Postal changes anger some residents

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

A name is a name, as the saying goes; but to residents living in the south side of Independence Township, it's a whole lot more.

Residents of Meyers and Fowler roads, located near the township line, received notice from the post master that their mailing addresses were being changed to Waterford as of July 1.

Forty nine residents are affected by the change; 48 of them have joined a petition drive to prevent the name change. The last resident was unreachable.

"We're very upset by it," says Terry! Borrer, of Meyers, Independence Township. "When your kids go to school in Clarkston, they're proud of it," she states. "They'll have other kids asking 'How come you live in Waterford?'"

"You feel like you're lying to people by saying 'Well I do live in Clarkston, but you have to mail it to Waterford,'" Borrer says.

Because the mail must now be routed through another post office, delays can occur, Borrer adds.

Most residents affected by the change currently have Drayton Plains mailing addresses. However, the July 1 zip code changes affecting many areas results in Drayton Plains being eliminated.

Consequently the post office has decided to change Meyers Road, Fowler Drive, a portion of Major Avenue and a portion of Sashabaw Road to a Waterford address.

The change was based on considerations of facility locations, community boundaries, geographic features and safety, according to Postmaster Daniel Presilla.

"A conscious effort was made to bring the (zip and boundary changes) closer to the township line," Presilla says, in a letter to residents.

"...because the Clinton River forms a major geographic boundary, with limited access across it, for some areas it was selected as a boundary.

"Safety was also a consideration," Presilla adds.

Music from around the world in park

The first free concert in the park this year features music from around the world.

The European 10-piece Festival Band plays 7-9 p.m. Friday, July 6, in Clarkston's Depot Park.

The music is fast moving and includes famous national anthems and ethnic selections, such as polkas, waltzes and tangos. It features music from Hungary, Romania, Poland, Austria, Italy, Germany and more. The concert is to end with a patriotic salute to the United States.

Sponsored by the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce, the concerts take place each Friday in July.

On July 13, The Executives are to play. On July 20, the Auto City Banjos are scheduled, and on July 27, the Tailgate Ramblers are to perform.

"Having two letter carriers stopping along Sashabaw Road where the township line falls, and attempting to turn around, would not be safe, due to the extremely limited sight distances in the area."

Borrer and her neighbors have sent letters and copies of their petition to Independence Township Supervisor Frank Ronk, State Representative Mat J. Dunaskiss and U.S. Representative Robert Carr.

Though Borrer admits she's not hopeful the change will be prevented, she adamantly argues that it should be.

"When we bought 12 years ago, we bought in Clarkston," she says. "We're all on waterfront property; our taxes are sky high."

"It makes a big difference to the children," Borrer adds.

Clarkston Road parcel to remain rural

The Independence Township Board denied a resident's request to rezone a 10-acre parcel on the north side of Clarkston Road, just west of Sashabaw Road, June 19.

Clarkston resident Tim Warner asked the board to change his property's zoning designation from rural residential to suburban farm residential, but the board nixed the request on a vote of 6-0. Warner had plans of splitting his land into several lots and constructing a site condominium development.

The board acted in similar fashion to that of the planning commission, which voted down Warner's request on April 26, with a vote of 6-0 and one abstention.

The board members' reservations also echoed the sentiments of the planning commission nearly two months prior. Both entities said a dangerous precedent could be set regarding the splitting of properties for similar condominium projects if the request was approved.

Correction

A story in last week's Clarkston News about the Paterson-Anderson proposal should have said that a total of 239,667 signatures were needed by July 9, and 150,000 valid signatures had been collected as of June 22.

Low-interest loans available

Improving a home can seem out of financial reach for some homeowners, but the Oakland County Home Improvement Program is designed to help people obtain those improvements if they qualify.

The Oakland County Community Development offers income-qualified single-family homeowners zero and three percent interest loans for home repairs.

To qualify for a home improvement loan your gross household income (total income before taxes) must not exceed the income limit for your family size as indicated on the chart below.

1990 Income Limits Family Size	Maximum Gross Income
1	$23,150
2	26,450
3	29,750
4	33,050
5	35,100
6	37,200
7	39,000
8	41,300

Loan amounts up to $7,000 are available for such repairs as roofs, plumbing, kitchens, electrical, sewer systems, septic, wells bathrooms, siding and furnaces.

In the program, repairs to protect the health and safety of the family take priority. All work must be completed by a licensed residential builder. You may select your own builder or choose from the county's list of prequalified contractors.

Community Development technicians will assist the homeowner in each step of the home improvement process by:

- Help in preparing a loan application.
- Conferring with you about the type of work to be done.
- Requesting contractor bids.
- Help in selecting a contractor.
- Inspecting the work during construction and upon completion to assure your satisfaction.

Disposing oil, batteries and harmful home waste

BY LISA NIXON
Clarkston News Special Writer

Tin cans and paper are easy to recycle, but hazardous household waste may be difficult to dispose, according to area environmental officials.

"Oakland County doesn't really offer that service," said Ted Pinko, senior sanitarian of the Michigan Environmental Health Department.

"There is no set program," Pinko said, adding, "I believe they are working on something."

"More oil ended up on the ground in Michigan than the Exxon spill."

Kevin Mills, staff attorney and ground water protection director of East Michigan Environmental Action Council, agrees with Pinko.

"We have no county facility at all," Mills said.

The county is "unwilling to take responsibility for that," he said.

"We feel it is important for them to do that, but because of liability, the county won't take it on, and we can't afford to take it on," Mills explained.

"People ought to be encouraging their county government to take on responsibility of hazardous waste recycling and disposal," Mills said.

At present, recycling of oil, batteries and other hazardous household wastes is up to the local community and the public themselves.

Oil is the worst household waste

Neil Wallace, member of Independence Township Groundwater Leadership Committee, said oil is the worst of household hazardous waste.

"More oil ended up on the ground in Michigan than the Exxon spill," Wallace said.

A very small amount of oil can contaminate a lot of water, he said.

"A lot of people dump it in their backyard and think it is gone," he said, explaining that it is actually heading for the water table.

Mills said it's important for the public to realize that oil can be a ground water contaminant.

"We called over 300 households in Independence Township. Of those who realized household waste can contaminate, most realized oil was one major one," Mills said.

Dumping oil on the ground or throwing it out with the garbage is wrong, Mills said.

More than 100 service stations will accept used oil, he added.

In the Clarkston area, Roy Brothers Standard Service, 6480 Sashabaw Rd., Independence Township, and Morgan's Service, 28 S. Main, Clarkston, each accept used oil free of charge.

Mills said that most oil is disposed of properly, and most of it is refined.

Out of every gallon of used oil, two and a half quarts of usable oil can be saved, Wallace said. The difference is sludge, dirt and metal that get in oil.

Mills said the waste left from refined oil is disposed as hazardous waste, with higher disposal standards and regulations.

Dave Besterfeldt, marketing automotive products manager of Safety Kleen Corp., Illinois, the world's largest processor of hazardous waste oil, said much oil is refined into lubricating or motor oil.

"Anything left is sent to our cement kiln operations," he said.

"We are now getting involved with local municipalities for community collection days," Besterfeldt said.

The oil collected from these collection days is shipped to refineries in Ontario, Canada, he said. The closest cement kiln operation is in Clarksville, Mo.

The cement kiln operation is favored by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), Besterfeldt said.

The kiln is heated primarily by coal, but since it gets so hot the EPA permits secondary materials to be burned also.

The materials left from the refining process are blended to burn with the coal. If sediment or ash is left, it gets encapsulated in a powder form in the cement.

"The cement kiln operations are environmentally most favored operations," Besterfeldt said.

Battery disposal and recycling

Another problem waste is batteries, which can also contaminate groundwater.

Automobile batteries account for more than two-thirds of the lead in Michigan's waste stream, according to Clean Water Action News' spring 1990 issue.

Michigan Gov. Jim Blanchard recently signed into law two bills aimed at solving the state's solid waste crisis.

The new law requires mandatory automobile battery recycling, according to Clean Water Action.

Mills said a deposit will be put on batteries for a short time.

"The same bill will study the issue of deposit on other types of batteries," Mills said. Until a law is passed for other battery types, "we are dependent on the knowledge of the public," Mills said.

Besterfeldt said there is a problem with battery disposal, but now many major companies collect old batteries.

Batteries can be recycled, said Jim Bedford, environmental health ombudsman of Michigan State Health Department.

"The metal parts in batteries are reclaimed. They are used to make new batteries," Bedford said.

The closest drop-off center for batteries is the Waterford Recycling Center at M-59 and Crescent Lk. Rd., Waterford Township. The phone number there is 674-3111.

Other hazardous household waste

As for other hazardous household waste, there is no facility for recycling. The only solution, Mills said, is to ask if any non-toxic alternative is available.

Hazardous household wastes are anything that is ignitable, reactive, corrosive or toxic, such as paint strippers, gasoline, oven cleaners, drain openers and pesticides.

Those who would like a list of household hazardous waste collection sites and days scheduled around the state may call the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Waste Management Division, at (517) 373-2730.

Clarkston cityhood may bring township lawsuit

BY CURT MCALLISTER

Supervisor Frank Ronk attempted to discuss the possibility of a township-levied lawsuit against the Michigan Boundary Commission June 19, but it was quickly tabled by the board.

In February, the Boundary Commission granted the

Supervisor Frank Ronk

Village of Clarkston permission to proceed with cityhood. Nearly 66 percent of the village's registered voters turned out on May 21 to approve the proposal.

After Ronk stated his intentions June 19, several board suggested that the topic be tabled until more information could be gathered by Ronk and township attorney

Two injured in I-75 rollover

Two people were hurt in a rollover accident on southbound I-75, near M-15, Independence Township, June 29.

About 1:30 p.m. Friday, a three-passenger automobile lost control on southbound I-75 and tumbled off the highway. The driver, Welton Mitchell Jr., 34, of Flint, was uninjured, but his passengers were hurt after they were ejected from the vehicle.

Irma Baker, 43, was transported to Pontiac General Hospital for treatment. According to Chris Carnes, of the hospital's marketing department, Baker was in fair condition Monday.

Information is unavailable where the other passenger, Winfred Darius, was taken for treatment.

Police records indicate that none of the occupants was wearing a seat belt at the time of the accident.

Gerald Fisher.

The board then voted 5-1 to table discussion. Voting yes were Ronk, Treasurer John Lutz, Clerk Joan McCrary and trustees Daniel Travis and Mel Vaara.

Trustee Frank Millard cast the lone no vote and said he'd like to see the subject "put to a head as soon as possible."

Prior to the motion to table, Ronk explained to the board why he felt the state Boundary Commission matter should be discussed.

"I feel we need to look into our territorial rights due to the Village of Clarkston's attempts to attain a cityhood designation," Ronk said. "My main concern is how we will be protected as a chartered township.

"I have nothing against the village's bid for cityhood, but we must make sure that we are protected in all instances," Ronk said.

He also said Independence Township had an option of filing for cityhood, but he was personally opposed to the move.

According to Clerk Joan McCrary, some board members think the Boundary Commission made an inappropriate decision in granting Clarkston the right to apply for cityhood. A township-induced lawsuit would zero in on the charter township act, which is supposed to protect municipalities from annexation.

Road maintenance in site condos under study

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The township is attempting to set a precedent concerning the sudden whirlwind of site condominium projects that are taking the area and state by storm.

Site condominium projects consist of detached dwellings and look like subdivisions. However, the roads and land between and around the units are owned by a "condominium association" instead of the homeowner.

A condominium association is comprised of homeowners in the development.

On June 28, the Independence Township Planning Commission recommended the approval of an amendment to the township's ordinance concerning site condominiums.

If approved by the township board, the amendment would make all landowners abutting public roads near a site condominium project pay for the road maintenance incurred by the added development.

The amendment has been proposed to make site condominium projects similar to plats in accordance to road maintenance restrictions.

The commission voted 5-0 to recommend approval of the ordinance change to the township board, which has the final say in ordinance changes. Commission members Daniel Travis and Steve Secatch absent from the meeting.

According to the amendment, if the governmental body in charge of the roads determines improvements are necessary, then the condominium association will pay for the costs. If the association doesn't have the money, then a special assessment district will be established by the township.

Chairperson Brent Bair said the amendment has been proposed to make site condominium projects similar to plats in accordance to road maintenance restrictions.

Clarkston resident Mike Clark, who is currently developing three such projects in the township, objected to the proposal. He said the amendment would make it difficult for developers to sell if they have to pave all roads adjacent to their sites.

Suicide machine could set dangerous precedent

BY BARBARA LISTING

Families touched by suicide need compassion, understanding, and support as they work through their grief.

The family of Janet Adkins is no exception.

Mrs. Adkins traveled to Michigan to commit suicide with the assistance of Dr. Jack Kevorkian and his suicide machine on June 4, 1990, less than a year after she was told she had Alzheimer's disease.

Her husband and children can expect to walk through the same difficult valley of mourning other families of suicide victims have traveled.

However, in addition to those immediately affected, Mrs. Adkin's death has touched our entire nation.

As much as we'd like to believe in absolute personal autonomy, because we're social beings our decisions affect the society in which we live.

"What we do has an effect on people in close proximity to us as well as on our society," says psychologist Terry Wall of M.K. Sugg Associates in Southfield, MI.

"The social scientist has a tendency to see each individual in a social vacuum," Wall says. "The fact of the matter is we do not live in a social vacuum."

Wall cautions against embracing suicide as a solution to illness. He points out, "Once you open the door to something like this, we become desensitized to the moral and emotional trauma of crossing these kinds of psychological boundaries both as a society and as individuals."

Societal acceptance of a so-called "right-to-die" has mental health professionals concerned about the message this sends to teenagers. Will the rising teenage suicide rates only accelerate as troubled teens follow the example of adults seeking a solution to their problems through suicide?

Phyllis Richman, executive director of a New Jersey center for children in crisis, has stated that "reading about a suicide could easily provoke a response that is self-destructive in those who may have been expressing severe depression."

But in addition to possible societal consequences of Mrs. Adkins death by suicide, Wall expresses concern about whether or not her best interests were served. He notes that depression following a revelation of serious illness is normal.

"Coming to grips with your own mortality is a real emotional trauma. It's only natural that it's depressing."

We'll never know whether Mrs. Adkins's suicidal wishes were permanent or temporary. Dr. Kevorkian was unqualified to judge her mental competency.

By his own admission, Kevorkian, a retired pathologist, made no formal diagnosis of Adkin's disease.

He had no psychological training and was not a specialist in geriatric diseases.

Many experts in these fields have expressed concern about his ability to properly assess her situation. Because Alzheimer's disease can be diagnosed only by eliminating other possibilities, the percentage of diagnostic error is high. Some doctors claim that as many as thirty percent of Alzheimer's diagnosis are wrong.

But perhaps the most frightening aspect of Adkin's death was the willingness of some to accept it on the basis of cost effectiveness.

The specter of rising health care costs permeates the so-called "right-to-die" debate.

One newspaper wondered how much money society can afford to "lavish on the terminally ill in their last days while so many younger lives are ignored by the nation's medical system.

The problem of younger people being ignored by the nation's medical system is a real one. But surely the solution must not be to kill off the elderly, the sick, and the handicapped.

For those who are reluctant to surrender their lives to the more physically perfect among us, will a new "right" to pro-suicide counseling be discovered in the constitution?

Dr. Kevorkian has not hidden his agenda. He wants to set up suicide clinics where people can present themselves for assisted suicides. The door is quickly opening to suicide on demand.

Unless we swiftly close it, who knows where we will be by the year 2000.

Nary Senander, of the Internationally Anti-Euthanasia Task Force, pointed out, "Acceptance of death by design will undermine, not expand, individual freedom."

"The sick, disabled, despairing or dying will be victimized by the promise of an easy death. We owe them more than a 'Final Solution'."

We owe them a chance at life, not the choice of assisted suicide. Anything less is "survival of the fittest" in its most gruesome form.

Barbara Listing is president of Right to Life of Michigan.

Letters to the Editor

He has integrity

The purpose of this letter is to urge you to vote for Tom Middleton for state representative in the 61st district. This is the seat being vacated by Mat Dunaskiss.

Tom has many qualifications that are important for a person to represent this district. He has lived here all his life. He knows the people and understands their concerns. He has had much experience in civic affairs, serving on many local, state and national boards. He has demonstrated not only leadership but integrity.

If you have any questions or input give Tom a call. You will find out how friendly and responsive he is.

Please join me in voting for Tom Middleton in the GOP primary on Aug. 7.

right community action agency can help.

The Oakland Livingston Human Service (OLHSA) acted as an advocated for me when, even after high school, and one and a half years training for TV repair and radio control, I couldn't get a job. I'm in a wheelchair, and the job sites just didn't have the provisions for the handicapped.

About two months ago, Mrs. Holmes, from Williams Lake School told me about a work program sponsored by OLHSA. She gave my name and phone number to a case worker, who in turn called and told me about a work program called Handicapped Adult Preschool Education Network (HAPEN). I took a couple of weeks of training-learning to interact with children and applied for a job. Two weeks later I was hired.

Currently I am working at Temple Beth, a Head Start program site in Pontiac. I assist teachers with 3- to 5-year-old children, and I love it!

HAPEN opened up a new world for me. Thanks OLHSA.

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

I seldom bet on something I know as fact. Too often my known facts turn out to be a third hole rumor, or a "fact" given me by Pete Kalohn who follows up all his statement with, "Trust me!"

So, I know for a fact camel's hair brushes are made from camel's hair. Why else would they be called camel's hair brushes?

Now then, if you were to rebut, "Are you sure?," I say, "No, not if you're questioning me."

And, I'd look it up later. In Tom Burnam's "Dictionary of Misinformation" I'd find camel's hair brushes were never made from camel's hair, but usually from the tails of squirrels.

Tom goes on to say fine fabrics are woven from the 2-humped, Bactrian camel. Hair from the 1-hump, Arabian camel is too short to make fine fabrics.

I'd not only find out I was wrong about the camel's hair brushes, but I'd learn more than I wanted to from Tom's dictionary.

Just as I knew camel's hair brushes were made from camel's hair, I know sardine is a living fish. I'm not sure what part of the country they thrive in, but probably the northwest. Are you sure, I'm asked?

Well, no, I answer. Burnam says there is no living fish named sardine. A sardine is anything you get out of a sardine can, since the term applies to any of several small fish which are suitable for preserving, commonly young herring or pilchard.

Webster says herring come from the north Atlantic and north Pacific and pilchard from Europe, so I'd be wrong on all counts.

Now you see why I don't back up my statements with heavy bets.

One other common belief you should not bet on. Don't bet Abraham Lincoln wrote his Gettysburg address on the back of an envelope on a train going to make that famous speech.

Burnam says Lincoln started working on that November 19, 1863 speech November 8. He wrote and rewrote at least five drafts, and it was on regular White House paper.

Burnam doesn't take up the argument of the world being round or flat or square. And if you ask me, I'm not sure.

By the way, the above symbol is a jim dash, but don't question me on it.

Have a booming, happy Fourth of July, and remember what the holiday is all about.

Case of misshapen identity

Jim Fitzgerald

It was an especially proud moment. "Barbara-Rose Collins belonged to Mensa, which means she's smarter than almost everybody," I told my wife. "We live in the same apartment building she does, she represents us on the City Council, and she's willing to represent us in Congress. We are very lucky."

"If she's so smart, how come she doesn't know how to drive?" my wife retorted. "How come she always has a chauffeur waiting for her out in front? How many people in the 13th Congressional District have chauffeurs waiting for them?"

My wife is probably envious. Collins is transported in a city car, and we have to make monthly payments on our car. Collins has a big identification sign in her car window that allows her to park free forever at meters, and we're always getting ticketed for parking two minutes overtime.

"Don't be unfair. Council members and many other city officials volunteer to drive city cars just so there'll be room on city buses for all the voters. And you'll notice that Barbara-Rose's chauffeur doesn't wear a uniform, so maybe he's also her secretary," I said. "And I'm sure she knows how to drive, but when you can think on the super-high Mensa level, it makes good sense to let someone else steer so you can spend your time in the backseat thinking hard about how much money you're saving on car payments and parking meters."

Previously I had most admired Collins for her activism on behalf of the rights of Mayor Coleman Young. Earlier this year, referring to snoopy federal agents, Collins said: "They have dogged the man (Young) and he can't do his job, because he's under siege. If he was a dog, the animal-rights people would be protesting the way he's been treated and hounded."

It is comforting to know that at least one council member realizes this city would be better off if the mayor were on a leash.

But my regard for Collins really skyrocketed when I read the June 6 issue of the Michigan Chronicle. In an interview pertaining to her candidacy for Congress, Collins revealed she was a member of Mensa during the 1960s. Wow! To get into Mensa, you have to score in the top 2 percent of the population on an IQ test. There are only 80,000 members in the whole world.

Collins even told the Chronicle she was conversant with Einstein's Theory of Relativity and a personal friend of Isaac Asimov, noted scientist and author. I could hardly wait until the next time I ran into Barbara-Rose on our apartment elevator. We usually talk about our grandchildren, but now I was prepared to ask her some of the deep universal questions that have always bewildered me, such as: According to the law of gravity, how come I pushed the up button but this elevator is going down?

However, before I could take advantage of my close proximity to such extreme intelligence, along came the snoopy Detroit News last week, quoting local and national Mensa officials as saying Collins was never a member. Also, Asimov said he didn't know her.

"I didn't lie," Collins told the News. "I believed I was a member. If I wasn't a member, then I was misled. I should have never been invited to meetings... I have sat down and argued the universe with Isaac Asimov at a science fiction convention in Cleveland."

Certainly. Someone probably misled Collins into believing she took an IQ test and scored in the top 2 percent of the population. And Asimov is probably sore because he lost the argument. It could happen to anyone.

The next time we meet, I still plan to ask Collins to explain her theory on the relatively of animal rights to besieged mayors. But I'm not sure I'll vote for her for Congress. I just heard that one of the seven other 13th District candidates might be more qualified.

I heard Tom Barrow was a Rhodes scholar. Or at least he went to Britain and drove by Oxford University on the way to see his mother, Queen Elizabeth. That's good enough for me.

"A stitch in time saves nine"
 "Every cloud has a silver lining"
 "When in doubt, follow directions"
 A whole batch of cliches were proven true during my ride to work recently. After following the same course for 17 months, I got lost. I didn't do this all by myself, mind you. I had detour signs to help me. White Lake Road was closed, the first sign said. "OK," I said to myself. "I'll just turn around and find a route on Andersonville Road." Andersonville Road to the west heads out of the way to Springfield Township, so I turned east. Another detour sign pops up to notify motorists that Andersonville Road is closed. Furious. How in the world do they expect us to go to get into Clarkston? Ignoring the ROAD CLOSED sign, I traveled Andersonville a short distance to learn they were not putting us on. Andersonville was barricaded. "Fine," I said, to no one in particular. "I'll just take this dirt road heading north. Clement." Fifteen minutes and several miles of dirt road later, I emerged into civilization to discover myself back on Andersonville Road close to the Springfield Township line. Not only had I driven completely out of my way, I was again faced with crossing White Lake Road. Teeth tightly gritted, I drove along to find the proper detour the arrows indicated. Stich in time saves nine, I thought backtracking and preparing to circle the entire Maceday Lake. I reminisced to my long drive on Clement. That drive was a cloud with a silver lining if their ever was one.

If you have to be lost, let it be on Clement. Thick undeveloped woods line one of the smoothest unpaved streets I've seen. I would never have known this beautiful area existed had I not been lost. I've had this experience before in Independence Township. I remember my surprise when driving the Dark Lake area, and seeing that neighborhood loom where I hadn't known it existed. Whipple Shores Lake is another area I discovered recently. Driving now around Maceday Lake, the beauty of directions occupied my thoughts. "When in doubt follow directions," I cursed to myself. An hour-and-a-half after leaving home, I finally arrived safely onto Dixie Highway. The office was now just moments away. Ugh! Construction! But that's another column.

Legislation for senior citizens

July not only brings Independence Day, but also the 25th anniversary of the Older Americans Act. This legislation, known as the elderly bill of rights, established the federal Administration on Aging to serve as the federal focal point and source of advocacy for older adults.

It also established 57 state units on aging including the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging to plan, coordinate and develop community level opportunities and services to help older adults remain as active and contributing members of their communities.

In celebration of this important legislation and to meet challenges of the future, the Administration on Aging has issued the Older Americans Act—Goals for 1990 and Beyond.

The goals encompass eight areas of activities currently being addressed by Michigan's State Plan on Aging and include:

■ Stimulating the growth of services and resources for older persons by promoting public-private sector partnerships.

■ Recognizing older persons as a valuable resource to themselves, their communities and the nation.

■ Strengthening the family and the interdependence of the generations.

■ Promoting preventive in-home and community based service systems that are available, accessible, and acceptable to older persons.

■ Targeting resources and programs to the needs of the most vulnerable older persons.

■ Developing the trained manpower needed to care for older persons at home, in the community and in nursing homes.

■ Promoting public information and technical assistance to ensure the public, voluntary, and private sector organizations respond to the resources and needs of the increasing number of older Americans in the first decades of the 21st century.

The Office of Services to the Aging joins with the Administration on Aging in its intent to respond substantively and relevantly to the needs of older persons and to the aging network which was established to ensure that their needs are met.

We, too, celebrate!

Dear Mr. Bush

The President of the United States
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dr. Mr. Bush and Editor:

Again I'd like to thank you for your open communication with me. You have promptly replied to all of my letters.

Also I'd like to thank you again for repealing the Medicare/Catastrophic Act. You are, indeed, a strong man of principle.

Now I am asking you to please re-consider allowing Congress to increase taxes and to stop their reckless spending.

There are other solutions in solving the budget deficit without any tax increases:

1. Freeze spending at current levels. Leading economists report Congress could balance the federal deficit in 2 years if they froze spending.

2. Apply all of the peace dividend towards the deficit budget.

3. Review the Grace Commission report again and enforce it. The General Accounting Office reports the waste in the Federal budget nearly equals the federal budget deficit.

4. Allow the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act to go into force. By doing so all waste and pork, in each department, would be eliminated.

Now that you have these facts brought to your attention, we Americans expect you to address Congress with these alternatives as we Americans cannot and will not accept any more taxes.

Raising taxes is not the answer. It is bad for the economy and could throw us into a depression.

We are 100% behind you with your promise "read my lips, no new taxes" and expect you to keep your promise and your credibility would not be damaged.

Respectfully yours,
Virginia Piluras, Oxford

Now an urgent request to all those opposing any additional taxes. Write or call President Bush at: 1-(202) 456-7639 (23 cents a minute, less than a postage stamp.)

Tell him you expect him to keep his promise, "read my lips, no new taxes," or write to: The President of the United States, The White House, Washington, D.C. 20500.

We the American taxpayers can and will make a difference jbut you must be heard.

Thank you for your cooperation!

Sashabaw floral center nets first approval

The proposed floral center Carol's Flowers received conceptual site plan approval from the Independence Township Planning Commission June 28.

The site is slated for the east side of Sashabaw Road, south of Maybee Road. A vacant home occupies the residence, and petitioner Carol Cantor plans to refurbish it for an office.

Cantor's plan was tabled in May, but planners voted 5-0 to approve it last week. Members Daniel Travis and Steve Secatch were absent.

Commission members voiced approval with the petitioner's changes to the plan. The new proposal includes two smaller greenhouses, a bike path at the front of the property, parking in the rear of the building and nearly a 45 percent reduction of asphalt.

One more approval is necessary before construction can begin. Cantor hopes to begin construction as soon as possible in order to be ready for the 1991 spring season.

Tips for setting watering priorities in hot weather

Chances are that the extremely dry conditions that prevailed the last two summers in much of Michigan won't make a comeback this year. But some dry spells usually occur even in a normal year and landscape plants will need irrigation.

If your ability to water is limited, you need to set watering priorities. Dave Roberts, a plant pathologist in the Michigan State University Plant Diagnostic Clinic, offers these suggestions:

■ Priority One: Newly planted trees, shrubs and lawns. Because these plants haven't established extensive root systems, they cannot tolerate long periods of dry weather.

They depend on surface water for survival, and if rain doesn't supply the needed moisture, you must irrigate to keep them alive.

Another reason or giving them top priority is the cost of replacing them.

■ Priority Two: Young trees and shrubs. Trees and shrubs planted within the past two or three years will not have the established root systems of older plants and so need more water, though not as much as newly planted ornamentals.

When drought is severe, plantings up to five or six years of age may need supplemental water.

■ Priority Three: Flowers, gardens and older plants. Though these plants may show the effects of dry weather more dramatically than some others, the relatively low cost of establishing gardens and flowers relegates them to this slot on the priority list.

Mulch to help retain soil moisture and reduce the need for irrigation. Older plants vary in their ability to tolerate drought.

Birch and dogwood, for instance, are very susceptible to drought and require more watering than more drought-resistant species such as oaks, hickory, honeylocust Norway maple and white and green ash.

■ Priority Four: Established lawns. Established turfgrass survives long dry spells by going dormant. Lawns should either not be watered and allowed to go dormant or be watered regularly (every two to three days).

Irregular watering (once a week, for instance) may cause lawns to repeatedly enter dormance and then resume growth only to go dormant again. This weakens the plants and may lead to disease, insect or weed problems.

How you water can significantly affect the ability of the plants to survive, Roberts points out.

Watering lawns at night, for instance, can promote the development of turfgrass diseases. Watering early in the day is better because the grass foliage can dry off quickly.

Deep watering is better than shallow sprinkling because deep watering promotes the development of deep roots that better enable the plants to tolerate drought.

The best method to water shrubs and small trees is not with a lawn sprinkler but with a trickle or gentle stream of water from a hose placed at the base of the plant.

Moisten the soil to a depth of six to eight inches to promote deep root development. Keep water off the foliage as much as possible.

Water large trees by allowing the hose to run water at various locations around the dripline (the ends of branches) for several hours.

The rule of thumb for watering landscape plants is to apply the equivalent of an inch of water in every week without rain.

Plants on sandy soils and plants exposed to a combination of inadequate rain, high temperatures and drying winds may need more.

Plants on heavy clay soils may need their inch or more applied in more than one watering session because water moves so slowly into those soils.

Applying the entire amount in one short irrigation session may result in most of it running off.

Road improvements hampered by lack of money

The following was written in response to a resident's request to pave and improve Whipple Lake Road, Pine Knob Road and Eston Road in Independence Township.

BY BRENT BAIR

Your letter to Mr. Frank Ronk, supervisor of Independence Township, dated May 8, 1990, has been forwarded to me for a reply.

As deputy managing director of the Road Commission for Oakland County, I appreciate your concern over the condition of some of the gravel roads in Independence Township. In addition, I can identify with your comments to an even greater extent because I, too, am a resident of Independence Township.

This dual role has provided me the opportunity to see both sides of this issue. The bottom line, unfortunately, is that Mr. Ronk is correct in his response that there simply are not funds available to pave many roads throughout Oakland County, which, like those you mention, are difficult to maintain and a constant source of requests for paving. I will attempt to expand on Mr. Ronk's explanation.

The frustration reflected in your comment that you, and hundreds of other residents in the area, all pay taxes for roads and yet road funds are not available, is a sentiment we hear frequently at the Road Commission. This comment, however, may be based on a misunderstanding.

It is important to understand that the property taxes that you and other residents pay to the county cannot, by state law, be used to improve roads in this or any other county in the State of Michigan without a vote of the people. The Road Commission is not part of Oakland County government, and we receive no property tax revenues from Oakland County for road improvements.

The vast majority of the revenues that the Road Commission receives for road improvements comes from gas and weight taxes which you "pay" each time you buy gasoline or register your vehicle. The fuel tax rate in Michigan has remained at 15 cents per gallon since 1984. Since that time, inflation has increased the cost of doing business, and new demands have been placed on us.

But even more significant has been the impact of more fuel efficient vehicles. As cars get more miles per gallon, less fuel is consumed per mile. This means that drivers are paying less in road use fees per mile. The result of all of these things — inflation, higher demand and greater fuel efficiency — is that we have fewer revenues available to do a bigger job.

The total estimated cost of road improvement needs for roads under our jurisdiction now exceeds $1 billion! Community officials identified more than 155 miles of gravel roads that require paving at a total estimated cost of $133.2 million (over $850,000 per mile).

Thus, the Road Commission finds itself in the unenviable position of being responsible for the maintenance and improvement of the largest county road network in the State of Michigan, and with increasingly inadequate funding to do the job.

So what can be done about this situation? The Road Commission for Oakland County has been at the forefront of the effort to acquire adequate funding for road improvements at the national, state, county and local levels. As active participants in the National Transportation 2020 Program, we have repeatedly made the case for the need for additional federal participation in the provision of safe and convenient roads at the local level.

We were the lead agency in the successful effort to develop a Transportation Economic Development Fund in the State of Michigan, which established additional funds for road improvements in Oakland County and throughout the state. We are currently working with others on a new statewide transportation funding package.

We are now engaged in a conversation with the Oakland County Board of Commissioners, in which we have repeatedly voiced exactly the sentiments that you are expressing. Oakland County has been experiencing an economic boom. This growth has been good for the economy and has generated a tremendous increase in property tax and income tax revenues for Oakland County government. It has also generated a dramatic increase in traffic. The demand for our services has skyrocketed, but the revenues needed to provide these services have not been directed back to the roads. We have asked the county to re-evaluate their spending priorities. We are asking that $10 million per year, or about 3 percent of the county's annual expenditures, be dedicated for roads. This amount represents a 10-fold increase in past road expenditures.

At the local level, we are taking action on several fronts. We have been pursuing the establishment of a local user fee on motor vehicle fuels; it is our belief that this sort of pay-as-you-go user fee is the most equitable method of financing road improvements.

We are also pursuing legislation that would allow local units of government to assess impact fees on developers. In addition, we have recently established a Task Force whose sole charge is to develop a strategy to improve the condition of gravel roads.

In summary, let me state again that I agree that many roads in Independence Township and throughout Oakland County require paving or other improvements to accommodate increasing traffic. As part of our ongoing strategic planning process I have participated in meetings with township supervisors, city and village managers, and other elected officials and citizens throughout Oakland County with the aim of providing each municipality with the services they most require.

Thus, we are well aware of the economic growth that is occurring and the increasing distress and frustration that is resulting from the lack of sufficient funds to make necessary road improvements.

As a resident of Independence Township, I drive the same roads you do, and I experience the same frustration and inconvenience.

As deputy managing director of the Road Commission for Oakland County, one of my primary objectives is to continue to work for increasing the available funding to provide these necessary road improvements.

I agree with your assessment that "if we want to continue with quality development... it (is) important that the roads be improved."

Unfortunately, unless additional funding is identified, many roads that need improvements will not be improved, but we're looking at alternatives.

I know that this has been a rather lengthy explanation for what might seem to you a straight-forward request, but as you can see it is not a simple issue. I hope that my comments have clarified your understanding of why roads are sometimes not improved even though improvements appear to be needed.

Brent Bair is deputy managing director of the Road Commission for Oakland County. He resides in Independence Township and serves as chairman township planning commission.

Store produce may be riper with new discovery

You've seen pale-looking tomatoes in the grocery store.

If growers wait for that bright red color before shipping the tomatoes will be too-ripe and will begin to spoil.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has come up with a solution to provide ripe produce to grocery stores.

An inexpensive film has been developed by Myrna Nisperos-Carriedo, a chemist with the USDA's Agricultural Research Service. The film may be applied to fresh fruit and vegetables to retard ripening, she explains.

"The coating extends the shelf life of produce without harming quality, allowing it to be stored at 70 degrees, normal room temperature, she says.

Nisperos-Carriedo developed the coating from a base of commercially available oils or waxes and cellulose.

"We added an emulsifier that commercial blends don't have," she explains.

At the ARS Citrus and Subtropical Products Research Laboratory in Winter Haven, Fla., Nisperos-Carriedo found that a vegetable oil-emulsifier film worked successfully on tomatoes, oranges and carambolas.

After 14 days of storage, only 40 percent of the treated tomatoes began ripening, compared to almost 100 percent of tomatoes without the coating.

And she said, the coated tomatoes had better color. Without the emulsifier, she found that about 80 percent of the tomatoes treated with a commercially available coating started to ripen.

Nisperos-Carriedo made a surprising discovery when she tested the coating on mature pineapple oranges. After eight to 10 days in storage at 70 degrees, extracted juice contained up to 14 times more of the usual flavor volatiles.

"Volatile esters, those fragrant compounds formed by the chemical combination of an acid and an alcohol, give orange juice its 'fruity' taste," she said.

Fragile carambola — Florida-grown star fruit that turns brown and shows fungal growth after about three days' storage — held up well even after eight days of storage when treated with the emulsified film.

Milton T. Ouye, ARS national program leader for product losses, says fresh fruit and vegetables can suffer anywhere from 12 to 20 percent spoilage loss from farm gate to retail outlets.

Nisperos-Carriedo plans to patent the emulsified film.

Hearing on rezoning, ordinance amendment

The Independence Township Planning Commission has announced it will be discussing two items under the public hearing segment of the July 19 meeting.

These items include:

■ A request by Daniel Ellsworth to rezone a .92-acre parcel of land on the northwest corner of Waldon and Clintonville roads from local commercial (C-1) to single family residential (R1A).

■ The consideration of a text amendment to Ordinance #83, as amended, the Charter Township of Independence Zoning Ordinance for the purpose of creating a new Article XXVI, Planned Residential Development.

The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. and will be held in the Independence Township Board room, 90 North Main Street, Clarkston.

Gonzales named to Campaign Cabinet

D'Arcy Gonzales, of Clarkston, has been appointed as vice chairman of the government unit for this year's United Way of Oakland County Campaign Cabinet. Gonzales, second vice president-district manager at NBD Bank, N.A., has been a United Way volunteer since 1978, serving in various positions within NBD. He is a member of the Pontiac Lions Club and the Waterford Optimist Club. He graduated with a bachelor's degree from Sienna Heights College.

Breast Care Program receives accreditation

The American College of Radiologists, ACR, recently gave full accreditation to the breast care program at the Women's Health Center of Clarkston, 7650 Dixie Highway at Pine Ridge Place in Clarkston. The certification signifies that the mammography services at the Women's Health Center pass the highest review of the facility, personnel qualifications, image quality and dosage as set by a peer review committee of the ACR.

The Women's Health Center of Clarkston, under the direction of Susan Coleman, M.D., is accredited for three years.

"We are very pleased to receive this recognition because it verifies that our services meet the highest requirements in the country for mammography services," said Dr. Coleman.

"Not all sites, usually hospital, who apply for this standing are approved. The review process is very intensive."

The Breast Care Program at the Women's Health Center of Clarkston provides women with the following services: low dose film screen mammography, experienced registered mammographic technologists, and established board certified radiologists to interpret results.

Ultrasound of the breast (technology using sound waves) and examination, along with education are also available.

Shaw began volunteering for the United Way in 1969. Since 1983, he has served in various capacities on the Campaign Cabinet, including chairman of the Commercial and Major Firms Units.

Wisconsin. Shaw is a member of the Oakland County Chapter of the American Institute of Banking, of which he was president in 1970.

He is also affiliated with the Oakland County Chapter of Commerce and Exchange Club of Pontiac.

Income tax anniversary

Aug. 5 marks the anniversary of the federal income tax. Signed into law by Abraham Lincoln in 1862, the tax was levied as an emergency wartime measure only.

People with yearly incomes over $600 paid a 3 percent income tax, and those with yearly incomes over $5,000 paid 5 percent. The first tax went into effect Jan. 1, 1862, and was repealed in 1872.

An income tax again was enacted in 1894 by President Grover Cleveland. However, the Supreme Court declared it unconstitutional because it was a direct tax, levying a 2 percent income tax on all persons with yearly incomes over $4,000.

This forced income tax supporters to seek a constitutional amendment that would give Congress the right to impose income taxes without apportionment among the states. In 1913, the 16th Amendment was ratified by the states, and a new personal income tax was approved by Congress.

Today, federal income taxes consist of individual income taxes, taxes on corporations, social insurance or payroll taxes, excise taxes and customs duties.

Foes handicapped by pitcher's success

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Kathy Seidl has never seen California Angel Jim Abbott pitch, but plenty of Clarkston-area women softball players have seen Seidl on the mound.

Lefty Abbott may pitch before thousands at Anaheim Stadium and righthander Seidl pitches in front of a few dozen at Clintonwood Park, but the two have some things in common. Both are one-armed pitchers, and both pitch well enough to cause plenty of headaches to opposing batters.

One thing Seidl doesn't have in common with Abbott, she bats. Abbott plays in the American League where pitchers do not bat.

Seidl has had one arm since birth, but it hasn't stopped her from competing in sports, raising three children with her husband Phillip, being a certified medical assistant and taking classes to become a registered nurse.

Seidl's sister-in-law, Denise, an occupational therapist, will sometimes even call her up for advice while working with a handicapped patient.

Seidl, who graduated from Berkley High School in 1977 and now lives in Oxford, credits the support of her family, friends and teammates with helping to overcome her physical handicap.

She said competing in sports has helped her self-confidence, a self-confidence she learned early through the help of her brother, Rolland Sargent.

KATHY Seidl throws a pitch during a 6-5 victory June 27 by her Tom Lampheres team over Todd Enterprises at Clintonwood Park.

"I love it when the other coaches tell their girls (outfielders) to come in and then I hit it over their heads and snicker."

Kathy Seidl

When Seidl was in second grade, her brother placed her strategically on the lawn in front of their bay window. She would toss a ball to him and then be forced to quickly grab her glove before trying to catch the returning throw. Sometimes she would catch it, sometimes she would block the ball with her body. But after a week of playing fielder-goaltender in front of the window, she learned how to catch, remove her glove and throw in a smooth, quick motion.

She played in the Berkley Mom's Club from ages 8-20. She also played high school basketball and softball, where she pitched and played first base.

Now she pitches and has a 7-4 record for Tom Lampheres of the Women's Beta league in Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department softball. She also pitches for a league in Waterford.

Seidl said her mom "likes it" and her dad thinks she "plays too much," but she said both are proud of her.

Seidl said her teammates and opponents in the league have been supportive.

Because she is so quick with transferring her glove onto her hand after making a pitch, many first-time opponents immediately don't realize she has only one arm.

It's a little easier for the opposition to see that she bats one-handed. Sometimes new opponents will overcompensate for Seidl's handicap but they get burned in the process.

"I love it when the other coaches tell their girls (outfielders) to come in and then I hit it over their heads and snicker," said Seidl.

Seidl makes believers out of opponents and spectators.

"I usually hear something after a game, that I've 'pitched real well,' or something," said Seidl.

The comments haven't always been complimentary to Seidl. When she was young, she would hear some of those cruel comments children can make.

"I would tell anybody younger with a handicap to keep going. You're going to hear a lot of negative comments," said Seidl.

Seidl said she hopes her stick-to-itiveness "inspires anybody with a handicap to keep trying. A handicap is something to work around. You've got nothing to lose."

Seidl said sometimes her husband Phillip is called a "softball widow" since his wife and his 8-year-old daughter, Tonya, play league softball.

Monica and Aaron, 6-year-old twins, also are starting to play some softball in the backyard.

When Seidl used to diaper, pick up and hold the twins with her one hand, she said her teammates used to ask, "Is there anything you can't do?"

Jim Abbott may pitch against the Minnesota Twins, but pitcher Seidl is the pro when it comes to giving birth and raising twins.

Swinging from the heels

Don't worry, be happy, three-peat

Before the Detroit Pistons start their quest for a three-peat, they should do one thing.

Relax.

This incredible group of athletes has been playing for 17 of the last 20 1/2 months.

No wonder Chuck Daly is thinking about being a general manager or television broadcaster.

No wonder Bill Laimbeer, who played as well as ever during the finals, sometimes thinks about retiring.

But there is an easy solution to this problem.

Relax.

Barring major injuries to key players, my "Three-peat 5-Point Program" is guaranteed to help the Pistons bring a third straight NBA championship back to Auburn Hills.

1. Easy on the mash-potato circuit: First of all, the Pistons should avoid appearing at too many basketball camps, formal dinners, autograph sessions, etc. this summer. They should be home with their families watching baseball players sweat while drinking something cool near their pool or while swinging in a hammock.

Relax.

2. Don't exhibit in exhibitions: The entire Piston team should skip the exhibition season that begins in October. Let the rookies, walk-ons or former players (I heard Dave Bing has a nice shot and Bob Lanier can still plant his feet in the paint) play during the exhibition games in Toledo, Saginaw, Kalamazoo, or wherever. Some of the guys would probably even play for free (they'd still get to fly in Roundball I and get a few bucks for meal money).

Chuck Daly also is prohibited from the exhibition games, which is the deciding factor for him to return for the three-peat.

Relax.

3. Only 25 games till Christmas: Along with missing the unimportant exhibition games, the top eight Pistons and Chuck Daly should take an extended vacation during the beginning of the regular season, not playing until after the Christmas season.

So what if the starting five will be Scott Hastings, David Greenwood, Dave Bing, Bob Lanier and Gerald Henderson? That group of five could manage a few wins against the large number of expansion teams.

So what if the Pistons are 5-20 by Christmas? There's still nearly 60 games left, plenty of time to win back enough games to be five or 10 games above .500. And as everyone knows, 10, five or even being .500 is enough to qualify for the NBA play-offs.

So what if the shirt-and-tie crowd are suddenly no-shows at The Palace? There are plenty of people who would love to finally get a chance to see a live Piston game. There are plenty of people who would love to see Michael Jordan, Patrick Ewing or Larry Bird (or a revived Hall-of-Famer Dave Bing for that matter) even if the Pistons are losing.

Relax.

4. Happy New Year: After the top eight Pistons and Daly have unwrapped their Christmas presents while watching Hastings, Greenwood & company get beat by the Bulls on CBS, it's finally time to get serious about basketball. It's finally time for the Bulls, Lakers and Trailblazers to worry.

Sure, the Pistons are going to need a few weeks to get in shape, but the addition of Daly and the top eight players are enough to get them into the play-offs.

So the Pistons make the play-offs and don't have the home-court advantage. As the long play-offs begin, the Pistons find that the freshest legs in the NBA more than offset not having one extra game at home.

Relax.

5. Three-peat: The rest, the fresh legs, Daly at the helm, the experience, the drive to be the first team to do it, all add up to a third NBA championship. The Pistons celebrate for the third year in a row. Naturally, they give Lanier and Bing a cut of play-off bonus money. And, more importantly, the Pistons give Lanier and Bing championship rings.

Repeat, three-peat.
Relax.

Wolverine meets future Wolves

DEMETRIUS CALIP, a starting guard on the University of Michigan men's basketball team, was the guest speaker June 27 during the fifth annual Tim McCormick Basketball Camp. At one point, Calip asked the young players to raise their hands if they liked the Detroit Pistons. Nearly all of the players raised their hands. McCormick, who plays for the NBA's Houston Rockets, then asked the players who liked the Rockets to raise their hands. McCormick joked by saying those who didn't raise their hands for the Rockets would have to take extra laps at the end of the day.

Two wrestlers take firsts

Clarkston Wrestling Club members A.J. Grant and Franco Vega both grappled their way to first-place finishes at the AAU/USA Region 6 Wrestling Championships in Battle Creek June 15-17.

Vega won the 85-pound freestyle Midget Division and the 85-pound Greco-Roman Midget Division. Grant captured the 55-pound freestyle Midget Division.

Randy Gates was third in the 112-pound freestyle Midget Division, Christopher Haag took fourth place in the 50-pound freestyle Bantam Division and Jason Roughton placed fourth in the 138-pound Cadet Division.

Other Clarkston wrestlers competing in Battle Creek were Charlie Myer, Ricky Rank, Ryan McAleer, Andy Auten, Brandon Rank and Chad Auten.

Youth tennis lessons will be offered at the Mill Pond Park tennis courts in Davisburg starting July 16.

The Springfield Township Parks and Recreation Department sponsors the lessons which are for advanced and intermediate players aged 8-17.

The lessons run for two weeks, July 16 to July 27, Monday thru Friday, 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Maximum enrollment for each class is six students. Private lessons will also be arranged upon request.

Sara Harrod will be the instructor. The United States Tennis Association member has played for Oakland University and is currently training with a United States Tennis Professional Tennis Association Pro to become a pro herself. She plans to continue her training at Ferris State University to become certified.

A lesson in style

PRACTICING her serving is Stephanie Fahey. Fahey is among the 60 young players taking lessons sponsored by the Independence Parks and Recreation Department.

RENEE Shuburt follows through on a volley at the net while Instructor Dick Swartout watches for correct style. About 60 young players, 8-15 years old, will be receiving lessons through the first week of August at the Clintonwood Park courts Tuesdays and Thursdays. Swartout, who is the Clarkston High School varsity boys' tennis coach, has been giving the lessons for 20 years and said this year's turnout is the biggest ever. Helping with the instruction are Swartout's daughter, Kristy, and son, Marc, who both will be playing tennis next year for the Wolves. The summer lessons are sponsored by the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

THE OPEN LISTING

Valerie Phaup
Associate Broker

QUESTION: I understand that with an "open" listing, you can list property with many Realtors and pay only the one who sells it. Why don't more sellers use it?

ANSWER: As the name implies, the "open" listing is open to everyone. You agree to pay a Realtor's commission if, and only if, he sells the property. But you reserve the right to hire other Realtors or to sell the home yourself.

It sounds good on paper — but, frankly, it's the most ineffective arrangement to make you REALLY want to sell your home in a reasonable time and expect the Realtor's full expenditure of time and advertising money. At any juncture, he can lose the sale to another Realtor or to the owner himself.

AN OPEN LISTING SOUNDS GOOD on paper but can be ineffective if you want to sell the most advantageous way.

Recreation Roundup

CLINTONWOOD SUN VOLLEYBALL

There is some room available in the Tuesday night co-rec volleyball mixer on the sand courts at Clintonwood Park. This is a non-competitive volleyball program where players play on different teams each week to help them meet other people, get some exercise and give everyone an opportunity to win games.

The focus of this program is fun and exercise. The cost is $12 for eight weeks.

CLINTONWOOD PARK OPEN HOUSE

Clintonwood Park will be the site of an open house on Saturday, July 21, celebrating 15 years of fun and recreation.

There will be games and activities conducted all day for kids at the free family event, with sports equipment of all types available for use.

A disc jockey will play from noon to 5 p.m., followed by a free concert in the park at 7 p.m., featuring "The Family Portrait Band," which plays music from the 50's, 60's and some current top 40 hits.

Those attending should bring a picnic lunch. Later in the day, a beef roast with all the fixin's can be purchased for $5 per person.

All-Star softball games will also be played throughout the day, featuring teams from Clintonwood Park.

CLINTONWOOD PARK OPEN HOUSE AND ALUMNI SOFTBALL CELEBRATION

In celebration of 15 years of softball at Clintonwood Park, there will be an open house and Alumni Softball Celebration at the park on Saturday, July 21.

There will be activities going on all day for families, all-star softball games featuring current players and special exhibition games featuring past players. A disc jockey will be present to entertain during the evening. There is no cost to attend any of these events.

The Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department is looking for players who have played at the park so it can send them an invitation to the Alumni Softball Celebration.

TEEN CLUB

Anyone 12 to 18 can join the Teen Club. The first event will be a best-ball scramble on July 13 at 9 a.m. Golfers will tee off at the Spring Lake Country Club.

Foursomes will play in the scramble, which is open to teams of guys, girls or mixed. Anyone who isn't in a foursome ahead of time will be placed within one. Players must use their own clubs.

Cost for the event is $12, which includes all the pop and pizza you can eat after the scramble.

SAFETY TOWN

Parents can register their children for Safety Town, a program designed to teach safety to 4, 5, and 6 year olds. For two weeks, two hours a day, children will learn with actual practice aspects of safety...strangers, poisons, bicycles, railroad crossings, bus, playground, toys, water, traffic, child safety seats, animals and more. These important messages will be taught by teachers, police officers and fire fighters.

YOUTH SOCCER REGISTRATION

Boys and girls (6-19 years old) who would like to play soccer this fall or next spring must register. Those registering June 2 through July 13 may take advantage of a special rate. Those registering July 16 through July 31 will be charged a regular rate.

The season is tentatively scheduled to begin in late August for the under-8, under-10 and under-12 leagues. The travel league teams may begin as early as mid-August. To receive a flyer on youth soccer, call the rec department.

FOR MORE INFORMATION

Call 625-8223 or stop by the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston. The office is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Getting over it

JANET Swan and her Hammer Time teammate can't quite get the ball over the net as a Sandpiper opponent gets ready to block. Hammer Time did manage to win two of five games against the Sandpipers in co-rec volleyball action last Wednesday at Clintonwood Park. The three wins gave the Sandpipers a 10-5 record and Hammer Time dropped to 6-9.

Two golfers enter ace sweepstakes

Daniel Dropps and Gary D'Addezio, Clarkston residents, recently sank holes-in-ones and have entered the 30th Drambuie Rusty Nail Hole-In-One Sweepstakes.

Dropps hit his ace at the Red Run Golf Course and D'Addezio made his at the Bald Mountain Golf Course.

By entering the free sweepstakes, which is open to golfers sinking a hole-in-one from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, Dropps and D'Addezio are eligible to win the grand prize of a one-week trip for two in Scotland, a VIP tour of the Drambuie Liqueur Co. Ltd. and $1,000 cash.

Nearly 10,000 people score a hole-in-one each year and enter the sweepstakes.

Sashabaw parcel could become office

One and a half lots in the Drayton Heights subdivision received the first township rezoning approval from the Independence Township Planning Commission June 28.

The planning commission voted 5-0 to recommend approval to the township board, which has the final say in rezonings. Commission members Daniel Travis and Steve Secatch were absent.

Thomas and Judith Edwards of Independence Township requested rezoning the parcel from single-family residential to office. The Edwards' property is west of Sashabaw Road, just south of Maybee Road.

During the meeting, the couple said their property neighbored a laundromat, and they foresaw severe complications in trying to sell their property as "residential."

Township Planner Richard Carlisle told the commission that the request was reasonable because their site was already "master planned" for general commercial. A master plan shows long-term zoning plans for the township.

Should federal taxes be raised to help pay for the federal deficit?

"Read my lips ... no. They should cut back on the $900 toilet seats and $500 wrenches. If I ran my business that way, I'd be out of business."

"Of course, you always want to say 'no' to taxes, but the deficit should be addressed."

Tips can help finances in home improvements

Home improvements, whether small cosmetic changes or a remodeled kitchen or additional bath, can enhance the value of your home while at the same time satisfy the changing needs of your family.

According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, homeowners will probably spend more in the 1990s to remodel their present homes than to build or purchase new ones. With expenditures expected to top $114.4 billion next year, remodeling is the wave of the future.

And that wave is going to bring bigger bedrooms and bathrooms. The bedrooms will expand to include sitting rooms and large spaces for a television. The bathrooms will expand to include such amenities as raised tubs, his and her sinks, separate stall showers and Jacuzzis.

Assessing your needs

Before you decide to transform your home into a palace CPAs advise that you make a careful assessment of its current condition. It's wise to fix a leaky roof or drooping gutters before you embark on expensive remodeling jobs. While these repairs are usually not considered capital improvements and do not increase the cost basis of your home or decrease the taxable profits when you sell it, they may protect your investment and enhance the possibility of resale.

Do you really need a hot tub?

Before you make personal choice home improvements, consider the architectural character of your neighborhood. You may think that tennis courts or a hot tub would be a marvelous addition to your home. But would such additions be out of place with the other homes in your neighborhood?

CPAs suggest that you keep resale in mind when you plan to make unconventional improvements. Regardless of the improvements made to your property, the resale price will rarely be more than 15 percent above the prevailing value of homes in your neighborhood.

If you are concerned about recovery costs on your investment, consider these figures: the return on investment for a sunroom or greenhouse is around five to 20 percent, for skylights only zero to 30 percent.

However, the return on investment for an additional room is around 70 to 90 percent, and additional bathroom 75-100 percent, and a deck 65 to 75 percent. You may buck conformity, but when it comes to remodeling, it's not a bad idea to go with the mainstream.

Financing options

Once you've decided on a particular home improvement, how are you going to pay for it? There are several financing options to explore. CPAs suggest that you begin by shopping around at your local banks, savings institutions or credit unions to see which interest rates are lowest.

If you need more than $10,000, you may want to take out a home equity loan. The home equity loan is similar to a second mortgage in that it provides access to 70-80 percent of the appraised value of your home, less any amount standing on your first mortgage. However, these loans may involve application fees and closing costs.

One hidden benefit in home equity loans is deductible interest. Keep this in mind when exploring your options.

Finding the right contractor

If you are not the do-it-yourself type, or the remodeling job you have in mind is extensive, you'll want to hire a contractor. Choosing the right one can be tricky.

The Better Business Bureau reports that "home improvements rank first in nationwide inquiries and fourth in complaints."

Some common complaints about contractors are that they didn't finish the job on time, that they were sloppy in their style or that they demonstrated shoddy workmanship.

As is the case with financing, it's best to shop around for a good contractor. Use references to help you form an initial opinion of their work. If there were delays or times the contractor didn't show up, was the homeowner told in advance?

Above all, ask the references about the contractor's attention to detail and commitment to finishing the job. And, by all means, ask to look at completed jobs to see if you like the work.

Ground rules

Here are some, but by no means all the guidelines to follow in selecting a good contractor. First of all, the contractor should be bonded and licensed to operate as a home improvement specialist in your area.

He should provide a one-year guarantee or warranty for his work and materials. The contract must clearly specify the starting and ending dates and the schedule of payments. Of course, the contractor must be financially stable. Check with his suppliers as well as with the Better Business Bureau.

Your contractor should agree to obtain any necessary building permits and must understand what types of construction will meet local building codes and zoning laws. In addition, he or she must be insured to cover property and bodily damage and provide workers' compensation for all workers for the duration of the job.

Finally, it should be agreed upon in writing that any alterations to the initial plan will be made only with the homeowner's written permission and that the contractor will be responsible for removing all debris from the site.

Home sweet home

By remodeling your present home, you can add many creature comforts and even a touch of luxury. To help plan the financial implications of your home improvement, you may want to contact your local CPA for guidance.

The above information was provided by the Michigan Association of CPAs.

Caring

by Courtney Borrer

Caring is telling someone you're there
If they have something they want to share.

If there is someone you love
Tell them of that love.

If someone's special to you
Tell them, don't assume they knew.

If a person's friendship is something you treasure
Tell that person its been a pleasure

To know them since the very first day,

And tell them you'll be there every step of the way.

Don't take your friendships for granted

Friendship is one of the greatest bonds on the planet.

Courtney Borrer, 20, is a graduate of Clarkston High School.

Youth opens for Phyllis Diller

ROBYN BULLER, 11, will perform at Chesaning "Showboat" July 14 as an opening act for comedienne Phyllis Diller.

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Robyn Buller, 11, didn't strike out on her third attempt, but she wasn't hitting a baseball. She was hitting the correct notes to "On My Own" from "Les Miserables."

In her third year of auditioning, the Waterford Township resident was selected as an opening act for "Showboat" in Chesaning. On Saturday, July 14, the Pierce Junior High School student is to appear as an opening act for comedienne Phyllis Diller.

Diller appears at the "Showboat" July 9-14. Robyn will perform at 8 p.m. on July 14 as one of 36 amateur acts chosen to entertain the crowd before Diller appears. Each show has about 7,000 spectators.

According to Robyn, singing lessons at Clarkston Conservatory of Music helped her get the performance at the Showboat.

"I'm much improved since going there," Robyn said.

She's been taking lessons from Marium Bate at the Clarkston Conservatory for about one year, but she's been singing since she first started to talk, said her mother, Ruth Buller.

"She's always singing," Ruth said. "Anything she could find she'd use as a microphone."

When Robyn's mother discovered she could carry a tune she would sing songs to Robyn, encouraging her to finish the sentences of the tunes her mother was singing, said Ruth.

Robyn is not a stranger to performing. She's sung for charities and appeared in plays for the Pontiac Theatre IV.

When she's not singing she likes to play basketball and baseball.

Opinion of Bill Myers

Rules to follow

William A. Myers is a retired Lapeer County editor and investments manager from Boca Raton, Fla.

Second of two articles

16. After working and saving all your lifetime, don't let it be frittered away by poor estate planning. Talk with a lawyer who doesn't expect to outlive you; create a living trust, and save up to 90% of fees that would go to lawyers and executors under the usual probate system. In a million-dollar estate, we're talking of a $50,000 saving.

17. Keep flexible. Don't get married to bonds, or to stocks, or to real estate, or to commodities, or to business investments, or to life insurance annuities. Keep an open mind in these changing times. It's the net dollars you keep after taxes that count.

18. Don't let your personal tastes color your investing—for example, tobaccos, liquors, fast food restaurants, mobile homes, South Africa.

19. Look for companies that have pricing elasticity if they need it—such as IBM, and newspapers.

20. Look for a record of increasing dividends, and at same time note if book value is increasing.

21. Have a reason for buying a stock or bond. Write it down; then look at the note occasionally.

22. Don't depend on a broker making a periodic review of your findings unless you prod him.

23. And don't depend on your broker telling you when to sell a stock. All his customers are prospects for buying suggestions. If he has a sell recommendation, then he has to find a customer who owns the stock.

24. Don't own too many stocks. A full-time analyst can properly keep tabs on only 20 stocks.

25. Don't buy a mutual fund just before it goes ex-capital gains dividend. You'll pay tax on the capital gain, even if you take it in shares.

26. Keep your securities with a broker, if you can find one whose back room is efficient, and if you can find a broker who will aggressively get errors corrected. Bonds, especially, have pitfalls when you hold them yourself, such as proof of ownership, legal opinions, danger of theft, necessity to clip and deposit coupons.

27. Disregard original purchase price in making a decision to sell or to keep. It's worth only what today's market is. The cost is only a book entry.

28. Use today's market price in figuring return on stocks and bonds you hold. Holding a stock is only an alternative to using its dollar value to buy something else.

29. A vital statistic to watch: the margin of income to sales.

30. The wisdom of the ages is contained in this adage: THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS A FREE LUNCH.

Don't use microwave to heat baby bottle

With the arrival of a new bundle of joy and all of the accompanying responsibilities, the new Mom and Dad may find themselves overwhelmed at times.

"Many well intentioned friends and family may offer a variety of so called useful tips and some old time advice may have become outdated," says Sylvia Trieman, home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

Safe food habits need to be practiced immediately. Extreme cleanliness in preparing baby's formula is most important.

Listed below are some other suggestions to help the new mother and father:

■ Refrigerate all baby formula once made and keep only 48 hours.

■ When feeding, keep baby's formula out no more than one hour.

■ Do not warm baby's bottle or baby food in microwave as hot spots may form and can burn.

■ Restrictions of fat under the age of two is not recommended. Do not use low-fat milk as the child is growing and needs the vitamins to develop properly.

■ For toddlers, avoid or use with extreme caution the following foods: hot dog, grapes, nuts, popcorn. These foods are easy for child to choke on.

■ When heating baby food, remove only amount needed, serve and then discard. Once saliva is mixed into food, it is no longer good to use.

GM, tech center partnership bears fruit

Retraining employees for better job performance

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

On most days, Joe Jarjosa heads to the General Motors CPC North plant on Joslyn Avenue in Pontiac where he works.

This week, however, he can be found at the Oakland Technical Center - Northwest, where he's enrolled in a unique retraining program.

Dressed completely in white coveralls, he circles the damaged fender of a Corvette.

His task includes repairing six large holes in the fiberglass, and redesigning the shape and lines of the piece.

"The satisfaction in this is really great," Jarjosa says, excitedly. "When we went in and looked at the (finished fenders) it was amazing."

Typically, Jarjosa works as a metal model worker at G-M. The auto body experience he's receiving at the tech center had to be here or because their job classification had been done away with — but I haven't seen any of that," he adds.

Not all employees are anxious to change their skills, admits Catarino Nevarez, another employee in training at the tech center.

"Some don't feel it's necessary, but most of them do," Nevarez adds.

The program does offer something more, Irwin adds.

"It points out communication between business and industry and the educational system," he explains.

"It may open the eyes of some G-M people that live in the area to the advantages of what we have to offer."

"I want to continue to learn."

Catarino Nevarez

Nevarez is five years away from retirement at G-M, and, while he says he could get by without the training he chose to take it anyway.

"This is just for curiosity," Nevarez says. "I want to continue to learn."

In his department, sheet metal, welding and machine operations merged, and employees were instructed to train each other, Nevarez says.

Though the tech center offered training in work he's done during his 25 years at G-M, Nevarez took the course to understand the levels others were learning.

Irwin says employee flexibility is especially important under deadlines.

New car models are designed at the CPC North plant, and when it comes time to have the prototype ready, employees often work extra long hours to finish in time. It's helpful to call on employees in other areas to help, he says.

JOE JARJOSA restyles a Corvette fender in the two-week retraining program.

"I didn't know whether they'd be mad because they had to be here or because their job classification had been done away with — but I haven't seen any of that."

Instructor Scott Irwin

center is not only pleasurable, it's become important to his job.

"It's necessary to become very versatile," Jarjosa says.

In an effort to boost productivity, G-M is merging several employee functions. A welder, for instance, may be required to work in sheet metal in some instances, and vice-versa.

"What they're doing is taking away job classifications," says Scott Irwin, auto body instructor at the tech center. "When a welder is not welding, he can do machine work or help in other areas."

Three years ago, Irwin and other tech center officials met with General Motors to propose a retraining program. G-M described what needed to be taught and the tech center outlined how that might be accomplished.

Since then, about 55 workers have been trained in the tech center program. G-M pays the employee while he's enrolled in the two-week session and furnishes all supplies.

In the auto body class, employees learn metal finishing, grinding, the use of plastic fillers, fiberglass, priming, sanding and auto body tool identification, among other things.

The response has been positive, according to Irwin. "The employees have been very receptive and interested," Irwin says. "I'm not just flowering it up — I was apprehensive at first."

"I didn't know whether they'd be mad because they

Vacation homes provide escape but not from taxes

Your vacation home may be an escape from the daily pressures of city life, but it is not an escape from the rigors of tax law.

According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, if you rent your vacation home for part of the year, the rules on deducting expenses can be complicated and surprising.

In fact, just by extending or reducing the number of days that you spend at your vacation home, you can save — or lose — thousands of tax dollars.

How can you unravel the mystery of deducting a vacation home?

The answer is far from elementary. If you rent your vacation home for a portion of the year and at other times use it for personal enjoyment, calculating the amount of your allowable deductions can be a monumental task.

First, you have to determine whether your vacation home qualifies as a second residence or as a rental property.

Is your vacation home a second residence?

If you use your vacation home for personal purposes more than 14 days, or for more than 10 percent of the number of days the property is rented or whichever is greater, the home qualifies as a residence.

If the vacation home is the only house you own other than your primary residence, you still get the full property-tax and mortgage-interest deductions.

After subtracting these deductions, you can begin deducting rental expenses — but only up to the amount of rental income that the property generates.

One pleasant surprise is that you can carry excess deductions into succeeding years to offset any rental income attributed to that same property.

Another exception is that if you rent your property for 14 days or less, you are not required to report rental income.

Is your vacation home a rental property?

If your personal use of a vacation home is limited to 14 days or less than 10 percent of the time it is rented, whichever is greater, tax law will treat your vacation home as it does any other rental property.

Generally, you will be entitled to deduct some or all of the mortgage interest and property tax deductions, plus depreciation write-offs.

In addition, you can deduct a portion of such operating expenses as utilities, fire and liability insurance repairs, advertising costs and even maid service.

To determine the amount of your deductible expenses, you must first determine usage; next, you will have to allocate the rental expenses in proportion to the number of days you used the property for personal and rental purposes.

Note that what you see as a personal day and what the IRS sees as a personal day may be very different.

According to Uncle Sam, a personal day is any day that the property is used by you, a blood relative or co-owner or any person who rents the home at less than fair market value.

If you let a friend spend a few days at your vacation home in exchange for a few days at his Miami condo, these days are also considered personal use.

The IRS allows for days spent at your vacation home for the purposes of maintenance or repair.

These days are considered neither personal nor rental days.

Since an audit may require you to prove that certain days were in fact dedicated to repairs and not to pleasure, you should maintain supporting documents whenever possible.

Once you determine the number of personal and rental days, add them together to find the amount of total use.

To calculate the percentage of deductible operating expenses (such as maintenance, utilities and depreciation), simply multiply all expenses by the number of rental days, then divide that sum by the total use figure.

The result is your tax deductible amount — subject to the passive loss rules noted previously.

For example, if your operating expenses were $5,000 and you rented your property for 90 days and the total use figure came to 100, your deductible amount would be $4,500 ($5,000 times 90, divided by 100).

Some CPAs recommend that you figure the amount of deductible mortgage interest and property tax separately from operating expenses.

To do this, multiply the amount of mortgage interest and property tax by the fraction of rental days to the total days in the calendar year.

You should note, however, that while the Tax Court decisions have upheld this method of determining the amount of deductible mortgage interest and property taxes, the IRS does not.

To make matters more complicated, the tax law also dictates the order in which you deduct the expenses calculated by these two formulas: first, property taxes and mortgage interest, then operating expenses, and finally, depreciation.

In some cases, you may benefit more by extending your personal use so that you can claim the deductions allowed to a second home as opposed to those for a rental.

General rules on deducting passive losses

If you have a loss from renting property, that loss is considered passive and thus can be deducted only from passive income.

However, if you actively participate in renting your property, and your adjusted gross income (AGI) is $150,000 or less, you can deduct rental losses of up to $25,000 from your regular income.

If your AGI is over $100,000, the $25,000 active rental loss allowance is reduced by 50 cents for every dollar of income above $100,000.

Once your AGI exceeds $150,000, the allowance is totally phased out.

However, if you rented your home before the new law was enacted (October 22, 1986) and you exceed AGI limits, you can still deduct 10 percent in 1990, but none thereafter.

CPAs remind us that the various passive-income provisions are extremely complex and can have a substantially different impact depending on your personal circumstances.

Microwave Plus

Our beloved blueberries

Betty Wagner

Michigan blueberries, according to the Michigan Department of Agriculture, were first harvested by the Indians in 1615 along the shores of Lake Huron.

Now Michigan boasts both wild and cultivated blueberries.

Choose blueberries for a low-calories (82 per cup) snack or nutritious salad, loaded with vitamins A and C.

Bake them into muffins, pies, cobblers and coffee-cakes. Then try the following blueberry ice cream pie for a cool-down on a hot summer's day.

Michigan blueberry picking season runs from July 13 through September 15.

For information about where to pick them, call Michigan Department of Agriculture Center for Agriculture Innovation and Development or write for your free "Farm Market & U-Pick Directory", P.O. Box 30017, Lansing, Mich. 48909.

Great Lakes Blueberry Ice Cream

Serves 6-8

- 1 (9-inch) graham cracker pie shell, baked
- 1 1/2 cups blueberry honey sauce
- 1 quart vanilla ice cream, softened *

- 3 egg whites, room temperature
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 6 Tablespoons granulated sugar

1. To soften ice cream, place 1-quart vanilla ice cream in an 8-cup Pyrex measure or bowl. Microwave at 50 percent (medium) for 30 to 35 seconds. Carefully spread one-half the ice cream in a cooled graham cracker pie shell. Freeze until firm.

2. Mix remaining ice cream with blueberry honey sauce. If mixture is liquid because the sauce is hot, freeze for 60 minutes or until firm enough to spread over top of vanilla ice cream in pie shell. Return to freezer until firm.

3. Beat egg whites, vanilla and cream of tartar until soft peaks form. Gradually add six Tablespoons sugar, beating until stiff and glossy.

4. Cover entire surface of ice cream with meringue, sealing edges. Place pie plate on board and bake in a preheated 475 degree oven for two to three minutes, or until lightly browned. Serve at once.

NOTE: Prepare pie up to step #3. When ready to serve continue remaining steps.

* Use fat free ice cream instead of regular ice cream and save calories.

Graham Cracker Pie Shell

- 1 1/4 cups graham cracker crumbs
- 2 Tablespoons sugar
- 5 Tablespoons margarine, melted

1. Melt margarine at HIGH for 45 seconds. Mix crumbs, sugar and melted margarine. Press firmly up sides and on bottom of Pyrex pie plate.

2. Microwave at HIGH for 1 1/2 minutes. Cool

Blueberry honey sauce

- 2 cups fresh Michigan blueberries
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon freshly grated nutmeg
- 1/2 cup honey
- 1/2 stick margarine, cut into four pieces salt, optional

1. In a four-cup Pyrex measuring or bowl, combine blueberries, cinnamon, nutmeg, honey and margarine.

2. Microwave, covered, at HIGH for three minutes or until boiling. Then cook at HIGH for three more minutes, stirring after every minute. Set aside.

Pet of the Week

DOZER likes children and other pets, and would like to be the 'top dog' in your family.

Dozer isn't a Snoozer

Dozer doesn't look anything like his namesake. He's got lots of energy.

He weighs about 57 pounds and is listed as being a Brittany Spaniel mix, but he resembles a large size "Benji."

Dozer is housebroken, and likes people. He'll need to be neutered before leaving the shelter. His adoption fee is $65.

Dozer can be seen at the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Model named first runner up in beauty pageant

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Catherine Krepp

The modeling career of a young Independence Township woman got a big boost this month after she captured an impressive title at a recent beauty contest.

Catherine Krepp, 25, of Lancaster Lakes was named first runner up in the Miss Michigan United beauty pageant, held June 21 at Clubland in Detroit.

Krepp, an administrative assistant at Saddlebrook, Designers-Builders in Clarkston, competed against 150 young women for the title.

Krepp is a graduate of the Barbizon modeling school in Southfield and has been modeling for three years.

The annual beauty pageant awards scholarships, cash prizes, modeling auditions and recognition to its winners.

The contest focuses on appearance and modeling potential; talent is not evaluated.

Krepp and the rest of the entrants were judged on categories including evening gown, bathing suit and personal interview.

In the evening gown category, Krepp chose a black strapless "senorita dress," accented with ruffles.

For the swim suit competition, she wore a black suit with neon green trim.

The interview questions vary, Krepp says, but may include personal choices, such as "If your fiancée presents you with tickets to Paris, and you have a modeling audition with the Ford agency the same day, what would

"I was nervous; I don't remember thinking anything."

Catherine Krepp

you select?"

This year marks the second time Krepp has entered the Miss Michigan United pageant. While she admits she was nervous last year, this year she says she was more prepared.

She did have the jitters as they announced the top five winners, she says.

"They narrowed it to 29 people, then five and then four, three and two," Krepp says.

"I was nervous; I don't remember thinking anything," she adds. "I just wanted to get it over with and get off the stage."

As first runner up, Krepp is the recipient of a variety of prizes including: a $1,250 scholarship to any accredited university in the nation, a $250 gift certificate for cosmetics at Cecille's, a Bahama holiday with the contest winner, a $1,000 trip to a professional modeling workshop, a private consultation with Image Makers, $100 worth of cosmetics, an audition for Ms. Autorama, an audition with United Talent Agencies for the auto shows, an audition for a Waterbed Gallery commercial, an audition for a Fitness USA commercial, a free year of beauty salon care at John Paul Metro salons, $100 gift certificate at D.O.C. Optics, a $50 gift certificate at Charm model school and a trophy.

Krepp says she's "excited" about her new honor, adding that she's "met a lot of nice people."

OFFICIAL NOTICE Village of Clarkston

Village of Clarkston minutes of the regular meeting, June 22, 1990, 375 Depot Road, Clarkston, MI 48346.

Meeting called to order by President Catalo at 7:35 p.m., followed by the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

Roll: Present-Basinger, Catalo, Haven, Mauti, Roeser, Schultz and Whitmer.

Absent-None.
Motion by Schultz to approve the minutes. Seconded by Basinger. Motion carried.

The agenda was approved as presented.
Truth in Taxation hearing was opened at 7:45 p.m. to the public.

Seacatch ask the council if they could add another mill to the taxes or take from the sewer fund 1/2 mill, to finish the White Lake Road Bike path to Township line.

The tax rate cannot be set until the next Council meeting. We cannot set the mills any higher than what was published. A question was asked why the Village did not pay off the sewer bill. Treasurer, Pappas explained why and how.

Truth in Taxation hearing closed at 8:07 p.m.

Catalo made a motion to accept the 16th of October for the Charter Commission election. Seconded by Schultz. Motion carried.

Roeser would like the Plum house tabled for 30 days. The Village manager will contact the owner and see how soon he plans on starting the project.

Lot split Litigation Resolution - Basinger made a motion to approve. Resolution copy to be in minute book. Seconded by Roeser. Motion carried.

The Sign Ordinance was discussed with members of the Planning Commission.

Public Hearing on the Sign Ordinance and the Zoning change of the Retail Business District. Joint meeting with Planning Commission is set for August 13, 1990.

Catalo made a motion to appoint William Roush to the Planning Commission. Seconded by Roeser. Motion carried.

Motion by Roeser to adjourn at 10:15 p.m. Seconded by Basinger. Motion carried.

Respectfully submitted,
Norma Goyette
Clarkston Village Clerk
