Arson suspected

Bathroom fire closes Clarkston High

FIREFIGHTERS were called to Clarkston High School on Middle Lake Road April 23 to extinguish a blaze that erupted in a boys' bathroom towel dispenser. Although the flames were extinguished within minutes, heavy smoke damaged the bathroom and at least 10 classrooms. School officials are blaming arson for the cause of the fire. There were no injuries. (Photos by Sandra G. Conlen)

Arson is suspected in a fire that closed down Clarkston High School for a day and inflicted heavy smoke damage to several rooms on Monday, April 23.

At 9:36 a.m. Monday morning, the Independence Township Fire Department responded to a fire at the high school. According to CHS Principal Robert Burek, someone lit a towel dispenser on fire in a boy's bathroom on the south end of the high school.

A school alarm evacuated the student body. The fire department extinguished the fire within four minutes of entering the building. There were no reported injuries.

According to fire department Chief Gar Wilson, the bathroom and several classrooms sustained damage.

"The bathroom will not be usable for a long time due in part to soot dispersed from the burning dispenser," Wilson said. "The plastic molding combined with the paper towels in the dispenser caused a lot of smoke, and it affected as many as 10 classrooms."

Burek suspects that the fire was started by one of the students, just before the sounding of the second-period horn, he said.

"Our guess is that a student did this (set fire) because of the tight security measures in the building regarding adults," Burek said.

Burek added that the guilty party will be facing civil and high school "reactions" when sought out. He also mentioned that charges could be levied by the fire department.

The incident is currently under investigation by the township fire department and the Oakland County arson team.

STUDENTS were alerted to the fire by a fire alarm that sounded just before 9:30 a.m. Although the fire was confined to the bathroom, smoke damage made school impossible for the rest of the day.

Claim against Deer Lake homeowners is dropped

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Claims against about 100 Deer Lake, Independence Township homeowners, alleging partial responsibility for a 1989 drowning, have been dropped.

Homeowners received notice of the claims in a letter from Detroit Attorney Stuart Freedman, who represented the estate of Henry Richardson.

Freedman says he will now write another letter stating the claim had been dropped at the will of Narce Richardson, the wife of the deceased.

He added that by law, he still felt the homeowners should bear some responsibility for the death.

"I continue to believe that it was a well-founded lawsuit," Freedman said. "Regrettably, a large number of people were involved."

When contacted, Narce Richardson said it was never her intent for all the homeowners to bear responsiblity for what happened.

The claim against Deer Lake homeowners was filed in response to the January 1989 drowning of Henry Richardson. Richardson was skating on Deer Lake when he fell through the ice.

According to the claim, homeowners were "negligent in failing to provide adequate warnings of the potential danger of melting ice."

The claim was filed on behalf of the estate of Henry Richardson and sought damages permitted under the Wrongful Death Act.

The letter advised homeowners to notify their insurance companies, which would be required to negotiate damage awards with the estate.

Homeowners receiving the letter reacted in surprise to the claim, stating in interviews and letters to The News that they didn't feel they should bear responsibility for the death.

Narce Richardson said it was never her intent to create anxiety among the homeowners, and she is glad that the claim issue has been closed.

April 28 PICKUP Day in Clarkston

Depot Park and the downtown area in the Village of Clarkston are scheduled for a cleanup day Saturday, April 28, in honor of Earth Day on April 22.

The Clarkston Village Council is hosting PICKUP (Pride In Clarkston Keeps Us Pleasant) Day, which begins at 9 a.m.

Residents joining in the cleanup of the park will be treated to free coffee, cider and donuts. Picnic tables and free pop will be available for those who want to bring a picnic lunch.

Residents must bring their own equipment for the cleanup, but trash bags will be provided.

For more information, call village Manager Art Pappas at 625-1559.

Delegate deadline

People interested in becoming a Republican Party precinct delegate must file applications by 4 p.m. Tuesday, May 8.

Delegate responsibilities include registering voters, listing individual party registrations, contributing to the republican committee, determining voter rolls, attending a district convention in August, attending a county convention in November and participating in getting the vote out.

For more information, call John Lutz at 625-5111.

Recycling growing in Springfield, Independence

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Local disposal companies and a public drop-off center are getting results in early stages of their recycling programs.

Some programs started just a few months ago, while others started this month.

Four private disposal companies are giving their customers an opportunity to separate the recyclable trash from the non-recyclable.

A drop-off bin is also located at the Independence Township Department of Public Works on Flemings Lake Road.

Rick Detkowski, owner of Clarkston Disposal Inc., said about 3,000 of his approximate 5,500 customers have paid a one-time fee of $30 to get recycling service. Three crates are provided for newspapers, clear glass and tin cans.

Detkowski, who hopes to eventually expand the service to plastics and colored glass, says the recycling program is "snowballing."

"'Environment' is the buzzword," said Detkowski. "Our way of thinking and living is changing."

Detkowski gave an example how recycling newspapers can help the environment.

"A 3-foot stack of newspapers is equal to one tree," said Detkowski. "And for every ton of recycled newspapers, we save 17 trees and 462 gallons of oil."

Those figures are only valid if the newspapers are actually recycled. But currently there is a glut of newspapers, which has lowered the cash refund.

Carol Evans, who works at Smith's Disposal and Recycling, Inc., said the current price for eight tons of newspapers is only $30.

Evans said there has been a good response to the program, which started in January, with about 1,000 of 3,000 customers taking part. Smith's customers are not charged for the service that picks up newspapers, aluminum cans and clear and colored glass.

Evans also noted that many children have learned about the benefits of recycling from school, and this has helped some families get interested in the recycling programs.

Fran Moore, vice-president of Moore's Disposal, Inc., said her company's program just started April 1.

"Hopefully, it will work," said Moore, who said her customers recently received information about the program.

Al's Disposal could not be reached for comment.

Linda Richardson, administrative assistant for the Independence Township Department of Public Works, said the drop-off site on Flemings Lake Road has been a haven for newspapers. She said the bin for newspapers has been so full that it has to be emptied every week.

Richardson, however, said there usually is much space left over in the bins for clear glass and tin cans.

The Springfield Township Board voted against a proposal for a drop-off site, but the planning commission on April 16 recommended a new storage site for recyclable materials, which would make things easier for the private disposal companies and their recycling programs.

The township board soon is to vote on whether it wants the new storage site.

"I would assume that it will be passed, but I can't guarantee it," said Collin Walls, township supervisor.

Supervisor outlines township growth for chamber

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Safety paths, the widening of Sashabaw Road, a woodlands ordinance, a new high school and traffic were the concerns of area business people at the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce luncheon April 19 at Spring Lake Country Club.

Independence Township Supervisor Frank Ronk addressed the group on the topic of growth, andafterward answered their questions.

"We're growing (at) a pretty good pace right now," he started, adding that developers and economists say the township is in the "infancy stage" of growth.

"This kind of scares me. I've been in this community all my life. We have a beautiful community," Ronk said.

However, the best of the township will still be preserved, he said, explaining that the township planning commission has a "reputation as being picky."

Controversial developments in the community have centered around wetlands or woodlands, he said. In general, the land north of I-75 will remain as it is — a mixture of rural and single-family residential.

Supervisor Frank Ronk

"It ain't going to change, not if I have anything to do with it," Ronk said.

South of the highway will be developed to provide services to the people, he said.

Lots of developers are inquiring about the township and their chances of rezoning, said Ronk, explaining that the township uses a "master plan" that maps out the types of developments that would be allowed in portions of the community. If the developer's proposal does not meet what the master plan calls far, the developer is out of luck, he said.

According to a University of Michigan study, Oakland County will remain one of the fastest growing counties in the nation for the next two to three years, he said.

Primarily due to the Auburn Hills area, the growth entails a change from people working on assembly lines to people working on computers, he said, adding that people who work in these new positions need a place to live — that's where Independence Township comes in.

"Things are going to continue to happen here," he said. "Now the only thing we have to do is make it grow the way we want."

He listed the major developments underway or in the works (see related story) and then fielded questions about the following topics:

As for the safety paths, the master safety plan calls for all the existing paths to be linked — eventually, said Ronk. The construction is done a little at a time with the

Major developments in the township's future

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

In the past one and a half years, major developments have come to Independence Township, and with the current economic outlook, more are probably on the way.

"There's a lot of people knocking on our door," said township Supervisor Frank Ronk April 19 before Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce members.

Following is a summary of major developments in the works or on the drawing board for the township area, according to a presentation by Ronk.

Country Club of the North

The about 800-acre development in the planning stages at the northeast corner of Waldon and Clintonville roads straddles the Orion-Independence township line. About 600 acres are in Independence Township; nearly the entire Orion portion is wetlands.

It calls for large homes, two 18-hole golf courses, a club house and boardwalk through the wetlands.

"We're looking at this as a very large development that's very important to our community," said Ronk. "It's going to help our schools. ... It's going to eliminate the possibility of a landfill in Section 24."

The developers are to pave the portions of Clintonville and Waldon roads that abut the golf course property.

Though the Michigan Department of Transportation has denied a request in the past for an I-75 interchange at Clintonville Road, it's still a possibility in the future, said Ronk, adding that lobbyists are presenting the cause in Lansing at the present. Otherwise, traffic will come from Baldwin Road in Orion Township or from Clarkston or Sashabaw roads in Independence Township.

White Lake Commons

The Farmer Jack shopping center is currently under construction at the southeast corner of White Lake Road and Dixie Highway.

"They came in and kind of scraped the property right off," said Ronk, about the leveling of the land by the builders.

As a result, the developers were required to include 17 percent of the project as landscaping instead of the normal 12 percent required by the township ordinance.

Deerwood

Now in phase III, the Manors of Deerwood off M-15 are composed of "exclusive" homes of $300,000 and up, said Ronk. It's under construction at present.

Southeast corner of M-15 and Hubbard Road

A residential development is in the planning stages, with negotiations taking place about lining Hubbard Road up with Deer Ridge, so the Michigan Department of Transportation would consider a traffic light at that spot.

Cranberry Pointe

A 42-lot, 33-acre residential development at the northeast corner of M-15 and Cranberry Lake Road is in the works. In the beginning, residents complained that the runoff from the construction was clouding Cranberry Lake (at the southeast corner of M-15 and Cranberry Lake Road). The problem is solved, said Ronk.

"The lake is not going to be threatened," he said.

Spring Lake-area residential development

A 213-unit single-family development on Maybee Road, west of Spring Lake, is in the works. The 68-acre parcel is to be composed of 9,000-square-foot lots, with six home styles set among curved streets. Homes are to be priced between $100,000 and $200,000.

Traffic will probably be a problem, but road agencies don't make improvements until the roads are saturated, Ronk said.

Manufactured homes on Mann Road

The original proposal called for about 295 manufactured homes at the northeast corner of Mann and Clintonville roads and was rejected in a 4-3 vote of the township board.

The developer took the case to court, and the township has spent about $12,000 to $13,000 defending the board's action so far, said Ronk, explaining that the township has no zoning category for mobile home parks, so the developer was applying for a planned unit development.

"My own feeling is we can't keep them out," Ronk said.

Independence Valley

The second phase — 31 units — won final approval last week and is planned for the Sashabaw-Pine Knob road intersection.

"It's going to be a very, very nice subdivision," said Ronk, mentioning that Round Lake is part of the plans.

Sashabaw Creek Meadows

The residential development on Sashabaw Road, north of Clarkston Road, backs up to Independence Oaks and the Clinton River. The only problem — the development is not served by sewers, said Ronk.

Oakland County could be strongest economy

Oakland County has pulled ahead of the rest of the state and has established its position as one of the strongest local economies not only in Michigan but in the entire United States, according to economists at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

The county's economy, according to the forecast, will "continue to grow at a very healthy pace over the next two years, maintaining its status as the strongest urban economy in the state."

Through the end of 1991, Oakland County's private economy will grow at three times the rate of the state's economy, the U-M forecast says.

The forecast was prepared for Oakland County's Economic Development Division by George A. Fulton, associate research scientist, and Donald R. Grimes, research associate, at the U-M Institute of Labor and Industrial Relations (ILIR). They presented the forecast at the Pontiac Silverdome on april 4.

The forecast is based on regional economic models developed at ILIR and national economic forecasts assembled by the U-M's Research Seminar in Quantitative Economics.

Private employment has grown "far more rapidly in Oakland County than in any other major local economy in the state," the economists say. "In fact, over the decade of the 1980s, 60 percent of the net job gain in the private sector in Michigan occurred in Oakland County."

Oakland County suffered less from the decline in manufacturing employment that plagued the state in the early 1980s and benefited from explosive growth in the private non-manufacturing sector, especially in higher-paying industries such as business and professional services, according to Fulton and Grimes.

"As we enter the 1990s, the energy generated by the resumption of forward movement in manufacturing and the powerful growth of the non-manufacturing sector will keep Oakland County among the foremost urban areas in the nation, as long as there is a sufficient supply of resources to sustain the growth," they say.

"Because the primary source of growth is in jobs that require higher skill levels, the availability of educated people is a critical factor in maintaining the county's healthy economic growth."

Employment growth in the county faltered slightly in the second half of 1989 and the first quarter of 1990, reflecting a slower national economy and sharp reductions in production of cars and light trucks. However, "growth rates for county employment are expected to pick up substantially by the summer of 1990" and to continue to grow at an average annual rate of 5.5 percent through 1991.

The county will gain about 48,000 jobs between 1989 and 1991, with more than 90 percent of them in the private non-manufacturing sector. About 5,000 jobs will be added over the next two years in the relatively high-paying wholesale trade industry, where annual wages averaged $28,100 for non-durable goods and $30,800 for durable goods in 1987.

Ten thousand jobs will be added in retail trade, including 4,000 in restaurants and bars, where annual wages averaged $6,200 in 1987, and 6,000 in other retail trade sectors that averaged annual wages of $13,300 in 1987.

With the 3,500 new jobs in manufacturing predicted over the next two years added to the 22,600 manufacturing jobs the country added between 1982 and 1989, Oakland County will have recovered all of the manufacturing jobs it lost in the 1979-82 recession.

"In comparison, the state as a whole is forecast to recover only 20 percent of the manufacturing jobs it lost during the recession," according to the U-M economists.

Service industries will add 26,000 new jobs in Oakland County in 1990 and 1991, amounting to more than half of the total private job gain in the county, according to Fulton and Grimes.

Two-thirds of the new service jobs will be in the business and professional category, where annual wages in 1987 averaged $21,700. Employment in business and professional service, which in 1979 was less than one-third the size of manufacturing will exceed employment in the country's entire manufacturing sector by 1991.

Chamber hears about township growth

money from a half-mill that voters renewed in 1988. One-half mill is 50 cents for every $1,000 assessed property valuation.

Someday, a safety path may connect the central portion of the township with Bay Court Park on Andersonville Road in the southwest quadrant of the township, he said.

On busy White Lake Road, a safety path may be built in conjuction with eventual construction on the northwest side of the road. However, White Lake Road is not on the priority list, said Ronk.

Sashabaw Road is to be widened someday — either to five lanes with a center turn lane or to four lanes with a boulevard, he said. The boulevard plan costs about $1 million more per mile.

The Road Commission for Oakland County is in charge of the widening of the actual road, while the Michigan Department of Natural Resources is in charge of the bridge over I-75, he said.

A woodlands ordinance is in the works and could be on the books by end of the year, Ronk said.

A new high school comes under the jurisdiction of the Clarkston Board of Education, Ronk explained.

School district officials are considering a site between Waldon and Flemings Lake roads, but no decisions have been made, and nothing has been put before the voters, he said, adding that the site has drainage problems.

Traffic has been a problem for a long time and will continue, Ronk said.

Road agencies make improvements after the need arises — not before, he said. Areas such as Maybee Road between Dixie Highway and Sashabaw Road will be impacted by the many homes planned for the area.

What's the fuss

Julie Campe

My grandparents would not have understood the fuss about Earth Day.

Grandma Steward, raised on a farm in Missouri, knew better than most the value of good, rich earth. She also knew the value of using something until it could no longer serve its intended purpose — at that time, she'd find another purpose for it.

She was a widower by the time I was old enough to get to know her. I'd spend the night with her at her tiny Pontiac apartment. I didn't notice her frugality much there — it was all a part of her.

But when she'd spend the night with us — if my parents were out of town, for instance — her "saving" became a quirk my brothers and sisters and I thought she had.

For instance, if we ate our lunches off paper plates, she'd brush the crumbs off and save the plates afterward.

"I'm not using that plate again — it's dirty," one or another of us would tell her.

"It's not dirty," she'd respond firmly but quietly — and it wasn't. But she wouldn't argue. Instead, she would reuse the plates herself.

And by the time her visit had ended, the kitchen drawer that held foil and plastic wrap and bags was stuffed full of neatly folded, neatly pressed pieces of aluminum foil, waxed paper, paper bags and even plastic bags.

We'd also have a fresh stock of clean jars that formerly held peanut butter and mayonaise. The jars — added to the existing stockpile my mother was inclined to build — were more than my mother could ever fill with strawberry jam in one summer.

In the summers, we usually visited my other grandparents in Missouri. The closets in their comfortable house in the small town of Stockton were always filled to the brim with "useful" things.

The closet in the dining room, for instance, held stationary and paper and cards and envelopes from years past — one never knows when just such a card will be useful, my grandmother told us.

In the kitchen, the pantry was filled with jars of this and that — much of it vegetables canned from produce from their own garden.

The freezer, too, was full. My grandfather would save leftover meat and other goodies and simply add them to his periodic batch of sausage and adjust his recipe accordingly.

His woodshop was the same. Though neatly organized with all tools in their places, it was filled odd-shaped cedar, walnut, cherry, maple and oak. He could not bear to throw such beautiful material out just because it was small.

That was fine with us — he taught us to make toothpick holders on his lathe, using the small pieces.

In such a house as theirs, there was always something to do. Savers are always interesting to children.

In the spare bedroom, a large closet contained boxes and boxes of "things." Up high was a box of wooden blocks that had withstood three generations. Though a little faded in color, the blocks could have been manufactured today in their bright yellow, red, blue and green colors of all shapes.

It would not have occurred to them to dispose of their closetfuls of items.

Joint venture to save earth

Garbage haulers, government officials and area residents deserve praise for helping out the environment.

Since the beginning of the year, nearly every garbage hauler in the area has begun to offer some sort of curbside recycling, thus cutting back on the amount of trash that goes into landfills.

And about one-third to one-half of their customers have participated so far — not bad for a few months' work.

Plus, government officials have done their part to help out the land.

In the past, Independence Township has offered an annual spring cleanup day, when — for a small fee — area residents could drop off trash from their own yards or from nearby roads and fields, and the township would pay to haul it away.

Now, the township has a recycling drop-off point that's open all year. Located at the township department of public works on Flemings Lake Road, the special garbage bin holds newspaper (no glossy ads or inserts), aluminum and glass.

For the first time, Springfield Township is offering a special Spring Cleanup Day on Saturday, May 5. For a small fee, township residents may drop off their trash. Springfield officials also added a special bonus — they'll pay for the disposal of tires as an incentive to keep them off the roads.

The Village of Clarkston, too, is joining the act. PICKUP Day in Clarkston is set for 9 a.m. Saturday, April 28, when civic groups and residents (bring your own tools) are invited to help clean up the village park and the downtown area. Donuts, cider, coffee and soft drinks will be provided to participants.

Plus, individuals and organizations alike are planting trees — which should use up carbon dioxide and lessen the "greenhouse effect" — and picking up trash from roads and fields.

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

Mackinac Island is kept fresh in people's minds these days from a death-dealing fire last year.

But the fire was not brought up in a conversation we had recently with a horse keeper and museum manager from The Island.

Don Sherwood, with ties to Oxford and Davison (Davison has Sherwood Forest), stopped by to research another former Oxford man, C.L. Randall.

I knew Don had spent summers on Mackinac for about 10 years, so I steered the conversation that way. First topic was snowmobiling. The chamber of commerce stakes trees over the ice from St. Ignace to Mackinac each year.

They are set to form a lane, trees on each side. Snowmobilers are supposed to stay between them. Some riders, Don says, stray from the trees and disappear. Some friends of ours thought the adventure was outstanding. They stayed between the trees.

Don manages the carriage museum, and he belongs to the Carriage Tour Association. He also tends some of the horses, but his tour-guiding is done mostly before the student drivers arrive in May-June.

Twenty-four horses remain on The Island in winter. 335 are housed in Pickford. Some 500 horses are used on The Island each summer.

It takes 150 ton of hay to feed the horses on The Island in the winter . . . and it's expensive.

So much goes for freight, including three cents a pound to take it across the ice from St. Ignace. It amounts to about $125 a ton, everything considered.

Don didn't leave without mentioning Mackinac Island fudge. His wife manages two JoAnn Fudge Shops on Mackinac.

Sherwood was checking out Randall, who died in Oxford March 22, 1932, because both have a connection with Cheboygan. Sherwood lives there, Randall built a co-op elevator there and owned a large, 5,000-tree apple orchard on the northwest corner of Mullett Lake. The question was, when did Randall build the co-op? Best guess is 1926.

Here are some side notes on Randall. He was big in produce; apples, potatoes and rutabagas. He made and lost a couple fortunes. Enroute he built the largest house in Oxford, owned his own railroad car, took Ty Cobb fly fishing, was on the Oxford School Board 44 years and on the Oxford Savings Bank board 34 years.

He built a main house north of Aloha Park at Mullett Lake and cottages for each of his six children. They all ate in the main house, but Randall always took a cow from Oxford to Mullett Lake with him on the train so his kids would have the right milk.

The only thing left of the Mullett orchard is a watering tank and caved in shack. The house he built in Oxford is still the biggest in town. A granddaughter says Randall lost that too, to the bank, but they let him live there till he died.

Our only home

Last Sunday, Earth Day, I was looking around, noticing the peace and quiet and beauty of our community. I glanced across our lake and saw smoke rising, drifting up into the sky, polluting our atmosphere, spoiling an otherwise beautiful day.

Burning, this is what someone gives, gives to the earth on Earth Day? This is what someone sees as respect? Burning, respect? Come on, guys, this is our place, our home ... our only place, our only home.

Let's forget about the old ways and look, open our minds to new and different ways of disposing our trash: if it's recyclable, recycle it; if it's food or similar, compost it; if it's raw lumber, chip it up for the use of garden chips; if it's processed lumber, cut it up and donate it to schools; or once again, chip it up.

If every one of us would take the time to think about our part, our share, our responsibilities of caring for our environment, tending it, nursing it, not destroying or damaging it, we can make a difference ... only we can.

From This Perspective

Taking deadlines into account

Tracy King

While leisurely browsing through the Sunday newspaper, my eyes were drawn to the latest story on the census scandal.

The quotes claimed this was the worst census ever. People just weren't turning in their forms, the article said.

Either more government money would be spent on enumerators, or officials would be forced to take a guess on thousands of people missed.

An innocent-looking older woman, reportedly the one responsible for this year's census debacle, was photographed while testifying what went wrong.

I gazed at the the photo in horror and snapped the paper shut.

This grandma was being thrown to the lions, and I was partially to blame.

I slunk into the sofa.

"Mail your census form now," whispered the angel voice inside me.

"You've still got plenty of time," the devil shouted back. "This is not the deadline."

"Whew," I sighed, straightening. "It's not the deadline."

I have always fully intended to mail my census form; in fact, it had been filled out for the last three weeks.

The form is kept on our front stair where it awaits a new envelope. My husband, always the eager-beaver, filled out the form right away and sealed it, unbeknownst to me who ripped it open, ready to fill out the form myself.

The extra effort required for the envelope is not to blame for our delay; it's that old harbinger — the deadline.

Reporters are notorious for living by deadlines.

When it came time to mail taxes April 15, in fact, two Clarkston News reporters and another reporter's spouse were spotted at the post office just before the stroke of midnight.

I'm not sure if they've mailed their census forms yet; I couldn't bring myself to ask.

People like deadlines. It gives them a spot to mark in their calendars. Would people turn in tax forms if April 15 didn't exist?

The census-bashers explain this year's apathy by linking it to voting records. Apparently, states that don't vote well, don't mail forms well either.

That isn't true in my case, and it likely isn't true for others who just wait 'til it's time.

"It's time now!" the angel said again. "Think of the census workers!"

"Aw, it's not over yet," the devil answered. "Give us a date, fellas, give us a date."

Letter belongs in shredder

Jim Fitzgerald

"Personal and Confidential" it said on the outside of the envelope. And the letter inside began: "Please hold this letter in confidence. It contains a private request asking your opinion on a very important matter."

I whispered to my wife that if anyone phoned or came to the door asking for me, she should say she never heard of me. I then locked myself in the bathroom and read the next paragraph:

"For reasons which will become clear, I don't want the contents of this letter revealed to the general public just yet. Be assured that I will hold your opinion in strictist confidence."

I flushed the toilet several times, so the general public couldn't hear the sound of my excited breathing. I wondered if my wife had seen any portion of the letter before I whisked it from her sight. I realized it might be necessary to silence her forever, and I couldn't help regretting I'd never learned how to operate the microwave oven.

"For the past three years, we have endured the longest, largest and most expensive inquisition in American history. There has been no limit to the probing - or to the damage done to our nation. I have anguished over the lives lost, the corners ruined and the secrets divulged over the course of this ordeal . . ."

A heavy burden to bear

Oh, Lord. Secrets have already been divulged, the nation has been damaged and careers ruined. I began to feel the grave responsibility attached to the letter. My mind spun with questions. Did I really want to know this secret information? Was I strong enough to take on such a heavy burden? Before silencing my wife, should I tell her there were two loose tiles at the faucet end of the tub? I decided to be brave, and read on:

"And believing that, in the providence of God, nothing happens by accident to those who have committed their lives to Him, I have been seeking His purpose for allowing me to experience what I have been through - and His purpose for my future. I think I am beginning to understand."

So God was in on the deal. I began to feel better. He would make sure I learned how to operate the microwave, or at least send me another wife. The letter continued:

"The leadership of a non-profit, tax exempt organization has been offered to me . . . I now must make a very difficult decision - Should I take on the responsibility of leading this non-profit, tax exempt organization, - THE FREEDOM ALLIANCE?"

Gee, I don't know. How will the Freedom Alliance make me free?

"Our national defense ought to be second to none and not cut to ribbons by those who choose to ignore real threats to our security. Despite the dramatic changes in Eastern Europe, despite the fall of the Berlin Wall, communism is STILL a threat to the United States."

Yes, yes, yes. The danger of peace has never been greater. What can I do?

Crusading toward oblivion

"The enclosed return envelope is addressed directly to me. I will personally review your response to my question. I will keep your response in confidence, as I trust in yours."

I swear I won't tell a soul. What do I put in the envelope?

"If we are going to press-on with The Freedom Alliance, if you want me to go ahead, it is going to take money. Can you give at least $25 today to help us get started? Perhaps you can make an even larger contribution . . . I can't start this crusade alone - it's going to take YOUR help."

A crusade! I love a crusade. I could hardly contain my feelings at being asked to participate. The letter was signed:

"Semper fidelis, Oliver L. North."

Ollie North! I was so anxious to respond, I really couldn't contain my feelings. It's a good thing I was in the bathroom: I threw up, in confidence.

Board of Review not helpful this year

We have lived here in Clarkston for nearly 21 years, paying taxes, never having any children yet trying to contribute to our community, caring for our home, doing without many things, trying to save what we could.

My dear husband has juvenile onset diabetes, which has slowly been taking his fitness away.

Carl is a man who has always tried and never given up, when many would have.

Carl's eyesight has diminished; his feet no longer have any feeling other than sharp pains, and his blood pressure is high due to his kidney failure.

He had to quit work but not without a fight to hang in.

We are now living on his pension from work, which is less than a retiree of 62, as he is 46 and is supposed to be in the prime of his life.

Because of these health problems and kidney dialysis, I cannot leave him.

Yes, we knew the effects of diabetes; this is one reason we have tried to save. For our latter years we didn't want to live off of the state and have saved some, but not enough, to maintain all our expenses.

We have already had to go into our savings, which really isn't all that much; and now our 1985 car has something wrong with it.

We received our property valuation along with everyone else. Our valuation went up $5,000, when our neighbor living on a corner with a larger lot and a business had one that went up $400. Directly across the street from us, a homeowner's valuation went down $1,400. A neighbor down our block with a larger house had an increase of $4,600.

So on March 13, we joined many others to see the Board of Review.

We went in with all our needed information. We thought the board was really hearing our plea. They even said "fill out the poverty form," and we did.

They told us after looking over everything — each one of them said to our face — "There's not a problem."

We left feeling like (the township) was standing by us when we needed a little help, like we had done for the township for the last 21 years.

Today we received a notice, DENIED, NO CHANGE!

In a call to the assessor's office, Connie was very nice, however I was told that no explanation existed on the final form.

I would surely like to talk again to the Board of Review members who told us there wasn't a problem.

I was told once a decision was made it was etched in stone; it cannot be changed..

Well I'd like to say to that board, if this is how you managed to stay on schedule and get people through the reviews, you did a great job, for you have devastated my attitude about not only each of you but the process.

You took the belief in our community right out of our hearts.

Priority one: Crime victims' rights

The victims of crime deserve a criminal justice system that punishes criminals, not victims.

Too often our system dotes over the defendant while being insensitive to the anguish and hardship it visits upon the victims.

National Victims' Rights Week, April 22-28, gives us an opportunity to focus public attention on this deficiency in our system and to promote a greater awareness of the actions we have taken to correct it.

The Michigan Constitution and the Crime Victims' Rights Act now guarantee certain rights to crime victims.

Among these are the right to actively participate in the prosecution of the case, including the right to speak at the defendant's sentencing.

During National Victims' Rights Week we must make an effort to ensure that all our citizens know they have legal rights if they become a victim of crime.

The Oakland County Prosecutor's Office has a Victim/Witness Assistance Unit to inform victims of their rights and assist them in exercising those rights.

They can be contacted at (313)858-0707.

Recognizing National Victims' Rights Week, we should rededicate ourselves to improve the justice system for victims.

We must ensure that sufficient resources are given to the victims to help them cope with their traumatic experience.

It is time for society to make the protection of victims' rights the priority of the criminal justice system.

Board OKs razing of Clinton Drive pool, cabana

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Independence Township Board took a big step toward ridding Clinton Drive of an alleged eyesore April 17 by accepting a contractor's bid to demolish a residence's dilapidated swimming pool and cabana.

With a bid of $9,900, the Michigan Home Demolition Co. of Holly was granted the contract for demolition and removal. The owners of the property, William and Pat Edwards, are to pay the fee.

The board took the demolition action after three years of negotiations with the Edwards, who were not present at the meeting.

"We were disappointed that the Edwards didn't come to the meeting," said township Clerk Joan McCrary after the meeting. "The board has given these people several opportunities to explain their side."

Since 1984, neighbors have filed complaints about the Clinton Road site, citing that the property's poor condition was downgrading the neighborhood.

The board is carrying out the demolition under the township's property maintenance ordinance. The ordinance reads that "all exterior property areas and premises shall be maintained in a clean, safe, and sanitary condition free from accumulation of rubbish or garbage, except when assembled regularly for removal for transport to a proper receptacle."

The Edwards could not be reached for comment but in the past said a strapped financial situation has kept them from making repairs.

According to McCrary, the township's attorney is to contact the homeowners' attorney to inform them of the board's decision.

Brave firefighters

It has been almost two months since our home on Balmoral Terrace burned, resulting in a total loss of the house.

This open letter to the firefighters of Independence Township is to say thank you for the professional and brave job performed, which went beyond the line of duty.

We, the residents of Independence Township, are fortunate to have firefighters of this quality. Too often we are indifferent about the public service sector (fire and police). That is — until we need their help.

Thank you for being there when we needed you.

Prevention key to clean groundwater

BY ERIC R. PILARCIK

Without safe, clean drinking water, we will all die. And what we do with our waste now has a direct effect on our drinking water in the not-too-distant future.

We all use potentially contaminating household cleaners at home. We drive on roads salted in the winter and oiled through the dusty summer. We change the oil in our cars; we fertilize our lawns, and we all produce lots and lots of garbage that ends up in landfills, which are quickly reaching the "full" mark.

But how does all of this affect water that's way beneath the earth's surface? Unfortunately, it happens very easily.

Groundwater itself lies in sandy pockets called aquifers below layers of clay. Hazardous waste (be it industrial-size chemical barrels or half a can of unused oven cleaner) is dumped into landfills and down drains.

This contamination exits septic fields and landfills (as leachate) draining toward and eventually entering the groundwater supply.

From here, the groundwater moves slowly but constantly spreading over a wider area. At this point, it is pulled up our wells, into our homes and into our drinking glasses.

The answer? A stronger awareness by all people of the importance of protecting groundwater for ourselves and generations to come. And there area solutions and alternatives. Unfortunately, many of these alternatives are not convenient. However, this will change as we become more used to recycling instead of just tossing garbage.

Disposal systems and products are already changing toward a more environmentally-safe perspective, and by using our influence and support, things will keep changing toward better protection of our groundwater supply.

Waste disposal companies are beginning to use separate recycling bins at curbside for paper, plastics and more. Environmentally-safe house-cleaning products are available if we are willing to search out and experiment with different brands.

By staying informed of programs and products designed to keep our drinking water safe, we will avoid a future riddled with the severe problems of contaminated groundwater. Cleanups of existing problems spots are difficult and costly. The key is prevention.

Eric Pilarcik is a member of the Independence Township Groundwater Leadership Team, created to inform and direct the community toward a safe groundwater supply. For coordinating a speaker to explain and present this vital topic to your civic group, contact Mary Beth Huttenlocher at 625-1627.

Village council denies funeral home expansion

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Harold Goyette, owner of Goyette Funeral Home on Main Street, Clarkston, isn't going to add space to the funeral home or add parking spaces in an area behind his home.

After much deliberation April 9, the Clarkston Village Council unanimously voted to deny a rezoning of about 15,500 square feet from residential to commercial.

Goyette first appeared before the village council in January in hopes of gaining approval for the rezoning so he could add 15 feet to the back of his existing business. He also sought additional parking, which was to be placed in the backyard of his private residence. Goyette lives next door to the funeral home.

Village President Sharron Catallo addressed the village zoning ordinance.

"There is no way to do this without hurting our own zoning process," Catallo said.

The zoning ordinance was approved in 1973. The funeral home is a commercial business within a residential district, and Goyette needs a zoning approval to add on space and parking.

Goyette said the state took parking spaces from the front of the funeral home when Main Street was widened.

Goyette Funeral Home has been in business since 1921.

Charles Smalley, parking enforcement official for the village, defended Goyette.

"The business has been here a number of years, and I hate to see you deny them," Smalley said.

Some council members expressed sorrow over having to deny the rezoning to Goyette because he's been a valued member of the community.

"The council has tried to be consistent through the years," Trustee Eric Haven said. "I'm heart-torn over this one."

Trustee William Basinger said, "They (the Goyettes) are the best of citizens, but we can't be sure of future owners; we have to worry about the future of the community."

Before the council voted, Catallo said another alternative would be to hold a public hearing about the rezoning.

"We're trying to bend this because it is Harold and Norma (Goyette), but if it were a stranger we would say 'no' immediately," Trustee James Schultz said.

After the vote, Catallo said, "This has been an extremely difficult evening."

After the meeting Goyette said he plans to take legal action.

Friday evening library hours are considered

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Only 10.7 percent of Friday library goers are interested in evening hours on Fridays, according to an informal survey, said James Hibler, director of the Independence Township Library.

Hibler presented his findings to the township board April 17.

The percentage was based on the random sampling of 112 people in the library on one particular Friday. Of the 112 patrons surveyed, only 12 said they would like to see evening hours. The remaining 100 said afternoon hours were sufficient for their purposes.

In Hibler's own investigation of 29 countywide libraries, he found that none offered Friday evening hours. The Independence Township Library on Clarkston Road only started serving the public on Fridays March 16.

Trustee Mel Vaara said he would like to see the library's Friday hours extended past 5 p.m. Township Clerk Joan McCrary agreed and suggested a closing time of at least 6 p.m. on Friday afternoons.

Hibler admitted that the survey wasn't very scientific because it only reflected the views of Friday library goers. He told the board that he would seek further community input in the way of another survey included in the township newsletter.

Supervisor Frank Ronk instructed Hibler to submit another report after further investigation of the community's needs.

The library's current hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

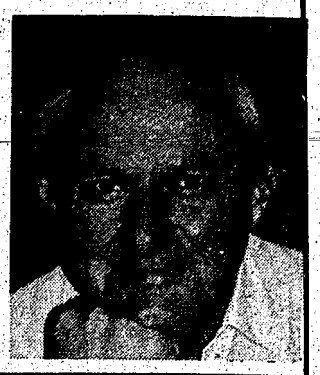
Mega-mall on agenda again



Doug Carlson

Before I do anything else, I want to thank Jerry Wilford, Howard Williams, Mary Windram, Tom and Loraine Hall and Duffy Liddicoat for their excellent contributions to this column the past several months.

Hopefully, they, and others, can be persuaded to write more columns in the months ahead.

For today's column, I'd like to get back to the subject of the Auburn Mills Mall, the mega-mall proposed at the intersection of I-75 and Baldwin Road.

The mall is to include 1.8 million square feet of sales space, parking for 11,000 cars, two hotels and several other businesses.

I also understand that yet another mall is being considered on the north side of I-75, directly across the street from Auburn Mills.

The developer of Auburn Mills Mall, Western Development Corp., originally proposed destroying some 32 acres of wetlands to accommodate its mega-mall.

Its application for a Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Wetlands Permit was denied.

On Tuesday, April 10, a public hearing was held in the cafeteria of Avondale High School in Rochester to hear a second, or compromise, proposal regarding this property.

The cafeteria was filled to capacity, primarily with residents of the surrounding area.

Western Development's presentation was brief and to the point.

Of the 32 acres of wetlands originally scheduled for destruction, only 17 would now be affected.

In addition, they were proposing a Mitigation Plan for the area, which would entail "constructing" 19 acres of wetlands elsewhere on the property, for a net gain of two acres.

They would also "construct" 8.7 acres of wetlands elsewhere within Auburn Hills.

They would "monitor" these new wetland areas for a period of five years.

Western Development showed slides of the wetland areas in question and of wetland areas that they had "constructed" in other parts of the country.

They also showed slides of their other malls throughout the United States.

Following their presentation, which lasted no more than 15 minutes, those in attendance got up to speak.

Although some favored the project (the Pontiac school system stands to benefit from the increased tax revenue, for example), the vast majority were adamantly opposed to it.

Their concerns ranged from the wetlands destruction to air pollution to traffic to runoff to effect on businesses as far away as Birch Run, etc.

Although the DNR was there primarily to hear comments on the revised wetlands proposal, once people got the microphone there was no stopping them.

In addition to local residents, the speakers included an attorney for the city of Lake Angelus and an urban planner who had personally visited many of the alternative sites suggested for the mall.

He suggested several sites that he felt were equally attractive without causing the economic dislocation that the I-75 site will cause.

With respect to the residents, however, one theme came out again and again: WE ALREADY HAVE ENOUGH MALLS. WE DON'T NEED ANYMORE.

This coincides with what numerous people in town also have told me.

And I hope that John Lutz, who attended the mega-mall meeting, will bring this message back to our own township board.

Independence Township may not have a say in the mega-mall, but we certainly have a say in what happens here.

It will be very interesting to watch.

Oxford man vies for state seat

Tom Middleton of Oxford announced recently that he is in the race for the state representative seat being vacated by Rep. Mat Dunaskiss (Lake Orion), who is running for the state senate.

Middleton, owner and operator of Key-Belle Farms in Ortonville, has served as an advisor to his U.S. Congressman and to the Dairy Science Department and School of Veterinary Medicine at Michigan State University.

His success as president and director of a number of state agricultural organizations earned him "Outstanding Young Farmer" honors in three years from three organizations.

As a farmer and director of the National Forage and Grasslands Council, Middleton is active in the fight to save the environment from erosion and pollution.

He has served his community as a member of the Oxford Board of Education, as a leader and superintendent in Oakland County's 4-H Clubs and as an active member in St. Anne Church, Ortonville.

Middleton and his wife, Kathy, both lifelong residents of Oakland County, have three children: Amy, 21, a junior at Michigan State University; Jason, 19, an Airman Recruit in the U.S. Navy; and Ted, 16, a freshman at Oxford High School.

Middleton was born, raised and educated in parochial and public schools in the district. He joined the family dairy partnership and co-founded Middleton Strawberries in Oakland Township after leaving MSU. In addition to farming in Ortonville, he manages farmland in Oxford, Orion and Brandon townships.

TOM Middleton resides in Oxford with his wife, Kathy, and three children.

Her displays look good enough to eat -- and are

BY RENEE GLOVINSKY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Cookies of all sorts, strawberries dipped in chocolate and endless hors d'oeuvres ... sounds like a child's fantasy come true. Actually, though, it's one Independence Township resident's answer for every occasion.

Judy Opie, who resides on Tahoe Court with her husband Edward and three sons, has found a way to cater special occasions in an unusual manner. From cookies in baskets to cookies on stems, each arrangement looks as if it should be in a garden, yet it belongs right on the reception table.

THE ARTIST-CHEF, Judy Opie, says business is good since she recently moved to the Clarkston area. Many may comment that her arrangements "look good enough to eat," and they are. She has fun designing completely edible arrangements.

What's new in business

Judy, who has had extensive training in food preparation, began Basketriis/Cookie Bouquet five years ago from her home in Adrian. After recently locating to the Clarkston area with her family, she sees this as a good opportunity for growth.

"The people in Clarkston seem to have an appreciation for beautiful houses and beautiful things in general," she said. "I feel that my arrangements offer that same quality and beauty they want."

Her line offers a variety of taste as well as appeal. One of the newest attractions is a bouquet of cookies. Judy offers a choice of chocolate chip, cheesecake, peanut butter chip and lemon-flavored cookies — all freshly baked in her kitchen. Each dozen is then arranged as though they were a bouquet of roses.

The baskets are more intricate and can feed up to 100 people, said Judy.

The deli basket is no ordinary spread. More than 12 pounds of lettuce is used, along with assorted Pepperidge Farms meats and cheeses, homemade muffins and bread sticks, flavored cream cheeses and more.

If fruit is your fancy, then 70 pounds of assorted fruit may be what you're looking for. Judy selects strawberries, kiwi, cantaloupe and many other seasonal fruits, which she even dips in homemade chocolate or strawberry toppings, upon request.

It's no obstacle looking for the right ingredients as well as searching for the freshest flowers in town, according to the artist-chef.

"I offer the finest quality that I can possibly get," she said.

Each basket takes about 20 hours from start to finish, she said. So Judy only schedules one basket per weekend.

Along with her busy weekends, Judy is also a supervisor and chef for the Pine Knob Ski Resort, Independence Township.

"My hope is to present these arrangements and help make parties as elegant as the planner had imagined," she said.

PLEASING to the palate is this basket of fruit specially created by one township resident. It's not unusual for her to spend 20 hours selecting and arranging a basket filled with strawberries, kiwi, cantaloupe and numerous flowers.

Highly-rated Kettering blanks Wolves

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Allyson McChesney thought the Kettering girls were too perfect; so she did something about it.

The freshman poked a clean single to break up a perfect game with two outs in the last inning, April 23, as Kettering shut out Clarkston, 13-0, in a 5-inning "mercy" softball game.

Clarkston fielders helped the Captains' cause by committing eight errors.

"The kids weren't that sharp after coming back from spring break," said Clarkston coach Carla Teare. "When we play a team of that caliber, we have to play better than that."

Kettering, rated No. 2 in the state in a coaches poll, outhit the Wolves, 11-1. Clarkston batters also struck out eight times.

The visitors scored in bunches early, with four in the first, three in the second and six in the third.

Jennifer McChesney (0-2) started and gave up seven hits in two and one-third innings. Jamie Law pitched two-thirds of an inning in relief, allowing two hits. Heather Austin was on the mound the last two innings, also giving up two hits.

Clarkston, a young team with only one senior, dropped its record to 0-2. Kettering is now 3-0.

HEIDE Parrott doesn't like the height of a pitch thrown by a Kettering hurler so she lets it go by.

Helmets a good way to put cap on injuries

This spring, smart young bicyclists are "taking cover" to avoid serious head injury and death by wearing a protective head helmet while riding, AAA Michigan reports.

Thirty-two bicyclists were killed in Michigan last year, including three in Oakland County.

Twelve fatalities involved people ages six through 11.

Half of all fatal bicycling accidents nationally involve children under age 14, and nearly 50,000 youngsters suffer serious head injuries each year.

"Parents should insist that children wear safety helmets, even on short trips, since most serious injuries are sustained close to home," said Robert V. Cullen, AAA Michigan Community Safety Services manager.

"Wearing a safety helmet can reduce the risk of a serious head injury by as much as 75 percent," Cullen said. "If a bicyclist falls head first on pavement without a helmet while traveling at 20 mph, it will likely lead to serious injury or death."

Helmets made of a hard plastic outer shell, plastic foam lining and equipped with an adjustable chin strap offer maximum protection against injury, Cullen said.

Helmets of soft materials or padded strips provide less protection.

A quality, protective helmet can be purchased for as little as $20, compared to the average lifetime care cost of $1.9 million for a severely brain-injured youth.

Parents can set a good example by wearing a helmet when they bicycle, he added.

To ensure a safe, enjoyable riding season, young bicyclists should follow these safety rules:

- Obey traffic laws, signs and signals.
- Walk your bike across the street at corners. Don't dart out from a driveway or between parked cars, where many bicycle accidents occur.
- Stop and look for oncoming traffic before entering the street from a sidewalk or driveway.
- Avoid riding after dark or in inclement weather.
- Give the right-of-way to cars and pedestrians.
- Ride single file, one bike length apart.
- Avoid broken pavement, loose gravel or other objects that could cause loss of steering control.
- Avoid riding in the street. If absolutely necessary, ride single-file on the right side.
- Use hand signals when turning.

Captains salute Clarkston errors, walks

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

"Ball four. Take your base. This is a recording."

The umpire at the Kettering vs. Clarkston baseball game didn't actually have a tape recorder, but he could have saved some breaths as both the Captains and the Wolves had 10 batters who walked.

That statistic was even, but errors were another story as Kettering committed one while the Wolves made three. Those three mistakes allowed five unearned runs to score as the visiting Captains won, 9-4, in a Greater Oakland Activities League matchup April 23.

"I thought we played like we were still on vacation," said Clarkston coach Roy Warner. The Wolves hadn't played for 14 days.

The Captains only outhit the Wolves, 7-6, but they took advantage of the errors in run production.

Kettering scored twice in its first inning with the aid of a Clarkston error.

The Wolves came back in their second to tie the game when Corey Olsen, Dugan Fife and Darren Master all walked, Todd McLauchlin singled in one run and then Kettering bobbled a ball hit by Kevin Juzysta for another score.

Kettering went ahead to stay in the third with four runs. Captain Matt Charboneau led the inning off with a solo homer. A double, a walk and another double brought in one more run and then a two-base Wolf error scored two more.

Clarkston made it 6-3 in the fourth when McLauchlin walked, Juzysta singled and Jenkins brought McLauchlin home with a sacrifice fly.

Kettering scored once in the fifth via an error and then Keith Boyd's singled drove in two more runs in the sixth.

Clarkston, now 1-1 in the GOAL, closed out the scoring with one run in the seventh when Master walked with the bases loaded.

Brian Nelson was the winning pitcher for the Captains, who are also now 1-1 in the GOAL.

Kevin Keilitz, 0-1, pitched the first three innings for the Wolves and suffered the loss. He was relieved by Chad Hetherington who pitched three innings and Master, who took the mound the last inning.

McLauchlin had two hits for the Wolves and Juzysta, Jim Jenkinson, Larry Liford and Fife each had one. All of the Clarkston hits were singles.

TODD McLauchlin takes a long lead off first base.

JACK Garnett takes a cut against a Kettering pitcher.

Grown up?

Isiah Thomas has an advice column in the Sunday Detroit newspaper called "Growing up." Thomas is considered one of Detroit's role models and gives advice to kids in an Ann Landers-type-question-and-answer style.

Because Thomas was involved in the recent basketbrawl with Philadelphia, taking a swing at Rick Mahorn, being ejected from the game and then paying a fine, I thought it would be interesting if he ever had to answer a question from a youngster like this one ...

Q: I keep on picking fights in school. Is there anything wrong with fighting?

Well, er, fighting in school is wrong, especially if you start it first. If someone gets on your nerves, try to ignore them. Is it worth a fight? Don't drop down to their level. You have better values than that.

Now, I know I took a swing at Rick Mahorn, but that's different. We're professionals and we have to survive out there because that's how we make our living. I have to protect myself and my teammates. Basketball isn't just shooting, dribbling and rebounding. It isn't just a finesse game. And I don't care if there are thousands or millions of people watching, including youngsters like you, I have to do what I do for the good of the team.

Finally spring

Even though Clarkston's baseball and softball teams lost on Monday against tough Kettering opponents, it was finally a terrific, sunny, warm day for the players and fans.

Spring sports often take a back seat to fall and especially winter sports. There usually aren't nearly as many people watching baseball, track etc. as football, volleyball, basketball, wrestling, etc.

One reason for this could be the earlier hours of spring sports. Many people are working and can't make it.

But for those who can make it, especially if the day is a beautiful one like on Monday, it's quite relaxing to watch spring sports. And if your team loses, you can still win in the suntan department.

Ware is he now?

I was listening to Frank Beckmann's call-in show on WJR a few days before the NFL draft, and a caller asked him if the Lions were going to choose Houston quarterback Andre Ware.

Beckmann told the caller that he might not have all the answers, but he was certain of one thing ... the Lions would not take Ware. Beckmann was very adamant in his response.

So, where is Ware?

With the Lions, of course.

Maybe WJR will now have Beckmann predicting the weather.

About the same day of Beckmann's prediction, I heard Larry King tell a listener that he felt Montreal would win this year's Stanley Cup.

The Canadians, as of this writing, are down 3-0 to the Boston Bruins, far away from taking another victory lap while hoisting the Cup.

I like listening to Beckmann and King, but it just shows that they (and I'll admit I'm not any better either) usually aren't any better than the fans with predictions.

Sports don't follow a script, so no one is an expert, and yet, everyone is an expert at the same time. Predictions are fun and will always be one of the joys of sports.

OK, which team will win the NBA championship? ...

Classy Chris

I was fortunate to see Chris Evert play tennis against Martina Navratilova April 20 at The Palace.

The match didn't mean anything, it was only an exhibition. But you could sense that both players were playing hard and having fun at the same time.

I grew up watching Evert, we're both about the same age. I still remember when she was just 16 years old with that poker face, ready to take on the world's best.

The poker face was still there at the Palace, but there was also time for her to smile.

The lights were turned down as both players made their entrance to the court. When they started to take their practice swings, the lights were still dim.

Navratilova, a tennis legend in her own right, later joked to the crowd that the Palace was saving money on lighting so they could afford the fines of the Pistons in the basketball slugfest with the 76ers.

Evert also showed she had a quick wit to match her quickness on the court. There was a drunk in the stands (who, of course with my luck, was sitting only a few rows away from me). He sometimes disturbed the players and the crowd by yelling just as a player was about to serve.

Evert finally got tired of the beer guzzler and yelled up into the nose-bleed section, "That's one of my ex-boyfriends."

Wouldn't you love to know who she was thinking about when she said it?

Anyway, that's no way to treat a lady, especially one with Grand Slam championships, a classic poker face and a still-wicked two-hand backhand.

Borngesser rolls to perfection, again

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Nobody's perfect, but those watching Don Borngesser bowl would disagree.

Borngesser, co-owner of Carol's Village Grill, rolled a 300 April 10 at Farmington's Country Lanes in the University Men's League.

He saved the best for last because it was the league's last week of competition.

The perfect score was Borngesser's second. He bowled his first 300 in the early 80s.

Borngesser's experience (he has bowled for 32 years) and the atmosphere set by his Twin Pines teammates and foes made it a little easier to complete the usually nerve-wrecking final few frames.

"I did get a little tense, with people stopping to watch," said Borngesser, who has a hefty 212 average. "But if it's going to happen, it's going to happen."

He noted that an experienced opposing bowler kept bowling on the lane next to him instead of watching, which helped him continue in a routine. And his usually loose teammates continued to be loose right to the end.

"In the last frame, Larry Angott kept yelling, 'We need a double strike. We're tired of carrying you,'" smiled Borngesser.

Borngesser bowled on lanes 25 and 26, using a Columbia 300 which he bought in the past year.

The bowler said that he was solidly knocking down the pins all evening.

"Basically, every ball was in the pocket," he said. "There weren't a lot of lucky strikes."

He doesn't have any particular superstitions, but he did later recall that he "tended to sit in the same spot" all night while waiting to bowl.

He also said he took a rare nap before going to the lanes.

"Maybe I should do that more often," he laughed. "I could get out of work to do it."

Moments after Borngesser nailed the last strike, he said he "got lost in a sea of congratulations."

He also received an unexpected $100 from Country Lanes.

Borngesser can now order another ring commemorating his 300 game to match the other one he already has.

He also wears another ring which he earned for bowling an 800-plus series in 1985, an accomplishment he values even more than the two perfect games.

Borngesser comes from a bowling family. His mother worked in a bowling alley for 14 years.

Borngesser spends more time serving bowls of hot soup than bowling, but on April 10 he was scorching the lanes.

Recreation Roundup

COACHES NEEDED

Coaches are needed for youth teams (boys and girls, ages 7-10) who play either Monday and Wednesday or Tuesday and Thursday mornings. The season begins June 16 with a kickoff Saturday and will run through July. Those who would like to volunteer to coach but do not have a great deal of baseball or softball knowledge will be able to attend a coaching clinic to help. Those interested should call the recreation office.

SPONSORS NEEDED

Sponsors are needed for two youth programs that provide constructive activities for youngsters between the ages of 4 and 16. More than 1,200 children participate in the summer's Jr. Baseball and Youth Softball program. Sponsors are needed to provide uniforms for a team of 15 players.

In addition to being good advertising, sponsors will see their names in the newspaper weekly, will receive a sponsor appreciation plaque at the season-finale picnic for all teams, will have an advertisement included in a yearbook which is given to all participants and will have their name listed in the Parks and Recreation brochure as a Recreation Supporter. The brochure is mailed out to more than 17,000 households in Independence Township.

Safety Town, a new program that is designed to teach safety to children between 4 and 6 years old, is also in need of sponsors. The program has proven effective in other communities in reducing needless deaths and accidents among children. This 20-hour program will introduce the youngsters to all types of safety education. Sponsors are need to offset the costs involved in the initial set up of this program. There are a variety of sponsorship opportunities available.

ADULT SOFTBALL LEAGUES

A limited number of spaces are still available in the adult summer softball leagues. Games are to begin the week of May 13 and run through mid-July. Men's, women's and co-rec leagues are available. Those interested in getting a team into any of the leagues should call the rec. office.

MOTHER/DAUGHTER FASHION SHOW

The second annual Mother/Daughter Fashion Show is 12:30-2 p.m. Saturday, May 5, at Clintonwood Park. The $7 tickets include a choreographed fashion show, a "lite" lunch, an essay contest and an open fashion show for those who wish to come dressed in their chosen fashions.

Inter-generational fashion teams are encouraged (i.e. mother, daughter and grandmother). Plus, there's face painting for the daughters and personal image consulting for the moms.

To be a model in the choreographed fashion show, register by Monday, April 23. The 12 modeling couples will be drawn from those registered by this date. Essays written by daughters expressing what makes their mother special are due by Wednesday, May 2. Only 125 tickets will be sold for this event, so early registration is advised.

CLINTONWOOD SUN VOLLEYBALL

Now is the time to start registering for outdoor volleyball leagues and tournaments — a variety of power and recreational leagues take place at Clintonwood Park. Players must be 16 years old to participate.

The league days will be: women's power - Monday evenings; co-rec mixer - Tuesday evenings; co-rec recreational - Wednesday evenings; men's power - Thursday evenings. All matches begin the week of June 4, with the deadline to register May 25. Leagues will be filled on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Co-rec, men's, women's and high school girls tournaments are to be held throughout the summer.

WALK MICHIGAN

Independence Township Parks and Recreation will again be offering participants to take part in the Walk Michigan program.

Prizes are to be awarded by drawing at the conclusion of each walk. Names will also be entered in the season finale drawing each time a person walks. The winner of the season finale drawing receives a free weekend at Mackinac Island on Labor Day weekend. The purpose of this program is to promote good health.

The dates for the walks are as follows:

April 28 - 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. - Baycourt Park
May 3 - 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. - Clintonwood Park
May 8 - 6 p.m. - Sashabaw Plains Park
May 19 - 1 p.m. - Depot Park
May 27 - 1 p.m. - Clintonwood Park
June 4 - 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. - Clintonwood Park
June 13 - 7 p.m. - Sashabaw Plains
June 17 - 4 p.m. - Independence Oaks

Walkers should plan to show up ready to walk at the announced date, time and location. Pre-registration is not required.

Fire department sells property

A $32,000 bid for the purchase of a 1 1/2-acre parcel of vacant fire department land was approved by the Independence Township Board April 17.

The proceeds from the sale are to go toward a new fire station, according to Chief Gar Wilson.

The property, just south of Rattalee Lake Road on M-15, was appraised at $30,100. Paul Felice Sr., who owns most of the surrounding area's property, had his bid selected from a field of 11 applicants. Board members reported that Felice intends to build a horse farm on the purchased land.

The property was one of two fire department parcels put up for sale last November. The other plot of land is a two-and-one-half-acre parcel in the southeastern corner of Waldon Road and M-15, which has been appraised at $209,000.

If bidder participation doesn't pick up soon, board members plan to list the parcel with a real estate company.

Keeping Clarkston Small

Keeping government small

Citizens for Clarkston

For Clarkston, cityhood means keeping control and keeping it small, including small-town government. Yes, there would be a change in titles: A mayor instead of a village president, a council instead of a board of trustees. And the title of village manager would change to city manager.

But the duties and responsibilities of local government would remain about as they are now, with three exceptions required by law.

The first is that as a city, Clarkston would conduct state and federal elections as well as elections for local offices and local concerns. Second, the new city would collect county and school taxes as well as its own local taxes. And, third, Clarkston would be responsible for its own property assessments — and adjustments.

The first two changes would simply be additions to functions already performed by the present government. The third, property assessments, would probably be contracted for, but would be under local supervisions. Adding only paperwork and hours, all three functions would be part-time operations.

Clarkston would also assume greater control over policing the community and enforcing speed limits. Under the present system, the village pays for general policing through township and county taxes. Additionally, it pays the township specifically for speed limit enforcement, with mixed results.

Fire protection would be contracted for instead of paid through township taxes as at present.

Overall, local government would continue as it does now: Small town. The village hall in the park would become a city hall. Daytime, the city manager would be reached there, or at home, by phone or visit, as now.

Citizens would continue to go there to council and planning commission meetings to listen and talk about local needs — controlling Clarkston's future.

Generally, business as usual: Snow-covered streets would be plowed in winter and swept clean in summer. The park would be mowed weekly. Sidewalks and roads would be repaired as needed; trees planted for replacement and planned beautification.

A future column will discuss changes in costs and taxes resulting from cityhood. It can be noted now that Clarkston residents would no longer pay township taxes. Those dollars would transfer to the new city as income to pay for such costs as fire and police protection.

Citizens for Clarkston is comprised of an "informal group" of Clarkston residents who are in favor of cityhood. Village residents are to vote on the issue of cityhood May 21.

One hurt in M-15 'domino' crash

A three-car accident on M-15 near Citation Drive, Independence Township, resulted in the hospitalization of one person Friday, April 20.

At 5:30 p.m., the Oakland County Sheriff's Department responded to the call of a "domino" style crash on M-15. Police records indicate that two northbound vehicles were stationary on M-15 while waiting for a car in front of them to turn left into an adjacent driveway.

Heather A. Hintz, 18, of Ortonville was driving north on M-15 when she crashed into the rear end of a motionless vehicle driven by Elizabeth I. Smith, 63, of Essexville. The momentum of the collision pushed Smith's car into the rear of an automobile driven by Lyle L. Ellis, 53, of Oxford.

Hintz told the officers on the scene that she took her eyes off the road momentarily to adjust her radio. When she looked up, she was immediately behind the two stopped vehicles and didn't have time to stop the vehicle.

Smith, who was wearing a seat belt at the time of the crash, was rushed to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital for medical attention. She sustained a small hip fracture and was released on Monday, April 23.

Optimists' dinner dance May 11

Clarkston-area residents have a chance to win prizes, enjoy a great meal and good entertainment and help a good cause at the same time.

The Clarkston Area Optimists' second annual Dinner Dance is scheduled for Friday, May 11, at the Deer Lake Racquet Club, White Lake Road, Independence Township.

Last year, the Dinner Dance raised about $5,000 for the family of the late Henry Richardson, a Clarkston attorney who drowned on Deer Lake last winter.

This year, the proceeds are to go toward the Optimists' youth activities.

Tickets are $30 per person and may be purchased from any Optimist member or by calling Mike Cascone at 625-6842.

At 6 p.m., entertainment begins, along with registration and the cocktail hour. Dinner is at 7:30 p.m., and the live auction and silent auction begin at 8 p.m. Dancing starts at 9 p.m.

To donate an item or service to be auctioned or for more information, call 625-6842.

Youth Assistance gets $2,000 donation

Holly and Clarkston Area Youth Assistance received a donation from Springfield Township April 12.

The township board awarded $2,000 to each Youth Assistance organization in a unanimous decision.

Garry Pullins, social worker in charge of Clarkston's Youth Assistance, attended the April 12 meeting, which had a packed agenda and filled the township hall beyond capacity.

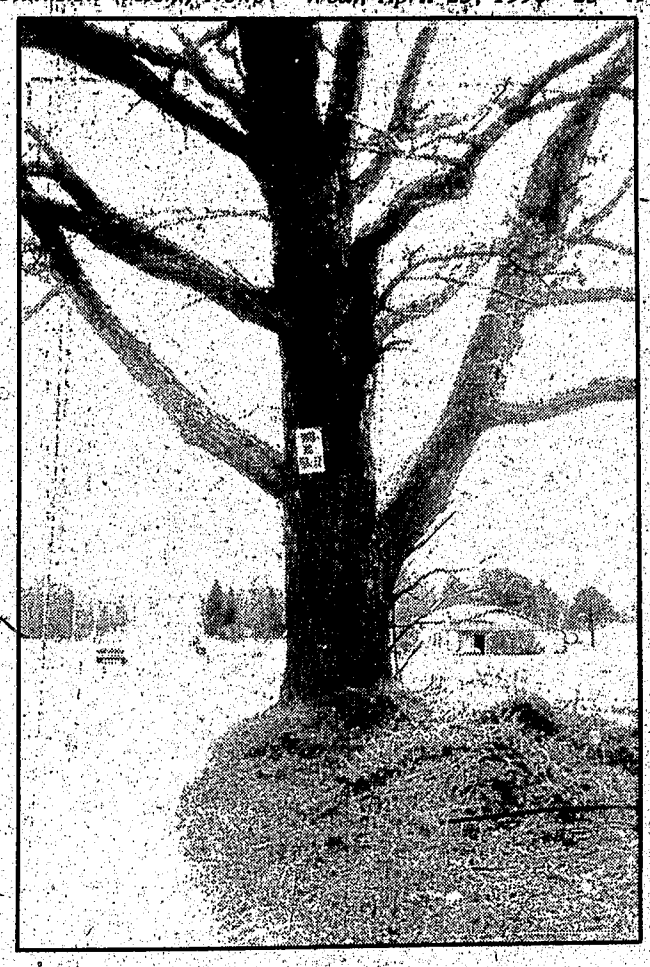
"This is the first time in 14 years that I've been coming here that it has been this crowded," Pullins said. "I've never seen anything like tonight."

Rezoning proposed for 3.21 acres on Pine Knob

A rezoning of 3.21 acres at the northeast corner of Greenview and Pine Knob roads is the subject of a public hearing before the Independence Township Planning Commission Thursday, May 10.

Clarkston-area resident Johnnie Moore is requesting that the land be rezoned from rural residential to a suburban farm residential designation.

The public hearing is slated for 7:30 p.m. at the Independence Township Annex in Clarkston. For further information on the public hearing, call the Township Planning office at 625-8111 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.



Sign of the times

REMNANTS of the Feb. 12 school millage election are still visible in parts of Independence Township. This sign, which reads "Vote No Feb. 12," can be seen high atop a tree on Sashabaw Road. The signs have angered some school officials. George White, principal at Pine Knob Elementary, says "You'd think the derelicts who hung this thing would have the decency to take it down." DR. DEVEREAUX made time between her principal duties at Andersonville Elementary to complete her doctorate degree in educational administration.

Principal earns MSU doctorate

Ms. Sharon Devereaux, principal of Andersonville Elementary, is now Dr. Devereaux.

In December, Devereaux completed her doctorate degree in educational administration at Michigan State University in East Lansing.

Her dissertation investigated the long-term effects of developmental kindergarten.

Work for the degree was completed in twice-weekly commutes to the East Lansing campus. The five-and-a-half years required to complete the degree were grueling but rewarding, according to Devereaux.

"I enjoyed it very much," she said. "It was invigorating.

"I wanted to further my education," she added. "It wasn't for any special position but to broaden me professionally."

Since completing the degree, Devereaux has had opportunity to share her research with other teaching professionals and will soon co-author an article on her research for a childhood journal.

Actors in action

May performances are the last chances to see local acting talent in action this season.

The Clarkston Village Players' production of "The Goodbye People" is set for 8 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays, May 4, 5, 11, 12, 18 and 19. An 8 p.m. Thursday, May 17, production is also planned.

Directed by Marlene Sewick and produced by Marty Johnson, the play is a serious comedy about trials and tribulations of youth and old age.

The cast includes Verne Vackaro as Max Silverman, Sandy Sanford as Nancy, Larry McGee as Arthur Korman, Al Bartlett as Marcus Soloway, Scott Birkmeier as Eddie and Chuck Miller as Michael Silverman.

The performances take place at the Depot Theater on White Lake Road, Independence Township. Tickets are $6 and are available at Tierra on Main Street, Clarkston, or by phone at 681-3937 after 5:30 p.m.

WalkAmerica April 29 at Clarkston Elementary

The last chance to sign up for WalkAmerica is coming soon.

The Clarkston March of Dimes walk, set for Sunday, April 29, begins at 8 a.m. at Clarkston Elementary School.

Aerobic instructors from the University Racket Club are to limber up the minds and bodies of walkers before they start their 25-kilometer (15-mile) stride.

The walk ceremony starts after the warm-up and features Bryan Squires, March of Dimes goodwill ambassador; Richard Thompson, Oakland County prosecuting attorney; and George Kuhn, Oakland County drain commissioner.

Each walk site will have entertainment, snacks, music and Victory Vans that stop along the route for those who don't walk the entire 25 kilometers.

Proceeds from the walk help fund research programs, public and professional health education and community service projects that focus on preventing birth defects.

For more information, call the Walk Hotline at 423-3232. Registration and sponsor forms are available at Kentucky Fried Chicken and K mart stores.

Jets appear over Village of Clarkston

In the morning on Thursday, April 19, Clarkston resident Les Hyde called The Clarkston News in regards to the high volume of air traffic traveling over the township.

On that particular morning, several large aircraft flew over the Village of Clarkston from the east, streaking the sky with their long, white exhaust trails. Through his binoculars, Hyde told The News that the aircraft were "cigar-like" in shape, which made him believe that they were commercial aircraft and not of a military nature.

The Clarkston News called the traffic control tower at Detroit Metropolitan Airport, and Manager Jerald Linton said that none of the flights were being rerouted as far as he knew.

He said the heavy traffic could be due to an increase in flights traveling northwest or that an abnormal high density of planes arriving in Detroit was causing some of them to circle further north than usual.

It's time to register for kindergarten screening

The schedules are set in Clarkston Community Schools for annual screening of children ready to enter kindergarten this fall.

The screenings are to be conducted between Monday, April 30, and Friday, May 4.

To be eligible for kindergarten, the student must be age 5 on or before December 1, 1990.

The student must live within the school district boundary lines, must be properly immunized and must have an official county or state birth certificate.

The purpose for the screening is to gather information on each in-coming student, which will assist in determining placement and the appropriate program.

On the date of screening, children will be given series of tests ranging from dexterity to vision to hearing.

Parents will meet with the school nurse, social worker and LatchKey coordinator.

At the end of the screening, parents will have about a one-hour evaluation conference regarding their child's screening.

Parents should contact the elementary school in their attendance area and report the student name, address and birth date. At that time, the parent should schedule an appointment for the child's screening date.

The following screening schedule has been set.

- Andersonville: Monday, April 30, 8:30-2:30 p.m. (625-5300).
- North Sashabaw: Tuesday, May 1, 9-3 p.m. (674-3139).
- Bailey Lake: Wednesday, May 2, 9-4 p.m. (625-2812).
- Clarkston: Thursday, May 3, 8-2 p.m. (625-4900).
- Pine Knob: Friday, May 4, 9-4 p.m. (625-1583).

Opinion of Bill Myers

S.S. Investment

The hoo-rah about Social Security and cutting the rates, and hanky-panky in accounting of its fund in Washington, brings up an age-old charge:

The Social Security Administration takes in cash and then buys government bonds with surplus over what it has to pay out.

This is bad, say the critics, because the U.S. Treasury just takes the money and exchanges a bond for it. Then the Treasury spends the money for Lord knows what, and continues to run a deficit. This is a wicked scheme, say the objectors.

Leaving aside the accounting methods of the Treasury, and whether the Social Security funds should be a part of the budget, let's look at just the argument of Social Security using its extra cash to buy government bonds.

Say today Social Security has taken in $1 million more in cash than it needs to pay out. Shouldn't it invest the surplus in something? Or should it convert all the checks and credits that come in, into currency and lock it up in a safe?

Of course not. So where will it put its money? It could buy some AT&T bonds. Social Security will exchange its cash for $1 million in a piece of paper that bears AT&T's guarantee of payment say 10 years hence, and meanwhile pay 9% on it. The buyer, Social Security or you or anybody else is not going to tell AT&T how they are to spend the money.

Neither should Social Security people tell the U.S. Treasury how to run its show when it shunts its $1 million over to the the other part of town in Washington.

It doesn't mean that Social Security doesn't maintain a trust fund. It has obligations of the U.S. Government in this fund, instead of cash.

From the Treasury's standpoint, it can sell its bonds all over the world. It is no particular favor, nor anything scaly to sell them to another branch of government. If Social Security doesn't buy its bonds, Treasury has no trouble selling its obligations. Billions and billions of new Treasury bonds are sold every month on the world market. We like to think that about the same amount of maturing bonds are being paid off, so we do not sink deeper in debt -- but that's another matter.

Let's be thankful that the Social Security boys have not been tempted to invest as the S&L's -- and quite a few banks -- have done so disgracefully.

SECTION B

Racer gets thrill from fast track

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Some people collect stamps for a hobby, some knit sweaters and some paint landscapes.

Dave Simko's hobby is to drive around an oval track over 200 mph while tailing another car inches away.

The 35-year-old Independence Township resident, who is president of Mound Steel Co. in Auburn Hills, considers racing stock cars a "hobby" because he doesn't depend on the prize money for survival.

Racing on the NASCAR (National Association of Stock Car Racing) and ARCA (Automobile Racing Club of America) circuits isn't something Simko has to do, but it is something he still wants to do. And the 1972 Clarkston High School graduate has been doing it since 1974 when he competed at the Mount Clemens Race Track.

Racing is a Simko family tradition, and it looks as if that tradition will continue. Al Simko, Dave's father, raced cars and was the creator of Mound Steel Co. Al won some races but the biggest thing he ever won was $5.7 million in the Michigan Lotto a few years ago.

Patty Simko, Dave's 30-year-old sister, also races on the ARCA circuit, sometimes competing against her big brother. His brother Tom and sister Dina race a little, and Dave's 14-year-old son, Chris, is a member of his father's pit crew and is thinking about racing someday, too.

"When he's (Chris) old enough, that's probably when I'll retire from racing," said Simko.

Simko competes in about 20 races a year on courses around the country, including Michigan International Raceway in Irish Hills.

Because of the millions of dollars now needed to be spent in order to race in the biggest stock car races, such as the Daytona 500, Simko usually can only afford to race in the ARCA Permatex Super Car Series. But ARCA is well known throughout the country, and it isn't unusual to see one of Simko's races televised nationally.

* * *

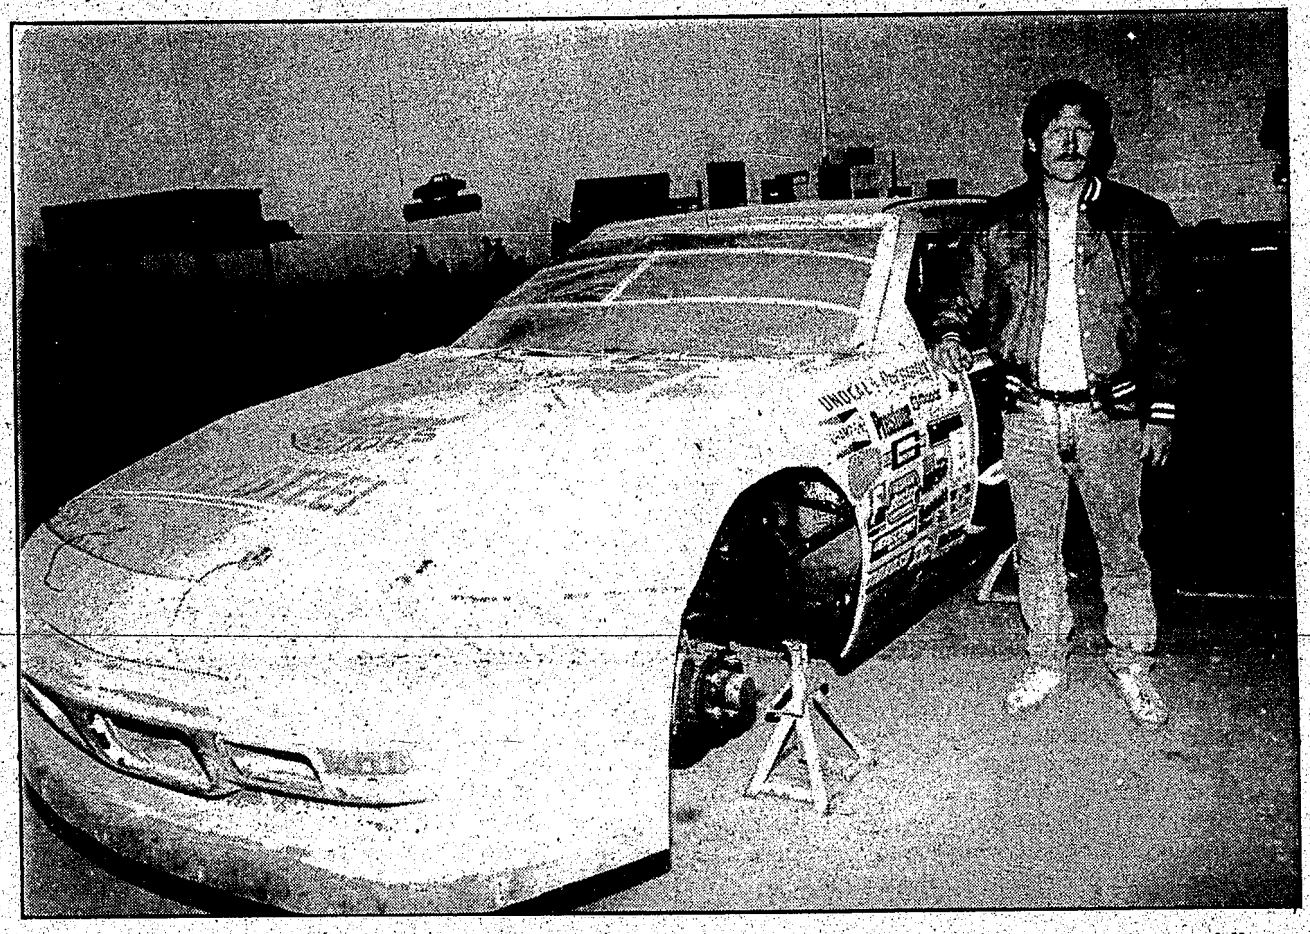
"Everything we win goes back into the car."

Dave Simko

In fact, his next race, the Bumper to Bumper 500 in Talladega, Ala., will be televised live on ESPN 1 p.m. on May 5. He will then be closer to home on May 26 when he competes at the Miller Genuine Draft 150 in Flat Rock.

Simko might not have the big money and sponsors of a Richard Petty, but he speeds around the oval nearly as fast and enjoys it just as much. He still holds the track record in Talladega while gaining the pole position for the Permatex 500, averaging 201.464 mph.

Simko has never taken the checkered flag in 62 career ARCA races but has finished second several times,



DAVE Simko's Pontiac Grand Prix takes a lot of bumps and bruises after a race. Simko's next race on May 5 will be broadcasted live on ESPN at 1 p.m.

in the top-five 13 times, top-10 28 times; and he has led in races for 102 total laps.

He was also the STP Prestone ARCA Rookie of the Year in 1985 when he finished fifth in ARCA total point standings.

What is it like behind the wheel?

Maybe Simko best described the feel of 200-plus mph by saying that when drivers start to slow down for the pits, it feels like they are standing still even though they are still traveling about 100 mph.

Because Simko has been around the oval a few times more than some other drivers, especially the rookies, he feels he has the advantage of knowing how to draft better. Drafting is the process of staying closely on the tail of another car, bumper to bumper.

"When you get in the draft, you can pick up an extra two to three miles an hour," said Simko. That doesn't sound like much but it is important in a sport that often depends on split seconds separating the final positions in races.

Timing, including avoidance of possible accidents, is also measured in split seconds.

Simko, who says he doesn't carry life insurance because the premiums are so high, knocks on wood when explaining that he hasn't directly been involved in any major accidents. Maybe the closest he came to a serious injury was when Slick Johnson's car bumped into his at the ARCA 200 in Daytona. Simko walked away from the crash, but Johnson was killed.

Simko's sister, Patty, who lives in South Carolina, once survived a terrible crash, a crash that was pictorially featured on a two-page spread in a national racing magazine.

But racing continues to remain in the blood, and Simko and his sister continue to race against each other.

"She never beat me," said Simko, but smiles when he says his kid sister finished ahead of him in some races only because his car broke down.

Simko has two cars, both Pontiac Grand Prixs, and plans on a third car being built soon. He is sponsored by the Tom Door Co., which owns the car, and Michigan Steel Erectors, which owns the engine. Mound Steel then fills in for any other costs.

Simko says each car costs about $30,000m and a 350 small-block engine with 650 horsepower totals about $25,000.

"Everything we win goes back into the car," says Simko, who gets help with his winning by a four-member, part-time pit crew.

When Simko isn't racing, he drives a van. It's difficult to fit a wife and four children in a stock car filled with rollbars and other safety equipment.

Simko, who is also a licensed pilot, is serious when he says, "I feel safer in a race car riding with professionals than on the road."

He says his wife Sherri, overall, accepts the risks in racing.

"At first it bothered her, but to do it for so long, she realizes it's a way of life," said Simko.

Probably what bothers his wife the most is the time spent on the road, away from the home on Horseshoe in Independence Township.

Simko's racing days will eventually be over, and when they are he plans on spending more time with his family and more time involved with two other speedy activities, flying and snow skiing.

But Simko also plans to slow down by playing more golf.

You can travel only so fast by pushing the pedal to the metal on a golf cart.

Tips to keep your car new for years

We have all probably heard the stories about the little old lady who still has her Model T Ford in mint condition, having only driven it to church on Sundays for the past 60 years.

Well, there are many more vehicles on the road that have 100,000 or more miles on the odometer and are still running strong.

And in almost every case the reason for this longevity is simple: proper maintenance.

Many of you may have taken advantage of the good deals last fall and may now be proud owners of new cars and trucks.

Whether you remain proud of your investment, and keep your vehicle in "like-new" condition for years to come, will depend on your attention to its maintenance needs.

With that in mind, I offer the following maintenance schedule to get your car started right off.

Remember that if you do not feel comfortable performing any of these checks or changes yourself, there are plenty of qualified mechanics and specialty automotive centers, like quick-lube shops, that can handle it.

The most important thing is for you to stay on top of things and know when to schedule your maintenance appointment.

■ Oil and filter changes: Motor oil is the lifeblood of your car's engine. Its performance is key to the rest of your engine working properly.

Above all, you should use the grade of motor oil recommended in your owner's manual. In 1990 models, most manufacturers are recommending "lighter" multigrade oils with Energy Conserving II (EC-II) ratings.

You should follow your owner's manual recommendations on oil and filter changes. Most of us drive between five and 30 miles a day, to and from work in stop-and-go traffic.

Under these conditions, the oil and oil filter should be changed every three months or 3,000 miles, whichever comes first.

Frequent oil and filter changes are an economical way to insure prolonged engine life.

■ Air Filter: Inspect your air filter every 3,000 miles and change it when it appears dirty. How often you actually have to change your air filter will depend on the mileage and the terrain where you drive.

When is it dirty enough to change? When in doubt, go ahead and change it.

■ Antifreeze/engine cooling system: Antifreeze can be easily checked on newer-model vehicles because they have a see-through plastic overflow reservoir.

Auto manufacturers recommend changing the antifreeze every two or three years with a cooling system flush.

It should be changed immediately when the solution is dirty, rusty or contains large amounts of sediment.

Also, check the hoses and clamps around the radiator on a regular basis to make sure they are properly connected.

■ Battery: It's wise to have a trained mechanic check your battery fluid and connections. This should be done monthly, especially in cold weather. If water is required, make sure only distilled water is used.

■ Tires: At least once a month you should check your tires to make sure they are properly inflated, according to the pressure recommended on the tire and in the owner's manual.

Also look for signs of irregular tread wear.

Incorrect air pressure can cause premature or abnormal wear, which ultimately could lead to a dangerous blowout.

Correct air pressure not only produces a smooth, safe ride, but it also can help increase fuel economy.

■ Chassis lubrication: Most vehicles are now manufactured with semi-permanent lubrication.

Most automakers recommend relubrication around 25,000 miles or every three years.

■ Transmission fluid: You should check the transmission-fluid level every two months.

Your driving habits will dictate how often the fluid needs to be changed. If you drive mostly short trips in stop-and-go traffic, your transmission fluid should be changed between 15,000 and 25,000 miles, depending upon your vehicle manufacturer.

As always, let your owner's manual be your guide.

■ Brake fluid: Brake fluid should be checked whenever checking other vita fluid levels. Be sure to clean the top of the master cylinder with a clean cloth before removing the cap.

And use only brake fluid conforming to DOT 3 requirements when additions are required.

Frequent need to add brae fluid is and indication of severe brake wear.

■ Power steering fluid: Power steering fluid should also be checked during your regular underhood service.

Always turn the engine off before doing this check to prevent injury. Clean the cap to avoid contaminating the fluid with dirt.

If power-steering fluid is required, consult your owner's manual for the correct type.

Using the wrong fluid can cause hose and pump damage.

■ Tune-up: Make sure your vehicle gets a complete tune-up at least once a year, preferably before winter if you live in a cold climate.

Regular tune-ups improve fuel efficiency, extend engine life and help reduce harmful emissions.

Remember to check your owner's manual for specific recommendations and instructions in all of these areas.

Most of these steps take only a few minutes and could make your car last as long a the little old lady's Model T.

Prevent lethal exhaust emissions

Exhaust emissions and engine performance go hand-in-hand.

A smooth running, efficient engine probably would pass inspection in most parts of the U.S.A., says Car Care Council.

Computerized controls have made important contributions to cleaner running, more efficient engines but computers cannot compensate for serious engine neglect.

Diagnostic services and periodic tune-ups still are essential to prevent driveability problems.

The engine components most often responsible for performance difficulties on modern cars are the air filter, the spark plugs and the fuel injectors.

Together or individually, these three can lead to poor combustion in the engine.

But an important part of the driveability team is the oxygen sensor. This sensitive device in the emissions control system "sniffs" for a specified amount of oxygen.

It then tells the computer controls on the engine to compensate as needed.

An air filter loaded with dust and dirt, for example, will cause the fuel-air mixture to be overly rich. Conversely, a clogged fuel injector may produce a lean mixture.

Further, worn spark plugs may misfire, causing unburned fuel to pass through the exhaust system.

Any of these conditions can lead to excessive pollutants in the exhaust.

The oxygen sensor signals the computer controls to compensate for the condition and adjustments are made.

But the sensor can be "fooled" and mistakenly can signal the engine to correct the wrong problem, thereby leading to poor engine operation.

A misfiring spark plug, for example, will allow fuel to pass through the engine without being burned.

The oxygen sensor does not scent the fuel but it does record the high oxygen content.

In turn, it signals the computer to enrichen the mixture, aggravating the original problem.

Also, if that sensor, which operates in the hostile environment of hot exhaust, is malfunctioning, no corrections will occur. Emission increase and the conditions generally worsen.

There is a definite interrelationship between the spark plugs, air filter, fuel injectors and oxygen sensor.

These critical parts should be checked and/or replaced as part of a tune-up, concludes the Car Care Council.

When neglected, the car cannot perform up to your expectations.

NO FEES.

We're waiving all fees on our new Home Equity Line of Credit and our Homeowner's Loan between now and June 30.

And unlike some banks, there are no annual fees with these home equity loans, either.

NO WAIT.

Once you apply, you'll get an answer on your loan in as few as 24 hours. All you need to do is provide us with the necessary information, including your home's assessed valuation and your existing mortgage.

HOME EQUITY LOANS.

You can borrow anywhere from $5,000 to $100,000, depending on the equity in your home. And Old Kent gives you two choices:

Home Equity Line of Credit — offers the flexibility of writing a check whenever you need a loan.

Homeowner's Loan — offers the comfort of a fixed rate, fixed term loan.

Both offer advantages over many credit cards or installment loans:

- Lower interest
- Lower monthly payments
- Tax deductible interest — consult your tax advisor.

The rate on our Homeowner's Loan is as low as 11% APR. The APR on our Home Equity Line of Credit may vary; current APRs are 11½% or 12%, depending on how much you borrow. APR will not exceed 18%, and can go as low as 10%.

Visit or call any of our branch offices listed below for more information. But hurry — you have to say yes to this no-fee, no-wait offer before June 30!

Clock business moves to new M-15 mall location

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Cliff Hammond felt it was about time he moved his business.

On March 26, Hammond changed the location of It's About Time from Washington Street in downtown Clarkston to the Clarkston Crossing mall on M-15, just a few blocks away from the original site.

Clocks, especially grandfather clocks, are It's About Time's specialty.

Hammond thinks the M-15 site is a better location, especially with people entering from the I-75 entrance.

It's About Time had been located on Washington Street since 1981. Hammond's first store opened in Bloomfield Township in 1977. He had two locations (Bloomfield and Clarkston) from 1981 to 1984, then decided to only keep the Clarkston store in operation after 1984.

Hammond, who moved to Michigan from his native Missouri in 1961, originally was in sales but always was fascinated by clocks. For the past 13 years he considers his clock business a labor of love.

Some wall clocks and shelf clocks are visible when entering It's About Time, but the grandfather clocks definitely dominate the appearance of the store.

But visually is only half of that dominance. The sounds of the chimes (Westminster, Whittington, St. Michael and Winchester) also had to that dominance.

"A grandfather clock adds a voice and a heartbeat to a house," said Hammond fondly. "The voice is the chime, and the heartbeat is the ticking."

Hammond, who also has one part-time worker employed, said he easily sells more grandfather clocks than any other type of clock. Most of those are sold to Clarkston-area people, but some are also sold throughout the whole country.

Most of the clocks are made by Howard Miller, a company located in Zeeland.

Hammond not only sells clocks, he also repairs them. Because of this, the licensed horologist is particular about the quality of products he sells.

"Anything I carry has to pass my quality criteria," says Hammond. "Basically, I won't sell anything I can't repair."

The grandfather clocks sell from $550 and up. Hammond says a person could buy one loaded with extras as expensive as $20,000.

It's About Time is open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays. Hours during the busy Christmas season are extended.

What's New in Business

Cliff Hammond

CLIFF Hammond is nearly finished with his display of grandfather clocks in his new location in Clarkston Crossing — a mall on M-15, north of the Village of Clarkston.

Woman of the Year

Cindy Hartzman

Cindy Hartzman was named 1990 Woman of the Year by the Inde-Spring Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association. Hartzman joined the chapter in 1987 and has since donated much of her time and talents to the chapter.

In the short time she has been a member Cindy has been secretary for the year 1988-89 and is currently vice president. She has also chaired the Bulletin Committee for the years 1987-88 and 1988-89, the Fall and Spring Enrollment Committee for 1988, and the Christmas Auction in 1989.

Cindy has also worked on other committees as needed and was honored for three years of perfect attendance at chapter meetings.

Hartzman, a Clarkston-area resident, is married and has four children. She works at Insight at Colombiere, Springfield Township, and also has her own custom sewing business.

The honor of Woman of the Year is conferred upon a member each year by a vote of the membership. Many considerations are taken into account in the selection, including chapter involvement and dedication to the mission of the American Business Women's Association.

Avoid slow warmups for efficiency

In the house, the owner comfortably finished his second cup of coffee. The car will be toasty warm when he's ready to take off for work.

The owner may justify this wasteful practice with the excuse that the car operates better when it is allowed to warm up before driving.

Wrong, says Car Care Council. When the choke is set, as is the case when a cold engine is started and then left at fast idle, the car is burning gas a a furious rate.

Engine wear is accelerated because raw fuel from the enriched mixture washes lubricating oil down the cylinder walls.

This also contaminates oil in the engine crankcase, further inviting engine damage.

There is a great tendency for spark plugs to foul under these conditions, too. The excessively rich mixture is an ideal environment for plug fouling.

Another consideration is the possibility of overheating the catalytic converter in the exhaust system.

If it gets hot enough it could set something on fire, especially if the car is parked over a flammable substance which could ignite.

The car itself could catch fire.

In any type of weather, the car should be started, run for a minute or less at idle and then driven at moderate speed until the engine has reached normal operating temperature.

Area woman cooks up a cheesecake business

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Ellen DeFay considers cooking theraputic. That therapy has recently turned into a new business adventure.

About the beginning of April, Ellen, a resident of Harbortown Circle, Springfield Township, decided to start selling L. Cheesecakes.

CHEESECAKES are made by Ellen Defay, of Independence Twp.

"I'm following friends advice," Ellen said.

Her product has been tested on friends and family for many years.

"My husband likes anything cheesecake," she said.

Daughters Becca, 15, and Lisa, 17, students at Clarkston High School, have their favorite flavor cheesecakes that Ellen concocts, but they like to have store bought confections too.

"My kids beg for store bought cookies," Ellen said.

Ellen has always enjoyed cooking. She graduated from Purdue University in Indiana with a major in home economics. She's worked for Litton and Amana doing microwave demonstrations and teaching cooking school.

Currently she is employed at McClaren Hospital in Flint as a personnel assistant.

But cooking is her love.

"I like to cook," she said. "I read cookbooks like they're novels."

Ellen's eight variations of cheesecakes are made from one basic recipe she has adapted from other recipes, and she's working on adapting some of the recipes for holidays.

"I'm working on pumpkin variation, and one that has a layered look," she said.

Ellen uses all natural ingredients in her cheese cakes.

"I use sour cream in all of my cheesecakes — it lightens it up, and makes the texture creamier and lighter," Ellen said.

Cheesecake can go along way when serving guests. Ellen's 10-inch cheesecake serves 18, with 1 1/2 inch wedges.

Ellen makes a mini cheesecake in a two-inch round cup size that will serve two people, but she sells them in groups of six.

"Cheesecake is great for graduations and bridal showers," Ellen said.

Cheesecake freezes well for a couple of weeks, and it must be removed from the freezer for about five hours before serving. Ellen suggests that the cheesecakes be defrosted in the refrigerator.

Brand new

PROGRESS at Pool Mart is apparent in the business' brand new facilities. The company's Ortonville Road, Independence Township, facilities have been completely rebuilt to include additional parking, offices, a warehouse, salesrooms, basement, upper level and kitchen. The renovation, part of owner Pete Gannon's 10-year plan, was conducted not to increase business, but to "catch up with what we've got." (Photo by Tracy King)

Vice president named to board

Clarence G. Catallo, senior vice president and director of PaineWebber's 12-state North Central division, has been elected to the Board of Directors of PaineWebber Inc., announced Paul B. Guenther, president.

PaineWebber Inc. is a subsidiary of PaineWebber Group Inc.

Guenther said, "This election is in recognition of Clarence's extensive knowledge of the securities industry and his leadership capabilities. I'm sure he'll be an integral member of the board."

A 25-year veteran of the securities industry, Catallo came to PaineWebber in January 1988 from E.F. Hutton, where he had been executive vice president and manager of their Great Lakes region.

Catallo earned a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Detroit. He resides in Clarkston with his wife, Sharron, who is president of the Clarkston Village Council. They have two children: Curt, 22, and Cara, 20.

PaineWebber has 275 offices and 4,400 investment executives nationwide.

MATTHEW KUSKY scored third highest for his age group in the recent 1990 Nintendo World Championship at Cobo Hall. He cites "practice" for his ability to do well at the games, though his parents limit his playing time to weekends.

A Nintendo champ within our midst

Matthew Kusky, 13, of Elk Run Drive, Independence Township, competed in the Nintendo contest at Cobo Hall this April against thousands of others. Matt finished in the quarter-finals, and then the semi-finals, to place as one of the top seven finalists.

He left the contest scoring third highest in his age group in a field of some 300 contestants.

Matt admits he was surprised by his finish; when he completed his first round, he had scored 280,000 points to qualify for the semi-finals.

"You needed 200,000 to qualify," Matt states. "When I found oujt people were scoring 650,000 and up I never thought I'd make it."

"You concentrate so much (during the games) that you're not aware of anyone," he added.

Throughout the semi-finals, and the entire contest for that matter, participants were given six minutes to earn their highest score in three different games.

When his mother, Sandra, threw in the fact that Matt is only allowed to play Nintendo on weekends, Matt subtlely revealed that he occasionally gets in an extra game or two during the week.

An honor student at Clarkston Junior High, Matt doesn't claim any one Nintendo game as his favorite.

for his victory in the Michigan phase of the 1990 Nintendo World Championship competition, Matt earned a T-shirt, certificate and two free games.

The next competition is set in Orlando, Florida.

Friendly Faces/James Hibler

James Hibler is director of the Independence Township Library.

Residence: Windward Court, Independence Township. He has lived in the area for 10 1/2 years.

About the community: He has really enjoyed the community and admits it's also nice to be so close to work.

Family: Hibler and his wife, Cynthia, who works as a librarian at the Rochester Hills Library, have one son, William, age 14 months. Since the baby arrived, Hibler has seen quite a change in his life, he said, adding that it's a lot of work to have a child. One of his favorite activities is spending time with his son.

The library: He's been the director of the library for as long as he has lived in the Clarkston area, 10 1/2 years. Many changes have been made since he arrived: They've purchased new furniture and new materials such as videos, audio cassettes, compact discs and new items for children. They also have a lot of new services.

People visiting the library: The library is three times busier than it was when he arrived 10 years ago. Then, about 46,000 books circulated; now, about 100,000 books are being checked out. He's noticed more and more people asking questions. "They are not afraid to seek out the information they need; they know we're there to help," he says.

Future plans: "The library is now in the process of expanding," he says. Architect TMP in Bloomfield Hills has been selected to design an addition to the structure on Clarkston Road. Construction is to begin in the fall and may be completed in 1991.

Possibilities for the future library: The new facility probably will be run by computers, he says. "We hope there will be meeting rooms, quiet study areas, a children's wing and a room all about the history of Clarkston."

About his job: Hibler enjoys libraries. "It's really wonderful to have so much information at hand," he says. "Libraries are really interesting. There is always new information, new ideas; and you deal with a lot of people.

Favorite books: "The Lord of the Rings" by J.R. Tolkein and "The Art Lesson," a children's book by Thomas DePaola.

Favorite movie: "Rainman."

Favorite artist: Thomas Eacins.

Favorite athlete: Edwin Moses.

Education: Bachelor's degree in history and elementary education from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor; master's degree in library studies and history from Wayne State University, Detroit.

The Other Side of Things

Lasagna and other cafeteria crimes

Ashley Ball

At CJHS, the school cafeteria is the virtual hub of social activity ... it's where everything happens ... it's the meeting place of students. Unfortunately, however, it's also the highest crime area in the entire school. I'M NOT KIDDING! I know this from first-hand experience.

I was sitting with four friends in second lunch, debating whether Stacy should "ask" Mike after lunch or tomorrow, during science. We had just decided on tomorrow in science when a french fry landed in Jenny's pudding. She looked down at her pudding, then back at us. Another french fry landed on the table, then two more in Stacy's lasagna.

At least, we thought it was lasagna. All the food in the cafeteria is actually the same thing ... mush with tomato sauce. It's just called different names on different days of the week. For instance, on Mondays, it's called pizza pockets. On Wednesdays, it's called lasagna, and on Fridays, it's called spaghetti and meat sauce. For even greater variety, on Tuesdays and Thursdays, it's called by various Mexican names such as burritos or crispitos. As I recall, this was a Wednesday, so it was lasagna.

Anyway, we all turned around to see who was throwing the french fries. It was ... ta da! ... The Boys Behind Us. The Boys Behind Us were always getting into trouble, like the time they used the insides of the fiestadas to fingerpaint on the lunch tables.

Well, this time they met their match! I emptied my bag of Thompson seedless white grapes on the table, and we all took a handful to bombard the boys. We hit our targets.

Soon, most of the grapes were either on the floor or in the air. Then, suddenly, looming above us, was ... A LUNCH LADY. She was wearing a black leather Lunch Lady Cape and a Darth Vader Helmet.

"What are you doing?" she bellowed, cutting the air with her Jedi laser sword from K=Mart. "Look at this mess! OK, that's it. I'm marching you straight down to the assistant principal's office!"

There was an audible gasp as the lunch room quieted down. Chagrined and red with embarrassment, we looked at each other sheepishly and stood up to leave. As we filed out of the room, Stacy squashed one last grape quickly, quietly, on Matt's head.

Unfortunately, the assistant principal took our lark very seriously. Her face was grave as she extracted promises from each of us that we would never again throw Thompson seedless white grapes in the cafeteria. She didn't say we couldn't throw them in the gym, but I didn't think this was a good time to bother her for a clarification.

She became even more grave, however, when Jenny asked if this applied to red seedless crunch grapes as well. Needless to say, we were all grave when she told us we were getting an hour detention after school the following week for our grape caper.

All five of us felt strongly that this punishment was too severe for such a minor infraction. It certainly hadn't been premeditated. And none of us had ever had a detention before.

"Besides," Carla wondered, "Aren't we somehow covered by the 8th Amendment to the Bill of Rights which prohibits cruel and and unjust punishment?"

The most we'd expected was a warning ... a slap on the hand that threw the grapes.

When I got home that day, I tried to prepare my mother for the news by first helping her fully understand the importance of the 8th Amendment. But, after she got her color back, all she said was, "I never EVER got a detention during my ENTIRE school career. Your father was even captain of the FOOTBALL team and HE never got a detention!"

I looked at my mother for several seconds, waiting to hear more about what being captain of the football team had to do with detentions. But that was all she had to say on the subject. Somehow, I felt I had missed something in our conversation.

Anyway, I can tell you ... we had a very quiet evening at home that night.

After thinking about my mother's wise counseling concerning football and detentions, however, I've decided that, since cafeteria crimes are apparently not covered by the 8th Amendment, it would definitely be in my best interest, in the future, to either try out for the football team, of drop lunch from my schedule.

Know anyone who has an unusual talent or hobby? We'd like to hear about it. Give us a call at The Clarkston News. 625-3370

Apple for the Teacher

Lesley Banycky, first-grade teacher at Pine Knob

By Barb Sheffer

ORIGINALLY from the Pontiac area, Lesley Banycky now resides in the Clarkston area with her husband, Tim, and their two children.

Lesley Banycky of the Clarkston area teaches first grade at Pine Knob Elementary School. She taught the emotionally impaired room for 10 years before going to first grade for the last two years.

Before coming to Clarkston, she taught in the learning disabilities room for the Coor Intermediate School District.

Born and raised in the Pontiac area, Lesley's educational background includes graduating from Pontiac Central High School and earning a bachelor of science degree in special education for the emotionally impaired and elementary education from Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant.

She also earned a master's degree in learning disabilities from Oakland University, Rochester.

Lesley and her husband, Tim, have been married 10 years and have two children, Zachary, 4, and Kiley, 7, a first-grader at Clarkston Elementary School. Before having children, Lesley has worked for Clarkston SCAMP, summer day camp for disabled youngsters. Tim is a captain for the Pontiac Fire Department.

Lesley belongs to Alpha Delta Kappa Epsilon professional teacher's sorority, the Michigan Reading Association and the Michigan Association for Teachers of the Emotionally Disturbed Children.

With all her activities, she tries to find time to sew.

But to keep up on innovative ideas in education, Lesley attends workshops.

In the summer, she attended an intensive Math Their Way workshop, which she implemented in her classroom. With this program, the children are involved in an exciting hands-on manipulative approach to math, which they enjoy.

A visitor can see the children graphing, measuring and doing numerous other activities that their teacher has set up in the classroom.

Lesley has attended the Michigan Reading Association, which includes outstanding mini-workshops and speakers from all around the world for the last two years. She is interested in the whole language developmental program, and the children have produced several books that they shared with their parents and each other.

Lesley's classroom is bright and colorful and very inviting to everyone. The children are fortunate to have such a loving and caring teacher.

According to Lesley, "Affective education, which includes the social and emotional development of each child, is just as important as the academic development."

The staff and students of Pine Knob are pleased to have this organized, sincere, conscientious teacher counted as one of them.

Apple for the Teacher is provided through a committee of the Clarkston Education Association. This week's author, Barb Sheffer, is a second-grade teacher at Pine Knob Elementary School.

Does someone on your team consistently hit home runs, score lots of goals or pile up lots of serving aces? We'd like to know at The Clarkston News. 625-3370

Clarkston choirs perform well at music festivals

Choirs in Clarkston Community Schools represented their schools well in recent music festivals around the state.

At Berkley High School March 29, the Mixed Chorus and Choralaires (combined) and the Varsity Concert Choir from Clarkston High School (CHS) received a II rating, while the CHS Girls Select Ensemble (which rehearses 45 minutes a week after school) received a III rating for their efforts.

On March 27, these choirs — along with the CHS Madrigal Singers, the Encores of Sashabaw Junior High School (directed by Jan Merz) and the Girls Select Ensemble and Ovations of Clarkston Junior High School (directed by Danielle Blanchard) presented a concert at the high school in preparation for upcoming festivals and to present what they've already performed in competition.

At the State Solo and Ensemble Festival April 7 at the University of Michigan-Flint, the CHS Madrigal Singers earned a rating II, while soloists and a duet also earned high ratings.

"It is very gratifying to me as a teacher to share in the accomplishments of all of these fine musicians," said Grayce Warren, director of the CHS choirs.

"It is obvious that they have taken great pride in their work and have studied hard," she said. "The requirements of both the district and the state levels of competition is very demanding of music knowledge and performance, and I am extremely proud of them all."

In addition to the preparation of the festivals, most of the vocalists also were members of "Annie Get Your Gun," said Warren.

"The demands of that show, vocally, are extremely opposite in vocal technique that is required of the festivals. Congratulations are definitely in order," she said, adding that Andrew Byrne did an outstanding job as accompanist to the choirs and to all the entries to the state Solo and Ensemble competition.

Following are the results from the soloists and duet who performed at the State Solo and Ensemble Festival April 7:

Rating I
Jennifer Brown (senior), soprano
Robert Taylor (junior), bass
Mark Young (senior), baritone

Rating II
Kathleen Manser (senior), soprano

Microwave Plus

Pretty and tasty picnic food

Betty Wagner

Weight Watchers provided these delicious low-fat recipes for spring. I have adapted them to microwave cooking, and we enjoyed them at my house over the Easter holiday.

The couscous and bean salad are quick to prepare, will double easily and could be carried to a picnic when picnic weather arrives. So clip and save them for summer. All three dishes taste well and look attractive with ham or roasted chicken.

SPICED FRUIT COUSCOUS Four servings

3/4 cup water
2 tablespoons whipped butter
1/8 teaspoon salt (optional)
3 ounces uncooked couscous (dry, pre-cooked semolina)
8 dried apricot halves, diced
2 large dried figs, diced
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/8 teaspoon cardamon
1/8 teaspoon grated lemon peel

1. Measure water into a two-cup Pyrex measure. Let stand for five minutes. Stir again before serving.

2. Microwave at HIGH for two minutes.

3. Add couscous, apricot halves, figs and spices. Let stand for 5 minutes. Stir again before serving.

Each serving provides: 1 bread exchange, 1 fruit exchange, 25 optional calories.

If you don't like apricots and figs, here is an alternative I prepared: Substitute 3/4 cup orange juice for the water; one (11-ounce) can Mandarin orange segments, drained; and the spices. Follow the instructions above.

TOURLOU (Roasted Mixed Vegetables) Four servings

1 (15-ounce) can artichoke hearts, drained
1 1/2 cups cubed eggplant (1-inch cubes)
6 large plum tomatoes, blanched, peeled, seeded and quartered
1 cup sliced halved yellow squash (1-inch cubes)
3 cloves garlic, thinly sliced
2 tablespoons freshly squeezed lemon juice mixed with 1/2 cup water
1 tablespoon chopped fresh dill or 1 tablespoon dillweed
1/8 teaspoon each salt and pepper
Olive oil cooking spray

1. Place 4 cups water in a 6- to 8-cup Pyrex measure. Cover with vented plastic wrap.

2. Microwave at HIGH for 5 minutes or until water bubbles. Slip in plum tomatoes one at a time; microwave 30-60 seconds or until skins slip off.

3. Combine artichoke hearts, eggplant, tomatoes, yellow squash, garlic lemon juice and water, and spices in a 10"x6" microwavable dish. Spray with olive oil cooking spray. Stir to mix. Spray top with oil. Cover.

4. Microwave at HIGH for 6 to 8 minutes or until vegetables are tender crisp.

Each serving provides: 3 3/4 vegetable exchanges.

No cooking is necessary for this bean salad, but it is so easy and tasty that I had to share it with you.

MINTED WHITE BEAN SALAD Four servings

2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
1 tablespoon chopped fresh mint or 1 teaspoon mint leaves
1 1/2 teaspoons olive oil
6 ounces white canned beans, rinsed and drained
1/2 cup seeded and diced tomato
1/4 cup chopped green onion
1/4 cup chopped red bell pepper
5 small Calamata olives*
1/8 teaspoon salt and pepper
12 Bibb lettuce leaves
2 ounces feta cheese, cut into 4 triangles
Garnish: mint sprig

1. In medium bowl, combine 2 tablespoons water, the vinegar, chopped mint and olive oil; add remaining ingredients except lettuce, cheese and garnish.

2. Cover and refrigerate until ready to serve.

3. To serve, line serving platter with lettuce leaves; spoon bean mixture onto center of lettuce. Decoratively arrange cheese around bean mixture; Garnish with mint sprig. Or I arranged 1/4 of the recipe on four individual salad plates.

Each serving provides: 1/2 protein exchange; 3/4 bread exchange; 3/4 vegetable exchange; 1/2 fat exchange.

Default reprieve

If you're one of 2.5 million borrowers in default on a student loan, Uncle Sam will go easy on you.

U.S. Secretary of Education Lauro F. Cavazos has announced a special grace period that will allow borrowers to pay off their federally guaranteed student loans without penalty.

The grace period expires Aug. 31.

Lee Anderson, director of financial aid at Oakland University, Rochester, says payment in full of principal and interest due on defaulted loans will save borrowers the cost of penalties, administrative charges and collection fees.

These costs can add up to 35 percent of the debt.

Anderson adds that students who attended any educational institution are eligible to repay their loan without penalty.

Consumer credit reporting agencies will be notified when a loan is repaid. People in default of student loans owe the federal government $6.8 billion.

WHO IS ON THE LORD'S side? To the churches! Hello! First man preaches ten-percent tithing but in his heart his motive is to please God. His ear is towards the mind of the spirit of God. Second man preaches ten-percent tithing but in his heart his motive is to please his position (security), add to the building, or please the people more than God! His ear is towards the mind of men. Now the first man learns ten-percent tithing isn't really what God wants us to learn, in Jesus Christ, but rather just real giving from the heart so he changes because he wants to please God and not men or himself. The second man learns ten-percent tithing isn't what God wants, if he did happen to hear it, and refuses to change because it will change his position and he would then have to depend on God and walk by faith. So if one persists in telling and preaching the correct doctrine the second man retaliates, vehemently, against the truth, by discrediting the person or doctrine, as they did with Jesus, or by confusing the word, as they tried to do with Jesus, or even setting up false witnesses, as they also did with Jesus but God was with Him because he was walking in the truth of God's word loving to do the will of God. Do you actually believe or even think God is with you when you are like the second man, hating God's truth? HA! HA! HA! Are you deceived! You came to Jesus Christ! Fine! You have been baptized in the Holy Spirit with the evidence of speaking in tongues? Fine! You have been also water baptized? Fine! Now why, then, do you refuse to walk in God's truth and are ashamed of His words? Because you love your life in this life and surely you will lose it in the life to come!!! Jesus Christ is returning as God said so! Since you hate the truth you might as well be merry and eat and drink now for at that day, standing at the judgement seat of Christ, you will die-forever! (Now go ahead, construe the word some more! You're the loser!) Pour more cement on your coffin! Increase! Increase! Increase the thickness of the lid!!! !!!LX17-2*

AN HONEST INVITATION: Are you an easy going honest woman who is tired of living alone? Do you wish you had someone to talk the days events with? If so, let's help each other out. I'm a divorced polish white male entrepreneur, 59 years old who is also tired of being alone. My children are all grown and on their own. I enjoy activities such as ballroom dancing, some rock/roll dancing. Dancing polkas and waltzes, square dancing, playing pinochle, movies, video parties, dining out, cooking dinner at home by the fireplace, soft music, candles and good conversation. I have a new suburban home. I do not smoke and drink almost nothing. I do respect a woman. Sound appealing? If you are a single lady 30-50, no drugs or alcohol, let's get together. Write to: Companion Corner, P.O. Box 600-CN, Union Lake, MI 48085. !!!CX37-2

Tending to township trees
