Needham resigns key board position

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Clarkston Board of Education President John Needham has resigned his position on the school board.

Though the resignation becomes effective March 18 -- in time for a new candidate to run in the annual school election in June -- Needham will remain on the board for the duration of the current school year.

Needham announced his decision during the board's regular monthly meeting March 11, after discussing his move with fellow board members earlier that evening.

Needham said he regretted his decision to resign, but he had accepted a new job in January that required extensive international travel. He concluded that he could no longer do an appropriate job as president.

"It bothered me that I was not present at the meeting for the bond issue," Needham explained. "I'm not going to be at the next regular April meeting either."

"I'm traveling all over the world," Needham continued. "In looking at the calendar, I simply don't have enough time to do the job well."

Later in the meeting, the school board passed a resolution setting the annual school election for June 10. State law requires that the annual school election be held the second Monday of June each year.

"In looking at the calendar, I simply don't have enough time to do the job well."

President John Needham

Needham resigned with one year remaining in his four-year term; Janet Thomas' four-year seat is up for re-election, and Durham Downs' one-year seat is up for re-election.

Both Thomas and Downs have said they intend to seek re-election to their seats in June.

Those seeking the four-year seat or the two available one-year seats should pick up petitions at the administration office, 6389 Clarkston Road, Independence Township, Monday through Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The petitions and affidavits of identity must be returned no later than April 8 at 4 p.m., with a minimum of 20 valid registered voter signatures.

For more information, contact Mel Vaara at 625-4402.

Search for outstanding community people

Know an outstanding citizen or volunteer in the Clarkston community?

If so, you may want to nominate him or her for a community award.

The Sixth Annual Michigan Week Community Awards Breakfast is planned for 7:30 a.m. Wednesday, May 22, at Spring Lake Country Club, Independence Township.

The breakfast honors those selected for their outstanding work in the categories of citizen, property beautification, volunteer, business person and historic preservation.

Nominating forms are available at National Bank of Detroit offices, Independence Township Hall, Village of Clarkston Hall, The Clarkston News and most service organizations.

Nominations are to be submitted by Friday, April 26. For more information, contact Community Awards Committee Chairwoman Denise Schons at the Dixie and Maybee branch of the National Bank of Detroit (NBD).

NBD is a co-sponsor of the awards, along with Independence Township and the Village of Clarkston.

Three re-elected to village seats

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Three Clarkston Village Council trustees, running unopposed, were re-elected; but two write-in candidates picked up a large share of the votes in the March 11 general election.

Douglas Roeser received 80 votes, James Schultz 69 and Robert Whitmer 67 to again earn two-year terms.

Write-in candidates Thomas Goldner and Geraldine Hunter received 47 and 46 votes, respectively; and write-in (former village council president) Carol Eberhardt had two votes.

One hundred twenty-five people voted. Village Manager Art Pappas said between 600 and 800 are registered to vote in Clarkston.

Hunter, who is on the Clarkston Village Planning Commission with Goldner, said she did not spearhead the write-in votes.

"I did not start this campaign," said Hunter, who also received write-in votes in the last election for trustees. "I guess Tom and I are the sacrificial lambs."

About the voters, Hunter said, "Somebody decided there should be someone to challenge them (the unopposed candidates)."

Hunter added, "It makes life more interesting."

Village Clerk Norma Goyette said there was a pattern to the voting.

"About 90 percent of those who voted for the write-ins also voted for Roeser," said Goyette.

Goyette also said some ballots were turned in without any candidates selected.

Parents protest post-graduation party games

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Some of the entertainment planned for the upcoming Clarkston High School annual post-graduation party has one group of parents upset.

The all-night chaperoned party, held at the Deer Lake Racquet Club, is expected to feature casino-type gambling and a hypnotist among its activities.

According to some parents, the activities could be dangerous to some students.

"Gambling is very addictive behavior," explained Barbara Flores. Hypnosis, she added, could work to give students false hopes, among other things.

The activities are against the teachings of the Bible, she added.

"The whole graduation party is a wonderful idea and I applaud the people working to put it together," Flores said. "But they can choose other forms of activities."

Another parent, Ann Farrand, added in a letter to The Clarkston News, "If just one of these seniors should

"Gambling is very addictive behavior."

become entrapped later in life by one or both of these two vices, ... then we the parents, teachers or school board members should take partial responsibility for the consequences."

Flores said that though parents "feel it is going to be difficult" to remove the entertainment from the party agenda, she hoped that people who "felt like we do know they do have support."

Organizers of the post-graduation party say the entertainment is popular among students and is "just in fun."

"What (the hypnotist) does is nothing objectionable," explained party organizer Linda Walker, who watched the taped version of last year's hypnotist.

"It's just in fun," she added. "There are numerous activities going on for entertainment."

Though she was aware of objections to the entertainment, Walker said no formal complaint had been heard in the volunteer committee meetings.

"The majority felt that we had done it in the past and that it had been done at other schools," Walker said.

The entertainment provides an alternative to other types of potentially dangerous revelry, Walker added.

"We have to offer enough activities that students want to come," she said.

Auto body shop addition approved

The S & L Auto Body shop, at the northwest corner of Sashabaw and Ennismore roads, has been given the OK to start construction on an addition.

On March 7, the Independence Township Planning Commission granted final site approval for the addition. The commission voted 6-0 in favor of the motion, with Steven Secatch absent from the meeting.

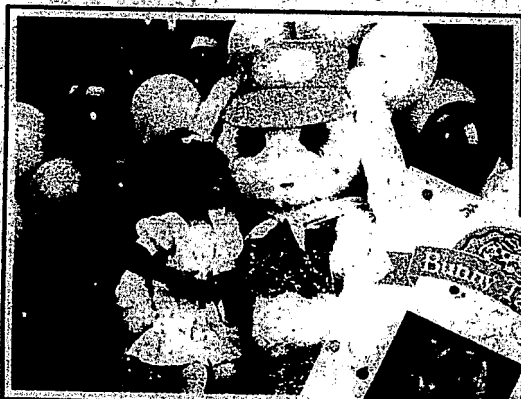

The addition will be 3,641 square feet, nearly doubling the total size of the existing facility. The addition is to be constructed by C.B. Custom Builders of Independence Township.

Correction

An article in last week's Clarkston News should have said that developer Arnold Gee has been in charge of the North Gulick Lake subdivision, formerly Woodglen III, for the entire span of the project.

Options could be used to ease space crunch

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

As promised, after the school bond issue defeat, Superintendent Gary Haner provided the Clarkston Board of Education with ideas for "accommodating future increases of children without construction."

Haner warned the board that the ideas unveiled March 11 were only preliminary and had been gathered during brainstorming sessions among administrators, department heads and building administrators.

A final report -- which will include Haner's recommendations and the expected impact of each item on housing, cost and curriculum -- will be provided at the board's April 8 meeting.

Haner told the board the suggestions would apply to a five-year period beginning with the next school year.

Much of what is done would depend on actual enrollment year to year, he added.

"Projections are just projections," Haner explained. "We know we're overcrowded, and it's going to worsen."

"We don't have a crystal ball," he added. "As enrollments continue to climb at these levels, these are things to consider."

The preliminary listing included the following suggestions:

Elementary level

- Move elementary libraries, music and gifted classrooms to use as regular classrooms for 25 to 30 students each.
- Reclaim South Sashabaw Elementary School for use. (North and South Sashabaw would operate under the jurisdiction of one principal.)
- Reclaim all latchkey classrooms.
- Convert elementary gymnasiums to classrooms.
- Eliminate developmental kindergarten.
- Eliminate computer rooms at the elementary level.

■ Relocate special education learning resource centers to smaller rooms and use this space for classrooms.

Middle school level

- Move ninth grade to the high school.
- House grades five and six at one middle school and grades seven and eight at another.
- House grades six and seven at Sashabaw Junior High and grades eight and nine at Clarkston Junior High.
- Convert home economics space to special education or regular classrooms.
- Use gymnasium stage at Clarkston Junior High School.
- Remodel Clarkston Junior High workroom area.
- Convert shop areas to special education classrooms.
- Eliminate classrooms that support athletics.
- Reconvert office space at high school.
- Add no new programs.

All levels

- Add portable classrooms.
- Provide special education services within a child's own classroom.
- Increase class sizes.
- Consider double-day sessions at all levels.
- Eliminate remedial programs.
- Maximize use of large rooms such as study halls.
- Reclaim building currently used by United Cable Television.
- Close all buildings during mid-winter and run summer school to save on utility costs.
- Investigate rental space for classrooms in area churches, etc.

- Consider year-round school on a 45-day rotation.
- Eliminate advanced placement classes.
- Add zero-hour or seventh-hour classes.

General consideration

- Restructure use of technical center classes.
- Redraw intra-district boundaries.
- Mandate study halls at some levels.
- Discontinue daytime adult education programs.
- Evaluate impact of new Catholic school.
- Remove unnecessary fixtures in small rooms with larger class sizes.

After the preliminary list was read, board members and community members were encouraged to contribute their ideas.

Suggestions offered by board members included applying for redistricting with other school districts such as Brandon, and converting the administration building to classrooms.

A handful of residents offered suggestions, including development of a master plan and collecting data on use of space in each classroom.

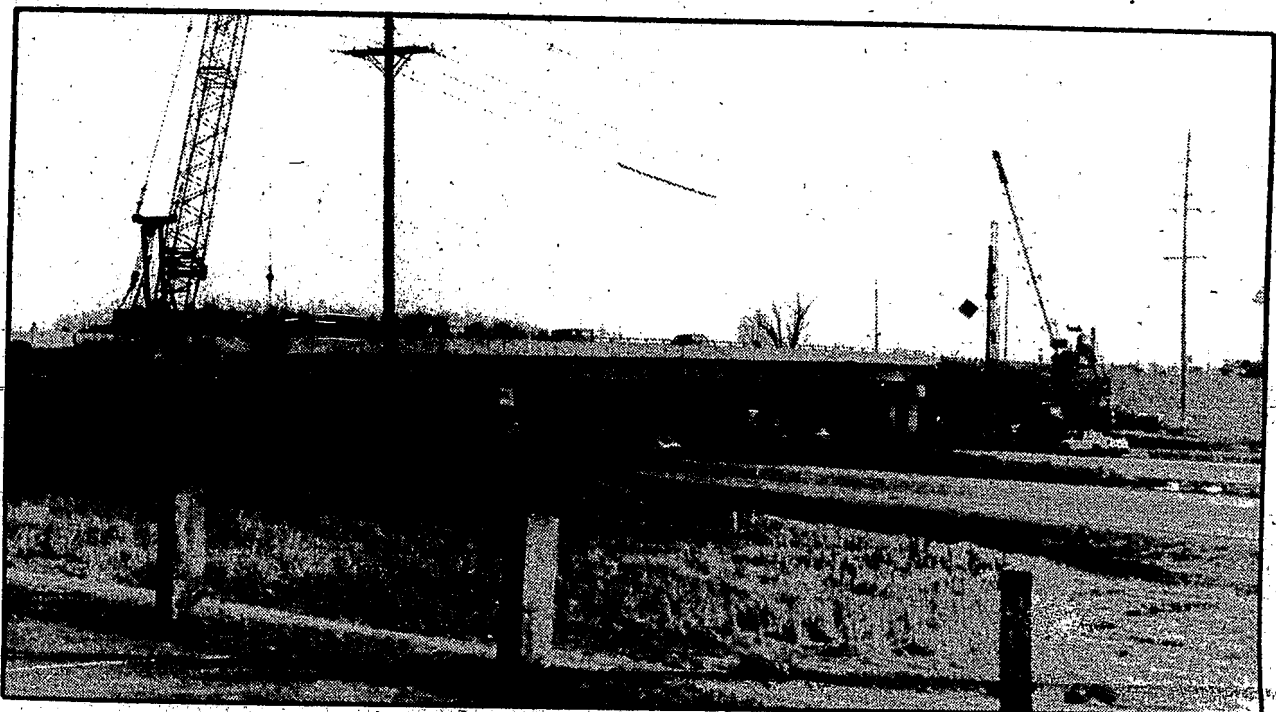

Residents also let board members know in what general direction they should be heading.

"What we see is a good beginning -- the development of a master plan," said area-resident Joe Helpem. "(But) we should have been looking to the 1990s five years ago."

"One thing that has to be done is to prioritize what we're trying to do," Helpem added. "We're not going to be able to have what we have now. Something is going."

Another resident told the board he thought "a little less renovation" was needed along with "more direction toward added classrooms."

Residents also suggested using a book mobile to replace libraries; and the use of a portable computer lab aboard a bus.

CONSTRUCTION on Sashabaw Road, over I-75, will result in an extended acceleration lane onto southbound I-75, a free-flowing-traffic lane onto northbound Sashabaw Road, a wider bridge, safety path, and new surfaces. (Photo by Tracy King)

Sashabaw bridge work 'going well'

Work to widen the viaduct on Sashabaw Road over I-75 is coming along slightly ahead of schedule, according to Michigan Department of Transportation officials.

The project, estimated at $2 million, includes extending the acceleration lane on the ramp to southbound I-75, creating a lane for the free flow of traffic from I-75 to northbound Sashabaw Road, widening the bridge, reworking the surface of both the bridge and portions of Sashabaw Road, and creating a safety path from the north to the south end of the bridge.

The $27,600 cost of the safety path will be paid for with funds from the Independence Township safety path account.

Work on the entire project is coming along very well, said MDOT Resident Engineer Dave Wilson.

"We haven't heard any complaints from motorists," Wilson said. "We do foresee a little bit of difficulty this summer."

"There may be delays whenever big concerts are being held at Pine Knob," he said.

If work continues to progress on schedule, the construction project will be complete on or before Nov. 1, 1991, Wilson said.

I-75 car chase ends in Springfield

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Police are still searching for a man who led police on a cross-county chase early Sunday morning and ended at a Springfield Township rest area.

According to a police report at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, local deputies got involved in a police chase about 3 a.m. March 10. Originating around the Franklin area, the chase spanned nearly 20 minutes and involved a total of nine police cars from various departments.

The Bloomfield Township police were in pursuit of a stolen GMC Jimmy on northbound Dixie Highway, near Telegraph Road, when Oakland County Sheriff's deputies became involved in the chase.

The unidentified thief led the convoy of police cars north on Dixie Highway before heading west on Grange Hall Road, Groveland Township. The suspect continued west on Grange Hall Road to I-75 where he then sped south. The report said he jumped the median and drove across the opposing lanes. The man drove directly at a nearby I-75 rest area, where the Jimmy collided with several surrounding trees.

The man fled the disabled vehicle and escaped through the woods. Pursuing troopers lost sight of the man, and police dogs were brought in. However, the dogs lost the man's scent later that morning.

Around 6 a.m., that day, a car was reported stolen from a residence at the 9000 block of Clark Road, Springfield Township.

Sgt. Joe Quisenberry said he's positive that the car was stolen by the same man. He added that the OCSO is investigating the second case of auto theft, while Bloomfield Township officials investigate the car chase and all events leading up to it.

Debra Willhite was taken to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac, after her car crashed head-on with another automobile on Walton Boulevard, near Silverhill Street. She was released from the hospital two days later.

Apparently, Willhite lost control on an eastbound curve and crashed into a vehicle driven by a 17-year-old Pontiac youth. The accident occurred about 8:20 a.m.

The youth wasn't seriously injured in the crash and was allowed to go home. Willhite was later cited for speeding by Waterford police officers.

Urging inventors of tomorrow

INVENTOR Michael McKay visited Clarkston Junior High School Feb. 27 to inspire students in the seventh- and eighth-grade science classes to better their world. The former Clarkston resident is presently an engineer at General Motors Corp. and has nearly 10 patents under his name. He is the third generation of McKays to be involved in the "invention" business. He conveyed to the students that "it's never too young to begin inventing, and ... success is usually bred from many failures." (Photo by Curt McAllister)

Township gets tougher on salespeople

Door-to-door salespeople now will need to provide a driver's license and date of birth to sell in Independence Township.

A solicitor's ordinance that was ratified last September probably will be amended within the next month.

On March 5, the Independence Township Board unanimously voted to approve the first reading of the amended ordinance. A second reading is necessary before the change takes effect.

The revision would require an applicant's driver's license number as well as a line for date of birth on the application. The township would also require a photocopy of the person's driver's license or a 2-inch-by-2-inch photo of the applicant attached to the application.

Originally, the amendment said that an aspiring salesperson had to provide a picture-identification card. With the amendment, more background information would be provided to the township. Currently, all salespeople are required to wear a badge submitted to the township for identification purposes.

The ordinance was created to monitor all solicitors in the township. Last September, two cases of assault were charged against a man acting as a door-to-door salesman.

Supervisor Frank Ronk said nearly 2,000 people applied for applications last year and that the ordinance should be amended so that authorities can quickly react in case of a problem.

A marine homecoming

Julie Campe

I was dead tired last night and did not feel like talking to the 10:30 p.m. caller.

But as soon as I heard the caller's voice, I was instantly energized.

"D.J.!" I shouted. "Is that you?"

"Who do you think it is?" he bellowed back, sounding as if he were shouting through a tin tunnel.

D.J., a staff sergeant in the U.S. Marine Corps and my brother-in-law, was using his speaker phone.

"See, Shaun," I heard him say to his wife, "I still know how to work all this stuff."

He pushed a button, and his voice sounded as if it were next door. He quickly switched it back to the tunnel, where we heard him tell Shaun, "You have to be in on this call, too."

My husband and I could hardly believe he was already home in California. Though he was one of the first marines sent to the Persian Gulf, after the cease-fire we had been told that it would be four to six weeks before he could leave.

In fact, we had just received a February letter from him that day.

Since he worked in marine communications, he had access to a phone more often than most. So throughout the entire Persian Gulf war, we had heard updates from him -- in addition to his letters.

In the beginning, there was the boredom, the heat and the homesickness. Since they've been together, he and his wife have spent more time away than apart, thanks to the Marine Corps. Of course, the couple knew all about that before they spoke their vows, but that didn't make separation any easier.

D.J., a co-inventor of some sort of antenna system, spent much of his time in Saudi Arabia traveling up and down the front line of troops, showing them how to use the communication system.

So he's had stories to tell all throughout the ordeal. Once, a SCUD missile fell near the line where he was instructing.

No, he had told his dad, they did not attempt to use a Patriot missile to destroy the SCUD. "They only use those to protect civilians," he had said, not too dramatically.

On the day of his homecoming, he had been home two hours before he called.

The past few days were filled with waiting. He had spent 30 hours at an airport in Maine before flying to his base in California.

Shaun, who had just arrived home from work, had heard cheers up and down her street, signifying that another busload of marines had passed on its way to the base. Ten minutes later, she received the call to pick up D.J.

She was calm, she said, but couldn't find him at the designated meeting place (turns out he had just gone inside the building for a moment), so she drove around a little bit, looking for him.

Eventually, she returned.

On the horizon, about two miles ahead, she said she saw a figure standing in the middle of the road, directing traffic.

Even from that distance, she knew it could only be D.J.

"How did you know it was me?" we heard D.J. ask her over the speaker phone.

"Well, there's not too many people who would do that," she responded.

In my mind, I saw D.J. as I often imagined him (I had heard that he sometimes led children on neighborhood "military" marches, which the children loved): standing tall and proud, directing others as if he were guiding jumbo jets at an airport.

Yes, this was one call worth staying awake for.

Excellence in youth lauded

Kudos to the outstanding youth of the Clarkston area.

This week's Clarkston News is filled with the names of students who worked hard enough to make the honor roll at Clarkston High School, Clarkston Junior High School and Sashabaw Junior High School (see Pages 30-32).

Excellence also comes from instrumental and vocal music departments in those schools, as evidenced by the high number of participants and markedly high number of excellent marks from the district solo and ensemble festivals (see Pages 32 and 38).

And athletes at the high school also have excelled. Every varsity team -- volleyball, boys basketball, wrestling, boys skiing and girls skiing -- was undefeated in the Greater Oakland Activities League. Thus each won the league title in the winter season.

And there's more: the wrestling team won the Class A state title -- the first ever in Clarkston's history of wrestling.

And the boys basketball team won the district title last weekend and will play in regional competition this week.

These young people deserve praise for their outstanding efforts in all areas of education. JLC

Read a grocery ad closely lately?

Sometime in the last decade or two our government passed a "truth in advertising" law. It says, in part, sizes, weights or measures have to be included with a product.

Grocers were no longer allowed to advertise "Loaf of White Bread, 79 cents". It had to say, 17 oz loaf, or whatever. This made shoppers learn how big 17 ounces were compared to 24 ounces.

Fine! We have no trouble with 1-gal. Homo Milk, or 2-qt. Orange Juice, or ft-long Hot Dogs.

But then we got to the produce section. No longer can the merchant say "large" head of lettuce. He can, and does, say, "Large 24 size head, Lettuce."

Seriously, folks, do you know what a 24 size is? Did you know there are 36 size heads of lettuce? Well, there are and they aren't large.

According to my source, Charlie Drumheller (his real name) at Oxford IGA, the 24 size means there are that many heads to a case. And, Charlie says, all cases are the same size, thus 24 size is larger than 36 size.

The same rule holds for oranges. The advertised "Large 88 size Oranges," means there are 88 to a case. Grocers can also stock 100, 125 and 156 size oranges. Imagine how small 156 is.

What prompted me to go to the store in the first place was to find the size of a "B" size can. My daughter had asked me about it last Thanksgiving.

I stumped 'em at IGA. A manager called the warehouse. They never heard of a "B" size can, and suggested I was talking bra sizes. That would never be me.

Rechecking with daughter, Luan, I found she inquired about a size "2" can, not "B." They weigh 28 ounces. Actually, grocery ads don't read "size 2" can, recipes do, or at least the one for pistachio dessert does.

I also learned from Charlie there are size 303 cans. Campbell soup comes in 303s.

No. 1 potatoes are frequently advertised. Are there any No. 2 potatoes? Yes, but seldom advertised.

Among my few favorite radio programs is Mike Deja's, Sunday mornings on WJR.

March 3 he did an hour of "Definitely Durante." If ever I learn to play a piano, I want Durante's style. "Inka, dinka, do" and all.

Deja's Durante choices of radio/TV songs and comedy were welcome warmth in a fine nostalgic hour.

The WJR radio man said because of the gulf war programming he didn't have a tape of his show to send me, but Deja was kind enough to read me Jimmy Durante's description of success with which he closed the show.

"Success is not to worry too much... to do the best you can. Stick to your friends and pray they stick to you, and let God take care of the rest."

What a week!

During the week of Feb. 11, Clarkston Junior High's staff planned a self-esteem week for all CJHS students. Titled "Positive Connections," this week was designed to boost self-worth and improve attitude.

Highlights of the week included a visit from John Gross, a Channel 7 newscaster, and Linda Murray, a world champion bodybuilder.

We also enjoyed a skit that was put on by Wave-lengths, a Chicago acting group. It showed us the importance of all people regardless of their looks, family backgrounds or interests.

The skit involved Clarkston Junior High's Student Crisis Team, which made it all the more exciting. The audience's positive reaction to the skit made me realize that everyone was learning, and at the same time, they were having a great time!

Each day hosted a new theme, for example, "Have a Heart Day." The staff decorated the halls, created fliers for the students and complimented us all week.

I just wanted to say thanks to all of the people who worked so hard for us. As a student of Clarkston Junior High School, I really enjoyed that week and I know of many others who did as well!

Give taxpayers chance on tab for Hart's defense

Jim Fitzgerald

I have this great idea about how former Police Chief William Hart's lawyer should be paid for defending him against charges of stealing police funds. But I'm worried that the same idea hasn't already occurred to some highly intelligent city official, perhaps a City Council member. I'm admittedly not highly intelligent. Just last week I was cutting out paper dolls.

When the intention is to portray an adult as being stupid, he is often caricatured, in cartoons or words, as cutting out paper dolls. The valid theory is that if a grown man does something as unsophisticated and nonproductive as scissoring paper dolls, he shouldn't be taken seriously when he suggests how to save tax money.

In my case, the evidence of idiocy is peculiarly damaging. Soon after I returned home from cutting out paper dolls at 5-year-old Tricia's house, there was a phone call from Tricia's mother, who reported the following conversation:

"Guess what, Mom?"

"What?"

"I finally found something Grandpa can do," Tricia said, obviously recalling an earlier ugly experience in which I bungled the dressing of a full-figured plastic doll, putting a dress on backwards. "He can cut out paper dolls, and he does it pretty good!"

I couldn't help remembering how I felt, a few years earlier, when I overheard a similar exclamatory remark from Tricia's sister, Emily:

"Hey Mom, Grandpa knows how to tie shoes!"

So the awful truth isn't merely that I cut out paper dolls, but also that it's surprising I can do it without lopping off the doll's head and several of my fingers. It's not easy being the family idiot, especially when I dare to stumble out of the playroom and into the world of adult decisions. You should keep this in mind when evaluating my suggestion for keeping the ex-police chief from getting deeper into taxpayers' pockets.

Hart allegedly stole from the public, so there's no denying the public must finance his prosecution. But isn't it slightly outrageous that we should also pay for his criminal defense? If there were a reasonable way to give taxpayers a 50-50 chance of escaping this added egregious gouging, wouldn't some wise politician, such as Mayor Coleman Young, come up with it, just to keep victimized taxpayers from screaming and pounding walls with their heads?

You'd certainly think so, so this paper-doll-cutter-outer proposes the following: Hart-felt idea expecting it will be shot down before rising 6 inches off the runway.

Hart has considerable assets - a house here, a house there, an apartment here, and so on. Thanks to a handsome salary, he undoubtedly has bank accounts and perhaps a stock portfolio, plus a pile of unused vacation pay. All those assets should be frozen, right now, to prevent Hart from liquidating them or transferring ownership.

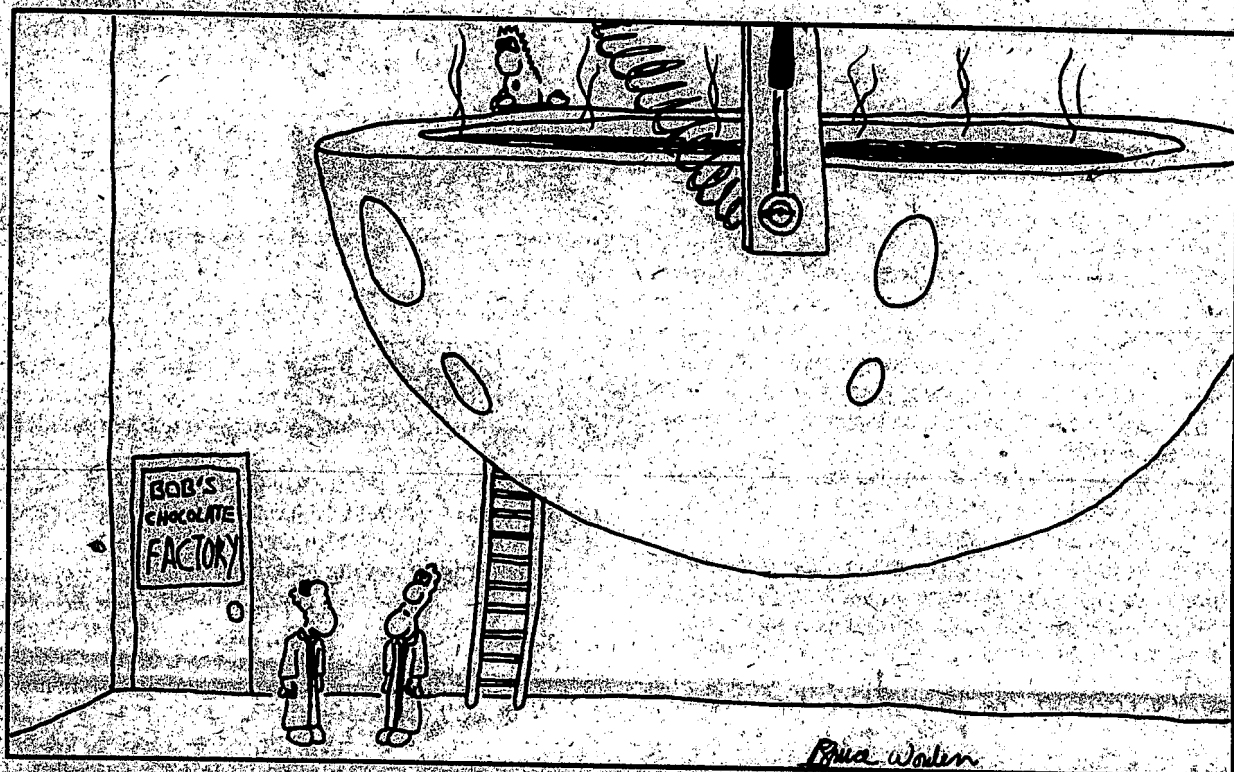

If Hart is found guilty, those assets should be seized and used to reimburse taxpayers for every cent they spent defending him. That way, the public would at least avoid the onerous burden of paying legal fees for a criminal much wealthier than most individual taxpayers.

If Hart is acquitted, we'll probably be forced to go along with Young's request - with little dissent from City Council - that we pay for Hart's tab, which could be as much as $125,000. That will only drive us half nuts.

Another thing: Hart is suspended with his about $90,000 salary intact. Perhaps he'll earn it in some yet-undisclosed reassignment. But if Hart is found guilty, and it can't be proved he didn't sort of phone in his work, the same way people think he earned advanced university degrees, he should be required to return the salary.

If I have to help pay for both the prosecution and defense of a convicted criminal who has more money than most people, I'll quit cutting out paper dolls and start strumming my lips with my fingers, bub-bub-bub.

Wrestlemania

Tracy
King

I knew that school affairs had come under a lot of scrutiny lately, but what were all those videocameras doing at the regular school board meeting?

The parking lot had been packed to capacity. In trying to make way to one of the few seats left open, I glanced up to see at least two videocameras trained my way.

Startled, I turned to look behind me and saw a crowd of heads sporting that peculiar half-crew-cut. Ah. The wrestlers.

After the mandatory Pledge of Allegiance, Board President John Needham announced "the moment everyone had been waiting for."

Paul Tungate strode purposefully to the podium to describe the achievements of a team that had "accomplished more in one year than any team in Clarkston history."

The boys were all eating again, Tungate reassured the crowd. In fact, they were actually smiling - "the first time I've seen them smile in two weeks," quipped Tungate.

After Assistant Coach John Vega and Coach Scott Strickler rose to applause, it came time to introduce the wrestlers.

As each of the 27 young men stood to be recognized for helping to capture the district, regional and state team championship, the crowd applauded wildly.

Were those ties the young men were wearing?

The crowd clapped an extra second or two for Damon Michelsen, the wrestler who captured the state individual championship for the 171 pound class.

Tungate ended the revelry by describing the permanent tributes that will be established to these young athletes.

A banner identifying the 1991 state champs will be hung in the high school gym, along with a sign listing all of the wrestler's names.

The township might even post signs at the city limits, identifying Clarkston as the home of the state wrestling champions.

School Board President John Needham offered a suggestion: "You had better leave room beyond 1991!" he declared.

The joyous mood hung suspended for a moment, and then the wrestlers were told that they could go.

They filed out past the audience and around the refreshment table slowly and noisily, smiling for the videocameramen.

Weren't there cookies on that table?

Letters to the Editor

Most approve village B&B idea

The Clarkston Village Council "threw the baby out with the bath water" when they laid to rest the proposed bed and breakfast ordinance.

President Catallo promised her own research before a vote. One might wonder how she could consider one community, Grand Rapids, sufficient evidence to not even bother to call for the vote on the motion that had been on the floor and tabled.

"It was agreed upon by the council that no further time and money be spent on this now."

The fact is, most of the time and money were spent from my end. Over six weeks of research went into the proposed ordinance.

Over 10 communities sent ordinances, and the proposed Clarkston ordinance was drafted from this information. Research also included talking to mayors, village managers, ordinance officers and bed and breakfast owners themselves.

None of the communities researched reported any problems. No citizen complaints were registered. All materials were given to council members.

Council members were intent on finding out what village residents wanted. With the exception of one council man, not one of them had a call pro or con from anyone.

Members chose to interpret this to mean village residents opposed this idea. A public hearing was held. No one there was opposed to the ordinance.

Saying there were more township residents there than village seems to justify to the council a no-action stand.

The fact is ... there were a majority of village residents in attendance, and at each meeting people showed up to voice their desire to have B & B's in Clarkston.

Our village council seems intent on saving us from ourselves. They view village residents as rapers and pillagers of their own property in order to comply to the ordinance to have a bed and breakfast.

They insult those of us who have spent a lot of time and money keeping our homes, and this village, the nice place it is.

Offers of door-to-door polling and petitions were met with no comment.

I believe the village council does not want to know what the majority of residents want. I believe most of you do think it's a good idea.

Prove me right. Get up right now and call Sharron Catallo, Clarkston Village Council president, or trustees Bill Basinger, Dom Mauti, Eric Haven, Doug Roeser, Jim Schultz and Rob Whitmer.

Tell them to get off their keesters and do something to improve this village for a change.

Lights annoying

Danger may befall anyone in vicinity of those unshielded halide lights on short poles here at the new Food Town Shopping Center at Waldon-Sashabaw, Independence Township.

All those outdoor, newly-installed, unshielded lights have already caused such pain to my eyes and have endangered others driving by or into the parking lot.

Each are like the sun being reflected off of mirrors, into all directions.

During rainy times, the reflections are multiplied. Drivers are already having trouble locating the driveways off of Sashabaw and off of Waldon.

The unshielded lights blind the drivers and the customers so badly that they are a hazard to all of us.

When you are affected, call the township board people at 625-5111 and or Food Town at 625-9289.

Nowhere else in any place around are there such damaging dangerous lights—not at the new A & P store, the new Kroger's, North Pointe, Summit Place, Silverdome, nor the Palace.

I started to write this last week after being repeatedly subjected to these unshielded lights.

I am a prisoner in my own home as all my windows facing the road (parking lot) have to be covered day night. Even to go out into my front yard or driveway, my eyes are blinded by the intense, unshielded lights.

Drivers, customers, and anyone else: save your eyesight and mine before an accident is caused by the glare.

Just this past Wednesday night, I was missed by an unknown driver as I was attempting to drive out my west driveway to proceed on west after I was blinded by glare.

Thank you, whoever you were, because I could not see your car lights.

Iva Caverly

P.S. I have never objected to the development — only those lights!

Value of Visiting

Do not underestimate the value of your visit to the bereaved. It means more to the mourners than they can possibly express. With death comes grief. The family grieves for its lost one and for itself. The sorrow of separation is evident. You lighten the sorrow by sharing it. Your visit will help them get started on the road back.

The emotional well-being of survivors depends on the acknowledgment of the death, not on the denial of it. That is why the visitation and the funeral are so important. As painful as they might be, they constantly confirm the fact that the death has occurred.

Going to the visitation and/or the funeral can also be good in many ways for the person doing it. Facing the fact of death when it happens to others can be important in shaping the values in one's own life. It helps prepare for a future death in the family. It shows how to accept this same kind of community support when death occurs.

High taxes defeated bonds

Most of the letters to the editor concerning the recent vote on the bond issues for Clarkston Schools seemed to support the need for increases tax money for the schools. However, the results of the vote show that there must be a fairly silent majority of voters who disagree.

Until I wrote this letter, I was one of the silent ones. Following are some of the reasons I voted against all three proposals.

1. I moved to Clarkston nearly 20 years ago. Since then, my property taxes have continuously inched upward — mostly, I always thought, to keep up with inflation — until the last two or three years. Then they stopped inching and took some real jumps.

Now it seems that my home, built in the mid-1950s, has the same value for tax purposes as the newer homes, mostly built in the last five years. And the assessments prove this very emphatically.

I own two properties in Independence Township. Last year, the assessment on one of them increased 30 percent, and on the other one it doubled. This year year, I received another increase on one of them. No one should be surprised that if I have the opportunity to protect myself from any additional tax increase, no matter how small, I will avail myself of it. It is really my only chance to be a part of "taxation with representation."

2. Many people with whom I've talked were incensed that the school administration would include a swimming pool as a critical need for our students — certainly not in this period of recession, lay-offs and economic upset that has affected most of us.

A good many of us managed to get an education without having a swimming pool in the school. But to many people, this represents the administration's attitude that they can do anything they please as long as they can get the people to pay for it: try a pool on for size in a separate request.

The recent fiasco concerning the architect's contract cancellation did little to dispel our doubts the school administration is responsible.

3. The population of Independence Township is growing rapidly. A lot of us feel that the increase in property value attached to all the new homes should bring along the increased taxes that are needed to provide services — including schools — for these new residents.

It doesn't seem to work that way; increased population means increased taxes. And those of us not involved in the growth are amazed that we can do nothing to help control tax increases.

4. As Doug Carlson of Citizens for Orderly Growth acknowledged a few weeks ago, those of us on a fixed income are being taxed out of our homes, mostly so we can have "quality" schools; two-thirds or more of my taxes are allocated to the schools.

In a rather patronizing tone, the tax assessor said in a recent letter to taxpayers, "It is not the intent of this office to tax anyone of their homes." Obviously, he recognizes the result of his actions, even though his intentions may be honorable.

Further, "buyers and sellers establish market values, not the assessor's office." This is cold comfort to someone whose house has had neither a buyer nor a seller in 20 years and who has no intention of selling his home — unless he can no longer afford to pay the taxes.

It seems that our current township administration has considered the choice between more money for the schools (otherwise people will not choose to move to Clarkston, they say) or permitting those of us on fixed income to continue to live in the homes we have had for many years, and the schools win.

Maybe that's the way it should be. We oldsters have nearly served our purpose for being here. We raised a generation of kids — and paid for their education along the way — and it's time for us to get out of the way of progress (read higher taxes) and be moving along to some place we can afford.

I doubt that people will stop moving to Clarkston because of the school situation. But maybe if they did, property values would go down, and following the assessor's logic, so would property taxes to pay for downtown development, more sewers.

Maybe people could expect to live here until they died — not be forced to move. If these are the only choices we have, we had better change the way we raise the money to operate schools or change the way we spend it, or else those of you who now tax and spend will surely find yourselves in the position where you have put us, who find it nearly impossible to stay in the place where we chose to live out our retirement.

Maybe you should start thinking now about a retirement haven because the way things are going, it ain't going to be Independence Township.

Clarkston Schools Today

Good citizenship developed in Clarkston schools

BY DAVE RESCHKE, VINCE LICATA AND BRENT COOLEY

"By the year 2,000, every adult American will be literate and will possess skills necessary to compete in a global economy and exercise the right and responsibility of citizenship."

This goal, set forth by President George Bush last year, is one that receives much attention at the junior highs and high school in Clarkston.

Just how are we building good citizens in our schools?

Junior high school

Good citizenship is emphasized at Clarkston Junior High and Sashabaw Junior High in both formal and informal ways.

The goal statements in each school emphasize the necessity of a safe and orderly environment. This is necessary in a school so that students feel free to express themselves with fellow students and teachers.

A cornerstone of democracy is freedom of expression, and our schools need to model this. With freedom of expression comes the responsibility to make good judgments.

Each junior high has in place strong guidelines that demand respect and orderliness. The environment in our junior highs promotes citizenship in this manner.

Formally, the teaching of citizenship is part of the curriculum.

In seventh grade our students are enrolled in a "Skills for Adolescence" class where they learn to express feelings and opinions in a way that promotes agreement as opposed to disagreement.

All students in this class also participate in a community service project.

Our eighth-graders learn about the foundation of American democracy in history class. Our ninth-graders learn about the working of our government in social science class.

Many of our formal activities are designed to teach about and encourage good citizenship.

Our student council program is a model of democracy in action. In the fall, elections are held. This process involves campaigning, speech-making in front of the whole school and voting for officers.

Also, each social studies class in grades six through nine elects representatives to serve on the council.

The council conducts one fund-raiser per year, and the money raised is then used to implement projects the students decide would benefit the school.

The monthly meetings of the council are wonderful examples of group participation and decision making.

In some less formal ways, both CJHS and SJHS encourage good citizenship.

Each school has a service/advisory group of students to communicate directly with the principal.

Each school participates at least once or twice a year in community service projects such as canned food drives or clothing drives.

Groups of students such as the Ovations or Encores act as ambassadors in our community, performing at nursing homes and senior citizen centers.

The drama and mine students often volunteer time to work with the pre-school and elementary school children for special occasions and at school fairs.

In fact, at each school, about one-third of our students spend time in volunteer work individually in school or in area hospitals.

By focusing on rights and responsibilities through our goals and guidelines and by teaching to a curriculum that emphasizes democratic principles, we are able to help students become better citizens.

By providing opportunities for students to participate in decision-making and community service we give them the power to be good citizens.

High school

How are we promoting good citizenship at Clarkston High School?

CHS is promoting good citizenship in two ways: classes are designed to give students the knowledge needed to become good citizens, and extra-curricular activities are designed to instill a sense of community and motivate participation in civic activities.

The core curriculum at CHS is aimed at increasing student knowledge and insight into:

- Gathering information on community concerns and using this information in constructive ways, both to appreciate the wisdom in existing institutions and to see where improvements could be made.

- How their own opinions, attitudes and actions are related to social issues and concerns.

- Recognizing the pluralistic nature of our society, valuing this diversity, and seeking to mediate our differences to find "win-win" solutions.

These objectives, if met, will enable the student to understand community concerns and how to deal with them (for example, become a "good citizen.")

But even this may not be enough. Without the desire to use this knowledge, it is wasted.

The second prong of the two-prong strategy at CHS is intended to provide this motivation through extra-curricular activities.

Regular readers of The Clarkston News will readily acknowledge that rarely an issue comes out that does not include an example of what CHS students are doing to help better our community.

Leader/service clubs at CHS such as Student Council, Blue & Gold, Interact Club, Project Close Up, World Leadership Service, and others provide students opportunities to serve the community, and in so doing, realize these important good citizenship objectives:

- The great extent to which social problems can be solved through volunteerism and civic participation.

- Recognizing that with rights and freedoms come responsibilities and duty to serve.

- Sympathy for those less fortunate.

We at Clarkston High School are proud of our student involvement in curriculum and extra-curricular activities that promote the social welfare of our community through good citizenship.

Dave Reschke is principal of Sashabaw Junior High School; Vince Licata is principal of Clarkston Junior High School; and Brent Cooley is assistant principal of Clarkston High School.

Township OK's DDA spread

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Downtown Development Authority (DDA) has been given the greenlight to revamp the White Lake Road area.

On Feb. 5, the Independence Township Board unanimously approved the second reading of an ordinance that expands the DDA's jurisdiction to the White Lake Road area.

The DDA was created about five years ago to improve landscaping, lighting, water and sewer along parts of Dixie Highway and M-15. Now, the new expansion will cover a mile and a half stretch along White Lake Road from Dixie Highway to Andersonville Road.

The improvements will be financed by a tax increment financing program. In tax increment financing, money is captured by the township after state equalized values (SEV) in the DDA are "frozen" at the base year. After that year, any increased tax revenue due to an increase in property values is captured for use with the DDA. That money — from within the DDA boundaries only — is used for improvements with the DDA.

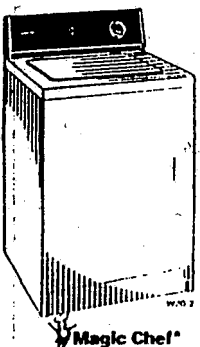

According to Supervisor Frank Ronk, renovations will begin once the "improvement plans" are approved by the DDA and township board.

New dentist

DENTIST Richard Tack moved from Waterfall Plaza, Waterford, to a new location about two miles north at Pine Ridge on Dixie Highway, Independence Township. Tack, a 1979 graduate from the University of Michigan, has been practicing general dentistry for about seven years. He resides on Englewood, Springfield Township, with his wife, Heidi. The couple are expecting their first child in March. Office hours are Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. (Photo by Sandra G. Conlen)

Elected president of trade association

The vice president of an area real estate service was elected president of the North Oakland County Board of Realtors (NOCBR) recently.

Fran Dickie, vice president of Clarkston Real Estate Services, Inc., on M-15, Independence Township, was installed in January.

She holds a bachelor of arts degree in education from Alma College, Alma, and she is a former teacher in Walled Lake and Pontiac. She earned her real estate license in 1974 and became a broker in 1981. As president of NOCBR, her responsibilities include representing NOCBR at state and national meetings.

The function of the trade association is to implement and enforce the code of ethics and to keep membership informed of legislative actions, trends in the marketplace and educational programs.

Dickie is happy in her elected position, she said. "I feel really honored," she said.

An Independence Township resident, Dickie is the mother of two: Dianna of South Lyon and Hugh of California.

The Clarkston area is a good place to offer real estate services, said Dickie.

"You meet a lot of really nice people," she said. "I think this is a wonderful place to work."

"We have a very strong market locally. Interest rates are better now than they have been in a long time," she said.

In Michigan, the average home price in 1990 was $82,000, compared to $115,000 nationally, said Dickie. In north Oakland County, the average price in 1990 was $90,328.

Also in Oakland County, unit sales decreased in 1990 by 6 percent, but the average price went up by 2.26 percent.

"That's pretty heartening," she said. "Michigan didn't have the escalation in prices that both the coasts did."

Dickie noted that a higher proportion of people own their own homes in the United States than in other countries in the world.

"I think that's one of the things that has made our country strong," she said.

Letters to the Editor

Gambling at party unwholesome

We are writing this letter to inform those interested regarding a great concern of ours. It has come to our attention that our Clarkston High School is organizing an all-night party for seniors on the night of graduation.

The issue that concerns us is that two of the activities of entertainment being offered are casino gambling and hypnosis.

It is our understanding that for the last few years, these parties have been held to offer graduating seniors positive alternatives for entertainment on this special evening.

If this is, in fact, the purpose of the party, then it is our belief that having gambling and hypnosis is far from positive entertainment. We believe school board members, teachers and parents should not encourage our seniors to attend a party where the respected adults in the community teach them by inference or example that gambling and being hypnotized is acceptable behavior.

We believe that if just one of these seniors should become entrapped later in life by one or both of these two vices, if just one of these seniors should lose life or family as a result of the problems that are associated, then we the parents, teachers or school board members should take partial responsibility for the consequences. It may have been at the senior high graduation night party that they learned these two forms of entertainment were innocent.

It is our hope that those planning this party will reconsider their choices for entertainment. Having wholesome entertainment, we believe, is what the school has in mind and with that we agree. However, we disagree with their definition of wholesome entertainment.

We think that sophisticated adults, being aware of the potential pitfalls in our society, should guide our young adults into more positive, less dangerous forms of enjoyment.

Therefore, we are asking you to call and express your opinion regarding this matter to Barbara Flores, 394-0079.

Thank you:

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Farrand

Salute to busy veterans posts

During the month of March, the American Legion is observing its 72nd anniversary.

From a caucus of war-weary veterans of the World War I American Expeditionary Force, the American Legion has grown into a gigantic service organization — more than 3 million men and women still serving America in a wide variety of ways.

Last year, the services included: 120,000 pints of blood donated, 286,000 veterans claims handled, 1.5 million volunteer hours at V.A. hospitals, $3 million in scholarships, $16 million in support of youth programs (American Legion baseball, American Legion boys state, Boy Scout unit sponsorship, the national high school oratorical contest, student trooper and more), 2.6 million volunteer hours in community service, $7 million in support of community service, $6.8 million donated to charity fund drives.

This is nationwide.

We salute the men and women of the American Legion on this 72nd Anniversary of the nation's largest and fastest growing veterans' organization.

Wolves win district ...

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The referees were calling them close and the Clarkston team missed some close shots but the Wolves still managed to close out another district championship (and it wasn't even that close).

Clarkston's varsity basketball team, held to about 20 points less than its scoring average, topped Lapeer East, 57-43, to win the Class A district championship Friday night at a packed Lapeer East gymnasium.

The win improved the Wolves' record to 22-0, advancing them to Thursday's (March 14) 7:30 p.m. regional opener against Flint Northwestern at Saginaw Valley State University. Lapeer East finished the season 20-3.

The referees were blowing quick whistles on the Wolves and the Eagles all night, with four of the five Clarkston starters finishing with four fouls apiece.

Clarkston coach Dan Fife said the closeness of the calls took away his Wolves' rhythm and affected their performance.

But Fife added, "An ugly win is better than a pretty loss."

Lapeer East coach Ardie Fisher saw the refereeing differently.

"We didn't think they called them close enough," said Fisher.

But Fisher knew his team played a tough squad, calling the Wolves "physical," "quick" and having a lot of "patience."

Fisher forgot to mention about the Wolves passing.

Clarkston's shooting touch was lukewarm throughout most of the night and with about five minutes left, the Eagles were still in the game, trailing 44-33.

But that's when Clarkston's passing-attack ripped the game wide open, scoring 10 unanswered points. First Dugan Fife passed to Jon Wyniemko for a layup, then Fife flicked it to Mark Galbraith for another easy layup, then Galbraith returned the favor to Fife for a bucket underneath. Chris Wasilk followed with a 10-footer from up the middle and then Wyniemko found Fife in close for another layup, putting the Wolves ahead 54-33 at the 2:10 mark.

Fisher, whose team's defense on an average has kept opponents below 50 points, said his team became "tired" during the 10-0 run.

Dugan Fife, however, said the Wolves deliberately looked for points inside using a Flex-2 offense.

"They picked us up high," said Fife about the Eagles at that point. Lapeer East before that time, was often playing a sagging zone defense against the Wolves.

Clarkston, getting many second shots from offensive rebounds, took a 14-6 lead after the first quarter. The Wolves then led 26-14 at the half.

Eagle Aaron Fisher threw in a prayer with seven seconds left to go in third quarter while being fouled. His free throw then reduced Clarkston's lead to 35-27.

But the quarter wasn't over, as Clarkston's Chris Wasilk sank an 8-footer up the middle at the buzzer for a 10-point lead.

That lead continued until Clarkston put it away with its blitz of passes and layups.

Coach Dan Fife praised Wasilk's floor game and shooting.

"Chris was outstanding," said Fife about the point guard who finished with 13 points.

Dugan Fife, who connected on only 10 of 26 shots, still managed to score a game-high 27 points.

"They played tough," said the junior guard, who uncharacteristically missed several shots off the board while driving into the basket.

Other Wolves who scored were Luke Fedio, Jon Wyniemko and Mark Galbraith each with four, Derek Wiley with three and Sean Halleran with two.

Clarkston quickly took the fire out of the Dragons by taking a 32-point lead into intermission en route to a 68-45 rout over Lake Orion.

The win advanced Clarkston to the district finals while ending the season for the Dragons (9-12).

The Wolves led by 11 after the first quarter, 32 at the half and 39 after three quarters.

Dugan Fife scored 28 points and Fedio netted 14 to pace Clarkston. Wiley scored seven, Galbraith five, Wasilk and Wyniemko four, Halleran, Jason Lund and Nick Shires each with two.

Adam Timpf was the only Dragon in double figures with 10.

... ready for Saginaw

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston's varsity basketball team plays its games one at a time, but it's difficult not to think about two teams at once during this week's regionals.

The Class A district champion Wolves, 22-0 and rated No. 3 in the state, are thinking about No. 2 Saginaw but know they first have to get by Flint Northwestern 7:30 p.m. Thursday (March 14) at Saginaw Valley State University.

Saginaw will first have to defeat Swartz Creek before making the regional finals against the Clarkston-Flint Northwestern winner, Saturday at 2:30 p.m.

Clarkston coach Dan Fife admits his Wolves have been thinking about Saginaw. After all, Saginaw was the last team to beat Clarkston, 60-57, in last year's regional final. Saginaw continued on to reach the state finals, bowing to Detroit Southwestern.

"It would be a tremendous challenge, the second and third teams in the state," said Fife, "but we're ready to play at that level."

But before that could happen, Clarkston must get by a 16-7 Flint Northwestern team that handed Saginaw its only defeat, 49-47, on Feb. 22 (Saginaw, however, was playing without its high-scoring guard, Daniel West).

Fife said Clarkston "doesn't match up" with the taller Northwestern team, but said Clarkston hasn't matched up with many opponents all season long.

He said Northwestern reminds him of Ferndale. Ferndale had 6-foot, 9-inch Carlos Kennedy, while Northwestern has 6-foot, 9-inch Leon Derricks. Derricks, a junior center, is Northwestern's leading scorer, averaging about 13 points a game.

Fife said Clarkston will be able to handle Derricks "only with help." In other words, some double-teaming.

"Rebounding will be the key," said Fife. And that means the Wolves will be depending on Mark Galbraith and Sean Halleran to carry most of the load of clearing the boards.

Fife added about the run-and-gun Northwestern team.

"They could blow us out or we could blow them out. They're that type of team," said Fife.

If Clarkston does win the regional, it would be the boys' basketball team's first one since 1980.

Fife unquestionably one of state's best

DUGAN Fife, who has been averaging about 30 points, eight assists and six steals per game, shoots a jumper against Pontiac Northern's Devon Coleman.

Clarkston News staff reporter James Gibowski recently interviewed Dugan Fife. Fife, a junior on the Clarkston varsity basketball team, is averaging about 30 points, eight assists and six steals per game this season. Selections from that interview follow:

How did you get the name Dugan?

"It was my grandpa's nickname and I guess my dad's nickname."

Do you have any thoughts about being "Mr. Basketball" next year?

"It would be nice, but the junior class is pretty strong. It depends on how I do in camps this summer. It's a lot of politics. The more colleges that are after you, the more they see you as a Mr. Basketball candidate."

How many different colleges have contacted you?

"Fifty to 75."

What's your grade point average?

3.2

What do you plan on studying in college?

"Business law."

When did you first pick up a basketball?

"Probably when I was four or five. My dad coached at Michigan and he'd take me to the gym. Johnny Orr gave me a basket to play with in my room."

Is it a given that you would like to end up playing for the University of Michigan?

"I like Michigan a lot, they seem to have interest in me. But it's hard to say, I'm not going to commit myself."

How much more pressure is there in a game situation, if you know there's a scout in attendance?

"The first game (against Lakeland) that I really knew there was a scout there, Steve Fischer came from Michigan, an assistant coach from Rice University and an assistant from Purdue. When they walked in the door, I said, 'Oh no. I've got to play good tonight.' I had a pretty good game that night. The pressure's there. I talked to him (Fischer), and told me one game's not going to make a difference."

Do you ever think about the pros?

"Not really. But I see some players like John Stockton and Mark Price. I think I play similar to how they play. But it's a long way away."

How tough is it having your dad as a coach?

"It can be tough at times, but there's a lot of good points to it. Like for the future, he'll tell me something I know I don't have to do for high school, like certain ways to play defense, but he knows I'll need it for college because he's been there."

Did you ever feel it was unfair how people complained that you were a starting quarterback since you were a freshman?

"My sophomore year I did because people were writing that I was there (as quarterback) because of my dad. My freshman year, I would have rather played with my friends, people didn't see that. When I was on varsity, I felt uncomfortable. I didn't know any of the players."

Did it bother you that you maybe grew up so fast in sports, playing varsity as a freshman?

"Not really because I would think my Dugan Fife.

I could go on and on about his marvelous shooting touch, his no-look passing and his quick hands and feet on defense.

In fact, I think Fife is such a skilled player, he, (barring injuries) no doubt, should be a top candidate for the state's Mr. Basketball title next season (his senior year).

But enough about how I feel.

When I asked myself who could best describe what type of player Fife is, I thought about his opponents who had to guard him.

Actually, I first thought about it several weeks ago when I was doing a "Prep Profile" on Chris Wasilk, one of Fife's teammates. When I asked Wasilk to name his toughest individual opponent, he immediately said Fife because he had to guard him last season, practice after practice.

Wasilk's comment was one of the best compliments anyone could give Fife as a player.

Here are some more from those guys that have tried to stop him this season.

Tad Smith, Waterford Kettering:

"It's hard defending him. People are always picking so he gets his shots," said Tad Smith.

Smith said Fife's only weakness is that he is "not a very good jumper." But compared to Smith, hardly anyone can jump. The Kettering player is Oakland County's best high jumper during track season.

When it came to describing Fife's strengths, Smith said, "Write everything down. His shooting, dribbling, practically everything."

Smith also pointed out another facet about Fife, saying, "I like the way he keeps his mouth shut and does what he has to do."

Smith described Kettering's pre-game strategy against Fife.

"We were to try and contest his shot and make sure he doesn't dish off. Try to get him outside. But obviously, we didn't do that."

Jim Vackaro, Lake Orion:

"He's tough. He's one of the best I've ever played against," said Jim Vackaro, who also competed against Fife on the football field.

"I can't compare him to anyone. He shoots really good, comes off the screen well and he can drive! He doesn't have any weaknesses. You can tell he's a hard worker."

Vackaro also paid a compliment to Fife's teammates.

"If you find a way to stop him, he has other good players," said Vackaro.

Devon Coleman, Pontiac Northern:

"It's a difficult task while fighting many picks," said Husky Devon Coleman about guarding Fife. "He uses those picks and his body well."

Coleman, who complimented Fife's teammates by saying the guard "plays with a good surrounding cast," said Fife takes it right to his defenders.

"His strength is going to the basket. And he can dribble with both hands," said Coleman, who said Fife's only weakness is passing while in the air instead of on the floor, which can result in some charges.

Coleman said Northern used more of a zone defense the first time the two teams played this season, but the second time the strategy against Fife was, "Don't switch, stay on your man. And don't worry about the 3-pointer."

Coleman has guarded many tough opponents, but ranks Fife with the best of them.

"He's right up there with the elite," said Coleman. "And I think he's even going to be better next year."

Brent Rodak, Brandon:

"He can play as well as he wants," says Brent Rodak. "The only one that can stop him is himself. He turns it an extra notch."

Rodak said Fife is more than just a

"great shooter."

"He's mentally tough, nothing rattles him," said Rodak. "If the coach yells at him, he goes out and plays harder."

Brandon's strategy was to double-team him.

"We put somebody on him. Then when he goes to make his move, we double-teamed him," said Rodak.

Jermaine Burnside, Ferndale:

"It was a little tough," said Jermaine Burnside, who was assigned to cover Fife. "I had to go through four or five picks on every play. They made me tired. I was worn out. They look out for him and get him open."

In pre-game practice, Ferndale decided to put its two best players on Fife, with one player covering up for another that might get taken out of the play. Kevin Hermiz was that other player for Ferndale.

Burnside said Fife isn't only dangerous when he's shooting, but hurts his opponents by the way he "shows the ball." In other words, just when a defender thinks he's got him covered, Fife can quickly dish off to an open teammate.

"He has a nice drive. He's a great ballplayer," said Burnside.

friends were playing in the Clarkston-Sashabaw game, but I'm playing in the district finals with 2,500 people in the stands. That makes up for it."

Is there any hesitation about playing football next season because of injuries?

"When you start thinking about injuries, that's when you get hurt. It's always possible. But I still plan on playing football. I love football. Not the practices, but I love the games."

Has playing football helped you in basketball?

"Playing football makes you more physical. It makes you get used to people banging on you and stuff. When you play quarterback you have to see the field and when you play basketball you have to see the floor. Playing football, you have to anticipate where the receivers are and in basketball you have to see who's covered."

Your teammates give you some great picks. Is that one of the keys to your shooting success?

"People don't realize, when I get all those layups, the only reason I'm all alone is because Mark Galbraith clears out the whole lane. (Sean) Halleran sets good picks, too. That's why I get most of my shots either in transition, or off picks. It took me a while to know how to use the picks. I'm still not as good as I should be."

Do you ever get tired of playing basketball?

"I really don't get tired of it. At times, when the season gets long, I get tired physically. It seems like the more success you have, the more you want to get better and better. My dad told me when I didn't used to play a lot, 'you're going to look back on these days and wish you could do it all over again, because everyone tries to be good for their senior year.' I think I could have played a lot more when I was younger. So I'm going to try and make up for it this spring and summer."

Do you really like your haircut?

"I don't like my hair long. Our barber calls our haircuts 'the Saudis,' in Saudi Arabia the army guys getting all those short haircuts. Single, double, triple. Single's longer, double gets shorter ... I've got a triple."

Do you have a girlfriend?

Yes. Madeline Humphreys. She's a junior.

What does she think about all this basketball?

"I'm always talking about basketball. I try not to. We'll be watching something on TV and I say, 'Just a second' and I'll flip it just to get a score."

What about your mom?

"She was a cheerleader, she wasn't an athlete. But she surprises me. Sometimes I'll come home on Saturday and she'll be watching a basketball game when I thought she'd be watching soap operas. But Monday and Wednesday nights she'll get mad. My dad will be watching basketball upstairs and I'll go in the basement and watch basketball downstairs. She'll get mad, 'Get upstairs.'"

How many basketballs have you shot in your life?

"Billions."

MATT GREENE signs his letter of intent to play football for Wayne State University.

WSU signs new snapper

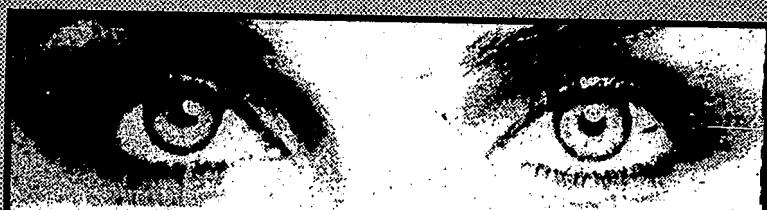

Matt Greene, an Independence Township resident who is a senior at Orchard Lake St. Mary, will be playing football for Wayne State University this fall.

Greene is expected to snap the ball for Wayne State's punting team next season. He received a scholarship from the university and plans to study sports medicine and physical therapy.

Greene attended Clarkston schools from kindergarten through the eighth grade.

The three-sport athlete earned eight varsity letters (three in both football and baseball and two in basketball) at St. Mary's. The 6-foot, 2-inch 240 pound center made all-Catholic League this season and was honorable mention all-county.

Greene is the son of Victoria Greene, who lives on Dvorak in Independence Township. His sister, Nikki Greene, is a ninth-grader at Sashabaw Junior High. He is the nephew of Dan and Jan Fife and his grandparents are Victor and Judy Fife.

Coug's hand Dragons first loss in four years

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Lake Orion's seventh and eighth grade wrestling team hadn't lost a dual meet since 1987.

But that was before the Dragons visited this year's Sashabaw Junior High squad Feb. 21. The Cougars topped Lake Orion, 45-29.

Sashabaw coach Frank Lafferty and his team were caught up in the emotion of the victory.

"We went nuts like it was the World Series," said Lafferty. "The kids wanted to drop water on me, but I didn't want them to ruin the floor."

Coach Lafferty gave credit to his players and to a non-school wrestling program which gives his athletes additional experience.

"The boys worked hard," said the coach. "I would also like to give credit to the Clarkston Wrestling Club."

Six Cougars pinned their opponents: Rob Jeffrey (90 pounds) pinned Doug Dunton in 22 seconds, Chad Auten (95) pinned Jeremy Gibson in 1:42, Corey Grant (105) pinned Jason McCall in 2:00, Jesse Laycock (115) pinned Ryan Needham in 26 seconds, Scott Hund (155) pinned Mike Calcatara in 33 seconds and Brian Ladd (167) pinned Shawn Polhamus in 35 seconds.

Cougar Eric Endreszl (130) stopped Justin Wiscomb on a technical fall, 17-2, and teammate Brett Rebb (137) topped Dragon Matt McGill, 11-7.

Lake Orion won five matches: Mike Owen (75) pinned Phil Cuthbertson in 1:00, Paul Benedict (100) pinned Jeremy SASHABAW's Corey Grant is about to pin Lake Orion's Jason McCall. The Cougars won the match.

Lafferty in 1:59, Josh Guleck (110) pinned Alex Bowers in 53 seconds, Richard Hoover (120) pinned Tony Detkowski in 2:04, and John Maloney (125) stopped Don Thorn in a minor decision.

Seven exhibition matches also took place on the mats and Lake Orion won all of them. Most of the Dragon wrestlers were ninth-graders.

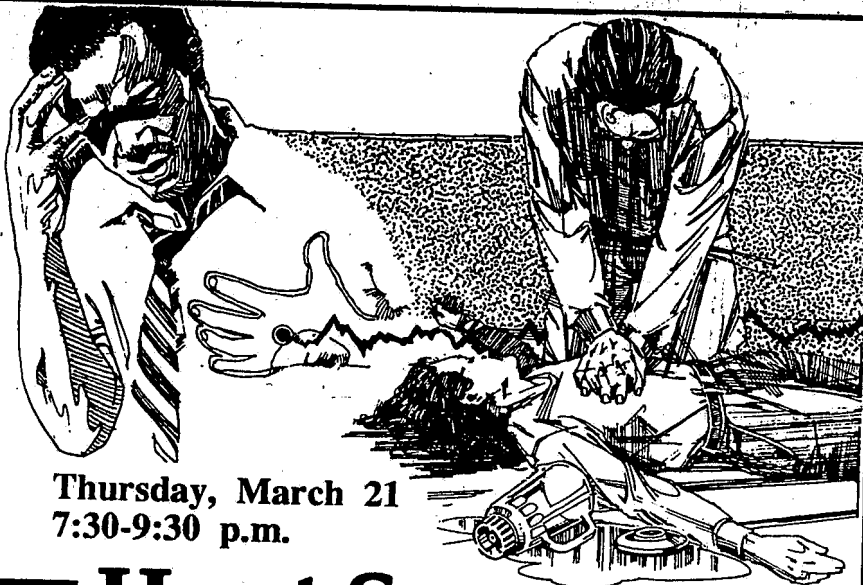

Dragon Brian McGee (125) pinned Jeremiah Wade in 4:00, Matt Olds (140) pinned Alan Rockafellow in 4:02, Dennis Mahan (145) topped Jason Cain, 5-1, Tim Brown (152) pinned Bob Lipinski in 2:00, Bob Fisher (185) stopped Mike Porritt, 7-3, Jeremy Dean (hwt.) pinned Brian Bass in 1:04, Mike Kinney (hwt.) pinned Brian Boggs in 55 seconds.

Honors continue

CLARKSTON'S state championship wrestlers were honored with an all-school assembly March 7.

Jokisch hopes new league extends pro career

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Paul Jokisch, a former football star with the University of Michigan and member of several NFL teams, was recently drafted into the World League of American Football (WLAFA).

Jokisch, a former resident of Springfield Township, was selected by the Raleigh-Durham (N.C.) Skyhawks in the fifth round. He was the 41st wide receiver selected overall in the Feb. 18 draft.

A 1982 Parade All-American in both football and basketball at Brother Rice, the 6-foot-8-inch senior signed a letter of intent to play basketball at U.M. Two years later, Jokisch left the basketball team to play football.

During the next three seasons with the Wolverines, Jokisch snared 58 passes for 1,088 yards and eight touchdowns. Unfortunately, the promising star acquired a groin tear during his last year of eligibility and only caught 11 passes for 229 yards.

Despite the injury, he was a fifth-round draft choice of the San Francisco 49ers in 1987. But injuries continued to plague the split end as he bounced from three different clubs over the next three years.

But now, Jokisch feels he's found his niche in professional football.

"I'm very excited about being drafted," Jokisch said. "It's a great opportunity for me and other players to play professional football. It won't have the overall talent of the NFL, but it can serve as sort of minor league where players can get a chance to showcase their talents."

Not only does the 27-year-old Jokisch believe he can break the team's 40-man roster, he thinks the WLAFA could be his stepping stone back into the NFL.

"The players drafted are thinking of this as their chance to prove themselves," he said. "I'm hoping this league can serve as a vehicle which can turn the heads of a few NFL scouts."

Not unlike baseball's minor league system, Jokisch will have to endure lower pay and intense traveling. In the WLAFA, there are 10 teams, with three located in Europe. Jokisch said the league plans on having consecutive weekly games in Europe to cut down on the amount of travel time.

In terms of salaries, the NFL and WLAFA are also worlds apart. According to Jokisch, all the league's wide receivers are paid a set fee of $20,000 for a 10-week season. Quarterbacks are paid the highest salary at $25,000 a year.

As of now, Jokisch is upbeat and ready to reconvene with his football career.

PAUL Jokisch was recently drafted by the Raleigh-Durham Skyhawks. "I'm looking forward to our upcoming training camp and the chance of playing ball again," he said. "This league is giving a lot of players a second chance."

The WLAFA will be opening its inaugural season in late March.

Tips to avoid poisoning accidents

March 17-23 marks the 30th anniversary of National Poison Prevention Week.

This event is intended to raise awareness of the dangers of accidental poisonings and of the measures needed to prevent them from happening.

In light of this event, the Southeastern Michigan Society of Hospital Pharmacists (SEMSHP) wants the public to be aware of housekeeping rules to prevent poisoning accidents.

■ Keep all household chemical products and medicines out of the reach and sight of youngsters. These items should be locked up when not in use.

■ When these products are in use, NEVER let them out of your sight. If you must leave the room for some reason, either take the product with you or store it out of the reach of children.

■ Store all medicines separately from household products and store all household chemicals away from food items.

■ Keep all medicines and chemical products in their original containers.

■ Leave the original labels on all products and read these labels before using.

■ Always leave the light on when giving or taking medicines.

■ Avoid taking medicines in front of children, since youngsters tend to imitate grown-ups.

■ Refer to all medicines as "medicine" and not candy.

■ Clean out the medicine cabinet periodically. Safely dispose of all unneeded medicines when the illness for which they were prescribed has terminated. If you have questions about disposal of medicines, ask your pharmacist for help.

■ After using, always secure safety packaging properly.

If a household chemical or medicine has been swallowed, follow the first-aid instructions on the label and then seek medical advice. This can be done by calling the local Poison Control Center, whose phone number is located on the inside cover of the telephone directory.

For quick access, place this number on or by other emergency phone numbers.

Further information on making your home safe for youngsters can be obtained by writing to: U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, Midwestern Regional Office, 230 S. Dearborn St., Room 2945, Chicago, IL 60604.

Planners OK final library plan

The Independence Township Library cleared its final hurdle March 7 when the proposed addition received final site plan approval.

The Independence Township Planning Commission voted 6-0 to approve plan, with a few conditions. Steve Secatch was absent from the meeting.

The 16,000-square-foot addition will bring the present facility to 20,000 square feet. The addition will be paid for with a $2 million bond issue approved by voters Nov. 8, 1988.

The addition is to include a 200-person meeting room and five other rooms ranging from local history to audio visual.

Township officials currently are deliberating over bids from construction companies interested in building the addition. A decision is expected sometime this month. The library is to be completed by fall 1991.

The approval was granted, subject to the following conditions:

■ potentially adding additional vegetation between the library and neighboring homes.

■ protection of nearby wetlands during and after construction.

■ re-calculation of the total number of parking spaces.

■ review of existing landscape to the east and how it affects irrigation.

Appointed to ZBA

Kurt Karlstrom was chosen by the Independence Township Board to fill one of two voids on the zoning board of appeals.

At the Feb. 19 meeting, the Tappan Court, Independence Township, resident was named to replace Bob Newlin, who has retired from his seat.

Karlstrom's term is scheduled to expire in December 1991.

Karlstrom is employed as a purchasing manager at Anderson-Cook, Inc., Fraser. He is also the father of two children.

DOING what others did before is part of a lesson in history learned by students at Clarkston Junior High during an annual trip

Classes at camp

Clarkston Junior High eighth-graders took their classes to camp early in November. The annual trip to Camp Tamarack in Ortonville is sponsored to teach students elements of outdoor survival.

During their three-day stay, the 144 students learned things such as effects of hypothermia, lessons on ecology and other outdoor skills.

They also took time out for fun, naturally.

Class recognized for stance on stereotyping

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A seventh-grade reading class at Clarkston Junior High School has proven that you don't have to be an adult to fight stereotyping.

The class was given a certificate of achievement from the Detroit chapter of Women in Communication, Inc., for its month-long campaign against two stereotypical board games.

According to class instructor Barbara Glover, the letter-writing campaign to Parker Brothers, Inc., began during the Christmas season. Glover said the class was learning about the perils of stereotyping when one of her female students told her about the board games, Girl Talk and Careers for Girls.

The games offer limited career choices for women, except outdated standards such as mother, nurse and secretary.

The class then engaged in a letter-writing campaign to authorities at Parker Brothers, where they questioned the company about the limited career choices in the two games.

Glover said the company sent a "lame letter" to the class saying that they didn't intend to be stereotypical and that the game was only meant for enjoyment and not as a learning tool.

"I don't know where they came off saying that the game was only for enjoyment," Glover said. "All games provide some sort of learning experience, especially ones dealing with prospective careers."

The letter-writing campaign caught the attention of two of Michigan's largest daily newspapers, which responded by publishing stories on the class. Glover said the stories resulted in a few "fan letters" being sent to the class by Michigan residents.

Furthermore, the class was shocked to find that their endeavors had caught the ear of Women in Communication, Inc. The class was recognized with a certificate of achievement at the chapter's Feb. 27 awards banquet. In turn, the organization awarded its not-so-coveted "Dog Award" to Parker Brothers for misleading its target market.

Students Colin McIntyre, 11, and Heather Moore, 11, were on hand to accept the certificate for their class.

"I was honored to be there," Heather said. "It was really great to represent our class, and the grown-ups were really interested in what we had to say."

Glover said the students have learned that topics such as stereotyping have many audiences.

"This exercise was wonderful for the children because it let's them know that they can be taken seriously by the adult world."

COLIN McIntyre and Heather Moore were on hand to collect a certificate of achievement for their class's letter-writing campaign from Women in Communication, Inc.

The Other Side of Things

Nightmare on Disneyworld Street

Ashley Ball

I was thrilled when my parents announced we'd be going to Disneyworld for a week.

I have wonderful memories of Disneyworld from the years we lived in Tampa. We would often just drive over for the day. And, since moving away, we've spent two vacations at Disneyworld, staying at the Contemporary and Polynesian Resort.

The monorail would bring us to our rooms every evening from the Magic Kingdom and Epcot, and, at night, we'd watch the beautiful river parade of lighted floats from the balcony of our room.

In the five years since our last trip, there've been lots of new Disney additions: MGM, Typhoon Lagoon, Universal Studios. I was lost in remembrances and expectations when my dad announced the specifics of our upcoming trip ...

"This time," he said in a hearty voice, "we're going to camp out! We'll stay in Camp Wilderness ... sleep in a tent ... rough it in the wilds ... all right there in Disney world. It'll be an experience we'll never forget!"

"Unless we're lucky!" I cried, not believing a potentially wonderful trip to Disneyworld could unfold so disastrously.

"Why can't we stay at the Contemporary or at that new hotel next to the Magic Kingdom?" I whined. "I mean, what about the ants and the bugs and the wolves at night?"

"Oh, honey," my mom laughed, turning from the kitchen sink and wiping her hands on her Donna Reed apron, "there aren't any wolves in Camp Wilderness."

Then she paused thoughtfully and turned to my dad. "But what about the ants and the bugs?" she wondered out loud. "You didn't say anything about the ants and the bugs?"

"And it says here," Laura enthused, as she plowed through the pile of Disney brochures my mom had stacked on the kitchen island, "that Chip and Dale will join us 'round the ol' campfire every night for a Camp Wilderness sing-along!"

"Chip and Dale?" I cried in anguish. "Oh, g-reat! Just who I was hoping to spend some time with in the evenings. What about the night spots on Pleasure Island? I mean, how many cute guys are going to be gathered 'round the ol' campfire?"

"Well," Laura reasoned, "maybe they'll be in the Chip and Dale costumes. But, anyway, Ash, 'we can cook our meals over the campfire, and —"

"Laura," I pointed out, "the only thing we know how to cook over a campfire is marshmallows. Do you want charred marshmallows for breakfast every morning?"

What happened to the Disneyworld I remembered — the luxurious hotels, the electric parade, the balcony, being first on the monorail to the Magic Kingdom every morning — feeling like we really lived at Disneyworld. At Camp Wilderness, we'd be gathering sticks for firewood and fighting off the Indians until noon every day. When would we have time for the fun ... the sun ... the sand ... the —

"SHARKS!" Laura shrieked, opening another brochure. "Can you believe this, Ash?" she exclaimed with delight. "We can even swim with REAL LIVE SHARKS in Typhoon Lagoon. Won't that be fun? Can you hardly wait? Ooooooh, this is gonna be GREAT!"

"Swim with sharks?" I gulped, staring into space, now, quietly resigned to my fate. Swimming with sharks is my ALL-TIME WORST NIGHTMARE! Except, of course, for the one about fighting off howling wolves.

During the next few days, Laura and I began to lay out clothes we planned to pack. Living in the wilderness for a week, away from civilization and laundries and room service, I wanted to take plenty of clothes.

"Oh, don't worry, Ash," Laura assured me. "Mom said there's a laundry in Camp Wilderness."

"Yeah," I agreed half-heartedly. "But beating your clothes with a rock by the river's edge is hard work and time consuming — and, besides, it can really tear up your nails."

Ashley Ball is a ninth-grader at Clarkston Junior High School.

WRONG PRICING LOGIC

QUESTION: Why do so many home owners go wrong when they try to set a realistic selling price on their home?

ANSWER: Most people base their price tags on the only facts known to them: original price, cost of improvements, hoped-for-profit and what they think similar homes are bringing. The original price, improvements, and hoped-for-profit only determine whether you gain or lose, but they have nothing to do with the right price to produce a sale. Prices of other homes? Most of the time you only hear of the asking price, not the selling price.

Consult a local Realtor whose business it is to know how much property can and will bring.

Solo and Ensemble honors awarded

Clarkston News Associate Editor

A group of Clarkston music students won honors at a recent Solo and Ensemble Festival this month. Many of these junior high and high school students earned superior Division I ratings, which qualify them for the state event in March.

Several others won good Division II ratings, which earned them medals.

The talent displayed by the students isn't the only thing that makes them stand out, however.

The fact that they are Solo and Ensemble performers — and therefore craft their considerable skills on their own time — displays commitment.

Students pursuing Solo and Ensemble performance work alone, or with their fellow performers, outside the regular band or vocal classes.

Though they work under the direction of instrumental and vocal teachers who may provide them space to rehearse, the proficiency and practice needed to achieve recognition is entirely up to the student.

"The students are self-motivated," explains high school instrumental instructor Cliff Chapman. "They're doing something they don't have to do. That factor in itself is something."

"It certainly does give students discipline," adds vocal instructor Grayce Warren. "These students work very, very hard."

The weeks and months of individualized effort culminate in the annual Solo and Ensemble events, held at the district level first, and then at the state level in both instrumental and vocal categories.

Doing well at the event is "not easy," according to Chapman.

Students are rated in categories including: tone, quality, intonation, rhythm, technique and interpretation in the instrumental area. Vocal students are graded on various technical aspects within these categories and are also judged on appearance.

To receive a Division I rating — the highest standard — a student must receive an "A" in at least three categories.

The event is not a competition in which students might beat out other students for first place; rather students attempt to play within a standard of quality.

Preparing and performing for an event can be tough, admits Jason Ruth, an 11th-grade percussionist.

"You get nervous; it's like a sport," Jason admits. "It feels good when you finish a piece and you've played well. You feel proud."

Jason, who captured a Division I rating with other members of his percussion quartet, says although it can be challenging to coordinate free time with fellow performers, the hardest part about Solo and Ensemble is perfecting the music.

The music can be anything thought to be "serious literature for the instrument" and is usually selected to match the ability of the performers. An ensemble can consist of two to eight performers.

Vocal students must perform two contrasting pieces of music from a prescribed set of texts.

While Chapman states that Clarkston students "do pretty well" at events such as the one held recently, he modestly adds that the number of Division I and Division II awards are "about the same" as other schools of Music students display talent, commitment

(MUSIC, from Page 32)

Clarkston's size

Jason credits Chapman with a lot of the student's success.

"He's just pushy for the better," he says. "He demands things."

"Not more than what is expected," he adds.

According to Chapman, the success of the students is a result of their own efforts and should come as little surprise.

"They're more self-motivated and interested in their own success than a lot of adults give them credit for," he says.

ond-graders are in Nancy VanWagner's class at Pine Knob Elementary School. "The best thing about art," Hagedorn told the pupils, "is that it doesn't have to look like your friend's. Stick to your own idea." The artist will spend a few Friday afternoons in most classrooms at the school, thanks to funds from the Clarkston Foundation and a little extra help from the Parent Teacher Association.

Vivid -- in Van Gogh style

"COOL! No wonder you're an artist!" exclaims one second-grader when Christine Hagedorn shows the pupils how to create a bright, starry night sky -- sort of like the Dutch painter Vincent Van Gogh did in the 19th century. These second-grade art students, however, use bright crayons before they use dark paint, as shown by Justin Lamb (left) and Ramzy Dasuqi, who are students in Nancy VanWagner's class.

SHANNON Fell immediately digs into her Van Gogh-style artwork.

JASON HALL quietly, smilingly, draws bright colors around the stars pasted on his paper.
