Independence Board picks Saile for trustee seat

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Former Clarkston News Editor Jean Saile was chosen by the Independence Township Board June 19 to fill the trustee seat vacated by William Vandermark.

Saile, 59, was selected from a field of five applicants. The board voted 6-0 to appoint her to fill the seat vacated when Vandermark resigned more than a month ago to move to Springfield Township.

In her 22 years as a resident of Independence Township, Saile has served in several journalistic and community capacities.

In addition to her tenure as a Clarkston News writer and editor, she has written for the Rochester News, the Oakland Press, and free-lanced as a columnist for the Detroit News.

Her community pursuits include two years as a member of the Independence Township Planning Commission and the township's election precinct chairperson during the last general election.

According to township Supervisor Frank Ronk, two of the applicants applied by telephone and the remaining three by submitting resumes. Ronk said he decided to make the decision from the "board level" instead of interviewing each of the candidates.

Trustee Mel Vaara made the motion to bring Saile aboard but said it was a difficult selection because of the quality of the candidates.

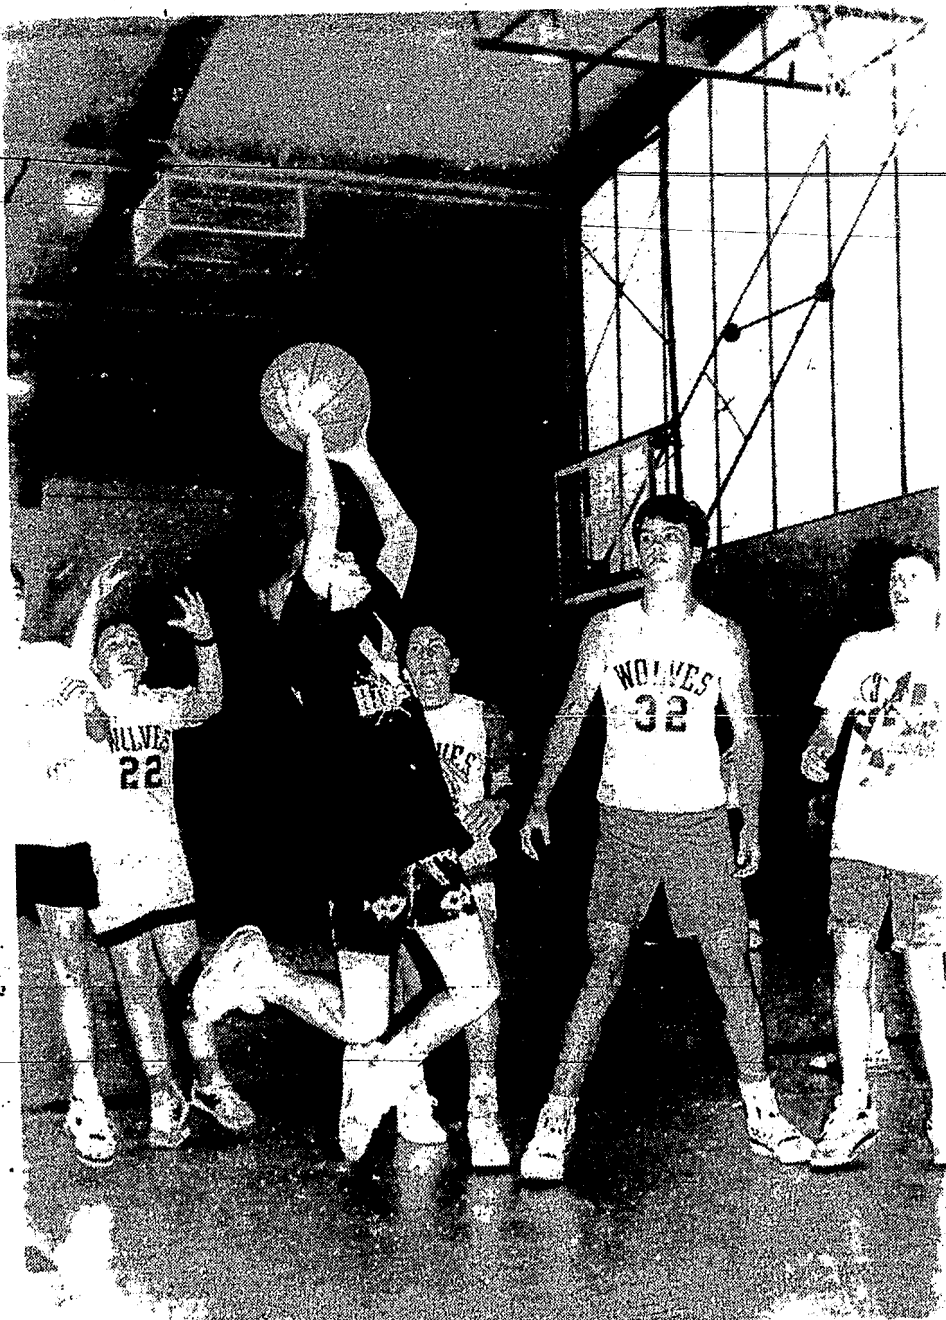

"I know all five of the candidates, and it's a very difficult decision picking one, but I'd like to nominate Jean Saile," Vaara said.

Several of the board members applauded Vaara's

Early deadlines

Early deadlines are in place for the Fourth of July. The Clarkston News office will be closed Wednesday, July 4, so the papers will be printed on Tuesday, July 3.

That means the deadlines are as follows: display advertising, 4:30 p.m. Thursday, June 28; classified advertising and letters to the editor, noon Friday, June 29. For more information, call 625-3370.

Hang time

SCRIMMAGES are only a part of the fifth annual Tim McCormick Basketball Camp this week at the Clarkston High School gym. McCormick and a host of other instructors have been guiding the young players on basketball fundamentals while making sure they have fun at the same time. (See related story on Page 19.)

Fun Fourth of July festivities for family

The July Fourth holiday festivities begin with a pancake and sausage breakfast 7 a.m. to 11 a.m. Wednesday.

The breakfast takes place at the Clarkston Masonic Temple, corner of Main and Washington streets. Cost is $3 for adults and $2.50 for children under age 12.

The July Fourth parade is set for 10 a.m. Wednesday in downtown Clarkston.

Sponsored by the Independence Township Fire Department, the parade is to begin at Clarkston Junior High School, where parade entries are to line up at 9 a.m.

From there, the parade travels down Church Street and then turns north on Main Street, where it continues until it turns west on Miller Road and disperses.

Following the parade, the Clarkston Touring and Chowder Society is to congregate in Clarkston's Depot Park for a picnic lunch and a display of the group members' classic cars. The display is open to the public, said Jon Abbott, one of the Society's members.

For more information, call the fire department at 625-1924.

JEAN SAILE is a new trustee on the Independence Township Board.

New trustee experienced

"I've worked with Jean on two elections, and she will be an asset to the board," Joan McCrary said.

After being voted into the position of township trustee, Saile thanked the board for their support.

"I'd like to thank you for your faith in me, and hopefully it will be well deserved," Saile said.

After the meeting, Saile said that the area's rural preservation was one of her goals as newly-appointed trustee.

"I really like this area, and I want to keep it that way," she said. "Growth has really started to hit this area, and we have to try to maintain its rural character."

Quintuplet family 'strapped'

Raymond and Michele L'Esperance have custody of three nieces, so 10 children now live in Springfield Township home first "test-tube" quintuplets two and a half years ago. They had two sons prior to the quints' arrival.

Last year, three young nieces came to live with the large family because their own parents could not care for them.

Since then, the L'Esperances have become financially "strapped," according to Clarkston resident Frank Millard, the nieces' attorney.

"The parents were unable to provide adequate housing," said Millard. "It had nothing to do with anything neglectful."

The L'Esperances were to provide for the young girls only temporarily as their parents got back onto their

Correction

A story in the July 6 issue of The Clarkston News should have said that the Independence Township Board voted 5-1 to approve a manufactured home subdivision on Mann Road near Clintonville Road and I-75. Voting yes were Supervisor Frank Ronk, Clerk Joan McCrary, Treasurer John Lutz and trustees Daniel Travis and Mel Vaara. Trustee Frank Millard voted no, and Trustee William Vandermark's seat was vacant since he resigned May 18.

feet. That never happened, Millard said.

The L'Esperances attempted to become licensed foster care providers, which would have boosted their income from $295 to about $800 a child.

The paperwork stalled in Lansing, however, prompting the L'Esperances to take other action, Millard said.

In an attempt to get action from juvenile court, the L'Esperances filed neglect charges against the parents of the children.

The move would make the children wards of the state, forcing the court to place them in foster homes.

Millard says it's conceivable the children could be placed in homes other than the L'Esperances, especially since the state allows only eight children in foster care homes.

But Millard says it's the desire of the family to stay together.

"The children want to stay with the L'Esperances," Millard added. "Michele wants to keep the family together."

Constructing Mt. Zion Temple

Pastor transforms a vision into bricks and mortar

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Eleven years ago, the Mt. Zion Temple congregation consisted of 13 adults gathering in a home on Pine Knob Lane in Independence Township.

Today, more than 1,000 people gather in the congregation's new 30,000-square-foot structure on Maybee Road. The structure is already too small, church officials say.

The tremendous growth of the congregation can be

"I found out what God wanted, and together we obeyed that."

The Rev. Loren Covarrubias

PASTOR Loren Covarrubias formed the Mt. Zion Temple congregation 11 years ago. He recently spearheaded the construction of a new church for the growing membership.

attributed in a large part to the Rev. Loren Covarrubias, called Pastor Loren by those in his church.

"I found out what God wanted, and together we obeyed that," Pastor Loren says.

A self-described "visionary," Pastor Loren has led the way in planning and constructing the new structure on a 52-acre parcel purchased in the township's southeast quadrant.

A huge worship area in the temple boasts a stage for a full orchestra. A $50,000 sound system has been built

"It made everyone feel good to see everyone. It's a family-type atmosphere."

The Rev. Loren Covarrubias

CONSTRUCTION began on the Mt. Zion Temple, Maybee Road, five years ago, and the congregation is close to seeing its completion. The facility features a worship area with extensive lighting and sound systems, a stage and 14 classrooms for Sunday school. The growing congregation totals around 1,000.

into the room and a "modern" elaborate lighting network hangs overhead.

The room is decorated in gray and burgundy, which symbolizes a "new wine," the maturity of Christ, and the fruit of spirit, according to Pastor Loren.

The atmosphere in the huge room lends itself well to the non-denominational worship services, which are described as spontaneous, evangelical and exciting.

"To us church is a celebration," Loren explains.

Other areas in the building are used for youth ministries and offices. While adult members are attending service, some 300 children are split into 14 Sunday school classrooms.

The move to the new facility allows the congregation to fit into one service, which many attend twice a day on Sunday and again on Wednesday.

Loren admits that the congregation itself was surprised at the size of its membership when gathered in one room.

"It made everyone feel good to see everyone," he says. "It's a family-type atmosphere."

Even at the size it is, the structure is too small, Loren says. The ministry has maintained its old facility in order to accommodate its counseling operations.

Church officials had proposed a much larger structure for the site, but plans were scaled back and changed by township planners.

As a result, windows were added, the size of the building became much smaller, and the siding was changed from wood to brick.

Despite the forced changes, Loren says "we're very happy with it."

The financing of the new structure has been conducted without "strain," Loren says. Members of the congregation have donated many services in the construction of the structure; some have purchased chairs for the services.

If the congregation continues to grow — and Loren predicts that it will — the church will again be split into different services.

About 50-60 new visitors attend the services each week, some from as far as Windsor, Fenton and downriver, Loren says.

The church's theme throughout its progress is a scripture from the bible.

It reads: "My people will be volunteers in the day of my visitation."

"We've gotten a lot of cooperation," Pastor Loren says.

Village hearing on retail rezoning, signs

Retail zoning on Main Street and signs are the topics of a public hearing before the Clarkston Village Planning Commission Monday, Aug. 13.

The hearing is set for 7:30 p.m. in the Clarkston Village Hall, 375 Depot Rd., Clarkston. The regular Clarkston Village Council meeting is to follow the hearing.

The planning commission appeared at the June 25 village council meeting to propose changes in the zoning ordinance.

The commission proposes rezoning street-level uses on east and west sides of Main Street, between Washington and Church streets, to retail.

Sparks will fly

Residents will have a slew of fireworks displays from which to choose for the Independence Day celebration. Following is a list of displays in the next week:

■ On Sunday, July 2, a fireworks display will be conducted at Addison Oaks in Oxford. The show will start at dusk, and an entry fee of $5 will be charged to each vehicle after 5 p.m.

■ On Tuesday, July 3, Groveland Oaks near Holly will host a fireworks display. The park is on Dixie Highway at Grange Hall Road. For more information, call 634-9811.

■ On Tuesday, July 3, the Pine Knob Music Theater in Independence Township will hold a 15-minute fireworks display following the Heart concert. The fireworks will begin about 11 p.m., with attendance restricted to concert-goers.

Push on for Patterson - Anderson as cutoff nears

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

The Patterson-Anderson proposal to reduce property taxes and reform school funding has a fair chance to make it on the November ballot — and even a good chance at voter approval, according to Nancy Strole.

As of June 22, about 150,000 valid signatures had been turned in. Another 239,667 valid signatures are needed by July 9 — and that's achievable, said Strole, a Springfield Township resident who is one of the Patterson-Anderson committee members.

"I think we've got a good shot at getting the number of valid signatures we need," she said, explaining that the group has exceeded two of its three goals:

1. Secure statewide at least 7,500 circulators of petitions. (They now have 9,000 circulators.)
2. Have a minimum of 75,000 petition sheets out.

(They now have exceeded 100,000 petition sheets distributed.)

3. Collect a high percentage of signed petition sheets.

"If even a reasonable number of people follow through with their commitment, we'll do it," she said. "It's up to them. Every single sheet and every single signature is important at this point."

Organizers ask that anyone with a petition sheet return it by July 4, so there will be enough time to check the validity of each signature.

In the beginning, the many tax reform proposals may have left people confused, but that shouldn't be a problem anymore, Strole said.

"Patterson-Anderson is the only game left in town," she said.

Many citizen-initiated property tax proposals have dropped out of the running at this point, said Strole.

The Headlee-initiated law petition, for example, missed its deadline, so it's "mathematically impossible to get on the November ballot," said Strole.

In addition, 2 + 2 of Rochester now endorses Patterson-Anderson.

Plus, the state legislature is recessing for the summer.

"So any action (from it) is out," said Strole. "They don't reconvene until late September, but let's face it: they'll all be campaigning."

That means the Patterson-Anderson proposal is a front-runner.

"It's going to be close, but I think we have a realistic shot of getting this on the ballot," Strole said. "People want property tax relief and school funding reform. We're the only option left."

Grassroots proposal would reduce property taxes

The Patterson-Anderson proposal, also called the Citizens' Tax Limitation Amendment, calls for the following:

1. Beginning Dec. 31, 1990, reduce all school operating millage rates to no more than 30 mills, cutting property taxes in about 400 of the state's 563 school districts. Those school districts levying less than 30 mills would not have to change their current millage rates.

2. Establish a permanent 30-mill limit on school operating millage rates.

3. Beginning with the 1991-92 school year, guarantee state funding of local schools on a per-pupil basis. "Equalize" the first 28 mills such that each district receives no less than $4,100 per pupil at 28 mills. Guarantee school districts levying less than 28 mills a prorated share of $4,100. Additional local millage up to 30 mills, or local revenue in excess of $4,100 at 28 mills will increase spending in many districts above the $4,100 minimum guarantee.

Require the state to continue funding the same proportion of categorical programs, such as special education, Social Security and retirement contributions.

4. During a five-year transition period, phase in the new guarantee formula. Limit annual increases in per-pupil spending to an inflation increase plus $100. Any school district reducing its millage to 30 mills would be held harmless by being guaranteed a minimum increase in spending of $100 per pupil per year. These amounts would be adjusted for any further changes in millage rates below 30 mills. Annual revenue growth limits would not apply to "out-of-formula" districts.

5. Require lottery proceeds to go to the school aid fund.

6. Strengthen taxpayer-rights provisions of the 1978 "Headlee" amendment to control increases caused by assessment growth and prevent abuses of taxpayers' rights.

A. Limit property tax increases on existing property, caused by assessment growth, to the rate of inflation. Prohibit non-voted "rollups" in the millage rate.

B. Require voter approval of most local government general obligation bonds. Make judgment levies subject to constitutional tax limits.

C. Require an annual compliance report from the governor on constitutional tax limitations.

D. Limit state tax revenue to its current proportion of personal income, preventing future large state tax increases without the approval of the people.

7. Mandate truth-in-balloting. Limit the number of property tax ballot occasions to two per calendar year. Provide for additional ballots in the case of an emergency, requiring petitions of the electors. Require that operating millage requests and general obligation bond requests be separate questions on the ballot.

8. Prohibit any new sales or use taxes on services.

Centralized postal boxes growing in popularity

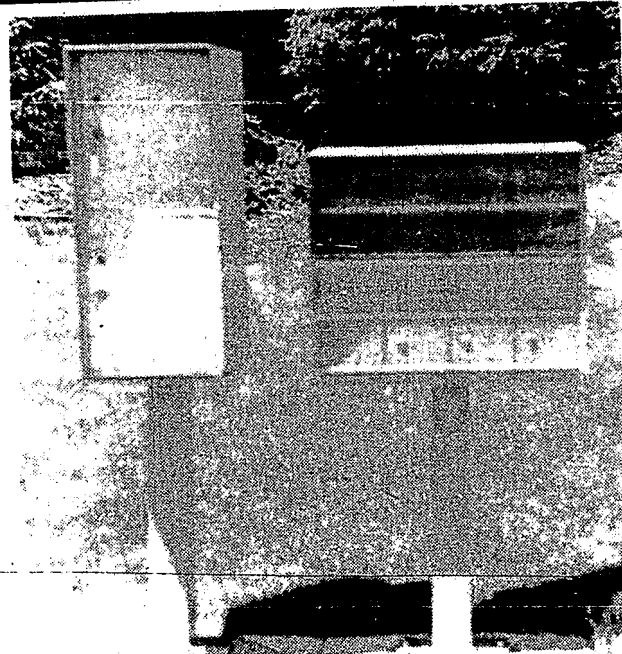

Centralized post office boxes are seemingly popping up everywhere these days.

The units resemble the strong boxes found in post offices. Access to these multiple compartments can only be achieved through a personal key.

According to Clarkston Postmaster Mickey Gonzalez, there has been a nationwide effort for the past seven to eight years concerning the boxes' installation. They offer a newly-designed method of delivered control for carriers and residents.

Gonzalez said the benefits of centralized post office boxes include: safety of mail, aesthetically pleasing features compared to that of normal mailboxes and fewer obstacles to be concerned with when plowing snow in the winter.

Wolfpack fever revisited

Julie Campe

This week Tim McCormick returned to Clarkston to conduct a week-long day camp, teaching basketball fundamentals to youngsters in the Clarkston area.

A 1980 Clarkston High School graduate, the University of Michigan grad now plays professional basketball for the Houston Rockets.

Before The Clarkston News sportswriter left to cover the story, he asked if anyone had any background information on McCormick, whose parents live in Springfield Township.

"Did you know him, Julie?" asked James Gibowski.

Well, yes. He graduated a year before me from Clarkston High.

But, no, I don't know any of his NBA stats.

Well, yes, I do remember what kind of a person he was in high school. He was nice and cute and funny and smart.

And tall — even then, though I don't know how many feet and inches. I do remember rounding a corner at CHS and running smack into Tim's stomach.

He was just plain likable. Besides, he had a nice sister, Lynn, and a handsome little brother, Mike.

"Was he a good student?" asked Gibowski.

Yes, mostly A's, I think.

Pause.

I could tell I wasn't giving enough information.

Well, ... when the Wolves played back then, it was wild. Regular season games were sold out night after night. Students bought Friday night tickets on Tuesday. Even parents with no school-age children would go to the games.

"Wolfpack fever" led by Coach Gary Nustad had descended upon the entire student body.

"Did he ever dunk the ball?" asked Gibowski.

Yes, and the crowd would erupt into thousands of screaming, waving, wild happy faces.

They even sold T-shirts at the school store that read: "INTimidation."

Away games even sold out. Nearly every game had media coverage, sometimes television. And usually there was someone in the audience who could pick out the college scouts, there to observe Tim and his teammates.

The Wolves won game after game after game. We, as spectators, felt their pressure to perform well week after week, so it must have been even greater pressure on Tim and his teammates.

But Tim wasn't big-headed, and he never acted cocky. Of course, he didn't have to.

He was a team leader, but it was by example and strong, hard play. He left the shenanigans up to the other players.

He acted the same whether it was basketball season or not. He studied hard, behaved politely and cracked jokes during lunch. I don't think he ever was involved in a food fight, except maybe out of school with guard Ed Haddad or forward Chuck Nicholie — and if then, it was only due to their influence, of course.

Gibowski left for his interview, but my mind was already stuck in a time warp. I half expected to see Tim after practice talking with the girls. But, no, Tim is married now and told Gibowski it was one of the best things he's ever done. Sounds like him.

Letter to Editor

Fitzgerald stance dismays minister

While I appreciate Jim Fitzgerald's testimony in his June 20 column regarding the life of his yet unborn grandchild, I am greatly dismayed that he maintains a "pro-choice" stance.

Mr. Fitzgerald, like so many others, seeks to side step his responsibility to the unborn children of this world by saying "it's none of my business what women do or don't do with their bodies."

The problem is that the unborn child inside the mother's womb is not medically or otherwise a part of the mother's body. He or she is only housed there.

If having a child dependent upon you for food and shelter gives you the right to terminate their life, what in the world is all the fuss about child abuse? After all, "It's none of my business what other parents do or don't do in their own houses."

Mr. Fitzgerald also seems to want to hide his responsibility to unborn children behind the Supreme Court. In his words, "The highest court in the land says abortions are legal."

But slavery, too, was once legal, and Afro-Americans were viewed as non-persons. Shame on us for taking away the "freedom of choice" from our Southern states.

I also appreciate Mr. Fitzgerald's account of the teen-age couple who ultimately gave their child up for adoption.

However, the reader is left with the false impression that it is possible for a baby to be "too far along to be aborted."

Unfortunately, this just isn't true. Legally, the Supreme Court allows for a baby's life to be terminated at any point during pregnancy, even up to the day of delivery.

Fortunately (at least for the baby), the couple just went to the "wrong" doctor.

I join Mr. Fitzgerald in his gratitude for the health of his unborn grandchild. But for the sake of his grandchild and future generations, I hope he will reconsider his responsibility to the millions of other unborn children and grandchildren who truly have no freedom of choice.

They (whoever 'they' are) say, "Confession is good for the soul." I think I'll try it. My soul needs help.

I have never been as good at ping pong (or golf, or fishing, or hunting, or writing, or etc) as I think I am. I think because I like something, therefore I can do it well.

In this column we'll review my ping pong prowess, or lack thereof.

I believe my first exposure to ping pong was in the U. S. Navy during the Big War . . . not to be confused with the war my dad called The Big War.

Regretfully, the 1-room school I attended the first seven years of my education didn't have a gym, cafeteria or ping-pong room. After that I discovered girls and there was no time for ping pong and still do my paper route.

So, it was up to Uncle Sam to put a paddle in my hand and a table with a net stretched across it in front of me.

I declared myself champion of the entire Pacific Fleet just before being discharged. In my mid-20s we bought a ping pong table. We also staged a left-handed ping-pong tournament. I suffered a defeat, but only because the others were natural left-handers.

Now we'll skip ahead to a few years ago when I was in my late 50s. We were having dinner at Indianwood Golf and Country Club, and struck up a conversation with a relatively new waiter, Marin Oala. He'd previously worked at Lelli's in Detroit, and is now with Lino's in Rochester.

One of us mentioned ping pong. He acknowledged to having some experience in the game. I acknowledged being champion of the entire U. S. Navy (time makes us All-Americans). Marin suggested we have a match.

He would invite some of his friends, I could invite my also-champion friends. Fine. No problem.

The next few times I saw Marin, he reminded me of our upcoming, but unscheduled, match. He seemed too eager, I thought, but the build-up I gave myself couldn't be undone by truth, at least not yet.

On another evening, Marin said, "Say, a couple of my friends are here from Yugoslavia, and they'd like to play ping pong with you."

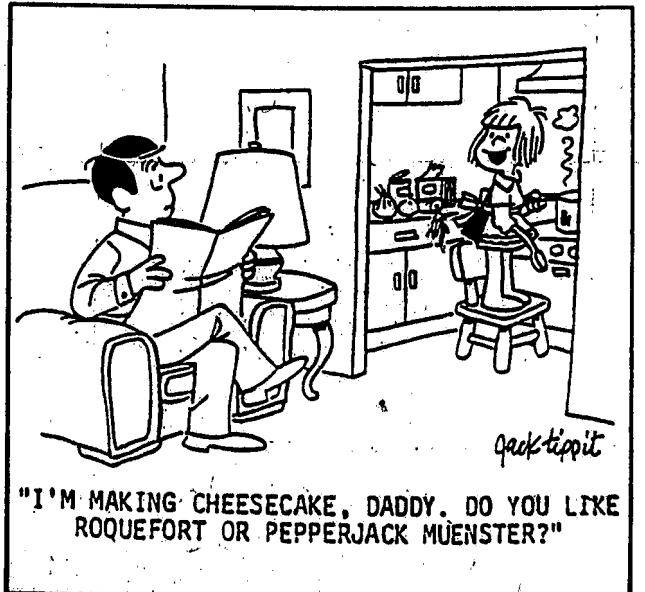

Whoops! Friends? Who are your friends?

Marin said, "Oh, these guys are here to play a ping-pong match with the Chinese in Miami next week, and they'd like to get some practice while they're here visiting me."

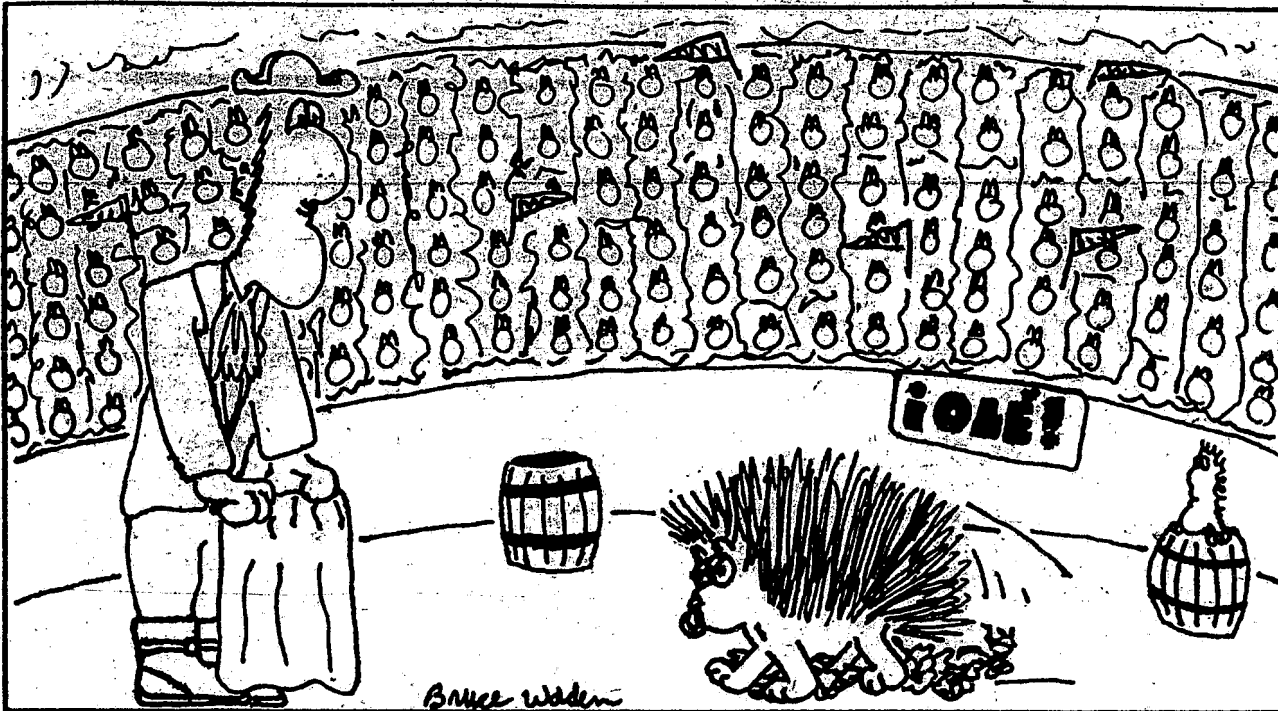

Wow, had I been had. I blushed. I apologized. I confessed my lie. My soul shuddered.

Marin still razzes me and enjoys another laugh, while I back-peddled all the way to the Pacific.

I should stick to horseshoes . . . but Milt Francis caught me on that one.

A good neighbor is different things to different people.

As children, our neighbor to the left was one of the best.

Mrs. Fally was married to a man who worked with cookies. We were never sure exactly what he did, but we heard he had access to an endless supply.

That gave good cause to help the Fallys eat the cookies, we believed.

Though I'm not sure how it started, we began a practice that seemed as natural as breathing: we rapped on the patio glass, and Mrs. Fally arrived with the cookies.

Fast-moving and pencil thin, Mrs. Fally was always busy. Her only child was grown and gone, but her huge yard made up for it.

Ours was an older neighborhood of ranch homes on deep treed lots. Yardwork kept just about everyone busy, but to Mrs. Fally, the yard was something to be conquered.

From dawn until dusk, you could see her snapping up a fallen twig or briskly sweeping up petals that had fallen on a sidewalk.

Everything was perfect — from the shape of a bush to the cultivated ring of earth circling the base of a tree.

The yard was second only to the Fally home, which we were never allowed to enter in the 25 years that we lived as neighbors.

Occasionally, we would peek into the garage, which was washed and waxed to a high shine.

Mrs. Fally's high visibility was a boon to my parents, who liked to take frequent breaks from their raking and weeding.

You could see them clustered together throughout the day, leaning on their rakes, laughing and talking.

Their good neighborliness lasted all the way up to my mother's decision to start the wildflower garden.

The woods behind our house had always been hard to tame; eventually my mom decided to let nature have its way. She would move the woodpile forward a bit and plant wildflowers in the space.

As my mother tells it, she was adjusting the logs on the sides when Mrs. Fally came out absolutely fuming.

Of course, my mother didn't agree that Mrs. Fally's property cut clear into the new flower garden, and, week after week, stubbornly returned the logs to their new position.

The flower garden survived the efforts, even if the neighborliness didn't.

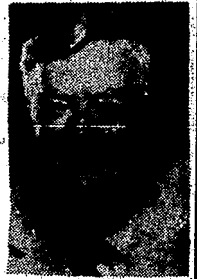

Yardwork is conducted without laughing, or even talking, these days. The Fallys can still be seen around their yard and when my mother's not looking, we still wave.

The cookie supply has surely dried up by now, I suspect, but our neighborliness has secretly survived it.

'If it Fitz . . .'

Isiah put himself into media spotlight

Jim Fitzgerald

"I don't deserve this," Isiah Thomas said, referring to the unfavorable publicity he received because his name surfaced in a federal gambling investigation not aimed at him.

Pardon me for not crying over the plight of poor Isiah. Lots of people get stuff they think they don't deserve.

Does Thomas deserve to make millions for playing a kid's game? Do he and similar sports stars deserve the riches and adulation they receive simply because they are more muscular or more agile than the ordinary impoverished school teacher?

How about the media overkill? A newspaper doesn't have enough reporters and space to give adequate coverage to social problems that put an entire city, or nation, at risk. But there's always a brigade of sports writers and editors handy to put together a special 16-page section saluting a utility infielder for catching a pop fly.

Do athletes get all that favorable publicity because they deserve it, or because their games are always played exactly when and where scheduled, with all promised prominent personalities present and available for interviews, thus making sports the easiest news story for journalism to slobber over?

"We don't deserve this," I told my wife at 2 a.m. last Friday. We couldn't sleep because Pistons fans were celebrating in the street below our window. They were dancing to rap music.

A civilized society doesn't deserve a legal system that would forbid certain rap songs from being played inside a consenting-adults-only saloon but do nothing to stop the same horrible thumping from being blasted by car radios on public streets, cruelly assaulting the ears of innocent bystanders.

I'm not talking about the street rapping after the Pistons triumph. That was inevitable and acceptable; even an old Glenn Miller devotee like me can be glad the Pistons won. I'm talking about the rap noise that regularly disrupts otherwise fairly quiet neighborhoods on non-championship nights, as screw-everybody-else idiots drive around with windows down, radios turned all the way up, and brains turned all the way off.

As for the partying in my street, I couldn't sleep, so I watched it. It was fun to see so many people so happy, but why didn't they dance and yell in the park just a few steps away? Instead, they cavorted in the middle of both east- and westbound Lafayette Boulevard, causing traffic to back up as far as you could see.

Obviously, there were a lot of unhappy motorists caught in the gridlock. They wanted to get somewhere else and, to escape, many of them drove on the grass median, undoubtedly causing thousands of dollars' worth of damage to the lawn and the sprinkler system.

Did local taxpayers deserve that? Or should we simply shut up and be grateful a crazed motorist didn't eschew the Lafayette median and plow into the street dancers, perhaps killing a few, as happened at about the same time on another blocked street not far away?

There's a flip side to everything. Isiah Thomas deserves the millions of dollars and the favorable media overkill for simply playing basketball because that's what the public wants. But Isiah also deserves the unfavorable publicity that's inevitable when such a paragon of pure is connected to a gambling investigation by even the thinnest thread. The cliché puts it like this: The higher you climb, the bigger splat you make when you fall. Or even when you're only holding hands with the friend of a friend who might fall.

For those few members of the public who might disagree with this jock-is-all viewpoint, there is this consolation: Isiah admits betting a few dollars in a couple of dice games, which is against the law. This is the same law that says the state lottery, with its impossible odds and sleazy tempt-the-poor advertising, is legal.

Perhaps Isiah fame will focus attention on this colossal government-approved hypocrisy, which we also don't deserve.

Excellent program

Our son, Will, has attended the Clarkston Community Education Kindergarten Latchkey Program (Kid's Connection) for the last two years.

Vonda Ruth, Laura De Vault, Kathy Deare and other members of the staff made his experience both positive and worthwhile. I always knew he was safe and very well cared for.

It is an excellent program, and we wish to thank all those involved.

Marvelous night

On June 6, 450 seniors and more than 4,000 guests enjoyed a superb graduation at Pine Knob Music Theater. I want our community to know how appreciative we are of the theater officials and, specifically, Mr. J.J. Nederlander, for permitting us to use this outstanding facility for our commencement ceremony.

Not only does Mr. Nederlander permit us to use the theater, he does so without any charge to our school district, and he makes his staff available to us to assist us with this event.

It was a marvelous night for Clarkston High School.

As the independent bank in the area, our every action is directed at the people we know. People like YOU. People whose financial needs are unique to the area.

Who knows better what folks in this area demand of a bank than an independent bank that's been around for one hundred and five years.

The fact that we're independent, a product of the area, doesn't mean we offer less than the big banks. In truth, we offer more - the services you demand.

The term "Personal Touch" may sound antiquated to some, but to us, it's an everyday occurrence.

Six arrested in sting operation at I-75 rest stop

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

An I-75 rest area in Springfield Township was the site of a sting operation in which six men were arrested June 21.

In an undercover operation, the Oakland County Sheriff's Department apprehended six men and charged them with disorderly conduct for allegedly engaging in homosexual activities at the rest stop.

Police officials refused to release names of those arrested that evening, but their ages range from 23 to 46. The men arrested included a 33-year-old Awrey Bakery salesman from Davisburg, a 23-year-old shoe salesman from Rochester, and four people employed by General Motors Corp.

A disorderly conduct charge carries a maximum sentence of 90 days in jail and a $100 fine.

This particular rest area, located on southbound Interstate 75 just north of Dixie Highway in Springfield Township, was the site of a mass arrest on May 3 concerning similar activities. That operation resulted in the arrest of eight men, who were charged with either physical accosting or sexual solicitation.

According to OCSO Detective Sgt. Bill Harvey, the recent operation was conducted in the exact fashion to that of May 3. In the May 3 episode, an undercover officer portrayed the role of the "target," while fellow officers acted as simple bystanders.

The lone undercover officer stood near a dog run trail, the alleged rendezvous spot for homosexual solicitation, and awaited interested participants. In each case, a defendant would ask the officer if he wanted to take a walk. They would then proceed deeply into the woods via the dog run. It was there that the officer was either solicited for or witnessed homosexual activity.

Harvey said the rest area has been a problem since he's been on the force.

"This particular rest area has been an ongoing problem since I joined the department in 1979," he said. "Throughout the state, this rest spot is known as a meeting spot for homosexual activity. It's been a real battle trying to return this area to its true, intended purpose." OCSO officials said they will continue to monitor the rest area and incorporate undercover operations until the problem is under control.

Township recycling service discontinued

The glass, tin and newspaper recycling center in Independence Township will be closed permanently July 1.

"Curbside service is available to all the residents now, and what we're getting out here is just not worth having it," said Linda Richardson, administrative assistant to the township department of public works (DPW).

She said the center collected lots of newspapers but rarely glass or tin.

The decision to discontinue the recycling program through the township was made by Supervisor Frank Ronk and George Anderson, director of the DPW, said Richardson, adding that the decision was difficult.

"We do regret it," she said. "We were kind of disappointed," she said about the residents' use of the facility. "But it's not a convenient location."

Most area garbage haulers offer curbside recycling now, so residents may still recycle through the private sector.

"Really, it's more convenient for the residents themselves, having the curbside recycling," she said.

The last open day for the center on Flemings Lake Road, east of Clarkston Road, is Saturday, June 30.

For more information on curbside recycling, residents should contact their current disposal service.

Business Brief

Oxford Bank expands

OXFORD BANK announced today that it plans to have a branch office in the Ortonville/Brandon community later this year once all required regulatory approvals have been obtained.

Randall G. Fox, President, stated that an agreement had been reached to purchase the recently vacated branch of First Federal Savings Bank and Trust located at 345 Ortonville (M-15) Road.

"We have had a long-time interest in serving the Ortonville/Brandon community," Fox said. "Having many customers from that area already, we are pleased to have this opportunity to open an office better situated to serve their needs."

Oxford Bank is the county's oldest commercial bank, having served Northeast Oakland County for over 106 years.

Vacant house owner to make improvements

After neighbors complain

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A vacant house on Hillcrest in Springfield Township will be closely watched for cleanup and maintenance by Springfield Township's ordinance officer.

Though the township took no action on the issue, the owner of the house is to voluntarily improve his property.

In February, the township board received a petition signed by Hillcrest residents who were concerned about the condition of a vacant house owned by Thomas Weiler.

Tim Kee, a Hillcrest resident, appeared at the February meeting asking the board to condemn the property.

Kee said the home was unoccupied; weeds grew up around the outside; old lumber was stacked around the house; storm windows needed replacing, and the building was unsafe.

At the May 9 meeting, Weiler said his rights had been violated because he had not been notified of an inspection of his property.

Weiler's property was inspected by Building Inspector Lewis Benfield, Ordinance Officer Robert Bloom and Gregory Need, who serves as Springfield Township's attorney.

Need sent a letter to Supervisor Collin Walls, saying the home was structurally sound.

At the June 14 meeting, Walls said Weiler had painted the Hillcrest house and repaired some storm windows. Plus, Weiler is considering selling the house.

The board took no action, but received the report from Walls about the cleanup at the Hillcrest house.

Walls said that Bloom would continue to monitor the residence to make certain the homeowner would continue to clean up the residence as Weiler stated he would do.

Letters to Editor

For Middleton

As a State Representative for the last 14 years for northwest Oakland County, I have come across many people with whom I have been impressed. One of the pleasures of being a State Representative is to discover that we have so many caring people who are concerned about their neighbors.

One of these people is Tom Middleton. Throughout the years I have known Tom, whenever I have called him, he was there to assist and help his neighbors. One very important thing to know about Tom is that when he tells you he will do something you can consider it done. You don't have to check to know for sure that it was followed to completion.

Tom has been active as a school board member in his area and also involved in many other community projects.

I am extremely pleased to learn that Tom is running for State Representative in the 61st District and I know that he will carry those qualities of honesty and integrity into that position when he serves the people of the 61st District. It is because of his outstanding personal qualities and his previous experience in various positions of leadership that I endorse Tom Middleton for State Representative from the 61st District.

State Rep. Claude Trim
20th District

Strikes funny bone

The June 20 Oakland Press article by Randy Zilz struck my funny bone, especially his definitions.

With all the bickering going on in Clarkston, I think one of his definitions fits perfectly, and I quote:

"Transplants: Successful slobs who moved out here from Livonia or somewhere with more dollars than sense.

They are the ones who petition for road paving and street lights so their kids can get into fourth gear on their all-terrain vehicles."

Tsk! Tsk!

T. Miller

Next two weeks critical time

The next two weeks will be a critical time for the Patterson/Anderson tax cut proposal.

There are many Patterson/Anderson petitions being circulated which need to be turned in soon. This petition merely gets the proposal on the fall ballot. It is up to the whole electorate to vote on the issue then.

This constitutional amendment is the most meaningful one to have a chance this year. We must not fail to keep working to change the unfair, and completely out of line, tax system we are all being saddled with under current law.

The deadline for turning in signed petitions is July 5. Every signature counts, and all are needed. Let's all keep working to keep the pressure on Lansing.

The next critical date this summer is Aug. 7. This is the date of the primary elections.

The primary decides who our representatives are for the next term. I personally will not vote for the incumbents this year.

I would like to recommend two fine candidates who are running this year. First I would recommend Tom Middleton, who I know to be a fine citizen and a friend.

Tom has always, as long as I have known him (20 years), been an involved person, and is a very decent person.

Tom has been an active member of the school board for many years. Tom will do an excellent job as our next state representative. Tom will get my vote.

Another person I would recommend is Ruth Johnson who is running for county commissioner. Ruth is a very forthright person, who is not afraid to stand up to special interest groups to support the right side of environment issues.

Ruth is intelligent and has a good knowledge of the issues. She will also get my vote.

Let's all get involved and vote to insure our freedom, and our future.

Jerry L. McAnnally,
Oxford

Clarkston Auto Wash Co. wins beautification award

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

The Clarkston Auto Wash Co. was honored recently by the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber gave its second annual Beautification Award to the business on Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

"Not only was it the most beautiful car wash we've ever seen, but it's also one of the most beautiful new buildings in the area," said Brenda Orlando, who is president of the Chamber until July 1.

The Chamber gave its first Beautification Award last year to Tierra — owned by Buck and Joan Kopietz — for its addition on Main Street, Clarkston.

Chamber members decided that an award should be given each year to the business that improves or constructs anew something that enhances the community above and beyond what was required.

"Anytime a business owner goes above and beyond what is required by the township, ... that's spending a lot of time and money and effort in making the community a better place," said Orlando. "They should be recognized."

The Clarkston Auto Wash Co., owned by Fred and

FRED and Sheila Ritter stand across the street from their Clarkston Auto Wash Co.,

which opened on Dixie Highway in late November 1988.

"It's a great community to have a business in."

Sheila Ritter

Sheila Ritter of Independence Township, is especially deserving of the award because of the obstacles in its way.

First, it was situated on a difficult building site — a hole, said Orlando. Then, part of the site had been filled with "junk" from nearby highway construction, so it had to be hauled away.

In the end, the building turned out beautifully, said Orlando.

"They really went through a lot to do what they did," she said. "We just felt they really deserved it."

Fred Ritter was pleased with the news of the award, he said.

"We were excited, and we were happy that someone noticed," he said. "There was a lot of thought put into this location."

Builder Tom Derocher started work on the project in May 1988, and it was open for business in late November 1988, said Ritter.

With some creative work on the building site, the Ritters ended up with a horseshoe drive that allowed the preservation of trees and also created an on-site water retention area.

The car wash business is "interesting," said Ritter, adding that his business uses biodegradable soaps, and the equipment is set up to use a minimal amount of water per car — so it's better ecologically than washing a car at home.

Running the business is fun, he said.

"It's pretty social," he said, mentioning that he gets to talk to lots of people briefly each week.

Sheila Ritter said she liked the location of their company.

"It's a great community to have a business in," she said. "Not only do they support us in a business sense, but they come through with the flowers; they ask us about our family. ... That makes a difference in how we approach our business."

With occasional help from their son, Matt, a student at a Michigan State University, the Ritters have made the Clarkston Auto Wash Co. a family business.

Their daughter, Sonja, is married to Mike Marquis in Pennsylvania and gave birth to a daughter, Bethany Michelle, May 11.

And the customers are nice enough to ask about the Ritters' new grandchild, said Sheila Ritter, again mentioning how good it is to be located in the Clarkston area.

SMART money accepted

The Suburban Mobility Authority Regional Transportation (SMART) will allocate $6,000 to Springfield Township for charter services used during the year.

The Springfield Township Board voted unanimously June 14 to accept the SMART funds.

Supervisor Collin Walls said Springfield uses the charter services as transportation in such programs as the senior citizens, library, parks and recreation, area churches, schools and youth assistance summer camp.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

ZONING AND THE LANDOWNER

RELO

QUESTION: Just how far should a landowner, who intends to build a home on that land, look into local zoning laws?

ANSWER: Very carefully! You may find it's impossible to build the home you plan. Zoning laws may require a specific amount of acreage for a one-family zone. If you own a smaller lot than required, you may not be able to build the house you want on your lot.

Also, look into the type of home which is allowable in your zoning area. You may plan to build a second floor apartment, possibly for another member of your family or even for rental purposes. If the property is a one-family residential zone, you may be out of luck.

CHECK ZONING CAREFULLY BEFORE you start building. An after-the-fact zoning check may be a costly error.

Independence Board shuns SEMCOG membership

The Independence Township Board voted to nix their right of active membership in the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) June 19.

The board voted 5-1 to sever its ties with SEMCOG for at least one year. Treasurer John Lutz, the township's SEMCOG representative, posted the only no vote. Voting yes were Supervisor Frank Ronk, Clerk Joan McCrary and trustees Frank Millard, Daniel Travis and Mel Vaara. Trustee William Vandermark's seat has been vacant since he resigned in May.

SEMCOG, which encompasses a seven-county region surrounding Detroit, is involved with area-wide planning and inter-governmental coordination. The organization deals with such matters as water systems, rivers, road systems and air quality.

Independence Township had been a member of SEMCOG for the past six years, but some board members didn't think the agency was representing the township's best interests. As a result, the board refused to pay the annual $2,250 membership fee.

The vote comes two weeks after a visit from SEMCOG representative Pauline Mengebier, who assured the board that her agency wants the township's continued support. However, her visit proved futile as the board members continued to voice their disapproval with the organization.

"I'm all in favor of staying away for a year," said Vaara. "Their representative (Mengebier) danced around several of our questions at the last meeting."

Travis, who made the motion for Independence's inactivity, said the township should stay out of SEMCOG for at least a year then re-evaluate its position when membership dues come around in 1991. Supervisor Frank Ronk added that he knew of four or five other "borderline" townships who could take similar action because their concerns dealing with representation mirrored those of Independence Township.

"I'm all in favor of staying away for a year. Their representative (Mengebier) danced around several of our questions at the last meeting."

GOALKEEPER Mark Whitcomb winds up before launching the ball downfield during his soccer team's victory Sunday at Clintonwood Park.

CBers tune in for soccer win

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The CB United Football Club, a traveling soccer team comprising several Clarkston players, edged the Garden City Celtics, 3-2, in Great Lakes Men's Soccer League action Sunday at Clintonwood Park.

CB jumped out to a 3-0 lead and then Clarkston goalkeeper Mark Whitcomb and his teammates held on for the victory, raising its record to 5-3-1.

Midfielder Pete Souders of Oxford opened the scoring with the only goal in the first half.

Midfielder Chris Blimka of Clarkston made it 2-0 with a goal in the second half and teammate forward Chris Benfield of Rochester followed with a third score. Souders and Clarkston's Shane Maroney also had assists.

CB's next and last home match is 4 p.m. Sunday at Clintonwood Park.

In addition to Blimka, Whitcomb and Maroney, other CB players from Clarkston are Greg Cherniak, Lance Lewis, Danny Tassen, Ron Forbes and Tim Cashin.

Brandon players on the CB team are Brad Haase, Shaun Randall, Lance Mateyak, Greg Basela and Ron Dixon. Chris Deboer joins Souders as part of the Oxford duo.

Golfer captures English trophy

England is known for its fish and chips.

But an Independence Township woman is getting known in England for her chipping ... and putting and driving.

Florence Burkemo won the Kenilworth

Ladies Championship in England last month. After winning the championship, she was presented with the Braithwaite Trophy and the Deacon Goblet.

Burkemo is a member of the Atlas Valley Country Club.

Golfers should avoid hazards

Golf is usually a safe sport, but not always.

Almost 20,000 players nationwide, including about 1,100 from Michigan, suffered golf-related injuries in 1988, according to AAA Michigan.

"Golf may not seem so vigorous as other sports but can be hazardous if players are not in shape or unaware of safety rules," said Auto Club Life Insurance Company General Manager Michael Daubenmier.

Players should engage in regular year-round physical exercise such as walking, stretching and swimming to get ready for the golf season.

Golfers are advised to do 10 minutes of stretching exercises before each round to keep muscles limber and prevent stress to the back, neck shoulders.

To protect themselves and others once on the course, golfers should remember:

- Never walk ahead of a player lining up a shot. Stand far enough behind to avoid being struck by the club as the player swings.

- Wait until the group ahead leaves the putting green before hitting a ball in that direction.

- Always shout "fore" as a warning if your ball goes toward other people.

- Never throw a golf club.

- Never drive golf carts at maximum speeds. Stay on cart paths and drive slowly down steep grades, at an angle where possible.

- Never golf when a storm threatens. If caught on the course, put clubs down and head for shelter. If none is available, find a low-lying area. Don't stand under a tree or hold metal clubs. Do not walk down the middle of fairways where underground metal irrigation pipes might convey lightning.

- In warm weather, drink plenty of water before and while golfing. Dress in pastel colors that deflect heat. Wear a hat and apply a lotion with a sun protection factor of 15 on exposed body areas.

- Players with serious medical conditions should have a physical examination and doctor's clearance.

- Golfers should note they can be legally liable if their negligent behavior on the golf course results in injury to another person.

Where baskets, dreams are made

Several weeks ago, Tim McCormick's team was on the court doing battle with the Los Angeles Lakers in the opening round of the NBA play-offs.

This week, McCormick is on the court but this time the players are 4-feet tall instead of 7-feet, trying to learn how to dribble with both hands instead of trying to stuff with two hands; hoping some new skills will give them an edge to making the ninth-grade team instead of hoping some new skills will get them a new multi-year contract.

What the players lack in height they make up for in enthusiasm during the fifth annual Tim McCormick Basketball Camp which started Monday and continues through Friday.

The camp stresses basketball fundamentals and McCormick makes sure that the 75 young players (grades 4-9) have fun while learning.

McCormick, who led the University of Michigan to a National Invitational Tournament championship and now plays for the NBA Houston Rockets, also shares a few thrills with his young students while being on the Clarkston High School court.

"It always brings back great memories," said McCormick about the Wolves' gym where he and his teammates played before packed crowds. "There's so many special times I'll never forget. Clarkston's been a great place to grow up. Each time I walk in the gym I have memories of games that went on there and big crowds, excitement."

McCormick keeps up with the fortunes of Clarkston's varsity basketball team during the busy NBA season.

"I think Dan Fife has done a spectacular job with the program. Every year they're winning the GOAL and are very well respected," said McCormick. "I also with the combination of those two, I can't continue playing. I've always felt God has taken very good care of me. I'm a very lucky person," said McCormick.

TIM McCormick watches as one of the young players at the basketball camp shoots a free throw. McCormick started the annual camp in 1986 to help pay for his brothers' college expenses. The week-long camp continues until Friday at the Clarkston High School gym.

Despite his injuries, the 7-foot, 240-pound McCormick has still managed to score 3,736 career points (a 9.2 points per game average) with 2,167 rebounds (5.4 average).

He was picked by Cleveland as the 12th player in the first round of the 1984 NBA draft and was immediately traded to the Seattle SuperSonics. He then spent some time with the Philadelphia 76ers and the New Jersey Nets before arriving in Houston.

Along with his religious faith, McCormick has found another source of support, his marriage to his wife, Michelle. The two of them will be celebrating their first anniversary Saturday. He said marrying Michelle was the best decision he's ever made.

"She's very supportive. During the season you don't have very many people tell you that you're doing well. There's a lot of bad days during an NBA season. To have someone there that will give you confidence and keep you in the right direction is an asset," said McCormick.

The two also quickly learned about the importance of compromising. Michelle attended Michigan State University so there is a good-natured rivalry between the Spartan and her Wolverine husband.

McCormick commented about an ex-Wolverine, coach Bill Frieder. He liked the way his former coach took his team to the NIT championship, but "I don't like the way he left. I thought it was an embarrassment to the school."

McCormick, who plans on either going into television broadcasting or business, once basketball is over, was an excellent student in high school and college. He is even more proud of U of M's academic tradition than its athletic tradition.

He brings that message about priori-

"I remember when I was in ninth grade, I started the season wearing $12 Converse canvas shoes. I wasn't any better a player once I got my first expensive leather basketball shoes."

Tim McCormick

ties to the young players in the Clarkston school system.

"It's very important to me to have a chance to meet the kids and try to be a role model," said McCormick. "When I went around to each of the schools to speak about the camp, I gave them a talk about the evils of drugs and alcohol and how each kid is special in their own way. They should try to concentrate on their good points and not necessarily dwell on the bad. They should be strong people and not succumb to peer pressure. If they work hard and stay focused in their lives, each one has a chance to do great things."

McCormick thinks one wrong area of focus is on high-priced basketball shoes.

"I remember when I was in ninth grade, I started the season wearing $12 Converse canvas shoes. I wasn't any better a player once I got my first expensive leather basketball shoes. I think it's a marketing tool. I wish the shoes weren't so expensive for the kids. I think the stock that is put into them by kids is out of control. A pair of Air Jordan's doesn't make you fly any better than a pair of Reebok's."

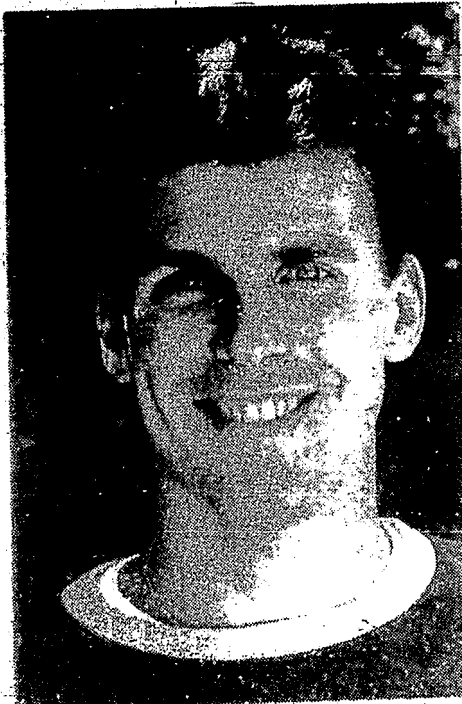

McCormick says there are also some myths in the NBA.

"I think a misconception people have is there is a lot of talking and badgering among the players. I haven't really found that to be true," said McCormick. "The NBA players I've dealt with are classy individuals for the most part and they respect you as someone just trying to do their job to their best ability."

McCormick, who first had thoughts about playing in the NBA when he was 10, said another myth is that people think playing in the NBA is a "cushy job."

"It's a great job as far as salary is concerned, but there's a lot more work to it and pressure than people realize," said McCormick. "They see you playing in front of sellout crowds. There's a lot of excitement about playing against Michael Jordan and Patrick Ewing, but they don't understand the work that goes into it. It's a 12-month job."

It's always been a 12-month labor of love for McCormick, starting with those days of wearing $12 Converse shoes while shooting hoops on a snow-shoveled court, dreaming of the NBA.

like to see some of the former campers become good basketball players. I like to think that somehow we've had a chance to help Clarkston continue the great success they've had in basketball."

McCormick, who has had five knee surgeries during his career, still plans on finishing the four years left on his contract with the Rockets and possibly playing two more years in addition to that, which would give him a 12-year career in the NBA.

"I consider myself a hard worker. I've been very blessed. I don't see why

Cheerleader changes colors this fall

SHERYL Molzon will be cheering for MSU this fall and this Saturday will be involved with a cheerleading clinic at Clarkston High School.

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Sheryl Molzon will gladly be getting used to wearing the color green once again this fall.

Molzon, a 1988 Clarkston High School graduate, will wear the green and white as a Michigan State University cheerleader.

She wore green as a ninth-grade cheerleader at Clarkston Junior High School and then switched to blue and gold for three years of cheering at the high school.

Molzon, who will start her third year at MSU in the fall, recently was chosen as one of nine women on the cheerleading squad (along with nine men). Sixty women tried out in hopes of being a Spartan cheerleader.

She will cheer at Spartan football and basketball games. Molzon admits that she knows more about the game of basketball than football. Her knowledge of basketball was increased in high school because her brother, Greg, played for the Wolves.

There are no guarantees in making the squad from year to year. Spartan cheerleaders from the past year were among the 60 trying out and not all of the veterans will be returning.

"It may be more difficult to make it again. You still have to prove yourself," said Molzon.

Molzon said one of the biggest differences between college and high school cheering is that half of the squad in college will be men. Because of this addition, college cheer squads are more apt to perform more difficult stunting and gymnastics.

She says the more difficult routines are one way to catch the crowd's attention.

"When you throw a girl up to the rafters, the crowd says 'wo,'" said Molzon.

The Spartan said another difference in college cheering is that the cheer squad doesn't stay in one area. Instead, it goes from corner to corner around the field.

She said the moving around makes the cheerleaders "more a part of the game."

Molzon got a glimpse of what it will be like this fall when she cheered at the Spartan's spring football game. But it was only a glimpse because the stadium wasn't filled for the spring game like it will be in a regular-season contest.

Molzon, who is currently undecided about her major, isn't the first Clarkston graduate to cheer in college. One of the others was Kendra Kurz. Molzon said she was cheering for the high school, Kurz would sometimes help the Wolves' cheerleading coach in practice.

Cheering at games is only a part of being a cheerleader. During the summer, Molzon meets occasionally with the other MSU cheerleaders for conditioning and practicing. And once the leaves start turning colors and the football team takes the field, she will be practicing at least three days a week.

This Saturday at Clarkston High School's gym, Molzon and a few of her MSU squad members won't be practicing. Instead, they will be teaching cheerleading techniques to over 50 young Clarkston area girls at a clinic sponsored by Clarkston Community Education. Girls and boys can still register at the door for the clinic, which lasts from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Some of the young cheerleading hopefuls at the clinic, no doubt, will end up some day cheering for the blue and gold Wolves.

And maybe a few of them will later even wear Spartan green on the sidelines.

3 Lifesavers give no sign of letting up

Three C.A.C.C. Lifesaver pitchers took the life out of Rich Sign Company batters on June 21.

Chris Combs, Dan Scheib and Tim O'Neill combined for a no-hitter in the Independence Parks and Recreation Pony League baseball game as the Lifesavers downed the Rich Sign Company, 12-1.

The trio, with each of them playing the first year in the league, only gave up two walks, and their teammates backed them up with solid fielding, allowing just one error. The Lifesavers offensively banged out 10 hits and stole 13 bases.

Combs started and pitched the first three innings, striking out five batters. Scheib hurled the next three and whiffed three batters. O'Neill mopped up in the last inning, striking out one.

We're the Motor City Bad Boys
And we're here to stay
It's a Daly Double
And I'm here to say
"Get ready! Watch out!
For a triple play!"

Vinnie made it look easy
With a second to go
'Cause charged up his mic
And he let it flow
We're the team with the superstars
And one of them is Joe Du-umars
Then there's Zeke the steak

With powers so unique
Spider Sally
With Rodman worm
Bill Laimbeer

Who's up to here
With muscle to burn
And elbows to fear
James Edwards

And Mark Aguirre
We've got this team
And they truly inspire
We're the bad, bad boys

Water safety classes in Springfield Township

Two new classes, basic water safety and emergency water safety, will be offered this summer by Springfield Township Parks and Recreation in conjunction with the American Red Cross.

Both courses are aimed at helping people to be more safety conscious and better able to help themselves and others in the event of a water emergency.

The courses have much in common but are intended for different audiences. (Note: these courses do not qualify a participant to be a lifeguard.)

For information on how to register for the class, call the Springfield rec. department at 634-0412.

Basic water safety

This course meets 6-9 p.m. Mondays, July 9, 16 and 23.

The purpose of the course is to provide individuals, groups and families with general water safety information, to create an awareness of causes and prevention of water accidents, and to encourage safe water recreation.

The course focuses on personal and community water safety and may be taken by people of all ages, regardless of swimming ability. It is a 9-hour course taught by certified instructors. Participants will receive a certificate at the end of the course.

The class will be held at the Mill Pond Park Community Center. The fee is $25 (which includes a book), with a minimum of 10 participants needed to hold the class.

Registrations are needed by July 9. Special family rates may be arranged.

Emergency water safety course

This course meets 6-9 p.m. Mondays, July 30 and Aug. 6 and 13.

The purpose of the course is to become fully familiar with potential hazards of water activities, to prevent accidents, and to respond to emergencies.

The course is intended only for people who already know how to swim well enough to pass a skills screening test. It is designed especially for individuals who want to know how to respond in an aquatic emergency. Participants in this class may include people involved in water recreation, people who hunt or fish, police, firefighters, scout leaders, etc.

Certified instructors will teach the 9-hour course, which will be held at the Mill Pond Park in Davisburg. The fee is $25 (which includes a book), with a minimum of 10 participants needed to hold the class. Registrations are needed by July 23.

Golfer sinks second ace

The Detroit Pistons and Tom Hampton know about the joy of repeating.

Hampton, a 36-year-old who lives on Misty Hill Drive in Independence Township, sank his second career hole-in-one June 19 at the Indian Springs Metropark Golf Course in Springfield and White Lake Townships.

Hampton, who has played golf for 25 years, used a 3-iron on the 177-yard fourth hole. He shot a 38 for the day. Jerry Kymala witnessed the ace.

The ace was only the second ever on Indian Springs' fourth hole. The course opened in the fall of 1988.

CLINTONWOOD PARK OPEN HOUSE AND ALUMNI SOFTBALL CELEBRATION

In celebration of 15 years of softball at Clintonwood Park, there will be an open house and Alumni Softball Celebration at the park on Saturday, July 21.

There will be activities going on all day for families, all-star softball games featuring current players and special exhibition games featuring past players. A disc jockey will be present to entertain during the evening. There is no cost to attend any of these events.

The Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department is looking for players who have played at the park so it can send them an invitation to the Alumni Softball Celebration.

YOUTH SOCCER REGISTRATION

Registration for boys and girls (6-19 years old) who would like to play soccer this fall or next spring begins June 2 at the Soccerfest at Clintonwood Park. Those registering June 2 through July 13 may take advantage of a special rate. Those registering July 16 through July 31 will be charged a regular rate.

The season is tentatively scheduled to begin in late August for the under-8, under-10 and under-12 leagues. The travel league teams may begin as early as mid-August. To receive a flyer on youth soccer, call the rec department.

AIR CONDITIONING TIP

Two weeks ago I wrote about the importance of keeping the outdoor coil of your central air conditioner clean and free of dust, leaves, grass clippings and cotton wood fuzz.

Just as important, but often forgotten or neglected, is the indoor section of the system. The indoor section is the cooling coil or evaporator and the blower portion of the furnace. Proper air flow through the cooling coil is essential. If the system was properly sized and installed with a good duct system, this needed air flow is usually easily obtained by keeping the indoor filter clean, blower and motor clean and lubricated, belt properly adjusted, and supply and return air registers open and unobstructed.

Consult your operational manual for suggested maintenance on your equipment or call a local qualified heating-cooling contractor for this and other important service.

Invasion of European zebra mussels controllable

The spreading of zebra mussels into Michigan waters probably will not stop, but hopefully can be controlled and slowed.

The Department of Natural Resources' goal is to prevent or slow their spread to inland lakes and streams to allow time to develop effective control strategies.

Zebra mussels, a little clam-like creature, came over from Europe. An adult mussel can live up to five years and females can produce 30,000 to 40,000 eggs a year. After hatch, the young travel the currents. They must have a hard surface to attach to, or they will die.

That's the problem. The mussels accumulate in the water intakes of both inboard and outboard motors causing damage to these engines. They may also reduce plankton that is used as food for forage fish.

In addition, they clog municipal and industrial water intakes by building up colonies several layers thick. Authorities generally agree that the spread of zebra mussels to presently uninfested inland waters is inevitable.

Zebra mussels can also get into intake pipes and clog the cooling system of your boat's engine, and they are difficult to remove once they do. The best alternative is to replace the pipes.

Even the angler who fills his minnow pail with water from an infested Great Lake and then dumps it into an inland lake could well be furthering the mussels' spread.

Always use extra caution when transporting baitfish from one lake to another.

Other authorities worry that the zebra mussel may actively "hitch" rides on pleasure and fishing boats. Researchers report the mussel can also survive out of the House passes tire bill

Legislation to provide for the regulation and disposal of scrap tires has passed the Michigan House, announced bill sponsor State Representative Claude Trim (R-Waterford).

"House Bills 4068 and 5339 will designate how, where and in what quantities tires must be stockpiled to best eliminate fire hazard and mosquito breeding," Trim said. "Left unregulated, huge tire piles pose serious environmental and health problems."

There are currently 16 million to 40 million scrap tires scattered throughout the state with another 9 million generated annually. The tire piles are susceptible to fire which pollute the air and land. Discarded tires also accumulate water in which disease-bearing mosquitos thrive.

The legislation requires the tires to be placed in buildings, covered by plastic sheet, chemically-treated, cut into small pieces, enclosed by a 6-foot fence or ultimately recycled, depending on quantities involved.

"Our long-range goal is recycling of all used or discarded tires," Trim said. "This will eliminate disposal problems and utilize the rubber for other practical uses."

The legislation provides for a 50-cent increase in automobile titles to fund the new regulations and clean up existing scrap tire piles.

water up to 10 to 14 days.

Here are steps boaters and anglers can take to slow the mussel spread and protect Michigan's waters.

Always take your boat out of the water and inspect it (and the boat trailer) carefully before transporting.

Remove any plant debris where tiny zebra mussels may be entangled from the boat trailer at the launch site. They cling stubbornly to surfaces and it will probably take some real effort to knock them loose.

Carefully scrape the hull (or trailer), or use a high-pressure spray (250 psi) to dislodge them.

In their earlier stages, attached mussels may not be easily seen. Pass your hand across the boat's bottom-if it feels grainy, it's probably mussels. Don't take a chance; clean them off by scraping or blasting.

Zebra mussels can also get into intake pipes and clog the cooling system of your boat's engine, and they are difficult to remove once they do. The best alternative is to replace the pipes.

Keep an eye on the temperature gauge if you spend time in waters known to be mussel-infested and check the water intake if the engine runs too hot.

Certain polymer waxes appear to discourage zebra mussels from attaching. But you need to check your hull from time-to-time because the mussels cling to drain holes and speedometer brackets.

Always use extra caution when transporting baitfish from one lake to another. You could be carrying microscopic zebra mussels. To be safe, do not take water from one lake to another.

Reduce waste: reuse old paint; donate it

Paint is a common product that can become household hazardous waste when it is not used up. To reduce the amount of hazardous waste, it is important to reuse, recycle and evaporate old paint as much as possible.

Oakland County Hazardous Waste Agent Dave Schmidt suggests donating usable paint to theater groups, art departments at schools and universities, sign painters, building contractors (particularly those specializing in fire damage), non-profit organizations, neighbors or friends. Or you can organize a "drop and swap" program in your community to recycle old paint.

Another way to reduce the amount of waste is to evaporate old paints. First, find a well-ventilated area, such as a garage or shed, protected from open flames, children, pets and rain.

For quantities less than 1/4 gallon, remove the lid and allow liquids to evaporate. Dispose of solidified paint in the trash.

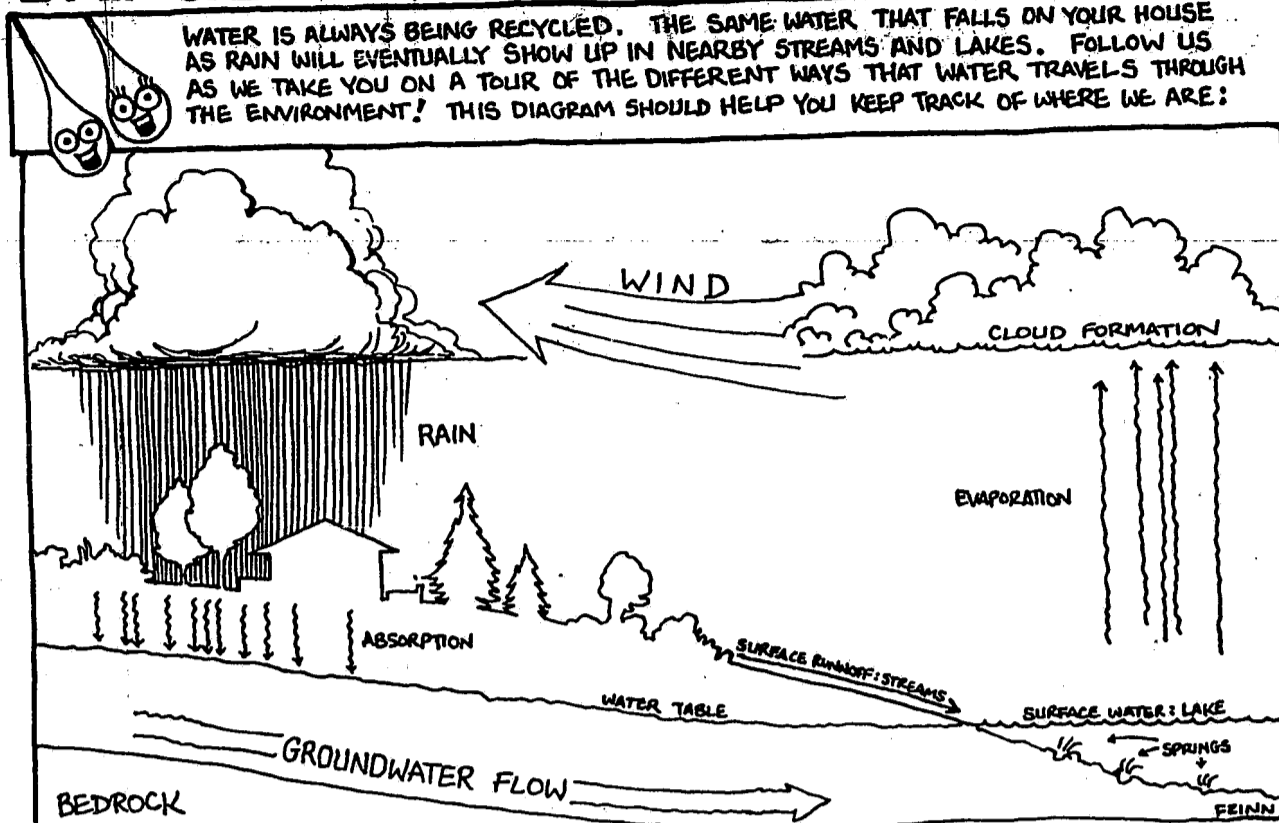

Quantities greater than 1/4 gallon which cannot be reused, recycled or evaporated can be taken to firms which use paint as fuels in kilns. Names of such firms may be obtained by calling the Household Hazardous Waste Information Line at 1-800-468-9612.

Water or solvents used to clean brushes should be kept in a small container allowing paint particles to settle. Pour off the clear liquid to be reused. Mix paint residue with absorbent materials (cat box filler, old newspapers, etc.) and put into trash.

REMEMBER: In selecting paints for interior or exterior use, try to use only those paints which DO NOT contain mercury. You may have to ask your dealer because mercury is not one of the listed ingredients.

Teaching driver's education: someone's got to do it

Life in the fast lane

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Each day, Tim Hewelt puts his life in the hands of an unlicensed teen-age driver.

Hewelt is a driver's education instructor at Clarkston High School, and though he's lived to tell about it, he's had some close calls.

This week for instance, the three-week session started with one young student careening into the path of an oncoming United Parcel Service truck.

Then there was the time on Sashabaw Road, when Hewelt instructed a student to enter the I-75 on-ramp, on the left. The left turn signal went on at the appropriate time, the student veered slightly to the right and then suddenly turned right onto the wrong ramp.

These close calls occur about "once a session," Hewelt says.

"In the classroom, on the 'range' and on the road — there's excitement on all of them," Hewelt says.

The district has never had any serious accidents involving driver's ed. students. When the occasional

"That driver's license represents a great departure. Not passing is just like taking away a friend."

Tim Hewelt

fender bender occurs, the instructors meet to determine fault and, in some cases, remove the student from the program.

Hewelt started his driver's training career 20 years ago because he needed a summer job. Though his hair is now streaked with gray, Hewelt says teaching driver's ed. is actually rewarding.

"You deal one-on-one with a student in driver's ed.," he says. "Rarely in education do you get that experience."

"The kids are real excited," he adds. "That driver's license represents a great departure. Not passing is just like taking away a friend."

The most difficult aspect of the job is not supervising students on the road but deciding whether they should pass or fail the course, Hewelt says.

Fifteen to 20 percent of all driver's ed. students do not pass the first time. Most of those who do pass are still considered novice drivers, Hewelt says.

"By no means are they polished drivers," Hewelt says.

Once students receive their driver's training certificate, they get a learner's permit, which is designed to allow them 30 days of actual driving practice with a licensed driver.

This year, Clarkston High School is attempting a new practice to allow students even more practice. While students are enrolled in driver's ed., parents are given a permit to allow for student practice even before a learner's permit is issued.

Though the three-week class at CHS is different from schools where it is offered for an entire semester, the instruction, when they voluntarily enter vehicles driven by unlicensed teen-age drivers, session is a good one, says Ron Santavicca, who oversees the program.

"Driver's ed. at Clarkston High School is not a blow-off," Santavicca says.

Students participate in classroom work, roadway driving and practice "on the range," a cordoned-off area in the CHS parking lot.

Students have use of 16 cars, seven of which were donated this year by Hosler Pontiac and Bowman Chevrolet.

Tickets are issued for infractions ranging from speeding to littering to inattention to instructors. If a student accumulates 12 points, he fails driver's education.

Most driver education students are between the ages of 15 and 17. Although 16 is the legal age to obtain a license, many parents choose to start a student earlier or later, Santavicca says.

"Some parents enroll the student after he's just turned 15 so they have a year to work with them," he explains. "Others decide 'let's wait a year for Johnny to mature and care more.'"

Parental involvement is a crucial part of a student's success as a driver.

About 80 percent of the students enrolling in driver's training have had limited driving experience, Hewelt says.

Practice in an empty parking lot or driveway before driver's training is a good idea, Hewelt says, but not mandatory.

The early practice allows students to become familiar with the gas pedal and brake, one of the most common problems among inexperienced drivers, Hewelt says.

"Out on the range, they'll hit the wrong pedal and go up over the curb," he says.

Does the student get ticketed in that event? Not always, explains Santavicca.

"The instructors are good with the kids," he says. "They know they're taking driver's ed. to learn how to drive."

TIM HEWELT advises Chad Kessler and passenger Mike Dombrowski.

The Garden Patch

Little mulch goes long way with flowering annuals

If you want to keep your flowering annuals looking good all summer, put your emphasis on moisture and soil temperature control.

In other words, mulch.

Lowell Ewart, research horticulturist at Michigan State University, says you can't go wrong with a summer mulch. It will help control weeds, retain soil moisture and keep the soil cool.

And that will benefit almost any annual, wherever it's planted.

"Here in Michigan we can grow impatiens and begonias in full sun if we use a mulch to keep the soil cool," he says. "It's not the tops of these plants that are sensitive to the sun, it's the roots — they can't stand to be baked in hot soil."

Most annuals, even those billed as shade tolerant, do better in the shade because the sun isn't frying their roots.

"A good mulch will work wonders," Ewart says. "If you keep the roots cool, you'll find you can grow more plants under a wider range of conditions."

Mulch even plants that naturally do well in a hot, sunny area — they'll only do better because the mulch will help reduce competition from weeds and hold moisture in the soil."

Flowers also suffer fewer disease problems when they're mulched. Faded flowers and other plant parts that fall on a mulch tend to dry out quickly, so fungi can't grow on them and infect the plants.

Mulch also keeps rain from splattering bacteria and fungi from the soil onto lower plant parts.

To provide nutrients for growth, mix about 1 pound of a complete fertilizer per 100 square feet of bed before planting, Ewart advises. This should carry about any annual flower crop through the entire growing season.

If lower leaves begin turning yellow, this may indicate a need for a little extra nitrogen. This is especially likely if you've used an organic mulch.

The soil bacteria working to decompose the mulch may temporarily tie up available nitrogen, making it unavailable to plants.

Monthly fertilization with a liquid fertilizer should take care of that problem. The most efficient way to apply that fertilizer is to pour it around each plant. Spraying it over the whole planting takes more fertilizers and wastes much of it on the mulch.

Watering, too, should be directed at the soil rather than at the tops of the plants, Ewart says.

"Watering the foliage, especially in the evening so that leaves remain wet all night, can be a big factor in disease development," he explains. "The heavy dews of August come soon enough to ravage the garden — you don't need to hurry up the process by wetting the foliage."

Mildew and black spot in roses, mildew and alternaria in zinnias, botrytis in petunias — the list of diseases that can be related to improper watering goes on and on.

Spacing plants so that air can circulate among them and directing the water at the roots rather than the tops can go a long way toward minimizing disease problems in the flower garden.

Some plants benefit from rejuvenation in midseason. Cutting back petunias in early July and pansies in August eliminates straggly stems and promotes a flush of new growth and renewed flowering.

"Of course, the plants look terrible for a week or so," Ewart notes, "and you wonder if they'll survive. But with a dose of fertilizer and a deep watering, they'll come right back and put on a good show until frost."

Snapdragons and dianthus will benefit from removal of faded flowers and seedheads. This will keep them flowering instead of maturing seed.

Keeping plants growing well and free of stress from weed competition or drought will go a long way toward minimizing pest problems, Ewart suggests.

Unless aphid or mite populations explode under the influence of hot, dry weather, natural enemies such as ladybird beetles may be able to handle most pest problems.

When an outbreak does occur, the home gardener who wants to preserve those beneficial insects may want to look for a biological control product that will target the pests without harming other organisms, Ewart suggests.

"Killing off the good guys along with the pests may result in a bigger pest problem because the aphids or whatever that survive will have no natural enemies," he explains.

Summerfolk season ends with Magpie

The last outdoor concert in the Possum Corner Summerfolk '90 series features Magpie at Independence Oaks County Park Wednesday, July 11.

Sponsored by the Possum Corner Traditional Music Association, the concert begins at 7:30 p.m. in the park off Sashabaw Road, 2 1/2 miles north of I-75, Independence Township. Tickets are $7 for adults, $5 for seniors and children and free for children under age 6. Tickets are available at the park or at Ticketmaster locations.

Magpie, a group from Takoma Park, Md., performs old time, blues, country, Jazz, contemporary folk, topical and environmental material.

The husband and wife duo, Greg Artzner and Terry Leonino, perform on guitar, concertina, mandolin, dulcimer and harmonica.

They have appeared at most major folk festivals in North America as well as the Lincoln Center in New York and the Smithsonian and Wolf Trap in Washington, D.C.

They will be making their fifth tour of England and Scotland in September 1990. Their most recent and fourth album, "Living Planet," is environmentally oriented and was recently featured on National Public Radio's "Week-end Edition" with Scott Simon.

For more information, call 625-0877 or 625-1227.

MAGPIE is an eclectic duo from Maryland, who is to perform old time, blues, country, work and environmental songs July 11 at Independence Oaks.

JOHN DEERE

Opinion of Bill Myers

Rules to follow

William A. Myers is a retired Lapeer County editor and investments manager from Boca Raton, Fla.

RULES I WISH I'D ALWAYS FOLLOWED

First of two articles

1. Remember the 11th Commandment: "Thou Shalt Not Invade Thy Principal."
2. Don't chase an eighth--use market orders ordinarily, except in thin stocks. If you want to buy or sell--do so.
3. Stick to one broker, or maybe two, if you need an additional one for some specialized service, such as bonds, or options.
4. For the same reason as using one broker, use one bank, one insurance agent. You'll get better service.
5. Read tax books and get as much information as you can on income tax--but get a good tax firm to make out your return. This is not a do-it-yourself job.
6. Inside information may be useful in buying, but no insider is going to tell you when to sell. If he told you to sell, he'd find himself an outsider.

7. Remember the compound factor: 70=No. of years to double.
 8. Don't wait for a stock to (a) come back to what you paid for it or (b) return to its one-time high. Champion Homebuilders (now 6) has no more chance of going back to its high of 25 than any other stock has of 300% gain.
 9. Cut your losses, and let your profits run--an old adage--but watch the multiples. No tree grows to the sky--another adage.
 10. Don't be afraid to pay capital gains, and don't let "short term" or "long term" influence but slightly in a decision to sell. You can never spend this asset until the tax is paid.
 11. In reflecting "What if I had only bought real estate," consider the example of 7% compounded since 1937--a span of 40 years: 1973-$50; 1947-$100; 1957-$200; 1967-$400; 1977-$800; 1982 (10% since 77)-$1288.
- This is the story of good farm land in southern Michigan. In 1937, $50 would have bought you an acre of land; today that same land is worth $1000.

12. Don't get sucked into a minority interest in a closely-held corporation, where you're at the mercy of the majority. This is the most illiquid investment I can think of. And don't get into a partnership, either.
13. Beware of investments in new, struggling companies, and in new products. (Average time for new product's concept-to-market: 8 years.) When they say, "But look at General Motors," remember there have been 500 automobile companies started in the U.S. Three remain. One is shaky.
14. When interest rates are high--as they are now--buy long bonds. When they're low, get short ones--2 or 3 years to maturity, or Treasury bills.
15. Avoid foreign investments. Exception: Canadian bonds that pay in U.S. Remember Cuba, Mexico and Argentina.

Are you bored with boredom?

Bored to tears or otherwise? Why don't you learn a new language, go horseback riding, do some gardening or visit a zoo?

These are just a few suggestions from the Boring Institute (yes, there really is such a thing), which is sponsoring its fifth National Anti-Boredom Month in July.

The Boring Institute was founded in 1984 by Alan Caruba as a spoof, but he soon found that he had tapped a serious problem and inaugurated National Anti-Boredom Month in 1986.

The Institute focuses on the serious side of boredom, such as worker burnout, school dropouts, marital failure and suicide.

There are, however, ways to escape this problem. The Institute has developed a list of 10 ways to avoid boredom: read; develop hobbies; join organizations; feed your mind; watch television selectively; do your chores; don't isolate yourself; say "I can"; be nice to yourself; and have a wish list.

Collector cars on display July Fourth

Following the Fourth of July Parade this year, parade-goers can walk a short way to Clarkston's Depot Park and examine collector cars on display.

For the third year, the Clarkston Touring and Chowder Society is to participate in the 10 a.m. parade in downtown Clarkston and then meet in the park for a picnic lunch.

Area residents are welcome to inspect the cars at that time, said Jon Abbott, a member of the Touring and Chowder Society, which is a group of area car owners who meet periodically to talk about their cars and to eat "chowder."

7 young writers honored in contest

Seven Clarkston Junior High School students have proven their English abilities in a citywide arena.

The seven were chosen from 6,100 entries as winners in the annual writing contest sponsored by the Detroit Free Press.

The contest was open to grades seven through nine and included works of poetry, short stories, sketches and essays.

Those receiving awards of excellence in the contest were Stacy Carr for poetry and Shea Kammer for a short story. Receiving commendations were Sally Basinger for poetry and Sarah Hubbach for poetry. Honorable mentions were granted to Nathan Werner for a sketch, David Byrne for a short story and Josh Surre for a short story.

The students are all members of the ninth-grade honors English class taught by Ruth Duling.

Apple for the Teacher

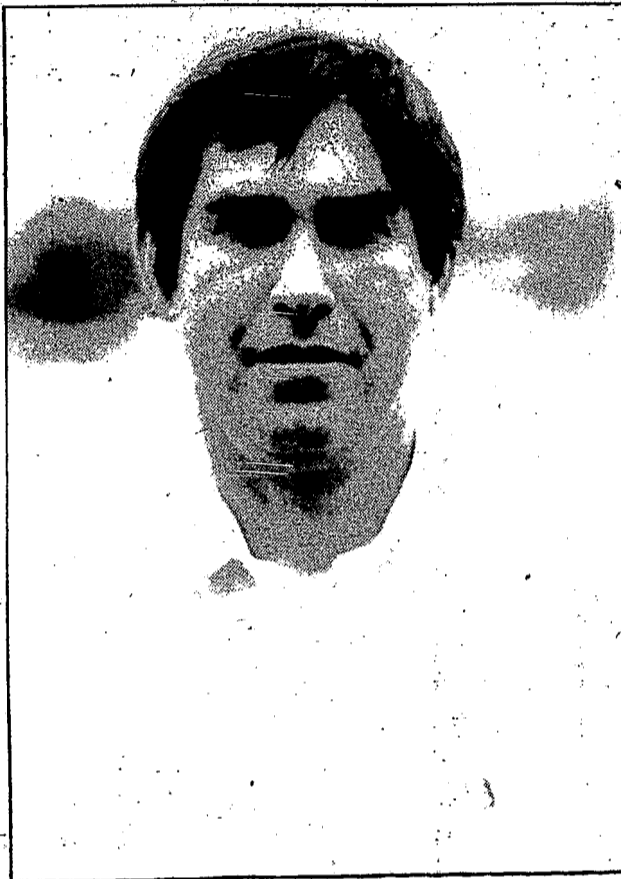

By Kay Van Natta

Butch Alterman, fifth-grade teacher

R.A. "Butch" Alterman, fifth-grade teacher at Bailey Lake Elementary School, has had a mobile life.

Born in Camden, N.J., and raised through grade six in Emporia, Kan., he's the son of a secondary education professor and, as a result, has been around education and educators all his life.

Seventh through 12th grades were spent in Mount Pleasant, followed by four years at Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant, where he earned a bachelor of science degree in elementary education.

Following college, Butch spent two years on active duty with the U.S. Navy on board the landing cargo ship USS El Paso.

During this time and his four years in the Naval Reserve, he got to see most of Mediterranean Europe, the Caribbean, the Canal Zone and much of coastal South America.

In August of 1973, Butch married Maureen Sullivan, a speech and language pathologist and college classmate. In 1980 he earned a master's degree in reading from Oakland University, Rochester.

Following this, he and Maureen opened a successful speech and reading clinic in Highland Township, which has been an enriching addition to Butch's career and fits in well with Maureen's extensive private practice.

The Altermans, along with Crystal the dog and Tiger the cat, now live in Milford. They enjoy travel, the outdoors and almost all sports.

Butch has taught fourth through sixth grades in Clarkston for 21 years and enjoys it.

"No two days running are ever alike," he has said. "Like any occupation, teaching can have its aggravating moments, but it is never boring."

Butch has only one major classroom rule for the children, but it covers a lot of territory in very few words.

"You must allow me to teach, and you must allow others to learn."

FOR 21 years, R.A. "Butch" Alterman has taught in Clarkston Community Schools.

Apple for the Teacher is provided through a committee of the Clarkston Education Association. This week's author is Kay Van Natta.

Keep cool in summer

To stay cool this summer, Detroit Edison offers the following energy conservation steps:

■ Keep draperies closed during the daytime to block out the heat.

■ Shade a room to eliminate or reduce the need for air conditioning. Awnings, outside shutters and trees are effective methods of shading.

■ Keep storm windows on and closed when cooling to prevent cold air from escaping.

■ Don't overcool an empty house. Turn the thermostat up five degrees if you're going to be away for a few hours.

For free information about energy consumption programs, customers can call Detroit Edison at 1-800-482-2983.

Prevent swimmer's ear

During the summer months "swimmer's ear" becomes more prevalent due to exposure to fungus, bacteria and chlorine in the pool.

According to Brian Blakley, an ear, nose and throat specialist at Harper Hospital, diabetics are especially susceptible to developing this disorder.

For the general public, using bobby pins and cotton swabs to clean the ear should be avoided, since these devices can scratch the surface of the ear and leave individuals more prone to infection.

To prevent damage, Blakley suggests cleaning the ear with mineral oil and an eye dropper.

tor and vice president, respectively, of the Land Conservancy and also are members of the Farm and Garden Club. The presentation took place near Cranberry Lake, where the Land Conservancy owns property.

Donation helps Land Conservancy

Smiles and money were exchanged in a quick ceremony near Cranberry Lake, Independence Township, June 13.

On behalf of the Clarkston Farm and Garden Club, President June Thomas donated $100 to the Independence Land Conservancy June 13.

The money likely will be used to purchase signs for Conservancy property, said Tom Murphy, president of the Conservancy.

Thomas said her club wanted to donate money to the Conservancy because members are dedicated to the preservation and beautification of the natural beauty of the country, and the only way the Conservancy raises money is through contributions of land or money.

Established in 1972, the Conservancy consists of about 230 acres in 13 locations in the township that will be protected forever.

About 100 people belong to the Conservancy, which is a private, non-profit organization that acts in the public interest to acquire property or conservation easements for the purpose of encouraging good land stewardship.

While some easements allow no further development on the land, others may allow a limited number of new structures.

Most of the parcels are not managed by the Conservancy itself but rather by private people.

OUTSIDE the Poole house on Mann Road, Independence Township, teens scurry about, making a new wheelchair ramp for Frank Poole, who suffered a stroke 3 1/2 years ago. Sally Swayne of Lighthouse-North connected the Pooles with the teens.

Teens find enjoyment in helping others in need

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Inside, Frank Poole sat in his wheelchair, looking out the front door of his Mann Road, Independence Township, home.

From his vantage point, he could hear the laughter, singing and good-natured kidding from a dozen teens who were working outside. The sounds were punctuated by buzzing from electric saws and loud thuds from regular hammering.

Occasionally, Lorretta Gellish or Stacy Banaszak would stop their outside work and come inside to talk to Frank.

In the kitchen, Poole's wife, Alma, kept the coffee and lemonade in strong supply.

Though cloudy and smattered with rain, it was a good day — only one of an entire week of daily projects for the teens.

At the Poole residence, one crew constructed a new wheelchair ramp, with help from Dick Moscovic, teacher of the building trades program at the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus. Another crew mowed the lawn, washed windows and hauled newspapers, cans and glass to a recycling center.

"They're doing a fine job," said Frank Poole, who suffered a stroke 3 1/2 years ago and has since been confined to a wheelchair.

Though unable to use the left side of his body, he sat patiently, watching the teens' busy work.

"I didn't know they made them like that anymore," he said, marveling at their energy.

However, the teens' hard work did not surprise John Leece and Mark Loucks, of Clarkston United Methodist Church and Davisburg United Methodist Church, respectively.

The two headed the second annual Righteous Mission, whereby teens from both churches attended camp for a week at Christ the King Camp, Oxford, performing work for area people in need and returning to the camp each evening.

"A week of a camp like this can make up a year of Sunday school ... because you learn by doing," said Leece.

"An important part of our Christian faith is to put that into action with love and service to other people, and it's important to youth to understand they can make a difference in the world," he said.

Besides, "it gives them a great feeling of accomplishment," he said.

Loucks said the project is good for youth.

"It gives them an opportunity to take what they believe and put it into practice, and then it's something real," he said.

Steve Tungate, 17, said the camp has been valuable experience, and he enjoys helping people.

"They've been really appreciative," Tungate said. "It's hard work, but it goes quick because we're all friends, and we get along really good."

Another successful year of goodwill

The second year of Righteous Mission is just as successful as the first, said John Leece, organizer of the program.

This year, his group of 17 teens from Davisburg and Clarkston United Methodist churches have built a wheelchair ramp, mowed lawns, painted, cleaned garages, gutters and decks, stained, pulled out poison oak and removed a stump.

The crews have also cleaned out the tabernacle at Christ the King Camp, Oxford, as well as volunteering at Lighthouse-North, a non-profit group that serves the needy in the North Oakland County area.

Lighthouse offers all sorts of services to all types of needy people — in fact, it rounded up the names of senior citizens and others who needed a little help in the township, and the teens contributed their energy and goodwill.

"We plan to do this again next year," said Leece.

"It's a great experience. We get as much out of it working as the people do," he said.

Following is a list of the teen and adult workers:

From Clarkston United Methodist Church:

Loretta Gellish	Christy Mitcham
Mike Herban	Charlotte Maybee
Chris Merz	Brenda Dupree
Joel Mellen	Emily Sutherland
Tina Sutherland	John Leece, youth director
Steve Tungate

From Davisburg United Methodist Church:

Debbie Leach	Jody Foss
Gary Leeper	Diane Leeper
Stacy Banaszak	Sharon Leeper
Shannon Baas	Mark Loucks, youth pastor

Special construction consultant:
Dick Moscovic

It's the second year Gary Leeper, 16, has participated in Righteous Mission. He talked about the project as he worked on the wheelchair ramp.

"I had a lot of fun last year," he said. "I like to see how the people feel when we're done. Everyone seems nice, even the people who are dead tired."

"I think this is the warmest, nicest thing you can do," he said.

Tina Sutherland, 17, also worked last year in the program.

"It's a lot of work, but it's also fun," she said, adding that her mother has been helping to make breakfast each morning for the workers.

Shannon Baas, 18, said she's enjoying her first year with the group.

"It's a bunch of teen-agers who are helping people; it shows their worth," she said. "Seeing how happy people are is its own reward."

The teens said they were grateful to the homeowners, who all week offered lemonade and other treats.

But Alma Poole wanted to do even more for the youth who helped her.

"It's the least I could do," she said. "I offered them cookies yesterday, but they said no; they had Twinkies."

"They're good workers," she said, adding that the new ramp will help a lot because the old ramp was too steep, making it difficult to get her husband in and out of the house.

Just then, the crew outside started up a song, and Frank Poole smiled.

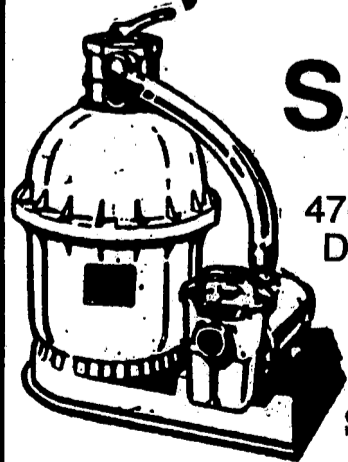

CHRIS MERZ, 17, prepares one board for its spot in the new wheelchair ramp.

WITH NAILS held firmly in his mouth, Gary Leeper, 16, hammers away.

48-year-old finds graduation grand

BY LISA NIXON
Clarkston News Special Writer

One Oakland University, Rochester, graduate may be a bit prouder than others.

Carol Druskinis, a Dartmouth Road, Independence Township, resident, graduated at the age of 48. It was great, she said.

She began college at OU in 1960 but never thought she'd return to finish her degree, she said. But her friend talked her into it.

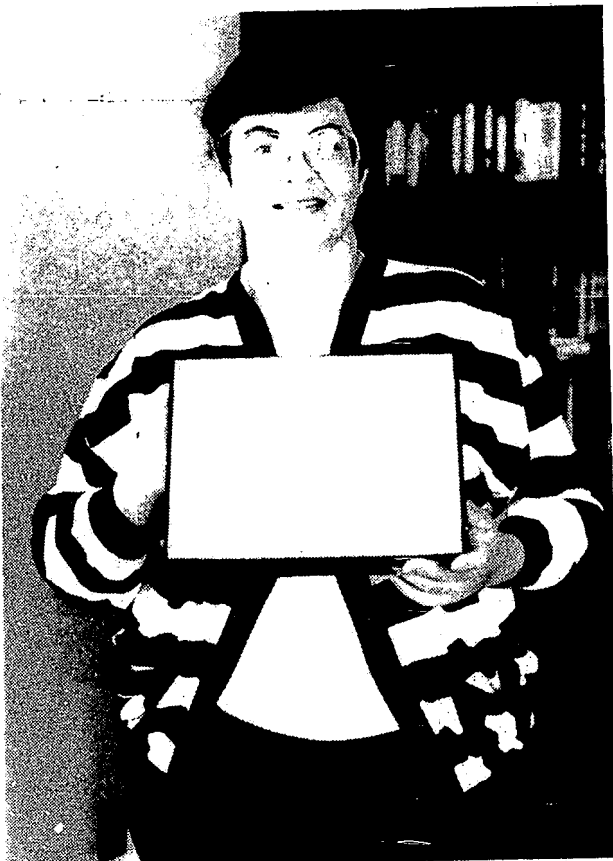

"I had always talked about getting my degree for my own satisfaction," Druskinis said. "I was scared."

Her friend instilled the confidence she needed.

Druskinis originally went to school for a year but dropped out because she lacked interest.

"I wasn't sure what I wanted to do, and I lost interest. I went to business school after and got a job in that field," she said.

Druskinis started school again at Oakland Community College (OCC). She graduated from OCC magna cum laude and then went for her degree at OU.

Going back to school was a positive experience, Druskinis said.

"I didn't find any age bias. The students bent over backwards to make you welcome," she said. "I never met people who were derogatory about my age."

"The hardest part was going six years," she said. "I

"I really enjoyed the experience of learning," she said.

back to school.

"Each person has to make up their own mind," she said. "But if someone encourages you it helps."

"The self-confidence and satisfaction you derive is enough reward to go back," she added.

"Those who go back are more motivated because they are more settled, more mature, and value it more."

Golden celebration

Robert and Dorothy Craven of Homosassa Springs Fla., and formerly of Clarkston, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary at a party given by their children.

The celebration takes place June 30 at the First Federal Community Annex in Inverness, Fla.

The event is organized by their granddaughter, Tammy, and by their children, Frank, Vickie, Teresa and Reigh.

The Cravens were married on June 17, 1940, in Pontiac; they now have four children, 14 grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren.

Wedding bells ring in California

Newlyweds: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Wilson.

Rhonda L. Kilgore and Joseph J. Wilson were united in marriage March 17, 1990, at the Chapel at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

The bride is a store detective for BX on the Vandenberg Air Force Base. She is the daughter of Roy and Norma Call of Sidney, Neb.

The bridegroom is a 1986 Clarkston High School graduate and is a sergeant in the United States Air Force. He is the son of Jim and Marty Wilson of M-15, Clarkston.

Maid of honor was Susan Varcie of California. Best man was Tony Peterson of Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

A May 19 wedding reception was held at Spring Lake Country Club, Clarkston.

Gettig, White wed

Donna Gettig and George White, both of Clarkston, were united in marriage Friday, June 15, 1990. The Rev. Douglas Trebilcock performed the 6 p.m. double-ring ceremony at the Clarkston United Methodist Church.

A small reception followed at the Haymaker's restaurant in Lake Orion.

The bride is an executive secretary for Packard Electric Division of General Motors in Troy, and the bridegroom is principal of Pine Knob Elementary School in Clarkston Community Schools.

They plan to reside in Clarkston.

Club notes

Jaclyn Dunaski was named 1990 Business Associate of the Year by the Inde-Spring Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association. Dunaski is currently vice-president of employee benefits for Financial Guardian of Michigan, Inc. Dunaski was nominated by Bridget Hughes of Ortonville. In her nomination letter, Hughes praised Dunaski's experience in the insurance industry as well as her "unique ability to understand all facets of a problem." For the last 12 years, Dunaski has specialized in self-funding benefit plans applying her understanding of the underwriting, legal requirements and the day-to-day servicing requirements involved in such plans. Hughes also praised her mentor in the insurance industry for her ability to be an excellent educator, clear in giving directions when needed and being extremely patient.

Students win

A team of more than 16 retail marketing students attended a competition this spring, and many of them brought home honors for their efforts.

The young men and women study the subject at the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus, Springfield Township.

Among those earning honors were the following: Scott Williamson, Clarkston High School, general marketing; Barbara Scott, Brandon High School, finance and credit; David Miles, Waterford Kettering, apparel/accessories; Tom Swan, Waterford Mott, apparel/accessories; Tammy Berney, Clarkston High School, food marketing; Stacey Crites, Clarkston High School, food marketing; Carlen Wamsley, Clarkston High School, supervisory level, apparel/accessories.

The students received awards from Distributive Education Clubs of America, which sponsors regional and state competitions annually for all of its chapters. The regional contest was held in Farmington, where students from all over Southwest Michigan participated.

Berney and Miles also earned recognition for outstanding performance at the state level of competition.

In addition, the local chapter fielded a Quiz Bowl team, which eliminated three other schools before losing in the semi-final round.

The Quiz Bowl members were Stacy Travnikar and Heidi Grunwald of Clarkston High School, Shea Swansey of Brandon High School and Karma Woolever of Waterford Kettering High School.

Business Brief

Consecrated a diaconal minister

Charlotte A. Cowdin was consecrated a diaconal minister in the United Methodist Church by Bishop Judith Craig, resident bishop of the Michigan area on Friday, June 8, at the 149th Session of the Detroit Annual Conference at Adrian College, Adrian.

Cowdin received certification in Christian education in 1984 and has been employed at Clarkston United Methodist Church, directing education and programming since July 1980.

Daughter of Albert and Josephine Rhodes of Lake Orion, Cowdin was graduated from Lake Orion High School. She received a bachelor of science degree in nursing from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, and a master's degree from Michigan State University, East Lansing.

She completed the Foundational Studies for Consecration as a Diaconal Ministry at Garrett-Evangelical Seminary in Evanston, Ill.

Before going into Christian work, Cowdin worked as a public health nurse with Oakland County and as a teacher of health occupations in the Waterford school district.

Vacation costs up 3 percent

A family of four should budget about $198 a day when taking a vacation by car this summer, AAA Michigan reports.

"The estimated price for food, lodging and driving rose $6 a day — up three percent — compared with last summer's costs," said Peter R. Erickson, AAA Michigan Club Services director.

Lodging averages $80 a night, based on typical rates of approved hotels listed in AAA TourBooks.

"It's best to select a hotel before starting out," Erickson added. "Planning ahead offers more choices at a better price since some accommodations may be free for children under age 14."

Family dining costs an average $93 a day. Many restaurants offer "early bird" specials or children's menus offering entrees at reduced rates.

Erickson said motorists can expect to pay $25 for gasoline, oil, tires and maintenance based on traveling 300 miles in a car averaging 23 miles per gallon.

Making sure the family vehicle is in top condition can save fuel and avoid costly breakdowns.

The best way to do this is to follow the maintenance schedule in a car's owners manual.

Actual vacation expenditures vary depending on personal preferences, and costs vary by area.

For instance, higher lodging rates are usually found in metropolitan areas and at resorts in season.

A vacation budget also should include extra funds for tips, tourist attractions, road and bridge tolls, shopping and emergencies, Erickson noted.

Extra food safety needed in hot weather

When temperatures soar into the '90s, the ever present danger of food poisoning may increase, says Sylvia Treitman, home economist of the Oakland County Cooperative Extension.

Extra care needs to be taken in food handling when shopping and cooking indoors and outdoors.

"Prompt, thorough refrigeration of foods, immediately after shopping can help prevent food spoilage," says Treitman.

It isn't a bad idea to take a cooler filled with ice in the car for perishables. When your shopping errands run into lengthy stays, you don't want your food "boiling" in a hot car.

Other tips include:

- Keep all foods clean. Above 90 degrees, leave cooked food out only one hour. Below 90 degrees, two hours.

- Do not re-use marinades or dishes from them.

- Defrost foods in refrigerator — never on counter.

- Do not re-use chopping board used for raw meat, without thoroughly washing.

- Thoroughly cook meat so it is not pink and juices run clear.

- Use ice chests or insulated containers for picnics for extended food shopping.

For questions related to food and nutrition or food safety and food preservation, call the Food and Nutrition Hotline, Monday through Friday, 8:30 to 5 p.m., at 858-0904.

Healthy Helpings

Salad dressings trimmed of calories

Tracy King

Salads are nutritious anytime, but they are especially appealing in the summertime.

The contents of a salad can vary from crisp lettuces to fruits to pastas. The basic ingredients are likely to be healthy; it's the salad dressings you have to watch.

Mayonnaise and many oily dressings can add extra fat and calories, making salad a not so healthy choice.

The following dressings are excerpted from Calorie Trimmed Recipes from Better Homes and Gardens.

DIET BLUE CHEESE DRESSING

Makes one cup

- 1 cup plain yogurt
- 2 tablespoons crumbled blue cheese
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon celery seed
- Dash bottled hot pepper sauce

In a small mixer bowl combine the plain yogurt, 1 tablespoon of the crumbled blue cheese, the sugar, celery seed and the bottled hot pepper sauce.

Thoroughly beat dressing with rotary beater until smooth. Stir in the remaining crumbled blue cheese.

Transfer to jar; cover tightly and chill.

TOMATO SALAD DRESSING

Makes one cup

- 1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
- 2 tablespoons tarragon vinegar
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dried dillweed
- 1/2 teaspoon dried basil, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon onion juice

In a screw top jar combine the tomato sauce, tarragon vinegar, Worcestershire sauce, salt, dried dillweed, basil and onion juice.

Cover and shake well; chill thoroughly.

Shake again before serving.

GINGER WINE VINAIGRETTE

Makes one cup

- 1/2 cup red wine vinegar
- 6 tablespoons salad oil
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon gingerroot or 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1 teaspoon celery seed

In a screw top jar, combine wine vinegar, oil, sugar, gingerroot or ground ginger, and celery seed.

Cover tightly; shake well. Chill.

Eye care center to serve 'influx of people' in area

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Ray Fligman clearly saw that the Clarkston area would be a good location for one of 31 First Optometry Eye Care Centers. Fligman, who owns half of the franchise, opened the doors of the new store March 5. He said his store on 6643 Dixie Highway in Independence Township is a good site because of the "influx of people" moving into the area.

The optician-owner is no stranger to the surroundings. "I love the area. I used to ski at Pine Knob," said Fligman.

Customers of First Optometry can get complete eye exams, glasses and contact lenses. Fligman said the eye exams also include testing for glaucoma, color vision and depth perception.

Fligman said it is about a 50-50 split in the percentage of his customers coming into his office for glasses or contacts.

Fligman said his store "guarantees the lowest prices gins to write up an order at the First Optometry Eye Care Center on Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

on designer frames."

He said of those who want contacts, about 80 percent get soft lenses, and 20 percent get the gas permeable type.

Fligman said advantages of being part of a franchise are marketing and advertising knowledge, competitive pricing, name recognition and the 31 locations.

Two optometrists share the duties at the office: Arthur Fligman and Robert Hageman. Diane Cozadd, a qualified optician, is the receptionist.

Office hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday and Wednesday; 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., Tuesday, Thursday and Friday; 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays. There is a chance the place will open on Sundays in the future.

July Concert

by Georgene VanAntwerp

We have a date, now don't be late
The July Concert is in the park.
The music from the Gazebo is great,
The air fresh and flowers all abound.
Oh, there you are Richard.
Let's find a place to sit down on the ground.
Yes! People all around.
It's our third year, my special friend,
We look forward to the next.
So let us plan and keep our date,
Even if it means you're late.
For me, it would not be the same
If I could not call out your name.

Georgene Van Antwerp of Beaver Island, St. James formerly lived in Clarkston and plans to return for a July concert in the park. She dedicates the poem to Richard Kennedy.

TASHA needs a home with love and patience to help her overcome her dislike of men.

Intelligent purebred

Tasha's going to need some special attention in her new home.

The 1-year-old purebred German shepherd doesn't like men, but a shelter worker said she could learn to like them with some patience.

She does like young boys, but the shelter worker suggests that Tasha be adopted into a home with children older than age six.

Tasha is intelligent and will follow commands. She weighs about 55 pounds at present but will gain more weight as she matures.

The $75 adoption fee includes spaying.

Tasha can be seen at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

20-year-old wins national award

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Certifying 628 children in three months for first-aid didn't go unnoticed. Teres Hofman won a national award from the American Red Cross for her efforts.

Teres won the American Red Cross Health and Safety Award from among 50 nominees from other states. She's a senior at Northern Michigan University, Marquette, and has worked at Camp Oakland in Oxford as a camp counselor for the last five years.

Serving as a counselor has enabled her to teach Red Cross safety courses to the children.

"Every child received some kind of training," Teres said of last year's campers.

Some of the children attending the camp are referred to as "youth at risk," or children who are from socially disadvantaged homes, low income families, single-parent homes. Some are abused and neglected children, Teres said.

Winning the award meant a trip to Orlando, Fla., to summer season. She will be teaching the Heimlich maneuver, a method used to save choking victims.

After graduation from college, she's not certain what the future will hold for her or how she will use her degree, which includes a Spanish major and health science minor.

Teres said she would like to work translating for the government, but she has also been approached to work for the Red Cross in Puerto Rico.

"It was the biggest award of my life."

Teres Hofman

receive honors at the national convention, she said.

"It was the biggest award of my life," Teres said. "Out of the 3,000 people there, I was the only one getting this award."

Teres has received letters from other Red Cross chapters since winning the award, asking for ideas about teaching.

But the campers who return year to year make Teres the happiest.

Several times the returning children have mentioned to Teres about how they have used their first-aid knowledge to care for people in their families, she said.

"Some (families) now have a fire (escape) plan," Teres said.

Not only does Teres teach the children, who range in age from six to 12 years of age, but she also serves as a first aid instructor to the 45-member staff at Camp Oakland.

Teres plans to incorporate new information this ENCOURAGEMENT always helps in a relay race, and Danny Case of Clarkston gets plenty during the Olympic Games at Camp Oakland on Thursday, June 21. Clarkston students attending the camp are sponsored by Clarkston Area Youth Assistance.

Let the games begin

TEAMS OF Jello eaters gobble up the quivery stuff in an effort to win during the summer Olympics at Camp Oakland.

CAMPERS GATHER before the games begin at the summer Olympics at Camp Oakland in Oxford.
