audience at Clarkston Junior High School March 15.

The students spoke on the topic "The Dream is Alive," the theme for this year's Clarkston Area Optimist Club Oratorical Contest.

The speeches ranged from pollution to democracy to personal achievement to drugs to ecology.

Students were instructed to speak no more than five minutes and no less than four. They were judged on their delivery, content and overall effectiveness.

The winner of the girls' contest was Lisa Herron, a 12-year-old student at Clarkston Junior High school. The boys' contest winner was Mike Miller, 15, of Sashabaw Junior High School, who also captured first place in last year's oratorical contest.

Lisa and Mike received gold medals for their efforts and will receive a $200 savings bond donated by Optimist Club members.

The two will compete in the regional Optimist Club contest April 17 at Wayne County Community College and will compete to participate in the state oratorical contest May 19 at the Troy Hilton.

Government teacher earns students' admiration

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Jim Wenger has taught government at Clarkston High School for 23 years.

The class is required for seniors, which can set certain expectations among students, Wenger says. Yet the class and the teacher remain popular.

This fall, Wenger was named CHS teacher of the semester by the CHS National Honor Society, an honor that surprised him.

"Sure it surprised me," he says. "I know how many good teachers there are here.

"It's a challenge because this class is required of seniors; they tend to be negative on the onset."

Wenger engages his students in current events and government discussions every day. The first half of class is devoted to what he calls "monologue" where current government is discussed. The remainder of the class is set aside for lessons on government.

Although the subject matter constantly changes, Wenger admits that it's become more difficult to keep students interested.

"Kids have more apathy; they have more pulling them away, between their jobs and their social lives — it's not just giving out knowledge," he says.

With world events changing so quickly, keeping students aware also poses a challenge.

"I think it's tougher to keep up with knowledge; there is so much going on now," he says.

He gives as an example the events unfolding in Lithuania.

"It has just a surface value to them; they really can't have a historical perspective," Wenger says.

Wenger, 44, is a graduate of Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant. His wife, Sharon, is a third-grade teacher at Clarkston Elementary School; his son, Jason, is a senior at CHS and son, Matt, is in seventh grade at Clarkston Junior High. The Wengers have lived on Rattalee Lake Road in Independence Township for 15 years. Wenger attended college during the Vietnam era, which likely added to his decision to teach government, he says.

"It's sort of hit and miss, what I'm doing now," he adds.

School funding is something that concerns Wenger, especially the effect of the recent millage on those who can't afford the increase.

When asked whether the millage affects him as a teacher, Wenger answers, "Generally, you tend to take it personally. "It puts a stress on the staff; we know what it can do to a curriculum and class size."

Wenger says, looking back, he's glad he chose teaching.

"When you have bad days, you remember that you're dealing with people.

"Hopefully we're changing attitudes — it sounds corny, but it's an ideal to mold young minds," he says.

"The biggest reward to a teacher is when you have kids that appreciate what you're doing," he adds.

JAMES WENGER, a government instructor at Clarkston High School, was recently selected as teacher of the semester in a contest sponsored by the National Honor Society. Wenger engages students in conversations about current events during a portion of class each day.

Glasnost brings Soviet teacher to U.S. for birthday

A Ukrainian woman spent her 30th birthday in the United States as part of Glasnost.

Tatjana Nikolaevna Usova celebrated her "jubilee" birthday at the home of Carolyn Goyette and David Katz on Allen Road, Independence Township, March 11.

In the Ukraine, when a person reaches a new decade in his or her life, it's called a jubilee birthday, said Carolyn. Ukrainians are part of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Carolyn invited some of her neighbors in for the birthday party. Neighbors Natalie and Lou Hewko are also Ukrainian and spoke to Tatjana in her native language.

Tatjana spent the day before the celebration shopping at Birch Run, a large shopping complex off I-75 near Frankenmuth.

"We couldn't get her out of the stores," Carolyn said.

Tatjana is part of the Glasnost exchange started between former President Ronald Reagan and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev. She visited the United States from March 3 to 13 and went to Groves High School, Birmingham, with Carolyn, who is a teacher at the school.

Tatjana's a teacher in Kiev, where she lives.

"The Clown and the Baby." The clown entertains the crowd, and students are delighted to see their work come to life.

DAVISBURG QUILTERS help restore and quilt two antique quilts that were donated to the Springfield Historical Society Sunday, March 18. The quilts were donations of Springfield Township residents. The quilt pictured above was donated by Julie Ford who teaches at

SPRINGFIELD HISTORICAL Society now has 11 antique quilts displayed at the Davis House on Andersonville Road. The home of James Harvey Davis, son of Cornelius Davis and founder of Davisburg, was rescued from demolition when the historical society formed in 1973. Restoration of the home is almost complete, said Jim Jacobs, president of the historical society. The home is open for the public the fourth Sunday of every month; admission is $1. Pictured is Lorraine Studebaker of Clarkston with the Bear Claw pattern quilt donated to the Davis House by Norma Lowes of Springfield Township. (Photos by Sandra G. Conlen)

Saginaw ends Wolf fright show

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Saginaw's basketball team and fans must have thought they were watching a good horror movie Friday night.

Clarkston scared the No. 3 rated Trojans from start to finish, and the only sigh of relief came in the closing seconds as Saginaw edged the Wolves, 60-57, in Class A regional final action at Davison.

Scared might be too light of a description. After holding a slim 18-16 lead after the first quarter, the big, bad Wolves climbed out to a 36-27 lead at the half, much to the pleasure of the Clarkston fans who cheered their team onto the locker room.

Clarkston, finishing its season at 20-5, scored the last six straight points before intermission on a layup off a rebound by Reggie Reed, a nice bank shot by Jason Brown and then two free throws by Reed. The strong play of Brown and teammate Walt Wyniemo in the second quarter was especially important because Clarkston's Dugan Fife was called for his third foul only 12 seconds into the quarter and went to the bench.

"The kids played super when he was gone," said coach Dan Fife about his bench strength.

Even with the 9-point bulge at the half, coach Fife said he and his team knew the game was far from over.

Saginaw must have felt the same way at the half as the Trojans scored two quick baskets to start the third quarter, trimming Clarkston's lead to 36-31.

A basket by Saginaw's Carod Rea then tied the game at 43-43 at the 3:19 mark, and both teams went into the final quarter tied at 47-47.

Two free throws by Lamont Johnson gave the Trojans a 56-51 lead. But a running 5-foot jump shot up the middle by Dugan Fife and then two free throws by the sophomore cut Saginaw's advantage to only 56-55 with 2:47 left.

At that point the Trojans went into an effective stall, forcing Scott Treckman to foul Saginaw's Marcus Buckley at the 1:39 mark. Buckley sank both ends of the 1-and-1 to put Saginaw up by three.

After a Wolf was caught for traveling, Saginaw was ready to score on a breakaway, but a sliding Treckman knocked the ball out of bounds. Twenty seconds later, however, Buckley sank one free throw for a 59-55 Saginaw edge with 55 seconds left.

Reed then missed a 3-pointer; Saginaw missed two 1-and-1 attempts from the free throw line, and then Dugan Fife also was off on a 3-point shot.

But Saginaw's Jaime Lay sank a free throw with 20 seconds left for a 5-point lead. A basket by Clarkston's Gary Kaul then closed out the scoring.

"We had opportunities right up 'til the end to win," said coach Fife, who had mixed feelings after the game.

The Clarkston coach, of course, didn't like the loss but pointed out he was "awfully proud of his players."

Some people had considered Clarkston a huge underdog, but the Wolves' coach said his players worked hard in practice and "were not intimidated by Saginaw."

Saginaw coach Marshall Thomas said his squad had respect for the Wolves before and after the game.

"We didn't think we played that well," said Thomas, "but Clarkston had a lot to do with that. They were a problem to us. We knew we needed to up the tempo of the game in the second half."

Coach Fife agreed that the Trojans' change of tempo was one of the keys in the game. He said the second-half offensive surge by Saginaw caused Clarkston to work harder on defense, which eventually took its toll on the Wolves' strength offensively.

Reed led all scorers with 19 points; Bill Knight had 12, Fife nine, Kaul six, Treckman five, Wyniemo four and Brown two.

For Saginaw, Buckley netted 15; Jesse Drain had 14, Daniel West 12, Julian Taylor seven, Lay five, Terrance McMillan three and Derrick Smith and Kareen Hammond each with two.

Dugan Fife will be the only returning starter for Clarkston next year. He was also the only returning starter on this season's squad, a team which saw four inexperienced senior starters help take the Wolves to within four points of the quarterfinals.

Clarkston 80, Owosso 50

Clarkston bombed Owosso Wednesday night, 80-50, to reach the regional finals.

The Wolves' 9-2 quick lead was cut to 11-9, but they finished the opening quarter with an 18-11 bulge, and the Trojans never got closer than seven points from that point on.

The last two points of the quarter were scored by Bill Knight, who somehow guided the ball into the basket at the buzzer as he was falling. The 6-foot, 5-inch senior finished the game with 17 points.

The Wolves moved the ball inside at will against Owosso (8-16) and also torched the nets from the outside, building up a 40-23 lead at the half.

That lead blossomed to 61-37 at the end of the third quarter, and then Coach Dan Fife cleared the bench in the fourth.

Dugan Fife led all scorers with 28 points, including four 3-pointers. Knight and Reggie Reed each had 17 points, with Reed sinking two from the 3-point range. Jason Brown and Kellie O'Neill each had four. Ben O'Rourke, Scott Treckman, Gary Kaul, Chris Waslik and Walt Wyniemo all scored two.

John Hetfield paced the Trojans with 25 points; Jason Jonego had 11, Chris Haas six, Jeff Hogg four and Brian Ott and Scott Hildebrandt both with two.

Swinging from the Heels

A victory in overachieving

Clarkston's basketball players dropped their chins and walked slowly to the locker room, seconds after a 60-57 loss to Saginaw in the basketball regional finals Friday.

Almost all of the Wolves were inside the locker room as the Trojans were about to start receiving their regional medals in the post-game ceremony.

Clarkston coach Dan Fife, as disappointed as his players about the close loss, was still on the court waiting for the ceremony to begin. He sent word to his players to leave the locker room and come back on the Davison High School court.

The Wolves trickled out and watched the joyous Trojans and then they headed back to the locker room, the same locker room they had briskly entered at halftime with a 9-point lead.

Fife's last request of his 1989-90 team showed a lot of class. He knows that the post-game ceremony is a perfect blend of what much of sports is all about, winning and losing.

And then after his players had watched a happy Jesse Drain, Marcus Buckley & company pick up their medals, the coach and his team finally entered the locker room together.

The players didn't look or feel much better as they gathered around for a final talk. Assistant coach Tim Kaul told the players that he will miss coaching them, especially since he knew most of them for several years.

Coach Fife reminded his players that they worked as hard as any Clarkston team in the past and called them a group of overachievers.

"Overachievers."

That word is probably the best compliment a coach can give to his players.

After all, a team that might win the state championship still could possibly just slide by with extreme talent and not be overachievers.

In other words, Fife and Kaul were telling their players they had no reason to drop their chins. They had been the underdogs, huge underdogs according to many people, and played even (and at times better) with the state's No. 3 rated team.

And besides, how many teams in the state can say they finished 20-5?

I am new to Clarkston, so I only saw the Wolves play three times before the regional finals. In the district championship and the opening regional victory over Owosso, it was easy for me to see that the game against Saginaw was going to be a close one. One thing I knew for sure, it was going to take a tough team to beat Clarkston.

The basketball team was my first impression of Clarkston sports. I told myself after seeing the first basketball game that if all of the other teams play the same way or even close to the way the boys' hoopsters play, the Wolves have nothing to worry about, only their opponents do.

The basketball team had much talent, especially a nice shooting touch from the outside. But what impressed me the most was the poise of the players.

And then to top it all, I didn't find out until the game against Owosso that the Wolves were a team with only one returning starter, sophomore Dugan Fife.

It was hard to believe that Bill Knight, Reggie Reed, Gary Kaul and Scott Treckman didn't start the year before because they played with nerves of steel. That also goes for Walt Wyniemko and Jason Brown off the bench.

And last but not least, the rest of the players on the team. Coaches often say that a team is only as good as its second and third string. It was easy to see that everyone on this Wolf team pushed each other in practice, resulting in peak performance on game day.

During coach Fife's last talk, he also pointed out that, no doubt, many junior high or elementary players will remember the success of this year's varsity team. They'll continue to be shooting in the gym or in their driveways, imagining they will be making a 3-pointer like Reggie Reed or grabbing a rebound like Bill Knight and they, too, will hear the cheers from the crowd.

And their chins will be up.

CLARKSTON'S FAITHFUL fans followed the Wolves at both the district in Lapeer and the regionals in Davison.

Wolf thinclads run with tradition

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston's 1990 editions of the boys and girls' track teams hope to continue their rich traditions.

Last year the boys were co-champions of the Greater Oakland Activities League. They have only lost two dual meets in the past two years.

The girls were league champs last year and support a 24-0-1 league record the past five years. The girls also won two events (the mile and 4 x 800 relay) in the 1989 state championship.

BOYS

Head varsity coach Walt Wyniemko says the strength of his team lies in the middle distance and distance events. The Wolves won the league's cross-country championship for the first time and most of those runners will be smoothly changing from harriers to thinclads.

Running in the distance events will be Jason Wenger, Kellie O'Neil, Jim Haviland, Paul Brisson and Todd Wozniak. In middle distance the Wolves will be counting on John King, Joel Davis and Chris Figa.

According to Wyniemko, others to watch will be Dane Davis, Brett Kinzler, Jason Kinzler, Al Manser and Joe Webb (sprints and hurdles); Wally Wyniemko, Paul Krause and Gordon Garwood (shot put and discus); Ron Gibson and Mark Leineke (pole vault); Lance Lewis and Dan Griffiths (high jump).

Coach Wyniemko said he won't know about any surprise performances by team members until the meets begin, but he does know that other teams in the league will be after the Wolves.

"We're co-champs so people will want a part of us," said Wyniemko. "The league is very competitive. If we want part of the crown again, we'll have to work for it."

Wyniemko expects co-champion Pontiac Northern to once again be one of the teams to beat in league competition.

He says "numbers are hurting a little" on the boys' team because of the school's pay-to-play requirement, but he still expects his team to be strong.

"Our strength has to be with our seniors and we have some young people expected to help," said the coach. "We have some good athletes on this team and there has been a lot of enthusiasm in practice."

Wyniemko says the goal for every team member is self-improvement.

He concluded, "Our goal is to get better each week, to perform the best that you can."

GIRLS

The girls' track team lost all-state miler Nicole Chinavare to graduation and the University of Michigan, but returning will be three-quarters of an all-state relay team and a school record holder in the 800 meter run.

Sonya Schaffer, Jenny Mahler and Carrie Roeser return after their state championship in the 3200 meter relay and Schaffer will also hope to improve on her school record in the 800.

Head coach Gordie Richardson says Lisa Palazzola could be the runner to complete the missing piece of the 3200 relay puzzle.

Richardson said others to watch out for will be Michelle Fletcher (sprints), Celeste Steinhelper (400 high hurdles) and Jennifer Boggs and Stacey Secatch (shot put and discus).

Richardson said with only 23 athletes on the team (he said three or four girls probably didn't return because of the pay-to-play requirement), there isn't much depth.

"But the ones we do have are pretty good," smiles Richardson. "I've been pleased with the condition of the seniors. All the upperclassmen understand the need to work hard."

The coach is also glad to see seven freshmen out for the team.

Richardson expects Pontiac Northern to once again be tough and he also expects Lake Orion to be stronger because of a large turnout of freshmen last year.

No doubt, the Huskies, Dragons and the rest of the Greater Oakland Activities League will be trying to finally knock the champion Wolves off their throne.

This caddie will drive to MSU

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Caddie David Coin has received many cash tips from golfers, but his biggest tip came recently from the late Chick Evans.

The senior at Clarkston High School is the recipient of an Evans Scholarship, a scholarship that covers full tuition and housing for four years and has an estimated value in excess of $20,000.

Coin, who has a 3.5 grade point average, will be attending Michigan State University, East Lansing, next fall, majoring in finance and economics. He will live at the Evans Chapter House at MSU with other Evans Scholarship recipients.

Coin, a caddie at Forest Lake Country Club, is one of 15 1990 scholarship winners that will attend MSU in the fall. Seventeen will be starting at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, and 219 men and women received scholarships from around the United States.

Financial support for the Evans Scholars Foundation comes from the contributions of more than 100,000 golfers, making it the largest financed scholarship operation in the country.

The scholarship is awarded on academic ability, financial need, being a caddie and recommendations. Coin was recommended by his school principal, caddie superintendent and president of the Forest Lake Country Club. He also was interviewed by the Evans Scholarship Board.

David Coin

Winners of the scholarships have to be caddies but do not have to be golfers. Coin, however, excels at both helping other golfers line up their putts and lining up his own. He shoots in the low 40s or high 30s and has been a member of the Wolves varsity golf team for three years. He plans to try out for the Spartan golf team.

His Clarkston High School coach, Jim Chamberlain, admires Coin for both his athletic skill and personality.

"He's a hard-working young man and a good student. He played in the spirit of competition and always gave it his all. He also made a lot of friends with other players in the league," said Chamberlain.

Coin will continue to caddie at Forest Lake CC in the summer. Coin, who calls the movie "Caddyshack" one of his "all-time favorites," explained his favorite and least favorite things about being a caddie.

"The best thing is the money," said Coin, whose best tip was $120 from golfer Wayne Boyd at the Bill Laimbeer golf tournament which benefited muscular dystrophy. "If they play good, they pay good," continued Coin, who pointed out he once got a nice tip after witnessing a hole-in-one.

"The worst thing about caddying is some of the people you caddie for," he says without giving any names.

Coin also commented on one other facet of caddying that can be a disadvantage for a teen-ager in the summertime.

"Just getting up early isn't that great," said Coin.

Coin should have no problems getting up for those 9 a.m. classes at MSU. And thanks to the Evans Scholarship, he will have no problems paying for them.

DAVID Coin has a smooth putting stroke and helps others line up putts as a caddie.

FINANCIAL ADVICE

James R. Filak, C.P.A.

REDUCE YOUR CONSUMER DEBT

Several years ago Uncle Sam encouraged us to buy on credit and stay in debt. All interest expense was tax deductible. In those good-old days, the after-tax cost of paying 18 percent interest was only 9 percent for taxpayer in the top tax bracket. No wonder many of us rang up heavy amounts of consumer debt for such things as autos, student loans, and unpaid credit card balances.

Those good old days are over. In 1990, only 10 percent of consumer interest expense is deductible. If you're in the top tax bracket (33 percent) and you have a credit card that charges 18 percent interest, the after-tax interest cost is a full 17.4 percent. Starting in 1991, the tax deduction for consumer interest is eliminated completely.

Isn't now a good time to reduce your consumer debt? You could pay off consumer debt with a home-equity loan (where available), a better tax deal since the interest on home-equity debt up to $100,000 is still tax-deductible. But be careful. You're adding a new mortgage to your home, and if you can't pay back the loan, you could lose your home.

A suggestion on how to eliminate credit card debt: Each month pay off a bit more than your credit card balance increased that month through purchases and interest charges. Your goal should be to eventually pay off each month's new balance in full before interest is charged. If you have money in a savings or money market account earning less than the interest you're paying on consumer debt, use that money to pay off your loan or credit card balance. It's the equivalent of earning the interest rate difference on your money. For example, if you use money in a 5 percent savings account to pay off and 18 percent car loan, you're earning 13 percent more on your money.

Sentenced for peeping

BY RENEE GLOVINSKY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A 37-year-old Union Lake resident was sentenced to one year of probation with the Oakland County Probation Office on Monday, March 16.

Magistrate John Rowland, who sentenced Robert Webster at the 52nd District Court, Independence Township, said the punishment was appropriate.

"The other option was to sentence him to a 90-day jail term," Rowland said. "But after the 90 days we would have no more control over him. This one-year probation goes beyond what might have been considered a harsh sentence."

Edie Rosaen of Plum Street, two-time victim of peeping Tom incidents, brought charges against Webster and was dissatisfied with the sentence.

"One year of probation is nothing," she said. "It's known that nothing will be done to him but a slap on the hand. I wanted him to get 90 days."

Rosaen had also been victimized last August by another peeping Tom who actually entered her house. The man was then charged for the crime.

This time, the peeping Tom only watched her sleep through her bedroom window.

"I put my house up for sale after the first incident," said Rosaen. "And after the second incident it forced me not to sleep there."

With the 12-month probation period, Webster was charged $150 for fines and costs, $350 for probation fees, which will be divided up monthly, and he must have no contact with the complainant, nor is his presence allowed on Plum Street. In addition, he must attend psychiatric counseling on a regular basis.

This type of crime is considered to be a misdemeanor by Michigan law. Rosaen wants that changed.

"These men have violated my life with no regard to what they've done," she said. "I want to see the penalty changed and made part of a platform. I definitely don't want them to be able to walk away with only one year probation."

QUESTION: Do you have any suggestions on how much a home should be lighted when being shown to a prospective buyer?

ANSWER: In my opinion — the brighter the better! Give the prospect the best image you can of the comfort, beauty and livability you are offering. In other words, you want to sell a home not a house. And full illumination is the best way to give your home the "lived-in" look. Furniture, rugs and fixtures take on a warm glow from the proper lighting. Kitchens should always be bright, turn on lights in all rooms and especially in closets and storage rooms. The brighter — the better.

Opinion of Bill Myers

Boiled down tax info

William A. Myers is a retired Lapeer County editor and investments manager from Boca Raton, Fla.

Taxed income 15% rate up to $18,550 for singles and $39,950 for joint returns.

Beyond above figures, 28% tax rate, UNTIL incomes reach $44,900 for singles and $74,850 for couples. THEN a 5% surtax sets in and applies until single income hits $93,130, and joint income hits $155,320.

Get that high and you fall back to 28%.

Capital gains are taxed at 28%.

Personal exemptions, $2,000 apiece including dependents.

Standard deduction: $5,200 for joint returns, $3,300 for singles. With these deductions you no longer itemize charitable gifts.

Unearned income of children. Under 14, up to $500, no tax. Over $500 taxed at parents' top bracket. At 14, all income for the year, taxed at child's own rates.

Social Security: For a couple is taxed on half of benefits if income (including tax-free bonds) tops $32,000. For a single, tax sets in after $25,000.

Between 65 and 70, if you're working, your pay beyond allowable limit of $8,880 your Social Security will be cut by $1 for each $3 earned in those 5 years. After 70, no deductions, no matter how much you earn.

Deductions: You can deduct from income all interest paid on your home mortgage. Other loans, such as auto and credit cards, deduct only 20%.

If you borrow to invest, you can deduct up to amount of investment income.

Gifts to charities, up to 50% of income.

Taxes: Real estate, personal property and state income taxes. Sales taxes and use taxes, license plates -- sorry, no deduction.

Medical: Only that unreimbursed amount over 7 1/2% income.

Miscellaneous: Only amounts over 2% of income for such as tax preparation fees, safe deposit box, investment help, periodicals, home office.

Passive losses: On such things as limited partnerships, rental real estate where you take no active part -- limited to 20% of the losses.

IRA accounts: If you aren't under a qualified retirement plan -- $2,000 may be contributed to IRA plan, and $2,250 for a couple, regardless of whether spouse works.

If under a retirement plan, then maximum deductible

IRA amounts ($2,000 and $2,250) are limited to those with taxable incomes under $40,000 (couples) and $25,000 singles. The deductions phase down to zero over the next $10,000 of above income limits.

If you still want to chip in $2,000 into an IRA, income can accumulate tax-free, even though not deducted when deposited.

All this stuff about income tax is boiled down from 56 pages of official instructions from Washington.

Goodrich man charged with assaulting deputy

BY RENEE GLOVINSKY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A 53-year-old Goodrich resident was charged with assault with intent to commit murder when he allegedly tried to strangle an Oakland County Sheriff's Deputy Friday, March 16.

David Bruce Herweyer was charged March 17 on two additional counts as well: resisting and obstructing a police officer and assault, said Oakland County Sgt. Clay Janson.

Herweyer remains in Oakland County Jail with a $250,000 cash bond. A preliminary examination will be held on March 29.

About 11 p.m. Friday, Oakland County deputies Dennis Finney and Robert Osborne answered a call to investigate the parking lot of Annie Macphee Food & Spirits on Ortonville Road, Brandon Township. When they arrived, they found Herweyer slumped over his steering wheel, according to the police report.

Osborne tried to assist Herweyer, who allegedly grabbed the deputy's arm in a violent manner, said Janson. Herweyer was then arrested for assault, handcuffed and put into Finney's car.

During the transport to the station, Herweyer reportedly kicked Finney's head and pushed his neck against the steering wheel, allowing very little air passage. While choking, Finney was able to stop the car and radio for help, said Janson.

A rescue team was on the scene immediately at the M-15 and I-75 overpass in Independence Township.

Finney is on a leave of absence and is receiving treatment for a possible fractured arm.

FRANK Butler (Scott Taylor), Annie Oakley (Rebecca Abdo) and the rest of the cast of "Annie Get Your Gun" will continue to entertain the audiences this weekend at Clarkston High School. For ticket information call 625-0900. (Photo by James Gibowski)

Wildlife artist's work featured in weekend show

BY RENEE GLOVINSKY
Clarkston News staff Writer

A snowy white owl sits perched on a stump in the green meadow. Her wide, golden eyes follow the observer.

This may sound like a bird-watcher's experience on a cold winter day in an area park, but it can also describe the feeling one gets when he studies a realistic painting created by Independence Township artist Russell Cobane.

Cobane, who has discovered the secret of bringing nature to canvas, says it wasn't easy.

"I experimented with several different paints as well as canvases to find out what worked best for me," he says.

Cobane hasn't always been portraying wildlife. His career began as a commercial artist in Detroit. He has remained in the commercial art business, although he now freelances for major companies including Sears, Sunkist and the Mead Co.

Cobane is in the process of designing the fall line for Mead. Folders and notebooks will have colorful flame-spitting, sportscars, which he is currently working on his studio-basement.

Born and raised in Garden City, he has lived on Allen Road for 12 years with his wife, Margaret, and daughter, Kelly.

His 10-acre ranch home is surrounded by trees, a large pond, ducks, birds and any other species that a wildlife artist may need to refer to.

He and Margaret often take walks on their property looking for new ideas and new creatures lurking about.

The artist, who is also a photographer, takes thousands of pictures each year -- all that may someday become one of his painted works of art.

"Painting allows me to be more creative than photography does," said Russell. "I can add something that a photo doesn't show, or I can take images away."

No matter what changes are made, they must be realistic and believable because, according to Cobane, his buyers expect his paintings to show them things they may never get to experience.

In order to learn every detail about the species that he draws, Cobane and his wife spend many hours watching and studying various species. They both are avid bird-watchers and belong to the National Audubon Society.

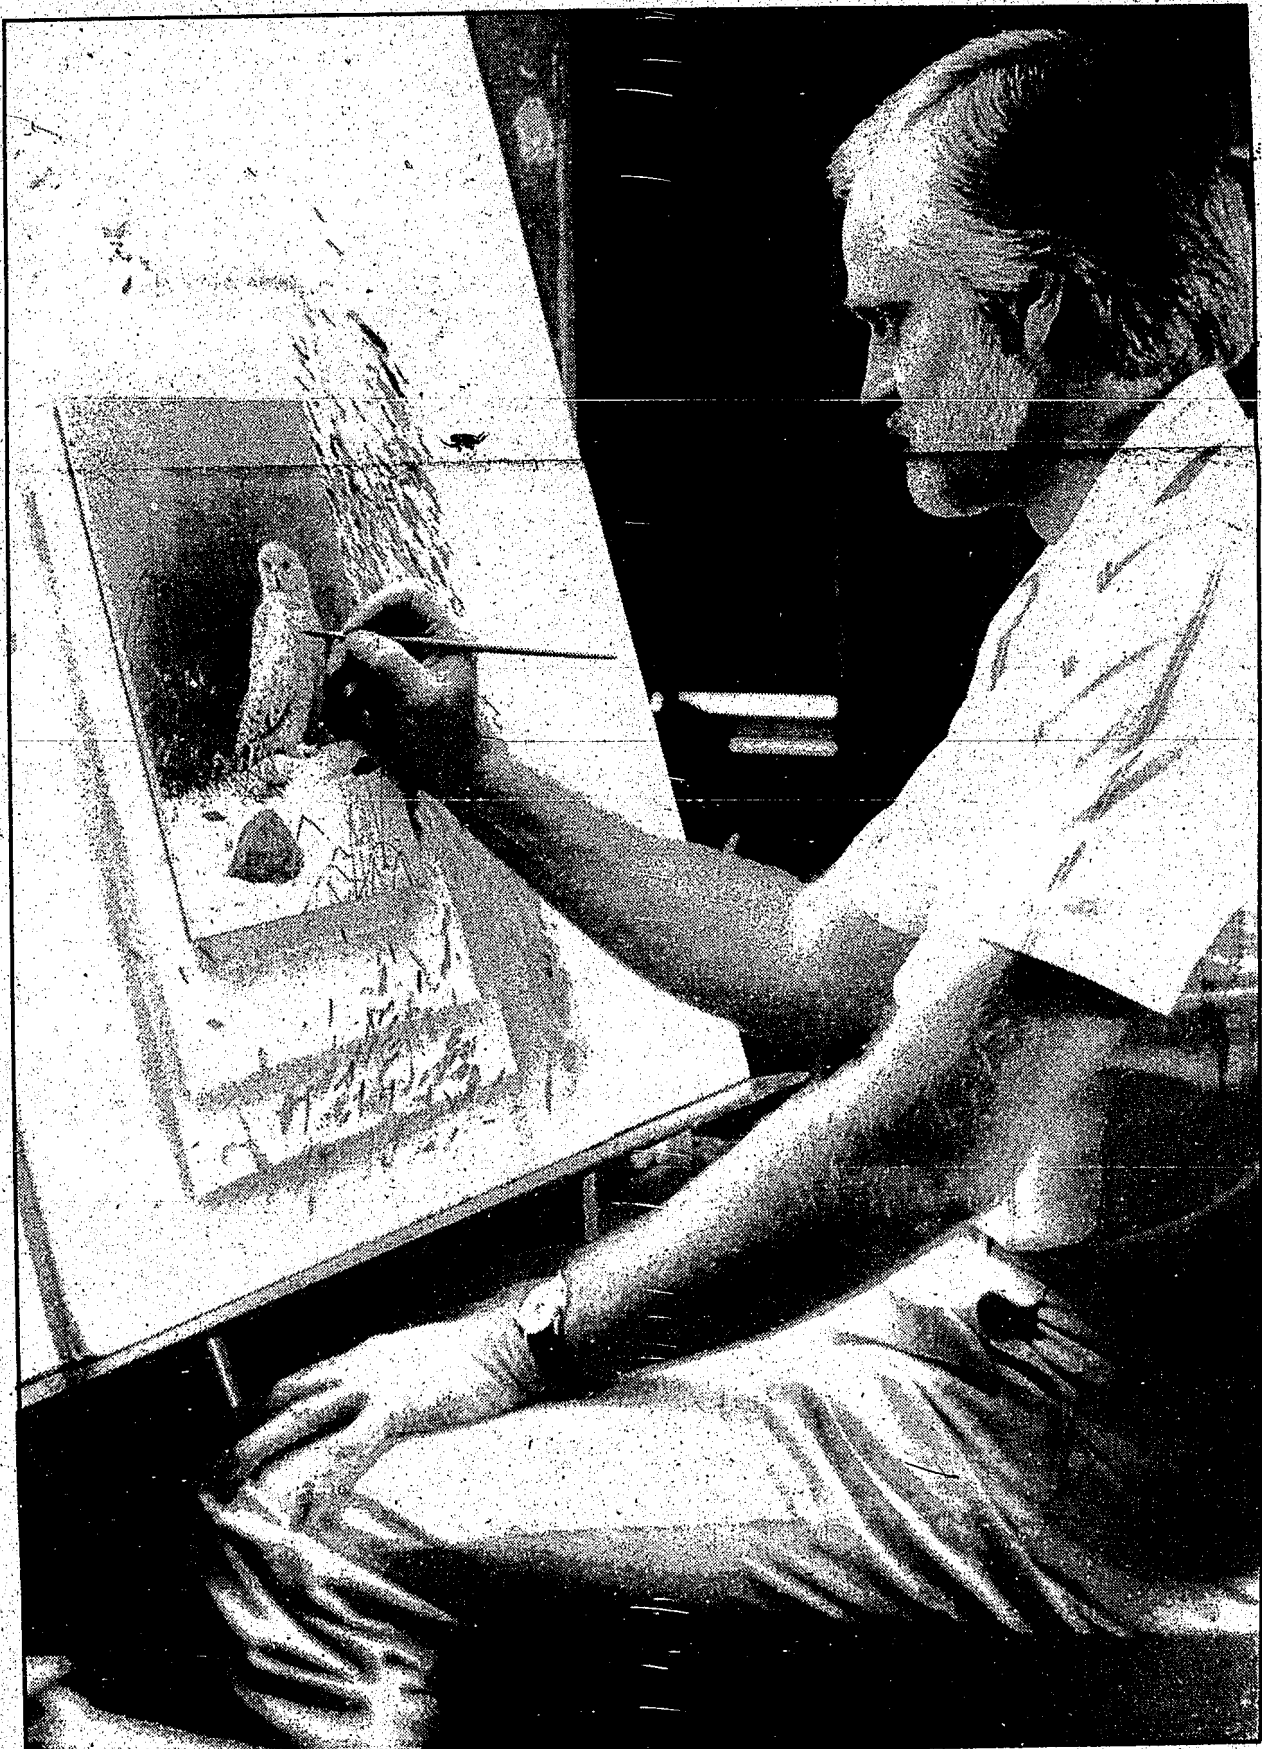

"You can't paint a bird correctly without studying one," says Cobane.

With detailing every specie, the natural habitat is also a major concern for Cobane.

"I spend more time being accurate with the detail of the habitat," Cobane said. "I keep it realistic to Michigan."

Although most of the scenes take place in Michigan, Cobane has a widespread following outside the area including Ohio, Chicago and New York.

For those interested in seeing Cobane's photo-realistic portraits, he will be displaying them at the 1990 Wildlife Habitat Art Show at the Southfield Civic Center, Friday, March 23, through Sunday, March 25.

Township artist featured in show

Another wildlife exhibit? Not exactly.

Featured artist Russell Cobane has been selected to exhibit his painting of the female snowy owl, entitled "Snowy Mist," at the 1990 Wildlife Habitat Art Show at the Southfield Civic Center Friday, Saturday and Sunday, March 23-25.

Sponsored by the Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation, Cobane's work will be the festival show print for 1990.

A $150 contribution to the foundation enrolls a person to become a sponsor of the Federation and also entitles him to a signed and limited edition print of "Snowy Mist." Two tickets to the opening night festival are also included.

Proceeds for the print as well as from other art sales at the show will benefit Michigan wildlife.

In addition to being this year's featured artist, Cobane has received other honors, including the Michigan Duck Stamp competition in 1986 and the Michigan Trout Stamp competition in 1988. In 1986 and in 1989 he was named Print Artist of the Year by the National Wildlife Federation.

The Southfield Civic center is located at 26000 Evergreen Road. Hours are 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday, March 23; 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, March 24; and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, March 25. For more information, call the Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation at 517-882-3630.

Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for seniors 60 and over and students; and children 5 and under are free.

RUSSELL Cobane will be the featured artist at the 1990 Wildlife Habitat Art Show in Southfield sponsored by the Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation. The work that will be featured is a female Snowy owl, entitled "Snowy Mist."

The Garden Patch

Lawns that went into winter in less than topnotch shape are good candidates for serious crabgrass problems this year.

Paul Rieke, turfgrass specialist at Michigan State University, East Lansing, says the potential for crabgrass problems in Michigan lawns has been building over the past two years.

In both years, unusually hot, dry weather in the spring prevented the typical flush of growth that thickens lawns and shades out crabgrass seeds, which require light to germinate.

Last year, when the rains finally came in mid-July, crabgrass germinated and flourished in lawns weakened and thinned by two years of such weather.

This year, the seeds from last year's plants are lying there now, waiting for the right combination of light, moisture and temperature to germinate and begin this year's takeover.

"This is essentially what happened last summer," Rieke says. "The rain in July wasn't enough to revive the dormant cool-season grasses in lawns, but it was enough to cause the crabgrass seeds to germinate."

Homeowners thought it was great when their lawns turned green virtually overnight, but much of that growth was crabgrass, which grew aggressively and filled within the spaces between the more desirable grass plants.

When the crabgrass died out in the fall, it left a very sparse stand of the the desired grasses and plenty of seeds for crabgrass problems again this year.

A dense turf is the best crabgrass defense, Rieke points out.

Homeowners who renovated devastated lawns or applied a complete fertilizer in the fall may be able to get by without applying pre-emergence crabgrass controls this spring.

Those who neglected fall lawn care will need to put some effort into achieving a quality lawn this year.

The first step is to fertilize twice this spring to encourage the desired lawn grasses to grow and thicken so there is no place for the crabgrass to germinate.

Rieke advises applying fertilizer to provide about one pound of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet in early to mid-April and again in early May.

If dry weather occurs in the spring, water the turf to foster growth.

In lawns where crabgrass was a problem in past years, apply pre-emergence crabgrass control about the time forsythia begins to bloom. This is especially important if the turf is still somewhat thin.

If rain doesn't provide a half-inch of water, irrigate to wash the herbicide down to the soil where the crabgrass seed is located.

The Other Side of Things

Celebrations and remembrances

Ashley Ball

Now that we've celebrated St. Patrick's Day, it's on to the Easter Bunny! But of course, Easter is not one of those holidays you celebrate like you do the Fourth of July. Easter is more like Pearl Harbor Day ... you just observe it. And so it is with many other traditional days of remembrance.

So how do you know which holidays to celebrate and which to observe? I asked Mr. Bihl (who teaches gifted classes at CJHS and SJHS) about this. He was very helpful. He said the guidelines are simple. Holidays that fall in months that start with consonants are celebrated. Holidays that fall in months that start with vowels are observed. That certainly makes sense.

Consider my own favorite holiday — July 14. July is a good time of the year to celebrate. But July 14 is not a holiday that is generally celebrated in this country. In fact, I guess you could say it's never celebrated in this country. That's probably because it's a French holiday.

I'm talking about Bastille Day.

If you don't understand the full significance of Bastille Day, let me bring you up to date. Two hundred one years ago, on July 14, 1789, just 13 years after the colonists said "na-ny-na-ny-boo-boo" to Great Britain on July 4, 1776, the French people, impressed with how successfully the colonists had usurped the British king's authority, said something similar to Louis XVII.

Not only did they sass Louis, they also stormed the Bastille where he kept thousands of French people imprisoned just because they didn't like him or his castle. Some felt he had overbuilt.

To this day, the French celebrate this significant storming date as Bastille day: the day the French won their independence. And, with secret admiration for anyone over the age of three who has the courage to say na-ny-na-ny-boo-boo to anybody, I, too, join in this celebration every year with a little French picnic of my own: some cheese, a crusty loaf of bread, and a few friends from Miss Bailey's Spanish class. Together, we raise our glasses of contaminated Perrier water and cheer in unison, if not in French, "Let them eat brie!"

Business Briefs

Chamber president earns area award

Brenda Orlando of Independence Township is one of three area business people who will be recognized with the 1990 Pontiac Area Achievers Award.

The award, first presented in 1988, recognizes small- to medium-business owners or professionals who are achievers in community service and their careers.

Orlando is a practicing certified public accountant in Independence Township and also serves as the president of the Clarkston Chamber of Commerce.

The awards are to be presented at the awards luncheon scheduled for Wednesday, March 28, noon to 1:15 p.m. at Mitch's II on M-59.

Tickets are available by calling 338-0035 or 674-0415.

Proceeds from the luncheon benefits the Clinton Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Top evaluation

North Oaks Animal Clinic on M-15, Independence Township, has successfully passed a comprehensive evaluation by the American Animal Hospital Association (AAHA).

The evaluation includes a quality assessment review of the clinic's facility, medical equipment, practice methods and pet health care management.

Less than 14 percent of the small animal veterinary facilities in the United States are hospital members of the association. In order to maintain its re-certification status, North Oaks Animal Clinic must continue to be evaluated regularly by the association.

North Oaks Animal Clinic has been a hospital member of the AAHA since 1981.

Entries taken for national Navy Memorial Log

Americans who served in the Navy or who are serving it now may want to enroll in the Navy Memorial Log — which is also a good gift idea for a family member or friend.

The Log is to be housed in a visitors center that opens later this year next to the U.S. Navy Memorial in Washington, D.C. A minimum $25 tax-deductible donation is required to enroll a name in the Log, and the Memorial will acknowledge each enrollment with a special card for presentation to the person being honored.

The Navy Memorial Log is a computerized repository of names that have been entered by individuals themselves, in memory of shipmates or relatives or as commemorative gifts.

The Log will be on continuous display at the Visitor's Center; each entry will show an individual's name, highest rank or rate held, dates of service and date and place of birth. The Log already holds more than 140,000 names.

If contributions are sent by June 8, greeting card acknowledgments and Log registration forms will be sent in time for Father's Day.

Send check or money order payable to U.S. Navy Memorial Foundation, Box 12728, Arlington, Va. 22209-8728.

Popular folk singer to perform in Independence

FOLK SINGER Bill Staines

New England native Bill Staines is on stage at 8 p.m. Friday, March 23, in this week's Possum Corner Coffee-house series at the Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church, Maybee Road, Independence Township.

For more than 15 years, Staines has traveled back and forth across North America, singing his songs and delighting audiences at festivals, folksong societies, colleges, concerts, clubs and coffeehouses.

In the 1960s, Staines was a popular folk singer in the Boston area, singing mostly his own songs.

Interspersed between original songs, Bill also includes songs ranging from traditional folk tunes to more contemporary country ballads and delights in having the audience participate in many of the numbers.

He may even do a yodeling tune or two — having one the National Yodeling Championship in 1975 at the Kerrville Folk Festival in Kerrville, Texas.

Staines has recorded 11 albums, eight of which are still in print. His radio and television shows have included shows for PBS, as well as local programming in cities along his concert tour route.

He has been heard frequently on Minnesota Public Radio's "A Prairie Home Companion."

Tickets — available at all Ticketmaster outlets and The Book Place in Lake Orion — are $7 for adults, $5 for senior citizens and children between ages 6 and 15, free for children age 5 and under.

Pet of the Week

BONES' COLOR is black and tan, and she's ready to find a home.

Bones gains weight

Bones got her name because she was so thin when she was picked up as a stray. But she gained weight and is ready for a new home.

She's 13 weeks old and will grow to be a medium-size dog — about 40 pounds as an adult.

Bones, a shepherd mix dog, likes other dogs and cats — and children, too.

She's not spayed yet and will need to return to the shelter for the procedure when she's 6 months old. The $55 adoption fee includes spaying costs.

Bones can be seen at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The Last of Winter's Snow

By Gloria Bellairs
The snow is bright
The sun is warm
The lambs do frolic so
The ewes and lambs cast shadows long as up the hill they go to gambol in the last of winters snow.

Through the Eye of a Ewe

By Gloria Bellairs
There's contentment inside
There's a gentleness, softness
That seems to abide. Her lamb nuzzles up and she nickers so low. 'Tis the sound of her love and the lamb knows it so. Would that we in our humanness such a noise made and the world could hear and that gentleness know.

Gloria Bellairs, a Springfield Township resident, wrote the above poems Feb. 28, 1990.

Adult Super Saturday

Have fun and learn something new on Super Saturday for Adults this April 7.

The day is a Clarkston Community Education program that has met with success in the past.

Because of its popularity, Community Education is sponsoring even more course choices than before, offering something for everyone.

Some of the highlights include: How to have a Sellout Garage Sale, Making Designer Jewelry, Mini-Quilt Sampler, Heirloom Easter Basket, and a special presentation on Getting and Maintaining a Collection of Baseball Cards or Comic Books.

These classes will be held at the Community Education Center, 5275 Maybee Road, at various times throughout the day on April 7.

Class size is strictly limited, so pre-registration is required. For more information, call 674-0993.

College test workshops

Clarkston Community Education is sponsoring a workshop for high school juniors to help them prepare for their ACT test.

Karen Davison is to present a three-hour workshop 6-9 p.m. Thursday, May 10; and Profiles Corp. is to present a six-hour workshop 6-9 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, May 7 and 8.

In addition, juniors and seniors can register for a study techniques workshop designed for college-bound students. The workshop provides an opportunity to learn methods to improve time management and study habits before starting college or trade school.

The study skills workshop is set for 6-9 p.m. Wednesday, April 4.

To register, call community education at 674-3141.

IN KINDERGARTEN, pupils earn "wheelies" if someone else reads to them, and they may also earn the reward if they read by themselves. Teacher Josephine Vaara reads a Ukrainian fairy tale to her afternoon class on Friday, March 16.

North Sashabaw pupils in gear for Reading Rally

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Pupils at North Sashabaw Elementary School have been earning lots of "wheelies" lately.

DAVID Elert concentrates on his reading material during the Read-In March 16 at North Sashabaw Elementary School.

The Reading Rally at the school began in March, which is designated as reading month statewide.

Whenever children read for 20 minutes (or are read

"Everything you do you have to read. We want children to read for enjoyment, too."

to — in the case of younger children), parents may sign a wheelie coupon for the child to take to school.

The coupons, in the shape of wheels, are then pasted to a child's construction-paper car outside the classroom for all to see.

Each Friday, the school holds a "read-in," where everyone in the school, from the principal to the custodian to the pupils, read. Children can earn wheelies at the read-in, too.

Plus, the children participate in special activities. For instance, March 9, the kids received a "driver's license." March 16 the kids received a bookmark. A special surprise is set for March 23, and the whole program culminating with a Pit Stop Party March 30, which includes ice cream sundaes for every participant and award certificates.

The top three readers in each class win a book.

"We're just doing this to promote outside reading," said Pat Smith, a first-grade teacher at North Sashabaw, who helped organize the event.

It's a way children and their parents can spend time together, and it's a way to get children to read merely for pleasure, rather than only reading for information, she said, adding that children are allowed to bring in snacks to make the read-in even more enjoyable.

Reading is important, she said.

"Everything you do you have to read," said Smith.

"We want children to read for enjoyment, too." The event was sponsored by the Parent Teacher Organization, which funded the the sundae party.
