Lawsuit against school goes to court

School district architect turns down settlement in $2 million lawsuit

BY TRACY KING Clarkston News Associate Editor

An architect fired by the Clarkston Board of Education in 1988 has turned down an out-of-court settlement offered by the district and has opted, instead, to take the matter to trial.

The lawsuit, filed by Charles W. Sherman and Associates, Inc., is to be heard by Oakland Circuit Court Judge David F. Breck on March 25.

The school board terminated a contract with Sherman and Associates in November 1988, effectively ending the company's 12-year stint as the district's architectural firm.

In a letter to Sherman, Superintendent Gary Haner listed two primary reasons for the cancellation: the firm had been hired by a board that had not interviewed other candidates; and it was inappropriate for an architectural firm to conduct both architectural and construction management-type services.

In December of 1989, Sherman filed suit against the district, asking for over $2 million in damages incurred by a loss of income, profits and good will.

After the lawsuit was filed, a three-member mediation panel reviewed the case and recommended the district grant Sherman $175,000 in "separation expenses."

The separation expenses were outlined in Sherman's contract and were covered by the district's insurance policy, according to Haner.

"The board accepts financial responsibility for terminating his contract," Haner said. "The contract calls for separation expenses — we knew that at the time we canceled it.

"(But) we knew we could save more with a new architect than what the penalties would be (for terminating the contract)," Haner added.

Richard Condit, an attorney for Sherman, said his client turned down the settlement because he felt the damage to be much greater.

"When the school district terminated his contract it literally put him out of business," Condit said.

The lawsuit against the district consists of two parts, Condit explained. The first was for breach of contract, something he says the "district had the right to terminate."

The second part was a tort claim, which alleges that

"the school district interfered with his business relations," according to Condit.

"By custom or practice, an architect is given a recommendation by a school district to replace the business lost," Condit explained. "When the school district agreed that Sherman was not terminated based on lack of performance on his part, he asked for the customary recommendation.

"The district (agreed) but only if we drop the claim,"

Condit added. "This is wrongdoing."

In turning down the settlement, Sherman is gambling that he will win a higher amount in court, Condit added. If he does not earn 10 percent more than what the original settlement offered, he will be required to pay the legal fees incurred by the other side.

The school district's case will be argued by attorney Michael Eschelbach of Thrun, Maatsch and Nordberg of Lansing.

Used Christmas trees help parks and environment

If you haven't taken down your Christmas tree this year, you're in luck.

You can recycle your tree and help the environment at the same time — by donating your tree to the Independence Oaks County Park Nature Center.

The center will accepts evergreen trees 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. through Sunday, Jan. 13, at the park.

The trees will be chipped and used on the nature trails as well as for mulch and compost around the park.

For their conservation efforts, residents who "recycle" their Christmas trees will receive a complimentary park entry to the Earth Day Fair on Saturday, April 22. They will also receive free seedling packets from the Hoo Hoo Club of Greater Detroit. The Hoo Hoo Club is a lumber industry organization.

Dan Stencil, chief of parks operation for the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission, said the project was developed from public awareness of the need to reduce solid waste in landfills.

"As parks people, we must do what we can to educate and assist the public in their recycling efforts," Stencil explained.

"Everyone benefits from Christmas tree recycling; the park gets woodchips, the landfills are spared additional waste, and the people get satisfaction from knowing they did something to preserve and protect the environment," he said:

Stencil suggested trees be wrapped in old blankets or bed sheets and transported to the drop-off site at the park.

Money embezzled from Clarkston theater

A 23-year-old Pontiac man, acting as manager of the Clarkston Činema, admitted to embezzling a large amount of money from the theater's register.

On Jan. 4, owners of the cinema filed a report with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, saying that they suspected their manager of embezzlement.

The owners estimate that nearly $600 had been stolen over a period of two months.

When questioned by the police, the man admitted to taking the money. He said that he would work things out with the owners. The owners agreed and said that they wouldn't press charges.

Steaming mad? Write a letter to the editor at The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main St., Clarkston, MI 48346.

The use of plastic bags should be avoided to eliminate further solid waste.

There will be no park entry fee charged to vehicles dropping off Christmas trees. Independence Oaks is on Sashabaw Road, 2-1/2 miles north of I-75, in Independence Township. For more information, call 625-6473.

An Independence Township family has suffered through the nightmare of seeing their Michigamme "dream home" become a hot spot for thieves and vandals.

Since October 1990, the Bussell family has had to call the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) five times because of incidents occurring at or around their home. These cases have involved gunplay and auto

These cases have involved gunplay and auto theft.

$10,000 vehicle was stolen between 3 a.m. and 9 a.m. New Year's morning. She said the thieves had also ransacked her 21-year-old son's truck, which was parked in the driveway.

In her son's truck, the thieves found a garage door opener and used it to gain access to her husband's Blazer. The vehicle was recovered by police later that day in a wooded area along Elizabeth Lake Road, White Lake Township.

The vehicle's dashboard was destroyed and the radio was stolen. Untouched, however, was her husband's citizens band radio and firefighting equipment.

Since October, other incidents have involved shattered windows from BB gun fire and four bullets fired into the side of the Bussell's garage.

Barb Bussell is frustrated with the events of the past within the past four months.

"All I've heard from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department is that 'we can't be everywhere and we have only limited personnel," she said. "That's the wrong

"My husband has resorted to sleeping out in the living room with a shotgun nearby, in case anyone tries to break in."

attitude for them to take and I'm going before the Independence Township Board to see what they can do about Barb Bussell did remark, however, that she was pleased with the police's response time when she called them about their stolen Blazer.

The family has only lived in the home for a year, and they are curious to see if their neighbors have also been hit with vandalism. With this in mind, Barb Bussell is sending out 50 letters of inquiry to residents along Michigamme. She hopes that this type of communication could initiate a community watch group.

Currently, police are investigating the occurrences at the Bussell home. Barb Bussell can't think of many people who may have a grudge against her family, but police are investigating that angle.

Sgt. Joe Quisenberry of the OCSD said the episodes near the Bussell home are isolated, and they don't reflect the character of the area. He added that hunters, either trespassing or shooting too close to residences, makes up most of the mischief on Michigamme.

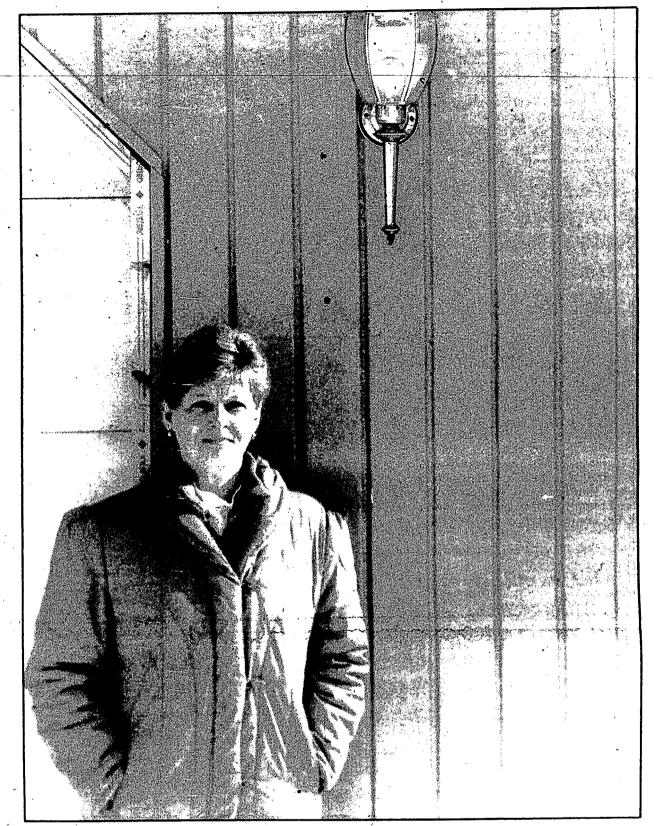

For now, the family has resorted to securing their home against further incidents. This includes changing the locks and installing a motion-triggered security system around the home.

Barb Bussell said her husband, Michael, has even taken up his own vigil.

"My husband has resorted to sleeping out in the living room with a shotgun nearby, in case anyone tries to break in," Barb Bussell said.

"I never thought it would be like this in this neighborhood ... it's a heck of a way to live," she added.

BARB BUSSELL of Michigamme poses next to two of the bullet holes in the front of her garage. They serve as a constant reminder to the family's ordeal the past four months.

Exhibit promotes art education

The work of 28,000 school children from Clarkston, Brandon, Holly, Lake Ofton and Waterford will be displayed in a unique presentation May 18 at the new Pine Knob in Independence Township.

The first Student Spectacular will feature graphic and performing arts under canvas in an afternoon program. A nationally-known entertainer will perform later

A raffle of 14 prizes will also coincide with the event. For the price of a $100 ticket, participants earn a chance at a Corvette convertible, a Mustang convertible, a Le Baron convertible and 11 other cash prizes varying from $500 to $7,500.

Service organizations and other non-profit groups taking part in the sale will keep $20 from each ticket sold. The club that sells the winning ticket will receive $5,000.

The all-day Student Spectacular will spotlight the accomplishments of area students and raise money for foundations established to provide academic enrichment programs throughout area schools. Owners of the new Pine Knob have made their facility available free of Organizers expect the event to raise $500,000 for such projects as visiting artists, writers, field trips to cultural points of interest and other projects proposed by school and community members.

The Student Spectacular afternoon exhibits will be free to the public and will feature work from public and private school students in kindergarten through 12th grade.

A full-stage program featuring area bands will be augmented by roving musicians, mimes, jugglers, actors and authors of original readings.

The Student Spectacular steering committee was to meet with representatives from area groups on Tuesday, Jan. 8. The efforts of the executive committee, comprised of representatives from five districts, are spearheaded by Clarkston pediatrician James O'Neill, who is Clarkston Foundation secretary.

Father of two finds lymphoma a costly disease

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Staff Writer

Joe Vestrand is looking for an opportunity to be productive again.

The 32-year-old Brandon Township man is inflicted with non-Hodgkin's lymphoma.

Lymphoma affects the body's lymphoid system, but

"It's kind of rough on my kids when they come from school and find out that I'm in the hospital."

Joe Vestrand

this particular affliction is found primarily in adults older than 50. Vestrand has been diagnosed with fourth-stage non-Hodgkin's lymphoma, which means the disease has sunk into his bone marrow.

Statistics show that nearly 7,000 new cases of the disease are diagnosed in the U.S. every year.

Vestrand, who has a Clarkston mailing address, was diagnosed with the disease in September 1989, after doctors discovered he had an elevated white blood cell count. Because of his age, his case is considered rare.

"All I want to do is get better, go back to work and provide for my family."

Due to his run-down condition, Vestrand had to stop working as a prototype die maker at Positive Prototype in less frightening. Pictured from left to right are Susan, Ashley, age 4, Joe and eight-year-

Blue Shield insurance. Vestrand was later approved to collect Social Security disability pay. However, several statewide medical cutbacks went into effect in October, and Vestrand lost all of his medical benefits except his disability, which his family currently lives on.

Due to the high cost of medical assistance, he has had to cut back on many of his treatments. For example, a CATSCAN test runs about $1,000 per examination. Medicine that could help his condition is unaffordable.

With the proper medical treatment, Vestrand said there is a 30 percent cure rate for people in their 60s. He is currently going to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac, every two weeks for treatments.

A father of two, Vestrand is taking his situation one

"This is a day-to-day thing," he said. "It's kind of rough on my kids when they come from school and find out that I'm in the hospital.'

The family sometimes uses humor to cope.

His wife, Susan, joked that the family has visited the hospital so much that they know the names of all the personnel.

"It's to the point where we know everyone at St.

Joe's on first-name basis," she laughed. Joe Vestrand admitted to being patient about his ailment, but he would like to get on with his life.

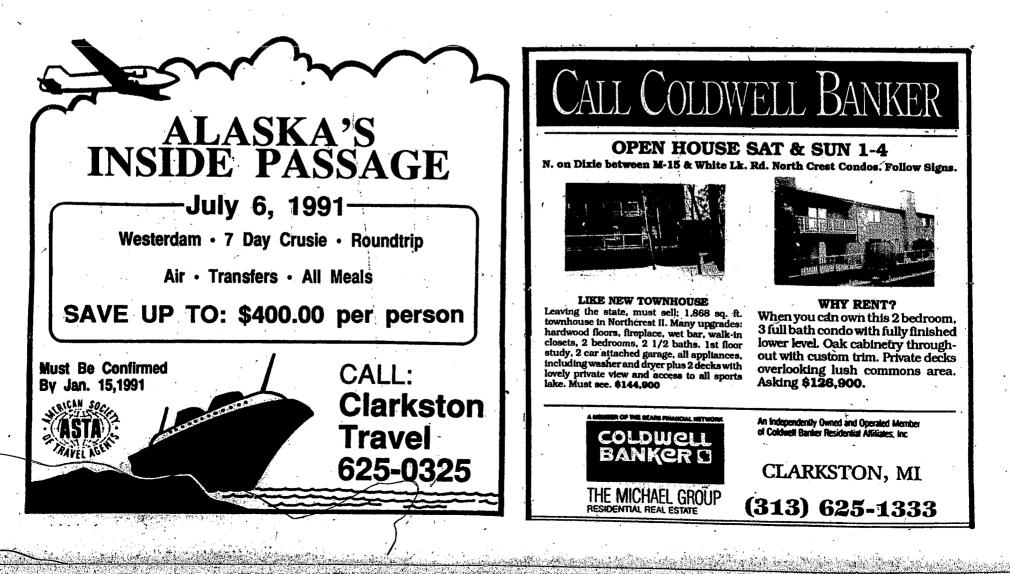

'All I want to do is get better, go back to work and provide for my family," he lamented. "But they won't give me the medicine to get better because of my financial situation.'

The family is looking into other means of support. Susan has submitted her husband's name with the Children's Transplant Association, a non-profit organization that could help fund the treatments. The family should hear back from the organization within the next week.

During the holidays, the couple was featured in two statewide newspapers, and several people contributed money and volunteered their services for future fundraisers. The Vestrands said it was a humbling experience.

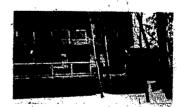

We're very appreciative of the support," Joe said. "The outpouring of the community has been phenomenal, and we'd like to thank everyone for caring."

Still moments

Julie Campe

January marks my fifth year in journalism. Thinking back, certain moments stand frozen in my memory.

There was the interview with a delightful, sweet woman in her 90s, who smiled and politely answered my questions.

It was a difficult interview because I knew our conversation was merely small talk and not meaning-

She seemed to be an intelligent woman with a spark in hereyes - plus she was in great shape, better than some 70-year-olds. Yet when I asked her for her philosophy of life or advice to others or secret to longevity, she only smiled and said she really couldn't

"After 90-some years, was this all one could say or felt one could say?" I thought to myself, getting ready to wrap up the interview.

Suddenly, though, the woman dropped her polite smile and turned to look directly at me.

"I don't want to die," she said, staring intently into my eyes.

"Some people my age are ready for death. They think it will bring peace. Well, I don't want any part of it. I don't believe there's anything after this life.

'There might be, but I don't think so. And I'm not ready to leave." She told me about the elderly home in which she lived. Yes, the food was fine; the rooms were comfortable; the other residents were nice.

"But the people there, they don't care about you. You just sit there all day, staring out the window or at the television.

"It's boring and depressing," she said, narrowing her eyebrows fiercely.

"I don't want to die. I'm not ready to leave this life," she said.

Just then, someone came to where we were sitting and told me to include this and that about the woman's life.

By the time I rose to leave, the woman had regained her polite, sweet smile again.

"So nice of you to come," she said to me, smiling, no sign of the dark spark in her eyes.

Another time, I took photos of a bicycle rodeo for preschool children at a day care program. It was one of my first assignments as a reporter.

One little girl rode a tricycle too big for her, but someone had attached blocks of wood to the pedals so her feet could reach them.

Still, she had trouble, though she didn't seem to notice, so happy she was to be riding out of doors with the other children, nearly all oblivious to each other in their activity.

One of the caregivers became frustrated with the little girl's efforts and said, "Sarah (or whatever name the girl used), you can't ride a bike. Get off and come here."

But the little girl didn't hear and instead continued, wobbling and smiling, through the course.

The caregiver, though, rushed over, and, yelling at her, yanked her off the tricycle. "Sarah, you're no good at this. Come inside with me," she shouted, frowning. Sarah had no idea what the trouble was and cried out in protest as the caregiver stalked with her back to

I stood staring, no longer enjoying my photo assignment.

No one else seemed to notice.

Great idea to recycle evergreens

Hats off to the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission for coming up with a great idea.

The commission is accepting Christmas trees at Independence Oaks County Park on Sashabaw Road, Independence Township.

Letter to editor

Keep handicapped out of the closet

After reading your Dec. 19, 1990, article on "Mother fights for rights of disabled daughter" and trying to understand why a professional such as Mr. Pullins would make such uncaring and cruel statements as stated in the article, it makes me wonder.

Is Mr. Pullins in the right field of work? I personally

It's 1991; handicapped people have been out of the closet for a few years now. We most certainly don't need people trying to put them back in.

Judy Bossalino

The discarded evergreens will be chipped and used on the park's nature trails as well as for mulch and compost around the park.

The program gives area residents a chance to "recycle" their Christmas trees, rather than send them to a landfill or up in smoke, where they would add to the waste problem in the county.

Trees are accepted 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. through Sunday, Jan. 13, at the park's nature center.

As if that weren't enough incentive, the park commission allows free park entry to those dropping off trees plus gives them a free pass to the April 22 Earth Day Fair and free seedling packets.

As an extra environmental hint, Dan Stencil, chief of parks operation, suggests that residents use old blankets or bed sheets in the transportation process, rather than plastic tree bags, which will only add to the solid waste problem. JLC

Anyone who has ever served on a committee, especially a government-type committee, knows there is a "meaning" behind many simple phrases.

A Rotary Club magazine, in England - which proves committee jargon is international - printed some definitions that will help you get the true meaning of a committee report.

My committee has decided ... I managed to chat to a member of my committee just before the meeting.

The committee met and evaluated the situation ... half the members showed up and chatted for a while.

We explored all possible solutions to the problem ... everyone talked too much.

A great deal of additional work will be necessary before the proposal can be acted upon ... no one understood it.

The matter is being considered ... let's wait until a member raises the matter again.

I will report on the matter more fully at the next meeting ... I forgot that I should have done something about it before today.

The results were inconclusive ... nothing was While no agreement was reached, we feel that definite progress was made toward resolving differences ... nobody budged an inch.

It is suggested that the wisest course ... this is what I think.

Therefore the consensus is ... and a couple of others think so, too.

With the greatest respect ... I wonder what gives you the idea that you are capable of giving me any advice.

There are some key issues here that must be addressed ... I haven't a clue what this job is all about.

This concludes the committee's appraisal of the situation ... we absolve ourselves of future responsibility.

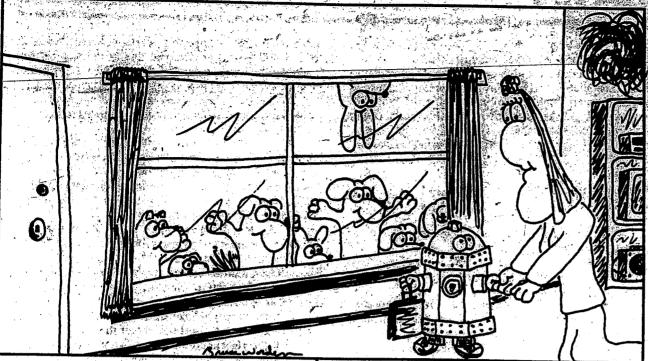

It is hoped that this report will stimulate increased interest in the problem ... let someone else do it next time.

Though born a mere two years apart, my brother, Troy, and I are worlds apart on every other issue.

He was a rather difficult baby, for one thing. This word comes straight from my mother, who would never level a charge against her youngest unless it were painfully and obviously true.

He would cry and cry, she revealed, sadly. He couldn't keep anything down, she added, shrugging, almost apologetically.

I, on the other hand, was always sunny and pleasant. And I loved to eat - something I proudly carry with me to this day.

While Troy carried his finicky, cantankerous nature into early childhood and adolescence, my spontaneous, carefree, loving nature blossomed.

We marched along different paths in adulthood, too. I had selected journalism to engage in thoughts of the human condition. Troy chose sales to immerse himself in thoughts of commerce.

Not that this is to be criticized, mind you. It was just that he was so slick, wining, dining and otherwise charming his clients into their purchases.

Couldn't they detect he was actually boisterous and unformed in the art of brotherly manners?

Apparently these family secrets remained wellhidden, for reports of Troy's successes continued to

A chance to pal around with precise journalism

Jim Fitzgerald

On the same page, my favorite newspaper reporter Jerry Hall was Mick Jagger's "galpal" and Tony Ward was Madonna's "boy pal." Naturally, that raises an important sociological question: Why is "galpal" one word and "boy pal" two words?

Journalism is not an easy profession.

Journalists strive to be correct. I don't like rock music, so, if I were a bus driver, I probably wouldn't know that Hall and Jagger went steady for many years, and had two children, before their recent marriage. But, as a conscientious journalist, I've made it a point to keep abreast of current pop culture, informed enough to write a sly iconic observation whenever the typically special talent of a female rock star is mentioned in the same context as "abreast."

Which brings us to Madonna, whose boy pal, according to my favorite newspaper, is "known informally as the Man Who's Been Where Warren Beatty Was." I've always followed Madonna's career, watching closely for signs of a virgin pregnancy. I was surprised when Beatty paused for Madonna, because I'd associated him with an earlier generation. In an historical context, their liaison seemed similar to Don Juan dating Betty Boop.

I do occasionally falter in my effort to keep current. I'm ashamed to admit that, until the recent brouhaha about phony singing, I thought Milli Vanilli was one female singer, rather than two males. In fact, I wouldn't have been surprised to learn Beatty left Madonna for Vanilli.

Which raises another important sociological question: Can a menage a trois be synced?

Anyway, I'm not naive. I realize family newspapers use such terms as "galpal" and "boy pal" so as not to shock old fashioned readers by giving them specific, not to mention_correct, information. If my mother were still alive, and she read that the children of Jagger and Hall were able to attend their wedding because of extended premarital sexual intercourse, she would have been outraged that mortal sin was reported between her grocery ads. However, if she read that Hall was Jagger's galpal, she would have understood.

"That's what pals are for," she would have said. Tra

None of which explains "galpal" as opposed to "boy pal." Why the gap between "boy" and "pal"? Why the closeness between "gal" and "pal"? Is the difference sexist? Is it implied that girls make closer pals than boys?

If so, I have to say that, based on my own experience, an important factor is being overlooked. For several years, the only one I wanted to go to bed with was a collie named

Or maybe the difference is elitist. In the two couples cited, it is the lesser-known members who are described as pals. Jagger and Madonna are huge celebrities, enjoying tremendous wealth and fame. Compared to them, Hall and Ward are nonenuties. Perhaps the implication is that pals, male or female, close or gapped, or mere accessories to more luminous partners. Sidekicks.

Mick Jagger could as well have married Gabby

Hayes. Whatever, you can see it isn't easy being a serious journalist. That goes for electronic as well as print media. Note the vexing case of Catherine Leahan; erstwhile beautiful young anchor for WXYZ-TV (Channel 7). Channel 7 insists Leahan must wait a year before taking another, IV job in the Detroit area becuase it spent $1 million grooming her. A $1,000-a-week anchor consultant was hired to advise Leahan to avoid on-air distraction by not thinking such extraneous thoughts as, Did I turn the lights off in

No mention was made of leaving her keys in the ignition. What is a serious journalist to make of that? Interestingly, Leahan complained that a female anchor is always required to sit on the left of the male anchor. You probably thought it didn't matter, just as long as they sat two abreast.

Letters to the Editor

Not fair to close Clarkston branch

Why is the Secretary of State closing the Clarkston branch office next month? If The Clarkston News knows a good reason, please explain it to your subscribers.

Surely it is not for lack of business. This area is one of the fastest growing communities in northern Oakland County — more cars, more trucks, more drivers, more voters. The office is always busy.

Last week when we went there to change the name on a car title, we found ourselves at the end of a long line. The only way we could take our turn was to stand outside and wait. The temperature was 10 degrees. The lines are always long.

It surely is not to save taxpayer's money. For every extra mile we drive to reach a more distant branch, we will burn more gas, pay a higher gas tax and waste our time as well as our money.

Closing the branch doesn't make sense. Is it one way of discouraging people from registering to vote? Are people so fed up with our government that they don't care whether they vote? With all the new people moving in, if they find it less convenient to register, are they likely to stay away?

Are the people in the Clarkston area so busy complaining about high property taxes that they won't even notice when the State of Michigan takes away one of the few local tax benefits and thus denies our residents a necessary and meaningful service? After all, drivers' licenses and car licenses are not free — fees are paid by most of those people standing in line.

We are told that the decision to close is set in stone
— only an act on the part of the Legislature can keep it open.

All right, Sen. Dunaskiss, you sent us a Merry Christmas family greeting. How about helping us to have a Happy New Year by doing your part to keep open the Clarkston branch of the Secretary of State?

Many of us in this high-tax area would appreciate a little consideration and fair play from our Legislature and our state government. Please continue to provide us with a convenient and necessary service right here in Clarkston where it belongs and where it is so much appreciated.

Roy and Aileen Haeusler

Steaming mad

We have just finished reading the Dec. 19 issue of your paper and are completely disappointed.

Compared to some of the articles that you have elected to provide space, for, you really missed a great opportunity this time.

We are referring to the lack of coverage you provided to an absolutely outstanding event that occurred at Clarkston High School this past weekend — "The Nutcracker Ballet," performed by the Classy Dancer Ballet Corps of Terri Newman's Dance Shoppe of Waterford.

Early last week, we advised you of this event and the rehearsal and performance schedule in hopes that you would cover this beautiful holiday activity.

This is the second year that the Classy Dancer Ballet Corps has performed The Nutcracker, and in both years they have spent one full day performing it at a reduced rate to local elementary school students.

Last year, they toured to three different school in Waterford, but the requests this year were so overwhelming that it was deemed best if the performance was held in one location and the students were allowed to come to them.

Our hats are off to Clarkston High School, since they were the only facility that would allow this to occur on a school day (Friday, Dec. 14).

It was an outstanding program, as was evident by the audience response. In fact, an indication of the popularity is that over 2,500 requests for tickets were received and about 1,900 had to be returned due to the size of the Clarkston Auditorium for the two scheduled performances (maybe next year other arrangement can be made).

By the way, if you weren't aware of all this background, it doesn't say much for your editorial investigation, now does it?

As you were advised, performing for the Ballet Corps are four students from Clarkston Community Schools: Kim Blimka (11th grade, CHS), whom you did show of photo of on Page 29; Staci Hill, our daughter (10th grade, CHS); Heather Wozniak (8th grade, SJHS) and Nicki Roughton (8th grade, SJHS).

When we called your office today, the excuse was that there was not enough room in this week's issue.

The obvious solution should have been to wait until next week (which would still be the Christmas season) and do a decent job of covering the event with more photos and an article.

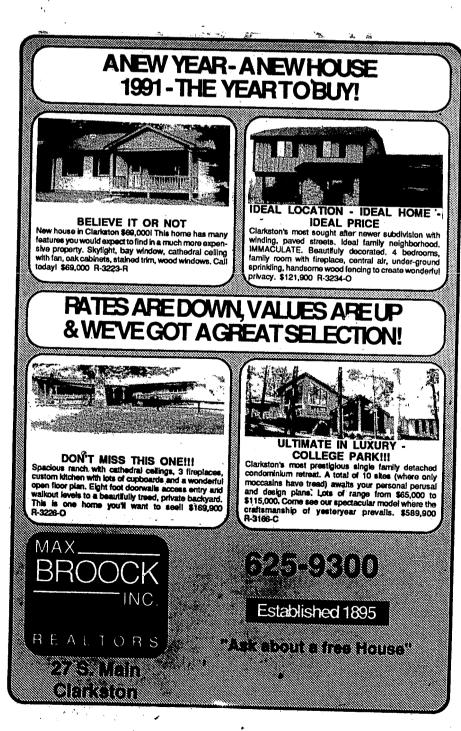

In fact, you could have utilized the same space used for the one photo this week for a small, descriptive article including the names of the four Clarkston students.

Ask anyone who attended this year's performance (it was staged twice for the general public on Saturday, Dec. 15), and they will tell you that it ranks right up there with any professional version of The Nutcracker they have seen!

CHS measures up to nation's educational goal

BY DR. ROBERT BUREK AND MARILYN ALLYN

The second of the six national goals for education presented by President Bush last February was that "by the year 2,000, the high school graduation rate will increase to at least 90 percent." The current national average is 74 percent.

Clarkston High School measures up well to the president's goal.

Our annual dropout rate is just over three percent. Translated, this means that three percent of our students leave us between the Fourth Friday in September and the close of the school year in June and do not re-enter another school program in this or any other school system.

Our "holding power" at the senior level is even better than the three percent figure, since the majority of those who do drop are at the 10th- or 11th-grade levels.

Close to 94 percent of students who begin their school career in Clarkston at the 10th-grade level do graduate three years later.

While the president's goal is already being met at CHS, we are not satisfied with our present status.

Altering the curriculum to meet the needs of "at youngsters, creating alternative options for students, and working with youngsters and families who are candidates for dropping out are directions we must continue to pursue in the 1990s.

For the six percent who do leave school early, our Adult and Community Education department offers three distinct programs to help individuals earn a high school diploma: 1) Adult High School Completion, 2) The Adult Performance Level Diploma Program, 3) The STRIVE Alternative Education Program.

These programs not only assist students in attaining a diploma, but also equip them with the job skills and the confidence that will propel them to reach their personal, academic and career goals.

The high school completion program offers classes during the day and evening at the Community Education Center and during the day at the Calvary Lutheran Church.

Students may also take advantage of classes offered at the Oakland Technical Center Northwest and the Michigan College of Beauty.

The Adult Performance Level diploma program offers adults who are age 20 or older the completion of graduation requirements through a flexible, competencybased curriculum.

This program was designed by the United States Department of Education and the majority of adults who graduate from this program are currently enrolled in institutions of higher learning.

The STRIVE program is now serving 80 16-to 18year-old dropouts from Clarkston and surrounding areas. Students are referred by school personnel, Clarkston Area Youth Assistance and parents; and they are screened for admittance to the program.

Once admitted, they enjoy small classes and individual attention. Child care and job placement assistance are also available to these students.

Clarkston school officials strongly believe that is important for all to have that second chance to complete requirements for graduation.

Through our high school's efforts in a North Central accreditation evaluation this year, activities for school improvement and a concerted effort by staff will help meet the challenge of further reducing our dropout rate.

This is the third in a series of articles about national goals for education and how Clarkston stacks up. This week's authors, Robert Burek and Marilyn Allyn, are principal at Clarkston High School director of Clarkston Community Education, respectively.

What's the rule for deducting consumer interest?

It's time to start thinking about wrapping up another tax year.

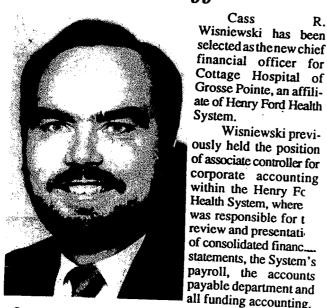

Internal Revenue Service (IRS) tax forms have probably arrived in the mail already, and W-2s are on hundred dollars short of being able to itemize my deductions. Is there anything I can do?

Most taxpayers have questions about paying taxes, and the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants compiled some of the most commonly asked tax questions.

Try accelerating some of next year's itemized deductions into the current year or postponing some of this year's deductions until next year so that the total will exceed your standard deduction in one year or the other. Then you will be able to itemize once every two years and claim the standard deduction in the other year.

Q. I'm a single parent. I pay my mother to care for my son while I work. Can I claim the dependent-

Yes, you can as long as you do not claim you mother as a dependent. But be aware that if your mother comes to your home to care for your children, you must pay Social Security and unemployment taxes based on her salary. You will also need to file payroll tax returns. On the other hand, if you take your children to your mother's home, she is not considered your household employee and you will not face these employer responsibilities.

Q. What's the rule for deducting consumer interests this year?

Borrowing has become more expensive. On your tax return for 1990, you may deduct only 10 percent of the amount you spend for interest on personal loans, car loans, student loans and credit card accounts. For 1991, no deduction for personal interest will be allowed.

Q. My child earns about $2,000 in unearned income. My business partner tells me I no longer need to prepare a separate return to report my child's income. I thought the "Kiddie Tax" required me to do so. Who's right?

The Kiddie Tax does require you to report your child's unearned income. But to make filing easier, the tax law provides that if your child's gross income is between $500 and $5,000, you can now use Form 8814 to indicate that you plan to include your child's gross income on your own return. But there is one factor you should keep in mind. When you include your child's income with your own, you increase your adjusted gross income. This may effect your ability to deduct medical and miscellaneous deductions.

Q. I work full time as a teacher, but I just started doing some tutoring on the side. How do I report the income I receive?

The income you make from tutoring is self-employment income and is reported on Schedule C. You should keep track of your expenses for materials and transportation to and from the second job as these costs are deductible. If you make more than $400 in self-employment income, you must file a Schedule SE and pay selfemployment taxes on this income.

Q. I charged a donation to a local charity in December. I didn't pay my bill until January. When do I deduct the donation?

You get to deduct your donation in the year you charge it not in the year you actually pay the bill.

Q. I know that certain miscellaneous itemized deductions are deductible on in excess of two percent of adjusted gross income. What expenses fit in this category?

Miscellaneous itemized deductions include such expenses as union and professional dues, small tools, safety equipment and supplies for your job, fees paid to a tax advisor to prepare your return or represent you at an audit, certain travel and lodging costs connected with seeking employment, and investment-related expenses such as safe deposit box rental fees, the cost of producing or collecting income and IRA custodial fees.

Q. I just reached age 65. Am I entitled to claim a higher standard deduction?

Yes, if you use the standard deduction, the law allows you to add $800 to your standard deductions if you are single. If you're married, you may add $650 for each spouse who is age 65 and older.

Q. There's no way I'm going to be able to file my return by April 15th. What should I do?

You can get an extra four months for filing if you complete Form 4868 and file it by April 15. Be sure to include a check for the approximate amount of tax you expect to owe or you'll be subject to a hefty failure-to-pay penalty. This penalty can be avoided by paying at least 90 percent of your actual tax bill. Remember, you get an extension for filling your return, but you do not get an extension for paying the amount you owe. Also, if you are expecting to get a refund, you should file as soon aspossible.

Q. How long should I keep my tax returns?

As long as possible. As a general rule, the IRS cannot assess additional taxes after three years starting from the due date of the return or when it was actually filed, whichever is later. If, however, you fail to report more than 25 percent of your income, the IRS has up to six years to audit you and there is no time limit if the IRS thinks you committed fraud or you failed to file a return. Just to be on the safe side, it's a good idea to hold onto your forms indefinitely.

The above information was provided by the Michigan Association of CPAs.

Nearly half or all energy used in hour homes is wasted — out the window or through the attic, cracks or other leaks. Every winter, the energy equivalent of all the oil that flows through the Alaskan pipeline in a year leaks through American windows. If every gasheated home was properly caulked and weatherstripped, the natural gas saved annually would be enough to heat about four million homes.

BPW offers forum on reproductive issues

A forum of reproductive topics is planned for 6:30-9 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 10.

Sponsored by the Waterford-Clarkston Business and Professional Women's (BPW) Club, "Open Minds ... Open Doors II" will be held at the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus, Big Lake Road, Springfield Township. Cost is $10 and includes light refreshments.

The program is open to the public. Because of limited seating, reservations are suggested. On-site childcare is available.

The forum topics range from contraception and menopause to the roles schools and elected government play in that area of life.

Waterford-Clarkston BPW is committed to the idea that a woman fully educated about her body and her reproductive options has the best opportunity to make positive choices for her future.

K & Hill Construction lays roots in Clarkston area

BY TRACY KING Clarkston News Associate Editor

A lifelong resident of the Clarkston area, Scott Koerber is now working to improve the community in which he was raised.

He and his brother-in-law, Jim Hill, have formed the K & Hill Construction Group on Allen Road, Brandon Township. Most of their landscape and construction work is done in the Clarkston area.

"It feels good to cut wood and nail board and see school-buses driving by," Scott says. "I used to hang around here. I'm proud to be contributing to it."

Jim Hill and Scott Koerber are carrying on a business started by Scott's father.

"I worked with my father when I was younger," Scott recalls. "I started by picking up lumber.

"When we got into it, my father said 'That's late nights enough for me; I'm going to slow down — you can do what you want," Scott adds.

While Scott focuses on the construction end of the business, Jim concentrates on the landscaping division of the business.

Along with experience in building custom decks, garages, additions and remodeling work, the company also offers expertise in installation of landscape materials and landscape design, using a designer formerly of Bor-

What's new in business

dine's Better Blooms.

"It's easier on the homeowner," Scott says. "They don't have time to shop all the people for sod or decks. "We do it in one-stop shopping."

The co-owners are particularly proud of work recently completed on Clarkston Road, at the entrance to Phase II of Steeple Ridge Condominiums, which includes more than 90 tons of boulders.

"We cater to the customer," Jim says, smiling.

K & Hill Construction completed the renovation work at St. Daniel Catholic Church and is currently busy working in downtown Clarkston, renovating a Washington Street office building.

Pride is only part of what has made the business a success. The two are also very positive, especially in light of the tough economic climate the country faces.

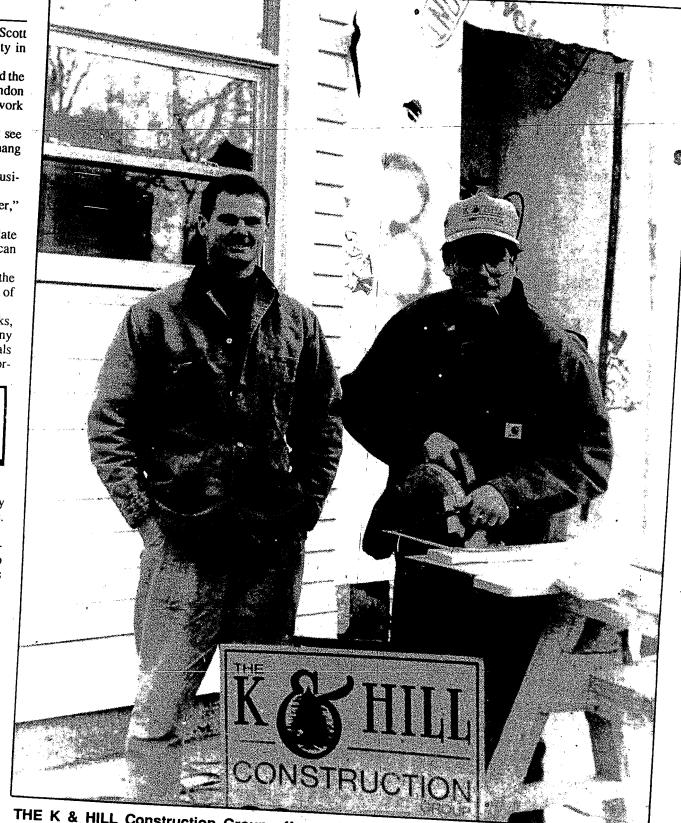

"People always put money into their homes during a recession," Jim explains. "Instead of buying new, they update what they have.

"Not as many people in this area will likely feel a recession," he predicts.

The area and its people are what makes their work enjoyable, the two say.

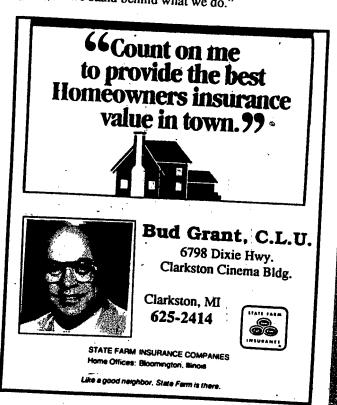

"We deal with so many people in the community, when you're out and you run into them, you have a common ground." Jim savs.

"We've been in Clarkston for 20 years," Scott shrugs. "We're going to be in Clarkston for another 20 years, so we stand behind what we do."

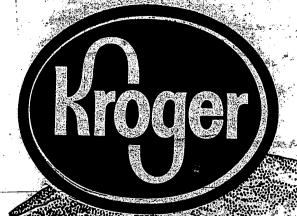

THE K & HILL Construction Group offers clients experience in building, remodeling, landscaping, design and more. Owners Scott Koerber and Jim Hill are brothers-in-law, carrying on a business begun by Scott's father.

Skiers defend two championship titles

Winter sports preview

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston girls' ski team will be defending two titles, the Southeast Michigan Ski League and the Greater Oakland Activities League championships.

"Our team is probably the strongest in the league," said second year coach Judy Roeser. "These young people are very good skiers."

Along with winning all of their dual meets en route to the league titles last season, the Wolves placed first at the regionals and ended up finishing fifth at the state finals.

Clarkston's competitors in the Southeast Michigan Ski League are Rochester Adams, Rochester, Andover, Lahser, Lake Orion, Waterford Mott, Waterford Kettering, Detroit Country Day and Cranbrook Kingswood. Lake Orion, Mott, Kettering and the Wolves also compete for GOAL honors.

Carrie Roeser, the daughter of coach Roeser, is expected to lead the Wolves. The senior will be competing for her third year on varsity.

Senior Andrea Raymond and sophomore Courtney Whittaker both earned varsity letters last season after moving up from the IV and will be key Wolves.

Junior Kim Carpentier and senior Sandra Linberg (an exchange student from Sweden) will also see much action.

In each dual meet, six skiers for each team make two runs in the slalom and two more runs in the giant slalom. The times of two runs are added, with the top four times counting for the overall team total.

Skiers pass through 10 gates in the giant slalom and between 15 and 18 in the slalom.

With both runs counting in the total, a skier cannot afford to miss a gate or fall. "There's a fine line between speed and ability," said coach Roeser.

Because of the lack of the snow, the Wolves (along with other area teams) haven't had much of an opportunity to make some practice runs with gates. In fact, Clarkston's first time racing through gates was Jan. 4, three days before the opening meet

The fair amount of snow that fell over the weekend will help the Wolves get back into form. And they hope it's, once again, championship form:

THE CLARKSTON girls' ski team, which finished fifth in the state last season, gets back into action this week.

Detroit Tigers president

Board member of Domino's Pizza Bo may know football (and pizza) but he doesn't know baseball.

And that's one of the worst things I can think of about Bo, especially since he is now a president of a major league team. Bo, a loyal company man (in more than one company) to Monaghan, doesn't have the same feelings as most Tiger fans because he was never much of a Tiger or baseball fan. How many games did Bo attend at Tiger Stadium before he was named president (not many more than the ame number as his Rose Bowl victories)?

As far as I know. Bo is just a middle yesman between Monaghan and the public. It is scary to think that he could be calling many of the important shots, especially because of his ignorance of baseball.

And as far as integrity, Bo has said Harwell never invited him to the press conference and Harwell said he did invite Bo. Do you believe Bo or Ernie? Why wasn't Bo there,

Tom Monaghan

Owner of the Detroit Tigers and Domino's Pizza

No matter what is said and done, the 'new direction' of the Tigers starts with Monaghan (a.k.a. the Pizza Man).

Monaghan, who bought the Tigers in 1983, has rarely shown up at Tiger Stadium (or any other public place) in recent years. H alues old Frank Lloyd Wright homes, but wants to tear down historic Tiger Stadium. He spent much money on a church in Central America, but has spent little, if any money, for the area around Tiger Stadium. He owns a car that is worth $20 million, but refuses to look at the Cochrane Plan, which would refurbish Tiger Stadium (including luxury boxes,new locker rooms and rest rooms) for less than $30 million. He ignores a 30-year lease his club signed that states the Tigers will stay in Tiger Stadium at least until 2008, while looking for a new stadium site (never disclosing who would pay for it). He develops on Drummond Island, outraging many of its life-long citizens.

In the summer of 1989, Monaghan tells WPZA radio interviewer, "I think he's (Ernie Harwell) not enough of a homer... He's too much down the middle. I like our announcers to be fans and cheer for the team.

Tiger TV announcers

These Hall-of-Famers on the field have been different off the field, especially after Monaghan became owner.

Before 1983, Kaline and Kell used to. openly say how Detroit is fortunate to have Tiger Stadium. Now they are puppets for the company-line and are against keeping Tiger Stadium. I used to fondly associate Kaline, Kell and Campbell with baseball, now I think; of them as just some of Monaghan's business and pizza toppings.

Mitch Albom

Detroit Free Press columnist

The day after Harwell's press confernce, Albom writes. "There is nothing wrong with Ernie Harwell. No reason that he should go, other than this 'new irrection' the Tigers keep spouting. Harwell looks good, sounds as wonderful as ever.'

A few weeks later, Albom writes that everyone is to blame. And he adds that people should apologize to Bo Schembechler, the same Bo who thought Harwell was only good enough for one more year in the booth.

Albom, a national award winning columnist, recently wrote a book about Bo. Albom, who usually asks good questions (however, I never heard him ask any questions about the 30-year-lease the Tigers signed on Tiger Stan in 1978 or how Monaghan plans to fund a new stadium), apparently hasn't questioned himself about conflict of interest.

J.P. McCarthy

WJR radio personality

Former Detroit and ABC sports broadcaster Dave Diles recently tells Denny McLain on radio station WRYZ that when he and Mc-Carthy were playing golf as far back as last September, McCarthy told Diles that Bo was firing Harwell.

Months later, McCarthy says he had no idea what Harwell's press conference was going to be about and says he was "shocked" to hear Harwell was fired.

Isn't it amazing how J.P., sports director Frank Beckmann and other WJR "newshounds" claim they have no idea what is going on when they work just feet away from their boss, Jim

Jim Long

WJR General Manager

Two and a half weeks after Emie Harwell's press conference, Long tells Detroit News Sports Editor Joe Falls that he was the one who fired the announcer. "It was me, not Bo, who wanted to make a change," said Long.

Long tells Falls, "Let's face it, Ernie sn't the old Ernie anymore."

Harwell says he is paid by the Tigers and WIR, with both the Tigers and the radio station having input into who announces for the Ti-

Jeff Odenwald

Marketing director for the Tigers

Odenwald is probably a bigger part of etting the tone for this "new direction" than what we have been hearing. New angles of marketing probably will have to do with have ing the radio and TV announcers push more products and be more of a cheericader on the air, something that Harwey wouldn twant to Give Odenwald credit for being one of the few people connected with the Tigers or ... WJR to show up at Harwell's press conference and meet the press.

Joe Falls

Detroit News Sports Editor

Falls "breaks" the story that WJR genral manager Jim Long was responsible for (firing Harwell. He also writes that Bo Schem bechler was a man of integrity because Bo said Harwell should not be fired infinediately (but Bo has no problems with Harwell being fired after one more year).

Falls writes that "somebody (Bo) a few thousand letters of apology

Falls and Mitch Albom have two things in common with each other, they both say people should apologize to Bo and they both just happened to have written books about the former University of Michigan football coach

Jim Campbell Chairman-Chief Executive Officer of the Tigers

Campbell preceded Bo as president of the Tigers. Campbell, however, unlike Bo, knows baseball.

Campbell signed a 30-year lease in 1978 that states the Tigers will play in Tiger Stadium until 2008. Why don't we hear anything from Campbell when Bo says there will be a new stadium by 1995? Can't Bo, or Campbell himself, read the writing on that lease? Isn't a contract a contract to Bo, Campbell and Monaghan?

Wrestlers easily win South Lyon tourney

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI Clarkston News Staff Writer

All 13 Clarkston varsity wrestlers, including seven sophomores, placed to help the Wolves win the South Lyon Invitational Saturday.

"It showed that we practiced during the holidays. I thought we looked pretty impressive," said Clarkston coach Scott Strickler. "We weren't going to settle for

The Wolves finished with 209 points, well in front of second place finishers Redford Union which had 130. Fowlerville was third (125), followed by host South Lyon (103.5), Woodhaven (100), Walled Lake Western (97), Walled Lake Central (59) and Okemos (7).

Six Wolves won their divisions: (103) sophomore Jeff Deroseau edged Woodhaven's Eric Broad, 1-0; (125) sophomore Jerry Anderson pinned Woodhaven's Tom Burke at 3:43; (140) senior Alex Martin stopped South Lyon's Jeff Gates, 3-2; (152) sophomore Steve Cohoon had no problems with Redford Union's Kevin Hanus, 9-1: (171) senior Damon Michelsen pinned Redford Union's George

Placing fourth were: (119) sophomore Terry Melvin, (160) senior Jason Slater, (hwt) sophomore Jon Roy.

Coach Strickler said the opponents of his highly-ranked Clarkston team (rated second in the state by the Detroit Free Press) are well aware of the Wolves.

"They heard of us," said Strickler about the foes at South Lyon.

Strickler is pleased about his team's efforts so far.

"We're avoiding the upsets and improving every week," said Strickler.

The Wolves hope to continue their winning ways when they host Waterford Kettering Thursday, Jan. 10 at 6 p.m.. Kettering, a Greater Oakland Activities League foe, is considered to be one of the county's top teams. The Captains have a 9-1 dual meet record while the Wolves remain undefeated.

Volleyball team tops Adams, edged by Troy

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI Clarkston News Staff Writer

A surge of service aces has powered the Clarkston volleyball team to an 8-2-3

Wolverines stay outside

It's tough for a team to win when it depends on outside shooting.

We played well enough to win, but just couldn't hit any inside baskets," said Clarkston Junior High seventh grade coach John Craven after a 36-27 loss to Lake Orion Dec. 17.

The Wolverines, 1-8, trailed 19-8 at the half and couldn't catch up.

Joe Jenson and Bill Goforth each paced Clarkston with six points. Teammate Bryan Dankert had five, Eric Crysler three, Jason Craven, Mike Broggi and Jeff Mull each had two and Tim O'Rourke added one.

Clarkston, 18-18-4 last season, has served 168 aces out of 721 attempts (23 percent). Coach Gordie Richardson feels some ace team and individual records are bound to broken if the pace continues.

Rochester Adams found out about Clarkston's deadly serving, losing to the Wolves, 15-9, 15-11, in the first match of a tri-meet at Adams Jan. 7.

"It was a big win," said Richardson, who pointed out that many of the Adams players compete in AAU volleyball during the off-season.

Candy Polenz, Kim Kolody and Becky Kosek all were 8-of-8 in their serving. Polenz nailed three aces.

Polenz also was 11 of 12 in attacks with seven kills and Stacey Tinkis was 12 of 12 with six kills.

The Wolves and Troy had a seesaw match in the nightcap, with the Colts edging Clarkston, 16-14, 8-15, 15-11.

Clarkston was up 14-7 in the opening game but seven straight points spurred whis team's play against the tough squad a Colt comeback.

Troy took a 8-1 lead in the second game, but the Wolves scored the game's last 14 points.

In the deciding game, Clarkston was up 7-1. losing 7-9 and tied at 11. Troy won the last four points for the game and the match.

Polenz was 12 of 13 in attacks with seven kills, Heather Steinhelper was nine of 11 with five kills and Jenny Graham made 11 of 13 with four kills.

Clarkston, 2-1-2, reaches semifinals (Jan 5 at Walled Lake Invitational)

The Wolves tied their first two matches. won the next two and then lost to Birmingham Marion in the semifinals of the Walled Lake Invitational.

Even with a 6-15, 14-16 loss to Marion, Coach Richardson was impressed with from Birmingham.

"I'm convinced we can play against anybody," said Richardson, whose team led 14-11 in the second game against Marion.

Marion ended up winning the invitational.

Clarkston opened the day's action with a 13-15, 15-13 tie against Seaholm, followed by another tie, 15-6, 6-15 against Northville.

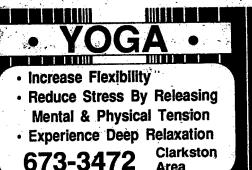

The Wolves got on the winning track by topping Livonia Franklin, 15-12, 15-6, and then stopped Brighton, 15-9, 15-6.

Tournament totals saw the Wolves making 78 aces out of 244 serves.

Steinhelper was 34 of 39 in attacks with 17 kills (a .308 percentage), Kosek only made eight errors in 188 setting attempts and Stacey Tinkis served 51 of 56 (91 percent).

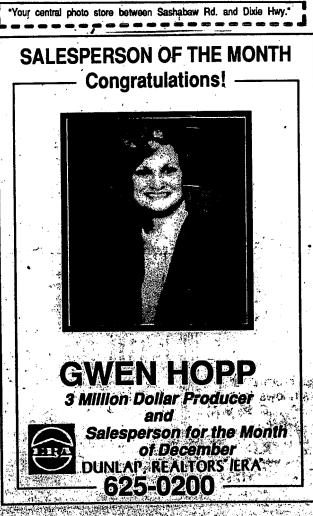

Graham had a 93.6 serve reception percentage while Polenz was at 90.5.

Polenz also had 25 digs for the day and Steinhelper had six blocks.

The new dialing procedure is being phased in throughout the 313 area to avert a phone number shortage early Residents using Clarkston-area exchanges (620, 625, 623, 391) must use 313 beginning Jan. 15. Residents with 673-4 exchanges must begin Jan. 8. Other areas will be phased in through April.

Helmrich said that long distance calls within the 313 area — such as those from Detroit to Ann Arbor. currently are placed by dialing "1" plus the seven-digit

The new procedure will create an additional 1.5 million phone numbers by allowing the company to use any of the nation's other 150 area codes as the first three digits of local phone numbers in the 313 area, Helmrich said.

"For example," customers might find Arizona's 602 area code being used as the first three digits of their local phone number — say, (313) 602-0000," Helmrich explained.

Helmrich said the new procedure will standardize the way customers dial all long-distance calls - to destinations inside and outside the 313 area.

The dialing plan affects only the 313 area, where the pool of available phone numbers is quickly being used up because of new technology.

Boomers use a lot of energy

Households headed by the Baby Boom Generation those born between 1946 and 1964 — comprise more than one-third of residential electric households served by Consumers Power Co., yet account for greater than 41 percent of total residential sales.

On average, households headed by Baby Boomers consume 16 percent more electricity than other age groups, according to a new survey by the utility.

The reasons for the higher-than-average power consumption include new electric appliances and homes owned by Baby Boomers. The following chart reflects ownership of various appliances by Baby Boomers vs. Non-Boomers.

Baby Boomers Non-Boomers

Videocassette recorder 63 percent Heated waterbed 33 percent Microwave oven 77 percent Dishwasher 40 percent Swimming pool pump 8 percent

33 percent 11 percent 68 percent

34 percent 4 percent

The survey also indicates that in Consumers Power's 67-county service territory, Baby Boomers account for about two-thirds of the construction of new homes, which typically require more electricity than older homes.

"As we plan for the 1990s into the next century, it is evident that Baby Boomers will increase their influence on society and very specifically on our energy supply business," said Paul A. Elbert, the utility's vice president of marketing, rates and wholesale power transactions.

"Our challenge is to grow with these fast-moving customers by offering them reliable service at rates that beat the competition," Elbert said.

The full impact of the Baby Boomers' high energy demand won't be felt until early next century, when their earning power reaches its peak, noted Elbert.

"The oldest Baby Boomers are now in their mid-40s, and they will continue their energy consumption patterns until their mid-50s. This means that this unusually large block of customers will still be moving into their peak energy consumption years over the next 20 years or so,'

For all kinds of folks

FOLK Singers Sally Rogers and Howie Bursen perform at a nearly-packed St. Daniel Cushing Center in Clarkston Saturday night to end the 1990 Possum Corner Concerts season. The Connecticut couple (Rogers grew up in northern Michigan) sang traditional, contemporary and original ballads, including selections from their latest album, "When Howie Met Salley." Both sang and played the guitar. Rogers also sometimes played an Appalachian dulcimer, and Bursen strummed a banjo. The Possum Corner winter/ spring concert series begins Friday, Jan. 11, when Bill Morrissey performs 8 p.m. at the Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church (Century Chapel), Maybee Road, Independence Township. Feathered friends flock to yards with savory seed

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN Clarkston News Staff Writer

Not every bird heads for the south to bask in warm

And for those that stay behind, foraging for food can be difficult when snow covers the ground.

To help the feathered friends, Independence Oaks County Park held "Brunch with the Birds," on Saturday, Participants in the program found the facts about Michigan bird-feeding preferences even more palatable while they munched on a delicious breakfast of Hot Mulled Cider, Monkey Bread and a cheese and egg dish (see recipes below) served by the naturalists from the park on Sashabaw Road, Independence Township.

quail, ducks, geese and pheasants.

Birds will eat other types of food, too. If fruit is placed in a feeder, mockingbirds and orioles might visit; and suct attracts woodpeckers, chickadees, nuthatches and titmice.

Pam also gave another recommendation for attrac ing birds. A fresh water supply in a birdbath will greatly increase the number of birds coming into a backyard, she

Naturalists provide recipes for birds and people

ALLISON LYNCH, 7, colors a picture of a chickadee at Independence Oaks County Park: on Sashabaw Road, Independence Township, on Jan. 5.

Recipes for birds and people were included in "Brunch with the Birds" Jan. 5 at Independence Oaks County Park.

According to Ortho Books' "How to Attract Birds," these are recipes designed to appeal to the widest variety

A recommended birdseed mix is: sunflower seeds, 50 percent; millet, 35 percent; and cracked corn, 15 percent.

Ortho recommends beef suct above other kinds: it can be purchased inexpensively from the butcher.

Be certain to ask for "short" suet or kidney suet rather than "stringy" suet, and make sure that it is fresh, firm and white.

Ask the butcher to grind it, or grind at home by yourself if you plan to melt it down.

Heat the ground suet in a double boiler or in a small saucepan placed inside a larger pan of boiling water, until it has been rendered to liquid state.

Allow hot suet to cool and thicken before adding seeds; otherwise they will float to the top. A wide variety of seeds, fruits and other bird treats can be stirred into the thickening suet before pouring it into forms or packing it into bird feeders.

An alternate procedure is to heat the ground suct as described above, then allow it to cool and solidify. Remove the solidified fat that has risen to the surface and let it

This purified fat can be stored in the refrigerator or reheated and made into suet-seed cakes immediately,

Purified and reheated suet makes harder cakes when cooled a second time, and they will last much longer outdoors. This is an essential procedure when offering suct in the spring and summer.

Commercial suct-seed cakes are widely available, and most have the advantage of being highly refined and very hard, retarding spoilage.

They also fit neatly into commercial suet feeders, Many birds prefer the softer homemade mixtures, however, and the special treats you add to them.

Recipes for birds

HIGH PROTEIN SUET MIX FOR INSECT-EATING BIRDS

4 1/2 cups ground fresh suet

3/4 cup dried and finely ground bakery goods (whole or cracked wheat bread and crackers are best)

1/2 cup hulled, raw and unsalted sunflower seed

1/4 cup millet (white proso is best)

1/4 cup dried and chopped berries (currants, raisins or dried wildberries)

3/4 cup dried and finely ground meat (optional)

1. Melt suet in a saucepan.

2. Mix together the rest of the ingredients in a large mixing bowl.

3. Allow suet to cool until slightly thickened, then add it to the mixture in the bowl. Mix well.

4. Pour or pack into forms or suet feeders; smear onto tree trunks or overhanging limbs and branches, or pack into pine cones.

SOFT PEANUT BUTTER MIX

Relished by a wide variety of birds, this mix is great for packing into feeders or smearing on tree trunks.

1 cup freshly ground suet

1 cup peanut butter

3 cups yellow cornmeal

1/2 cup enriched white or whole wheat flour

1. Melt suet in a saucepan.

2. Add peanut butter, stirring until melted and well blended.

3. In a separate bowl, mix together the last two ingredients.

4. After suet-peanut butter blend has cooled and started to thicken, add dry ingredients and blend into dough. It is now ready to serve.

The Other Side of Things

Listen to the rhythm of the drumming nails Ashley

It was an ordinary day in algebra class. I was singing "Tom's Diner" to a circle of friends when I realized that everyone else in the class was looking at me. Why, I wondered, was everyone looking at me? I checked my skirt ... to the knees. My hair was still brown, and I was singing on key. So what was attracting so much attention?

Then, it hit me. It was my lemon yellow nails drumming rhythmically on the desk. I smiled and flashed a little wave. Everyone smiled back. Mr. Bronson cleared his throat and everyone smiled at him ... even though his nails were not painted lemon yellow. It's funny, isn't it, how teachers can get attention by just clearing their throats?

Anyway, about my nails. No one can believe that I suddenly HAVE nails. Long nails. Lemon yellow nails. Even my teachers are beginning to notice them. They keep saying, "Ashley, will you stop drumming your nails on the desk!" I'm sure it's just their way of complementing my newly long nails ... my triumph over demon habit.

All my life I've kept my nails chewed halfway back to the cuticles. Not that I wanted to ... certainly not. I wouldn't intentionally do something that would one day cause appendicitis. At least that's what my mom has always told me when she'd catch me chewing my nails.

"Appendicitis?" I asked. "How can chewing my nails cause appendicitis?"

While she wasn't sure, she just knew for certain that it would. She said swallowing bubble gum could have the same effect.

But whenever a well-meaning friend or relative chided me for biting my nails and urged me to stop, my mom was also the first to defend me.

"It's just a nervous habit," she'd say. "and you probably shouldn't make yourself stop biting your nails. It's apparently filling some great emotional need ... like carrying around a security blanket ... and if you make yourself quit biting your nails, then you'll probably just start some other much worse habit ... like twirling your hair around you fingers."

We knew a boy in third grade who twirled his hair until he had bald spots on his head. And the whole family had to go for counseling.

I assured my mom that if I did quit biting my nails I wouldn't choose a replacement habit that would send our whole family for counseling —jail, maybe — but not counseling.

Anyway, it was shortly after school started this year that I finally made up my mind to grow out my nails—even though it might mean missing out on appendicitis.

Actually, it was all so easy. I just painted my chewed nails with some bad tasting polish designed to keep me from biting my nails and ... voila! ... in about two weeks, my nails had almost reached my fingertips. In another two weeks, I had long shiny nails. First, red ... then mauve, then navy with silver stripes. But my favorite is yellow.

And the best news is that I haven't picked up a replacement habit, I can't help smiling contentedly to myself as I sit in class drumming my nails on the desk top. I guess I've really done it — I've beaten the odds.

Winter recipes for naturalists

Recipes for people

Participants in the nature center's bird program were treated to a special brunch. Following are some of the recipes.

HOT MULLED CIDER

from "The Pleasure of Herbs"

1 gallon cider without preservative

1/2 cup light brown sugar

1/2 teaspoon sait

1/2 teaspoons ground cloves

2 pieces stick cinnamon

Bring all ingredients to boil in a large pot. Boil 5-8 minutes. Strain and serve hot or refrigerate to reheat. Serve in mugs with cinnamon sticks as stirrers. This may be kept warm in a crockpot.

JACK SMITH'S MONKEY BREAD

4 cans buttermilk biscuits cut into 1/4 pieces

1 cun sugar

2 teaspoons cinnamon

1/4 pound melted butter

Put sugar and cinnamon in a plastic bag. Shake a few biscuits at a time in the bag and place them into a well greased bundt pan.

Put leftover cinnamon and sugar on top. Pour butter or margarine on top. Bake 45 minutes in 350 degree oven. Turn out immediately.

Optional: You may add a few nuts and raisins in layers while filling the pan.

NATURALIST BREAKFAST BREAK

from Association of Interpretive Naturalists

1 pound of bacon or sausage

24-ounce package frozen hash browns 12 eggs

1/2 to 3/4 pound grated cheddar cheese, chopped onion, green pepper, mushrooms to taste, sauteed with hash browns.

Fry bacon or sausage and set aside. Drain grease. Leave just enough to brown potatoes and optional vegetables.

Remove hash brown potatoes from skillet and place half of the potatoes in a greased 9"-by-13" casserole dish. Crumble half of the cheese on top of bacon. Repeat the above layers. Beat eggs with salt and pepper to taste. Pour over layered mixture.

Bake 20-30 minutes at 350 degrees until eggs are set, but not dry. May top with extra grated cheese after removing it from the oven. This can be assembled the night before and refrigerated, but allow a little longer baking time in this case.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Ron Rodda Sales Manager

QUESTION: Does it make sense to buy real estate during inflation?

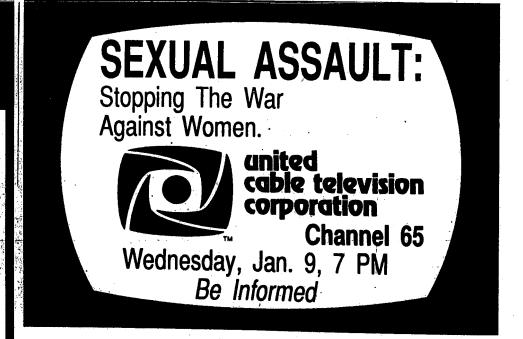

ANSWER: During inflation (and we're in it), there's an excellent case for investing in real estate. Most of the investment is paid for with borrowed money. Whenever you can borrow money at a fixed rate during inflation, you are money ahead. Here is your chance to turn inflation to your advantage. Your mortgage gives you full-price dollars to work with today. You then pay them back with "cheaper" dollars you will be earning for the next 20 or 30 years. This is one of the reasons many wealthy individuals continue to make big real estate investments.

INVESTING IN REAL ESTATE is and excellent way to turn inflation to your advantage.

Humanitarian Day

Many celebrated individuals have struggled and sacrificed — even given their lives — to ensure that the constitutional rights and privileges of all Americans are upheld.

Martin Luther King Jr., Rosa Parks, Thurgood Marshall and John F. Kennedy are among the most

However, countless others have fought and sacrificed in the name of the civil rights movement but have not been recognized for their efforts.

In conjunction with the national observance of the Martin Luther King holiday, Jan. 15 has been proclaimed Humanitarian Day.

On this day — a day of respect and honor for all the unsung humanitarians who have fought institutional racism and contributed to the demise of segregation — people celebrate the courage and dedication of those who continue to fight for the rights guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution.

Healthy eating can reduce cancer risk

Wagner

Magazines and newspapers are full of articles urging people to eat healthier during the new year.

We seem to be a nation concerned about our eating habits but often don't know how to change them.

For many of us, the thought of following printed diets in articles is either boring or too complicated. And we're busy; we're in a hurry; we forget. It's easier to fix our food the way we always have.

The American Institute for Cancer Research offers a calendar called "Festival of Food 1991" that gives monthly guidelines for planning healthy meals and snacks.

AICR states that "between 40 to 60 percent of all cancers may be related to diet."

Their research indicates that a low-fat diet with plenty of fruits, vegetables and whole grains may help reduce cancer risk. So their calendar offers monthly tips on selecting, storing and cooking what they suggest are nutritious foods.

'Be adventurous!" says the AICR. "Eating nutritiously can introduce you to wonderful new foods that will soon become old favorites," it adds.

To order a calendar, write the American Institute for Cancer Research, Washington, D.C. 20070-2012.

They would appreciate a contribution to help cover the cost of printing and for research into the link between cancer and diet.

AICR's food choices are in accord with the federal government's Dietary Guidelines for Americans.

You may obtain a free copy of "Nutrition and Your Health: Dietary Guidelines for Americans" by writing to Consumer Information Center, Department 514-X, Pueblo, Colo., 81009. Your copy should arrive in a month.

The following recipe follows AICR's January suggestion for marinating salmon in a low-salt teriyaki sauce and cooking of poaching it in the microwave,

JAPANESE MARINATED SALMON FILLETS (From "Low-fat Microwave Meals" by Barbara Methven, Microwave Cooking Library, Copyright 1989 by Cy DeCosse, Inc.) Serves four

12-ounce salmon fillet, cut into four serving-size pieces 2 tablespoons low-sodium soy sauce

1 tablespoon lemon juice

1 tablespoon packed brown sugar

1 clove garlic

1 leek (6-ounce) trimmed, cut in half lengthwise, rinsed, thinly sliced

1/2 cup julienne carrot (1 1/2 x 1/8-inch strips)

Arrange salmon fillets skin-side-up in an 8-inchsquare baking dish. Set aside.

In a small mixing bowl, combine the next four ingredients. Stir to dissolve sugar. Pour mixture over fillets, turning fillets to coat sides. Cover with plastic wrap. Chill for one hour.

Turn fillets skin-side-down. Sprinkle with leek and carrot. Re-cover with plastic wrap. Microwave at 70 percent for eight to nine minutes, or until fish flakes easily with fork, rearranging pieces twice.

Serve with vegetables.

Home economist Betty Wagner resides in Independence Township. Her "Microwave Plus" cable-TV program airs on Independence-Clarkston Channel 65.

Tips for controlling insect damaging houseplants

If some or all of your houseplants spent last summer outdoors, or if you've added to your collection recently, you may have insects on your houseplants this winter.

Gary Dunn; extension entomologist at Michigan State University, says it takes only a few insects hitchhiking into your home on a single plant to multiply into an

"After all, in your home there are no natural enemies to keep insect populations in check," he points out: "And the climate indoors, though not as warm as some pests might prefer, is warm enough to keep insects active and populations expanding."

Damaging insects may occur on plant foliage, flow-

"If you find insects on one of your plants, the first thing to do is check on all the others, to see if the infestation has spread."

Gary Dunn

Various insects may chew on leaves, suck plant liquids from foliage and stems, devour roots or rasp brown spots on flower petals.

Sucking insects include aphids, mealybugs, spider mites and whiteflies. Chewing insects include beetles and caterpillars.

Fungus gnat larvae and springtails may infest plant pots and injure roots. Adult, immobile scale insects may be found on foliage or stems; the more active crawler stage may be found anywhere on the plant.

'If you find insects on one of your plants, the first thing to do is check on all the others, to see if the infestation has spread," Dunn suggests.

Isolate the plants with insect problems to prevent their spread to other plants, and take steps to control the

If infestations are extremely heavy, it's often better and certainly easier to eliminate the insect problem by getting rid of the plant.

Controlling pests may be as simple as washing them away with a stream of water or cleaning the plants with an insecticidal soap.

Spraying or dipping plants in an insecticide solution is another alternative.

"A problem with using chemical insecticides is that malathion, the one most commonly recommended for home use, damages some plants," Dunn points out.

"These include certain ferns, African violets, gloxinia, orchids and begonias," he adds. "Treating them with malathion is simply trading insect damage for chemical

If you decide chemical controls are necessary, read product labels carefully before you buy anything, and make sure that the plant you want to treat and the insect you need to control are both listed on the label.

Read any precautions about plants that should not be treated, Dunn urges, and follow directions for use exactly.

"The label directions tell how to use the product safely and effectively," he explains.

Pollowing the directions gives you your best chance of success in controlling the insect and minimizes the chance of problems related to the product's use."

For assistance in identifying insects on houseplants, contact your local Cooperative Extension Service office.

Commodity food to be distributed

Surplus commodity food will be distributed to eligible individuals on 1-3 p.m. Monday, Jan. 14.

In the Clarkston area, the food will be made available at St. Daniel Catholic Church, 7010 Valley Road, Independence Township.

All income-eligible Oakland County residents must register prior to the distribution. To register, individuals must have copies of paychecks and pay stubs for the last 90 days or other information to verify total household income. Personal identification is also needed for registration.

To register, call the field office at 674-8866.

If you are homebound and a senior citizen, call the senior center nearest your home to register for homebound delivery.

The program is made available through the Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency.

Pet of the Week

SHERWOOD'S big and lovable with markings of a German shepherd.

Sherwood's not shy

Sherwood, 1, is a big handsome guy who needs a new home.

The German shepherd mix has a friendly disposition. Sherwood would fit nicely into a home with other animals, the shelter worker said.

Sherwood weighs about 69 pounds, and despite his size he would still be good to have around small children, a shelter worker said.

His adoption fee is $75, which includes neutering. To see Sherwood, visit the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Road, Auburn Hills, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Women needed for Village Players' cast

Looking for something to do in the slumbery winter? How about auditioning for a part in "Steel Magnolias," produced by the Clarkston Village Players?

Lots of women to play characters from ages 19-66 are needed. In particular, a woman who can play a naive 19-year-old beauty shop assistant is needed, said director Al Bartlett.

Anyone who is interested in an audition should show up at 5 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 15, at the Depot Theater on White Lake Road, Independence Township.

For more information, call Bartlett at work at 625-

THE FIRST day back to school after the holiday break called for lots of enthusiasm for the playground equipment during noon recess. The Clarkston Elementary School students didn't mind the cold but rather relished it.

First day back

A BIG SMILE breaks out on Elizabeth Westlund's face when she speeds down the slide at Clarkston Elementary School. The 7-year-old first-grader and others took advantage of the sunny but cold weather for an exhuberant recess.

HAILEY Erskine, 6, a first-grader, spends most of her noon recess on a curving slide on Monday.
