PARENTS and their children patiently line up behind a garden hose marking the boundary of the Easter egg hunt at Sashabaw Presbyterian Church Saturday, April 14. When the Rev. Bill Schram blows the whistle, the children are allowed to scramble for eggs and candy, strewn about the grounds of the church on Maybee Road, Independence Township. The "Easter Chicken" made an appearance at the egg hunt, much to the delight of the children. The egg hunt was divided into categories for children of all ages.

800 mailed, but some without census

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Lots of Independence Township residents still have not received their forms from the U.S. Census Bureau, but another 800-900 were mailed out Saturday, April 14, said Bill Crystler, district office manager in Rochester.

"Even with the best efforts made, we still may have missed some folks."

Bill Crystler

"This is a normal process we go through," said Crystler, adding that many of the missing forms were from the Clarkston area.

Each census year, it takes a few extra weeks to verify addresses with the post office, said Crystler, adding that the latest mailing should take care of the majority of people who have not received a form.

"Even with the best efforts made, we still may have missed some folks," he said, explaining that people who still have not received a form should call 1-800-999-1990.

Jim Payne, 63, a 19-year resident of Oakhill Road, Independence Township, has not yet received a form, he said April 16.

"This is the first time I remember" not receiving a form, he said, adding that he was concerned because he had called the U.S. Census Bureau several times.

"I just have a feeling that it's being terribly mishandled. It does form the basis for a lot of considerations," he said.

If you're just receiving a form — or have not yet turned yours in — just fill it out and wait for an enumerator to pick it up, said Crystler.

"The train is moving so fast here, we cannot stop it," he said. "The people will be counted, but the operations can't be stopped."

The Rochester district office has received many calls from people without forms, he said.

Some want to mail their forms after they receive them — but they shouldn't, he said, explaining that they've already sent a computer tape of results to Washington, D.C., and all other forms must be picked up in person by an enumerator.

He has heard complaints from angry residents, claiming that the government is wasting money by sending a person out when all residents could do is simply mail the forms.

"It would take more time and effort to figure it out in the office than it would to simply pick it up," he said.

In his district, which covers most of Oakland County, 69 percent of residents have returned their forms — above average for the state, which ranges from 53.8 percent for the city of Detroit to 77 percent for the Macomb district.

Thief gets away with jewelry, silver

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Several thousand dollars worth of jewelry and sterling silver pieces were stolen from a home on Deerhill Drive, Independence Township, April 12.

The break-in occurred sometime between 8 and 9:30 p.m., when the owners were out to dinner, according to a report at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Police said the intruder gained entry to the house by throwing a large rock through the basement window.

Several pieces of jewelry were taken from the master bedroom, including a $425 necklace and a $590 gold ring.

The silver, worth $3,080, was taken from the formal dining room.

It appeared the entire house had been searched; two rooms were completely ransacked, police said.

Investigators found a set of footprints leading from the road, around the tree line, to the rear of the home. The prints were described as a man's tennis shoe, size 9-10.

Anyone with any information about the break-in should call the sheriff's department at 858-4950.

Parents speak out against middle school concept

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Three parents expressed anger over the middle school concept at the April 9 Clarkston Board of Education meeting.

The three had each requested an opportunity to speak to the board and were listed in the meeting agenda.

Michele Weverstad, mother of a sixth-grader and a resident of Valley Park Road, Independence Township, told the board that the middle school concept wasn't working.

"I'm a frustrated mother," stated Weverstad. "This is supposed to be a healthy environment both physically and mentally, and it is not now."

Weverstad told the board that on one occasion she visited the junior high, and she witnessed a sixth-grade teacher swinging a little girl around, stating it was time for her to "grow up."

"I'm a frustrated mother. This is supposed to be a healthy environment both physically and mentally, and it is not now."

Michele Weverstad

"There is no compassion, no respect," Weverstad complained. "My biggest concern is attitude."

Another parent told the board that her sixth-grade son had lost interest in school once he entered sixth grade.

"He's gone from being enthusiastic about going to school to not caring anymore," commented Kathy Desrochers. "And he's got three years to go."

She told the board that she has witnessed sixth graders emulating the ninth-graders by "walking down the halls holding hands."

Michael Warchuck, the father of children at the elementary and junior high level, also complained that the middle school concept wasn't working and added that the board was non-responsive.

"Before the election, Gary Haner was the only one who took time to explain things to me," Warchuck said.

Haner told the board that he had met with the three parents before the meeting to determine a plan of action.

The parents had agreed to work with parent advisory groups established for both junior high schools.

Two Clarkston teachers laid off

Two Clarkston teachers will be laid off at the end of the school year.

The layoffs were recommended by the administration and were unanimously approved by the school board.

The staff reductions will include Marcia Roman, teacher of the dental assisting program, and Barbara Mack, teacher of the Chevrolet, Pontiac, Canada (CPC) Workplace Basics Program at the Oakland Technical Center - Northwest Campus.

The layoff of Roman is necessary due to the return from leave of a higher seniority teacher in that program, administrators said.

The layoff of Barbara Mack is necessary due to the uncertainty of the continuation of the CPC Workplace Basics Program for the 1990-91 school year.

Trustee Thomas Howard questioned why the CPC program was threatened.

School administrators told him that sponsors General Motors and the United Auto Workers Union may stop funding the program.

The teacher layoffs are conducted as required by the existing Teacher's Master Agreement, according to the administration.

Good time to join Chamber of Commerce

The directory for the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce is in the works, according to Linda Dyball and Buck Kopeitz, who are working on the project.

Included in the directory is a list of all Chamber members, as well as a list of clubs and organizations in the area. The directory is also to include a community calendar of communitywide events in the year or two ahead.

To sign up your club or add your event to the calendar, call the Chamber office at 625-8055.

"Anybody who has been planning to join (the Chamber) but procrastinating, now would be a good time because the directory is coming out," said Dyball.

Cityhood election changed

The date has been changed for the cityhood election for the Village of Clarkston.

Previously set for May 14, the election is now set for Monday, May 21, when citizens within the village boundaries are to decide whether or not the village should become a city.

CHS students sample work in the television field

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

"45 seconds. Do the anchors have any last minute questions?"

Inside the control room at the United Cable Public Access Studio on Waldon Road, Clarkston, student Director Derek Hackbardt prepares his production crew for the start of taping.

Hackbardt and about a dozen classmates are students of Bill Genshaw's Media II class. This taping, which will result in the second edition of "Independence Update," is the culmination of two semesters worth of work.

"25 seconds."

The crowded control room is silent as Hackbardt monitors the stopwatch out loud. Some crew members fidget in their chairs. Audio engineer Jim Drysdale asks a final question about the opening music.

The crew, made up of director, technical director, font operator, audio engineer, videotape operator and supervising engineer, watch the row of monitors in front of them.

"Bring up graphic; bring down music; cue booth announcer."

The tape rolls, and a punchy beat signals the beginning of "Independence Update." An announcer introduces the two anchors, and the taping of the program is underway.

News, public-service announcements and pre-taped feature segments unfold throughout the next 15 minutes.

The students have only the 50-minute time period allotted for class to completely tape the 15-minute segment. Once completed, the program will air on Independence-Clarkston Channel 65.

The tight schedule is rough, admits Joel Burnell, director of public access, but it's realistic.

"It's like a professional news broadcast," Burnell says. "It's taped and not live, but it's already scheduled to air — there's no leeway.

The unique media classes are taught by Bill Genshaw, who is partially responsible for bringing United Cable to Clarkston in the first place.

Genshaw is currently working on a doctorate in educational systems development, which includes work in instructional television. He also holds a master's degree in history, and is an educational specialist in instructional design.

The media II class is back after a one-year hiatus, Genshaw explains.

"The school has been good to us in terms of financing. ... The problem is scheduling," he says.

Prior to taking Media II, which involves actual studio work, students must take Media I, which teaches them electronic field production and a lot of the basics of television.

The school has adopted a new formula, which allows only one type of media class a semester, which had curtailed the on-going production of "Independence Update," Genshaw explains.

When asked about student response to the class, Genshaw gestures proudly to the students in the control room.

"Take a look," he says, adding, "This is a particularly good class; they're highly motivated."

Inside the control room, the crew waits for the anchors to finish a news segment, so a pre-taped public service announcement (PSA) can be inserted.

The PSA features shots from the high school cafeteria and instructs students to try student lunches from the high school cafeteria, "the best deal in town."

The anchors read another news segment after the PSA, using scripts prepared earlier in class. Classroom time is used for the editing of the pre-taped segments.

A great deal of work is completed on the students' own time, Genshaw adds.

An example of extra-work on this program is a pre-taped feature on a recent school band concert, in which "Inside Independence" crew members conducted on-the-bus interviews with participants before and after the concert and taped clips from the performance.

> "The hardest thing is working with all the people to get everyone to do what they're supposed to do."
> Derek Hackbardt

Despite the extra work and the difficulty in learning and actually producing such a program, the students are extremely dedicated.

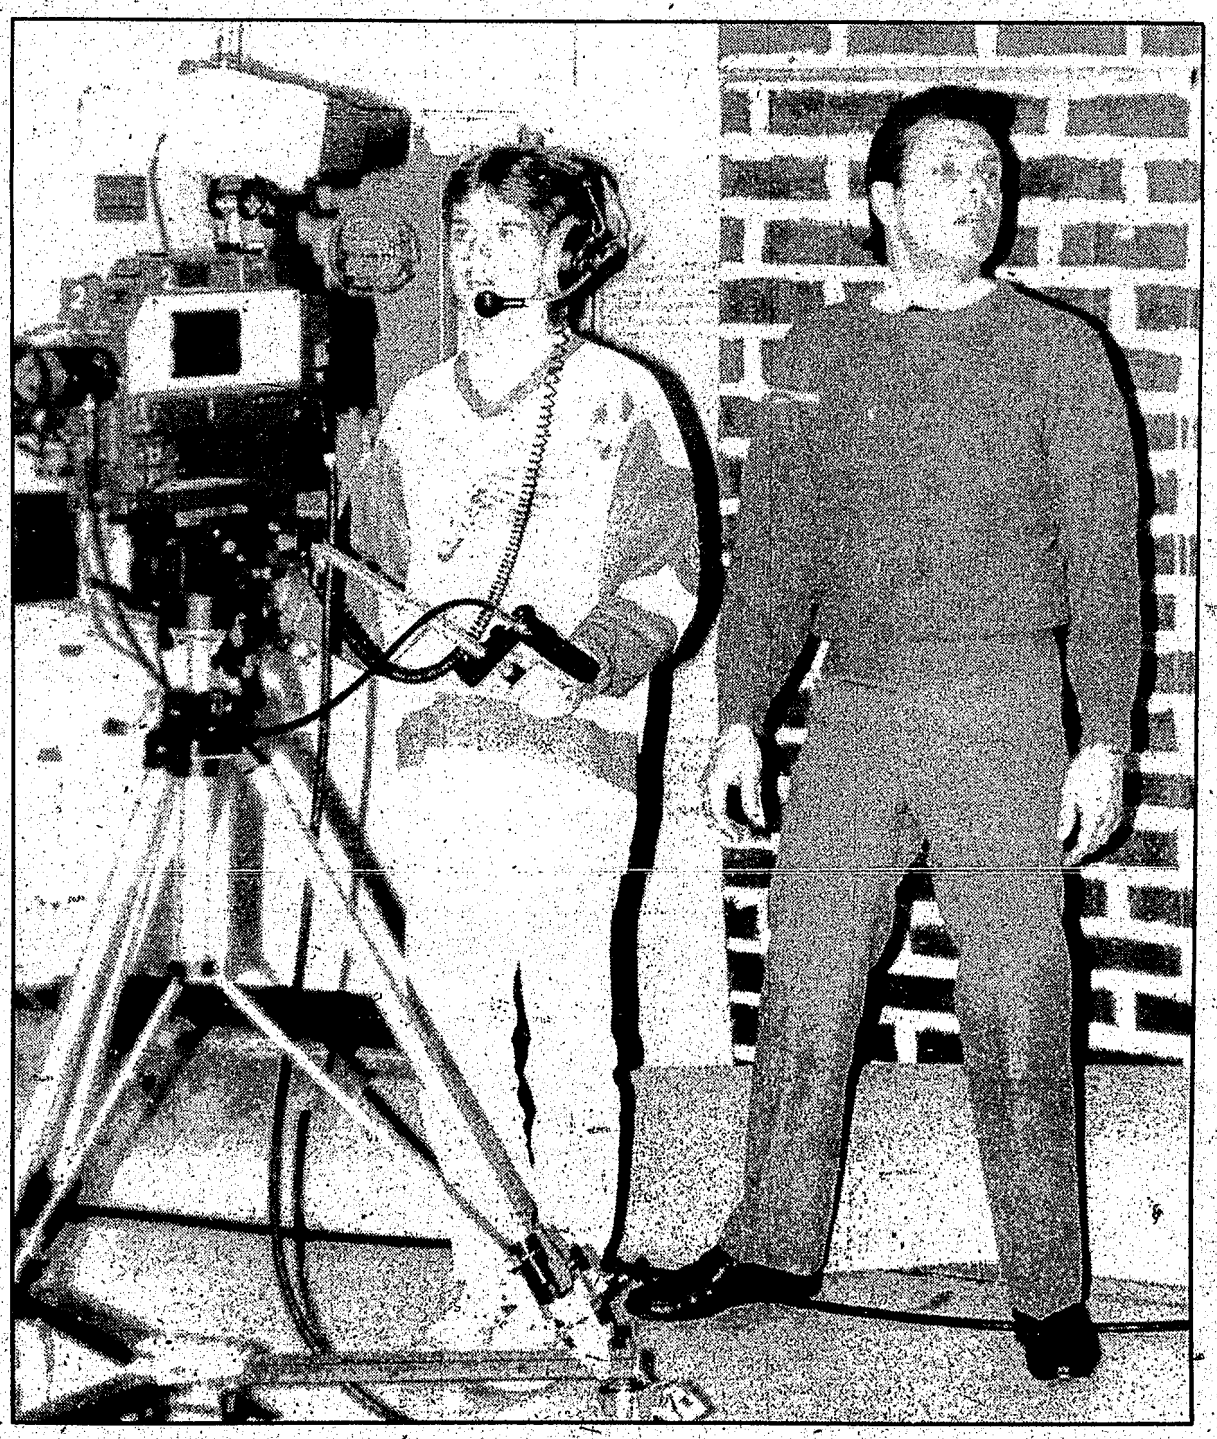
"The hardest thing is working with all the people to get everyone to do what they're supposed to do," comments Hackbardt. Like many students working on "Inside Independence," Hackbardt has worked at United Cable prior to taking the media classes.

The crew now works to bring the segment to close on time. Communication signals are crossed somehow, and the anchor reads his goodbye well before the end of the program.

With terse control, the crew manages to remedy the situation; the anchor continues reading and the segment ends without another hitch.

The silence is now punctuated with chatter as the crew removes their headsets.

There is little time for congratulations and reflections, however. The students quickly wrap up their brief encounter with "real-life" television to make it back to high school for their next class.



BILL GENSHAW oversees the work of his Media II students, who produce the weekly newsprogram "Independence Update." Along with manning studio cameras, the students anchor the program, create pre-taped segments and coordinate the taping of each segment.

Requests days off

CHS teacher appeals to board

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

A Clarkston High School math teacher appealed to the Clarkston Board of Education April 9 to change the district's unpaid days-off policy.

Karen Uchno told members that if the policy didn't change, she would resign at the end of the current school year.

The board unanimously agreed to review the policy at a later meeting.

Prior to Karen's presentation to the board, members had voted to suspend a decision on granting her tenure, though tenure to 15 other candidates was approved. After further discussion, board members did unanimously vote to approve tenure for Uchno.

Reading from a letter, Uchno reviewed her past employment with several computer companies and explained her reasons for wanting to teach.

For the past two years, Uchno said, she has requested, and eventually received, unpaid days off from work to accompany her husband on a business trip where he was recognized for unique achievements.

This year, however, the request was denied in meetings with the high school principal and with the administrative staff.

She illustrated examples of other school personnel taking the time off and said she was "not the one making the precedent."

In their discussion of Uchno's presentation, board members debated whether to assign her third-year probation status, as an alternative to granting her tenure.

This drew a protest from teacher's union President Bill Curtis, who told the board that Uchno's tenure and the unpaid days-off were "two separate issues."

"The question called tonight is a single issue," Curtis said. "There is not any discussion about whether she is a competent teacher."

Trustee Tom Howard agreed.

"By implication, this (third-year probation) indicates that we have some problem with her performance," he said.

At least one board member stated that it was Uchno's attitude that was disturbing.

"I have a problem with her professional attitude towards her job," said Secretary Mary Jane Chaustowich.

A date has not been set for discussion of the unpaid days-off policy.

Homework help

The hotline is a telephone center operated by certified teachers who receive calls from kindergarten through senior high school students, as well as their parents.

The project, in operation for eight weeks, is sponsored by the Detroit Federation of Teachers, the Michigan Education Association's Great Cities Program and Marygrove College.

The project is promoted locally with help from the Clarkston Foundation and the Clarkston Band Boosters.

Teachers are available 4-8 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

In the eight weeks the hotline has operated, teachers report that 62 percent of all student questions are about math; 13.5 percent are social studies; 12.9 percent are English; nine percent are science, and three percent are other.

Lake property owners beware:

Residents may be held liable in drowning death

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Though Mother Nature can throw some wicked curve balls, homeowners may be liable for the results.

That fact is currently being tested in Independence Township, where about 100 Deer Lake homeowners may be held accountable for a drowning accident on the lake.

Attorney Stuart Freedman represents the estate of Henry Richardson, the victim of a fatal drowning accident on Clarkston's Deer Lake in January of 1989.

According to Freedman, homeowners were "negligent in failing to provide adequate warnings of the potential danger of melting ice."

He is claiming damages permitted under the Wrongful Death Act.

According to Freedman, the claim would be negotiated between attorneys for the estate and the homeowners' insurance companies, he said.

"There is a duty on the part of the homeowners of light property (to provide warning), Freedman said in a phone interview. "They did not."

Freedman declined to speculate on the amount of the claim, saying only that "the death of a young lawyer with a wife and two small children is a pretty serious offense."

Deer Lake homeowners said they are surprised by the claim demand.

"We don't know what happened," said one Deer Park Trail resident. "These were adults out skating. We want to support the family, but we don't feel homeowners are responsible for this."

Whether or not the homeowner is actually liable for an injury or death, most homeowner policies will at least cover the costs of legal protection, according to insurance officials.

Insurance companies hire attorneys to defend the company against such claims, said Judy Livingston, owner of a local AllState office.

"The policies are very broad, but it does offer protection," Livingston said.

The letters from Freedman advise homeowners to notify their insurance carriers of the claim to avoid judgments against them personally. Those without homeowners or renters insurance are to call Freedman's office.

Freedman added that if a claim is not negotiated amicably with the insurance companies, a lawsuit could result.

A similar lawsuit was filed against homeowners on another lake in Oakland County, which served as a basis for this action, Freedman added.

The Richardsons' attorney, Leo James of Clarkston, said the action falls within the family's legal rights.

"This is a standard type of retention letter filed in all (injury and death) cases," said James.

Because the claim is negotiated with insurers, homeowners likely won't be affected he added.

"(The insurers) will defend the homeowners," he said. It's not going to cost them a penny."

Hearing on Clarkston Road rezoning request

A request to rezone 11.95 acres from rural residential to suburban farm residential is the topic of a public hearing before the Independence Township Planning Commission Thursday, April 26.

Julie Campe

When we were young, we were tricked into being child laborers. My brothers and I didn't know any better — we were so inexperienced in this matter.

As soon as we were big enough, my dad had us out pulling weeds and gathering rocks from the garden plot. Later in the season, we would pick vegetables.

In the beginning we thought it was fun.

On a warm day, it was good to be outside. We could shout and laugh, and we'd only bother the birds — no parents (ah — my parents' ulterior motive — they probably didn't even like the vegetables but only wanted us out of the house).

Usually, my job was the beans. With a little help from Andy, I had to pick all the plump string beans — about every other day. All bent over, I'd crouch barefoot in the dry earth between the rows of bushy plants.

I'd dawdle, sidetracked by ladybugs or ants or a snake or two. Usually Andy and I worked well together, except every once in a while when Ronny and I noticed Andy was slacking off.

It did not matter that Andy was three years younger than I and five years younger than Ronny. Being little was no excuse for poor productivity, we decided. Besides, Andy was smarter than us — or at least more devious. He was always one up on us, so we could never give him any slack.

But Andy did not often slack off. For instance, my job also was to pick ripe strawberries every morning, and usually I'd enlist Andy's aid by bribery. I liked the strawberry chore — you could eat the berries whenever you felt like it. But it was more fun if somebody — like Andy — was around to talk to. Trouble is, he'd never eat any but just pick steadily, so he always ended up with more than I.

On the bigger tasks, my dad would put Ronny in charge because he was the oldest. He usually did a good job directing Andy and I, and we always got the job done. But occasionally he'd let power go to his head. Like many, I'm afraid, he let power corrupt him.

Oh, in front of Dad he was the good worker, politely telling us to do this or change that. But when we were alone, he would take advantage of the situation.

Since he was the boss, he'd drive the tractor, while Andy and I did the more menial tasks. It's not that Andy and I wanted to drive — we probably couldn't even reach the pedals. It's just that we didn't want Ronny to drive. And we didn't want him telling us what to do.

For instance, one time we were told to gather all the fallen limbs from the about two acres in front of our house. So Ronny wheeled around with the tractor, pulling a trailer, while Andy and I gathered all the sticks.

Ronny lorded it above us that he did not have to pick up the branches. He'd tell us to hurry up or he'd leave us and we'd have to drag the limbs to the pile out back.

He also told us that we'd better break them so they'd fit in the trailer, but Andy and I didn't see the need. So what if Ronny couldn't travel very easily with branches hanging over the sides, getting tangled in bushes and other, still-standing trees?

We formed a little union and rebelled — which only made Ronny mad. Fortunately, it soon became dark, and we quit for the day.

Eventually, we grew older and began to rebel even to our parents about picking the dang beans and raking the leaves.

But, now, I miss the earth — the smells of damp soil mixed with skeletons of leaves and the laughter of Ronny ringing out to Andy somewhere amidst the trees ...

Letters to the Editor

Not counted in U.S. Census

I'm writing this from my car. I live here now with all of my possessions; three suits, a coat, a couple of pairs of jeans and a little mutt.

Three weeks ago, I was a real American: two kids, married, house in Clarkston, assessment complaint and a good job.

I had paid my taxes, served in the Army, never burned a flag and voted in all the elections.

The one thing more than anything else which made me feel like a patriotic American was the act of standing up every 10 years and promptly filling out the U.S. Census form.

This was more important to me than the 1040s, the Single Business Forms, the Social Security Forms — everything.

So, on census day, my wife and I took the day off to wait for our forms to be delivered.

The postman came with a dunning letter from a medical lab, a final sale notice from Art Van, a postcard written to someone who had lived in our house five years ago but no census form.

I looked at my wife. All the blood had gone from her face. As an active member of the DAR and a compulsive American, she was truly concerned.

I tried desperately to assure her that nothing was wrong.

Although the government almost never made mistakes, occasionally one is made, and although the chances of this were but one in a million, this might be it.

She didn't buy it.

"Look!" she said, "The federal government just in the last three years has taken an impossible tax system and simplified it to the point that now any moron can easily fill out his own forms, and you expect me to believe that this same government could screw up a simple mailing?"

What could I say? There is no retort to an argument like that. So I replied, "Our family has been in Michigan for four generations, and nothing like this has ever happened to us. It must be your fault. You're the one from Pennsylvania."

Our discussion went downhill from there.

The next day, with all the joy gone, I was the only one who took the day off. No form came.

The fourth day I gave up waiting. In exasperation, I tried to borrow and duplicate the form from all of our neighbors, but they had all been sent in.

I went to the government, but they hadn't completed the form necessary to apply for a replacement form.

People began to ignore us. We ran into some of our friends who had received and completed the long form, and they wouldn't even speak to us.

Ten days into census 1990 and still no form.

Panic set in. We bought a huge refrigerator, threw it away, painted the box international orange and took it down to 12th street in Detroit. There with my wife, two children and a dog, we moved in with the hope that we could be at least counted as one of the homeless.

We weren't going to tell our family or friends that this was the way we were counted, but at least we would be able to hold a discussion at our next cocktail party.

We lived there four days when a delightful couple with a small but effective knife collection informed us that the census people had been there three days before we came. We left them our new house with most of our cash, and they seemed most appreciative.

It has now been three weeks and still no census form. My wife, my job, my children, my self esteem, self worth and everything that meant anything to me are gone.

I am no longer a counted American. I let down my community, and for the next 10 years they will not get their fair share. I am a nonperson.

I am so ashamed.

Garbage problem

I am writing with concern about garbage being dumped along our roadways. I have called both Independence and Oakland County, and neither will have anything to do with this.

I did contact our ordinance warden here in Independence. He, too, said he'd like some help in this matter. He said if I find anyone who handles this sort of problem to please let him know.

What basically we get is garbage dumped along our roadways by "SLOBS," uncaring so-called people, and it is not under anybody's jurisdiction as far as cleanup or finding out who dumped it.

For almost a year now we have had dumping going on, and it's only getting worse. Large amounts of garbage have been dumped by the water way near us, right where folks stop to fish regularly. Along other of our roads, we not only find garbage but old tires and furniture.

We hear on the news or read in the paper about the garbage and dumping problems elsewhere; well we have the problem right here in Independence — a problem that must be addressed. If it is not, the dumping will become an even larger problem. There are those that fish the river and drive our roads that see these dumpsites by SLOBS and will figure what's a few more bottles, bags or couches.

I am writing to you in hopes that you could shed some light on this problem. The environment is on many of our minds but not obviously on all of our minds — not to speak of the eyesore this garbage has become.

Conservancy urges protection of land

We are a local group of citizens of Independence Township who have provided our time and money in a program to help our township remain a great place to live for years to come.

We are a non-profit organization called a "Conservancy," and our goal is to make sure that some of our wetlands and woodlands remain in a natural state.

Earth Day is Sunday, April 22. We are asking you to help us observe the spirit of Earth Day all year long.

You are a neighbor of one of the 13 parcels of land gifted to our Conservancy. All of these parcels contain deed restrictions which require the property to be maintained in a completely natural state.

Among other things, this means the property can not be mowed or flowers or trees removed.

We are especially concerned about protecting the property from those who believe vacant land makes a good dumping ground. This is where we need your help.

If any these problems are occurring, we need to know so that they can be stopped. This will keep the value of our property, and also yours as a neighbor, from being degraded.

These lands are intended to enhance the beauty of your neighborhood and for use as a natural preserve for plants and wild life. We do not want to see the areas fenced.

We do check the properties periodically but cannot "guard" the properties constantly. We have to depend on you, our "neighbors" to help up protect the parcels as valuable assets and keep them in a natural state.

Please help us watch over this beautiful asset in your neighborhood!

We would also like you to join our group, and we welcome donations which are tax deductible. If you have questions or need more information about the Conservancy, write to the Conservancy at 8062 Ortonville Road, Clarkston, Mich. 48016.

So no one will think I'm an old grump, I will explain why my answer was no when I was invited to be a "celebrity bartender" at the London Chop House.

Let's say Bill Bonds threw a snowball at a city parking officer, a vociferous confrontation ensued, police were summoned, and even the FBI became involved.

Or let's say Mort Crim and a coworker had a vigorous lovers' spat, in front of several disinterested witnesses, and she hit him.

If those incidents actually occurred (trust me, they didn't), you would surely read about it in Detroit's daily newspapers. That's because Bonds and Crim, as Detroit TV anchors (you knew that), are celebrities.

Paper escapes coverage.

A few weeks ago, this incident did happen. Joe Glover is another local TV anchor (you knew that). When Glover had a loud argument with his news director, it was reported in the newspapers, because Glover is a celebrity.

Recently, several Free Press employees couldn't help overhearing an unusually loud argument between an editor and a reporter. There was nothing about it in the newspapers.

And - trust me again - the snowball battle and lovers' spat actually did happen, just recently. But some Free Press employees participated, not television personalities.

An FBI agent just happened to be walking by the Free Press Building, when it appeared that the parking officer might respond to the playful snowball by driving her vehicle over the thrower's body. When the FBI couldn't immediately restore peace, cops were called. Ultimately, it was unanimously agreed that no arrests should be made, no charges should be filed, and the combatants should walk away, feeling silly.

I'd mention names, but you wouldn't recognize them.

As for the quarreling lovers, I don't know if they're now ex-, or what. I don't care, and neither do you. They're not TV anchors.

My dictionary's definition of "celebrity" is "the state of being celebrated; a celebrated person." If you've ever witnessed the uproar that occurs when Bill Bonds walks into a room crowded with strangers, you understand what it means to be celebrated. It's as though Bonds is the only person in the world who owns a wig that grows.

Measuring celebrity.

Recognition is a main measure of celebrity. I've ridden city buses for 14 years and have been recognized once. When, under questioning, I admitted to the woman sitting beside me that I was the Fitzgerald who wrote for the Free Press, she moved to another seat.

As for the London Chop House, I don't go there nearly as much as several years ago when it was unsurpassed as Detroit's most expensive restaurant. (Today, you can be overcharged as much or even more at several other fancy downtown spots). Ironically, a big reason the Chop lost my business is the new ownership didn't retain my favorite bartenders. Perhaps one result of this change in ambience is the "celebrity bartender" gimmick designed to increase business on Monday nights. (The manager suggested my friends should come to watch me miss-mix drinks. Hell, I can't even get my wife to follow me into most bars.)

Whatever. The reason I refused to be a celebrity bartender has nothing to do with the London Chop House and everything to do with the suggestion that I am a celebrated person. I'm not, and just the accusation makes me extremely uncomfortable.

To each his own, but I think it's warped for a member of the news media to be treated as more important than the words he or she speaks or reads.

But if anyone needs an obscure bartender for a good cause, I'm available - and qualified.

Tracy King

Summertime meant my trip to my grandparents was not far off.

Soon, it was not day-after-tomorrow, but the next day.

My grandparents lived in a world as rural as could be. Once Milwaukee passed, the tiny towns gave way to only farms.

Just 12 neighbors lived on my grandparents' road, but my two-week visit was always full.

On the sunny front porch, with the green carpeted stairs, I would design elaborate dances that required tricky moves from one level to the other.

When it rained, I could lean over just far enough to get the raindrops into my hair, which I had heard was good for it.

Twice, we'd climb into my grandparents' big car for the trip to Valders for summer sausage and ring bologna. I'd perch on the big armrest in back, where I had a view of the world.

The trip to Valders meant a ride down the "big hill" where my mom was dared to ride her bike as a little girl and fell and broke her nose.

For lunch, we ate the ring bologna with plain, coarse bread, just baked, and my grandma's pickles.

In the hot afternoons, I'd head for the musty, cool garage, where my grandfather kept his junk-yard treasures.

The space was piled to the very top with old plastic dolls, buggies, boxes and other stuff my grandfather would look through, pull out, and say, "See, look at that."

My grandmother's raspberry patch was planted next to the garage. There were a few berries, but Mrs. Remecker's garden was right alongside.

In that garden, huge sunflowers grew for at least three rows, and raspberries ran as far as the eye could see.

I suspected that her raspberry branches were at least as tall as I was, but my grandma always banged on the kitchen window and shook her fist.

At night we'd have corn and tomatoes for dinner ("just corn and tomatoes!," I'd report later), followed by vanilla ice cream.

On some nights we'd have "P-O-P", my grandma's name for popcorn. This corn was popped on the stove down to the final minute and was absolutely perfect.

We'd munch it, in the dark, from the big yellow bowl, watching any old thing on TV.

Lake residents shocked by letter

It is with shock and amazement that the following letter was received by property owners and associations with property on Deer Lake:

"Re: Estate of Henry Richardson, Deceased

"This office represents the Estate of Henry Richardson, who drowned in Deer Lake on Jan. 22, 1989, while ice skating.

"Our investigation leads us to believe that the Deer Lake owners were negligent in failing to provide adequate warnings of the potential danger of melting ice.

"In this regard, we are advising you that a claim is being made on behalf of the Estate for damages permitted under the Wrongful Death Act.

"In the event that you had a homeowners insurance policy or renter's policy for the date in question, please advise your carrier, immediately, of this claim and forward this letter to your agent and insurance company. Your failure to do so may result in a judgment being taken against you personally.

"Please be advised that this office is claiming a lien on any proceeds recovered for or on behalf of the above named Estate. In the event that you have any questions concerning this letter, please do not hesitate to contact this office.

Very Truly Yours, Stuart G. Freedman."

What a sad commentary on our legal profession that his intimidating letter be sent and this claim even be considered.

It certainly does not say much for Lopatin, Miller, Freedman, Bluestone, Erlich, Rosen and Bartnick Attorneys at law.

Things must be a little slow at the old office these days.

Many lake residents and I attended a fund-raising on behalf of the family of the deceased. I want my money back!

What does this letter say to the many people who tried to save this man? They will all be involved in this claim as well.

The township or village will be involved due to their ownership of the Deer Lake Beach property.

To the estate of Mr. Richardson, (a former attorney) and attorney under law, Mr. Stuart G. Freedman, I am ashamed of you!

For the record, the winter of 1988-89 was very warm. During these conditions, ice melts.

How many of you didn't know that?

To be on any lake, with open water in view during these conditions should indicate that maybe, just maybe, two guys weighing over 150 pounds each might be in danger.

Name withheld on request

'Pets' should be restricted

In a tragic incident recently, a two-year-old's life was ended in an attack by a wolf/dog cross, kept as a "pet" by a family friend.

Today, I am asking you to help me prevent this from happening again.

I am requesting your support of legislation I sponsored, House Bill 5285, which would prohibit an individual from owning certain species of exotic animals, with existing pets grandfathered in.

This bill is the result of two years of research, and all of the information I have gathered points to the same fact — certain exotic animals are not suitable as pets and, in fact, are a threat to human health and safety.

The "pets" prohibited under my bill include all non-human primates, all wild cats, all species of bear, all wild carnivores and hybrid crosses with any of these species.

Our neighboring states, along with many others, either have similar laws or are in the process of enacting them.

Surely one can understand that an animal such as a wolf or a lion, which roams hundred of miles per week in the wild, cannot be kept safely and adequately under captive conditions.

A Clinton Township cougar owner was quoted as saying she fed her full-grown, 150-pound cougar, which lived in her home, a half a chicken a day!

How can an individual adequately care for a species that, in its natural habitat, would roam over 30 miles a day and consumer 50-70 pounds of raw, red meat per week?

It's not a matter of time — many deaths and injuries have already occurred in our state due to exotic pets.

Wolf hybrids are one species growing in popularity and are one of the most dangerous animals one can own — neither wolf nor dog, neither tame nor wild, but a cross somewhere in between, an animal that is "man's best friend" until his wild instincts spontaneously appear.

When you hear of attacks by these "pets," it is usually a young child that gets mauled or killed — why?

Because wolves and wolf-hybrids are unpredictable and have, as part of their natural behavior, predatory instincts and a child is the same size as their prey in the wild.

Also, there is already evidence of these hybrids escaping into the wild, therefore endangering an endangered species, the timber wolf, which is trying to make a comeback in our state.

You cannot make these animals less dangerous — defanged animals can crush a man's skull with their jaws and a declawed animal can snap a man's neck with a swat of its paw!

In all of my talks with different parties, not one single person has offered me one good reason why they have one of these wild animals as a pet.

These animals suffer — from a lack of space proper diet or veterinary care — all so these owners can enjoy pets that are "different."

Ask yourself if you are truly an animal lover —

Driver still critical

Kirk Nelson, 24, of Rochester remains in critical condition at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital following an April 7 automobile accident in Independence Township.

Nelson was involved in a two-car accident after his 1982 Pontiac careened across the centerline near the intersection of Dixie Highway and White Lake Road. Nelson's vehicle struck Paul Majeski, 38, of Warren, who was driving southbound in a Pony Express van.

Both men were rushed to the hospital, andMajeski was released several days later.

According to Robert Aranosian, head of the emergency room at POH, Nelson is suffering from severe head and chest injuries. Oakland County Sheriff's Department reports indicate that both men were wearing seat belts at the time of the accident.

Writing a city charter

Citizens for Clarkston

In an election on May 21, Clarkston's residents will decide whether to take the next step toward cityhood. A majority of "yes" votes will begin the process of writing a city charter.

Known as a Home Rule Charter, it will determine how the new city is to be organized and operated. Actually, producing a charter is a two-step process. First a nine-member commission is elected to write the charter.

Its members would be expected to represent the various neighborhoods in the community. Then their finished work must be approved by the voters before Clarkston can become a city. All in all, the process can take two years — or more.

While all cities have charters, the provisions can vary widely. In general, charters must recognize certain responsibilities, but there is considerable latitude in how communities go about the business of meeting their individual needs and interests.

Essentially, a charter is like a constitution. It sets up a system of government. It then specifies the objective and duties of the government, from conducting elections and collecting taxes to maintaining streets and parks to policing traffic.

Most importantly, through the charter, citizens can control and limit local tax rates and how the new city can spend its money. It does this by setting regulations concerning finance and taxation, and a method for setting salaries and wages.

Charters usually contain the name of the city. A former village like Clarkston can continue to use the word "village" in its name, as is the case with Orchard Lake Village.

A charter also describes the boundaries.

Also important is the fact that the charter determines the balance of authority between the major and the council, and whether city manager will be responsible for day-to-day operations — as in Clarkston now.

Charters are living documents which can be amended by vote, thereby adapting to changing needs and interest in the community.

In effect, the Home Rule Charter would put Clarkston's residents in charge of the community's future.

It would give them control over the village's character and how the community is managed and maintained for the benefit of present residents and future generations.

Following columns will talk about the experiences of other small cities, taxes and the provision of local services.

Citizens for Clarkston is comprised of an "informal group" of Clarkston residents who are in favor of cityhood. Residents are to vote on the issue of cityhood May 21.

Residents debate need for wetlands ordinance

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Wetlands and roads, two subjects on the agenda of the Springfield Township Board meeting April 12, filled the hall beyond capacity. Residents stood outside during the meeting.

In the wetlands portion of the meeting (see other story for roads), residents presented pro and con points about Goemer-Anderson, an emergency wetlands ordinance first requested by residents March 8.

The board voted unanimously to quickly get copies of any Department of Natural Resources (DNR) applications made within the township and to improve communication with the DNR.

Ivan Helfman, a Springfield Township resident and editor of the The Reminder Newspaper, said the Goemer-Anderson should be adopted as an ordinance that would allow more local control of wetlands.

Currently, the DNR is the only agency monitoring wetlands in the township.

Residents questioned the purpose of adding another governing agency when the DNR is performing its duties.

Thomas Purves of Dixie Highway, Springfield Township, favored the status quo.

"The DNR has so much 'teeth'; it's $10,000-a-day fine if you don't abide by the law," Purves said. "We don't need it (Goemer-Anderson)."

Purves dredges ponds and lakes as a profession and is in contact with government officials about wetlands, he said.

Purves used Big Lake as an example of what flooding a wetland area can sometimes create.

"If we didn't flood and dam up things, we wouldn't have Big Lake," Purves said. "Sometimes it's good to do."

Township may control wetlands

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Wetlands in Springfield Township have been a topic of conversation in March and April, as residents gathered to express concerns to the township board.

After the March meeting, Supervisor Collin Walls contacted four environmentalists about a possible wetlands ordinance using local control, as opposed having only the Department of Natural Resources control wetlands.

The DNR covers parcels of five acres and larger.

Following is a summary of the environmentalists' recommendations:

■ Sue Keast of J.C.K. Associates in Ann Arbor prefers ordinances covering wetlands smaller than five acres, and she also recommends local ordinances for any size wetlands.

Due to staff levels, DNR may take several days to respond to a violation, where a local community can respond immediately and issue a "Stop Work Order," she said.

■ Richard Carlisle, the township's planning consultant, said the township should have a local ordinance — but not if it merely duplicate's the state's size restrictions. The biggest reason for a local ordinance is to regulate wetlands under five acres.

■ Donna Chippewa, coordinator with the DNR, said state regulations cover wetlands of five acres or greater, plus wetlands connected to a body of water including ponds, streams and lakes.

A local ordinance sets the tone as early planning decisions are being made by developers, and local ordinances help encourage discussions of wetlands when developers make initial community contact, she said.

Currently the DNR has no agreements with local governments concerning ordinances. Consequently local and state procedures must be followed, and there are no policies or standards at state level for which comes first.

■ Peggy Johnson of the Clinton River Watershed Council said smaller wetlands generally are of little value other than for storm water retention.

Communities would be better off if they looked at the quality of wetland areas, rather than the quantity of the wetlands under consideration, she said.

Planning is the best tool for preservation, she said.

Trustee Dennis Vallad

Another resident spoke on behalf of keeping the DNR as a regulatory system for wetlands in the township and encouraged members of the audience to contact other municipalities to find out what a "nightmare" an additional ordinance can be.

Trustee Dennis Vallad, who also serves on the township planning commission for the township, said

PURPOSE OF EMBALMING

Embalming is only required by law in cases where the deceased had one of a few specific contagious diseases or if the body is to be transported a great distance. However, embalming is almost always routinely done as soon as possible after the death.

There are various reasons for this. The primary purpose of embalming is to preserve the body for the week or so of the visitation and funeral. If the family wishes to have the body present at the funeral, embalming would be necessary. At the same time, restoration procedures would be followed. This involves shaping and consmetology work to make the deceased appear as life-like as possible.

Unless you specifically request that it not be done, the funeral director will probably assume the family wants the body to be embalmed. If not embalming were performed, you see, the body would have to be immediately disposed of either by cremation or burial.

New ordinance debated

state regulation by the DNR is already in place, and it wouldn't make sense to adopt another ordinance.

"The DNR is not doing that bad of a job," Vallad said.

Thomas Rabette, an attorney and resident of Springfield, said he was concerned about an application for Lockhaven Estates, a site condominium proposed for Big Lake that would include a marina with docks.

"My concern is that (the application) is there and written down, but nobody knew about it," Rabette said.

Vallad explained that the DNR notifies the township when the paper work is complete.

"It's obvious the paperwork was not complete, or we would have received it," Vallad said.

Purves said another ordinance would be like having a second driver's license to drive in Springfield Township.

Trustee Charles Oaks said he was concerned about docks on the various lakes.

"There are people who go over wetlands, or a marshy area, to get to a dock," Oaks said.

Helfman said existing uses of wetland areas should be protected by a "grandfather clause."

About Earth Day

Sunday, April 22, marks the 20th anniversary of Earth Day, when about 25 million Americans participated in events ranging from neighborhood cleanups to a march on Washington.

As a result of Earth Day 1970, the Environmental Protection Agency was created, and the Clean Air and Clean Water Acts were signed.

In the '80s, people voiced concern over the greenhouse effect, ozone depletion, acid rain, tainted beaches and mountains of solid waste.

The 20th anniversary should again raise consciousness, while environmental group members encourage the planting of trees, the declaration of plastic-foam-free towns, the cleaning of toxic rivers and recycling.

Some of the Earth Day goals include: a worldwide ban on chloroflourocarbons (CFCs), encouraging energy efficiency and renewable energy, recycling in every community, reducing hazardous waste and zero population growth.

Take precautions when burning outside

The Independence Township Fire Department extinguished two grass fires last week with no reported injuries or property damage.

A lit cigarette is being blamed for a grass fire just off of I-75, and overzealous flames caused havoc at a permitted burning site on Maybee Road.

Township fire Chief Gar Wilson advises all citizens to be wary during this active burning season. He suggests that residents abstain from burning on windy days and sufficiently maintain and monitor all permitted burnings in their immediate areas.

To burn anything in the township, a permit is necessary. Permits may be obtained by calling the fire department at 625-1924.

Crowd debates plans for park

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Foot trails, cross-country skiing, bridle paths and hunting were among the suggestions for the use of the back portion of 400-acre Shiawassee Basin Park in Springfield Township April 5.

At the public hearing at Springfield Oaks County Park, group camping was also proposed for the 300-acre parcel at the back, which is to be kept as close to its natural state as possible.

About 40 residents showed up to look at and to talk about preliminary drawings for the development of the park, north of Davisburg Road, west of downtown Davisburg, said Sherry Swindell, director of the township parks and recreation department.

Previously used by the Davis family as a hunting retreat, Shiawassee Basin was acquired by the township about two years ago.

To develop the park, Swindell filed for about $172,000 in state grant funds, but it will take about 18 months for a response.

At the public hearing, Merrie Carlock —landscape architect for Carlisle Associates of Ann Arbor— showed residents four concept plan drawings for the front 90 acres of the Basin.

Carlock said the drawings were in the primitive stage, and the meeting was held specifically for public input, she said.

"The design is not cast in stone," Carlock said.

Some residents voiced concern over the placement of the ball fields — too close to existing homes, according to some.

Carlock said buffer plantings would be used to screen noise.

"This is an exercise to go through to find out all the objections," Carlock said.

The audience received assurances from the township supervisor and a Carlisle representative for cost control and environmental preservation.

Supervisor Collin Walls said the cost of maintenance would be looked at carefully by the township board and park commission.

"This will be done in a preservationist vain."

Assistant Planner Eric Ouderkirk

Eric Ouderkirk, assistant planner for Carlisle, said the whole plan for the park would be done to enhance the environment.

"This will be done in a preservationist vain," Ouderkirk said.

Other residents said a proposed entrance to the park on Eaton Road could mean a loss of privacy.

"Collin told us there would be no Eaton Road access," said one resident.

After the meeting, Ouderkirk said the access can be changed, but the existing conditions of railroad tracks, wetlands and a river running through the property make it difficult to reach the back 300-acre parcel.

SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Teachers often give encouragement to their students, and Virginia Harlton's teacher is no exception.

Gwen Haslett of Waterford teaches watercolor design at Waterford Senior Citizens Center, and at her suggestion Virginia entered a watercolor painting in the Oakland County Art Show.

"Gwen said my painting was 'spontaneous and a good watercolor,'" Virginia said.

Virginia won a $50 prize at the Oakland County Art Show held at the Summit Place Mall March 2-9. Businesses from Oakland County sponsored the contest.

Virginia, a resident of Independence Square Apartments in Independence Township since 1985, said Gwen was pleased with the watercolor of a clematis. The climbing flowering vine with deep purple flowers grew in one of the neighbor's yard, and Virginia captured its beauty.

"I had a doting mother, and she was convinced I was great."

Virginia Harlton

Gwen isn't the only person in Virginia's life to encourage her.

"I had a doting mother, and she was convinced I was great," Virginia said.

Virginia's mother wanted her to be a fashion illustrator, but Virginia was convinced her artwork wasn't good enough so she decided to teach.

Virginia likes watercolor painting, but her love is batik, she said.

Batik, an ancient Indonesian craft, is created by applying melted wax to cloth to protect parts of the material from the different dyes the cloth will be dipped into. The wax is later removed.

Her apartment is filled with examples of batik, watercolors and puppets she has made. A quick demonstration of a puppet lets an observer see that Virginia has done this type of performing many times before.

Virginia taught art and puppetry to students in the Detroit Public School system after her graduation from the College of the City of Detroit, now Wayne State University, in 1932.

She taught full time for about 10 years at Norvelle School in Detroit until her three children were born. After their arrival she became a substitute teacher and stayed busy raising the children, she said.

"I was a good teacher," she said. "The kids I taught learned art."

Once her own children — Herbert of Illinois, Julie Woods of Missouri and Bruce of Clarkston — were raised, Virginia returned to Wayne State University in 1965 to take a couple of watercolor classes, she said.

Bumpy roads anger residents

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

With children in tow, about 30 residents filled the Springfield Township Hall April 12 to talk about the poor conditions of Edgar and Foster roads.

The board took no formal action but is to request an investigation by the Road Commission of Oakland County.

"The road commission has total control over the roads."

Supervisor Collin Walls

One resident said the road had deteriorated the last two years, and emergency vehicles could have problems making their way down the road with current conditions.

Walter Ollie of Foster Road said he had called the road commission office about the conditions but got no response.

A resident gave Supervisor Collin Walls a videotape made from inside the car while videographer was traveling down Edgar and Foster Roads.

"I took it home and watched it as I ate lunch today," Walls said.

"I almost got sick," he said, as laughter erupted from the audience.

Walls said he would ask road commission engineers to speak with Springfield Township residents about the problems.

"The road commission has total control over the roads," Walls said.

One resident asked what residents could do to get the road commission to send maintenance crews.

"Encourage people to call 858-4804," Walls said. "I will pursue this with the road commission."

Walls also said he would furnish the videotape of the two roads to the road commission.

Clarkston's comeback tops Brandon

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston's baseball team quickly proved it has the ability to come back.

"We're not a quitting team. We always have been a good go get 'em team," said Wolf coach Roy Warner after his squad downed Brandon, 8-6 April 9.

The Wolves were behind 6-4 going into the bottom of the sixth, but scored four times in that inning to pull ahead. Pitcher Todd Bennett then closed the door on Brandon in the seventh.

Bennett, who struck out four and walked none in three innings of relief work, picked up the victory. Kevin Keilitz started and pitched four innings, walking four and whiffing four while allowing six runs (one unearned).

Larry Liford drove in the tying run in the sixth and then scored the eventual winning run after a wild pitch.

Liford had two of the Wolves' 12 hits. Teammates Dugan Fife and Jim Jenkinson also cracked out a pair of hits.

The only other game on Clarkston's schedule before the spring break (against Rochester) was cancelled due to poor weather.

Warner was pleased with the play of his team, especially since there had not been too many opportunities to play outside before the contest. The coach liked what the Wolves did defensively, committing only one error.

"We're 1-0 with a bunch to go," said Warner.

The next action for the team is 4 p.m. Monday, April 23, when the Wolves host Kettering.

Wolves stranded in opener

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The first inning of the season's first game caused the first loss of the Clarkston softball team.

Two first-inning runs by Brandon gave the visitors a 2-0 victory April 9.

The Wolves briefly had the opening-game jitters. In the first inning, a walk and then a bloop single sandwiched by two errors gave Brandon all the runs it would need.

Clarkston threatened in the late innings but came up empty. The Wolves had the bases loaded in the sixth but a double play killed the rally when a Brandon outfielder caught a fly ball and then nailed a Clarkston base runner at the plate.

Clarkston again loaded the bases in the last inning but failed to score.

The young Wolves, who only have one senior on the team, outhit Brandon, 5-3. Becky Kosek had a double and Heather Austin, Kim Choops, Jennifer Bruce and Heide Parrott all singled.

Jennifer McChesney pitched well for Clarkston, allowing only three hits while walking two and striking out two. Both of the runs given up were unearned.

"Our team played a great game for the first game of the year," said Teare.

Teare pointed out that leftfielder Choops and shortstop Jamie Law had exceptional games defensively.

Teare also noticed that her hitters had some punch in their swings.

"They were aggressive at the plate," said Teare. "We hit the ball harder than them (Brandon)."

The next game for the Wolves is 4 p.m. at home Monday, April 23, against Kettering. Kettering is rated No. 2 in the state by the high school softball coaches association.

Wolf kickers hot against Mott

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston girls' soccer team successfully fought the snow and Mott to even its record to 2-2.

The Wolves stopped Mott 6-1 on a snowy April 11. Two days before that they dropped a match to Lahser.

Clarkston 6, Mott 1
(April 11 at Clarkston)

Clarkston bombarded the Mott goalkeeper with 32 shots on goal en route to a 6-1 victory.

Freshman Sadie Caruso and senior April Ferguson led the Wolf scoring attack by scoring two goals apiece. Seniors Nancy Caracella and Karen Lowe scored the other two goals. Lowe also assisted on Caracella's score.

Christy Mitchum was Clarkston's goalkeeper in the first half and Sue Cohoon tended goal in the second half.

Clarkston coach Kelly Gabriele said Caruso and Ferguson had "excellent" games and she praised the whole team for its offensive and defensive play.

Lahser 4, Clarkston 0
(April 9 at Clarkston)

The visitors jumped ahead to a 3-0 lead at the half on a very windy day.

Mitchum was Clarkston's goalkeeper in the first half and Cohoon took over in the second half.

Coach Gabriele did, however, find some bright spots in the game.

Gabriele said, "If it hadn't been for Amy (Fouchey) and Sabre (Lachman), I don't know what we would have done. They were excellent on defense."

The Wolves next soccer action will be 5 p.m. Tuesday, April 24, when they host Oxford.

Swinging from the Heels

James Gibowski

Big-screen jocks

Tracy and Hepburn.
Siskel and Ebert.

Sports, movies and commenting on movies are three of my most pleasurable vices.

So, I thought it would be nice to write about how all three of these wonderful ways to waste time can be woven together.

Watch out, Gene and Roger, following are short reviews of my favorite sports movies of all time. I'm sure most of these flicks can be rented from your favorite video store.

One thing I noticed about nearly all of the movies in my selection was how the movie featured sports but also contained a theme which went beyond sports. Because of this, even non-sports fans will most likely appreciate these movies.

I personally think you will be easily getting your money's worth by watching any of the movies that follow. Of course, you may disagree, but I hope you at least see the movie first before disagreeing.

My top 10 sports movies of all time (in no specific order) are:

Bull Durham - Sexy, humorous and full of the little quirks that make baseball a great game. Kevin Costner and Susan Sarandon show that it is just as much fun to play the game on the field as it is off the field.

Raging Bull - Siskel and Ebert both agreed that this was the best movie in the 1980s. It's full of terrific boxing sequences in fitting black and white. The great camera angles, sights and sounds and a brilliant characterization of ex-fighter Jake LaMotta (played by best actor Robert DeNiro) is a true knockout of a movie.

Brian's Song - This is my only made-for-televison movie on the list, but it was so good when it came out that it actually was later presented on some big screens. It set the standard for quality television movies. The relationship between Chicago Bears Brian Piccalo (James Caan) and Gale Sayers (Billy Dee Williams), was a strong statement on race and friendship. Piccalo's death scene is a real tear-jerker.

Hoosiers - The exciting atmosphere of Indiana high school basketball tournament time came to life in this simple and wonderful movie. A small town team reaches the finals. Coach Gene Hackman and his sometimes assistant coach Dennis Hopper give slam dunk performances. Hackman yells at his players but has a soft touch for Barbara Hershey.

Pride of the Yankees - This is an old movie with some old cliches, but it also has Gary Cooper playing Lou Gehrig, who tragically dies from a disease later named after the Yankee Hall of Famer. It's hard not to think of Cooper when thinking about Gehrig. Babe Ruth also plays himself in the movie, which adds a nice touch.

Slapshot - Maybe the most overlooked movie on my list. Some people might find the language of hockey players offensive in this movie, but if you like black humor on ice, Slapshot scores. Paul Newman gives one of his best performances as a veteran hockey player playing some of his last minutes in the minor leagues. You'll never forget the triplet goons who fight more than skate or the closing strip tease on ice.

Bang the Drum Slowly - Robert DeNiro's first movie is a funny-sad story about a dying catcher suffering from Hodgkin's disease. Michael Moriarity plays a pitcher, who with his teammates, face the death of their catcher with humor and sensitivity.

Rocky - The first "Rocky" (not III or IV) was an excellent movie. Of course, when this movie first hit the theaters we didn't know that Sylvester Stallone would later act like Rocky even when he wasn't supposed to be portraying him. This movie is in a class by itself when it comes to the audience cheering on the underdog who struggles and finally makes it big. "Yo, Adrian," "Yo, Rocky."

Breaking Away - A movie about bicycle racing in Indiana? This low-budget movie was so impressive it received an Academy Award nomination for best picture. A series of good young actors (including Dennis Quaid) turned this into one of my favorites. The relationship between cyclist Dennis Christopher and his parents is one of the best family experiences ever on screen. Christopher romantically serenades a college girl and this movie serenades its audience as well.

Field of Dreams - Kevin Costner in another baseball movie. But this movie is beyond baseball, filled with sequences that can best be described as mystical. James Earl Jones and especially Burt Lancaster are great in their cameo appearances. Everyone will always remember the voice whispering, "If you build it, he will come." I will never forget an amazed Shoeless Joe Jackson gazing at the lighted baseball field asking Costner, "Is this heaven?" and Costner replying, "No, this is Iowa."

There it is, my 10 can't-miss favorites.

And what's a top 10 list without an honorable mention category: "Chariots of Fire"(Olympic [illegible]nning), "Eight Men Out"(baseball), "[illegible]e Kid"(karate), "The Champ [illegible]oxing), "The Natural"(baseball), "Vision Quest"(wrestling), "Downhill Racer"(skiing), "Caddyshack"(golf), "The Great White Hope"(boxing)...

...and in the future, Rocky LXVIII.

Bostonians cheer local marathoners

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

In 1960, the entire field of Boston Marathon runners totaled 350.

In 1990, 350 runners from Michigan alone were among 9,300 runners in the world's most prestigious marathon.

Two of those Michigan runners were from Clarkston area, Steve Himburg and Paul Van Klaveren.

"It was a 26-mile party," said Van Klaveren, describing his first Boston Marathon on Patriot's Day, April 16.

Van Klaveren finished the race with a time of three hours, 42 minutes. He had hoped to complete the run at about a 3:16 clip. Italy's Gelindo Bordin captured first at 2:08.19.

"The course was tougher than I thought. I was not used to the heat; it got to me," said Van Klaveren about the mid-60s weather in Boston.

Van Klaveren suffered some leg cramps because of the heat, but it didn't stop him from making it across the finish line.

"I made sure I drank a lot of water and chewed a lot of ice," said the Independence Township resident who praised the thousands of spectators who helped to nourish and cheer the runners.

Van Klaveren, who wears a flag on his running outfit, said he heard spectators shout "Go Statue of Liberty" and "Go USA" as he passed by.

This was the third Boston Marathon and the fastest for Himburg, who competes in wheelchair racing.

"This was my best time ever for a marathon. I was real pleased," said Himburg, who finished at 2:49.09, easily meeting his goal of breaking three hours.

"It was a 26-mile party."

Paul Van Klaveren

France's Mustapha Badid broke the wheelchair racing record with a 1:29.53 mark.

Himburg didn't mind the warmer weather, saying, "The conditions were perfect. You couldn't ask for a better day."

Himburg, too, was impressed with the crowd.

"The nicest thing was the spectators. They were lined up 10-20 deep for 20 miles along the course," said Himburg.

Both runners also had their family members in Boston cheering them on, and then later seeing the sights in Boston.

Van Klaveren said he met two other Clarkston residents, Nancy and Eric Haven, at the Faneuil Hall Marketplace. They were in Boston to cheer on Eric's brother, who lives in South Bend, Ind.

Van Klaveren, who also proudly wears something inscribed with Iowa along with the flag while running, met a few people from his hometown of Oskaloosa, Iowa.

It was a 26-mile party in Boston, and the special guests included athletes from Italy, France, Oskaloosa and Clarkston.

Netters ace Northern

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Reporter

The Clarkston boys' tennis team didn't lose a set against Pontiac Northern but was stopped by a tough Rochester Adams team in the first two matches of the season for the Wolves.

The Wolves were unable to play three other scheduled matches because of the inclement weather.

Clarkston 7, Pontiac Northern 0
(April 9 at Pontiac Northern)

All of the Wolves won their matches in two sets in the shutout of Pontiac Northern.

The closest match involved Clarkston's No. 3 seed Jason Gross. The sophomore easily won the first set, 6-1, but won the second, 7-6, in a tiebreaker (7-5).

No. 1 seed senior Keith Turner and No. 2 seed senior Ian Halleran both had double bagel matches, winning 6-0, 6-0. No. 4 seed junior Marc Swartout won 6-3, 6-3.

In doubles action, the No. 1 seeded team of juniors Grant Manley and Matt Nowak won 6-2, 6-3, No. 2 senior Scott Kane and junior Kevin Brown won 7-5, 6-2 and No. 3 freshmen Craig Coxen and Chris Harkins were victorious 6-3, 6-3.

Clarkston coach Dick Swartout said he felt that Pontiac Northern showed improvement from years past. But his Wolves still managed to shut out the Huskies.

Rochester Adams 6, Clarkston 1
(April 6 at Rochester Adams)

No. 1 seed Turner avoided a shutout with his lone victory in a 6-1 loss to Rochester Adams.

Turner lost the first set 2-6, but came back with 6-3, 6-3 sets for the victory.

The Wolves certainly went up against a tough foe for their season opener on a cold and windy day.

"Rochester Adams will probably be the toughest team we face all season," said coach Swartout. "But we were in all of the matches."

No. 2 seed Halleran lost 1-6, 4-6, No. 3. Gross was downed 3-6, 1-6 and No. 4 Swartout fell 2-6, 1-6.

No. 1 doubles Manley-Nowak lost 2-6, 3-6, No. 2 Kane-Brown got stopped 2-6, 3-6, and Coxen-Harkins lost 1-6, 0-6.

The tennis team gets back into action 4 p.m. Monday, April 23, when it travels to Lake Orion.

Track team joins forces at Andover Relays

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Boys need girls and girls need boys.

This dependency was evident in the Andover Relays, a series of relays linking two girls and two boys of the same school to each event.

Clarkston finished fourth out of 13 teams in the April 7 event. The Wolves had placed second the two previous years and won it in 1985 and 1987.

This year Milford won it all with 93 points, followed by Rochester Adams and Pontiac Northern tied for second with 72 and then it was Clarkston with 70, Rochester 61, Birmingham Seaholm 18, Andover and Troy Adams 15, Oak Park 8, Highland Park 6, Berkley and Royal Oak Kimball 2 and Lahser 0.

According to Clarkston girls' head coach Gordie Richardson, overall times and distances in the relays don't mean much because they can't be compared to other events through the year. But the coach said the relays are fun for the competitors and a good way for the boys and girls to appreciate each others' track talents.

Clarkston athletes who placed and their events were:

Sprint medley 3. Folwell, Lance Lewis, Tracy Chamberlain, Joel Davis.

Discus: 4. Seifferlein, Secatch, Paul Krause, Wyniemko.

High jump: 3. Roeser, Rayner, Lewis, Griffiths.

All nine of the wrestlers are now qualified to compete in the USA Federation regional April 21 in Kalamazoo.

The Clarkston wrestlers who placed in the districts were:

NO FEES.

We're waiving all fees on our new Home Equity Line of Credit and our Homeowner's Loan between now and June 30.

And unlike some banks, there are no annual fees with these home equity loans, either.

NO WAIT.

Once you apply, you'll get an answer on your loan in as few as 24 hours. All you need to do is provide us with the necessary information, including your home's assessed valuation and your existing mortgage.

HOME EQUITY LOANS.

You can borrow anywhere from $5,000 to $100,000, depending on the equity in your home. And Old Kent gives you two choices:

Home Equity Line of Credit — offers the flexibility of writing a check whenever you need a loan.

Homeowner's Loan — offers the comfort of a fixed rate, fixed term loan.

Both offer advantages over many credit cards or installment loans:

- Lower interest
- Lower monthly payments
- Tax deductible interest — consult your tax advisor.

The rate on our Homeowner's Loan is as low as 11% APR. The APR on our Home Equity Line of Credit may vary; current APRs are 11½% or 12%, depending on how much you borrow. APR will not exceed 18%, and can go as low as 10%.

Visit or call any of our branch offices listed below for more information. But hurry — you have to say yes to this no-fee, no-wait offer before June 30!

Good skates

SARAH HOOL, Koriena Fantetti and Kendra Fantetti are three young figure skaters from Clarkston performing in shows or competing for medals. Sarah recently won a medal for fifth place in state-wide competition for 9-10 year olds in Fraser and then a few weeks later in state-wide competition at Skate the Zoo in Kalamazoo she captured a gold medal for dance and a bronze for compulsories. Kendra won a gold medal in Fraser and then won two more gold medals in Kalamazoo for freestyle and the compulsories. Koriena, Kendra's 8 year old sister, will be skating in her first competition this summer. The two sisters will also be skating April 28 at the Lakeland Arena in a show featuring Broadway musical themes (Sarah will not skate in the show because she will be attending a wedding). Koriena will skate to "You're Never Fully Dressed Without a Smile" and Kendra will skate to "To Do Run Run."

Wrestlers dominate bantam division

The Clarkston wrestlers will again travel to Kalamazoo for the AAU regionals on June 15-16. However, before those regionals the wrestlers will be competing in several other matches.

All in a morning's work

A NEW steeple was raised on Good Friday, April 13, at The Episcopal Church of the Resurrection on Clarkston Road, Independence Township. The steeple, which took an entire morning to erect, was given by David and Sally Leak of Clarkston in memory of their deceased son Jeffrey. The bells will be given by Billie Glennie of the Clarkston area in memorial of his late husband, Jim.

Anti-Diet Weight Loss
The New Alternative

SUFFERING IS OPTIONAL

If you have tried dieting in the past and failed, you are not alone. For many, diet is part of the problem, not its solution.

Thin people don't want to eat more than they should. So how come you do? When you learn to think about food the way thin people do, then you will eat casually amd controllably, just as they do.

Based on successful work with overeaters in therapy, this unique, ten-week program was developed to help heathy people to finally control their eating without the need for discipline and the constant struggle agaist tempation.

WHY WAIT?

This small-class experience is not another diet or food supplement program, but a new opportunity for a permanent change in your relationship with food and your body. You can be happy with both, NOW.

PREVIEW: April 26, 1990 7-9 p.m.

To give you a full description of this effective solution to over-eating, we offer a full, two-hour preview at our offices. Admission is $10. Call early to reserve you place, as seating is extremely limited.

Phase four of school renovation project is set

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The fourth phase of Clarkston's school renovation work will be completed by O'Brien/Waterford of Pontiac.

The board of education unanimously granted the bid award to O'Brien/Waterford for a total of $1.372 million.

The projects, part of a bond issue approved by voters two years ago, include the following:

* Handicap restrooms for Clarkston Elementary, Bailey Lake and Andersonville.
* Restroom restoration at Clarkston Elementary, Bailey Lake, Andersonville and Pine Knob.
* Computerized fuel distribution at the bus garage.
* New fuel storage tanks at the bus garage.
* New parking lot and driveway at Bailey Lake.
* Emergency lighting, public address system and fire alarm at Bailey Lake.
* New boiler at Clarkston Elementary.
* Satellite kitchen at Andersonville.
* Fire alarm and emergency lighting at Clarkston High School.
* Air conditioning in the data room in the administrative offices.

Although initial estimates of the project were set at $1.489 million, the contractor agreed to deduct window replacements at Sashabaw Junior High School to bring the project cost within budget.

O'Brien/Waterford competed with three other companies for the project.

16 granted tenure

An unusually large number of teachers were granted tenure status by the Clarkston Board of Education April 9.

The tenure becomes effective at the end of the 1990-91 school year.

Bill Neff, director of administrative services, told the board that he "couldn't remember when this number had been recommended" for tenure.

Two fifth-graders give advice about their environment

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Puppies were the topmost concern of Airica Savage and Rebecca Lynady, both 11-year-old Bailey Lake Elementary students, but the environment, too, concerned the girls last week.

On a recent walk downtown, the girls stopped in The Clarkston News office to talk about an expectant dog that had been hanging around their school playground. It seems that a friend took it home and plans to give away the puppies when they're born.

But something else has been on their minds lately, said Airica.

"Maybe now is a good time to discuss it with you," Airica said, crossing her legs in the big chair in which she was sitting.

"I've always been a real lover of animals," she started, explaining that there's a lot of building occurring in the area, taking away the homes of deer and other animals.

"Especially in Clarkston and Rochester, there's a lot of people putting up shopping centers and hotels," Airica said. "But you know what? We can hold back now. We have enough."

Rebecca agreed.

"It's nice to have malls but not when the deer are paying for it," she said. "I've always liked this town. They have the forest part, and you have the town to go to. But now the forest is coming down."

The girls — Airica of Sashabaw Road and Rebecca of Holcomb Road — have heard all about Earth Day from their schools, which made them think about the environment in their own town, they said. And their parents, too, have talked about the changes that have taken place in their lifetimes.

"Take Troy, for example," said Airica. "They don't have any forests. ... I hope to God that Clarkston does not turn into one of those rush-hour places. ... We care about what it's going to be like when we get old."

"People come here to relax," said Rebecca. "And here it's kind of quiet."

She offered some advice to builders.

"Tell the people that are making malls, ... they should keep it 50 percent malls and the other percent trees. If they start building stuff, it's not going to be the place people want to live."

Airica, too, offered a direct plea to developers.

"My message to people is to chill out on the malls," she said. "We're going to have all our lives to go to malls, but we're not going to have our whole lives to enjoy animals. ... There's always a gift in stock, but there's not always an animal in stock."

"Yeah," said Rebecca. "We need malls, but not so many. ... We don't want the whole whole world to be built on malls."

"We're going to have all our lives to go to malls, but we're not going to have our whole lives to enjoy animals."

SECTION 2

From mouths of babes:

Second-graders pledge to save the earth

Pupils in Mrs. Weightman's second-grade class at Andersonville Elementary School were asked to pledge changes for Earth Day. Following is a sampling of what they came up with.

I, Rocky Bud Lund, pledge to help the earth by picking up any trash I see.

I Mike Bennett, pledge to help the earth by after using something, don't throw it away. Use it again.

I Jaime Ann Reynolds, pledge to help the earth by turning off the lights, and I will recycle my pop cans.

I, Mike Walrer, pledge to help the earth by picking up all the garbage in my neighborhood.

I, Tamra Sommers, pledge to help the earth by telling my parents that they should recycle the stuff we use.

I, Derrick Leon Geoff, pledge to help the earth by telling them to stop cutting the trees down and stop putting gas in water.

I, Anthony Facione, pledge to help the earth by picking up garbage in the lakes and ponds to keep it clean. Also, make sure that nobody pollutes.

I, Daniel James Wayne, pledge to help the earth by telling others to stop littering. If they did more, they would pay $1,000.

I, Stephen Mays, pledge to help the earth by cleaning and recycling bottles.

I, Sarah Jane Booth, pledge to help the earth by: If I find a glass bottle, I can take it to the recycling center.

I, Jackie Ann Douglas, pledge to help the earth by picking up trash in the park and everything I see all over.

60 ways to help Earth

KITCHEN

1. Keeping a gallon of water in the refrigerator for drinking purposes saves water. Letting the tap run until the water is cold wastes as much as a gallon of water.

2. You use an average of 30 gallons of water washing dishes with the tap running.

3. It takes a half gallon of water to cook a pot of macaroni and one gallon to wash the pot.

4. Installing low flow aerators on kitchen and bathroom sink faucets will save hot water and will cut water usage for a family of four over 3,300 gallons of water per year.

5. In your refrigerator and freezer are 10 degrees colder than necessary (38-24 degrees for refrigerators, 0-5 degrees for freezers) your energy consumption will increase up to 25 percent.

6. If all U.S. households had the most efficient refrigerators available, the electricity savings would eliminate the need for about 12 large nuclear plants. Generally, refrigerator models that have the refrigerator and freezer side by side use 35 percent more energy than models with the freezer on top. Models with manual defrost use 50 percent less electricity than those with automatic defrost.

7. Over 100 million cats and dogs in America. An estimated 50 million flea collars, many of which contain toxic chemicals, are used and discarded into landfills every year. Two alternatives to flea collars are: adding brewers yeast and garlic to your pet's food; or running orange or grapefruit skins through a blender or food processor, simmer with water and after pulp is cooled brush into pet's fur with your hands. Use only the fruit's skin because the juice will make the coat sticky.

BATH

8. About 75 percent of the water we use in our homes is used in the bathroom.

9. You could take a shower every day with the water you might waste by letting the tap run while you shave and brush your teeth. Brushing with the water running can use 10-15 gallons of water; shaving can use 10-20 gallons.

10. If a four-member family takes five-minute showers every day, they will use more than 700 gallons of water per week, a three-year drinking supply for one person. You can cut water use in the shower up to 70 percent by installing a "low or restricted flow" showerhead. This saves on water use and heating costs. The showerheads cost from $10-20 at your local hardware or plumbing store. If a four-member family who takes five-minute showers every day installed a low-flow showerhead, they would save at least 14,000 gallons of water each year. For 10,000 similar families, the savings would be 140 million gallons and for 100,000 similar families, the savings would be 1.4 billion gallons.

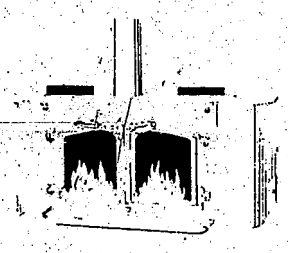
11. In a recent study, experts found that changing to a low-flow showerhead saved 27 cents per day on water and 51 cents per day of electricity so a low-flow showerhead will pay for itself in about 20 months.

12. Forty percent of the water used in the home is flushed down the toilet — 5-7 gallons for each flush. Using a "displacement device" or toilet dam can cut the amount of water used by a toilet 15-14 percent. If only 10,000 people installed the simplest displacement device, 29-58 million gallons of water a year would be saved.

13. The smallest drip from a leaky faucet can waste over 50 gallons of water a day. In six months, a leaking toilet wastes 45,000 gallons.

HEAT-ENERGY

14. An open fireplace damper can let 8 percent of your heat escape through the chimney.



15. Contrary to popular belief, small appliances don't add much to your electric bill.

16. Trees properly planted around your home can cut your energy bills and use of electricity 10-15 percent during the summer.

17. Heating water is generally the second largest energy user in the home. The average annual energy bill for America's hot tubs is $200 million.

18. Oil and gas hot water heaters are generally at least 40 percent more efficient than electric heaters. For every 10 degrees you turn down your hot water heater, you save six percent of the energy used.

19. If all consumers raised the setting on their air conditioners by six degrees, we could save 190,000 barrels of oil every day. Switching your air conditioner to a colder setting will not cool your room any faster and will waste energy. Cleaning or replacing your air conditioner filters once a month will consume less electricity.

20. Forty percent of the energy you use in your home is for heat. If your heating system is running inefficiently, 30-50 percent of the energy it uses is wasted. You can cut your heating bill by two percent for every degree you turn down the thermostat. If every U.S. household lowered its average heating temperature by six degrees over a 24-hour period, we would save the energy equivalent of 500,000 barrels of oil every day.

Earth tips

21. Home heating is responsible for emitting 350 million tons of carbon into the atmosphere every year, which means over a billion tons of the most prevalent greenhouse gas, carbon dioxide. About 12 percent of U.S. emissions of sulfur oxide and nitrogen oxide (key causes of acid rain) come from home heating. A house heated with electricity from a coal-fired plant is responsible for the release into the air of a couple hundred pounds of nitrogen oxides and as much as 400-500 pounds of sulfur oxides each year, creating over 1,500 pounds worth of acid rain.

22. Nearly half or all energy used in hour homes is wasted — out the window or through the attic, cracks or other leaks. Every winter, the energy equivalent of all the oil that flows through the Alaskan pipeline in a year leaks through American windows. If every gas-heated home was properly caulked and weatherstripped, the natural gas saved annually would be enough to heat about four million homes.

23. Attic insulation can save five percent or more on heating costs and 15 percent on air conditioning costs, depending on the climate. In some climates, new insulation can pay for itself in a single season. In most climates, it takes only one or two years.

24. To mine the uranium needed to provide only one house with nuclear electricity, eight tons of dirt must be moved, leaving a residue of one-third of a ton of uranium mill tailings.

25. Most American households waste half the energy they consume, with the average home guzzling 1,253 gallons of oil a year at a cost of $1,123.

LAUNDRY

26. Washing machines use about 14 percent of the water consumed in the home, 32-59 gallons of water for each cycle. You will save much water if you wait until you have a full load of wash. Up to 90 percent of the energy used for washing clothes goes to heating the water. A warm wash and cold rinse will clean clothes as well as hot water on nearly all clothes. A front-loading washing machine uses one-third less water and two-thirds less soap than a top loader. A typical family of four could save 5,304 gallons of water a year with a front loading washer.

YARD-OUTSIDE

27. You can use up to 150 gallons of water washing your car with a hose. A trigger nozzle on your hose will save at least 20 gallons of water.

28. Using a broom, not a hose, to clean driveways, sidewalks and steps saves hundreds of gallons of water.

29. The average American family generates 1,200 pounds of organic garbage every year.

30. An estimated 20 million acres of lawn are in the U.S. and some 600 trillion grass plants. For most types of grass, the proper length is two to three inches long to encourage healthier roots and provide natural shade for the ground, which enhances soil moisture retention.

31. Most established lawns need one inch of water a week, applied slowly to prevent runoff. Avoiding overwatering lawns can save 12 percent of a homeowner's water use during the summer, which increases as much as 30 percent, an average of over 50 gallons per week. If 100,000 lawnowners did it, five million gallons of water would be saved.

32. Homeowners use up to 10 times more toxic chemicals per acre than farmers. The average homeowner uses five to 10 pounds per lawn for a national total of 25-50 million pounds. The phosphate used on American lawns each year is equal to about one-third of that used to grow food for the population of India. If even 10 percent of lawnowners began using organic pesticides, 2.5 to 5 million pounds of toxic chemicals would be removed from the environment every year.

33. Every year, we throw away 24 million tons of leaves and grass, with leaves alone accounting for 75 percent of the solid waste stream in the fall. If every lawnowner composted grass clippings, landfill congestion could be cut by 18 percent during the summer and spring.

DISPOSABLE DIAPERS

34. Americans throw away 18 billion disposable diapers every year, enough to go to the moon and back seven times. About one percent of all of America's landfill space is occupied by disposable diapers, which can take up to 500 years to decompose. Manufacturers recommend that disposable diapers be washed out before discarding them, but only five percent do. This means that every year up to three million tons of untreated feces and urine end up in landfills rather than in the sewage system every year.

35. Disposable diapers annually consume 1.265 million metric tons of wood pulp and 75,000 metric tons of plastic — over one billion trees.

PACKAGING

36. About 75 percent of all glass, 50 percent of all paper, 30 percent of all plastic, eight percent of all steel and 40 percent of all aluminum in this nation is used solely to package and decorate consumer products.

37. Packaging waste accounts for about one-third of all solid waste sent to landfills. For the average American, one-third of your solid waste is packaging, which is tossed out immediately.

38. The U.S. packaging industry spends $28 billion a year to bring everything from televisions to toasters into our homes. Consumers spend another $3 billion a year to collect and dispose of these items.

39. If 10 percent of Americans purchased products with less plastic packaging just 10 percent of the time, we could eliminate 144 million pounds of plastic from our landfills.

40. One of every $11 spent by consumers in grocery stores is used to pay for packaging costs. Americans spent more for food packaging in 1989 than the nation's farmers received in net income.

AUTOMOBILES-TIRES

41. Some 240-260 million tires are discarded annually in the United States. If all new tires were retreaded once, the demand for synthetic rubber would be cut by about one-third; tire disposal problems would be cut in half; and substantial energy savings would be realized. IT takes 15,700 BTUs to produce one pound of virgin rubber, but only 4,600 BTUs to produce one pound of recycled rubber — a savings of 71 percent.

42. Keeping tires properly inflated preserves the life of the tire and saves gasoline. It is estimated that 50-80 percent of the one-half billion tires in the U.S. are underinflated, which can waste up to five percent of a car's fuel by increasing "rolling resistance." More than 65 million car owners could substantially boost their car's fuel efficiency by putting more air in their tires, which could save up to two billion gallons of gas a year.

43. Radial tires improve gas mileage with steel-belted tires generally being the most efficient. If all cars in the U.S. were equipped with the most efficient tires possible, the fuel savings would equal 400,000 barrels of oil per day.

44. Cars give off 20 pounds of carbon dioxide for every gallon of gasoline used, so the higher the cars mpg, the less it pollutes. A well-tuned car uses nine percent less gasoline than a poorly-tuned car. It only 100,000 car owners who have neglected tuneups started getting them regularly, 90 million pounds of carbon dioxide could be kept out of the atmosphere every year. For a million car owners (less than one percent), it would keep out nearly one billion pounds of carbon dioxide.

45. Americans use about a billion gallons of motor oil every year, and 350 million gallons of it end up in the environment. It is estimated that 40 percent of the pollution in American waterways is from used crankcase oil—about 2.1 million tons of it finds its way into our rivers and streams every year.

46. When used motor oil is poured into the ground, it can seep into the groundwater and contaminate drinking water supplies. A single quart of motor oil can pollute 250,000 gallons of drinking water. Pouring oil onto the street or into the sewer is just like pouring it directly into a stream or river. One pint of used motor oil can create a poisonous oil slick and acre in diameter. Putting used oil in your trash is essentially the same as pouring it out because it will end up in a landfill and will eventually seep into the ground.

47. Americans drive more than a trillion miles per year. In one year, traffic congestion alone wasted three billion gallons of gasoline, about five percent of the nation's annual gas consumption. On an average, the 135 million cars in America are estimated to travel over three billion miles a day, burning over 82 million gallons of gasoline, which emits about 1.5 billion tons of carbon dioxide.

48. One-third of all private auto mileage is racked up commuting to and from work. The average commuter car carries only 1.3 riders. If each commuter car carried just one more person, we'd save 600,000 gallons of gasoline a day and would prevent 12 million pounds of carbon dioxide from polluting the atmosphere.

MISCELLANEOUS

49. If 25 percent of American homes used 10 fewer plastic bags a month, we'd save over 2.5 million bags a year.

50. Think twice before taking any type of grocery bag when making small purchases. If every American shopper took just one bag less each month, we could save hundreds of millions of bags each year.

51. A handful of baking soda and one-half cup of vinegar will help keep drains clean. Pour in drain, cover tightly for one minute, then rinse with hot water.

52. Spray air fresheners deaden your nasal passages or coat them with oil and may contain chemicals like xylene, ethanol or naphthalene.

53. The amount of garbage a typical American will throw away in a lifetime will equal at least 600 times their adult weight. The average American family produces about 100 pounds of trash every week.

54. Americans buy and throw away 500 million disposable cigarette lighters every year.

55. Every day Americans eat 3 million gallons of ice cream, 75 acres of pizza, 1.3 million TV dinners and 5,000 tons of candy; go through 69,000 gallons of mouthwash, 20 million catalogs, 52,000 pairs of running shoes, 190,000 watches, 120,000 refrigerators, 10,000 stoves, 120,000 radios, 50,000 TV sets, and 500,000 auto tires; buy 4 million pencils, 4,100 Swiss army knives, 833,000 pairs of jeans, 187,000 tons of cement, 574,000 new record albums, 35,000 new coffee makers, 13,200 new guns and 9.3 million pairs of socks.

56. Americans receive over 5,000 tons of junk mail each day, 44 percent of which is never opened or read. If all Americans stopped their junk mail, we could keep two million tons of solid waste out of landfills every year.

57. The household products on supermarket shelves contain more than 55,000 chemicals, and little testing has been done to assess their toxicity individually or in combination. Hazardous wastes often found in the home include paints and paint thinners, car batteries, oven and drain cleaners, mothballs, floor and furniture polish, brake or transmission fluid, antifreeze, rug and upholstery cleaners, pesticides and furniture strippers. Even toilet cleaning products are considered hazardous.

58. According to Environmental Hazards Management, it has been estimated that in an average city of 100,000 residents, 3.75 tons of toilet bowl cleaner, 13,75 tons of liquid household cleaners and 3.44 tons of motor oil are discharged into city drains each month.

59. About 70 percent of the garbage Americans create is compostable, including yard, food, paper and wood waste.

60. Every year Americans throw out: enough aluminum to rebuild the entire American air fleet 71 times; enough steel to rebuild Manhattan; enough wood and paper to heat 5 million homes for 200 years; 1.6 billion disposable pens; 2.2 billion disposable razors; 2.5 billion disposable batteries and 2 million (17 million worldwide) disposable cameras.

Community provides Easter baskets

Easter baskets brimmed with goodies and food baskets with enough staples for an Easter dinner were distributed to families in need of emergency assistance.

Lighthouse North, a non-profit organization based in Independence Township, supplied 37 families with baskets for Easter because of the generosity of the community, said Sherry Kaars, director of the organization.

Kaars attributed the overwhelming response of donations to a small article that appeared in The Clarkston News on April 4.

"Help was just forthcoming," she said. "It was wonderful."

About 20 National Honor Society students from Brandon High School volunteered to fill the baskets, Kaars said. Another Brandon student, Brian Withun, helped distribute baskets April 12.

Our Lady of the Lakes School in Waterford and local areas churches also helped with donations, Kaars said.

In each basket Kaars included a list and times of the Easter services of the churches that donated to Lighthouse North: St. Anne Catholic Church, Ortonville; St. Daniel Catholic Church, Clarkston; Sashabaw Presbyterian Church, Clarkston; Calvary Lutheran Church, Clarkston; and Clarkston United Methodist Church.

Breads, baked goods and roasting chickens were also donated by local area stores.

Families in need of emergency assistance may apply at Lighthouse North, 5331 Maybee Rd., Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. For more information, call 673-4949.

Driving costs up 8 percent

After two years of double-digit increases, the cost of owning and operating a typical new car rose 7.8 percent compared to last year, AAA Michigan reports.

New car owners who drive 15,000 miles annually can expect to pay an average $4,954 — up 2.4 cents to 33 cents per mile — for gasoline, financing, taxes, license, maintenance and insurance, according to the 1990 "Your Driving Costs."

A smaller increase in insurance expenses was the main reason driving costs rose at an overall lower rate. Driving costs increased 12 percent in 1989 and 10 percent in 1988.

Other operating expenses include:

- Gasoline and oil — 5.4 cents per mile or $810 a year, up $15 from 1989.
- Maintenance — 2.1 cents per mile or $315, a $30 increase.
- Tires — .9 cent per mile or $135, $15 higher than last year.
- Finance charges — increased from $588 to $638.

Averages were compiled after testing a subcompact four-cylinder Ford Escort LX, a mid-sized six-cylinder Ford Taurus L and an eight-cylinder full-sized Chevrolet Caprice — each equipped with automatic transmission, power steering, disc brakes and cruise control.

Pet of the Week

He's a sparkler

Sparky, 6 months, can put a spark in your life. The spaniel-mix male puppy has a friendly personality and would be good with children.

He'll grow to about 40 pounds in adulthood, according to a shelter worker.

He's not housebroken yet but is trainable. The $70 adoption fee includes neutering.

Sparky can be seen at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Law practice moves

Thomas Raguso

Attorney Thomas Raguso of Independence Township moved his law practice from Bloomfield to the Village of Clarkston April 2.

"I've always like it here," he said. "It's really neat to be in the village and be able to walk around."

Now located at 21 S. Main St., his general law practice still covers "people law" — real estate, automobile accidents, tickets, divorce and more, he said.

A Boyne Highland Trail resident for 17 years, he has been in practice 23 years.

He and his wife, Sherrill, have three children: Kevin, Leslie and Tony.

Raguso is a member of St. Daniel Catholic Church, Clarkston, where he sings in the choir. He also sings as a hobby, creates cartoons and plays in a golf league.

Performer ranges from blues to pop

Now taking place in the historic Century Chapel of Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church on Maybee Road, Independence Township, the Possum Corner Coffee House presents Anne Hills at 8 p.m. Friday, April 21.

Hills, originally from Michigan but now living in Pennsylvania, performs contemporary folk, blues, pop and country music in a luminous voice comparable to Joni Mitchell, Judy Collins or Joan Baez.

Accompanying herself on acoustic guitar, Hills performs a handful of her own songs but also introduces the songs of the brightest new writers. The purpose of her music, she states, is to touch people's lives and to expose them to different music or ideas.

Her latest album, "Woman of a Calm Heart," reflecting her eclectic selection, will be for sale at the concert.

Tickets are $7 for adults, $5 for seniors over age 60, $5 for children ages 6-15 and free for children ages 5 and under. They're available at all Ticketmaster outlets and at The Book Place in Lake Orion.

For more information, call 625-1227.

ANNE HILLS performs contemporary folk, blues, pop and country music.

OFFICIAL NOTICE

VILLAGE OF CLARKSTON
375 Depot Road
Clarkston, Michigan 48016
Village Council
Minutes of Regular Meeting
April 9, 1990

Meeting called to order by President Catallo at 7:40 p.m. followed by the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

Roll: Present: Basinger, Catallo, Haven, Mauti, Roeser, Schultz. Absent: None.

Moved by Haven, "That the minutes of March 26, 1990, be accepted with one correction on the Zoning Board of Appeals appointments (James instead of David Huttenlocher)." Seconded by Schultz. Motion carried.

The agenda was amended with the addition of Old Business, No. 6 Safety Paths, and tabling of Item No. 4, Appointments.

A joint meeting with the Planning Commission was opened to discuss the proposed zoning amendment for funeral homes.

President Catallo reported that funeral homes located in nearby communities in what appeared to be residential districts were actually zoned business or commercial. She felt that there were two ways to fill in area requirements to the zoning amendment: 1) Fit the requirements to the Goyette property and require ZBA to approve, as present area available does not fit suggested area requirements from other ordinances, or 2) Spot zoning as business which the Council has always avoided doing. President Catallo stated that she had originally believed there would be a way to accommodate this zoning; however, she couldn't at the present time see how it can be handled. Her concern was how can it be handled without going to the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Attorney Tom Gruich stated that the problem that the attorneys faced was to either custom make the ordinance amendment to fit the problem (similar to spot zoning) and try to anticipate the future problems, or the numbers (areas) you would normally expect and realize that the ZBA would have to be called upon to make decisions. There is no easy solution. Other communities have zoned property commercial, but that opens up another "Pandora's box" with no easy answers.

Trustee Schultz stated that he saw no problem at first, but now can see all kinds of problems to the ZBA in the future. He stated he had problems with this and sees many problems to ZBA later because it is a business.

Trustee Haven stated that the Council has to address this. When you write a problem around a specific lot, it would apply to all houses all which would make a beautiful funeral home. It looks like this issue could be repeated. It is very difficult for the Council to make this decision. The Council tries to be consistent but it could adopt this zoning amendment and be criticized for being partial.

Trustee Basinger stated that the Council can't focus on who is requesting but what is requested. People requesting are best of community, but what would future owners do to property? We have to be concerned about what a future owner would do with it. Two issues: Non conforming use funeral home and second issue, residential lot would be used for commercial use (parking). Special uses in residential area are normally public uses (schools, etc.), no commercial uses. Trustee Basinger further stated he had real problems with commercial use on residential property, it would allow other funeral homes in town. Residential property is cheaper than commercial property and it opens up to more funeral homes in the area. We are looking at a special exception which is not a good way to go.

Harold Goyette stated that the previously mentioned Harlton request had nothing to do with his Funeral Home which has been in existence since 1921. The Harlton request was for new business. This was the only funeral home between Pontiac and Flint for years.

President Catallo stated that there is no simple way to do this, to be giving them what they want and protecting the Village. It can be used as an example for future developments. President Catallo stated that this was difficult for her to deal with.

Charles Smalley stated that all other communities have worked with funeral homes to have them stay in town. He would hate to see them deny this request.

Steve Arkwright of the Planning Commission stated that they did try to come up with a solution, there are holes in the zoning amendment under consideration. There was a big effort made to try to make it work.

Harold Goyette stated that if the Clarkston Cafe would have been told that they couldn't expand that would have hurt their business. When you keep business tied down to what they were years ago, it hurts the business. He can't improve the business unless he expands.

Sharron Catallo stated she was willing to turn it over to the attorney or whatever the Council desired to do, if it would work. She wouldn't be doing her job if she just filled in the area requirements on the proposed zoning amendment.

Jerry Hunter of the Planning Commission stated that some of the thinking was that the zoning amendment could be made so "tight" that this would be set up so that the problem at hand would go to the ZBA to handle.

Trustee Roeser asked what criteria would the ZBA use?

Trustee Schultz stated that historically the lumber company and gas station are two other businesses going on and he could foresee pressure on the ZBA for changes.

Trustee Mauti stated that this has been on the agenda for two months and the Council should take action on it.

Marty Johnston of the Planning Commission questioned if this was a hardship for a variance.

Attorney Tom Gruich stated that the Goyette property was made part of a district R-2 and that appeared to be a good decision. The next question was, can this make a district to be zoned commerical; if it is zoned commercial, any commercial use is allowed. There are businesses that have been here a long time, but once zoning regulations have been passed, that are reasonable and right, that is the way it is.

Attorney Tom Gruich further stated that a way to allow the Goyette Funeral Home to expand has no easy answer. The only solution is the discretionary approach. Maybe their attorney could come up with a better idea. The amendment would allow you to do what you want to do. If you were to rezone as commercial, then you would have to rezone parking to commercial. The issue is dealing with a non-conforming commercial use in a residential district. If you don't rezone, then you have to come up with another solution. Non-conforming will present a problem. There are not a lot of easy solutions to come with.

Harold Goyette stated that the State took parking off Main Street and this took one half of his parking away from him and it caused a hardship on him ever since. Parking has to be along the front for five to six automobiles.

Charles Smalley, Ordinance Enforcement Officer, stated that during visitations elderly citizens park on Miller Road. Additional parking would eliminate cars on Miller Road. This will eliminate parking problems the day of funerals. Historic district should consider this.

President Catallo stated that the next step would be to continue on to a public hearing. She asked the council for a motion. The attorney said that a public hearing was not called for at this time. The ordinance amendment is required for a public hearing.

President Catallo asked for a motion to adopt this amendment if the Council was interested in determining the area requirements needed to complete the amendment. The Village attorney said that land use was not his specialty, the village does not have a planner, and did not want to be responsible for the area requirements.

Harold Goyette stated that Lake Orion demolished house(s) to make proper frontage for a funeral home in the Village.

President Catallo asked the Council for a motion to continue with zoning ordinance amendment or to accept it. Trustee Haven stated that the amendment is not complete.

Trustee Schultz stated that because it is Harold and Norma Goyette, the Council wants to allow them to pursue the improvements to their Funeral Home; however, the same wouldn't be true for strangers, thus making rezoning difficult.

Trustee Roeser stated that the Council would not give a similar exception to the property across the street from the Funeral Home.

Attorney Gruich stated that the Council should establish parameters in this issue. The ZBA would interpret the zoning ordinance and grant special uses. You can't zone on concept of this ordinance. He suggested making a motion to vote on the whole amendment.

President Catallo offered the following suggestions for area requirements: 120 foot frontage on major thoroughfare right-of-way, R-2 requirement of 16,000 square feet, or larger than this because of parking. One Parking place for every 25 square feet in funeral home.

The Concept of Special Exception: The proposed ordinance would apply to lot next door for parking. The Council is not zoning Goyette property. Any R-2 lot could apply to ZBA for special exception. We are not zoning parcels, we are making general regulation for residential zone throughout the Village of Clarkston.

Attorney Gruich stated that because the issue for a rezoning is from the Planning Commission;, the Council has to have a Public Hearing on the amendment before it is adopted.

Trustee Schultz stated that if the zoning amendment doesn't fit the Goyette property, then why pass it. We can't help the Goyette's, but someone else new coming up with this may fit the requirements.

Tom Goldner from the Planning Commission said the commission had spent a lot of time working on this, and the Council should vote on whether the Council is going to accept it or not.

President Catallo stated that the Planning Commission did a good job, but the Council wanted the joint meeting for better understanding.

Trustee Roeser stated that the Planning Commission did a fine job, it is just not possible to put numbers (areas) in that will fill the need.

Trustee Basinger stated that in order to pass the amendment, numbers (areas) are required.

Attorney Gruich stated that the ZBA doesn't have to use the same standards with special use than are used in a variance. Over the years, special permits have not come up before the ZBA. A whole set of criteria is required. A section in the ordinance for special exceptions is not the same as hardship variances.

Trustee Basinger stated that he didn't see point of public hearing if there was no support for the amendment.

Trustee Basinger moved to approve the proposed amendment using special exceptions for funeral homes for submission to public hearing." Seconded by Schultz. Roll. Yeas: None. Nays. 6. Motion defeated.

President Catallo stated that it was extremely difficult making this decision.

Trustee Schultz complimented the Planning Commission for doing a good job on the research for this project. He felt the Planning Commission came up with the best possible solution, but there were too many difficulties in the proposed amendment.

Moved by Haven, "That bills in the amount of $24,708.95 be approved for payment." Seconded by Basinger. Roll. Yeas 6, Nays 0. Motion carried.

Trustee Roeser reported that he had ordered bare rooted trees for planting in the village and he was in the process of determining location for plantings, along with a tree to be planted for Earth Day.

Trustee Basinger reported that the Boundary Commission's response to the township's letter on annexation was that incorporation did not have anything to do with annexation.

Moved by Schultz, "That Susan Basinger, Jim Russell, and Kay Robertson be reappointed to the Historic District Commission for three year terms, 1990-93." Seconded by Mauti. Motion carried.

The Village Manager was instructed to correspond with Detroit Edison with regards to their tree program so that residents and the Village would be informed when trees were to be removed.

Moved by Roeser, "That the Village accept the bid from Quality Lawn Equipment for a John Deere Tractor Model 430 with attachments for a total of $8,665," Seconded by Mauti. Roll. Yeas 6, Nays 0. Motion carried.

Trustee Basinger announced that the date of the Cityhood election is now set for May 21, instead of May 14, 1990.

Moved by Basinger, "That the Village Council adopt the site plan upon the recommendation of the Planning Commission for the proposed change in Clarkston Corners from business to office." Applicant has shown sufficient parking for office use." Seconded by Schultz. Motion carried.

The Village Manager was instructed to contact the Michigan Citizens Lobby and inform them to register in the Township, and Mr. Smalley will be notified.

The Council tabled the matter of the extension of the safety paths on North Holcomb from Miller to the Village limits and on Main Street from Clarkston Road to the North Village limits. The Council felt the estimated cost of $20,000 was excessive and requested that the Village Engineer attend the next Council meeting for clarification of this matter.

Moved by Basinger, "That the Village Council adopt the General Fund Budget in the amount of $314,305 for the 1990-91 Fiscal Year." Seconded by Roeser. Roll: Yeas 6, Nays 0. Motion carried.

Moved by Basinger, "That the Village Council adopt the Local Street Budget in the amount of $29,000 for the 1990-91 Fiscal Year." Seconded by Roeser. Roll: Yeas 6, Nays 0. Motion carried.

Moved by Basinger, "That the Village Council adopt the Major Road Fund Budget in the amount of $65,220 for the 1990-91 Fiscal Year." Seconded by Roeser. Roll: Yeas 6, nays 0. Motion carried.

Moved by Roeser "That the revised Tri Party Agreement for the resurfacing of the safety path on White Lake Road be approved inthe amount of $9,116 with the Village portion being $4,861." Seconded by Basinger. Roll. Yeas 6, Nays 0. Motion carried.

Moved by Basinger, "That the Village Council authorize members of the Planning Commission and the Village Manager to attend the Commerical Revitalization Workshop to be held on May 3, 1990." Seconded by Catallo. Roll. Yeas 6, Nays 0. Motion carried.

Moved by Roeser, "That the meeting be adjourned." Seconded by Basinger. Meeting was adjourned at 9:45 p.m.

Respectfully submitted,
Artemus M. Pappas
Acting Clerk

130-IN MEMORIUM

TO MY DAD, RALPH (BUD) Hickmott, Jr., who passed away a year ago, April 20, 1989. Time cannot steal the treasures we carry in our hearts, nor ever dim the shining thoughts our cherished memories impart. The memories of you we've loved, still cast their gentle glow to grace our days where ever we go. Your place is only filled with loving memories in our hearts. I miss you Dad. Love, your daughter, Linda. !!!LX16-1*

Main Street renovation

This home features charm

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Begin with a 120-year-old wood farmhouse, add a lot of space, some fine materials and some excellent craftmanship; and you have the house at 80 N. Main St., Clarkston.

Owner Mike Lorimer bought the house two years ago to "test" the formal education he had just received at Lawrence Institute of Technology in Southfield.

"I had worked in my father's building business for quite a few years," Lorimer says. "I wanted a place to settle down and get things rolling on my own."

Stretched along a long, narrow lot next to the Independence Township Hall, the original structure measured only 1,500 square feet, with each room stacked behind the other.

"I had done some remodeling on older homes before buying this one," Lorimer says. "That's what interested me. It's difficult to get the character you have in some of these older houses."

Lorimer has enhanced the home's original Greek Revival design, most noticeably in the casings, moldings and door frames throughout the home.

Much of the molding is original, as are several of the heavy, five-paneled doors.

Other original features add grace to the classic home, such as an authentic tile and molded "heatilator" gracing the front parlor and an old elevator that still squeaks its way to the master bedroom.

Much of the home's new appeal results from several features designed by Lorimer, such as the massive brick fireplace dominating the family-room addition and an oak-encased, arched wet bar joining the family room and kitchen.

"It was time consuming," he admits. "I had a stack of drawings — I redesigned the fireplace seven times."

While the home has maintained its old-world charm, several added conveniences add to its modern-day appeal.

The structure boasts a new heating system, new electrical wiring, new sewage, new plumbing and all new appliances.

"It works as a new house," Lorimer states simply.

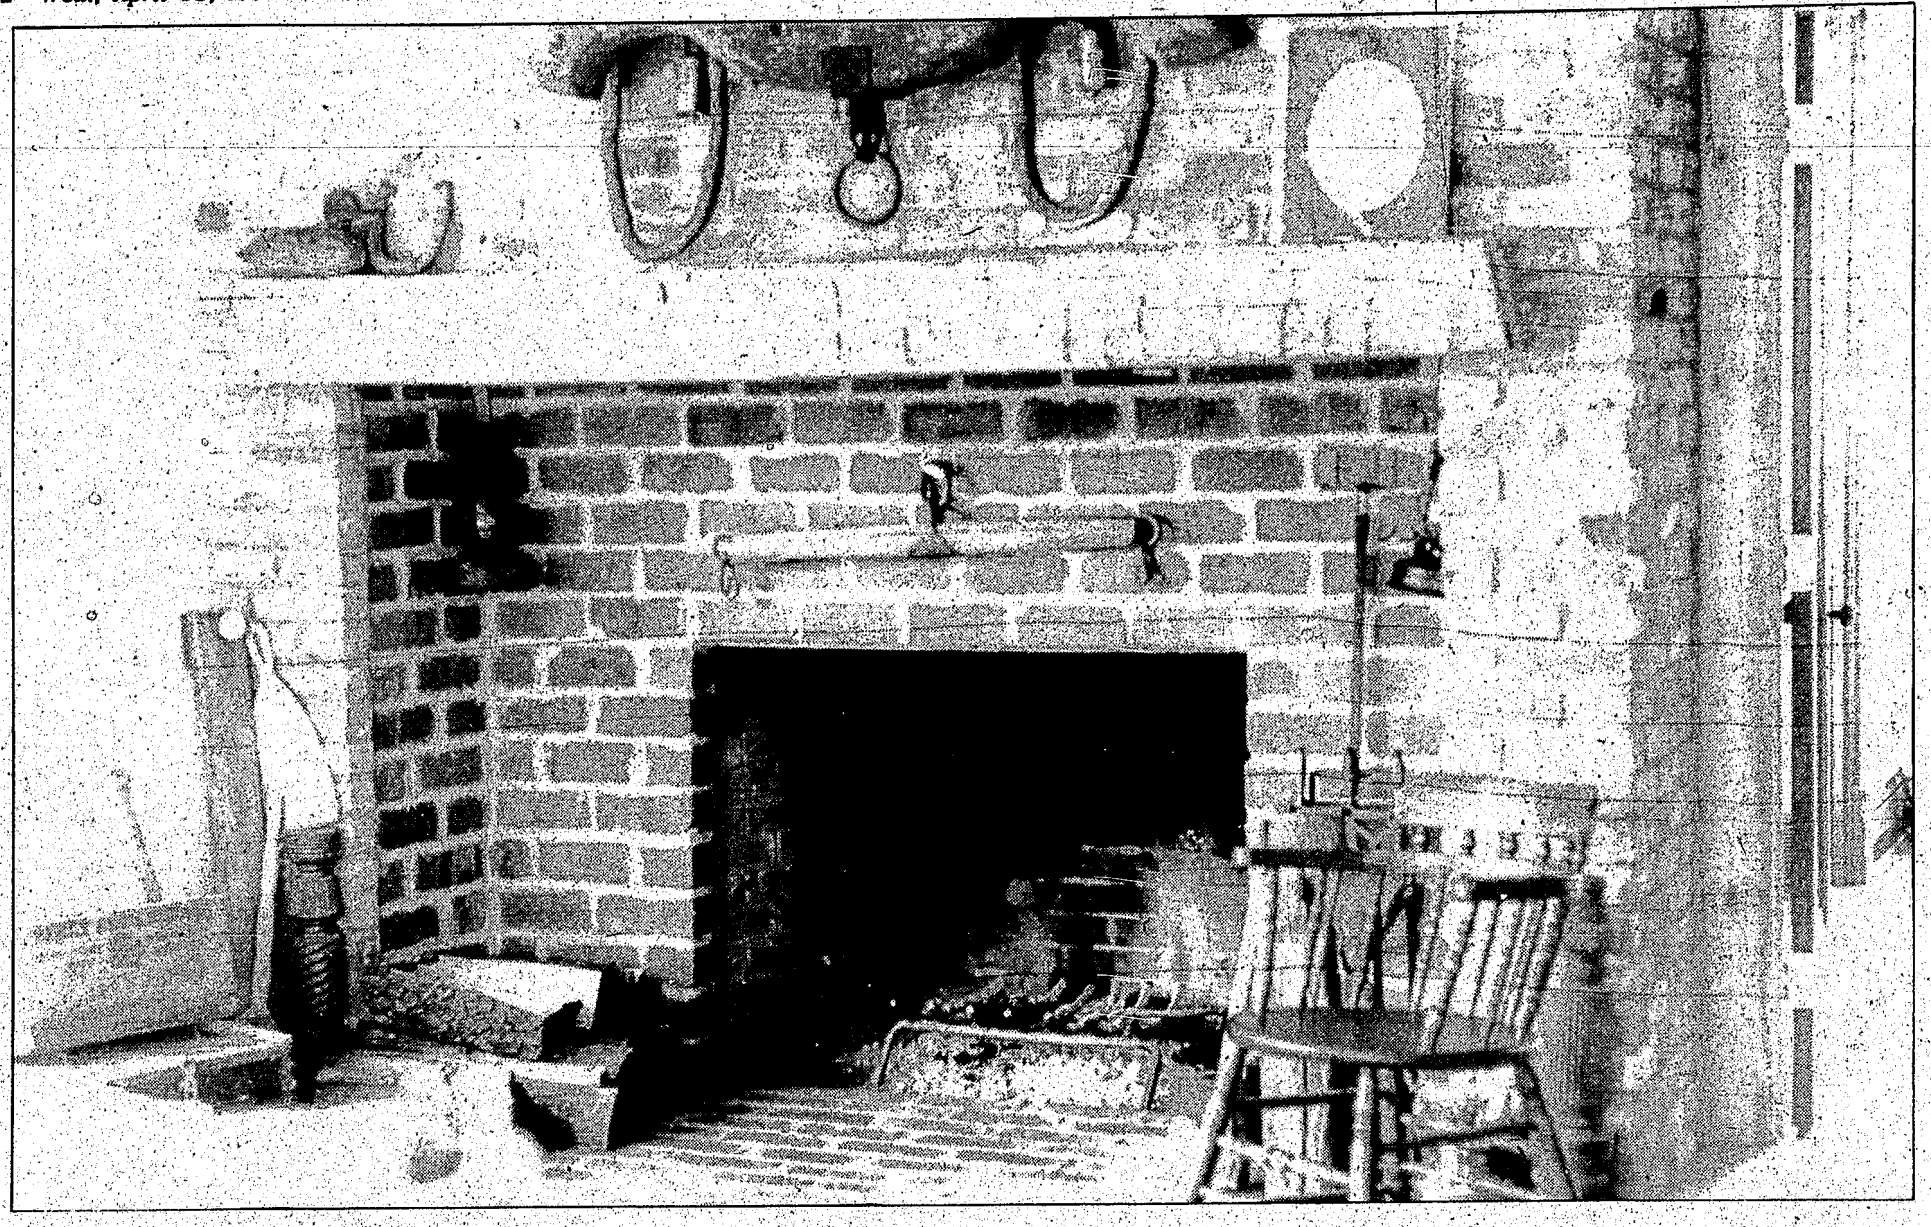
OWNER MIKE LORIMER bought the house to test the building skills he had acquired over the years in his father's building business and through his formal education in the building trade. Simply planning the transformation took over a year.

CHARACTER AND FUNCTIONALITY have been blended in this Main Street, Clarkston, farmhouse, recently renovated by owner Mike Lorimer. The house, first built in 1873, was doubled in size with much of the original material and design preserved.



A COUNTRY-KITCHEN FIREPLACE dominates a family room, which was added on to the original structure. The fireplace features a hand-hewn beam and was designed to resemble those used long ago for cooking. Notice how the shape of the brick and the high mantle allows better access to the flame.

A large brick fireplace with special English Fleming bond was flipped around from the dining room to face the kitchen, which Lorimer says "just seemed to make sense."

The attractive wet bar serves as a hallway into the family-room addition. The bar's ceiling is arched with thin planks of knotty pine, which matches the framing and cabinetry.

"It was time consuming. I had a stack of drawings -- I redesigned the fireplace seven times."

Mike Lorimer

The pine was "distressed" to give the wood an older appearance; it was then treated with two coats of Min-Wax stain.

A massive country-kitchen fireplace dominates the family room, which Lorimer says he "put a lot of thought into."

The shape is reminiscent of when fireplaces were used for cooking and is built higher than most to allow better access to the flame. A hand-hewed oak timber beam, used for the mantle, was discovered in a Clarkston-area barn.

Double beveled-glass French doors lead from the family room area to the dining room, toward the front of the house. This more "formal" section is part of what existed originally in the home.

The fluted casings and upper-corner blocks used around doorways in the parlor are carried through into the dining room. This detail is stained to provide more visual interest.

"That was the character that I had to start with," Lorimer says, gesturing to the unusual moldings around the door frame and fireplace.

Cornish moldings have been maintained on top of the ceiling; detail was created at a mill to fill in areas where it did not already exist.

In the front hall, the staircase leading to the second floor of the home was torn apart and reglued to add stability. The front door existed originally.

A cathedral ceiling extends over the master bedroom and an oversized bathroom area. A 14-foot wall separates the two areas, though the wall is open on top.

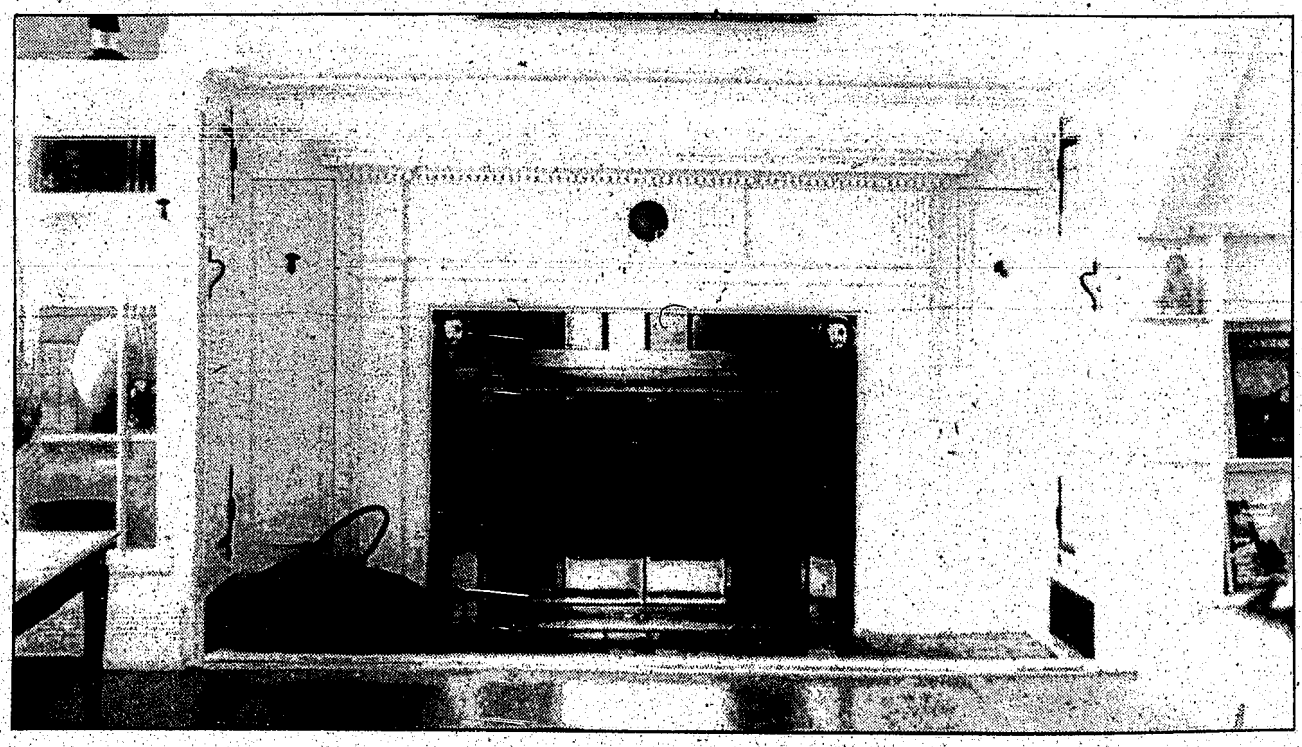
Lorimer now lives in the residence he has re-created and is understandably pleased with how the home has been transformed.

"I wanted to do a first-class job on the house," he says, proudly.



CHARACTER was maintained throughout the home while its modernization was underway. This unique heatilator, part of the original front parlor, still exists in all of its splendor. To the right, the staircase was dissembled and reglued for strength.

You know when your home needs redecorating. Every few years you take a look at that wallpaper and decide it's seen better days.

Soon, new patterns of paper adorn the dining room, new decorator tiles brighten the bathroom, new custom blended colors of paints enliven walls throughout your home.

Then it's time to take a good look at the furniture — that easy chair was a favorite some years back, but its age shows, and, overall, it detracts from the look and feel of your living room.

In the family room, that pull-out sofa isn't up to par, an reupholstering it won't change it enough.

Old prints come down in favor of new ones that have varied kids of mattings and styles of frames.

That wall-to-wall carpeting looked fine when the house was new, but not any more.

The end result: a clean, contemporary, casual look that suits your house and your lifestyle perfectly.

That's the inside. Now, how about the outside?

Does it project the image you want to present — the image you've worked hard to maintain on the inside?

Tour your property and examine it from all angles. Are the views pleasant from inside your house?

Are the trees, hedges, shrubs, flower beds, and gardens in good condition? Do you plantings effectively screen utilities, provide privacy, and contribute to the character of your home?

As you review your outdoors, think about your goals. The AAN reminds us that a fresh new look on the outside not only increases the beauty of your home, it boost its value.

Start by taking a few notes: jot down plantings that have become overgrown or scraggly, unnecessary or uninteresting.

You can become attached to that evergreen despite the fact that its branches have spread and bent with the weight of four winter snows.

And it may be difficult to remove such a familiar sight, but once you do, you'll be on your way to renewing the look and feel of your residence.

They can translate your ideas and wants into a crisp low-maintenance landscape.

Consulting with them will save you time and assure the best possible plant selections and design for your home.

Landscape designers will replace overgrown plants that hide the architectural character of your home with shrubs and trees that complement its unique qualities.

Let your landscape firm know what kind of effect you want — perhaps you'd like a new deck to replace old shrubbery, a fish pond, Japanese garden, exotic color, or a natural look.

Check magazines and collect pictures of what you like so you can talk about your ideas and preferences with the designer.

Take advantage of professional know-how and experience to help you create a new outdoors of new colors, shapes and textures — an arrangement of the best plants for your area and your purposes.

Hillside Gardens set aside for living memorials

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

On a sunny knoll behind Clarkston's Village Hall, between Depot Park and Main Street, exists a group of trees known as Hillside Gardens.

Some of the trees are Weeping Crab Apple; others are Mountain Ash, or Bradford Pear, or Spruce. Each one rises above a tiny plaque, with the name of the person for which it was planted.

The garden was planned as a way to honor loved ones who have died, explains Brad Meehle, who helped start Hillside Gardens nine years ago.

"It's a memorium," he says. "When people see the trees and they're real pretty like that, they walk up to see what type of tree it is."

The trees are purchased through Bordine's Better Blooms on Dixie Highway and are priced according to type and size.

The cost of the tree and the plaque can range from $90 to $350, Meehle estimates.

"All we do is make sure another tree is not (in the space) and conditions are adequate, he explains, adding that the area is open and the soil is porous.

About a dozen trees were planted during the first year of the garden's existence, but new plantings have slacked off since then, Meehle says.

"Word of mouth really got it started," he says. "Now there are so many people moving in and out of Clarkston that people just don't know about it.

"I'd like to see it go all the way to the bridge," he adds. "There's a lot of potential."

Planting a tree not only creates a memorial for the dead, it can also help the living.

To order a memorial in Hillside Gardens, contact Meehle at 625-9500.

Light up your landscape

If you take pride in your grounds — the tasteful trees, the statuesque shrubbery, the beautiful garden — why not enjoy them by night as well as by day?

The right lighting outdoors allows you to derive the full benefits of costly landscaping after the sun goes down.

And it provides better safety and security.

Check with your local lighting shop for tips on selecting the best fixtures, bulbs and power supplies.

Does your security need review?

As homeowners spring clean their yards and spruce up building exteriors, they should also take some time to protect homes against break-ins which occur, every six minutes statewide, AAA Michigan advises.

"The best way to prevent a burglary is to keep your home looking occupied, and reinforce deadbolt lock strikeplates and window sash locks with longer screws to make them more difficult to open," according to AAA.

Although some people spend thousands of dollars on high-tech security systems, making a few cost-free or inexpensive improvements may be sufficient to deter intruders.

AAA suggests:

■ Keep windows and doors closed and locked. Statistics show that 25 percent of all burglaries occur in unlocked homes. Never leave keys under a doormat or in a mailbox.

■ Installing a 150-watt exterior light near entrances can discourage potential burglars, who don't want to be seen by neighbors. Also a photelectric cell can automatically turn on floodlights at dusk.

■ Try polycarbonate sheets in window frames. The material is stronger than glass and can discourage at attempted entry through a window.

■ Resists break-ins better than core wood doors. Also provides better heat insulation.

■ A circular-shaped lock that snugs window frames tightly, making windows more secure, because they can't be pried open with a pocket knife.

Installing floor tile is easy with right equipment

I would like to install floor and wall ceramic tile in my bathroom. How complicated would this project be?

The process of installing floor and wall ceramic tile — cutting, applying and grouting — is relatively easy if you have a few important tools.

The preparation of the substrate upon which the tile will be set can be more difficult and is the most important aspect of the job.

The area you want to tile will determine what substrate you will need.

In wet or high moisture areas, the best backing is concrete.

It was the norm in most old homes to pour concrete or terrazzo in bathrooms, which would provide an excellent base for floor ceramic tile.

If concrete is not feasible, a cementitious board similar to Durock or Wonderboard is the next best backing.

The preparation of the substrate upon which the tile will be set can be more difficult and is the most important aspect of the job.

This material can be screwed to existing wood flooring or interior walls or applied directly to wall framing.

The material used to bond the tile to the substrate once again is available for wet and dry areas.

A thin set (up to 3/8-inch layer) cementitious product is recommended for all areas but definitely needed in wet areas, and a "double duty" mastic is available for other areas.

The floor and walls must be smooth and free of foreign materials before any setting bed is applied.

Also, when starting out, do small sections at a time so the adhesives do not dry out.

The few tools necessary for installing ceramic tile usually can be rented from tile stores.

The main tools are one or two notched trowels for applying the setting bed, a cutter, hand-held "nippers" and a rubber trowel for grouting.

Have the store personnel demonstrate how to use the cutter, as it is very easy if used properly.

Joints between the tile are determined by backing glued to small tiles, which come in sections.

Larger tiles can be set close together (1/16 inch apart to reduce the amount of grout where mildew can grow) or farther apart, which makes grouting easier and bonding better.

If you choose to use different colored grouts to create a pattern between the tiles, you may want your joints to be 1/8 inch to 1/16 inch or more.

After the grouting is finished as per product recommendations, a sealer is available to cure the pores, reducing the ability of dirt and mildew to penetrate the grout.

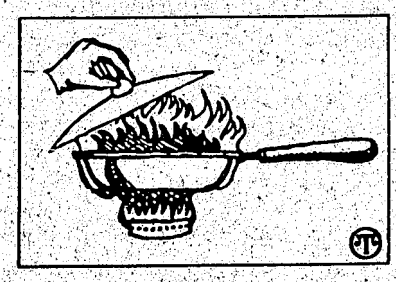
Prevent kitchen burn injuries



Safety is no accident, especially in the kitchen. You should know how to prevent cooking-related fires that can lead to burn injuries.

The fire department should be called to check for hot spots and to ensure that the fire has not spread.

Do not dump the pan contents into the sink or spray with water. Allow the covered frying container to cool for two hours before removal.

If the contents of a frying pan do ignite, turn off the heat and extinguish the fire by covering the pan immediatcly with a lid or by using an appropriate fire extinguisher.

Never pour hot oil back into its original container since it's not designed to withstand the high temperatures reached by oils during cooking; wait for it to cool.

The planting of just one tree can help to cool the atmosphere and reverse the alarming trend toward global warming.

If you plant shade trees on the south and west sides of your home, you can help to regulate your environment.

Trees planted in these locations protect your home from the summer sun, and allow the sun to shine through in the winter after the leaves have fallen.

This will dramatically save fuel consumption of heat in the winter, and reduce the need for cooling in the summer.

Now you can actually fight the threat of global warming with a double edged sword; while you are helping to cut down consumption of fossil fuels, you're also cutting the percentage of dangerous gasses produced by the burning of these fuels.

If that isn't enough, you will also save money on your utility bill and add value to your home and property.

Trees are beautiful as well as functional; they symbolize new life in the spring, and are a painter's canvas in the fall.

Some trees produce fruit, and others bloom, but they all mark the slow passing of time.

Who can't recall saying "I remember when that tree was only this tall?"

Trees provide benefits both for you personally and for your community.

Think of the the prettiest neighborhood in your town. Aren't the trees an indispensable element in your mental picture of it?

It all adds up to one simple fact: trees are good for you! Consult your local lawn and garden professional for suggestions on the type of trees best suited for your purposes, and guidance as to where your trees will be best located on your little piece of the world.

Help the environment, your community, your utility bill, and your home by planting a tree today.

Mirrors reflect larger space

In the bedrooms, mirrored closet doors can make an ordinary-sized room seem luxuriously spacious and will also come in handy for checking hemlines, etc.

Mirrored shower doors are also available to expand that very small bathroom.

Besides creating a feeling of spaciousness, mirrors can add a real not of elegance to their surroundings.

Small alcoves, such as those used for dressing areas and wet bars will especially benefit from the use of mirrors.

Tips to keep moths from dining on your clothes

Though the damage may seem minimal, even a small hole means a suit has to be replaced or a carpet is ruined.

Rather, it is the larva of the moth species appropriately called "clothes moths" that is famous for eating virtually every type of natural fabric.

Unlike its relatives, the small brown clothes moths rarely fly. They prefer to keep to the edges of a lighted area in order to remain inconspicuous.

The clothes moth species consists of the webbing clothes moth, the casemaking clothes moth, and the tapestry or carpet moth; the first two species are more common.

Larvae growth and survival depend on the protein found in keratin, the chief ingredient in animal products such as wool, fur and feathers.

Other insects such as silverfish, roaches and crickets are known for damaging fabric, but moth larvae are one of the few pests capable of actually digesting it.

Larvae also rely on soiled fabrics for essential nutrients.

Routine food spills, body oils and pet hair found on clothes, carpet, blankets and furniture provide the vitamin that is essential to the larva diet.

It is imperative to clean items, even if they don't appear dirty, before they are stored.

It is imperative to clean items, even if they don't appear dirty, before they are stored.

Storage sites should be kept clean to help deter infestation. Closets provide the warm, dry environment larvae seek. Your sweaters may be clean but if the closet has pet fur or a soiled rug, the problem still remains.

In houses, larvae most frequently infest clothing, carpet, rugs, upholstery, piano felts, brush bristles, blankets, pet hairs and furs — all keratin-based products.

The cells are white and may bear slight colors of the fabric.

Tips to deter moth infestation

- Dry clean clothes, blankets, rugs, etc. before storing for the season.
- Keep closets and other storage sites clean, including baseboards, carpet and window sills.
- Inspect stored items for infestation signs and larvae.
- Avoid prolonged storage of discarded garments, bedding, rugs, etc.
- Check for cracks in furniture, under sofa and chair cushions ... possible hatching sites for moths.
- Frequently clean lint fron dryers, baseboards, air condtioning units, heating ducts and carpet edges.
- Periodically check pet foods, fertilizers and seeds for infestation.
- Discard old pieces of fabric, feather pillows, drapes, carpets, dried flower arrangements.
- Inspect yards, eaves and attics for bird's nests, wasp's nests and flowering shrubs — favorite hiding places for moths.

If you were allowed to water at all last summer, you probably did so sparingly and may have made things worse.

The result is sparse, patchy grass an an all-out invitation by crabgrass and weeds.

If you lawn appears to be in reasonably good condition, and weeds are not a problem, fertilize before the first flush of new growth and follow the watering and moving tips below.

But, if more than 25 percent of your lawn is dead or badly damaged, you will need to dethatch and overseed to re-establish healthy turf. Follow these simple steps:

1. Rent a power rake or vericutter. These machines loosen thatch and bring it to the surface where it can be removed with a rake or lawn seeper. The verticutter actually slices into the existing turf, creating a bed for new seed.

2. Purchase a good quality grass seed mixture recommended for you area and conditions. Beware bargain seed — it often contains a high percentage of weeds and inert matter.

3. Overseed at a rate of eight to 10 seeds per square-inch. The slices made by the verticutter will provide a perfect bed for the new seeds.

4. After seeding, apply a spring lawn fertilizer with crabgrass control such as Greenview's Trebl to prevent crabgrass from germinating and to feed the developing grass seedlings. The low nitrogen formula is ideal for sprouting seedlings and will provide some immediate greening of the existing grass.

5. Water gently several times daily with a lawn sprinkler. The seeded areas should be kept uniformly moist but not sopping. Never let the soil surface dry out completely while the seed is germinating — two to four weeks, or until grass is at least two inches high.

6. When the new grass passes the two inch mark, it's time to mow. But don't scalp it! Throughout the growing season, adjust mower height to allow for a cut no shorter than two inches in spring and fall, and 2 1/2 to three inches during the hot weather. The extra length gives the grass some protection from heat and drought and provides more leaf area for nutrient production to build strong, healthy turf.

7. After six weeks of new growth, it's advisable to feed the entire lawn with a slow-release, high nitrogen (30-4-4) fertilizer.

8. If dandelions and other broadleaf weeds are present, apply a complete fertilizer with calcium and sulfur to stimulate root development, "winterize" the grass and give it a strong headstart in spring.

10. When you water, remember, an occasional deep watering is far better for a lawn than a daily sprinkle. Run your sprinkler until at least an inch of water has been applied over the enitre lawn. A cup or can be placed in the path of the sprinkler makes a handy water meter.

Tips to prevent plumbing problems

Water, water everywhere: If that describes the state of your plumbing system, it's time to call your plumber and get professional help. That might include investing in new fixtures.

When buying new plumbing fixtures, look for qualities which promote long-term function:

■ Washerless faucets are less trouble as there are now washers to wear out and replace. To insure longevity, your faucet should have brass fixtures and copper waterways.

■ Make certain the entire faucet — working parts and finish — are guaranteed. Some faucets may carry only partial warranties or none at all.

■ Make sure the finish has a durable protective coating.

■ With two handled showers, stem and stemplates are the heart of the valve. To avoid eventual leaks, it's recommended they are made of stainless steel.

■ Don't ignore beauty! There are a surprising number of designs not available in stores. Consult with a plumber or remodeler. Not only can they be helpful in making sure your choice lives up to codes and standards, they may be able to show you a wide choice of styles.

The Garden Patch

But if your gardening experience is limited, if you're overwhelmed by the sheer numbers of varieties in seed catalogs, or if you weren't satisfied with the varieties you grew last summer, the list of varieties from the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service is a good place to start.

Bernie Zandstra, Extension horticulture specialist at MSU, says the varieties on the recommended list have been tested and found to give good results under Michigan growing conditions.

Most offer a high degree of disease resistance. Many were selected for earliness — varieties with a relatively short growing season can be grown over a larger share of the state.

Many of the recommended varieties are hybrids. In addition to disease resistance and earliness, hybrids tend to be more uniform, more productive, more dependable and sometimes a little hardier than some of the older, open-pollinated varieties.

Zandstra suggests requesting two or three seed catalogs and reading the variety descriptions closely.

See catalogs offer a great deal of information on the desirable characteristics of each variety — disease resistance, yield, size, best uses, growth habit (whether vining or bush, for instance) — and how to grow it for best results.

If the new variety doesn't pan out, you'll still have your old standby to fall back on.

Creative storing

Life doesn't have to be cluttered.

Most of us have the equivalent of a 10 x 12-foot storage room in our homes, which we can discover by respacing the storage areas w alreayd have, saving thousands of dollars in remodeling costs.

*Specialize and cluster utensils and supplies around major activity cetners, just as you would cluster errands to save time.

*Create multi-purpose rooms to save both space and time. For example, equip the guest room reach-in closet as a sewing center or office.

*Delegate household jobs to even the youngest in the family by making project possible, easy to do and fun. Be sure their closets have hanging and shelving space they can reach.

Too many of us still think merely in terms of the square footage of a floor plan.

You should see people's excitement when they realize how easily they can respace their homes using available closet space, corner space, wall space, door space and even under-bed and under-cabinet space.

For more information about where to find space-efficient storage products and respacing experts, write to: Consumer Care Department, 720 S.W. 17th St., Ocala, FL 32674.

With gardening becoming increasingly popular in the United States, more and more people are getting into the act.

Gone are the days of gardens being an exclusive privilege of rural and suburban land owners.

Their primary focus was beautification of interior space.

Today's container gardener can focus on any of a number of possible benefits, from maximum usage of limited space to limited use of water and fertilizer for maximum growth and production.

The most exciting feature of a container garden is its chameleon-like ability to change with its surroundings.

You can change the way a container garden looks, or even where it is located at any time.

This is due to the amazing diversity of containers available, and their inherent mobility.

It can also take as little, or as much space as you desire, and it allow you more control over the growing environment.

You can control the soil's make-up, the frequency of watering, and the exposure to hostile elements, such as wind, rain, and rabbits!

You can use the containers for beautification by planting flowers, and ornamental plants; or you can use them to grow vegetables and herbs, and add beauty to your kitchen and dinner plate.

Either way, regardless of its contents, a beautiful pot alone makes an aesthetic contribution to any location by virtue of its own intrinsic beauty.

He went on to claim that he was able to move his herb garden container indoors during the winter months so that he and his wife could enjoy fresh herbs all year long.

"The fresh parsley in January tastes great," he boasted.

All these benefits in conjunction with the convenience of container gardening make it a worthwhile alternative to th urban dweller with a green thumb.

This recommendation comes from the Garden Council, whose members include leading firms and professionals representing the lawn and garden industry.

Council members say that outdoors, foliage has the invaluable role of providing shade, and indoors, a garden of houseplants will make rooms look less warm than they are.

For example, full cascading ferns evoke the feeling of a cool forest, and a small ivy-covered trellis for dressing windows conjures up the sense of an evening on the back porch.

According to several studies, indoor greenery also helps people relax. And that's the marketing secret behind those peaceful interior landscapes you find in shopping malls. Shoppers find the plant-filled environment calming and they slow down, spending more time in the stores and more money on store merchandise.

. . . full cascading ferns evoke the feeling of a cool forest, and a small ivy-covered trellis for dressing windows conjures up the sense of an evening on the back porch.

In offices, workers claim that plants improve the appearance of the workplace and reduce tension.

Create the atmosphere you prefer by rearranging the plants you have or by planning new arrangements. Use the plants as room accents; don't place them where they'll fade into a dark corner. A few large plants can be the main decorative elements in a room.

Pay attention to light requirements. Plants that need a certain amount of light must be in an area that will provide such conditions. If your rooms don't receive sufficient natural light, install artificial lighting. Once you've established the right lighting conditions, put plants with similar light needs together in that area.

New containers for your plants can also change the look of a room. Retailers of lawn and garden goods carry a wide assortment of pots in various sizes, colors, styles, and textures. For a country look in the kitchen, use baskets and wood containers. In the bathrooms and bedrooms, use painted ceramic pots.

And remember, if you're trying to decide on colors for your pots, select the darker colors such as blue, green, or violet. These are better for creating a cooling effect.

BASIC PRUNING GUIDE

WHY PRUNE

1. Pruning increases a plant's production through the increase of the measure of light it receives, and through the redistribution of the available raw materials for growth.
2. Pruning improves a plant's vitality through improved air and sunlight penetration, and removal of portions of the plant that are a burden to healthy growth.
3. Pruning directs a plant's growing habits and tendencies to suit our personal needs.

DO'S

1. Always prune away dead, broken and diseased portions of a plant at any time.
2. Prune flush to a main branch or trunk.
3. Cover cuts of 1½" diameter or more with a protective wound compound.
4. In general, prune weak plants hard and vigorous plants lightly.
5. For safety and ease of pruning, use the correct tool for the job.
6. Keep your tools sharp and clean. Clean cuts heal quicker.
7. Make a cut only with a good reason and with an understanding of what your cut will produce.

DON'TS

1. Do not leave ragged cuts or stubs.
2. Do not use hedge shears for general pruning.
3. Do not prune with sprung, dull, or improper tools.
4. Do not do all your pruning at one time.
5. Do not expect pruning to compensate for obvious defects caused by overcrowding, poor soil conditions, improper climate, etc.
6. Do not assume that every good gardener is a good pruner. Check out casual advice before you prune.
7. Do not climb trees! The hazards far outweigh the benefits. Call a professional or use a long-handled pole tree trimmer.

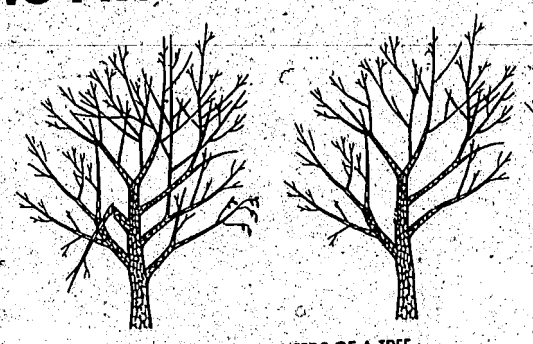
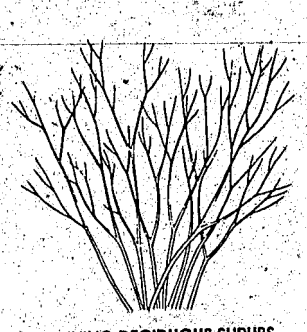
TWO MAIN PRUNING CONCEPTS

Heading Back
1. Heading back increases the density of the plant and makes it sturdier.

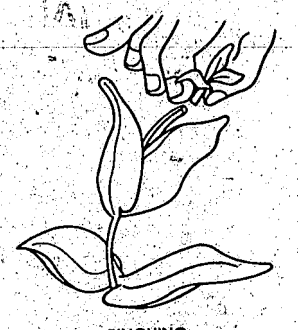
Thinning
2. Thinning will make a plant grow taller and more open.



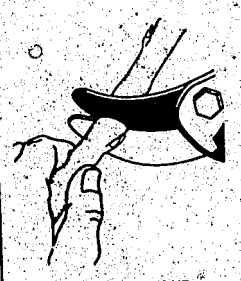
TYPICAL PRUNING NEEDS OF A TREE
1. Broken Branches: Unsightly and possibly dangerous.
2. Diseased Branches: Removal isolates disease-causing organisms.
3. Crowded Branches: Removal increases light and raw materials to remaining branches.
4. Non-symmetrical: Removal improves appearance.



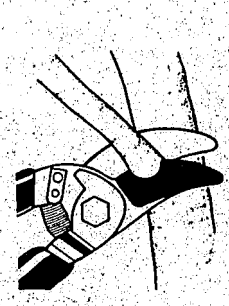
PRUNING DECIDUOUS SHRUBS
Remove all broken, diseased, and crisscrossing branches. Remove a part of each long shoot that may spoil the shape of the shrub, and prune down to ground level about one third of the oldest branches.



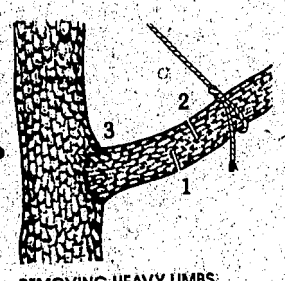
PINCHING
Frequently pinch back, with the thumb and forefinger, soft growth throughout the growing season to avoid future pruning, to redirect growth, and to increase the density of the plant. Pinching is also useful for disbudding flowers and thinning fruit.



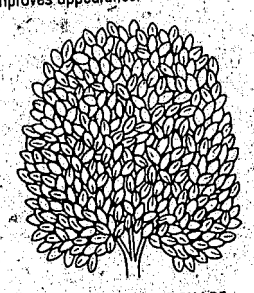
A PROPER CUT
Support the branch below where the cut is to be made. Cut at a slant in the direction you want the new branch to grow.



CUT CLOSE
Cut an unwanted branch in such a way as to leave the shortest possible stub.



REMOVING HEAVY LIMBS
Use a 3-cut technique to avoid damage to a tree by splitting. Cut at (1) under the limb, then at (2) above and further out to remove the limb, and at (3) to remove the stub. The heaviest limbs may be supported by a rope.



THE IDEAL HEDGE SHAPE

THE CUT IN RELATION TO BUDS
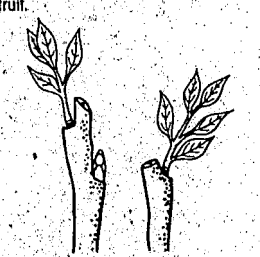
2. Too long: Can cause dieback of the stub.
3. Too Short: Will interfere with bud growth.
4. Ideal: Cut from opposite the base of the bud slanting upward to the top.



CHOOSING THE CORRECT BUD
Prune near a lateral (side) bud that is pointing in the direction that you want the subsequent branch to grow. Cutting off a terminal (end) bud will cause the nearest lateral bud to inherit its strength and direction.

Ten free shade trees from Arbor Day Foundation

Ten free shade trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during April.

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting in April or May with enclosed planting instructions. The six to twelve inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to SHADE TREES, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by April 30.
