Director quits library post

Ronk: 'Mutual agreement'

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

James Hibler, director of the Independence Township Library, resigned from his position Dec. 11.

In a prepared statement, Hibler expressed dissatisfaction with the township board.

"Because of the township board's inadequate support of the library and because of its disrespectful treatment of me personally, I have resigned my position to pursue employment elsewhere," said Hibler, who declined to comment further.

Township Supervisor Frank Ronk termed the resignation a "mutual agreement."

"It was a mutual agreement thing on growth and participation and abilities," said Ronk, adding that the board will begin searching for a replacement.

The new person should have experience at a larger library, he said. The process could take three to four months.

"We won't be rushing into it," he said.

No interim director has been named, and Ronk will oversee library operations.

Hibler, who was out of town at press time, also expressed regard for the community in his prepared statement:

"Since I became the director of the Independence Township Library in August 1979, I have greatly enjoyed providing the best possible library service to the people of our community.

"The circulation of library materials increased 2 1/2 times, and services have been greatly updated and expanded. I have made many friends over the years with people who use the library's services," he said.

Hibler, whose attorney negotiated a resignation agreement with the township, is the father of two, including a four-week-old infant. He and his wife reside in Independence Township.

His agreement includes all accrued vacation and longevity pay owed to him and health benefits for six

Controversy comes to courtroom

INDEPENDENCE Township is in the national spotlight Dec. 12 and 13 when the murder case involving Dr. Jack Kevorkian and his "suicide machine" is heard in 52nd District Court. Media representatives from around the world covered the event. Kevorkian was charged with murder for allegedly assisting in the voluntary death of an Oregon woman, who suffered from Alzheimer's disease. Pictured is Dr. Frederic Rieders, a forensic toxicologist, who testified on the first day of the preliminary examination, Dec. 12. Judge Gerald McNally dismissed the murder charges against Kevorkian the next day because he couldn't find any evidence that the doctor had violated a Michigan law. The Oakland County Prosecutor's Office is expected to appeal McNally's decision.

Girl dies in 'accidental shooting'

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A 15-year-old Independence Township girl was fatally injured after being shot in the head Saturday night, Dec. 15.

Carmen Blehm of High Street was transported to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital last Saturday after being shot in the head with a small caliber handgun. She died about 4:30 p.m. Sunday afternoon.

According to Sgt. Joe Quisenberry of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, Blehm was visiting a 14-year-old boy at his Oak Vista home when she was shot. The boy's parents were out, and the two teens were alone.

About 11:30 p.m. Saturday, the boy dialed 9-1-1 to alert officials of an accident in his home. The county sheriff's department, Emergency Medical Services, and the Independence Township Fire Department responded to the call.

Quisenberry said the preliminary investigation indicates that the shooting was accidental and the 14-year-old boy may have pulled the trigger.

So far, no ulterior motive has been found in the death of the Clarkston High School dropout.

Quisenberry said the sheriff's department is still investigating the incident. After the investigation, the Oakland County Prosecutor's Office will receive a copy of the findings. At that time, the prosecutor's office will determine if charges are to be levied in the matter.

At this time, the boy is in the custody of his parents. His name is being withheld because he is a minor.

Thief steals Christmas tree

An Eastview, Independence Township, woman was dismayed to find a 14-foot Colorado Blue Spruce toppled from her front yard.

Someone cut the tree at the base and then cut the top off — apparently for a Christmas tree, said owner Agnes DeNise.

The tree was worth about $1,000.

Agnes said she was astounded that someone would steal a tree from someone's yard. Two years ago, someone stole the tops of three towering spruces.

"I imagine they sold the tops," said DeNise. "This one, they probably kept it for themselves."

She thought other area residents should know about the theft, which she reported to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

"If you have a tree, watch it," advised DeNise.

Library director resigns Dec. 11

months:

In his tenure, voters approved a bond issue to quintuple the size of the current 4,000-square-foot library on Clarkston Road. Voters also approved an operating millage for the expanded library. Construction on the addition is set for spring.

Chris Shull, president of Friends of the Independence Township Library, a library fund-raising group, said Hibler was a competent library director.

"We'll be very sorry to see him go," she said. "He's done a lot for the library. He's made a lot of improvements."

"Our circulation has increased tremendously under him. He's put together a good staff. He's been very positive, and he's professional. He is well thought of," she said. "I have nothing but good things to say about him."

She said community members would have liked to see him head the expanded library "after struggling all these years."

She declined to comment on the friction between Hibler and the township board.

She said a separate library board might be helpful in the future, especially since the library has its own operating millage now.

"If we would have had one in place, who knows? Maybe (Hibler) would have had a little more support," she said.

Mother fights for rights of disabled daughter

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

A 10-year-old disabled girl is at the center of a controversy between her mother and a service organization in the Clarkston area.

Megan McKinney recently was turned down for a spot on the waiting list of PLUS, a big-brother, big-sister-type program run by the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance (CAYA). Her 15-year-old sister, who has no disabilities, was not turned down.

Megan's mother, Judy, was outraged and saddened by the PLUS committee's decision and is considering filing a complaint of discrimination with the American Civil Liberties Union.

Not discrimination, says social worker

However, Garry Pullins, social worker in charge of CAYA, said the PLUS decision was not discriminatory.

PLUS children are accepted on a case-by-case basis, he said.

The decision to take Megan off the list was difficult, he said, explaining that it may have been more politically expedient to leave her name on the list. He thought it more honorable to be forthright.

"The committee decided that rather than let (Megan) linger on the list, we should be honest with her (mother)," he said. "The committee felt they wouldn't be able to find someone who could handle (Megan's disabilities)."

Megan is severely mentally and physically handicapped, said Pullins. She can't talk or walk and must use diapers.

"Unfortunately, it's just pathetic. She can't function on her own."

"We do not discriminate in any way, but in this situation, ... it was untenable," he said.

Currently, six children are matched up with an adult in the Clarkston area PLUS program, and five children are awaiting volunteers.

In PLUS, the volunteers are trained and matched up with children so that both can benefit. The success of the program depends on the satisfaction felt by the volunteer, said Pullins.

If the volunteer could get no feedback from spend-

JUDY McKinney gives her daughter, Megan, 10, a hug in her living room. Judy signed up her 15-year-old daughter as well as Megan for the PLUS program because she believes that "every child needs a non-family member as a special friend." Megan was turned down because of her severe disabilities. Her big sister was hurt by the PLUS decision. "I really don't want to be in it now, if they can't accept my sister," she said, adding that Megan is fun to be around. "She tries to make everyone happy."

"We do not discriminate in any way, but in this situation, ... it was untenable."

Garry Pullins

ing time with Megan, it would not be a rewarding opportunity, said Pullins, adding that a shortage of volunteers already exists.

"We weren't doing this out of the hardness of our hearts," said Pullins. "I hated to call and tell her. ... You have to hand it to the mother. She's fought and strived to give this girl a home."

She deserves chance, says Mom

Judy, however, was angry about the decision and said it's just one of many injustices Megan has suffered.

"I think they should have kept her on the list regardless of whatever the chance she had (of finding a match)," she said. "She deserves that chance. ... Now she has none."

She also disagrees with Pullins about the satisfaction a volunteer might receive. She concedes that Megan can't talk and needs help to walk — due to psycho-motor apraxia, a mental retardation that has cerebral palsy- and autistic-like characteristics.

But Megan can give hugs and kisses and can laugh. She has the capabilities of a toddler, said Judy. She enjoys going to McDonald's, and she likes puppet shows, stories, music, concerts and more.

"If you know how to act with a toddler, then you'll know how to act with Megan," she said, adding that people can surprise others with the volunteerism they're willing to do.

Though she's angry with PLUS officials, Judy realizes that they may be a reflection of the community. That, too, disappoints her.

She has faced so much adversity in Megan's lifetime that she almost expects it.

Tough road in community

For instance, Megan was "politely kicked out of her Sunday school classroom," said Judy. The church wanted to put her in the nursery instead of in a room with children of her own age.

"She likes to be babied, but she needs to be around children her age and more normal type of behavior," said Judy.

The McKinney family decided to switch churches. However, after much searching, they couldn't find a church that allowed disabled youngsters in the "normal" Sunday school classes. Instead, they settled for a church that offered "special education" Sunday school.

Judy and her husband, Paul, have faced personal challenges as well.

Paul, who reflected before he spoke, recalled the reactions of some of his so-called friends when he told them about Megan.

"You feel like an outcast," he said. "I have a lot of friends I used to run around with. They don't come around anymore."

He, too, sees the reactions as fear in the community and a sign of the times.

"All the old-time country has gone out of Clarkston. ... It hurts," he said. "I don't mind growth, but it's the way people act. Money comes first and feelings second. ... It's a sign of the times. People have just lost the compassion for other people."

Attitudes changing

Despite their struggles, Judy predicts that attitudes will change in the next 10 years, beginning with children.

She applauds the statewide "Inclusion" movement that allows disabled youngsters to attend the school that other neighborhood children would attend, rather than being bused to, say, the Montgomery Developmental Training Center in Waterford.

Megan currently attends Montgomery but will begin attending Bailey Lake Elementary School half a day in January. She will be the first mentally impaired youngster to attend a "normal" elementary class in the Clarkston school district.

She will have an aid in the classroom to change her diapers and help her with tasks, so she won't be a burden on the teacher, explained Judy, adding that, she, too, was hesitant about the program.

"I was afraid she'd get made fun of and get stuck in a corner," said Judy. "After educating myself about the success rate, (I realized) there's no other alternative. This is what she needs to live in this world."

America must face disabled

The issue of disabled people must be faced by America, said Judy, who speaks with patience and determination. In the past, people haven't had to deal with it because the disabled were segregated.

"I really would like to see doors opened for kids like her to be a part of the community instead of having doors locked. ... Kids like Megan are here to teach everybody a lot about compassion. They can't teach it if they're shut out," she said.

Some day, Americans will be forced to come to terms with the disabled, continued Judy.

"It could happen to anyone — through an accident ... They could have a child some day or a grandchild like my daughter."

"If war breaks out in the (Persian) Gulf, there will be handicapped soldiers coming back. People need to take a look at that and not be afraid."

During the discussion in her living room, Megan, dark-haired and smiling, sat in a child-sized chair near the brightly-lit Christmas tree. Alert and happy, she laughed and jabbered at the holiday decorations and occasionally made raspberries with her mouth.

"I think they should have kept her on the list regardless of whatever the chance she had (of finding a match). She deserves that chance. ... Now she has none."

Her mother gently admonished her, explaining to her visitor that Megan likes the sound of a raspberry.

Judy paused. Looking at her daughter, she said, "Maybe Megan and I can change things."

Wood-burning stove ignites living room wall

A house fire about 2:45 p.m. Friday, Dec. 14, caused about $1,000 damage to a home on Felix Drive, Independence Township. No one was injured.

Independence Township firefighters quickly extinguished the blaze and discovered the apparent cause of the fire: a wood-burning stove.

The stove, standing too close to a living room wall, ignited the wall. The heat also caused an electrical fire, according to Capt. Mike Fahrner.

The fire damaged the exterior aluminum siding as well as the interior wall board, insulation and frame. Smoke also caused minor damage.

Home owner Theresa Kerstein was home at the time, and when a friend delivered some salt for the water softener, Kerstein noticed the flames and smoke behind the stove.

She immediately dialed 9-1-1.

Had she not been home, the fire could have caused much worse damage, said Fahrner.

Hearing set on antenna ordinance

Mobile home residents who like to watch television in Springfield Township may want to show up at a public hearing on Monday, Jan. 7.

The 7:30 planning commission hearing covers a proposed ordinance amendment to allow TV antennas in mobile home parks. The hearing takes place in the township hall, 650 Broadway.

Currently, a township ordinance prohibits antennas on mobile homes.

Following a discussion with five mobile home residents Dec. 17, the planning commission voted unanimously to set the hearing.

The residents, all who live in Springfield Estates Mobile Home Park on Dixie Highway, said the township's ordinance was unfair.

They staged a formal protest Dec. 1-2 in front of their mobile home park. At that time, they said they shouldn't have to pay a $14.95 monthly cable television fee. That fee was necessary even for "free" network stations, such as NBC, ABC, CBS and FOX.

If they were allowed to erect an antenna, they wouldn't have to pay for cable services, they said.

The ordinance prohibiting antennas in mobile home parks was passed in 1973, but none of the commission members served on the planning commission at that time. Commission member Marge Reuter said she didn't know why the ordinance had been adopted.

HARRY Fahrner, an on-call firefighter, extinguishes a burning log on the front lawn of Theresa Kerstein's residence on Felix Drive, Independence Township, Dec. 14. The log came from a wood-burning stove, which apparently was too close to a wall in the home, starting a fire that caused about $1,000 damage. (Photo by Julie Campe)

Planners say yes to Waldon-Clintonville rezoning

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Five parcels of land north of Waldon Road, west of Clintonville, received rezoning recommendations from

Attorneys approved for village tasks

Two attorneys were approved by the Clarkston Village Council for tasks within the village's governmental bodies Dec. 10.

At the request of the Charter Commission, attorney Thomas Ryan of Pontiac will give legal advice to the commission while it drafts the charter for the village's cityhood.

The commission intends to use Ryan's services when needed and not at every scheduled meeting, said Arkwright, a member of the Charter Commission.

Eight meetings have been scheduled between December and April for the purpose of drafting a charter.

Attorney Thomas Gruich was authorized as the official attorney for the village planning commission. Gruich, who serves as the village council's attorney, is with the firm, Booth, Patterson, Karlstrom, Lee and Steckling of Pontiac.

The planning commission plans to use Gruich's legal advice when drafting a bed and breakfast ordinance.

the Independence Township Planning Commission.

On Dec. 13, the planning commission unanimously voted to rezone the plots from commercial to single-family residential. About three of the parcels are currently occupied by homes.

The surrounding property is also zoned for single-family residential.

Township planning consultant Richard Carlisle recommended to the commission that the parcels be rezoned to be consistent with the township's master plan of land use and because of the characteristics of the immediate area.

Four of the property owners attended the meeting and voiced concern with the devaluation of their land. Carlisle told the group that their property wouldn't decrease in value if rezoned to single-family residential.

On the contrary, he said the rezoning would be a benefit to their present situations because the homes sit in a commercial district. In the event of a fire, where more than 50 percent of their homes were destroyed, they wouldn't be allowed to rebuild.

Both the residents and Carlisle were puzzled over the zoning of the area. A few of the residents admitted not knowing about the constraints of their current zoning and how it initially came about.

Carlisle believes their homes may have been overlooked in an across-the-board rezoning effort by the township in the early 1970s.

The planning commission approved of the request and its effects on the surrounding area.

"Our motivation is to bring these parcels into accordance with the adjacent land," said Jo Fussman. "Spot commercialization doesn't enhance the properties around it. With the golf course (Country Club of the North) going up across the road, the residents will probably find a rise in their property values."

The rezoning proposal will be forwarded to the township board, which has the final say in rezonings.

Earth tip

Attic insulation can save five percent or more on heating costs and 15 percent on air conditioning costs, depending on the climate. In some climates, new insulation can pay for itself in a single season. In most climates, it takes only one or two years.

If you need this,
you're in trouble

Julie Campe

If you're still having a difficult time coming up with Christmas gifts at this point, you're in big trouble.

But knowing a little something about deadlines myself, I thought I'd offer a few gifts suggestions to those of you who find yourself down to the wire.

Music lessons: If you have a person on your list who sings in the shower, you may want to sign him or her up for vocal lessons. Or how about six lessons on the flute? Or a year on piano? Or guitar?

While children may like this idea, it also could serve for the person who's in a rut right now or for those who have recently retired or have found themselves without children at home. Or for the person who has a secret dream that might finally be fulfilled with a lesson or two.

Babysitting services: This could be good for a home with children of all ages. If there are teen-agers in the household, maybe you could offer a weekend of teen and house sitting so the parents can take a break. Or if there are little ones, maybe a few nights of babysitting throughout the next year would be more helpful. If you're not up to the task yourself, perhaps you could offer to pay for the babysitter of the parents' choice.

A class: Do you have a history buff in your household? A movie-lover? A history or film class at Oakland University or Oakland Community College could be enjoyable to the person on your list. Other typical course offerings: astronomy, art history, drawing, psychology, computer programing, literature, drama and more.

Of course, Clarkston Community Education also offers interesting courses that might be more to your liking in terms of budget and course duration. Typical course offerings there include languages, ceramic tile-making, upholstery, furniture-making, auto mechanics, aerobics and more.

Movies, dinner: If you're completely stumped, gift certificates to a movie theater might be the answer. Or how about a gift certificate to your recipients' favorite restaurant? This gift is ideal for a couple on your list. For the younger ones, fast food certificates would be appreciated.

Ski lessons: For the winter person on your list, cross-country or downhill ski lessons (one or two sessions can really make a difference).

Photo frames: If you've got someone who's a grandmother on your list, a nice photo frame or set of frames might provide just the setting for her latest photographs. A teen-ager might also like this, as might new parents.

Toys: While it's easy to pick out toys for children, adults, too, might like a toy or two. If you take a stroll through a toy store and concentrate on the person for whom you're buying, some item might jump off the shelf at you. If not, how about an item that brings back the pastimes of youth: sponge footballs or basketballs, clay, a Viewmaster, puzzles, mind-teasers.

Hobby accessories: If you know something about your gift recipient's hobbies, you should be able to pick out a suitable item. For sports enthusiasts, try golf balls, racquet balls, softball, baseball glove, volleyball or soccer ball, tennis balls, knee pads or biking helmet.

For the winter person, there's lip protection on a string, goggles, or a pouch (for wallet, keys) that wraps around the waist. An amateur photographer on your list might like a variety of film, a camera-cleaning kit or a photography book.

Food: A favorite for most people—even the health-conscious. For the sweets-lover, a gift certificate to an ice cream or frozen yogurt parlor and a jar of fudge sauce might be ideal. Or how about a basket of granola? Or a basket with gourmet spaghetti makings? Or for the serious cook, a jar of truffles.

Books: A nature-lover might like a book about birds or trees, or how about a recipe book for the cook on your list? Other ideas include photography books (fisherman might like deep sea books, while mothers might like one on children), how-to books, children's books and more.

Planner: For those like yourself, how about a daily planner to help organize their lives?

That warming Christmas time music

Each Christmas season we are drawn to Christmas concerts in elementary schools. We've missed more than we've attended in our 40 years in newspapering, but we've been warmed by many.

It's the young ones who "make" our Christmases. You know that.

At concerts those scrubbed, combed, neat (when they left home) tikes come on stage unconcerned about anything but Mommy and teacher.

The early elementaries give us great joy from entrance to departure. The little girls will be so proud and pretty, the little boys (some by now having their shirt tails over their belt) unabashed and waving.

Teachers will have done a marvelous job corralling the chaos. It's wonderful to us how they can teach 30 little ones the words to a Christmas carol in a month and parents can't get a please and thank you out of 'em in three years of coaxing.

We smile when the little singers sneak a wave to a parent in the middle of "O Little Town of Bethlehem." We smile wider at the sight of little girls standing proud in their new outfits, and the boys looking a whole lot better than they feel in neckties.

The elementaries sing the simple songs of Christmas. The carols everyone knows. The songs we have on our cassettes. The warming sounds of Christmas.

Keep that feeling . . . May you have a glorious Christmas. JAS

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

Again this year "Jottings" greetings are sent via a picture of me and our two grandchildren. They have been good enough of the time this year to earn more gifts than they'll ever need.

Their bad acts are soon forgotten, especially by grandparents, as the little ones twist and turn those shortcomings into our open, willing hearts.

Danny, 5, is making his way through a half day of kindergarten. Karen is making her way through her 2s.

Hazel and I are fortunate that their parents, Bob and Luan Offer, live only a matter of yards out our back door. Danny has found his way over, through the swamp, and we're sure Karen will soon follow.

May you and your family be as fortunate this holiday season as we are . . . having your family close at Christmas.

Merry Christmas to all.

All children deserve a chance

It is appropriate that the case of little Megan McKinney surfaced during the holiday season. She represents what is sometimes lacking in the affairs of adults: acceptance of others.

Those who celebrate Hanukkah do so to observe the first recorded instance of a fight for religious freedom. That fight is far from over.

Those who celebrate Christmas do so to observe the birth of Jesus, who is recognized as a symbol of love and peace on Earth. The goal Jesus symbolizes has yet to be realized on the planet.

But little Megan McKinney, 10, dark-haired and smiling, could represent both objectives. Megan "is nice to everyone," according to her 15-year-old sister.

Megan, who is severely mentally and physically impaired, was turned down for a chance on the waiting list of the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance's PLUS program, a type of big-brother, big-sister system.

At the recommendation of the PLUS committee, Garry Pullins, social worker in charge of Clarkston's Youth Assistance, took Megan off the list because he thought it was better to be honest and forthright with Megan's mother about the chances of finding a volunteer for Megan.

Pullins should be commended for performing his duties even when it would have been more politically expedient to simply leave Megan on the list and ignore the fact that a shortage of volunteers means a very slim chance of finding a "big sister" for someone with such severe disabilities as Megan.

Megan's mother also should be commended for her continuing battle in the face of adversity. She insists that Megan should remain on the list because even a slim chance is better than no chance at all.

Her stand is just one of hundreds she has taken throughout Megan's 10 years. Though society is slowly changing, it is not changing fast enough for Megan.

Megan deserves the same opportunities as any other child in the area, states her mother.

I agree and ask the PLUS committee to reconsider. It does not obligate the committee members to find a match for Megan. Volunteerism by definition requires a willing participant.

A favorable decision would, however, leave Megan and her mother with the all-important "hope."

I also thank Megan for her timely lesson in compassion. Even if we can't help her, she may have helped some of us in our view of the world. JLC

People missing point of widening

As a former resident of Independence Township and former member of the Independence Township Fire Department, I feel you (the residents of Clarkston) are missing the point about widening M-15.

Sure it will be a mess for a while, but nothing gets better before it gets worse. As a member of the United States Air Force, I know this first hand.

Presently there is too great a volume of traffic for M-15 to continue to handle. A turn lane is greatly needed in the congested area between Dixie and Paramus due to the high flow of high school traffic and convenience stores.

Everybody also seems to gripe about the response time for fire department vehicles coming from Station No. 1 in town to Dixie and the surrounding area.

Let me be the first to tell you that with the widening, the response time would be reduced because the traffic would have somewhere to go, unlike now where some areas don't have shoulders for cars to move onto to yield the right of way to emergency vehicles.

Now as far as restoring beauty and drawing people to Clarkston, Myrtle Shoots wrote, "Our new Dixie Highway is beautiful" (Nov. 28 issue), and everybody complained about that until their tongues fell off.

You can also just forget drawing any more people to Clarkston because only about 10 percent of Clarkston is not developed or being developed, and it is so expensive that there is almost no way I could afford to move back home if I got out of the Air Force today.

So I think that you need to go think of something else to complain about, like your neighbor who lets his dog out at 2 in the morning and the dog barks its head off, which in turn wakes you up.

'If it Fitz...'

Priorities leave city in the dark

Jim Fitzgerald

"What do you know, our streetlights are out again," my wife said Tuesday night as she looked out a window of our 26th-floor home. "Don't worry," I said, looking out another window. "The lights are on in front of the St. Aubin Marina and the Chene Park outdoor theater. No December boaters or show patrons will be mugged in the dark."

Our conversation was light because, after living 14 years under the rule of King Coleman Young, we've become jaded about the city's weird priorities. Newcomers often gasp in astonishment at the same tax-funded stupidities that barely evoke a ho-hum from us.

Unlit streets have lately received publicity since the slaying of a Rosedale Park resident during an apparent burglary. A celebrity neighbor - fight manager Emanuel Steward - attracted much attention when he complained it was impossible to see the culprits because there were no streetlights and "it was jet black out there." Subsequently, many naive people were surprised to learn that not only were the Rosedale lights out for a month, but similarly dark periods occur regularly in neighborhoods across the city.

Ho hum. Where we live, in thickly populated Lafayette Park on the east edge of downtown, lights on several blocks of East Lafayette Boulevard go dark several times a year, sometimes for only one night, other times for as long haven't been on for about three years.

It is hopeless to seek an explanation from the Department of Public Lighting. By the time you get a live, rational person on the phone, instead of a useless recorded message, the streetlights will probably be back on. I long ago accepted the explanation offered by many longtime residents that scattered blocks of lights are systematically turned off simply to save money. No one's ever proved it, but hundreds of residents sincerely believe it.

No one denies that public money is short in this shrinking-tax-base city. Which is why citizens like me shouldn't be jaded. We should be screaming. Screaming about stupid city priorities such as the one that allowed the construction of the $40-million St. Aubin Marina, named after the same street as our most recent massacre.

In August, a year after it opened, Detroit Monthly magazine designated St. Aubin the area's best marina because, "No one's ever there, so you'll have it all to yourself." As one who can see the marina every day without leaving my favorite chair, I can testify that this is only a slight exaggeration. During the boating season, maybe 10 of the 67 slips are usually occupied. And for eight months of the year, the marina just sits there, virtually empty, but with a neon sign glowing its name toward an empty river.

A few yards east, there's similar emptiness at the Chene Park outdoor theater and huge parking lot. Since $5.5 million was spent turning a nice little neighborhood park into another expensive Pine Knob, there've been some fannies in the seats for scattered shows from June to September. The rest of the year, Chene Park does absolutely nothing for the taxpayers who paid for it.

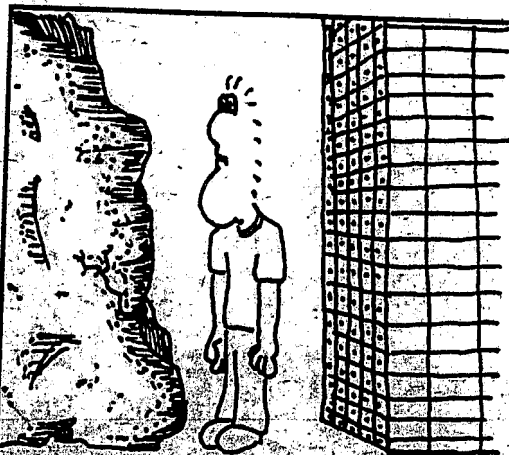

Luxurious frills are nice, if you can afford them. But do the residents of crime-threatened neighborhoods need a marina and outdoor theater a few weeks a year more than they need well-lighted streets every night?

Hey, it was Mayor Young's idea to help keep the red-linked, mostly empty People Mover moving by loaning it $1.73 million from the lighting department.

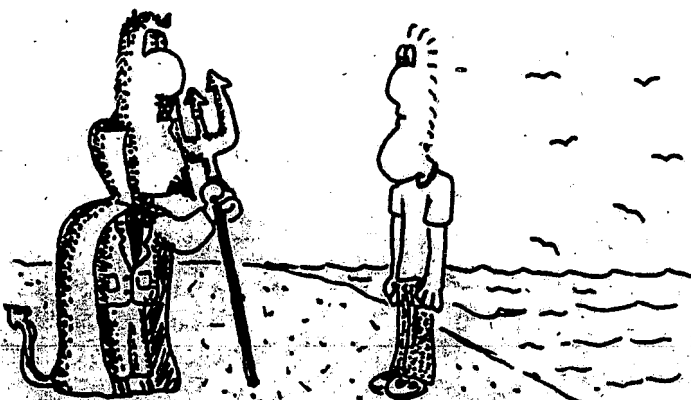

Did you just hear a scream in the dark?

Tracy King's column will return next week.

Pizza, chips reward good attendance, grades

Pupils giggled Dec. 14 when their principal served them a special lunch at Clarkston Elementary School.

The lunch of pizza, pop (or milk), chips and cookies for the about 60 children was a sort of reward.

Principal William Potvin said the lunch recipients were the winners of a random drawing of names from the list of students with perfect attendance and the list of students on the honor roll.

The new program is part of an effort to remove competition from the school. While each student to make one of the lists is rewarded with a letter of congratulations at home, their names are not posted at the school. Rather, a few of the students are randomly chosen for the lunch with the principal.

Since kindergartners don't eat lunch at the school, Potvin gave each of those selected winners a candy cane and a sticker.

In grades kindergarten through five, 225 students posted perfect attendance for the first marking period — that's a whopping 45 percent.

In grades three through five, 164, or 66 percent, of the students made the honor roll. Younger grade-level students don't have an honor roll.

The program debut worked out well, said Potvin, explaining that he planned to serve lunch to selected students after each marking period.

The students, too, approved of the arrangement.

Between mouthfuls of pizza, Jason Cole, 8, a second-grader, said Potvin was an "OK" waiter.

Don't speak for us on Pine Knob

I have read about Pine Knob's new owner, and I have read about all the grand ideas for change.

And I, too, read, "We've talked to the township (Independence), and they assured us that a rise in the total number of shows wouldn't have an adverse effect on the area."

Well that's bull crap! Who ever made that promise does not live near Pine Knob, or they are getting one big kickback.

When the music theater first began, it was terrible. Concert-goers forgot all manners if they ever had any.

They yelled, honked horns, threw bottles and trash, raced, knocked over mailboxes, ran into our trees, urinated and, yes, defecated on our lawns — not to speak of vomiting.

We couldn't sleep, no matter how early we had to get up for work, because the last of the concert drinkers would always have to blast that last horn or yell that last profanity far into mid-night. By that time, it was very hard to fall asleep.

In the last couple of years, however, it has been tolerable. The traffic has been the worst. Oh, there's always those few who would honk or race while yelling, but it was not as many and from only certain concerts.

We have gotten where we schedule our going and coming from our house around Pine Knob's traffic. For many of those coming and going to Pine Knob think they are in the "country" and anything goes as far as speed, which side of the road they drive on, and whether to drink while driving.

That's what really is getting my goat. We, the people of Clarkston, who were here the last 15-30 years, made Clarkston what it was — that warm, country-like community we wanted it to be.

Sure some growth is fine in its place. The only thing, there is not going to be a place left!

If you have not noticed, many of the residents who have lived here and moved here years back did so because of the rural atmosphere. Now, you OK building, development — right and left.

You wonder why you see so many animals killed on the roads or deer in subdivisions. It's because they once lived there, but some people's greed for more and more tax revenue has taken not only our country setting but the wildlife's home. And there is no place for them to go.

Only so much wildlife can survive on a piece of land. Just like they are moving the long-time residents out with ever-higher taxes.

They say more concert shows won't create any adverse effects. I say they have their heads in a pocket book.

They not only create more sleepless nights and burnt-out spots on our lawns and morning clean-up jobs for us, but they are removing more wildlife for expansion of a parking lot, picnic areas or who knows what's to come.

Then down the road they have an 800-acre golf course and housing development. That's more traffic, not to speak of the many other areas, such as Sashabaw and Waldon. They are creating a monster of a traffic jam.

They are taking Clarkston (Independence) and changing it to fit all other towns, the towns our new residents are moving away from. They will have created an environment with very little breathing space but several vacant shops.

Even some of the new residents are upset. I spoke with a lady just the other day. She moved here just a few years back because of the atmosphere, but now she has more traffic problems and high taxes with less service rendered. She questioned her move.

The one who told Mr. Wilson, "The total number of shows wouldn't have an adverse effect on the area," should have thought of the residents in the area. He should have talked to some of the sheriff's deputies who have had to patrol the theater and write the reports.

Maybe if that person had to go with sleepless nights it would have been different. Because by the time the last of the inconsistent concert-goers stream by with their often drunken ways, that person would have a little different feeling for Pine Knob Music Theater.

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., Dec. 19, 1990 9

Maybe.

Anyway, it would be nice to think that our township officials would think of its people first before the almighty dollar. Don't just speak from your pocket book, and by all means, don't speak for something you evidently know nothing about.

Don't speak for the people who truly have to deal with this.

Let Kevorkian be

Let Dr. Kevorkian alone. He just may have found the answer to a lot of human suffering.

In 1966 my mother was dying of cancer. I drew ahead on my federal leave for 2 1/2 years, as much as they would let me and drove back to Iowa, some 2,000 miles, to take care of her.

I heard her moans, cries and begging to die for days, then weeks. I can hear them yet, almost 25 years later. She had excruciating pain, and I could do nothing but beat my head against the wall.

Last year, my 11-year-old boxer dog had bone cancer, and the veterinarian advised me to have her put to sleep, "to stop her suffering."

What is wrong with a society that makes a human suffer for months and a lower animal be relieved of its pain?

If I could get my hands on (Assistant Prosecutor Michael) Modelski, I would be more than happy to give him a good swift kick in the gluteous maximus to see if I could jar his brains, if any, so his thinking came out unscrambled.

Don't be quoting the Bible to me — you don't know what real suffering is until you have been there.

Discrimination unfair to child

I have lived in or around the Clarkston area for 36 years and have seen a lot of changes — some good, some bad.

Clarkston seems to be growing in leaps and bounds, but unfortunately, compassion and care for those in need or who appear different are doing anything but growing.

I have two children, one who is normal and one who is mentally impaired.

I keep a close eye on changes for our handicapped in the community. With the new special education movement called "inclusion," I expect to see a lot of positive changes for our handicapped school aged in this decade. Hopefully, all children will have the same opportunities in the community as well as in school.

Hopefully, with inclusive education, our children today will learn to respect and accept their disabled neighbors and see the reality of just how ugly prejudiced attitudes in any way, shape or form really are.

It's too bad that the adults in Clarkston aren't going to be educated to learn compassion for their disabled neighbors. They need education of this kind more than children need it.

About two months ago, I met a mother who had adopted several handicapped children. They live in Fenton, which is a lot smaller than Clarkston.

For her children to get known and involved in the Fenton community, she applied for services from the local Youth Assistance program.

Each child was matched up with a big brother or big sisters. This way, each child has a pal (non-family) who takes him or her out occasionally for a couple of hours, to McDonald's, special community events, etc.

I applied for services for my children through Clarkston's Youth Assistance program. The big brother and sister program in Clarkston is called "Plus." Every child needs a non-family pal to do special things with and for a disabled child, a program like this may be the only way that will ever happen.

I'm very angry and outraged! I received a phone call today from Clarkston's Youth Assistance to inform me that their committee decided to take my disabled child off of their list for a match in the Plus program solely because of her handicap.

Who do they think they are? Don't they feel that civil rights laws apply to Clarkston?

Needless to say, I won't give up this one without a fight — a fight for equal rights! Not only for my child but for those who will follow, and there will be others. Times are changing.

It's high time for certain self-righteous people in Clarkston to wake up. The growth and wealth of a community is not what determines if it's a good community or not. It's the people who make a community what it is, and from where I sit, Clarkston is going down fast.

It used to be a nice place to live. People used to care about the rights of others. Where have they gone? Did all the high and mighty who moved here looking for "country" drive them out?

I won't leave. I grew up in Clarkston, and my children will, too. My children's civil rights will be honored in time. All kids deserve the same opportunities as any other kid in their hometown.

None should be denied, and I intend to stay and help any child, any family or any person whose rights are being denied, in any way that I can. Someone has to.

Carols and caroling

Caroling was a popular pastime in England, where it is said to have come into common use after the Norman Conquest.

Various religious carols composed in other lands were sung, and Englishmen produced some of the most beloved carols, including "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," "Joy to the World," "Angels from the Realms of Glory," and the secular ones, such as "God Rest Ye Merry, Gentlemen," "Deck the Halls," and several wassailing songs.

Clarkston on 'Dear Neighbor' list

Clarkston is one of 43 Michigan communities targeted in the American Diabetes Association's (ADA) "Dear Neighbor" program.

The program, slated to last the entire month of December, has collected about 10,000 volunteers state-wide. The program has been canvassing neighborhoods by mail.

Dear Neighbor will conclude in early January 1991. The ADA's hopes to raise over $3.5 million nationally.

According to statistics, nearly 14 million American have diabetes, a chronic metabolic disorder. In Michigan, an estimated 462,500 residents have diabetes. The condition can result in deadly complications. Michigan leads the nation in diabetes-related deaths.

Diabetes is a disease whereby the body does not produce or properly use insulin. The resulting high blood sugar can severely damage the heart, blood vessels, eyes and nerves. Diabetes can be easily diagnosed with a blood sugar test. While there is presently no cure, it can be controlled. If left untreated, diabetes can lead to death.

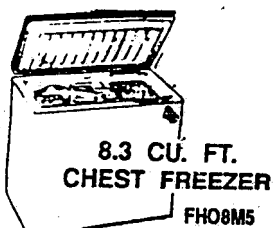

For more information on the Dear Neighbor campaign, call 552-0480 Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

THE STARS are "too shy" to visit the Christ child in the manger, they tell the narrator of "Away from the Manger." The Christmas program, directed by Betty Anderson, was presented to Calvary Lutheran Church members on Dec. 16. The play depicts the animals and people and "stars" who did not go to the manger in Bethlehem. A handful of shepherds didn't go because the trip was not in their job description. The innkeeper's wife (played by Judy Nichols) did not show up because she was too busy shopping and fighting census crowds. A group of wise men missed the birth because they were at a celestial conference at the time. And a group of stable animals, too, did not take the effort to see the baby Jesus, they say during rehearsal Dec. 15. (Photo by Julie Campe)

Make the most of your miscellaneous deductions

Ever since Congress rewrote the rules for deducting miscellaneous itemized expenses, fewer taxpayers have been able to take advantage of these write-offs.

But if you familiarize yourself with the tax rules, you may be surprised to find yourself with a substantial deduction.

The current rules are fairly easy to understand, says the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants. If you itemize, you may generally deduct only the portion of your miscellaneous deductions that exceeds 2 percent of your adjusted gross income.

Most miscellaneous itemized deductions fall into three general categories: employee business expenses, investment expenses and tax-related expenses.

Employee business expenses

Employee business expenses are costs you incur in connection with your employment. Some of the more common business-related miscellaneous itemized deductions are:

■ Travel, lodging, meal and entertainment expenses: As a general rule, you may deduct 100 percent of your allowable travel and lodging expenses, and 80 percent of your expenses for business-related meals and entertainment — subject, of course, to the 2 percent.

■ Business gifts: There's a $25 limit on how much you can deduct for gifts to any one person in a year.

■ Subscriptions: You may deduct the cost of subscribing to professional and trade journals that are related to your work.

■ Education: In many cases, you may deduct the cost of employment-related education expenses, including tuition, books, supplies and lab fees.

The primary requirement is that the courses help you maintain or improve your present work skills, or are required by your employer or the law to keep your present job. You may not deduct education expenses that qualify you for a new trade or line of business.

■ Job search: You may deduct many of the expenses that you incur when looking for a job as long as you are looking in your same line of work.

■ Use of home telephone: You may deduct unreimbursed long distance calls made for business purposes.

■ Uniforms and work clothes: If your employer requires you to wear a uniform that is not suitable for everyday wear, you may deduct the cost of the clothes as well as the cleaning bill. Clothing that protects workers — such as safety shoes, hard hats, glasses or work gloves — are also deductible.

■ Small tools required for your work: You may deduct the cost of small tools and supplies you need for work. Other tools/supplies with a longer life may need to be depreciated.

■ Dues to union or professional organizations.

■ Home office expenses: If you use your home for business purposes and meet IRS qualifications for a home office, you may be able to deduct the cost of operating and maintaining a portion of your home.

Investment-related expenses

You may also deduct certain investment-related expenses. A sample of deductible items is listed below:

■ Safe-deposit-box rental fees: If you use a safe-deposit box to store income-producing stocks and bonds or papers related to your investments, you may deduct the annual rental fee.

■ Investment-management fees and legal fees: If you pay someone to manage your investments, you may deduct the amounts you pay that person as long as your investments produce taxable income. The same is true of legal fees, providing the lawyer's advice is related to producing taxable income.

■ IRA administration fees: You may deduct administrative fees that are charged for maintaining your IRA, as long as you pay the fees with separate funds.

■ Subscriptions to investment-related publications.

Tax-preparation deductions

■ Tax advice and return preparation: You may deduct fees you pay for tax advice or for having your return prepared.

■ Tax-preparation and tax-planning books and videos.

■ Long-distance calls and postage on mail to the IRS.

■ Appraisal fees: You may deduct appraisal fees that you pay to determine the fair market value of property you donate to charity.

Although claiming a deduction for miscellaneous itemized expenses has become more difficult, careful planning can pay off. CPAs advise that you bunch your expenses into alternate years so you can maximize your deductions.

Review all of your itemized expenses early in the year, and if it appears as if they will fall short of your standard deduction, you may be able to postpone enough expenses into the next year so you can take full advantage of them.

The above information was provided by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.

Christmas trees

Some sources trace the origin of the Christmas tree to the Romans and Egyptians; others give Germany the credit.

One story relates that in Germany during the 18th century, the missionary St. Boniface urged the Germans to discontinue their bloody, pagan rites in dark forests and instead to carry fir trees into their homes at yuletide.

Martin Luther is said to have set up a tree lighted with candles for his children, and this idea spread through northern Europe and then to the New World.

Opinions differ as to who set up the first Christmas tree in the United States. Several sources give credit to Charles Follen, who had a lighted tree at his home in Cambridge, Mass., in 1832.

And according to Frank J. Dutcher, the community of Hopedale in the same state used some of the earliest trees in New England.

(Source: "All About American Holidays" by Maymie R. Krythe, 1962, Harper and Brothers, NY.)

Christmas gifts

Gift-giving at yuletide dates back to the Roman Saturnalia, when those people presented their friends "strenae" (fruits, pastries and even jewelry).

Also, the Magi (or Wise Men) brought rich gifts to the Christ child in the manger at Bethlehem.

Today the custom continues, though some say the holiday has become tinged with commercialism.

Planners take Chamber advice on sign law

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Independence Township Planning Commission has directed the township attorney to drop the amortization clause from the proposed sign ordinance.

In a discussion of possible changes to the proposed ordinance last week, the commissioners agreed to hold off on an amortization clause. The clause would have called for businesses to erect new signs every 20 years.

Last month, the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce said that clause would be unfair to business owners. Chamber member Dick Ayers said that many of the older signs in the township are attractive and have a lot of "life" left in them.

At the Dec. 13 meeting, township planning consultant Richard Carlisle relayed to the commission some of the problems faced by the city of Ann Arbor when it tried to enforce a similar clause. He said public opposition forced the clause to be dropped from the 30-year-old sign ordinance.

Commission member Steven Secatch said the clause could cause complications in passing the sign ordinance.

"I think the Chamber of Commerce has a good gripe," he said. "I don't see the ordinance as flying with this amortization clause included."

Township attorney Gerald Fisher is currently "working out the bugs" in the proposed ordinance. An updated version of the ordinance will be sent to the planning commission for preliminary review. The township board has the final authority to accept or deny the ordinance.

A warm call

A collect phone call from her grandson Sunday surprised and pleased Agnes DeNise of Eastview, Independence Township.

"I was so shocked when the call came from Saudi Arabia that I thought I'd fall over," she said Monday, Dec. 17.

Her grandson, Bert, 19, a U.S. Marine, was sent to the desert last week, said Agnes.

"It was so great to hear him," she said, explaining that he operates the large trucks that are preparing to go out in farther in the desert.

Bert, a Holly High School graduate, said the temperature was in the 80s, and it was dry.

"I told him we have our banner out for him, and his aunt and cousin have one out, too," said Agnes. "He said, 'Oh, Grandma, that makes me feel good that my family would do this for me.'"

Bert, who is "real soft spoken" and "affectionate," according to his grandmother, has no complaints about his newest posting. In fact, he said basic training has, by far, been the worst part of the Marines.

"He sounded in the right frame of mind to be there," she said. "After I talked to him, I wasn't worried."

Wish they may, wish they might

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Area businesses and local residents have shown strong support for the less fortunate this holiday season. At the Big Boy Restaurant on Dixie Highway, Independence Township, employees created a Christmas Wish Tree.

The tree listed the names of 35 needy children and senior citizens in the Clarkston area along with their requests for holiday gifts.

As of Dec. 17, each one of the wishes had been fulfilled by area residents, Big Boy employees reported.

The response was "just fantastic," according to employees.

The contributions will be transported to Lighthouse North on Maybee Road, Independence Township, which will distribute them.

In addition, workers at the restaurant have adopted a family for the holiday season. The woman and her three sons, ages 3, 5 and 9, will receive gifts paid for by contributions from the Big Boy staff.

Sayles Studio on Dixie Highway, Waterford Township, was also the source of a drive to assist the less fortunate in the Clarkston area.

The company collected 75 hats and mittens and about a dozen bags of groceries. The items will also be distributed by Lighthouse North.

The drive attracted Sayles customers, who received eight free wallet-sized photos in exchange for their contributions.

A Christmas Wish Tree has been set up at Bank One, Fenton, and the Davisburg Medical Center on Andersonville Road, Davisburg.

The companies have decorated the tree with children's names from the Springfield Township area. Each child wrote three wishes on a tag in hope that Santa will deliver.

Gifts will benefit low income and handicapped children.

Names can be picked up at Bank One, Fenton, and the Davisburg Medical Center located at 12713 Andersonville Road.

For more information about the Christmas Wish Tree, call Maggie Cole at 624-5700.

In praise of underdogs

All of the unsung heroes of the world deserve some tribute, and the third Friday in December is the day to salute them.

This date, known as Underdog Day, falls on Dec. 21 this year.

Underdog Day provides an opportunity to pay homage to all of the number two people who contribute so much to making top dogs look good.

Robinson Crusoe's Friday, Batman's Robin, Sherlock Holmes' Dr. Watson, and the Lone Ranger's Tonto are some underdogs who deserve a lot of credit.

And Charlie Brown, who often takes a back seat to Snoopy, is an underdog in the truest sense of the word.

Mark Dec. 21 on your calendar, and take the opportunity to thank the underdogs in your life.

Wolves hold off never-say-die Dragons

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Final scores can be deceiving.

It would appear that the Clarkston varsity boys' basketball team edged Lake Orion, 69-65, last Friday night.

But Clarkston, sparked by Dugan Fife's game-high 34 points, led by a comfortable margin throughout the game, only to have the Dragons score the game's last 11 points in less than three minutes to close the gap.

"Maybe they saw the end was near and laid off," said Dragon coach Chuck Mahoney. "They tried to protect the lead. They weren't as aggressive."

Mahoney said anytime Clarkston and Lake Orion meet, it's a good rivalry.

"Those kinds of games you never give up," said Mahoney.

Clarkston coach Dan Fife, whose team raised its record to 3-0, said his team didn't give up, it just wasn't sinking the front ends of 1-1 free throws when the Dragons quickly fouled the Wolves in the closing minutes to try and beat the clock.

"We couldn't put the game away," said the Wolves coach. "This is a young team (only one returning starter). They still have some work to do."

The Wolves were 13 of 23 (57 percent) from the charity line and Lake Orion sank 16 of 24 (66 percent).

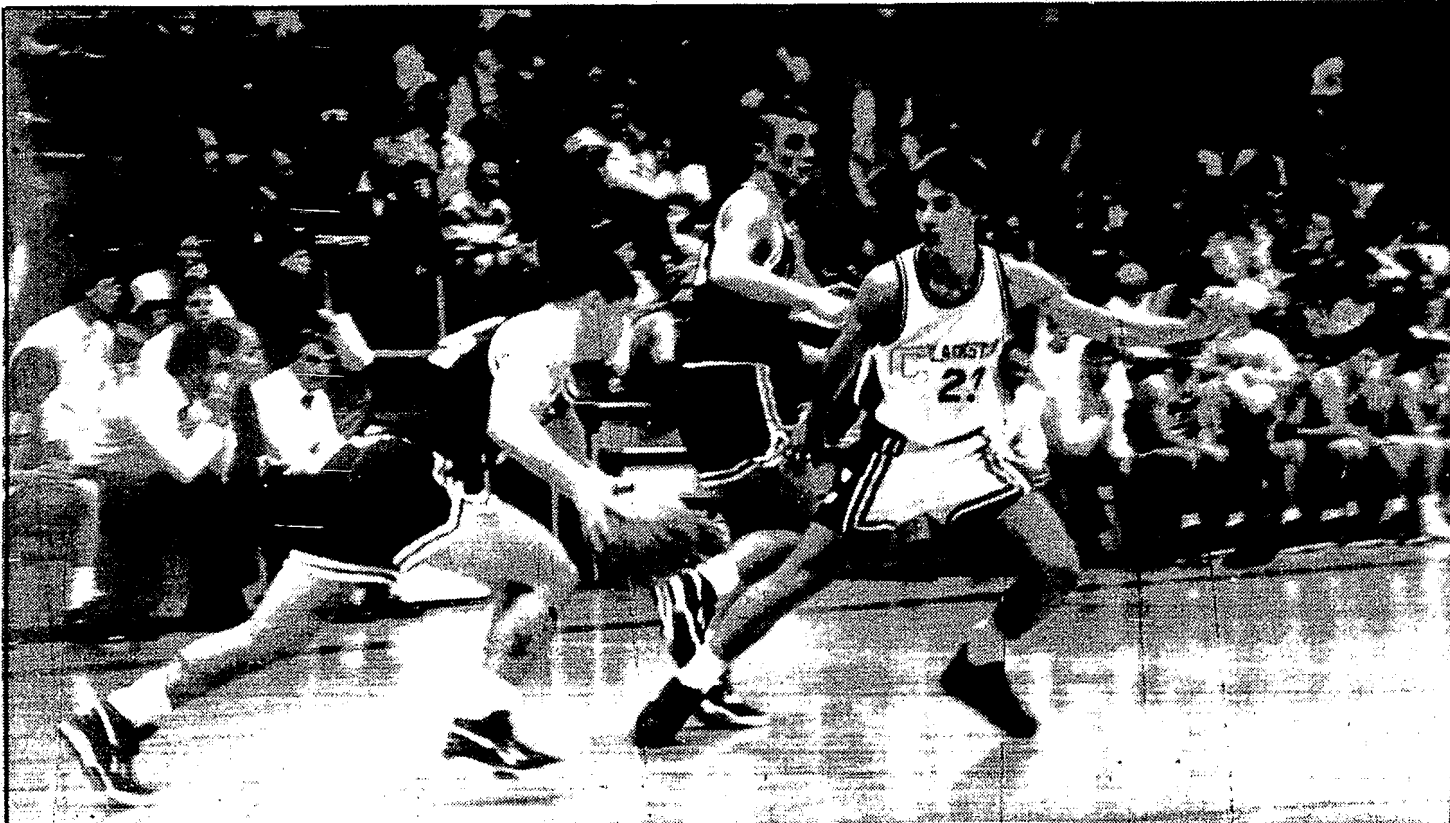

Clarkston raced out to a 23-14 first quarter advantage, led 39-29 at the half and then stretched it to a 59-43 bulge going into the final quarter.

A rambunctious group of students in the Clarkston cheering section call their part of the bleachers "The Zoo" and especially during the first three quarters the Dragons were getting hurt by the king of the beasts, Dugan Fife.

Whenever Lake Orion seemed to make some kind of run, Fife seemed to counter with a basket, including four 3-pointers for the night.

And in the third quarter, Fife shared the clutch shooting with teammate Mark Galbraith, who finished with 13 points. Galbraith's teammates often call the big 6-foot, 4-inch senior Uwe Blab (a West German who once played at the University of Indiana).

Coach Fife said Galbraith is a great example of persistency and hard work. Fife said Galbraith was the last one to survive the cut when he played JV and last year, as a junior, he rarely played.

But because of his efforts during the off-season, Fife said Galbraith "seems to get better and better."

Other Wolf scorers were Derek Wiley with eight, Luke Fedio seven, Chris Wasilk four, Sean Halleran two and David Smith one.

Jim Vackaro paced the Dragons with 19 and Chad Mikin and Adam Timpf each had 13.

Clarkston's junior varsity made it a sweep, downing the Dragons, 61-44.

Wrestlers 8-0 in dual meets, 2nd in Lansing

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After crushing three opponents to raise their dual record to 8-0, Clarkston wrestlers met up with perennial powerhouse Temperance-Bedford Dec. 15 at the Lansing Eastern Invitational.

Temperance-Bedford won the early-season battle between the two highly-ranked teams and the invitational title, gathering 203 1/2 points to second-place Clarkston's 173 1/2. Eighteen teams competed in the event. It was the first time the Wolves were ever invited to the meet, which annually hosts many of the state's best teams.

"They already told us, 'see ya next year,'" said Clarkston coach Scott Strickler, who said the Wolves had been trying to get into the tournament for three years. Strickler, who had praises for Temperance-Bedford's team depth, said he hoped for at least a second-place finish in the meet. The Wolves competed without injured co-captain Joel Davis (189) and Brian Davis (160).

Clarkston and Temperance-Bedford split on the four matches the schools went head-to-head.

What does Strickler think would happen between the two schools in a dual meet?

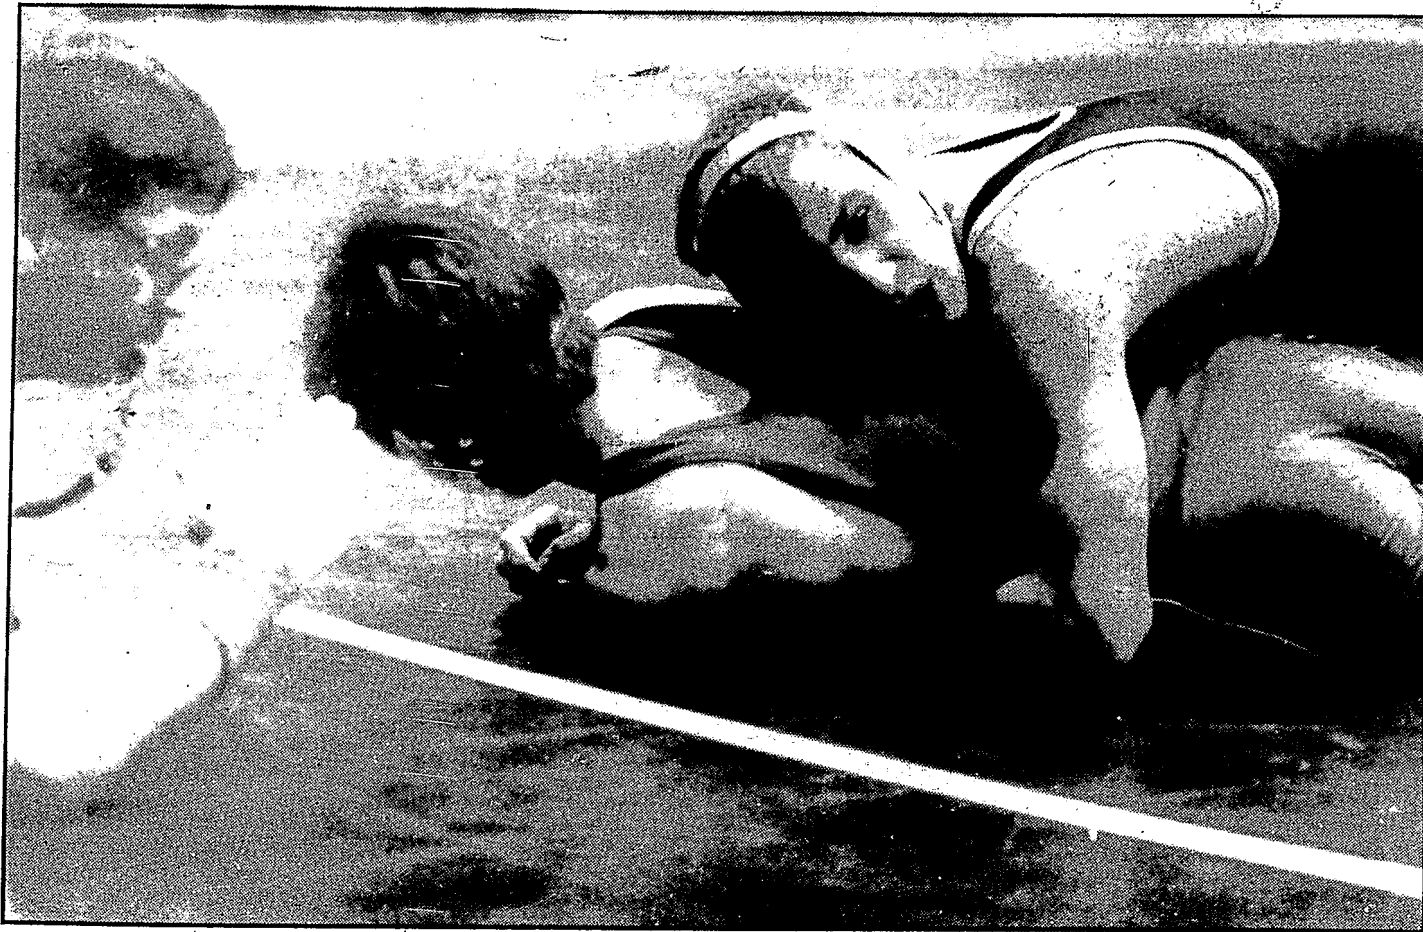

"It would be dog gone close," said the coach, whose team was rated No. 1 in the state by several polls.

Clarkston had four individual champions while Temperance-Bedford won had three individual winners.

One of those champions for Clarkston was sophomore Jeff Deroseau, who defeated Temperance-Bedford's Mark Williamson, 3-2, in the 103-pound final. Deroseau's record jumped to 10-0 with the victory.

Fellow sophomore Jerry Anderson, now 11-0, defeated defending state champion Randy Weisenberger of New Lothrop in an injury default in the finals of the 125 division.

Wolf senior Alex Martin raised his record to 10-1 by stopping Eaton Rapids'

MIKE STANTON has everything in control against Berkley's Zach Olevinick. Stanton won the match, 15-0.

Jeff Griggs, 8-5, in the 140-pound championship.

Senior Damon Michelsen defeated Lansing Eastern's Stanley Wray, 9-3, for the 171-pound title. The Wolf co-captain is 10-0-1 on the season.

Other Wolves who placed and their records are: junior Matt Seitz, fourth at 152 (he is now 9-2); senior Jason Slater, fifth at 160 (now 7-3); and senior Mike Stanton, sixth at 135 (now 10-2).

Clarkston next competes at the Oakland County meet Friday and Saturday and then will resume action on Jan. 5 after the holidays.

Clarkston 63, Berkley 7
Clarkston 46, West Bloomfield 18
(Dec. 13 at Clarkston)

Berkley and West Bloomfield each won two of the first three weight divisions when facing Clarkston, but the Wolves dominated all other matches en route to lopsided wins in the tri-meet.

"Our middle and upper divisions are real strong," said coach Strickler. "If we start out slow in a match, I'm not too worried."

The tri-meet was the first home match for the Wolves.

"I was happy with the crowd," said Strickler, whose team won't be home again until Jan. 10 when the Wolves host Water-

Brennan at 2:31; Michelsen (171) won by default over Tom Watkins; Nathan Smith (189) won by void; Joe Webb (heavyweight) pinned Steve Tighe at 0:49.

West Bloomfield, 2-1, gave the Wolves a better battle but the Wolves still only lost three matches.

Once again, Deroseau started out with a pin, this time against West Bloomfield's Justin Pines at 0:31.

And once again, the Wolves would lose the next two weight divisions. West Bloomfield's Brian Robinson pinned Forbes at 3:15 and teammate Ed Rapal pinned Locher at 4:32. But the Wolves only lost one more match when Adam Ellis pinned Detkowski at 2:54 in 160-pound action.

Other Wolves who won besides Deroseau were: Anderson pinning Jason McClellan at 3:49; Liggett winning on a void; Stanton pinning Jon Lamb at 1:55; Martin defeating Mark Matyanowski, 4-3; Cohoon defeating Jason Ellis, 4-0; Seitz stopping Max Mancini, 10-5; Smith pinning Mark Edelstein at 2:58; Michelsen crushing Eric Swartz, 15-1; and Webb defeating Tyrone Davis, 7-1.

Clarkston "B" 41, Southfield 21
(Dec. 11 at Southfield)

Clarkston's "B" team won eight matches en route to a victory over Southfield's varsity, 41-21.

Five of the eight Clarkston wins came on pins. Wolves who pinned their opponents were: Liggett (130) against Chris Podlewski at 5:32; Mike Cain (135) against Gary Ennis at 1:18; Rick Mini (145) against Ernest Chapman at 0:46; Smith (171) against Lionel Baisden at 1:59; and John Roy (heavyweight) against Rich Halpin at 5:33.

Clarkston's Locher (119) defeated Meldon Street, 19-12; Wolf Frank Lafferty (140) stopped Arthur Martin, 9-4; Seitz (152) won on a technical fall over Shawn Maxwell, 15-0.

Winning for Southfield were: Jerry Smith (103) on a void; Tim Podlewski (125) pinned Terry Melvin at 3:08; Todd Corbell (160) edged Detkowski; Chris Hartman (189) pinned Mitch Peterson at 5:00.

There was a double void in the 112 division.

"Our middle and upper divisions are real strong. If we start out slow in a match, I'm not too worried."

In the Berkley match, Wolf Deroseau (103) pinned Tom Berry at 0:40. Berkley's Rob Shingles (112) then decided Pat Forbes, 15-5, followed by Berkley's Bob Losey (119) defeating Steve Locher, 3-0.

But the Wolves didn't lose another match after that to Berkley, which dropped to 0-2.

Anderson (125) defeated Tom Al-Miki, 12-0; Charlie Liggett (130) pinned Ken Sexton at 1:32; Stanton (135) stopped Zach Olevinick, 15-0; Martin (140) pinned Scott Harkonen at 0:46; Steve Cohoon (145) won by default over Josh Sanon; Seitz (152) won by default over Eric Shim-mell; Rick Detkowski (160) pinned Matt

9th grade Wolverines edge rival Cougars

BY BOBBY BRAZIER
Clarkston News Special Writer

The Sashabaw ninth-grade Cougar basketball team lost a heartbreaking decision Dec. 11 to host Clarkston, 52-49.

Clarkston led 31-26 at the half and the Cougars closed the gap to pull to within one, 38-37, at the end of the third quarter, but the Wolverines held on for the win.

Sashabaw coach Jim Smith said, "We came back in the second half. The team played hard. We had two chances to win the game in the last minute. The shots just didn't fall."

Clarkston's Keith Conklin led all scorers with 16 while pulling down 14 rebounds. Teammate Kevin Dankert scored 13, Brent Brundridge netted 12, Kevin Covert eight and Marty McGeogh two.

Brundridge had five assists.

Rusty Mitcham led the Cougars with 14 points, Tony Lucca scored nine, John Weeks seven, Josh Watson and Garrett

DeWitt six, Mike Lemke five and Jason Kneise two.

The two rivals meet again later this season at Sashabaw.

The Sashabaw ninth-grade boys' basketball team lost a tough game to Waterford Kettering, 59-51, Dec. 13 at Sashabaw.

Kettering jumped out to a 22-10 first quarter advantage and led 33-21 at the half, but a furious Cougar rally came short.

Mike Lemke led Sashabaw with 12 points, Rusty Mitcham added 10, Garrett DeWitt poured in nine, Ryan Medlin added eight, John Weeks and Josh Watson each had five and Tony Lucca had two.

"We again came back in the second half with no prevail," said Cougar coach Jim Smith.

The loss dropped the Cougars record to 0-3.

Ferndale 77, Sashabaw 58 (Dec. 7 at Sashabaw)

The Cougar ninth-graders started off their season on a down note, losing to Ferndale, 77-58.

Ferndale led the entire game as it jumped out to a 33-21 halftime advantage.

"We tried to run with them instead of starting our offense, that was a mistake," said Sashabaw's Mitcham.

Weeks led the Sashabaw attack with 17 points, Lemke had 15, Watson 14, Lucca four and Mitcham, DeWitt, Brad Ryerse and Keith Brotemarkle each had two.

Sashabaw 8th graders topple Blackhawks

BY BOBBY BRAZIER
Clarkston News Special Writer

The Sashabaw Junior High School eighth grade boys' basketball team proved once again that it is an elite team in this area.

Sashabaw had no trouble downing Brandon, 44-37, at Brandon Nov. 26.

John York had 16 points and six rebounds for the Cougars who raised their record to 3-1. Jayson Buchmann scored 11, Toby Evans six, Mark Ryan four, Jeremy Fife three and Matt Sliwa and Dennis Wisser each with two. Fife also had four steals and eight assists.

Sashabaw coach Doug Colling said, "The key to the Cougar win was a strong defensive effort in the second half. We created some quick turnovers that set the pace for the rest of the game. They (Brandon) fell short after playing catch-up basketball in the second half."

Clarkston 7th graders edged by Brandon

A 3-pointer by Brandon to end the third quarter took the steam out of Clarkston's seventh-grade boys' basketball team in a 36-28 Blackhawk win Dec. 12.

"The team played very well but we just couldn't buy a basket," said Wolverine coach John Craven. "We had numerous three to four foot shots that wouldn't fall."

Craven said after Brandon nailed a 3-point shot at the end of the third quarter, "We never recovered."

Clarkston, 1-7, was paced by Scott Hill with nine points. Bryan Dankert and Mike Broggi each had four, Tim O'Rourke three and Bill Goforth, Eric Leigh, Jeff Mull and Eric Crysler each had two.

Rob Allen led the Blackhawks with 15.

Dankert's 30 not enough

Waterford Mott outscored the Clarkston Junior High ninth-grade boys' basketball team in every quarter for a 63-54 victory Dec. 13.

"Kevin Dankert played an outstanding game. All the kids played hard but we came up short," said Clarkston coach Dave Jokisch, whose team's record is even at 1-

1. Dankert led all-scorers with 30 points. He also cleared five boards. Teammate Brent Brundridge poured in 18, Kevin Covert netted four and Keith Conklin added two. Brundridge also had five assists. Paul Vaughn led the Corsairs with 24.

Sledders should take caution

Winter sports enthusiasts who enjoy tobogganing or sledding should observe several rules of safety according to officials at the Metroparks in southeast Michigan.

Following are some safety tips:

1. Inspect the area before use: Check for hidden hazards. Snow may hide logs, stumps and stones. Do not go down any hill when you can't see the entire length of the ride.

2. Inspect your equipment: Check the toboggan or sled for broken or cracked boards and rudders after each trip.

3. Put safety first: Protect your face and hands with ear muffs, gloves and a scarf. Do not overload toboggans or sleds. Overloading makes steering difficult. In heavy use areas allow the group ahead of you sufficient time to get out of the way before starting downhill. Use marked returns when provided. Do not walk up a hill when others are sledding. Read and obey posted rules and signs.

In the Clarkston area, tobogganing and sledding hills are available at Indian Springs Metropark on White Lake Road in Springfield and White Lake townships.

James Gibowski

I've come across many good little girls and boys during the past nine months writing sports for The News.

I hope Santa brings the following gifts to the people (and one dog) I've listed and more gifts to those other good people I didn't have enough room to mention.

★ Paul Tungate, Clarkston athletic director: The same type of weather we had this fall for next spring's sports season.

★ Jennifer and Alyson McChesney, Clarkston varsity basketball players: One more sister for an awesome Gus Macker team.

★ Jim Chamberlain, Clarkston golf coach: Another hole-in-one for you and another for one of your players.

★ Julie Campe, Clarkston News editor: A better win-loss record next year for the Muckrakers volleyball team.

★ Steve Himburg, Clarkston ninth-grade football coach: One of those 900 phone numbers so I can call up and find out your college and pro football selections.

★ Lonnie Weil, Teacher and dune buggy racer: Another trophy. Three will look nice in your living room.

★ Angie Brown, Clarkston runner: Your wish of only running the sprints during track season, and saving the distance during cross-country.

★ Gordie Richardson, Clarkston volleyball and track coach: A 7-8th grade volleyball program as strong as the 7-8th grade track program.

★ Ashley Ball, Clarkston News columnist: Finally figuring out that the halfback of Notre Dame, not the Hunchback of Notre Dame, runs with the football.

★ Barb Gibson, Clarkston High School drama teacher: Watching your Royal son again belting a homer in Tiger Stadium's upper-deck.

★ Grace Heike, Clarkston News customer service representative: Sitting behind guys like Mel Gibson and Richard Gere at Detroit Lion games instead of the usual type of guys you see in front of you.

★ Sandy Conlen, Tracy King and Curt McAllister, Clarkston News reporters: The chance to finally report on what good journalism is all about... sports.

★ Chris Krueger, Clarkston assistant track coach: A continuing supply of all those speedy Cougars-turned-Wolves you're always talking about.

Chocolate travels the globe to satisfy cravings

If you think a chocolate tree sounds like something out of an old Walt Disney movie, think again.

Chocolate — or at least the raw materials for it — really does grow on trees.

Chocolate, explains Michigan State University horticulturist Tom Stebbins, is made from the beans of the cacao plant, an evergreen tree that lives in moist tropical climates.

Most of the world's cacao production occurs in the Ivory Coast and other African countries and eastern Brazil.

The first part of the cacao plant's scientific name, "Theobroma cacao," means "food of the gods," a description that dedicated chocophiles might readily agree with.

The cacao is believed to have originated in the Amazon area of South America. The Incas used its beans as currency, and the Aztecs brewed a bitter-tasting drink from the roasted beans.

The seeds occur in large pods. The pods grow to 10 to 14 inches long and resemble elongated acorn squash, Stebbins says. Each pod contains 20 to 40 white seeds.

The first step in reproducing chocolate is to ferment the seeds for several days. This causes them to turn brown and develop a bitter chocolate taste.

After drying, the beans are shipped to a processing plant where they are cleaned, roasted and ground into a thick, dark paste. The paste is the basis for all chocolate and cocoa products. Hardened, the paste becomes unsweetened baking chocolate. Heated, it yields cocoa butter.

The dry material that's left after the cocoa butter is extracted is ground into cocoa powder.

Blending the paste with additional cocoa butter and sweeteners turns it into chocolate candy. White chocolate is made of cocoa butter and sweeteners without the dark paste.

A product that looks and tastes more or less like chocolate candy but is labeled "confectionary coating" contains other fats in place of cocoa butter. It cannot be labeled "chocolate."

Chestnuts need special handling

Chestnuts are the Goldilocks of holiday nuts.

Storage conditions have to be just right, not too dry and not too damp. In dry air, they dry out and lose quality. In warm, damp air, they mold.

Lee Taylor, professor emeritus of horticulture at Michigan State University, advises storing fresh chestnuts in the refrigerator in a sealed plastic bag with a few ventilation holes punched in it. An alternative is to store them in paper milk cartons filled with dry peat moss.

If mold occurs in spite of your efforts, scrub the nuts to remove the mold. Nuts that stay moldy for a long time develop an off-color and bad flavor, Taylor notes.

After removing the mold, dry the nuts for several hours on two or three changes of paper toweling. After drying, refrigerate them.

Chestnuts can be cooked by roasting, boiling, steaming or microwaving.

To toast over an open fire, use a long-handled popcorn popper or chestnut roaster. To roast in an oven, try a temperature of 300 degrees for about 15 minutes.

Before roasting, puncture each nut once or twice with an ice pick or a knife.

If you don't, pressure from steam building up inside the shells will cause the nuts to explode, either before or after they come out of the oven or roaster.

Leaving one nut whole is one way of knowing when the nuts are done — when it explodes, the others should be ready.

"This doesn't work if the nuts are overdry to start with," Taylor notes. "To test for dryness, squeeze a few nuts between your thumb and finger."

Chestnuts should be plump and firm. If the shells move inward, the nuts are too dry. If you wait for one of these to pop to tell you the rest are done, you could burn the whole batch."

Taylor recommends cooking dry chestnuts by boiling or steaming them.

To boil chestnuts, place them in a shallow pan in water that just covers them. Bring to a boil, reduce the heat and boil gently for 15 to 20 minutes.

Drain and cool somewhat and then remove the kernels using a sharp tine of a table fork.

The longer the nuts cook, the mealier the kernels become and the more they tend to crumble when removed from the shells.

For especially dry chestnuts, Taylor suggests soaking them overnight in water before boiling in fresh water.

For steaming, carefully cut fresh, moist chestnuts in half and cook them in a vegetable steamer over boiling water for eight to 10 minutes.

Most of the kernels should fall out of the shells during cooking.

Steamed or boiled nuts can be dipped in melted butter and salted, if desired, or used in other recipes.

To microwave chestnuts, cut them in half and place them with the cut sides down on a double layer of moist paper towels.

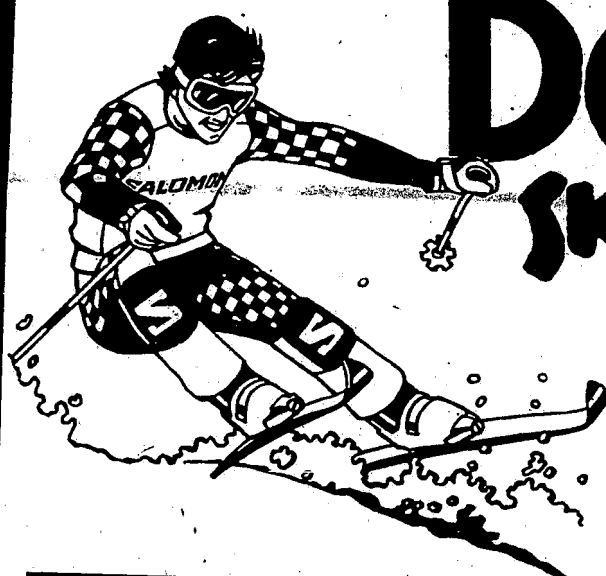

Then experiment with cooking times and quantities of nuts to find out what works best in your microwave.

You might start with eight medium-sized nuts and a roast setting of two minutes, he suggest.

"It is very difficult — and dangerous — to cut hard, dry nuts in half," Taylor notes. "Only those that grew two or three in a bur and so have a flat side can be cut easily. A single nut is round and very difficult to cut safely."

Sort these round chestnuts and prepare them in a way that doesn't require cutting them before cooking, he suggest.

Store cooked chestnuts in tightly sealed jars in refrigerator for a month or two in the freezer for up to a year.

Good housekeeping, chemicals rid pantry of bugs

When beetles, moths, cockroaches or some other insects turn up in the kitchen, the first step in controlling them is not chemical warfare, but good housekeeping.

In other words, find the infested food products and get rid of them. Then clean cupboards of food tidbits and insects, seal susceptible foods in metal or glass containers, and then, if necessary, use a recommended insecticide to eliminate undiscovered survivors.

"A wide range of foodstuffs can attract pantry pests," says Gary Dunn, extension entomologist at Michigan State University. "Flour and grain products, nuts and dried fruits can become infested with several types of beetles.

Pet food can nourish larder and carpet beetles, and meal moths can get into stored grain products and chocolate.

Cockroaches feed on a wide variety of foods, including cereals, foods containing sugar, meats, cheese, even beer and leather.

Cockroaches are probably the most difficult kitchen pests to get rid of, Dunn notes. One reason is that they don't move into a container of food and stay there.

Instead, they hide under or behind cupboards or appliances, coming out at night to feed on whatever they can find.

"With a pest like the bean weevil or the larder beetle, control may be as simple as removing the infested bag of beans or dog food and cleaning up the storage area," Dunn says. "Meal moths may be more of a challenge.

When you see the adult moths flying, it may take some searching to find the larvae and the foods they are infesting," he adds.

Disposing of the infested food is the first step, followed by a thorough vacuuming and washing of the storage area.

Next, because larvae may migrate away from the food source to pupate, it's a good idea to spray cupboards and surrounding areas lightly with malathion to control emerging adults.

Cockroach control uses the same two-pronged attack: sanitation and chemical controls.

Both approaches are required; however, cleanliness and other preventive measures must be combined with chemical sprays to eliminate these insects from the home, Dunn says.

To prevent or control cockroach infestations, keep the kitchen immaculately clean and free from dampness, he advises.

Close openings behind baseboards, cracks and holes in plaster, and openings around pipes and furnace flues to eliminate roach hiding places and traveling routes. Then spray or dust wherever cockroaches hide or travel.

"Cockroaches prefer to hide where three sides of their bodies touch some surface," Dunn notes. "So, the tighter the crack, the more likely it is to have cockroaches in it."

Use solutions of diazinon or malathion in oil for residual cockroach control, and follow label directions

Cockroaches are probably the most difficult kitchen pests to get rid of.

precisely, Dunn urges.

Spray only limited areas, not entire floors or walls, and be sure to keep chemicals out of water, food, dishes or utensils, and pet food and water.

Do not replace food, dishes and utensils until treatments have dried.

As a supplemental treatment, you can sprinkle boric acid powder in cockroach runways, Dunn adds. It abrades the waxy outer layer of the cockroach's body, causing the cockroach to lose body fluids and die by dehydration.

Because cockroaches are prolific and may deposit their eggs in out-of-the-way places you might not think to spray — such as inside a TV or on the underside of a shelf — repeated treatments may be necessary.

Park restrooms, play area to be improved

Independence Oaks will receive funding from the Oakland County Parks and Recreation's 1991 budget.

According to the county's parks and recreation commission, money has been set aside to modernize the restrooms at the Twin Chimneys Shelter. Funds also will be provided for a play area near the park's swimming/picnic area.

The park and recreation's budget has been set at $10.4 million. From the proposed revenue budget, $4.5 million will be generated from fees and charges. Another $5.9 million will come from a 1/4-mill tax for county parks as well as interest on investments. One-quarter mill is 25 cents for every $1,000 assessed property valuation.

The proposed operating budget for 1991 is nearly $8.6 million with some $1.9 million for capital development projects.

13th Amendment celebrated

The year 1990 celebrates the 125th anniversary of adoption of the 13th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which abolished slavery.

This marks a century and a quarter of freedom for all people in our country, regardless of race, sex or religion.

The amendment was ratified on Dec. 18, 1965, soon after the Civil War ended and two years after Abraham Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation.

It took the question of slavery out of the hands of the individual states and proclaimed, "Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction."

The 13th Amendment was soon followed by the 14th, which granted full citizenship to black Americans.

Both gave blacks the same rights as those enjoyed by other Americans, thereby upholding the basis of our Declaration of Independence, which proclaims the equality of all men, the primacy of people over government and the dignity and worth of each individual.

Danger of holiday food contamination

Food safety and contamination of food sources are concerns this time of year, according to officials in the Food Division at the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

Incidences of food poisoning tend to increase around Easter and Christmas, according to Edward C. Heffron, director of the Food Division.

"Most of the time, it's the result of how food is handled and prepared at home," he said.

"During the holidays, we change the usual way we handle our foods. We're preparing different types of foods, foods which are rich and high in protein, low in acid," he said, adding that those kinds of food are highly susceptible to poisoning organisms.

Also, during the holidays, refrigerators that are already full cannot hold the quantities of food required for holiday meals. Or, once the additional food is crammed in, the refrigerators are so full they can't cool the contents sufficiently, said Heffron.

In this type of environment, Salmonella, one of the most common bacteria, has a perfect breeding ground.

"Foods that are allowed to remain at too warm a temperature for too long, or those that are not heated to a high enough temperature, can harbor dangerous food-borne illnesses," said Heffron.

For these reasons, it is important to be extremely cautious in preparing foods throughout the year, but especially so during holidays when large meals result in less control.

To guard against possible food contamination during holiday food preparation, Heffron offers the following advice:

■ Proper temperature control: The most common cause of food contamination in the home is a lack of proper temperature control. Foods need to be heated or cooled to the proper temperature to destroy any growing bacteria or halt continued growth.

■ Reduce the amount of handling: The more times a food is handled, the higher the risk of contamination. Keep sinks, cutting boards and anything else that comes in contact with food products clean.

■ Maintain good personal hygiene: Washing hands between food handling is important to prevent transferring bacteria from hands to food or from one food to another. The kitchen dish towel can also be a harbinger of germs and bacteria and should be laundered frequently to prevent the spread of bacteria from hands to dishes to food.

■ Select clean and undamaged food and agricultural products: Wash everything except commercially canned, bottled or frozen food products. Pre-packaged foods should always be heated and cooled correctly.

Christmas decorations

Centuries ago, Romans decorated their homes, public buildings and temples on festive occasions, and people still follow the ancient custom.

In most communities, at Christmas there are beautifully decorated store windows, often depicting holiday scenes.

Many cities decorate with colored lights, bells, stars, candles and other yuletide emblems. And individuals decorate their homes in a similar fashion, sometimes depicting a Christmas scene on their lawns.

Festive drinks take worry out of holiday driving

Whether a "Chimney Sweep" or "Marley's Ghost," party hosts can pour a lavish array of festive nonalcoholic drinks from "The Great Pretenders" party guide without impairing their guests' driving ability this holiday season, reports AAA Michigan.

The free 20-page booklet, available at AAA Michigan offices statewide, includes 20 winning nonalcoholic drink ideas, alcohol-absorbing party food recipes, and tips on how to be "First A Friend, Then a Host."

Drink recipes carry out a Charles Dickens holiday theme and call for items such as hot fudge topping, dark chocolate shavings and coconut cream.

The drinks were concocted by individuals in a contest sponsored by AAA Michigan. A few of the winning recipes are as follows:

Chimney Sweep

By Michele Matzke, Bavarian Inn Motor Lodge, Frankenmuth

- 2 scoops Fudge Ice Cream
- 3 teaspoons maple syrup
- 1/2 cup Vernors
- 1/2 cup nut cereal

Blend until smooth.

Uncle Scrooge's Spicy Apple Holiday Warm-up

By Julie McEwan, Blissfield

- 1 64-ounce bottle natural apple juice
- 3/4 cup brown sugar
- 1 whole orange
- 20-30 cloves

Christmas in the United States

When the Puritans reached New England, they brought with them their dislike for any observance of Christmas and levied fines on those who dared to celebrate the holiday.

It was not until the 19th century, after many German and Irish immigrants had arrived, that holiday celebrations really became popular in that part of the country.

In the southern colonies, in Virginia, for example, there were gay gatherings of families and friends, with bountiful feasts and gala balls by candlelight. The aristocratic plantation owners carried on many of the holiday traditions that had prevailed for centuries in the home country. Often the slaves were not required to work as long as the yule log burned.

Vintage ordinance clears the way

When winter turns to snow, residents living in the Village of Clarkston need to pick up their shovels and snow blowers to keep sidewalks cleared.

A 75-year-old ordinance states that owners of property in the village have 24 hours after a snowfall to remove the fluffy — or wet — white stuff from sidewalks — or face a possible fine.

Village Manager Artemus Pappas said the fine could be as much as $10 if a sidewalk is not shoveled within the 24-hour period.

The ordinance also includes the removal of dirt, or piles of dirt, that would make the sidewalk impassable, Pappas added.

Lighting tips make a safe season

To keep the holiday season a joyful and happy one, take extra care in preparing the tree in a safe manner. Consumers Power offers these suggestions for a safe holiday season:

- Make sure a previously cut tree is fresh and green, with needles that are flexible.
- When you get the tree home, cut off the bottom inch of the trunk and place it in water.
- Use a tree stand that is steady, well-supported and has a reservoir for water.
- Check the water level daily; trees can absorb up to a gallon of water a day.
- Erect the tree away from fireplaces or other heat sources such as heating ducts, radiators, TV sets or holiday candles.

■ Tree decorations should be fire retardant, have no sharp edges, be made of a material that doesn't break easily; tinsel or artificial icicles should be of a nonleaded material.

■ Do not trim metallic trees with electric lights; damaged insulation in lights could charge the entire tree with electricity.

■ Do not use holiday lights with loose connections, broken or cracked sockets or frayed or bare wires. Use only lighting sets and other electrical decorations that carry the Underwriters Laboratories (UL)-mark. When hooking up sets of lights, don't overload a circuit.

■ Fasten outdoor lights securely to a wall or tree to avoid wind damage. Never use indoor lights outdoors. Always turn off holiday lighting when you leave home or go to bed.

■ Make sure the fireplace flue is open before starting a fire and use a fireplace screen to keep sparks and embers within the firebox.

■ Don't open gifts next to a fire place or burn in the fireplace wrappings that can ignite suddenly and flare.

■ Use care with "fire salts" that produce colored flames when thrown on a wood fire. Keep them away from young children who might think they are edible. Also make sure that matches and lighters are out of a child's reach.

■ Keep a fire extinguisher handy.

Reporter's Notebook

A letter addressed: "To the Editor, The leading newspaper, Clarkston, Mich., 48016" was delivered to The Clarkston News by the U.S. Postal Service.

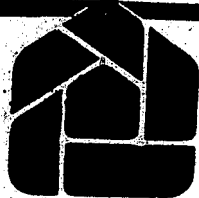

The letter came from Klamath Falls, Ore., and took Dr. Jack Kevorkian's side in the recent court case before Judge Gerald McNally over whether Kevorkian should be charged with murder in the use of his "suicide machine" on an Oregon woman's voluntary death. McNally said no Michigan law prohibited assisting a suicide.

Retiree enters third decade of raising wildlife

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A hobby has become a way of life for one Independence Township man.

For the past 27 years, Waldon Road resident John Burnell has raised many species of animals. Since 1963, he has been permitted to raise several varieties of birds, and in the past four years, Deer have been added to his homestead.

Presently, Burnell owns 12 deer, including a Sikha deer from Japan. He usually gets the deer when they are less than a week old, so their actions are a little more tempered.

includes partridges, quail, turkeys, ornamental pheasants and peacocks.

Burnell credits his four children for getting him into the business of raising wild animals.

"When they were little, the kids wanted to raise animals as a hobby," he said. "Now, I keep about as many as I can handle."

With his children now grown, the retired construction worker raises and sells the animals for profit.

His customers include animal lovers as well as lovers of meat. He periodically sells many of his birds in the poultry house at Detroit's Eastern Market. Burnell added that some of his game birds are sold to help train hunting dogs.

Burnell said his deer usually consume about 100 bales of hay each year. His birds, on the other hand, eat much more. According to him, a roost of nearly 3,000 birds consumes about eight tons of feed each year.

Despite being around animals for nearly three dec-

JOHN Burnell is entering his 28th year of raising animals. The Waldon Road resident currently raises 12 deer and has raised nearly 3,000 birds this year. Begun as a hobby, the retired construction worker sells the animals on the open market.

ades, Burnell said he hasn't ever become attached to one particular animal.

"You can't get too attached to them or you wouldn't be able to sell them," he said. "Besides, once you get so many of them, they all get to be alike."

Burnell said his satisfaction comes from watching the animals, especially the deer.

"They really are pretty animals, but the males have a tendency to get nasty during rutting season," he said, clutching a two-by-four board. "Ever so often one will charge me, while I'm feeding them, and I have to crack it on the nose."

Burnell said his wife, Ruth, has always supported his "hobby," but she lets him handle the daily chores of feeding and cleaning up after the creatures.

Burnell said he intends to raise animals until "I die or can't walk out there any more."

About mistletoe

In Early England, a bunch of mistletoe hung from the door or the ceiling of the great manor homes.

Each time a man stole a kiss under it, he had to pluck a berry from the bough.

It is said that early Roman enemies made up their quarrels when they met under the mistletoe; this is believed to be the origin of kissing under the green. This plant was not used in churches (because of its association with the pagan Druid ceremonies). There was one exception to this — at York Minster — where a bunch was laid on the high altar "with a benediction for peace and goodwill."

Toys require careful selection

Every holiday season, parents are overwhelmed with the variety of toys available for their children. Which toys are best for the kids?

Anne DeHaan, coordinator of the Children's Learning Center at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac, offers the following suggestions to help make your children's holidays happy and safe.

Question suitability of toys

She suggests that you ask yourself these questions before buying a toy:

Is this toy safe for my child's age? Will my child be interested enough to play with it over and over again? For several minutes or even an hour at a time? Is it constructed well? Will it hold up to lots of use?

Does my child provide the power and imagination to operate the toy? Will my child feel successful when using this toy? Does it challenge my child's abilities just enough? Can the toy grow with my child? Will it still be appealing in a year? For several years?

Can my child use the toy in different ways? Can it be used creatively? Will it help my child learn about other people, nature, or how things work?

Evaluate toy safety

When evaluating a toy's safety value, DeHaan suggests you consider: if it's well made, painted with non-toxic paint, shatter proof, easily cleaned, and not electric or battery operated.

DeHaan adds that a person should look at what the children will learn when playing with a particular toy. She suggests that you watch your child concentrate as they: figure out how things work, pick up new words and ideas, build strong muscles they can control, use their imagination, solve problems, and learn to cooperate with others.

Variety a good idea

Every child is different, yet children are similar in many ways. Toys affect what children learn and how they feel about themselves and others. For example, when children play with baby dolls, they are practicing what it is like to be a parent.

In the long run it's probably best to select different types of toys to help your children become well-rounded people.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

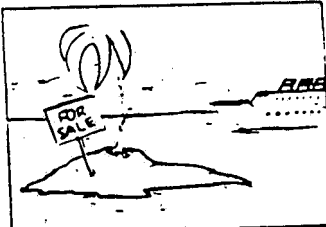

A GREAT FUTURE

QUESTION: Why is the investment in land such a good, long term investment?

ANSWER: Subject to the law of supply and demand, land is the greatest "product" of them all. Its supply is fixed and the demand is ever-growing.

Although land is not expandable, population certainly is. By the year 2000, the population of the United States is projected to be around 300 million. What this means is that every month from now to the turn of the century, we will be adding to the population enough people to fill a city the size of Toledo, Ohio. By the year 2000, half of the population will be living in dwellings that have not yet been built and on land that has never been used for dwellings.

LAND SUPPLY IS FIXED, but demand for it is ever growing. This makes it an outstanding long term investment.

Holiday greenery

Evergreens, symbolic of eternal life, have long been used for decorating at yuletide.

Teutonic people believed that certain greens would frighten evil spirits away. The Saxons hung holly, ivy, rosemary or laurel in their homes and churches.

As early as 1444, greenery was used on the streets of London as Christmas decorations, and the custom grew through the years.

Holly has long been a favorite holiday green, and several legends are connected with it: One is that Christ's crown of thorns was made of holly. Some say the idea of making Christmas holly wreaths came from Christ's crown, as the berries resembled drops of blood.

Today holly wreaths, with their glistening green leaves and contrasting berries, are among the most distinctive holiday decorations.

(Source: "All About American Holidays" by Maymie R. Krythe, 1962, Harper and Brothers, NY.)

Don't let thieves steal your Christmas

Santa Claus may not be the only one visiting your home this holiday season.

According to statistics provided by the AAA of Michigan, nearly $200 million worth of property was reported stolen within the state last year.

Included in that total, larceny from motor vehicles cost state motorists about $19 million. Also, purse snatchers and pickpockets took nearly $1 million from Michigan residents.

AAA officials urge that you make your home look "lived in" when you're out or on vacation.

Some safeguards suggested by AAA include:

■ If you're away for any length of time, have someone clean the driveway and sidewalks of ice and snow.

■ Have a neighbor pick up mail and newspapers, and set lights on variable timers.

■ Park a car in your driveway.

■ Leave spare keys with a friend rather than hidden outside the house.

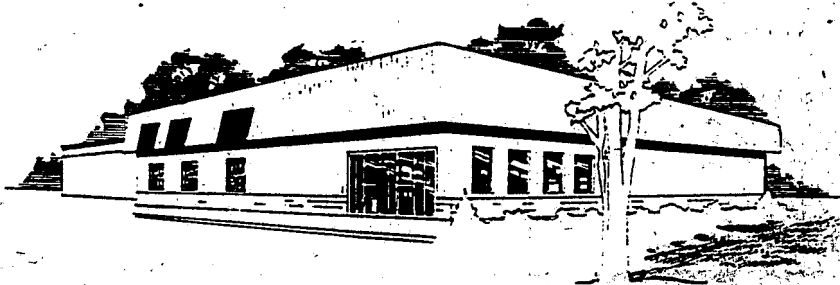

■ Secure doors with deadbolt locks and windows with substantial locks.

■ Inform only those who need to know (family) of your vacation plans. Widespread knowledge of your absence makes your home a tempting target.

O! Christmas Tree,
O! Christmas Tree!

Ashley
Ball

You've gotta see our Christmas tree this year. What's left of it, I mean. It would make Charlie Brown proud. Yes, it's that bad! But, we didn't buy it that way. Here's what happened...

I was standing at Bordine's checkout with my mom, my little sister, Laura, and the prettiest, most perfectly shaped tree in the nursery. Finally, it was our turn to pay, and the salesman tied the tree to the top of our mini-van. So far, so good.

As we started home, a light snow began to fall. I switched from 99.5 to Christmas carols. The mood in the car was festive... Laura singing along with the barking dog Jingle Bells song and me telling Mom about about plans for the upcoming Christmas dance at school. Outside, the air was crisp... like Christmas.

As we pulled in the driveway, my mom began instructing me and Laura on getting the decorations out of the attic. My mom chattered as she reached up to punch the button on the garage door opener. Suddenly, I realized the terrible catastrophe that was about to befall us.

Before I could say anything, we were skimming right over the raised garage door. Suddenly, my mom's instructions were punctuated with loud crunching, crackling sounds overhead.

"Mom?" I began.

She responded by calmly going into total panic.

"The tree!" she cried in remembrance, as she threw the gear shift into reverse and flailed the gas pedal with her foot on the way back out of the garage. There was another loud crrrrracking sound from above. Getting out of the van, we surveyed the situation.

The beautiful tree that had been on top of the van was now in front of the van. The garage door above us was streaked with green stains. Limbs were everywhere. The tree trunk was shaved to the brown on one side. My mom was fretting and mumbling something about $50.

"Don't worry, Mom," I consoled her as I began picking up the limbs. "We'll tie it back together... it'll be as good as new."

After an hour of working and tying, the tree was coming together. We'd gone into the kitchen to warm up when we heard the garage door open. Dad was home. I rushed out to stop him just before his suburban rolled over the tree.

Getting out of the suburban, Dad inquired cheerfully, "What's that pile of evergreen limbs for?"

"That's our Christmas tree," I explained.

He stopped and looked sidelong at the greenery, then smiled and gave me a hug. I like it how my dad never gets flustered.

"What kind of a tree did we get this year," he asked calmly. "... a kit?"

"You're close," I joked. "We'll tell you all about it after dinner."

So you see, we have a very... well... a unique tree this year. Truly, one of a kind. Not our dream tree, but, somehow, after all my involvement with it, I'm fond of it.

I hope your tree turns out better. But if not... Hey! Make the most of it. (We painted the trunk and branches green. You can't tell the difference!) And have yourself a merry little tree!

"O! Christmas Tree, O! Christmas Tree..."

Hanukkah celebrates man's first fight for freedom

Hanukkah, a festive eight-day Jewish holiday, ends today, Wednesday, Dec. 19. The holiday begins on the 25th of Kislev on the Hebrew or lunar calendar.

Hanukkah, which is Hebrew for dedication, is also called the Festival of Lights.

The observance is significant because it commemorates the first struggle in recorded history for religious freedom and personal liberty, according to the Jewish Community Council of Detroit.

The history of Hanukkah is told in the Book of Maccabees, an apocryphal work.

In 175, Before the Common Era (B.C.E. or B.C.), Antiochus IV became king of Syria, the land to which Israel had been annexed. He tried to force the Jews to renounce their faith and customs and to worship Greek idols. Antiochus' plan was to forge a kingdom of "one people," all with the same beliefs. He became the champion of an intense hellenization.

On the 25th of Kislev in 167 B.C.E., the enforced hellenization of the Jews reached its peak. Antiochus decreed that any Jew caught observing the Sabbath, having in his possession the Torah or Five Books of Moses, or in any way maintaining Jewish customs and not worshipping the Greek gods, would be killed. He also ordered that the central Jewish Temple in Jerusalem was to be polluted and called Zeus Olympius.

In the small town of Modi'in, located northwest of Jerusalem, a man named Mattathias, along with his five sons, rallied Jews from the entire country to join their fighter forces in opposition to the Syrians and their evil decrees. Mattathias' call for action was "Whoever is for G-d, follow me."

On his deathbed in 166 B.C.E., Mattathias asked his son, Judah Maccabee, to continue the fight for religious and personal freedom.

"Maccabee" is Hebrew for "hammer." It symbolizes how Judah and his followers acted as the "hammer of the Lord" while they fought the numerically superior Syrians. The word "Maccabee" is also associated with the motto on the banner the fighters raises. In Hebrew, the first letters of the words "who is like unto thee among the mighty, Oh Lord," spell the word "Maccabee."

Judah Maccabee and his small band of followers won a series of brilliant military victories over the more numerous Syrians. The fighting culminated in 164 B.C.E., with the victory of Judah Maccabee and his followers over Lysias, who was the Syrian commander in chief, and his forces.

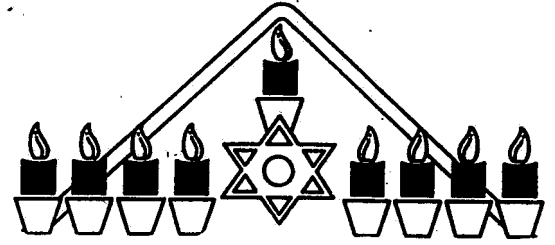

The Maccabees gained possession of Jerusalem and began to cleanse the Temple, which had been desecrated by the Syrians. The 25th of Kislev was set as the date for rededication of the Temple to coincide with the third anniversary of Antiochus' evil decree.

According to the Book of Maccabees, celebrations to rededicate the Temple lasted eight days, and Judah decreed that they be designated as days of rejoicing for future generations.

Historical tradition holds that, at the time of the rededication, only one oil cruse could be found to burn in the Ner Tamid (nair tah-meed), or Eternal Light, which hung over the Holy Ark containing the Torah scrolls. This container of oil held only enough to burn for one day, but instead, the oil lasted miraculously for eight days.

Since the Maccabean victory, Hanukkah candles have been lighted in Jewish homes in all parts of the world, to commemorate the relighting of the Eternal Light. The festival reminds Jews that, by fighting Antiochus' tyranny, the Maccabees maintained the identity and religious freedom of the Jewish people and preserved Judaism.

How Hanukkah is celebrated

A candle is lit on the first night of the holiday, with an additional candle lit each successive night until, on the final night, eight candles are burning.

In addition to the eight candles on the Hanukkah menorah (mah-no-rah), or candelabra, there is a master candle, called the shammes, which is used to light all the other candles. Its holder is placed at the top or to one side of the other holders.

The candles are of many bright colors, adding the joy of the holiday. Special prayers of praise and thanksgiving hymns are recited during every service over the eight days of Hanukkah.

"Rock of Ages," perhaps the most popular of Hanukkah songs, is a special hymn of thanksgiving. Its Hebrew title is "Maoz Tzur" (mah-oz-tzoor). Hanukkah is also marked by the giving of gifts. Among the special foods prepared during Hanukkah are "latkes," or potato pancakes, and jelly-filled doughnuts.

A favorite game played during Hanukkah is dreidle (dray-dell). A four-sided top is spun (the dreidle) and, depending on the top letter showing after the top stops spinning, the player will either put in the kitty, take the entire kitty, win half of the kitty or pass. The "stakes" are usually nuts, candy or small amounts of change. The four Hebrew letters are the initial letters of the Hebrew words "nes, gadol, haya, sham," which means "a great miracle happened there."

Pet of the Week

PEPSI is full of effervescence.

Bubbly and energetic

This American water spaniel is named Pepsi. And like the drink, he is bubbly. The puppy has energy and will need someone to help him channel his exuberance.

He's only 8 months old, so he's got a lot of puppy in him. One of his favorite play toys is a tennis ball, according to a shelter worker.

Pepsi is housebroken, but he'll need to be neutered before he leaves the shelter. His adoption fee is $70.

To see Pepsi, visit the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Road, Auburn Hills, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

(r) Non-Conforming Signs:

Intent: It is the intent of this section to encourage eventual elimination of signs that, as a result of the adoption of this section, become non-conforming. It is considered as much a subject of health, safety, and welfare as the prohibition of new signs in violation of this ordinance. It is the intent, therefore, to administer this section to realize the removal of illegal non-conforming signs and to avoid any unreasonable invasion of established private property rights.

Continuance: A non-conforming sign may be continued and shall be maintained in good condition, but shall not be:

- 1) Replaced by another non-conforming sign.
- 2) Structurally altered so as to prolong the life of the sign.
- 3) Expanded.
- 4) Re-established after damage or destruction if the estimated expense of reconstruction exceeds fifty (50) percent of the estimated replacement costs.

(3) Exceptions:

(a) The following types of signs shall not be subject to the provisions of this section:

- 1) One unlighted sign not exceeding six (6) square feet in area advertising the sale, rental, or lease of that particular property.
- 2) One nameplate identifying a business, not exceeding one (1) square foot in area.

- 4) One bulletin board not exceeding eight (8) square feet in area for use by charitable or religious organizations located on the premises and operated by such organizations.
- 5) One plaque or stone carved sign not exceeding one (1) square foot in area identifying a building by name which may also include the name of the building and the date of its construction.
- 6) Signs identifying on-premises security devices and those persons responsible for their operation, provided the total area of all such signs on the premises does not exceed one square foot.
- 7) Political campaign signs announcing the candidacy of persons running for public office, or relating to issues to be voted on in an election or providing other election related information are permitted only on private property and can only be put up fourteen (14) days before the election and remain two (2) days after the election. Political signs shall be no larger than two feet by three feet.

(4) Unsafe, Unlawful or Abandoned Signs

(a) If the building inspector shall find that any sign or other advertising structure regulated herein is unsafe or insecure, or is a menace to the public, or has been constructed or erected or is being maintained in violation of the provisions of this ordinance, he shall give written notice to the permitted thereof. If the permitted fails to remove or alter the structure so as to comply with the standards herein set forth within ten days after such notice, such sign or other advertising structure may be removed or altered by the building inspector at the expense of the permittee or the owner of the property upon which it is located. The building inspector may cause any sign or other advertising structure which is an immediate peril to persons or property to be removed summarily and without notice.

(b) Signs which have been abandoned due to a closing of a business, a change in business name or for any other reason rendering the sign not applicable to the property involved, shall be removed by the permit owner or the owner of the building or premises within thirty (30) days from the date of the action that caused the sign to be considered abandoned. A condition of approval for all sign permits shall be that the permit holder or owner of the building or premises, at his own expense, remove all abandoned signs. An abandoned sign may be removed by the village after the thirty (30) day period stated above, and the permit holder or owner may be charged for the cost of removal.

(c) The Planning Commission shall hold a hearing to determine when a sign is abandoned. Ten (10) days written notice of the hearing shall be sent by certified mail to the permit holder at the last known address at which there is reason to believe he might receive mail, and to the owner at his address as shown on the records of the Assessor's office. The notice shall also state:

- (1) A general description of the sign.
- (2) That upon a finding of abandonment, the sign shall be held by the Village for fifteen (15) days and then disposed of by sale, or scrap if determined to be of a value of less than $100.
- (3) Where the sign may be reclaimed.
- (4) That the reasonable costs of removal may be assessed at the hearing along with an administrative charge.
- (5) That the hearing and assessments can be avoided by the removal of the sign within seventy-two (72) hours after the date of the notice.

(d) The Planning Commission shall determine the reasonable cost to the Village of removing the sign and if an administrative charge should be assessed. Administrative costs shall be $25 unless otherwise determined by resolution of the Planning Commission. Sales shall be carried out pursuant to Michigan Civil Code. Proceeds shall be first applied to pay assessed costs, administrative costs, and other costs reasonably incurred.

(5) Application Procedures:

(a) In addition to the information required by the Building Code, and the other provisions of this Ordinance, every application for a permit to display a sign must include a written statement providing the following information:

- 1) Names, addresses, and telephone numbers of the applicants and property owners.
- 2) Location of the premises.
- 3) Scale drawing showing:
 - a) The affected building facade, the proposed sign, and any existing signs.
 - b) The height of the sign measured from the lowest point of grade beneath the sign to the highest point of the sign.
 - c) Materials, colors, sign dimensions, and the surface area of the sign.
 - d) Sign lettering as it will appear on the completed sign.

(b) Upon submission of an application for a permit to display a sign, the applicant shall pay the fee required by Section 12.05 of this Ordinance.

(c) Permits for sign construction shall expire six months from the date they are issued.

(d) Applications for illuminated signs must include copies of the electrical permits required under the Building Code.

The provisions of this amendment to Section 10.5 of Ordinance No. 72 shall take effect twenty (20) days after publication.

Made and passed by the Village Council of the Village of Clarkston this eighth day of October, 1990.
