Yard help pours in

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A week ago, Rita Chisholm was angry at the world, but now she's grateful toward the community that reached out in her time of need.

Last weekend, the 80-year-old Miller Road, Clarkston, resident was the victim of botanical foul play. According to Rita, unidentified vandals tore apart 17 bags

"I can't thank the community enough for coming to my aid. Everyone was so wonderful."

Rita Chisholm

of leaves, which she had spent all of Saturday afternoon raking by herself.

Shortly after The Clarkston News ran a story on her unfortunate episode, the senior citizen was besieged by people and organizations looking to help.

"Around Thursday, a lady and her two daughters came over and helped rake up some of the leaves," she said. "Then a gentleman and some local high school students finished the job later that afternoon. I received calls from churches, local residents and even a Waterford high school that same day.

"I wasn't looking for help, but everyone was willing to offer it anyway," she added. "I can't thank the community enough for coming to my aid. Everyone was so wonderful."

Among those who offered help were 10-12 Clarkston High School students — members of the Interact Club, who planned to meet Saturday and do the job, according to CHS assistant principal Brent Cooley.

Norma Goyette, the Clarkston village clerk, also planned to help with her husband, Harold. She said the outpouring of assistance for the elderly woman was moving.

"I just think it's fantastic, neighbors helping neighbors," Goyette said. "It's what Clarkston used to be."

Holiday deadlines

The Thanksgiving holiday means early deadlines for the Nov. 21 issue of The Clarkston News.

The deadline for display advertising is 5 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 15. The deadline for classified advertising and for letters to the editor is noon Friday, Nov. 15.

Counselor believes in interaction

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Helping children cope with their feelings is only one of the responsibilities facing Clarkston Junior High counselor Larry Sherrill.

Sherrill, a resident of Waterford Township, has been an employee of Clarkston Junior High for nearly 20 years. He served as a gym instructor for 10 years before an opening cropped up in the counseling department.

Sherrill was given the job on the condition that he obtain a master's degree within two year's time. He took courses at Oakland University, Rochester, and received his degree one and a half years later. Sherrill also has a bachelor's degree in physical education and health from Cumberland College in Kentucky.

Nearly nine years have passed since he was named counselor, but the challenges still remain.

"I'm mainly here for the students," Sherrill said. "A counselor's job is to get kids through the next three to four years of their lives."

Sherrill's duties include maintaining student schedules and grades, arranging class changes and setting up special crisis groups for the students.

He said that nearly 80 percent of his responsibilities entail hands-on work with students.

Sherrill is proud of his student "crisis team" program which was instituted three years ago. The program is made up of 20 students who learn to spot and communicate with fellow students regarding problems such as divorce, alcohol and suicide.

"I'm mainly here for the students. A counselor's job is to get kids through the next three to four years of their lives."

Larry Sherrill

If a team member feels a student is truly in need, he or she will alert Sherrill. Sherrill will then investigate the matter by talking with the student and perhaps a parent.

Despite the barrage of work, Sherrill is gratified when he sees students excelling in a particular field.

"I feel most gratified when working with students and seeing them change positively," said Sherrill, a father of five. "When I see the progress, I know my projects are working for the benefit of the school and the kids."

COUNSELOR Larry Sherrill has put a lot of time and energy into student interaction at Clarkston Junior High School.

'Educating Everyone Takes Everyone'

Education Week Nov. 11-17

American Education Week Nov. 11-17 marks the 69th annual effort to promote the nation's greatest symbol of democracy -- public education.

The theme this year is: "Educating Everyone Takes Everyone."

Following are some suggestions for parent involvement from the North Carolina State Department of Education:

- Discuss school activities with your child daily.
- Arrange a study time and place in your home. This says to your child that his/her schoolwork and success are important to you.

- Expect your child to complete homework assignments on time. Help your child when necessary by helping them understand the assignments and collecting materials.

- Use family time to discuss possible careers and the educational requirements for each of them. It's never too early for children to start that kind of thinking.

- Let your child know that you expect him or her to graduate from high school.

- Be sure that your child sees you reading. They need role models more than critics, and parents are their most important role models.

- Attend school activities, especially those involving your children.

ing your children.

- Volunteer at your child's school. This helps boost his or her self-esteem. Become an active member of the PTA and the local school advisory council. Share your ideas to improve the school and to encourage parent involvement.

- Help with extracurricular activities. This enables you to be a part of your child's interests and will encourage positive behavior.

Schools take broader role in changing society

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Technology and a changing family structure have brought the biggest changes to education, according to a few administrators in Clarkston Community Schools.

Education techniques have changed, resulting in more training for teachers and allowing for differences in learning styles among children. Community education also has broadened its role to fill community needs.

Daniel Manthei, principal of the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus since 1977, said the impact of technology on teaching has been enormous.

"Back then (in the '70s), an overhead projector was hot stuff — now we have computer-generated materials," Manthei said.

The content also has changed, especially at the Oakland Technical Center, which focuses on giving students concrete skills for the work force rather than only on the three R's. For instance, business and commerce have implemented great technical changes, and teachers have responded by including the changes in their teaching.

As an example, Manthei noted that automobiles have gone from carburetion to fuel injection and from condensers and distributors to a computerized system for fuel.

Just 10 years ago, personal computers were an oddity. Five years ago, they were beginning to be used more regularly. And now, they permeate education, beginning in elementary school, Manthei said.

Students' skills and attitudes, too, are different from skills and attitudes of 20 years ago, he said.

"They're very used to the visual and the instant gratification kind of thing," said Manthei. "There's a quicker pace from acquisition to disposal. It's a greater challenge to motivate them."

Since there are "fewer and fewer of the Ozzie and Harriet families," educational support from home is diminishing, said Manthei.

"There was a long time when parents seemed satisfied to have students sent off to school. ... We're rediscovering the need for parental involvement in education," he said.

He added that business and industry also should be more involved.

"They have expectations of graduates, and unless they are involved in the input, they won't get the output," he said.

Doris Mousseau, in her 37th year in the field of education — 25 of those as a principal, said, "The children haven't changed a lot; society has. It's a different world to educate children today."

There's more knowledge out there, and children have to keep up with a "fast-moving home life," she said.

As a result, it's important that schools, such as her Bailey Lake Elementary, present a "safe, caring atmosphere, so children know they're secure."

"That doesn't always happen today, and schools sometimes are the safest places for children," she said.

Even after so many years in the education field, Mousseau finds this "one of the most exciting times in education today. We're getting back to some of the things that really count in helping children learn."

Schools are concerned about the whole child instead of teaching small parts of the picture, she said, adding that Michigan's new Public Act 25 that requires an improvement plan from each school district is a large step forward.

"No matter how well you do a job, you can always look at improvement," she said.

One philosophy has served her well in her tenure in education, she said.

"High expectations are terribly important, especially in school," she said. "Children want to please you."

Jack Hayden, principal at North Sashabaw Elementary School in his 30th year of the education field, said the ## Mother of two suited to tough job

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A love of children makes the job of paraprofessional enjoyable for Donna Rudolph.

Donna has worked at Pine Knob Elementary for 12 years with emotionally impaired (E.I.) students. And she plans to keep working with E.I. students until she retires — when her youngest daughter is out of college, she says.

As a paraprofessional, she works directly with handicapped students, helping them with everyday skills. She assists any student who attends the special education classes and general education classes.

She lives with her husband, Alan, and daughters, Rebecca, 22, and Kristine, 18, on Bronco Drive, Independence Township.

Kristine is a freshman at Northern Michigan University, Marquette, and Rebecca, who has cerebral palsy, attends Waterford Training Institute in Waterford.

Donna says having a child with a disability helps her relate to the students with whom she works.

"I have a handicapped child of my own and know some of the special needs they have," she says.

Donna had an opportunity to work with E.I. students at Clarkston High School, but she likes the elementary age group, she says.

The concept of educating the student with special needs is growing, Donna says.

"When I started there were about 10 or 15 paraprofessionals — now there are 25," she says.

When Donna's not working for the school, she works at such hobbies as golfing, reading, gardening and traveling.

And her job as president of the Special Education and Media Paraprofessional Association also keeps her busy.

DONNA RUDOLPH, a 12-year employee at Pine Knob Elementary, finds it satisfying to work with emotionally impaired youngsters.

biggest changes in education have come as a result of the breakdown of families.

"Families are not cohesive; academics slip. Structure simply isn't there at home. ... In spite of that, we're hanging in there as schools. We're doing a better job," he said, mentioning that test scores have remained the same or improved.

Schools are expanding teacher training, he said.

For instance, all teachers of kindergarten through second grade now use "Math Their Way," a technique that teaches math with concrete examples and combines math with other subjects.

While Clarkston's reading program has always been strong, writing is improving with expansions in process writing and creative writing.

"I'm here to tell you that our kids are writing a whole lot better than they were three years ago," he said. "There's really no comparison."

Computers and foreign languages also have been implemented in elementary school, and a gifted education program better serves the academically talented.

Classroom procedures have changed overall, he said.

"We're much more open. There was a time when parents were not too welcome in the schools. Of course now we have parent volunteers and sometimes beg for more," he said.

"We attempt to take the fear out of school. We used to paddle — we don't do that anymore. ... That makes a difference with how open children are. ... They're still well behaved — maybe some ways better because we reason with them more."

David Reschke, principal at Sashabaw Junior High School and in education for 20 years, said the custodial nature of schools has expanded due to the change in family structure.

"There are more kids coming from homes that are not intact, more working mothers," he said.

In response, Clarkston schools offer a latchkey program, where students stay after school in a supervised play setting until their parents pick them up on their way home from work. More after-school programs are offered now, too — for the same reason.

Schools also are taking more responsibility in the non-academic areas by teaching such subjects as health and decision-making skills.

This year's American Education Week theme,

"Educating Everyone Takes Everyone," is appropriate now, said Reschke.

"Schools alone can't do it. We need help from parents," said Reschke. "Clarkston schools itself is at a crossroad — the facilities, the way we approach educating all the kids. That theme applies to Clarkston more than any time since I've lived here. We need everybody."

Clarkston Community Education responds to much of the changes in society.

At present, community education provides an alternative high school for children who are at risk of dropping out of high school. It offers a latchkey program at nearly all of the elementary schools to help out working parents.

It offers classes for credit at night, so adults may finish their high school diplomas.

In addition, it offers all sorts of enrichment classes — from hobbies and health-related courses to courses tailor-made for businesses.

Possibly as soon as next fall, classes will be offered that will train people to care for the elderly, said Sue Reeves, communications coordinator at community education.

"That's a real big change coming, especially as the baby boomers grow older," she said.

Also needed in the near future will be day care for the elderly, said Reeves.

"Somebody will do it," she said, explaining that community education may offer it some day but in the beginning will be more involved in training others to provide that care.

A new program this year at community education is parallel to the alternative high school. Instead of identifying at-risk teens, the new program identifies at-risk 4-year-olds, so "they can get the help earlier so they'll be successful later," said Reeves.

The program probably will be expanded.

"We're only limited by space," said Reeves.

She added that education for foster-care home residents also is offered by community education.

"We see the market and then try to fill the need as our community and society changes," she said.

Another trend across the country and in Clarkston is a better coordination of education between business and schools, she said.

"Community education never stays the same because we serve the public. ... There's lots of interesting and exciting things out there," she said.

Education issue

In observation of American Education Week, The Clarkston News has profiled some of the people who make Clarkston's educational system work.

This year's theme, "Educating Everyone Takes Everyone," is appropriate in Clarkston Community Schools, as shown by these profiles, which highlight the contributions from such people as secretaries, parent volunteers, teachers, counselors and others.

In addition, former Clarkston High School students submitted letters to the editor about their educational experiences in Clarkston.

School job keeps secretary busy with 641 pupils

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Sometimes, it's good to have a mom away from home: someone to help with headaches, lunch money, tears, directions — and baseball.

As secretary at Bailey Lake Elementary for five years, Ellen Oliver fills that role.

With the telephone as her helper, Ellen handles the "school mother" problems with ease, calmly talking on the phone while serving students in her bustling office.

When Ellen isn't taking care of Bailey Lake's 641 students, she directs her attention to her own two children whom she's raising as a single parent. Jeff is a fourth-grader at North Sashabaw, and Jennifer is 10th-grader at Clarkston High School. The family lives on Pheasant Run, Independence Township.

Ellen enjoys school employment.

"I get time off to be with my kids," she says. "And I love working with the kids (at Bailey Lake)."

She would like to be a teacher, but being a secretary is the next best thing, Ellen says.

Her love of children is apparent in her out-of-work activities as well. She's been a Pee-Wee baseball coach for four years, and she teaches a baseball card class for the Youth Enrichment program through Clarkston Community Education.

"The boys are always a little leery when they see it's a girl teaching the class," she says. "But I think they're impressed with what I know about baseball."

AS A SCHOOL secretary, Ellen Oliver often serves as a substitute mother during the course of the day. On this day, she comes to the rescue of one student who has forgotten his lunch money. A quick call to a parent gives him permission to charge his lunch.

Yearbook, newspaper, tennis keep teacher active

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Students help preserve memories every day during fourth hour in room 229 at Sashabaw Junior High School.

That's when 19 ninth-graders meet for media class with teacher Dick Swartout.

The class works on the school's monthly newspaper (Paw Print), yearbook (Cougar Country) and end-of-year slide show. A video yearbook is also being produced for the first time.

Students, who need to have at least a B- average in English classes to enroll, rotate on assignments throughout the semester. For several weeks a student may be working on two to four pages of the print yearbook; weeks later learn how to shoot video and then eventually be an editor on the newspaper.

Swartout, who has been teaching the class since 1975, said the class is popular with students. Because of that popularity, students may take it for only one semester, allowing new students to enroll at mid-year.

Swartout's students also get some help during after-school hours (mostly in the sports coverage) from teacher Chris Krueger.

So far, 550 print yearbooks (at $15 apiece) and 260 video yearbooks ($30) have been ordered.

"I think they complement each other," said Swartout about the two versions of yearbooks.

Swartout, however, said there are some advantages to the book.

"I think the print yearbook will last longer and is more in depth. The video covers an event in 45 seconds but it's covered in two to three pages in the yearbook (print)," said Swartout, who also coaches the girls' and boys' tennis teams at Clarkston High School.

Another advantage of the print yearbook is that it is received by students before they leave for the summer, making it possible to sign autographs, etc. The video yearbook is distributed during the summer.

Cougar Country, which received the Golden Galleon Award (given nationally) for layout design in 1984 and 1988, is printed by Jostens.

Video is sent to a place in Drayton Plains for editing before it is mailed to Videovation in Philadelphia for final production.

According to student Katy Gillette, the school's biggest event of the year is the ninth-grade dance, which is covered by the yearbooks and the newspaper. Gillette, along with Roxanne Bruscha, are the editors of the newspaper this month.

Bruscha said because issues are a month apart, the Paw Print "can't do anything real current," so the paper often centers on a seasonal theme, as it did in the latest issue which contained much about Halloween.

Bruscha also said that the video yearbook tends to cover more events that produce much "action" while the print yearbook contains more informative coverage (class photos of all students, academics, candid photos, etc.).

The school years go by quickly, but Sashabaw's media class has several different ways to freeze some of those moments for future viewing and reading.

SASHABAW Junior High School student Heidi McFalda zooms in. The ninth-grader works on the school's video yearbook.

Volunteer essential part of elementary school

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Sometimes Jane Olinger is seen at Clarkston Elementary School so often, she is mistaken as a teacher by the students.

Olinger said one time as she was walking through the halls, "some kid came up to me and thought I was a teacher. I told him, 'Honey, I'm just here to pick up my own kid.'"

It was easy for the that student to make a mistake because Olinger is a parent volunteer there one day a week.

For two years Olinger, mother of third-grader David, was the volunteer coordinator before becoming president of the Parent Teacher Organization. Even with her new position, she still arrives at the school once a week, usually helping out in the computer lab or in the media center.

Like most parental volunteers, Olinger first became interested in helping out because her child started school. Another one of her children, Erin, will begin kindergarten.

"I'll be living at school next year," quipped Olinger. In addition to her weekly visits, Olinger has been co-chairwoman of the school fair with teacher Sherril Bailey, involved with the Festival of Arts and helped set up a Fun Day, which brought an Oakland County Sportsmobile, loaded with sports equipment, to school for a day.

Olinger said 250 people volunteer every year at Clarkston Elementary.

"We are never short of volunteers," said Olinger. But she points out sometimes there is a difference in numbers.

"As far as social events, people are always there. For academics, it depends on what we do," said Olinger.

She said elementary teachers, in comparison to junior high and senior high school teachers, usually ask for more volunteer work.

Olinger also acknowledges that elementary students tend to feel more comfortable with parents around, more so than do senior high school students.

How will her son, David, feel to have his mother around school once he gets older?

Olinger said, "I'm hoping if he doesn't want me there, then (Erin) will still want me there."

No one knows for sure how long David will want her there, but at least David (and next year Erin) will not mistake her for a teacher.

JANE Olinger does some filing in the media room at Clarkston Elementary School.

Folk art magazine expands in Springfield

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A former restaurant on Holly Road has been the home of Country Folk Art Magazine for only five months, and expansion for the facility is already under way.

The Springfield Township Board voted 6-0 Nov. 1 to approve a final site plan for a 5,000-square-foot addition to an existing building, R & D Ranch Restaurant. Voting yes were Supervisor Collin Walls, Clerk J. Calvin Walters, Treasurer Lois Stiles and trustees Margaret Bloom and Nancy Strole. Trustee Dennis Vallad was absent.

The restaurant has been closed about one year, said Walls. Expansion to the building began the week after the township approval.

The magazine, formerly produced in Ortonville, has a 300,000 nationwide circulation. Though the design and layout will take place at the Springfield headquarters, the magazine is to be printed elsewhere.

White Construction of Genesee County is to construct the addition.

Country Folk Art now employs about 25 people, but with the additional space provided by the new location, another four or five employees will be added, Walls said.

CHS theater honored

The theater department at Clarkston High School has received a Continuous Affiliation Award from the International Thespian Society (ITS).

The school department, headed by Barbara Gibson, earned the award for 24 years of continuous membership with ITS.

Since it was founded in 1929, ITS has served more than 11 million students and 9,000 teachers from 7,000 U.S. high schools.

Annually, more than 2,400 high schools sponsor Thespian troupes for their students with more than 25,000 students earning Thespian Society membership.

Each year theater educators from member schools reward their talented students with Thespian Society membership.

These students are eligible for ITS college scholarships and may attend national and state Thespian Festivals.

Naturally presidential

Julie
Campe

To be president of this country, you have to be at least 35 years old and have lived in this country for 14 years. Plus, you must be a natural-born citizen.

I'm not sure of the interpretation of that last portion of the executive department of the U.S. Constitution. Does it mean that you had to be born on U.S. soil? Or would you still be "natural born" if your parents were vacationing in Europe when you were born?

Or does it mean that your mother had to feel all the pain of childbirth—no anesthesia for her! And no Caesarean section, either!

These questions are not new, and the founding fathers probably took these things into account when forming that portion of the Constitution.

None of them was born in the United States because there was no United States at that time (they provided for that, though, by stipulating that the candidate must have been a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of the Constitution—seven signers of the Constitution were foreign born: James Wilson, Robert Morris, Thomas Fitzsimons, Alexander Hamilton, William Paterson, James McHenry and Pierce Butler).

The founding fathers, too, traveled—and it took a whole lot longer back then, so they probably did not disqualify a child from being president simply because he was born in, say, France while his father was serving his country there. The candidate simply must have lived in the United States for 14 years.

And they knew all about Caesarean sections, too. After all, in the 1600s, Shakespeare had noted that procedure in "Macbeth," when he said "Macduff was from his mother's womb untimely ripp'd." Macduff was not born naturally. So perhaps that's what our founding fathers referred to when requiring a "natural born citizen" as president.

Maybe they linked that sort of birth to the mighty Caesar, for whom the procedure was named after he was delivered into this world in that manner. Look what happened to him! He got power hungry, morality slipped in government, and his cronies at the Senate stabbed him to death.

Nope, such a birth is not befitting the leader of such a democracy as the United States, the founding fathers probably figured.

This birth question is still an issue today—thus the trend of "natural" childbirth, which I don't quite understand.

Women who go natural say it means they don't use pain-killing drugs during childbirth. That way, they can feel every bit of the birthing process.

But why would they want to do that?

One of the advantages of modern medicine is to eliminate much of the pain and suffering endured by humans through the ages.

Childbirth is one of those pains (so I've heard), and modern medicine could really help out in that area.

Of course, the founding fathers were male, and the wording of Article II, Section I, of the Executive Department might show that bias.

By requiring natural-born children, perhaps they wanted women to endure that pain in order to ensure tougher parents for prospective presidents.

And as for the reported increase in Caesarean births in recent years, perhaps that's a way of limiting the presidential candidates.

OK, OK, it's a little far-fetched. But you can't underestimate those founding fathers.

Thanks — for what?

The first New England Thanksgiving Day was an expression of gratitude for good crops. Long before that other cultures held celebrations and festivals in thankfulness for bountiful harvests.

Small wonder that Thanksgiving is a special day for farmers; they know the true meaning of "gathering in the sheaves." Others gather in their harvest from the shelves of a supermarket and use the day to give thanks for whatever their blessings might be.

On this Thanksgiving Day, 1990, some cynics may ask: "What do we have to be thankful for?" Murder and mayhem appear at every turn; wars dot the globe and could be imminent for Americans in the Middle East; drug and alcohol abuse is in our schools and on our streets; costs continue to exceed our payments.

But whether or not they feel they have reason to be thankful, they'll gladly use the day as a break from their labors, to watch the parades and football games on color TV sets in their warm living rooms, and then catch 40 winks to digest the traditional Thanksgiving dinner.

The blessings recited before the meal may be just another tradition, with little thought to the words, "Thank you for this food . . ." The golden brown turkey, the fragrant dressing, the pumpkin pie with its whipped-cream crown . . . how can they who have never been hungry really know the meaning of that prayer of thanksgiving?

But the cynics, we believe, are in the minority.

The more preceptive Americans will look beyond the current problems of today and still find blessings to count.

Most are living better, eating better, enjoying more of the "finer things" in life than ever before. They can even see that today's concerns might be a blessing in disguise.

They will remember that it was darkness that stimulated invention of the lamp, fog that produced the compass and hunger for freedom that brought the Pilgrims to this land.

America's troubled times, and there have been many, have always brought out the best in her citizens; they have risen to whatever the challenge might be.

That, in itself, is reason for giving thanks.

Letter policy

Letters to the editor must arrive at The Clarkston News office by noon Monday to be considered for publication in Tuesday's paper. We reserve the right to edit all letters for brevity and clarity and to limit the number of letters from any one individual or on any one topic. We discourage copies of letters sent elsewhere and require that all letters be signed and include an address and phone number. We may withhold names on request but will not publish unsigned letters. Address all letters to: Letters To The Editor, The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main St., Clarkston, MI 48346.

Jim's Jottings

The toughest thing about deer hunting is preparing the menu. In my 40 years of going north in November the only time we've had venison for dinner is when someone brought it from somebody's previous year's hunt.

Thus the main course of the main meal is limited to beef, pork and fowl. Fowl is out and I'm not sure why unless it's too inexpensive. Give us a $5.95-a-pound steak anytime. If you split the cost enough ways (and buy 6-oz steaks) it isn't too bad.

I've designated myself head grocery buyer several times, including this season. I do this because I spend more time, earlier, thinking about it than anyone else in camp. Deer hunting season comes at just that time of year when 'I HAVE TO GET AWAY.'

That time is five weeks after the last vacation and five weeks before the holiday break. A person in my position shouldn't go more than five weeks without mind and body rest.

This year we'll be in camp a week, which figures out to be four dinners with beef, two with pork and one uncommitted. Who knows? We may throw a fit and leave for home early.

Besides the beef and pork there are 47 other food purchases that have to be made to satisfy the hungry beasts. More than that if you consider the kinds of bread, crackers, salad dressings and cheeses. The 47 does not include the soups, chili, cookies, cakes, dips, carrots and beans sent by spouses.

It's a varied menu that includes herring, sardines and oysters, but no vegetables. Vegetables are for balanced meals, and we don't want any of those in this camp of gluttons.

Nothing goes into the electric range's oven for cooking in our camp. The roast beef is done in a crock cooker, the other cuts are grilled over charcoal. That's as rough as our 'roughin' it' camp gets. You know it isn't easy standing outside, maybe being pelted by the elements, grilling a steak five minutes on one side and four minutes on the other.

Real deer-stalkers like the six or seven who will be in our Upper Peninsula camp try to have two days in the woods before the season opens. We walk every which way, looking for deer rubs and droppings. We sniff, we follow trails, we look for areas kicked up under acorn-bearing trees.

We look in hollow logs for porcupines, we watch for grouse, we listen for chickadees, crows and squirrels. We blaze trees into blinds near where "the bigguns" run, and we cut sighting paths long enough to see the Soo 75 miles away.

Then, opening morning, we leave camp way before daylight, and spend until daylight trying to find the tree by the trail that we blazed so we can find our blind.

We have all read all the books about deer hunting, but by the results we get you'd think we ate the covers.

Reaching out to American troops

Dear Readers,

Two months ago, I decided as a "mom at home" I could write to the troops in Saudi Arabia to let them know I cared about them and thought about them, even if I have never had a son.

I received many responses. This is one of many letters I received.

I will be making up Christmas packages of candy and nuts every Tuesday, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. If anyone wishes to donate candy or help me with packaging, please call 625-8369. Come join me, and get in the real Christmas spirit of giving.

Dody Bayley

Dear Mom Bayley,

I am writing to thank you for your "to any soldier" letter. It is Americans like you who make the hardship of being away from our families a little less hard.

You do this by writing letters that let us know that you support our efforts. Thank you for caring.

My name is Todd Brown. I am assigned to an attack helicopter battalion. I am a pilot/instructor in the AH-64 Apache advanced attack helicopter. The Apache's mission in war is to destroy enemy tanks and armored personnel carriers. The Apache was recently featured in a Hollywood movie called "Fire Birds."

I have been in the Army for almost 12 years. I am married and have one daughter who is 10 months old. My wife and I are from Michigan. We grew up in Ludington.

Both of our families still live there, and we plan to move back to Ludington after I retire.

Saudi Arabia is unlike any other country I have ever visited. It is easy to understand why God gave these people all the oil; they have little else.

Throughout the country there are no lakes or rivers, and the few trees are nothing more than wind and sand-beaten palms.

Always be grateful that you live in a country as beautiful as ours. Despite all of her shortcomings, she is the greatest country in the world.

Once again let me thank you for your letter. If you would like to continue writing, I would be happy to answer all your letters.

Todd C. Brown

Proud as alumnus

In honor of the entire teaching staff at Clarkston Senior High School, I'd like to extend a sincere thank you.

This thank you is for more than just enhancing my general knowledge, it reflects what you taught outside of the textbooks.

Upon attending my first college class at Miami University, I realized how valuable my high school teachers were.

Indirectly the CHS teaching staff helped me grow intellectually as well as emotionally.

It was in high school that I developed the skills that enabled me to take risks and to be a strong, independent individual.

Besides just being teachers, the staff at CHS were important role models in my life as well. Daily they reinforced essential morals and values.

Continuously they encouraged me to take the initiative to ask questions, and most importantly to stand up for what I believe in.

Now I'm faced with the biggest challenge of all, adapting to the college atmosphere.

I'm mixed in with 16,000 other students and I'm hundreds of miles away from home, yet I've never felt like just a number.

This is because I've taken everything I've learned in high school and applied it to my new environment.

But most importantly, I know that the teaching staff at Clarkston High School cares, even when I'm not in their classrooms. To say the least, that's not something every Miami student can say about their high schools.

I feel privileged as well as proud to say I'm an alumnus of Clarkston High School.

'If it Fitz . . .'

Real news is unreal, but imagine the possibilities

Jim Fitzgerald

Because of the terrible threat of war in the Persian Gulf, Cher replaced Marla Maples on the cover of Vanity Fair magazine. I read it in the newspaper. I really did.

On the very same newspaper page, I also read that you're dead - nyah, nyah, nyah - if a bullet "leaves a nickel-sized or larger mark" on your body. Honest. Brother, can you spare a dime-sized wound?

I'm not quite sure why I stress that, honest, I really read this stuff in the newspaper. A reputable newspaper. I'm probably trying to fool myself into believing you won't believe me unless I cite a reliable source. I'd like to think weirdness is unusual and most people would scoff at the suggestion that Saddam Hussein inadvertently helped publicize Cher's latest tattoo.

I should wake up and surreal the coffee. The truth is that most people read what Tina Brown said and didn't think what I thought, which was: "Hey, she must be kidding. That sounds like a great line from a 'Saturday Night Live' satire." Most people simply thought "Ho hum, same old same old" and turned to the comic pages for an antidote of reality.

Tina Brown is editor of Vanity Fair and she wasn't kidding. In explaining why Cher, instead of Maples, is on the current cover, Brown said the staff tried Maples as a cover. "In light of the Gulf crisis, we thought a brunette was more appropriate."

It is interesting to speculate on what Brown meant by that weird explanation. Maples, who insists the cover was promised to her, is blond. If the top crisis of the day were in Holland instead of Kuwait, would Maples have been appropriate?

But is Maples a true blond, or bleached? What if Cher's hair is actually grey? What if Vanity Fair's cover featured a hair color inappropriate to the gulf crisis? The possibilities are scary.

Two U.S. soldiers are sitting in the sand in Saudi Arabia, reading Vanity Fair. One of them says how great it is that Cher is on the cover, because she has dark hair, just like the women of the Persian Gulf. But the other soldier says he read in People magazine that Cher turned grey many years ago, when she was married to Sonny, and her brunette shade is phony.

The two soldiers tell all their buddies and there's a mutiny. They refuse to risk their lives for low gasoline prices in a nation whose magazine covers feature hair shades inappropriate to the soldiers' valiant quest. Saddam Hussein gets to keep Kuwait, and Marla Maples gets to say "nyah, nyah, nyah."

Which brings us to the newspaper article about Hell Survivors Inc. in Pinckney, Mich., where, for $15 not including guns and ammunition, you can spend three hours pretending to kill your fellow human beings with paintball bullets that shoot 300 feet per second. "Combatants stalk their enemies through a field cluttered with old tires, shacks and even a wrecked plane." Just like a real war, and the winner is the side with the fewest nickel-sized wounds. You must be 16 to participate, not 6.

That type of war practice is important to a sane, secure nation, of course, but it doesn't go far enough. In October 1983, 241 U.S. servicemen were killed in a Beirut bombing. It took more than a week to notify some next of kin. The problem was corpse identification. Many of the slaughtered servicemen were sleeping and not wearing dog tags, many were mutilated, and many of their personnel records were destroyed in the same explosion that destroyed them.

Proper practice could eliminate such problems. Hell Survivors, Inc. should offer a discount to combatants who do the best job of following through. Immediately after each pretend killing, the killer should be required to dump the corpse on his widow's or parents' front lawn.

In determining the winners in the survivors' notification category, neatness wouldn't count. For the victory celebration, perhaps Cher or Marla, appropriately coiffed, could be persuaded to lead cheers.

You would read about it in the newspaper. Please pass the surreal.

From This Perspective

Giving thanks

Tracy King

I am so thankful for the bounties in my life that, though Thanksgiving is still a week away, they're almost all I can think about.

Here's my list for 1990, noted in no particular order:

- * I'm thankful for the redial button on my office telephone, especially when I'm trying to get through to Clarkston High School.

- * I'm thankful for the non-fat Bavarian Chocolate Yogurt served at Yogurt and Muffins and, for that matter, non-fat yogurt anywhere.

- * I'm thankful that general elections are behind us, that we have at least three months before the next one.

- * I'm thankful to Shawn Giles in the Sherman Publications darkroom for her magic powers over my photographs.

- * I'm thankful that The Clarkston News is a weekly newspaper to allow plenty of time for return phone calls from certain officials. (You know who you are!)

- * I'm thankful The Clarkston News is a weekly newspaper because I'd never make Friday deadlines.

- * I'm thankful to Clarkston Community Schools Business Manager Steve Lenar, the first one (finally!) to explain Michigan's state aid funding formula in a (relatively) clear fashion.

- * I'm thankful for the colder weather that allows us to enjoy soups and chili at Carol's Village Grill.

- * I'm thankful for WDET for my long drives to and from work.

- * I'm thankful for my extra fast car that allows me to get through the stoplight at White Lake Road and Dixie Highway on at least the second try.

- * I'm thankful for those cute homemade parking passes we have, which prevent us from getting parking tickets in our own Clarkston News lot.

- * I'm thankful to Clarkston School Board President John Needham for compacting six hours worth of school board meeting business into four.

- * I'm thankful for sunny days in November.

- * I'm thankful that construction on Dixie Highway is finally finished.

- * I'm thankful to all elementary school principals for thinking up clever activities that allow us to take adorable photos of children.

- * I'm thankful to the Independence Township Library for the same thing.

- * I'm thankful for our new wide, spacious working space upstairs.

- * I'm thankful for the view of Walters Lake from Clarkston Road.

- * I'm thankful to Julie Campe for her Herculean efforts in making this a quality newspaper to work for.

- * I'm thankful for Thanksgiving which allows me pause to be thankful. And to eat turkey. And stuffing.

CHS prepared me

As a freshman here a Central Michigan University, I feel my years at Clarkston High School have prepared me for the academic challenges that lie ahead.

CHS emphasizes academic excellence and as a former student I am striving under CHS's lead, to be the best student I can be.

Wally Wyniemko

Positive influence

As I look back at the past 12 years of my life, I realize just how much the many people involved in the Clarkston school system have taught me.

Through them, I have learned how important it is to be an individual and work toward my fullest potential.

Of equal importance, they stressed the significance of working with others for thoughts, ideas and encouragement.

As a result, I have been inspired to become a teacher. One of my goals as I pursue this career is that I may have this same effect on my future students.

I would like to compliment the Clarkston school system for creating such a positive influence on me and many others.

Nancy Needham

Involvement helps

Long, long ago, in another time and another place, I was a freshman for the first time — a junior high freshman, on my way to the high school.

When I finally did get there, I really didn't understand what was going on, but I was happy to be there.

I didn't really get involved in anything until my junior year, when I met Mrs. Srabian and Mr. Cooley, who invited me to join Interact Club; and when Mrs. Kettler got me into Future Problem Solving.

My senior year was when I really went crazy and joined everything. (Well, almost everything.) I joined Blue and Gold and met Dr. Burek; I joined the Drama Club and met Mrs. Gibson and Miss Warren; I joined Just Say No and met Miss MacKay; I joined DBUG, was secretary of Interact, a committee chairperson for Blue and Gold, and was involved in a variety of clubs and activities.

Of course, like most everything in life, being a part of all these things did have its down-side — I was over-extended and didn't have much free time.

However, the clubs and all of the people that I met through them (Mr. Cooley and Dr. Burek, in particular) taught me to think for myself and to do things that I wanted to do whether it was "cool" or not.

They gave me confidence in myself and showed me that nothing (well, almost nothing) is impossible.

Here at Alma I've decided to continue my tradition of being involved by helping with the freshman Homecoming float, by competing in Field Day, and by being a member of Bruske Residence Hall Council.

I'd like to end with a special thanks to all of the groups, mentioned and unmentioned, to the people affiliated with those groups, and to all of my teachers from as far back as I can remember, for everything that they did for me during my high school career, and for all the good that their help and support during high school will do for me in college.

Thanks again and I love you all!

Ted Fletcher

Thanks for help

I would just like to thank you again for your efforts and the time you took with me while I was at Clarkston High School.

Now that I am at college I can only hope to have the same relationship with my professors as I did with my teachers at CHS.

I also find that not only do I miss my friends from last year but many teachers, too.

One of the most rewarding things about college this year is the fact that I consider it somewhat easy.

I am finding myself ahead of many other freshmen simply because of the teaching level at CHS. This is making my stay at Central Michigan a pleasant one, for I feel I have an advantage over many students.

Dane Davis

Profound effect

I'm writing because I think it is important for this community to remember how many dedicated, talented educators Clarkston High School has.

Although I attended CHS for my last three years of high school, it wasn't until I got to college that I understood how rare these teachers are.

I am a 1990 CHS graduate and am about halfway through my first semester at Alma College.

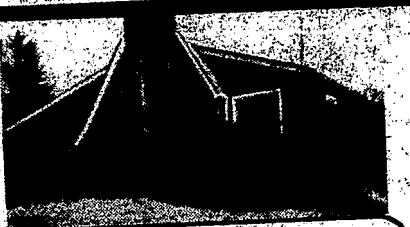

I have met so many really intelligent freshmen here who are struggling due to a lack of strong high school background. Thanks to my Clarkston instructors, what is new, scary material for them is review for me.

And what is new for me isn't so scary because I've been taught how to approach it. The challenging level of my college preparation high school courses has enabled me to adapt quickly to my present workload.

I have heard similar stories from other 1990 grads. Believe me, this kind of preparation goes a long way in easing the stress of college life!

I am sharing this not only because I wanted to let citizens know what a great job their teachers are doing. This is also my way of publicly thanking my teachers for the profound, positive effect they continue to have on my life.

Athletic boosters bring it together

As the parents of a Sashabaw Cougar softball player, we would like to express our thanks and appreciation to the Clarkston Athletic Boosters for their hard work and dedication.

Nowhere but in Clarkston did we have refreshments, restrooms and play-by-play announcing. We did not know what to expect when we played "away."

We soon learned that Clarkston was the only place that has it all together.

Thanks again to the Clarkston Athletic Boosters.

Custodian keeps SJH up and running

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

If you ask Tim Merenuk, his job as head custodian at Sashabaw Junior High involves keeping the building clean and equipment running.

A 10-minute visit to his office reveals there's a lot more to it.

"Tim, when do you think we might get a pencil sharpener in the cafeteria?" inquires one young visitor.

Another student wheels in a ripped, wobbly chair belonging to her teacher.

"Do you think you could fix this?" she asks, uncertainly.

Without any hesitation, Tim assures his customers their requests will be granted.

Though the chair is in dire need of a replacement, Tim waves off the suggestion.

"He's probably had that chair for 20 years!" he insists.

Student locker problems are among the most frequent calls for Tim's services. Keeping the gym and main entrance-area clean also require a lot of attention, he admits.

Tim is proud of Sashabaw Junior High, calling it the newest and cleanest of the district's facilities.

Though it may be the newest, Tim, himself, attended junior high here, as did three other custodians on his staff.

He currently lives in Holly with his wife, Cindy, and children, Matt, 13; Angela, 11; and Anthony, 7.

Tim worked at the high school for eight years before coming to Sashabaw Junior High, which he says he prefers.

"I like being around the kids," he shrugs. "I like to joke around and have fun with them."

"They're good kids," he adds.

Even though they are messy in gym class.

New facilities overseer OK'd

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

A construction manager to oversee the $85 million facilities package proposed by Clarkston schools was tentatively selected by board members Nov. 12.

The board voted unanimously to begin contract negotiations with the A. J. Etkin Construction Co. in Farmington Hills. Though the vote was unanimous, three board members indicated a desire to select a competing firm, Barton Malow Co. in Southfield.

Durham Downs, Sheila Hughes and Tom Howard indicated their wish to hire Barton Malow, while Paul Van Klaveren, Karen Foyteck, Janet Thomas and President John Needham preferred A. J. Etkin.

Though the entire board heard one-hour presentations by the two candidates, Downs, Hughes and Van Klaveren were part of a board facilities committee charged with further evaluating the two.

The committee stressed that both companies were well-qualified to monitor the construction of new facilities in the district. Individual board members stressed a desire for one over another based on a "comfort" level with each candidate.

If negotiations are successful, A. J. Etkin would coordinate construction of proposed school facilities in the district.

The projects are estimated to take up to four years to complete at a total cost of $85 million.

A. J. Etkin can expect to earn anywhere between $2 million to $3 million for this service, according to school administrators.

Call for food

More food and monetary donations are needed to fill Thanksgiving food baskets at Lighthouse North.

More people than expected — 150 — signed up to receive the baskets, which are targeted at the needy in the northern townships of Oakland County: Brandon, Springfield, Oxford, Independence, Orion, Holly, Groveland, Rose — and the villages and cities within those boundaries.

Already helping this year are the Oakland County Sheriff's Association, which presented $200 to Lighthouse, as well as the youth group at Clarkston United Methodist Church. Other organizations and businesses also have pitched in by collecting cans — but many more are needed, according to Sherry Kaar, director of Lighthouse North on Maybee Road, Independence Township. Especially needed are Thanksgiving-related items, such as canned cranberry sauce, fruits, vegetables, pumpkin and more. Any money that is donated will be used to buy turkeys, she said, adding that if they don't receive enough food to meet the demand for baskets, they will have to turn people away.

The donation deadline for Thanksgiving is Sunday, Nov. 18.

While Lighthouse North has a food pantry and a clothes closet year-round, money supplying the regular food pantry won't be spent on the special holiday baskets, Kaar said.

Lighthouse North is in the historical chapel of the Sashabaw Presbyterian Church on Maybee Road — next to Clarkston Community Education and across from North Sashabaw Elementary School.

Power outage

THIS utility pole on Clarkston Road was cut in half last Friday after a piece of construction machinery struck it from the roadside. According to Independence Fire Chief Gar

Wilson, several homes north of Sashabaw Road, including fire station number two, lost power for nearly two and a half hours. (Photo by Curt McAllister)

$5,000 DNR grant benefits youth

An environmental youth program soon will be offered in the Clarkston area, thanks to a $5,000 grant.

Last week, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources selected the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department and 54 other statewide institutions to share from the $364,700 Youth Environmental Service program.

According to parks and rec. Director Ann Conklin, the money will go toward a student geared program set to begin Dec. 1. The program, targeted at the area's fifth-through ninth-graders, is to teach environmental appreciation.

Some of the activities will include building bird houses and recycling various materials.

Looking for mentors

People in the business world who are interested in today's youth may want to volunteer in a mentorship program at Sashabaw Junior High School.

The program matches ninth-graders in the gifted and talented class at SJHS with a community business person in the students' fields of interests.

"In setting up mentorships, it gives them a chance to work in a business environment and get a real-world experience they don't get in the classroom," said Sue Kiser, coordinator of the program.

Areas of student interest include gourmet cooking, performing arts, psychology, sociology, computers, mythology, inventory, anatomy, research, chemistry, energy, fine arts, nuclear energy, cardiology, judiciary, parapsychology, law, modeling, journalism, fashion, music, medicine, counseling, teaching, photography, parapsychology, advertising, television, radio and more.

To help out or for more information, call Kiser at SJHS, 674-4169.

Hospital, hotels and growth in township's future

Town meeting with Independence Supervisor Frank Ronk

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Any doubts that Independence Township was growing were dashed at a town meeting sponsored by the Blue Ribbon Kids Committee Nov. 8.

Independence Township Supervisor Frank Ronk, the featured speaker at the forum, revealed plans for hospitals, hotels, subdivisions, parks and a variety of other developments in the township's future.

Ronk admitted that growth was assured, but stressed that township officials would control it carefully.

"That's what the planning commission and the (zoning board of appeals) are doing," Ronk said. "They're allowing things to happen — we know it's going to happen — and we're letting it happen in a good way."

Ronk told the audience of about 100 people that, even among builders, the township had a reputation of being tough.

"We've been noted among the construction business as being tough," Ronk said. "They don't want to go ahead here unless they really have to."

The two-hour presentation highlighted the following areas:

The "Sashabaw Corridor" and other township roadways

The Sashabaw Corridor refers to a section of Sashabaw Road from about Maybee Road to Clarkston Road.

This section will be the township's main street in the near future, Ronk said.

"We know this because of the development lined up to go in," Ronk said.

The Sashabaw Corridor will likely be developed to five lanes and would carry the bulk of the north/south traffic. Though the township would prefer a boulevard for this section, the $1 million extra cost for a boulevard will likely prevent its creation.

The intersection at Maybee and Sashabaw roads, what Ronk calls "one of the most dangerous in the township," will be improved with turn lanes onto each of the four legs of the crossway. Federal money will likely be forthcoming, Ronk said.

Ideally, Sashabaw Road south of Maybee Road would be widened through to Dixie Highway, Ronk said, though there has not been a lot of encouragement from the Road Commission of Oakland County.

The portion north of Clarkston Road needs to be widened as well, Ronk claimed, though that, too, likely won't happen for quite a while.

Ronk acknowledged a need to have M-15 widened to five lanes from Dixie Highway to Paramus Road, a plan currently under consideration.

"It will not be a major highway," Ronk said of the proposal. "(And) I don't believe more people will take the road because it's five lanes."

In answer to questions by the audience, Ronk said he did not predict an on-ramp to I-75 would be created at Clintonville Road, despite the easy access it would provide to the proposed Country Club of the North golf course development.

On a question about reducing the number of driveways on M-15, Ronk said that though businesses will be approached, the township had no right, by law, to take away existing driveways.

A portion of White Lake Road may be redirected to line up with Nelsey Road, Ronk predicted. The existing portion of White Lake Road south of the Thompson McCully plant would be a service drive for trucks.

Hospitals and hotels

Though a few sites have drawn developers interested in hotels and motels, none of the proposals are currently in the works, Ronk said.

The intersection of Sashabaw and Waldon roads, the corner of White Lake and Dixie Highway and along M-15 are potential sites, according to Ronk.

The structures would be a minimum of three stories, though developers could build below the structure.

The Marriott Corp. is particularly interested in the Sashabaw/Waldon site, Ronk said.

As for hospitals, it appears Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital has finally cleared all legal hurdles blocking the development of a 120-bed facility at White Lake Road and Dixie Highway.

The facility, slated to begin in 1991, will eventually be POH's main headquarters, Ronk predicts, though expansion on the site is limited by wetlands.

"I think the POH plans look real nice built into the topography," Ronk said. "It's a most attractive building, though they don't have a lot of room to expand because of a large wetlands."

Shopping centers and other structures

In response to questions about the vacant A & P building at Dixie Highway and M-15, and the soon-to-be-vacant Food Town building at Sashabaw and Maybee, Ronk said the township has no power to ensure that the buildings get filled quickly.

"There is nobody sniffing around," Ronk said of the Food Town building. "We don't like empty shopping centers; that's one reason why we've limited shopping centers to three spots."

"We don't want five or six that are not busy," Ronk said.

He added that Wonder Drugs is rumored to be taking over the A & P space.

Another question referred to the status of the vacant gas station at Sashabaw and Maybee.

"A company came to us and wanted to build a car wash," Ronk answered. "They wanted a 10-pound operation on a five-pound lot."

The company was turned down, and the fuel tanks have been removed from the site, Ronk said.

Water and sewer projects

A water tower will be built on the POH site to look "as attractive as a water tower can be," according to Ronk. The tank will be used for general use and to boost fire protection.

When asked about the status of sewers along Dixie Highway, Ronk explained that the township planned to run a main line along Deer Lake behind the Deer Lake Racquet Club.

The sewer was initially proposed in the vicinity of Sagamore and Deer Lake roads, however public opposition prompted the township to look at alternatives.

The plan "short changes" residents on Phelan and Simler, Ronk said, because eventually, they will have to install a sewer system at their own expense.

"Someday it's got to be done," he explained. "As a kid you could drink from that lake. It's clean now, but not nearly as clean as 40 years ago."

Downtown Development Authority

The Downtown Development Authority (DDA) was organized five years ago to fund improvements such as lights and sewers in the township's business district, Ronk explained.

To do that, the tax level of properties in the district was frozen at a certain level, with taxes collected above that amount going to the DDA.

The DDA has "not taken a nickel" from the school system, as long as the district has been in the state's funding formula.

Though the district is expected to go out of formula next year, Ronk explained, the district and the schools have agreed to maintain the DDA's operation for another five years.

"In the next five years the schools will be going out-of-formula and we would, in fact, be taking money from the schools," Ronk explained. "However, the figure is not astronomical."

"(The schools) feel they they can live with it," he added. "If something comes up, we would be glad to share with them to take care of it."

At the end of the DDA time period, the schools would realize a great windfall, Ronk explained, adding "We're not going to cause grief."

Other highlights from Ronk's presentation included the following:

■ Though the township has very little housing available for under $160,000, officials are hoping to see developments aimed at senior citizens.

■ The township has no recourse for apartment dwellings that are run-down, though most landlords watch upkeep in order to keep tenants, Ronk said.

■ No restaurant proposals are currently on the table; however, several owners have shown an interest in the township. Among them; Chuck Muer, The American Pizza Cafe and Bill Knapp's.

File now to run for village council

Candidates interested in running for three Clarkston Village Council seats may pick up petitions from the Village Hall on 375 Depot Street.

The office is open from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday. About 20 signatures are needed on the petitions. Deadline for returning the petitions is 4 p.m. Dec. 17.

Election of the council seats will be held March 11, 1991. A primary election will be held Feb. 18, if necessary.

The three seats up for re-election are those held by Robert Whitmer, Douglas Roeser and James Schultz. Each seat is a two-year term.

Ballot language OK'd for February school election

BY TRACY KING

Clarkston News Associate Editor

Clarkston-area voters will have three separate school facilities options to vote on in February.

School board members unanimously voted to draft language for the three construction packages, despite suggestions that the options be grouped together differently.

The board's approval moves the proposal to the State Board of Education in Lansing, which must approve language that will be presented to voters in February.

The facilities package, estimated at a cost of $85 million dollars, includes an elementary option, a secondary option and a swimming pool option.

School administrators proposed splitting up the proposal after voters turned down a total package two years ago.

Superintendent Gary Haner told the board that despite community input at a recent forum, his discussion with a former state superintendent and his own instinct tells him to keep the options separate.

"There was a strong show of desire at the forum to present no more than two or even one total package," Haner said.

"We do hope all of them will pass - that's certainly our intent," he added. "My goal in suggesting the split is to give the community the same opportunity to pass all the proposals and a better opportunity to approve part of them."

Haner mentioned three examples — Rockford, West Ottawa and Romulus — in which a total package failed the first time and a portion or a group of proposals passed the second time.

Some board members expressed a desire to group all of the options together.

"The whole proposal gives voters a choice, and in my mind we don't have a choice," said board Vice President Tom Howard. "I lump a pool in the same category with a football field. If you don't need a pool then you don't need a wrestling mat or a basketball."

Other board members suggested grouping the education options together and leaving the pool option separate.

"We're so far behind, the public might perceive us pitting the elementary and the high school — it's one or the other," said Trustee Sheila Hughes. "I think the elementary and secondary should go together."

Separated into separate packages, the options include the following:

■ An elementary option totaling $24.6 million, which includes the construction of a new elementary school and renovation of all existing elementary schools.

■ A secondary option totaling $54.6 million, which includes building and equipping a new high school; renovating the current high school as a middle school to replace Clarkston Junior High School; and upgrading the current Sashabaw Junior High School as a middle school.

Rezoning would provide Sashabaw office buffer

A rezoning request for a parcel west of Sashabaw and south of Maybee roads received first-reading approval from the Independence Township Board.

On Nov. 7, the board unanimously approved the first reading of a request which would change the parcel's zoning from single-family residential to office. The request must receive second-reading approval from the board before it's adopted.

The petitioners, Thomas and Judith Edwards, intend to market the 13,725-square-foot lot on a site which could support a small office structure. Water and sewer hookups are currently available to the site. The property is located next to a laundromat, and the parcel across Sashabaw Road is also zoned for office.

Last month, the township planning commission found the request to be reasonable and recommended approval to the board. Building Director Beverly McElmeel told the board that an office designation would offer a good buffer to the residential area just south of the site.

The second reading will be discussed at the Nov. 20 township board meeting.

"We do hope all of them will pass - that's certainly our intent."

Superintendent Gary Haner

■ A swimming pool option totaling $5.4 million, which includes the construction a new swimming pool at the new proposed high school.

The facilities package would be paid for with a bond issue using zero coupon bonds, which spread the cost of the program equally over a 30-year period.

Mann Road hearing

The possibility of paving Mann Road in Independence and Waterford townships will be the focus of a Nov. 28 public hearing held by the Road Commission of Oakland County.

The discussion will revolve around the possible paving of Mann Road from Clintonville Road east to east of Sunburst Street, Waterford Township. The paving project will involve tree removal and include drainage improvements.

The project's tentative schedule indicates that construction could begin as early as April, 1991 and be open to traffic by August of 1991.

The public hearing will be held at Clarkston Community Education Center, 5275 Maybee Road, Independence Township. It will last from 3:30-6:30 p.m. For more information, call the road commission at 645-2000.

Sun sets in the East for Clarkston cagers

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

"O East is East and West is West and never the twain shall meet."

Rudyard Kipling said that but he never had the chance to see the girls' district basketball tournament played at Clarkston High School this week.

Lapeer East defeated Clarkston and Lapeer West topped Grand Blanc in Monday's opening round to set up a 7 p.m. Friday championship clash between the two arch-rivals, barring upsets in Wednesday's second round.

A district championship by Lapeer East would be the first one for the Eagle girls in their history.

Monday night, steady Lapeer East ran and pressed their way to a 41-29 win over Clarkston.

The Eagles' record jumped to 20-1 (their only setback was a 1-point loss against Oxford). Clarkston, a team loaded with sophomores, finished 16-5.

Clarkston's Jennifer McChesney, a three-year starter, played the game with a broken rib, hitting on only one of 10 attempts.

The senior wasn't the only one playing hurt. The Wolves hurt themselves by committing 21 turnovers and failed to cash in on several shots from within close range.

"When you get to crunch time, you've got to hit those layups," said Clarkston coach Larry Mahrle.

The Wolves, who never led in the game, trailed 22-13 at the half and closed the gap to within three late in the third quarter. But every time Clarkston seemed to get some momentum, the Eagles fought back.

A layup by Clarkston's Courtney Whittaker with 55 seconds left in the third quarter cut Lapeer East's lead to 26-23.

But Eagle Erin Whitney countered with her own layup and teammate Mindy Huestis nailed a 3-pointer with four seconds left for a 31-23 bulge after three quarters. Huestis' basket was her only one of the night but it was a big one.

The Wolves never came closer than seven in the final quarter.

Mahrle felt the Wolves' inability to break a tough Eagle press in the second quarter was a big factor in the final outcome.

"That was a key point of the game. We lost our poise," said Mahrle.

Early in the second quarter, a 5-footer by Alyson McChesney closed the gap to 11-8. But at that point the Wolves couldn't get the ball past mid-court three consecutive times while the Eagles were scoring three times for a 17-8 advantage.

That 9-point advantage continued as the Eagles took a 22-13 lead into intermission.

Lapeer East coach Mike Halstead said that his team's press not only helped his squad but may have tired out the Wolves.

"When we scouted them, we noticed that when you press them, it slowed them down a bit," said Halstead.

Halstead said that Clarkston's gym is warmer than most and felt stamina was important. He said he helped get fresh players into the game by platooning four guards.

The Eagles went into the game averaging 65 points a game, but faced a slow-down game by the Wolves.

"I felt we controlled the tempo," said Mahrle.

"We wanted to pick the tempo up," said Halstead.

ALYSON McChesney whirls into action against Lapeer East in Monday's district tournament game.

Jennifer McChesney, who hadn't picked up a ball since breaking a rib a week before in a game against Davison, tried to pick up the Wolves.

She didn't decide that she was actually going to play until warm-ups. Once the game started, she was her usual self, diving on the court to steal a pass or gather a loose ball.

But while the Wolves had always counted on her for three years, this was the night that her teammates needed to take up much of the slack. The turnovers, missed layups and a tough Eagle team made that task much more difficult.

Sophomores Alyson McChesney and Whittaker led the Wolves with eight points apiece. Sophomore Heather Steinhelper scored four, Beth Walker and Carrie Roeser each scored three.

Eagle Whitney led all scorers with 14.

Mahrle was pleased with the performance of his team this year. Two 6-footers graduated from last year's squad but the 1990 Wolves, playing with only three seniors, still managed to take second in the Greater Oakland Activities League.

Jennifer McChesney, Walker and Roeser will graduate but several underclassmen either started or saw much playing time this season.

And now those underclassmen at least know what it feels like to play in a tournament game. And next season they'll try to prove Kipling right, with East not facing West in the district finals.

Clarkston 42, Brandon 31
(Nov. 10 at Brandon)

Clarkston, without the services of injured Jennifer McChesney, held off the pesky Blackhawks for a 42-31 victory.

The victory in the regular-season finale gave the Wolves a 16-4 overall record and an 8-2 mark in the Greater Oakland Activities League. Clarkston finished second in the GOAL behind Waterford Kettering.

The Wolves took a 16-5 lead after eight minutes, but Brandon cut the deficit to 21-17 at intermission. Clarkston then increased its lead to an 8-point advantage after three quarters and held on for the win.

Alyson McChesney led all scorers with 25 and she also pulled down nine rebounds. Teammate Whittaker scored five and cleared 14 boards. Steinhelper netted eight points and Roeser added four.

Jennifer Gallagher scored 17 for the hosts and Heidi Bescoe added 11.

Clarkston's JV team made it a sweep, stopping the Blackhawks, 42-31.

Clarkston 50, Davison 39
(Nov. 7 at Clarkston)

Alyson McChesney scored 16 and Steinhelper netted 15 as the Wolves stopped Davison, 50-39, in non-league action.

The Wolves led 25-16 at the half and 36-23 after three quarters.

Jennifer McChesney only scored three points with seven assists but was injured in the game. Walker and Whittaker each scored five, Roeser four and Tinkis added two.

Angie Mawer was the only Davison player in double figures with 10.

Davison won the JV game, 50-39.

Wolf gridders honored

Twelve Clarkston High School varsity football players have been honored by their league and additional Wolves were awarded at a team banquet.

Dave Marks, Dugan Fife, Chad Hetherington, Damon Michelsen, Joel Davis, Kurt Golarz, Dereck Raymond and Jon Wyniemko were selected as all-league in the Greater Oakland Activities League.

Brian Davis, Joe Webb, Chris Figa and Dan Griffiths were honorable mention choices.

All are seniors except for juniors

Fife, Wyniemko, Brian Davis and Griffiths.

At Monday's team banquet, Fife was named the team's offensive most valuable player and Michelsen was named defensive most valuable player.

The coaches' award for offense went to Figa and Golarz received it for defense.

Senior Aaron Harrison was chosen as the team's most improved player, senior Tony Miller won the Heart award and senior Kevin Juzysta was named as the squad's scholar-athlete.

Final performance

CLARKSTON seniors Jennifer McChesney (right) and Carrie Roeser (below) finished their high school basketball careers in Monday's 41-29 loss to Lapeer East in district tournament play. McChesney (who played in her final game with a broken rib), Roeser and Beth Walker were the only three seniors for the Wolves this season, who finished 16-5. (Photos by James Glibowski)

Wolf makes transition to Wolverine

IT WAS Michigan vs. Michigan and Rhonda Jokisch (left) vs. Jenn Nuanes during last Wednesday's University of Michigan women's basketball team's intra-squad game played at Clarkston High School.

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The basketball court was the same, many of the people watching in the stands were the same and she was running up and down the floor the same way she had for three years, but something was different.

Rhonda Jokisch was again playing on the Clarkston High School basketball court, but this time she couldn't grab a pass from Jennifer McChesney or help clear the boards with Susan McKoin.

Instead, on Nov. 7 she was getting a pass from Stacie McCall or boxing out with Shimmy Gray, her new University of Michigan women's basketball teammates who played in an intra-squad Blue-White game.

Jokisch, a 6-foot, 1-inch 1990 Clarkston High School graduate, played for the Blue team which lost, 58-49. The Wolverine freshman enjoyed the return visit.

"It felt great. I missed it. It's a thrill to be back," said Jokisch.

Jokisch said many things are different about the college game compared to high school action.

"It's different basketball. There's more intensity, the competition is greater and I'm not the tallest on the team. Now I have to jump," said Jokisch, who has 6-foot, 2-inch and 6-foot, 3-inch teammates and will face taller opponents once the Big Ten season starts.

She said all the spots on the team are open but knows it would be difficult to break into the starting five as a freshman.

Jokisch said the biggest part of her game she has to work on is her outside shooting.

Jokisch, who is studying English and communication in pursuit of a law degree, has also been working hard in the classroom, getting A's and B's.

"You have to budget your time," said Jokisch about juggling the time demands put on sports and school work. "But I'm organized, which has helped me out."

Even though former teammate McKoin isn't on the court with Jokisch, the two live near each other in a dorm. Having a friend and former Wolf close by has helped her transition into college.

Jokisch has two brothers who have also played sports for the Maize and Blue.

She never had any thoughts of ever attending Michigan State University for safety reasons.

"If I went to State, I would have been shot," said Jokisch.

This winter she will taking shots for the Maize and Blue.

PRICING YOUR HOUSE RIGHT

QUESTION: What is the best way to put the proper selling price on a home?

ANSWER: The value of your house is not what you think it is - or what the buyer thinks. It is determined chiefly by the location, the neighborhood, and the current market. An overpriced house sitting on the market for months becomes almost impossible to sell. So first, you must get in line with the market. That means a realistic appraisal.

Nobody - but nobody - is more acutely aware of the current housing market than your local Realtor. Or you can hire a qualified independent appraiser. You may be pleasantly surprised to find out that you were intending to price your house for less than its fair market value.

NOBODY - BUT NOBODY is more aware of current home values than your local REALTOR.

Swinging from the heels

Negatively positive

James Gibowski

While Dan Fife spoke at the mike, he introduced me to the crowd at the Clarkston Chiefs' football banquet last Thursday.

Fife, who just completed coaching the JV Chiefs to a Superbowl finish and is now preparing for another year of Clarkston varsity basketball, surprised me in more ways than one.

First of all, I had no idea he was going to say anything about my presence at the event.

Secondly, what he said would be taken as a (now, get your calculators out) 100 percent compliment by 97 percent of the people, but after thinking about it, I fall into that 3 percent of the people who only take it as 75 percent of a compliment.

Fife told the crowd that unlike much that is written in most newspapers, I usually write about the positive side in my stories.

After he said it, I felt good. At least for a few seconds.

But then I felt like how a prosecuting attorney would feel if he were told he spoke positively in court while questioning the main suspect. Or how a consumer's advocate would feel if she were told she rarely complained about a product. Or how a man feels after a woman has told him he is a "nice guy" (the kiss of death) on a first date.

Prosecuting attorneys, consumer advocates, first-daters and sportswriters (including all other journalists) all fall under that 3 percent I was talking about.

So, thanks Dan. But please understand why my expression suddenly turned from a smile to a blank stare.

Believe it or not, I think I am probably the most cynical reporter at the Clarkston News, when it comes to political, social, economic news, etc. Just ask Julie Campe, Sandy Conlen, Tracy King or Curt McAllister. Nearly every day they hear me whining about the morning headlines before I even turn on my computer.

I have been a news reporter on other newspapers, I keep up with what is going on in the world as well as anyone, I have an opinion on just about everything and I can be as stubborn as I want.

So, that's why I enjoy writing sports. It's a nice change of pace. A way to take a break from the real world.

I think this change of pace happens more often when covering high school sports. I am much more cynical when it comes to pro and college sports and felt I have displayed that cynicism in some of my columns.

When I interviewed Detroit News columnist Joe Falls this summer, he told me how he enjoyed spending time on the road covering small-town high school basketball during tournament time more than any other assignment last year. Falls has covered all of the major pro sporting events but he still gets his kicks from watching some Class D team up in northern Michigan.

I have been fortunate to cover some pro sports, but I, too, can easily see how Falls feels about the high school level. That affection also carries into junior high sports, Little League, youth soccer, etc.

Falls especially has an affection for probably the purest of sports, the Special Olympics, which he devotes his time in volunteering to help.

There is more of an innocence to these kind of sports than in the pros. They aren't completely innocent, but they're easily the quickest way to find that innocence.

Luckily, most of the pro athletes I have observed at least retain a basic love of the game, even though it can be clouded by the business part of their occupation.

So I do write about many positive things because I usually am covering high school sports.

Should a theater reviewer review a high school production the same way he would review a Broadway play?

High school athletes aren't making

$4 million a year, they aren't being red-shirted as freshmen, they aren't going to give a school principal the ultimatum, "Either the coach goes or I go."

Okay, some high school athletes might drive better cars than their coaches, but that's another story.

Don't get me wrong. High school athletics has its politics. Three recent letters to the editor made that obvious. I haven't forgotten about those "name withheld" letters, and will respond to them soon.

But when I cover a high school game, it's easy for me to recognize the big picture about the efforts of the truly amateur athletes that set them apart from the pros.

Maybe being a high school teacher for 11 years has also influenced my approach to high school sports. If anything, it has made me more aware of the sacrifices and the joys of the student-athlete. And it has helped me see that young people will find that joy, especially if the adults let them know that the joy is even more important than wins and losses.

So, this finishes another positive outlook. And if you tell me you enjoy this column, I'll take it as a 75 percent compliment.

But next week, watch out.

My other 25 percent wants to speak out.

Recreation Roundup

TOGETHER TOTS

Together Tots may serve as preparation for pre-school or as a pre-school substitute. The play-group atmosphere combines fun and learning. Parent (or guardian) and child participate in finger plays, songs, art, stories and field trips. Sessions include Mondays and Wednesdays or only Mondays or only Wednesdays. The next session begins Monday, Nov. 26.

CO-REC VOLLEYBALL MIXER

Players are needed for this non-competitive volleyball league. The mixer runs 8-9:30 p.m. Mondays or Wednesdays at Sashabaw Junior High School. The cost is $12. Register at the rec. department.

ADULT OPEN BASKETBALL

The Open Basketball League begins Sunday, Dec. 2. Sign up as teams. Names also will be taken of individuals wishing to be placed on a team. Those names will be given to the managers.

PONY BASKETBALL LEAGUES (15-18 years)

The Pony Basketball League will begin Sunday, Jan. 6. The rec. department requests that teams sign up. However, individual names will be taken and passed along to team managers.

League notices will be sent to returning teams from the 1990 season Nov. 26.

ADULT CPR

Anyone interested in learning the valuable skill of cardiopulmonary resuscitation will have the opportunity to do so for free on Monday, Nov. 19.

The 6-10 p.m. class takes place at Fire Station #2 on the corner of Sashabaw and Clarkston Roads, Independence Township.

No costs are involved except for those people who may want to purchase a book at the class for $10. Registrations are limited.

ADULT OPEN GYM SCHEDULE

Mondays - Pine Knob Elementary, 7-10 p.m.

Wednesdays - Clarkston High School, 7-10 p.m. (not available after Dec. 19)

Thursdays - North Sashabaw Elementary, 6-10 p.m., (not available Nov. 22)

A $1 charge is collected at the door of each open gym location.

It's a good idea to call the Parks and Recreation Department the day of each open gym to confirm its availability. Occasionally the schools will call and cancel the open gym times for their own use.

There will be no open gyms over the Thanksgiving or Christmas holidays. Schools are closed.

FOR MORE INFORMATION

Call 625-8223 or stop by the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston. The office is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Red ribbon project begins for holidays

Oakland County Mothers Against Drunk Driving ask that area residents "tie one on" for the holidays.

Project Red Ribbon is a holiday awareness campaign sponsored by MADD chapters nationwide to symbolize hope for a less violent holiday season.

Citizens are being asked to tie a red ribbon to their left car door mirror or antenna to serve as a reminder to anyone entering the car not to drink and drive.

The red ribbon also serves as a sign to the community that the car owner has "chosen to make a difference" in the struggle to eliminate the tragedy caused by drinking drivers.

The Michigan State Police, many Oakland County police and fire departments, EMS vehicles, limousines and taxi companies will be tying one on as a way to let their communities know that they care.

Some holiday statistics related to the national drunk driving program include:

■ During Christmas 1989, 536 people died in traffic crashes, with 328 or 61.2 percent alcohol-related.

■ Between Thanksgiving 1989 and New Year's Eve, 2,401 of a total 4,985 traffic fatalities were alcohol-related.

■ During Thanksgiving 1989, 312 of a total 548 traffic fatalities were alcohol-related.

■ Drunk driving is the most frequently committed crime in the nation. DUI arrests in 1989 totaled an estimated 1.7 million.

■ Every 22 minutes one person dies in an alcohol-related traffic crash.

MADD will be glad to provide ribbons to individuals who wish to participate if they send a self-addressed stamped envelope to MADD/Oakland, 1520 S. Lapeer Road, Suite 112, Lake Orion, Mich., 48360.

Hearing focuses on golf course development

Residents in the Eston, Clintonville and Waldon roads area may want to show up for a public hearing on a proposed 620-acre golf course-residential development. Developers of The Country Club of the North will be requesting a change from rural residential zoning to planned residential zoning (PRD), the newest zoning category in Independence Township.

The hearing takes place at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 29, before the Independence Township Planning Commission, which meets in the township annex, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston.

Adopted in early September, the PRD pertains to proposed residential developments larger than 160 acres. Before the PRD's adoption, a development of this magnitude usually would be approved under several zoning phases of the township's planned unit development zoning category.

A PRD mandates that at least 20 percent of the land be "open space," with a limit of one single-family residential unit per acre.

The PRD ordinance was instituted into the township, due in part, to this particular development.

The proposed Country Club of the North straddles the Independence-Orion Township border and would require approvals from both governmental units.

Reporter's Notebook

"Don't have a cow, Independence!"

Bratty Bart Simpson would have been proud of his old man during the Nov. 6 general election.

According to Kathy DeRousha, deputy clerk for Independence Township, Homer Simpson received a couple of write-in votes during the election. DeRousha said the township didn't tally most of the write-in votes because they weren't done in a serious light.

Items for Reporter's Notebook are compiled by Clarkston News staff members.

Graduate paves way for deaf students

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Living in a world of silence would deter most people from pursuing a college education.

But Ron Swartz is not "most people."

Deaf from birth, Ron, 34, is married, a father and an employee at General Motors Corp. Truck and Bus Group.

He is also a recent graduate of Oakland University (OU), the first totally deaf graduate in the school's history.

The coursework was not particularly difficult, Ron says modestly. Overcoming the typical barriers that exist for deaf people was more daunting.

"It's so easy to quit and say 'Why bother,'" Ron explains, speaking slowly in an audible speech slightly louder than normal.

Seated in his Independence Township living room, Ron "listens" by reading lips, rarely asking for a repeat of what is said. Occasionally, he asks whether his words have been understood, and upon learning that they're not, he repeats himself slowly and patiently, gesturing and writing whenever necessary.

Was he ever scared to attend classes at OU?

"Never was," Ron answers.

His prior college experience helped, he says, but it also hindered his progress somewhat.

"I graduated in 1972 at the Rochester Institute of Technology," Ron says. "I have been president of a lot of organizations."

"I was familiar with the laws concerning handicapped rights," he adds.

Ron's familiarity with the law made him wonder why OU officials were giving him the bill for his

If he missed something, or wanted to ask a question, he simply went to the teacher during office hours, he says.

Though he started with engineering classes and took a lot of business courses, Ron's favorite class was psychology of human nature, he says.

With his bachelor's degree now in hand, Ron plans to obtain a master of science degree in a new program offered through G-M and Purdue University.

He will also continue to work as a member of the board for the Community Service of Hearing Impaired.

A lot of his work involves encouraging other deaf people to obtain a college education.

"The door is open," he says repeatedly.

When asked what it took to blaze the trail at OU, Ron answers, "If I want something, I just do it."

That's one lesson from which both the hearing and the deaf can learn.

classroom interpreter. He was working part-time at G-M, but tuition costs and the cost of the interpreter would've been too much for him to handle, he says.

After several months, the college received a letter from Ron's attorney threatening court action. The school eventually agreed to provide an interpreter; and though Ron lost valuable classroom time though the delay, he is not bitter.

"When I came here, I thought they'd have a program," he explains. "They had nothing."

"They didn't know the law," he shrugs. "They didn't know how to help. In the end, there was no problem."

In fact, the school came to help Ron a great deal, even providing him with a special written transcript of the commencement activities he participated in last June.

Apart from the interpreter issue, Ron says the toughest aspect of attending classes was getting through the first day.

"The teacher doesn't know how to do with the interpreter," he says. Other students are often confused as well.

Though some deaf students require note-takers, Ron got the information by alternately watching his teacher's lips and the gestures of his interpreter.

RON SWARTZ completed a bachelor's degree at Oakland University in Rochester in June, the first totally deaf person to graduate. He encourages other deaf students to apply at OU, stating "The door is open."

Sleep problems may be caused by mental attitude

In many ways, sleep is a mirror of moods. Sleep problems can be either the cause or the consequence of mental distress. Sleep difficulties can also appear together as core symptoms of a particular diagnosis such as depression.

In fact, one key indicator of good physical and mental health may be the absence of sleep problems.

Researcher exploring the biochemical relationship between sleep and mood suggest that changes in the body's internal clock may be at least partly responsible for some severe mood disturbances.

In a study performed by Professor J. Christian Gillin at the University of California, San Diego, almost half the serious insomniacs were classified as having high degrees of mental stress.

Psychiatric symptoms

Most of the serious insomniacs with psychic distress displayed high levels of anxiety, and more than half had elevated scores on both anxiety and depression tests. High scores on both tests indicate that psychological symptoms were severe.

In addition, many patients with persistent insomnia suffer from other psychiatric conditions, such as obsessive-compulsive disorder, phobias or abuse of alcohol.

Is sleep bad for people with depression?

Depression and sleep are intimately linked. Unipolar affective disorder — a form of depression — commonly includes symptoms of repeated awakenings and early morning wakefulness.

Its sufferers also have less of the deepest phases of sleep (stages three and four) than do people without depression and they dream earlier after falling asleep.

One night of total or partial sleep deprivation is known to alleviate depression. However, a night or less of recovery sleep usually restores depression in the patients who responded favorably to sleep deprivation.

The treatment nevertheless provides valuable theoretical clues to the mechanisms of depression.

While total cures for depression involving sleep deprivation therapy are rare, few other nonpharmacologic procedures work at all in so rapid a fashion.

In fact, some investigators even believe sleep is "bad" for depressed patients.

Sleep deprivation therapy for the average patient appears to have little clinical usefulness at this time, but there is considerable hope that studying this phenomenon may help predict drug responsiveness or aid in developing prophylactic therapies.

Tricyclic antidepressants usually relieve insomnia, especially when sedating doses are administered at bedtime.

Low doses of sedating antidepressants are sometime given at bedtime to patients with chronic insomnia, while higher therapeutic doses may be given to treat both insomnia and depressed mood.

The antidepressant effect may not be seen for several weeks.

"One night of total or partial sleep deprivation is known to alleviate depression."

However, even after depression eases, many depressed patients continue to manifest sleep disturbances.

Some doctors prescribe a sleep medicine with the antidepressants to deal with both concerns.

Panic attacks can occur at night

Persons with severe anxiety disorders also exhibit sleep impairment. The reports of insomnia in patients with panic disorder — a particular severe form of anxiety — may be related in part to a state of chronic physiological hyperarousal.

In a study of hospitalized panic disorder patients, all reported sleep disturbances, characterized by difficulty in falling asleep and multiple nocturnal awakenings.

Although analysis of the patients' overnight sleep tracings were only partially consistent with their personal reports of broken sleep, patients with the highest ratings of anxiety and most frequent panic attacks did have the shortest total and least deep sleep.

Investigators have looked at the effects of one night's sleep deprivation on mood and behavior in panic patients.

In contrast to the improvement shown by depressed patients, these patients did not get better.

In fact, 40 percent experienced more anxiety and panic attacks on the day following sleep deprivation.

These findings provide more evidenced that panic and major depressive disorders have discernible biological underpinnings.

Circadian Rhythms, Mood and Sleep

For more than 30 years, clinical investigators have speculated that some or all of the symptoms of the depressive disorders, including manic-depressive illness, may be associated with abnormalities in the timing or phase control of the circadian system, the body's biological clock.

For example, many of the characteristic abnormalities of sleep in depression — early morning awakening, short total sleep time and early appearance of dreaming — are consistent with a "phase advance" of the circadian clock.

That is, when a depressed patient goes to sleep at midnight, the body's internal regulating mechanisms look like those of a normal person at 6 a.m.

In addition there is some evidence that certain circadian rhythms, such as body temperature, have shallower peaks and valleys in patients with depression.

These specific biological associations between sleep and mood tell clinicians that it is important to look beyond the subjective complaint of insomnia for possible underlying causes.

Treatments that solve both mood and sleep disturbances are available.

Early detection of breast cancer . . .

It could give you time to enjoy the important things.

A regular breast x-ray is your best defense against breast cancer. Found early enough, 9 out of 10 breast cancers can be cured.

The Breast Center of North Oakland Radiology has been designed especially for women who need a breast x-ray. With the attention of our breast care professionals, your regular breast x-ray will be private, personalized and comfortable.

Our state-of-the-art equipment produces extremely accurate images of breast tissue, using a very low dose of radiation. Our program also includes a special videotape on breast care, a review of breast self-examination methods and an opportunity to discuss your own breast care with our nurse.

Ask your doctor for a referral to see us. Or call us direct and make your own appointment. We'll forward your test results to the doctor of your choice. To make an appointment or find out more about the Breast Center, call us at 625-7750.

Having a regular breast x-ray is one of the best things you can do for yourself. Because your granddaughter wants you to be around for a long time to come.

Healthy Helpings

The holidays don't have to be a diet disaster

Tracy
King

When confronted with frequent temptations disguised as festive occasions, and surrounded by others who are over-indulging in endless arrays of rich entrees, side dishes, gravies, sauces and desserts, it's not easy to be content with raw celery and melba toast.

But, according to the American Heart Association and some of the nation's leading nutritionists, such limited options are really unnecessary.

Heart-healthy holiday eating is entirely possible without dampening the spirit of the season or denying ourselves all those special foods we love.

The focus of many traditional family holiday dinners is roast turkey, and there's nothing wrong with that. In its natural state, roast turkey is lower in fat than almost any other meat entree.

It's the things we add to the turkey — the gravies, sauces, butter-basting and excess salt — that will cause the problem.

When it comes to preparing accompaniments for holiday main dishes, the contemporary theme is less, rather than more. Along with roast turkey, perhaps dressing or potatoes — but not both — a fresh fruit salad, and one dessert instead of three or four.

Other suggested steps for heart-healthy holiday eating include substituting skim or low-fat milk for whole milk, oil or margarine for butter, low-fat yogurt for mayonnaise or sour cream and concentrated fruit juices for sugar.

The following heart-smart recipes are from the American Heart Association.

Roast Turkey

Serves 12

1 11-12 pound fresh turkey
2 tablespoon whole black, white or green peppercorns, or a mixture, coarsely crushed
1 large apple, quartered
1 cup fresh parsley springs, rinsed
1/4 cup oil, either corn, soybean, safflower, sunflower, canola or olive Water

Thaw turkey if frozen. Preheat oven to 425. Remove giblets and discard. Rinse turkey and pat dry.

Gently loosen skin from meat on breast and legs by breaking the membrane that holds the skin to the meat and sliding your hand between the two to loosen the skin.

Spread peppercorns under the skin and in the cavity. Stuff the cavity with apple and parsley.

Place the turkey on a rack, breast-side up, in the top of a 3-inch deep roaster pan. Soak a cheesecloth in oil and cover turkey with the oiled cloth. This keeps the meat from drying out. Put water in the pan to a depth of 1 to 1 1/2 inches to provide moisture and pan drippings for gravy. Place the turkey in the oven and reduce heat immediately to 325.

Bake 2 to 3 hours, or 12 to 15 minutes per pound.

Test for doneness by pricking the skin of the thigh; the juice should run clear.

Let the turkey rest 20 minutes before serving. Serve turkey on a large heated platter and carve, removing the skin.

Baked Pumpkin Pie

8 servings

1 9-inch pie shell, unbaked
2/3 cup granulated sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
Pinch of ground cloves
1 1/2 cups canned pumpkin
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 1/2 cups evaporated skim milk
1/2 teaspoon orange rind
3 egg whites, slightly beaten
1/2 cup brandy

Combine the sugar, cinnamon, ginger, nutmeg and cloves. Stir in the pumpkin. Add the vanilla, evaporated milk, orange rind and egg whites.

Beat with an electric mixer until smooth. Fold in brandy.

Pour into the unbaked pie shell and bake 10 minutes at 450. Reduce the heat to 325 and bake until a knife inserted in the filling comes out clean, about 45 minutes.

ISN'T IT GOOD TO KNOW...

"Wheelock was there with prompt, professional emergency care."

Dear Wheelock Memorial Hospital,
When a recent household kitchen accident left me with a severed artery, nerve and tendon, I was confident in turning to Wheelock Memorial Hospital for emergency care and surgery.

The accident occurred late in the evening, and with prompt, professional care, the emergency room staff quickly began treating my injury and scheduled me for surgery the very next morning. Although the accident meant an unanticipated stay at the hospital, the nurses made me feel very comfortable, and even held my hand during the worst part - the shots!

Surgery for the accident involved complicated hand surgery, which was performed by Dr. Fanny dela Cruz, Wheelock's hand and reconstructive surgery specialist. Within a week of the surgery, I was back at work. Today my hand is recovering nicely and I anticipate full recovery after undergoing physical therapy at Wheelock.

Thank you Wheelock Memorial Hospital for being there with prompt, professional care!

Sincerely,

Cheryl J. Peacock

Cancer answers: Can health habits reduce risk?

I have been hearing a lot about bone marrow transplantation lately. What does it involve?

Bone marrow transplantation involves replacing the spongy material inside bones that forms blood cells which help defend our bodies against disease.

Bone marrow may need replacement if it become diseased from leukemia or aplastic anemia, or if treatment for other cancers threatens to destroy it.

Because bone marrow transplantation has risks, it is generally reserved for patients who fail to respond to conventional cancer treatment or who have other diseases with a poor prognosis.

There are two kinds of bone marrow transplants: autologous and allogeneic.

Autologous transplants involve storing patients' own marrow prior to high-dose chemotherapy and/or radiation treatments that harm healthy marrow.

Marrow is withdrawn before treatment begins. Patients are protected in a special germ-free environment during treatment because they are highly susceptible to infections.

After treatment, healthy marrow — ideally donated by a close relative with matching marrow — is given to the patient.

When family members do not have matching marrow, compatible donors can be found through the National Bone Marrow Donor Program, which maintains a registry of unrelated marrow donors and coordinates the donor search and marrow collection process.

I've read that scientists think diet and nutrition may be related to the development of certain cancers. Can you tell me what diet guidelines they suggest for the prevention of cancer?

Making wise choices about your daily diet promotes good nutrition and may reduce your risk for developing certain cancers. The American Cancer Society recommends the following nutritional guidelines:

- Avoid obesity
- Decrease total fat intake
- Eat more high-fiber foods, such as whole-grain cereals, fruits and vegetables.

- Eat foods rich in vitamins A, C and E daily.
- Include cruciferous vegetables such as broccoli, cauliflower, or brussel sprouts.
- Be moderate in alcohol consumption
- Use smoked, salt-and-nitrate-cured foods in moderation.

Be sure to follow your doctor's specific dietary recommendations if you have diabetes, high blood pressure, or any other medical problem that is affected by diet.

What is a cancer pain specialist?

Pain specialists may be oncologists, anesthesiologists, or other doctors such as psychiatrists who offer expertise in management of pain and other cancer-related symptoms or pain from other health-related problems.

Keep in mind that cancer pain may be relieved with or without medication.

The best method depends on the type and stage of the cancer, the individual's general physical and mental health, and his or her pain tolerance level.

How often should women have pap smears?

The American Cancer Society recommends annual Pap tests and pelvic exams for all women who are sexually active or who reach the age of 18, as long as they have not had any abnormal vaginal discharge or bleeding.

The simple, painless Pap test is performed during a pelvic exam to detect abnormal cells in and around the cervix.

It is highly effective in detecting cancer of the cervix.

Once a woman has had normal exams for three years in a row, Pap tests can be performed less often, at her doctor's discretion.

Pelvic exams, however, should still be performed on an annual basis to detect other, non-cervical problems.

Women with symptoms such as abnormal vaginal discharge or bleeding should consult their gynecologists at once.

Your tonsils: Take them or leave them?

Although as many as 400,000 tonsillectomies and/or adenoidectomies (T & A) are performed each year in the U.S., some people are unsure about when these procedures are necessary.

According to the American Academy of Otolaryngology (AAO), T & A is a valuable procedure for selected patients.

The second most common operation performed on children, T & A can result in a substantial reduction of such problems as chronic tonsillitis, sore throats, nasal congestion, ear infections and sleep disturbances.

Tonsils are lumpy, structures visible in the back portion of the mouth and throat that bulge inwardly from the sides of the throat.

Adenoids are similar tissues that grow in the back of the nose, above and behind the soft palate. (They are not easily visible without the use of a special mirror or X-ray.)

These glandular tissues are strategically located near the entrances to the breathing passages, where they are exposed to the various types of bacteria and viruses that pass through the nose and throat.

Tonsils and adenoids form antibodies to these germs during the first few years of life and enable the body's immune system to resist infection.

This function seems to decrease as children get older.

In fact, studies indicate that, after the age of three, there is no impairment to immunity if the tonsils and adenoids are removed.

The Academy suggests patients (or parents of patients) weigh these factors:

- Frequent episodes of tonsillitis (inflammation of the tonsils), which cause sore throats, fever, swollen glands, and possible ear infections.

- Appetite loss, weight loss, swallowing and eating difficulties due to very large tonsils.

- Chronic nasal congestion or post-nasal drainage.

- Chronic mouth breathing, which can lead to improper development of the palate, permanent changes in the bite, and crowding of the teeth.

- Distorted or nasally obstructed speech due to large tonsils and adenoids.

- Chronic bad breath from accumulated debris in tonsils.

According to the Academy, any one or combination of these symptoms indicates the need for a physical exam by an expert in treating disorders of the ear, nose, throat, head and neck to determine the best course of action.

THE FAMILY PHYSICIAN: Your Guide To Good Health

All too often in recent years people have been seeking medical advice from books, family members or friends rather than physicians. In this age of medical treatment-by-specialists, the challenge of choosing the right doctor can be a little intimidating. This is when the Family Physician can make a healthy difference in your life.

The Family Physician provides sensitive, personal care for the entire family. Actively involved in promoting a healthy lifestyle and preventing disease, the Family Physician treats the vast majority of a patient's medical and personal problems. When special medical attention is required, the Family Physician becomes your guide and liaison with the healthcare specialist.

For over 30 years, Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital has been committed to Family Physicians. That's why we've decided to celebrate The Year of The Family Physician. At P.O.H., we recognize the pivotal role he and she play in offering personal medical advice and guidance. When you are looking for knowledgeable, sensitive advice on any medical matter, please remember that your Family Physician is always ready to listen and to care for you.

Organic or inorganic: What is the difference?

Your lawn, landscape plants, flowers and vegetables need certain plant nutrients for good growth.

If the soil doesn't contain enough of the nutrients in the right proportions and in readily available forms, you need to provide them in either organic or inorganic form.

Organic compounds have to be broken down into inorganic forms before plants can use them, so it doesn't

Blindness preventable almost half the time

An estimated 500,000 Americans are legally blind and some 47,000 lose their sight each year to disease and eye injury.

According to the experts at the Better Vision Institute, however, scientific advances in eye care mean half these cases are preventable or treatable.

The four most common eye conditions leading to blindness are glaucoma, cataracts, macular degeneration and diabetic retinopathy.

Early diagnosis and treatment by a professional can, in most cases, prevent blindness. Many eye disease progress unnoticed until loss of sight indicates a problem.

Regular eye exams are the best way to detect a problem in time to fix it.

Ninety percent of the estimated 40,000 cases of accidental vision impairment that occur each year are also preventable.

Read first-aid recommendations on cleaning supplies and other household products. Wear safety goggles for sports and activities that may endanger the eyes.

In case of eye injury, seek professional attention promptly.

matter to the plants which type of fertilizer you choose.

So why choose one over the other?

Darryl Warncke, extension soils specialist at Michigan State University, says both types have advantages in certain situations.

"Organic fertilizers are usually derived from living plants or animals," he explains. "Examples include barnyard manure and composted plant materials."

"Because these materials must be broken down before plants can use the nutrients they contain, they are more useful to perennial plants and woody ornaments, which will be growing in the same spot for a long time. Short-season crops such as lettuce and radishes, on the other hand, need nutrients quickly."

He adds that some crops could come and go before the nutrients from an organic fertilizer begin to become fully available.

Inorganic fertilizers usually have non-living sources. Most are synthetic. Exceptions are such materials as rock phosphate, calcium carbonate (limestone) and potash, which occur naturally.

The analysis, or nutrient content, of organic fertilizers is often quite low, so it usually takes a larger volume of organic fertilizer to provide a given quantity of a certain nutrient.

Therefore, meeting nutrient needs with organic fertilizers tends to be more expensive.

On the other hand, organic fertilizers can be an important source of organic material as an ingredient in soil.

Organic matter improves soil structure, Warncke explains. It makes heavy soil drain better and helps sandy soil hold moisture — and nutrients — longer.

"Quite often, a combination of fertilizers types can be the best prescription," Warncke suggests. "In a lawn, for instance, where the major need is nitrogen, a high nitrogen fertilizer such as urea — an organic material — may be used in summer and early fall and a complete inorganic fertilizer used in later fall to provide a stable, long-lasting source of nutrients for spring green-up."

In the vegetable garden, incorporating organic mulches will improve soil structure and add some nutrients, but major nutrient needs, as defined by a soil test, would be provided by inorganic materials.

"A last advantage of inorganic fertilizers is that their analysis — the amounts of each nutrient present — is guaranteed," Warncke points out. "The numbers on the package indicate the percentage of nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium in each 100 pounds."

The nutrient content of organic fertilizers is usually low but is highly variable.

Manure, for instance, varies in nitrogen content with the species of livestock, the age of the manure, the presence of bedding and so forth.

Also, the nutrients in organic fertilizers are rarely balanced in the proper proportions to meet plants' needs.

You may have to combine two or three materials to get the right quantities of nutrients in the right balance.

Earth tip

Every year, we throw away 24 million tons of leaves and grass, with leaves alone accounting for 75 percent of the solid waste stream in the fall. If every lawnmower composted grass clippings, landfill congestion could be cut by 18 percent during the summer and spring.

Weight loss confuses many

If you're confused about the proper way to lose weight and keep it off, you're not alone. The following facts turned up in a recent survey of Americans concerning weight loss.

Two-thirds (66 percent) of respondents were confused about choosing a sensible way to lose weight and 65 percent about eating the right foods to lose.

About 62 percent found recent reports about cholesterol confusing and hardly anyone (8.1 percent) knows the Surgeon General's recommendation for fat intake in a diet.

About 49 percent of Americans are overweight and a bit more than 44 percent are dieting to lose weight.

About 27.7 of those surveyed said they lose control at social events.

Some 62 percent of those polled consider themselves overweight and about eight of 10 (79 percent) believe the support of others is a help when trying to lose weight.

What else causes dieters to lose control or start bingeing? The survey showed stress is the biggest factor (46.8 percent) and eating out was next with 31.8 percent.

The survey also showed exercise played an important role in losing weight. Some 58 percent said they try to exercise a few times each week or as part of a daily routine.

The Other Side of Things

The handwriter's tale

Ashley Ball

When my sister Laura brought her report card home last week, everything seemed fine at first glance — all A's and B's. My mom beamed as she gave Laura a big hug. "Your usual good job, kid!" I bragged enthusiastically and let her pick anything she wanted from my leftover Halloween candy.

But, as I examined her report card more closely, something stopped me. What's this? I couldn't believe my eyes ... panic blurred my thoughts.

"You got an A in handwriting?" I asked, trying not to show my concern outwardly.

"Yeah," she said, chomping down on my only kingsize 3-Musketeer.

That evening, my dad took Laura to TCBY for a chocolate waffle cone with sprinkles and sliced kiwi to celebrate the occasion of her good report card. Later that night, after Laura and I were in bed, I heard my parents talking in hushed tones in the kitchen.

"Did you notice that Laura got an A in handwriting?" my mom asked, her voice laced with worry.

Not that my parents have anything against good grades — AU CONTRAIRE! Once when I brought home all A's on a progress report, my mom was so elated that she attended both nights of the parent teacher conferences. It was very embarrassing when she showed up the second night. She'd spoken with all my teachers the first night, but she said it was her chance to finally hear a good report, and she wanted to hear it all again.

But no one in our family has ever gotten an A in handwriting. It's sort of a family tradition. Nothing we really brag about — but nothing we really worry about, either.

Of course I, personally, have probably done more than anyone else in the family to preserve this tradition.

My kindergarten teacher once sent a note home to my parents saying that I was not doing well in coloring. I'M NOT KIDDING! Coloring! The note's still on our refrigerator.

At parent-teacher conferences that year, it was suggested that I might benefit from coloring therapy. But I decided to just give up coloring at that point and try something less exacting ... like fingerpainting.

As a result, my coloring didn't improve appreciably in first grade, either, but my first grade teacher was so worried about how badly I was doing in field trips and handwriting, that it took her mind off my coloring deficiency.

Handwriting has always been big in first grade — literally. The pencils they give you in first-grade classes are so big and fat that you have to hold them with both hands and lean them on your shoulder. No wonder we turned out such big fat letters.

There's really nothing wrong with beautiful handwriting if you keep it in perspective. I mean, it can even be an asset to you if you grow up to be someone like John Hancock with a challenging cursive mission.

But what about kids who aspire to be doctors and eighth-grade English teachers, professions whose very existence depends on indecipherable scrawl?

It is easily THE debatable issue in education today. It's certainly right up there with the question of why elementary schools serve chocolate milk only on Wednesdays.

But as both Mr. Engler and Mr. Blanchard pointed out during their campaigns for governor (it was probably the only major issue they agreed on), by the time kids get to junior high, perfect handwriting and chocolate milk on Wednesdays are no longer the burning school issues.

By then, teachers are just hoping kids have picked up on the English language to some degree and know enough about the alphabet that they can operate the pop machine without assistance from the office.

Ashley Ball is a ninth-grader at Clarkston Junior High School.

Don't Play With Stroke.

You can't afford to lose. Strokes are serious, and although they can put anyone out of the running, blacks are at a higher risk than whites. In fact, 38% of all black men and 39% of all black women have high blood pressure, the greatest risk factor for stroke.

Here are a few rules that can help you come out a winner:

- If you are on high blood pressure medication, take it exactly as prescribed. Don't run out of pills, even for a single day.
- Know what you should weigh and work to maintain that weight.
- Follow your doctor's advice about exercise.
- Eat a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet and reduce salt intake.
- Don't smoke cigarettes.
- Know the warning signs of stroke.

Tellers of tales

The tall tales of Amber Gebrowsky, Christy Colbrunn and Maria Fifelski were chosen from among 100 entries to win the Media Center story contest at Sashabaw Junior High school last month.

Gebrowsky captured first place and a portable Walkman with "The Gatekeeper," in which her English teacher, Mr. Baines, is killed by the Grim Reaper.

Wishful thinking? Well, yes, Gebrowsky giggles.

Colbrunn earned second place and an inflatable skeleton for her story, "Urgent Journey," about a young girl and her walk in the woods. The climactic ending finds her at a camp outhouse.

"Satan's Phone" is the title of Fifelski's third-place entry. The story, which she aptly penned during the wee hours of the morning the day the assignment was due, is about a babysitter.

The character in her story takes on a babysitting job, and, as a practical joke, her wards connect a phone line with the devil. After the phone kills the babysitter, they put it away to lie in wait for the next babysitter.

Most essays were assigned in English class. They were to be no longer than four pages and were to be scary, but "rated G," explained Media Center's Linda Spannus.

A GHOST story assignment didn't spook these Sashabaw Junior High eighth-graders. Amber Gebrowsky (left) won first place in the Media Center essay contest; Christy Colbrunn (right) took second, and Maria Fifelski captured third.

Basket weaving satisfies creative urge of pair

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Not counting professional basketball players, what local pair has accounted for 2,760 baskets in the past 10 years?

The answer is Janice Whistler and Carolyn Hunt of Independence Township -- though they're more adept at weaving baskets than shooting them.

Carolyn began basket weaving 10 years ago, after she picked up the skill at a church bazaar. Soon after, she caught the "weaving bug" and began teaching classes.

During her fifth year of teaching, Carolyn met Janice, and a friendship developed from their mutual love for the craft. Today, the couple weave together and show their baskets at the same shows.

According to Carolyn, all their baskets are made from reed splint -- a type of rattan palm found in the Philippines.

She said there is no set time span in weaving a basket.

"It's hard to say because I can do something in an hour that might take someone else four hours," Carolyn said. "It varies from basket to basket, depending on its size and your mood at the time."

Both women use basket weaving as a hobby, and they often set up together at craft shows. They will be appearing at the Santa's Workshop Craft Show and Sale on Saturday, Nov. 17, at Clarkston High School. The sale goes from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The prices of their baskets range from $3 to $100. Carolyn is a mother of four grown children. Janice

"I think basket weaving teaches patience. When you weave, it makes you forget your troubles. It's very therapeutic."

Carolyn Hunt

has two children, one grown and the other 10 years old. The pair said they receive self-satisfaction from weaving, and many positive things can come from the hobby.

"I think basket weaving teaches patience," Carolyn said. "When you weave, it makes you forget your troubles. It's very therapeutic."

Janice feels a release of creative energy when she weaves.

"I like it because its three-dimensional," she said. "Basket weaving satisfies that creative urge while being functional at the same time."

Christmas craft shows abound this weekend

Basketry, folk art, stuffed animals and metal punch art are some of the attractions at craft shows this weekend.

A Christmas Bazaar at the First Church of God is 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday, Nov. 16, and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 17. The craft show takes place at the church at 6300 Clarkston Road, Independence Township. For more information, call 625-1323.

The annual Santa's Workshop Craft Show and Sale is set for 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 17, at Clarkston High School. Admission to the show is $1. It is sponsored by the Clarkston Jaycees.

The high school is off Waldon Road between Sashabaw Road and M-15 in Independence Township. For more information, call 625-2539.

The Craft Show at the Oakland County Sportsmen's Main Log Club House is 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 17. Sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary, it takes place at 4770 Waterford Road, off Dixie Highway, one block north of Andersonville Road, Independence Township. For more information, call 391-1548 or 628-5847.

A Doll and Teddy Bear Show and Sale is set for 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Springfield Oaks Activities Center. Admission is $3 for adults, $1 for children ages 5-12. The show, which features antique dolls and teddy bears and all the accessories, takes place on Andersonville Road near Hall Road, Springfield Township. For more information, call 625-8133 or 487-5078.

New Kroger supermarket 'state of the art'

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After a year's worth of delays, the new Kroger supermarket finally opened its door this past weekend in Independence Township.

Located in the Clarkston Oaks Center on Dixie Highway near Maybee Road, the 44,000-foot facility offers specialty items not seen in your everyday Kroger store.

These specialty items are housed in seven major departments considered "state of the art" by Michigan corporate President Joel Greenisen. The departments include:

- A seafood shop, which features over 50 varieties of seafoods in a 12-foot display case.

- A custom cut meat shop, which offers over 200 kinds of cuts in a 60-foot display case.

- A full-service flower shop, providing 250 varieties of fresh-cut flowers and "customer-designed" floral arrangements.

What's New in Business

- A full-service cheese shop carrying over 250 varieties of domestic and imported cheese.

- A domestic/imported wine shop with over 1,000 varieties of wine and a complete selection of domestic and imported beer.

- A produce section with over 350 kinds of fresh fruits and vegetables.

- A delicatessen offering a large selection of cheese and luncheon meats, party trays and hot carryout items.

In addition to these departments, the supermarket also offers an in-store bakery, a pharmacy, a large salad bar and video rental shop.

The 24-hour supermarket will employ 275 people, who are either transplanted Kroger employees or former Great Scott workers transferred after the companies' merger.

Brian Labarge, manager of the Clarkston Kroger store, said the $6 million supermarket will enhance the other businesses in Clarkston Oaks while providing its customers with top-notch service.

"Kroger will create a tremendous impact in the center because of the number of people we're going to draw to it," Labarge said. "But our main emphasis is on Kroger customers and providing them with the best service possible."

PEOPLE came out in droves last Saturday to attend the Kroger supermarket's grand opening at the Clarkston Oaks Center. The 44,000-square-foot facility cost $6 million to build and it will employ more than 270 people.

Together 40 years

David and Lorna Bickerstaff of Independence Township celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary with friends and family Nov. 9 at the Airport Inn.

The couple were married Nov. 10, 1950, in Pontiac. Also attending the celebration were Lorna's parents, Alford and Elizabeth Bell of Pontiac, who are to observe their 64th anniversary this month.

The Bickerstaffs' children reside in the Clarkston area: David and Dawn Bickerstaff, Kevin and Pat Bickerstaff and Ann and Todd Weiss.

The Bickerstaffs also have four grandchildren: Scott Bickerstaff, Gretchen Weiss, Amanda Weiss and Zachary Weiss.

Winners get lodging, chicken dinners

Robert and Mary Bond of Independence Township were named the winners of an expense-paid trip to Frankenmuth, courtesy of the North Sashabaw Elementary Parent Teacher Organization (PTO).

The couple won the PTO's drawing last week. The Bonds, plus their four children, will be treated to a two-night stay at the Bavarian Lodge, Frankenmuth.

Besides the free accommodations, the family will be treated to two family-style chicken dinners, compliments of the Bavarian Inn. The trip is available to the family after Jan. 1, 1991.

In service

Marine Lance Cpl. Duane A. Cochran, son of Nancy E. Cochran of Shappie Road, Clarkston, has been promoted to his present rank while serving with 2nd Marine Division, Camp Lejeune, N.C.

A 1987 graduate of Clarkston High School, he joined the Marine Corps in July 1989.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Rolfe

Golden celebration

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Rolfe of Waterford Township celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Nov. 10, 1990.

They are the parents of Connie Morgan of Clarkston and her late husband, Michael; and Theresa Harp, and her husband, Terry of Clarkston. Mr. and Mrs. Rolfe have three grandchildren: Lisa, Christopher and Andrew.

The couple were married Nov. 10, 1940, in Charleston, Mo. A surprise party thrown by their children marked their anniversary this year. The dinner party for 30 was held Saturday, Nov. 10, at the Rochester Elks.

Needham and Sengstock marry

Jill Needham, of St. Charles, Ill., and Gregory Sengstock of Wheaton, Ill., were united in marriage Oct. 13, 1990, at St. Daniel Catholic Church, Clarkston.

The Rev. Daniel Chapin, uncle of the bride, performed the 2 p.m. nuptial mass.

The bride, an assistant manager at Blockbuster Video, is a 1988 graduate of the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, and a 1984 graduate of Clarkston High School. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Needham of Middle Lake Road, Clarkston.

The bridegroom, an architect with Nelson and Associates of Geneva, Ill., is a 1989 graduate of the University of Illinois. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Sengstock of Wheaton, Ill.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, John

Stephen Clark, Phillip Etter, William Mueller, all friends of the groom. Ushers were Andrew Needham, brother of the bride, and George Sengstock Jr. and Paul Sengstock, brothers of the groom.

Readers during the wedding were Tina Korch and Lisa Gelke, college roommates of the bride.

Organist was Chris Heber, and the Detroit Concert Brass played the preludes, processional and recessional.

The couple took a wedding trip to St. Lucia and now make their home in St. Charles, Ill.

Honors

April Heike, 17, a senior at Brandon High School, finished fourth runner-up in the Junior Miss Young Woman of the Year Contest Nov. 10. She also took a first-place award in the talent category for a scene from "Streetcar Named Desire," in which she acted the part of Blanche.

She won $150 in scholarship money for her efforts and plans to pursue her acting/producing career at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. She is the daughter of Bernie and Grace Heike of Groveland Township. Her mother is employed with The Clarkston News.

Newlyweds: Mr. and Mrs. Stephen M. Carlson.

Carlson, Braden exchange vows

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen M. Carlson were united in marriage Aug. 4, 1990, at St. John Catholic Church in Fenton.

The bride is the former Pamela L. Braden of Lake Fenton. Pamela is the daughter of Caroline Shettler of Linden and Frank Braden of Mount Morris.

The groom is the son of Doug and Lin Carlson of Clarkston.

The wedding party included flower girl, Lisa Crandall, the bride's cousin; and ring bearer, Joshua, Braden, nephew of the bride.

The maid of honor was Sheri Perkins, and best man was Dan Hosang. Bridesmaids included the sister of the groom, Lauren Carlson; and friends: Kathy Marion, Kim Lorez Hunt, Cathy Braden and Kris Tisch.

Groomsmen included brothers of the bride, Sean and David Braden; cousin Brian Braden; Jarrell Perkins and Barry Hunt.

Special readings during the High Mass were given by Deanna Gwisdalla, Cathy Braden and Kathy Marion. Out of town guests from California, Texas, Arizona, Florida, Minnesota and Illinois joined the bride and groom in celebrating at St. John's.

The bride and groom honeymooned in Hawaii before returning to their home in Maynard, Mass.

Newlyweds

Needham.

She wore a white taffeta hand-beaded alencon-lace-appliqued gown, with a draped portrait neckline, full skirt and chapel train. She carried a traditional cascade of pastel flowers.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Claire Needham. Other attendants were the bride's friends, Kelly Crivello of Kokomo, Ind., and Kate Mason of New York City, N.Y., and the bride's sister, Nancy Needham.

All wore green taffeta dresses and carried classic-styled bouquets of colored flowers.

Flower girls was Katie Sengstock, sister of the groom.

Tee Time Golf in full swing on Dixie Highway

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

If the Tee Time Golf shop looks like the inside of a country club, then Owner Brad Sawicki has accomplished his goal.

The shop, at 5883 Dixie Highway, Independence Township, is carpeted in a plush green-grass color. Hard-to-find golf clubs line the walls, and attractive displays contain just about everything needed for a day on the links.

Brad has cultivated his country-club sense over several years, first as a six-day-a-week player and later by repairing, building and selling clubs.

At age 19, Brad says opening Tee Time Golf is a natural progression to what he's been doing.

"After learning how to do repairs and building custom clubs, I heard about people selling on the West

"There are the golf clubs and there are a lot to choose from," he says. "You have wind, rain, the way the green is cut, the way the dew comes off — it's a challenging game."

Eventually, Brad hopes to expand his catalogue order business and may eventually develop his own driving range.

He admits many may view his age as a handicap, but he'll continue to push forward.

"It was a bit scary at first talking with shops, or at least with buyers," Brad says. "The next scary thing with be to go to a foreign country."

"But I'm happy to do it at such a young age," he adds.

What's new in business

Coast — Ping (a brand name) and primarily hard-to-get equipment," Brad explains.

Brad worked to obtain clubs wholesale and began selling them, while operating his repair business from his Independence Township home.

The Dixie Highway shop now inventories the hard-to-find equipment, which are sold at below-average prices, according to Brad.

"I like being independent and free from franchise fees," he says.

The shop is known for custom-fitting customers with clubs; something Brad feels is very important.

"Ninety-five percent of the people don't know what (clubs are best for them)," Brad says, explaining that a sales person will then push the customer toward a club he wants to sell.

A customer should be concerned with things like shaft length, swing weights, grip and other elements.

All of these factor into a game that is extremely challenging, Brad says.

TEE TIME GOLF outfits players with hard-to-find equipment and specialty items. Owner

Brad Sawicki also repairs clubs and will custom-fit customers with golf clubs.

Corn meal challenge

Betty Wagner

November ushers in the holiday season. And with the holiday season come thoughts and plans for special recipes and delicious food for Thanksgiving and other celebrations.

So now is a good time to perfect an old or create a new corn meal recipe. Then enter the recipe in the Third Annual Quaker Corn Meal "Contemporary Classics" recipe contest. The deadline is Jan. 31, 1991.

Your original recipe can be any of the following: main dish, break or coffee cake, dressing or stuffing, dessert, or microwave — a new category this year.

Some of the rules are as follows:

■ Your recipe must use at least 1/2 cup of Quaker corn meal. Enclose a proof of purchase seal with your entry.

■ Submit as many recipes as you wish.

■ You must be 18 or older. You may not be an employee of Quaker Oats or their agencies, chef, food editor, home economist, or other food professional.

■ Write or type recipes on an 8 x 1/2 x 11-inch paper. Include name, address and category in the top right-hand corner.

■ List all ingredients using exact measurements, complete preparation directions, cooking times and temperatures, number of servings, size of pans and any special utensils or cookware.

■ Send entries by midnight Jan. 31, 1991, to Quaker Corn Meal Recipe Contest, P.O. Box 11317, Chicago, Ill., 60611.

Here is 1990's $5,000 grand prize recipe submitted by Deborah McGuire of Oregon.

No Time At All Stuffing Loaf

12 servings

- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 cup chopped celery
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 2 to 3 teaspoons poultry seasoning
- 2 to 3 teaspoons sage

- 1 (8-ounce) can whole kernel corn, drained
- 1/2 cup-chopped pecans
- 1 cup Quaker Corn Meal
- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 4 teaspoons sugar
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt (optional)
- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 cup (1 stick) margarine (melted)
- 3 eggs, beaten

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Grease 9-by-5-inch loaf pan.

Cook onion and celery in 2 tablespoons margarine until tender, about 5 minutes.

Stir in spices; mix well. Remove from heat; add bread cubes, corn and pecans, mixing well.

Combine dry ingredients. Add combined milk, margarine and eggs, mixing just until moistened. Add vegetable mixture; mix well. Spread evenly into prepared pan.

Bake 45 to 50 minutes or until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan 15 minutes; remove. Cut into 3/4 slices; serve warm. Store in refrigerator.

Tip: To reheat leftover stuffing bread: Place each slice on microwave plate. Cover loosely. Microwave at HIGH 1 minute to 1 minute 30 seconds or until heated through.

Nutritional information for one slice: Calories 205; protein 6 grams; carbohydrates 27 grams; cholesterol 55 milligrams; sodium 31 milligrams; dietary fiber 2 grams; percentage of calories from fat 51 percent.

Entries will be judged on taste, preparation ease and convenience, originality and appearance.

New nursery hopes to blossom

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

The first day at the new Frank's Nursery was "wonderful," according to store manager Kathryn Bolton of Oxford.

About 30 people were "lined up at 8:30 a.m." for the store's opening, said she said.

Frank's Nursery, in White Lake Commons shopping center at the White Lake Road, Dixie Highway intersection in Independence Township, is a full craft and garden store for the "do-it-yourselfers." It also stocks plenty of Christmas supplies, including lots of moveable dolls and a large display area for Christmas trees.

What's new in business

Frank's is located in 14 states on the East Coast and in the Midwest and has been doing so well in recent years that new stores were opened in Livonia and Clarkston on Nov. 1.

"This is a very good location for where the people are moving to," said Tony Fazioli, human resources manager. "The Waterford location is one of our better stores, as far as volume goes."

Since housing has increased so rapidly in the Clarkston area, management at Frank's thought it was prime time to expand to the area, said Fazioli.

New to Frank's Nursery this year are pet supplies and hand-wrapped silk flowers. The nursery also carries lots of teddy bears, as well as its normal variety of live and artificial Christmas trees, roping and more.

Managers expect Victorian decorations to sell well again this year — and are prepared for a large demand.

"Last year, you couldn't keep it in stock," said Bolton, who was transferred from the Auburn Hills store to open the Clarkston location.

During the grand opening, door prizes were given away, as were popcorn, balloons, coffee, doughnuts, violets and plants.

THE GRAND opening of the Clarkston Frank's Nursery Nov. 2 meant hiring about 50 new employees, plus a little extra help from employees at nearby stores. Heading the store opening were (from left) assistant manager Pam Boss of Flint, manager Kathryn Bolton of Oxford, and assistant manager Bernadette Kamysiak of Schwartz Creek.

Register now for Super Saturday

Children will have a chance to make Christmas gifts and have a fun day at the same time on Saturday, Dec. 1.

Super Christmas Gift Saturday for children in grades kindergarten through five is set for 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. at Pine Knob Elementary School, 6020 Sashabaw Road, Independence Township.

Sponsored by Clarkston Community Education, the three-hour workshop costs $15, which includes a refreshment break and a $9 materials fee.

Students may choose three sessions particularly geared to their age groups. Items range from include wreaths and candy cane decorations to designer gift wrap, decorated barrettes, sleep shirts and holiday stenciled carpet squares to Indian folklore, rag heart, Christmas jewelry and a wooden reindeer.

To register, contact the facilitator at any elementary school in the Clarkston district, or call community education at 674-3141.

Pet of the Week

GINGER is a 1-year-old dachshund-mix who has a lot of energy.

Full of spice

Ginger is full of spice — plus she's an active dog. The female dachshund-mix weighs about 18 pounds.

Because she's so active, Ginger would do best in a home with children over age 10. She likes dogs but not cats, and she still needs to be housebroken.

To see Ginger visit the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Road, Auburn Hills, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Sixty-eight business were displayed at the expo Nov. 7 at the Deer Lake Racquet Club. Design Workshop is owned by Kimberly Rogers.

TALKING about children at the expo are Gil Davenport of Graphic One and Carol Carpentier of Main Street USA. Door prizes and lots of refreshments also highlighted the evening show, sponsored by the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce.

KIMBERLY Rogers takes top prize for the display for her business, Design Workshop, at the Clarkston Community Expo.

THE PARKS and Recreation display from Independence Township was manned, in part,
