Village holds rezoning hearing

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston Village Council and Planning Commission members squeezed around the front table to hear public comments about rezoning the village business district.

The joint meeting for the public hearing took place Monday, Aug. 13, at the village hall. Trustee Douglas Rooser was absent from the seven-member council, and William Rausch was absent from the eight-member planning commission.

Officials took no action following the public hearing.

Two years ago the idea of rezoning the village district was first discussed among the planning commission, and when the subject came up again the planning commission decided to hold a public hearing, said Steve Arkwright of the planning commission.

Arkwright said that the planning commission sought to preserve the business district of the village by proposing the business district establish a new zoning classification.

Clarkston customers patient

BY LISA NIXON
Clarkston News Special Writer

Due to Iraq's Thursday, Aug. 2, invasion of Kuwait, gas prices have soared, but local station owners find consumers patient.

This gas price hike is the second-highest increase since 1973, AAA Michigan reports. Regular unleaded self-serve gas, the most popular gas, jumped about 9 cents a gallon. The greatest one-week increase occurred in April 1989 after the Exxon Valdez incident, with a 10.7-cent increase.

This past week's increases began Aug. 3, when station operators indicated additional price hikes could take effect.

But Clarkston area consumers have weathered the price hike well, according to several station owners.

Gas type	Self-serve	Full-serve regular unleaded	+8.6 cents	+6.2 cents premium unleaded	+8 cents	+6 cents
leaded	+7.6 cents	+7.2 cents

According to AAA Michigan statewide survey Aug. 6, 1990.

Gas prices up 20 cents after Iraq invades Kuwait

Dick Morgan, owner of Morgan's Service, 28 S. Main, Clarkston, said Friday, Aug. 10, that his gas price has increased 20 cents since the invasion of Kuwait, but his customers are not complaining.

"I've got good customers. They know they need gas," Morgan said. "I've got some customers who don't like what's being done to all of us."

Morgan said they realize the increase is just being passed down from his suppliers, Monroe Oil Co.

"It's not their fault either. Marathon passes it on to them," Morgan added.

Morgan said he checks his prices everyday, but they have not decreased since this all began.

"I don't think that the immediate price hike was fair because I don't think we were buying any of the expensive oil," Morgan added.

Ed Roy, owner of Roy Brother's Standard Service, 6480 Sashabaw Rd., Independence Township, said that his gas had also risen 20 cents as of Aug. 10.

Roy said he pays for gas every day. When the gas price increases, he must increase prices also.

"If it goes up a nickel, so must we," Roy said. "You have to do what you have to do."

Roy said that he has had some complaints — but from the type of people who would complain about the price of a gallon of milk.

"Actually we've had a lot of people come in and tell me we were the lowest one," Roy added.

Roy said they keep watching the price of gas, but theirs has not dropped since this began.

"Since it leveled off, it is probably going to stay this way for a while," Roy added.

A AAA Michigan check of 100 Metropolitan Detroit stations, Aug. 6, shows self-serve regular unleaded ascended 6.2 cents, while full-serve regular unleaded increased 4 cents.

The same survey shows self-serve premium unleaded increased 6.9 cents, while full serve premium unleaded only increased 4.1 cents.

"If it goes up a nickel, so must we. You have to do what you have to do."

Village retail rezoning proposal attracts crowd

Under the new classification, buildings on the east and west side of Main Street between Washington, Church and Depot Streets would become retail on the first, or street, level only.

At present, some offices and service-related businesses exist in the one-block area, which comprises the major portion of the business district.

"We have competition with the White Lake Commons opening up, and, God forbid, the (Auburn Hills) megamall," Arkwright said in his opening comments to the audience.

Two building owners, Bowen Broock and Dennis Kacy, disagreed with the concept of zoning buildings in the business district.

"You don't take away the charm of the village because a mall opens up," said Broock, who owns the Main Street building that houses Max Broock Real Estate.

Kacy, an attorney who owns the former post office

"Those you want to encourage and nurture are restricted by the proposal."

Bowen Broock

building at 21 S. Main St., said the planning commission was equating the selling of goods as more important than the selling of services.

Kacy was against restricting the business district.

"Offer tax incentives and better services and constructive ideas," Kacy said. "Show pride in the village."

Broock said he would like to see a group of business people come together to discuss helping the business climate in the village.

"Those you want to encourage and nurture are restricted by the proposal," Broock said.

After the meeting, Clarkston News Publisher James Sherman also commented.

"I don't believe the council should further restrict the use of our property," said Sherman, who owns the building at 5 S. Main St.

"If the council wants more retail they need to rezone to allow more retail. Of course, that would lead to a need of more parking of which there is already a shortage," Sherman said.

Office space nudging out retail space in the village is a concern of the planning commission.

Recently, a realtor bought a building in the village and forced the retail out, said Thomas Goldner of the planning commission. He referred to the Clarkston Corners building, which now houses Prudential Real Estate.

"Retail in downtown areas has been declining for years in both large and small towns," Sherman said.

He added that downtown areas are "destined for service and specialty uses."

Buck Kopietz, owner of Tierra on Main Street, is in favor of more retail in the area because one retail store will attract another, he said.

Kopietz said his retail business is down between 20 and 25 percent since with Clarkston Mills Mall has become office space.

"There is no walking traffic in town," Kopietz said.

Parking spaces in the village are limited, and according to Kopietz, "people will park a half mile from a mall, but they want to park in front of (village) shops."

Arkwright, encouraged by the comments from audience participants, urged business people to form a group, but he would not take on the full responsibility of setting up a meeting.

"This is your life and your business, and if you can't get excited, than who can?" Arkwright asked the audience.

Broock, who had already proposed the business group idea early in the meeting, said, "A village this size can't survive without a business group."

Broock would also like to see residents, retail and office people working toward a viable downtown, he said.

Library millage defeated in Springfield Township

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Springfield Township voters said no Aug. 7 to a request for one-half mill to operate the township's library.

Cathy Phillips, director of the library, said she was disappointed that the millage was defeated by 45 votes; 417 voted yes, while 462 voted no.

"I understand, though, that people are sick of taxes," Phillips said.

One-half mill is 50 cents for every $1,000 in assessed property valuation.

The library Andersonville Road has 12,000 books, one full-time employee and three part-time employees. The library is open 44 hours a week.

Springfield Township's library is one of the smallest in the area, she said.

"We have over 4,000 card holders who use the library and about 2,500 checking out books weekly," she said. "We are outgrowing our building."

Phillips added that she was concerned about the growth in Springfield Township.

"We seem to be growing rapidly and can't keep up the with what we need," she said.

The library currently receives operating funds from the township's general fund, but the township hasn't increased library money in three years, she said.

The library funds are used to maintain the historic building in which it is located, and book costs continue to rise, Phillips said.

Phillips was not certain if the issue would be put back on the ballot in November, but the idea had been considered prior to the Aug. 7 election, she said.

"I'm thankful to the who supported it," Phillips added.

Phillips likened the millage failure to millage problems often associated with education.

"Everybody wants good education and libraries, but they don't want to pay for it," she said.

Township seat may be open in January

Frank Millard says he feels "great" after receiving the Republican nomination for county commission in the third district.

"It takes a lot of pressure off," he adds.

Millard, a trustee on the Independence Township Board, will be forced to relinquish his seat on the township board if he wins in the November general election.

Conceivably, he wouldn't have to relinquish the seat until January, when county commissioners are sworn into office, Millard said.

Millard captured 905 votes in the primary Aug. 7; his nearest competitors were Carol A. Eberhardt with 652 votes and John W. Voorheis with 435. All totals are unofficial until certified by the Oakland County Board of Canvassers.

In November, Millard will face Democrat John Marcus, who was unchallenged in the Aug. 7 primary.

Register now for Labor Day Parade

Anyone who wants to be part of the annual Labor Day parade should sign up now.

Sponsored by the Clarkston Rotary Club, the parade is planned for 10 a.m. Monday, Sept. 3, in downtown Clarkston. The route begins at Clarkston Junior High School and follows Church Street to Main Street north to Miller Road.

This year's theme is: "Preserve Planet Earth." Floats, marching units or unique vehicles are wanted for the parade.

This year's grand marshal is L. Brooks Patterson, former Oakland County Prosecutor.

To sponsor a float or march in the parade, contact parade coordinators Leonard C. Gorz at 858-0708, P.O. Box 565, Clarkston, MI 48347, or Marc Cooper at 673-1020, 5734 Williams Lake Rd., Drayton Plains, MI 48330.

All participants must be registered. Clarkston Rotary will judge the entries and present awards prior to the parade.

Though details aren't set yet, the Independence Township Fire Department is sponsoring a Labor Day Pancake Breakfast, and the American Legion is sponsoring a Labor Day Corn Roast.

14 win township delegate seats

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Twelve Republicans and two Democrats secured delegate seats Aug. 7 as their party's precinct representatives to the county convention.

In the Democratic race, only two of the 12 precincts saw action. In precinct number six, Kenneth Schaffer received 30 votes to nose out opponent Tom Raguso, with 15 votes. In the eighth precinct, Michael Kyritsis ran unopposed and clinched the seat with 49 votes.

The Republican party had 23 people vying for 12 precincts.

In the first precinct, Mel Vaara defeated Dave Flora 180-102. In the second precinct, James Maddox ran unopposed and gained 96 votes. The third precinct had the unopposed Jimmy Holloway garner 219 votes for his cause.

Only two votes separated the opponents in the race of the fourth precinct seat. Rudy Lozano edged Lawrence Rosso 113-111 for the Republican nod. The fifth precinct proved even tighter as opponents Tamara Elsworth and Guy Passmore tied at 38 votes a piece. Derek A. Hackbaird finished a distant third with 25 votes. On a blind draw, Passmore was granted the seat.

In the sixth precinct, John Lutz rolled to an easy victory by gaining 136 votes to James Adams' 38. Joan McCrary's victory seemed as overwhelming as she clinched the seventh district seat with 233 votes to John Van Havermaat's 84.

Dale Stuart was decisive in the eighth precinct by tallying 158 votes to Donn R. Colbrunn's 55 votes. Neil Wallace ran unopposed in the ninth precinct and tallied 133 votes in the victory.

In the 10th precinct, George White collected 91 votes to defeat Kevin Combust, who received 47. The 11th precinct race was won by John McCaffrey with 80 votes. Opponent Robert Campbell finished with 50 votes.

The 12th precinct was a three-man race, and Richard Holman came up on top with 54 votes. Opponents Steven Nichols and Bruce Montgomery garnered 46 and 27 votes respectively.

Public hearing Tuesday

The proposed rezoning of a Pine Knob Road parcel is the subject of a public hearing before the Independence Township Board Tuesday, Aug. 21.

The hearing is set for 7:30 p.m. at the township annex, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston.

The proposal is to rezone a 140,000-square-foot parcel on Pine Knob and Greenview roads from rural residential to suburban farm residential.

Antifreeze kills family's 3-year-old terrier mix

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Pet owners and parents need to take extra precaution where antifreeze is concerned.

Mary Anne Altenburg of Kingfisher, Independence Township, lost a family pet to antifreeze poisoning.

Spanky, a 3-year-old terrier mix, died the first week in August due to kidney failure caused by drinking the coolant.

The family pet suffered a miserable death, Altenburg said.

Other ramifications

Though saddened by the loss of her dog, Altenburg is more concerned about other ramifications. For instance, some people set out dishes of antifreeze to keep away small animals, such as skunks, she said, adding that children could easily drink the liquid.

According to her neighbors, some people use antifreeze to control the animal population.

Veterinarian Bruce Harlton of Independence Township said he hasn't heard of anyone placing bowls of antifreeze out for small animals to drink, but the liquid coolant acts fast and can damage a dog in less than a half an hour.

Effects of antifreeze poisoning

Antifreeze causes kidney failure. A teaspoonful will cause crystals to form in the kidneys.

According to veterinarian Michael McLaughlin, if an animal is suspected of drinking antifreeze, treatment can be started immediately, and an animal may suffer only 50 percent kidney damage.

McLaughlin, who has offices in Ortonville and Waterford, treated Spanky for the antifreeze poisoning, which causes suffering before death.

"Antifreeze contains a chemical called ethylene glycol which forms crystals in the kidneys," McLaughlin said. "The crystals lock up the kidneys, and you can't get rid of them once they have formed."

Clarkston pediatrician James O'Neill said the same thing can happen in the human body. The liver and kidneys are affected by antifreeze.

"Antifreeze, if ingested, is a bad poison," O'Neill said.

Symptoms of antifreeze poisoning

Animals that have ingested antifreeze display symptoms of vomiting with progressive listlessness. The animal will also want to drink, but the drinking will cause increased vomiting, McLaughlin said.

Humans display flu-like symptoms that start within six to eight hours of drinking the antifreeze, said O'Neill.

After the flu-like symptoms set in, the next step is vascular collapse, which interferes with the transportation of the blood supply throughout the body.

Antifreeze has a sweet taste, and dogs and cats like it, McLaughlin said.

O'Neill said that at one time, there was discussion of adding something malodorous to antifreeze to discourage "Antifreeze, if ingested, is a bad poison."

Pediatrician James O'Neill people and animals from drinking it, but to date it has not happened.

Best cure: prevention

One of the most frequent reasons that antifreeze is accidentally taken by humans is because it is placed into soda pop bottles, said O'Neill.

Only soda pop should be put in a soda pop bottle to discourage accidents from happening, O'Neill said.

McLaughlin said more antifreeze poisonings happen in the spring and fall when people change their auto coolants.

"A lot of times people will let the antifreeze just run down their driveway or unknowingly put it in a container where animals can reach it," he said.

At the North Oaks Animal Clinic on Ortonville Road, Harlton sees about one case of antifreeze poisoning a year, he said.

Dog owners should ward off the temptation of antifreeze, especially when the dog is kept in the garage, Harlton said.

But that doesn't help the Altenburg children — Kevin, 12, Michael, 17, and Laurie, 19 — who are without their pet. Spanky was like a fourth child, said Altenburg.

But the family still has no idea where Spanky drank the antifreeze.

Altenburg said the moral to all of this is: "Don't let your animals run."

Harlton said that advice is helpful in preventing injury to all family pets.

"A lot of times people will let the antifreeze just run down their driveway or unknowingly put it in a container where animals can reach it."

Opinions

Into the future

Julie Campe

My sister, Carol, turned 40 Aug. 1, but you'd never believe it. As Andrew the Horrible, who is 24, says, she's well preserved.

Carol did not take offense at his observation because she's known him so long and might feel a little responsible about the way he turned out. After all, as his big sister and frequent babysitter, she did have a part in raising him.

Carol is just like those women in those ads nowadays — thin and pretty, with kids old enough to take care of themselves pretty much. She's been behaving so independently lately — thinking up features for the addition to her house that would be just for her and not for her children.

She and her husband, Dan, are at that age now where they're just gaining freedom from the family again, and they're still physically fit enough to enjoy it. They still have the sharp, eagle-eye skills necessary for parents of teen-agers, but they can venture out now and then for a night alone.

And while they're not gone long, they come home to an intact house, so they must be pretty good at scaring those kids into behaving.

I observed Carol's birthday up north, while she and the rest of the relatives observed it in her living room.

I remember my mother's 40th birthday — she had a cake that said: "Life begins at 40," which made her and her sister, Leone, howl like hyenas. But that's normal for them. They have their own private sense of humor that not too many people try to break into.

I don't think Carol howled on her birthday — she's more of a giggler, with a soft cackle now and then. No doubt my mother and Leone howled, though, even though both are past the point where life allegedly begins.

My stepmother, Peggy, however, is a different story entirely. No one on earth knows a thing about her 40th birthday because no one knows her real age — except herself, of course.

We try to trick her into telling, but she never slips. Her younger sister, Penny, might have figured it out. If so, we have a good chance to make her tell. While Peggy has a hearty, rolling laugh, Penny is definitely a howler. And when she howls, there's no telling what she will say or do.

If we choose the right moment, I'm sure Penny will give it away.

As for my dad, I don't remember his 40th birthday at all. Maybe he didn't get a howl-inducing cake?

All of this talk about the 40s has made me realize something about time — it moves. I guess I should plan for the future. Someday (hopefully) I, too, will reach my 40s, and I should be prepared.

More importantly, I should be prepared for Andrew the Horrible's 40th birthday. If I understand these age-jokes correctly, the 40th birthday is a time for unrestrained practical jokes.

While The Horrible looks OK now, the only thing that is guaranteed to be well-preserved by the time he reaches 40 is his knack for trickery and his meanness and nastiness. Some things just don't age.

Letters to Editor

More to story

Your column on the discontent of the township vs. the village has had more involved roots than just I-75.

Way back in the olden days, Clarkston had a "rose garden" they weren't proud of — otherwise known as the area of the Village of Clarkston's septic tank and field down by the creek that residents wished would go away.

Their way of getting rid of the smell was to have that great sewer interceptor piped over from the east in Orion Township.

Being that the township elected officials cared so much for the villagers, they signed for the sewers.

Villagers were so glad and had been willing to pay some to fix their problem. The process had to cross through the township from clear over there in the next township — about four miles.

Being under Michigan law, we in the township had no say in the matter — our voted officials had signed on the dotted line.

Just ask where those men lived?

Surely they thought they were competent officials. It soon showed up that not enough money would be collected to meet the payments for the sewers that had come to the villagers' smelly problem.

Throughout the years, the villagers found them and now that the township was being "over-developed" because of I-75 and the sewers.

We in the township have had to pay for years that hated "ad valorem sewer tax" in spite of not having sewers anywhere near our homes.

Yes, sewers have been and are being installed in the township, and poor Clarkstonites are being outnumbered.

They don't like the growth in population nor the growth in traffic.

Availability of sewers opened much more building sites for many more people and different types of buildings.

Township officials did and do make decisions. The village isn't the star of this show anymore, and they don't like it.

We didn't like it, either, back then when we weren't consulted or given a chance to vote on wanting sewer — just to satisfy Clarkston's smelly rose garden problem.

For the record, we don't have the sewers, have no way to connect to them; and we don't want them. We paid for our own septic tank and field with its additional field.

We did lose half our land (over two acres that was our garden) to I-75. We didn't object because we knew we needed I-75. Development is in progress across the road for that new shopping center. The sewer was put in last winter along Sashabaw north to the corner of Sashabaw and Waldon.

Lots of support

The staff at the Independence Township Library and the Love My Library Committee wish to express their thanks to all of the volunteers who helped work on the Library Operating Proposal campaign.

We were very grateful for the support of the voters of Independence Township who recognized the benefits that our new library will provide to all the residents of our community. We look forward to starting construction on our new facility in the next few months.

Jim's Jottings

I'm sure you've noticed the difficulty people of all ages have in answering a question yes or no.

Ask your child if they pulled the tail off the gerbil. Mine answered, "It came off." "It didn't just come off," I responded. You must have pulled it off!

"It just came off," is the answer today, 22 years later.

More recently I hit a golf ball into the rough, as I frequently do. After attempting to hit it back into the fairway, I asked a companion, "Did you see where that ball went?"

"You didn't wait for me to get in position!" I don't recall asking this person what position they were in when I took the swing. Just, "Did you see it?" Yes or no would be sufficient. Why do people feel they have to make an excuse for not giving a direct, one-word answer?

It didn't make a toot to me if they saw it or didn't. Might have made it easier to find the ball if they did, but I wasn't going to shoot them for not seeing the ball.

It's a joke between me and me in our printing shop. I'll ask, "Have you seen the pliers?" They were in your office last I knew. "Last I saw of them they were by the stapler," etc.

I figure productivity could go up 15 percent if people would say yes or no and save all that time it takes to think of words that clear them of any intent implied or directed or just asked.

But what is, is. My dad never lost a hand tool from the garage as long as he had children living at home. After we left he probably accused my mother of losing his special, one-of-a-kind piece of railroad track on which he used to crack walnuts, or whatever he misplaced. You know what I mean.

Never mind that mother couldn't lift it if she could find it, which, if it was in the garage, she didn't go near in the first place.

We kids lost everything my father owned and each was accused in direct ratio of age to device. If it had anything to do with automotive, brother Dair lost it.

If it was garden, lawn or barn, brother Don did it.

I was the culprit for wrenches, pliers, screw drivers, and hammers.

Sister Barbara was never accused of Dad's losses. To this day she agrees with her father that her brothers did it.

AND, Dair, Don and I were/are exactly like the people I described in the opening paragraphs of this column. We never gave Dad a "Yes" answer to a "Have you seen," or "Did you break" question.

We did give him a lot of "NO" answers. Talking back or making excuses was a punishable offense. The "no" we gave brought us time to think while Dad was preparing a different approach, like, "Don't lie to me! One of you kids had it! You never put anything back where it belongs! If I find out you're lying, I'm going to blister you!"

That last statement let us start breathing again. That "If I find out... you're going..." meant a delay, possibly forever, in sentencing.

By the way, did you see where that ball went when I hit it?

Township lawyer rebuts letter on cityhood lawsuit

Note: The letter below was written at the request of Independence Township Supervisor Frank Ronk.

BY GERALD A. FISHER

You have asked me to comment upon the legal accuracy of the letter of Bill Basinger recently published in The Clarkston News on the subject of the suit initiated by the Charter Township of Independence against the State Boundary Commission.

Mr. Basinger was one of the people who initiated the pursuit of cityhood and obviously feels quite strongly that the area which is now the Village of Clarkston should be incorporated as a city.

In addition, Mr. Basinger is a person and an attorney for whom I have respect and is well-schooled in advocacy and argument. Thus, the letter written by Mr. Basinger represents one side of an argument, presented by a skilled advocate. As in the case of all arguments, there are legal points relating to the present circumstance from the opposing side.

To respond to your request, an introductory remark will first be presented discussing the nature of townships, villages and cities as municipal entities, followed by comments which address the arguments presented by Mr. Basinger.

Historical background

Historically in Michigan, the township was the basic form of government, generally consisting of 36 square miles of territory. For many years, the township operated on a direct democracy basis, with decisions being made by a vote of the people at a town meeting.

As townships became more populated, the legislature decided to vest the governance of the township in the township board. In those areas which developed as focal points of activity and residence, cities were established. Such cities were, and are, separate and independent entities, governed by charter and rules distinct from the governance of the townships in which they are situated.

In those areas where there was sufficient population for the formation of a city, but where the people desired to have some independent governing authority and to provide some of their own services — e.g., separate zoning authority and street maintenance service — the village was and is not a totally separate and independent entity. The land in a village is also township land for tax base and other purposes, and the people in a village are township electors who have a voice in township affairs.

Charter township — recent arrival

A more recent arrival on the local governmental scene is the "charter township." This is a creation of the Michigan legislature which has some attributes of a township and some attributes of a city. The charter township form of government is an option which may be selected in higher population and more sophisticated townships, in lieu of pursuing cityhood.

More letters

Even more recently (1978), in order to provide certain charter townships with the assurance that their territory would not be modified and that their electors would not be taken, by action involving another municipality, the legislature provided that such charter townships could not be the subject of an "annexation."

Having provided this background, I will turn to the points raised in the recent letter.

People, not village, pursue cityhood

First, the suggestion has been made that it was the "village" which has sought to become a city. This is not accurate. In fact, several individuals petitioned to commence the cityhood proceedings, not the village itself.

This point is important in terms of what the process of incorporation would accomplish in relation to the township. The individual petitioners have, by way of incorporation, sought to remove both property and electors from the township (and from the village), and place such property and electors in a new and separate city.

While the borders of the proposed new city are the same as the borders of the village, the establishment of the city form of government — being a totally separate entity, unlike the village form of government — would result in the removal of property and electors from the township.

Lawsuit focuses on charter protection

Second, the lawsuit initiated by the township against the boundary commission focuses upon the protection given to charter townships by the legislature to secure township property and electors against "annexation."

Precisely what did the legislature intend in using the term "annexation?" The term is not defined in the Charter Township Act, in which the annexation protection is pronounced.

It is clear, however, that the purpose for providing this protection was to assure that charter township, like cities, would not have their property and people made a part of other municipalities. It is likewise clear that, if the process of incorporation is not included in this protection, the purpose of the legislature will not be served.

The suit of the township requests a judicial interpretation on this question. Within this context, the recent letter asks why this legal argument is only now being raised.

The answer to this question is two-fold: the issue was raised before the Boundary Commission; and, a lawsuit challenging the grant of incorporation of the Commission can only be initiated after the decision of the Commission has become "final" — which, in this case occurred approximately June 3, 1990.

Thus, by express mandate in the Boundary Commission Act, the lawsuit could not have been initiated earlier in the proceedings.

Circumstances invite lawsuit

The letter also asks why the same request for judicial interpretation has not been requested elsewhere before, in spite of the fact that the annexation protection has been in place for "over a decade" (1978).

The answer to this question is quite simple. This issue could have arisen only in a situation where several elements were present.

One such element would be the pursuit to incorporate a new city within the boundaries of a certain type of charter township which qualified for the protection against "annexation," namely a charter township which has a specified population, a specified property value, provides solid waste disposal service, provides public sewer or water service, provides fire protection service, provides police protection service, and has a zoning ordinance or master plan.

As noted, above, the establishment of the charter township form of government as we know it today occurred relatively recently. It has taken considerable time for townships on a widespread basis to qualify for the charter township form, and an even longer time to establish the attributes necessary to qualify for protection against the removal of property and electors to other municipalities.

An additional element which must be present is the petitioning by electors in the township to incorporate a city in only a portion of the township, obviously an event which does not regularly occur.

Finally, on top of these requisites, the pursuit of the incorporation must occur in an environment where there has not been agreement by the township for the incorporation — i.e., unless there was disagreement, the legal issue would not be raised.

Having all of these elements in place to set up the chance for a case such as that in question would be a rare event, indeed. I am not aware that such an event has ever occurred in the past.

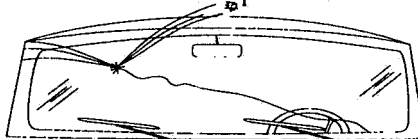

Court to decide legal right

The final noteworthy point relates to the statement at the end of the letter, to the effect that, "we merely seek our independence from Independence Township, as is our right under state law."

Whether there is a right under state law for the removal of property and electors of the township by way of incorporation of a new city within the borders of a charter township is the precise question which has not been placed before the court.

T-ball a blast

I didn't start my summer by intending to coach Little League. But my eldest son was starting his third year of playing ball, so how could I tell my 7-year-old that if no one volunteered to coach, there would be no team?

Besides, what I knew about T-ball wouldn't fill a thimble. (To make matters worse, there weren't enough sponsors, either.)

After a day of soul-searching and deciding that my 4-year-old would be OK at the ballpark, I approached my husband with the idea of me coaching, with him sponsoring. The thought of me as a 5-foot-tall coach (who knew almost nothing about the details of the game) must have been amusing. So we agreed, and Mike Shore welcomed me in with open arms.

I must admit that coaches camp almost overwhelmed me. I learned so much that evening. Anyone could tell that I was a novice. I was the one taking a ton of notes. Would my team be able to do all this? Would I be able to show them what I had learned?

In the 11 weeks of practices and games, I learned a lot about what young kids can do, given the chance. I have so much pride in my team. Most of the boys in "Dr. Regiani's Mighty Molars" did not know each other at the start of the season. Some had played ball with their dads; others had never held a mitt before. All these boys had in common was a desire to play ball and have fun. What developed amazed me.

They learned to work together. They actually played as a team. Nobody complained. No bad language. They relayed the ball, they tried their best. They cheered each other on, and they were all good sports.

I'd like to pat myself on the back, but they did it, not me. I also had a great support system. Bill Bliesath was our assistant coach. His wife, Margaret, and daughter, Meg, helped with practices and base coaching. Parent support was great. A special thank you to Chris Moore, Julie Moehlig and Mary Beth Kiester.

Many wonderful friends helped with rides for my other children, so I could be there for the Mighty Molars. Thank you all so very much. A special thanks to my son, Dan. Because of all the activities on T-ball days (my daughter had classes those same afternoons), I missed half of his games.

Parents, your sons taught me that given a little direction, a dozen boys can listen, cooperate, work and play together. I was surprised how much they depended on each other. We were outnumbered at several games, yet our team spirit stayed strong (we even outfielded some teams).

Teaching sportsmanship starts in the stands. Spectators, please quiet down. These kids are doing the best they can. Believe me, they feel bad enough when they miss a play. Even professional ballplayers strike out.

You know, all in all, it's been a pretty good summer. If you're in a situation next year with a child who wants to play ball, consider coaching. The folks at the township hall will help you with all you need to know. I've been there. It was worth the trip.

Board hires new SJHS principal

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Dr. Jean Lang was unanimously approved as assistant principal at Sashabaw Junior High School by the Clarkston Board of Education Aug. 13.

Lang, formerly the counselor supervisor at West Hills Middle School in Bloomfield Hills, was the unanimous choice of an interviewing committee, according to Superintendent Gary Haner.

The interviewing committee, made up of junior high

"I am pleased to be here. Your people seem to have a great amount of energy. You seem on the verge of some great things here."

Jean Lang

school teachers and district administrators, interviewed 11 candidates, including three from Clarkston schools.

Once the field was narrowed to three candidates, Lang became the obvious choice, Haner said.

In a memo to board members, Haner said Lang is taking a $15,000 cut in salary and accumulated retirement pay to work in Clarkston.

He added that she was willing to do this because of her desire to the position and the attractiveness of Sashabaw Junior High.

Lang, herself, confirmed this at the board's Aug. 13 meeting.

"I am pleased to be here," Lang told the board. "Your people seem to have a great amount of energy. You seem on the verge of some great things here."

Lang lives in Rochester with her family.

Block party to close Eckles Street

A request to close a portion of Eckles Street, between Frankwill and Heath, on Sept. 22 was approved unanimously by the Independence Township Board Aug. 8.

Neighborhood residents requested the closure to hold its second annual block party. The party is slated to begin at 3 p.m. Saturday.

Springfield hikes permit fees

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Building a new home or putting up an addition now costs more in Springfield Township.

The Springfield Township Board voted unanimously Aug. 9 to increase permit fees.

Permit fees have not increased since 1983, said Supervisor Collin Walls.

Walls gave the board some examples of what permit costs would be for different types of building projects.

As an example, he listed a "plain" larger home that is 2,400 square feet, including two baths and one fire place with an attached 480-square-foot garage. Estimated cost for the home is $125,000.

The total permit costs — including building, electrical, plumbing and mechanical permits — used to cost $319. With the new fee schedule, the same permits cost $518.

Walls said that not many of the basic three-bedroom ranches are being built any longer, and the new homes are built with a lot of extras.

The extras, in addition to the fact that rates hadn't changed in seven years, are one of the reasons that prompted Walls to recommend the fee hikes, he said.

Treasurer Lois Styles thought the new fees were a good effort to keep costs in line with building. She said the fee schedule should be looked at about every three years.

Independence 'morally' supports Lake Angelus

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The City of Lake Angelus received a token of moral support from Independence Township Aug. 8 when the board issued a resolution stating its concerns about the proposed "megamall."

The board voted 6-1 to adopt the resolution. Township Clerk Joan McCrary, Treasurer John Lutz and trustees Frank Millard, Daniel Travis, Mel Vaara and Jean Saile voted in favor of the motion. Supervisor Frank Ronk opposed the resolution.

In a letter addressed to Ronk, the municipality stated that it has filed "a significant lawsuit against Auburn Hills Associates Limited Partnership and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, and is seeking a permanent injunction against the Megamall."

Lake Angelus' lawsuit is based upon the allegation that "the public interest will not be served by the construction." In the city's opinion, the 2 million-square-foot megamall — proposed for an Auburn Hills parcel south of I-75 between Joslyn and Baldwin roads — will:

- Create urban sprawl with substantial public expenditures for attendant infrastructure, when the region has existing infrastructure available in other locations in the region.

- Dilute an area which already has 14 existing shopping centers.

- Cause the relocation of jobs and businesses.

Lake Angelus' letter also asked Independence Township to donate $10,000 for litigation expenses and become party to the suit, as well.

Several board members agreed that the proposed mall could pose problems for the township but were apprehensive in donating funds or taking part in the suit.

"Undoubtedly, the mall will threaten our retail es-

"Undoubtedly, the mall will threaten our retail establishments and harm our travel along the I-75 corridor, but $10,000 is a difficult amount to choke down in support of Lake Angelus."

tablishments and harm our travel along the I-75 corridor, but $10,000 is a difficult amount to choke down in support of Lake Angelus," said Travis.

"However, we should participate in this endeavor in a very proactive manner," he added.

Vaara also opposed the fee but was willing to "give moral support" to the city's efforts.

Travis asked township attorney Gerald Fisher if the township could be held accountable if it donated money. Fisher stated the monetary gesture "could jeopardize the community to any legal action." Fisher added he was unaware of any other community siding with Lake Angelus in a joint-suit.

Fisher proposed that the township offer a resolution to the City of Lake Angelus showing its moral support.

Trustee Frank Millard agreed. "A resolution would be suitable, and any other action would be like jumping on the bandwagon at the last minute," said Millard.

McCrary asked Fisher if such a resolution could expose the township to the possibility of a counter-lawsuit. Fisher stated that it would not.

Due to the fact that Lake Angelus needed some kind of response by Aug. 10, Fisher had prepared a "supportive resolution" prior to the meeting. He read it to the board before the vote.

Ronk, who cast the lone opposing vote, said he did so for "personal reasons."

After the vote, a couple of the trustees lamented over the fact that they couldn't do more to support the city of Lake Angelus.

"I'm saddened that we can't fully support our friends in Lake Angelus, but we have to be careful of our liability," Travis said.

"I agree with Dan (Travis) in wanting to make a stronger stand against urban sprawl, but time constraints have to be taken into consideration," said Millard.

Reporter's Notebook

Members of Citizens for Orderly Growth (COG) sent a letter to the Independence Township Building Department to thank the planning commission for its informative meeting in July.

The meeting was an hour-long question and answer session between the planning commission and about 14 members of COG.

COG members said the meeting was educational, interesting and productive. They also added that township planning consultant Dick Carlisle and the planning commission are doing a great job in terms of coping with growth.

Schools remain in formula

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

As predicted, Clarkston schools will remain "in formula" for the 1990-91 school year, the result of a School Aid Bill signed into law by Gov. James Blanchard July 27.

The bill allocates about $335 per pupil, plus $90 per local mill of a district's operating millage, explained Business Manager Steve Lenar, in a presentation to the school board Aug. 13. One mill is $1 for every $1,000 assessed property valuation.

Enrollment in Clarkston K-12 and adult education classes is estimated at 5,874 students, which sets per pupil spending at $3,829.

Because Clarkston generates about $3,676 on its own, the state would be required to kick in $153 per pupil, or the difference between the two figures.

Because Clarkston does not generate the minimum per-pupil spending level on its own — in this case the $3,829 — it is considered in-formula.

Schools that generate the set amount or more through property taxes are considered out-of-formula.

One factor that could change the funding amounts is enrollment, which will be determined later in the Fourth Friday Count.

Enrollment figures are not likely to change enough to put Clarkston out-of-formula, however.

The State Aid Bill, which redistributes about $50 million in state money from wealthier districts to poorer districts, grants Clarkston an additional $125,000 to $150,000 for the 1990-91 school year, according to Lenar.

Commission grants approval to freeway project

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A freeway service development, slated for the southwest side of Dixie Highway, between Foster Road and I-75, received conceptual site plan approval from the Independence Township Planning Commission.

On Aug. 9, the planning commission voted 5-1 to approve the plan, subject to four conditions. A final approval is necessary before construction can begin. Commission member Joseph Figa voted against the approval, and Jo Fussman was absent from the meeting.

Developer B.E.G. proposes that the 15-acre site be divided into three separate stores, totaling 96,000 square feet.

The site plan was tabled on June 12 because the planning commission was unhappy with the developer's plans to level a stand of white oaks and red cherry trees.

Though planning consultant Richard Carlisle was absent from the meeting, he recommended approval of the site plan through a letter. However, he was concerned could be hampered. Another resident, Mike Schwartz, told the planning commission that the development was much too big for the area.

"I feel this development is three times larger than necessary and that the 600-odd parking spaces aren't needed," Schwartz said. "I don't think the developers are being straight with us."

Several other residents told the commission that the development would further complicate the dangerous traffic conditions that already exist on Dixie Highway.

Marc Eller, land owner and joint-developer, told the residents in attendance that their concerns wouldn't go unheard by the project's developers.

"We are very sympathetic to your needs. We'll do everything we can, so you won't know that the plaza is there," Eller said. "We're here to work with you and not against you. Hopefully, you'll see that your subdivision won't be as adversely affected as it seems."

Conceptual site plan approval was granted subject to the following:

- Heavier landscaping to the rear of the property.
- Heavier buffering around retention ponds and between Lake Maria Woods subdivision.
- Saving additional trees along Dixie Highway.
- Examining the possibility of a rear entrance onto Dixie Highway.

"I'm pleased to see that the developer is going to save at least half the trees since the last time. But I'm still personally opposed to this center going in next to a residential area."

Joseph Figa

with the low amount of on-site vegetation and the reservations of township Fire Marshal Neil Ashley.

Ashley said he would like to see another entrance into the development, in addition to the boulevard off of Dixie Highway. Ashley was concerned that only one entrance would make fire truck accessibility difficult if a blaze ever broke out.

Commissioners Steve Secatch and Richard Oppmann echoed the concerns of Ashley.

In the developer's revamped plans, several of the trees designed for removal in June are now scheduled to be saved. Commissioner Joseph Figa was appreciative of this change.

"I'm pleased to see that the developer is going to save at least half the trees since the last time," Figa said. "But I'm still personally opposed to this center going in next to a residential area. However, that's the prerogative of the developer due to the zoning."

The residential area in question is Lake Maria Woods subdivision, off of Dixie Highway. About 15 of its inhabitants voiced displeasure with the proposed development.

Resident Keith Rhodes suggested that the size of the complex be reduced because he feared his home's value

Organs of the dead can offer life to living

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Death is a subject that many people don't want to think about or discuss.

But talking about death, and what will happen to the organs in your body when life ceases, can help save the lives of others.

The Organ Procurement Agency of Michigan (OPAM) supplies organs for transplantation of the heart, lungs, kidney, liver, pancreas, cornea, bone, skin, cartilage and other tissues at no cost to the donor. Additionally, The American Red Cross will identify bone marrow donors at no cost to the donors.

Judy Hoddinott of Caribou, Independence Township, works for OPAM and knows firsthand the decisions that families must make at the time of a loved one's death.

Her job reverses the saying, "It's a matter of life and death." In Judy's job, death becomes a matter of life.

As a nurse in the St. Louis, Mo., area, Judy moved from nurse clinician to a team involved with organ donors.

One day she arrived at work and saw about 200 red hearts with the saying, "With heart-felt thanks," taped around the hospital area, Judy says.

A former heart transplant patient who had been given an extra two years of life because of the procedure died, but the family put the hearts up around the hospital

"The faster you move the better the chance of saving the organs."

Judy Hoddinott

to show their gratitude for the extension to their loved one's life.

Judy knew then she wanted to become involved in the organ donor process and eventually became director of the organ procurement program in the St. Louis area. In 1989 when her husband, Mark, took a job as a doctor at McLaren Hospital in Flint, she joined OPAM.

Organ transplantation is generally performed regionally as a first choice, and then those on a waiting list throughout the United States become the second choice.

Once on a list for a transplant, the recipients are placed according to need. Points are assigned, and if a person's status changes, it is reported to an 800 number, which changes their position on a long list of waiting people.

Because of Judy's involvement with procuring organ donors in St. Louis, she became familiar with the people in Michigan at OPAM, which helped ease her into her new job.

"Michigan was always more than gracious, and I can't say enough about them," says Judy about OPAM.

She has several important jobs in the organ procurement process. Judy manages the donors as well as assists in the surgical removal of the organs. Judy also coordinates the medical staff needed to remove the organs and make certain that the medical staff is waiting to place them into the waiting recipient.

The job must be performed as quickly as possible around the schedules of busy operating rooms, and with sympathy and support to the grieving family.

"The faster you move the better the chance of saving the organs," Judy says.

Brain dead patients ages 0-60 supply donor organs. But in one instance, Judy recalls a 67-year-old in St. Louis whose organs were placed into a 10-year-old and a 26-year-old to save their lives.

Consent must be received from the next of kin to obtain the organs.

Even though the deceased person may have signed an organ donor label on the back of his or her license card, Judy will not take the organs of the dead person until she

Pain worsening; 5 possible bone marrow matches

Leukemia victim Joette Kovacik, 21, has found five possible matches in her search for a bone marrow donor, but none are a perfect match.

Joette, a former Clarkston-area resident, now lives in Waterford with her mother and stepfather who are to care for her until a bone marrow transplant can be performed.

Complications are setting in for Joette because her spleen must be removed, but first she'll be admitted to Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak to control some of the pain.

A few weeks ago, Joette contacted local newspapers in hopes of raising funds for her transplant that will cost about $165,000. At that time, she was awaiting test results from her biological father, whom she had never met. The results were negative — no bone marrow match.

To date, one fund-raiser has netted about $2,000 to help defray the costs.

On Friday, Sept. 7, a fund-raiser is planned at Mitch's II in Waterford Township. The cost is $17.50 per person and includes dinner and dancing with a cash bar.

Joette can be contacted at 2705 Costa Mesa, Waterford, 48329, or phone 674-0785.

JOETTE Kovacik is racing against the clock to find a suitable bone marrow donor. The efforts of the public at large has resulted in five possible donors, but no perfect matches yet.

Woman helps save lives with organ donations

receives consent from the next of kin, she says.
"I never have gone on the basis of a driver's license," says Judy. "It does tell your family that you are interested in donating your organs."

In some European countries it is presumed that the dead person is a donor unless it is otherwise stated before the time of death, Judy explains.

County good source of donors

A strict procedure is followed in procuring organs for transplants, according to Judy Hoddinott of Independence Township.

Working as a coordinator for Organ Procurement Agency of Michigan (OPAM), Judy says Oakland and Genesee counties are good sources of donor organs because many people are aware of the procedure.

"Since January there have been 42 referrals for organ donations to OPAM from the Flint and Pontiac area hospitals," Judy says. "It reflects the genuine public support."

In procuring donor organs, the following procedures are followed:

- The patient is declared brain dead.
- Consent from the next of kin is granted.
- Procedures for stabilizing the organ donor include maintaining the vital signs, such as, the blood pressure, temperature and heart rate through artificial means.

■ The operation must take place as quickly as possible.

■ Operating room teams are assembled.

■ The sterile procedure of operating takes place between 4 to 6 hours of operating time. About 90 percent of the operations take place at night.

■ The organ donor is returned to the family, and if the injury permits and the families wishes, the procedures performed allow for an open-casket funeral.

■ All information about the donor and the recipient is kept confidential.

■ There are no expenses incurred by the donor family.

For more information about OPAM, speakers are available for groups, or call 1-800-482-4881 24 hours. For information about bone marrow transplantation call the American Red Cross at 494-2748.

Information is available to the donor family about who has received the organs. Also included are the age of the recipient, sex, occupation and how the organ is performing.

Usually at that point, when the donor family receives the first bit of information, it becomes a time to let go in the grieving process, she says.

"They let go with great pride and walk away with something positive from something that was unexplainable," Judy says.

In her 10 years of experience in St. Louis, only two families, at their request, exchanged the names between donor and recipient since Judy has been involved with this program.

Donors and recipients who come from all walks of life are "uniformly a good group," she says. "It is enviable to see the good naturedness of the people."

For those wishing more information about OPAM, speakers are available for groups, or call 1-800-482-4881 24 hours. For information about bone marrow transplantation call the American Red Cross at 494-2748.

Teens linked to vandalism

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Two Independence Township teen-agers were apprehended by Oakland County Sheriff's Department officers Aug. 12 for allegedly vandalizing 20 vehicles in the neighborhood of Dvorak and Everest.

The two suspects, whose names are being withheld until officially charged, are 16 and 17 years of age.

They were captured shortly after police responded to the phone call of a Dvorak, Independence Township, resident, about 1:30 a.m. The homeowner told the officers that he observed two white males going through his car, just moments before the squad car's arrival.

The officers spotted the youths, hiding toward the back part of the property, and successfully ordered them to halt. One of the teens was reported carrying a large knapsack, filled with assorted items allegedly stolen during the course of the evening.

Upon questioning, the boys admitted to rummaging through about 20 vehicles in the subdivision near Sashabaw Junior High School that night. According to police reports, the 17-year-old youth admitted to breaking into a camper on Everest earlier in the evening. After contacting the camper's owner, the police successfully identified several of the stolen items in the teens' knapsack.

Both subjects were taken to the OCSO complex in Waterford Township and advised of their rights.

The 17-year-old youth was booked into the jail and released pending further investigation. His 16-year-old accomplice was released into the care of his parents.

Sportsmanship emphasized

The Michigan High School Athletic Association this school year is making sure athletes and coaches know and follow the rules, as well as maintain good sportsmanship.

Clarkston High School Athletic Director Paul Tungate said he and other ADs and coaches around the state have been notified by the MHSAA that if a player is kicked out of a game this year, he or she will not only be suspended for the rest of that game, but also for the following game. In the past, the player was only suspended for the rest of the game when the altercation took place.

In addition, if the player is kicked out of the last game of the season, the player will be suspended for one game in another sport once that new season begins.

Another rule the MHSAA will enforce is making it mandatory for coaches to attend a rules meeting at least once a year. If the coach fails to attend, his or her team will not be eligible to play in state tournament competition.

Daroses daring while waterskiing

ANTONY Daros practices lifting his sister, Alexandra, on the beach but the two also use this technique out in the water. (Photo by Connie Daros)

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Some people are afraid of heights, some fear speed and others are uncomfortable about being in water.

Alexandra and Antony Daros, Springfield Township residents, relish height, speed and water. They are members of the Silver Lake Ski Club (located near Fenton) which competes in water ski shows.

Alexandra, 10, attends Valley Schools in Flint and Antony, 20, is a student at Michigan State University. Alexandra has been water skiing for two years and her brother has been doing it for about five. Antony has been captain of the barefoot team which finished first at the state championships.

Along with the barefoot event, competitions are held in jumping, doubles, straps, pyramids, flag lines, ballet lines, swivel, barefoot pyramids and even a comedy act. These are among the 14 acts teams have to perform within an hour of competition.

The skiers, who perform before audiences, are judged on showmanship, difficulty of acts and performance.

Alexandra, who also plays in the Mini-Miss league in Independence Township Parks and Recreation softball, said she is "sometimes nervous" before a competition starts but said most of the nervousness happens while practicing a new event.

When she first practiced being on top for a pyramid, she said, "It's scary way up there if you've never done that before."

Next summer, Alexandra hopes to take the pyramid one step further, competing in the barefoot pyramid where those under her will not be wearing skis and the boat pulling them travels about 45 mph. She also would like to learn the swivel, which permits skiers to do a 180 or 360-degree turn.

The brother and sister practice two to three nights a week at Silver Lake Beach in Fenton. In addition, the two have taken ballet classes to help in needed flexibility while skiing. The water skiing season for them starts about in May and finishes in early September.

From This Perspective

All in a day's play

Tracy King

If the truth be known, I've never liked waterskiing.

I couldn't, of course, reveal this to Pat, the new boat owner, who had just invested considerable effort outfitting himself and the craft with ropes, vests, skis and necessary apparel.

He was too determined. Ablaze in neon, he'd race down to the water every afternoon, too excited to notice my hesitation.

Dutifully, I'd climb behind the driver's seat, my weak smile quickly turning to a grimace as he would race side-to-side over the wake at increasing speeds.

Spectacular falls would occur frequently. Trying to keep my eyes trained ahead, I would see a huge burst of color and spray from the corner of my eye. Sometimes a loud slap would sound; other times I'd hear Pat cry out in surprise.

Being that the surface is only water, I didn't worry about serious injury; I did, however, suspect pain when big, brown bruises collected down the lengths of Pat's body.

In every waterskiing outing, Pat would eventually tire, which meant it was my turn.

I had few excuses. As co-boat-owner, I was expected to embrace the sport. I knew what to do -- but the years when, as children, being pulled was effortless and thrilling were long gone.

I shrugged into the wet, clammy vest, plunged into the swirling water and paddled the distance behind the boat.

Trying to keep my mind from what lurked beneath my legs, I struggled into the single piece of plywood that would race me across the surface.

It's lonely out here during these moments of contemplation, when sounds from the boat are muffled by ears filled with water and the huge vest bobbing somewhere up past the neck.

Then, with a huge roar, the world changes.

Suddenly light as a feather, feet bounce over a bed of foam stretching in a huge arc ahead. Arms tighten and legs become fluid as the boat pulls from side to side.

The wind rushes by as a strange calm settles inside. Gliding to and fro becomes a rhythm.

Pat gives thumbs up from the boat.

Over time, a tightening strain becomes noticeable in the shoulders and the shins; and, with the rope tossed carelessly upwards, the body gratefully sinks beneath the calm.

The water sparkles and shines. The boat playfully bobs in a slow turn in the waves up ahead.

"Good skiing T.," Pat shouts from the boat.

Heaving myself to the platform, I rip off the attractive pink gloves and brave a smile.

My arms are quivering. My lips are blue. And I can't wait to go at it again.

CBers end; indoor begins

The CB United Football Club ended its season getting stopped by the Mount Clemens Corinthians in the semifinals of the Great Lakes Men's Soccer League post-season tournament.

The Birmingham Cobras II won the tournament.

Most of the players on the CB team are from Clarkston and Brandon.

Chris Benfield of Rochester scored the lone goal for the CBers, cutting the Corinthians lead to 2-1.

The summer season is over but those interested in playing in a men's open indoor league this fall at Square Lake can call team goalkeeper Mark Whitcomb at 625-2565.

Softball teams wanted

Softball teams can still enter the Jim Northrup-Ken Lysczarz 4th Annual Mid-Summer Classic.

The benefit tournament, originally scheduled for July 14-15, has been rescheduled due to rain for the weekend of Aug. 25-26 at C.J. Barrymores of Mount Clemens.

The event will consist of two ASA sanctioned tournaments, an ASA men's Class C and below national qualifier and an ASA women's Class C and below national qualifier. In addition, the highest placing men's and women's Class D team will receive a berth to their respective Class D area tournaments.

Trophies and prizes will be awarded to the top three finishers in each tournament. Former Tiger Northrup will be at the event. The entry fees are $110 per team for the men's tournament and $100 for the women's tournament.

All proceeds go directly to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. For more information, call Ken Lysczarz at 268-2415 or Ken Fournier at 469-2800.

Manager finds a few good men in draft

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Dairy Dream had a dream season in Pony League baseball and its coach, Al Bartley, helped make that dream come true in his first year as manager.

Dairy Dream, Independence Township Parks and Recreation's entrant into the Michigan Recreation Parks Association post-season Pony League tournament, made it all the way to the state finals before edged by Lansing Sexton, 15-11.

It was the best finish ever by an Independence Township Pony League squad, which received a trophy for its strong effort.

The team qualified for the tournament by winning the league with an 8-2 record. It later won the league tournament.

Bartley, who was an assistant coach under Jeff Davis for the past four years, didn't know he was going to be Dairy Dream's manager until a week before the season started.

Since he was a new manager, Bartley could only "freeze" one player from last year's squad in this season's league draft. Bartley froze his son, Matt.

During the draft, Bartley and assistant coach Roger Cohoon relied on going for players with previous experience in state tournaments. They drafted five players (Steve Cohoon, Jeff Marshall, Scott Jenkinson, Jason Roughton and Matt Smith) who played previously for the Shader's Raiders, a Midget League team which finished fourth in the state.

Another important selection in the draft was pitcher Matt Seitz. Seitz finished the season 7-0 with a 1.40 ERA and 76 strikeouts in 50 innings of work.

Bartley credits the whole team for its success.

"Whenever I asked the guys to play different positions, they went along with it," said Bartley about his coachable players.

Bartley also credits the past coaches of the players.

"The success of this team says more about the coaching these boys received coming up in their previous leagues than anything Roger or I did this year," said Bartley.

Offensively, Dairy Dream finished the season batting .382 and scored 169 runs in 16 games. Ironically, no one hit a homer on the team, but team speed was a big plus. Dairy Dream base runners stole 159 bases in 165 attempts.

Unlike champion Lansing Sexton, which will return only about four of its 16 players next season, only three Dairy Dream players will be too old to play in the Pony League next season.

Since Bartley will be an experienced manager next season, he will be able to freeze six players.

"If I could freeze the whole team, I would," said Bartley, who, no doubt, will have some of his players be gobbled up by other teams in the draft.

Some highlights of the four tournament games played by Dairy Dream were:

Lansing Sexton 15, Dairy Dream 11 (State Finals at Battle Creek, Aug. 5)

Dairy Dream hurt itself in the finals by committing seven errors in the first three innings.

Lansing Sexton took advantage of three first-inning errors to jump ahead, 2-0. But Dairy Dream countered with three in the bottom of the first.

Both teams scored three times in the third and then Dairy Dream increased its lead to 8-6 after five innings. But Sexton scored six times in the sixth and three more in the seventh to ice the win.

Sexton's strong-armed catcher Ray Scott also hurt Dairy Dream, only allowing one stolen base. Dairy Dream averaged about 10 steals a game.

"He took us out of our normal game," said Bartley.

Seitz was the starting pitcher (pitchers were limited to a number of innings they could pitch). He was relieved by Mike Carter, who took the loss. Jeff Wagner also saw action on the mound.

Dairy Dream 13, East Detroit 5 (Semifinals at Battle Creek, Aug. 5)

Carter was 4-for-4 at the plate and teammates Mike Stanton and Roughton were each 2-for-2 in the 13-5 win over East Detroit. The three players accounted for half of the team's 16 hits.

Seitz was the winning pitcher.

Dairy Dream 12, Sterling Heights 1 (Regional at Allen Park, Aug. 1)

Dairy Dream banded out 13 hits by 10 different players and Seitz fired a 2-hitter in 12-1 victory over Sterling Heights.

Manager Bartley said Jenkinson played an extremely strong defensive game at second base. Jenkinson and his infield teammates also turned three double plays in the game, the first ones of the whole season.

Clarkston 12, Pontiac 6 (District at Pontiac, July 30)

"We played our normal game, not making too many mistakes," said manager Bartley about his team's 12-6 win over Pontiac.

Seitz picked up the win on the mound. Carter had two hits, a walk and five stolen bases.

THIS SIGN was recently put up on a fence near the track surrounding the football field at Clarkston High School. When not in use by Clarkston athletic teams, the track is available to Clarkston-area residents for running, jogging or walking. Some people exercising have complained about large dogs chasing them and the athletic department is concerned about dog doo doo. Clarkston Athletic Director Paul Tungate, however, said "human dogs" are allowed not only on the track but on the football field. The varsity Clarkston Wolves will be playing home football games this fall against the Pontiac Northern Huskies and the Brighton Bulldogs.

Latest studies show strong belief in God in U.S.

The existence of God remains as unprovable as ever. However, a recently published analysis of data from 16 countries gathered over 18 years shows that belief in God is waning, particularly among young people, according to a University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, political scientist.

Prof. Ronald F. Inglehart, author of the new book "Culture Shift in Advanced Industrial Society," sees evidence of a connection between the shift away from strong belief in the importance of God and the evolution of strong welfare states, which for some have replaced religion as a source of personal security.

Belief in God remains strongest in countries such as the United States, South Africa, Ireland and Mexico, each with weak welfare systems that create uncertainty and make personal security more difficult to achieve, says Inglehart, who is also research scientist in the U-M's Center for Political Studies.

His study found evidence of other widespread and significant changes in values and opinions across widely varied cultures about issues such as abortion, nuclear weapons, the environment, sexual mores, and the role of women and the family — changes that have realigned the political and economic structures of advanced industrial societies throughout the world, producing increasing emphasis on freedom of expression and democracy.

"In the decades since World War II, the emergence of unprecedented high levels of prosperity, together with the relatively high levels of social and economic security provided by the welfare state, have led to a decline in the prevailing sense of vulnerability," Inglehart says.

"This has been conducive to the spread of secular orientations that place less emphasis on traditional religious and cultural norms, especially insofar as these norms conflict with self-expression," he adds.

Inglehart's findings about belief in the importance of God:

■ A majority of the population in each of the 16 societies he studied still say they believe in God. The size of the majority ranges from more than 60 percent in Japan, Denmark and France to near unanimity in the United States, Mexico, South Africa and both the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland — all nations with relatively weak welfare states.

"Traditional religious values are most likely to retain their appeal in societies in which economic well-being and physical security are uncertain. Individuals under stress have a strong need for absolute norms. They need to be sure of what is going to happen because they are in danger," Inglehart says.

"Under conditions of relative security, provided in part by a strong welfare state, one can tolerate more diversity; thus one doesn't need the security of the absolute, rigid rules that religious sanctions can provide. The United States may be more affluent than other nations where belief in the importance of God is less prevalent, but economic security is less certain," he adds.

■ Within countries as different as Mexico and France, younger respondents (age 18-24) are about two Younger generations around the world are more concerned about the purpose of life but less likely to believe in God, U-M researcher says.

and one-half times less likely to believe in God as older groups (older than 65).

Yet the younger generation seems to have a heightened sensitivity to spiritual concerns compared with older groups.

"We simultaneously find indications of a heightened reverence for nature and an increased concern for the meaning and purpose of life among the younger generations, along with much weaker support for traditional religious norms," Inglehart says.

"The world view espoused by most of the established religious dominations seems increasingly out of touch with the perceptions and priorities of the younger generation," he says.

■ Although within each country the young generally are less likely to attach importance to God than their elders, belief in God appears to be linked more to culture and historic circumstances than age.

Danes age 65 and older, for example, are less religious than Americans in their 20s. And in some countries, such as Mexico, South Africa and the United States, most of the young attach great importance to God. In others, such as France or Japan, even among the old, large numbers do not.

"One might think it the case that among the young it's natural for God to be of minor concern, and that as the end of one's life approaches, one accords more importance to God, religion and the afterlife.

"In fact, there is no apparent linkage between age and belief in God: The age group differences appear to

Around the world, belief in God diminishing

(GOD from previous page)
reflect the specific historic circumstances of given societies at the time the young there were growing up and forming value systems, rather than anything inherent in the life cycle," Inglehart says.

■ The decline in the belief in the importance of God among younger groups is most pronounced in Western Europe and Japan, and less so in the United States, South Africa and Mexico.

In some countries, the decline is "cataclysmic," Inglehart says. In West Germany, for example, only 16 percent of the older population consider God unimportant, compared with 60 percent among the youngest group.

Britain and France indicate almost equally great declines in belief in the importance of God, and in Denmark an even sharper age-group decline in the importance attached to God is manifested.

■ In almost every country, a smaller proportion of the population consider themselves religious than believe in God.

About a quarter of the Japanese public consider themselves religious, and only about half of the French and British do. Of all nationalities studied, Italians—who ranked only moderately high on belief in God—have the largest percentage who consider themselves religious.

The survey data also show a large-scale shift in values from "materialist" to "post-materialist" values, Inglehart says.

Materialists tend to be older, more respectful of authority, have a traditional world view and be concerned with economic and national stability.

The growing minority of "post-materialists," raised during the relatively prosperous post-World War II era, on the other hand, take national and economic security for granted.

They are more concerned with quality of life issues; place a higher value on individual autonomy, innovation and opportunities for self expression; and tend to challenge rather than accept central authority, according to Inglehart.

"There is genuine irony in the fact that post-materialists tend to be relatively uninterested in established religions, since this group has a relatively large amount of intellectual and emotional energy to devote to the fulfillment of higher-order needs," Inglehart says.

"In fact, post materialists are more apt to think about the purpose and meaning of life. They are potentially interested in spiritual concerns.

But, it would seem, most organized religions today have little to say about the meaning and purpose of life in terms that are meaningful to post-materialists," Inglehart says.

Inglehart's book, published last month by Princeton University Press, already has been translated into French, German, Italian and Spanish. It is based on interviews with hundreds of thousands of respondents conducted in more than two dozen countries over the course of 18 years.

The interviews were conducted as part of the Eurobarometer surveys, a regular measure of attitudes, values and behavior of the publics of 12 western nations that has been conducted since 1970, and the World Values Survey, carried out in 1981-92 by the World Value Systems Study Group.

Four arrested in sting operation

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

For the third time in the past four months, the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) carried out a sting operation at the I-75 rest area in Springfield Township and apprehended people for homosexual activity.

On Aug. 9, undercover officers arrested four men for disorderly conduct at the rest area. A disorderly conduct charge carries a maximum sentence of 90 days in jail and a $100 fine.

Police officials would not release the names of those arrested, only their hometowns. The four men reside in: Mount Clemens, Fenton, Flint and California.

According to OCSD Detective Dave Scott, the Mount Clemens man had been arrested at the Springfield Township rest area in a similar operation just a few months ago.

The previous two sting operations, on May 3 and June 21, netted a total of 14 men for disorderly conduct and/or sexual accosting.

In each operation, an undercover officer portrays the role of "an interested participant." As soon as the officer observes or is solicited for sexual favors, he carries out the arrest.

Detective Scott said the OCSD will continue to monitor the rest area with regular patrol vehicles until the problem is rectified.

Three in a row

Gawkers may be to blame in two car accidents out of three on M-24 near Metamora Road Thursday morning.

Shortly after 4 a.m. a driver southbound on M-24 reportedly fell asleep at the wheel and rolled his vehicle, which carried two passengers. Ron Hoop, 22, of Oxford, was treated and released from Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital. Paul Sievert, of Birmingham and James Miron, 22, of Clarkston remained in stable condition at POH.

Before the accident could be cleared, two more accidents occurred in the same spot, both rear-enders. Police issued citations for failing to stop in both of those accidents. There were no further injuries.

Florida's growth in the spotlight

Doug Carlson

On Sept. 4, residents of Sarasota, Fla., will vote on whether or not to stop nearly all construction in their area for a period of two years.

This referendum marks the first time a Florida county is voting on a growth limit.

"Everybody is watching us right now," said Jim Greenwald, chairman of the county commission. "It's a hot topic."

A state official in Tallahassee agreed that Sarasota's effort is an important test.

"If this passes, it could spark similar movements in other counties or other cities," said Richard Morgan of the state Department of Community Affairs. His agency administers a 1985 law that requires 459 local governments to submit detailed 20-year growth plans.

A survey undertaken by Florida State University documented dissatisfaction with the migration that brings an average of 900 newcomers to Florida each day. Two-thirds of those surveyed said that growth is a problem in their community.

The state's population last year increased by 385,000 people, including newborns. Its 12.4 million residents make it the fourth-largest state. In 1959 it was 20th. The 38.7 million visitors who came to Florida last year compounded the problem.

Traffic frequently is stalled along the east coast, especially between Miami and Fort Lauderdale. Roads, sidewalks, resorts and waterways also are getting jammed on the state's western side, which includes Sarasota.

"It seems obvious to me, we can't sustain the level of growth that we're experiencing without a severe degradation of our resources and quality of life," said Jeffrey Harris, a Sarasota furniture maker who complains of traffic congestion, a stuffed county landfill, and a limited water supply.

About 10,000 residents signed a petition forcing the referendum.

"We're suggesting a two-year time out," said attorney Dan Lobeck. "Just two years to catch our breath and catch up with our community's existing population before we accommodate new growth."

Jim Ford, president of the group pushing the referendum, said construction must halt until the county can spend enough to provide adequate services.

"Sarasota is no longer the sleepy little community it was," said Ford, "but there's no need for it to become another Tampa, Orlando or Miami."

"What we have where, really, is a community that's been dominated by the development community and their chosen elected officials for so long that growth and environmental destruction have become institutionalized."

Opponents maintain the moratorium would eliminate thousands of jobs and millions of dollars in new business, income and tax revenues. Unemployment would rise above the current 4.7 percent, they predict.

Some builders already feel an impact, with banks reluctant to finance projects that may be delayed.

Some specialists note that if Sarasota and other communities passed moratoriums, new residents simply would settle elsewhere in Florida — putting additional strain on those areas.

"There's no way we can put a fence up," said Jim Murley, director of 1,000 Friends of Florida, a growth watchdog group.

This will be an interesting development to follow. Stay tuned.

Doug Carlson is chairman of Citizens for Orderly Growth.

Real Estate office changes name but not service

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Schweitzer Real Estate, Inc., owned by Better Homes and Gardens, will be getting a new name soon. Due to a corporate buyout, the Clarkston office will now be known as Millstream Real Estate Inc. - Better Homes and Gardens.

The office, at 5856 S. Main Street, Independence Township, was one of four "Schweitzer" branches to retain its affiliation with Better Homes and Gardens. In July, Coldwell Banker, Inc., owned by Sears and Roebuck, Inc., purchased several offices in the Schweitzer chain.

According to Assistant Manager Julie Doelle, four of the former Schweitzer-owned offices were binned by concurrent contracts and didn't become Coldwell property with the merger. Mac Traybue is the new owner of the Clarkston office.

Doelle said the Clarkston office was one of four statewide branches to retain the Better Homes and Gardens' name. Prior to the buyout, "Schweitzer" accounted for eight offices in Oakland County.

The Clarkston office currently operates with 12 full-time real estate agents, six of those in the "$1 million sales club."

Despite the name change, Doelle said the office will continue to facilitate its clientele in the same fashion. "Even though our name's going to change, we'll be

'Air' tennis shoes tops in fashion world this year

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Tiger-striped and checkered pants and shoes with "air" in them top the list of fashion essentials for school kids this year — though almost anything is acceptable at some ages.

Brian Meloche, 14, a ninth-grader at Clarkston Junior High School, said his standard wardrobe includes checkered baggy pants with long T-shirts.

"They're really comfortable; they're lightweight," he said.

Just about anything goes, though, for clothes — as a book bag or backpack, he said.

Usually, he shops for school clothes with his mother, he said, explaining how he gauges fashion.

"If it's expensive and I know my mom doesn't like it, then I know the other kids will," he said.

Sara Klopfer, 14, also a CJHS ninth-grader, prefers to leave her mother at home when shopping. She offered this advice:

"To parents, tell them to give their kids money and let them go shopping with their friends. And to kids, go shopping with your friends, not your moms, because their moms will push them into buying things they won't wear," said Sara, a Holcomb Road, Clarkston, resident.

Sara likes baggy pants and sweaters. She especially likes plaid pants because "they're really colorful and obnoxious."

Also on her list of "in" clothing are B.U.M. shirts, SKIDZ pants and shirts, and clothing by I.O.U. and Z. Cavaricci.

She noted that backpacks are "out," though book bags are OK.

"Most people still use Esprit bags, but bags from Express and Benneton are really popular," she said.

Sara, who bought her first pair of penny loafers to wear to school this year, said most styles of clothing are acceptable — it's more how you wear those clothes that show if you're in style or not.

Nicole Trombly, 13, of Caribou, Independence Township, said certain brand names are hot this year, such as Z. Cavaricci jeans.

"They're in style," she said.

Almost any type of hairstyle is worn these days, she said.

Almost any style of clothing is acceptable, too — except bell-bottoms, she said with vehemence.

"They're ugly," she said, adding that she had never seen anyone actually wear them. She had seen them only on TV.

Her parents don't wear them, "thank God," she said. For the younger set, tennis shoes, pants and T-shirts are the standard apparel.

About the only thing that's out of style is "dress-up clothes" — unless it's a special occasion, like picture day, said Jon Meloche, 10, a fifth-grader at Bailey Lake long as you don't wear bell-bottoms, he said, giggling at such an absurd thought. He admitted that he has only seen bell-bottoms in "old movies."

For shoes, "anything air" is fashionable, though he prefers Nike Air, he said.

The Holcomb Road, Springfield Township, resident, said nothing radical is happening with hairstyles.

"People are starting to wear their hair longer in the back," he said.

As for accessories, he prefers none. He does not use

BRIAN Meloche, 14, wears size 10 Flight Nike tennis shoes, while his brother, Jon, 10, wears size 5 1/2 Reeboks. Notice that that pantlegs are worn rolled up.

SHOWING a new baggy sweater from the GAP is Sara Klopfer, 14, with her friend Keith Conklin, who models Sun Time Tiger Stripe pants and a lime green T-shirt he bought in South Dakota while visiting his grandparents. He advised other back-to-school shoppers: "Don't pick out anything. Let your girlfriend pick it out." For the record, he and Sara are "just friends," who run together on the cross country team.

Back-to-school fashions include almost everything

Elementary School.

"I like to run and stuff," he said. "It's hard to move around in (dressy clothing)."

He wears Reebok tennis shoes with Houston Rocket laces (given to him at the Tim McCormick basketball camp) and a Pistons Bad Boys T-shirt.

Chris Himburg, 9, a fourth-grader at Clarkston Elementary School, said he liked Air Jordan tennis shoes because they're "comfortable."

He usually wears T-shirts and jeans to school, with a baseball hat at recess (no hats may be worn indoors, he said).

His friend, Jon Rieman, also 9, said he likes L.A. Gear shoes, and the only thing he would not like to wear to school is glasses.

Jon carries an all-blue lunch box to school, though Chris uses a paper bag for his lunches.

According to Jon Meloche other popular lunch boxes are Scooby Doo, Ghostbusters and Back to the Future.

However, stressed his big brother, Brian, lunch boxes are not used in junior high school.

New high school pupils should visit CHS

Families new to the Clarkston community who have youngsters in grades 10 through 12 should visit Clarkston High School.

Two Clarkston-area teens experience life abroad and find school is still school, even a world away

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Last year at this time, Kelly Kostrzewa and Amy Raynor prepared for school like the rest of their Clarkston High School classmates.

These two girls, however, were thousands of miles from home and were about to attend school conducted in a language other than English.

Kelly spent the school year in an all-girl, private Catholic school in Belgium.

Amy attended classes on the south coast of Norway, where high school is conducted like a university and is attainable only by application.

The two spent a year in the host countries under the sponsorship of Youth For Understanding (YFU) International Exchange program.

They flew from Clarkston last July and spent the next full year living with a native family, attending school and learning about life in the countries they had chosen.

Seizing an opportunity

Kelly and Amy, best-friends since the eighth grade, learned about the YFU program at a seminar held at Clarkston High School, where they had just completed their sophomore year.

They applied for the exchange, with each listing the

The two were evaluated for the exchange program on the basis of grade-point-averages and personal interviews, which included questions such as "what type of person do you think you are" and "what type of setting do you hope to live within."

Though they applied just shy of the deadline, both were soon notified that they were chosen for the program.

"I immediately called Amy," recalls Kelly. "Then I remember driving to school thinking 'I'm going to Belgium!'"

The three months of preparation that followed included a lot of self-scrutiny, the girls admit.

"I went through a lot of inner preparation, like 'do I really want to do this?'" says Kelly.

"I tried to learn more about the country," adds Amy. "I didn't know any of the language."

Though both girls wanted only six month exchanges at first, they were easily convinced a year's stay would offer them a better look at the country's cultures and lifestyles.

The year flew by, they say.

Back only three weeks, they now speak affectionately of their respective hosts as "my mother" or "my country of her choice.

For Kelly, it was Belgium, because she "knew something about it." Though the 17-year-old redhead is of Polish descent, she says "in a real distant way," she is part Belgian as well.

Amy picked Sweden for her first choice, but when that proved unavailable she chose Norway, which was similar.

"Norway was close enough," says Amy, also 17, with large, clear blue eyes not unlike her host countrymen. "I really liked it."

SCHOOLWORK In Belgium and Norway is not all that different from material in Clarkston, according to Kelly Kostrzewa (left) and Amy Raynor. The two spent a year in the respective countries attending school, living with a family and learning new languages.

sister."

Attending Clarkston High School will be strange, they say.

"We'll have to do homework!" they shout together, erupting into laughter.

City living

Kelly's host father was a doctor working from his home in the heart of downtown Bree, located in the Dutch section of Belgium.

The country, about one-fifth the size of Michigan, is in the northern portion of Europe and allowed Kelly an opportunity to travel.

Though her "mother and papa" spoke English, along with some of her five brothers and sisters, the younger children did not, which made it difficult to get to know them at first, Kelly says.

The family was middle class, which allowed Kelly to enjoy most of the luxuries she was used to. The family rose early and was encouraged to engage in almost constant activity.

For them, it was volleyball. For Kelly, it was an art class, reading or other things, she says.

Kelly attended private Catholic school with her sisters, which she describes as "strict."

The coursework was not unlike what she learned in Clarkston, though she had the ability to choose the courses in which she would receive grades.

Social life included "cafe parties" which she says she misses.

"My school was 40 minutes away, so I didn't socialize with classmates," she says.

She admits to being homesick in the beginning — "but only for a week and a half and then not again for the rest of the time."

What did she miss the most about her life in Clarkston?

"I know it sounds strange, but I missed my school locker," she says. "We had to lug all our books in these big book bags, and they were heavy."

On the coast of Norway

Amy's family lived far from the city, on a rural island, on the south coast of Norway.

Here, the extreme dark winters and bright summers were not as intense as the northern part of the country. Still, winter light would dwindle at 4:30 in the afternoon, and would not reappear until 10:30 in the morning.

Social life was different, Amy recalls; kids had no curfews and would regularly come home in the early hours of the morning.

When she first arrived, Amy went to language camp.

"The whole country was mountainous and when I saw all the houses, it was just like I imagined Norway," she says. "I knew they were Norwegian."

Formal education stops at the ninth grade in Norway; high school is attended on the basis of application, similar to college in this country.

Like other students, Amy chose her classes and attended different classes each day.

Apart from the difficulties that language presented, the material was not unlike what Amy learned at Clarkston High School, she says.

For recreation, Amy involved herself in a choir in Norway and spent time with her "sister."

Though she was never homesick, Amy did miss one thing.

"Being able to drive," she laughs.

A return home

When asked whether they were anxious to come home at the end of the year, the girls had mixed feelings.

Looking at one another, they answered "no, not really ... well, yes, I guess so."

Both said the first thing they did when they got home was slept.

The experience didn't change them, they say, but did give them "some different views about things."

Though they expect to be slightly behind in their lessons at Clarkston High School this year, the entire experience was worth it, they say.

"We'll have to make up some classes we missed junior year," Kelly says. "But learning a language and what we experienced makes up for it."

Wehrli program teaches participants how to learn

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Learning problems, poor study habits or anxiety about test taking can have an adverse effect on a student, no matter what the age.

But help is now available for those who want to improve their learning skills. The Wehrli Performance Training Center opened in the Waterfall Plaza on Dixie in

What's New in Business

May.

Pam Hankins, a 1988 graduate of Oakland University and certified teacher, bought a franchise from Kitty Wehrli, who opened the business in 1979.

Kitty taught in the Waterford school district in the 1960s and developed the learning program from her experience as a teacher.

The Wehrli program places emphasis on reading and math skills. Students attend three times a week for a one hour session.

The Wehrli learning program is designed to meet the needs of people from age four to adult.

Pam said adults use the program for as preparation for returning to college, career changes, or to sharpen up testing skills.

"We re-test after every 10 sessions so that a student can visually see their own results," Pam said.

Positive comments come back from parents, Pam said.

"Parents have said that their child is becoming more organized at home," she added.

Each student has his or her own cubicle at the learning center to keep their books. Upon arriving the student sits at a desk and listens to a tape for about 45 minutes while reading and writing along with the tape. Sometimes the tape may call for the student to repeat aloud as an assignment.

"It can be a multi-sensory experience," Pam said. "It's high tech learning."

Performance generally improves in all areas, she said.

The setting for students is one of a quiet library, and voices used at the center are in a low whisper.

Pam said that the response from students to a lower voice is positive.

"I've lowered my voice, (since being at the Wehrli center) and my own children respond differently," Pam said.

Four new Wehrli Performance Training Centers have opened in the last two months, creating 10 franchises now in operation. Pam said.

Nine of the operations are in Michigan and one is in South Carolina.

The enrollment fee is $45, and the weekly fee is $45 for three one hour visits.

PAM HANKINS sits in the all white decor a trade mark of the Wehrli centers. No pictures or distractions are present in the centers to distort the learning process.

The Garden Patch

Decompose old lawn clippings into new fertilizer

Much time and money has gone into researching the chemistry and dynamics of composting.

This is important because the landfill crisis is forcing many cities to begin composting lawn and garden wastes instead of hauling them to the dump.

They must know how to make compost quickly, without causing odors or breeding flies. They need compost so odorless, fertile and weed-free that citizens will line up to buy and haul it away.

Entire books have been devoted to composting, but the process isn't really all that complicated. In fact, the average gardener can produce useful compost every year by just using common sense.

There are no set rules. You can find as many ways of making compost as there are gardeners making it.

If you were to crawl inside a working compost heap, you could feel what is happening and figure out why.

First, it's hot in there: roughly 115 to 145 degrees. The reason for the heat is the activity of organisms busy decomposing raw organic matter down to fine humus.

The microorganisms prefer green material for lunch: lawn clippings, leaves, vegetable refuse, weeds and such.

But they will decompose a certain amount of such dry material as shredded leaves, rotted hay and lawn thatch if you mix it in roughly equal parts with the green material.

Scientists have a lofty way of describing this mix as the "carbon-nitrogen ratio."

Simply making up the right mixture of dry and green matter is not enough. Plenty of oxygen is needed in the heap to keep the composting organisms fired up.

If the heap gets too dense or wet, the chemical situation may change from oxygenation to fermentation and a vile smelling, soggy mess results.

Additionally, a pile too loose and fluffy will not stay moist enough to fire off the oxygen-fed decomposition.

You can start a compost heap cooking on the first try by putting all this information in your head. Let's review what you need to do.

Begin with equal parts of green and dry matter. If you don't have any dry leaves, straw, hay or pine needles, spread out your lawn clippings and let them dry.

Thin out shrubs or gather tree branches for chipping.

The average gardener can produce useful compost every year by just using common sense.

You can reduce rough wastes to the right size particles, and mix green with dry, by running them through a chipper, shredder or mulcher found at a garden supply store.

As you add layers to the pile, moisten each thoroughly and shovel a scattering of sterilized cow manure or garden soil, or a cup or two of nitrogen fertilizer. These will speed up the decomposition process.

Some experts recommend adding ground limestone to the pile to raise the pH from 6.7 to 7.5.

However, limestone can drive off valuable ammonia and cause it to evaporate. Don't add limestone unless you have a pile that has begun to ferment and needs a quick fix to restore a healthy environment for working bacteria.

Before heading too far into compost making, invest in a long-handled pitch-fork. It simplifies turning the pile, which requires turning every two to four weeks.

The easy way to turn a pile is to fork the top layer into a new pile alongside the old. Gradually work your way down until the bottom layers of the old pile become the top layers of the new.

The process of turning the heap provides an opportunity to add more shredded green and dry matter.

Go heavier on the green material if the pile is "cooking" rather slowly.

The fastest way to determine heating levels is to remove a few forkfuls to reach down the center of the pile. Feel it for warmth.

Ideally, the interior should be quite warm to the touch.

Master composters can cook up a batch in five to six weeks; three months is the average.

How can I tell if my child uses drugs or alcohol?

If you find alcohol, drugs or drug paraphernalia in your child's possession, there's a strong probability that your child is using drugs.

Certain behaviors also can warn you that your child may be involved in these substances:

- Abrupt change in mood or attitude;
- Sudden decline in attendance performance at work or school;
- Poor relationship with family or friends;
- Ignoring curfews;
- Unusual flare-ups of temper;
- Increased borrowing of money from parents or friends, stealing from home, school or employer;
- Secrecy about actions and possessions;
- Associating with a new group of friends, especially with those who use drugs.

While these actions may indicate drug use, they may also be just normal teenage growing pains.

By watching your child, getting to know his or her friends, and talking to your child about problems including drugs and alcohol, you should be able to learn if he or she is involved.

If, after you've set a rule against drug use, your child breaks it, it's time to back up that rule with discipline. Unless you're prepared to enforce it, the rule will become meaningless.

One of the best punishments is grounding.

Forcing the child to stay home give parents and the child a chance to talk. Also it is important to talk to the parents of your child's friends about why you have taken this necessary step and to ask their support in making it succeed.

If pressure from friends is part of the problem, grounding keeps your child from the group.

If the problem becomes too much for you to handle alone, ask for help. School counselors trained in working with youth can help re-open communication between you and your child.

Contact your child's classroom teacher or building principal to help you locate help.

You may want to join a parent group. These groups are based on the idea that the best way to stop a child from using drugs is to stop his or her friends from using them too.

Parent peer groups can provide education in the sharing of information on drugs and the hazards of drug use.

They can provide support for one another in coping with their children's drug problems and they can coordinate community action in asking local and state governments, school officials and businesses for their help in stopping drug abuse.

Orientation for new students, sixth-graders

Clarkston and Sashabaw junior high schools will be holding orientation programs for sixth-grade students and all new students in seventh-ninth grades and their parents.

The orientation program is set for Tuesday, Aug. 21. Clarkston Junior High begins its program at 7:30 p.m. in the gymnasium with Principal Vince Licata and Assistant Principal Jan Gabier welcoming students.

Sashabaw Junior High begins its program at 7 p.m. in the gymnasium, with remarks by Principal David Reschke and Assistant Principal Jean Lang.

After introductory remarks, students from both schools will receive their schedules, student handbooks and locker combinations. Time will be given for students to tour the building and locate their lockers and classrooms.

Officials from both schools request that older brothers and sisters or previously enrolled eighth- and ninth-graders not attend this orientations. But parents of sixth-graders and new students are urged to attend.

Teen models in back-to-school show

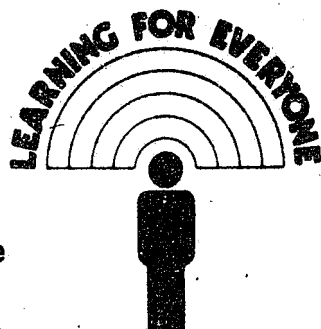

Two Clarkston-area girls were among 52 selected to participate in Summit Place Mall's Back-to-School Fashion shows on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 17 and 18.

Carrie McAllister, 14, and Lisa Miller, 15, auditioned with about 140 others Aug. 4 at the Grand Court Runway in the Waterford Township mall.

The models will receive modeling and fashions instructions from Harriett Fuller and Margery Krevsky of Productions Plus Talent Agency and will perform 1-7 p.m. Friday, Aug. 17, and 1-5 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 18.

Leningrad: from Dixieland jazz to Swedish hotel

Editor's note: Following is the third of four articles about the Soviet Union. The author, Don Morrow, gathered his material over eight months while visiting his wife, Robin Bisha. Bisha is a 1979 Clarkston High School graduate who spent an academic year in the Soviet Union doing research for her doctoral degree. She's studying Russian history at Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind., and is the daughter of John Bisha of Clarkston.

BY DON MORROW

April:

Since many travelers include Leningrad on their travel itinerary to the Soviet Union, in this article I want to tell about some places in that city that are not standard travel spots but are well worth visiting.

First, visit the rynok (open market). Peasants and farmers from all over the Soviet Union including Georgia, Armenia and Central Asia bring their fruits, vegetables, meats and dairy products to sell.

Fresh flowers and handmade goods also are sold. The atmosphere is almost like a carnival, and many of the sellers appear to be very happy to meet someone from the United States.

Prices are all in rubles although some of the merchants are quite happy to trade items such as ball point pens for distinctive spices. The best one in Leningrad is the Kuznechnyi Rynok. It can be reached quite easily by taking the Metro to the Vladimirskai Station.

Another interesting rynok is located on Vasilivskiy Island at 8th liniia and Bolshoi Prospekt and is quite easy to get to for people staying either in the Pribaltiyskaya or Gavan hotels.

While the traveler should not go to the Soviet Union expecting exquisite culinary treats, tasty and interesting food can be had — but not always in the hotels. For a treat, try one of the cooperative cafes. One of the best ones is the Cafe Tbilisi, which serves Georgian food. The food is good, service usually fast and prices very reasonable. The Tbilisi is located on the Petrograd Side, address 10 Sytinskaya, telephone 232-93-91.

Also good but much smaller is the Cafe Zhemchuzhina (The Pearl) on Vasilivskiy Island, address Skipperski Pereoluk, phone 355-20-63. The Zhemchuzhina serves both Azerbaijani dishes and Russian cuisine with an eastern flavor. (So far there are no Armenian cafes in Leningrad.)

Another good get is Na Senei (On the Haymarket), very close to the Ploschad Mira metro station. It is inexpensive and tasty. The Haymarket does not provide waitress service, but it does have tables and live music.

If you want to get out of your hotel at night, go to the Jazz Club. It offers live dixieland jazz. Don't miss Louis Armstrong sung with a Russian accent! The Jazz Club offers drink and food, although you must get there early or the alcohol will have already run out. The cost of admission is six rubles (about $1 at the bank exchange rate) and you receive a reserved table, pleasant atmosphere and good music. Just ask any taxi driver to take you to the "dzhaz klobb."

Although the Beriozka shops are still the most convenient places for tourists to shop, there are a few good places to get authentic souvenirs for rubles (if you don't mind muscling your way through the crowds).

At the corner of Litensky and Neusky Prospekt is a souvenir shop that sells such items as wood carving boards decorated with painted firebirds, handpainted wooden Easter eggs, wooden spoons, etc.

Across from the Primorskaya Metro station and next to the Beriozka are jewelry stores where beautiful amber and lacquer boxes may be purchased for rubles.

In the square next to the Public Library on Neusky Prospekt many artists sell their handmade and handpainted work around a monument to Catherine the Great.

In addition to Soviet Kitsch art you can find nicely painted matrioshka dolls, icons and some jewelry.

However, tourists should be aware that Soviet customs officials have been known to confiscate expensive lacquer work purchased without receipts. (My advice, just put it all in a Beriozka bag.)

There are several places that are quite good, but you must pay in dollars. Inside the Hotel Pribaltiskaya is an Irish-Soviet joint-venture store called the Baltic Star. The Baltic Star has some of the best quality souvenirs (at rather high prices) and food items you may not be able to do without your stay, such as cheese and Diet Coke.

Across from Dom Kniji along the Griboyedev Canal is the Chaika. It is a German joint venture and has good food, beer, a pleasant atmosphere but does not take any credit cards.

The Hotel Olympia, the first Soviet location for the Swedish hotel chain Reso, has a very good restaurant with quick service. They serve breakfast, lunch and dinner, but prices are high with breakfast starting at $7.

However on Wednesday nights from 6-9 p.m. they have an American Club with American sports and music videos and prices about half on some American-style foods. Have a good trip, and happy hunting.

Opinion of Bill Myers

Great moments in advertising history

William A. Myers is a retired Lapeer County editor and investments manager from Boca Raton, Fla.

Here's a little exercise for your memory. What product did each of these slogans once stand for? (Answers at end of column.)

1. Children cry for it.
2. Dependability.
3. Next to myself, I like -- best.
4. My hat's in the ring.
5. Ask the man who owns one.
6. Good to the last drop.
7. When better cars are built, -- will build them.
8. Always a bridesmaid, never a bride.
9. Even your best friends won't tell you.
10. All the news that's fit to print.

Now go to the answers. If you identify eight of the 10, senility is still a ways off for you.

If you're buying zero coupon bonds, by all means buy them on a yield-to-maturity basis, not on some broker's say-so as to price.

Just on a price basis, they all look cheap, because the yield comes from the pay-off at maturity. You don't get any interest until then -- like U.S. Savings Bonds.

Here are some guidelines for typical prices early this summer for the government zeros -- usually called CATS, although there are other names such as TIGRS and STRIPS. CATS, etc.

(taxable zeros, issued by U.S. Gov't)

Maturity	Yield	Approx. Cost
1991	8.20	65
1996	8.4	44
2001	8.75	26.6
2006	8.75	18.1
Tax exempt zeros
1992	6.8	67.3
1996	7.25	50
2001	7.5	33
2006	7.6	22.6

Tax-exempt zeros are tricky to buy, and you should insist on knowing all the call features so they can't be called away from you at a price less than you're paying. Some of the single-family housing agencies have found tricky ways to redeem the bonds. Alaska housings have lost much of their earlier attraction.

Right now, I'd prefer the zeros issued by Intermountain Power of Utah.

Answers to memory quiz:

1. Castoria the famous cathartic for children, 50-60 years ago. It did taste pretty good, and considerably better than cascara, epsom salts and castor oil.

2. Dependability -- the Dodge car. It was a cross between an auto and a truck, but boy, was it sturdy.

3. Next to myself I like BVD's best. One-piece knee-length summer underwear. I wish it would come back.

4. Eddie Rickenbacker used this slogan for the Rickenbacker car he introduced. The emblem on the hubcaps showed a top hat in a circle. Eddie was the famous World War I ace. The car was a flop. Eddie headed Eastern Airlines.

5. Packard -- a great car. They had one model in the early 30s of 16 cylinders in line. The classic model was an eight and was known as the Dietrich Packard.

6. Maxwell House Coffee, of course.

7. Buick.

8. Pond's cold cream.

9. Listerine, the mouthwash, made famous by Art Kudner, a Lapeer, Mich., boy who became famous in the advertising world. He dug up the word halitosis out of somewhere.

10. The New York Times, described by newspaper pros as the best unedited newspaper in the world.

JAY SMITH plays the leading role of Nemorino opposite his co-star in the role of Adina in Lansing Community College's production

"Elixir of Love." The performance laid the groundwork for Smith's opera-singing career, which includes such Michigan Opera Theatre performances as "Romeo and Juliet" and "Don Giovanni." He's auditioning for the opera again this year.

Clarkston grad sings his way to the state opera

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Dressed in a pair of baggy, blue-and-white striped shorts and surrounded by bustling relatives in his family's Independence Township home, Jay Smith hardly looks like an opera singer.

But Smith is a man of many contradictions. He never liked opera, for one thing.

"I hated it," Smith says, emphatically. "I was like every other kid."

After singing with the Sashabaw Encores in junior high school and in Madrigals and musicals in high school, Smith had his first taste of opera in college, under the leadership of his mentor Meredith Zara.

"(Meredith) stuck this opera aria in my hands and said 'you are going to learn this if you like it or not,'" Smith recalls.

He learned the aria and subsequently trained his way to a position in the Michigan Opera Theatre.

Another contradiction is apparent in Smith's chosen profession. Though his first love is music, he works as a junior high school teacher.

"I really always have aspired to be a singer," Smith asserts. "(But) being a professional singer, you don't just get musical performances. You need to have something to fall back on.

"I knew I needed to teach to survive," he adds.

Smith combines his love of teaching and music in the Royal Oak school district, where he instructs students in general music and choir.

SMITH'S first musical performances with the Sashabaw Encores, at Sashabaw Junior High, eventually led to bigger and better things. A 1984 graduate of Clarkston High School, Smith now sings with the Michigan Opera Theatre.

"To be standing there with 10,000 people applauding at the same time — you have to be in that position. It's the most indescribable feeling."

Jay Smith

Smith speaks in a clear, deep voice, which seems surprisingly low for a tenor, the highest vocal range for males.

His dark, intelligent eyes and knowing smile defy his age, which, at 23, makes him one of the younger opera singers around.

Skate World rolls into business in Independence

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Skate World, a full-service skateboard and snowboard shop, has wheeled its way into Independence Township.

Located at 4730 Clarkston Road, Skate World offers a variety of skateboard merchandise including roller blades, shoes, snowboards, and apparel. Co-owners Keith Aldrich and Dave Schrepfer say the idea behind the store's theme came from a friend who opened a similar store in Waterford.

"We wanted to get into a business that was both fun and different," Aldrich says.

What's new in business

Skate World, which has been open for nearly 15 weeks, is the only establishment that specializes in "boarding", within the Clarkston area.

The co-owners are looking forward to expanding their business as soon as Skate World outgrows its present accommodations.

The average age of his customers falls between 13 and 15, but it's not unusual to see people in their mid-20's browsing throughout the store, Schrepfer says.

The co-owners are hoping to build a positive reputation based on Skate World's variety of merchandise.

"We'd like to be known for our wide assortment of items and competitive prices," Aldrich says.

Aldrich also intends to organize skateboarding competitions, in order to promote Skate World's existence.

CO-OWNERS (from left) Dave Schrepfer and Keith Aldrich are hoping to tap the interests of area skateboarding enthusiasts with their new store, Skate World.

Auditions for Village Players

Any would-be actors and actresses now have a chance to appear on stage.

Auditions for the Clarkston Village Players' first production of the season are set for 7:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday, Aug. 16 and 17, and the play calls for a large cast.

"Don't Drink the Water," a diplomatic comedy directed by Verne Vackaro, requires 14 people. Performance dates are Oct. 6, 7, 13, 14, 19, 20 and 21.

The first play of the year is a good opportunity for beginners, said Al Bartlett, who is in charge of publicity for the year.

Major roles include: Father Drobney, an East European priest in exile who is about age 30; Ambassador Magee, a hard-nosed, dignified career diplomat who is an ambassador to a communist country and who is in his mid-50s; Axel Magee, the 30ish, well-meaning bumbling son of the ambassador; and Walter Hollander, a small American businessman and tourist in his early 50s. He is loud, abrasive and stubborn.

Then, there's Marion Hollander, Walter's wife, who is patient and unpretentious; and Susan Hollander, the Hollanders' lovely daughter, who is in her 20s; and Krojack, the menacing, vicious, head of the secret police.

Actors are also needed for the following smaller roles: Burns, the ambassador's aide; the chef, who is temperamental and eccentric; and the Sultan of Bashir, a huge, imposing, desert chieftain.

Small parts include: Kasner, the Countess Bordoni, and Novatny.

The only requirement is that actors belong to the Village Players — annual dues are $15.

For more information, call the director at 666-3094.

Other plays this season are: "Wait Until Dark," "Walk in the Woods," "Steel Magnolias" and "Brighton Beach Memoirs."

Earth tip

If a four-member family takes five-minute showers every day, they will use more than 700 gallons of water per week, a three-year drinking supply for one person. You can cut water use in the shower up to 70 percent by installing a "low or restricted flow" showerhead. This saves on water use and heating costs. The showerheads cost from $10-20 at your local hardware or plumbing store. If a four-member family who takes five-minute showers every day installed a low-flow showerhead, they would save at least 14,000 gallons of water each year. For 10,000 similar families, the savings would be 140 million gallons and for 100,000 similar families, the savings would be 1.4 billion gallons.

Get away at the new Kokomo

BY LISA NIXON
Clarkston News Special Writer

When it's cloudy out, you can still find sunshine at Kokomo, the electric beach.

Kokomo, a tanning salon at 6678 Dixie Highway, Independence Township, in the lower level of Ritters Country Square, has recently changed owners and images.

Chris Maybee, owner of Kokomo, has changed the store from a sun and skate center to a tanning salon.

Maybee bought Kokomo July 4 and re-opened July 5.

"We worked all night," Maybee said about preparing the place.

What's New in Business

After two years of running the idea around, Maybee decided to open the store because of job burnout at her previous place of employment — in a doctor's office.

"There was just something that said 'Go for it,'" Maybee said.

"Business is going well," she said. "It's a nice bunch of guys and gals who come in here."

Maybee said she enjoys her work and she is wrapped up in the store 100 percent.

"I love it here; it's like a dream come true," Maybee said. "It's definitely not a job; it's just one big social hour."

Kokomo offers three Wolfe super beds and one stand-up booth for tanning. Maybee said these beds have special face tanners, Pioneer stereos and cassette players with the head sets built in and are considered the Cadillac of tanning beds.

Kokomo also sells other tanning products and accessories, such as tanning lotions, oils and accelerators, eye protectors and hand painted T-shirts with the Kokomo name on them.

A manicurist will eventually be added to the store. Two more beds will be added by fall, Maybee added.

Maybee said her place is like the old Beach Boys song, "Kokomo."

"There's a place to go to get away from it all," she sang. That's down in Kokomo.

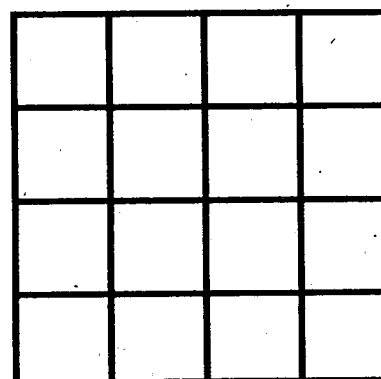

CHRIS MAYBEE took charge of Kokomo on July 4.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

LITTLE THINGS COUNT

QUESTION: I just don't seem to find the time to repair the little things around the house. It is now up for sale. Should I be concerned with this problem or is it just the big things that count in making the sale?

ANSWER: The house speaks for itself. Many noticeable, unrepaired damages speak loud and clear that the homeowner has not been taking proper care of his home. The potential buyer will begin to worry about other, bigger items (not seen by the eye) that could have been deteriorating also. Don't kid yourself. A potential buyer will NOT overlook little flaws that you may have learned to live with. It will penalize the value of the home. If you can't find the time - hire someone to do it.

MANY LITTLE FLAWS and unrepaired damages make it clear that the homeowner has not been taking care of his property.

Friendly Faces/ Julia Rae Meredith

JULIA MEREDITH, has who has worked for the library for seven years, said she likes to volunteer her time to keep busy. She attends Bowling Green University.

AGE: 18

OCCUPATION: She works two jobs. During the day she works as volunteer coordinator at the Independence Township Public Library, and at night she waitresses. Meredith has been at Independence Township Library for seven years.

"My first year was (as) a volunteer," Meredith said. She became a page the next year and was later promoted to supervisor for the summer workers.

FUTURE GOALS: Meredith, a Clarkston High School graduate, is to return to Bowling Green University, Ohio, in August to continue working on her major in psychology and a possible minor in pre-med.

EXTRA ACTIVITIES: Meredith doesn't have much spare time, but she has lunches with her friends and likes to watch movies. She used to read a lot and does a lot of baking. "I bake something and usually give it away," she said.

VOLUNTEER WORK: She likes to do volunteer work because it gives her something to do. She hates to sit around at home. This summer, she initiated a July Kids Helping Kids food drive through the Summer Reading Program. The first- through sixth- graders brought in foods for the meal (breakfast, lunch, or dinner) assigned for that week. All food is donated to Lighthouse North, Maybee Road.

FAMILY: Meredith presently lives at home in Independence township with her parents. She also has a brother, who is nine years older than she is. Meredith would like to see them more often, she said, but she and her parents work opposite hours.

Walks

By Georgene VanAntwerp

Walks along the beach are always such a happy time.
To here the water, see white caps
Rolling up on the sand.
Thinking how great, how grand
To take a walk with my man.

I stop to look down and see little Pieces of colored glass that washed
Up, laying on the sand.
Little chips of yellow, green, blues, whites.
I pick each piece up in the noon day light.

Oh what treasures can be found
When you just take time and look around.

Thank God for our walks, treasures that they bring.

So if you're feeling down
Take a walk and look around.
Colored sand, glass, stones or sea shells,
Sand castles to be built along the way.
Have a wonderful time,
Start your today.

Driftwood

By Georgene VanAntwerp

There are all kinds of treasures
Like my driftwood sitting on my Window sill I've gathered.

Times I've walked alongside the lake
A piece of driftwood here and there
Some are small, odd shapes, some are Long and thin.

Oh what fun it is to gather
My driftwood in all kinds of weather.

Georgene Van Antwerp, formerly of Clarkston, resides in Beaver Island, St. James.

Microwave Plus

Cool and quick

Betty Wagner

Oftentimes I am asked for the name of a good microwave cookbook. My collection in the kitchen contains books from at least a dozen different authors and additional booklets and pamphlets from various companies. I have reviewed many of the books in this column and have used most of the collection for references and inspiration for articles.

But I do have a favorite source for basic recipes. It is the Microwave Cooking Library series, a collection of 22 books. The latest two, "Cool Quick Summer Microwaving," from which today's recipes come, and "Low-fat Microwave Meals" were published in the spring of 1990. Barbara Methven authored most of the books in the series, and Cy DeCosse, Inc., publishes all of them.

CHICKEN FAJITAS 4 servings

2 boneless whole chicken breasts (8 to 10 ounces each), split in half, skin removed
1 cup Tequila Marinade, divided (see below)
1 medium green pepper, sliced into thin rings
1 medium onion, thinly sliced, separated into rings
4 flour tortillas, 8-inch

1. In a large food-storage bag, combine chicken and 3/4 cup marinade. Chill remaining marinade. Secure bag. Chill at least two hours, turning bag over once or twice. Prepare grill for low, direct heat.

2. In 8-inch square baking dish, arrange chicken breasts with meaty portions toward outside edges. Pour marinade over chicken. Cover with wax paper. Microwave at HIGH for 4 to 6 minutes or until exterior of meat is no longer pink, rearranging chicken breasts once.

3. Place on cooking grid. Grill, uncovered, for 8 to 12 minutes or until chicken is no longer pink and juices run clear, turning once. Wrap grilled chicken in foil to keep warm. Set aside.

4. In 1-quart casserole, combine remaining 1/4-cup marinade, pepper and onion. Cover. Microwave at HIGH for 5 to 7 minutes or until pepper and onion are tender-crisp, stirring once or twice. Set aside.

5. Place tortillas between 2 dampened paper towels. Microwave at HIGH for 45 seconds to 1 minute, or until tortillas are warm to the touch.

6. Cut each chicken breast half into thin strips. Place strips in warm tortilla. Top with one-fourth of pepper and onion mixture. Fold up from bottom. Fold in sides and secure with wooden pick, leaving top open. Top with salsa, sour cream and guacamole, if desired.

Tequila Marinade 2 cups

1 can (6 ounces) frozen limeade concentrate
1/2 cup vegetable oil
1/3 cup tequila
1/4 cup red wine vinegar
2 cloves garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon chili powder
1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper

1. In 4-cup measure, place frozen concentrate. Microwave at HIGH for 1 to 2 1/2 minutes or until defrosted, stirring once. Add remaining ingredients. Blend well with whisk. Store marinade, covered, in refrigerator up to two weeks.

2. Place chicken in large plastic food-storage bag. Add 1 cup marinade. Secure bag. Chill at least two hours or overnight, turning bag occasionally. Drain and discard marinade. Micro-grill meat as directed above.

Note: Marinade may be used for beef, pork or turkey, as well.

Home economist Betty Wagner resides in Independence Township. Her "Microwave Plus" cable television program airs on Independence-Clarkston Channel 65.

Davy Crockett

Aug. 17 marks the birth anniversary of Davy Crockett, legendary American frontiersman, politician and adventurer.

Crockett was born in Hawkins County, Tenn., in 1786. He first made a name for himself fighting in the Creek War from 1813 to 1815, a U.S. victory over Creek Indians in Tennessee who were actually British allies.

Crockett was elected to the Tennessee legislature in 1821 and served for two terms. He then was elected to the U.S. Congress in 1827 and served two consecutive terms. He lost the election in 1831 but was elected to serve a final term in 1833.

Crockett perhaps is best known for his last contribution to his country. He was part of the American forces that perished on March 6, 1836, defending the Alamo.

SHELTON PONTIAC-BUICK

Michigan's Largest Pontiac-Buick Dealer

Nowadays when every car dealer has such a wide selection of models to choose from, it is really difficult for you to decide where to go for a new car. All the companies advertise that their cars are the best, but who is to say which car really is. We therefore can conclude that the real difference in buying a car is the dealer you buy it from.

The ideal dealer offers a fair price on the new car, as well as an honest dollar for the car you trade in. However, the most important factor is the service that you receive on your new car year after year.

We would like to point out SHELTON PONTIAC-BUICK, located at 855 S. Rochester Rd. (just North of Avon Rd.) in Rochester Hills, phone 651-5500.

In 1988, 1989, and 1990, SHELTON PONTIAC-BUICK won the Best in Class Award. This is Buick's highest award and less than 4% are able to achieve it. They were also rated number 1 in the Metro Detroit Zone by Pontiac for service. So see them today for a new or quality pre-owned car and you'll see why we say "Customer consideration is first and foremost here!" They are open Monday and Thursday until 9:00 p.m.

Boss of the Year popular with employees, children

BY LISA NIXON
Clarkston News Special Writer

"Dirt Bike Mama" and "Kool Aid Mama" is also a great boss, according to Tipacon Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association (ABWA).

Rochelle Hess, who holds the above aliases, was recently named Boss of the Year by the Tipacon Charter Chapter of ABWA, which includes the Clarkston area.

Hess of Armada said she knew she had won the honor when she was described as Dirt Bike Mama.

"I'm called that because when I want to get away, I ride my moped through an orchard nearby," she said, laughing.

Hess said she is called Kool Aid Mama because she was the mother of a household that always seemed to have all the neighborhood children over.

"We were the house where all the neighborhood kids played," Hess explained.

Hess was nominated by her employee, Geraldine Brandt, a Southfield resident and a member of ABWA.

"I feel she's a very special lady," Brandt said.

Hess said, "I thought I'd go to the dinner and humor her; I never thought that I would win."

Hess said she thinks she won because they were looking for people who started their own careers, motivated themselves and made their own career.

"The highlight of my life, short of having children and my husband, is the night I got this award," Hess said.

Hess said Brandt may have nominated her because Brandt sees Hess juggling three kids — Scott, Jamie, and Heather — a husband, David, and a job.

"She seems to see me as some wonder woman who can do it all," Hess said.

But, she explained, "I can't do this without a husband who cooperates and children who cooperate."

Hess said she just looks for the fun in all of it and takes it day by day.

"I have to be doing 10 things at one time," she said. Having great kids helps her be who she is, Hess said. "They are cooperative and keep me informed of where they are at," she said.

Hess added that she thinks her children are better people because of her career.

Hess, an account executive for Alfin, Inc., N.Y., sells fragrances in Michigan and Ohio.

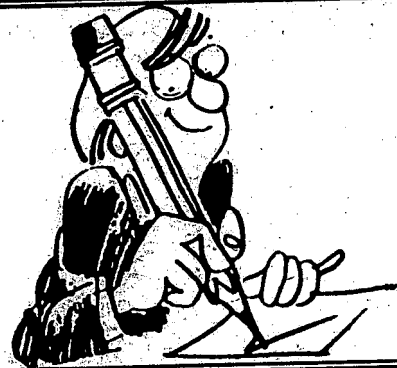

She went back to work 11 years ago, starting as Christmas help. Later she was transferred to cosmetics and was made a full-time employee.

"It was natural that I wound up in cosmetics," Hess said. "I started out selling Avon when I was pregnant with Jamie."

Four years ago, she started with Alfin, "a real small but growing company," because it was a strong company and offered a better position, Hess said.

She liked that it was an unstructured job.

"I like to be my own manager, and my hard work shows immediately in this business," Hess said.

Ending for the summer

Seven students finished a fruitful summer at the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Aug. 9 as part of a Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) program sponsored by the Greater Pontiac Area Consortium.

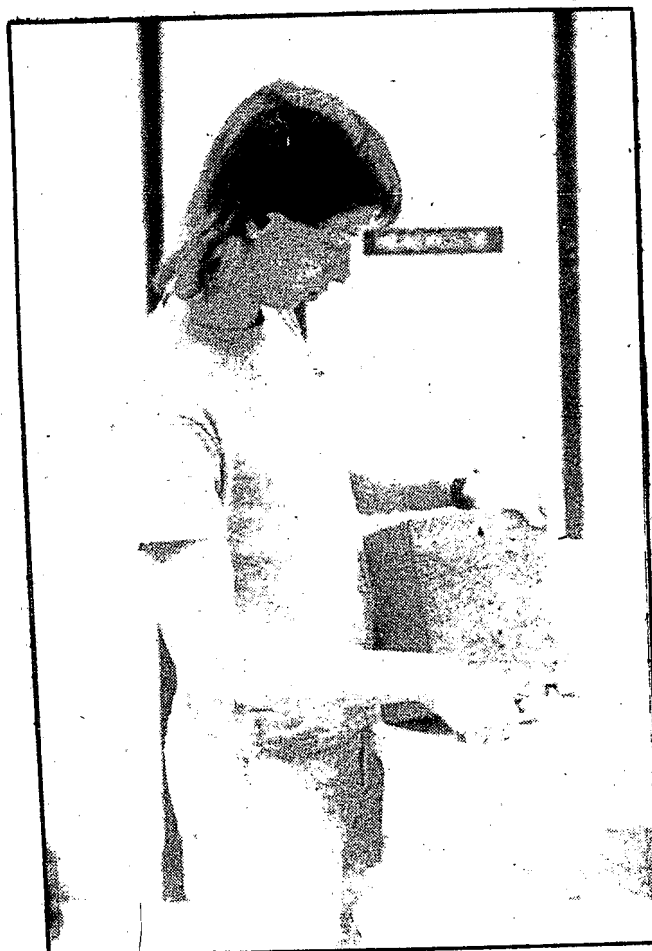

Participants, ranging in age from 14 to 21, worked on tech center grounds every Monday through Friday in exchange for wages.

The tech center program is geared toward providing employment for special education students, according to tech center officials.

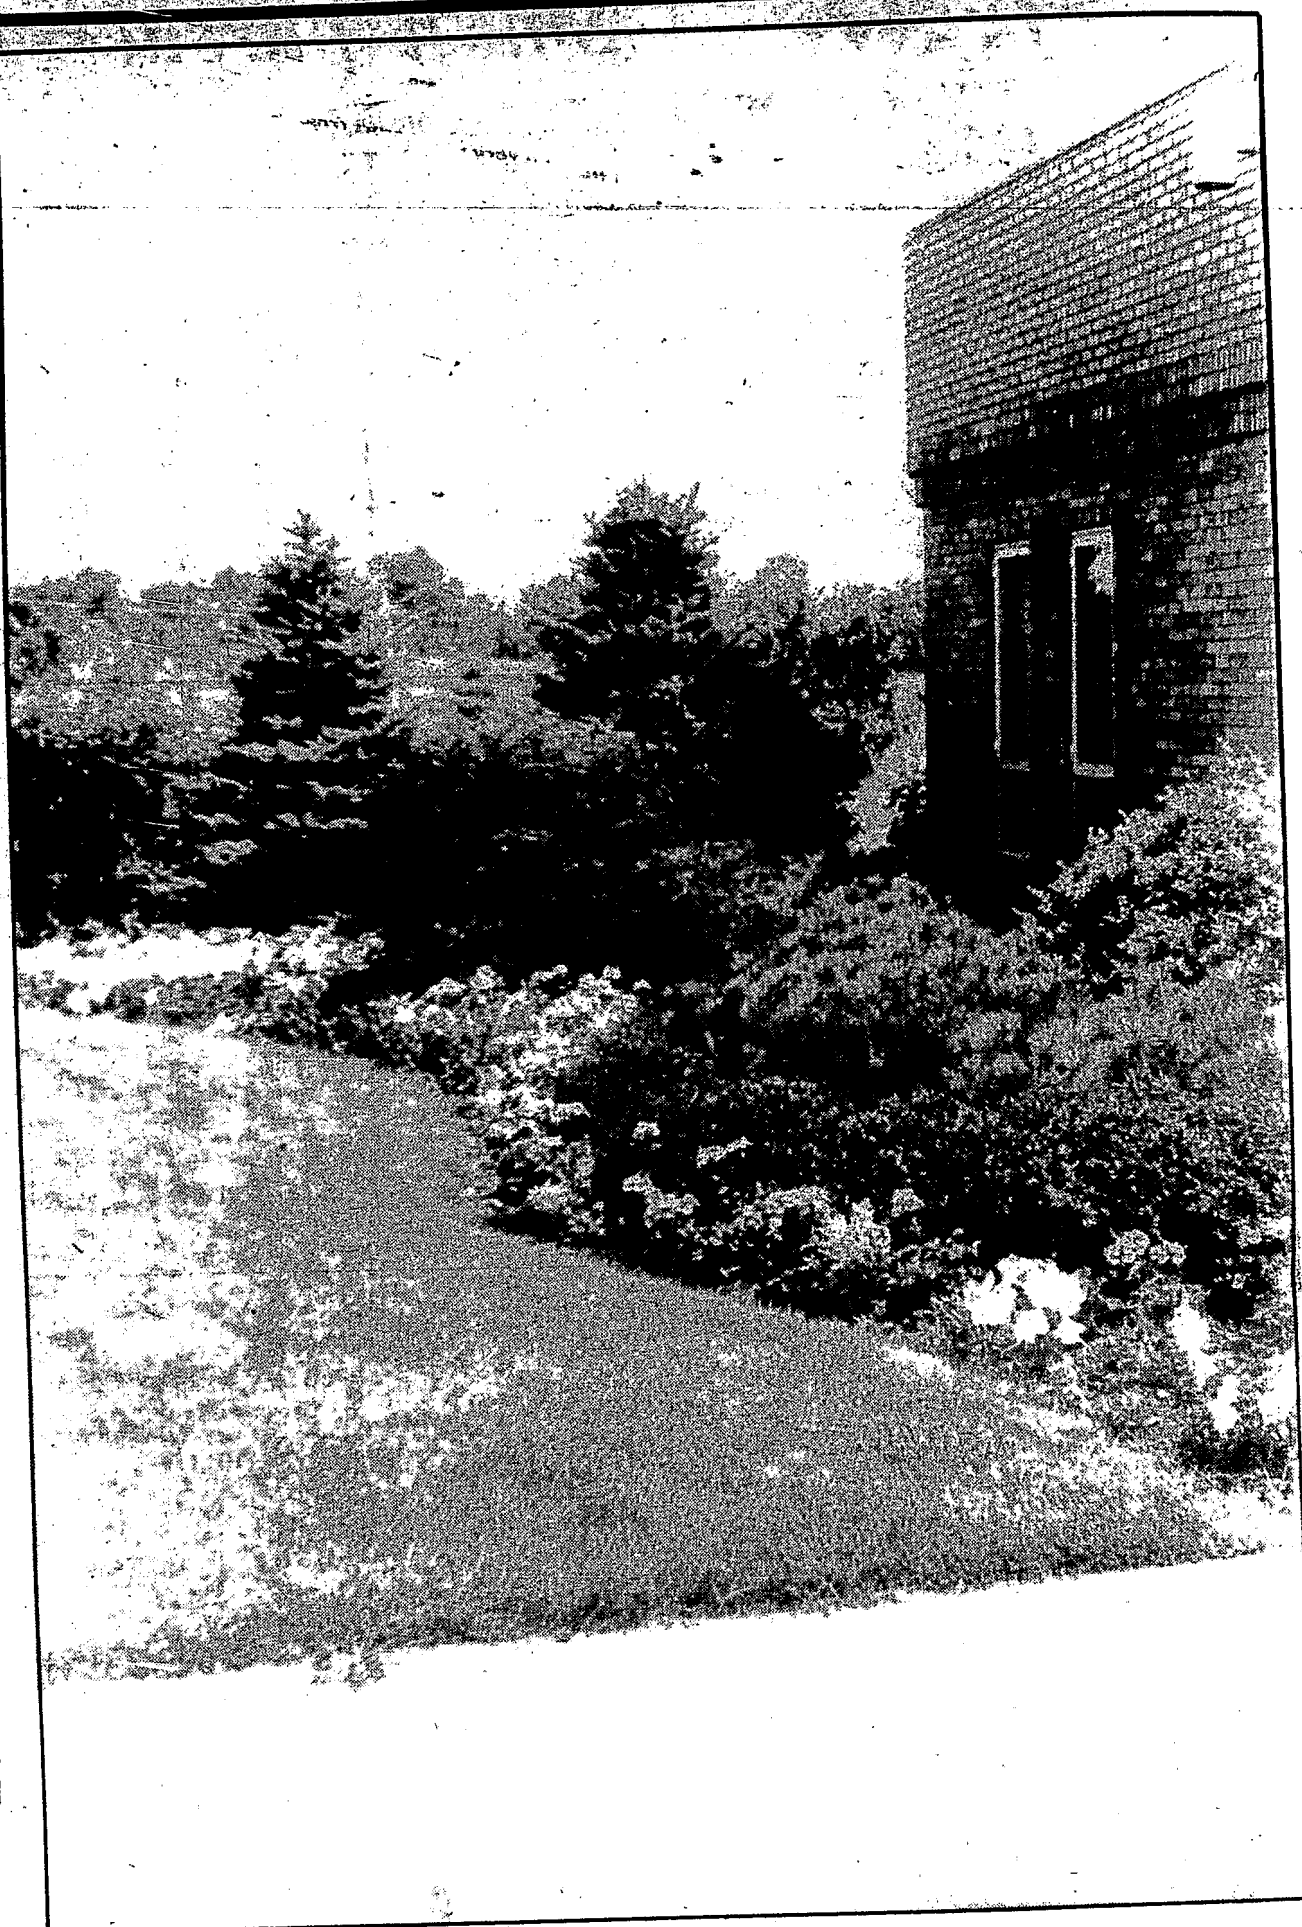

Participants worked from 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. in landscaping and outdoor maintenance activities; they earned minimum wage and one credit towards graduation for their work.

The JTPA is federally funded.

LICENSED INSURED

AT AGE 23, Smith is young for an opera singer. Yet his accomplishments so far include performing in a leading role at Lansing Community College and singing in the chorus of the Michigan Opera Theatre.

Smith pursues opera career

(OPERA from Page 1C)

"It's very young for the opera field," Smith admits. "I like to remember that when I feel like my life is going nowhere."

Contrary to his worst estimations, Smith's career seems to be on a rather fast track.

He first played the leading role of Nemorino in "Elixir of Love" at Lansing Community College, and has appeared in "Romeo and Juliet" and "Don Giovanni" with the Michigan Opera Theatre.

He's currently competing in final auditions for the opera's upcoming season, which he describes as a "challenge."

"Any audition is a challenge," he scowls. "You never know what you're going to do."

The anxiety of auditions is balanced by the thrill of performing, which Smith says is indescribable.

"To be standing there with 10,000 people applauding at the same time — you have to be in that position," he says. "It's the most indescribable feeling."

Even though the Michigan Opera Theatre has an excellent reputation, Smith acknowledges that opera is not for everyone.

"The biggest turnoff is that most people don't know what they're listening for," he explains.

"Opera lends itself to beautiful singing. It's amazing what the human voice can do. These are two delicate strands of muscle. Some of the things people can do with these strands of muscle has to be one of the wonders of the world."

Smith lists Mozart as his favorite composer because it "feels very comfortable" in his vocal range.

As for the future, Smith says he would eventually like to work as a professional singer full time.

He can't predict what he'll be doing, but chances are, it will be opera.
