New Yankee partner has Pine Knob ties

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Pine Knob General Manager J.J. Nederlander believes his uncle, Robert E. Nederlander, has the mettle to lead the New York Yankees into the 21st century.

Robert E. Nederlander was chosen Aug. 15 to replace George Steinbrenner as the Yankees' managing general partner. He is currently the president of the Nederlander Organization, the second-most powerful theater family in the United States.

The family's Michigan holdings include the Fisher Theatre in Detroit, Birmingham Theatre, and Pine Knob Music Theater in Independence Township.

J.J. Nederlander admits he was initially shocked to hear that his uncle was up for the position, but he has faith in his uncle's ability to run the turbulent organization.

"I think he'll do a great job if given a shot with the Yankees," he said.

To officially be named managing general partner of the Yankees, Robert Nederlander needs 75 percent approval from American League owners and majority approval from National League owners. The process should take about 30 days to complete.

If Robert Nederlander is granted the job, J.J. Nederlander doubts his uncle will have to give up his presidency. (See NEDERLANDER, next page)

Praise Concert in Depot Park Sunday

Area residents have a chance to hear one more free concert in the park this year. A Praise Concert is planned for 6-7 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 26, in Clarkston's Depot Park.

Sponsored by the Independence Township Ministerial Association, the concert features the Central Michigan Worship Team of Mount Pleasant.

The four-member group plays contemporary Christian music as well as its own selections. The members will also lead the audience in congregational singing, said the Rev. Kurt Gebhard.

The concert is a result of the "positive feedback from the Praise Festival," said Gebhard, referring to the July festival in which members of area churches performed in Depot Park.

Gebhard recommends that concert-goers bring lawn chairs or blankets and bug spray.

And if it rains, the concert will take place at the First Church of God, 6300 Clarkston Rd., Independence Township.

Not the real thing

PLAY-ACTING is a little too real for a moment for Brett Shader of Independence Township. The toddler burst into tears during a skit by the older children at the day care program at Cedar Crest Academy Aug. 17. During the skit, the big kids pretended to put all children wearing yellow into the dungeon of their cardboard castle. Brett's older brother wore yellow that day, which frightened Brett, who gets a hug by teacher's aide Vicki Parry and from Queen Elizabeth (Melanie Sanders) herself. Just a moment later, however, Brett joins his brother for a visit to the dungeon.

Sign ordinance could make village more uniform

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Signs in the Village of Clarkston may have a different look if the planning commission has its way.

The planning commission and the village council held a joint public hearing Aug. 13 on a proposed sign ordinance. About 20 people attended the meeting and suggested changes to the proposal.

The council and commission took no action, but the commission plans to alter the proposed ordinance amendment at the next planning commission meeting, set for Tuesday, Sept. 4. Meetings are normally held on Mondays, but the Labor Day interrupts the meeting schedule.

Residents suggested changes to clarify the wording covering the percentage of window space allowed for signs, the amount of time for displaying political signs, and the allotted square footage of a sign.

The proposed ordinance amendment would change rules regarding billboards, political signs, non-conforming signs, temporary window signs and sign supports.

For instance, the proposed ordinance calls for the prohibition of billboards.

However, Thomas Gruich, the village's consulting attorney, said that M-15 is a state-owned road, and state law would pre-empt any law the village had in place.

Nederlander advances

tial position with the family business.

"I don't think he'll have to give up his job as president. He's always received the full support of his family members when it comes to the company," J.J. Nederlander said.

J.J. Nederlander said his uncle's exposure in such a prestigious position could help America familiarize itself with the Nederlander name.

"His promotion could make it (the family name) a little more nationally-known," J.J. Nederlander said. "But, hopefully, it will be for all the right reasons instead of the wrong ones."

The village could regulate signs on M-15 but not prohibit them, he added.

Political signs under the proposed ordinance would only be allowed to be placed on private property, displayed for 14 days prior to the election, taken down two days after the election and can be no larger than 24 inches by 36 inches.

Gruich said the proposed political sign ordinance could pose a problem with the First Amendment.

If a political sign appeared three weeks instead of two weeks before an election, as stated in the proposed ordinance, the ordinance could be considered reasonable, he said.

Gruich said he wasn't certain how many court cases there had been over political signs.

"Until it's challenged, let's leave it as it is," said Trustee Eric Haven of the village council.

Planning commission member Thomas Goldner said the sign ordinance is intended to make signs in the village more uniform.

Harold Goyette, of Goyette Funeral Home on Main Street, said he was concerned with the existing ordinance.

Under the ordinance, if his current 32-square-foot sign is knocked down, he can only replace it with a 25-square-foot sign, which is too small, he said.

"If you have a service, they will search you out," Trustee James Schultz responded.

Goyette said he needed a larger sign for his business because many people come to the funeral home after dark.

Corrections

The Clarkston News was informed after Section B was printed this week that guest columnist Don Morrow died Aug. 14. His column appears on Page 11B this week. His obituary will appear in next week's Clarkston News.

An obituary in last week's Clarkston News should have said that Helen Baker of Clarkston was preceded in death by her son Sheldon Baker.

Temporary signs of civic, philanthropic or educational nature will only be permitted for 30 days under the new ordinance, and the sign will not exceed 25 percent of the window.

Sign supports, or the supports that surround a sign, are to be included in the sign size.

Steve Arkwright of the planning commission said the sign at Independence Township Hall on Main Street is an example of a sign with supports that make the sign larger than permitted by the ordinance.

Labor Day festivities begin with pancakes

Pancakes start the Labor Day festivities again this year.

Before the 10 a.m. parade in downtown Clarkston, township residents once again may fuel up on pancakes, thanks to the Independence Township Fire Department.

The Independence Township Firefighters Association is sponsoring its annual Labor Day Pancake Breakfast 7-10 a.m. Monday, Sept. 3.

Pancakes, sausage links, applesauce, juice and coffee will be served at fire station No. 1, at 3 E. Church Street. Cost is $3 for adults and $2 for children under 10.

The proceeds from the breakfast will be divided equally between the Muscular Dystrophy Association and the Burn Center in Ann Arbor.

If you are unable to attend the breakfast but would like to make a donation to the agencies, make your check or money order payable to the agency of your choice and drop it off at the fire department.

The parade, sponsored by the Clarkston Rotary Club, begins at Clarkston Junior High School and travels down Church Street, where it turns north on Main Street and west on Miller Road.

A corn roast follows the parade at the American Legion Hall, M-15, Independence Township.

For more information, call parade organizers Leonard Gorz at 858-0708 or Marc Cooper at 673-1020.

Man arrested on sexual assault charges

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A 35-year-old Independence Township man was arrested for allegedly molesting a 27-year-old Ortonville woman on the evening of Aug. 18.

The names of the suspect and victim have not been released. The suspect will not be identified until after his arraignment.

According to Oakland County Sheriff's Detective Steve Parker, the man is being charged with third-degree criminal sexual conduct. The charge carries a maximum sentence of 15 years imprisonment.

According to police reports, the suspect met the young woman at Hooter's bar in Brandon Township. About 11:30 p.m. Saturday, the woman agreed to return to the suspect's home for a meal and drinks.

The crime occurred at the suspect's residence. According to the woman's testimony, the man dragged her into his bedroom and forcibly removed her clothing.

The suspect sexually molested the woman twice during the evening. After the second attack, the naked woman fled the residence and called police from a neighboring home. She was transported to Pontiac Osteopathic

Hospital for treatment.

Police arrested the man without incident in his home. The woman's discarded clothing was collected for evidence. The suspect is currently being held in the Oakland County Jail.

Growth steady in Springfield

Growth in Springfield Township continues at an even pace as building permits remain relatively the same as 1989.

For the first six months of 1990, 49 permits were issued for homes and 127 permits for additions.

Total permits issued for 1989 were 340 for both additions and homes. In 1980, total permits issued were 298.

Marlena Saucier, secretary for the Springfield Township Building Department, said the growth has remained steady over the last three years.

People must know

Julie Campe

Inga Girschner, one of the most thorough readers of The Clarkston News, noted that a guest column about a couple's experience in the Soviet Union contained a misspelled word a few weeks ago.

The word should have been spelled: "pogrom," says Inga, who looked it up in her Reader's Digest Great Encyclopedic Dictionary.

The word means: An organized and often officially instigated local massacre, especially one directed against the Jews. It is a Russian word, meaning destruction.

"Also, I have heard this word pogrom often, when my mother told me about her experiences in Russia in the years 1917-1922," Inga says.

It is important that people know the proper spelling and meaning of the word, says Inga, who was born Oct. 13, 1922, in Riga, Latvia.

Though her mother and father were married in 1920 in Simferopol (capitol city of the Crimea), her mother returned home to Latvia in 1922, where Inga was born. Her father, Richard Baessler, was to follow, but the Bolsheviks never let him leave Russia, says Inga.

Later, they even forbid him to correspond with sources out of the country.

"We completely lost contact with him," Inga says. "I am 67 years old now, and I have never ever seen my father or any relatives of my father's side."

"My mother never remarried. She is gone from us now since 1966, and even the two pictures of my father — the only ones I had — were lost during the early 1940s, when we were constantly fleeing from the Russians."

Inga and her mother arrived in the United States in 1952, where they "found ... happiness and started a new life all over again."

Before being admitted to the U.S. as an ethnic German under the Displaced Persons Act, Inga was employed as a secretary/interpreter in the International Refugee Organization headquarters, where she used her language skills in English, German, Latvian and some Russian.

She later lived in Long Island, N.Y., where she learned to drive, before moving to Michigan. Eventually, Inga married and had two children: Sven and Inga, who are grown. She and her husband still reside in Independence Township.

There is much that Inga doesn't like to talk about — terrible things that happened during the war, she says, shaking her head.

But there is much she will talk about, such as animals and children, who must be protected and provided for at all costs, she says.

I first met Inga at a public hearing on a proposed hunting ban in Independence Township.

Inga, her voice shaking with emotion, stood before the crowded room and said she did not agree with hunting for sport, and hunting should be banned from the area, especially since an elementary school was near.

It was difficult to judge her age. Her smile was brightened by a hint of lipstick, and her complexion did not reveal her 60-some years. She seemed so vulnerable, but her German accent and soft voice expressed a surprising determination and strength.

I met her again at a Clarkston Area Youth Assistance function, where I learned she was a volunteer. Someone must help the children, she said then, giving her warm smile.

I next saw Inga at a Clarkston Area Optimists meeting, where I learned she was the first female member to join. It makes sense. The Optimists are geared to helping the youth in the community.

"I like children and animals," Inga said at the time, smiling.

I have heard her say it many times since.

When she stopped by The News office a few weeks ago to show us the error in the guest column, her eyes were intense. People must know about pogroms, she said, not smiling.

Some things never change, she said, shaking her head and adding that Iraq's Saddam Hussein is in many ways like Hitler.

People must know about pogroms, she said.

Important hearing

This coming Thursday evening, Aug. 23, the Independence Township Planning Commission will consider revisions to the township master plan.

These revisions include areas throughout the township and will set the pattern for growth in this area for years to come.

We all tend to complain to our township officials when they do things we disagree with. It's much more productive and helpful to let them know your feelings before they vote on such crucial matters.

Therefore, I strongly encourage you to attend this very important public hearing.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 23, in the township annex, 90 N. Main St.

The members of COG hope to see you there.

Doug Carlson

Drive carefully

There is nothing more exciting in life than getting your driver's license or being allowed to drive.

The new-found freedom becomes "sweet relief" from everyday routines. The ability to escape from arguments with your parents, dull school days and going over to a friend's house at will, makes for a wonderful adventure. It allows you to go on many exciting and spontaneous adventures.

We may become light-hearted about driving and become careless. It becomes second-nature to us. We forget that we are positioned behind the wheel of a dynamic killing machine.

If we are late for work or late getting to a scheduled event, we simply drive faster and pray that we get there faster and not late.

However, the thing that we should do is use the phone. Let them know that you are running late, and you're on your way. People need to understand and realize that nothing is so important that it would be worth your life or the lives of other people to get there on time.

We have become a society that often uses a vehicle flamboyantly — driving just to be able to drive. Hopefully with the temporary rise of gas prices we will be driving for a necessary purpose rather than exercising our new-found freedom.

Back in the early 1900s it was fashionable to own a vehicle. Embarking on the 21 century, we find that having a vehicle is commonplace.

Society has forgotten that even though a vehicle is beneficial to our lifestyles it is also a deadly weapon. If you are lucky you could get a ticket for careless driving. At least you would be alive!

I was involved in a car collision in July of 1988. The other person ran a red light about 45 mph at 5:30 p.m. I didn't know or understand the importance of wearing a seat belt.

After languishing in a coma for seven weeks, with my family and friends unsure of whether I would live or die, I have been enlightened about this fact.

I have learned some important lessons I would like to share with you.

First is the importance of family and a belief in God. For me it has been the difference between life and death.

Second is the importance of wearing a seat belt. All my injuries could have been prevented by its use.

Third, always keep your mind on the other driver. They will be affected by your incompetent driving, or you could be affected by theirs.

Fourth is the importance of insurance. I will never again complain of insurance premiums being due. I will instead be thankful that I have gotten through a year where I didn't have to rely on its benefits.

Fifth is the delightful feeling of being able to walk. I will not complain about failing to get a spot close to the shopping market.

Please, please, please be careful when you drive! It could mean the difference between life and death for you and strangers.

Jim's Jottings

It doesn't take kids long to pick up on big kids' toys. You know, the bigger the kid the more the toys. This week I saw a 6-year-old riding his bike, one-handed, down a subdivision street. He was wavering, barely in control of the bike. But he couldn't put both hands on the handle bar because he was talking on a portable telephone. Probably checking with his broker, or mother.

Doesn't it make you wonder where you're going to start itching when you are driving alone in your car and a mosquito lands on the dash, her belly partially filled with blood?

Waiting for a car to be fixed, I went to a Hardees for breakfast. The menu read "sausage and egg", along with other items. I said, "I'll take that and toast." "It comes on a bun," she said. "You're kidding," I said incredulously, finding it hard to believe any restaurant would serve sausage and egg without toast. Wasn't too bad, but I won't try it again, partly because I like to be served, not countered.

Bumper sticker on M-24: "MONEY TALKS (Mine only says goodbye)"

You're an old timer, if you remember when it was classy to have a spotlight on your car. It was extra classy to have one on each side.

I'm always amazed when I read how much birds eat. Dick E. Bird News says a young robin will eat 14 feet of earthworms per day, a house wren will feed its young over 1,000 times from dawn to dusk, a young crow will eat more than their own weight in food per day and adolescent chickadees have been recorded to eat over 5,000 cankerworm eggs daily.

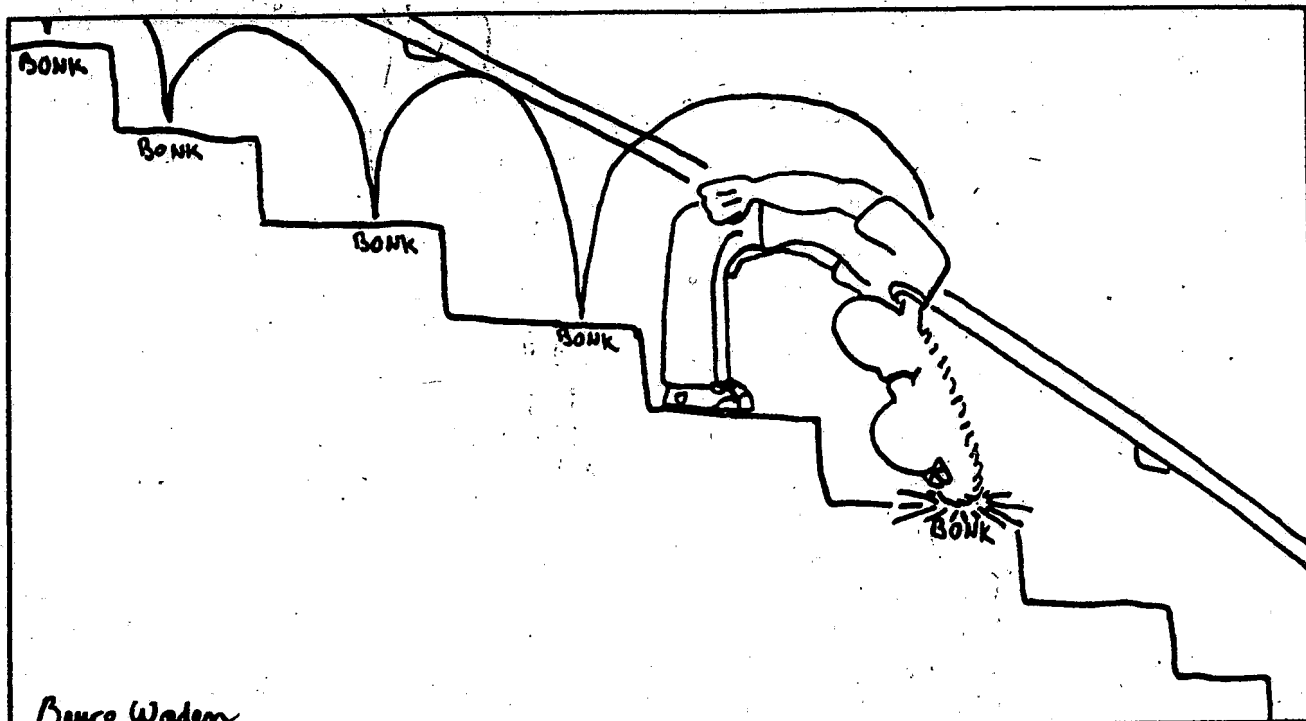

Another figure that's hard to grasp is a billion. A billion seconds ago Harry Truman was President of the United States. A billion minutes ago, a carpenter named Joseph was building things while waiting for a son to be born. A billion hours ago your ancestors were inventing the wheel. A billion dollars ago was just a half-day in Washington D.C.

This guy qualifies as an old timer. He said when he dated during the depression he'd try to keep his date from chewing gum because he heard it made people hungry. He didn't have any money for food.

Editors get all kinds of mail. I got a couple cards of advice this week. One said, "Don't ever doubt your wife's judgement! Look who she married." Another, "A father with a wife and three teenage daughters and only one bathroom is a ... dirty old man." Still another, "My wife is taking vitamin pills ... I'm taking iron pills ... When she's ready, I'm rusty."

Take comedies and truths, but skip the short pants

Jim Fitzgerald

"What are we doing here?" my wife asked.
"Who wants to know?"
"Everybody."

She was probably right.

Specifically, only one young woman, sitting at the next table, had come right out and asked my wife what such an elderly couple were doing in the midst of so much youthful, ear-shattering revelry. But our Social Security appearance was attracting inquisitive glances from all over the big room.

Because of my fondness for saloons, and my preference for slightly warped entertainment, I'm used to risking unconsciousness in crowded joints where I could be the parent of everyone else present, and am wearing the only jacket and tie for miles around. But this evening was more extreme than usual. I could have been everybody's grandparent, and I was the only man wearing long pants.

"Just say I'm here to learn how to whistle through my teeth," I told my wife, "and you're a practical nurse paid to make sure I get home safely every night."

"I don't get paid enough," she said.

We were upstairs at the Old Shillelagh on a Friday night in Greektown, attracted by the music and comedy of Ron Coden, who often calls himself "the Jewish Leprechaun." It was a marvelous place to be if you enjoy eclectic.

The twentyandthirtysomething crowd responded to Coden by yelling, stomping the floor, pounding tables, and whistling. I've always been jealous of people who can whistle shrilly through their teeth. I've never been able to whistle a peep, no matter how hard I try. There were short-panted men in the Old Shillelagh who could whistle up a taxi from two cities away.

On hot days, I'm so jealous of men who wear short pants downtown with aplomb, which looks better than the black socks. Some guys even wear them to the office. My legs are slim without being too knobby, and I'm not sure why I don't have enough confidence to bare them on the street. It may have something to do with my childhood when I was forced to go to school wearing pants so short they revealed the embarrassing garter belt holding up my long stockings. The garter clasps left puffy little indentations in the top of my stockings, and probably in the back of my psyche.

Anyway, I also heard "what are you doing here?" when I told a friend how weird it was to see the same action at the same time live on TV and live on my high-rise window. Got that?

On my TV screen, a reporter was pointing to a pair of shoes and saying they might have been discarded by a slaying suspect who'd just escaped from police headquarters and was being sought by many cops. Through my living room window I could see police headquarters, the shoes, the reporter and the searching cops, on foot and in helicopter. The suspect was quickly recaptured as he dined in a Greektown restaurant.

My friend meant I could afford to move to a suburb, so why did I continue to live in city where a crook can escape from a building full of cops? It must be because I enjoy weird as much as eclectic.

And there's serenity, too. Before going to the noisy Old Shillelagh that evening, we drove a few blocks east to the handsome new River Place Inn in the Siroh complex. We dined on the riverbank patio while lake freighters glided by, almost close enough to touch, a man named Gabriel (honest) blew sweet jazz on the saxophone, and a soft breeze made my long pants cool. It was a gorgeous dinner.

If this city is to improve, we need the truths told in the many books and newspaper columns (including this one) that bash Detroit and the Coleman Young administration. But there are other truths, and some of them are the many splendid reasons for what we are doing here.

I'm not leaving, even if I have to give my practical nurse a pay raise.

From This Perspective

Winds of change

Tracy King

A notice in the window of the Clarkston school administration building confirmed my suspicions. "Welcome to the Board of Education meeting," it read.

Things are really changing, I silently said to myself.

I first suspected this in July when, along with the two new faces seated at the board table, there was laughter among board members. Lots of laughter.

The meeting was punctuated with jokes. Like when Paul Van Klaveren made a wise crack about lawyers, and attorney Tom Howard feigned offense.

"That really hurt," Howard pouted.

"It may hurt, but you don't bleed," Van Klaveren shot back, prompting hisses and catcalls from fellow members.

This is weird, I remember thinking.

The board of old was divisive, and quite obviously so.

Oh, sure, business was conducted. Members decided monstrous issues: firing and hiring an architect, slashing $2 million in programs and personnel, narrowly re-employing a superintendent and orchestrating a successful millage campaign.

All were things that could create friction among a group of seven, and create friction it did.

I squirmed through many a meeting when heated discussion between board members and visitors, or among members themselves, would turn vicious and personal.

Though I believe each and every member felt he or she were working in the best interest of the district, resentments had festered to a dangerous level.

The creation of a new board, with elections last June, gives members a chance to wipe the slate clean and start anew.

President John Needham, though perhaps not as experienced and knowledgeable in school issues as his predecessor Janet Thomas, is deliberate and motivated toward results.

A skilled mediator, he bears a touch of humility and patiently solicits important dialogue among members.

A committee system has been created within the new board; members will work in groups of two or three on issues such as yearly priorities, monitoring budget deviations, facilities needs and evaluating the superintendent.

The board is even considering a seminar on good boardmanship skills, which it would attend as a group with the superintendent.

Tremendous hurdles still lie ahead. Clarkston will remain "in formula" for at least one more year, which means it is still dependent on state funds for survival.

As the community continues to grow, so does the need for more space to educate Clarkston's children. And so on.

The board's new unity is a good sign of things to come. Members can expend energy on chartering Clarkston through the challenges ahead, instead of advancing seven individual opinions.

And the jokes are good, too. Really.

Legislation may protect U.P. rivers

A recent letter to the editor titled "U.P. residents ask for help to keep control of land" might better have been titled "U.P. lumber interest seek to continue destruction of Michigan's rivers and forests."

The U.P. Sportsmen's Alliance in reality merely voices the views of the lumbermen who are behind the push to keep certain Michigan rivers from being included in the National Wild and Scenic River system. Basically, they want to continue to clear cut timber to the river's edge leaving branches, stumps and eroding land behind.

Representative Dale Kildee's (D-Flint) resolution, HR 4019, would give some measure of protection to those rivers.

The Wild and Scenic Rivers Act will maintain existing conditions.

Although "condemnation" is a favorite word of the resolutions opponents, private property is in fact not directly affected.

Private land use, such as homes and farms are, for the most part, compatible with Wild and Scenic River management.

Property values in designated river corridors have actually increased at a higher rate than those for adjacent lands.

If you fish or canoe the Brule or Fence rivers in the western U.P., you will see areas that have been clear cut to the river's edge.

Siltation from soil erosion has ruined what was once prime brook trout habitat on the Brule.

Higher water temperatures caused partly by the clear cutting of shade trees have seriously damaged fishing on the Fence.

Scenery, of course, has been destroyed on both rivers.

All of this has been done despite so-called protection by the Michigan Natural Rivers Act.

H.R. 4019 would establish a one-quarter mile buffer zone on each designated river and prevent timber cutting to the river's edge. It would also prevent more dams being built on these free-flowing rivers. Dam building is another interest of the forest products industry.

If you are interested in helping to preserve these beautiful rivers of Michigan, please write to your congressmen voicing your support for H.R. 4019.

The Forest Service and the National Park Service also have pamphlets available to explain the Wild and Scenic Rivers program.

It takes only a few weeks to destroy a large section of river shore line and a lifetime to repair it. A prompt call or letter to you representatives in Washington is very important for the protection of this valuable resource in what was still a beautiful state.

Head Start helps

My life has changed completely in the past five years, due to my involvement as a Head Start parent.

I had been on a disability retirement from the railroad, watching game shows on TV during the day and the late late show at night. My life had no direction.

Denise, my daughter, started out in Head Start's Pre-Primary Impaired (PPI) Program with speaking and hearing difficulties and allergies.

Our life was a mess until we found Head Start. The first Head Start meeting I attended, I volunteered for the job of Policy Council chairperson, mostly because no one else would. They were afraid to speak in front of groups. Well, I was, too, but I found it got easier and easier. Each time I became more confident, and eventually I brought this confidence into other areas in my life.

The program taught me how to function as a parent and taught my family to function as a group. We prepare healthy meals together, Denise has learned about the texture, flavor and color of many wholesome foods.

We travel to Northern Michigan to attend Head Start meetings and have a great time.

Denise also helps me with chores around the house — we have fun with that, too.

After three years in Head Start, Denise is a talkative, healthy and happy six-year-old. Her medical problems, as well as educational difficulties were addressed by OL-SHA's Head Start program. Her allergy problems are much less severe (she knows which allergy causing foods to avoid), and she even loves vegetables!

Denise sees me as positive role model because I became confident enough to start my own business. Speaking in front of groups and working with groups helped me to see that I have ability and potential.

The Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency has a great program in Head Start. Families grow as individuals, and together.

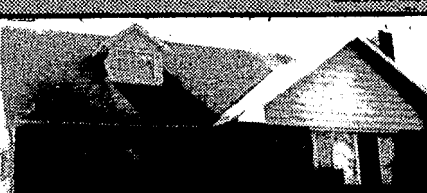

I give myself credit, too, for doing my part. Parents are as important as kids in the Head Start program.

Believe me, you'll get back a lot more than you've given. Guaranteed!

Spring Meadow Estates OK'd on M-15, Hubbard

A site condominium project received final approval for the southwest corner of M-15 and Hubbard Road, Independence Township.

The Independence Township Planning Commission voted 6-0 Aug. 9 to approve the final site plan. Commission member Jo Fussman was absent from the meeting.

The project calls for 52 single-family units on 29 acres. A safety path will be constructed along the project's portion of M-15.

The plan was approved subject to the following conditions:

- Revisions to centralized mailbox locations to better facilitate natural traffic flow.
- Enhanced landscaping along the M-15 roadway.
- Creation of a berm along the north side of the property.
- "Signage" along the bike route on Spring Meadow Lane.

A new part-time employee was hired by the Clarkston Village Council to work in the Clarkston Department of Public Works.

The council voted unanimously Aug. 13 to hire retiree Robert Montgomery at $7.50 per hour to work maintenance.

The village employs one full-time person and two part-time people for maintenance.

Un-American thief

If someone in your family came home with a 3x5' cloth American flag hanging from an aluminum pole with an eagle on the top and said they found it, don't believe them. The stole it from my porch. How un-American can people be?

It can be returned in the same condition it was stolen, no questions asked. The next time thoughts of stealing run through your head, please try to remember, "Treat others as you would like to be treated."

Parks supported

On behalf of the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission, and People for Parks, we would like to extend a most sincere thank you to the voters of Oakland County for their renewal of the 1/4 mill for the Oakland County Parks.

With a 60 percent approval, the result was a real "vote of confidence" from the people who have committed their support to the parks system for nearly 25 years.

For approximately $11.25 a year, homeowners will see the Oakland County parks expanded, improved and well-maintained as clean, safe, family parks.

While the special one-time, one-year-only 1/2 mill for Orion Oaks failed, the commission will be evaluating alternative plans for the park and will be seeking public input for future ideas.

We want to thank everyone who voted and expressed their support.

Candidate says thanks for votes

Thank you to all who supported my effort to become your next Oakland County Commissioner.

With eight able primary competitors in that race, I am honored that I have been selected to take on the Democratic candidate this fall.

I sincerely hope that with the primary election behind us all area voters will offer their continued support to me in the general election in November.

Since I am one who tries never to make promises that can't be kept, I can only pledge that when elected I will represent our district to the best of my ability and in the best interest of those I have been elected to serve.

'Business as usual' in U.S. Naval classroom

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

It's "business as usual" in U.S. Navy Training Squadron 10, Pensacola, Fla., despite intense Naval operations in the Middle East.

Mark Peters, 35, a lieutenant in the U.S. Navy and a flight instructor in Training Squadron 10, visited his family on Maiden, Waterford Township, last weekend and talked about his part in the operations.

The father of two was up for the weekend for an open house at the Pontiac-Oakland Airport, where his plane

"We import almost everything we use; oil is an example. ... If Iraq controls 40 percent of the oil, what's going to happen to our standard of living?"

Navy Lt. Mark Peters

was on display.

So far, the Middle East crisis has not affected his job, he said, explaining that he was on leave when Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2 and the United States rushed to the Persian Gulf.

He was back to work less than a week before leaving to visit his hometown, where he was graduated from Clarkston High School in 1973.

But in the Pensacola classroom, "it's basically business as usual," he said, explaining that he didn't expect anything different.

He graduated from Central Michigan University, Mount Pleasant, with a degree in education, with an emphasis in history. When he couldn't find a teaching job in the mid-1970s, he worked at General Motors Truck and Coach plant in Pontiac. Eventually, he joined the Navy.

Trained as a naval flight officer (NFO), he now trains other NFOs to "do everything pilots don't," he said.

A crisis wouldn't change his job, he said.

In his eight years in the Navy, he was part of the crew in an S3, a carrier-based airplane that requires two NFOs. The S3's major duty is to look for submarines, he said. He has also flown in P3s.

As an instructor, Peters' job now is to provide basic aviation training for NFOs, who range in age from 22 to

MARK PETERS enjoys his leave from the U.S. Navy. He visited his parents, James and Joan, last weekend. Five of the Peters children wear uniforms, according to Joan, who was formerly a teacher. Kevin is in the Air Force Reserves; Lynn is in the Air Force, while his sister Dorothy is in the Naval Reserves; Jon is with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department. Steve teaches in the West.

28. Since he teaches the basics, the Persian Gulf activity hasn't affected his job at all, he said, adding that the NFOs he trains will receive specific training later.

"We teach the basics — how to get from point A to point B. It's fundamentally like driving a car," he said.

Before he became a Naval instructor, Peters' job as an NFO centered on the Soviets, he said.

"Before, the submarines I went out to look for were ballistic missile submarines," he said, adding that the submarines were capable of sending atom bombs to U.S. cities.

"My mission was to stop those submarines from doing their mission," he said.

"That's probably not as important now as in the past," he said, explaining that new relations with the Soviets have lessened the threat of a Soviet attack.

NFOs also are trained to help in drug interdiction and rescue missions, he said.

Peters said he didn't know how NFOs would be trained specifically to deal with situations in the Persian Gulf.

He also declined to make any predictions about the course of events in the Middle East.

"No, I can't predict anything," he said.

"Some things never change. The U.S. is an island within. We import almost everything we use; oil is an example. We depend on world commerce as our standard of living. ... If Iraq controls 40 percent of the oil, what's going to happen to our standard of living?" he said.

A strong Navy is necessary to control the situation, he said.

You can bet Peters will do his part.

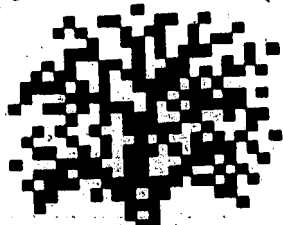

"The Navy gave me a good airplane. They gave me good training. My job is to defend the nation," he said.

Planners approve condo expansion

The Independence Township Planning Commission granted conceptual site plan approval to a proposed fourth phase of the Northcrest Condominiums, near White Lake Road and Dixie Highway.

The commission voted 6-0 to approve the plan. Commission member Jo Fussman was absent from the meeting.

The petitioner, Forrest E. Milzow, said the phase will include 20 additional condominium units on 5.6 acres north of the existing project. The condos will be either ranch style units or two-story buildings.

Milzow said he plans to create a loop road around the White Lake Commons shopping center, giving the project an outlet to White Lake Road.

Conceptual approval was granted subject to the following concerns:

■ Preservation of trees in and around the proposed development.

■ Evaluation of a right hand turn lane on Dixie Highway near Northcrest's existing entrance.

Freshmen shouldn't worry about competition

Signs advertising "back to school" sales fill many young people with dread. But few of them are more worried than students who are going to begin their first year in college in September.

For most college freshmen, September means a giant step toward maturity and away from the security of home and family. Many of them have given a lot of thought to social changes they will go through as they meet new friends and start living as adults.

But relatively few of them are prepared for the enormous change in the type of work they will be expected to do in college compared with work they did in high school.

"College freshmen believe that there must be some difference between high school and college, but their ideas about what the difference is are often radically mistaken," says Jack W. Meiland, professor of philosophy at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

"College work is more complex and intellectually sophisticated than the work most students did in high school," Meiland says. "Freshmen need to understand what college faculty members expect from them, and the sooner they understand that the better they will do in college."

Meiland, associate dean of the U-M's College of Literature, Science and the Arts, is the author of "College Thinking: How to Get the Best Out of College." Earlier this year he was named one of the nation's outstanding freshman advocates by the National Center for the Freshman Year Experience.

"Many college students and college graduates have told me that it took them several years of college before they realized what kind of work was expected of them and what the faculty was trying to teach them," Meiland says.

"Perhaps if someone had taken these students aside and tried to explain the nature of college to them, they would not have felt so confused and they might have used their college years more effectively."

The primary difference between high school and college is the level of critical thinking expected of college students, according to the U-M professor.

"In their written assignments, college students are expected to argue positions, rather than simply write reports as they did in high school," Meiland says.

"They have to learn how to read complicated texts and interpret them correctly, and they have to learn how to evaluate conflicting hypotheses and theories."

Ability to think critically, argue on paper keys to success for college freshmen, says U-M scholar. Don't worry so much about competition.

The U-M has developed a number of programs to help freshmen adapt to college-level work, Meiland notes. In particular, a number of "freshman seminar" courses, designed to emphasize writing skills, are taught by retired professors and focus on specific topics. In addition, a number of "collegiate seminars," taught by regular faculty members, emphasize critical thinking, writing and class participation.

Perhaps the biggest difficulty most college freshmen encounter is the competition for high grades.

"Almost by definition, most students who go on to college have done very well in high school," Meiland says. "But when they come to college, they find that all of their classmates were in the top of their classes in high school. It can come as quite a shock."

He says the students should not be intimidated by the competition.

"The fact that you've been admitted to college means that we believe that you will be successful at it," he says.

Students should do their own work and focus on their own goals. "And don't judge your success by comparing yourself with others," he says.

Springfield youth sings in Wolverine

Thirteen-year-old Stacy King was the Clarkston school system's lone participant at this summer's Wolverine Music Camp in Wolverine.

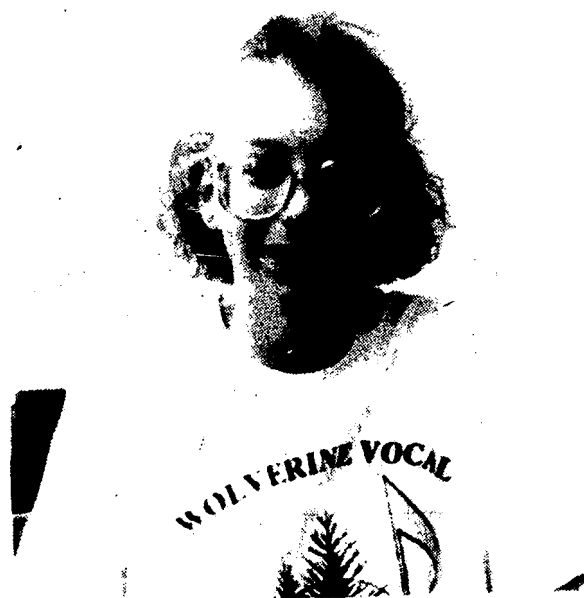

The Springfield teen-ager was invited to the camp after her Sashabaw Junior High School music instructor, Danielle Blanchard, sent a letter of recommendation to camp officials.

According to King, the camp lasted one week, from July 8-14, and involved about 100 other students. She said the students sang an average of four hours per day, besides participating in extra-curricular activities such as swimming and tubing.

King, who aspires to sing in the Clarkston High School music program, said the week was filled with many enjoyable memories.

"We had fun singing, tubing and running the obstacle courses. I'm glad I went because I made a lot of new friends," she said.

3-sport Wolves an endangered species

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Three-sport athletes are becoming dinosaurs at Clarkston High School, especially the upperclassmen.

Out of 112 senior athletes last season, only three competed in three sports (which includes cheerleading and pom pon): Jody Lopucki, Wally Wyniemko and Kellie O'Neil.

Just eight of 82 junior athletes participated in three sports while nine (no girls) of 119 sophomores played in three.

Freshmen (who compete for the Wolves, the Sashabaw Junior High Cougars or the Clarkston Junior High Wolverines), by far, had the most three-sport athletes, 32 of 183.

Last year's athletes were involved in the school's pay-to-participate program. However, athletes paying for two sports could play a third one for free.

Clarkston Athletic Director Paul Tungate has some theories about the decrease in three-sport athletes, especially during the past 24 years while he has either coached or been the AD.

"Twenty-four years ago, at least 50 percent of the athletes played three sports," said Tungate.

The AD said one reason is "kids have more options" today.

Those "options" include working more after school or having more leisure activities away from school.

The size of a school or its location may also determine the amount of three-sport athletes. More students may feel obligated to go out for sports at a school with a very small enrollment. Also, students attending schools (even larger ones) in rural communities may go out for more sports because there aren't as many options after school (employment, leisure activities, etc.).

More options for students today also include having to choose from a larger selection of sports. Tungate said 24 years ago, there were only about eight different teams in grades 7 to 12. Today, there are 55 teams.

Ironically, even though there are more sports available, Tungate said there is a trend in recent years for athletes to specialize in one or two sports. For example, some athletes are competing in AAU basketball during the spring instead of running track or playing baseball. Or an athlete may be running on her own during the winter instead of playing volleyball or skiing.

Tungate said another reason for this specialization may be television, especially in the broadcasting of high visibility sports such as football, basketball or baseball. He said athletes may concentrate on one particular sport in hope of a future college scholarship. But the chances of that happening are slim.

"Less than 1 percent get full-rides," said Tungate.

Among that less than 1 percent include Wolves Dan Fife (basketball), Tim McCormick (basketball), Mike McCormick (basketball), Dan Jokisch (football) and Rhonda Jokisch (basketball). Of those five, only Fife played all three sports throughout high school.

Senior Carrie Roeser, who was one of only two junior girls last year to play three sports (Stacey Secatch was the other), added a few other reasons for the lack of three-sport athletes, especially in their final few years in school.

"Some get tired of not playing or others get tired of the sport itself," said Roeser, who has earned five varsity letters so far while playing basketball, skiing and running track.

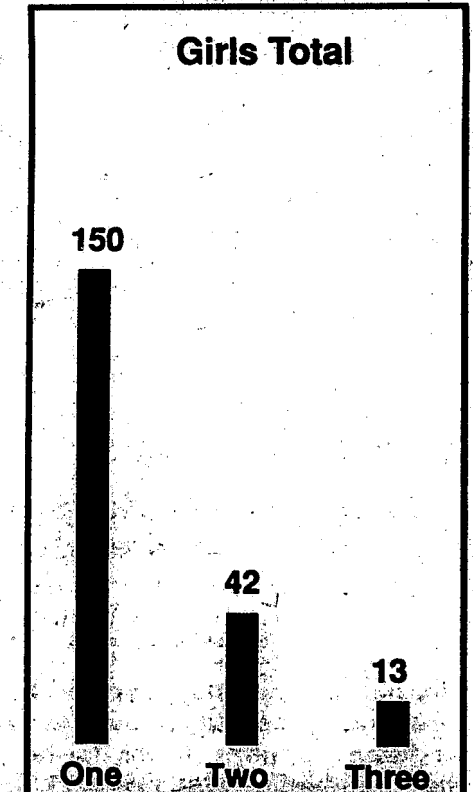

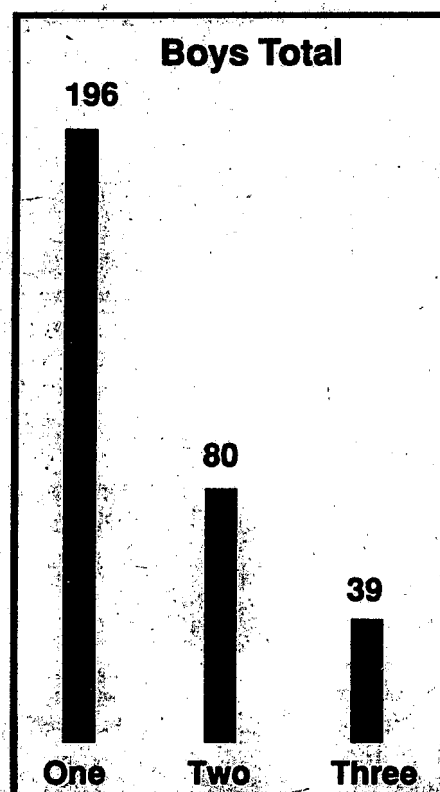

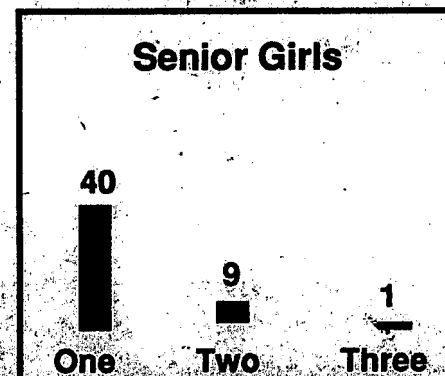

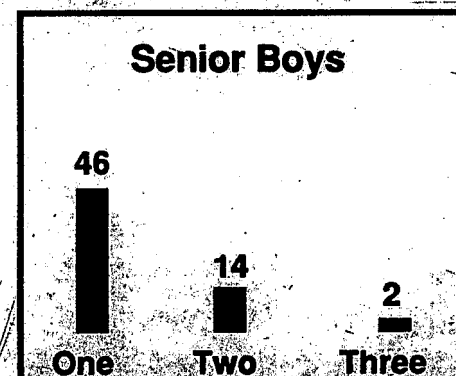

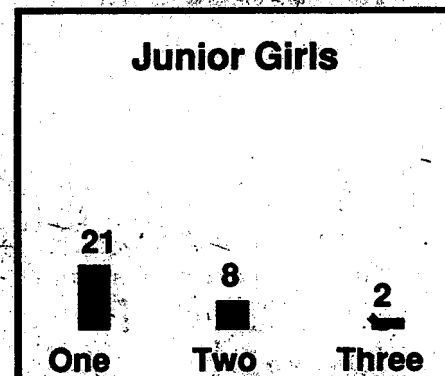

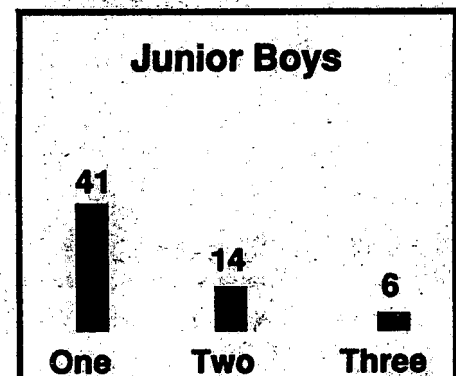

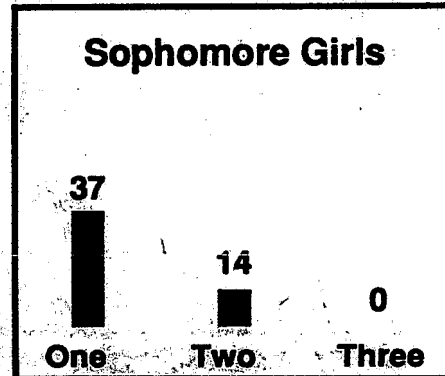

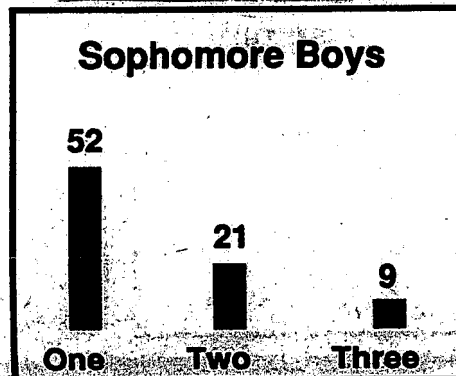

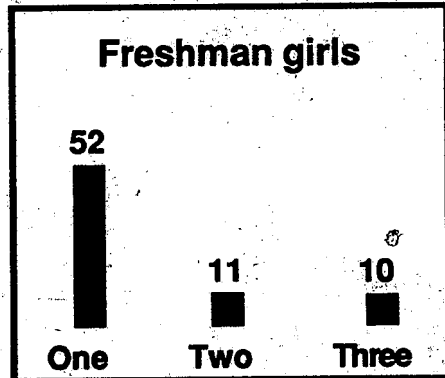

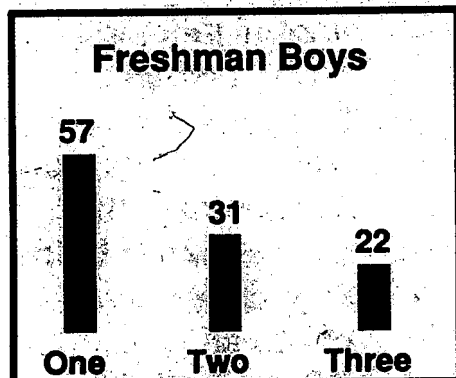

Getting tired of the sport itself is another way to describe "burnout." Burnout is often associated with athletes (tennis stars, for example) starting at a very early age and dropping out of a sport before they would normally hit their prime. Athletes who play a particular sport year-round also have more of a tendency to get burned out than those playing a variety of sports.

One positive feature about the decline of the three-sport athlete is that it allows some athletes, who normally would not have made a team, to replace those not going out. Tungate said, overall there are more students playing sports than ever.

It's just that there aren't as many Bo Jacksons in high school.

As everyone knows, Bo knows football, baseball, hockey, tennis, golf ...

The graphs below indicate the number of Clarkston athletes (grades 9-12) playing one, two or three sports during the 1989-90 school year

Cagers will rely on quickness, press

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Spectators watching Clarkston varsity girls' basketball won't have to be looking up as much this fall, but they'll have to turn their heads more often.

In what head coach Larry Mahrle calls a "180 degree" change, last year's tall team has turned into this season's short and quick squad.

Five of the top seven players in 1989 have graduated, including 6-footers Susan McKoin and Rhonda Jokisch, who dominated underneath last season for the 18-2 Wolves and co-champions of the Greater Oakland Activities League.

However, five veterans return along with a host of young players.

"Our goal is to repeat as league champs," said coach Mahrle. "We won't be favored, but we won't back down from anybody."

Two starters are back, captain Jennifer McChesney and Carrie Roeser. They both were guards last season, but the two may see action elsewhere because of the team's lack of height.

McChesney, a three-year starter, was a 1989 all-GOAL selection, averaging 8 points and five assists. She suffered a hamstring injury last month but Mahrle said the senior looked recovered in a recent scrimmage.

The coach said McChesney is one of the hardest working athletes he has ever and one freshman. Changes may be made before the team's first game Aug. 28 at home against Lakeland.

While lack of height and some inexperience are the team's weaknesses, Mahrle is quick to point out his team's strengths.

"Our attitude is good, we work well together. We have good ball handlers, are strong in the guard position and we press well," said the coach.

The exact type of offense the Wolves will run is still in question because of the newness of the season, but Mahrle said his team will definitely press on defense, taking advantage of the team's quickness and mobility.

"We'll play 94-foot basketball," said Mahrle. "We'll make the other team work to bring it up court."

The coach expects co-champion Waterford Kettering to be tough. The Captains return three varsity starters along with players from a 19-1 JV squad.

He said Pontiac Northern also will be strong, returning "everybody."

RETURNING seniors for the Wolves are from left, Carrie Roeser, Beth Walker and captain Jennifer McChesney.

Netters will be strong on singles court

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

One thing for sure, the Clarkston girls' tennis team will not get any bouts of senioritis this fall.

However, even though there will be no seniors, the Wolves will field a few experienced players and some strong young prospects.

"We're stronger in singles than last year, but not as strong in the doubles," said eight-year coach Dick Swartout. The Wolves finished 5-5 last season.

Fall sports preview

Clarkston may be senior-less but there are some players who have seen plenty of action on the court.

"When you have Caroline (Allison) and Heather (Shaw), it's like having seniors," said Swartout about the two players that already have earned two varsity letters.

Allison is the returning No. 1 seeded singles player and Shaw is the defending No. 3 singles champion of the Greater Oakland Activities League.

Allison wasn't pushed in practice last year, but she will get plenty of competition from freshman Kristy Swartout this season. The No. 2 seeded Swartout has been trading sets with Allison in practices.

Three other lettermen returning are Jessica Miller, Katie Morris and Tracey Ortwine. Miller and Ortwine teamed up in second doubles last year and Morris played No. 4 singles and first doubles.

Freshman Amanda Van Klaveren will be battling some of the veterans for a spot. Three other players, juniors Becky Rumph and Kim Carpentier and sophomore Melissa O'Dea, return with junior varsity letters to their credit.

Three other newcomers are sophomores Buffy Duel, Cari Sundquist and Erika Graham.

Coach Swartout said Lake Orion will again be the favorite in the GOAL. The Dragons have won the league title nine years in a row.

The coach said Kettering will have a good squad, Mott has graduated all of its singles, and Brandon and Pontiac Northern are rebuilding.

Except for Mott, all of the No. 1 seeds in the league will be returning.

The Wolves opening match will be away against Rochester Adams Sept. 6.

The tennis season isn't long (Sept 6 to the regionals on Oct. 12), but the Wolves will often be playing four to five matches within a week.

Front-page sports

Last week, while listening to the morning news on the radio, I heard President Bush answer reporters about a Middle East question and then abruptly say, "I've got to run."

I thought to myself, he must be in a hurry to leave Kennebunkport, Maine, and get back to the White House.

That evening, I not only heard but watched the president say, "I've got to run." At that moment, I saw that he wasn't in a hurry for a flight back to Washington, D.C., but rather in a hurry (on his golf cart) to get to the next green.

There has been much discussion about whether presidents should be on vacation during a crisis, or, on the other hand, be held hostage within the White House during one.

The combination of the crisis in Iraq mixed with a round of golf in Maine has made me think about how certain events in history may have been altered if they had been affected by sports.

■ Adam and Eve: Eve asks Adam, "C'mon, let's go get one of those apples on that tree?"

Adam replies, "No. How about you and I have a race over to those fig leaves?"

They dash to the fig leaves, which just happened to be 100 yards away, and the rest is history.

■ 44 B.C., Rome: It's the Ides of March and Brutus and Cassius are ready to complete their fiendish plot to murder Julius Caesar. But when they get to the Senate, they find out Caesar is away, racing his chariot at the Coliseum.

Brutus and Cassius are arrested and sent to the Coliseum, where Caesar yells at Cassius and then replies, "Et tu, Brute."

■ 1492, the New World: Christopher Columbus sails to the New World, where he lands in what is known as Ohio.

He is confronted in a battle by Indians, who reside in what is known as Ann Arbor. Later in history it is thought of as the first battle between Ann Arbor and Columbus.

■ 1776, Philadelphia: Many of the colonists, including those at Independence Hall on July 4, 1776, are still undecided about whether they should break away from ties with England.

But Benjamin Franklin finally convinces everyone to sign the Declaration of Independence after he dramatically asks the delegates, "Would you rather be a citizen of a country that has cricket or baseball as its national pastime?"

■ 1880: Thomas Edison is just about ready to invent the first practical electric light, when a friend invites him to Chicago. Edison's friend takes him downtown to a plot of land on Addison, where he describes how someday he will build a baseball park (later to be named Wrigley Field).

Edison, who admired Abner Doubleday (the inventor of baseball in 1839), goes back home and destroys his plans for the invention of electric lights. Edison sighs and says, "The world remains a dark place, but I can't wait to watch daytime baseball at Wrigley."

■ Dec. 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor, Hawaii: President Franklin Roosevelt invites Emperor Hirohito to discuss the possibility of sending some American baseball players to teach the Japanese how to play baseball.

Joe DiMaggio and Ted Williams, following FDR's request, leave for Tokyo where they teach the Japanese the fine art of baseball.

Roosevelt, in his speech, calls it "A day that will live in infamy."

■ 1949: George Orwell looks at a rough draft of his latest book entitled, 1984. One of the major themes is about a futuristic "Big Brother is Watching" society.

However, one night he dreams about baseball players wearing Old English D's on their caps, with names like Trammell, Morris, Gibson and Hernandez on their backs. He decides to change the theme of the book and rewrites a story about a future World Series between the Detroit Tigers and the Chicago Cubs (Orwell had no idea San Diego would ever get a baseball team).

■ 1972, the Watergate hotel, Washington, D.C.: The Watergate's lone security guard decides to leave work early so he can go watch the Baltimore Orioles play against the New York Yankees.

Later that night, five burglars break into Democratic National Headquarters at the Watergate. While they rampage through Democratic files, the security guard is enjoying watching the Orioles crush the Yankees.

Watergate continues to be known as just another hotel, Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein are only known by a few thousand readers around Washington, D.C., and Richard Nixon completes two terms.

■ August, 1990, Iraq: Advisers to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein suggest that Iraq invade Kuwait.

Hussein tells them that first he wants to watch the rest of the Goodwill Games on TBS, especially the finals of women's gymnastics.

Later that day, President Bush, sensing that the Middle East is getting more tense, invites Hussein over to Kennebunkport, Maine, for a round of golf.

As Bush listens on his cordless phone, Hussein agrees to fly in for some golf and jokes, "Watch out, George, I'm great getting out of sand traps."

A few days later, while reporters try to ask Bush and Hussein some questions, Bush replies, "We've got to run," and the two drive away to the next green.

Skins Classic brings pros to Indianwood

If golf, on an intimate level (with some greats within your sights) is what you like, the Skins Classic at Indianwood Golf & Country Club, this Monday, is something you'll enjoy.

This inaugural event will feature four of the top professional golfing stars competing for $100,000.

The players are headlined by "The 1989 PGA Tour Player of the Year" and all time leading money winner, Tom Kite. Kite will be joined by winner of 6 PGA tour events, Paul Azinger.

In addition Craig Stadler, a former Masters Champion and winner of 8 PGA tour events, and Donnie Hammond, who finished 20th on the PGA tours money list in 1989, with over $450,000 in earnings, will round out Indianwood's second major golfing event in just over a year's time.

In July of 1989, the world of golfing was introduced to Lake Orion's Indianwood with international coverage of that year's US Women's Open.

Monday's one day event features something for everyone; there's a corporate scramble—teams sponsored will play 18 holes for an all expenses paid trip to Scotland.

Also, Art Sellinger will show fans the art of driving. Sellinger is a "National Long Drive Champion."

In addition, the On-Course Announcer will serve as the link between the players and spectators bringing both together in a unique and entertaining manner, tournament director, Craig Simmers, says.

The Indianwood Skins Classic is sponsored by Stan Aldridge, owner of Indianwood and Sports Corp., Inc., a sports promotion firm in Baltimore, Maryland. Simmers is president of SportsCorp.

Proceeds from the August 27 event will benefit the Detroit Childrens Hospital.

Recreation Roundup

MEN'S 30-AND-OVER BASKETBALL LEAGUE

Independence Township Parks and Recreation will be sponsoring a Men's 30-and-over Basketball League scheduled to begin Sept. 20.

Game day will be Thursdays, with game times at 6, 7, 8 and 9 p.m. It is recommended that players register as a team, but individual names will also be taken and passed on to coaches needing additional players. Teams will play eight games, plus playoff contests.

TOGETHER TOTS

Registration is taking place for the Together Tot program, which is designed for children ages 20 months to 3 1/2 years. Fun and learning are combined in a play-group atmosphere.

Children learn language concepts, which lead to skills in expressing ideas. Parent and child participate in finger plays, songs, games, arts and crafts, stories and field trips. Sitters, guardians or grandparents are welcomed.

The Monday and Wednesday morning classes, limited to 12 per session, are scheduled to begin the first week of September.

FOR MORE INFORMATION

Call 625-8223 or stop by the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston. The office is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Lunch prices up

Clarkston school lunch prices are going up for students and adults beginning in the 1990-91 school year.

School board members approved a 10-cent increase for elementary lunches and a 25-cent increase for secondary and adult lunches. The milk price will go up five cents a carton.

The last increase for secondary lunch prices was in January of 1989, said Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara. Elementary lunch prices were last changed in September 1987.

The price increases are expected to earn the school lunch program an additional $24,780 a year in revenue on earnings of $2,326 a day.

Though the lunch program is expected to post a deficit for the 1989-90 school year, these increases plus a reduction in labor is expected to make the program break even in 1990-91, Vaara said.

Substitute teacher full-day pay hiked

Substitute teachers got a raise for the 1990-91 school year in Clarkston.

School board members unanimously voted Aug. 13 to approve a $4-a-day increase for a full day of teaching. Half-day pay will remain the same.

Substitute teachers currently earn $50 a day for filling in. The half-day rate is $30 a day.

Bill Neff, director of administrative services, told the board that the scale was equal or lower to other districts in the area.

According to a chart prepared by Neff, current substitute pay in Clarkston, Holly and Lake Orion was $50, while Brandon paid $52 and Rochester and Waterford each allotted $54 a day.

This year substitute pay was expected to increase in every community but Lake Orion, Neff said.

Holly would pay $53 a day, while Clarkston Brandon and Rochester would pay $54. Waterford is expected to pay $56.

Three-car collision sends two to hospital

BY DEBORAH WILSON

A three-car collision in Orion Township Thursday, Aug. 16, sent two people to the hospital and totaled all vehicles.

The accident occurred about 4 p.m. at the corner of Flint Street and M-24, Orion Township, when a 1989 Chrysler driven by Ruby Clayton, 75, of Clarkston failed to stop.

According to eyewitness Jim Rozanski, a Cherokee Jeep driven by Randolph Ori, 32, of Lapeer was stopped behind the white line at the red light. A Ford Tempo driven by David Paul Holden was behind him.

"I never heard the brakes," said Rozanski. "All I heard was the boom. When I looked up, the light was still red."

Apparently, Clayton's vehicle hit the Tempo, which hit the Jeep, sending it reeling.

Clayton's vehicle spun after striking the Tempo and slid across M-24, where it rammed into the light pole in front of Concord Drugs. Her airbag ruptured on first impact, according to the Lake Orion Police Department report.

The Tempo was badly mangled, and firefighters spent 30 minutes using the Jaws of Life rescue tools to free Holden from the wreckage.

Clayton and Holden were admitted at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac.

Deborah Wilson is a staff writer for The Lake Orion Review.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

CONDO BOUNDS OF OWNERSHIP

QUESTION: Just what is a condominium and what would be my bounds of ownership in relation to the other inhabitants if I purchased one?

ANSWER: Condominium is a latin word meaning "own together" and is a form of ownership whereby individuals can own an apartment, town house or other type complex. It is much the same as owning your own home except the structure in which your apartment is located, the hallways, facilities and the grounds are owned in common. In short, you own the interior space within the walls of your apartment. Everything else is owned in common with the others and the expense of maintaining the "common elements" is shared by all.

AS A CONDO OWNER, you own the interior space of your living quarters. Everything else is owned in common.

Township, village see ongoing road construction

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Sashabaw Road, from Waldon to Clarkston roads, is one of the Road Commission for Oakland County's top 10 priorities in terms of road widening.

However, funding for this type of road revision is currently unavailable.

This particular stretch of Sashabaw Road was charted seventh in terms of need, on a priority list developed by the Road Commission. It was the lone Independence Township roadway represented in the listing.

Haggerty Road, from Eight Mile to Nine Mile, in Novi was named the county's number one priority in terms of road widening and repair. In fact, Novi had four "priority needs" in the road commission's top 10 list.

Brent Bair, deputy managing director of the Road Commission, said the prioritized list was based on four "factors." These factors included: road congestion, safety, service condition at the present time, and potential for economic development.

Each "factor" had a separate point system, with the standings based on an individual roadway's cumulative total.

Despite the lack of funds, Bair said the listing serves as a prioritized model.

"If we had the funds, these standings would represent a potential listing, but right now those monies don't exist," Bair said.

Bair added that the Road Commission's $53 million budget, unveiled last week, would go toward maintaining existing roadways and projects earmarked from the start. One of these projects includes adding left-turn lanes at the intersection of Sashabaw and Maybee roads in Independence Township.

Gorbachev discovers economic mess, unrest

Following is the last of four articles about the Soviet Union. The author, Don Morrow, gathered his material over eight months while visiting his wife, Robin Bisha. Bisha is a 1979 Clarkston High School graduate who spent an academic year in the Soviet Union doing research for her doctoral degree. She's studying Russian history at Indiana University, Bloomington, Ind., and is the daughter of John Bisha of Clarkston.

BY DON MORROW

May:

As I fly over the Atlantic Ocean back to the United States, I am reflecting on what an educational experience these past eight months living in Leningrad have been for me. The Soviet Union is definitely a country unto itself, and daily life there is very hard to imagine unless you have been there for an extended period.

When I left, things seemed to be worsening. Telephone calls to the United States from Leningrad have a quota of only 10 per day — and this in a city of over 5 million people.

The procedure for calling the United States is quite purchase anything in a regular store. (The dorm administration issued the foreign students special "buyers cards" so they still would be able to eat!) Vegetables were down to potatoes, carrots, cabbage and onions.

One of the shocking discoveries I made when I first arrived was how unpopular Gorbachev is and his popularity had shrunk to about zero when I left. With the economy a wreck, ethnic unrest reaching a boiling point and the demands for independence by some of the republics, many people have lost faith in Gorbachev's ability to govern the U.S.S.R.

Many of the beautiful buildings in Leningrad are crumbling from lack of money and supplies for paint and repairs. Hospitals are running out of water, and syringes are reused.

Combined with the lack of production of condoms, the spread of AIDS is a genuine fear. Hotels for foreigners are teeming with hard currency prostitutes and black marketeers, and more than once I witnessed police and doormen being paid off to look the other way.

In addition, a strong right wing movement is under way with the group Pamyat taking the lead with talks of pogroms and other anti-semitic activities. A strong mafia controls many taxis, the open vegetable market and many of the hard currency stores.

I do not envy Gorbachev, and I wish the Soviet Union success as it goes through its growing pains. I am very glad I went, but I am more glad I could come home.

formidable. You must arrive at the main post office by 7 a.m., wait until 10 a.m. when orders for phone calls to the United States are taken, and then your call will be placed four days later. This is all assuming you happen to be one of the first 10 people in line. (Maybe it's not so bad, only four calls a day may be placed to Italy.)

When I first arrived in Leningrad in September, tea, sugar and all types of soap were being rationed. When I left, these were all still being rationed as well as informal limits as to how much meat and cheese you could buy (two kilograms of meat per month and half a kilo of cheese — although there never was any cheese).

In addition, a passport system was implemented where you had to prove you were a Leningrad resident to

Healthy eating begins in supermarket

With the literally thousands of food items lining grocery shelves, healthy marketing decisions can be difficult.

"The aisles surrounding the perimeter of the supermarket are usually the healthiest areas to frequent," advises Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

The fresh produce, dairy and meat, fish and poultry departments are usually located around the sides of the supermarket.

These aisles have foods in their most natural state, free of added salts, fats and sugars than the processed-convenience food aisles. Knowledge of which foods contain high amounts of fats and saturated fats is, however, important in selecting from the dairy and meat aisles as well as convenience foods.

An informative sheet, "Charting Your Way Through the Supermarket," is available for free by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service, 1200 N. Telegraph, Pontiac, MI 48341. This chart is a useful guide in selecting the healthiest food choices regarding sugar, fat and salt.

Here are a few tips to help make your shopping healthier.

■ Read labels to determine ingredient content. Compare various brands for lowest fat, sugar and salt content of individual foods.

■ In dairy the department select skim milk and skim milk products and look for reduced-fat cheese or cheese made with part skim milk.

■ Compare fiber and sugar content of cereals select oatmeal or other hot cereals that do not contain added fat, sugar or sweetened fruit. Watch for saturated fat in some dry cereals especially granola.

■ Select low-fat crackers such as matzo, melba toast, rye crisp and saltines and oyster crackers. Stay away from those made with added fat, especially saturated fat.

Spring or fall planting: it's the same to pansies

If you didn't get pansies planted in the spring, a second chance is coming: plant them in the fall; mulch them lightly in December, and get ready to enjoy flowers as early as April next year.

Lowell Ewart, research horticulturist at Michigan State University, says he's had better luck with fall planting on the MSU campus.

Plants set in the gardens between Sept. 1 and Sept. 15 are well established before cold weather and begin to bloom about the same time as crocus the next spring.

In the spring, you can plant pansies in April or May in mid-Michigan. They tolerate cool temperatures and some frost, so they can go in at the same time as alyssum, snapdragons and other early-planted annuals.

Unlike these annuals, they can be overwintered, and they may continue to grow and reflower for five or six years.

"If you intend to try to keep the planting going for more than one year, you need to pick a planting site that's not exposed to winter wind," he says. "The planting site needs to be well drained, too — pansies won't survive if they're submerged in water."

Though pansies are considered a sun plant, they will not survive in a hot, sun-baked site without a mulch to keep the roots cool.

Pansy roots are fine, fleshy and shallow, and high soil temperatures will kill them. With a summer mulch to retain soil moisture, discourage weeds and keep roots cool, they will thrive in full sun.

The Garden Patch

They can also be planted in light, filtered shade or in a spot on the east side of a house or other structure that receives morning sun but is protected in the late afternoon.

Pansies are not particularly problem prone, but they may be attacked by aphids and spider mites, especially during hot, dry weather.

Keep an eye out for these pests, Ewart suggests, and take action to control them before they damage plants. Any over-the-counter insecticide labeled for use against aphids and mites on garden flowers or roses should give adequate control.

Like petunias, pansies benefit from being trimmed back in the summer, Ewart says. Give pansies a haircut in August — cut back the stems to six inches and fertilize and water to promote regrowth from the crowns and a new flush of blossoms.

Fall-planted pansies need at least five weeks to get established in the garden, he points out. It's OK to plant them before Sept. 1, but it's often hard to find plants much before that.

Both spring- and fall-planted pansies need winter protection. Snow is the best protection, so a mulch of evergreen boughs that helps hold snow in place is best. Avoid leaves or any other material that will mat down and smother the plants, Ewart advises.

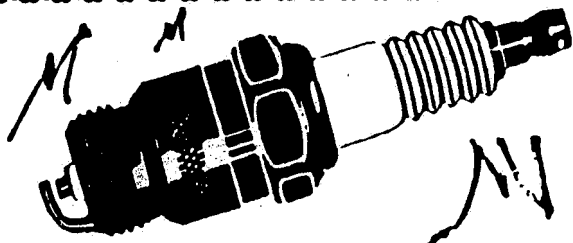

All other things being equal — availability of plants, ability to prepare the site, etc. — when you plant depends on when you want a big show of flowers, Ewart says. To get a better spring display, plant in the fall.

"Pansies are an old-timey flower that's recently becoming more popular again because of the great variety available from plant breeders," Ewart observes. "It's now sixth in popularity among flowering bedding plants, just behind begonias."

A native of Europe, the pansy has been grown since the 1500s. From a half-dozen clear colors and as many bicolors, plant breeders have developed dozens of new shades and color combinations.

One of these new varieties — "Jolly Joker" — is an All-American Selections award winner for 1990, and two more will be released in 1991.

"I think homeowners who try some of these new varieties will be pleased with them," Ewart says. "In an adequate site and with some basic care in the summer and a little winter protection, pansies can become a mainstay in the spring and fall garden."

The ABC's of school safety

The lazy days of summer are over, and the back-to-school race is here.

Running to school in the morning or from school in the afternoon, children run the risk of head injury.

"Head injury is among the most dangerous of injuries, especially for children," according to James Wasco, medical director for the New Medico Head Injury System.

"Any injury to the brain can significantly impair a child's ability to learn, concentrate or remember information; and this can have a damaging effect on a child's development."

Before you send your children back to school, outfit them with a few safety reminders.

Walking to school

Most pedestrian accidents are the fault of the walker, not the driver, according to the National Safety Council, so:

- Be sure to allow enough time for your child to get to school without rushing.

- Plan your child's walking route to minimize the number of street crossings.

- Teach your child always to use sidewalks and to cross at crosswalks. Where there are no sidewalks, have your child walk facing traffic, so the child can see oncoming cars.

Riding the school bus

Although school buses are much safer than family cars, statistics indicate that 40 students die and 7,000 are injured each year in school bus accidents. The majority of these accidents occur outside the bus, when students are boarding or exiting:

- Have your child wait for the bus to stop completely, then board carefully, using the handrail.

- Tell your children to take their seat quickly and stay in that seat for the entire ride — never putting the head, arms or hands out the window.

- Teach your children to cross at least 10 feet in front of the bus so the driver can see them.

"Going to school without parents is a sign of a child's independence," said Wasco, "but children must learn that practicing safety is a prerequisite for independence."

Opinion of Bill Myers

Joint ownership

William A. Myers is a retired Lapeer County editor and investments manager from Boca Raton, Fla.

Joint ownership simply defined is a method of possessing real estate, stocks and bonds, bank accounts and other properties by more than one person.

To expand the conception, there are different types of joint ownership. Joint ownership with right of survivorship specifies that on the death of one owner, the survivor receives all the property. With ownership as tenants in common, that half that belonged to the decedent goes to that person's estate through probate. (The exception to consider is savings bonds, which have specific rules.)

Joint ownership has very definite advantages and, if properly used, is an excellent estate planning tool. Consider the example of a single woman with assets of $150,000, who has one competent adult son whom she completely trusts.

Since there are no federal estate tax worries, this woman might well use joint ownership as an estate planning tool to avoid probate. Problems may ensue if the son predeceases his mother.

Jointly owned property is still subject to federal estate taxes. This can strain family finances if an alternate source of funds for paying these taxes is not available.

Contrary to what many married couples think, husbands and wives should not always own everything jointly -- for two very significant reasons.

*For second marriages, when there are more than one set of children to consider, joint tenancy with rights of survivorship ownership may result in one set of children being left out.

*Such ownership can really create estate tax problems when the second partner dies, depending on the size of the estate. However, joint ownership with rights of survivorship for a married couple is an excellent practice for household accounts and home.

Joint ownership with children is considered especially in the case of older, single parents. In these cases, the parent often transfers stocks, bonds, bank accounts and real estate into joint ownership with children.

This is not always the wisest move, in part because:

*Any instance involving a transfer of $10,000 or more to a child is considered a taxable gift and may be subject to gift taxes. Gift taxes have nothing to do with income taxes.

*Jointly owned property is all taxable in the first joint owner's estate, except if the surviving joint tenant can prove contribution or the consideration-furnished test.

There are other alternatives to joint ownership which can accomplish what is desired, having money available in case something happens to the parent.

The key is planning. Joint ownership can be an effective way to hold property. But ownership needs to be considered as part of the estate planning process, just like Wills and Trusts.

*Greek Pasta,
light and delicious*

Tracy
King

Pasta is one of those foodstuffs that seem indulgent but are surprisingly healthy.

As a child, I would eat a huge bowl of just noodles with butter. Later, I would prepare and consume boxes of macaroni and cheese. As a teen-ager, one of my regular culinary endeavors included variations on lasagne.

While butter and heavy sauces add the "fattening" aspect to some noodle dishes, pasta can be prepared in ways that are flavorful and healthful.

When not tending to the many office functions within The Clarkston News, bookkeeper-secretary-receptionist Grace Heike provides us with a supply of these delicious and creative recipes.

This recipe for Greek Pasta is her latest find.

GREEK PASTA

1 cup sliced green onion
2 tomatoes, cut in a large dice
2 teaspoons chopped garlic

1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon coarse ground black pepper
1/2 teaspoon dry basil leaves
1/2 teaspoon dry thyme leaves
2 ounces feta cheese
1 ounce 60/40 blend butter
4 ounces chicken breast, cut into strips
4 ounces heavy cream
5 ounces cooked fettucine
Parmesan cheese
Chopped parsley

Mix together onion, tomatoes, garlic, salt, pepper, basil, thyme and cheese.

Saute chicken in 60/40 blend until it is half-cooked.

Add tomato mixture and finish saute.

Add cream and let it come to a boil. Add pasta when cream boils, and cook until thickened.

Top with parmesan and parsley.

Publication of insight leads to success for author

BY TRACY KING

Clarkston News Associate Editor

At first glance, the life of Keith Wander seemed to be in order.

A director of organizational development at General Motors, he lived in a beautiful, custom-built home in the rolling woods of Springfield Township. He owned another home up north.

Wander appeared to enjoy a loving relationship with his wife, Jan, whom he rarely called anything but "Twinkle." Yet one day Twinkle revealed a startling truth.

Wander was getting dull.

"That hurt," Wander admits.

"How could I be dull — someone as clever as I?" Wander recalls jokingly.

"When folks hear 'Christian fiction,' they quietly wince. They conjure up ideas that the book is really heavy-handed."

Keith Wander

Eventually, he realized Twinkle was right.

"I was watching a lot of television, I wasn't reading, and I wasn't reading the Bible," he says. "I wanted to do something about it."

"LAST RESORT," published by Crossway Books, is a Christian novel that chronicles the troubled relationship of a father and son.

KEITH WANDER, author of "Last Resort," credits his wife, Jan, for inspiring him to write the book. The novel, published by Crossway Books, has sold 7,000 copies since it was released in July.

What Wander did was to dust off an old ambition to write a book.

"Around college age I had started a couple of times, but I found out I didn't have anything to say," Wander explains.

That changed about 10 years ago, when Wander became a Christian.

"My point of view changed," he says simply.

As a result, Wander found he had quite a bit to say.

His book "Last Resort," published by Crossway Books, has sold 7,000 copies since its release in July. A second book has been completed, and Wander is busy on a third.

"Last Resort" is a Christian novel, and it's very contemporary, Wander asserts.

"When folks hear 'Christian fiction,' they quietly wince," Wander says. "They conjure up ideas that the book is really heavy-handed."

"People tell me that there is cross-over appeal (in "Last Resort"); there is a story in there," Wander says.

Though the conflict in the novel is very serious — a successful father and a well-meaning son attempt to reconcile their estranged relationship — humor exists, as well.

Many of the characters are, indeed, contemporary and include a bumbling detective, an attractive female jewelry thief and a very wealthy neighbor.

Wander is the father of two sons, ages 28 and 24; and, though similarities exist between the characters and his own life, the book is not autobiographical, he says.

Wander regularly sent drafts of the book to his two sons, asking them whether the young people in the story were believable. Though the characters changed during the writing of the book, Wander always knew what the end would be.

The book took almost a year to complete, and Wander says it took just as long to find a publisher for the material.

As it happened, the book was chosen by one of the most popular Christian publishers in the country.

The subsequent success of the book took him by surprise, Wander says.

"I would pray that I only wanted it to be published if it glorified God," Wander explains. "I got a lot of rejection notices, so I thought it didn't do that."

"Ironically, I never gave the success question a thought," Wander admits. "I was so tickled to have a book published — if I never did anything but give away copies, I'd be happy."

"I'm very surprised, to be honest with you," Wander adds, modestly.

Longtime dentist Dr. Harold Ford retires; collected memories, friends over 33-year career

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

The year was 1958, and at age 29, Dr. Harold Ford was about to start work as a dentist.

He chose to practice in Clarkston, a country town.

Just one stoplight existed in Clarkston that year. Teeth cleanings were $3. The electric air drill had been developed two years earlier, but Ford had been in the service and had never used it.

"My classmates were from the Detroit area and thought I was foolish to come out into the country," says Ford. "It turned out to be a great decision."

Now retired, Ford is comfortably seated in his elegant Cranberry Lake, Independence Township, living room, sharing observations on his 33-year career and

"It's so much fun to go into a restaurant or the hardware store — I have so many good friends."

Dr. Harold Ford about how times have changed.

"It's a dental/ medical mecca now," Ford chuckles.

A graduate of the University of Detroit, Ford hooked up with two physician friends, Ron LePere and Al Hamilton, and opened an office on Main Street.

Reclining chairs had not been developed, so Ford stooped over his patients, night after night, in the practice of general dentistry. Special dental needs required a trip to Detroit or Flint.

Ford was calm and easygoing, or as his wife says, "slow." Lacking modern invention, dental visits could take a long, long time.

"We didn't have the equipment, knowledge or advantages of dentists of today," says Ford. "Some visits would be three hours, and I wouldn't accomplish much.

"This is the way you learn," he adds.

Eventually, Ford's practice grew to include daytime

DR. HAROLD FORD enjoyed a 33-year career as a dentist in Clarkston, treating entire generations of patients. According to his wife, Norma, he can tell who people are by their X-rays.

hours, and he began a lifelong habit of going home for lunch.

The practice was built very slowly, Ford admits, but it was a strong practice.

"Everybody knew each other," Ford recalls. "I was on-call 24 hours a day. Patients would come out to the house."

Ford soon began one of the most rewarding aspects of his practice, working at the then Pine Knob Nursing Home to adjust dentures and conduct other dental procedures for the elderly.

Over time, the dental profession changed to "four-person" dentistry, where assistants or hygienists completed a lot of preparation. General Motors started its dental insurance program in 1974, which "changed everyone's lives," according to Ford.

The creation of laser surgery, teeth bonding and the computerization of dentistry are other changes Ford has seen.

The Fords raised five children, all daughters, each of whom worked in the dental office at some point during their lives.

One daughter still works in the practice, under Bruce Mercado, who took over the business when Ford retired.

Instead of teeth, Ford now occupies himself with fruits and vegetables in his garden.

He plays golf, spends time with his seven grandchildren and enjoys the friends he spent a lifetime collecting.

"It's so much fun to go into a restaurant or the hardware store — I have so many good friends," Ford says.

"I got a lot of fantastic retirement cards," he adds. "Some were a page-and-a-half long."

"It really makes you feel good."

New titles for adults, children

The Independence Township Library has new titles on the children's shelves, as well as in the adult area.

The library is at 6495 Clarkston Rd. For more information, call 625-2212.

The following books have been added to the children's shelves:

"Tehanu," the last book of Earthsea by Ursula K. LeGuin. Sparrowhawk, the archmage of Earthsea, returns from the dark land stripped of his magic powers, finds refuge with the aging widow Tenar and a crippled girl while who carries an unknown destiny.

"Laura Charlotte" by Kathryn O. Galbraith. A mother describes her love for a toy elephant she was given as a child, a gift she has passed on to her daughter.

"Serendipity," accidental discoveries in science by Royston M. Roberts. An account of chance events that have transformed the world.

"Before I Go to Sleep" by Thomas Hood. Before falling asleep, a child imagines being a variety of animals. Rhymes and beautiful illustrations.

"Fire and Stone" by Ursula K. LeGuin. When the dragon comes swooping down with its tongue of flickering fire, only Min and Podo have the foresight to feed it what it seems to want from them.

New titles in the adult area include:

"The Women in His Life" by Barbara Taylor Bradford. The personal tragedy of one family set against the larger tragedy of the most evil regime in history—a novel about survival secrets, love and redemption.

"Get Shorty" by Elmore Leonard. Pairs a Miami loan shark with a Hollywood horror-film producer.

"Broken Claw" by John Gardner. Agent 007 meets his match in the evil-personified 6-foot-6, half-Chinese, half Blackfoot Indian massively strong character of Broken Claw, San Francisco's most powerful Chinese gangster.

"Passage Home" by Alison McLeary, spanning the continental United States, Canada and England in the 19th century. A rich tale of an unforgettable woman who faces fame and notoriety, wealth and poverty, happiness and sorrow, with indomitable spirit, courage and determination.

"Brotherhood of the Tomb" by Daniel Easterman. A theological thriller that suggests a collaboration between Ken Follett and Umberto Eco.

Reunions

Members of the Class of 1940 of St. Hyacinth's School in Detroit (McDougall and Frederick) are invited to attend a class reunion on Sunday, Oct. 28.

The reunion begins with a mass at the church at 3 p.m. and continues with a dinner reception at the Royalty House (Warren) at 4:30 p.m. For more information, call Al Nawrocki (573-0519) or Retta (Ziensi) Kosciolk (794-3336).

Travel guide lists color tours, state parks

Michigan has produced a new "Color-by-the Numbers" guide. The numbers are these: 90-100, 18 million, 255, 65, 275 and 64.

That's 90-100 species of trees spread over more than 18 million acres, 25 mapped-out color tours, 65 cider mills and orchards and 275 fall events—all listed in the 64-page "Michigan Fall Travel Guide and Calendar of Events" for 1990.

The guide provides a sampling of fall-color tours and the best times to take them. It also includes listing of state parks, theaters and symphonies.

To obtain a guide, write the Michigan Travel Bureau at P.O. Box 30226, Lansing, MI 48909; or call 1-800-5432-YES. The hearing impaired can call the bureau's TDD number at 1-800-722-8191.

Historical building provides backdrop for shop

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Marilee Prescott opened her frame shop in downtown Davisburg, Springfield Township, as part of a natural progression to becoming a business owner.

Marilee started in the framing business in 1970 and subcontracted framing work in Fenton, Holly and Grand Blanc. She does residential and commercial framing.

In 1983 she opened a frame shop in the parlor of her farmhouse in Rose Township — hence the name: The Parlour Frame Works. But as her business grew, she moved to a bigger building on the property at the farm.

The business kept expanding, and more space was needed — the next step led to opening the shop at 649 Broadway in downtown Davisburg.

"We've had a nice response from Independence and Springfield township," Marilee says about the new customers she's had in the shop.

Marilee opened her latest shop in April with the help of her mother, Jean Landingham of Farmington, and Marilee's 13-year-old daughter, Eden Prescott-Smith.

Jean, who retired after working at a company for 22 years, opens the store at 11 a.m. about four days a week, so Marilee may do the framing and matting back at the farm, which still houses the work area, Marilee says.

"I could only stand about one month of retirement," Jean says.

Eden is an apprentice just learning the business and has taken up helping with some of the mat cutting, says Marilee.

The frame shop is situated in a building built in 1880s, which serves as a charming backdrop to the framed items and art pieces Marilee has hung on the walls. Marilee is currently working to restore the front of the building.

Adding to the charm of the shop are antique pieces — such as cabinets and tables — that Marilee brought from the farm to display items at her store.

Marilee carries about 1,000 frame samples in wood, florals, golds and metals for customer selection.

Ready-made frames are available, too, and customers can have mats cut in one day on a first-come, first-serve basis, Marilee says.

"We do conservation framing, using state-of-the-art materials for preservation of artwork," Marilee says.

Acid-free materials, such as rag board, are used for preserving rare, and sometimes not so rare, pieces of art, she adds.

"Artwork is seen as an investment," Marilee says. One of Marilee's specialties in framing is antique advertising, which she also collects.

Marilee displays artwork of two Michigan artists at present but is looking to add more work from other artists.

As an art student in her early career, Marilee says she understands that it is important to frame a piece correctly.

The shop hours are 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and by appointment. For an appointment in the evening or Sundays call 634-6041. Marilee has an answering machine.

Sounds like a seal

Charlie, a Pekingese mix, is small in size but big at heart.

But a word of warning about Charlie, so his new owner isn't taken by surprise: he sounds like a seal when he barks.

Charlie only weighs about 15 pounds at 8 months and won't grow to be much larger. He's housebroken and likes to be around children.

Adopting Charlie will cost $55 and includes neutering.

To see Charlie, visit the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Rd., Auburn Heights, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

THE DRAWBRIDGE at the castle draws attention from pre-schoolers, including the Shader brothers (right), who are eager to look at the outside of the cardboard structure but balk at actually going inside. Eventually, after peeking in the many types of windows, the boys venture inside the castle, which was constructed by the big kids out of refrigerator boxes — with the help of art teacher Lori Harrower, of course.

Royal for a day

KNIGHT Darren Palulian, 8, of Clarkston Road has the job of guarding the dungeon, where prisoner Drew Crandell, 8, of Autumnlgio spends most of his time.

PRINCESS Nicole Yovich, 9, of Miller Road, Clarkston, relaxes before visitors tour her chambers.

QUEEN Elizabeth, alias Melanie Sanders, 8, shows a few young visitors around her castle. The boys, Donny Murdock (left) and Brandon Hlgdon, are a little awestruck at the sight of the royal palace. The pre-schoolers' visit took place Friday, Aug. 17, at the day care center at Cedar Crest Academy, Dixie Highway, Springfield Township.
