M-15 plan calls forth officials

BY TRACY KING Clarkston News Associate Editor

Con a move office posed widening of M-15 forged impromptunite ting of the minds between Clarkston and independence to ansarp officials Nov. 20

As part of the tovirship board's 'pliff' forum," (17) - Village Council President Sharon Cataly stood to speak on her concern over the Michigan Department of Transportation's (MDOT) M-15 plan.

MDOT has proposed watching M-15 to tree lanes from Dixie Highway to Paramus Road, tapering the highway back to two lanes through the village. It widens again north of downtown Clarkston.

Catallo stressed that the village preferred a threelane plan and was concerned about tapering traffic into the village.

"We are very upset about how much (the merge lane) comes into the village," Catallo said, "It will just be a matter of time, we feel, until we hear it's going to be longer and longer.

"I'm looking for feedback," Catallo added. "I know it's a hard decision and that there are things important to the township. But can't it be widened so it doesn't come into the village?"

Township Supervisor Frank Ronk assured Catallo that the board was aware of the M-15 plan.

"Sure there are options," Ronk said. "If you are talking about shortening the taper so it doesn't touch village property — we can come close to that.

"Our suggestion is to use the right lane for a turn lane and to sign it right turn only," he said.

Ronk added that it may be necessary to make M-15 (See WIDENING, next page) five lanes in the vicinity of commercial businesses such as Wint's Funeral Home, but that the township had no desire to come further into the village than that.

Some board members cautioned that MDOT could take action in the village despite the township's good

"If you allow five lanes — whether or not turn lanes are designated at this time — signs can change very quickly," said Trustee Frank Millard.

"If MDOT believes something is in the interest of public safety, the turn lanes could change into all through traffic lanes," he added.

Citing the city of Berkeley as an example, Millard pointed out that MDOT could easily do away with parking spaces in the village and could widen the highway through downtown Clarkston.

"(If we allow five lanes now,) that's the way we're going to be in a distinct disadvantage at slowing this thing down," Millard added.

In concluding her comments to the board, Catallo introduced Steve Secatch, a village resident, who had a plan to preserve the width of M-15 through the downtown area.

Secatch, who serves on the township's planning commission, told the board that in checking MDOT plans, he observed that they had already extended the taper closer to the village.

"The decel lane is almost two houses south of Princess Lane," Secatch said.

Secatch suggested that, along with a five-lane highway, right turns lanes be designated right turn only, forcing traffic to turn right and forbidding them to merge back to the highway.

Though some board members supported Secatch's plan, Treasurer John Lutz had doubts.

The real problem is insurance and who is responsible for lawsuits," Lutz said. "You're going to have rearend collisions."

Rear-end collisions could be lessened with the clear posting of signage, Secatch argued.

Concluding the discussion, Ronk reminded township board members and village representatives that the M-15 issue would be better addressed at an upcoming meeting of the Southeast Council of Michigan Governments.

Township, village and MDOT officials plan to attend the meeting. The meeting is set for Friday, Dec. 7, at 2 p.m. For more information, contact SEMCOG at 961-

Block grant funds to help park, needy

BY TRACY KING Clarkston News Associate Editor

Clarkston-area public service agencies will receive additional funding from Independence Township — but not as much as some board members would like.

The allocation came after a public hearing, which the board conducted to help members determine how to spend about $55,757.

The federal money, called Community Development Block Grant Funds (CDBG), is available to local governments from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to assist the needy or handicapped.

Board members voted 5-1 to approve the following allocations:

■ Public service agencies will receive 25 percent, or $13,900. Agencies receiving money include Consortium for Human Development ($3,000), SCAMP ($3,000), Clarkston Area Youth Assistance ($3,000) and Lighthouse North (Home Chore Program - $2,500 and Food Program - $2,439)

■ A township emergency home repair program will receive 20 percent, or $11,151.

■ Bay Court Park, located on Andersonville Road, Independence Township, will receive 50 percent or $27,800 for a barrier-free pathway and dock.

The Independence Township Senior Citizens' Center will receive five percent, or $2,788 for the rental of a tent accompanied student government members to class and lunch on Friday, Nov. 16. Note that Van Klaveren sits at the back of the class.

■ Voting yes were Supervisor Frank Ronk, Treasurer John Lutz and trustees Jean Saile, Daniel Travis and Mel Vaara. Trustee Frank Millard voted no. Clerk Joan McCrary, was absent.

In logging his no vote, Millard argued that shortterm human needs might be better addressed than the longer-term development of Bay Court Park.

"The reality of the situations are that Bay Court as we envision it will not take place in the very near future," Millard said.

"I think we should allocated as much as possible to public service," he said. "There is a crying need for people services, a crying need for mental health services and a crying need for social services. Bay Court is a fine idea and I support that, but we need to take care of residents, too."

Other board members argued that Bay Court deserved attention.

"Ever since I've been in Clarkston I've heard about the need for a community center for young people," said Saile, pointing to plans for such a facility at Bay Court.

"Anything that can promote that community center, I'm in favor of," Saile added.

Millard suggested using the Independence Township Senior Center for youth activities, though some board members answered that it was too small for the use.

"The township made a commitment to Bay Court," said Vaara. "It's through these types of grants that we have to make improvements to the project."

The public service agencies should receive the grant money sometime in June.

In a separate but related action, the board also voted to allocate CDBG money left over from previous years. The vote was 5-1, with Millard again voting no.

The vote allocates the following:

n About $1,400 leftover funds from 1985 will be used for a senior center van lift. Another $10,000 from 1985 will be used for barrier-free improvements at Bay Court Park.

n About $7,300 leftover funds from 1987 will be used for barrier-free improvements at Bay Court Park. Another $7,900, left over in the barrier-free account from 1985, will also be used in barrier-free improvements at Bay Court Park.

n About $21,100 slated for the township Senior Center in 1989 will be used for 1990 improvements at the senior center.

Cancer benefit set

Proceeds from an upcoming Clarkston Village Players presentation of "Wait Until Dark" may offer a glimmer of light for a local man.

Proceeds from the Nov. 29 performance will be donated to a trust established for John W. Kedmenec, a cancer victim.

Though John has found a perfect donor for a necessary bone marrow transplant operation, his insurance carrier has denied his claim for payment due to the experimental nature of the surgery.

John, 35, lives in Waterford Township with his wife and two teen-age daughters.

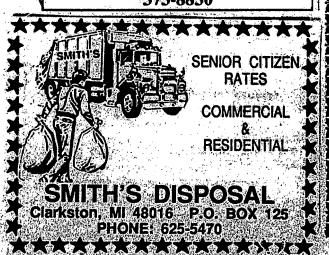

The production begins at 9 p.m. at the Depot Theater on White Lake Road, Independence Township.

The trust fund is organized by St. Alfred's Episcopal Church in Lake Orion. For more information, contact the church office at 693-8641.

blues

At The Clarkston News, we get a lot of unreasonable requests that have turned into my pet peeves.

That probably means that readers don't know how the newspaper business works. So, as an explanation (and a way to get a few things off my chest), here are a few pet peeves on my mind today:

1. Arriving at a wonderful photo opportunity of young children engrossed in some hands-on project, and an adult announces, "The photographer is here! Everyone look at the camera. Smile and say, 'cheese!"

The whole idea of news photography is to record events as they happen — news photographers like to be as invisible as possible.

Usually, young kids continue their projects without posing. Older kids tend to pose and stare at the camera or run around to position themselves in front of the camera at all times. Normally, after we tell the older children that we'd like them to pretend we're not there, they ignore us (probably they get bored and go about their business) — but not if an adult keeps telling them that we're taking their pictures.

2. Publicity people who tell us all about their upcoming event and then say, "I'd like that on the front page, please."

Just for the record, we usually don't know the front-page stories until Tuesday — layout day. Sometimes the most newsworthy item doesn't come in until Tuesday morning or Monday night.

3. People who call at 5:30 p.m. and ask us to cover something out of town at 7 p.m. that very evening and then are angry that our reporters are covering government meetings that night and are unavailable.

It's best to call a week or a few days in advance to get coverage of an event, and it's also better to ask us to cover events in the Clarkston area. Worst day to call: Monday afternoons and Tuesdays (deadline and layout). Best day to call: Wednesdays (staff assignment day).

4. Proud, well-intentioned parents who call to tell us about some wonderful craft project after the fact and then ask us to take a posed picture of the items tacked on the wall or stacked on shelves.

For a newspaper, something is worth photographing if it tells a story — that usually means people are in action. We'd like to cover projects in progress. Photos of inanimate objects are usually boring and flat in a newspaper.

So if your child's class is doing something wonderful, please call before the action takes place.

5. Coaches, government officials or club leaders who don't call back with information for a story—especially when they asked us to do the story in the first place.

An example: A Clarkston junior varsity coach didn't respond to repeated requests for statistics and comments about his undefeated team — even after parents (as well as our sports reporter) requested him

Maybe we should have filed a freedom of information request?

6. People who think they're calling another local newspaper but call our number instead and still complain—even after we tell them they've got the wrong newspaper.

I can't figure that one—other than it's probably a universal human-need to tell someone (anyone) about their anger and frustration (which might explain why I wrote this column—thanks for lending an ear).

Letters to the Editor

Parent responds to sports column

As a concerned Clarkston soccer parent, a Michigan High School Athletic Association soccer official and one who has been involved with the sport at many levels and in many capacities for over 16 years, I must take exception to sports reporter James Gibowski's comments concerning Clarkston's soccer team and letters to the editor in his Nov. 21st article in The Clarkston News.

No matter what sport a high school player is participating in, be it soccer, football, basketball or golf—sportsmanship, fair play, skill excellence and team play should be emphasized. Participation in high school athletics is supposed to be part of a learning experience associated with growing up. This is why athletics are linked to a student's high school education.

Here in Clarkston, as in any other community, we have talented high school athletes who come as young adolescents to be taught the above principles so they can succeed as adults.

The high school administrators, teachers and various coaches, as well as we parents, are shouldered with this responsibility of stewardship with these young adults.

In the case of the Clarkston varsity soccer team, we as adults in this community were failing these athletes.

The proper soccer skills, player selection and ethics were not being practiced to bring the best out of the players.

These are good students, talented athletically, who were not being handled properly. In their frustration during the games, they resorted to anger and petty acts of violence that the officials dealt with according to the rules of the game as outlined by the High School Athletic Association.

In most cases, the players committing these acts were put back into the game shortly after they were forced to leave by the rules. Where was the enforcement of the principles of fair play by the coaches?

Players who make skill or tactical mistakes during the game need to practice the correct development of the skills and tactics prior to the game. If they can't develop the proper level of skill, they need to be replaced by someone else until they improve their skills. A coach is supposed to understand this and practice it, or eventually his team falls apart.

At least someone, although anonymously, spoke up by writing a letter to the editor about this sad state of affairs. Because we live in a democratic society, we vote in secret, and we read graffiti on walls left by unknown hands. Who cares who wrote the letter. If the words had truth in them, they will linger, if not, they will die.

As of today, the varsity soccer coach has resigned. The school administration is reviewing the program and will hopefully come to the decision that it is our responsibility as administrators, parents and coaches to develop a high level of skill, a sense of ethics and fair play.

Let's hope we make the right decisions and that we did not do any permanent damage to the talented student athletes who composed the Clarkston varsity soccer team.

Mr. Gibowski, I hope you can see farther than blaming the officials, who were trying, without much support, and the anonymous letter-writers, who spoke the truth about the situation, through to the real need, which is to support our athletes with the very best leadership as they grow into adults.

Holiday put off

You must have read how the merchants and other townfolk of Plymouth, Michigan put off Christmas. Well, not exactly the holiday, just early shopping decorations and advertising.

Then they decided to wear clothes of the Pilgrim era for Thanksgiving through the weekend. The town was decorated with corn stalks and pumpkins.

The hope of the merchants must have been that people would come downtown and look at the decorations... and shop for Christmas.

A squirt for Christmas

We've seen some unusual words written to the poem, "T'was The Night Before Christmas." So have you. Now comes a version by a lubricating company. They call it "T'was The Day After Christmas." I'll only repeat as many verses as it takes to slide into their point.

"I hopped over transformers, a robot named Shorty, searching my stocking for my WD-40."

"As I pulled out my hand and was turning around, the kids cheered the WD-40 can I had found."

You would just know the home base for WD-40 is California.

Quick Jottings

If I were starting anew in this work-a-day world I'd get into selling anything to do with pure water or the opposite . . . become a garbage (recyling) man.

Do you ever start eating a whole (uncut) sandwich from the bottom? Or a slice of toast?

If it's good to start teaching 5th and 6th graders about drugs, why wouldn't it be just as good to throw some driver education at them, particularly the courtesy part?

I swear every person seeking a judicial post in the recent election said, somewhere in their pitch, they've "earned the respect of ..." Now name three judges who have your respect.

Please, Mr. President

Everyone remembers his saying, "Read my lips. No new taxes." Everyone should remember when troops were first ordered into Saudi Arabia Mr. Bush said, "We are going there to stop an aggressor. Oil is not the basis of our action."

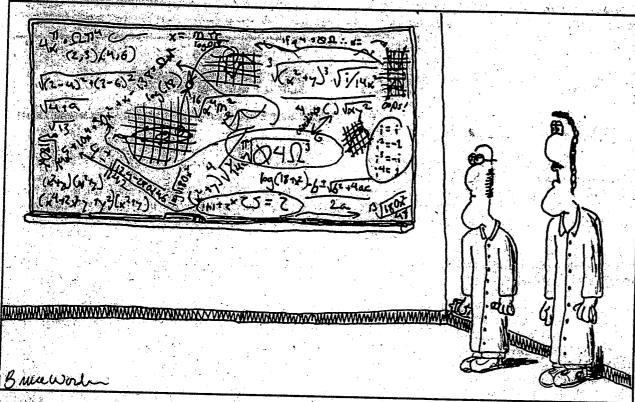

And, by now we have all heard Mr. Bush mention, more than once, "Oil is a very important resource."

America's sons and daughters are being sent to the Middle east to stop our ex-friend, now Hitlerish Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein. More and more it appears the "Read my lips" lie is being paralleled by the 'to stop an aggressor' statement, Please, Mr. President, don't have America's sons and daughters killed over prices at a gas pump.

Still blowing smoke

Jim Regerald.

Celebrities are often quoted because they're celebrities, not because they said anything worth quoting, or even understandable. In a magazine interview, actress Michelle Pfeiffer said: "I used to smoke two packs a day, and I just hate being a nonsmoker . . . But I will never consider myself a nonsmoker. Because I always find smokers the most interesting people at the table."

Why would smokers be more interesting than nonsmokers? Perhaps because they're demonstrating an attractively independent attitude that says they're not frightened by statistics that indicate they're smoking themselves into an earlier-than-otherwise grave. Undeniably, there is something romantically fascinating about people who willingly risk death. High-wire walkers and mountain climbers, for example.

You might point out that when mountain climbers and wire walkers fall, they usually don't land on innocent people, but smokers exhale. You're clever and obviously a nonsmoker. You're not attractive to Michelle Pfeiffer who, although she no longer smokes, refuses to consider herself one of the most interesting people at the table.

Ironically, I recently decided the most boring person at the table was a smoker. I mean me.

I quit cigarettes cold in 1953, long before the surgeon general began maligning tobacco, simply to show off my fabulous willpower. But lately, I've become worried that other people at the table, or on the other side of the room, especially old acquaintances, will think I'm smoking a cigarette, thus discrediting my splendid willpower. So I keep telling everyone, over and over and over and over, beyond the point of boredom, that it's not a cigarette in my mouth, it really isn't, it's . . .

A little cigar!

During the first 35 years after I nobly rejected cigarettes, I had an occasional cigar. A normal-size cigar, maybe two or three a month, always enjoyable, always in a saloon or restaurant where other people also were smoking. So I could still brag about my marvelous willpower, I never had a cigar at work; at home; in my car, in downtown doorways or any of the other locations commonly used by tobacco addicts lacking my tremendous willpower.

Two years ago, I noticed that more and more restaurants forbid eigars in smoking areas. Even eigarette smokers looked with disfavor upon anyone gross enough to light up a cigar. Simply because it seeped out of a larger wrapping, cigar smoke was regarded as more offensive than eigarette smoke. To avoid widespread condemnation, especially lynching, I quit cigars in 1988 just as stalwartly as. I'd quit cigarettes in 1953.

It was yet another opportunity for me to display my magnificent willpower, the willpower that enables me to stay slim by skipping lunches, despite my great hunger, and walking to work, bravely leaving two cars home with

But a few months ago, in a drugstore, I saw something I'd never seen before a cigarette-size package containing 20 little cigars. That's exactly what it says on as regular cigarettes, the word "cigarette" isn't mentioned

So now, in public smoking areas, two or three times a month, I smoke a little cigar. They burn quicker than fuses, but cost only 80 cents, about half the cost of a pack of cigarettes. Yes, kinhale, but I exhale into my shirt pocket and don't let the smoke out until I'm outside, alone, in the middle of a large vacant lot

The only problem is I'm afraid someone will mistake my little cigar for a cigarette and think I ve lost my stupendous willpower and broken a 37-year-old vow. So I *) tell everyone, including passing strangers, that the thing in my mouth is a little cigar. I make them read the "Little Cigars", on the package. If we become a bore.

Even if I smoked three little cigars at once, Michelle Pfeiffer would find me the least interesting person at the

My wife had a comment: "If Michelle thought your cigar talk were boring, she should hear you talk about your stupid, idiotic willpower."

M-15 widening nothing but a mess

I was in a state of shock to read The Clarkston News headline of M-15 widening. This widening will create more traffic and require more state and SEMCOG "help."

In other words, it is the first step of utter destruction of the village and all that we cherish and love as the heart

I am not a resident of the village but live in the township because of these very environs. It is not fivelane highways that draw tourists and new residents to this area. It is not a five-lane highway that invites throngs to the annual Crafts and Cider Festival or to stroll the village's Main Street on warm summer evenings.

Surely, there must be a way to protest to our representatives in Lansing. If not, can you provide names and addresses of SEMCOG and MDOT? There are more sensible ways to route traffic than this

Paul Yackell

Editor's note: SEMCOG (the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments) can be reached at 660 Plaza Dr., Suite 1900, Detroit, MI 48226 (961-4266); MDOT (Michigan Department of Transportation) can be reached at 18101 W. 9 Mile Road, Southfield, MI (569-3993).

Trustee seat open on township board

I wish to thank you, the residents of Independence Township and the Village of Clarkston, for your support during my tenure as township trustee and my recent election as your Oakland County Commissioner.

I look forward with anticipation to the duties I will be assuming and pledge that I will do my very best to represent your interests on that board.

I will be resigning my seat on the Independence Township Board during the month of December to begin my duties as county commissioner. Selection of my successor will be by appointment of the township board.

I encourage anyone interested in serving as township trustee to contact either the supervisor's or the clerk's office at township hall for details on how to apply for consideration for this position.

There are issues before the township board that will have far-reaching effects on our township. If you've ever thought about becoming active, now is the time.

Call for comments on M-15 plans

On Oct. 4, representatives from the Village of Clarkston and Independence Township attended a meeting of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) Regional Clearinghouse Review Committee to present concerns about a federally-funded widening of M-15 to five lanes from Dixie Highway to Paramus/ Middle Lake Road and a subsequent narrowing from five lanes to two lanes that would take about 400 feet from Paramus/ Middle Lake north.

The SEMCOG Regional Clearinghouse Review Committee reluctantly recommended the five-lane widening; however, the Village of Clarkston has requested a rehearing at the SEMCOG Executive Committee meeting on Dec. 7, and the Executive Committee has agreed to put this issue on their agenda.

In a study by Bennett, Ringrose, Wolsfeld, Jarvis, Gardner, Inc. (BRW), funded by Independence Township and the Village of Clarkston, a three-lane roadway was selected as the preferred alternative.

The Task Force leading up to the BRW study, consisting of village and township representatives, favored the three-lane plan.

I am interested in obtaining comments from interested residents of the Clarkston area with regards to their feelings on this proposed widening of M-15. I would use this information (pro or con) when appearing before the SEMCOG Executive Committee on Dec. 7.

Written comments may be sent to the Village of Clarkston, 375 Depot Road, Clarkston, MI 48346.

Sharron Catallo, president Clarkston Village Council

Just Say No day set for Saturday

Elementary students in the Clarkston area can have a few hours of entertainment and fun projects on Satur--day, Dec. 1.

The annual Just Say No day is set for 3-5 p.m. Dec. 1 at the Clarkston High School cafeteria, and elementaryage children may come at any time in that period, said the Rev. Bill Schram, organizer of the event, along with Katie

The day, sponsored by the CHS Just Say No Club and the Clarkston Area Optimist Club, is designed to help children say no to drugs.

Entertainment includes a skit by the CHS Just Say

No Club, a magic show, mime troupe, Pom Pon squad, plus games.

In addition, children can stop at two work stations and make a project to take home. And there will be plenty of refreshments.

The high school members of Just Say No plan to make special presentations in elementary classrooms throughout the Clarkston school district in February and will tell the children about that on Dec. 1.

For more information, call Schram at 673-3101 or MacKay at 625-0900.

Council moves bed and breakfast plan forward

Facilities could be allowed in commercial, multiple only

BY TRACY KING Clarkston News Associate Editor

Bed and breakfast facilities could soon dot the landscape of Clarkston, but only in areas zoned for commercial or multiple dwellings.

After lengthy debate, village council members voted unanimously Nov. 26 to direct the village planning commission to draft a bed and breakfast ordinance revision for their review.

The action came during an informal public hearing. Though no one spoke when the council called for comments, three residents eventually contributed to a discussion about the legality, desirability and purpose of such an ordinance.

"The ordinance deserves a motion," said Carol Eberhardt, a former council president and the source of the bed and breakfast proposal. "I believe the issue cannot merely be dismissed. This is going to come back, and it's time for the village to take a stand."

Bill Rausch of Waldon Road, Clarkston, told council members he was speaking on behalf of Jon Abbott, who recently restored the historic Boothby House, now located on Main Street.

In his attempt to sell the Boothby House, Abbott received two inquiries on making the house a bed and breakfast and six or seven inquiries on office space in the structure. No one had offered to buy the house for residential use, Rausch said.

"The thing we should be taking a look at is the whole block rezoning," Rausch said. "The whole block is non-conforming. Single-family residential is not working in that particular part of Clarkston."

Council members questioned whether allowing bed and breakfast facilities would make it difficult to force

"I don't see the benefit outweighing the risk."

William Basinger

compliance of non-conforming residential uses such as duplexes.

Village attorney Tom Gruich explained that few bed and breakfast cases had been heard. However, most courts ruled that bed and breakfast facilities were more like hotels or boarding houses rather than home occupation businesses such as craft shops or dress shops.

Some council members questioned whether bed and breakfast facilities in a residential area would be appropriate.

"(Bed and breakfast facilities) are Americana," said Trustee Eric Haven. "But we're very small, and I don't think we should encourage an influx of people.

"We have an influx of people now that we can't handle." Haven added

"Up to now we've maintained a desirable balance between residential and commercial," said Trustee William Basinger. "Having a bed and breakfast (designated as commercial may be extreme), but it is a commercial use. There will be signs, traffic and noise in a residential area.

"I don't see the benefit outweighing the risk," Basinger added. "I don't think I want to proceed until I see a benefit. And I don't see it."

Council President Sharron Catallo suggested that the matter be heard in a formal public hearing, once residents had proper notification that an ordinance would be proposed.

Other members questioned whether the planning commission should go to the work of drafting an ordinance for the public hearing, when it was clear that some

"This is going to come back, and it's time for the village to take a stand."

Carol Eberhardt

members did not favor the bed and breakfast proposal.

"The issue isn't whether we can draft a proposal, the issue is whether we can pass it," said Basinger. "We're putting the cart before the horse.

"We did this (in the past) and made everyone a lot of work," he added. "It's not fair to the planning commission, and it's not fair to the village attorney."

After more discussion, some council members declared that they could support the bed and breakfast issue, but only in areas zoned commercial or multiple.

The planning commission is expected to complete a revision to the zoning ordinance, addressing the bed and breakfast issue, in January.

Site condos get preliminary OK

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Staff Writer

Two Cranberry Lake Road site condominium developments received site plan approvals Nov. 15.

Oak Pointe, Inc., proposed both projects to the Independence Township Planning Commission Nov. 15.

Site condominiums are like single family homes, except the property between the homes is owned by the condominium association, which is comprised of homeowners. The home itself, and the "building envelope" in which it sits, is owned by the homeowner.

Cranberry Woods, a site condominium project proposed for the southeast corner of Cranberry Lake and Allen roads, received preliminary site plan approval from the commission.

The commission voted 6-0 to approve the site plans for the 6.3-acre parcel. Jo Fussman was absent from the meeting.

The development is to contain eight custom-built homes

The approvals were subject to: inclusion of a bike path on Allen Road and appropriate language in the condominium association's contract indicating its participation in controlling the dust on nearby roadways.

Cranberry Park, a site condominium project slated for the east side of Allen Road, between I-75 and Cranberry Lake Road, received preliminary site plan approval from the planning commission.

The commission members also approved this measure 6-0, subject to: inclusion of a bike path along Allen Road, deletion of possible acceleration and deceleration lane for the protection of existing vegetation and adding language to the condo association's contract on helping control dust from nearby roadways.

The 25-acre parcel is to contain 43 custom-built omes.

Both developments need final site plan approval from the planning commission before construction can begin.

High school peer group helps students in need

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston-News Staff Writer

Troubled teens at Clarkston High School have an alternative to adult counseling these days.

A student group known as "Peer Listeners" is promoting itself. The organization is based on personal interaction between fellow pupils. This marks the third year that the program has been in operation at CHS. Its staff consists of 16 students, grades 10 through 12.

According to Grant Manley, the program's student spokesperson, each member has participated in 72 hours worth of training exercises. He said a majority of the exercises dealt with assertive listening.

The students gave various reasons for their volun-

"I'm a good listener and always willing to help others," said Heather Coxen, 17.

"I consider myself open-minded and understanding," said Mark White, 16. "Everyone in the group cares about helping others or we wouldn't be here.'

Jim Butzine, a social worker at CHS, said this type of one-on-one communication is important in a school setting.

"I made a commitment to this program three years ago, and the students seem to appreciate the service,' Butzine said. "We had four students sign up for counseling last year, and we're looking forward to helping more this year."

The success of the Peer Listeners could some day vault the program into the curriculum at CHS. Butzine said a class called "Peer Listening" is under consideration by the school's curriculum committee. If approved by the committee, the class would be offered as a social studies

Butzine praised the devotion of the students in Peer

"The kids in this program have given up a significant amount of their time to help others in need," Butzine added. "Their devotion is refreshing and appreciated by everyone affiliated with Clarkston High School."

Village flags stolen

Two flags marking the entrance to Clarkston Village Council chambers were stolen sometime during the Thanksgiving weekend.

The banners, an American flag and a Michigan flag, hung on a flag pole in Depot Park, Clarkston.

Employees with the Independence Township Department of Public Works noticed the flags missing on Sunday, Nov. 25., said village Manager Artemus Pappas.

Replacement for the flags is expected to cost the village $70 for the American flag and $68 for the Michigan flag, Pappas said.

Swinging from the heels

Hustling champions

James Gibowski

The Pistons are an amazing team.
What impresses me the most is not their big salaries, talent, experience, personalities, television commercials or even their two successive championships.

What impresses me the most is how much they hustle, their confidence and unselfish team play.

There are many teams which win championships one year and yet, even with the same talent, never repeat again.

Everyone knows the Pistons and their coach Chuck Daly are hoping to three-peat. The Trail Blazers, Suns, Bulls, Spurs, Jazz and Celtics especially know that and will have the best chance to try and stop it from happening.

Many of those teams have nearly as much talent (the fresher-legged Suns and Trail Blazers might even have a little more) as Detroit, and some of them might finish the regular season with an even better record.

But I'm convinced that the Pistons, who proudly wear two championship rings and yet hustle like rookies trying to make a team, are still the best bet to win it all again.

I had a good view of this hustling while watching Detroit play Atlanta Nov. 17 at The Palace. I shot photos of the Pistons while working on a story about the Hawks' Tim McCormick, a Clarkston High School graduate.

It was only the third Piston game (fourth if you count one game I saw them play in Seattle) I had ever attended and the first one at The Palace (since I lived out in the Pacific Northwest for most of the past decade, I attended about 15 Sonic games and four in Portland.)

Many moons ago, I saw the Pistons play the Knicks in an exhibition game in Bay City. Dave Bing and Cassie Russell were rookies that year. The only other home game I saw was in the 70s at Cobo Arena.

When you're shooting photos and getting ready for a post-game interview, you view the game differently compared with a fan. You're more concerned with getting the right photo than knowing the

And getting a press pass allows you the opportunity to see some things most fans will never see: Bill Bonds in the press lounge (I told him I didn't always agree with the way he editorializes while delivering the news, but I told him the way he handled the post Prime Time Live show about Detroit demonstrated that he is a good interviewer); asking Dominique Wilkins how his hand injury is doing (he played a few days later); interviewing McCormick in the Hawks' dressing room (a different setting compared to a few months ago when I interviewed him at Clarkston High School's gym during his youth summer basketball camp).

The Palace is an excellent facility for basketball. It has size, but yet has some intimacy. When the crowd really wants to get noisy, it can get quite noisy in the place.

But even with a state-of-the-art (excuse the cliche) arena, excellent lighting, a noisy scoreboard, sometimes noisy fans, half-dressed leggy women escorting (control yourself, James Worthy) fans in shooting contests, revolving advertising displays, etc., what really matters, what really is worth watching ...

... are those hustling and confident Pistons.

There are many outstanding individual basketball players in the NBA, but so far, there is only one team today like the Pistons

The only thing that will defeat the Pistons, and it's inevitable, is age.

Enjoy it while it lasts.

PISTON Islah Thomas can't pass up the chance for an assist, as Atlanta Hawk and former Wolverine Rumeal Robinson finds out.

McCormick's knees key to NBA career

THE Houston Rockets traded McCormick to the Atlanta Hawks shortly before the season began. The Clarkston High School graduate has played for five different NBA teams.

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI Clarkston News Staff Writer

Tim McCormick and Vinnie Johnson suddenly found themselves entangled: For a split second, both players formed defensive postures, like two cats before hissing.

But McCormick soon realized the player he was battling with for possession was Johnson, and the Microwave saw that it was McCormick.

So instead of an NBA brawl, the end of the third quarter at The Palace finished with a quick handshake between the two opponents.

"We had our elbows up a little bit," said McCormick, "but he turned around and saw who it was so we smiled at each other. He knew I didn't mean anything by it. Vinnie and I have always gotten along pretty well. We wouldn't take a cheap shot."

The aborted confrontation took place during the Detroit Pistons 91-83 victory over the Atlanta Hawks Nov. 17.

McCormick, a graduate of Clarkston High School who later starred with the University of Michigan, played about 10 minutes in the game, scoring four points.

The 7-foot, 240-pounder was traded before the season to the Hawks. After being drafted 12th overall in 1984 by the Cleveland Cavaliers, he was immediately traded to the Washington Bullets and then again traded to the Seattle SuperSonics before the season began. After two years in Seattle, he spent seasons with the Philadelphia 76ers, New Jersey Nets and Houston Rockets.

McCormick, who had his fifth knee surgery before the start of this season, said the Rockets gave up on him because of his knee problems. He only played in 18 games last year.

But the 28-year-old said his knees feel better this year.

"The knee feels very good. I worked hard on it during the off-season. I think it's as close to 100 percent as it's going to get," said McCormick, who said he would like to play for three or four more years.

McCormick has averaged playing about 16 minutes a game with seven points and four rebounds.

"In my mind I have played extremely well this year. My minutes have been quality minutes. I've shot a good percentage and my rebounding, those are things I wanted to concentrate on. It's just a matter of the coach's game and confidence in me.

LONG-TIME NBA star center Moses Malone has a word with McCormick on the Hawks bench.

TIM McCormick and Piston BIII Laimbeer battle for position under the boards.

I've been very pleased with the way I've played, so I've been able to satisfy myself, at least," said McCormick.

He adds, "There's a tremendous opportunity in the future here. What I need to do is work hard, stay healthy and the rest will take care of itself."

McCormick has four years left on his contract and doesn't want to collect his paychecks while being on the sidelines.

"This is my job. A lot of people say they would play for free. I don't always necessarily agree with that. I take a lot of pride in it and really enjoy playing basketball. I'm not really happy if I don't play well, so that tells me I still love the game a lot," said McCormick.

McCormick, who conducts an annual basketball camp for youths during the summer at Clarkston High School, enjoys coming back to play in his home state.

"It's very special. It's a great thrill for me to be able to play against the Pistons because when I was a youngster I used to go down to Cobo Arena and Silverdome and watch the Pistons," said McCormick. "I'd dream about playing in the NBA while watching my favorite players. Then I'd go home and try to emulate some of the things they did. When I was younger I was a basketball groupie."

Notall of the 21,454 spectators at the game were cheering for the Pistons.

"I left 15 to 20 tickets," said McCormick.

Some of the Clarkston area people who attended the game were McCormick's former basketball coach Gary Nustad, Wolf teammate Nick Lekas and the Nicolai family.

McCormick said his friends are what makes playing at The Palace unique.

"It's a court, other than the fact that there's some special people there," said McCormick,

Playing for Atlanta has its advantages when it comes to visibility for the Hawk players. The games are televised nationally by the Turner Broadcasting System.

"I have family and friends around the country that will get a chance to see me play. Where as in Houston, it was three or four times the most," said McCormick.

Not being on national television has never stopped his parents from watching their son throughout his career. Tom and Terri, who live in Springfield Township, own a satellite dish.

"My parents have been my biggest fans. When I was playing in Seattle, the games were running till 2 o'clock in the morning. My parents would still watch about 90 percent of my games. Whether I played well or played poorly, they've always been supportive. That's been a real advantage for me," said McCormick.

McCormick has been married for a year and a half to Michelle. They own a house in Michigan and rent in Atlanta. Michelle also flew into Michigan for the game. McCormick had a day off the Sunday after the Pistons game, so his family had their Thanksgiving dinner four days ahead of time.

Chances are, while growing up in the Clarkston area, McCormick used to watch an NBA game on television during the Thanksgiving holiday.

Now he is the one being watched, whether it's in person, on NBC or TBS.

Or on a satellite dish at 2 a.m.

Quickness will determine net value

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI Clarkston News Staff Writer

Quickness will be replacing last year's height and experience when Clarkston's varsity volleyball team opens the season Dec. 15.

The Wolves lost 11 seniors to graduation, including all-Greater Oakland Activities League first team member Susan McKoin and second team all-leaguers Jami Lerner and Michele Sikes. The three athletes combined for eight varsity letters.

Last season, the Wolves finished 18-18 overall and 2-8 in league.

This season, coach Gordie Richardson will especially be counting on three seniors, third-year player Jenny Graham and second-year players Becky Kosek and Kim

Winter sports preview

Kolody.

Richardson says about Graham, "Jenny wants it to be a great team. One of her goals is to be a great volleyball player. We'll hold her to it."

Kosek will be the team's main setter, the quarterback of the squad using multiple offenses.

Also joining the varsity will be a host of Wolves who last season won the JV GOAL championship. Richardson describes the new varsity team members as "real aggressive."

"I think we'll be competitive in the league," said Richardson who expects defending champ Lake Orion and Waterford Kettering to be strong. Richardson points out that Kettering and Waterford Mott both have new coaches this season, which can either help or hurt their chances.

Since the Wolves are shorter this year and will most likely not block as many shots at the net, Richardson said the team will not only rely on its quickness but also its serving and passing.

In other words, doing well on the basics,

"We've got to get the ball in on our serves," said Richardson.

The coach also points out the importance of the Wolves not beating themselves, saying, "In high school volleyball, half of the points scored are on unforced errors."

About 40 girls tried out for volley-ball, with about a dozen making both the varsity and JV squads. Dallas Thorn will be coaching the JV Wolves.

Along with Thorn, Richardson will be getting occasional help from former JV coach Kecia Powell, former Wolf allleaguer and current college player Missy Odell and area resident Laura Popp.

But come game time, the young Wolves will have to help themselves.

Coug's win with 19-0 run

BY BOBBY BRAZIER Clarkston News Special Writer

Sashabaw Junior High's 8th grade basketball team, with 17 points from Jonathan York, crushed Crary, 65-33, Nov. 19.

The host Cougars, 2-0, have now won 11 straight dating back to last season.

Sashabaw used a number of decisive runs throughout the game, the most prominent being a 19-0 run to close the third period as part of a 24-5 quarter.

The Cougars led the entire way as they steamrolled to a 60-20 advantage after three periods.

Also contributing to the balanced attack were Toby Evans with 13 points, Jayson Buchmann and Jeremy Fife each with 11, Nic Multhaupt added four, Matt Sliwa, Mark Ryan, Chris Harbert and Dave Boucard each scored two and Mike Jones added one.

"We outhustled them, wanted the game more and were basically hot," said

The Cougars next play Dec. 3 when they host Lake Orion.

Crary clips Sashabaw

BY BRAD SHIRES Clarkston News Special Writer

Leading by only four points after the half, 14-10, the Crary Clippers then went on a 9-0 run to begin the third quarter.

Despite all of this, the host Sashabaw Cougars 7th grade team was only losing, 24-16.

The Cougars, however, were unable to make any kind of run against Crary's solid defense, losing the game, 34-24, Nov. 19.

Andy Keelean led the Cougar attackers with eight points. Tim Wasilk and Tim Wisser weren't far behind with four and three points, respectively. Chad Hall, Kevin Haynes, Josh Klein and Jayme Mutter each added two points. Mike Scheet scored

The Cougars, 0-2, will next host Lake Orion Dec. 3.

3-on-3 champs determined

Championship teams were crowned at a Nov. 17 Youth 3-on-3 Basketball Tournament sponsored by the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

Tim Wasilk, Mark Ryan, Toby Evans and Jeremy Fife were winning team members in the 12-13 age division. John Weeks, Josh Watson, Rusty Mitcham and Tony Lucca teammed up to win the 14-15

Each member of the winning teams received a basketball and a free berth (it costs $20 per team to enter) to the next round-robin style tournament, which will tip off after the first of the year.

After a new mammogram machine was installed at the Women's Health Center of Clarkston, the center donated the previous unit to the Children of Chernobyl Relief Fund

The Clarkston Rotary Club will be paying for the transportation of the machine from Michigan to New Jersey, and the Relief Fund will pick up the shipping costs from New Jersey to Ukraine.

According to Independence Township resident Lubomyr Hewko, a former resident of the Ukraine and presently a Rotarian, the machine will arrive in Lviv around Christmas.

"The machine will be delivered to a special hospital in the Ukraine, which is set up to handle medical equipment from the western countries," Hewko said. "Although the machine is used, it will be a welcomed addition to the hospital because most Soviet hospitals are not as technically advanced as those in America."

According to Hewko, the 1986 disaster is responsible for a rash of radiation-induced diseases, which are reaching epidemic proportions.

"The city is an empty shell, and genetic complications are now being found in many of the people," he said.
"The contamination has spread throughout much of the Ukraine and the Scandinavian countries. We may never find out the full extent of the disaster and how much of Eastern Europe has been effected."

Other organizations wishing to contribute pharmaceuticals, medical supplies, equipment or financial donations to the Children of Chernobyl Relief Fund should contact Hewko at 625-9230.

BREAKTHROUGH IN GALL BLADDER SURGERY

The latest in surgical technique to treat diseases of the gall bladder was recently introduced to this area and has enabled the patient to have the benefit of modern scientific technology — reducing pain, suffering, and healing time with little or no scarring.

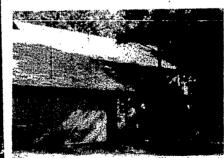

The procedure is called a Laser Laparoscopic Cholecystectomy. In essence it combines scope and laser technology to minimize incision and decrease bodily invasion during surgery. This will allow most patients to leave the hospital after an overnight stay. Total recovery time decreases dramatically and most patients return to normal functions in about one week.

Local surgeon Carroll Knauss, D.O., a staff member of Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, has been specifically trained and accredited for performing this new procedure. P.O.H. is proud to be associated with Dr. Knauss.

Hundreds a day flock to booming Saturn North

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN Clarkston News Staff Writer

Saturn's philosophy toward customers is to be up front and honest, says Tom Delke, vice-president of Saturn North, Springfield Township.

Honesty toward the customer is an important factor when a car is ordered in November and possibly not delivered until March, he said.

'We would rather give the customer the worst-case scenario, and then hopefully give them a pleasant surprise with an earlier delivery," says Delke, from the dealership on Dixie Highway, just north of I-75.

About two weeks ago, the Saturn plant in Spring Hill, Tenn., was putting out 30 cars a day on the assembly line — now they're up to 80 cars a day, says Delke, who has visited the Spring Hill plant three times.

"The enthusiasm and commitment of the people down there becomes infectious," Delke says. "They're genuine about their commitment - not turning out anything (off the assembly line) that is less than perfect."

Delke is enthusiastic, too, about some of the firsts happening at Saturn North.

"We are first in Michigan to deliver a car," he says.

"And first to report sales in the Midwest."

The dealership is owned by Al Serra, who has a Chevrolet dealership in Grand Blanc.

"The traffic through the dealership has been phenomenal," Delke says.

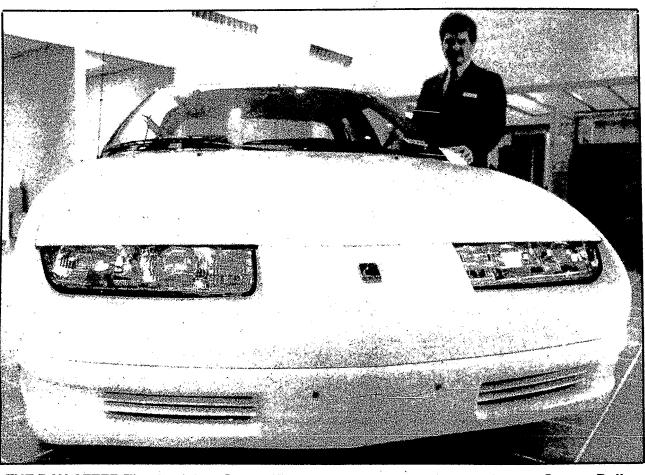

He estimated about 150 to 200 people visit the showroom on Dixie each day that it has been open. The dealership opened on Nov. 1. Hours are 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday; and 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday, Friday and Saturday.

"The day after Thanksgiving we had about 400 people come through the showroom," Delke says.

The central focus of Saturn is the customer. Service doors are on the front of the building; a canopy shields customers from inclement weather; and the customer lounge is in the center of the showroom, Delke says.

The atmosphere is befitting of the new automobile. "I'm confident the product will perform well," Delke

THE DAY AFTER Thanksgiving, Saturn North on Dixie Highway, Springfield Township, was swamped with more than 400 people. But that traffic doesn't bother vice-president Tom zero to 120 degrees, and the finish on the car is "designed to look as good in Michigan weather three years from now," Delke says.

The water-base paint is better for the environment and will keep the finish looking new, he adds.

The engine is rated 24 mpg in the city and 34 mpg on the highway, but a recent test drive from California to Detroit, by a newspaper reporter, netted 34.7 mpg.

Saturn offers four models, ranging in base price from $7,995 to $11,775. Three are four-door models, and the sport coupe is a two-door.

Group grapples with divorce issues

BY TRACY KING Clarkston News Associate Editor

The 80 students seated in the audio-visual room at Sashabaw Junior High, at first, appeared to be a fairly random group.

Sixth-graders sat next to eighth-graders. Popular, spiked haircuts were seen alongside longer hair and earrings. Some fidgeted, while others listened intently.

But despite their differences, each student had a common bond with a performance playing before them on the audio-visual room stage.

In skits, called "My Family Divorced," a non-profit group called Crossroads Productions acted out scenarios involving stepparents, arguments among divorced parents and the common feelings involved.

The program, paid for with a grant obtained by the

"I'd hate to say divorce kids act any differently than any other. Some adjust very well and others don't, with everything in between."

Counselor Karen Engle

group, was organized by SJH counselors. Many in the audience regularly took part in a divorce group at the junior high; all had parents who were separated or divorced.

In one skit, a teen-age boy and his stepmother argued about household chores.

"I'm almost 17; I'm not a kid anymore," the teen actor stated. "I'm not a kid, and you're not my mother. I can't even go to the john without you asking me what I'm doing"

In answer, the stepmother character cries, "I only do these things because I care about you.

"It takes a lot to keep this family together; to keep this family happy;" she adds.

Once the skits were completed, a troupe psychologist turned to the audience for reaction.

"What could have been done differently?" she tries.

After a brief uncomfortable silence, students begin to share their ideas and some of their own experiences, as

"Both were trying to buy her love," says one student

"My dad tries to do that all the time," she quietly adds. "He tries to buy me off from my mother."

The students begin to reveal their anger and frustration on a variety of topics, including: parent visitations, criticism of one parent by the other and parent fighting.

"How do you handle it?" the psychologist questions the speaker.

"I just leave," one student says. "I take the dog for a walk or I listen to the radio."

"I sit both down and say 'I don't like your arguing," says another.

Most students want to express their feelings, says

"Most kids will say it feels good to talk with other people in the same situation."

Counselor Neal Sage

Neal Sage, a SJH counselor, who, along with counselor Karen Engle, work with the divorce group at the junior high.

"Most kids will say it feels good to talk with other people in the same situation," Sage says.

The degree of involvement in the divorce group is one indicator of this fact.

Right after the first of the year, Sage and Engle visited science classrooms, introducing themselves and passing out questionnaires to see how many students wanted to "be a groupie."

Forty-five students said they'd join a divorce group; about 40 were interested in other groups offered at the junior high. (See box.)

The divorce group, now in its third year at SJH, boasts three full sessions. Each section meets once a week for one classroom period.

Each student is first given an opportunity to relate "how things are going," Sage explains.

"If there is some difficulty, as a group we brainstorm (See DIVORCE, next page)

Music-makers send creations to desert

It may not hit platinum, but a cassette recording by Clarkston Junior High sixth-grade music exploratory students will have an audience.

Eighteen students, calling themselves the Motley Chimes, recently recorded three of their handchimes songs and sent them to local radio stations participating in Operation Desert Shield.

Handchimes are like handbells, except they look like tuning forks, and the hammer is on the outside.

The recording was live, with students singing and ringing all types of music, utilizing unison singing, two-part vocals, and playing melodic lines and accompaniments on the chimes.

The students created their own record label, artwork and album concept — calling the cassette "Heavy Metal Melodies."

The young recording artists included Mike Aulgur, Jamie Barasch, Tim Colburn, Sarah Crosby, Jeff Deevey, Kathyrn Gard, Michael Gay, Aaron Gilford, Jason Greve, Raymond Kenny, Kelley Kozma, Colin McIntyre, Becky Olsen, Stacy Risner, Ryan Schlaff, Jahnise Simpson, Kyle Stout and Mandie Werner.

AARON GILFORD sang, played handchimes on the cassette and also created the album artwork.

a solution," he says.

"We stress confidentiality," adds Engle. "We strive to be real non-threatening.

Want to be a groupie?

The Sashabaw Junior High School Counseling Department offers support groups to provide assistance to students coping with problems at school or home.

Groups meet during school hours, and group members must make up any work missed in their classes.

Support groups offered include:

The Concerned Person Support Group: members may be concerned about the alcohol/drug use of a friend or family member. About 25 students have expressed interest in this section.

New Student Support Group: New students to Sashabaw Junior High School may be having difficulty with the school change, making new friends or adjusting to their new environment or home. About 17 students have expressed an interest in this section.

Children of Divorce Support Group: This group is for any student who has parents who are separated, divorced or in the process of divorce. About 80 people are active in this section.

"There are no killer comments; students listen to one another, and they have the right to pass," she says.

Each meeting of the divorce group focuses on an activity, whether a worksheet, a discussion or an audio tape.

A favorite activity is the "pit" in which students are encouraged to drop something in that they want to "leave behind" or to take something out that they want to keep with them.

The counselors will offer options to students who "really get stuck," but they stress listening rather than advising.

"We're not therapists; we're facilitators," explains Engle. "We keep things flowing and make sure everything is supportive."

The group members, however, are encouraged to give advice to their fellow students, which results in the "power of the group," according to Sage.

The counselors were hesitant to outline guidelines for dealing with children of divorce because they feel each situation is specific and individualized.

"I'd hate to say divorce kids act any differently than any other," explains Engle. "Some adjust very well and others don't, with everything in between."

Communication is one tool the counselors do recommend, no matter what the situation.

My dad was shocked at how much my new braces and Laura's new bionator would cost

"Of course, our dental insurance will cover most of it," he assured us in fotal unconcern at the dinner table as Laura and my mom and I began telling him all about mine and Laura's first visit to the orthodontist's,

Well," my mom explained, "our dental insurance doesn't really cover orthodontics that well."

"Well what does our dental insurance cover if it doesn't cover teeth?" my dad asked as a line of worry settled on his forehead.

Laura interrupted with a running narration about her new bionator: a plastic and wire blob that she would wear in the roof of her mouth and which, if she lost it or broke it, would cost $265 to replace.

"Won't our dental insurance cover replacement?" my dad asked, now becoming more concerned.

'Well," my mom explained, "not really."

"And it comes in colors," Laura continued enthusi-

"Why don't you pick out something bright," my dad suggested, "like fluorescent orange so it can be easily spotted if you misplace it or drop it in the dark?"

"Dad!" Laura whined. "You think I want a mouth full of fluorescent orange?" she quizzed disdainfully. But she bounced back brightly as she continued to expound on the wonders of the new mouth device she could hardly wait to acquire.

Laura was certainly the "happy patient" that was so beautifully described in the brochure the orthodontist gave us to read ... she was looking forward to her orthodontic experience ... she would follow every instruction ... she would keep all her appointments ... she was certainly ready to join the happy team.

"All my friends have bionators," she explained to my dad who was now listening intently.

My dad wondered if there was a place on the bionator to somehow attach her name and address.

"So it could be easily returned to you if you misplace it ...," he suggested. "Then we wouldn't have to buy another one."

But Laura was oblivious to my dad's sound financial suggestion. She was already into the more intricate, worrisome details of bionator ownership.

"But," she questioned, "what about when I go to lunch at school? Since I have to take it out when I eat, I might accidentally forget about it and throw it away with my lunch trash. The lady at the orthodontist's office says that happens all the time. She said some kids lose them every two or three months."

My dad suddenly started choking on his mashed potatoes.

But Laura chatted on, "I mean, if that happened, it would be two weeks until I could get another one."

"And $265," my dad mumbled in a weakened voice.

"Besides," Laura continued, "think of the trouble I'd have to go to to look for it - going through the lunch trash - yechhht! I mean, think of how messy ...'

I spoke up to offer a simple solution. "What about this, Laura," I began, "before you go to lunch each day ...'

"Just throw it in the trash in your classroom," my dad interrupted in a voice that was now barely audible as he stared despondently through the glass doors of the kitchen to the back yard.

We all turned to look at my dad.

He shrugged. "At least you'd know where to find it every day when you got back from lunch ... and it wouldn't be yucky ... and you wouldn't have all that worry. I mean —"he paused, then continued with a mock smile on his face. "I don't want anyone to worry about losing a $265 bionator 4... not for a minute! For Pete's sake, NO! We'll just buy another one ... I wouldn't want anyone to lose any sleep over it!"

After dinner, my mom and Laura and I agreed that it was good that it was Laura and not Dad who was getting the bionator. He knows too much at this point to be a "happy patient."

Earth tip

Homeowners use up to 10 times more toxic chemicals per acre than farmers. The average homeowner uses five to 10 pounds per lawn for a national total of 25-50 million pounds. The phosphate used on American lawns each year is equal to about one-third of that used to grow food for the population of India. If even 10 percent of lawnowners began using organic pesticides, 2.5 to 5 million pounds of toxic chemicals would be removed from the environment every year.

And Bingo was its name-oh!

B-I-N-G-O! The month of December marks the anniversary of the manufacture of the game "Bingo" in 1929 by Edwin S. Lowe. The famous game of chance was first recorded in 1778 as a children's game called "Lotto." The original American form, "Keno," "Kino" or "Pokeno," dates from the early 19th century

Played with cards divided into numbered and blank squares, the object of Bingo is to achieve a vertical, horizontal or diagonal line by placing markers over numbers that are randomly called out. The first to have such a line shouts, "Bingo!"

During periodic crazes, Bingo has been one of the most popular forms of low-priced gambling in the world. Although now illegal in most U.S. states when played for gambling purposes, Bingo is permitted in many churches or similar organizations when played for charity. Today, it has grown to a $4-billion-a-year charitable fund-raiser.

So, if you want to celebrate Bingo's anniversary and help charity at the same time, go out and play a game or two!

Garden Corner

Holiday cacti brighten winter

In shades of white, golden yellow, pink, rose, coral and red, the flowers of holiday cacti look like exotic birds of paradise in flight.

It's no wonder that these fall — and winter-blooming plants have become holiday favorites.

Though most people lump them all together under the "Christmas cactus," most of the holiday cacti sold are actually Thanksgiving cacti (Schlumbergera truncata) says Royal Heins, Extension horticulturist at Michigan State University.

The true cactus is Schlumbergera bridgesii. The main difference between the two is the shape of the leaf-like stem segments: in the Thanksgiving cactus, the edges of the segments are toothed or jagged; in the Christmas cactus, the segments are smaller and have more rounded lobes

The Thanksgiving cactus also tends to grow more upright, Heins adds; the Christmas cactus tends to be more pendulous, or drooping.

Both species originated in Brazil, where they grow as epiphytes (air plants) in plant debris trapped among tree branches or in decaying humus on the ground.

Therefore, plants grown in the home do best in a light, humusy potting soil and containers with holes for drainage.

Avoid potting in heavy mineral-type soils, where overwatering will quickly lead to root rot and plant death.

Water when the soil surface begins to feel dry to keep the soil around the roots evenly moist.

The once-recommended practice of keeping holiday cacti on the dry side in the fall to stimulate flowering probably grew out of greenhouse growers' attempts to prevent fungal diseases among plants grown in heavy soils under cool, moist conditions.

Horticulturists now recommend using a lighter growing medium and keeping it uniformly moist. (For a humusy, well-drained potting soil, mix equal parts peat moss and houseplant potting soil.)

Though holiday cacti naturally flower around Thanksgiving and Christmas, growers take no chances — they manipulate light levels and temperatures to guarantee timely flowering.

Holiday cacti bloom in response to short days and cool temperatures, Heins explains.

In the greenhouse or in the home, exposing them to nine hours of light and 15 hours of darkness per day starting in September will cause plants to set flower buds.

Holding temperatures between 50 and 59 degrees will stimulate flowering regardless of day length. Temperatures below 50 degrees will inhibit flower formation, however, and temperatures above 85 will prevent flowering altogether.

Temperatures above 75 degrees, sudden changes in temperature or light levels, and overwatering plants in heavy soil will cause unopened flower buds to fall off.

In addition to controlling the growing environment, greenhouse operators use growth regulators to increase stem branching and flower bud formation.

That's why the plants you see in florist shops and greenhouses have many short lateral branches loaded with flower buds. One to two flowers at the end of each stem is normal, but treated plants may have three to five.

State's economic outlook better for early 1991

Michigan's economic performance has stalled out over the past year, fluctuating within a narrow range of zero growth, University of Michigan Ann Arbor, economists report.

Things will get worse in the current quarter, but the state's economy will begin to expand early next year, and "we expect more favorable economic prospects to hold at least through the end of 1992," according to U-M economic researchers Joan P. Crary, George A. Fulton and Prof. Saul H. Hymans.

The forecast, compiled by the U-M Research Seminar in Quantitative Economics, was presented at the 38th annual Conference on the Economic Outlook.

Michigan will lose 31,400 jobs this quarter, reflecting the downturn in the national economy, according to the U-M economists. With 26,800 total jobs lost during the year, 1990 will be the first year since 1982 that the number of jobs declined in Michigan.

Manufacturing employment will be especially hard hit, accounting for about 30,000 lost jobs around the turn of the year, reflecting slow car sales and significant temporary layoffs of auto workers.

Jobs in manufacturing are expected to decline by 8.7 percent at an annual rate in this quarter and by 3.6 percent in the first quarter of 1991, according to Crary, Fulton and Hymans.

As the national economy begins to rebound midway through next year, vehicle production will return to more normal levels, and growth in manufacturing jobs in Michigan will turn positive by the second quarter of 1991 and increase for the rest of the year.

Total employment in the state will decline by 0.4 percent in 1991, slightly larger than the decline of 0.1 percent for 1990, "but nothing like the declines of 2 percent to 5 percent per year that occurred during 1980-82," they said.

Although Michigan will suffer from the national slowdown, the state's economy will rebound next year and grow through 1992, according to U-M forecast.

Unemployment in Michigan will increase from 7.6 percent in 1990 to 8.1 percent in 1991, before declining to 7.7 percent in 1992, according to the U-M economists.

An improving national economy, steady growth in the vehicle industry in 1992, and re-opening of a few auto plants are expected to boost employment by 1.5 percent that year.

Despite the weak employment outlook, personal income in the state is expected to continue to grow by 5 percent for 1991, unchanged from 1990.

"Although job losses are greater for 1991, fewer of them are in the higher-paid manufacturing sector," according to Crary, Fulton and Hymans. Personal income will rise by 6.1 percent for 1992, accelerated by growth in employment.

Inflation in the state, measured by the Detroit Consumer Price Index, is forecast to increase to 5.9 percent for 1991 because of the rise in oil prices, and real disposable income will decline by 1.1 percent. The inflation rate will drop back to 4.5 percent in 1992, as oil prices decline, and consumer purchasing power will increase by 1.5 percent for 1992.

State tax revenues are forecast to grow by 3.4 percent this fiscal year and by 6 percent in 1992, according to the U-M economists.

The above information was provided by the University of Michigan News and Information Services.

Mailing tips can ensure fast gift delivery

The hand addressing of Christmas cards and packages has become an ironclad tradition. Local U.S. Postal Service officials say that breaking that tradition by using typewritten addresses will improve service, particularly during this heavy holiday mailing season.

John M. Horne, general manager of the U.S. Postal Service Field Division, said, "I would like you to consider breaking the tradition this year. If you're a personal computer user, why not use your machine to print peeland-stick labels? A printed address, in the proper format, speeds all mail through our automated equipment.

"Labels are a real time-saver and allow you to spend more time on the sentiments inside," said Horne. "They are also far easier to read on red or green envelopes."

Horne doesn't want you to throw away those colorful envelopes, just put computer-printed or typed address labels on and break the hand-written address tradition.

If you don't use computer-printed labels, here are a few tips on hand addressing to improve the ability of USPS machines and people to read the addresses and speed holiday greetings through the mail.

■ Print the address.

■ Keep a uniform left margin; use all capital letters. Make sure they don't touch each other.

Eliminate all punctuation except the hyphen when you use ZIP+4 Codes.

- Make sure the city/ state/ ZIP Code line is at least one inch above the bottom edge. If you use address labels, place them one inch above the bottom edge.
- Spell out the city name, but use the two-letter abbreviation for states. Use a single space between words and between the state abbreviation and the ZIP Code.
- Do not use the name of a building in place of the street address. In rural addresses, the route number should precede the box number.
- Use the abbreviations AVE, ST, LN and RD for avenue, street, lane and road; and use the first letter for north, south, east and west.

'These tips are not just the holiday season," Horne said. "Proper addressing should be used on every piece of mail, every day of the year."

Heating tips assist in Gulf crisis

The average cost of home heating oil has shot up 43 percent since the end of the last heating season, primarily driven by the Persian Gulf crisis.

For those heating with oil and gas this winter, it's time to take some simple steps to conserve fuel and save money, according to AAA Michigan and Consumers

To reduce fuel consumption by 10 percent, have an oil furnace service annually. A service technician will replace filters, adjust air flows, remove dirt and soot, and clean ignitions and contact points to improve furnace efficiency.

A service call costs around $75, according to AAA. Consumer Power also recommends a furnace inspection, whether it's a forced-air or boiler heating system.

People who prefer to do the furnace winterizing themselves should follow the furnace maintenance instructions.

Other Consumer Power guidelines include:

- Clean and lubricate the blower fan.
- Inspect the belt for excessive wear.
- Clean or install a new filter and replace blower compartment door.
 - Clean the furnace humidifier.
 - Check air ducts and registers for any blockage.
 - Check for water leaks if you have a boiler furnace and piping system.

- Lubricate the circulator pump.

If the relief valve is opening frequently, call a qualified service contractor.

The state of the s

People should be alert for leaks in the venting system that may allow carbon monoxide to seep into the. house. The dangerous gas sometimes results in such symptoms as moisture on walls or windows, smarting of eyes, dizziness, weakness, repeated nausea or headaches.

If carbon monoxide is suspected, a qualified service contractor or Consumers Power should be called immediately for inspection.

To improve heating efficiency, AAA Michigan recommends a "retrofit" for furnaces that operate at least at 70 percent efficiency; better insulation; caulking and weatherstripping doors and windows; supplementing furnaces with wood-burning stoves and fireplaces.

To avoid home fires, take the following precautions:

- Wood-burning stoves, fireplaces and chimneys should be installed and inspected regularly by a service technician.
- Keep combustibles such as drapes, clothing and Christmas trees away from a stove or fireplace.
- Floors and walls around a heating source should be protected with noncombustible covering or hearth.
- Chimneys should be regularly swept for buildup and inspected for cracks by a professional.

INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP LIBRARY Switzerland comes alive for students

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN Clarkston News Staff Writer

Switzerland is a country known for its political neutrality, cheese and chocolate.

Students at Clarkston Elementary School discovered that information and more from Juerg and Rhonda Wismer of Vevey, Switzerland. The couple visited Carol Campbell's second-grade class Nov. 21 and gave a short presentation about life in their country.

Students saw pictures of the Swiss Alps, asked questions about the country, tasted chocolate and listened to the Wismers' accounts of life in Switzerland.

Natives of Switzerland speak four languages: French, German, Italian and Swiss Romansch, said Juerg.

Swiss Romansch is a form of Latin spoken in eastern Switzerland, and because the country borders Italy, France, Germany and Austria, the currency and products sold in stores must have four languages printed on them.

In school students learn the language from their region as well as the language spoken in the country that borders their area. As a third language, English is generally learned, Juerg said.

Juerg speaks a form of Swiss-German as his mother language, but it does not exist in written form. German is used as the written form of communication.

Swiss meals are different from meals in the United

"In Switzerland all students go home for lunch," Juerg said. "We have about two hours for lunch."

Only about seven McDonald's restaurants exist in all of Switzerland.

"We eat differently there," he explained. "We have no fast foods."

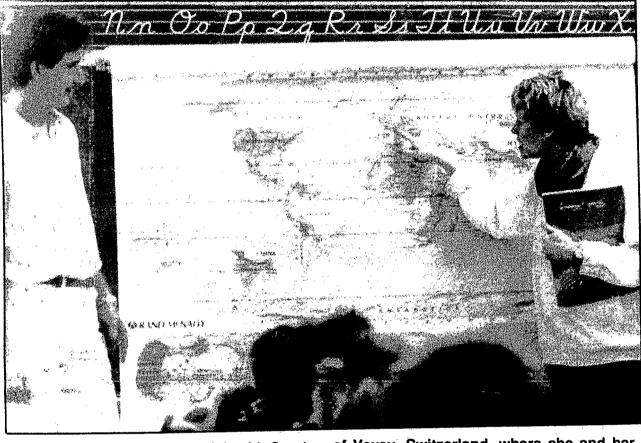

The students listened attentively to Juerg's story of how Christmas is celebrated in Switzerland.

In Switzerland, St. Nicholas Day on Dec. 6 heralds the beginning of the Christmas season.

Shoes are put out with a list of what you want for Christmas, and the next morning the list is gone. Apples and walnuts, or peanuts, are in the shoes," Juerg said.

The Christ child brings gifts at Christmas time instead of Santa, he said.

Christmas trees are fresh cut, and real candles are clipped to the tree, Rhonda said.

Rhonda, an American citizen, moved to Switzerland about 2,1/2 years ago after her Swiss-born husband took a job with the Nestle Company in food development. The two met in Pittsburgh about four years ago when Juerg was a chef and she was a sales representative.

The couple is visiting in the Clarkston area for the holidays. Rhonda's sister, is Sue Banworth, who teaches at Pine Knob. Sue's son, Dan, is in Carol Campbell's

"I like living in Switzerland, but I miss my family here," Rhonda said.

Microwave Plus

Sweet potatoes pack a nutritional bonanza

Betty Wagner

Holiday meals traditionally include sweet potatoes. And, according to the University of California, Berkeley, "Wellness Letter," December 1990 issue, they pack a nutritional bonanza.

A typical serving of four ounces contains 120 to 140 calories, but up to five times the recommended beta carotene (the compound the body turns into vitamin A), nearly half the daily recommendation of vitamin C, more potassium than an orange and about three grams of dietary

There are two types of sweet potatoes. The lightskinned version has pale flesh and a texture similar to white potatoes. They don't contain as much beta carotene or yellow pigment.

Darker colored sweet potatoes, often called Southern yams, are moister, sweeter, higher in beta carotene and turn bright orange when cooked.

Both varieties should be removed from the plastic carrying bag, stored in a well-ventilated, dry, cool spot (not the refrigerator), and used within a few weeks.

Both varieties should be cooked or baked in their skins to retain vitamins. Serve them plain, twice baked, as a casserole with juice, fruit and spices, as a pie filling, in quick breads or muffins, as a soup, or raw with a low-fat dip. Skip the brown sugar, butter and marshmallows, or use sparingly.

SWEET POTATO SOUP

2 pounds Southern variety sweet potatoes

1/4 teaspoon thyme

1/4 teaspoon curry 1 (14 1/2 ounce can) clear chicken broth 1 cup low-fat yogurt, plain or vanilla* 2 teaspoons cornstarch

1. Wash potatoes; prick skin with long-tined fork. Place in a circle on a microwavable rack set in the oven. Microwave at HIGH for 5 to 9 minutes per pound. Turn over after half the cooking time.

2. Wrap in a dish towel and let stand for 5 minutes.

3. When cool enough to handle, scoop out inside. Cut into pieces, place in a blender or food processor. Puree while adding chicken broth in a steady stream.

4. Put pureed potatoes into a 2-quart microwavable dish. Thin with more broth, water or low-fat milk, if desired.

5. Microwave at 70 percent (ROAST) until hot. This is a good time to use the temperature probe. Place the probe into the center of the bowl; set the microwave power level at 70 percent and the temperature probe to 150 degrees. Cover loosely with plastic wrap.

6. Mix cornstarch into yogurt. Fold into hot soup. Reheat at 70 percent (ROAST) to desired serving temperature, or use the temperature probe as above.

*For a tangy taste use plain yogurt; for a sweeter taste use vanilla yogurt.

SWEET POTATO PIE from "Microwaving Fruits and Vegetables," by Barbara Methven and Sara Jean Thoms, Microwave Cooking Library, Copyright 1981 by Cy DeCosse, Inc.

1 1/2 cups cooked, mashed sweet potatoes (cooked as in recipe for soup) 2/3 cup brown sugar

1 1/4 cup evaporated milk 1 tablespoon all-purpose flour

1 teaspoon cinnamon

1/2 teaspoon nutmeg 1/4 teaspoon ginger

1/8 teaspoon ground cloves

1/8 teaspoon salt

1 baked 9-inch pie shell

1. Blend all filling ingredients at low speed in a medium bowl.

2. Microwave at HIGH 3 minutes, stirring once. Reduce power to 50 percent (MEDIUM). Microwave 7 to 8 minutes, or until very hot and slightly thickened, stirring with whisk every 2 minutes.

3. Pour into prepared shell. Microwave on wax paper at 50 percent (MEDIUM) 10 to 13 minutes, or until set in center, rotating 1/4 turn every 3 minutes. Cool. Serve with whipped cream or ice cream.

Home-economist Betty Wagner resides in Independence Township. Her "Microwave Plus" cable-TV program appears on Independence-Clarkston Channel 65.

To control spending, keep record of money habits

Does your spending outpace your earnings? Do you often find yourself-running to the automated teller machine for some quick cash to cover a purchase?

Almost everyone needs to find ways to control spending. And, according to the Michigan Association of CPAs, this is an excellent time to begin pulling together your financial records and examining your spending habits.

Before you can begin to control spending, you need to know where your money goes. Where should you begin?

The first step is to identify all your fixed monthly expenses. Fixed expenses are those that remain pretty much the same from month to month — items such as your mortgage or rent payment, car or installment loan payments, insurance, alimony and child support. The amount you spend for these items is probably clearly registered in your mind — or at least in your checkbook.

Now move on to your variable expenses: those that vary from month to month. The variable expenses you pay for by check, such as your electric and telephone bills, can be easily identified.

Other expenses are more difficult to track, especially those for which you pay cash. Do you have any idea how much it costs to run your automobile including gas and repairs? Probably not.

How much do you spend dining out? Most families are amazed at how quickly this category can add up. What is your annual tab for gifts to others? If you're like most people, you probably can't answer questions like these because you don't keep track of your spending.

Identifying where your pocket money goes will require a bit of effort. You will want to get a small notebook or expense record that fits in your pocket or purse to keep a log of daily spending. Jot down everything you spend, regardless of whether you pay by cash, check or credit card.

It's easier if you identify your spending categories that work for you. Some examples are groceries, gifts, commuting costs, haircuts and manicures, clothes, newspapers and magazines.

Keep your categories narrow to develop a detailed picture. For example, rather than using a general category for clothes, itemize what you spend for your clothing, for your spouse's clothing and for your children's.

The daily exercise of recording the money you spend serves another purpose. It turns spending from an impulsive process into a more conscious one by connecting the act of spending money with the act of writing it down. You have a tendency to rethink a frivolous expense when you know you have to record it.

You will probably need to keep track of your expenses for three to six months to get a fairly accurate spending picture. A simple columnar pad or a home budget book from a stationery store will do fine. You can record all your fixed expenses and any variable items directly into your ledger as you pay them. At the end of each month, total the spending for each of the pocket money categories in your daily log and transfer these figures to your spending spreadsheet.

After a month or two, take some time to review your spreadsheet. You will start to see spending patterns emerge. Excessive spending will become easier to pinpoint. Start by determining the categories where you feel you are overspending and think about how you might trim these Could you use the library more instead of buying so many books and/ or magazines? How about planning ahead and making gift purchases when you see appropriate items on sale?

You may find that some expenses are more difficult to cut back on. Your dry cleaning bill may seem to be disproportionately high, but you may very well determine there's not much you can do about it. Look at your categories and judge what is right for you.

Once you are aware of your spending patterns, you can begin to make trade-offs. If you know your gift category is going to go through the ceiling in November and December, maybe you could brown bag your lunch for a while and at least party offset your holiday expenses. In other words, trimming one category can give you a little extra in another.

Now it's time to think about some financial goals. What kinds of things are important to you? Analyze your expenses to free up money for what matters most to you. Set goals for yourself and treat payments to these goals as fixed payments.

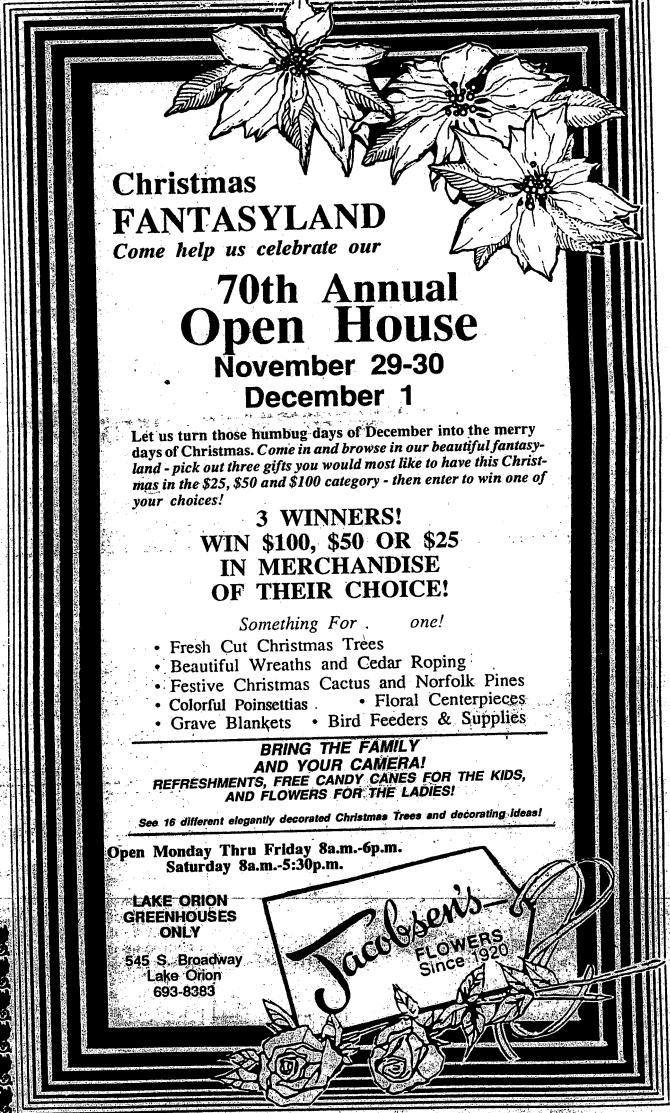

Want to spend a week at Club Med? Sacrifice some of the money you spend on dining out and deposit it in an account earmarked for vacation. Are you concerned about saving for your child's education? Make tuition savings a fixed expense and make a payment each month just as you do for your mortgage.

Control your spending, set financial goals and establish priorities and you will be on your way to reconciling your spending habits with your income.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gingell of Sparta, Tenn., announce the engagement of their daughter, Vickl Lynn, to Tracy Scott Flood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Flood of Davisburg. The bride-elect is a graduate of Oakland University, Rochester, and the prospective bridegroom is a graduate of the Lawrence Technological University, Southfield. A December wedding is planned.

Kent, Clark united in matrimony

Kathleen Kent and David G. Clark exchanged wedding vows Oct. 6, 1990, at Calvary Lutheran Church, Clarkston. The Rev. Robert Walters performed the 2:30 p.m. traditional ceremony before 150 people in the church, which was decorated with baskets of white gladiolas.

The bride is a 1982 Clarkston High School graduate and is front desk supervisor at the Trump Tag Mahal. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kent of Bronco Drive, Clarkston.

The bridegroom is a 1978 Waterford Township High School graduate and is self-employed in construction. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clark of Ridgetop, Waterford.

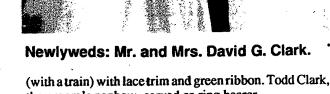

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a satin gown with a sweetheart-shaped Queen Anne neckline framed with pearls and sequins. The dress had long sleeves with appliques and cut-outs of Schiffli lace. The front skirt also featured appliques, while lace trimmed the cathedral train. The headpiece by Jon Bradley Couture collection was made of pearls and sequins with a waist-length veil and a blush netting in front.

She carried white carnations, yellow roses and baby's

Maid of honor Shari Kent, sister of the bride, carried a mixed floral arrangement in a wicker basket. Other attendants were Holly Bezerra, the bride's cousin; and Renee Ludlow, a friend of the bride.

All of the bride's attendants wore gowns of forest green with a velvet bodice and sweetheart neckline. The three-quarter-length velvet sleeves were trimmed in satin. The dresses also featured a dropped basque waistline and satin skirt with intermission length.

Casey Tankka, the groom's niece, served as the flower girl. She wore a white satin floor-length gown the groom's nephew, served as ring bearer.

Best man was Gary Clark, and other attendants were Mike Cohen and Jim White.

A reception for 150 guests was held at Heather Highlands Golf Course.

The couple took a wedding trip to St. Thomas, U.S. Virgin Islands. They now make their home in Atlantic City, N.J.

At college

Nicole Yvonne Dolsen has been admitted to Olivet College, Olivet, for the fall semester of this year.

A Clarkston High School graduate, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dolsen of Iroquois, Independence Township. She is studying pre-veterinary medicine.

Curtis Haremza of Clarkston is to play Amphitryon in the Theatre Siena production of "Amphitryon 38" at Siena Heights College in Adrian.

Haremza is the son of Donald and Darlene Haremza. This is Haremza's sixth appearance at the college. He has also performed in "Arkansaw Bear," "Blithe Spirit," "The Lark," "Christ the Concrete City," and "Playboy of the Western World."

Grads

D'Arcy A. Gonzales and Debra K. Gudakunst are among the 108 students who completed degrees during the summer at Siena Heights College, Adrian.

Gonzales, a student at the Southfield Center, earned a bachelor of arts degree in business administration.

Gudakunst, also a student at the Southfield Center, earned a bachelor of applied science degree in allied health: nursing.

Club notes

The member of Aid Association for Lutherans Branch 1827 based at St. Trinity Lutheran Church in Clarkston have been busy this summer and fall.

In August, the eighth annual AAL-St. Trinity Golf Benefit was held hosting 40 golfers. The tournament uses a "scrambles" format followed by hot dogs, drinks and desserts.

In addition to a great social event, the benefit raised $200 which was used to benefit this year's activity: Care House.

In September, the remainder of the Care House benefit took place. Care House is a non-profit agency that counsels abused children. The agency needed larger housing, so it purchased a large home in Pontiac as its new office/counseling center.

The branch spent one day cleaning, mowing, furniture arranging and doing some demolition work on the house. Several other days were spent constructing a handicap ramp that was needed to meet city code, as well as service on a handicapped counselor. Additionally, some money was donated to this worthwhile activity.

The pace didn't let up. In November, a roller skating benefit was arranged to assist Joette Kovacik, a 21-year-old who needs financial assistance for a bone marrow transplant. AAL money is being used to fund the event and provide support in meeting the $165,000 operation cost. About 150 people attended the event, and about $1,200 to $1,500 was raised.

Honors

Gregory Vaughn graduated summa cum laude with a 4.0 grade point average in the 1990 fall commencement exercises at Michigan Technological University, Houghton.

He obtained an associate's in applied science degree in civil engineering technology and a bachelor of science degree in surveying.

Greg graduated from Clarkston High School in 1982 and served four years in the U.S. Army as a surveyor, leaving as a sergeant. He is the son of Gentry and Charlotte Vaughn of Kentucky and formerly of Clarkston

Greg is also a member of Phi Kappa Phi National Honor Society, Tau Omega Pi Engineering Technician Honor Society, Michigan Society of Registered Land Surveyors and the American Congress on Surveying and Mapping.

Obituaries

Richard L. D'Anna

Richard L. D'Anna, 43, of Ferndale and formerly of Clarkston died Nov. 24, 1990. He owned and operated Color Detroit, Inc., Ferndale.

Mr. D'Anna is survived by his children, Camille, Vincent and Elliot, all of Clarkston; mother, M. Josephine D'Anna of Farmington Hills; brother, Peter Thomas D'Anna of Novi; sisters, Kay Krzysik of Wixom and Cindy Brown of Walled Lake; and his fiance, Susan Baehr of Detroit.

The funeral was set for 11 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 28, at the Lewis E. Wint and Son TRUST 100 Funeral Home, Clarkston, with the Rev. Daniel Homan officiating. Burial was scheduled for Lakeview Cemetery, Independence Township.

Memorial tributes may be made to the American Diabetes Foundation.

Bernice E. DeClercq

Bernice E. DeClercq, 88, of Fort Myers, Fla., died Nov. 12, 1990. She was born and raised in the Clarkston area, the daughter of Theodore and Elsie Stoddard, who resided on White Lake Road.

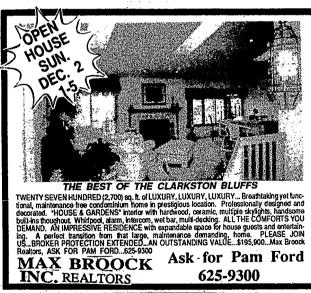

She graduated from Clarkston High School in 1920—the only member of that class. After attending Ferris Institute to obtain a teacher's certificate, she taught grades first through fifth in the Waterford school system until her marriage to J. Lionel Waterbury, also of Clarkston.

After residing in Pontiac for a short time, she and Lionel returned to Clarkston and raised three children. In 1936, they purchased a home on Dixic Highway, Springfield Township, only a short distance from the old Waterbury Dairy Farm, where Lionel was born and raised.

Widowed in 1955, Bernice married Leopold L. DeClercq, a long time Springfield Township resident, in 1960. They moved to Fort Myers shortly after Leo's retirement from Pontiac Motors.

Mrs. DeClercq is survived by her husband, Leopold of Fort Myers; son, James L. Waterbury of Troy; daughters, Elaine A. Wells of Davisburg and Carolyn E. McAboy of Bay City; seven grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Nov. 16 from the Chapel of Memorial Gardens Funeral Home, with the Rev. James R. Balfour officiating. Burial followed in Memorial Gardens Cemetery.

Francis A. Fisher

Francis A. Fisher (Frank), 87, of Waterford died Nov. 19, 1990. He was a member of Our Lady of the Lakes Catholic Church, Waterford, and was retired as vice president from Detroit Bank and Trust (Comerica).

Mr. Fisher was preceded in death by his wife, Charlotte.

He is survived by his sons, Richard of Auburn Hills and Allan of Clarkston; and grandchildren, Michael, Mark, Suzanne, Kristen, Jeffery, Randy and Michelle.

The funeral was Nov. 23 at Our Lady of the Lakes Catholic Church, with the Rev. Leo Broderick officiating. Burial was at Ottawa Park Cemetery, Independence Township. Memorial tributes may be made to the Alzheimer's Disease.

Arrangements were made by the Lewis E. Wint and Son TRUST 100 Funeral Home, Clarkston.

Thomas J. Kenneth

Thomas J. Kenneth, 59, of Clarkston died Nov. 25, 1990. He was retired from Pontiac Motors. Mr. Kenneth was a member and past worshipful master of Cedar Lodge #60 F&AM and a member and past worthy patron of Joseph C. Bird Chapter #294 O.E.S., both of Clarkston.

Mr. Kenneth is survived by his wife, Norma; children, Michael in the U.S. Air Force, Linda Chase of Pontiac, Richard of Pontiac and James of Wyoming, Mich.; stepchildren, Suzanne Bauer of Texas, Lynn Dilks of New York, Kaye Marshall of Fenton and Gayle Mohler of Lake Angelus; and grandchildren, Jessica, Amanda, Bradley, Dawn, Jeannine, Theresa, John, Timothy and Darla

The funeral was set for 11 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 29, at the Lewis E. Wint and Son TRUST 100 Funeral Home, Clarkston, with the Rev. Douglas R. Trebilcock. Burial was scheduled for Christian Memorial Cemetery.

Memorial tributes may be made to Hospice of Florida.

Chris Nicholas

Chris Nicholas, 73, of Clarkston died Nov. 22, 1990. He was a member of St. George Greek Orthodox Church of Bloomfield Hills. Mr. Nicholas owned and operated several restaurants in the area, including: Wayside Grill, Tally-Ho, and most recently City Life & Alexander's, Inc. He was a member of the V.F.W. and Semendre Brotherhood.

Mr. Nicholas survived by his wife, Nia; children, Paul and Lou of Clarkston; sisters, Egnate Karagides of Greece and Eva McDonald of Grand Blanc; brothers, Tom Nicholas of Highland, Leroy Nicholas of South Carolina and Gus Nicholas of Brighton; and several other family members and friends.

The funeral was set for Monday, Nov. 26, at St. George Greek Orthodox Church, Bloomfield Hills. Burial was to follow at Ottawa Park Cemetery, Independence Township. Arrangements were made by the Lewis E. Wint and Son TRUST 100 Funeral Home, Clarkston.

Memorial tributes may be made to the Semendre Brotherhood.

Grace E. Rahja

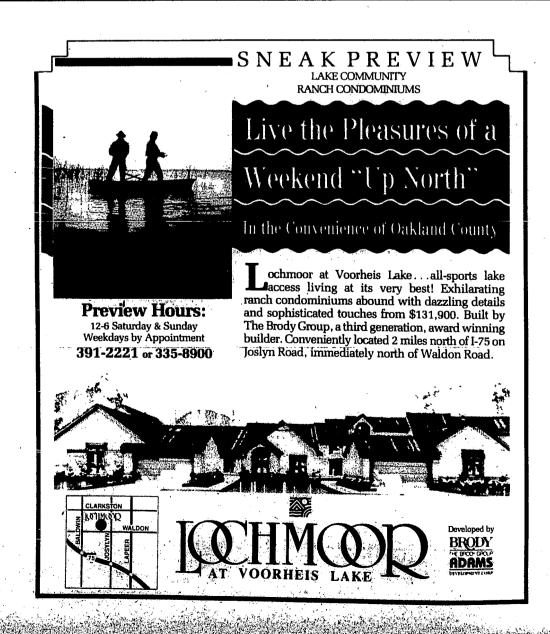

Grace E. Rahja, 68, of Clarkston died Nov. 23, 1990. She was a member of Shepherd Fellowship Church, Waterford, and was a retired nurse from Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital.

Mrs. Rahja was preceded in death by her husband, Edward M., and her grandson, Michael.

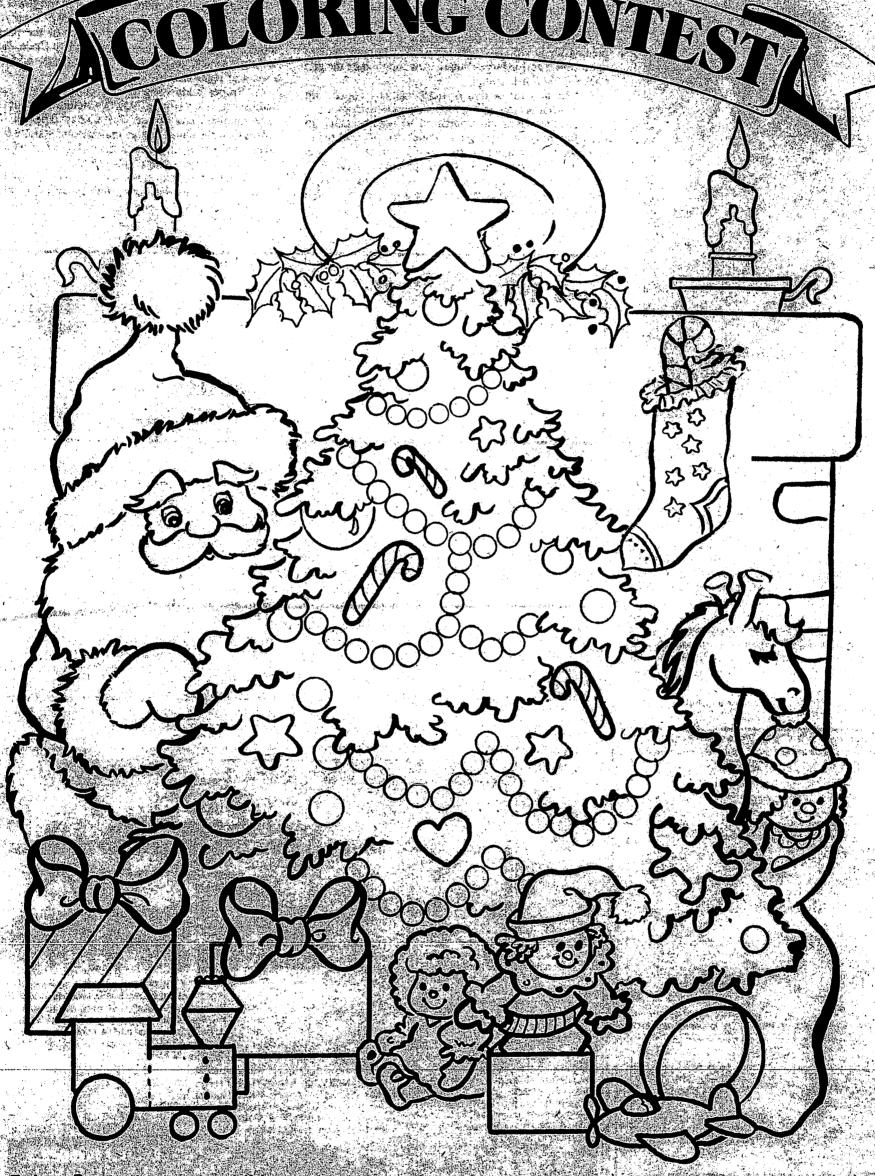

She is survived by her children, Gary and Pat Lessel of Clarkston, Gary and Marti Bramble of Drayton Plains, Martin and Sally Rahja of Waterford and Edward Rahja of Clarkston; grandchildren, Debbie, Donna, Angie, Erik, Jaki, Andrea, Mary and Heather; and great-grandson, Ryan.

The funeral was Monday, Nov. 26, at the Lewis E. Wint and Son TRUST 100 Funeral Home, Clarkston. Burial followed at Ottawa Park Cemetery.

"BIG GIRLS Don't Cry," but Sarah might — if she doesn't find a home before the holidays.

Home for holiday

This big lady wants a home for the holidays. Sarah is a 60-pound German shepherd and Labrador retriever mix with black and tan coloring.

Though she isn't housebroken at age 2, a shelter worker says she shouldn't be too difficult to train. She is also good with children of all ages.

The $80 adoption fee includes spaying.

To adopt Sarah visit, the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Road, Auburn Hills, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Put your gift under proper wraps

Wrap your holiday gift as pretty as you please, but when preparing it for mailing, aim for utility.

John M. Horne, field division general manager/ postmaster, Detroit Division, advises that holiday mailers use a sturdy carton large enough to accommodate the gift package plus cushioning.

'Be sure to remove or mark out any conflicting address information on the carton," cautions Horne.

"Brown paper and twine cord are not necessary. In fact, they may be detrimental. Paper can rip, and twine can become entangled in processing equipment."

It is important to seal your parcel securely. The Postal Service recommends either pressure-sensitive tape, nylon-reinforced craft paper tape or glass-reinforced pressure sensitive tape.

The recipient's address belongs in the lower right portion of the package on one side only. Your return address in the upper left hand corner of the package should be complete with your proper ZIP Code. Before sealing the package, it is a good idea to put the address on a sheet of paper inside.

"Proper addressing means complete and legible addressing," says Horne. "Always include apartment and suite numbers and correct ZIP Codes. The ZIP Code belongs on the same line as the city and state, which is where our sorting clerks look for it. To ensure legibility, print clearly with smudge-proof ink."

Good strong packages with complete, legible addresses help ensure that your gifts will arrive quickly and in good shape, says Horne.

... My Way

Not ready to die for cheaper gas

Matthew Sailor

Today I was shopping in Royal Oak and I saw a Tshirt that said "L is for Lies," and it had a picture of George Bush standing in front of a huge dollar bill. Have you ever seen anything that describes the policy of our country so accurately?

The stated purpose of our occupation of Saudi Arabia is to free Kuwait, but doesn't it make you wonder why we aren't exerting as much effort to liberate Palestine, Northern Ireland, Rwanda, Liberia, South Africa or Lithuania, to name a few? I think maybe it's because none of these countries are supplying us with cheap oil.

It's sort of sad how much big business dictates how we run our government. We can't pass any real clean air bills because it would hurt the auto industry, and we can't make any large disarmament treaties because that would cripple the weapons industry, and now we're most likely going to kill thousands of people because we want cheaper anyway. We live in the most militant country in the world. Someone steps on our toes and were screaming for blood, rekindling our "just nuke 'em" mentality. To make matters worse we are lead by a president who exterminates or captures any petty dictator who bad mouths him - for example, Noriega.

Of course not that many people are going to object

My birthday is right around the corner, and this year I'm going to be 18. With becoming 18 one receives many privileges, among them the ability to be drafted. The way my luck goes we'll probably go to war and I'll get the call.

Now, I'm sorry, but chasing lunatics around the desert is not my idea of a great way to celebrate my birthday. Sure I'm upset about gas prices, but it's nothing that I'd die for. I don't know what the answer is, but we've come this far waiting for sanctions to work, couldn't we wait a little bit longer? Saddam Hussein has already pretty much reduced Kuwait to a pile of smoking rubble; now how many lives is that worth?

Kitchen, dining areas improved at Dairy Queen

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Staff Writer

New owners have made a few cosmetic changes to the Clarkston Dairy Queen since they took over last September.

According to Blaine Aldrich, administrative supervisor, the year-round business has improved its dining and on the menu are to be reduced in price to better compare with competitors. He added that the cake program will remain one of the store's primary services.

Aldrich, a resident of Springfield Township, has one general goal for the Dairy Queen.

"Our main goal is to give Clarkston a good alternative to the standard fast food restaurants in the area," he said.

Aldrich said the Dairy Queen's location is prime for business.

"We're in a great spot," he said. "I'm looking forward to the expansion of M-15. There's so much visual growth around us, I don't see how we can miss."

kitchen areas. The changes were instituted by the Dairy Queen's new owners, Henry Manuel and Russell Doeringer

Besides the interior alterations, Aldrich said the Dairy Queen, on Ortonville Road, Independence Township, will be adding a few items to its revamped menu.

These items include chicken strips and fried mushrooms.

Holiday party Dec. 8

Though the annual library holiday party is free, tickets are mandatory.

Sponsored by the Independence Township Library, the children's party is set for 2-3:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 8, at the Church of the Resurrection, Clarkston, Road.

Though admission is free, space is limited, so tickets must be picked up in advance from the library, said Ann Rose, who is in charge of children's services at the library on Clarkston Road.

Children will be treated to a performance by storyteller Marilyn O'Connor Miller, photographs of themselves with Santa, refreshments and gifts.

The party is targeted at 3- to 8-year-olds and is presented with the help of donations from the Clarkston Area Optimist Club, Clarkston Rotary Club and Clarkston Area Jaycees — as well as high school volunteers.

For more information, call 625-2212.

BLAINE Aldrich and manager Marcia Millis, a Dairy Queen employee of 13 years, are looking forward to increase husiness at the Clarkston Dairy Queen on Ortonville Road. Since ownership changed hands in September, several changes have been implemented.

WHO IS ON THE LORD'S side? To the Churches: Thus saith the Lord, Woe unto you shepherds, that have no right to take to you My words, seeing you hate correction and put My words behind you, for you have taken away the key of knowledge! You entered not in yourselves, and they that were entering in you hindered. You have created an easy gospel and have perverted "My power of salvation," destroying the people by allow-ing them to remain in their sin and rebellion. This is not of Mel Vengeance is mine and I will repay and cast you behind My back forever, Reverend, Priest, Pastor, Chaplain, Deacon, Rabbi, Bishop, Overseer, you who love titles and praises of men and hate My Word to do it! am against you! You have become corrupt, vain in your own wisdom - hating Christ and His Word. !!!LX47-2*

Kids send cookies, letters to troops

"OPERATION COOKIE," cookies maile soos service people in the Middle East, nets more than 75 dozen cookies from students at Clarkston Elementary School. Students from

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN Clarkston News Staff Writer

"Operation Cookie" means service people in the Middle East will taste a little home baking from the Clarkston area.

Students in Keith Conklin's three fifth-grade reading classes at Clarkston Elementary packaged 75 boxes filled with a dozen or more cookies. Conklin has about 86 students in those three classes.

Also packed inside each box is a letter, a holiday card made by a student, and a stamped post card with the student's name and address printed on it — just in case the service man or woman might want to write back.

Conklin said he read about "Operation Cookie" in an area newspaper and presented the idea to the students the next day — was Thursday, Nov. 15. By Tuesday, Nov. 20, the boxes were packaged and ready for delivery to Express Postal Center in Waterford Township.

"Express Center is shipping these at cost," Conklin said. "All this began because one mother was interested in cookie recipes that would ship well to her son stationed in the Middle East."

According to the area newspaper, the mother put a message on Prodigy, a computer service that spans the country asking for the recipes, which prompted the response to mail cookies to the troops.

Below is a sampling of the fifth-graders' letters, now on their way to the Middle East.

Dear Army Man Or Woman,
I bet you miss your family and your mom's cooking.
That is why we are sending you cookies so you don't have to just eat other disgusting food. Well, you maybe want to
