Palace owner buys Pine Knob Theater

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Pine Knob Music Theater has new owners.

Due to environmental difficulties facing the proposed Palace Gardens, the owners of the Palace of Auburn Hills purchased Pine Knob Music Theater last week.

Arena Associates, owner of the Palace, officially purchased the 16,000-seat facility Nov. 29 for an undisclosed amount of money. The company comprises Detroit Pistons owner William Davidson, David Hermelin and Robert Sosnick.

Formerly, the 18-year-old music theater was owned by the Nederlander Corp., the possessor of 32 amphitheaters around the United States.

According to Tom Wilson, president of the Palace and chief executive officer of the Pistons, the Palace Gardens proposal had run into various problems regarding "shifting" wetlands. Apparently whenever it rains, the surrounding streams and low lying area would divert water to different areas.

However, Wilson is pleased with the back-up plan — the acquisition of Pine Knob.

"The purchase of Pine Knob seemed to be the perfect solution," Wilson said. "All the ideas we had planned for the Gardens can now go toward our Pine Knob (See OWNERS, next page)

Winter storm wreaks havoc

Monday's snow and rain storm caused havoc with area roadways. Several traffic mishaps resulted from the slick conditions.

In Independence Township, Sgt. Joe Quisenberry of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department said deputies reported 50 cases of cars running off the road. About 10 "fender benders" were also reported in the township.

Despite the condition of the roads, no serious injuries were reported.

"For as bad as the weather was on Monday, it really wasn't that bad in terms of accidents," Quisenberry said.

Quisenberry said that Clarkston Road, M-15 and I-75 were all temporarily closed Monday, so wreckers could pull motorists out of ditches.

According to records at the Pontiac State Police Post, 11 accidents were reported along the I-75 expressway in Oakland County.

Goodfellows' 50th sale this weekend

Goodfellows from the Independence Township Fire Department and Clarkston Rotary Club will be out in force again this year for the sale of Goodfellow Papers.

All proceeds from the sale of the newspapers go toward the purchase of shoes for the less fortunate.

Any leftover money will be donated to Light-house North at 5331 Maybee Road, Independence Township.

This is the 50th year of the Goodfellows' Paper.

The volunteers will be posted at several area locations 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Dec. 7 and 8.

ston area with four inches of slush. The winter storm slowed commuter traffic by hours in some instances.

New Knob owners plan $5 million improvements

facility."

These changes include pouring about $5 million into enhancements. Physical improvements include expanded parking facilities, increasing the number of restrooms and concession stands, installing giant video screens for lawn patrons, and expanding box office facilities.

Besides adding physical aesthetics, Wilson said more than 70 additional shows will be added to Pine Knob's schedule.

"Pine Knob had 180 events last year, but we plan on offering nearly 250 events in 1991," Wilson said. "We'll have something for everyone in the way of music, comedy and theater."

He added that ticket and concession prices will not be raised in an attempt to generate more revenue.

Wilson said that many of the Palace's personnel will be transferred to Pine Knob. He said the ticket vendors, upper management and site security will be many of the same people employed at the Palace.

Historically, Pine Knob has been the annual provider of hundreds of summer jobs for college students, but the transfer of personnel will probably cut down on the overall number.

With the addition of 70 more acts, Pine Knob may be faced with further traffic problems, especially along Sashabaw Road. But Wilson said the facility's roadways will be able to handle the congestion.

"We've talked to the township (Independence), and they assured us that a rise in the total number of shows wouldn't have an adverse affect on the area," he said.

Wilson added that engineers will soon be looking at ways to improve the coming and going of traffic through existing and proposed access routes.

Car-train collision injures man, woman

A 22-year-old Clarkston area woman sustained a broken arm after she slammed into the side of a train in Pontiac.

About 2:30 a.m. Nov. 22, Mary Devereaux collided with a train on Walton Boulevard. According to reports at the Pontiac Police Department, the woman disregarded the warning flashers and drove into the side of an oncoming train. The front end of the car was demolished in the collision.

Devereaux's passenger Steven Ford, 28, of Waterford Township, received cuts and scrapes in the accident.

Both people were treated at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital and released the same day. The report indicates that Devereaux was the only person wearing a seat belt at the time of the crash.

Terry Morris, accident investigator with the Pontiac Police Department, said that alcohol played a factor in the driver's decision to cross the tracks.

Devereaux was issued a ticket for failing to obey a crossing signal.

Correction

Last week's photo inquiry should have said that Lori Stenborg is a student at Oakland Community College-Auburn Hills.

Man, 20, captured after police chase

A 20-year-old Waterford Township man was arrested Nov. 29 after eluding police in a car chase through Independence Township.

According to the Oakland County Sheriff's report, the suspect refused to pull off the road for a signaling patrol car Thursday evening. He was pursued to a dead-end road on Greenview Street, near Clarkston Road, where he fled his vehicle.

Nearly three hours later, a deputy located the man at a party store near Oakhill and Sashabaw roads. The man was taken into custody and charged with fleeing and eluding an officer and driving on a suspended license.

60 march for right to free television viewing

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

About 60 protesters withstood the cold and wind Dec. 1 and 2 in hopes of moving toward a better life in their mobile home park.

Bearing bold signs and bundled in warm winter coats on Saturday, they marched along Dixie Highway, Springfield Township, in protest against a monthly fee to watch television.

The fee was the major complaint of the residents — many of whom are retirees — but it was merely at the top of the list of their problems with mobile home park living.

Residents who live in Springfield Estates Mobile Home Park have only one way to view television — through cable hook-up. Before 1985 when the cable rights were sold to Grand Blanc Cable, residents viewed television by a power antenna system, according to Edward Washburn, who led Saturday's protest.

Mobile home television viewers now must pay $14.95 per month to watch their sets — even for "free" channels, such as CBS, NBC and ABC.

Washburn said he moved into Springfield Mobile Home Estates on Dixie Highway, Springfield Township, in 1985 and paid a $30 hook-up fee for the power antenna system.

Soon after, Grand Blanc Cable connected cable to the mobile home park, and in 1988 North Oakland Cablevision, Inc., of Springfield Township purchased the cable rights.

Without cable, reception for ABC, NBC, CBS and public broadcasting are poor, Washburn said.

"Rabbit ears don't work because there's too much metal," he said. "Residents who live in a home or a mobile home park should have the right to watch free air waves."

In addition, a Springfield Township ordinance prohibits outside antennas in mobile home parks.

Gary Voelker, president of North Oakland Cablevision, said the monthly $14.95 fee covers basic service from the cable company, which includes 41 channels.

That basic service cost is what any resident in a mobile home, single home or apartment would pay per month for cable service, said Voelker.

"It's the least expensive cable service in all of Oakland County," he said.

Even so, some mobile home park residents would like their power antenna back.

Washburn said many people supported him when he organized the protest.

"People would stop and say, 'go for it — we're behind you,'" he said.

PROTESTERS march in front of Springfield Estates Mobile Home Park on Dixie Highway Saturday, Dec. 1. They want to view free TV channels without paying a cable company. Park owners removed power antenna privileges in 1985 and replaced regular TV viewing in the mobile home park with cable television. Rising costs for cable TV viewing, coupled with few rights for mobile home owners, prompted the protest.

Washburn and many other park residents are retired and living on fixed incomes. They enjoy watching television, he said.

While television is a major point of contention, some residents also were concerned with other aspects of mobile home park living, such as the increasing cost of renting the lot on which a mobile home sits.

Clarence Cook of Macomb County joined the protesters Saturday. He serves as vice-president of the Mobile Home Owners Legislative Association for the State of Michigan.

With the large number of mobile homeowners in the state, legislation is needed, said Cook.

"We have to do something — there are no laws (protecting mobile home owners)," Cook said. "We hope the new governor and a regulatory agency will be able to do something to help."

In May 1989, a Michigan Mobile Home Commission was formed. Prior to that, mobile home owners were reluctant to file complaints against the owners of mobile home parks because they feared reprisal, Washburn said.

Tom Magna, general manager of Springfield Estates Mobile Home Park, did not return a phone call placed with his answering service.

MDOT tackles congestion around I-75 corridor

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

With traffic growing on Interstate 75, the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) is looking for ways to alleviate congestion.

Specifically, MDOT is considering a 12-mile stretch that includes parts of Independence and Springfield townships.

The 12-mile "corridor" extends from M-24 in Auburn Hills to Dixie Highway in Springfield Township.

On Nov. 28, MDOT representatives met with the public at Pine Knob Elementary. Two forums were held during the day, but less than 10 people attended MDOT's orientation.

The orientation was called to explain a study being conducted by the Schimpeler Corradino Associates, a consulting firm based in Louisville. The study will measure the impact of development along the corridor. It will provide MDOT with information on which to plan possible changes to the highway system.

According to Ted Stone, an engineer with Schimpeler-Corradino, the study will be in the form of a seven-step process. The stages include: orientation, alternative development, benefits and impacts of those alternatives, the gathering of public input, creation of an implementation plan, land use decision process and the establishment of financing.

Stone emphasized that continual communication is vital to the project. Progress reports, in the form of public hearings, are planned for February, May and the summer months.

"Besides these hearings, we plan on communicating with developers, officials and township residents," Stone said. "Input will be one of the biggest tools in our study."

Stone said his firm welcomes recommendations on improving local roadways near the expressway.

"Besides the corridor, we're looking at improvements (to) local roads that can supplement the state trunkline system."

Youngsters gather clothing for needy

A second-grade class at Clarkston Elementary is helping the needy this Christmas season.

Spurred by 7-year-old Derek Weddle, Carol Campbell's class designed posters urging the school's students to donate mittens, hats and socks to the needy. This is the second consecutive year that Weddle's homeroom has participated in a clothing drive.

Weddle said his class and Boy Scout troop collected 90 articles of clothing last year. He intends to donate the clothing to the needy, through WLLZ-radio's "Toys for Kids" program.

Campbell said that her class has really gotten into the spirit of the season.

"They had a good time making posters for the drive," she said. "But they're really looking forward to helping other people less fortunate."

Donated clothing can be dropped off at the elementary school's main office. The school urges that the clothing be either new or recently washed.

—By Curt McAllister

"Besides the corridor, we're looking at improvements (to) local roads that can supplement the state trunkline system," he said.

George White, principal at Pine Knob Elementary, said growing development around his school is saturating an already busy Sashabaw Road.

"As I look at what's compounded around this area in terms of new apartment buildings and homes, we're at the point where we're almost 'people-locked,'" he said.

A draft of the study is expected to be available within a month. The project's final report for traffic improvement alternatives will be delivered within 11 months.

Planners say yes to Country Club of the North

Project could bring $8 million annual tax revenue to Independence Township

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

An 800-acre golf course and housing development received another in a long line of approvals Nov. 29.

Country Club of the North, which straddles the Independence-Orion Township border, could bring more than $8 million in annual tax revenue to the township, if approved.

After an hour-long hearing and a 2 1/2-hour discussion, the township planning commission voted 6-0 to recommend rezoning the parcel to the township board, which has the final say in rezonings. Richard Oppmann was absent. Orion Township officials also must approve the plans.

Currently zoned rural residential, the planning commission recommended a rezoning to planned unit development (PRD). A PRD is a rezoning tied to a specific plan for a residential development larger than 160 acres. This type of zoning calls for at least 20 percent of its land to remain "open space" with a limit of one single-family residential unit per gross acre.

Rural residential zoning requires a three-acre minimum lot size.

Slated for the northeast corner of Clintonville and Waldon roads, the overall project would use 625 acres in Independence Township.

According to David Jensen, the planner in charge of the project, the development would include a 36-hole golf course surrounded by several "villages." Jensen said the number of homes in the entire development is uncertain, but his proposed limit stands at 600.

The Colorado-based planner said the total project

"I agree that this project could be a gem to the community, but gems have sharp edges, and I'd hate to see the people of this township bruised. We have to work together to make sure that it's done correctly."

Daniel Travis

would be worth $153 million upon completion and would take nearly 12 years to construct.

He estimates the average cost of each detached, single-family housing unit to be about $550,000.

Jensen said that 55 percent of the natural site — comprised of woods, wetlands and existing farmland — would be retained in some fashion.

Jensen estimates that Independence Township would collect over $8 million in annual tax revenues from the sources within the development. About $5.5 million of the $8 million would go toward the Clarkston schools.

However, the schools would not be adversely affected by the added number of homes. According to township planning consultant Richard Carlisle, Clarkston school officials said the added development would only generate between 65 and 75 school-age children.

One of Carlisle's few concerns was the future of an old homestead on the property. The house represents 150 years of farming occupation on the land.

Speaking on behalf of the township home preservation committee, Clerk Joan McCrary urged the planning commission and the project planner to look into preserving the structure.

"This building provides a vital component of heritage within the township, and it's something the township should look into saving," McCrary said.

The project planner and the planning commission said they would investigate the relocation of the building and the possible creation of a roadside park for it.

The project didn't go without some public criticism, however. During the public hearing segment of the meeting, three residents from the Ranch Estates development questioned the planners' plan for buffering.

Ranch Estates, off Clarkston Road, abuts the northern tip of the proposed development.

"I'm impressed with the project at hand," said Ranch Estates resident Kevin DuBois. "However, there tends to be a lack of sensitivity along the northern point of the project. I would like some type of natural buffering so the golf course isn't in our backyards."

The commissioners were pleased with the project and with the tax revenue it's sure to generate, but they admitted a lot of details had to be ironed out.

"I agree that this project could be a gem to the community, but gems have sharp edges, and I'd hate to see the people of this township bruised," said commission member Daniel Travis. "We have to work together to make sure that it's done correctly."

A finalized plan smoothing technicalities such as interior road widths, setbacks and natural buffer designs will come before the planning commission at a later date.

The rezoning request will then go before the township board for final approval.

Family posts yellow ribbon for son-in-law

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A yellow ribbon at the Hammett residence announces concern for a sailor in the Persian Gulf.

Truman and Carol Hammett of Whipple Lake Road, Independence Township, posted the yellow ribbon in mid-November for their son-in-law, Joe Quirk. The ribbon symbolizes their hope for his safe return, they said.

Quirk, married to 1979 Clarkston High graduate Karen Hammett, is an ensign in the U.S. Navy.

Karen Hammett-Quirk is also in the Navy. She holds the rank of first-class petty officer. Her career in the Navy

"Not knowing when Joe will be home has made her life a little hectic, but she's a strong person."

Carol Hammett

has resulted in a bevy of service-related medals as well as being named 1989 Enlisted Person of the Year.

The pair own a home near the naval base in Norfolk, Virginia.

According to Carol Hammett, Quirk had just finished his officer's training when project Desert Shield was initiated by President George Bush. He is currently residing on the U.S.S. Independence, one of many battle ships called to action in the Persian Gulf.

The Quirks, parents of a 2-year-old son, are expecting another child in February. However, the call to duty may keep the pair apart during the birth of their second child.

"It's been pretty tough on Karen," Carol said. "Not knowing when Joe will be home has made her life a little hectic, but she's a strong person."

Through letters to his wife and the Hammetts, Carol learned that life on battle ship is a cramped one.

"In his last letter, he said he was sharing a cabin with six other sailors," Carol said. "But they all have different shifts so someone's always sleeping. He said the silence is making him a little stir-crazy."

"For us, the thought of him not being home, safe with Karen, is making us a little crazy," Carol added. "We want this affair to get over as soon as possible so all of our service people can come home to their loved ones."

TRUMAN Hammett (left) and his wife, Carol, have displayed a yellow ribbon in front of their home for their son-in-law in the Persian Gulf. The ribbon symbolizes the couple's hope of a safe return for all U.S. service people.

Opinions

Oh, tannenbaum

Julie Campe

This holiday season is like no other that I have known. For the first time in my life, I am completely organized. All but two gifts are purchased, and nearly all are wrapped. What's wrong with me?

I suspect The Thinker, alias, Mr. Orderly, has been giving me subliminal messages — perhaps when I'm sleeping — maybe when I'm awake.

Though I'm usually frantic before the holidays, the wild rush through malls just two days before Christmas is enjoyable — a shot of adrenalin helps in jostling through frenzied crowds. Afterward, a feeling of accomplishment pervades for making it through long lines with all limbs intact. It's only at home later that the battle wounds make themselves known: swollen feet, sore back from carrying bulky packages, bruised ribs from fighting through mobs.

I'll have none of that this year, and I have The Thinker to thank.

It all began with Labor Day.

As a child, The Thinker was the most holiday-oriented. I am told his parents made rules especially for him: No Christmas music before Halloween (they relented when he repeatedly broke the "No Christmas music before Thanksgiving" rule); Don't wake up your parents before 5 a.m. on Christmas Day; Play outside as long as you want on Christmas Eve (I can imagine his parents pushing him out the door).

When The Thinker and I married, I had no idea such rules were necessary. No one — not even his sisters — had warned me.

I thought it was neat that he started thinking about St. Patrick's Day in January and about Halloween in August. He was always in some sort of holiday mood.

Since The Thinker is always listening to music of some kind, I barely noticed when he pulled out Handel's "Messiah" the day after Labor Day this year. Cleverly, he eased into other Christmas music, using Pachelbel as a transition, followed by George Winston's version of Pachelbel's Cannon and then flooding the air with Christmas music of nearly every style and language.

Soon an internal urgency began pushing, prodding, pulling me to FINISH CHRISTMAS SHOPPING.

But I haven't even started, I thought, when I finally consciously noticed this push.

Ah, but I had begun. My list was made and checked twice, and a few of the gifts were already purchased and stacked in a corner of my bedroom — safe from The Thinker, who doesn't venture to that side of the room, for fear of getting lost or suffocating.

According to my internal clock, which was months off by then, it was time to bake Christmas cookies.

I hummed "We Wish You a Merry Christmas" as I busily hunted for recipes through a stack of cookbooks on the kitchen table.

And then the realization hit: it was not even Halloween. The cookies would not make it to Christmas.

I sighed and abandoned the books.

Later, when The Thinker questioned the pile of cookie cutters, cookbooks and colored sugar crystals cluttering the table, I merely pointed to his stereo speakers, from which blared joyous horns and triumphant blasts of sounds.

"Isn't it great?" he asked.

Photo Commentary

And they're off

THE INTERSECTION of Clarkston Road and Sashabaw Road is one of those ambiguous areas some drivers dread. In the unmarked intersection, two lanes turn into one soon after the driver passes the stop light. Some drivers go straight in the left lane while others go straight in the right lane, trying to avoid each other as they quickly merge. In the photo above, all three vehicles in the two lanes heading west on Clarkston Road ended up going straight, jockeying for position as they merged. The van on the right merged first, the car on the left was second and the car on the right third. John Joy, public information director for the Road Commission for Oakland County, said this type of situation is "an invitation to disaster." Joy said the Road Commission will take a closer look at the intersection. (Photo by James Gibowski)

Jim's Jottings

In looking through a file marked "Associate Publisher" recently, these notes written by a Georgia editor on column writing deserve to be shared.

Clearly his simple rules were written tongue in cheek, but they're certainly worth a chuckle:

Don't avoid controversial subjects for they are by nature the most interesting... but,

Don't take a side in the controversy because people on the other side won't appreciate it... however,

Don't try to stay in the middle because people on both sides will think you have taken the opposite point of view... also,

Don't be afraid to criticize people because the reader realizes the importance of pointing out and correcting mistakes... but,

Don't point out the mistakes of any of your readers, their kin or friends, or political candidates because they will take it personally.

Don't always write on serious subjects because people will become bored... but,

Don't always write humorous items because you may be the only person who thinks them to be humorous... however,

Don't let that stop you from poking fun as long as you

Don't poke fun at private individuals and Don't poke fun at cherished institutions, practices, philosophies or ideas... however,

Don't feel you cannot poke fun at yourself because if you do, everyone will be happy and agree with you wholeheartedly... of course,

Don't ever write about the weather, because if it's raining you'll alienate the sun bathers and if it's sunny you'll anger the farmers who need rain... and,

Don't even knock bad weather, because surely someone will criticize you for interfering with the Lord's will.

Don't let fear or criticism temper your writing as long as you can avoid making people angry... and,

Don't get paranoid about producing a weekly column!

Letter policy

Citizens for Orderly Growth

Federal ruling could affect local wetland ordinances

Doug Carlson

A neighbor recently gave me an article from Crain's Detroit Business regarding a U.S. Claims Court ruling in a New Jersey wetlands case.

A Southfield attorney, Nicholas Balberman, said the case is significant because, as far as he knows, it's the first time the federal government has been found guilty of unconstitutionally taking wetlands property without just compensation to the owner.

"The impact could be huge because the case presents a trend other courts could follow," Balberman said.

The federal case involved a New Jersey builder who sued the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in 1982 after it denied his company a permit to fill and build housing on 11.5 acres of wetlands in his 51-acre site.

Chief U.S. Claims Court Judge Loren Smith ruled last July that the corps's decision to deny the permit deprived the owner of the site's economic use. He ordered the corps to pay Loveladies Harbor, Inc., $2.7 million.

"The ruling could hurt any governmental agency that regulates land use, either at the state or local level," Balberman said. "The state of Michigan and several communities could be at risk for tens of millions of dollars."

Herman Frankel, a West Bloomfield Township-based developer of luxury homes, said most citizens do not realize the potential liability their communities could face as the result of wetland regulation.

Frankel, who lives and now develops exclusively in West Bloomfield, said he's especially concerned because the township's wetlands board has just recommended a change that would make the community's wetland ordinance even stricter.

"Citizens may not realize a community's liability until it's too late," Frankel said. "The public might wake up one day and find out the township doesn't have the money for a multimillion-dollar award and has to go to the electorate to get the money to pay the award."

Two lawyers have disagreed with Frankel and Balberman about the impact the federal decision would have on wetlands litigation in Michigan.

A state assistant attorney general and a Farmington Hills attorney, who represents several communities with wetlands ordinances, said decisions by the federal claims court are not binding on other courts.

Michigan's Wetlands Protection Act of 1979 gives the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) the authority to grant wetlands permits to developers.

As permitted under state law, at least 12 municipalities have their own wetlands ordinances, which have more stringent regulations than the state.

Balberman said the federal decision may go further than wetlands cases.

The decision is likely to be cited by developers in future cases against Detroit suburbs that have woodlands ordinances.

Woodlands ordinances prohibit builders from cutting down certain trees when clearing sites for development.

Balberman and local developers have criticized the ordinances as ploys communities use to stop new construction.

"What's the difference if you have too many wetlands on your site or too many trees?" Balberman asked. "Is the property owner being deprived of his property?"

"This certainly gives judges some ammunition to award a developer monetary compensation."

Farmington Hills-based attorney Gerald Fisher, who represents several communities with wetlands ordinances — including Independence Township, said he does not expect more lawsuits to be filed locally as a result of the federal ruling. He does, however, expect a ruling eventually on wetlands, property-taking and compensation from a court that makes decisions binding on other courts.

"Sooner or later, the state Supreme Court or the U.S. Supreme Court will have to address the question," Fisher said. "At what point does wetlands regulation constitute a taking?"

On the issue of whether local woodlands ordinances could constitute a taking of property, Fisher said regulations are for health, safety and welfare of the public.

He conceded that the ordinances could be used in some instances to stop development.

But he said many of his clients are sincere about using the ordinances in the public's interests: to prevent erosion, keep air filtered and preserve a place for wildlife.

"Some regulation is obviously justified," Fisher said.

North Oaks Church has new affiliation

The North Oaks Community Church officially became part of the Evangelical Presbyterian Church (EPC) after a 1 1/2-hour service Dec. 1.

In honor of the occasion, a celebration with 178 people took place in the Kirchgessner Auditorium at Clarkston High School, where the congregation has met weekly since Jan. 1, 1986.

In 1986, six families formed the core group of the mission church, which received guidance and financial help from the Midwest Presbytery of the EPC, according to the Rev. Kurt Gebhard.

The congregation grew to 70 to 80 families by the time the church was fully constituted, said Gebhard.

Though still growing, there are no plans for a church building to house the new congregation at this time.

"We can continue to use the Clarkston High School auditorium until we number about 500," Gebhard said.

Gebhard was ordained as pastor of the church on Dec. 2. Ruling elders, Dale Harvey and Kirk Harvey, were installed. Also ordained and installed as ruling elders were Dick Hoover and Lou Simonelli.

Church services are 10 a.m. each Sunday with Christian education classes beginning at 11:15 a.m. Christmas service will be offered at 10 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 23. For more information, call 625-7332.

Letters to the Editor

Five lanes up to village is unsafe

Several years ago my husband's company transferred him to Troy. At that time we started looking at homes in the areas of Troy and Rochester.

I was dismayed by the suburban atmosphere. Sure, downtown Rochester is attractive and quaint, but it is surrounded by strip malls and blocks of houses devoid of character.

Then I ran into an old friend of my mother's who told me of the wonderful town where she grew up. She described it as a "friendly, small town" which managed to be rather "cosmopolitan." My husband and I loved Clarkston right away. We bought an old house within walking distance of town.

I am greatly saddened by the development that has occurred in the past two years. But I am especially disturbed by the plans to widen M-15 to five lanes.

This seems to completely overlook the real issue. Where are all the people who drive through the area in question going? How can we redirect the traffic? It seems to me that Dixie Highway could be utilized more by people wanting to reach I-75, as could Sashabaw Road if it were widened and made more accessible.

Is there any way we could use one-way streets to help solve our traffic problems? Did SEMCOG and MDOT consider any of these questions? Did they study the question on a broad basis or just look at the section of M-15 between Dixie and Paramus?

Clarkston is a small town with an historic section. It would be neither safe nor appropriate to have five lanes of traffic rushing up to the edge of it. I am disturbed that SEMCOG and MDOT would overlook the wishes of local residents in such a manner.

Joanne Blodee Collier

CHS faculty care, extend themselves

I have been reading all the letters from '90 graduates thanking the faculty at Clarkston High School. I also owe them a large thank you for more than just academics.

A little over a year ago, I was in a serious car accident. I spent one month at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital then six weeks at a rehabilitation clinic in Flint.

My injury was not a normal one, such as broken arm or leg, etc., but an internal head injury. I was not expected to live but to recover as I have seemed out of the question.

As I returned back to school, I was very nervous, but the faculty at CHS gave me full support and were by my side. The help and kindness I received was outstanding.

Now at Michigan State University, my success can be credited back to the CHS faculty.

I am not only doing well academically, but the support and care I received — a way of treating people and extending yourself for others — has influenced my outlook on life. My appreciation toward the faculty at CHS cannot be expressed enough.

Rick Davis

On Thursday, Dec. 13, a petitioner is to request a rezoning from local commercial to single family residential. The lots are located on Sashabaw Creek Farms.

The hearing is set for 7:30 p.m. at the township annex, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston.

Volunteers donate dolls to children

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A few needy youngsters in the area will receive adorable dolls for Christmas this year, thanks to a group of volunteers.

Volunteers of Northwest Oakland Community Services (NWOCS) have provided 144 dolls to give to children in Holly, Rose, Groveland, Springfield, White Lake and Independence Townships.

Before sending the dolls to new homes, the 144 dolls will be on display at Davisburg Medical Center, 12735 Andersonville, Springfield Township, Dec. 6-17.

The group of volunteers are committed to improving the quality of life for people by providing services without overlapping what other volunteer organizations provide, said Janet Stack, chairperson for NWOCS.

NWOCS has been in operation for about two years with a goal of providing emotional and physical support to residents in the seven townships.

Stack said the organization tries to make people aware of the needs within the community and encourages volunteerism.

The organization also offers: volunteer tutoring at the middle school level, recreation night for handicapped citizens from group homes, and social activities for senior citizens.

NWOCS also sponsors a program in which volunteers call seniors in their homes to make sure they're cared for.

NWOCS members also quilt, and some of their handiwork will be displayed at the Davisburg Medical Center at the same time the dolls are on display.

Early childhood programs help 'at-risk' children

BY ROBERT BRUMBACK
AND MARGIE REID

In our continuing series, we are exploring the first national goals for education articulated by President Bush earlier this year.

Goal one: "By the year 2000, all children shall start school ready to learn (that is, healthy and otherwise prepared for learning by their parents)."

To assist our public in achieving this goal, the Clarkston school system has many programs in the area of early childhood education and early detection of learning problems.

Dedicated to providing early intervention for "at risk" children between the ages of zero and five, the Clarkston district opened the SPICE program in 1976. This program assists parents with questions and concerns they may have regarding their children's development, speech, language, vision, hearing or other medical considerations.

Under this state-mandated program, referrals from local doctors, community health personnel, parents and agencies are handled in a confidential and timely matter.

If a youngster is found eligible for special education intervention, a wide array of services is available, including placement in a developmental preprimary program, transportation, parent support groups, occupational and/or physical therapy, speech and language support, and social work or psychiatric support.

The impact of appropriate support continues throughout a child's school experience and is provided at no additional cost to parents.

In addition to identifying "at risk" children, our district is sensitive to the fact that children develop at different rates during their first years of life. To ensure that each child has a successful start at school, two kindergarten curricula have been developed to meet the needs of children.

Based on our district's screening program, entering students who are ready for the academic rigors of kindergarten are placed in our "regular" sections. Other children — who need time to develop and grow — respond more positively to developmental kindergarten.

The population of students in developmental kindergarten represents an important part of our future leaders. Given time to experience appropriate development prior to academic demands allows many students a more successful school entry and later success.

Clarkston Community Education offers several exceptional programs in the arena of early childhood education.

First, an infant/toddler program to support young parents who are completing their high school education provides an opportunity to observe the growth and development of the child as well as offer daily interaction of parents and caregivers.

This identifies concerns of either party and may result in referrals to other resources if needed. Our social workers help educate young parents on child development, and the parents can also earn credit while helping in the nursery.

Second, programs for 3- and 4-year-olds are taught by early childhood certified teachers trained in planning developmentally appropriate learning.

By providing a wide variety of experiences that encourage gross and fine motor skills, independent and cooperative play and exploration, all children are provided an opportunity to learn and grow at their own rate.

Third, the new Funshine IV program that began Nov. 19 is designed for 4-year-olds who are "at risk" for later school success. The purpose of this program is early intervention in the lives of children and families to promote the home/school team effort.

Children are provided nutritious snacks daily, and field trips are taken to enrich their lives. Parents receive newsletters, information about their children, and are encouraged to be part of the program.

We know studies show that a quality preschool experience makes a difference in later success. The number of students with higher technical goals, pursuing higher education, and having a positive outlook on education increases if the family-school building block starts with a solid preschool experience.

By offering this to children at an early age and by detecting learning problems, our district's early childhood programs ensure that children will start school ready to learn and with a positive attitude.

Robert Brumback is director of Special Services, and Margie Reid represents the Clarkston Community Education Center. ## Area writer urges children to take a hike

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

You're on vacation or you're just looking for something different to do for a weekend or a day.

If you're wondering where the nearest McDonald's or Motel 6 is located, pick up the nearest phone book.

But if you want to get away from it all by finding a quiet place to hike and pitch a tent or a beautiful place to cross-country ski or an adventuresome place to see a sunken ship, Jim DuFresne can help.

DuFresne, a Clarkston area resident, has written eight books which have helped people discover lush green, shimmering blue or frosty white new worlds just a few hours or even a few minutes away from where they live.

His latest book, "Michigan's Best Outdoor Adventures with Children" ($12.95 published by The Mountaineers), is a guide for parents who want to introduce their young children to nature on a half-day trip or an overnight stay.

The book and others by DuFresne are available at the Village Bookstore in Clarkston, Border's and Barnes and Nobles.

DuFresne said the book is a way to "point them (children) in the right direction."

The author gives much credit to his own children pointing him in the right direction during trips they made throughout Michigan.

"The more we went outdoors, with a kid's point-of-view, the more we found," said DuFresne.

There are 75 different trips in the book, ranging from easy, moderate to challenging.

Easy means hikes or backpacking trips which range from one to two miles a day. Level terrain which can be handled by children ages three to five.

Moderate trips range from three to five miles a day, geared for children ages six to eight.

Challenging trips cover six to eight mile hikes for ages nine to 10.

"Most parents underestimate what a child can do," said DuFresne.

He said three to five year-olds usually have no problem hiking one or two miles. In fact, the biggest problem parents will have with that age group is slowing down their children.

DuFresne said children "love being outdoors" and often can adapt better outdoors than adults. He notes that his wife Peggy sometimes gets "freaked out when not taking a shower for a few days or having to use a pit toilet."

DuFresne, who also writes Kidventures (a state-wide syndicated newspaper column), said senior citizens have written to him saying the short trips are easily accessible for them.

Most of the 75 listed trips do not require overnight stays. A handy guide in the back lists the hikers' recommended age for each trip, whether it's a day hike or backpacking hike, interpretive center locations, availability for skiing, canoeing, fishing, birding and special activities.

Two trips just minutes away for Clarkston area residents are Crooked Lake (Independence Oaks County Park) and Huron Swamp (Indian Spring Metropark).

DuFresne compliments Crooked Lake as "unbelievable for fishing." As in most of the trips, the author includes a "winter use" section for Crooked Lake, which says the boathouse becomes a ski rental shop and warming center on weekends.

DuFresne describes Huron Swamp as a great way for parents to introduce their children to the importance of wetlands. His introduction states most children's past knowledge "... comes from second-rate Japanese movies that show lizardlike men emerging from swamps and bogs to terrorize the countryside. Unfortunately, some kids grow up never experiencing the wildlife and beauty wetlands offer, nor understanding the value of them."

Huron Swamp, too, features cross-country skiing during the winter.

Other books about Michigan written by DuFresne include "Michigan: Off the Beaten Path," "Michigan State Parks," and "Isle Royale Nature Park: Foot Trails and Water Routes."

His newest book, "50 Hikes in Southern Michigan," will be released in April.

He has sold 75,000 copies of a book in New Zealand, entitled "Tramping in New Zealand." He also wrote about and lived in Alaska. He plans on return trips to both New Zealand and Alaska.

DuFresne said Michigan "has as much to offer as anybody in the Midwest, especially in the U.P."

DuFresne's new book makes it easier for parents and their children to see what their home state has to offer, sometimes just a few miles or minutes away.

sively to get a step on an opponent and quick defensively to be between an opponent and the basket.

Dugan Fife: This looks like the year junior Dugan Fife will come into his own on the court. Fife, an all-league quarterback, is probably even a better basketball player than griddier. He's (an all-league basketball player as a sophomore) a great shooter and an even greater passer. When defenses double team on the only returning starter, someone else will be open and Fife will quickly find them.

Intelligence: Coach Dan Fife calls his squad "an extremely intelligent" group with nearly all of them having a 3.0 or better G.P.A. And look for their P.P.G.'s to be even higher.

The Wolves will find out quickly how good or capable they are by playing tough Pontiac Central in their opener (because of press deadlines, details of that game are unavailable). Their first home game is Friday against Lamphere-Madison Heights.

"Before the year is over, we'll be a good team," said coach Dan Fife about his young team which returns only four players who have earned varsity letters, Dugan Fife, Chris Wasilk, Mark Galbraith and Derek Raymond. The team comprises four seniors and nine juniors.

"There are so many new kids, we'll have to develop our own identity," said the coach.

One thing Fife will make sure the 1990-91 edition will have in common with his past teams is sound fundamen-als.

"The kids work extremely hard on defense, then let the offense take over," said Fife. "They're willing to sacrifice some offense for defense."

Defensively, the Wolves will be playing man-to-man and occasionally use a press.

Dugan Fife, who can be deadly from the 3-point range, averaged about 18 points a game last season. Luke Fedio averaged nearly 20 points in JV action last season.

Coach Fife calls Derek Wiley (a transfer from Rockford) and Wasilk "good shooters."

The coach expects that foursome, along with Sean Halleran and Galbraith, to see the most action. And three or four other players will come off the bench for extra support.

Fife said Pontiac Northern, "without question," is the favorite in the Greater Oakland Activities League.

He expects Waterford Kettering with Tad Smith (Smith high jumped 6-10) to be tough and expects battles from Lake Orion and Waterford Mott.

Fife said he has been watching many of his varsity players play since they were in the third grade.

Many of those same players have also been regulars during the off-season at Fife's house, playing pick-up games.

This week, snow covers Fife's driveway, but his players will be covering opponents inside a gym.

Swinging from the heels

Practice, and patience, makes perfect

James
Gibowski

The exact statistics may never be known.

Goal scorers, those making assists or even the final game scores will have to end up being like Ivory soap, 99 44/100 percent pure.

But one thing for sure, Clarkston's JV boys' soccer team was a perfect 13-0 this past fall.

And they did this by outscoring their opponents, 65-7 (or, at least it was very close to that lopsided figure).

I meant to write about the Wolves' unblemished season several weeks earlier, but I was waiting for more stats.

I interviewed the coach, Jim Heisler, after his team's season-ending victory. Heisler, a young first-year coach with a perfect career coaching record, told me to give him a call for stats. When I did call, he still didn't have them and said he would call me back.

I never heard from him again, but I received at least four calls and one letter from parents of the players wondering why I never wrote anything about the 13-0 season.

I didn't blame them for making the calls or writing. It's difficult for any team to finish undefeated. These JV-Wolves deserve every ounce of ink that is printed about them.

Coach Heisler, who was an all-state soccer player for Troy High School just a few years ago, still needs to learn more about what this ink means to many of his players, their friends and their families (don't forget to send a clipping to grandma ...).

But I still admire Heisler for how he handled the most important part of his job, coaching.

Sophomore forward Chris Colburn said the new coach made a big difference.

"He's a good-spirited coach," said Colburn. "We had a good, aggressive team."

Colburn wasn't impressed before the season began. Even though he was a sophomore, he had hoped to make the varsity squad. And when it was decided he had to play JV, he thought the team would be lucky to break .500.

The play of his teammates and some early-season lopsided victories made him quickly think differently.

And Colburn, who would be named the team's most valuable player at the end of the season, felt comfortable playing with many teammates who he competed with or against in off-season indoor soccer action or in local rec leagues. Many of the players were on championship Orange Crush teams in the Waterford League.

Some of the Orange Crushers even won a tournament in Montreal.

Colburn is looking forward to the next two seasons on varsity. Next year, many of the undefeated JV players will join several talented varsity returners, including all-leaguer sophomore Scott Rooney and team most valuable player, junior Devin Dupree.

Center midfielder Patrick Forbes credits much of the JV's success to improving its passing and being in top shape.

"Our team was in good physical condition," said Forbes. "We ran all the time."

Both players also credit a strong team defense and equally strong goal-tending. Sophomores Mike Miller and Nathan Forbes shared goalkeeper duties, registering seven shutouts.

Junior defenseman John Conlen, who was on a 4-6-3 JV team the year before, said the Wolves improved because they played "one game at a time."

Waterford Kettering, Valley (Grand Blanc), Royal Oak Kimball, Lake Orion, Brandon, Waterford Mott, Avondale and Flint Southwestern fell not only once to the Wolves but usually twice.

Lake Orion, in the 11th match of the season, came the closest to beating the Wolves. The Dragons were ahead 2-0, but but three unanswered goals by Ryan Noll, Colburn and Aaron Phillips resulted in a 3-2 victory.

What did their coach think about all of this?

Heisler said his team earned its victories through hard conditioning in practice, listening well and talking to each other on the field.

He added, "We had a strong offense and defense. We played the long ball because we had speed up front."

Heisler also pointed out that his team didn't get mad at themselves or their opponents when things didn't go right on the field.

"If they lost the ball, they hustled," said Heisler.

Practice makes perfect, but patience also makes perfect.

There are some "unofficial" statistics, stats remembered and verbally passed around from player to player. Stats like Phillips scoring 18 goals, Colburn knocking in 13 and Noll and Nick Bielak each scoring eight. And don't forget Patrick Forbes' 13 assists.

The members of the team will never forget that 13-0 mark, their coach and the players who took the field: Ben Grinold, Chaley Larson, Raymond Torrance, Brian Bovee, Matthew Little, Nick Bielak, Patrick Forbes, Nathan Forbes, Rob Doyle, Chris Mack, Jeremy Thompson, Ryan Noll, Eric Corbett, Mike Miller, Aaron Phillips, Steve Bennett (the team's most improved player), John Conlen, David Warner, Tony Sartor, Jim Drysdale, Chris Colburn and Chuck Jenks.

And don't forget to save a clipping for grandma.

Lighthouse North staggers under need

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

When Lighthouse North moved into Clarkston last January, officials expected to help about 500 clients the first year.

Eleven months later, the assistance agency has been called to address the needs of 2,303, four times its original estimate.

More than 370 of the requests originated in Clarkston and Independence Township.

"It's been an educational issue," says Lighthouse North Director Sherrie Kaars. "There's a lot of struggle here — people have a real hard time believing that because the community is perceived to be very affluent."

While Kaars says the agency has helped some families more than once, new faces pop up at an alarming rate.

"Sure, there is some duplication," Kaars sighs. "But the numbers are increasing."

Keeping afloat

Lighthouse North bases its operations in the historic chapel of the Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church on Maybee Road, Independence Township.

Single mothers and the elderly are common customers, but so are a lot of typical families.

"What I see are real families with two people working," Kaars says. "If something happens to one of them, whether they're sick or laid off — they get behind."

Housing is the number one request made to Lighthouse North, followed by food.

Kaars relates the story of a family with several teenagers.

"The mother will say to me 'It's not that I don't have something to cook — I know how to make spaghetti without meat, but when they come back hungry an hour later I don't have anything else,'" Kaars says.

"It's a real fact that if a family ends up on aid or is among the working poor they need to pay a mortgage and utilities."

"If mortgage is $300 and they have $265, they're going to pay the utility bill," Kaars says. "Do you think of it in terms of starvation? No, but families should have enough to eat in our society."

Kaars highlights senior citizens as another troubled sector.

"I had one senior family — their income ($800 a month) looked OK and they owned their own home," Kaars relates. "But both the husband and wife needed medicine totaling $400, and Medicare doesn't pay for it."

"They're the proudest group," Kaars adds, shaking her head. "It's so difficult."

Largess and limitations

Lighthouse North often assists clients by recommending an action or an agency of which a client might not be aware.

The organization also coordinates the many food and clothing donations made by area individuals and clubs.

But what assistance often boils down to is money, Kaars explains.

"The community was so good to us at Thanksgiving," she says. "But we're trying very hard to educate the community that it can't be a once-a-year thing."

To illustrate this point, Lighthouse North is spearheading a Brown Bag Campaign (See box). The effort will be conducted to coincide with Christmas, but Kaars hopes it will serve to remind people that need exists year-round.

The financial picture for Lighthouse North may be especially bleak this year due to questions about the federal budget, Kaars explains.

The agency typically receives federal funding through the Emergency Assistance Management Program. This year, however, Lighthouse North and several other organizations are still waiting for word about the money. The federal board hasn't met, which is unusual, according to Kaars, and makes the future of the funding uncertain.

Though Lighthouse North works each case on an individual basis, Kaars explains that sometimes the agency just cannot help.

"That's one of the hardest issues," Kaars says. "We can network and do everything we can, but if there's no income, paying rent for the month isn't going to solve the problem."

The agency uses two levels of volunteers who work to assess the needs of those who call on Lighthouse North.

One level is knowledgeable in clothing, food and basic interviewing; the other level understands things like utility and housing laws.

"We help more people than we turn away," Kaars says.

But as the numbers continue to increase, so does the challenge to meet a client's needs.

"We didn't know that the demand would be so great," she says. "We got so busy so fast."

"A lot of the community is not familiar with us yet," Kaars says. "We're growing in leaps and bounds, and it's almost impossible to keep up."

Artifact box tests detective work

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

A secret box filled with Clarkston, Mich., artifacts will be mailed from Deborah Luczyn's fourth grade classroom at Pine Knob Elementary School this week.

Around the same time, another box from "somewhere in the United States" will arrive for Mrs. Luczyn's students, containing the same categories of items.

Both boxes will be opened, and students in both classrooms will set to work in determining the state and town where the boxes originated.

This exercise in geography, called the Artifact Box Exchange Network, is organized by the University of Connecticut and is open to any grade level.

"Just Bag It"

Regular contributors to Lighthouse North will likely find brown bags in their mailboxes in upcoming days.

The assistance agency is conducting the Brown Bag Campaign to highlight the year-round financial needs of the operation.

The agency is also hoping to target new contributors; but because money is typically used for things other than computer technology, officials have a difficult time maintaining lists of potential donors.

Agencies or organizations with accurate mailing lists are encouraged to share them with Lighthouse North.

Recipients of the brown bags are encouraged to pledge financial assistance to the needy and "Just Bag It" to Lighthouse North.

For more information, contact Lighthouse North at 673-4949.

ADAM Bellefull, a student in Deborah Luczyn's Pine Knob Elementary School classroom, loads an artifact box with items specific to Clarkston and Michigan. A similar box will arrive at Pine Knob from a mystery location.

Mystery box is on its way

Participating schools are given identical "clue cards" asking students to collect items such as soil samples, weather forecasts for certain months and items representing state symbols.

Students must also include items representing the town in which they live.

"The state's going to be pretty easy, it's the town that will be tough," admits Mrs. Luczyn.

As the students load up the box for a final time, Mrs. Luczyn randomly calls upon students to explain what clues were included. Dozens of hands shoot up in the air.

"Pine cones and needles from our state tree," says Rob.

"Pictures of different animals from around our state," adds Ricky.

"We put pictures of typical clothing from the area from every season," offers Lisa.

During each of the past three weeks, students at each "table" were given three cards describing items to collect.

"The state's going to be pretty easy, it's the town that will be tough."

Deborah Luczyn

The entire class then determined the item that best fit the clue.

The students expect to receive their mystery box sometime around Nov. 30, when they'll put on their detective hats and utilize the resource books they recently learned about.

STUDENTS like Christy Gurbord will use their investigative abilities to determine the origin of a box from a mystery U.S. location.

The Other Side of Things

"The Titanic"
driven by Jenny

Ashley
Ball

It was 6:50 a.m. and I had just boarded bus 48 bound for Clarkston Junior High and Clarkston High School. We were merrily rolling down Perry Lake Road talking about Schnauzers and cars and Shaun and Brice's adventure at Kroger's, when suddenly Jenny, the bus driver of our dreams — calm, cool, low-key under pressure — screamed, "FIRE ON THE BUS! JUMP OUT THE WINDOWS!"

Since some of the girls were still putting on makeup and finishing their hair, the response was not entirely immediate nor enthusiastic.

"What does she mean 'fire,'" Michele frowned, glancing at her watch. "Does she know it's not even 7 o'clock yet?"

Just then, smoke began to seep from the dashboard and Jenny began dutifully hustling us out of our seats and off the bus.

The girls grabbed their bookbags and coats and gloves and magazines and nail polish and sunglasses and hairspray and lipstick and stood up to leave.

Suddenly, however, I realized that we faced something far worse on the outside of the bus than the fire on the inside of the bus — it was RAINING!

"So?" asked Matt, as he dove out the door ahead of the girls and sixth graders.

"So," I fretted. "I can't wear this jacket in the rain... it's suede... it'll spot if it gets wet."

"That's right!" Amy realized. "So are my shoes!"

Just then small flames began to shoot from the dashboard.

"Ohhhhhhh!" shrieked Charity.

"Don't worry," I consoled her in my new heroic mode. "Stay calm. ... Jenny will get us out alive."

"It's not that," she wailed. "I broke my nail on the seat!"

She began digging around in her purse.

"Here!" she cried happily, holding up a fake nail.

"I'll just glue this on," and she sat in the back seat of the bus and began digging for the glue.

Just then Angie jumped off the bus into the heavy drizzle only to realize her worst nightmare.

"I didn't wear my water-proof mascara!" she whined.

I loaned her mine.

By the time I traipsed off the bus with my things, the drizzle had developed into a pouring rain. It was all so disgusting. ... I would look terrible by the time I got to school. I mean, why go to the effort and look like this? What do they think we go to school for, anyway?

Wading through the rain and the dark, we set up flares in the mud. Luck was with us — right away a car stopped. The driver rolled down his window.

"Hey, are you guys OK?"

Here we were, 20 kids huddled outside a smoking bus on a dark November morning in the rain setting out flares, and he wants to know if we're OK.

"Yeah," Jenny replied, "it's kinda wet, that's all. And —"

"OK, just checking!" the driver called as he drove off.

"— and, well, our bus is on fire," Jenny finished.

Soon another, less exciting, bus picked us up and delivered us safely to school, and the rest of the day was downhill from there.

But then, for the kids who ride Bus 48, the day is always a little on the dull side compared with our morning bus ride. I mean, it's not that we have a fire every day — I should say not! But we have our share of excitement.

Like the time we were charged by a buffalo. I'M NOT KIDDING! And the morning our bus slid nose first into a huge snowbank on Perry Lake Road, and a wrecker had to pull us out. And, of course, who could forget the time the horse jumped the fence right in front of us.

While riding bus 48 is not really dangerous, it's not for the faint of heart, either. I guess you could say there's a certain element of surprise, even risk taking, about riding Jenny's bus. It's difficult to describe — it's sort of like when you bite into a fiestada in the school cafeteria...or board the Titanic.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

RENTING OUT YOUR HOME

QUESTION: What are the tax consequences involved in renting out my home?

ANSWER: Your home becomes a business if you rent it out. The costs of running the property are subtracted from the rent to determine the net income from the operation - just as would be done in any other business. Among the expenses that can be charged off are interest on the mortgage, maintenance and repairs, agent's fees, utilities if you pay them, insurance premiums, annual depreciation and improvements.

Tax-wise renting out your home is a whole new ball game, especially when it comes time to sell. I suggest you put your return in the hands of a good accountant.

IF YOU RENT OUT your home, it becomes a whole new ball game when it comes to taxes.

Unwrapping the charitable gift deductions

In the spirit of the holiday season, the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants offers advice for the tax treatment of your charitable donations.

Your contribution to a qualified charitable organization can take the form of cash, property or even your time.

If you itemize on your tax return, you are entitled to a deduction in return for your generosity. To be deductible, your gift must go to a nonprofit religious, educational or charitable group that meets IRS standards. There is a limit to the amount you can deduct for charitable contributions.

The rules are complicated, but you need not concern yourself with them if your contributions total 20 percent or less of your adjusted gross income. For cash gifts to public charities, the deduction is capped at 50 percent of adjusted gross income.

Donating cash

When you make a monetary contribution, keep your canceled check, a receipt from the organization or some written record showing the name of the charity and amount of your donation. In the event you are audited, you may need to produce these records to substantiate your donations.

If you receive something of value in return for your gift, you cannot write off the full amount of your contribution. Suppose a local charity sponsors a special benefit performance of the State Ballet Company and sells tickets for $75 each. If a ticket to the ballet would normally cost $25, you may only declare a deduction of $50 per ticket.

Gifts of property

The most common property donations are used clothing, furniture and appliances. Your deduction for this type of property is the fair market value of the property at the time of your contribution, and amount that is generally far less than what you originally paid. If the organization does not provide you with a receipt showing the fair market value, checking the prices a thrift shop charges for similar items should be sufficient research.

When the total noncash property you donate exceeds $500, you must file Form 8283, Noncash Charitable Contributions. On this form you indicate what and when you contributed, to whom you contributed, when and how you acquired the property, your cost or adjusted basis and the method used to value property.

If you are donating a single item or a group of similar items valued over $5,000 ($10,000 for non-publicly traded stock), you must have an appraisal performed to determine the value of the property. The appraisal must be made within the 60-day period that precedes the date of the contribution and must be signed and dated by a qualified appraiser.

Contributing appreciated property

When you contribute stocks, real estate or other investments that have gone up in value, your deduction depends in part on how long you have had the property. If you have owned the property for more than a year, you may write off an amount equal to the full market value of the property at the time you donate it. You avoid paying tax on the appreciation that built up while you owned the donated property. For stock or other capital assets that you have held for less than a year, your deduction is generally limited to your cost.

As an example, let's suppose the shares of stock you acquired two years ago for $2,000 are now worth $7,000. If you choose to donate this stock to your favorite charity, you get to deduct the fair market value of $7,000 and you avoid the capital gains tax that would be due for the $5,000 in appreciation. This means the cost of your contribution is reduced by the tax deduction you claim for the donation and the tax you avoided by not selling the property. The organization you are contributing to doesn't mind because it can sell the property and end up with the same value in cash.

One caveat: The untaxed appreciation of charitable gifts is now considered a preference item for the Alternative Minimum Tax (AMT) which generally applies only to high-income taxpayers with exceptionally large deductions. If you think you might be subject to the AMT, you should consult a tax advisor before making a large donation of appreciated property.

When you donate tangible personal property such as art objects or antique furniture, the way the organizations plan to use your donation can affect the amount you are eligible to claim.

For example, if you donated an antique dresser to a museum and the piece is exhibited among the museum's collections, you may deduct the full market value of the dresser at the time you donate it. If, however, the charitable organization plans to sell your gift or use it for an unrelated purpose, only your original cost for the property is deductible.

Volunteer expenses

The IRS allows you to deduct the cost of unreimbursed expenses which you incur while volunteering. These expenses may include phone calls, postage, supplies used to make posters and even the ingredients for a cake prepared for a bake sale.

You may claim the purchase price and cleaning bills for a uniform that you wear when you volunteer, providing it is not suitable for everyday use. If you drive to and from volunteer commitments, you can deduct the actual cost of your gas and oil or you can claim the standard mileage rate of 12 cents per mile for 1990, plus tolls and parking. If your volunteer work requires that you be away from home overnight, you may deduct travel expenses, lodging costs and 80 percent of the amount you spend for meals, providing there is no "significant element of personal pleasure, recreation or vacation."

If you are in need of more detailed information, request a copy of the IRS publication on charitable contributions or consult your CPA.

The above information was prepared by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.

Houseplants may not need fertilizer in winter

Unless you're growing your houseplants under lights, they're probably growing little, if at all.

So chances are they don't need as much water now as they needed in the summer, and they probably need no fertilizer.

Low light levels in winter limit plants' ability to grow and reduce their need for fertilizer and water, explains Tom Stebbins, Master Gardener specialist at Michigan State University.

Overwatering them can kill their roots, and overfertilizing can cause soluble salts to build up in the soil and on the pot.

Plants may wilt or suffer burned roots, stems and leaves.

Plant pots watered from below are more likely to develop salt buildup, Stebbins says. Water applied to the surface of the soil takes some salts with it when it runs out the drainage hole, he explains.

Leaching the soil occasionally — running sizable quantities of water through it from top to bottom — will reduce the salt content.

When a salt crust forms on pots and the soil surface, removing it will prevent damage to plant tissues.

Though most actively growing plants benefit from occasional fertilization, lush, rampant growth is not always desirable, Stebbins points out.

"Plants will outgrow a terrarium more quickly if you fertilize them regularly," he notes. "Likewise, large plants that are reaching their maximum size for their location should be fertilized only often enough to prevent nutrient deficiencies.

The alternative is to fertilize plants regularly and then prune them to keep them within bounds."

Several methods of fertilizer application are available.

Fertilizers come dry and soluble forms, as well as granular slow-release and solid types.

Each type has its pros and cons. Mixing the slow-release types with potting soil eliminates the need to fertilize for weeks or months.

Inserting the solid fertilizer spikes likewise means you don't need to remember to fertilize.

The dry or soluble types are easy to use and generally cost less than some of the more specialized products, Stebbins observes.

They also give you good control of how much and how often fertilizer is applied.

"A key thing to remember is that dormant plants need no fertilizer and may even be harmed by it," Stebbins sums up.

"Most houseplants growing in natural light in Michigan in the winter are essentially dormant, so they won't benefit from and may even be harmed by being fertilized now."

If plants look sick and are growing poorly, a dose of fertilizer probably isn't going to perk them up, he predicts.

The problem is more likely low light.

"If you can provide them 12 to 16 hours of light from fluorescent tubes each day, try that and see if they respond," he suggests.

"If you can't water them only when the soil feels dry and otherwise leave them alone.

Hold off on fertilizing and don't repot them — they don't need the stress just now."

Dining on deer

Tracy King

Contrary to the opinion of many, venison is delicious, according to Marv Shultz, author of "You'll Love Venison."

While the meat doesn't exactly abound at our house, I know it's abundant in many other homes during this end-of-deer-season, prompting the listing of the following delicious-sounding recipes.

Schultz stresses the importance of maintaining clean, well-cared for meat and offers the following tips:

■ Probably the most important is to get rid of the body heat. Filed dress the animal immediately and hang by the antlers or head in a shady place. Prop the cavity open with a stick.

■ Although the carcass will "cool" at temperatures into the 70s, don't leave it hanging unless temperatures are 40 degrees or below. If temperatures are above 40 degrees get it into a cooler.

■ If possible, do your own skinning, being careful to keep hair off the meat. Small amounts of hair on meat may be singed off with a propane torch.

■ Also, if possible, do your own butchering. By doing your own butchering you can accomplish two things: one, remove and discard all the blood shot meat; and two, remove and discard the fat. The fat is what gives venison the "wild" taste most people object to.

Venison Stew

2 pounds boneless venison, cut into one inch pieces
4 cups hot water

1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce

1 clove garlic, minced
2 medium onions, sliced

Salt to taste

Pepper to taste

1 teaspoon sugar

6 carrots, quartered

8 small whole onions, peeled

3 potatoes, peeled and cut into half-inch cubes

1/4 pound oleo margarine

Brown meat thoroughly in oleo margarine in large heavy kettle. Add all ingredients except carrots, whole onions and potatoes.

Simmer for two hours, adding water if necessary.

Add carrots, whole onions and potatoes and cook about 30 minutes. Liquid may be thickened with flour, if desired.

Mexican Venison Bake

1 cup rice

1 beef bouillon cube

1 medium onion, chopped

4 tablespoons oleo margarine

1 pound ground venison

1 clove garlic, mashed

1-1/2 tablespoon chili powder

2 teaspoons dry mustard

1 teaspoon salt

14-1/2 ounce can kidney beans, drained

1 teaspoon paprika

1/3 cup grated parmesan cheese

Cook rice according to package directions, dissolving bouillon cube in water before stirring in rice.

Saute onion in oleo margarine in a heavy skillet until soft. Add ground venison, garlic, chili powder, mustard, and salt. Stir and cook until meat is browned.

In a two-quart casserole, layer ingredients as follows: start with half the meat mixture. Spread cooked rice over meat, tomatoes over rice, beans over tomatoes and finish with remaining meat mixture.

Combine paprika and cheese and sprinkle over top. Bake, covered at 350 degrees for 35 minutes.

Sour Cream Venison

1 pound venison round steak, cut into 1/4-inch strips

3 ounce can mushrooms

1/2 cup onions, chopped

1 clove garlic, minced

4 tablespoons oleo margarine

Flour

1 tablespoon tomato paste

10-1/2 ounce can beef broth

1 cup sour cream

2 tablespoons white wine

Coat meat with one tablespoon flour and one-half teaspoon salt. Quickly brown meat in two tablespoons oleo margarine in hot skillet.

Add mushrooms, onion and garlic and cook four minutes. Remove meat and mushrooms and set aside.

Add two tablespoons oleo margarine to pan and blend in three tablespoons flour. Add tomato paste and broth. Cook and stir until bubbly.

Return meat and mushrooms to pan. Stir in sour cream and wine. Cook slowly until heated through. Do not boil. Serve over egg noodles.

Hearty apple recipes healthy, tasty and quick

Apples can be the main ingredient in healthy and good-tasting dishes.

"Apples are a healthy, delicious part of a well-balanced food plan," said Florine Mark, area director of Weight Watchers. "They are a particularly good choice for those concerned about their waistline because fiber in apples promotes a full, satisfied feeling after eating. They are also great for a quick pick-me-up between meals."

Gingered Onion-Apple Soup and Ozark Apple Pudding are two apple recipes found in the "Weight Watchers Meals in Minutes Cookbook." Both recipes can be prepared in less than 30 minutes.

With more than 300 varieties of apples — from tart to sweet, green to red — there are so many to choose from that you can munch your way through them and never get bored.

OZARK APPLE PUDDING

(Granny Smith or Golden Delicious apples are the perfect choice for this yummy pudding.)

3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1-1/2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
Dash salt
1 egg
1/4 cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/2 pound apples, cored, pared and chopped
1 ounce chopped pecans

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. On sheet of wax paper or a paper plate sift together flour, baking powder and salt; set aside.

Using electric mixer on high speed, in small mixing bowl beat together egg and sugar until mixture is thick and lemon colored; beat in vanilla. Add flour mixture, and, using mixer on low speed, beat until thoroughly combined, about 1 minute. Stir in apples and pecans.

Spray 8-inch pie plate with a nonstick cooking spray; spread apple mixture evenly in pie plate and bake for 20 to 25 minutes (until a toothpick, inserted in center, comes out clean). Let cool for 5 minutes.

Makes 4 servings. Per serving: 169 calories; 3 grams protein; 6 grams fat; 26 grams carbohydrate; 79 milligrams calcium; 183 milligrams sodium; 69 milli-grams cholesterol; 2 grams dietary fiber.

Serving suggestion: Top each portion of pudding with 1 tablespoon thawed frozen dairy whipped topping. (Per serving: 181 calories; 3 grams protein; 7 grams fat; 27 grams carbohydrate; 79 milligrams calcium; 188 milligrams sodium; 69 milligrams cholesterol; 2 grams dietary fiber.)

GINGERED ONION-APPLE SOUP

1/2 pound McIntosh or Granny Smith apples, cored
2 teaspoons margarine
1 cup diced onions
1/2 teaspoon grated pared gingerroot
1 packet instant chicken broth and seasoning mix
1 teaspoon all-purpose flour
1 1/4 cups water
1 tablespoon each apple brandy (calvados) and chopped chives

4 trimmed chives

Cut 6 thin apple slices and reserve for garnish; pare and dice remaining apples. In small saucepan, melt margarine; add diced apples, onions and gingerroot — and saute, stirring constantly, over medium-high heat until onions are translucent, about 2 minutes.

Sprinkle broth mix and flour over apple mixture, and stir quickly to combine; cook, stirring constantly, for 1 minute. Add water and cook over high heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil.

Reduce heat to low and stir in brandy; partially cover and let simmer until flavors blend, 6 to 7 minutes. Pour soup into 2 soup bowls; top each portion with 3 reserved apple slices and 2 chives.

Makes 2 servings, about 1 cup each. Per serving: 156 calories; 2 grams protein; 4 grams fat; 27 grams carbohydrate; 29 milligram calcium; 542 milligrams sodium; 0 milligrams cholesterol; 4 grams dietary fiber.

Apples add zest to salads, snacks

Weight Watchers offers the following tips for using apples:

■ Weighing in at 81 calories (average-size apple), the apple is a delicious low-calorie snack.

■ Slice apples into salads, adding crunch and fiber. Varieties that have a snappy crunch and color include Cortland, Red Delicious and Granny Smith.

■ Slice the top off an apple and scoop out the core from its center. Fill it with a favorite, such as yogurt, cottage cheese or chicken salad. Put the top of the apple back on, and you have an interesting new lunch.

■ An apple in your purse or briefcase in the morning is the perfect portable high fiber/ low cholesterol snack and a super energy booster.

■ Jazz up your hors d'oeuvre tray with a spectrum of colorful apple slices. Rub slices with lemon to prevent browning.

■ Chop an apple into bite-size pieces; toss with granola; mix in plain yogurt, and you have a filling low-calorie snack.

■ Dried apple slices are a fun alternative. Soak apple slices in lemon juice to keep from browning. Place slices on screen racks, slotted pans or cloth-lined trays, and bake in the oven between 105 and 150 degrees until a slice cut in half will render no moisture when squeezed. (You may also find dried apple snacks at your local grocer.)

■ For dessert, satisfy your sweet tooth with one of the sweeter apple varieties, such as Baldwin, Ben Davis, Red Delicious or McIntosh.

Program honors young careerists

If you have an outstanding young career person in your company, or if you are one yourself, you may be interested in an upcoming program.

Sponsored by the Waterford-Clarkston Business and Professional Women's (BPW) organization, the 1990 Young Careerist Program is designed to recognize young careerists and to help them out along the way.

Don't forget to inform Chamber of area events

If you're organizing a craft show or other community event, don't forget to inform the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber gets a lot of calls on area events and exhibits but needs information to answer questions, said Heather Bowles, who receives the phone calls for the Chamber.

For example, some people call after they've attended the event but want further information.

Organizers of events should add the Chamber to their mailing lists and should provide the Chamber with the "who, what, when, where, why and how" about the events. Also, include a name and phone number for more information — for Bowles' benefit as well as callers'.

Send information to: the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 938, Clarkston, MI 48347. Or call 625-8055.

Those eligible are males and females under age 35 who excel in their professions and who care about their community.

Interested people should fill out a biographical information sheet and call Sue Kiser at 625-1521 or Joan Kopietz at 625-2511.

By recognizing top careerists, the program can benefit the individuals, the company for which they work and the community as a whole.

Conditions of the program require that a careerist have been employed in his or her career area for one year or have performed outstanding scholastic, community service or charity work.

The candidate must live, work, train or attend school in the area to be represented and must support goals and objectives of the National Foundation of Business and Professional Women's Association.

Candidates will be judged on biographical information and may be judged on such criteria as personal accomplishments, a speech presentation, group interaction or personal interview.

Candidates advance from local to regional and state levels, so the young career person's accomplishments can reflect on the community.

Eiffel's birthday towers on horizon

The most notable landmark in the city of Paris is, of course, the Eiffel Tower, and Dec. 15 marks the birth of its builder.

One of the most creative and artistic engineers of the modern age, Alexandre Gustave Eiffel was born at Dijon, France, in 1832. He was selected by the French government to build a symbolic structure for the Centennial Exposition of 1889, which commemorated the French Revolution.

The 1,000-foot-high, open-lattice wrought-iron structure — now the pride of Paris — aroused much criticism when it was first built. In fact, many considered it an eyesore.

Twice as high as the dome of St. Peter's in Rome or the Great Pyramid of Giza in Egypt, the tower was raised in a matter of months with a small labor force.

The Eiffel Tower marked the beginning of a revolution in civil engineering and architectural design, and it remained the tallest building in the world until the construction of the Chrysler Building in New York City in 1930.

Eiffel also participated in designing another unique structure — the Statue of Liberty.

Exercise class keeps 94-year-old fit

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Laura Sandstrom smiles as she stretches her arms forward.

"Up," shouts Body Recall instructor Lois Sanders. Laura responds by lifting her arms up, as does the rest of the exercise class at Calvary Evangelical Lutheran Church in Independence Township.

The members of the class have placed Laura at front and center — the place of honor on this day, and a good spot for the photographer to capture her on film.

Afterward, the class members mingle and dig into apple cake brought by their instructor as a birthday surprise for Laura.

"I certainly have enjoyed my life in Michigan."

Laura Sandstrom

LAURA SANDSTROM (center) enjoys her exercise class at Calvary Lutheran Church, which she takes with her daughter, Katherine Payne. "I like this. It gets me out," she says.

A hearing aid and slightly slower movements than her companions are the only clues to Laura's age of 94. Born in Iowa on Nov. 28, 1896, Laura has a simple explanation for her longevity.

"I come from a long-life family," she explains.

Yes, she exercises (she took up the activity around age 85) — but she doesn't do or eat or not do or not eat anything in particular.

"I can't do what I did 10 years ago," she admits.

She's had some interesting hobbies. She's belonged to book review clubs. At age 70 she took up calligraphy, which she gave up at age 90. She's enjoyed China painting.

"I did that until I got really good. Then I quit. I had too much China," she says.

Though she feels the pain of mild arthritis, the only other age-related problems show up when she can't remember a name or certain details.

"That's normal, I think," she says, adding that she never got around to taking classes or activities that would keep the memory sharp, such as bridge or crossword puzzles.

A graduate of Western Washington University (formerly Bellingham Normal School), she was an elementary school teacher before she retired. She has lived in Iowa, Oregon, California, Washington and Michigan.

She now lives with her daughter, Katherine Payne of Oakhill Road, Independence Township.

"I certainly have enjoyed my life in Michigan," she says. "My daughter takes me around. ... I really enjoy this class. I was so surprised to be honored with this."

Three honored in DAR good citizen contest

SHANNON Wiltse (left), Robin Link, and Jennifer Fussman were the top three qualifiers in Clarkston High's Daughters of the American Revolution contest. Wiltse was selected the winner and will advance to the state competition.

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Three Clarkston High School seniors were honored in the Daughters of the American Revolution of Michigan contest.

Shannon Wiltse was named the high school's overall winner and will move on to statewide competition. Robin Link was recognized as first runner-up, and Jennifer Fussman received honorable mention.

Wiltse will be presented with a Good Citizen pin and certificate from the Sashabaw Plains chapter of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution.

The trio was chosen from a field of 18 female students, nominated by various faculty members. According to Assistant Principal Ginny Farmer, the girls were involved in a three-way tie after a faculty vote. A forced second vote determined Wiltse as the winner.

The nominees were selected by teachers based on their qualities as good citizens. These qualifications include leadership, dependability, service and patriotism. Wiltse will proceed to the state level, where she has the opportunity to win several prizes. In the statewide competition, she'll have to fill out a questionnaire and write a 500-word essay paper based on the American heritage and how she intends to preserve it.

All three girls are in the National Honor Society and participate in a bevy of extracurricular activities. Farmer said they epitomize your typical All-American kids.

"These three are top-quality kids," she said. "Their accomplishments speak for themselves and we are very proud of them."

Don't forget to clear the way for mail delivery

LORETTA WHETSTONE will spend many mornings in the coming months scraping ice and snow from her mail truck before starting out on her daily mail route.

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writing

An awareness that safety comes first for mail carriers is increasing, said Clarkston Postmaster Mickey Gonzales.

But homeowners still need a reminder to keep porches, steps, sidewalks and curbside approaches free of ice and snow, he said.

Vehicles operated by U.S. mail carriers have just as much difficulty in the snow and ice as the mail carriers who walk their routes.

"Our vehicles are not four-wheel drive as some people might think," Gonzales said. "The rural route carriers provide their own vehicles, and some of them own four-wheel drive—but many have two-wheel drive."

The motto often associated with mail delivery — referring to delivery through sleet, snow, rain, and heat of day — isn't an official motto, said Gonzales.

"We deliver the mail as economically as we can and with safety of the carrier as our first priorities," he said. "We want to accomplish our daily delivery without injury

"Our vehicles are not four-wheel drive as some people might think."

Postmaster Mickey Gonzales

to our employees."

The first winter storm on Dec. 3 made Gonzales concerned about sending his mail carriers out, but weather conditions improved throughout the morning, he said, adding that delivery went as scheduled.

He frequently watches weather forecasts during the winter season to keep abreast of conditions that would prohibit the carriers from delivering mail. Mail doesn't get delivered when weather conditions are in a "red alert" condition, which means "extreme," he said.

But area residents can lend a hand in winter storm conditions.

"It's the homeowner's responsibility to keep the conditions safe (for the mail carriers)," Gonzales said. "A carrier is not obligated to put themselves in danger."

If a homeowner is having difficulty getting to the mailbox, consider what it might be like for the mail carrier, he said.

"Put yourself in the position of a person delivering the mail," Gonzales said.

The ultimate responsibility of providing safe conditions for mail carriers is the homeowner's liability, he said. A homeowner is the liable party in a lawsuit if injury results to a mail carrier.

Sun Valley Casual Furniture born from tradition

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

The 70-year-old Moon Valley Furniture has given rise to a new, expanded version of its furniture operation — Sun Valley Casual Furniture is now open for business at Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

Along with the trademark rustic furniture known to generations of Moon Valley customers, Sun Valley offers other styles of casual furniture for sale, including: wicker, rattan, wrought iron, aluminum and resin.

The change was born of a need for more room, and for year-round business, explains Moon Valley Owner Ed Beattie.

"Our product sells from March to September," Ed says. "And so here we sat with this building (the rest of the year)."

Change was also motivated by an event out of the Beatties' control. When fire destroyed the Dixie Highway building in 1981, the company moved much of its manufacturing operation to an industrial park in Springfield Township.

What's new in business

"It was the dead center of our busiest time," Ed recalls. "We just went out and got our machines and kept going."

With the manufacturing done elsewhere, the 12,000-square-foot Dixie facility, will be transformed into a display area "like no other store in the area."

Actual-size patios and decks are under construction in the rear of the facility and will showcase Sun Valley casual furniture after the store's grand opening in March of 1991.

In the meantime, the front of the Sun Valley store has been transformed into a Christmas store.

Wreaths, ornaments, bells and a variety of other Christmas trimmings are for sale, along with the outdoor furniture accessories that will be a regular part of Sun Valley inventory.

Though many things about Sun Valley are new, the faces behind the counter will be familiar to many Moon Valley customers. Sun Valley is operated by Ed's cousin, Bob Beattie, formerly of Beattie Interiors; Ed's son, Kim, plus Ed's daughter, Kay, and her husband, Don Brown.

"We used to put washers on bolts as children," Kay recalls, laughing.

One other aspect of Sun Valley furniture that will remain familiar is quality, Ed says.

He described one visit to a long-time customer who "had our product sitting out by the lake for 35 years."

"It lasts," Ed concludes.

SUN VALLEY co-owners Kay Brown and Bob Beattie plan a grand opening of their huge casual furniture showroom in March. In the meantime, Christmas trimmings of all shapes and sizes share the front space with various casual furniture styles and accessories.

Pet of the Week

BRANDY'S a fine girl and would make a wonderful pet.

Fine girl wants home

Brandy has a fantastic temperament, according to a shelter worker.

The 5-year-old purebred German shepherd weighs about 65 pounds. Brandy came to the shelter when her owners moved to a new home that wouldn't allow pets.

She'll need to be housebroken because she was left outside by her former owners, but the shelter worker says the task shouldn't be too difficult with crate training.

Brandy's already spayed, which makes her adoption fee $35.

To see Brandy visit the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Road, Auburn Hills, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Up With People pace keeps CHS alumnus busy

BY KRISTIN WHISNER

Hello from Cast A of Up With People. Right now we are in Hingham, Mass., which is near Boston. We will continue to tour through New England until just before Christmas.

I arrived in Tucson on July 31 with 600 other people ages 18-25 from 29 countries. This is the first year that a majority (54 percent) are non-Americans. We spent the month of August learning the show and more about Up With People.

During staging, a typical day started at 8 a.m. with a morning meeting focusing on various current events and orientation. The rest of the day was spent on vocal rehearsal, dance workshops and fitness.

Now that we are on the road, our schedule is much different. Our mornings are spent either in community service or setting up the stage equipment. We carry 22 tons of equipment with us, which takes about 3-4 hours to set up.

Our community involvement takes all forms. We have worked in soup kitchens, visited AIDS centers, nursing homes and disturbed teen centers as well as performed for schools and participated in international classrooms.

The early afternoon is usually spent in meetings or educational seminars on subjects relevant to the area we are in and worldwide current events. As you can imagine, it was fascinating to experience the German Unification with nine German students. After the meetings, we rehearse until dinner and then get ready to do the show.

The show is a lot of fun and there are opportunities for everyone to try new parts. I have sung solos and done speaking parts to introduce a song, which have both been exciting. However, just being on stage is a lot of fun. The show has very strong messages addressing racism, drugs, the environment and gang violence, which makes it not only entertaining but powerful.

The first six weeks on the road, I had the opportunity to be an intern in the merchandising department. I was in charge of the inventory and the marketing of Up With People merchandise sold at our shows. I also trained the salespeople and the succeeding intern. It was a great experience, and I hope to have an opportunity to intern in another department after Christmas.

So far I have stayed with many different types of people. In New Mexico one of my host dad's was a forger (he made horse shoes). Others have been artists, therapists, an engineer, nurse, musician, teachers and students. I have experienced many types of lifestyles and it has been very interesting.

Cast A has 158 students representing 18 countries. We have people from Belgium, Germany, Holland, Sweden, Norway, Bermuda and many other countries. It's hard to believe we have come so far in the past two months. We've traveled through 16 states, traveled over 10,000 miles, performed 26 public shows and five private shows for over 15,000 people. Some of the major highlights of our tour have been the larger cities of Chicago, Cincinnati, Washington and New York.

We also spent some time in the Amish country of Lancaster, Pa. Of course, the best part of our tour was the weekend I was hosted at my home when we were performing in Novi, Mich.

Right now we have just begun our tour of New England. We will be going to places such as Boston, Burlington, Vt., and Pawtucket, R.I. After Christmas our cast will go abroad to Norway, Denmark, Belgium, The Netherlands and Germany.

Soon I will be going out on advance promotion to Massena, N.Y. I will be going there three weeks in advance to make preparations for the cast. We will find host families and meals for the cast, promote the show and organize all the casts' activities. It's a big job for three people, but it will be nice to be in one place for more than two days.

Well, that pretty much sums up the past three months. I will let you know how things are going in another three months. Thank you so much for your support.
