Crash kills little girl

BY CURT MCALLISTER
 Clarkston News Staff Writer

Icy road conditions are being blamed for a March 3 traffic accident that killed an 11-year-old Springfield Township girl in Orion Township.

The incident occurred at 1:44 p.m., and Wendy Upton of Carriage Trail was pronounced dead shortly after 3 p.m. at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac. She was buried at Ottawa Park Cemetery, Independence Township, March 6.

Upton, a student at Springfield Christian Academy on Dixie Highway, was a passenger in a vehicle driven by Robert Branson, 41, of Big Lake Road, Springfield Township. She was coming home from a roller-skating excursion with her 11-year-old friend, Kristy Branson, when the Bransons' Dodge Caravan was struck by another vehicle.

According to a report at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, the van was traveling north on Joslyn Road near Judah road when it was struck by a truck. The 1977 Chevrolet Blazer was driven by Edward Aldrich, 20, of Pontiac.

Apparently, the icy road surface caused Aldrich to lose control of his vehicle and slam into the approaching Caravan.

Aldrich and his passenger, Greg Iliades, 17, of Auburn Hills were taken to Pontiac General Hospital and released later that day. Neither of the men were wearing seat belts at the time of the accident.

Progress '91 this week

This week's Clarkston News marks the 20th year of our annual Progress advertising section.

The production allows area businesses the opportunity to tell their customers about any new items, additions or changes in story form.

Complete with photos of many owners and managers, the stories allow an inside look at the businesses many area residents frequent.

In the 40-page Progress edition this week, readers will find that most business owners remain optimistic about this year, despite some difficult economic times. Many expressed relief that the Dixie Highway paving and widening project was complete and expect that alone to provide a boon to their businesses.

All in all, they seemed happy to be in business and extremely happy to be working in the Clarkston area.

Township, village join waste management plan

BY BETTY WAGNER
Clarkston News Special Writer

Oakland County is on its way toward a comprehensive recycling program, thanks, in part, to the Springfield Township Board and the Clarkston Village Council.

The township board unanimously approved a motion Feb. 13 to enter into Intergovernmental Agreement with Oakland County's Solid Waste Management System.

The motion is contingent upon resolution of anti-trust concerns and notification of county approval of ordinances re-drafted by the township attorney.

In an amendment to the motion of agreement, Supervisor Collin Walls was appointed to represent Springfield Township on the Waste Management County Board of Directors.

On Feb. 25, the Clarkston Village Council voted 5-0 to approve the plan.

After the Springfield Township Board voted, Walls said Oakland County has 3 1/2 years of landfill capacity left.

"We must do something," he said.

Walls recommended that township board members put a balance on what they read, hear and see. All the information out about solid waste isn't in balance.

Supervisor Collin Walls

"Our job is to do the balance," he said.

"We've been working on it (waste management) for almost 20 years," Walls said. "It's time to move on it and do something."

In response to concerns from resident Nancy Stanley that the incinerator would slow down recycling, Walls said, "The number one priority is recycling. Recycling will be mandatory."

The updated 641 plan, called the "Reduce First" plan, stresses reducing, reusing, composting and recycling. The goals are to reduce and recycle 30 percent by 1995 and 50 percent by 2005, according to the Oakland County Department of Public Works.

Remaining waste will be burned in waste-to-energy facilities, also known as incinerators. The incineration process calls for recovering the burned energy and turning it into electricity, which will be sold to Detroit Edison to help reduce operating costs.

The original 641 plan was introduced in 1978 and approved by the Oakland County Board of Commissioners in 1981.

The Springfield Township Board is one of 42 municipalities that approved the updated 641 plan by March 1, as requested by Oakland County.

Two-thirds approval (41 municipalities) is needed for the revised Solid Waste plan to be sent to Michigan Department of Natural Resources (MDNR) for final approval.

According to Margaret Porreca, a representative of Oakland County's Solid Waste staff, after receiving and processing the paperwork from the 42 municipalities, the plan will be sent to the MDNR.

Cease-fire brings hope to parents of soldiers

BY BETTY WAGNER
Clarkston News Special Writer

Two area families anxiously await word from their sons serving in the Persian Gulf.

Charlotte Wall of Maybee Road, Independence Township, first heard of the cease-fire Wednesday night, Feb. 27.

Her son, Petty Officer 3rd Class Brian Wall, is an operations specialist on the U.S.S. Ranger. His ship is in the Persian Gulf, south of Chafji, Saudi Arabia.

The news of a cease-fire brought "an awful lot of relief, joy, tears I had been containing since he left on January 19," she said.

But, she said, "My big sigh of relief didn't come until this morning (Monday) when I saw our POWs being released on TV. Then I knew, absolutely, we're on the way to some kind of peace in the Middle East."

Persian Gulf Connection

"We have not heard from Brian since the cease-fire. The ship has to get to land," she explained.

"We're looking forward to having him home," she added.

Bill and Darlene Smith of Independence Township heard about the cessation of hostilities when President Bush announced it on television Feb. 27.

"My first feeling at the time was a little reserved," said Bill Smith. "I didn't want to get disappointed in case it didn't happen."

Even now, Smith said, "They really haven't signed the formal cease-fire."

But Smith said he felt encouraged by the release of the CBS crew and the POWs.

"It's still a very dangerous area to be in with all those land mines. Supposedly they (Iraqis) gave them (U.S.) overlays of where the mines are. But they could be anywhere."

Smith assumes Scott is in Kuwait City with no access to telephone service.

"We have not heard from him since the ground war began," said Smith.

He has heard that the First Division and Second Division Marines could be home in a few weeks if everything goes well.

And the Smiths plan to be at Camp Lejeune, N.C., when their son, 1st Lt. Scott H. Smith, a supply officer for the Second Battalion, Second Marine Division, comes home.

Restaurant staff learns to cope without boss

Clarkston News Special Writer

As a member of the U.S. Army reserves, Lynn Mead has been put on alert before.

As a member of the U.S. Navy reserves during the Vietnam War, Mead was reactivated and served for three years.

But at age 49, Mead and his wife, Phyllis, "never dreamed in a million years that he'd be called to active duty" for Operation Desert Storm.

Mead, a former food service instructor at the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus on Big Lake Road, opened his own restaurant on Dixie Highway — Le Meads — nearly two years ago.

Beckie Kellar, a long-time employee, has experienced many changes at the restaurant — new owners, turnover in help, resurfacing of Dixie Highway — but none as challenging as the abrupt exit of her boss and general manager, Lynn Mead.

"He pretty much kept the ship sailing," she said. "The day he left was an emotional day around here. Everyone was crying. It (the war) really hit home."

"When he first left we struggled," she said. A major problem was the unexpectedness of his leaving.

"When they took him, it was boom, he was gone!" said Kellar.

According to Sue Sajdak, one of the business investors, Mead was the only full-time employee of the seven people who own the restaurant.

He was the general manager; he hired and trained kitchen staff; he did all the buying, menu planning and recipe development.

"He ran the whole show. He is sorely missed," Sajdak said.

But she's impressed with the dedication of the staff. "The employees say, 'just tell us what we can do.'"

Kellar said, "We've all pitched in because we want to keep the restaurant going. We want to keep it afloat. It's our jobs. We've had to work together through thick and thin."

Kellar complimented the owners. They have other jobs, she said, but "If I yell, 'help,' they come."

Mead's wife, Phyllis, said she was concerned customers might think the quality of Le Mead's food has suffered because of her husband's absence.

She said, "He trained all the cooks and they come with their own good abilities. ... Lynn was a great soup maker, and we're still carrying on the tradition."

"We need the support of the community for the business," she added, explaining, "My husband is supporting the country."

Sharon Kent, a loyal customer, affirms that Le Mead's food is still excellent, that the staff is adhering to Mead's high standards, that they are working hard to assure that the restaurant will be there when Mead returns.

"When you go to Le Meads it's like having a meal with a friend," she said.

Mead joined the Navy after high school, continued his love for cooking learned from his grandmother, went to college on the G.I. bill and earned a bachelor of science degree in business administration, was reactivated during the Vietnam War, ran a restaurant in Ann Arbor for two to three years, taught production cooking for Detroit Public Schools, earned a master's and specialist degrees in education, and taught Clarkston area students production cooking — all before investing his energies and funds in Le Meads Restaurant.

Chief Warrant Officer Mead is now at Fort Benning, Ga.

"When he was called for active duty, his orders read for one year," said Phyllis.

That was two months ago. The last time Phyllis talked to her husband, she said "he didn't indicate he'd be back next week — probably several weeks." But she doesn't know for sure.

In the meantime, you can bet that the staff at Le Meads will carry out business as usual.

If you're flying a U.S. flag, fly it correctly

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

The subject was just something she had been thinking about, explained Sharen G. Worden, referring to a letter she had written to the News staff.

Sharen had written about the proper way to hang an American flag.

"I should be glad that we do so in such numbers," she says in the letter. "However, one thing is very disturbing to me: those who don't know the proper way to display our symbol of freedom, the American flag."

Sharen acknowledges that when the rules are constantly changing it is often difficult to learn the proper way to hang the flag.

She suggested that residents contact the American Legion, the public library or check any Cub Scout Handbook before flying the flag.

Sharen included information she had collected in her own research, suggesting it might be interesting and timely, and would "save my neighbors a bit of embarrassment from me knocking on their doors and asking them to fix their flag."

Thanks to Sharen G. Worden, we print the following tips from "The Flag Code" provided by the American Legion through the Springfield Township Library.

How to display the flag of the United States

■ It is the universal custom to display the flag only from sunrise to sunset on buildings and on stationary flagstaffs in the open.

However, when a patriotic effect is desired, the flag may be displayed 24 hours a day if properly illuminated during the hours of darkness.

The union should be uppermost and to the flag's own right; that is to the observer's left.

It should be hoisted briskly, but should be lowered slowly and ceremoniously.

The flag should be displayed on all national and state holidays and on historic and special occasions.

The flag should be displayed daily on or near the main administration building of every public institution and on or near school buildings.

During inclement weather the flag should not be displayed unless an all-weather flag is used.

The flag should be displayed in or near every polling place on election days.

■ When displayed with another flag, the flag of the United States should be on the right, and its staff should be in front of the other flag.

■ When a number of flags of states or cities or pennants of other societies are grouped and displayed, the flag of the United States should be at the center and at the highest point in the group.

■ When the flag is displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from the window sill, balcony or from a building, the union (the blue field) of the flag should be at the peak of the staff unless the flag is flying at half-staff.

■ When the flag is displayed otherwise than by being flown from a staff, it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out, or so suspended that its folds fall as free as though the flag were staffed.

The union should be uppermost and to the flag's own right; that is to the observer's left.

When displayed in a window, the flag should be displayed in the same way; that is with the union or blue field to the left of the observer in the street.

■ When displayed over the middle of a street, the flag should be suspended vertically, with the union to the north.

■ When used on a speaker's platform, the flag is displayed flat, should be displayed above and behind the speaker.

When displayed from a staff in a church or public auditorium, the flag of the United States should hold the position of prominence in advance of the audience, and in the position of honor at the clergyman's or speaker's right as he faces the audience.

Any other flag should be placed on the left of the speaker or to the right of the audience.

■ When flown at half-staff, the flag should be hoisted to the peak first and then lowered to half staff. Before lowering the flag for the day it should be raised again to the peak.

Half-staff is one-half the distance from the top and bottom of the staff.

■ When used to cover a casket, the union of the flag should be at the head and over the body's left shoulder.

■ When no longer a fitting emblem for display, the flag should be disposed of in a dignified manner.

Council drops idea of bed and breakfast facilities

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A proposed bed and breakfast ordinance in residential areas of the Village of Clarkston has been laid to rest.

After discussing the ordinance Feb. 25, council President Sharron Catalo determined that no motion had been made; therefore, no vote would be taken.

After the meeting, Catalo said the issue could come up again in the future; but the council appeared to have no interest in the ordinance now.

"It was agreed upon by the council that no further time and money be spent on this now," Catalo said.

She added that though the council had received some input on the proposal, it "hadn't received enough" from residents who would have to live near a proposed bed and breakfast facility.

No village residents were present for the council's discussion on the proposal, but at least one resident was disappointed with the lack of action.

"I'm disappointed that the council didn't vote with what the majority of the village people wanted," said Jon Abbott, the owner of the former Boothby House, a historical home that Abbott restored and moved to Main Street.

A potential buyer of the house proposed that it be used for a bed and breakfast facility.

The council had considered limiting bed and breakfast facilities to multiple residential and commercial areas, rather than allowing them in residential areas.

Catalo said that Grand Rapids bed and breakfast facilities generally have about 23 percent occupancy, according to a reservation clerk.

Catalo also found that Grand Rapids limited occupancy to two days in bed and breakfasts, but most preferred a longer stay.

Catalo said prolonged stays could be a problem in Clarkston.

"Monitoring the homes would be time-consuming with the size of our village staff," Catalo said.

The required monitoring help would cost additional tax dollars, said Trustee William Basinger.

Trustee James Schultz said that most of the people who attended previous meetings to discuss the proposed bed and breakfast ordinance were Independence Township residents.

"If the township wants a bed and breakfast, let them put one in the township," Schultz said.

Associate Editor Tracy King also contributed to this story.

19-lot sub wins first OK from planners

An 11-acre subdivision with affordable lots received preliminary site plan approval Feb. 14.

Last week, the Independence Township Planning Commission voted 6-1 to grant preliminary approval. Voting no was commissioner Harry Mosher.

The 19-lot subdivision is being proposed east of Clintonville Road, north of Maybee road. Petitioner Michael Clark said the subdivision's lots will cost between $25,000 and $35,000. Located near Sashabaw Creek, Clark said these lots would be the most affordable in the township.

The approval was granted, subject to conditions, including: change of proposed street names, identification of trees to be saved, gaining a variance for water line availability to the subdivision, and creation of a project name.

In front (from left) are ninth-graders Meg Blesath, who placed third in the poetry category; Amy Bishop, who tied for fourth in poetry; and Kate Yarber, also in fourth place in the poetry category. Lisa Goforth and Jeni Maine who placed first and second, respectively, in the poetry category; and Amy Kessler who earned an honorable mention in the same category. The third-place winner in the art and design category also is missing because that winning entry was turned in without a name. The first-place honorees won $10, and all of the winners took home posters. Fifty-eight entries were received this year and were displayed at the library. (Photo by Julie Campe)

Maternal changes

Julie Campe

That my mother changed her hair color to red did not really surprise me.

My reaction to the change, however, was a surprise.

For as long as I can remember my mother, she's had a bit of gray streaked in her hair. As a little girl, I hoped that I would one day have a white spot of hair at my widow's peak so I would look just like her.

Once, an acquaintance of my mother's complimented the "frosting" in her hair (that style was popular at the time), and my mother merely thanked her.

I was appalled that she didn't tell the woman that nature had performed the frosting, and I told my mother she was deceitful.

She did not agree.

Later, her white streak spread to a pleasing contrast of dark and light throughout her hair. She mused about different colorings but, in the end, let it remain as it appeared -- which I liked. It seemed more natural, and I thought it proved that she was comfortable with herself.

Years passed, and her hair gradually became more white and gray than brown, though the dark hair still provided a stylish contrast.

Then, out of the blue, it seemed, she visited her niece Danna for a periodic trim to her thick, thick hair.

She told Danna, an experienced hair stylist, that she was ready for a change, maybe in color.

Eagerly, Danna told her of a new highlight she had just seen at a trade show that would make her hair shiny but remain the same colors.

That was not what my mother had in mind, she told Danna. She was thinking more along the lines of ... red.

Silence filled Danna's work area.

Danna, admittedly a little flustered at what seemed to be an impulsive decision on my mother's part, quickly directed my mother back to the highlighting idea.

That was not enough, according to my mother.

"If you don't want to color my hair, I'll just get a bottle from the store and do it myself," said my mother with a set of her jaw with which Danna was familiar.

Danna understood. Stoically, she agreed to do the job -- not because she thought her aunt would be happy with the change but because she did not want any coloring accident to occur. In undertaking the task, she knew she would have to bear my mother's unhappiness or happiness with the change -- as well as the responses of all of the relatives.

So Danna did it -- right then and there. And she also alerted the family hotline. News spread quickly.

"Juanita has changed her hair to red -- well, auburn, actually," Danna told the clan.

Reactions were hesitant but ranged from a resounding "YES" from my mother's 16-year-old granddaughter to uncertain approval from my mother's daughters.

As for my mother herself, she said she laughed for a whole day each time she caught her reflection in a mirror or glass.

As for me, this one, small act of my mother's has changed my perception of her.

If my mother could suddenly change her looks so much so quickly (the change did make her look younger), then what else could she do?

Does this mean that she'll next sell all her belongings and become a beach bum in California? Or will she, with her new-found beauty, become a TV actress? Or perhaps she'll take up ballroom dancing or calculus or gymnastics?

And what about me? When I age, will I be gray or red?

Opinions

Editorial

Council should take a stand

The issue of bed and breakfast (B&B) facilities in the Village of Clarkston should have been decided once and for all Feb. 24.

Instead, the Clarkston Village Council took no action and let the issue die because no council members would make a motion to approve, deny or table a proposal that would allow B&Bs in Clarkston.

The council should have taken a stand.

In the past, the council has earned respect for making tough decisions, regardless of the outcry from segments of the community.

Council members should once again commit to a course of action. If they approve the proposal, they will have more work to perform to proceed with the change in the zoning ordinance.

If they turn down the proposal, they will be finished with the issue. They may also table the issue if they're not ready to act.

But by taking no action, the council condemns the proposal to a state of limbo. Residents who like or dislike the idea of B&Bs in Clarkston, too, are left in a state of limbo.

These tactics can be expected from national governmental bodies but not from the Clarkston Village Council.

Local levels of government are about the only decision-making bodies on which residents can depend to address their concerns.

It is hoped that the council will take up the issue again at the next meeting. JLC

SADDAM Hussein is going to order all glass-bottom boats for his new Iraqi navy . . . so he can view his old Iraqi navy. Thank you, Glenn (from-the-Roadhaus) Stokes.

A FEW YEARS ago the president of the National Golf Foundation said a major golf boom was coming. I remember reading his saying a new golf course could be built every day for the next ten years and there would still be a need for more.

Judging from my experience of the three-days-to-a-week notice required by some courses for morning tee times, I believed the NGF president.

Of course, I believed another president who promised no new taxes.

Now it's revealed that the golf president made his projection by including everyone over the age of five, who played one round of golf a year, as a player.

Golf course developments are still a great use of land, and hopefully, they're profitable.

I'M TO A POINT where I don't mind talking to an answering machine, but not to the point of wanting to own one.

HAD TO DRIVE to Flint on a very icy night recently. As expected, the state and interstate roads in Oakland and Lapeer counties were salted/sanded. No problem. Then we crossed into Genesee county. We crept, but stayed between the ditches. Many didn't. Four cars spun out ahead of us to avoid a three-car accident, which occurred less than a quarter mile from another multi-car accident.

Why can Oakland and Lapeer get out and make roads safe and Genesee can't? After you answer that one, tell me why Otsego County is the last one to clear snow from I-75 between here and the bridge? It's like the Gaylord Chamber of Commerce is working with the road commission to continue the belief Otsego is the snow bowl of the north.

MY FRIEND (ex-friend now) Jerry Olrich has a lumberman's convention in Bermuda for eight days. He took his golf clubs and made tee times for each day. And, I'm very envious, having to stay home this winter, never getting to go anywhere, etc.

SOMEWHERE along the way in my early car-owning years, I was told to never change brands of motor oil. Whatever I chose, Pennzoil, Surfoco, Mobil, whatever, stick with it. Another oil would make different grooves in the piston walls, or crank, or dip stick or something, I was told. I don't pay any attention to oil brands I use now, because I trade every 3 or 4 years and what the heck? But, would one of you engine men tell me if the stick-to-one-oil tale is true?

I HAVE THE 1893 editions of Conklin's Handy Manual of Useful Information. On Michigan it says: "Michigan ranks first in copper, lumber and salt, second in iron ore, third in buckwheat, fifth in sheep, hops and potatoes. The population of Flint was 9,845. Cleared land averages $20 an acre, forest $10. Duelists are excluded from voting." Wonder if duelists are still excluded from voting?

Letter to the Editor

Sour grapes and cry babies

Would someone out there please straighten me out? I thought the school bond election took place Feb. 11, 1991.

It seems that the "Letters to the Editor" column is filled with sour grapes and cry baby complaints. All the issues were voiced pro and con quite extensively. The voters have spoken. "No increase in millages."

So let's get on with building a better school system with what we have on hand. Oh, yes, we probably have a lot more money to work with since the new tax assessments went out.

All you cry babies who can't take no for an answer will just have to move since you're so ashamed of Clarkston and its ignorant, cheap people.

Exciting change

A few weeks ago I wrote asking you to not accept advertising from video stores carrying NC-17 rated movies. I also mentioned the position of a large Independence Township video store.

Great news! On Friday, Jan. 11, the store announced it will no longer sell or rent movies rated NC-17. This is the result of postcards, letters and phone calls from people asking them to truly uphold family traditional values.

We're excited that they listened. Just wanted to let you know their change in attitude.

His perception of beards should be banned

Jim Fitzgerald

Based on my own experience, I'd say Detroit is one of the worst Domino's Pizza cities in the United States. I've never ordered one delivered to my home. I'm frightened of the delivery persons' beards, or the perception of beards.

Domino's has a policy against beards, especially on men. But three U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals judges recently reinstated a former Domino's driver's lawsuit and ordered a Nebraska judge to determine the business justification on the beard ban. I'm afraid that's probably all the encouragement some rebellious Domino's drivers, especially men, need to stop shaving.

The beard ban has been in the news ever since the lawsuit was filed by Langston Bradley after Domino's fired him for refusing to shave in 1984. Bradley claims he can't shave because he suffers from pseudofolliculitis barbae, which rarely strikes people who can't spell.

Call it PFB. It's a genetic skin disorder that affects almost half of black males but few white males. Many men get PFB so bad they can't shave without getting scars and infections. Bradley, who is black, charges Domino's grooming rules are racially discriminatory. A U.S. district judge ruled against him in 1989, but the judge's decision has been overturned. Domino's must prove beards are bad for business.

Sam Jensen, an Omaha lawyer defending Domino's, last week said the percentage of people who don't like bearded delivery men "is more significant now" than in the past. That's not surprising. Delivery men who stopped shaving in 1984, and still aren't shaving in 1991, probably take 30 minutes to get their beards out of the delivery vehicle.

I concede I'm not sure why a bearded delivery person, especially a man, shouldn't bring a pizza to my home. But if the Domino's corporation is against it, that's good enough for me. I figure owner Tom Monaghan and his top executives know much more than I do about what should and should not get near their product. In fact, when I speculate on the various reasons for the beard ban, I lose my appetite for pizza, unless delivered by someone completely unable to shed. Extra bald, please.

It's ironic. People can avoid the perception of bearded delivery persons by buying pizza over the counter inside Tiger Stadium. But Tigers owner Monaghan claims many people won't attend Tigers games because of the perception of crime in the stadium area. My suggestion is that Monaghan overwhelm perception with reality by bringing back Kirk Gibson and giving him a pizza route.

And the irony increases. Bradley's lawsuit charges Domino's beard ban is prejudiced against blacks, and City Council President Maryann Mahaffey says the same thing about Monaghan's claim that the perception of crime scares fans away from Tiger Stadium. My suggestion is that Monaghan refute both accusations by renovating Tiger Stadium, instead of moving elsewhere, and ordering Tigers President Bo Schembechler to shave his head every morning until the Tigers win the World Series.

Monaghan told the Detroit News he regretted a front-page Free Press interview in which he said the perception of crime has turned Detroit into "one of the worst baseball cities in the United States." Monaghan said he thought he was being interviewed by "a religion writer who did freelance articles for magazines." Even though, Monaghan conceded, the writer clearly identified himself as a Free Press reporter.

Monaghan apparently believed Detroit citizens would never find out he slurred their city if he didn't say it to a Detroit newspaper reporter. So I don't have to worry that anything I write here might offend Domino's Pizza Inc., which is headquartered in Ann Arbor. I don't write for an Ann Arbor newspaper.

I don't know why Monaghan so often goes public with wrong-headed opinions on a variety of subjects - feminism, poverty, homosexuality, religion, playing first base, you name it - that must make other Domino's and Tigers executives pound walls behind closed doors. But I'm getting the perception that you don't have to be very intelligent to make millions of dollars in the pizza business.

Victory varies

Tracy King

As the war ended, and the world began its revelry, I watched George Bush address the nation. For someone who had commanded the military through what most people considered a successful mission, he didn't look too happy.

"It just didn't feel over with," he said; of his demeanor.

He didn't feel quite like a victor. I could somewhat understand his emotions.

While many people experienced tremendous joy, pride and patriotism at the end of the war, I felt, well, somewhat sad.

Not that I wasn't relieved. The whole conflict could have cost this country a great deal more than it did and I was happy to see it come to an end quickly.

But I still had doubts about whether the whole thing should have taken place at all. Did the actions of one Arab country against another Arab country justify a war initiated by the United States?

Was the whole thing worth all the anxiety, cost and trouble?

I watch as families are reunited, as military men stand taller and prouder, and as economic reports predict an end to the recession.

I am thankful that some good came out of the conflict.

But the war also cost thousands of people their lives.

Judging from the actions of surrendering Iraqi soldiers, it may never be known whether those that died supported Saddam or were just victims of an over-zealous leader and his actions.

The military, unquestionably, performed with great skill and precision. But would the outcome have been different if Saddam hadn't bungled things so badly?

This country does have good reason to celebrate. The potentially disastrous Mid-East conflict is over.

But the pretentious claim that the United States "kicked-ass over the Iraqis" is a revelry I can take no part of.

Let kids learn to solve own problems

Doug Carlson

Last Saturday, Jim Reed and I were around town picking up used oil as part of our group's "ground water" program. Because it was so cold, we stopped in the Village Bake Shop for a cup of coffee.

We started talking about the vote on the school bond millage and then about kids in general. We reminisced about what it was like growing up 40 or 50 years ago vs. what it must be like today.

We zeroed in on Little League Baseball as an example. When we were kids, there was no such thing as "organized" baseball. We simply took a bat and ball to some vacant lot, chose up sides and played until dark or supper, whichever came first.

Today they have coaches, umpires, uniforms, won-lost records and parental involvement. Some kids, unfortunately, get to play only the required two innings or so. Others get tremendously downhearted when they don't produce in a crucial situation. And the parents, all too frequently, get all over the umpires, the coaches, the kids and each other.

At any rate, Jim and I agreed that kids today don't have nearly the fun playing the game we had so many years ago. Then Jim made a comment that I hadn't really thought about before, but it really hit home.

He said that "when we played, what really mattered was that we worked our problems out ourselves."

We chose teams that were as equal in talent as possible. One way or another, we handled the bully. The quieter, less talented kids had to come forward and stand up for themselves if they wanted "a piece of the action." And arguments were settled through "discussion" and compromise.

In short, there were no adults anywhere around to solve our problems for us. And, to my way of thinking, the experience prepared us well for the world we would ultimately face as adults.

Now, fast-forward 40 or 50 years. We're all older (considerably older) and wiser. But I look at virtually all our friends and neighbors here in Clarkston, and I'm hard-pressed to name one couple who hasn't been married at least 25 years.

I think about Jim's comment. What we learned in a vacant lot so long ago wasn't how to play baseball at all. It was how to get along. It was learning to stand up to the bigger, louder and stronger adversary. It was learning how to make your point in an argument. It was learning your limitations and knowing that you might "always play right field." And finally, it was learning how to compromise when compromise was necessary.

Maybe that's why we've all been married 25 years or more. We take the bad with the good. We don't quit when the going gets tough, and we've learned how to compromise.

Then why is the divorce rate approaching 50 percent? Well, for the most part, around here at least, it ain't us. However, it seems to me that for all the good our generation may have done, we've failed our kids in many ways. Not by denying them a new high school and swimming pool. Now, we've failed them by not giving them the opportunity to work things out among themselves.

Perhaps we should be more concerned about how our kids are being raised, what kind of society we've left for them, and how they're treating each other — and less concerned about giving them fancy buildings, new cars and solving their problems for them.

Then, maybe someday, there won't be any more Persian Gulfs.

Board grants extension, raise

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Clarkston school Superintendent Gary Haner has been retained by the Board of Education for another year. But while the board showed unanimous support for the job Haner was doing, members disagreed over whether he should receive a salary increase.

The vote to extend Haner's contract, taken during a special meeting Feb. 25, was a unanimous 7-0.

When members voted on raising Haner's salary, however, the vote was 4-3.

The roll effectively served to increase Haner's annual salary as superintendent from $83,974 to $89,432.

The increase was proportionate to that raised received by teachers and administrators throughout the district this year.

Voting in favor of the raise were President John Needham, Durham Downs, Sheila Goins-Hughes and Vice President Thomas Howard. Karen Foyteck, Janet Thomas and Paul Van Klaveren voted no.

No public comment was heard on the superintendent issue during the special meeting. The board had evaluated the superintendent's performance during a closed meeting Feb. 19.

Haner has been superintendent of the district since July of 1988.

Monsignor begins new job

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Monsignor Humitz

There's a new shepherd to lead the flock at St. Daniel Catholic Church in Clarkston.

Monsignor Robert S. Humitz was appointed by Archbishop Maida of the Archdiocese of Detroit to serve as pastor for the parish.

Humitz is the second priest to serve the parish since the death of the Rev. Charles Cushing in December 1989. Cushing served as pastor for the parish for 12 years. The Rev. Francis Zielinski served as pastor for about seven months before leaving.

Humitz, 56, was ordained in 1960. His assignment previous to St. Daniel was that of director of the Office of Television and Telecommunications for the Archdiocese of Detroit. He served as the director for nine years.

The broadcast network Humitz created and produced allowed the church to supply 24-hour programming to local cable-television stations.

But the Clarkston area was unable to receive the program on their cable system, he says:

"I would like to plan a half-hour show from St. Daniel's for the local cable station," Humitz said.

Humitz's first assignment as a priest was from 1960-62 at Our Lady of Sorrows in Farmington. In 1963-67 he served an assistant at Visitation Parish in Detroit. During 1967-75 he was director of religious education for the Archdiocese of Detroit.

Humitz then served a pastor of St. Rita's in Holly from 1975-76 and was also a pastor at St. Patrick's in Union Lake from 1976-82.

His hobbies have proved helpful in parish buildings. He likes woodworking and built the altar at St. Patrick's in Union Lake. While at St. Patrick's he initiated a parish video to help with teaching.

Other hobbies include photography, downhill skiing, windsurfing and trail riding.

Although his schedule as been filled meeting with the different groups at St. Daniel, he's looking forward to skiing at Pine Knob, he said.

Humitz said he's not certain what direction or plans he will initiate for the parish. He will continue to meet with staff, groups and parish members to gain information before setting goals and objectives.

"Then we will decide where we all want the parish to go," Humitz said.

Knife-carrying teen to see Probate Court

A 15-year-old Pontiac boy will go before a Probate Court judge for wandering the halls of Clarkston High School with a knife.

Oakland County Sheriff's Detective Dave Scott said the youth was recently issued a petition from the Oakland County Probate Court for the episode. He is currently in the custody of his father and will be required to come before a judge for the weapons charge.

Because he is a minor, the case will be heard in juvenile court.

The boy was found roaming the halls Feb. 13. He allegedly told authorities that he was looking to get back at the CHS student who had beat him up a week before at an Auburn Hills movie theater.

New Food Town store poised to open this week

Clarkston News Staff Writer

After a year of construction, Food Town, Inc., will be opening the doors to its new 40,000-square-foot store this week.

Food Town is the third large-scale grocery store to open new stores in the past year. Kroger and A&P had similar openings in what's being called "the year of the supermarket" in Independence Township.

The new Food Town facility is at the southwest corner of the Waldon and Sashabaw road intersection. It's replacing the store on Sashabaw and Maybee roads, which is now closed.

Estimated at $4.5 million, the new Food Town will offer a variety of items and departments not featured at its previous location. The revamped departments include: a deli, a meat and fish counter, a bakery, a floral shop, photo processing, a salad bar and a wide array of domestic and imported liquors.

Open 24 hours, the store will also staff between 150 and 200 employees when it officially opens Thursday, March 7.

Food Town, Inc., is a family-operated business originally founded in 1944. The four co-owners are Daniel Roth, Margaret Roth, Bob Roth and Ed Adler.

In addition to the new store, the company owns three other 30,000-square-foot facilities in the Oakland County area.

Bob Roth said the new location was chosen after intensely researching the area.

What's new in business

"Our market surveys indicated that this intersection was the best spot for our needs," he said. "There was no room to expand at the other store, and the upcoming road widening will be a definite plus for the Sashabaw corridor."

Bob Roth said this new store will provide the area with the largest grocery selection around. He said the rapid delivery of foodstuffs will keep the shelves stocked and the consumers satisfied.

Daniel Roth said Food Town's regular consumers should be pleased with the new locale and bigger accommodations.

"Back in 1964, we became one of the largest independent grocers in the township," he said. "Since then, the immediate area has grown, and we've tried to grow with it. I think the people of Independence will like this new store."

FOOD TOWN, Inc., will be opening its newest store this week. Located at the intersection of Waldon and Sashabaw roads, Independence Township, the facility will offer nearly 40,000-square-feet of shopping space for its customers.

Planners like composting idea, wary of applicant

Clarkston News Staff Writer

A local landowner who took Independence Township to court over a cardboard sorting facility has proposed another waste management facility.

Robert Hoffman, former supervisor of Waterford Township, sent his attorney to the Feb. 28 planning commission meeting to convey his idea. According to attorney Richard Campbell, Hoffman would like to create a composting site near the intersection of White Lake and Andersonville roads.

The facility, Campbell said, would be located near an abandoned gravel pit and would take in leaves and grass for composting purposes. Hoffman owns about 30 acres around that general vicinity, which are zoned primarily light industrial.

Campbell said the facility would be a plus for the township.

"This proposal would give the residents of Independence Township an area to put their leaves and grass so it could be turned to soil," he said.

Chairperson Brent Bair told Campbell that planning commission members would like to work with Hoffman but were hesitant after their run-in nearly two years ago.

In 1989, Hoffman proposed a 9,800-square-foot cardboard sorting facility on 14 acres of property he owned at the corner of White Lake and Andersonville roads. The planning commission had granted preliminary approval and a special land use permit for the proposal, but rescinded both after complications arose.

According to Bair, Hoffman began to expand on what he wanted to do with the facility, such as adding a woodchipper process. Besides the last minute additions, the planning commission was concerned that the facility would contaminate surrounding water systems.

After the approvals were rescinded, Hoffman took the township to court, but the case was dismissed by Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Gene Schnelz.

With the new proposal, commission members Joseph Figa and Steven Secatch told Campbell that they were concerned about the stench that settling grass could give off and spread to nearby developments.

"I have no problems with the leaves, but a good west wind could cause the smell of settling grass to inhibit the businesses to the west," Secatch said. "Rochester Hills had a nasty suit over the stench of grass at a local facility last year."

Campbell told the commissioners that the bowl shaped configuration of the nearby gravel pit could help cut down on the overall aroma.

Commission member Cel Yarber said the ecological factors of such a development would have to be investigated heavily before a plan is devised.

Bair said the idea of a composting site is intriguing, and the planning commission would have to look into other facilities before drawing up such an ordinance.

Until that time, Bair said he is open but wary of any proposals from Hoffman.

"I am concerned about doing something with recycling and composting in this township," he said, "but this planning commission is going to be a little gun shy with this applicant because of past ordeals."

11-lot sub OK'd

An eight-acre subdivision on Waldon Road received final plat approval from the Independence Township Board Feb. 5.

The board voted 7-0 to grant final plat approval to the site.

The project's name changed halfway through the plat process due to a switch in developers. Arnold Gee is presently in charge of the project.

The North Gulick Lake subdivision, formerly known as Woodglen III, will be located on the south side of Waldon Road, near the Pine Tree subdivision. The 11-lot development will connect the existing Woodglen and Pine Tree Valley subdivisions.

Located on the shores of Gulick Lake, the subdivision's residents will have access to the small, inland body of water.

Zoned single-family residential, the development will be served by sanitary sewers. Construction is to begin in April or May.

Vandals hit Bay Court four times

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Warming temperatures are bringing the vandals back to Bay Court Park.

For four consecutive days, from Feb. 28 to March 3, hooligans ran amok in the vacant park at the corner of Andersonville Road and Greens Lake, Independence Township.

On Feb. 28, the vandals broke into the main lodge via a broken window in an adjoining bathroom. Two baseball scoreboards were taken from the building but were found by park employees the next day.

The next few evenings saw the vandals undo what ever clean-up process had been performed that day by township employees. However, Sunday night foot patrols apparently scared away a possible revisit to the park.

Ann Conklin, director of the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department, and police officials suspect local teen-agers of the destructive high jinks.

The 49-acre park has stood empty ever since an operating millage was turned down in 1988. Since that time, the park has been a target of vandals. The most recent attack previously was last July when three cabins doors and all the windows in the 10,000-square-foot lodge were broken.

Conklin said the township plans to combat the acts by stepping up regular patrols.

Wolves share title only with themselves

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The sellout wasn't a surprise, but the blowout was.

Clarkston's varsity basketball team, getting red hot in a warm jam-packed gym, broke an 18-18 deadlock with 15 unanswered points to crush Pontiac Northern, 77-48 last Friday.

The win gave the Wolves the outright Greater Oakland Activities League championship and stretched their season record to 20-0. It was the first time a Clarkston team finished undefeated in the regular season since 1980.

After the game in the locker room, Clarkston coach Dan Fife told his players,

"The rest of your life, you'll always remember this. Even when you're 41," said the 41-year-old coach.

Guard Dugan Fife gave some of the credit for the win to the fortunate Wolf fans who came early enough to get in (the game was sold out nearly an hour before the start of the varsity game).

"The crowd was great. It had to intimidate them," said Dugan Fife.

The Clarkston sharpshooter did his own share of intimidating the Huskies by pouring in 30 points.

His father and coach paid his son a great compliment after the game.

"I have never had a kid play that well in a game for me before," said the eight-year coach of the Wolves.

And the coach was quick to point out the solid effort of whoever he put on the court.

"Sometimes I can't believe it. They amaze me," said Dan Fife, who's described his team that way about 20 times this season.

Pontiac Northern, 11-4 overall and finishing at 8-2 in the GOAL, began the game with a 7-2 spurt. But Dugan Fife made a steal and eventually scored on a drive to the basket. Teammate Derek Wiley's 3-pointer then tied the game at 7-7.

The first quarter finished at 16-16.

The second quarter started out 18-18, but then it was all Wolves.

Two Fife 3-pointers within 20 seconds put the Wolves up 27-18 at the 4:10 mark. Another basket by Fife, a follow-up basket by Jason Lund and two free throws by Chris Wasilk gave the Wolves a 33-18 lead with 2:00 left in the half.

Northern's Devon Coleman, who would later leave the game with an ankle injury, finally stopped Clarkston's run on a steal off Fife and a drive-in layup.

But the rest of the half was the Luke Fedio Show. The junior scored a basket, sank two free throws and then nailed a 3-pointer with two seconds left for a 40-20 advantage at the half. Fedio, who said he played even better (stronger on defense) with fewer points when the Wolves nipped Northern 64-62 at Pontiac, finished with 15 points, including shooting 8-of-10 from the free-throw line.

Clarkston advances

In a late score reported at press time, Clarkston crushed Lake Orion, 68-45, in the opening round at districts. This means the Wolves will face the winner of Lapeer East-Lapeer West 7 p.m. Friday (March 8) at Lapeer East High School for the district championship. Details in next week's Clarkston News.

Coach Fife had praise for his team's run in the second quarter and guessed how Northern must have felt.

"We were rolling. That had to be the way Iraq felt," said the coach.

Northern didn't feel any better in the second half, with Clarkston outscoring the Huskies 19-17 in the third quarter and finishing with an 18-11 bulge in the final eight minutes.

The game ended appropriately with the Wolves still red hot. David Smith sank a 3-pointer and then teammate Devin Dupree threw in another from NBA-range at the buzzer.

In addition to Smith's and Dupree's three points and scoring by Fife and Fedio, Chris Wasilk scored eight, Sean Halleran six, Mark Galbraith five, Wiley three and Jeremy Burke and Lund each had two.

Halleran and Galbraith also controlled the boards and plugged up the middle to help the cause.

Freeman Jones paced the Huskies with 17 points and Craig Covington had 11.

Clarkston 79, Flushing 47
(Feb. 26 at Flushing)

Eight 3-pointers by three different Wolves helped Clarkston bomb Flushing, 79-47.

Dugan Fife nailed four 3-pointers, and Wiley and Fedio each sank a pair to pace Clarkston's scoring attack.

Fife finished the game with 30 points, Fedio had 16 and Wiley 12. Wasilk was the fourth Wolf in double figures with 13. Lund added four and Jeremy Burke and Dupree each had two.

Clarkston blitzed Flushing with a 23-9 first quarter, led 43-22 at the half and continued the onslaught by outscoring the hosts 36-25 in the second half.

DUGAN Fife and his teammates savored every moment while cutting the net after Friday night's win. The Wolves will next compete in the district tournament at Lapeer East. (Related photos on pages 19 and 22).

Wrestlers: 'We just did it!'

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Some unexpected match wins, along with some expected wins, sparked the Clarkston wrestlers to their first-ever Class A team state championship Saturday.

It wasn't what Temperance-Bedford expected.

The Wolves won seven of 13 matches, including five by pins, to defeat the tradition-rich Mules, 36-27, at the Kellogg Arena in Battle Creek.

The state championship was the first one by a Clarkston team in 15 years (the baseball and girls' golf teams both won the titles in 1976).

Temperance-Bedford was rated No. 1 in the state going into the finals and Clarkston was rated No. 2.

But when Clarkston 189-pounder Joel Davis pinned Matt Gregory at 1:53 in the second-to-the-last match of the night, the Wolves took over the No. 1 spot, for good.

After Davis clinched his team's win and went over to shake hands with Mule coach William Regnier, he ran toward the Clarkston bench and jumped into the arms of Coach Scott Strickler.

"When he came and jumped into my arms, I almost blacked out," said Strickler. "I was anticipating jumping into his arms."

The sixth-year coach, who also had a successful wrestling career at Rochester Adams, called Saturday's state championship his "single greatest moment" in wrestling.

And that greatest moment spread to all of the Clarkston wrestlers.

But before that moment occurred, the Wolves, with five sophomores in the lineup, had to battle against the Mules and the noisy Mule spectators which outnumbered the Clarkston faithful by about 10-to-1.

The first four matches went as expected. Clarkston's Jeff Deroseau, who was the state's 103-pound individual runner-up the weekend before, pinned Mark Williamson at 3:06.

The Mules' toughest two wrestlers didn't disappoint the Bedford crowd in the next two matches. Louie Tibai (112) pinned Pat Forbes in 56 seconds followed by Fred Schumacher's (119) pin of Terry Melvin at 3:04.

But Jerry Anderson (125), who finished third at the state individual finals, tied the match at 12-12 with a quick pin of Jeff Dec at 1:07.

This set the stage for one of the night's key matches between Clarkston's Jason Roughton (130) and Bedford's Dave Witfoth.

Less than 10 seconds into the match, Witfoth made a quick move and looked as if he were going to pin Roughton. But the Wolf squirmed out of the Mule's grasp and continued.

Roughton would later say that when he was in trouble at that point, he heard his teammates shouting encouragements. "They pumped me up," said Roughton.

Roughton continued to be behind in points but at 4:39 the sophomore pinned Witfoth.

Both coaches knew the importance of Roughton's victory.

Bedford coach Regnier said he could sense his team was in trouble "after the 130 match, right about there."

As Regnier became more concerned, Strickler became more confident.

"I'd look over to him and he'd look at me," said Strickler, who has much respect for Regnier, the state's winningest wrestling coach in history (416-48-3). "When I saw him get worried, I felt all right."

Bedford won the next three matches to take a 24-18 lead. But none of the Mules could pin their Wolf opponents. Todd Hicks (135) stopped Mike Stanton, 10-4; Casey Gerber (140) defeated Alex Martin, 14-3; and Ryan McBroom (145) topped Rick Mini, 19-3.

Clarkston 152-pound senior Jason Slater put a stop to Bedford's streak in what was to be another key match. Slater edged Jess Hurley, 6-4, to bring Clarkston to within three points of the Mules.

Slater's win was a big upset, considering that Hurley was runner-up the week before in the state individual finals.

"I didn't think they could win that one," said a disappointed Regnier.

Slater had different ideas. "I did not want to get intimidated. I told myself 'Don't get pinned.' I just wanted to hang on," said Slater.

"Jason showed me a lot," said Strickler, who called the win "probably the biggest" of the night.

Brian Davis (160) followed Slater's win with a 7-0 victory of his own against Dan Meszaros, tying the score at 24-24.

The Clarkston bench started to sense a state championship because the Wolves' big guns were about to take the mats. And the Clarkston crowd started to drown out the Bedford mass of scarlet across the arena.

As expected, co-captain Damon Michelsen (171), the individual state champion the week before, pinned Brent Houge in 3:04 to give the Wolves a 30-24 lead with two matches left.

One minute and 53 seconds later, Clarkston's other co-captain, Joel Davis pinned Matt Gregory, clinching the state title, resulting in the 189-pounder's joyful leap to the arms of his just-as-joyful coach.

Bedford's Jaramie Brescol did defeat Joe Webb, 12-6, in the heavyweight match but the celebration had already begun.

Strickler and his wrestlers attended an award's banquet the same night of the state championship. While at the banquet, the wrestlers came up with a new slogan borrowed in part from Nike's "Just do it" advertising campaign.

The state champions new slogan is, "We just did it!"

And no one in Class A did it better than the Wolves.

JASON Roughton celebrates after pinning his Temperance-Bedford opponent. The sophomore's victory was one of the keys to a Wolf state championship.

Clarkston 37, Warren Lincoln 27
(Class A semifinals)
(March 2 at Battle Creek)

Many people can't stand to hear the hum-drum type of music played in elevators.

Clarkston's wrestling team heard something even worse. While several Wolves were riding the elevator at the team's hotel in Battle Creek Saturday, they heard some Warren Lincoln opponents openly say how they planned to run all over Clarkston.

"They were real cocky in the elevator, saying how much they were going to beat us up," said Clarkston's Mike Stanton.

Hours after that, it was Clarkston that did all of the beating, as the Wolves jumped out to a huge 25-0 lead en route to their 37-27 victory over the now 22-2 Abes.

Lincoln coach Bill Delia said the opening 103-pound match between Clarkston's Jeff Deroseau and Greg Mayer was the key contest.

"If Jeff Deroseau doesn't win, his teammates think they're in a lot of trouble," said Delia.

Deroseau won his decision on the slimmest of margins, 1-0, but was enough to start the Wolves rolling.

Forbes (112) pinned Jody Bird at 3:18 and Melvin (119) crushed Don Davis, 15-1, to give Clarkston a 13-0 advantage.

This was followed by Anderson (125) pinning John Baker at 3:01 and Roughton pinning Rob Ward at 3:12 for the 25-0 lead.

The big bulge was important because the Wolves then lost the next five matches. However, only one of the matches was via pin.

Tom Costello (135) topped Stanton, 11-3 and Jeff Mayer (140) stopped Martin, 11-5. Sean Pearce (145) won on a technical fall, 16-0, against Mini and Dave Ayers (152) edged Slater, 8-7. Ken Rumps (160) pinned Brian Davis at 1:54.

Those five wins cut the Abes' deficit to 25-21.

But as expected, the Clarkston co-captains came through with another one-two punch that clinched advancement into the finals.

Michelsen (171) pinned Tom Harvey at 4:29 and Joel Davis (189) quickly pinned Dave Cardinali at 1:17. Lincoln heavyweight Marty Scianimanico won by forfeit to make it 37-27.

Clarkston 31, Grandville 18
(Class A quarterfinals)
(March 1 at Battle Creek)

Clarkston only won one more match than Grandville, but the Wolves had three pins while all of Grandville's wins came on decisions.

The 31-18 win Friday night against the 30-2-1 Bulldogs advanced Clarkston to semifinal action on Saturday.

Anderson (125) picked up the first pin for the Wolves by stopping Ryan VanderVeen at 5:00. Clarkston's co-captains also had back-to-back pins. Damon Michelsen (171) finished Dave Rose at 3:31 and Joel Davis (189) quickly put an end to Kevin Frens at 1:16.

Four Wolves won on decisions: Deroseau (103) 8-2 over Jason Reeder, Terry Melvin (119) 11-9 over Dave Engvall, Roughton (130) 7-1 over Todd Wilfong and Jason Slater (152) 15-4 over Kevin Brink.

The six winning Bulldogs were: Paul Grifhorst (112) 11-4 over Forbes, Phil Noorman (135) 4-3 over Stanton, Larry Yurgaites (140) 8-6 over Martin, Kurt Chenier (145) 6-0 over Mini, Tom Graverson (160) 5-2 over Brian Davis, and Todd Barker (hwt.) 11-5 over Tony Miller.

West Bloomfield sidelines Wolves

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston's varsity volleyball team started out hot but cooled off, losing in the Class A district finals to a tough and tall West Bloomfield team.

The Wolves had reached the finals Saturday by first getting past Waterford Kettering in the opener. The district took place at Waterford Mott.

"All of a sudden, we struggled. You can't let down, not even a minute," said Clarkston coach Gordie Richardson, whose Wolves had opened to a 12-5 first-game lead.

But West Bloomfield, 47-4-5 on the season, came back by scoring 10 unanswered points to take the first game, 15-12.

West Bloomfield then followed with a 15-8 second game for the match, ending the Wolves season.

The Wolves hurt themselves in the loss. While they had 17 kills during the match, they also made 17 errors in other kill situations. In other words, hitting it out of bounds or catching the net.

While not happy about the loss, coach Richardson said he was quite pleased with the team's rebound from last season. Last year's Wolves finished at 18-18-4 overall and 2-8 in the Greater Oakland Activities League.

This season the Wolves were the GOAL champs (10-0 in the league) and finished 23-8-9 overall. Richardson said a big part of the turnaround was due to the team chemistry clicking and the leadership of two returning veterans, seniors Becky Kosek and Jenny Graham, who helped the team remain "focused" throughout the year.

In the West Bloomfield match, Graham had six kills in 15 attempts, Stacey Tinkis had three kills in five attempts and Kosek had four tip kills. Heather Steinhelper had three kills along with five blocks.

Clarkston defeats Waterford Kettering, 12-15, 15-5, 15-5
(Opening round of district tournament)
(March 2 at Waterford Mott)

Clarkston let Waterford Kettering off the hook, but not for very long.

The Wolves were ahead of the Captains 10-5 in the first game, but Kettering came back to win 15-12.

But Clarkston finished strong, winning the next two games by 15-5 margins.

"We let them come back but we played well the next two games," said coach Richardson.

Clarkston posted some big numbers in the win.

The Wolves had a .221 attack percentage, making 36 kills in 86 attempts. Clarkston served at 92 percent and had a 78.8 serve reception percentage.

Individually, Steinhelper was 14 of 14 in attacks with nine kills, Graham was 15 of 20 with nine kills and Kosek was 10 of 12 with six kills.

Kosek served 20 of 20 with one ace and Candy Polenz served 13 of 13 with one ace.

Coaches deserve honors

There's no doubt about it. Scott Strickler and Dan Fife deserve to be Michigan's Class A high school coaches of the year in their respective sports.

Strickler's wrestlers won the Oakland County Meet and the Greater Oakland Activities League (defeating defending state champion Lake Orion) and were ranked No. 2 in the state throughout the season.

He guided the Clarkston team to its first state finals appearance this weekend and the 26-0 Wolves won it all by topping the state's biggest name in wrestling the past two decades, Temperance-Bedford.

Fife's basketball squad, which is just starting tournament action, finished the regular season as the state's only undefeated team in Class A.

The 20-0 Wolves won the GOAL title, with key games being the two wins over second-place Pontiac Northern. In addition to Northern, Clarkston stopped Detroit Catholic Central and Pontiac Central in two big non-league games.

Clarkston is ranked No. 3 in the state, with the only two teams in front of it being perennial Class A powerhouses Detroit Southwestern and Saginaw.

And Fife managed to do all of this with only one returning starter, Dugan Fife.

Wrestling and basketball are two completely different sports. Damon Michelsen would probably pin Luke Fedio as quickly as Fedio would be able to shut out Michelsen in P-I-G.

But having observed Strickler and Fife this season, I noticed a couple similarities between them and their teams.

Both coaches believe in building strong programs early, getting athletes enthused about playing their sport in grade school.

Both coaches have high expectations of their athletes and the players have responded.

Both coaches, for the most part, stay on an even keel on the sidelines and this is reflected in their players. Their teams are not too up if they're ahead and not too down if they're behind.

And both coaches have their teams well prepared before the game or match even starts. They both, by far, do most of their coaching in practice, and the athletes know what to do when game time begins.

Dan Fife

The entire coaching staff (A.D. Paul Tungate should also take much credit) is the best staff I've ever been around.

Strickler and Fife are two shining examples of that staff.

Hopefully, the state wire services and/or coaching associations will soon recognize what Clarkston already knows.

JV team drops two to tough opponents, finishes season 16-4

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Two tough teams made it a tough final week for the Clarkston boys' JV basketball team.

Pontiac Northern stopped the Wolves, 54-43, on March 1. Three days earlier, Flushing had edged the Wolves, 59-54, in overtime.

The losses dropped Clarkston's record to a season-ending 16-4.

"I am very pleased," said Clarkston Tim Kaul about his squad's performance this season.

Kaul was also pleased in the first half of the loss against the Huskies. Clarkston was only behind 26-23 at the half. Three days earlier, the tough Northern team had stomped Waterford Mott by 66 points.

But eight points in the third quarter by Husky Rob Brooks, who finished with 18, helped give Northern a 45-32 lead going into the final eight minutes.

"We couldn't stop him," said Kaul, who described Brooks as a "small Charles Barkley."

Nick Shires led the Wolves in scoring with 11 points, Jeremy Deloney had seven, Matt Underwood, Scott Rooney, Scott Matusz and Dan Scheib each had four, Chris Combs, Chris Colburn and Steve Black all had three.

"Rooney played a real good floor game," said Kaul, "and Black did a nice job of rebounding."

Flushing 59, Clarkston 54 (OT) (Feb. 26 at Flushing)

Clarkston had a six-point lead with two and a half minutes left, but couldn't hold on as host Flushing edged the Wolves, 59-54, in overtime.

It was the fourth OT for Clarkston and its first loss in extended play.

Clarkston led 26-18 at the half and took a lead into the remaining minutes but Flushing tied the game at 50-50 at the end of regulation.

"They hit a couple big 3-pointers," said Kaul about the 16-3 Flushing squad. "We missed the front end of a 1-and-1 and missed a lay up."

It was tough for the Wolves to get inside of Flushing's zone defense.

Shires, however, scored a bundle for the Wolves, finishing with a game-high 28 points.

Underwood and Rooney each had six, Black netted four, Matt Smith and Deloney each had three and Combs and Matusz both had two.

NICK Shires drives in on a breakaway layup against the Huskies.

Violent spring storms bring tornado season

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

You may have heard a siren around 1 p.m. Saturday, March 2.

The three-minute tone serves as a test of the tornado warning system in Oakland County and is run by the county EMS and Emergency Management Division.

Monthly testing

Monthly siren testing will continue throughout the year at 1 p.m. on the first Saturday of most months. The schedule is as follows: March 2, May 4, June 1, July 6,

If tornado siren sounds, take cover

If you hear the three-minute tornado siren, take the following precautions:

- Tune into a television or radio to find out why the siren is blowing. The station should tell if a funnel cloud has been sighted and where it's located.

- Take cover in the interior of the building, away from glass — in a basement if possible. Stay away from exterior walls.

- Take a radio with you to find out when the tornado warning has expired. Normally, tornados move so quickly that residents need only take cover for 30-45 minutes.

While decades ago the federal civil defense system required the sounding of an "all-clear" tone, the government no longer recommends it. So there will be no all-clear tone.

Emergency professionals recommend that people develop a tornado-cover plan for home and work. Children and employees should know the plan, just as they would know the procedures should a fire break out.

For more information on tornados and other emergencies, call the Oakland County EMS-Emergency Management Division at 858-5300.

Aug. 3, Sept. 7, Oct. 5 and Nov. 2.

On April 6, there will be no test due to Tornado Safety Week Activation, and on Dec. 7 there will be no test due to winter weather.

Leanne Robinson, emergency management coordinator, said residents and business managers should have a plan to follow should a real tornado warning occur.

"As parents we expect that of the schools," said Robinson. "Why don't we expect that out of our employers?"

Free planning guidelines and information on tornados and other emergencies are available by calling 858-5300.

Some disregard tornado warnings

On average, four "real" tornado warnings are sounded in Oakland County per year, she said. An average of 17 tornados per year occur in all of Michigan.

Still, many Michigan residents are caught unaware. "People think it's not going to happen here," said Robinson. "They don't take cover. We need to be a little more storm conscious."

Robinson said Michigan ranks third in the nation in terms of tornado deaths.

"People don't take tornados seriously in Michigan," said Robinson. "We think they happen in Kansas or Nebraska."

While tornados can occur during any type of weather, they normally come at the end of a thunderstorm, said Robinson, adding that residents should look for signs of unstable storms, such as hail. When a storm is so unstable that it produces hail, anything can develop.

Tornado myths

Many people still hold ideas about tornadoes that were popular decades ago, said Robinson. Many of those are unfounded, she said.

- For instance, school children used to be taught to take cover in the southwest corner of the basement, said Robinson.

That's wrong. Instead, people should take cover at the center of a building — in a basement if there is one.

"Put as many walls between you and the tornado as possible," she said. "Normally exterior walls are damaged, and the center remains intact."

If there's no basement, residents should take cover in the interior hallway of home or business, she said.

- Further, residents were taught to open windows to equalize pressure during a tornado. That, too, is wrong, said Robinson.

"It makes no difference whether a window is open or not," she said. "When the siren blows, walk away from windows, not toward them."

- Some people still believe they can out-run a tornado in a car. At one time, they were told to drive perpendicular to the path of a tornado — but that also is wrong, said Robinson.

The paths of tornados are unpredictable, and the size of the funnel can change, she said.

Instead, drivers should listen to the radio when they hear a siren. If they hear a tornado is in their vicinity or if they see a threatening storm on the horizon, they should stop the car and take cover.

Otherwise, they should continue driving to a safe shelter.

Sirens operated by county

Seven of the 151 Oakland County sirens are located in Independence Township and the Village of Clarkston, said Robinson.

No sirens are in Springfield Township because the $13,000 cost per siren is too expensive for the sparsely populated area, said Fire Chief Marlan Hillman.

The volunteer fire department is prepared for disasters, however, he said.

As part of the county's emergency system, the sirens are equipped with radio receivers that are activated at the same time throughout the county, said Robinson.

After the initial purchase of a siren, of which a municipality pays 75 percent and the county 25 percent, the county pays for all repairs and the electrical supply, she said.

Many adults enriched by coordinator

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Working as coordinator for Clarkston Learning Center's adult enrichment program, Chris Scharrer had an idea.

The senior programs at the learning center weren't really taking off. So why not offer lunch and feature the historical reflections of some long-time Clarkston area residents?

Chris put the idea in motion, calling it the Scrapbook ston is a Nice Place to Live" videotape and Super Saturday for Adults, is bittersweet to Chris.

After helping the adult enrichment program grow, Chris is moving to Grand Rapids with her three children and her husband, Dave, who has accepted a promotion with General Motors Corp.

"I've met some fascinating people in Clarkston," Chris says, fondly.

The job, too, has been interesting, she says.

She has watched interests grow from arts and craft-type classes to programs on professional development.

Lifelong learning has become a part of people's lives, she adds.

"People more and more are beginning to realize that," she explains. "Whether it's learning to read or pursuing something high-tech — we can provide that foundation."

Because community education classes are not restricted by state curriculum guidelines, classes are crafted instead by the needs and wants of community.

Though many classes were developed through Chris' "gut feeling," others were coordinated after phone calls and conversations with residents.

Some surprisingly popular classes have included navigation and a builder's licensing class.

Locating the right instructor sometimes posed a challenge for Chris, but the hardest part of her job canceling classes.

"There may be three or four people that really want a class," she says. "They often don't realize I'm as disappointed as they are."

Chris' tenure as adult enrichment coordinator is marked much more by the classes that have succeeded, however.

The award-winning Scrapbook Series, in fact, will

"Whether it's learning to read or pursuing something high-tech — we can provide that foundation."

Chris Scharrer

ADULT Enrichment Coordinator Chris Scharrer has seen the start of many programs popular with adult students, including Super Saturday for Adults, the "Clarkston is a Nice Place to Live" videotape, and the Scrapbook Series, which won a national award.

Series.

Not only did the series draw an overflow of participants, it won Course of the Year from an international organization in class programming.

Learning Resources Network awarded Chris the honors at a four-day conference.

"I knew it was a good class," admits Chris, modestly. "I had done all the things the group told us to do. I followed the guidelines and it worked."

To win, the class had to change the direction of programming, maintain success in numbers and be marketed successfully.

First, Charlotte Maybee captured audiences with her perspectives on earlier life in Clarkston; the series then featured three sisters and their memories, and Daisy Dowling had shared her Valentine memorabilia.

The course resulted in more than 170 enrollments. The success of this, and programs such as the "Clark-

What a Webelo

Scott Watson, a Webelo scout from Den No. 9, has more than earned his stripes this year.

The Springfield Township fifth-grader has earned all the stripes — or pins as they're known in the scout world.

Of the 20 or so pins possible, Scott's favorite was the "Traveler," in which the scout must select a place he wishes to go and investigate all of the options for getting there.

Scott selected Tucson, Ariz., for his target destination because his aunt lives there, he says.

Other pins included the Scientist pin, in which scouts research rocks and things; the Aquanaut pin, in which scouts "see if you can swim the backstroke for 100 feet" and so on.

It took Scott two years to earn all of the pins, the first Webelo in his pack to do so.

Though Scott admits he went for all the pins "because my mom wanted me to," he did say being a scout was "fun."

When he's not enjoying scouting, Scott likes to travel up north to motorcycle and hunt.

SCOTT Watson, 10 1/2, became the first Webelo in Den No. 9 to earn a complete set of pins.

Clarkston secretary's job evolved with village

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

If you meet Lillian Bauer, you'll find that she can handle just about any situation that comes up in the Village of Clarkston offices — maybe even a tornado.

With no windows in her office, Lillian says with a laugh, she would simply duck under her desk should a tornado appear near the village office, where she serves as secretary.

Her small office is tucked between the Department of Public Works garage and the village meeting hall.

But ducking under a desk isn't easy for someone who's 81 years old and has arthritis in her knee. But neither age nor ailment keeps Lillian from her activities — though she doesn't often duck beneath her desk, she admits.

Lillian works three days a week and advises all senior citizens to get out more and to keep busy, she says. "A lot of older people don't get out enough," she says. "It's good to get out — then they won't grumble about their aches and pains."

About 11 years ago, Lillian started her job with the village, working only three hours a week.

"It was a godsend when they asked me to work," Lillian says.

Lillian's husband, Harold, had fallen victim to Alzheimer's disease and was placed in a nursing home, where he eventually died eight years ago.

Lillian welcomed the opportunity to work outside of her home.

As paperwork increased at the village, her job expanded to three days a week. Lillian now works Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

"I couldn't work on Tuesday and Thursday because I play bridge," Lillian says with a laugh.

Her village employment is not her first experience with government work, she says.

Her husband served as treasurer for Independence Township in the 1950s, and he was so busy with his job at Pontiac Varnish that Lillian did the books for him.

No one minded that she was a substitute, she says. "The township offices were small at that time and all on one floor," Lillian says. "The elected officials were part time."

She recalls that one day a resident came to pay his taxes. After he left, she kept smelling apples. After some searching for the odor, she discovered it clung to the cash the man had brought in.

"He must have kept his money in the apple barrel," Lillian says.

Lillian moved with her husband and daughters, Shirley Wilson and Sally Whitney, to Clarkston in the early 1950s — about 10 years behind their original plans for a move.

Their plans to build a home had been delayed by World War II, she explains.

They were all set to build on Middle Lake but then decided to use a different set of house plans. Being frugal, they hung onto the original, unused house plans.

Later, those drawings seemed ideal for a new parsonage for the Clarkston United Methodist Church on Waldon Road, so Lillian donated them.

A church member for 55 years, Lillian can claim title as one of the oldest members. She has enjoyed her church over the years, she says. After church on Sunday, she eats out with her friends, she says.

That's part of her philosophy of enjoying life. Plus, it provides energy for the following week's work — not to mention the energy necessary to duck under her desk should a tornado appear.

Lillian, it seems, is prepared for just about anything.

QUESTION: Do you have any suggestions on how much a home should be lighted when being shown to a prospective buyer?

ANSWER: In my opinion - the brighter the better! Give the prospect the best image you can of the comfort, beauty and livability you are offering. In other words, you want to sell a home not a house. And full illumination is the best way to give your home the "lived-in" look. Furniture, rugs, and fixtures take on a warm glow from the proper lighting. Kitchens should always be bright, turn on lights in all rooms and especially in closets and storage rooms. The brighter - the better.

Will Laura liberate the Miss USA pageant?

Ashley Ball

We had just finished dinner and I was heading upstairs to work on my women's equality project for social science class. Laura was busy teaching her kitten how to roll dice, and my parents were settling into the family room to watch the evening news.

Climbing the stairs and flipping over the banister into the upstairs hallway, I mentally separated myself from my sister's gambling habit and my parent's obsession with the war news, as I focused on the subject and star of my women's equality project — Miss USA, Carole Gist.

So why is the past Miss USA the subject of my homework fervor? Because she is the one woman in America who has had the courage to take a stand for what she believes in — for what we all believe in — hosiery, makeup and incidentals.

It all started when she sued the pageant a couple of weeks ago for $18 million because, among other reasons, she says she wasn't reimbursed for hosiery, makeup and incidentals she needed for public appearances. I can only imagine that, if she didn't shop at Perry Drug, these three items alone could run into several million dollars. I say: Go for it, Carol!

But what really upsets me was a recent advertisement featuring our very own Miss USA in the COUPON section of the Sunday Detroit Free Press and News. I'M NOT KIDDING! There she was, in her crown and her bright blue queen-type evening gown, surrounded by all kinds of coupons for deodorant, Clearasil, hairspray — perhaps the very INCIDENTALS she hadn't been reimbursed for. Talk about cruel!

It is clear to me that this advertisement was some sort of subliminal message to Miss USA.

So what am I saying? That's a good question.

Anyway, after spending just over 4 minutes doing research at the library for my semester project on women's equality, I come to the overwhelming conclusion that the purpose of this subliminal message is to influence Miss USA to start economizing on her hosiery, her makeup, and her incidentals.

Yes, the message is clear — the pageant wants her to start using COUPONS!

Anyway, if the Miss USA pageant continues to flaunt this kind of sexist attitude, what hope do women anywhere have of equality and fair treatment and reimbursement of their hosiery? And if we can't answer these INCIDENTAL questions, how will we, as Americans, ever find the answers to the big questions? For instance:

If my little sister Laura someday decides to enter the Miss USA competition, will she be allowed to roll dice as her talent?

Clarkston News Associate Editor

As 50 young women listened from their seats in Clarkston High School's auditorium, Dr. Arthur Robins told them if their numbers were doubled, at least one would suffer from anorexia.

"For people your age— one out of 100 suffer from anorexia nervosa," said Robins, an eating disorder specialist from Children's Hospital in Detroit.

The students had volunteered to attend a special presentation on eating disorders as part of an ongoing self-esteem program offered by the high school self-esteem committee.

Robins asked the young women to silently answer a series of questions, designed to "get them thinking about the issues involved in eating disorders."

As Marilyn Monroe was flashed onto the projector screen, dressed in a bathing suit and dancing on a sun-swept stretch of sand, the questions began.

"How many of you look at Marilyn Monroe and think she's too fat?"

"How many of you picture Twiggy and think she's too fat or too thin?"

"How many of you are totally satisfied with your body or your appearance?"

"How many of you would be more satisfied if you were thinner?"

As Dr. Robins questioned the young women, a few couldn't help but giggle and raise their hands in answer to some of the questions.

When he asked what influenced them to want to be thinner, some of the girls answered "skinny friends" and "stress."

Robins told the girls he was not surprised by the things he was hearing.

"A lot of young women look at Marilyn Monroe and say she's too fat," he told the assembly. "A lot say Twiggy looks pretty good."

"We are a society obsessed with thinness," he added. "Many feel that the definition of femininity equals thinness."

"I want you to think about how many decisions you make based on that," he said.

As a therapist at Children's Hospital, Robins treats about 40 patients suffering from anorexia nervosa and bulimia nervosa.

Among the symptoms of anorexia he listed were:

- A 15 percent weight loss and failure to maintain expected growth.
- A refusal to maintain body weight.

- Fear of fatness.
- Loss of menstruation.
- Body image disorder.

An anorexic patient has a tendency to weigh less than a bulimic person as the condition begins, Robins said. In fact, bulimia is often harder to identify in a patient.

Some symptoms of bulimia include:

- recurrent episodes of binge eating.
- a feeling of lack of control.
- fear of fatness.
- irregular vomiting, use of laxatives, diuretics, fasting and exercise to get rid of food.
- body image or cognitive disorder
- normal weight.

Bulimia can start by simply skipping meals, Robins explained, referring to one of his more severe bulimic patients.

He described the patient as someone who skipped breakfast and then skipped lunch. By dinner she was so famished that she would "pig out," eating as many as 5,000 calories in one sitting.

She would then ingest up to 20 laxatives, sleep for eight hours, and get up to spend about an hour in the bathroom.

The cycle continues as a subject "feels bad and wants to be thinner," according to Robins.

"The body won't let you starve yourself— you have good intentions, but you eat too much and then get rid of it," he explained.

Medical complications that can result from eating disorders include limp hair, hyperactivity, lack of muscle tone, constipation, insomnia, low blood pressure, dry skin and, in severe cases, death.

A patient is typically hospitalized when they weigh less than 75 percent of their ideal weight, when medical complications result, or when they fail to respond to outpatient treatment, he added.

While there is no known cause of eating disorders, experts often point to family or cultural pressures.

Treatment includes first getting a patient beyond starvation stages by forcing them to eat; therapy; and an eating contract is established once a patient's mind is freed from the distortion that starvation can induce.

Robins explained that of the patients he sees, more than half come to his attention by way of the victim's friends.

He encouraged the young women to identify a counselor or trusted adult if they suspect their friends have an eating disorder.

He also reminded the girls to be conscious of the decisions affecting their own eating habits.

For more information on eating disorders, you can contact Robins at 745-4878.

Chili challenge

Just a few days left for you to perfect your favorite chili recipe for The Great Chili Cook-off.

The cook-off is a benefit for The National Kidney Foundation of Michigan, Inc. It raises money for research and education programs and for patient services.

For a registration form, stop by The Clarkston News at 5 S. Main St. or call 1-800-482-1455. But act now, as the deadline is Friday, March 15.

Cooks will be selected from a lottery drawing on March 18 for the two days of chili cooking at Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds in Saline — Saturday, May 4, and Sunday, May 5.

Michigan's Saturday winner will be eligible to compete in the International Chili Society World Championship Cook-Off in California in the fall, and will win $500. But use no beans or other fillers in your championship recipe for this category.

The "anything in the pot" Renegade Cook-Off entries can use beans, pasta and other fillers. This Michigan winner will cook on Sunday, May 5, will win $250 and will be guaranteed a cooking spot in the 1992 Saturday cook-off.

To inspire you, here are last year's winners.

Village of Clarkston

Village of Clarkston minutes of regular meeting, February 25, 1991, 375 Depot Road, Clarkston, Mich., 48346.

Meeting called to order by President Pro Tem Schultz at 7:30 p.m., followed by the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

Roll: Present: Basinger, Catalo (late), Haven Schultz and Whitmer.

Absent: Mauti and Roeser
Haven made a motion to accept the minutes as presented. Seconded by Basinger. Motion carried.

The agenda was added to and approved.
Schultz made a motion to let the Moslem Shrine Temple have their Twelfth Annual Hospital Fund drive on Fri., and Sat., June 7th and 8th, 1991, in the Village.

The new Construction, Development and Land Use Code Book completed by Basinger was discussed. It will be discussed at the next Council meeting, so all Council members will have a chance to review the book.

Basinger made a motion to adopt the Act 641 Plan Update. Seconded by Schultz. Roll: 5 ayes. Nays-none. Motion carried. Copy of agreement to be in minute book.

President Catalo talked about a Bed and Breakfast in the Village. This could cause a problem if rented for a day and then stayed for a month or even six months. Catalo had talked with Grand Rapids Historical Society and they felt the use would have to be monitored. Schultz felt we should not change the Ordinance just for a Bed and Breakfast. Kalamazoo will not allow a Bed and Breakfast in a residential area.

New flag pole will be on the agenda for next meeting. The Council talked about changing the parking on Mill Street to one-half hour. Pappas will review it with Officer Smalley.

Motion by Basinger to accept the amended budget for 1990/91 Totaling $298,492.84 from $296,422.84. Seconded by Haven. Roll: 5-Ayes. Nays-none. Motion carried.

Motion by Basinger that the Village retain Karlstrom, Stackling and Gruich as attorneys. They are leaving the firm of Booth, Patterson, Lee, Karlstrom and Stackling and will merge with the firm of Campbell, Keenan, Harry and Cooney.

Center recognized for breast care program

The American College of Radiology, ACR, has given full accreditation to the Breast Care Program at the Women's Health Center of Clarkston.

This is a highly respected certification that signifies that the mammography services at the center have passed the highest review of the facility, personnel qualification, image quality, and dosage as set by a peer review committee of the ACR.

The Women's Health Center of Clarkston, under the direction of Susan E. Coleman, M.D., is accredited for a period of three years.

"We are very pleased to receive this recognition because it verifies that our services meet the stringent national requirements of the ACR for mammography services," says Dr. Susan Coleman.

"Not all sites who apply for this standing are approved," she adds. "The review process is very intensive. We are proud to convey this wonderful news to the surrounding communities of northern Oakland County," she says.

Comments a consulting physician from the University of Michigan Medical Center, "The Women's Health Center of Clarkston has every reason to be proud. They produce excellent images."

The original focus of the program had been to provide convenient breast care to the center's patients.

Patients were scheduled to see one of the doctors for a yearly exam and could obtain a mammogram when indicated.

The benefits to the patient were a sensitive and educated staff with whom to interact.

It allowed for both the educational and clinical aspects of breast care and breast cancer prevention to be utilized.

Today, that program has grown. Patients, referred by their own physicians with a prescription, are now being seen in increasing numbers.

These patients are returned to their doctors along with the resulting reports.

"We are honored to serve both the patient and their doctor," states Dr. Coleman.

The Breast Care Program at the center provides women with the following services: low-dose film-screen mammography, experienced registered mammographic technologists, and board-certified radiologist to interpret results.

THE BREAST care program at the Women's Health Center recently was given full accreditation by the American College of Radiology.

Ultrasound of the breast (technology using sound waves) and examination, along with education are also available.

If a woman has no physician in the area, arrangements will be made for the patient to be seen at the center for a breast evaluation as part of her total health profile.

For more information, call 625-6660.

Women's Health Center continues to grow

The Women's Health Center of Clarkston continues to evolve as a major health care provider for Northern Oakland County.

The facility was established with the orientation of providing specialized medical care for women. The philosophy was to give to women access to medical, psychological and nutritional care that were provided by women's health specialists in a common setting.

"I remember the repeated requests from women patients for additional specialized services," comments Susan Coleman, M.D., medical director and founder of the Women's Health Center.

"I would say that the wonderful success we have had is primarily due to listening to our patients and continuing to respond to their specific needs," adds Coleman.

This responsive attitude must have worked, in the past four years, the number of patients coming to the center continues to grow, largely due to patients referring friends, family members, and other acquaintances. This has included both males and females.

The Women's Health Center's staffing has grown from five to 17; there are three woman physicians (a fourth currently being recruited), a doctor of psychology, seven registers technologists, nursing and administrative staff.

The facility has the equipment and staffing to provide low-dose film screen mammography, X-ray, ultrasound, echocardiography, exercise stress treadmill, and on-site laboratory services.

The facility is the first of its kind in Oakland County that has received dual accreditation in both laboratory services and mammography," states Michael Mosharo, administrative director.

"We are very proud of our staff and their accomplishments," Mosharo adds. "I expect that this will continue as we become more actively involved in community affairs."

Involved is exactly the way in which this facility has been described.

Women's Health Center of Clarkston

Location: 7650 Dixie Highway, Independence Township

Phone number: 625-6660

In the past year, the center has supported a variety of causes.

Fun Daze, a Clarkston running event, received corporate sponsorship by the Women's Health Center last year. They will again be the corporate sponsor for 1991.

"What makes this event special is that it has a strong health orientation," states Mosharo. "Whether it be young, old, families, individuals, running-vs.-walking — this is a special day to say I care about my health."

Registration for the May 91 Fun Daze event will be offered through Independence Township Department of Park and Recreation Department.

Other sets of causes have been Clarkston Interact Club, a well-respected community group within the high school; the Culinary Arts Department at the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus; the Junior Miss Pageant; Mrs. Michigan competition; and support of our local Clarkston Wolverines.

An international humanitarian effort was coordinated between the Clarkston Rotary Club, the Women's Health Center and the Chernobyl Relief Fund to ship a much-needed piece of medical instrumentation to a site near the Chernobyl accident in the U.S.S.R.

"It was a wonderful opportunity for Clarkston to extend a local hand of friendship to our counterpart overseas," states Dick Beardsley, president of the Clarkston Rotary Club.

Education presentations have been made by the center to several groups at the local high school, Meadow-brook, the local chapter of Business and Professional Women, and surrounding community groups.

Topics presented have varied from understanding hormone therapy to education on good nutritional habits. Topics to be presented are available to any interested groups.

Comments Dr. Janis Saunders, a physician at the center and former teacher, "My interest is not just focused on the physical condition of the patient, but more importantly their health habits and lifestyles."

"These significantly affect the patient's wellness," she adds. "The Women's Health Concept educates the total patient."

Dr. Nedra Downing, another center physician and nutritionist, agrees, and states, "Our diets have changed significantly from the past."

"Much-needed minerals have been removed from our current diet. Most women are not aware of this. Minerals will be the buzzword of the '90s," she says.

Studies continue to indicate that women are at greater risk of heart disease and heart attacks.

"An exercise routine will be a must in the '90s to maintain good health," states Dr. Coleman. "This is something that we will just need to incorporate into our daily lives."

The "Changes in Healthy Lifestyles" educational series will again be presented over 10 weeks beginning in March/April.

This series teaches good health through education on nutrition, behavioral changes and exercise physiology.

It is expected that this program will also be presented through Clarkston Adult Education.

The Women's Health Center of Clarkston has become very much a part of the Clarkston community.

"It has truly been an honor to work with and serve our patients and the surrounding communities," comments Dr. Coleman, "and I would expect that this will continue with their support and feedback for a long, long time."

FUN DAZE, an annual running event in downtown Clarkston, is sponsored by the Women's Health Center.

DURING and after the race, spectators and runners can visit a special area for on-site health checks.

Past year of community participation

"It has truly been an honor to work with and serve our patients and the surrounding communities, and I would expect that this will continue with their support and feedback for a long, long time."

Dr. Susan Coleman

CHERNOBYL area residents benefited from a mammography unit donated by the Women's Health Center. The Clarkston Rotary Club organized the contribution and paid for shipping from Clarkston to New Jersey, where the Chernobyl Relief organization transported it to the Soviet Union. Marking the occasion

For the past 12 years, Tom Lowrie has taken pride in beautifying landscapes in and around Oakland County.

As the owner of Lowrie's Landscape, the Western Michigan University graduate uses the talents of nearly 20 employees during the summer months. His business originated in Waterford Township, but Lowrie decided to change locales in 1986. He likes the present Springfield Township location because it enabled him to come home, in a sense.

"This is a nice spot because it's on a major highway, and the immediate area is prone to future growth," Lowrie said. "It's nice to be associated with Clarkston and Springfield Township because of the sense of community. I grew up in this area and my home's right next door."

Lowrie describes his business as a design/building construction company. Besides commercial landscaping, Lowrie's offers architectural blueprints, project management, land balancing, mowing services and landscape lighting.

Plus, they'll create "special" gardens. These special gardens include Japanese, water and perennial varieties.

Lowrie enjoys the challenges of his job and is comfortable because his employees are university-trained and responsible.

"It's nice to be associated with Clarkston and Springfield Township because of the sense of community."

"I like the diversity of challenges that crop up each day. As the owner, I'm really just a glorified problem solver," he said. "However, I've been able to spread the tasks out to my employees because they're responsible and don't need constant supervision. It's nice to have a pool of people like that in your company."

Despite having good workers and an adequate location, Lowrie admits his business faces numerous challenges.

"The most challenging part of landscaping is staying afloat because our business is seasonal and very competitive," Lowrie said. "Landscaping is a business that's easy to get into, but it's difficult to sock away enough money to get through the winter."

Despite the hardships, 12 years of diligence has enabled Lowrie's to garner both referrals and awards. Tom Lowrie said 80 percent of the company's business come from client referrals, and those referrals have resulted in a couple of award-winning projects.

For the past two years, Lowrie's has been recognized by both the Michigan Nursery and Landscape Association and the Metropolitan-Detroit Landscape Association in the category of "best residential landscape." One of the projects was in Deer Lake Farms last year.

Lowrie said there is no gimmick to his business — only a promise of innovation and satisfaction.

"We have a motto here," the owner said, "that no two landscapes look the same through Lowrie's."

Custom work is designed to please each client

Busy schedules can make meeting with a client difficult, but Kimberly Rogers of The Design Workshop, Ltd., is able to make a house call at any time of the week.

Kimberly started her custom design business, along with her husband, Bob, about two years ago. Bob, a professional engineer, helps Kimberly with design mathematics that pull ideas together.

Quite a bit has happened in the past 12 months. The business has moved from its former location at 5863 Dixie Highway into a temporary location near I-75 and Baldwin Road, close to the border of Independence and Orion townships. But plans are underway to permanently move to the Clarkston area.

"Clients will need to call (to the temporary location tucked in the woods) to receive directions, or they may get lost," Kimberly says.

The Design Workshop will provide coordination of fabrics and wall coverings, complete custom bed fashions, canopies, window treatments, re-upholstering, slip covering, fabricated screens, flower arranging (in home), dining table accessories and furniture for every room in the home or office.

"I completely believe that taking the time in getting to know a new client is very important," Kimberly says.

Kimberly considers a design presentation a challenge, whether she is working with what a client already has or is starting out with a fresh new look in a new home or older home.

"I've always wanted to be a designer and business owner," she says.

Delivery and installation are included in Kimberly's prices, along with the convenience of paying by cash, check, Visa or Master Card.

Because Kimberly personally supervises (and sometimes performs) every facet of the design process, her clients can expect customized service at reasonable prices.

KIMBERLY ROGERS, owner of The Design Workshop, expects to have a new location in the Clarkston area. She offers custom interior designs.

Village Bookstore a treasure for book-lovers

If you're looking for a good book to curl up with, a hard-to-find title, or a knowledgeable suggestion for a gift, you're in luck.

One step inside the Village Bookstore in Clarkston, you'll find just that — plus friendly conversation from book lovers.

Georgene Sloan, owner of the bookstore for the last five years, says she, Catherine Reeve and Alma Goldner enjoy talking with the interesting people who visit the store.

And many people, familiar with the friendly atmosphere of the cozy store, like to talk with the booksellers.

"Alma lives in the village and she knows everybody," says Georgene.

Catherine is from England and has a following of customers who call her "the English lady," continues Georgene.

Georgene, who has a background in counseling,

"Books seemed like a natural, as I have always been involved with books and the life of the mind."

Georgene Sloan

experienced burnout after years of working in the field and decided to become self-employed.

After taking a class in running a small business, she bought the store that has been located at 26 S. Main St., Clarkston, for 12 years.

"Books seemed like a natural, as I have always been involved with books and the life of the mind," she says.

Georgene and her staff concentrate on personal attention to their customers. Special services are free gift wrapping, free delivery to nearby customers, mailing, special orders, out-of-print title search, gift certificates and a Book Club — a discount after 12 purchases.

Besides promoting reading, the bookstore staff encourages prospective writers. Each January, in conjunction with The Clarkston News, they sponsor a short story writing contest for the community.

Georgene dreams of having extra space. She'd like to expand stock and have room for author signings; she'd like to have an extra corner for children's story hour and book discussion groups.

To keep up with technology and adding to more efficient research, Georgene enlisted the aid of her daughter and son-in-law, Jil and Curt Lashbrook of Novi. They helped select a computer, and Jil installed the system.

Georgene likes the store's location on Main Street, in the heart of Clarkston. But she is concerned about the retail district and the fact that many businesses have moved out or closed.

But she wouldn't want to be in a mall, she says. She'd miss her many loyal Clarkston customers.

CATHERINE Reeve (from left), Alma Goldner and owner Georgene Sloan enjoy talking with book store customers to find out what they're looking for. The poster of Andrew Wyeth's Helga in the background illustrates the types of art books they can suggest.

Cafe's library ideal for good eating, conversation

A restaurant with a good reputation can expect customers to come from miles around for dining pleasure, and the Clarkston Cafe is no exception.

Owner Lee McNew says one couple had heard about the Cafe's reputation in Russia.

"As it turns out, they were on tour in Russia, but they actually live in Birmingham," Lee says, laughing, as she explains the rest of the story. "They were on tour with a couple from Clarkston who told them about the Cafe."

The combination of atmosphere and delectable dishes keeps people coming for miles around to Clarkston Cafe.

The frugal feast specials can cost as much as some meals offered at local franchise restaurants, Lee says.

A recent addition to the menu are "light-side meals," with fewer calories. Heart-smart meals offered are low in cholesterol and low in fat.

Lee's love of food and the joy of serving it has helped ease her into the restaurant business. She and her husband, Patrick, were always eager to entertain their friends with dinner parties, and, in turn, their friends encouraged the McNews to get into the restaurant business, Lee says.

So, with Lee's father, Don Hayes, the McNews bought the Cafe, which existed as a sandwich- and beer-type restaurant from the 1920s.

While the location is the same, the looks have changed. In June 1988, the Cafe expanded into the adjacent space formerly used by a flower store.

The addition, dubbed "the library," may have higher ceilings and look somewhat different from the original building. But the ambiance still exudes the warm charm the Clarkston Cafe is noted for.

Lee is comfortable with the library — she served as librarian and a teacher before entering the restaurant business.

Her teaching skills are useful when training new employees at the restaurant.

Students interested in attending culinary school have the opportunity to work at the Cafe, and the McNews will help with tuition. Oakland Community College and Schoolcraft College, Livonia, are two of the closest culinary arts programs, Lee says.

"This is a tremendous place to learn," Lee says about the Clarkston Cafe.

THE ORIGINAL sign from the Clarkston Cafe hangs in the "library" addition, where Gloria Findling of Bloomfield Hills settles in for another cup of coffee.

Not only is Lee proud of the business and the people working at the Clarkston Cafe, she's equally proud of the location.

"I love the historical aspect of Clarkston," she says. "Sometimes, when I wonder why I'm in this business, I take a walk around outside — and look at the town — then I know why I'm here."

Mortgage corp.: prime time to refinance homes

ROGER LABUS and Pat Kazlouskas, with 20 years of combined service, are looking forward to serving mortgage customers in the Clarkston area.

The Independent Mortgage Corp. is gearing up for more business at a time when most businesses are scaling back because of the economy.

With interest rates moving downward, senior loan coordinator Roger Labus says they're planning to hire more employees.

When interest rates come down, as they are now, many people like to refinance their homes, he explains.

Independent Mortgage opened in 1986 in the courthouse complex on Lorac Drive, but a location change was in the offing. In June they moved to 5790 M-15, Independence Township.

The company was founded by Henry Manuel, a former vice-president of Michigan National Bank and a mortgage broker.

Roger Labus

Manuel now employs Labus, whose experience for the last eight years includes retail and wholesale banking and real estate.

Pat Kazalouskas serves as an account executive — bringing with her 12 years of experience in real estate and building.

Experience and a creative approach makes The Independent Mortgage Corp. a unique company for mortgages.

"We make house calls," Labus says.

The mortgage company likes to go to customers rather than making them come to them, he says.

The employees will travel about a 30-mile radius, but they've also serviced people in Grand Rapids, Monroe and Traverse City.

When interest rates come down, as they are now, many people like to refinance their homes, according to senior loan coordinator Roger Labus.

"We not limited to a certain market," says Labus.

He says the day of the customer going to the bank during banking hours are over, as is the idea of serving only the mortgage customer with a top credit rating.

Many people fit into different credit rating categories, and Independent Mortgage wants to serve them as well as customers with top credit ratings, Labus says.

Bringing in customers will not be difficult, according to Labus.

"Do a good job, and you don't have to worry — the people will come to you," he says.

Word-of-mouth advertising is the best advertising a business person can hope for, he says.

Expansion means more items, friendly service

The location of Jim's Cracker Barrel IGA, Brandon Township, has special meaning for the family members who work in the store.

The owner, Jim Humphrey of Oxford, was one of the original builders and owners of the mobile home park off Sashabaw Road near the store. When the partners sold the park, Jim bought a piece of land and built the store.

Alleshia Walker, Jim's daughter, serves as manager of the store. She and her father like the area, she says.

"His original interest in the long run was to put in a store. We've been in the community for a while. We're local people," she says.

"I do like the location. It's out in the country. It allows you to be a little more friendly and to know the community a little better — your customers and their needs."

And the people at the Cracker Barrel keep a pulse on their customers' choices of products and services. In the last year, the store space more than doubled in size, allowing more grocery items, a Lotto machine and hand-dipped ice cream.

They also have videos to rent, hardware and automotive items, some floral products, greeting cards and a bacteriostatic water system dispenser.

This means their customers don't have to fight traffic to meet their every need. Plus, the store is open 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. seven days a week.

Not to mention the food.

"We make a lot of our own deli products," says Alleshia. "We're known for our baked beans. It's a family

RICHARD Walker, 17, and his parents, Richard and Alleshia Walker, enjoy meeting and talking with their customers. Their newly-expanded store provides the community with a full line of grocery and delicatessen items, as well as extras, like hand-dipped ice cream and Lotto.

recipe. We've had people move away and come back for our baked beans — as far away as up North."

While Alleshia, who studied retail accounting in school, manages the store, her husband and son work as butchers. Some other family members are cashiers. They keep up with the grocery market trends by attending classes conducted by IGA.

She's interested in keeping up with demand and suggests that customers ask for their grocery needs if they don't see it.

"Come out and see us," she says with a smile.

Sun Valley grows on Moon Valley furniture tradition

Stepping into the new 10,000-square-foot Sun Valley Casual Furniture showroom is an unforgettable experience!

Never before have you been able to view such a wide variety of casual furniture in settings duplicating various levels of decking, a circular brick patio, locking paving block and even an elevated brick and stone patio complete with a waterfall and stream.

Sun Valley Casual Furniture is the most recent expansion of Moon Valley Rustic Furniture, a name that has occupied the 6465 Dixie Highway address for more than 60 years.

Sun Valley Casual Furniture is the most recent expansion of Moon Valley Rustic Furniture, a name that has occupied the 6465 Dixie Highway address for more than 60 years.

The past 30 years have seen Ed Beattie and his son, Kim, lead Moon Valley Rustic from its small beginning into the manufacturing complex which has now expanded to their new site in the industrial development off Andersonville Road.

Five years ago, Ed's son-in-law, Don Brown, joined the firm, and today Kim and Don own both Moon Valley and the newly formed retail operation, Sun Valley Casual Furniture.

When Moon Valley decided to expand to a full casual furniture retail outlet on Dixie Highway, they called on Bob Beattie (a cousin of Ed's) from Beattie Interiors to assist in the design and development of the expanded retail operation.

Bob was later joined by Kay Beattie Brown, who was previously employed as a medical social worker for the past 12 years. The two have developed the newest and most unusual casual furniture showroom in the area.

Bob says that they have created their own "mini Builders/ Home Show right here in Clarkston.

The decking was constructed by K & Hill Construction of Clarkston; the patio design and construction was done by Lowrie Landscape of Clarkston; and the waterfall and stream were built by Waterfall Construction of Davisburg. Also, the leaded beveled glass doors and window are the work of A World of Glass of Waterford.

Sun Valley has future plans that include the creation of duplicated patio entrances from what would appear to be the outer wall of a home.

They have secured some of the finest names in the casual furniture industry to be displayed in the new showroom.

These include Lloyd Flanders wicker, D & F wicker, Winston aluminum, Woodard wrought iron, Grosfillex resin, Tropitone aluminum, Stotter and Contempo accessories and much more—all added to the full line of Moon Valley Rustic lawn furniture.

The staff at Sun Valley Casual Furniture invite everyone to come in and see what casual furniture might look like on your deck, lawn or patio area.

REAL-LIFE displays such as this waterfall give the show room an outdoor atmosphere.

They have secured some of the finest names in the casual furniture industry to be displayed in the new showroom.

LLOYD Flanders wicker sofa, love seat and chairs are an inviting seating arrangement with safari green frames and a lightly-colored spring floral cover.

STRIKING in red and white is a new, exciting group with sling seating and matching umbrella.

A TROPITONE 1 oval dining group in slate blue is an attractive seating arrangement, with its blue and white striped cushions and umbrella.

others in the Beattie family formed Sun Valley Casual Furniture.

AllState office caters to claims large and small

Manned by a staff of two, the AllState Insurance office at Sashabaw Road and I-75 is looking to expand its services in the upcoming year.

Taking on the added duties are Senior Account Agent Judy Livingston and Cynthia Lohmeier, a licensed sales associate.

Presently, the branch offers insurance for life, auto-

However, more patrons are looking into the office's minor claim and small claim coverages. Livingston said her office has only offered minor claim coverage since last fall.

This particular policy would cover homeowners, boats and recreational vehicles. The policies are consid-

Small claims coverage, on the otherhand, enables a person to collect money in situations that could only be dealt with in small claims court. For example, if a person is involved in an auto accident and is not at fault, this policy would enable him to collect a deductible of up to $400 from the guilty party's insurance company.

As far as Livingston knows, her office is the only one in the immediate area that offers this type of service.

Livingston has been involved in the insurance business since her high school graduation. She has been an agent with AllState since 1979 and in charge of the Sashabaw branch for the past four years.

She said the most enjoyable part of her job is interacting with people.

"I like meeting people and helping them with their insurance questions and needs," Livingston said. "I used to be a claims adjuster, and I'd have to deal with people after they had an accident. Now, I can help them before some problem arises."

She has been a resident of Independence Township since 1969, and all three of her children have attended Clarkston schools. Livingston said that she and Lohmeier, another Independence resident, enjoy the area and are active in many community activities.

Traditional to contemporary styles at Men's World

ASSISTING customers with style and color choices is part of every sale for Gary Forst, owner of Men's World in White Lake Commons, Dixie Highway. Forst selects quality merchandise that may be offered at an affordable price.

Men's World opened in November at 7113 Dixie Highway in the new White Lake Commons. Forst also owns a similar store in Richmond.

Along with a wide range of suits, ties and dress accessories, Men's World also carries sportswear.

Items reflect a trend toward more comfortable-fitting slacks and "fun" colors.

Suits, also, are showing a trend toward comfort with relaxed shoulders and a looser fit, according to Forst. Customers can rent tuxedos at Men's World, and the store offers in-house tailoring.

But no matter what is purchased at the store, the customers receive personalized attention.

"If it doesn't fit or look good on a customer, we're honest with him," Forst says. "If he puts on gray, we're going to sway him to brown or whatever looks good on him."

Though Forst admits it can be challenging to change a customer's view "after years of thinking that only certain colors and styles look good on him," the effort is almost always worth it.

Brose customers illuminated by range of services

To say that Brose Electric Shop is a full-service lighting store is almost an understatement.

Along with stocking a full-range of lamps and lighting fixtures in its showroom at 5897 Dixie Highway, Independence Township, Brose offers repairs, sells a variety of light bulbs and will even visit your home to advise you on your lighting situation.

"We sell and service anything having to do with lighting," says owner Don Brose.

This year, outside landscape lighting will be added to Brose's long list of services.

A Brose representative will arrive at a customer's home with a test kit and may suggest a variety of alternatives.

Some examples of outside landscape lighting include an "uplighting" effect, which involves placing a light in the ground and shining it upwards through tree branches.

Another effect is created by "silhouetting," or shining a light diagonally at an object and creating a shadow on an outside wall of some type.

"You can really beautify the outside by lighting it in DON BROSE stands among the dozens of lighting fixtures he sells at Brose Electric, Independence Township. The full-service store sells everything pertaining to lighting and will even make house calls to assess lighting needs.

"We're more public-retail oriented," Don explains. "Our prices for people who come off the street are the same as what most lighting stores sell to builders."

In keeping with changing preferences, Brose maintains an updated inventory.

Some examples of outside landscape lighting include an "uplighting" effect, which involves placing a light in the ground and shining it upwards through tree branches.

Particularly popular this year are saucer lighting fixtures, in which light bulbs are encased within contemporary-looking discs and are hung from above.

Halogen lights are also popular, according to Brose. These lights give off more light per wattage and are, therefore, more energy efficient.

Perhaps the best thing Brose offers its customers is its years of experience in the lighting industry.

"There is often a lot of planning involved," Don explains. "If you don't do it right you're in trouble."

"We have knowledgeable sales people," he adds. "We carry the least expensive to the top of the line. A customer needs to know which are the best quality fixtures and which are not."

"If they need help with a particular size," he says, "We'd be happy to do that, too."

Camera Bug ideal for video and camera buffs

With a bevy of services and accessories, Camera Bug and Video has distinguished itself as a commonplace for photography and video enthusiasts.

Located in the Waterfall Plaza on Dixie Highway, the store has moved its office space two doors from where it had been the past 11 years. The business was established by Rick and Jeri LaDue in 1975.

The couple opened their first store in Union Lake before adding the Waterfall Plaza facility in 1980. The LaDues said they chose the present location because of the area's growth potential and its accessibility to a major roadway.

"We chose this location because it's such a nice plaza, and this part of Dixie Highway is very accessible to both Independence and Waterford townships," Rick LaDue Married for nearly 18 years, the LaDues have different opinions on the most challenging aspects of their jobs as co-owners.

The store also has a wide array of used cameras and accessories at reduced prices.

"For me, the most challenging part of my job is being able to help a customer with their photo techniques and having their photos turn out good," said Jeri, a 15-year professional of wedding photography. "But it's worth it when the person shows me some pictures that have turned out great."

Rick's biggest challenge, however, is more along the lines of business.

"The biggest challenge is trying to pull a living out of this line of work," Rick said. "With the competitiveness of our market it can become pretty difficult, but through the highs and lows we're making it."

said. "Eleven years later, I still think this is a great location because we're not too south or too north on Dixie."

In the way of goods and services, Camera Bug and Video is sufficiently stocked. Besides selling camera and video equipment, the store offers one-hour film development, equipment repair, passport photos, wedding photography and wedding videotaping plus movie reel-to-video tape conversions. The store also has a wide array of used cameras and accessories at reduced prices.

Rick LaDue said the stores were the first in the Detroit-metropolitan area to get into the video line. He said they began offering video products and accessories nearly nine years ago.

"As far as I know, we were the first business around to offer video products, and our accessories are cheaper than most you'll find at larger competitors," he said.

There's no layer of management to get through to the boss at Carpet Crafters.

Keith Dutcher, owner of the carpet store, is almost always available to his customers.

If he isn't in the store, it's because he's out installing carpet or vinyl flooring.

Keith's 16-year-old business has two full-time employees and one part-time employee.

There's one person in the store at all times to help customers with their selections of carpet, vinyl flooring, wallpaper or blinds. Customers can also purchase supplies for wallpapering or carpet cleaning at the store.

Keith offers free estimates and will install carpet

"We don't work on commission, so a customer will have someone to talk to for help — or be left alone to browse," he says.

Keith is happy with his Dixie Highway location in Springfield Township because it's close to his home, and the rent isn't as high as it would be if he were in downtown Clarkston, he says.

"My overhead is lower, and it allows me to offer lower prices," Keith says.

Keith can service his customers with lower prices, or prices comparable to larger carpet stores, because he uses his own labor when installing floor covering.

Keith enjoys the installation aspect of the business.

"I like to take a room that looks like the pits and turn it into something beautiful when I'm done," he says with pride.

One of Keith's specialties is repairing carpet and vinyl flooring.

Blomberg, Tiffani Graff, Joan Negip, Nancy Upperstrom and co-owner Caroline Dicks. Missing from the photo is employee Michelle Watkins.

When Joy's Hair Studio stylists get their fingers in your hair, they do it with experience.

The nine stylists have a combined 128 years of experience in the business.

Co-owners Gail Rudd and Caroline Dicks bought the studio on Dixie Highway nearly two years ago after working together at a salon for over 20 years in Waterford.

Since that time, they have increased the number of employees from six to 11. Along with the stylists, three employees are also nail technicians.

In addition to their experience, Joy's also takes pride in their work.

"We stand behind our work," said Caroline. "It's guaranteed to the customer's satisfaction."

The first thing the co-owners did when they bought the business was make more room for their employees and customers.

"We took a small salon and opened it up," said Gail.

The physical structure inside isn't the only thing that has opened up.

"Our employees have an open atmosphere together, along with the customers," said Caroline. In other words, there is often as much friendly talking as clipping at the studio.

All that talking isn't just between women. About 30 percent of Joy's business is with men. And many children are also customers.

CO-OWNER Caroline Dicks and her partner Gail Rudd have expanded their staff of employees from six to 11 in the nearly two years they have owned the business.

Joy's offers many special services not only in hair cuts (design, buzz cuts, head graffiti) but also perms (spiral, piggy back, root), color (foiling, glitzing, staining) and nails (fiberglass).

A pedicurist is on staff for unique toe techniques.

Eyebrow arching for men and women is available, along with ear piercing for both genders.

Plus, Gail is up on the latest in makeup techniques. Consultations are available, and she can train each client how to make up her own face.

Mom watches son thrive at Children's Tree

"As a parent, I worried that a new day care situation would upset my child," says Marti Walts. "I never dreamed he would cry when leaving his new friends at the end of the day."

The Children's Tree Day Care and Learning Center celebrates its first year of operation. The clean, attractive facility with well-decorated rooms avails itself to a positive and nurturing atmosphere.

time, supervised free play, outdoor exercise and rest time. Children spend most of their day within their own age group, yet positive interaction between all ages occurs. As a result, children can learn to deal with a wide range of situations and people.

"My son just loves playing with all his friends at The Children's Tree," says Marti. "As a matter of fact, he has asked me on the weekend, 'Mom, where are all the kids?'"

At the center, preschool classes are available for children at various developmental stages. Children gain school readiness skills through instruction by certified teachers in a non-competitive, stress-free environment. Seasonal topics are discussed, then reinforced through music, stories, visual aids and/or art projects.

Extended care for school-age children runs from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday. Special music, athletics and cultural programs are available at various times throughout the calendar year. Summer programs are designed to keep active minds and bodies challenged.

In all the programs at the center, children are encouraged through positive reinforcement, respect for others and use of their verbal skills to express their thoughts and feelings. When discipline is necessary, children are required to take "time out" to think about and discuss how their actions affect others.

"They named it right," says Marti. "This is where I want my son to learn and grow."

Cedar Crest promotes experiential learning

Sounds of laughing children fill Cedar Crest Academy's (CCA) play yard and echo across Bridge Lake.

Children develop their muscles and their imaginations as they climb on the modular play structure located behind their school.

The structure, built specially for them by an Amish company in Pennsylvania, sprawls over a bed of sand.

"The parents assembled it," says Dollie Imbrunone, co-director of the academy.

She says parents who send their children to Cedar Crest are very supportive of activities at the school. They are looking for an education that makes a difference and are willing to sacrifice to make it happen.

The creative play structure is just one facet of educating the total child, which is the philosophy at Cedar Crest.

During the past year, the curriculum has emphasized a total integration of the arts — visual, performing, music, languages, literature — with academics.

And development of a new computer-assisted automated library has helped the process.

The school educates children from junior kindergarten (4-year-olds) through eighth grade. It is located off Dixie Highway in Springfield Township, 7/10 of a mile north of I-75.

Bette Moen, co-director with Dollie, says, "Education is one of the most important gifts you give your children. Socrates believed that oneself was one's best teacher. CCA follows a child's being and teaches to his individuality — building self-esteem all along."

The academy emphasizes experiential learning based on the wisdom of an ancient Chinese proverb:

Tell me, I forget.

Show me, I remember.

Involve me, I understand.

This philosophy is carried through with academic subjects such as math and geography.

"We support progressive learning for a world of tomorrow," says Bette. She explains that geography is taught through all grades with special emphasis for the United States in fourth grade and for the world in eighth grade.

The academy's commitment to education doesn't end with the school day or with the students.

After-school enrichment classes of art, music, drama and dance are offered at the campus and are open to the community.

Bette and Dollie have been tutoring Clarkston area students for 10 years. Today, the staff members continue with their tradition of effecting success for all children.

"Kids operate out of their being no matter where they are," says Bette. "Good education is important for all children, and all children in the U.S. deserve it."

"Totto-Chan: The Little Girl at the Window" by Tetsuko Kuroyanagi reflects CCA's philosophy. Bette gave the book to her teachers for holiday gifts. And she recommends all parents, teachers and students read the book written by UNICEF's goodwill ambassador.

Cars, customers tended at Clarkston Auto Body

A vehicle collision is never a welcome experience, but employees at Clarkston Auto Body, Inc., work to make it as painless as possible.

One of the most important elements the shop offers its customers is attitude.

"I can appreciate that they don't have a car and need it," explains Vice President Dale Verhey.

"We try to offer personal service," he adds. "We've run people home; I've given people rides to and from work — we even took one lady to the doctor and waited for her.

"I just felt bad," Dale shrugs.

Once a car is in the hands of repairmen at Clarkston Auto Body, a customer can be assured of qualified attention, Dale says.

Each employee at the shop has studied his trade at I-

Cars are no longer classified as "frame cars" but rather are made of high-strength steel and various plastics.

Cars that undergo paint work at Clarkston Auto Body also receive special attention. The shop recently added a state-of-the-art paint booth.

Employees first apply special primers with a Urethane finish. The paint is custom-mixed on the premises and is sprayed onto the car in the sealed booth.

The paint is then "baked" onto the car with tempera-

Recycling trend growing through Smith's Disposal

Ten years ago when Smith Disposal bought out Powell Disposal, Ken Smith says he never envisioned the changes that would occur in the trash hauling business.

The advent of recycling caused a name change in the business to Smith Disposal and Recycling, Inc.

As a family-owned business, Leonard and Doris Smith and their adult children, Ken and Carol, are keeping pace with the recycling business.

Red pails now dot the disposal pick-up route. They serve as containers for Smith's customers to sort out their recyclable goods.

The new service started in January 1990, and about 50 percent of their customers now use the recycling service, Ken says.

"When we started, we had about 25-30 percent of our customers using the recycling, but it's been a steady growth," he says.

In the pails customers can place glass bottles, jars and tin cans, but paper labels must be removed. Aluminum cans are accepted.

Newspapers are collected if they're bundled or bagged, and now plastic bottles — such as milk jugs, water jugs, soap and softener bottles and dressing bottles — are collected for recycling.

The new service started in January 1990, and about 50 percent of their customers now use the recycling service.

To collect all of the items, the Smiths bought a $60,000 recycling truck, which has separate bins for the recyclable goods.

"We have two trucks on the road now, just to pick up for recycling," Ken says.

The cost of using landfills keeps going up, and this year the fuel prices have been fluctuating because of the Persian Gulf crisis.

Ken says he now must take all of the refuse collected to a landfill in Grand Blanc because the landfill in

SMITH'S Disposal and Recycling of Independence Township now has a truck that collects recyclable goods from customers. Bob Dersa, a Smith employee who lives in Lapeer, says recycling makes his job easy because jars, bottles and cans are washed by the customers, and newspapers are bundled.

Waterford was closed down. The cost of being a garbage hauler keeps him busy calculating expenses.

"It's more wear and tear on the trucks taking them a longer distance," he says. "And it's difficult to get rid of tires."

But as the expense rises of ridding each household and business of its refuse and as the general population becomes more aware of the mounting pile of garbage mankind is accumulating, Ken Smith is satisfied with servicing his customers' disposal needs.

"I want to satisfy my customers and at the same time keep my prices as low as I can," Ken says.

As Smith's business continues to grow, future plans include opening an office at Valentine's Industrial Park on Andersonville Road, Springfield Township.

'Service' is the key at Oxford Bank

Oxford Bank redecorated its Main Office in Oxford and added a full service branch in Ortonville during 1990. It is refreshing to find a bank which, even after experiencing rapid growth including the addition of two branches and a finance center over the past few years, still exudes a sincere personal concern for all of its patrons.

In this its 106th year, Oxford Bank is the oldest commercial bank in Oakland County. Locally owned and operated, the bank offers its customers a full range of financial products and services, plus Saturday banking hours and a decided edge in friendly, professional service.

Along with five full service banking locations in Oxford, Orion Township, Oakland Township, Ortonville, and Independence Township, Oxford Bank also operates a very modern and well staffed Finance Center situated directly behind the Main Office in downtown Oxford.

"We are a community bank," emphasized Sue Hodge, Asst. Vice President. "Our customers in the communities we service are the reason we have remained in existence for 106 years. We show our thanks to them by trying to make them feel as welcome, and as special to us as they are. Our officers and employees take part in a variety of community service groups," added Hodge. "It is our way of giving a little bit back to our communities."

Lobby hours for all Oxford Bank locations are 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday; 9 a.m. - 6 p.m. on Friday; and 9 a.m. - 12 noon on Wednesday and Saturday.

Drive-thru windows are open Monday through Friday 9 a.m. - 6 p.m. at all offices. Saturday hours vary by location; in Clarkston, Lake Orion, and Oxford, they are open 9 a.m. - 6 p.m. On Saturday, Addison Oaks and Ortonville drive-thru hours are 9 a.m. - 1 p.m.

Friendly, polite, knowledgeable service at Nichols

Extreme temperature changes can make area residents happy that Therm Nichols' company is there for friendly service.

His logo of the Indian head nickel is a familiar sight around the Clarkston area.

And his company, Nichols Heating and Cooling, Inc., often is just as comforting a sight. The company specializes in heating and cooling in new and existing commercial and residential buildings.

The business began in 1976. Therm operated it out of his Paramus, Independence Township, home, where he

In 1983, the business moved to its present location, which was a good move, says Therm.

"The exposure on Dixie Highway is good for business," he explains.

While he found teaching rewarding, it also paid off in another way. Four of Therm's employees were OTCNC students.

While heating and cooling homes are the mainstay of Therm's business, he also offers air cleaners for indoor air quality. Energy-saving devices, such as timed thermostats and vent dampers, can add up to more efficient methods of heating.

The company also services existing furnaces in homes, Therm says.

While Therm is proud of his employees' technical ability, he also is pleased with their ethics and polite manners. He adds that his customers have every reason to feel comfortable about his employees servicing their equipment.

"We're fair and honest, experienced and knowledgeable," Therm says. "We care about our customers."

Harp's Sales and Service owner Gary Seidler stands by one of the quality tractors he is proud to sell.

Harp's Sales and Service owner Gary Seidler will only carry quality equipment that his staff has tested themselves.

"Nothing is here at our business that has not been tested," Seidler said. "We get the suppliers to keep up with our demands. We are hardest on our suppliers because we are on the customer's side. We won't keep a distributor if they give us bad products or bad service."

Seidler, whose business is located at 1060 South Lapeer in Oxford Township, purchased the business four years ago. All together Harp's has been at that location for 31 years.

Harp's prides itself on quality sales and service

"Since we bought the business, we've more than doubled sales over the last three years," Seidler said proudly. "We have good service, good market strategy and a good product line."

He said his reputation helped him bring in the Michigan Snowmobile Association and the Michigan Snowman's Association, whose members rely on him for good, fast snowmobile sales and service.

In addition to Ski-Doo snowmobiles, Harp's carries Simplicity tractors, Wheel Horse tractors and other famous brands like Toro, Snapper, Ariens, Lawn Boy, Stihl, Poulon and Red Max.

Seidler said though other stores carry the brands he does, they do not offer the quality service after the sale that Harp's has prided itself on.

"You can buy a Toro lawn mower or Ski-Doo snowmobile anywhere," he said. "It's more than just selling the product to you. It's the set-ups before the customer gets it. A lot of places they hand it to you in a box. Everything's set up here. We teach people how to use our products. We try to educate our customers on what they are buying."

"We service everything we carry," Seidler said, adding that he carries $200,000 worth of parts. "Our high-performance Ski-Doo service has built a reputation second to none. On a scale of one-to-four, our service is four absolutely. Our speciality is snowmobiles, but we can fix tractors."

Harp's also features free pick up and delivery, if the piece of equipment is still under warranty. They will also call people with estimates. "We cater to our customers after the sale," Seidler said. He offers a 30-day warranty on the used tractors, snowmobiles and lawn mowers he sells. He added that he stays away from dealing with used snowmobiles unless he knows who has owned them previously.

One new product line Seidler is proud to carry is the Red Max weed trimmers, which suits many people's weed-trimming needs. "Nothing's here that's not been tested. There are a lot of different trimmers. We want to service your needs and not carry the biggest product. We ask people what they plan to do with the equipment, so we can find out what best meets their needs," Seidler said.

One thing about his type of business that is challenging, according to Seidler, is that fact that his store is always changing. "It's always changing because you're always dealing with so many different products and systems," he said. "We're getting into high performance deeper and deeper in snowmobiles and most dealers don't do that. We offer that personal touch."

Seidler, who originally came from Missouri, enjoys working in Oxford and said he has a great location in a growth area. "I just like the atmosphere out here," the owner said. "It's not the city rush with the hustle and bustle. It's a lot slower pace, more my style."

Harp's Sales and Service is open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. and Thursday from 9 a.m. until 7 p.m. The phone number is 628-1521.

Chamber provides connections, information

THE ANNUAL business expo sponsored by the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce attracts all sort of exhibitors and onlookers. Here, Gil Davenport of Graphic One talks with Carol Carpentier of Main Street USA during the expo last November.

Lots of benefits may be derived from membership in the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce.

From the annual business expo to the newly-formed Business Committee Review, the chamber allows area businesses a voice in the community.

Following is a summary of chamber activity:

In recent action, the Business Committee Review acted as a liaison between the business community and Independence Township regarding a sign ordinance.

The committee presented slides plus lots of facts and the results of a business survey. Plus, the chamber board of directors issued a statement reflecting the majority view on the ordinance.

In the end, the proposed ordinance was changed to better meet the needs of the businesses.

But overall, the most valuable result of the committee's involvement was a better understanding for township planners as well as businesses in the area.

Another valuable — and fun — benefit from the chamber is the annual community expo. Each year, the chamber offers display space to area businesses and invites the entire community to inspect the area services and goods.

In 1990, the quality and number of booths improved over the previous years, and attendance was up. The evening allows area merchants to meet others to share ideas and information — plus it's a good way to showcase their individual businesses.

Another major event each year is the golf outing. The event has proven the most profitable fund-raiser for the chamber, and plans already are underway in organizing this year's outing, which includes a day of golf, prizes and a luncheon.

The chamber also has periodical member mixers, at which time speakers are invited to address timely issues.

Upcoming mixers are as follows:

■ Thursday, March 21: Member mixer at Cherry Hill Lanes North, Dixie Highway, Independence Township; 11:30 a.m.; speaker Dick Carlisle, the Independence Township planning consultant, is to address street lighting on Dixie Highway.

■ Thursday, April 18: Member mixer at Cherry Hill Lanes North; 11:30 a.m.; health insurance workshop.

■ Thursday, June 6: Annual meeting at Cherry Hill Lanes North; 11:30 a.m.; speaker to be determined.

As always, the chamber welcomes new members — just call 625-8055 for information.

Please call the Chamber office if you have any news or bulletins for the Clarkston area. (625-8055)

JENNY KAIZER looks over the new plants growing in the state-of-the-art greenhouse at the Clarkston Bordine's Better Blooms store on Dixie Highway, Springfield Township. A new greenhouse is planned for perennials as well.

Bordine's: quality plants, knowledgeable people

Most businesses can be deemed a success if they increase and grow, and Bordine's Better Blooms is definitely increasing and growing.

Growing is their business, and they have increased in size since Marian and Darrell Bordine first opened in 1939 in Rochester. Now, their son, Bruce, is president of the company, which includes two stores.

The Rochester store is situated on 30 acres, and the Clarkston store in Springfield Township near I-75 and Dixie Highway sits on 40 acres.

Bordine's is a complete garden center with a nursery, greenhouse, landscape, florist and growers to help with shopping and planting needs for beginning and experienced gardeners.

Questions about plants or plantings can be answered by any number of the trained employees at Bordine's. On staff are: Michigan Certified Nurserymen, Master Gardeners, floral designers and landscape designers, says it," says Brenda.

Variety is a specialty at Bordine's.

"Bordine's has the largest variety of plant material and depth of product in specific items. ... For example, we carry over 700 varieties of perennials," says Brenda.

Perennials are fast becoming a favorite for today's gardener. They are some of the most popular items at Bordine's, and they're available all summer long.

"We carry over 700 varieties of perennials."

Brenda Vaughn

In the spring, hundreds of flats of annuals line the aisles, giving customers some of the largest selections available, she says.

Annuals grown at Bordine's high-tech, greenhouse have the utmost help needed for the best growing conditions.

The greenhouse is made of state-of-the-art technology with a computer helping to speed up plant production and make it more precise.

"The computer actually talks to you," Brenda says. The popular perennials soon will have a new spot for growing, too — a greenhouse for them will be completed later this spring.

Continuing expansion for Bordine's includes a possible third location to be announced at a later date. And to meet the needs of a greener society, Bordine's plants trees in school yards and parks throughout local communities for Michigan Global Releaf.

"We nurture our product throughout the season, continually watering, pruning and fertilizing our plant material so it's at its peak at all times — or we don't sell it."

STEP INTO '91

SECTION B
The Clarkston News
20th PROGRESS EDITION
Wednesday, March 6, 1991

Step into 1991 indeed! With the announcement of a cease fire in Iraq February 27 the year ahead took on new, grander meaning. The last quarter of 1990 was a real downer, what with the capture of Kuwait and our country's involvement in retaking it.

However, since the first of 1991 there has been a rebirth of patriotism in Northeast Oakland County and all across America. The renewed interest in our flag, in our national anthem and in our people in military service has been uplifting emotionally and spiritually.

Now, in a new year, with the war over and Spring beginning, we can all look for PROGRESS in 1991. Look for small steps leading to larger and larger steps as we progress through this year . . . a year that will start us on another series of economically good times through the decade of the '90s.

Prized collections start and build at Sally Ann's

Upon entering Sally Ann's Collectibles, the eye is drawn to hundreds of figurines, china dolls, crystal pieces, lithographs and hundreds of other items filling the space at 5655 Dixie Highway, Waterford Township.

The pieces are not just gift items — though they would please the most discriminating tastes — they're collectible items.

A typical customer at Sally Ann's is working to build a collection, whether it is David Winter cottages, Hummel figurines, crystal pieces by Swarovski or a variety of other items.

The sheer number of collectible items on display is prompting owner Sally Battishill to expand her store to the space next door.

The sheer number of collectible items on display is prompting owner Sally Battishill to expand her store to the space next door.

COLLECTING from the variety of selections at Sally Ann's Collectibles is made easier by a knowledgeable staff, including (from right)

Sherrill Raguso, Marj Holliday, Theresa Mitschke, Char Hargis, Lori Hackbardt, Sally Ann Battishill and Tom Hackbardt.

"There are a lot of collectors out there," Sally says. "A lot of stores don't sell collectibles."

Manufacturers of collectible items select certain stores to carry their items to insure authenticity, she adds.

Sally, herself a collector, started with an interest in Koala bears. After enduring some changes in her personal life, Sally attended night school and researched the business.

The store that resulted, Sally Ann Collectibles, opened two-and-a-half years ago.

Likely the biggest challenge in operating such a business is in keeping track of each group of collectibles.

Sally notifies her customers if a new piece to their collection has been released by the manufacturer or whether a piece is about to retire.

Many collectible items sponsor clubs, which provide members with an annual newsletter and allow them to purchase an item through a store such as Sally Ann's "Customers read so much on (their collections). If a new collector starts, he wants to know all about it."

— which no other non-member can purchase.

Sally Ann's also participates in a program called Bradford Exchange, which allows customers access to secondary market plates, current plates and dolls advertised nationally.

Each collectible item requires Sally and her staff to maintain a high level of knowledge.

"Customers read so much on their collections," she explains. "If a new collector starts, he wants to know all about it."

Sally is assisted in her complicated business by "knowledgeable employees," each of whom are collectors themselves.

One employee, who overhears herself described this way, quips, "Well if I didn't collect when I started here, I certainly do now."

And what a better place to start, than at Sally Ann Collectibles?

New location doubles Gayanne's Floral Concepts

After seven years of operation, Gayanne's Floral Concepts, Inc., continues to grow in ways their customers can appreciate.

Formerly in two separate locations within one shopping center, Gayanne's has moved into a new, larger shop in Northway Plaza at 5338 Dixie Highway, Waterford Township.

The new store is convenient to both Waterford and Clarkston and offers customers easy access off Dixie Highway.

The facility is double the size of the Gayanne's former operation, offering shoppers a showroom full of silk arrangements, gifts, plants, fresh flowers and holiday displays.

A large workroom behind the showroom allows employees plenty of space for arranging.

Gayanne's daughter, Aimey Wood, works as bookkeeper at the store, and Gayanne's husband, Brian Beatty, also pitches in.

Though the location of Gayanne's is different, efforts to assist their customers and others remains the same.

One of Gayanne's recent projects allowed employees to help raise money for Children's Hospital.

The store worked with the Piston's Palace Foundation to create a Christmas tree in the Festival of Trees. The tree earned $10,000 and earned employees a blue ribbon for their efforts.

"We like to satisfy our customers," says owner Gayanne Beatty. "We like to make them feel at home, and we treat them as friends, not just the buying public."

Sections of Gayanne's showroom have been designed to help customers "feel at home."

In the bridal area, for instance, a floral table and chairs awaits customers making decisions on flowers for their big day. The area is surrounded with bridal bouquets, accessories and gift ideas.

Other sections display gifts for the new baby or gifts marking a particular holiday.

As a full-service florist, Gayanne's can send flowers around the world. The shop arranges flowers for weddings, parties and any other occasion.

"We're careful to listen to what customers want," Gayanne says. "We're not afraid to try something new."

Carla's combines old with new for real progress

BY CARLA DUTCHER

Progress? I look around at my collection of antique curling irons and my odds and ends of old metal and leather curlers, and I realize that progress sometimes means no more than updating what we've already created, adding a modern twist and combining it with updated product knowledge.

One of our younger clients mentioned she had "ironed" her hair recently — she and her friends were straightening their spiral perms we worked so hard to put in. I remember 20-some years ago at Clarkston High School my friends were using Mom's ironing board and iron to straighten their hair.

And what about the newest hairsetter on the market? The rollers resemble "spoolies." What a great new idea but it was there all along. That's progress — especially in our industry — a little bit of the old and a lot of the new.

Carla's of Clarkston, at I-75 and Dixie Highway, welcomes three new staff members. Kelly Smith of Clarkston joins Karen Miriani of Keego Harbor and Marie Ahonen of Ortonville in the nail room. Kelly and Marie specialize in acrylics, tips, sculptured nails, manicures and nail art.

In honor of the men and women serving in the Middle East, they have created patriotic designs that their clients are proud to wear on their nails. Karen specializes in the natural nail for those who prefer a low maintenance and paraffin dip therapy for the hands. Her nail art consists of jewels and glitter.

Our receptionist, Joanie Bachor of Clarkston, takes care of the staff's needs so we can attend to our clients without interruption. She is appreciated by staff and clients for her friendliness and efficiency.

Kathe Payne of Ortonville has been a pleasant addition to our styling team. Lisa Cooper of Waterford, Ann Austin of Davisburg and Suzan Boothe of Davisburg are looking forward to a new year of continuing education, as am I.

Throughout the year we attend workshops and shows, learning the latest in hair fashion trends for men and women. We introduced "LOGICS" COLOR SYSTEM by Clairol to our clients this year. LOGICS offers endless possibilities for our clients' hair, and gray coverage results are incredible.

In addition to the NEXXUS and SCRUPLES retail lines, we now carry APOTHECARY by SCRUPLES, VAVOOM by MATRIX and MALIBU for "well water" damaged hair.

We have a continuous senior citizen discount program, and every Monday our prices are discounted. We are open six days a week and have evening hours on Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Custom-designed rings and other pieces glitter from their cases on one side of the room.

A true source of pride to Cole is his diamond baguette collection. The rings have been individually crafted in a variety of unique settings that must be seen to be appreciated.

The 14-karat gold sports pieces, some studded with diamonds and other gems, represent 26 activities.

Sports lovers from around the world purchase Cole's pieces from catalogues, pro and specialty shops and, of course, from the store itself.

Cole refers to his custom-designed pieces as "non-supermarket items."

He explains that while some jewelry stores offer rings that may be found in other malls or chain stores, his

Consortium works to untangle life's problems

David Kohne

"Help is close at hand to untangle life's problems," reads a brochure for the Consortium for Human Development in Independence Township.

And true to the organization's mission, several programs have been developed to help in the untangling.

One long-running and far-reaching program targets teens who may be showing behavioral or emotional problems or who may show signs of substance abuse.

Called S.A.F.E. or Student Assessment for Future Excellence, the program is usually set in motion by a principal, teacher or counselor.

A student visits the Consortium for a free assessment; a full report, with recommendations, is then made to the school and the teen's parents.

If treatment is recommended, the student may return to the Consortium or may be referred elsewhere for treatment.

In the S.A.F.E. program's three-year existence, more than 120 students have participated in the referral program and more than 70 percent of those teens have entered therapy — either alone or with their families, according to the Consortium staff.

The Consortium will soon offer a support group to teens and parents in addition to the S.A.F.E. program.

Dave Kohne is a certified marriage counselor; Lisa Padzensky specializes in the child, adolescent and family;

Pete Zimmer has provided contact with six schools for several years, initiating S.A.F.E. program; and Ron August works with children, psychological testing and sports psychology.

In 1991, the organization also added several new groups and workshops to help educate the public and to offer support in a variety of areas.

A women's support group, called Creating Healthy

Relationships Without Dependency, explores emotions resulting from unfulfilling relationships, such as: anger, fear, shame, pain, resentment, one-sided love, verbal or physical abuse and lack of trust.

Another workshop helps participants explore their childhoods as an adult.

For athletes, the Consortium offers a workshop focusing on "how to train your brain" while you train your body.

The one-night workshop is titled Improving Your Odds in Competitive Sports - The Psychology of Winning.

Along with these special workshops, the Consortium offers help with a Cross Addiction Group, a Sexual Addiction Group and an Eating Disorders group.

All groups charge a fee. Insurance may cover some group therapy; if participants have difficulty with payments, a sliding fee scale can be arranged.

The Consortium for Human Development was established in 1971 and has expanded to three locations.

The organization is accredited by the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Health Care Organizations and is licensed by the Office of Substance Abuse Services.

Discover what landscaping really means

FOUR landscaping crews are employed by Environmental Artists to ensure quality work.

When designing a landscape, Environmental Artists considers much more than sunny and shady areas of the site.

The designers also take into account the accompanying architectural styles, lighting and textures.

"A good landscape must also improve the owner's quality of life and enhance the property's marketability and value," said owner Jeffrey Hennig.

Hennig, who grew up in the Clarkston area, takes pride in his work.

"When you trust your landscape to Environmental Artists, you acquire a team of professionals dedicated to designing and building an innovative, one-of-a-kind solution for your property," he said.

Short of an entire remodeling job, renovating a landscape is the most dramatic way to enhance the look of a tired, dated-looking home, Hennig said.

Husband, wife team successful in kids clothing

Side-by-side, this husband and wife team works together.

Connie and Sandra Bruce co-own retail businesses that complement each other.

Country Cords and Clarkston Stride Rite are in Ritter's Country Square and offer families one-stop shopping for children's clothing and footwear.

The Bruces opened a children's store 12 years ago in downtown Clarkston. Five years ago they moved to the Dixie Highway location and added a women's clothing store.

Then, in July 1990, when Connie retired from his position with the school system, the couple decided a children's shoe store would better complement the children's clothing store than women's apparel.

Connie says they researched shoe companies and chose Stride Rite because "Stride Rite offered the best quality, service and dependability. It's the first (shoe) company to be granted the seal of American Podiatric Medical Association."

The APMA seal is displayed amidst tiny pink, red, white and black patent leather shoes, fancy socks, designer tennis shoes and assorted shoes from B to EEE widths. Wall shelves are filled with shoes from size zero to boys 6 and girls 4.

To be a Stride Rite dealer Connie must carry 80 percent of their products. The store also carries Nike, L.A. Gear, Minnetonka - an Indian moccasin for girls — and Sam and Libby — a well-priced, comfortable, dressy missy shoes. For next fall, four new all-weather boot lines will be available.

Eddie Wendland, manager of the children's shoe store, brings enthusiasm and nine years of fitting experience to her new job.

She says the most challenging part of the business is "to be able to please our customers, to (let them) know that they are getting a qualified person to fit their children with shoes, (and) quality products.

Eddie keeps a card file on all customers. She sends reminders for checking shoe fits.

Stride rite offers a preferred customer program. After the 12th purchase, a credit for the average price is applied to the 13th purchase.

"We're always open to customer suggestions. We'd like to hear what they have to say and would like to work with those suggestions," says Edie.

Sandie Bruce echoes Edie's comment for Country Cords' customers.

"I enjoy the people contact," she says. "We have an excellent regular customer base that our staff works to maintain and expand. We know the needs of our area, and are always open to suggestions or improvement."

Country Cords offers free gift wrapping, 20 percent off every Monday, brother and sister outfits, wearable art, fancy hair bows, soft rattles, stuffed animals and adjustable birthstone rings.

Also offered is specialty clothing from preemies to infants to boys size 7 and girls size 14 — and that's not an easy task.

"I enjoy the people contact."

Sandra Bruce

"One of the most challenging areas of retail is an ability to keep up with the changing trends," Sandie says. "You can't sit still and order basics. You must keep yourself updated with fashion through the clothes shows and magazines and be willing to make changes with the times."

She credits her business' success to the personal service offered in Country Cords and to the fact that the customers find fresh items there — she doesn't duplicate lines sold by mass merchandisers.

Sandie searches for quality at a reasonable price and stands behind all merchandise she sells.

"If the manufacturer is not going to back us, we're not going to sell it," she says.

The Bruces' five children worked in the business while they were in school — in sales, stock or maintenance.

Connie and Sandie say they are pleased with the easy in-and-out location, ample customer parking spaces, new facility and high traffic area.

They welcome families. To keep little ones happy while shopping, they offer the latest children's videos and educational toys for play areas.

EDIE Wendland, manager of Clarkston Stride Rite, and Sandra Bruce, co-owner and manager of Country Cords, show off complementary merchandise and the APMA seal from their stores. Stride Rite owner Connie Bruce said he's appreciated the hard work of part-time employees Judy Goodman and Maryann Saber.

Flame-broiled chicken featured at J.L. Wishbone

Though restaurant chicken can evoke images of fat and cholesterol, at least one establishment offers an alternative.

J.L. Wishbone features chicken that is flame-broiled without oil, which lowers its cholesterol, fat and calorie content, according to owner Lou Iordanou.

"People who are health-conscious look for food that is not oily or greasy," Lou says.

In developing the fare for his restaurant at 5592 Dixie Highway, Lou experimented with a number of different marinades and cooking techniques.

What he came up with was a spice marinade — the contents of which he won't divulge — that flavors the chicken for a full 24 hours.

Wishbone then flame-broils the chicken to turn out a product that is moist, tender, flavorful and healthful.

Besides pieces of chicken, J.L. Wishbone prepares

Salads are also a popular item among Wishbone customers. The restaurant offers Greek, chef, potato and pasta salads.

A complete range of side dishes includes mashed potatoes and gravy, cole slaw and lots of pita bread.

Though Lou works primarily as an architect, the Wishbone attention to quality and health is maintained by members of Lou's large family.

Family affair at Brinker's Plumbing and Heating

For nearly 60 years, the staff at Brinker's Plumbing and Heating have prided themselves on serving the needs of the community.

The store has been located on Hatchery Road, Waterford Township, for the past two years. The previous 45 years were spent at a site on Dixie Highway. Company President Burt Fangel said he chose the Drayton Plains location because it's easy to find.

Fangel has been with the company since the mid-1950s. He was hired by founder George H. Brinker, shortly after marrying his high school sweetheart, Phyllis, in 1954. Up until that time, he was a member of the U.S. Air Force.

Over the years, Fangel has been joined by his wife and two children in the business. Phyllis acts as office manager, and son Kevin is employed as a master plumber and service manager. Daughter Kristi Beno operates as the retail store manager.

Burt Fangel is happy to see his family involved in the business, with retirement around the corner.

"I very happy that my children have taken an interest in the business," he smiled. "This way, in a few years, they'll be able to take over completely so I can have more time for my hobby, scuba diving."

According to Burt Fangel, the store has nearly everything for basic plumbing and heating needs, including a wide array of national brand merchandise.

Brinker's is an excellent place to locate those hard-to-find fixtures for older-model equipment.

Besides basic odds and ends, the store features operating whirlpools manufactured by the Oasis and Pearl whirlpool companies. New to the store are a series of Roman tub faucets and over 30 models of humidifier pads.

BRINKER'S Plumbing and Heating, at the corner of Frembes and Hatchery roads, has been serving the public's needs for the past 60 years.

To Fangel, customer satisfaction remains the most challenging part of his business.

"Our biggest challenge is to keep everyone happy and solve all the minute problems that people are having with their specialty items," he said.

These specialty items include anything out of the ordinary or no longer in stock, such as 30-year-old faucets.

Despite the challenges of business, Fangel still loves his job.

"My job can be challenging," he said, "but it's enjoyable in the sense that you're helping people who don't necessarily like plumbing."

Because Brinker's is service-oriented, in-shop repair is offered to complement the store's staff of licensed plumbers.

Timed delivery allows customers to rest easy

A fitful night of sleep caused by an uncomfortable mattress is an unpleasant experience.

Finding a mattress to fit an odd-sized bed or the perfect firmness in a mattress can pose a problem for those wanting a good night's rest.

Solving those very problems is Mattresses and More on West Walton Boulevard, Waterford Township.

The store offers a complete choice of bedding merchandise, including head and footboards, bunkbeds and daybeds. Mattresses and More also carries hard-to-find items, such as an adapter plate, which allows a headboard for a double bed to be attached to a queen-size bed.

The 2-year-old business is owned by Neil Pleasant and his brother, Bill.

The brothers plan to open a second store in the future and hope to add their mother to the family business as a part-time bookkeeper. Meanwhile, she'll continue in her comfortable in opening his own business, he says.

He's a familiar face in the Walton and Dixie Highway area, where he sold carpet for about 10 years at two area stores.

Neil says opening a bedding store was a logical choice.

"Selling carpeting to people with new homes made me realize there are other needs," he says.

Plus, sales provides the interaction with people, which Neil enjoys.

"I like the people," Neil says. "And I like doing the buying for the store."

One of the most challenging parts of the bedding business is keeping ahead of the competition.

At Mattresses and More, that's handled by consistently offering low prices yet maintaining a high level of service to the customers, says Neil.

Free delivery, free layaway and free removal of old bedding are some of the services offered. Mattresses and More will extend credit in 30 minutes to those wishing to buy on a time plan.

Even with those free services, the one that ranks most popular with customers is timed delivery.

Deliveries are made morning, afternoon or night, and customers can expect to receive their goods within one hour of the estimated delivery time, Neil says.

With that knowledge, customers can rest easy with an order from Mattresses and More.

Dave Bonner doesn't just sell a complete-line of jewelry — he does his own repairs right at his downtown Ortonville store.

D.L. Bonner Jewelers has been in business on Mill Street for seven and a half years.

"We keep our overhead low, so we are competitive in pricing," said owner Bonner, a Brandon Township resident.

Lower prices have brought people into the store.

Along with an array of rings, watches, chains, charms and earrings, Bonner sells crystal, gemstones (loose and bonded) and gift items, including a collection of Royal Doulton items.

Pro sports personalities, including several Detroit Tigers and a few PGA golfers, have also been known to shop at the store.

"It's attracted more people," he added.

State Farm Insurance stability enhanced by change with him 23 years of insurance experience and is a licensed risk manager.

Risk management involves accurate evaluation of the assets to be insured, the dangers to them and recommended courses of action.

OPEN 10 years, the State Farm Insurance building on M-15 north of Oakhill Road, Brandon Township, recently has been remodeled. Plus, the office has been computerized in the past year, says Tom McCloskey.

Donna's insurance background is also notable. She was the third female State Farm Insurance agent in Michigan, the largest female writer of commercial insurance for State Farm in Michigan and was recently appointed as an alternate on the east Metro Advisory Council.

Apart from these qualifications, the State Farm Insurance office offers what a good agency should, according to Donna.

Along with special senior and group discounts, the State Farm Insurance agency in Clarkston offers personal services and a friendly atmosphere.

Solley's has perks not offered by big competitors

In the appliance market, bigger isn't necessarily better.

Solley's, at M-15 in Brandon Township, is living proof of this statement.

Founded in 1948, the store has been run and operated by one family, the Solleys. President Alan Solley has worked full time at the store since 1979 and has done odd jobs since the age of 12.

The store offers such brand name appliances as Maytag, Amana, Gibson, Zenith and Hitachi. Besides the standard lines of refrigerators, ranges, ovens and wood burning stoves, Solley's has also added more fireplace displays to the store.

Solley said his business has existed for 43 years because it offers products and services not provided by the larger competitors.

"We're in a very competitive business, and people have the idea that the larger appliance stores have lower costs, and that's not true," he said. "Our prices are just as low, and we offer services above and beyond what other stores do."

"We actually take care of the customer before, during and after the sale," Solley added. "We offer various replacement parts and have our own repair department. Buying a product and having it delivered is only half the story and, at Solley's, we're there every step of the way."

In the way of repair, Solley feels he has an ace up his sleeve with brother-in-law Tom Thurlby. Thurlby received his formal training from Alan Solley Sr., Alan's father.

Thurlby attended several training schools offered by manufacturers and now has more than 20 years of in-field experience. He also taught for two years at the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus in Springfield Township.

Besides top-notch repair work, Solley's provides its customers with "after hours" delivery. Solley said any type of merchandise can be delivered after 4 p.m. as long as it's arranged with the store. This service is available six days a week.

Despite his store's semi-rural location, Solley is optimistic that customers will continue to shop at his store due to its many benefits.

Lake Orion Roofing - Making sure the customer is satisfied...

Customer satisfaction is the number one priority at Lake Orion Roofing, Inc. Owner Mark Southern's philosophy is -- the job isn't done until his clients are completely happy.

Over 70 percent of his work is based on referrals and that's a good indication that Mark is successful.

The business, located at 435 Heights Road in Lake Orion, is growing. Three years ago Lake Orion Roofing was a three man operation. Today, during peak work times, the payroll lists as many as 30 employees.

LO Roofing has also become a family operation. Brother Jerry McDonald is director of field operations. Brother John McDonald is re-modeling division manager. Sister Karen Hall runs the office. Brian Southern is general foreman of the roofing division. Their dad, Jack, although retired, maintains the equipment.

When Mark started the company, the main emphasis was roofing new and existing residential and commercial buildings. Now, he feels the time is right to branch out into re-modeling.

"Although our bread and butter will still be roofing, we thought it was time to expand," he adds.

That's where brother John comes in. He has had 25 years of experience in all phases of construction. On one of his jobs he developed a pre-fabrication system for a large condo complex. The project was completed six months early.

"If it can be done, he (John) can do it," says Mark.

Mark tested the re-modeling market last year. LO Roofing worked on kitchens, bathrooms, dormers, additions, garages and decks.

"People were happy with us; they encouraged us to go for it," Mark adds.

The three brothers (Mark, Jerry and John) have over 50 years of experience between them. "We all know one another; we work well together; we all enjoy each other," says Mark. "We have a reputation for quality work."

"Dad instilled this in all of us -- 'if you're going to do it, do it right.'"

As the company expands, so do the services. More office personnel have been hired. The computer system has been expanded to handle remodeling estimates as well as roofing estimates.

"But we haven't forgotten the personal touch," Mark says. "All the estimates are personally reviewed before they go out."

Mark now has exclusive repair crews. If a call comes in, LO Roofing's response time will be quicker.

"I can't emphasize enough that what makes us unique is our relationship with customers. We stay with them until the very end."

"We never sub-contract any of our work. That makes the people that do the work responsible to my company," he says.

With high quality work, there's extra responsibility. To insure his employees don't rush through their jobs, he pays an hourly scale rather than by the job.

"We concentrate on quality rather than production," Mark adds. "We also pay extra attention to details."

Mark and his brothers know this area. They grew up in Rochester and weren't too happy to see the uncontrolled growth. They like Lake Orion because it has a "good base of customers".

Mark foresees residents in this area adding on to or re-modeling their houses rather than moving on. He says people don't get much house for what they cost in today's market.

Lake Orion Roofing has a 24-hour answering service for emergency calls. Mark offers free estimates and follows up the job before final billing.

The business' hours are Monday-Saturday, 7:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. The phone number is 693-0055.

Wheelock offers top care in serene environment

Nestled in a semi-rural setting, Wheelock Memorial Hospital provides its patients with an environment conducive to their wants and needs.

The Goodrich-based hospital is on north M-15, Genesee County. Wheelock was established in 1964, and it replaced an older facility, Goodrich General Hospital. Constructed in 1916, Goodrich General closed its doors in 1961.

The present hospital was named in after Dr. Amos Wheelock, a pioneering physician at Goodrich General.

"With this setting, it offers our patients a sense of comfort and decreases the apprehension that comes from visiting a hospital."

Joseph Kyle

Joseph Kyle, the chief executive officer at Wheelock, said the location is ideal for the needs of the community.

"From my personal point of view, I like the smaller-town location. We know most of our patients because they're friends, family and neighbors," he said. "With this setting, it offers our patients a sense of comfort and decreases the apprehension that comes from visiting a hospital."

Twenty-seven years since Wheelock opened, the facility has evolved into one of the state's best accredited hospitals. Last year, Wheelock was one of only two statewide hospitals to receive a letter of commendation from the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Health Care Organizations (JCAHO). The letter complimented Wheelock on its overall operation: A total of 102 accredited hospitals were surveyed in 1990.

With 132 employees on staff, including 104 physicians, Wheelock offers a variety of services, including: acute care, medical surgery, in-patient and out-patient services, 24-hour emergency service and cardiac care.

The 31-bed hospital also provides a "safe sitter"

that their loved ones are in good hands," Kyle said.

He added, however, that the service isn't covered by any insurance agencies.

In the past year, Kyle said the hospital has added some innovations: a new operating room, an ultra sound unit, anesthesia equipment, a cardiological monitoring unit, and Biodex equipment — used in the rehabilitation of sports-related injuries.

Kyle said the biggest challenge facing Wheelock is being able to help everyone.

"We are struggling with our desire to provide the community with the service they need, contrary to the decrease in coverage by insurers like Medicare and

DR. DENNIS Kendel, director of physical therapy at Wheelock Hospital, stands beside one of the hospital's newest additions — a program for 11- to 13-year-olds, and a respite care service. The respite care program was initiated about six years ago.

According to Kyle, it gives families an opportunity to leave an elderly relative or chronically ill loved one with the hospital for a short time, so the caretakers can take a vacation or leave town on short notice.

"We give family members a piece of mind, knowing Medicaid," he said.

Despite the challenges of running a hospital, Kyle said he enjoys his position.

"I like the diversity of my job," he said. "This includes dealing with medical matters, the staff and members of the community. I get a great deal of joy seeing people come in sick and leaving well or at least feeling better."

Vehicle repair, customer maintenance at Gott's

When something goes wrong within the complicated workings of your car system, Gott's Auto Service provides a comforting solution.

In business for 28 years, Gott's employees can find their way around an entire range of American vehicles and some imported engines as well.

"The ability to fix the car" is just one of the things Owner Bob Gott Sr. lists as his company's strengths. The other is an ability to relate to the customer.

company's Maybee Road garage. Bob's sons, Bob and Kevin, do repairs at the company, and his daughter, Lisa, manages paperwork and the phones for her dad.

According to Bob, working with his family adds to the pleasure of his business.

"I enjoy being around my children," Bob says. "Especially when we get along as well as we do. We work and run the business without any friction."

If the relations at Gott's Auto Service remain uncomplicated, the vehicles serviced by the company can make up for it.

Most modern cars operate with a new type of automatic brake system, for instance, which requires constant attention to learning.

The Gott team continually attends retraining courses and maintains an ability to address a variety of systems.

As for customer service and the ability to explain problems — that comes from lots of practice.

Along with fixing the problems, for instance, the Gott team will try to explain them as well.

"We take a lot of time to explain — in the best terms that they can understand — what's going on in their vehicle," says Bob Gott Sr.

"Male or female — some people like to know what's going on," he adds.

The pride in workmanship and care with customers runs in the Gott family, which is a good thing because it's likely a member of the Gott will work on a vehicle.

Regal Feed & Supply maintains 50-year tradition

Some 50 years ago, Regal Feed & Supply Co. opened for business in a shop at 4266 Dixie Highway, Waterford Township.

Back then, the store catered to customers seeking seed, fertilizer, farm goods and animal foods.

Though times and surroundings have changed, Regal Feed has not.

Pete first worked at Regal Feed at the age of 12, when his father hired him as stock boy.

"Farm store," says owner and long-time employee Pete Hamilton, when asked how best to describe his business.

"We sell for lawn, garden and pets," he adds.

Though the description is accurate, it doesn't do justice to the rows upon rows of seed, stacks of pet supplies and shelves stocked with fertilizer and pesticides.

The shop carries feed for everything from rabbits to horses to goats. Customers will find other pet supplies, such as dog toys, leashes and rawhide.

There are seeds mixed with sunflowers seeds, seeds mixed without sunflower seeds and seeds of all different varieties.

On the garden front, Pete sells a multitude of flower seeds, vegetable seeds, onion sets and bedding plants.

North Oakland provides full radiology services

RADIOLOGIST Lawrence Wayburn carefully looks over X-rays in his office at North Oakland Radiology on Ortonville Road, Independence Township.

With rapid growth in the Clarkston area during the early 1980s, radiologist Lawrence Wayburn, M.D., thought the area ideal for his office.

Wayburn opened North Oakland Radiology on M-15 in 1982. Three years ago, he expanded his practice to the upper level of the building to include a separate suite for mammography equipment. That phase of the practice is called The Breast Center of North Oakland Radiology.

Last April he opened two more offices in Pontiac and Birmingham, under the North Oakland Radiology Group.

Wayburn likes the field of radiology.

"Being in radiology gives me hands-on (experience) in all fields of medicine," Wayburn says.

In the Breast Center, low-dose mammography machines test for signs of early breast cancer. A registered nurse is also on hand to teach patients about self-examination.

Moving the mammography machinery to the upper level allows more privacy during testing, says Kathy Fortin, business manager for North Oakland Radiology Group.

Although the Breast Center gets most of its patients from doctor referrals, word of mouth and Health-O-Rama help bring in women for mammography testing as well.

Early detection of breast cancer is important, says Wayburn, adding that if more physicians follow the guidelines from the American Cancer Society, it would help to improve the five-year survival of those with breast cancer.

Many doctors prefer to let a woman's gynecologist order mammography tests, but that needs to change, he says. The patient's primary doctor can also order the exam.

The Breast Center offers an added bonus for female patients. During American Cancer Month in April, special rates are offered to those without insurance benefits.

Other services offered at North Oakland Radiology include X-rays, ultra-sound, GI's, total body CAT scanning and nuclear medicine, which is used for a variety of exams, including thyroid disease and stress fractures.

In the future Wayburn plans to offer cardiac stress testing, says Fortin.

Fortin has been employed at the X-ray office since it first opened and has seen the increase in business. She's also served as an X-ray technician, so she understands that aspect, too.

You can save time and water by washing your car at the Clarkston Auto Wash Co. on Dixie Highway.

Fred and Sheila Ritter, the auto wash's owners who began operation in November of 1988, not only want you to have a clean car, but they are interested in maintaining a clean environment.

Clarkston Auto Wash doesn't just clean your car with a bunch of machines. Fifteen workers are employed for a touch of personal service. Of those 15 workers, 14 have graduated from Clarkston High School (and seven of those have or are attending Oakland Community College).

The car wash is located conveniently on Dixie Highway, halfway between the new A&P center and the new Kroger center.

"Our location is central to most of the commercial traffic in the township," said Fred. "Dixie Highway has grocery stores, restaurants and auto dealerships. For ease of getting in and out of our auto wash, we are close enough to the M-15 traffic light for breaks in the traffic. Also, our location is visible from south-bound M-15."

The auto wash is currently running a "Suds Up - Clean Up" campaign along with the Michigan Association of Car Washes. Rub-off tickets are the first phase of a year-long advertising program. The program is designed to heighten the consumers' awareness of the benefits of a clean car.

So while the Clarkston Auto Wash Co. scrubs, you can rub.

One-hour Martinizing opens to serve Clarkston

"I grew up in the business and began working in my parents' stores, doing odd jobs before I could see over the counter."

Linda McDonald

Ten years ago when Doug McDonald, a food industry marketer, met his future wife, Linda, a registered nurse at Michigan State University, he had no plans of becoming an independent business owner.

But after meeting Linda's parents — Jack and Bessie Hamm, successful former owners of 14 One-Hour Martinizing Dry Cleaners — the thought of becoming self-employed soon became an untamed desire.

Doug and Linda looked into several business ventures but soon decided that following in Linda's parents' footsteps was the wisest and most natural thing to do.

Along with partner Henry Kraus, present owner of nine One-Hour Martinizing stores, Doug and Linda realized their long-awaited dream. On Oct. 14, 1990, they opened Clarkston One-Hour Martinizing right in the heart of Clarkston.

Linda states, "I grew up in the business and began working in my parents' stores, doing odd jobs before I could see over the counter. It's exciting to be back in the business again. Henry and my parents have been very helpful by offering to us their dry cleaning knowledge and expertise."

Doug and Linda take pride in offering a wide variety of services to their customers beyond the traditional dry cleaning and shirt laundry services.

Others, says Doug, include "custom wedding gown and formal wear service, rug service, suede and leather finishing, pillow restoration, shoe repair and fax service,"

CUSTOMERS can expect friendly service at One-Hour Martinizing. Judy Wade, counterperson for the dry cleaner, hands customer among others.

They also offer a Senior Citizens Day on the first Wednesday of each month, which entitles seniors to 10 percent off their incoming dry cleaning order.

Environmentally conscious, Doug and Linda have recently begun a recycling program for hangers and plastic garment bags. They have three children of their own and would like to do whatever they can to help preserve the environment for future generations.

Clarkston One-Hour Martinizing was recently involved in the "Coats for Kids" campaign.

According to Doug, "We had phenomenal success with the program and want to thank the public for their generous donations. We plan to participate in this program yearly."

A commonly asked question among customers is, "What is martinizing?"

Doug answers: "It's a modern system of dry cleaning using the latest in chemical and equipment technol-

Dunlap, Realtors/ERA is in the service business of helping its customer/client attain the American dream of owning a piece of real estate to call his own.

Since Dunlap's beginnings as the former "Durbin Company Realtors" at the corner of Depot and Main streets in 1978, where they're still located, phenomenal growth has occurred. From a small staff of eight agents and 1,200 square feet of office space, the company has expanded to 30 agents and 5,000 square feet. Many of the Dunlap agents are multi-million dollar producers, and all have a sincere interest and desire to accommodate their customer's needs and will go the extra mile to help ensure a pleasant working relationship.

Dunlap, Realtors/ERA is headed by Broker/Owner Ron Dunlap, who became a Realtor Associate in 1969 and acquired his Broker's License in 1971. He has been involved in the housing industry ever since. Ron has seen many changes in the Clarkston area in those years, but he's proud to be a part of maintaining the small-town feeling known in the community. Dunlap, Realtors/ERA is housed in what was one time two buildings, now converted to one. These buildings have been home to many businesses in the over 100 years of their existence.

The Electronic Realty Associates, Inc. (ERA), has helped put Dunlap, Realtors/ERA on the map both locally and nationally due to the national recognition of the ERA standards and commitment to service.

"In fact, as far as I know, we are the only local Realtors willing to put our commitment to service in writing when we list a home for a client," says Ron. "If we don't perform to our seller's expectations and don't correct the problem, the client is released from our contract. It's a win-win arrangement. Another benefit homeowners receive from Dunlap's ERA franchise association is the exposure of their home through ERA's national relocation system. This enables us to offer our sellers' home nationally to prospects being relocated to our area. This can be a real advantage."

"Real estate market trends go in cycles, and I'm optimistic that spring will show an upswing in the market."

Ron Dunlap

In the 20 years since ERA's inception, the franchise has grown to 3,000 offices internationally and over 25,000 sales associates. Of those 3,000 offices, Dunlap's office has ranked in the top 100 for the past two years.

ERA is the exclusive national real estate corporate sponsor of the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA), and Dunlap, Realtors/ERA actively supports these efforts to "help Jerry's kids." Since 1977, ERA members have raised over $10 million for MDA. Don't be surprised to see a Dunlap Realtor at your door in May as they again hold their "Day in May" fund-raiser for MDA.

In addition to the worthwhile cause of MDA, the individuals who comprise the Dunlap, Realtors have generously given of their time and financial means to help the less privileged at the holiday season.

"Each year we try to help a family that might not otherwise have a Merry Christmas," says Ron. "This past year we helped a woman and her 10 children. It was very special to see the joy the agents received from helping others. They also got together to wrap the gifts and have a good time as friends. They're really a great group!"

Ron added, "Since everyone asks about the market conditions, remember, 'this, too, will pass.' ... Real estate market trends go in cycles, and I'm optimistic that spring will show an upswing in the market. We'll be here when you need us!"

Photography a hobby and a business at Winship

With the snap of a shutter, Ken Winship helps to capture a moment for a lifetime of memories.

About 22 years ago, Ken started the photography studio, Photography by Winship, Inc., in his home on Snowapple Drive, Independence Township. His wife, Gail, has been a partner in the business since its beginning.

After three years of working out of the home, Ken bought a building on Sashabaw Road. Through the years, expansion has doubled the size of his original location. There's also a second studio in Walled Lake.

His son, Kevin's, birth catapulted

Ken into photography.

"I bought a camera and took so many photos of Kevin I couldn't afford to have them developed, so I started developing them myself," Ken says.

Today Kevin, 26, works as a photographer and partner in the business.

Ken says that as a small business man, one of the most challenging parts of being in business today is dealing with the up and down cycles of the economy and the tax structure.

But the economy and taxes don't stop Ken from forging ahead with new advancement for his customers.

"We have been videotaping weddings for many years, but now we do videos for small businesses," Ken says.

A lot of small businesses are producing videos for advertising purposes. Training sessions and seminars are also in demand by businesses, he explains.

Recently Ken made a video of the

Photography by Winship has diversified services for their customers' convenience.

For instance, some might not know about the studio's copy restoration capabilities.

"We can copy anything that can be copied," Ken says.

Copying includes not only old photos that have begun to fade but water- or fire-damaged photos, too.

Others use the studio for its black and white processing.

"It's difficult to find someone to process black and white," Ken notes.

Winship customers can have portraits taken at the studio or on location, and wedding photography as well as commercial and aerial photography also are available.

Another division of Photography by Winship is Expressions Unlimited, which serves schools in north Oakland County.

As Ken's business continues to grow, he's performing more administrative work than photography, but it's the love of photography and the production of a visual image of quality that keeps him going.

"It's nice to work at something that started out as a hobby," says Ken.

Many people don't have the opportunity to get up and go to a job they enjoy, he says.

Mortgage Specialists offer 150 years experience

For the past two years, Mortgage Specialists has been providing the Clarkston area with a quality mortgage lending service.

Established nearly six years ago, the company has two other offices in Clawson and Union Lake. The Clarkston branch, located above The Clarkston News offices on Main Street, was the second location selected by Mortgage Specialists.

These three offices employ about 10 brokers, who account for nearly 150 years of lending experience.

Mortgage broker Tom Untener said the Clarkston locale was chosen because of its professionalism and growth potential.

"Clarkston was chosen because I know the area and the people," he said. "There is a very professional attitude here, and the real estate market is consistently vibrant."

Mortgage Specialists is a mortgage broker, which means that the company deals with large lending institutions to find the best program for each person, usually at a lower cost.

"I especially enjoy helping young, first-time buyers get settled into their first home."

Tom Untener

One of the most frequently asked questions is what advantage Mortgage Specialists offer compared to obtaining a mortgage through a bank.

One of the answers is simply "service." The company's business is mortgages; the staff does not concern itself with car loans, boat loans or checking accounts.

"We focus on your mortgage, and that helps to get you in your new house faster," Untener explains.

By working with as many 21 different lending institutions in the tri-county area, these mortgage specialists offer a greater variety of programs at more competitive rates, he added.

MORTGAGE Specialists, Inc., headed by Tom Untener, is entering into its second year of service in the Clarkston area. The company's employees have a combined 150 years of experience.

And with interest rates falling to around 9 percent, Untener said that this could also be a good time to consider refinancing your home.

In fact, according to Untener, a reduction of just 1 percent may be advantageous. Consider this: a 30-year, $100,000 mortgage payment can be reduced about by $74 per month if the rate is reduced only 1 percent.

In that case, he said a homeowner planning to stay in his home for more than three years should definitely consider a refinance.

Unique to Mortgage Specialists is its flexible hours. While many competitors work standard hours, this company is available seven days a week from 8 a.m. until 10 p.m.

"We'll meet anyone, anywhere, at their own convenience," Untener said. "We also provide our prospective clients with a pre-approval certificate which shows that they can afford to mortgage a home."

Untener, an eight-year veteran of the lending business, said the most enjoyable aspect of his job is the personal interaction.

"I like working with people and having new clientele every day," he said. "I especially enjoy helping young, first-time buyers get settled into their first home. It gives me a sense of pride, knowing that I was a part of their biggest investment."

Compassion, dignity part of his medical practice

"I truly care about my patients."

Dr. Jack Kartaginer

A persistent childhood memory is responsible for medical doctor Jack Kartaginer's presence in the Clarkston area today.

Dr. Kartaginer recalls the compassion and dignity with which the family doctor of his youth treated his family. And, today, he focuses on those same values when treating his patients.

One and one-half years ago, Dr. Kartaginer, a specialist in obstetrics, gynecology and infertility, joined another area specialist, John F. Naz. The office is at 5770 M-15, near Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

He says he joined Dr. Naz because of Dr. Naz's compassionate manner and concern for his patients. He wanted to be affiliated with that type of individual.

For that same reason, Dr. Kartaginer recently joined the staff of Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital (POH) even though he is an M.D., and on staff at Pontiac General

JACK Kartaginer, an Independence Township specialist in obstetrics and gynecology, is on staff at Pontiac Osteopathic and General hospitals.

For women who would like to experience natural childbirth, he offers that option. But he especially likes to be in a position to rid his patients of the pain associated with childbirth.

Hospital. He says he is impressed with POH's "friendly and competent nursing staff."

Dr. Kartaginer has delivered many more babies in the last year. He attributes that to patient referral and the care he offers.

"My practice is not a business," he says. "I truly care about my patients. I gave up a lucrative (import) business, which was much more profitable to do what I'm doing now."

He has also added prenatal classes taught by an experienced labor and delivery nurse at his M-15 office.

Most challenging to Dr. Kartaginer are the life and death decisions that he needs to make in a matter of minutes, and the surgical skills that must be coordinated and used immediately.

But most outcomes are usually happy for him and his patient, he says.

Growing Learning Centers offer individual help

PAM HANKINS uses the Wehrl Performance Training method.

Learning For Everyone, Clarkston, offers a new and unique method of learning to Clarkston, but it comes with a long history of success.

Pam Hankins, a certified teacher and director of the Learning for Everyone Clarkston franchise, opened her learning center in May of 1990. "We are the state of the art in learning centers," Hankins said. Prior to the Clarkston opening, five franchises were approved in Michigan, and five more have opened since June of 1990.

The unique and personalized Wehrl Performance

Training method is spreading. People in Clarkston and other communities are becoming more aware of the importance of education, and the Learning Center is designed to support the school system.

The program is available to everyone, ages 4 to adult; and that is what Wehrl's basic premise is, that "everyone can learn."

A student attends the center for three one-hour sessions weekly for a cost of $45 per week.

Because reading is the foundation of learning, Wehrl Centers have two main goals in mind, Hankins said. One goal is to increase the reading level of students one year above their grade levels, which is expected by the better schools; and the second goal is for a student to be able to perform accordingly in the classroom or workplace.

Learning for Everyone Clarkston is designed to "Learning For Everyone has had a big impact on my child. She not only enjoys the instructor but the method by which she is learning."

A Clarkston parent

maximize educational output and effectiveness. An innovative and technological method is employed to help increase a person's learning capabilities.

Devised to support the student's school system, Learning For Everyone teaches how to learn.

More specifically, the program affects recall, listening to and following directions, speed of response, word attack, comprehension and organization skills.

The parent of one Learning For Everyone Clarkston student stated, "Learning For Everyone has had a big impact on my child. She not only enjoys the instructor but the method by which she is learning. After a few weeks of attending the center I noticed improvement in her reading ability, comprehension and self-confidence. I'm very pleased."

Hankins said, "Open your world to a new dimension in learning. Open your mind to Learning For Everyone."

Shoppers find pleasant atmosphere at the Pointe

Open a year, Independence Pointe is 80 percent occupied and doing well, according to John Poponea.

Poponea and partner Timothy Affolder have had lots of calls on the remaining space, said Poponea.

"We're particularly interested in a restaurant and any specialty retail shops," he said.

The two chose the Independence Township location near I-75 because several of their tenants were interested in the area.

Plus, the Clarkston area is a good spot for retail and office, said Poponea.

"We feel it will be a major growth area," he said, adding that the economic slow-down has affected the center only slightly.

"We feel our center will be affected less than someone who has retail centers all around them," he said.

The three-building center, with pleasing architecture and landscaping, is within walking distance to the Village of Clarkston. It includes office buildings as well as retail space.

The Independence Pointe Medical Center is affiliated with St. Joseph Mercy Hospital (SJM)H-Pontiac.

Private practices of physicians and medical specialists are located in that building. They include: allergy and immunology, cardiology, colorectal surgery, family dentistry, gastroenterology, internal medicine, obstetrics and gynecology, general surgery, urology, neurosurgery.

Walk-ins as well as referrals are accepted in the outpatient laboratory facility, operated by SJMH.

Also in the medical center is an X-ray facility operated by Associated Radiologists of Oakland County, which accepts referrals from area physicians.

For information on the practices in the medical center, call 858-3160.

Clarkston Vision includes optometrist Michael Zak and opticians John Pasfield and Ronda Touchette. Mary Pasfield serves as office manager.

Eye exams are conducted at the practice, which also makes and dispenses glasses. For more information, call 620-2033.

The Pointe Cleaners is a full-service dry cleaners, as opposed to a drop-off site, according to Jim Hagan, who owns the business with his partner, Tom Rebb.

The business also offers alterations. For more information, call 620-8808.

Many of the shopping center's customers find First Federal Savings Bank and Trust a convenient location.

The bank has been in the Clarkston area since 1962 but moved to the complex in 1989, said Sharon Tyler, branch sales manager.

The new location means the full-service bank has more tellers plus drive-through banking. For information, call 625-2631.

The three-building center, with pleasing architecture and landscaping, is within walking distance to the Village of Clarkston.

Owners Tim and Joan Kelly of Ortonville offer muffins, non-fat frozen yogurt, salads (Greek, garden, Maurice), sandwiches (turkey, ham, corned beef, tuna, egg salad, chicken salad), soup and chili daily, macaroni and cheese on Thursdays and Fridays, plus fruit and vegetable plates in the summer.

Catering also is available, said manager Elaine Kalinin. To order carry-out or for more information, call 620-2844.

Children, grandmothers and parents enjoy shopping at The Bunny Hut, said owner Judy Brock, whose husband, Curt, helps out in the business.

Boys' and girls' clothing from preemie to size 14 are offered, as are Toddler University shoes. The store is also known for treasured gift items, such as Beatrix Potter and North American Bear. For more information, call 620-0160.

Open for over a year is the Glitz of Clarkston, which also has a Rochester location, said owner Cherie Barnett.

Services offered include hair styling and cutting, coloring, highlighting, perms, waxing, makeup, makeovers and specialized nail care. For more information, call 625-1001.

INDEPENDENCE Pointe has been open for more than a year on M-15, just north of the
