Main Street ribbons show support

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It took Marla McKee about 48 hours to assemble volunteers, ribbons and the necessary hydraulic equipment at a 25-foot tree on Main Street, Clarkston.

Marla, who has a brother stationed in the Persian Gulf, hoped to decorate the tree to remind Clarkston residents of soldiers stationed there.

"There must be something we can do," she said in an initial phone call to The Clarkston News Jan. 10.

After discussing a few ideas at hand, Marla set to work purchasing ribbon at cost from Bordine's and enlisting the help of Gayanne's Floral Concepts, Inc., to assemble the bows. Gayanne's also donated a large red, white and blue ribbon for the top of tree.

On Friday, Marla arrived at Clarkston High School with 100 yellow ribbons to give to students and teachers.

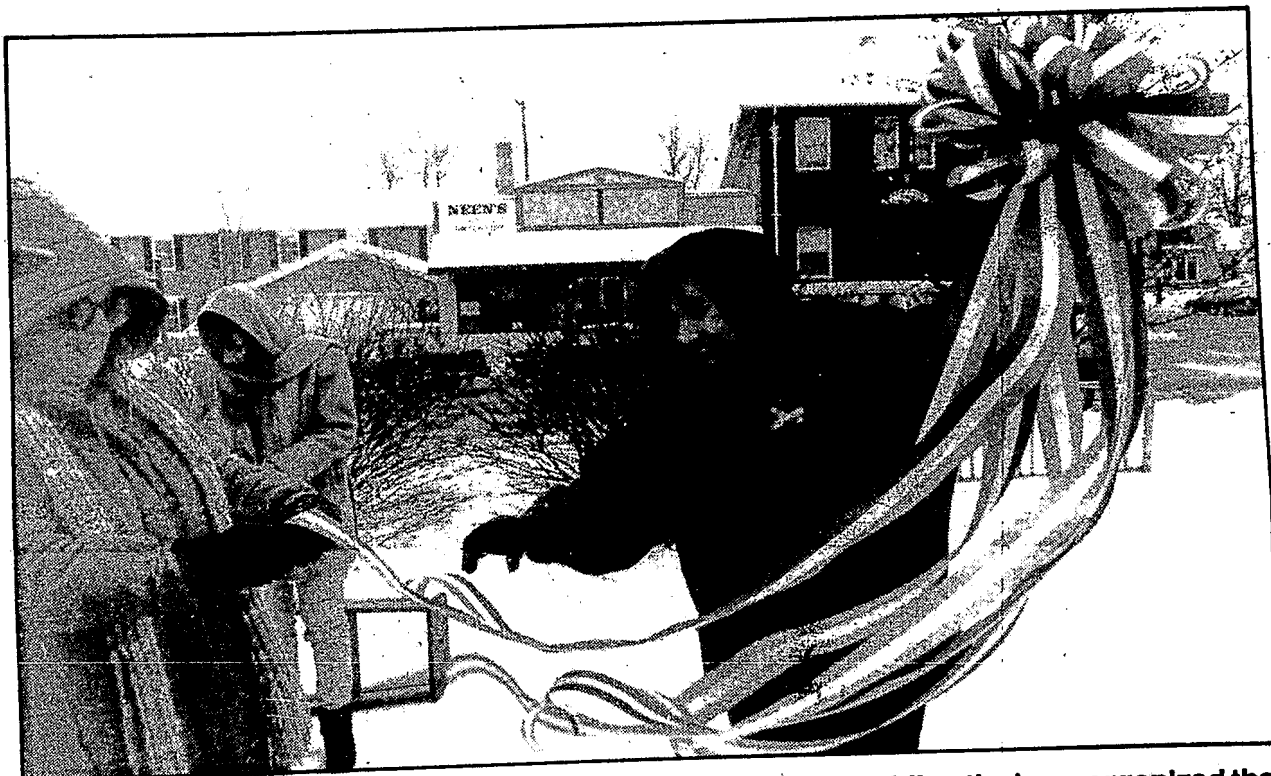

"They were quickly gone," Marla said. Volunteers, which included Marla's family members, placed large yellow ribbons on the tree.

A hydraulic lift was donated by Midwest Rental, which allowed volunteer, Frank Rivers of the Clarkston Rotary Club, to reach the top of the tree.

Yellow ribbons were passed out to motorists and pedestrians along Main Street.

Woman falls victim to leukemia

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A young woman with a crop of red hair and an incredible will to live lost that battle on the morning of Jan. 14.

Joette Kovacic, leukemia victim, died at the age of 21.

Though she was first diagnosed with leukemia at the age of seven, Joette beat the odds of her original diagnosis. Doctors had told her she would only live to about age 14. Her indomitable spirit gave her an extra seven years.

Joette was honest and straightforward about her disease last summer, when she called local newspapers and asked for help in raising funds for a bone marrow transplant she needed.

Knowing that people would easily support a younger child, Joette was not deterred in trying to raise funds to save her life.

The cost of a transplant is $165,000. Funds raised and recorded in Joette's name at North Oakland Community Credit Union totaled $3,800.

As time ticked on, the lack of a suitable donor became Joette's biggest hurdle.

In November, Joette was informed that a possible donor would not pass further testing.

A further search for a donor, which included a biological father she'd never met, turned up negative.

Hospitalization was required after Jan. 3, but Joette was able to be home for short periods during the holidays, said her mother, Sharon Brown of Waterford.

After Joette's death, Sharon said with pride, "I'm glad to have had her with me -- if only for 21 years."

Sharon wept, adding, "I can't express my thanks enough to the papers, Clarkston High School, Clarkston Rotary and numerous individuals who rallied around her."

Joette left behind several people who were pulling for her and empathizing with the pain her body endured. A former instructor, Betsy Travis, said in an earlier interview, "She's like a ray of sunshine."

Travis taught Joette in the Clarkston Alternative Education Program until Joette graduated in 1987.

Ginny Farmer, an administrator for Clarkston Community Education at the time Joette attended school, said, "She fought as long and as hard as her red-headed spirit would let her."

Joette will be an inspiration to all who knew her, Farmer added.

A tree will be planted in Joette's honor this spring at the Clarkston Community Education building on Maybee Road. The planting is scheduled for April 26, said Travis.

Memorials to Joette may be made to the Pediatric Leukemia Fund, care of the Rose Cancer Center, Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak.

JOETTE KOVACIK hoped for a bone marrow transplant, but time ran short. She died at 5:30 a.m. Monday, Jan. 14.

No action taken on bed and breakfast plan

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A proposed bed and breakfast ordinance sparked lengthy discussion at a public hearing hosted by the Clarkston Village Planning Commission Jan. 14.

About six people spoke at the hearing. The planning commission took no action because planning commission member Marty Johnson, who had performed much work on the issue, was absent.

The discussion centered around an ordinance revision which, if passed, would allow bed and breakfast facilities to exist in select zoning areas only.

Under the revised ordinance, bed and breakfasts would be allowed in multiple residential areas and commercial areas, but not in single family areas.

Lynn Kacy, an Independence Township resident, said she sensed the council was uncertain of what would happen if a bed and breakfast establishment opened in Clarkston.

She told the council that a Milford bed and breakfast owner said his clientele usually had families in Milford and were attending weddings and funerals.

Council member Dom Mauti told the planning commission that Clarkston was different from many other villages.

"We haven't opened up zoning (in residential areas)," Mauti said.

Many towns have residential areas that are now commercial, something the village has fought to prevent, council member William Basinger said.

"We don't have residential bleed," Basinger said. Mauti and planning commission member Barbara Thomson questioned village attorney Thomas Gruich about limiting the number of bed and breakfasts.

"Constitutionally you can't do that," Gruich said.

Murphy recovering well following stroke at club

Oakland County Executive Dan Murphy is in fair condition after suffering a mild stroke at the Deer Lake Racquet Club, Independence Township.

On Jan. 5, Murphy collapsed while attending an evening dinner function at the club on White Lake Road. He was rushed to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac for treatment.

He has been in a step down care unit since Jan. 8, after spending the first three days in the intensive care unit.

According to his secretary, Dorothy Rosenberg, Murphy is experiencing some numbness in his right hand, but good motion with his right arm.

"He's doing very well, even though his speech is somewhat slurred," she said.

Rosenberg added that Murphy was irritated but not worried about the recent circulation of recall petitions by the Oakland County Taxpayers Association.

Pat Nowak, Oakland County Deputy Executive, is filling in for Murphy until he returns to action.

street she explained, "This is to support those in Saudi Arabia and to bring them home safely."

"This is beautiful," he said. "I'm a Vietnam veteran - thank you."

When Marla quickly ran short of ribbons, Creations Best donated another 50. A total of about 300 ribbons were handed out over the two days.

As the decorating neared completion, people passed and looked skyward as the ribbons filled the tree and fluttered in the wind.

According to Marla, the tree will stand as a symbol for the safe return of troops in the Persian Gulf.

Correction

An article in last week's Clarkston News about Joe Vestrand's battle with non-Hodgkin's lymphoma should have said that Joe's medical leave is not covered under Blue Cross/Blue Shield.

It also should have said that Joe is no longer a St. Joseph Mercy Hospital patient due to lack of insurance and he is now on oral chemotherapy.

Further, the non-profit Children's Transplant Association will handle money from any donations or local fund-raisers.

"You can't say one can (have a bed and breakfast) and one can't."

Planning commission member Steven Arkwright said that if the ordinance passed, the following properties would be examples of allowable bed and breakfast sites: the Sutherland House and Plum House on Main Street near Waldon Road and the apartment house at 14 N. Main St.

Kacy said owners of these properties would not find it financially feasible to rent on weekends when they could have regular tenants.

One village resident, Harold Goyette of Goyette Funeral Home, said "Aren't you wasting money by having a lawyer draw this up with so few to use this (proposed ordinance)?"

A vote on the revised ordinance is expected at the next village council meeting, 7:30 p.m. Monday, Jan. 28.

FAMILY: Husband, Charles, and children: Carrie, a junior at Clarkston High School, and Amy, a ninth-grader at Clarkston Junior High School. The family moved from Ohio about six years ago and now lives on Ridgewood, Springfield Township.

OCCUPATION: Full-time homemaker.

AGE: 43

VOLUNTEER ACTIVITIES: Marla serves as a Band Booster parent at Clarkston High School, and she recently organized a yellow-ribbon tribute to U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf.

ABOUT THE YELLOW-RIBBON PROJECT: Marla organized the Jan. 13 decorating of the Main Street, Clarkston, evergreen tree, at which yellow ribbons were placed on the tree to remember those in the Persian Gulf.

"This isn't to support the war," Marla says. "It's to bring them home safely."

Marla's brother, William Martin, has been called to the Persian Gulf as part of the Air Force Reserves. William, 44, also served in Vietnam.

Marla quickly put together a volunteer effort in two days to help decorate the pine tree.

"We didn't think it could come together this fast," she says.

She contacted local florists for help. Bordine's Better Blooms, Springfield Township, supplied lots of ribbon at cost. Gayanne's Floral Concepts, Inc., Independence Township, made the ribbon into bows for the tree, and also supplied a large red, white and blue ribbon that flies from the top of the tree.

To place the bows on the 20-foot tree, a hydraulic lift was donated by Midwest Rental, Pontiac. Two Clarkston Rotary members, Frank Rivers and Dick Logan, helped place the bows around the tree, along with seven other volunteers.

On Friday, Jan. 12, Marla passed out 100 yellow ribbons at Clarkston High School to students and teachers to tie on their cars, and on Jan. 13, about 200 ribbons were passed out to motorists and pedestrians in the Village of Clarkston.

Marla had cut 150 ribbons to be distributed, but as the supply quickly dwindled she made a trip to Creations

Recruitment activity varies in face of crisis

Persian Gulf Connection

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

National statistics show a slight decrease in armed forces recruitment since America initiated Project Desert Shield last August. But how are things faring in Michigan for both the Army and National Guard?

According to 1st Sgt. John Bailes, an army recruiting representative in Oakland County, area recruitment has had its ups and downs.

A slight increase in countywide recruitment occurred after troops were initially sent over, he said, but it dipped in mid-fall.

However, as war draws near, the numbers appear on the rise again.

"In times like these, patriotism does spread its wings periodically," Bailes surmised.

Bailes also foresees an increase in recruitment if fighting begins.

"Whenever our country has seen a crisis in the past, our young men have stepped forward to volunteer," he said. "It shouldn't be any different this time."

In another branch of the armed forces, the Michigan National Guard, recruitment numbers have dipped slightly since the turmoil in the Middle East began. Currently, only 10 percent of Michigan's National Guard units are stationed in Saudi Arabia.

Lt. Col. Brian Downey said there has been a slight downturn in recruitment totals since Desert Shield was put into effect. He said these numbers could be deceiving because recruitment figures are tabulated on a periodic basis.

Both Downey and Bailes said their factions don't alter or superimpose the facts, in turbulent times, to sway potential recruits.

"When they look to enlist, we tell them exactly what they'll expect to see and do if their country calls on them," Bailes said.

Despite the stressfulness of the situation, both officers are confident of their faction's abilities if war breaks out.

"We train by the same standards as the Army, and their brass has said that our troops are extremely well-prepared," said Downey. "Army commanders at Desert Shield are calling us with similar reports. Our troops are

"In times like these, patriotism does spread its wings periodically."

Sgt. John Bailes

prepared for any type of situation."

Bailes concurs with the Army's readiness and ability to get the job done.

"In my opinion, our forces are more than qualified to handle this type of situation," he said. "To paraphrase our commander-in-chief, we're gonna kick their a—."

Will the draft return in the United States?

BY JOE FERRARI

With the conflict in the Middle East coming to a boil, the possibility of a conventional war becomes greater by the moment.

And with the possibility of war comes the chance that the United States may have to reinstate the draft in order to have the needed manpower available at home and overseas.

For the draft to officially begin, it would take an act of Congress with approval by the president, who has stated publicly that he doesn't expect to use the draft.

If the draft were reinstated, the first group to be drafted would be 20-year-old men. After those draftees were called up, those born in 1970 would be the next in line followed by those born in 1969, 1968, 1967, 1966, 1965, 1972 and 1973.

From there, a national lottery would be conducted to determine the order in which the first group of young men would be called to serve in the military.

All birthdates within that year would be given a random number and placed together. Then a number would be drawn and each young man whose birthdate the number represents would be ordered to report to a Military Entrance Processing Station for examination and possible immediate induction, in 10 days, according to the Selective Service System (SSS).

Based on the individual needs of each branch in the U.S. armed forces, the SSS will determine where each draftee will report for duty. The U.S. Army is currently the largest sector of the this country's defense.

There are a few exemptions, which include conscientious objectors. Per definition by the SSS, a conscientious objector is a person who is opposed to participation in all wars — not a selective objection to a particular war.

"Beliefs must be religious, moral or ethical in nature, as opposed to beliefs based solely on politics, expediency or self-interest," according to the SSS, which also requires a written statement from the young man attesting to his beliefs and lifestyle.

That would be sent to a local draft board, which would postpone the young man's induction while the validity of his claim was being decided.

Other possible exemptions include ministers and ministerial students, who can be deferred from service until they complete their studies. Hardship deferments are also available for men whose induction would result in hardship to persons who depend upon them for support.

One previous exemption for those attending college was abolished in 1971. Young men going to college can receive a postponement until the end of the semester or if they are a senior, until the end of their senior year.

Barbi Richardson, public affairs specialist for the SSS, estimates that 5,000 young men in America turn 20 each day. She also stated that about 14 million men are between the drafting ages of 18-25.

Richardson stressed there has not been any formal word from Washington about the draft.

"It's business as usual at the Selective Service," she said. "Our job is to be ready in case of a national emergency. There's nothing special going on at the Selective Service because of the Persian Gulf (crisis)."

Joe Ferrari is a staff writer for The Oxford Leader newspaper.

School bond election campaign gathers speed

Learn about the bond proposals

Administration officials have developed a concise, detailed information packet outlining several aspects of the bond issue.

The packet will be available at each of the district's presentations and can be obtained by contacting the district's administrative office.

The packet includes:

- A summary of enrollment projections for the district over a five-year period.

- An explanation of the three bond proposals, including the rationale and a breakdown of costs for each.

- A description of the joint campus proposed by Oakland Community College Board of Trustees and the Clarkston school administration.

- An explanation of zero coupon bond financing and its effect on the life of the issue.

- A worksheet allowing residents to determine the financial affect of the bond issue on their taxes.

- A worksheet for senior citizens, which calculates the cost of the bond request for those over the age of 65.

- Voting information, which includes instructions for absentee voting, precinct location and voting hours.

- A three-page analysis of what the bond issue will provide elementary, middle and high school students.

To obtain a copy of the general information packet, attend any administrative presentation or call the district administrative office at 625-4402.

and community groups are mobilizing efforts to affect passage of the bond issue.

Residents will be asked to vote on three proposals, including: construction of a new elementary school and additions to the five existing elementary schools; a new high school and renovation of the existing high school for use as a junior high school; and construction of a swimming pool at the proposed new high school.

A detailed information packet outlining the various aspect of the bond election has been developed by school administrators (see box).

The packet is available at public information sessions or can be obtained by calling the school administrative office at 625-4402.

District administrators are planning about 20 presentations to residents and community groups before the election. School officials welcome an opportunity to speak before any group by appointment.

The Blue Ribbon Kids Committee (BRKC), which is spearheading the election campaign, is planning a mailer to parents of every school-age and preschool student in the district outlining the need of the three proposals.

The BRKC is also planning to distribute blue ribbons for residents to display the day before the election.

The election campaign is focused at the entire district, says BRKC President Dale Ryan.

"The proposals will improve the whole community, even (for) people who don't have children," Ryan said. "We have a situation where if (the proposals) don't pass, all property values will be affected."

Ryan says the BRKC is "very encouraged" by the response the committee has received.

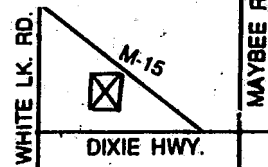

"People do see the need for it," he said of the proposals.

To assist in some of the costs incurred in the election campaign, the BRKC is accepting donations from businesses, organizations and individuals.

Opinions

Thought bites

Julie Campe

It's no surprise that the economy is so difficult to predict. It's like the weather.

Some people get angry about the weather, blaming weather forecasters for rainy weekends when they were expecting sun.

Likewise, some are angered by economic forecasters, blaming them for the ebbs and tides of the flow of money.

The truth is, we can all affect the weather—even unknowingly — but we can't control it, let alone predict it. Nor can we control or truly predict the economy, no matter how much we affect it.

Yet much energy is exerted in trying to predict them both. Weather and economics are important to our lives, but both are chaotic. It's in their natures.

A butterfly in Singapore flutters its wings, and a storm rages in Iowa.

A dictator in the Middle East says a few words, and prices tumble on the stock market in New York.

Why do some blame the media for bad news?

In this country, the media serves as a fairly accurate reflection of the facts and opinions of everyday people.

Some people think certain stories are blown out of proportion merely because they are reported. However, the media, by its very nature, generates attention to what it reports, especially national news and even Detroit television and radio news, as well as the Detroit newspapers.

Instead of saying, "There's that darn media again, complaining about violence in Detroit and blowing it all out of proportion," how about being grateful that such stories still are news?

That's one version of the origin of "newspaper." People used to ask, "What's new?" And soon they began to say, "What's the news?"

Therefore, if your news source continues to talk about shootings and robberies, you might take comfort in the fact that it is still unusual and "new" enough to report and that it hasn't become ordinary.

The one positive aspect of the Persian Gulf crisis is the unifying effect it's had on the people of this country.

Regardless of their opinions on the wisdom of military action, nearly everyone agrees that the actual people doing the fighting deserve encouragement.

The uncertainty of the future has seemed to cast a sombreness over people's everyday lives, but maybe that tone will serve to keep everyday matters in perspective.

How can a wait in a long line of traffic compare with the trials of those who are facing their own mortality?

Middleton says 'no' on raise

We have not publicly congratulated Tom Middleton on winning a seat in the Michigan House of Representatives. We now do so . . . Congratulations, Tom.

We realized our neglected greeting when Rep Middleton visited us a few days before he was sworn into office last week.

Looking fit, relaxed and ready -- we could hardly wait to pin him down on his decision on which way he was going to vote on the proposed pay raise.

Without hesitation he said he opposed the recommended pay raise and would vote 'no' when it came before the house January 24.

He said, "I told them life would be so much easier in the coming year if we didn't have to be hit with that at every turn."

Middleton realizes that the public and press will not forget or forgive the elected officials in Lansing if they vote themselves a raise while cutting programs, wholesale, and having their own staffs absorb days off without pay.

We expect his judgement on other issues to be as plain and right.

And, this side note: Following the swearing-in ceremony, it is customary for representatives to invite family and friends to visit their office in the capital. Hors d'oeuvres of bite-size things are often served.

When his assistant asked what his guests would like, Middleton said, "My people are sandwich people. Serve sandwiches."

You bet, and make ours big bologna with salad dressing. JAS

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

Breath of un-fresh air

University of Washington researchers will strap gas-measuring devices on hundreds of cows to learn how bovine belching might be adding to the greenhouse effect.

That's a quote from the Associated Press.

I first heard this news over WJR. I thought I heard Frank Beckmann say our government was spending $70,000 on the project. Our government never spends as little as $70,000 on any project, including the one a few years ago on studying the sex life of a frog.

A newspaper article confirmed my doubts. The U. S. Environmental Protection Agency is giving three researchers 70 grand each, $210,000 total, to test cow burps.

Don't expect an answer this summer. The professors have three years to complete the project. By the way, other cud-chewing animals will have their breath tested, too.

I don't know about you, but I'd feel a whole lot better if those university people would hurry up the testing. Why not spend the nearly-quarter million in one year by testing three times as many cud-chompers?

Should I put off buying winter woools for three years on the premise the earth is warming too fast from cow's breath? Then what happens to sheep herder income, or are sheep cud-chewers? Are sheep herders cud-chewers?

Scientists say, as ridiculous as the idea sounds, it's a serious problem. It's generally recognized that livestock produce about 15 percent of all methane released into the atmosphere, which is believed to cause global warming trends now under way, the news release said.

These scientists blame increased amounts of carbon dioxide and methane for the greenhouse (global warming) effect.

The news item also states researchers will "study how changes in diet affect methane output. No research is planned on cow flatulence, since it is believed to be a minor source in comparison to belching."

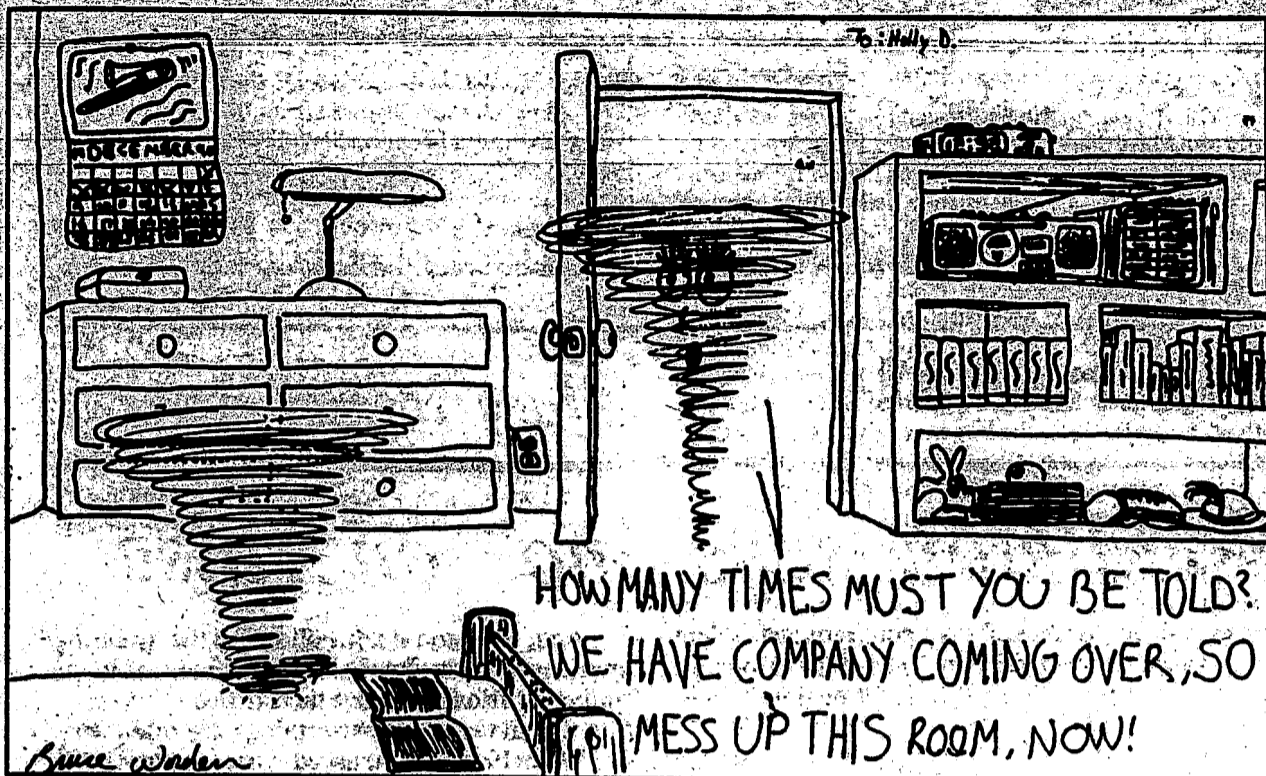

We asked former dairyman, now state representative Tom Middleton about the "minor source" conclusion. "They're wrong about that," he said. One end is as bad as the other.

Middleton said dairy magazines have carried many articles about methane-breathed cows over several years. I wonder if my dad was in danger when he used a kerosene lantern for light in his stanchion days?

Once the U of Washington researchers get an answer to what and how much is in a cow's belch, I suggest they apply to either the Environmental Protection Agency or the eyes, ears, nose and throat department or the cruel-and-unusual-treatment committee for funding to check the contents of air emissions in our deer camp.

Talk about earth warming! I doubt if their findings will relate to the "green"house effect.

Clarkston ninth graders will study with new biology textbooks in upcoming years.

School board members, before voting on the book's purchase, got a chance to pass one around at a board meeting recently.

Actually, "hoisted" is a better word for it.

The book, simply titled "Biology," was at least two-inches thick and, from my vantage point in the seventh row, looked to weigh a good five or six pounds.

Certainly, this was to be a student's senior high biology book, carefully absorbed over a four year period.

But no. This was a one year book, to be mastered during regular class periods and homework sessions. Tucked in somewhere between algebra, English and history assignments.

I was, of course, a little bit defensive on the issue of science knowledge, having just taken the science quiz printed in a recent edition of the New York Times Magazine.

Pen in hand, I had moved through the questions with relative confidence.

Galaxies like our Milky Way are made up of: a. hundreds of stars. b. thousands of stars. c. millions of stars. d. billions of stars.

These and other questions covered topics I had remembered learning in junior high and high school. I marked my answers and turned to the answer page.

Though I did have a general knowledge of most topics, I was dismayed to discover I had wrongly answered several of the science questions.

Which of the following doesn't travel 186,000 miles per second? a. microwaves. b. radiowaves. c. solarwind. d. light from a light bulb.

I had mistakenly answered "d" light from a light bulb when the real answer was "c" solar wind.

Suddenly, I had become one of those students pointed to in best-sellers about the disgrace of American education.

"You're right!" I cried inwardly. "I've forgotten that nitrogen is the most abundant gas in the atmosphere. I admit—I always liked government, better!"

Staring at the new science textbook, I struggled to remember whether it was the stamen or the pistil that carried pollen for the flower.

The question weighed heavily on my mind for several minutes.

Almost as heavy as that new biology textbook.

Female anchors paid

Jim
Fitzgerald

One of the many important questions regularly aired here concerned the seating of mixed-sex TV anchor duos. Why does the female always sit to the left of the male? We may be getting close to a definitive answer. This crucial issue was brought to our attention by Catherine Leahan after she quit anchoring for Channel 7 (WXYZ) and before she was hired by Channel 2 (WJBK). Leahan complained that Channel 7 had made her "subservient" to fellow weekend anchor Guy Gordon by requiring her "to sit to the left of the male anchor, as are all women at Channel 7's news set."

My extensive investigative research, remotely controlled, revealed Leahan was correct. On every channel where the co-anchors represent two genders, the woman always sits on the man's left. The most conclusive evidence was found on Channel 2 where, ironically, Rich Fisher and Joe Glover make up Detroit's only regular two-man anchor team.

Glover always sits on the subservient female spot, and interestingly, appears uncomfortable, as though he considers his position a real drag. But one evening Fisher wasn't there. I don't know why; I'm sure it was just a coincidence that, a few nights earlier, Fisher had reported that the full aspects of a breaking news story probably wouldn't be known "until the wee morning of the hours."

Anyway, Fisher was replaced at the news desk by a female anchor, but not precisely. That's right; Glover scooted to his right and the woman had to sit on his left. Need more be said?

After extensive brow wrinkling, remotely controlled, I speculated that the seat on the viewer's left is considered dominant because we read from left to right and the male anchor wants to be "read" first. I further mused that it would be just the opposite in countries where people read from right to left, and in countries where people read down, from top to bottom, Mort Crim would sit on Carmen Harlan's shoulders.

Or maybe not. From Nancy Browning of Marine City comes an explanation based on tradition, not reading: "The lady sits to the left so that the knight has his right arm free to protect her with his sword, or whatever. It also makes her more defenseless if he gets fresh. Her right arm is boxed in. I suppose nowadays it means he can shuffle papers unencumbered."

In other words, if Lancelot had been left-handed, Bill Bonds would be sitting to the left of Diana Lewis.

Nancy Browning also noted: "Spiral staircases go up clockwise for the same reason. The defender has a free right hand, and the aggressor has to contend with tighter quarters."

It is fascinating to ponder the influence that the shape of medieval architecture had on the fame and fortune of generations to come. I close my eyes and see Errol Flynn backing upstairs, dueling swish-clink-swish with Basil Rathbone. If that staircase had been counterclockwise (or if Basil's name had been Lefty), it is likely that you couldn't be in like Flynn, and you wouldn't be asking your grandfather, "Who was Basil Rathbone?"

Of course, traditions change. A pertinent example can be seen in the way today's man and woman usually walk together on a busy downtown sidewalk. He is on the inside, farthest from the street. When I was much younger the man always walked on the outside, chivalrously protecting the woman from being splashed or otherwise threatened by passing cars (or horses, by gum).

The switch in positions is the results of modern crime: Evil forces often attack from dark storefronts and alley entrances, and their threat is much worse than a little mud on a woman's pantsuit.

You are undoubtedly wondering how a mixed-sex anchor duo walks together on dangerous sidewalks. The answer is they always take a sportscaster along, so they can ward off evil forces with deadly banter.

Onward and Upward, importantly.

Letters to the Editor

Unfair request

I am the only paid employee for Clarkston Area Youth Assistance as well as Garry Pullins' secretary. In defense of our organization and its hard working volunteers, I feel that I must submit this letter to you. I am somewhat surprised and confused by the recent article featured in the Dec. 19th issue of your newspaper. The letter from Mrs. Judith McKinney or interview with Mrs. McKinney regarding her handicapped daughter, Megan, didn't surprise or confuse me. However the fact that you made the article to be the major topic or focus of said issue. That, along with your unusual request to encourage Clarkston Area Youth Assistance to keep or put Megan back on the waiting list for a "Plus" match, was unfair on your part! We have had a fairly good relationship with you and your paper. Unfortunately, I misunderstood because I just knew that you would not print a story without checking out all the facts.

You did phone Mr. Pullins and he spoke very candidly regarding this situation. I figured you knew enough about Clarkston Area Youth Assistance and its mission. Our motto is "delinquency prevention through community involvement."

Oh yes, "PLUS" stand for People, Listening, Understanding, Sharing. In the past year how often has your paper given adequate coverage to the many good and positive things that Clarkston Area Youth Assistance accomplishes?

Events such as: Ski Day, Memorial Concert, Bow-lathon, Youth Recognition Banquet, "Plus" events, Benefit Play, Camp and last but not least our Annual Meeting. Our Annual Meeting is where all information regarding our program is made public to our sponsors, supporters and all interested persons.

My complaint is not that you didn't give the same amount of coverage to the positive events but rather that you gave so much time and effort to an issue that we feel is not within our boundary or keeping with our focus.

This time you made a featured article out a letter, an interview and missing puzzle parts that you either misplaced or never had!

Our volunteers do truly CARE, and most have been associated with Clarkston Area Youth Assistance for a number of years.

We are not discriminatory, unfair or unjust. We are only understaffed as far as volunteers are concerned.

Anytime you would like to join Clarkston Area Youth Assistance you are very welcomed. Perhaps you would like to become actively involved in our "PLUS" Program.

Gifts not enough

In less than two weeks, our soldiers in Saudi may be engaged in a bloody war.

Why we are there, or if we should be there is unimportant at this point. Our children, husbands and wives, brothers and sisters, etc., are there now, ready to lay down their lives for whatever reason.

Anything less than a resounding cry of support from the American public is an insult to our military, a blow to their moral, and a threat to their safety.

They need a visible sign of encouragement now, before the U.N. deadline of Jan. 15.

Many people are displaying our country's colors as a sign of support.

Please raise a flag; tie a ribbon around a tree; stream red, white and blue from your antenna; pin them to your lapel.

Fly the "colors" proudly and show our troops that we care!

Show Hussein that we are united as a nation and we stand behind our people in Saudi. Perhaps a strong display of support by the American public may convince him to withdraw, thereby averting the impending war.

Cookies and cards are not enough. Our soldiers deserve more, when their lives are at stake.

Sandra M. Grunwald,
A soldier's mom

They'll get war

Politicians stink!

We all know that our representatives have their own personal agendas that have nothing to do with what is good for you and me.

The Democrats in Congress have stooped to a new low.

This is a time for America to stand up as one voice and be counted. The Democrats want to play politics and by doing so may cost our soldiers' lives.

A negotiated peace is impossible when the enemy can see that Congress is not supporting the president.

Borrowing from Winston Churchill, I say of the Congressional Democrats: they had a choice to choose war or shame, they have chosen shame and disgrace and they will get war.

Dale A. Stuart

Support of B & B

Clarkston was a wonderfully quaint town in which to live and raise children.

After living 18 grand years there, I moved four-and-a-half years ago.

I now have Heart of the Hills Bed and Breakfast in Eureka Springs, Ark. It's a Victorian town built into the sides of the Ozark Mountains.

Bed and breakfasts are most always in residential settings. It is the exception for them to be in commercial areas rather than the rule.

B & B's are very accommodating neighbors. Since Clarkston lacks adequate overnight lodging for visitors, it's a perfect setting for a B & B. This truly would be an asset to this fine community.

B & B's want the very best for their guests. You surely wouldn't be disappointed, as its concept is in keeping with Clarkston.

Lawsuit typical of greedy society

Here we go again. It looks like somebody's out to rape the government — and in the end the taxpayer — for some outrageous amount of money.

Case in point, the $2 million lawsuit filed by Charles W. Sherman and Associates, Inc., against area taxpayers — excuse me, the Clarkston school district.

Charley W. Sherman claims the district put him out of business by firing him back in 1988.

Seems the then board thought it could save taxpayer money by hiring another architect. It also felt the board 12 years prior did wrong by only interviewing one candidate for the job — Sherman.

The 1988 board also thought it was wrong that the architectural firm was also construction manager for the district. Possibly a conflict of interest.

So they fired poor old Charles W. Sherman Associates, Inc.

Now Charles W. Sherman wants the school district to make him a millionaire.

Before the court agrees to this there are some questions that need to be raised by this paper. And they should be answered.

1. Does an employer have the right to fire an employee?

2. How much money did Charles W. Sherman and Associates, Inc., make off Clarkston schools during their 12-year relationship?

3. Was the '76 board wrong for hiring Sherman in the first place, and was the '88 board trying to cover their tracks? Was Sherman qualified for the job? Why were no other candidates interviewed for the job? Were the priorities followed when the 1976 board did the advertising and hiring?

4. Did Charles W. Sherman have any other clients or was the Clarkston school district the golden calf?

5. Is there a Charles W. Sherman, or is it just a company name?

Isn't this supposed to be a capitalistic society? You make your bed, and you sleep in it; if your company fails, it's your fault (that is unless you contract with the government, then it's never your fault, but someone else's.)

Was the company management so bad they didn't or couldn't bid on other projects across the state, just like every other architectural company? Did he try to get other jobs?

Was this company so business unwise they never thought to have more than one client at a time, with no back-up plans?

Part of the damages are calculated from "goodwill." How do you calculate that, and if you can, the Boy Scouts should start charging for walking little old ladies across the street.

Sherman has money coming to him for separation expenses, which was part of his contract. Both he and the school board agree to that (and separation expenses can be the topic of another letter).

But Sherman says $175,000 isn't enough. Tough cookies, babe, it's a done deal, you signed it.

The solution seems easy enough from the outside: the man was let go not because he did shoddy work; rather he shouldn't have been hired in the first place.

So the board should give him a recommendation saying he's OK, and he should accept the $175,000.

Any other problems that need to be solved around here?

Clarkston students up to national challenge

BY JUDITH BACKES

The third and fourth National Goals for Education put forth by President Bush specify:

1. That American students leave grades four, eight and 12 with competency in challenging subject matter.
2. By the year 2000, American students will be first in the world in mathematics and science.

Are Clarkston students up to the challenge? Certainly!

Clarkston students have scored above the national average in reading, math, language, science and social studies on the Metropolitan Achievement Test for the past six years at every grade tested: grades three, five, eight and 10. The mean percentile scores for students in Clarkston has typically been 8 to 19 percentile points above the national average in reading and in mathematics.

Our science scores have consistently been 20 to 25 points above the national average. And Clarkston students have beat the national averages in social studies by 15 to 20 percentile points since 1984.

Clarkston students have also done well on statewide assessments in reading, math and science. At the fourth-grade level, our students have beat not only the state averages in reading and math, but the county averages for the past three years.

Clarkston seventh-graders score higher than the state averages in reading and last year beat the county average in mathematics as well. Clarkston 10th-graders have also consistently beat the state and county averages by significant numbers.

Clarkston Community Schools is fortunate to have an excellent process whereby teachers and administrators continually review the curriculum being offered.

Since 1984, committees representing various fields of study (language arts and reading, mathematics, science, social studies, health/ physical education, applied technology, fine arts and foreign language) have been meeting.

These committees review achievement data, research reports and new documents such as the National Goals for Education, to determine if changes need to be made in the courses we are offering, or in the textbooks and instructional strategies we use.

Annually, the subject area committees make recommendations for changes. These are incorporated into the district's five-year curriculum plan. This plan provides direction for study committees, budget planning and staff development activities.

At the present time, our mathematics and science committees have both made important decisions about necessary changes in the curriculum.

Last year, the math committee made the recommendation to incorporate the use of the Math Their Way program at grades kindergarten through second as a tool for the teaching of mathematics.

This program emphasizes the use of manipulatives and concrete learning for important math concepts at these grade levels.

The math committee is presently gearing up for changes in the math curriculum as a result of the new Michigan Educational Assessment Program test in math coming in the fall of 1991. The new test and curriculum changes also reflect the new math standards published by the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics in 1990.

The science committee is also looking at ways to get more hands-on learning of science concepts in the classrooms. With money from the Eisenhower grant, the committee has begun the purchase of basic science equipment for each elementary building.

Although much more money is needed throughout the district for updating our science labs at elementary and secondary levels, these beginning purchases help to encourage teachers to do more science teaching in the early grades.

Under study for implementation in the fall of 1991 at Clarkston High is a new semester course in physical science. This course would complement our current science requirements at the high school level.

A number of students from Clarkston High School have had the opportunity for many years to participate in special math competitions. We have had at least one student and as many as five students qualify to take Part Two of the Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition in the last 15 years. Only the top 5 percent of the students electing to take this test are invited to take Part Two.

Clarkston typically has 60 or so students electing to take this test. We also have students taking part of the Math Field Day, in which individuals and teams from Clarkston High compete with students from around the state. Our students have improved their ranking each of the past four years that they have entered this competition.

Clarkston students will be ready for the challenges of the year 2000 and beyond. As a result of the continued efforts to evaluate and make changes in our curriculum and with the efforts of the Clarkston teachers and administrators, our students will meet the national goals.

This is the fourth in a series of six articles about Clarkston schools. This week's author, Judith Backes, is curriculum director for Clarkston Community Schools.

Middleton has his first day

He doesn't remember his new address or phone number yet, but in his first official call from his new Lansing office, state representative Tom Middleton sounded happy.

"It's kind of exciting to walk to the Capitol and know you're representing the people of Michigan," he said.

Middleton joins 13 Republicans and nine Democrats as first-time representatives in the new legislative session. "It's going to be an exciting time," he said.

The new year started with the inauguration of a new governor, John Engler, who re-emphasized the need for property tax relief which was a cornerstone of his campaign. "I'm glad he restated it," Middleton said.

Though the new lawmakers were scheduled to be sworn in today (Wednesday), they've already been faced with financial concerns. A legislative pay raise is under consideration at the same time as Capitol secretaries are being asked to take 15 days off without pay.

"The Republican Caucus (which met January 2) has asked to go into session January 24," Middleton, who is on record as opposing the pay hike, said. "That would give them a chance to vote down the increase." New state senator Mat Dunaskiss is also on record as opposing the salary increase.

Meanwhile, Middleton said Monday he still has some remaining work to do at his Brandon Township farm, which he hopes to wrap up by the end of the week.

Deborah Wilson of the Lake Orion Review contributed to this report.

Couple supportive of son, anxious about war

BY BETTY WAGNER
Clarkston News Special Writer

On a quiet street in Independence Township, three American flags fly from porches overlooking Clarkston. A yellow ribbon hangs from the flag on Bill and Darlene Smith's porch and will remain there until their son, 1st Lt. Scott H. Smith, 26, returns home from the Persian Gulf.

Scott, who graduated in 1982 from Clarkston High School and in 1987 from Michigan State University, East Lansing, has a bachelor of arts degree from the James Madison School in international relations.

The Smiths carry on their everyday lives as parents of two daughters, Kimberly, 23, of Boston and Danielle, 13, a Clarkston Junior High student.

The Smiths are busy with their everyday lives: Bill works as a principal of Total Insurance Services, Inc., Independence Township, and Darlene as a registered dental hygienist.

But they can't keep their minds off of Scott.

According to Darlene, Scott talked about joining the service even as a young boy. He "felt it was something he could do to benefit mankind," she said.

"He's more a peaceful person than aggressive. (It's) a way to serve his country."

Because he is a supply officer for the 2nd Battalion,

2nd Marine Division, Scott's "position is right behind the lines," said Bill, adding that Scott is "very busy. Works all through the night and grabs a few hours sleep during the day."

Scott called home when he first arrived at the Gulf port, the Smiths report.

Now he can't call, but the Smiths receive a letter once a week. In a letter dated Dec. 24, Scott wrote: "Hopefully, I'll be able (to) take some time to attend worship services tonight or tomorrow. Out here it will just be another work day, which is fine because everyone won't have a chance to get so homesick."

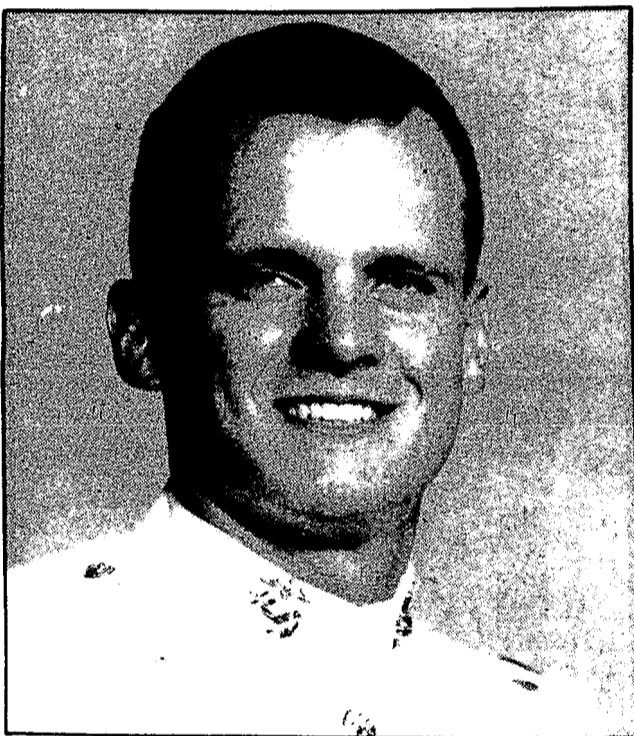

The Smiths write to Scott everyday, Darlene said. She sent him a dustproof Walkman in a care package and is looking for a non-rechargeable battery-operated razor and mountain sunglasses with side shields for his next package.

Darlene said anyone can send a Desert Fax to friends and relatives in the Gulf for free. Send them from American Telephone & Telegraph Co. located in Oakland

"I'm proud of what he's doing, very proud of him."

Darlene Smith

1ST LT. Scott H. Smith, 26, is stationed in the Persian Gulf.

Pointe, Telegraph at Elizabeth Lake Road, across from Summit Place Mall.

Darlene and Bill are proud of their son.

"I'm proud of what he's doing," said Darlene, "very proud of him."

But she describes herself as sort of a "dove."

"I don't think we should do anything aggressive there. Our role is as a defender, not an aggressor."

She said she's willing to wait, and people should let their opinions be known to their congressmen if they are against aggression.

Bill, who has a master's degree in history, said history has taught the world that dictators like Hussein cannot be appeased. They have an "insatiable appetite."

Scott told his parents that the morale among the troops he's with is very high. However, Bill is concerned that protesters will be seen as a demonstration against the troops in the Gulf and not just against the situation.

He thinks that protesting may be carried over to the troops when they return home as it was after the Vietnam

DARLENE and Bill Smith stand proudly before the American flag that flies day and night from their front porch in support of U.S. troops in Operation Desert Shield.

War.

For Darlene, having a son in the Gulf "feels like a roller coaster ride. Up and down." For Bill, it "feels like a numbing sensation."

They cope by keeping busy, exercising and putting it out of their minds as best as possible.

Darlene, who is a marathon runner, said, it "makes you run harder and faster. (Running) takes your mind off it."

She laughed when she said her running partners have commented on her recent burst of speed.

The Smiths and their neighbors fly their flags even through the night with the porch light shining. Bill and Darlene appreciate their neighbors' overt support.

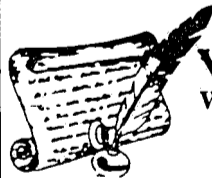

"It's a symbol to make people remember the troops," said Bill.

And so is the yellow ribbon that Darlene will wear pinned to her sweater until Scott comes safely home.

Snowmobiler faces charges

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

An unidentified snowmobiler is being blamed for shootings at two Independence Township homes last week.

The incidents occurred within 25 minutes of each other on the morning of Jan. 8. Luckily, no one was injured during the shooting spree.

The first home, a residence in the 9000 block of North Eston, had two of its picture windows shattered by gunfire. The family was awakened at 2:20 a.m. from the sound of gun shots.

The second residence, in the 8000 block of Pine Knob Road, was fired around 2:45 a.m. A window was shattered, with the slug found lodged in a wall of the kitchen.

Police records indicate that the weapon used at both homes was a 12-gauge shotgun. Slugs were found at both crime scenes.

Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCS) investigators believe that the shots came from a passing snowmobiler. Fresh tracks were found near both homes.

According to Detective Dave Scott, police are seeking leads to the identity of the gunman. Any information or tips can be forwarded to the OCS at 858-4950.

Board creates drug-free areas

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Professional and support staff working within Clarkston schools have officially been ordered to remain "drug free" by the board of education.

A policy describing a "drug free workplace" was passed by board members with a second reading of the proposal Jan. 14.

The policy states that "quality education is not possible in an environment affected by drugs," and that the board will seek a setting "not tainted by the use or evidence of use of any controlled substance."

Employees are notified that unlawful manufacture, distribution, dispensing, possession or use of a controlled substance is prohibited during all work times and school functions, as well as in any buildings or on any school grounds.

In addition, the distribution, possession or consumption of beverage alcohol is prohibited during all work times and school functions, as well as in any buildings or on any school grounds.

In a special situation where alcohol is available, the employee may have an alcoholic beverage providing he or she will not return to a school day that involves students or parents, the policy says.

The policy says that any member violating the agreement will be subject to district guidelines.

The superintendent is charged with setting up administrative guidelines to ensure compliance with the intent of the policy.

Oakhill, M-15 site recommended for rezoning

BY CURT MCCALISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A four-acre site near Oakhill and Ortonville roads moved one step closer to becoming rezoned as a planned unit development (PUD).

The Independence Township Planning Commission voted 6-0 to recommend the rezoning during its meeting Jan. 10. Commission member Steve Secatch was absent.

A PUD is the rezoning of a parcel of land in accordance with a specific site plan. It allows different uses of one site and requires approvals from the planning commission and township board.

The site is made up of four parcels currently zoned either rural residential or local commercial.

The petitioners, Lloyd Schmaltz and Robert Shell, plan to erect two buildings of about 7,000 square feet apiece on the land.

The buildings will be created into office, specialty and retail space.

The petitioners plan to transplant or relocate many of the trees on site. They would like to begin construction by the summer.

Besides recommending the PUD rezoning, the planning commission unanimously approved the site's conceptual use. However, the PUD must be approved by the township board before the conceptual approval is finalized.

Horse facility hearing

A public hearing has been set to discuss the possibility of equestrian facilities at the southeast corner of Oakhill and Reese roads, Independence Township.

That use of the 30-acre site is to be discussed 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 24.

The meeting will be held at the township board room, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston. For more information, call 625-8111.

Reporter's Notebook

Though not exactly a national holiday, National School Board Appreciation Week (Jan. 13 - 19) was celebrated in earnest at the Clarkston Board of Education meeting Jan. 14.

The gala, which was organized, funded and executed by the Bailey Lake Parent Teacher Association, consisted of cake and a corsage for each of the seven school board members.

A PTA spokesperson ordered members to wear the corsages the entire next day, and if anyone asked, they were to identify themselves as board members.

The saying "your mama" took on a different connotation at an Independence Township bar nearly two weeks ago.

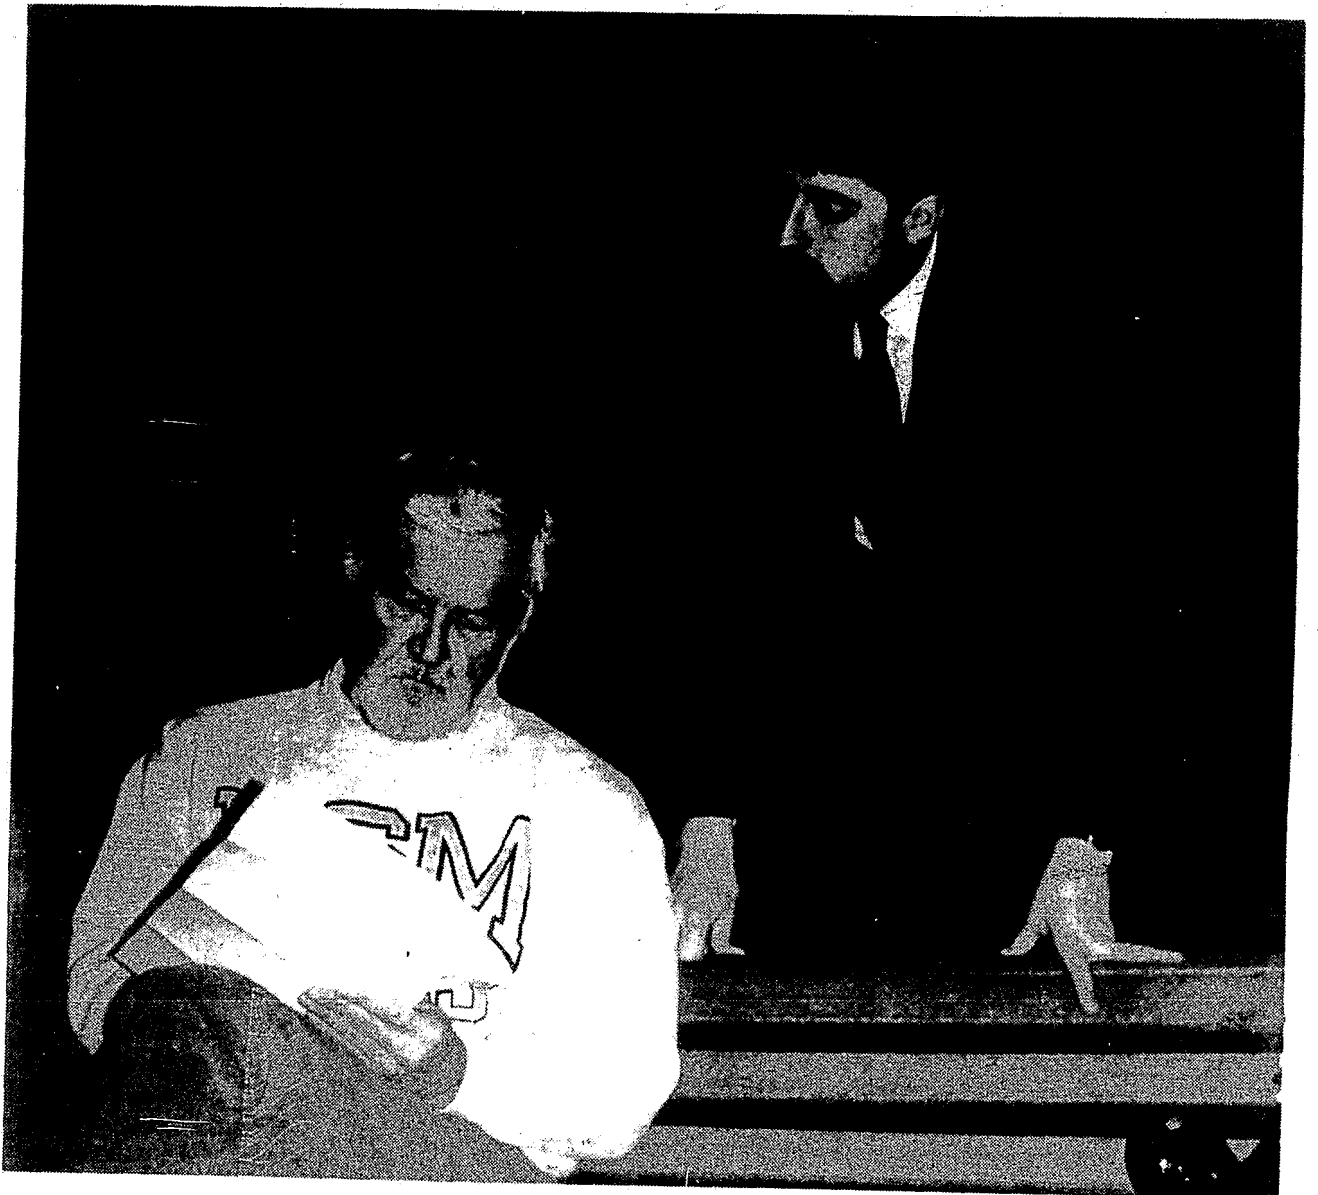

On Friday, Jan. 4, police were called to investigate a fight in the parking lot of the Oakland County Sportsmen's Bar on Dixie Highway. According to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department report, the skirmish started over an inadvertent insult.

The report said that two men began conversing in the establishment while sitting at the bar. Their conversation led to the topic of sexual conquests, and the older man named a woman with whom he'd recently had a romantic encounter.

Coincidentally, the woman was the mother of the man to whom he was speaking, and words were quickly exchanged. The men took their dispute to the parking lot where the son broke the jaw of the "tale spinner."

According to police, the victim plans to press charges against the disgruntled young man.

Items for Reporter's Notebook are compiled by Clarkston News staff members.

Citizens for Orderly Growth

Presentation on school issues

Doug Carlson

Citizens for Orderly Growth (COG) has been asked if we would be interested in having representatives from the Blue Ribbon Kids Committee address our group regarding the millage proposals that township residents will be asked to vote on in February.

Since the primary purpose of COG is to serve as a communication link between our group, township residents and township officials, I thought this might not be a bad idea.

Obviously, I'm including those individuals who run our school system under the heading, "township officials."

At this point, however, I want to make it absolutely clear that agreeing to such a presentation does not mean that COG is endorsing the proposals which are to be voted upon.

COG is a totally non-partisan group, and we sponsor events such as this purely as a service to the community.

The presentation will be held in the Media Center, Clarkston High School, at 7 p.m., on Wednesday, Jan. 23.

It is open to the public, and we welcome your attendance. Following the presentation, you will be given an opportunity to ask questions.

Each attendee will be provided with a professionally prepared handout that has been prepared by the committee.

Now, some information regarding the Blue Ribbon Kids Committee and the evening's activities. This information has also been prepared by the committee.

The Blue Ribbon Kids Committee is a group of parents, school personnel and school friends who work to support the growth of education in Clarkston.

They run our campaigns using information provided by the school board and the administration. The chairman of the BRK Committee is Dale Ryan.

"The video, titled "Our Kids ... Our Schools ... Our Future is Now," lasts a little over 20 minutes.

"The video's main purpose is to take the viewer inside crowded buildings and show why these facilities are not working well for students.

"They are not only very crowded, but space constrictions are also affecting the quality and completeness of the curriculum which can be offered.

"With the anticipated growth in our district over the next five years, our housing crises will worsen. With no new buildings, alternatives such as split-day sessions and more portable classrooms will have to be considered.

"The video will also explain briefly the three proposals A, B and C, and the impact their passage will have on educational quality in Clarkston.

"One highlight of the tape is a short interview with Sandra Ritter, chairwoman of the Oakland County Community College Board of Trustees.

"The handouts provided will supplement the video information, and we'll also be happy to take questions after the presentation.

"Our aim is to limit the agenda to no more than 30 minutes, including video time."

Once again, COG is not taking a position one way or the other on these proposals.

However, because they are of such importance to everyone in our community, especially in light of the recent large tax increases, we believe this presentation is a worthwhile project for our group to undertake.

We hope to see you there.

Doug Carlson is chairman of Citizens for Orderly Growth.

Independence man shot in Waterford

Two Pontiac men have been charged with the shooting of a 20-year-old Independence Township man last weekend.

Miguel Valdez of Crestview, Independence Township, was shot in the leg on Friday, Jan. 11, after being confronted by three individuals in a Waterford Township video store parking lot.

Witnesses say the men drove up to Valdez and two others while they were parked at Crazy Andy's Airport Videos on Airport Road at Jonquil Street.

The men exited their vehicle and began arguing with Valdez. Shortly after, he was shot in the leg with a small-caliber handgun.

Valdez was taken to the Pontiac Ambulatory Care Center in Waterford Township, where he was treated and released.

Though they fled the scene, the men were apprehended in Mount Pleasant the next day. They were charged Jan. 14 with assault with intent to murder and felonious possession of a firearm.

Accident injures man

A 32-year-old Independence Township man was hospitalized after striking a tree on Baldwin Road, Orion Township, Jan. 10.

About 2:13 a.m., Jeremiah Armstrong of Mohawk was rushed to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital (POH) after losing control of his car. According to reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, Armstrong took a curve north of Eaton Gate too fast and slid off the road, hitting the tree.

According to Dr. Robert Aranosian of POH, he is listed in fair condition and improving by the day.

A CHILD'S GRIEF

Just like adults, children need to go through the grieving process when they lose someone they love. Also like adults, children express their grief in different ways. Some will cry; some will withdraw for a while; some will have discipline and/or academic problems in school; some may not eat or sleep well or not even want to play with other children and pursue their otherwise normal activities.

Given an atmosphere of patience, understanding and unconditional love, the storm will gradually clear. Avoid the tendency to say "big boys don't cry." Rather, let them express their feelings and work through their loss. Don't be tempted to believe that children soon forget these things. Children usually have vivid and lasting memories of the deceased and have to work out their grief. Let them talk about the dead person and how they feel and felt. Suppress the desire to change to a more pleasant topic. They must be made to feel that their thoughts and emotions are acceptable.

Cagers fine with 79 against Corsairs, Hawks

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It can score from the outside.
It can score from the inside.
Either way, the Clarkston varsity boys' basketball team knows how to destroy an opponent.

The undefeated Wolves nailed 10 three-pointers in a Jan. 8 victory over Waterford Mott, and then three days later used some board strength underneath to top Brandon, raising their Greater Oakland Activities League record to 3-0.

Clarkston 79, Brandon 47
(Jan. 11 at Clarkston)

Brandon took advantage of some cold outside shooting by the Wolves to take an 18-16 first-quarter lead over host Clarkston.

But the Wolves outscored the Blackhawks by a 50-17 margin in the second and third periods to put the game out of reach.

"They dictated the tempo in the first quarter," said Clarkston coach Dan Fife about the Blackhawks' edge in the first eight minutes. But Clarkston's tough press went into action in the second quarter, the Wolves took the lead and Brandon never could catch up.

Clarkston guard Dugan Fife probably had his coldest shooting day of the year, but it wasn't enough to stop the Wolves. Fife, who still managed to score 22 points, once again proved that he can also hurt opponents with his passing.

One of those teammates he dished off to was center Mark Galbraith, who finished the game with a varsity career high 21 points, along with 11 rebounds. Many of the big senior's baskets also came from strong offensive rebounds.

"Mark's getting better all the time," said coach Dan Fife. "He's a good offensive rebounder. He gets himself in good position."

Other Wolf scorers were Derek Wiley with 10, Luke Fedio and Jon Wynnemko each with seven, Sean Halleran six, Dereck Raymond four and David Smith two.

Ryan Eagle paced Brandon with 15. Brandon scored four 3-pointers while Clarkston had one. The Wolves made 18 of 34 free throws while the Blackhawks converted on 13 of 22.

BRANDON did its best to stop Dugan Fife, but the junior guard still managed to score 22 points.

Clarkston 79, Waterford Mott 51
(Jan. 8 at Mott)

Ten 3-pointers by Wolves helped demolish Mott, 79-51.

Dugan Fife, who scored a game-high 32 points, hit five from the 3-point range. Teammate Wiley sank four 3-pointers and Smith added another one.

Mott opened the game with a diamond-and-one defense, hoping to control

Fife, who has been averaging nearly 30 points a game.

But six quick points from Wolf Chris Wasilk and another three by Wiley helped ignite Clarkston to a 10-0 lead.

That lead forced Mott to concentrate on other players besides Fife. But Fife and the rest of the Wolves lit up the scoreboard against the Corsairs.

The Wolves led 21-13 after the first quarter, it blossomed to a 40-27 halftime bulge, and then Clarkston never let up in the second half.

Wiley finished the game with 14 and Wasilk had 10. Galbraith added eight, Wynnemko four, Smith and Halleran each had three, Devon Dupree and Jason Lund both had two and Raymond added one.

Bill Seet was the only Corsair in double figures, scoring 12.

Senior wrestlers come through in clutch

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston's wrestling team is full of quality sophomores, but it was the seniors who pulled out a 32-21, come-from-behind victory over Waterford Kettering.

The Wolves, rated second in the state by most polls, were down, 19-12, with four matches remaining.

That's when the Clarkston seniors took over.

Clarkston 160-pounder Jason Slater had a struggle with Kettering's Ed Freytag. The Wolf was down 2-0 but fought back and pinned Freytag at 4:38.

"It was definitely one of my biggest matches of the year," said Slater. "I was nervous before the match, got a little intimidated at the beginning, but then I got him in a cradle."

Clarkston coach Scott Strickler knew the importance of Slater's match before it started.

"If he lost, we'd probably lose the dual. It was that pivotal," said Strickler.

Strickler's win closed the Wolves' deficit to 19-18.

Clarkston's co-captains then put an end to any chance of a Captain upset.

Damon Michelsen, a 171-pounder rated best in the state by the wrestling coaches' association, pinned Terry Metzger at 3:03. Fellow co-captain Joel Davis, wrestling at 189, followed with another pin over Matt Burke at 1:24, putting Clarkston ahead, 30-19.

But the evening's dramatics weren't over.

Kettering's undefeated heavyweight Frank Crane, rated second in the state, squared off with Wolf Tony Miller.

Miller, who wasn't expected to wrestle at all this season because of a knee injury, competed in his first match of the season.

Crane was in control of most of the match, but Miller came back with seconds left in the final period to tie it at 4-4 and looked as if he won it with additional points.

However, a discussion ensued after the match between the scorer's table and the referee and it was decided the time clock had previously been set 10 seconds too slow. The match ended in a 4-4 tie, with both coaches satisfied with the final verdict.

It was the first Greater Oakland Activities League match for both schools.

Clarkston co-captain Davis had high praise for Kettering.

"I think Kettering could be the toughest team we will face in the league this year," said Davis, who quickly added, "not that we're going to take Lake Orion lightly."

The Wolves faced the defending state champ Dragons Jan. 15 at Lake Orion (results were not known at press time).

Kettering coach Keith Patton was impressed with both the Wolves and his Captains.

"They're (Clarkston) the kings now," said Patton. "My kids wrestled to get respect."

That respect was earned early when Nathan Sloan gave Clarkston's Jeff Deroseau a battle. Deroseau, rated as the best 103-pound wrestler in the state, edged Sloan in a 3-0 decision.

From that point, Kettering went on to win four of five matches. Kettering's John Sloan (112) stopped Pat Forbes, 12-6; Captain Eric Swiden (119) topped Terry Melvin, 7-3; Clarkston's Jerry Anderson (125) pinned Chris Cokley with one second left in the match; Kettering's Mike Neuciler (130) stopped Jason Roughton, 10-2; Captain Dan Deciechi (135) edged Mike Stanton, 4-1.

That string was broken by Clarkston's Alex Martin, another Wolf senior who won a key match. Martin (140) stopped Kurt Clauson, 4-0.

Kettering then went on to win the next two matches. Mitch Shaver (145) edged Matt Seitz, 4-3 and Adam Breit (152) topped Steve Cohoon, 4-1.

But Slater and the other Wolf seniors finished the match with their string of successes.

Clarkston 33, Rochester Adams 24 (Jan. 11 at Rochester Adams)

It was more of the same for both Clarkston and its opponent, in this case, Rochester Adams.

Just a day after a match in which the Wolves trailed Waterford Kettering only to come back and pull it out with victories in the heavyweight divisions, Clarkston found itself in the same situation against Adams.

"It was like deja vu," said Clarkston coach Scott Strickler, whose team increased its record to 10-0. "It came down to the big men. I hate to put that pressure on them, but they came through again."

Four Wolf seniors, Slater, Michelsen, Davis and Miller, won the last four matches in a 33-24 win over host Adams. Adams, one of the top teams in Oakland county, dropped to 4-1 with the loss.

Strickler said one reason Clarkston has been losing in the lighter divisions is the Wolves have been facing tougher competition in those areas.

The Adams' match was a homecoming for the Clarkston coach, a 1980 graduate of Adams.

"I didn't want to lose in the gym as a coach. I never lost in it as a wrestler," said Strickler.

Undefeated Deroseau (103) started the Wolves off on the right foot by pinning Nathan Cobb at 2:56.

But Adams' Mike Perry (112) pinned Pat Forbes at 4:44 and teammate Tom Fenoseff (119) pinned Melvin at 2:59.

Clarkston's Anderson (125) remained undefeated in an 8-4 decision over Matt Olson. Adams took the next two matches when Mike Evanger (130) edged Roughton, 9-6, and Anthony Saber (135) stopped Stanton, 5-1.

Wolf Martin (140) nipped Kevin Smitko, 5-3. But the hosts held on to the lead when Doug LaCouver (145) edged Seitz, 5-4, and Greg White (152) topped Cohoon, 9-6.

But the last four matches were dominated by Clarkston seniors.

Slater (160) crushed Matt Ponitz, 12-0; Michelsen (171) stomped Paul Ruther, 15-0; Davis (189) pinned Alex Sedototzskin at 1:55 and Miller (hvt.) pinned Alex Vonhoene at 3:08.

JV tops Mott in 2 OT's

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Nothing has come easy for the Clarkston JV boys' basketball team.

But game after game, the young Wolves have been winning close contests. A six-point win over Brandon and a double-overtime victory against Waterford Mott raised Clarkston's record to 5-1.

Clarkston 60, Brandon 54 (Jan. 11 at Clarkston)

The Wolves overcame eight 3-pointers by the visiting Blackhawks for a 60-54 win.

"Brandon has vastly improved," said Clarkston coach Tim Kaul.

Clarkston was hurt by Wolf point guard Nick Shires getting in foul trouble, but his teammates took up some of the slack. Four players were in double-figures.

"Matt Underwood made two big field goals for us," said Kaul. Underwood led the Wolves in scoring with 14 points.

Clarkston was up 34-26 at the half, but then only led 47-44 going into the final quarter.

The Wolves only made nine of 20 free throws, but the Blackhawks did even worse, sinking six of 19 attempts.

In addition to Underwood's 14, Shires and Scott Matusz each had 13, Todd Smith had 10, Jeremy Deloney four, Eric Ryan, Scott Rooney and Steve Black each had two.

Clarkston 64, Waterford Mott 62 (2 OT's) (Jan. 8 at Mott)

Host Mott had a four-point lead with less than a minute remaining in regulation, but Clarkston came back for a dramatic 64-62 double overtime victory.

After being down 58-54, the Wolves closed the gap to within two. And then Smith stole the ball from a Corsair and was fouled. He coolly made both free throws with two seconds left, sending the game into overtime.

Both teams battled to a 62-62 after the first overtime and then Chris Combs sank the only two points in the second overtime (with two free throws) for the win.

Mott jumped ahead 12-6 after the first eight minutes, but Clarkston took a 25-22 advantage going into intermission. The rest of the game was a seesaw affair.

Shires topped the Wolves with 19 points while teammates Underwood and Smith each netted 10. Black and Combs both scored six, Deloney had five, Ryan and Matusz each tallied four.

Clarkston sank 18 of 27 free throws and the Corsairs made 14 of 19.

Proposed athletic facilities on view

The community is invited to see a presentation of proposed new athletic facilities at Clarkston High School, 7 p.m., Monday, Jan. 21, at the high school gym.

Tom Chen, the school district's architect, will give a slide presentation and answer questions.

School district voters will be voting in a special bond election for new district facilities on Feb. 11.

Free throw contest set for Jan. 19

Children ages 10 to 14 have a chance to compete at the free throw line in a contest Saturday, Jan. 19, at Clarkston Elementary School.

Sponsored by the Knights of Columbus Council No. 54, the Free Throw Championship begins at 11 a.m. Registration takes place 10:30-11 a.m. at the school at 6595 Waldon Road, Independence Township.

For more information, contact Ted Ginnon, 625-3459; Mike Donnelon, 625-2163; Mike Campbell, 394-1067, or Mike Switzer, 625-5773.

Girls' ski team easily glides past Country Day, Lahser

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston girls' ski team crushed both Detroit Country Day and Lahser to open the Pine Knob Division season.

Clarkston 10, Detroit Country Day 26 (Jan. 7 at Pine Knob)

All six Clarkston skiers finished ahead of Country Day opponents in grand slalom action.

Carrie Roeser was the fastest on the slopes, finishing at 45.51 seconds for her combined two runs. Andrea Raymond was second at 47.97, followed by Missy Crites at 48.70 and Kim Carpentier at 49.46.

The top four skiers count in the final team total, with the other two skiers having the opportunity to block out places by the opponents.

So Becky Rumph's fifth-place finish (50.27) and Courtney Whittaker's sixth-place finish (51.83) meant that Country Day's best finish was seventh by Jenny Kirachenbaum at 52.30.

"We have a real strong program," said Clarkston coach Judy Roeser. The Wolf girls' team last season went undefeated in Pine Knob Division action.

Clarkston 11, Lahser 27 (Jan. 9 at Pine Knob)

Clarkston took four of the first five places to top Lahser.

Roeser was well out ahead of everyone after her two slalom runs, finishing at 47.57. Taking second was teammate Whittaker at 52.27 and third was Wolf Carpentier at 54.01.

Lahser's Caryn Aude came in fourth at 54.22.

Crites rounded out the Wolf scoring by placing fifth at 54.34.

Other Clarkston finishes were Rumph's seventh (55.54) and Raymond's 11th (60.45).

5 wrestlers win novice event

Five Clarkston wrestlers won matches in the finals of the Lake Orion Novice Invitational last Saturday.

The meet was open to ninth and 10th grade wrestlers.

Winning for Clarkston were: Steve Locher (119 pounds) over Holly's Kurt Peters, 4-1; Mike Cain (135-b) pinned Plymouth Salem's Chris Wozniak at 1:09; Frank Lafferty (140-a) blitzed Pontiac

Central's James Gray, 19-7; Jason Cain (145-a) crushed Lake Orion's Jason Griffin, 15-7; Mitch Peterson (189) edged teammate Mike Porritt, 4-2.

Two other Clarkston wrestlers, besides Porritt, who lost in the finals were: John Roy (hvt.) who was pinned by Lake Orion's Rob Chaney at 3:47 and Brent Hummel (160) was pinned by Holly's Rod Allen at 5:00.

Recreation Roundup

DOG TRAINING CLASSES

Learn how to understand and care for your dog through Thursday evening classes at the Carriage House, within Clintonwood Park.

Classes, for puppies and older dogs, begin soon, so call as soon as possible to sign up.

KIDDIE KICKERS SOCCER

Starting this spring the rec. department will be offering an instructional program for youngsters ages 4, 5 or 6. The age cut-off for this program is Aug. 1, 1990. Children must turn four on or before this date and may not turn 7 years old on or prior to this date.

Children will be taught the basics of soccer in a non-competitive atmosphere. The program will be run on Saturday mornings beginning April 20. Program time is 10 a.m. to 11:15 a.m. at Sashabaw Plains Park.

ADULT SOCCER LEAGUE

The rec. department is looking for adult men's and women's soccer teams to play soccer this summer at Clintonwood Park. There will be divisions for under-16, under-19, and open teams. Anyone can play, no matter what their age or ability is. For more information, call the rec. department.

DADDY-DAUGHTER DANCE

There will be lots of dancing, refreshments and prizes at the third annual Daddy-Daughter Dance. Early registration is advised for this popular event, which features fathers and their kindergarten through third-grade daughters.

The dance takes place 6:30-8 p.m. Monday, Feb. 11, at the Independence Township Carriage House (next to the Senior Center in Clintonwood Park).

SPRING SOCCER REGISTRATION

Youths ages 5-18 can register for the 1991 Spring Soccer program at Independence Township Parks and Recreation.

There's a registration for under-14, under-16 and under-19 travel leagues and another registration for under-8, under-10 and under-12 leagues.

Registration for the under-14, under-16 and under-19 travel leagues will take place from now through Jan. 18. No late registrations will be accepted. The cost is $35 for residents and $40 for non-residents.

Early registration for the under-8, under-10 and under-12 leagues will be Jan. 2 through Jan. 18, and regular registration will be Jan. 21 through Feb. 1.

Early registration will cost $25 for residents and $30 for non-residents. Regular registration is $30 for residents and $35 for non-residents.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL CLINIC

A basketball clinic for girls in grades 3-8 begins Saturday, Jan. 19.

Students will be taught according to their age levels. Register at the rec. department.

CO-REC VOLLEYBALL MIXER

A six-week volleyball mixer started the second week in January on Monday nights. There are a limited number of spaces available on a first come, first serve basis. Because enrollment is limited, you must register at the rec. department. No drop-ins will be allowed.

ADULT OPEN GYM SCHEDULE
Mondays - Pine Knob Elementary, 6-10 p.m.; Thursdays - North Sashabaw Elementary, 6-10 p.m.

A $1 charge is collected at the door of each open gym location.

It's a good idea to call the Parks and Recreation Department the day of each open gym to confirm its availability. Occasionally the schools will call and cancel the open gym times for their own use.

HIGH SCHOOL OPEN GYM

Thursdays - Clarkston Elementary, 7-9 p.m.

A $1 charge is collected at the door. It's a good idea to call the rec. department the day of each open gym to confirm its availability.

FOR MORE INFORMATION

Call 625-8223 or stop by the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston. The office is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Swinging from the heels

Wolf Winter Winnerland

James Gibowski

It's a Winter Winnerland at Clarkston High School this season.

All five varsity Wolf teams have been winning, and it doesn't look as if that trend will stop.

I'm not saying winning is the most important thing. There can be many positive things happening when a high school team is below .500. Sometimes the talent isn't there, but the hustle is.

But as every athlete knows, it's more fun to win. And it's more fun for the spectators when their favorite team is winning.

Those watching this winter will see some quality teams and individual performers ...

■ Wrestling: The wrestlers are ranked as the second best Class A team in the state and have been worthy of that distinction.

The grappling Wolves are undefeated in dual meets, and they won the Oakland County meet for the first time in school history.

The team is mainly a mixture of some talented sophomores and seasoned seniors.

Sophomores Jeff Deroseau (103) and Jerry Anderson (125) remain undefeated.

And even if the Wolves get behind in the lighter weight divisions, there's always co-captains Damon Michelsen (171) and Joel Davis (189) to pile on the points.

■ Boys' basketball: The undefeated Wolf cagers have usually been ranked as one of the state's top 10 Class A teams (they dropped from the top 10 recently, apparently being penalized for not having any games during the Christmas vacation).

Highlights so far have been close victories over always-tough Pontiac Central and Detroit Catholic Central.

You cannot separate the fortunes of this basketball team from the play of Dugan Fife. And the only people Fife has disappointed are his opponents.

The junior guard, one of the state's best players, is a deadeye from the 3-point range, his passing sets up as many points as his high average, and it's amazing the way he finds his way through traffic while driving to the basket.

Senior Mark Galbraith has been a pleasant surprise, giving the Wolves needed board strength while displaying a nice touch recycling garbage into double-figure points.

But the rest of the starters, the bench and coach Dan Fife also deserve much credit. Only one starter returned this season (Dugan Fife), but the team plays like veterans.

Two other things really impress me about this team: the way its smothering, aggressive defense compensates for its lack of height; and the look in the eyes of each player who takes the court. These guys mean business when they're on the court.

■ Girls' and boys' skiers: The season has just begun for the skiers, but it's clear that the girls are as strong as last year (Greater Oakland Activities League and Pine Knob Division champions).

And the boys' team has improved. Both teams won their first two races in Pine Knob Division action.

Carrie Roeser and Brian Zoss have been the fastest down the hills for their respective teams.

It's too bad not too many people get to see these skiers competing (It's definitely a little uncomfortable watching in freezing weather compared to a nice warm gymnasium).

The way I downhill ski (I'm more of a cross-country skier ...) makes me appreciate the speed and skill of these Wolf skiers. I told some of the team members that I could come closer to the skills of Michael Jordan on the basketball court than getting even close to the way these snow Wolves ski.

I could make a few 3-pointers on the court but I'd be lucky to make it through two of 10 gates (with the other eight imbedded all over my body).

■ Volleyball: I haven't seen the volleyball team play yet (the first home match will be Wednesday), but I've sure heard much about them from coach Gordie Richardson.

Last season the team finished 18-18-4. This year the Wolves are already 8-2-3 and won the Flint Waverly Tournament.

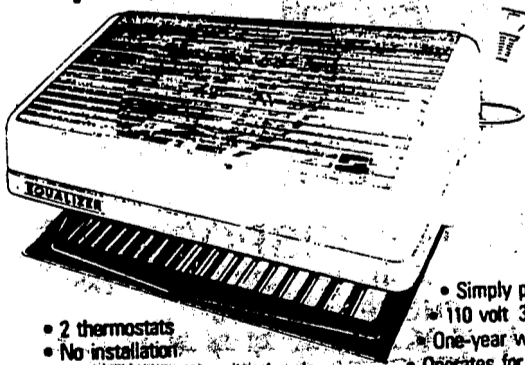

Power volleyball is a fantastic spectator sport. I'm convinced that once people see it played for the first time (try it, if you haven't already attended once), most of them will want to return to see it played again.

Three-year player Jenny Graham is having an all-league season. Setter Becky Kosek (the team's quarterback), Candy Polenz, Kim Kolody, and two basketball-turned-volleyball players Heather Steinhilper and Stacey Tinkis and their teammates have formed what coach Richardson calls a good "chemistry" this season.

All five of these teams have found the right formula this season.

Wolves win first two battles on slopes

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Senior Brian Zoss and junior Bryson Menke were a strong one-two punch as the Clarkston boys' ski team began its Pine Knob Division season with two straight wins.

Zoss finished first twice and Menke took a second and third in wins against Detroit Country Day and Lahser.

Clarkston coach Judy Roeser liked what she saw of her team's early-season efforts.

"This year's team is much stronger, and its fired-up," said Roeser.

Clarkston 14, Detroit Country Day 22 (Jan. 7 at Pine Knob)

Zoss' two combined runs in the giant slalom totaled 40.33 seconds, for first place, and teammate Menke took second at 41.52.

Country Day's Dave Levitsky finished third (42.29) and one of his teammates took fourth.

But strong runs by two other Wolves closed out the scoring for Clarkston (six skiers compete for each team, with the top four finishes added for the team total).

Clarkston junior Dave Studt placed fifth (43.16) and fellow junior Justin Whittaker took sixth (43.51).

Other Wolves and their places were: Duane Poole, 10th (48.97) and Todd Conklin, 12th (50.25).

Clarkston 13, Lahser 28 (Jan. 9 at Pine Knob)

The Wolves displayed some team depth by taking four of the first five places in a win over Lahser.

Last season, Lahser defeated Clarkston in Pine Knob Division skiing.

Zoss edged Lahser's Kyle Greene to win the combined runs of the slalom course. Zoss finished first at 42.89 and Greene followed at 43.04.

But Wolves took the next three places. Menke was third (44.04), Whittaker fourth (44.95) and Studt fifth (45.32).

Two other Wolves blocked out Lahser finishes. Conklin placed sixth (48.17) and Poole was eighth (51.09).

Skiers improved

Winter sports preview

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It's important that members of the Clarkston boys' and girls' ski teams cheer for each other.

Since it's so cold on the slopes, there's only a few brave souls who show up as spectators at the ski meets.

"What I've been pleased about is how everybody is pulling for each other," said Clarkston ski coach Judy Roeser, who admires the enthusiasm displayed by her two teams.

The coach has also been pleased with the improvement of the boys' team this winter.

One of those improvements has been the consistency of senior Brian Zoss, who has been the fastest Wolf down the hill this season.

Roeser said Zoss used to be an "erratic skier," but now says, "I think he settled down."

Junior Bryson Menke has clocked the second fastest times for the Wolves.

Juniors Dave Studt and Justin Whittaker are expected to battle for the third and fourth place finishes.

Lettermen Todd Conklin and Duane Poole and other Wolves will be vying for the fifth and sixth slots.

In high school dual meets, six skiers take two runs down the slope, their times

THE FORTUNES of the Clarkston boys' ski team will be resting on the shoulders and legs of (from left) Brian Zoss, Bryson Menke, Dave Studt, Justin Whittaker and Todd Conklin.

Clarkston competes at Pine Knob in the Pine Knob Division, along with Detroit Country Day, Lahser, Waterford Kettering, Cranbrook Kingswood, Rochester, Rochester Adams, Lake Orion, Waterford Mott and Andover.

Coach Roeser said that she expects the Wolves and Rochester Adams to battle for the division championship.

Competition against Mott, Kettering and Lake Orion also determines the Greater Oakland Activities League title.

"We should have it (the GOAL title) hands down," said coach Roeser.

Starter pistol causes scare at sporting event

A Pontiac Northern High School 10-grader was dismissed from classes after he flashed a starter pistol after a Clarkston High School (CHS) wrestling meet.

The incident occurred Thursday, Jan. 10, when the Wolves hosted conference rival Waterford Kettering.

According to CHS Assistant Principal Brent Cooley, shortly after the meet, a parent told him that a boy flashed a gun in the crowd.

Cooley confronted the boy in the parking lot, where the boy admitted having a starter pistol and gave it to Cooley. The incident was reported to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, and the boy may be charged with a crime.

Cooley said that Clarkston High's police liaison officer called Pontiac Northern's police liaison officer, who dismissed the boy from school. The boy is facing suspension from school as well.

Apparently, the teen flashed the pistol after he and a CHS student "stared each other down," said Cooley, adding that he didn't know if words were exchanged.

Tax strategies can save a bundle for investors

If you think you're paying Uncle Sam too much of what you make on your investments, you may want to take a closer look at tax-free and tax-deferred investments.

Just remember that tax treatment is only one factor to consider when developing an investment strategy, advises the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.

Municipal bonds

Municipal bonds offer investors a way to earn tax-free interest income. Issued by state and local governments, municipal bonds help raise money to build schools, roads and other projects.

In the last few years, the municipal bond market has become a more complicated place for investors. In the past, all municipal bonds were exempt from federal tax, but changes in the tax law created three different tax treatments of municipal bonds.

The interest you earn on the traditional obligations of state and local governments remains tax-free. And, in most states, if the bonds are from your home state, you generally escape state and local taxes as well.

However, certain bonds issued for private purposes, such as industrial development, now generate interest that can be subject to the alternative minimum tax. Still other bonds, including those issued to finance sports stadiums and convention facilities, no longer qualify for any federal tax exemption.

To determine if municipal bonds are the right type of investment. You should also weigh the security and the term of the bond under consideration. In addition, keep in mind that if you need to sell a municipal bond before its maturity, you must report your capital gain or loss on your tax return. What's more, you cannot deduct investment expenses associated with tax-exempt investments.

Treasury bills

By transferring money from an investment that accrues interest daily to one that pays interest at maturity, such as Treasury bills, you can defer the taxes due on your investment earnings.

Treasury bills are issued in denominations of $10,000 and up and mature in three, six or 12 months. The bills are issued at a discount, with the interest paid when they are redeemed at maturity for face value. Interest on T-bills is completely exempt from state and local taxes; federal taxes are not due until the year the bills mature.

Certificates of deposit

Many banks, brokerage firms and other financial institutions offer certificates of deposit (CDs). The interest earned on CDs is subject to federal, state and local taxes. But, because earnings on CDs are taxed in the year you receive them, you can use CDs as a means of deferring interest income. When you buy a CD that matures next year, the interest it earns is not taxable until then.

However, you should keep in mind that early withdrawals from a CD are generally subject to an interest penalty. If you have to make an early withdrawal, remember that this penalty is deductible even if you do not itemize your deductions.

Series EE U.S. Savings bonds

In 1982, the government created Series EE U.S. Savings Bonds to provide savers with a guaranteed minimum interest rate, plus a chance to earn more if interest rates rise. If you cash in the bonds early, a lower fixed rate applies.

Savings bonds have two special tax appeals. First, interest earned on savings bonds is exempt from state and local income taxes. Second, since you collect your interest when you redeem the bonds, the interest is generally not subject to federal tax until then. However, you can choose to report the interest annually. If you select this option, and later you decide that you would benefit more from reporting the interest when you redeem the bonds, you can switch methods only with the consent of the IRS.

Beginning Jan. 1, 1990, a new tax benefit was created for certain U.S. savings bonds. Interest on these bonds is not taxed if the bonds are redeemed to pay college expenses.

In order to qualify for this tax treatment, certain conditions must be satisfied: the bond must have been issued after Dec. 31, 1989; you must be 24 years old or older at the time the bonds are purchased; and you must use the bond's proceeds for qualified educational expenses incurred by you, your spouse or dependents for higher education.

This exclusion is phased out if your adjusted gross income falls within certain ranges — between $40,000 and $55,000 for single taxpayers and heads of household. These dollar amounts will be adjusted annually for inflation.

Retirement plans

Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs), Keoghs and other retirement plans continue to offer liberal tax benefits. These plans represent another way you can defer some of your taxable income.

With an IRA or Keogh, not only do you defer paying taxes on the money you invest, but the interest you receive on your investment is also deferred until the money is withdrawn. In addition, some investors can still claim a deduction for the amount contributed to an IRA. Restrictions on deductions are based on your income and whether you are covered by a retirement plan at work. With a Keogh, deposits are tax deductible regardless of your income, and money in the plan is allowed to grow and compound tax-free until withdrawn.

To be a successful investor, you need to know how to use the tax rules to your best advantage. The rules can get complicated so it may be wise to consult a CPA before embarking on your investment plan. Used properly, tax planning can be an effective way to minimize taxes while accumulating greater wealth.

Rudy's offers customers convenience, courtesy

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Some of the changes at the new Rudy's Market on Main Street, Clarkston, are apparent instantly.

The garlicky aroma of freshly baked breads filters from the ovens in back, and almost every inch of the facility has taken on a new, clean appearance.

The store's other transformations may be harder to put a finger on, but they eventually become apparent to Rudy's customers in the form of time and effort saved.

"When you shop in a big supermarket you wait a long time," explains Laith Jonna, co-owner of the market with brothers, Johnny and Robert Esshaki. "It's easily 45 minutes to an hour whether you buy five items or 50 items.

"At Rudy's, it's five minutes — you're in and out of here," he says. "We are a complete full-service market with a '90s flair."

To cater to shoppers of the '90s, Rudy's stocks a full contingent of regular groceries, imported beer and wine from around the world, gift baskets and an array of prepared salads and other deli foods. Hot, carry-out foods are made fresh daily, as are a variety of fresh-baked goods.

Rudy's specialty is meat. Rudy's butchers select only choice or prime meats from the multitude of labels on the market and offer the cuts according to a customer's needs. Entire sides, fronts or hinds of beef are available for freezer orders.

Another aspect of the '90s market is the service, adds Robert Esshaki, Laith's co-partner.

"When you come in here you get personal attention," Robert says. "It's a quality, old-country store with a '90s attitude."

After working together for years at similar markets, the three store owners were drawn to Clarkston after noticing a For Sale sign in the window of the former Rudy's Market.

"We were having lunch at The Clarkston Cafe, spotted the store and saw a For Sale sign in the window," Laith recalls. "We thought it was a beautiful place to do business and fell in love with the area."

The owners say the opening of several larger grocers in the area has left their business unaffected.

"They're all beautiful stores," Laith shrugs, "but we can't compete with them. We won't compete with them."

With its small-town flavor and modern approach to a shopper's needs, Rudy's is in a class all it's own.

Board approves hiring of four

Grants awarded to the Clarkston school district will result in the hiring of four employees at the Community Education Center.

School board members voted to unanimously to approve the filling of a clerk and a job placement counselor.

Salaries and benefits of $25,851 are covered by a Job Training Partnership Act.

Board members also approved the hiring of an instructor and an aide for the "At Risk" pre-school program.

Salaries and benefits of $18,613 are subsequently covered by an "At Risk" grant.

The continuance of both grants are dependent on the hiring of the employees, according to Director of Administrative Services Bill Neff.

Optimist oratorical contest in March

The Clarkston-Area Optimist Club is conducting oratorical contests open to all boys and girls who have not reached the age of 16.

Medallions will be awarded to first place, second place and runner-up winners of the contest.

First place winners (boys and girls) will also receive a $200 U.S. Savings Bond and be eligible for further competition with a top prize of a $1,500 scholarship.

The official oratorical contest subject is "If Only." Contestants must speak on the official subject for not less than four minutes and not more than five minutes.

Scoring is based on personal qualities, material organization, delivery and presentation and overall effectiveness.

The contest dates are March 19 (boys) and March 20 (girls) and will be held at Clarkston Junior High School.

For further information concerning the contest, contact Duane Lewis at 625-4402.

Woman injured after car strikes tree

A 28-year-old Brandon Township woman was injured after her car hit a tree on Sashabaw Road, Independence Township.

On the morning of Jan. 9, Connie Gelen lost control of her automobile and careened into the ditch on the opposite side of the road. The accident occurred at 9:15 a.m., near the intersection of Stickney Road.

Unconscious, she was rushed to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital where she was treated for head and facial injuries. She was released a couple of days later.

Springfield farm is home to 64 horses

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

On a cold January day, it's comforting to sit inside the Nelson farm on Crosby Lake Road, Springfield Township.

From that vantage, a person can keep warm while looking over the rolling, snow-covered hills, dotted with 64 horses.

At age 66, Calvin Nelson doesn't ride horses much anymore, but he likes to have a horse of his own to look at, he says with a contented smile.

"I loved to drive a team of horses when I was a young boy," Calvin says. "It's probably like giving a boy a motor vehicle today."

At present, his wife, June's, two horses give him pleasure. And he also enjoys another five of the herd that belong to the Nelsons' two sons and their families who live nearby.

June injured her wrist in a fall from a horse about two years ago, but that hasn't stopped from riding.

"It's hard not to get back on — especially if you're a hardcore horse person," she says.

Calvin and June have been boarding horses since 1968. Over the years, they've learned all the tricks. They give vaccinations, feed the animals and gather in any mare that's ready to foal. And they call the horses by name.

It's a way of life they've come to enjoy.

Their 95-acre farm has been in the Nelson family since 1934, when Calvin's father, William Nelson, purchased the farm for summertime use.

William was a technical director for U.S. Rubber, which is now Uniroyal. But William also enjoyed farming his Springfield Township property.

In 1961, after Calvin was laid off from General Motors, he and June moved from Dearborn to the Nelson house that William had converted from a summer cottage on the land.

The couple had three children at the time: Roger, Ruth and Rodney. After the move, Roy was born.

Pole barns have been constructed to shelter the horses, but another barn on the property is 150 years old, and it's put together with pegs, Calvin points out.

The original barn is where the horses are fed and the hay stored. The Nelsons make a trip to the mill about every 10 days and store enough food to make it through bad weather conditions.

Each trip — during winter months when the ground is frozen — they purchase 1 1/2 tons of feed and 250 pounds of horse chow. Hay is grown on the farm.

Feeding takes about 1 1/2 hours, and it requires a buddy system for safety, June says, explaining that two people feed 13 horses at a time.

The process occurs twice a day, and the schedule is made about six weeks in advance. Five people who board their horses at the farm help with feeding, and June, along with two of her daughters-in-law, also help feed.

A heart condition keeps Calvin from the vigorous chores, such as feeding and baling hay. So he hires others to take care of the hay, as well as repair work on the farm.

Frequent checking of fences and gates is required to keep the herd where it belongs on the Nelson farm.

The Nelsons also carefully watch each horse.

"We bring (pregnant mares) into the yard a month ahead of time," June says. "There are no pasture births."

Life on a farm doesn't leave much time for vacationing, but that doesn't bother Calvin.

"I can't tell if I'm retired, working or on vacation," he says with a laugh.

It was a vacation years ago that helped the Nelsons decide to vaccinate their own horses.

"In the early days it seemed as though a catastrophe would always happen when we took a vacation," June says.

True to form, Calvin and June went away, and equine sleeping sickness appeared in the area, alarming the Nelson children, who were caring for the horses.

A veterinarian was called at 11:30 p.m. to administer a serum for the virus to 25 horses, and for the one hour of work the vet was paid $250, June says.

"We decided it was time to learn about giving vaccinations," she says.

The care of horses takes hours and hours each day, but June manages to find time for one of her favorite activities — riding. She and others who board their horses find peace and beauty on the about 40 miles of trails near the Nelson farm.

June even has a special bell-laden leather strap that attaches to her saddle for hunting season.

"Wear bells and orange when you ride during hunting season," June warns, explaining that two items will help warn hunters that a rider is in the area.

Some may think the Nelsons' way of life is difficult and relentless. But the Nelsons are content to continue the lifestyle they began more than 20 years ago.

At that time, they realized it would be difficult to make a living at farming on their 95-acre parcel.

"It's only marginal farming," June says, with a laugh. "We grow rocks here."

Horses, sleek and majestic, provided the answer.

CALVIN and June Nelson have found a way to make a living on a farm that produces rocks. The Nelsons have boarded horses for 23 years and now board 64.

Special Sparky

Sparky will spark up your home with love and affection.

Sparky, 19 months, was picked up as a stray but now would like a home where he will stay put.

The Geman shepherd-collie mix weighs about 58 pounds. Partially housebroken, Sparky only needs a little patience to complete his training.

It shouldn't be difficult to take Sparky for a walk because he responds well to a leash, according to a shelter worker.

Sparky's $75 adoption fee includes neutering.

To see Sparky, visit the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Road, Auburn Hills, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

~By Sandra G. Conlen

SPARKY is good with children and would like to live in a home where he will be loved.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Ron Rodda
Sales Manager

"Let's discuss your Career in Real Estate Sales"

ON INCLUDING EXTRAS

INCLUDING "EXTRAS" will make a buyer happy - but do it right!

QUESTION: When selling a home, is it a good idea to leave a lot of personal items for the new buyer as frosting on the cake or do you advise selling personal items that you really don't need?

ANSWER: Frost the cake! It's a good idea to include as many extras as possible. Draperies that you won't need, shelving, porch furniture that you won't have use for, or maybe that extra lawn mower are some examples. Make sure the agreement spells out what stays and what does not. Whatever you do - do not try to sell such items to the buyer. The safe of a home is a big enough negotiation without muddying the water.

HEATING TIP

During the long heating season, almost weekly, the news media reports families being overcome by Carbon Monoxide poisoning. Often the furnace or its venting system is the source of this potentially deadly, odorless gas.

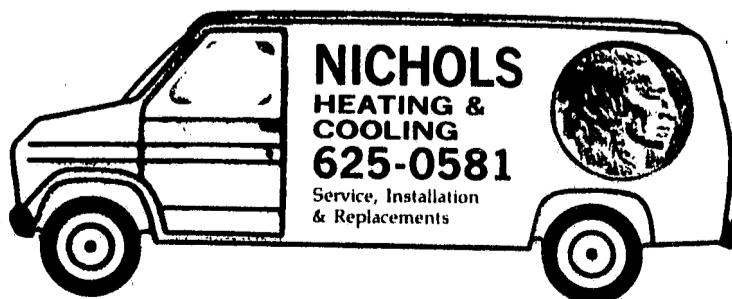

Furnaces are designed to provide safe, dependable heating comfort. Problems arise when they are not properly installed, maintained or when age and stress causes heat exchanger failures.

Restricted or poor chimneys can cause blockage or downdrafts, either of these preventing the fumes from leaving the building. Tight, well insulated buildings often do not allow enough outside fresh air into the structure to provide the needed oxygen for complete combustion. This is especially true when a fire is burning in the fireplace, exhaust fans are running and the clothes dryer is being used.

Air that is exhausted from the building must be replaced. For many buildings, adequate infiltration of outside air takes place through windows, cracks and doors. On tight structures and those with a lot of exhaust, it may be necessary to plan for and provide a means for this needed air to enter the building.

I recommend a yearly cleaning and safety inspection of any heating equipment by a qualified technician as a common sense approach to help catch and correct situations before they become dangerous problems.

The Other Side of Things

Some things just don't last

Ashley Ball

It was the last Friday of the school holidays, and my mom and I were HOME ALONE (just kidding). Laura was visiting her friend Beth in Davisburg and my dad was at work. I wanted to celebrate my last day of freedom.

"We could eat lunch out," I suggested.
"Well," my mom hesitated. "What about the new diet we started on Tuesday?"

Every new year, my mom starts this diet thing — not to lose weight, just to eat more healthfully: carrots, salads, chicken, etc. All the right stuff to make your teeth white and your hair shiny. Anyway, this year I decided to join her.

We were following a diet chart in my January SEVENTEEN Magazine. I liked it because it allowed fast food a couple of times a week.

I ran my finger down the chart. "What luck!" I exclaimed. "We can have Chinese food today."

My mom double-checked the chart, then smiled. "Wing Lauk?" she asked, her eyes twinkling.

My parents go there a lot with their friends, Dale and Frankie Perry. I haven't been fond of Chinese food ever since we ate at a Chinese restaurant when I was about six years old. I remember the specials were: Orange Duck, $12.50; Chop Suey, $5.50; children, $3.00. That always bothered me.

But I was happy to go to Wing Lauk. It's in Waterfall Plaza near Waterfall Jewlers, which is the store my family goes to for medical emergencies. I'M NOT KIDDING! Medical emergencies.

Just last week, when my sister came downstairs one evening and announced that she had pierced her own ears clear through with a safety pin, my dad declared a medical emergency.

My mom doused Laura's newly mutilated earlobes with the antiseptic I had received at The Canary and The Elephant when I had my own ears pierced (properly, I might add, by a certified canary).

Then they rushed Laura off to Waterfall Jewlers — for earrings.

Anyway, at Wing Lauk, my mom and I were seated into a booth by a nice Chinese waiter who then brought over menus.

"No, thanks," I smiled, holding up my SEVENTEEN Magazine. "We have this." I could tell he didn't really understand, but he bowed and took our menus away. But he kept looking back at us.

It was a great meal and we had lots of fun. But the highlight of the lunch was the fortune in the cookie that followed. What news! It said that my social science teacher, Mr. Dave Bihl, and actress Jacklyn Smith would finally be married this year in an elaborate ceremony in the school cafeteria at CJHS. And that they would have twins named Bud. I'M NOT KIDDING!

On our way home from lunch, I stopped by The Clarkston News to pick up some Christmas cards and a package that had arrived during the holidays. To my surprise and delight, the package contained Russell Stover chocolates — my favorite.

"Oh!" my mom said when she saw the candies, "there goes my diet."

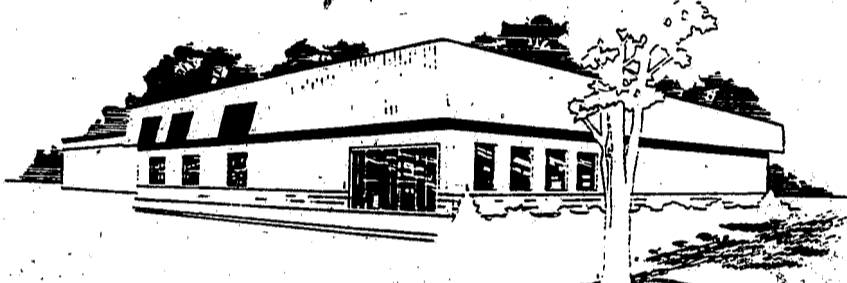

"Not really," I gently reminded her. "These aren't yours."

"Well, then, there goes your diet," she gently reminded me.

"My what?"

Ashley Ball is a ninth-grader at Clarkston Junior High School.

Club notes

The Juniors of Chief Pontiac #377 American Legion Auxiliary were busy as Santa's elves during December. They visited nursing homes and had a Christmas party for the blind children at Penrickton School for the Blind. They took toys, fresh fruit, socks and treats and Santa Claus.

Junior Miss Poppy Tara Chapple and Senior Miss Poppy Shannon Chapple presented the children with two "Teddy Ruskins." They also represented their unit in the Berkley parade, where the Juniors took third place.

The American Legion and Auxiliary traveled to Battle Creek Veterans Hospital to assist passing out Christmas gifts to each patient. Accompanying them was Santa Claus, who passed out candy canes.

Reigning Poppies

SHANNON Chapple, 14, and Tara Chapple, 6, are the current Senior Miss Poppy and Junior Miss Poppy for American Legion Chief Pontiac Post 377, Independence Township. Serving since September 1990, the two girls have visited nursing homes and hospitals and have donated their time to several charitable organizations. They are holding citations from Pontiac Mayor Wallace Holland, who honored them for their outstanding and dedicated work in the Pontiac area. (Photo by Curt McAllister)

Eagle Cup wings into action

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Golden Eagles flew a little higher than the Eagles at Springfield Christian Academy's annual Eagle Cup boys' basketball tournament.

Last Saturday, the Faith Baptist Golden Eagles edged host Springfield Christian in the varsity finals, 46-42. Scott Gross led Springfield with 14 points, Chad Hine scored nine and Dennis Hopkins added seven.

The Eagles reached the finals by nipping Rochester Hills Christian, 42-39, Friday night. Hopkins scored 17, including some key baskets in the closing seconds. Andrew Harless poured in eight, Hine had seven and Gross added six.

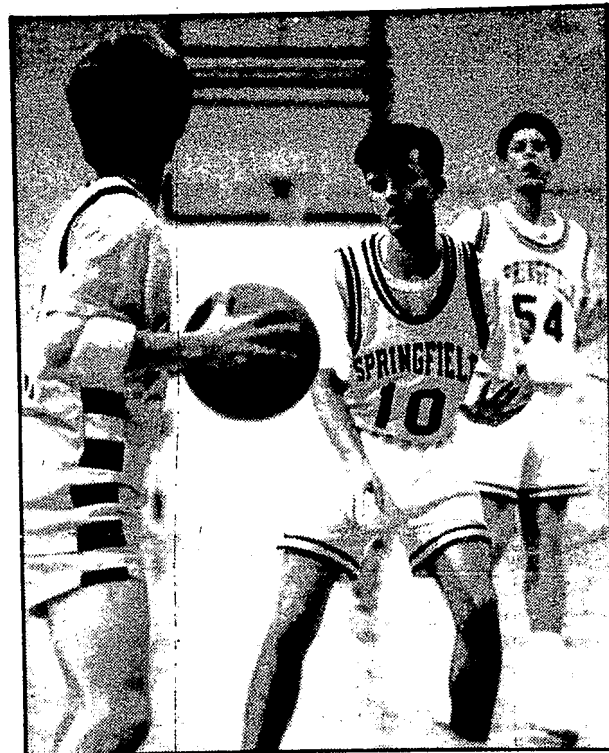

SPRINGFIELD Christian cheerleaders fired up the Eagle fans during the closing minutes of a 42-39 Friday night victory. The Eagles lost the next day in the finals.

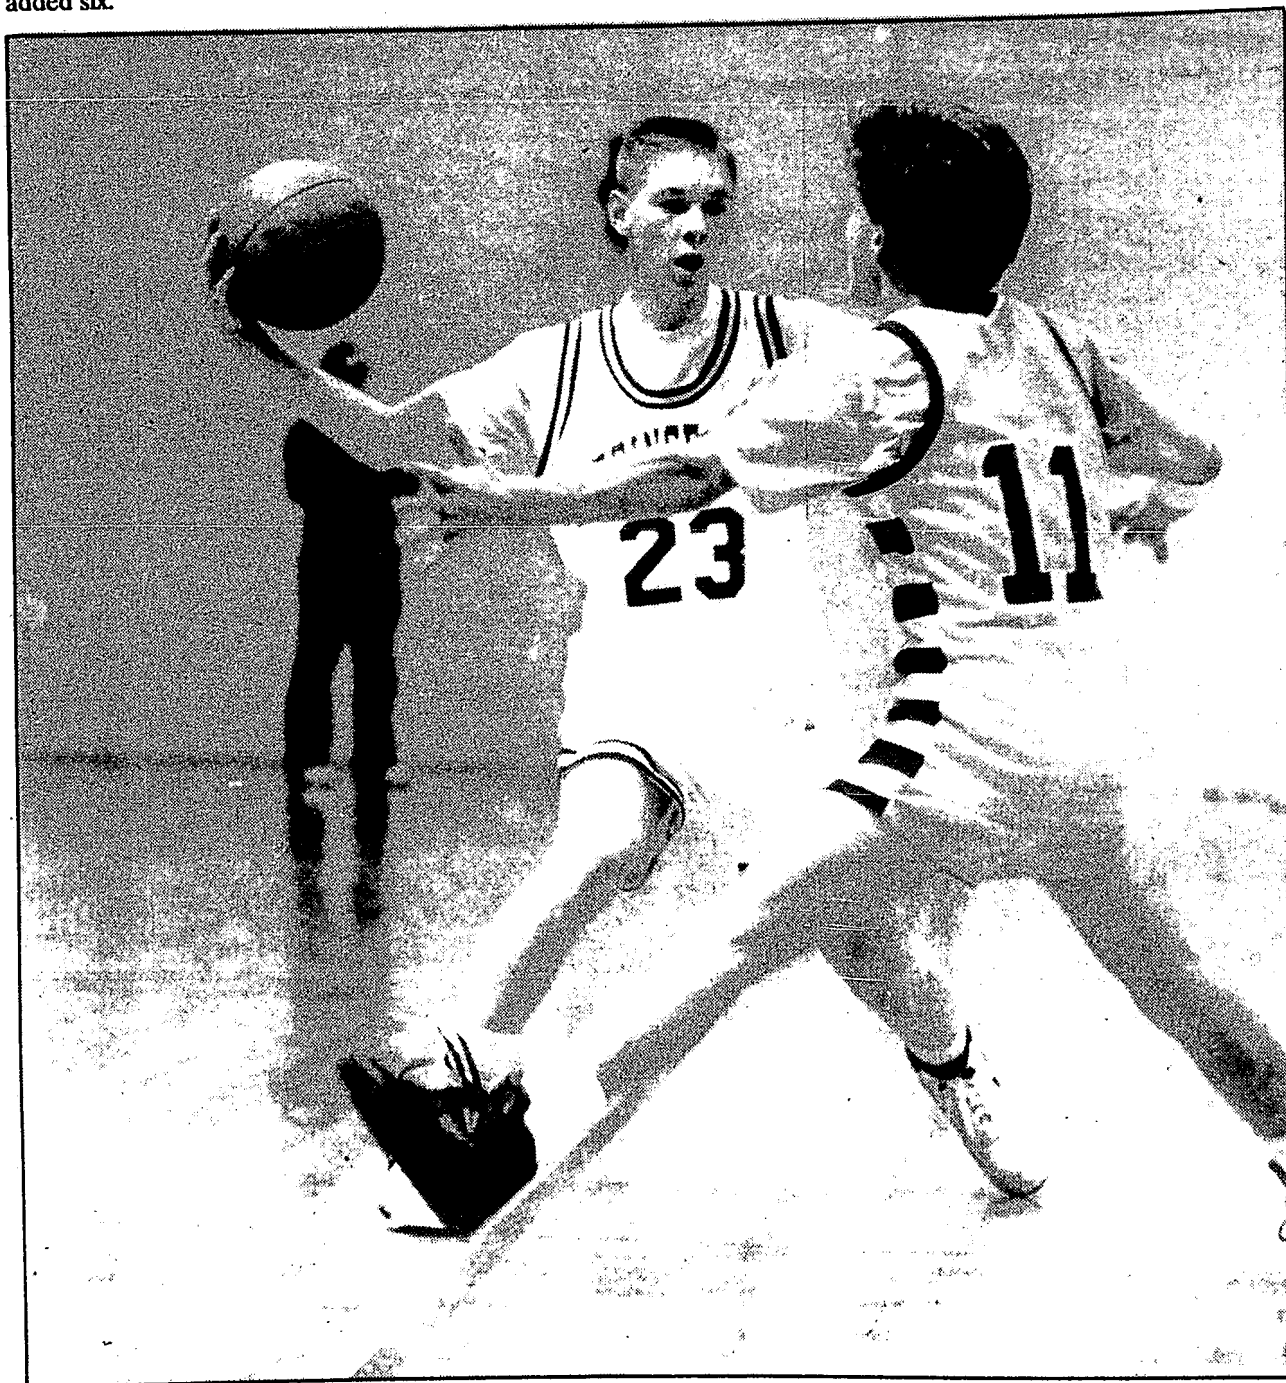

Faith Baptist also downed Springfield Christian in the JV finals, 61-40. Springfield reached the JV finals by its 60-47 victory over Pontiac Christian Friday night. Buddy Ling scored 14 to pace the victors.

An all-tournament team was selected. Springfield Christian's Hopkins was placed on the varsity team, along with Faith Baptist's Dan Hungerford and Shawn Karczewski, Rochester Hill Christian's Mark Pickering and Fairlane's John Kraljevich. Hungerford was named the tourney's most valuable player.

Springfield Christian's Andrew Vanaman was chosen for the all-tournament JV team, along with Faith Baptist's D.J. Boike and Christian Burton, Fairlane Christian's Juan Sanchez and Pontiac Christian's Idris Rashid. Boike was chosen as the MVP.

JASON See anticipates the moves of a Rochester Hills Christian player.

SPRINGFIELD Christian's Dennis Hopkins looks for an opening against Rochester Hills

Christian's Mark Pickering. Both players made the Eagle Cup all-tournament team.

FANS from Springfield Christian had plenty to cheer about Friday night when the Eagles varsity edged Rochester Hills Christian, 42-39.
