Judge says 'yes' to cityhood ruling

BY CURT MCALLISTER
 Clarkston News Staff Writer

Another hurdle was passed in Clarkston's run for cityhood last week, but the Independence Township Board has provided an additional roadblock.

On March 13, Oakland County Circuit Court Judge John O'Brien upheld the state Boundary Commission's decision to give the village the right to incorporate as a city.

However, the Independence Township Board voted to appeal O'Brien's decision at the March 19 meeting, pushing the case to the Michigan Court of Appeals. The motion to appeal passed 5-2, with Daniel Travis and Joan McCrary voting no.

The township filed the lawsuit against the Boundary Commission last July, after village residents voted to approve cityhood for Clarkston. The township contends that the permission granted by the Boundary Commission violated the state's charter township act.

The village, with about 1,000 residents, is in the southwest quadrant of the 36-square-mile township.

Since the township filed suit, both sides have secured allies. The state Boundary Commission, represented by the state Attorney General's office, has support from the Village of Clarkston and the Michigan Municipal League. The township is being aided by the Michigan Township Association.

In reaction to O'Brien's decision, township officials said they expected as much from the judge.

"This case was handled in a local circuit court, and "We were anticipating this type of decision. Regardless of what side had prevailed, we all know that this case is going to the Michigan Supreme Court."

when faced with highly technical issues, these courts have a tendency to be practical instead of technical," said township attorney Gerald Fisher.

"We would have considered ourselves fortunate if the judge had found in our favor, but we've been prepared to take this issue to higher heights for some time," he said. Supervisor Frank Ronk concurred.

"We were anticipating this type of decision," he said. "Regardless of what side had prevailed, we all know that this case is going to the Michigan Supreme Court."

Village Manager Artemus Pappas said he was happy with the judge's ruling.

"It was a most favorable decision," he said. "Anyone connected with the village is pleased with the decision."

Village attorney Thomas Ryan, admittedly pleased with the ruling, said the village is prepared to take the matter to a higher court if need be.

"We feel we're right in this matter, and we've got solid backing from both the municipal league and the attorney general's office," Ryan said.

Fisher, on the other hand, said the implications of a township loss in this case could be detrimental to the county and state.

"There are currently 61 individual municipalities in Oakland County, and a decision of this magnitude could tear it apart," he said. "If these smaller communities are broken apart any further, ... what type of sensible governments can we have? A lot of important projects could be stymied if newly created governments disagreed with their neighbors."

Take part in shaping schools

BY TRACY KING
 Clarkston News Associate Editor

Community volunteers are asked to help Clarkston schools act on an extensive improvement project.

The district school improvement plan was initiated last fall. The efforts satisfy a new state law, Public Act 25, which requires each district in the state to complete improvement efforts.

The groundwork was laid by a team of 25 specially chosen community members, teachers, administrators, board members and support personnel, who met for three full days in December, January and February.

The group has, so far, developed the mission and belief statements for the district, as well as goals and strategies for carrying out the improvements.

Volunteers are now sought for action teams, which will make the goals and strategies a reality.

The work completed up to now will be presented in a special meeting Wednesday, March 27. (See box.)

Though Public Act 25 now requires each district to complete school improvement plans, the Clarkston district had voluntarily begun the process earlier.

(See CHANGE, next page)

Want to change the schools? Here's your chance

(CHANGE from previous page)

One school improvement process initiated by the district is S.U.C.C.E.S.S., or Strategies Used to Cooperatively Create Effective Schools and Staffs.

The program, co-sponsored by Oakland Schools and the Michigan Department of Education, addressed improvement in each building. At the elementary level, the principal and a teacher are trained in a nine-day program. At the secondary level, the principal and two teachers are trained.

Another program, sponsored by the Michigan Department of Education and the Michigan Institute for Educational Management, focuses on district-wide improvement. A team of nine people from the Clarkston district were trained over a nine-day period, the results of which grew to the team of 25 who are developing the district self-improvement plan.

Funding for these projects comes from a state grant for $6,400 and $25,000 from the district's general fund. The investment of time and money will result in a path for the district, says Judith Backes, director of staff development and curriculum for the district.

"It creates a benchmark for future decision-making," Backes explains. "This provides a standard against which decisions can be made in the future."

"We will have beliefs and a mission that we can hold up and say 'Is this in line or in contradiction with what we believe in?'" Backes says.

Among the beliefs the district team has drafted are:

- All individuals can learn.
- Individuals learn in different ways and at different rates.
- Learning is a life-long process.
- All individuals share the responsibility for the achievement of goals.
- Individuals are responsible for their own actions.
- All individuals have the potential to succeed beyond their own expectations.
- An effective organization has a clearly state vision.
- All individuals have worth, value and dignity.

The mission statement drafted by the improvement team reads as follows: "The mission of Clarkston Community Schools is to ensure learning while challenging all individuals to exceed their own expectations."

An integral part of the mission and belief statements is the emphasis on "individual" instead of "student," Backes says.

"We wanted to speak to individuals, rather than just students," she explains. "The committee felt a belief that all employees of the district can learn as well as students."

The district's prior mission statement, now posted in each school building, was revised, Backes says.

"It ensures learning, not just provides opportunity," she explains. "The committee wanted to challenge an individual to exceed beyond his own expectations."

"We want to have the feeling that 'We want you to do even more than you think you can do, and we will support you,'" she says.

Help schools improve

Volunteers interested in assisting the district in a school improvement plan are invited to attend a special presentation.

The session takes place at 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 27, at the Administrative Office, Clarkston Road, Independence Township.

The half-hour meeting will be used to explain the groundwork completed by the core improvement team, made up of 25 teachers, community members, administrators, support personnel and board members.

Community and staff will be asked to join action teams, which will draft strategies and goals for achieving improvements.

Action teams will likely meet once or twice a week, in the late afternoon or evenings, throughout a two- to three-month period.

If you are unable to attend the information session but are interested in serving on one of the action teams, contact Judith Backes at 625-4402.

Library studies excess usage

Usage of Orion Township Library by Oxford and Independence Township patrons is under investigation.

Linda Sickles, library director, said the agreement between Wayne Oakland Library Federation limits use from other communities to five percent of the circulation. Oxford usage is at six and a half percent and Independence Township usage is at six percent.

Sickles said they are working with the administration of WOLF to iron out the problem. WOLF is responsible for negotiating any problems.

"One way of limiting services would be to limit the amount of materials they are allowed to check out," Sickles said.

WOLF membership is composed of 62 communities.

"Almost everyone in the Wayne-Oakland area except Troy, Detroit and Holly belong," Sickles said.

Sickles said Oakland Township contracts with Orion. They pay $21,000 per year. This allows them full borrowing privileges. She said similar contracts could be negotiated between Oxford and Independence.

"We want to be fair to everyone. It's not fair for Orion people to carry the freight for the usage by other communities," Sickles said.

She said Orion never exceeded five percent usage from neighboring libraries.

MRS. EASTER Bunny, alias Carole Ann Lippincott, leads Tiger fan Christine Doyle (left) and other adults in a special Easter egg hunt at St. Daniel Catholic Church, Clarkston. The March 16 event, offered by Independence Township Parks and Recreation, included a pancake breakfast prepared by St. Daniel's Men's Group and a hunt for more than 1,000 plastic eggs. The eggs were filled with treats by the youth group at St. Daniel.

Along the bunny trail ...

The sky may seem like it's falling this weekend during Easter celebrations.

Thousands of marshmallows will be dropped from airplanes in Independence and Springfield townships — plus the Easter Bunny will be visiting the area.

Easter activities in the area for children and adventurous adults are listed below:

Easter Egg Hunt, Clintonwood Park

The Clarkston Area Jaycees annual event is planned for 10:30-11:30 a.m. at the park on Clarkston Road, Independence Township. Best of all, the event is free.

Children should bring their Easter baskets and come ready to search high and low for Easter eggs. The Easter Bunny will be visiting the area during the search for eggs. Searches are designated for children ages 0-4, 5-9 and 10 and older.

Marshmallow Drop at Clintonwood Park

The second annual marshmallow drop is set for 11:35 a.m. to 12:35 p.m. Saturday, March 23, at Clintonwood Park on Clarkston Road.

The free event is sure to thrill thousands of youngsters as marshmallows rain from the sky. Children may exchange the marshmallows for candy or prizes.

Sponsored by Independence Township Parks and Recreation and The Clarkston News, the event will be rescheduled for March 30 in case of inclement weather. For more information, call 625-8223.

Spring Fling at Springfield Oaks County Park

The fifth annual event takes place noon to 2 p.m. Saturday, March 23, at Springfield Oaks County Park Activities Center on Andersonville Road, Springfield Township.

It features a mile-long hike with the Mr. and Mrs. Easter Bunny for pre-school children and older, followed by an Easter egg hunt.

The highlight of the afternoon is the gigantic airplane marshmallow drop, featuring more than 4,000 marshmallows for children ages 8-12. (Younger children may participate at their parents' discretion.) Marshmallows may be exchanged for candy and other prizes.

Children also may enjoy pony rides, and adults might appreciate the coffee and doughnut sale by the Springfield Young-at-Heart seniors.

Parking is $2. The program takes place rain or shine. Event is sponsored by the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission and the Springfield Township Parks and Recreation Department.

'Flag lot' changes on hold in Springfield

Members of the Springfield Township Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) would like a little less help from a township ordinance on at least one issue.

The township board voted unanimously March 13 to table an amendment to an ordinance that refers to "flag lots."

Flag lots are the common term for access strips, which are long narrow pieces of property connecting a parcel of land to a road.

The ordinance, which says flag lots are allowable with special permission from the ZBA, should be changed, according to some ZBA members.

Currently, the only stipulation in the ordinance is that flag lots should be 60 feet wide and not more than 660 feet long — and they must be approved by the ZBA.

The planning commission, saying that flag lots represent poor planning and land use, recommended that the township board delete all references to the flag lots, thereby leaving the lots to the discretion of the ZBA.

Another proposal to change the ordinance would leave the existing standards but handle them administratively rather than through the ZBA.

The board may consider the ordinance change at a future meeting.

Call for unison arises from post-election talks

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Frustrations simmering throughout the recent controversial Clarkston school bonding campaign came to a boil during the March 11 board meeting.

Board members, area residents and representatives of the Blue Ribbon Kids Committee and the Red Ribbon Committee spoke for almost two hours about why the bond issue failed, and about what could be done differently in the future.

The discourse was peppered with criticisms of the board's direction.

"You failed to lay the groundwork," area-resident Bill Rausch told the board. "You have to do the groundwork and put out the facts."

"You're talking to intelligent people," he added. "You haven't done that."

Another resident told the board that the proposals were not realistic.

"You were asking us to vote on re-doing all the elementary schools rather than adding more teaching stations," he said. "That's something we're not going to vote on."

Added resident Joe Helpert, "The school board doesn't have its finger on the pulse of the community."

The communication issue was addressed by Trustee Durham Downs.

"The board cannot operate without communicating to the public," Downs said. "(But) our primary responsibility is educating the kids. We chose to hire a teacher rather than a communications coordinator full time."

The district's part-time communications coordinator, Barb Johns, stressed that the district had disseminated a great deal of information.

The communications office had sent 15,000 pieces of literature to area residents. Johns, personally, had sent out another 500 pieces to those who had called the office with questions, she said.

The problem, said board Secretary Karen Foyteck, was that people chose not to read the material.

"They failed to take an active role and show leadership. ... It's any wonder there is a lack of trust in the school board."

Sally Coe

The issue is whether, "number one, they're going to read it," Foyteck explained. "Number two is whether they're going to believe it."

"Part of it is they want to kill the messenger," she added. "They don't like the message. They didn't like the package."

Some residents pointed to a lack of board unity for bond issue's failure.

Blue Ribbon Kids Committee Co-Chairwoman Sally Coe thanked President John Needham, Vice President Tom Howard, and trustees Durham Downs and Sheila Goins Hughes for their active involvement. She then said she was disappointed with the other three.

"They failed to take an active role and show leadership," Coe explained in a prepared statement to the board. "They didn't even have the courtesy to make an appearance and thank volunteers."

"It's any wonder there is a lack of trust in the school board," Coe added.

Board Treasurer Paul Van Klaveren said he was sorry and hurt by the committee's assessment of his activity.

"I offered my services more than once," Van Klaveren said.

"I have a personal problem with making phone calls," he added. "(But) I made myself available. I just assumed I wasn't needed."

Karen Foyteck added that she, too, had worked in some capacity toward passage of the proposals.

Concluded President John Needham, "It's natural that we all have frustrations."

"I guess you have to be at all the board meetings to show how much we care," he added. "We're going to continue to be grouchy with one another until we find the solution."

Coe's comments prompted a call for unison from Red Ribbon Committee member Bill Rausch.

"Now the Blue Ribbon Kids Committee is fighting with the school board," Rausch said. "Gosh, I thought we were the ones."

(The Blue Ribbon Kids Committee worked for passage of the bond proposals; the Red Ribbon Committee advocated a "no" vote on the three proposals.)

"That issue is gone and dead," Rausch concluded. "We need to work forward and not criticize one another."

"As far as the red and blue ribbon committees are concerned—we're just a group of people working for the kids," Rausch added. "There is not an adversarial relationship there."

Growth management topic of meeting

If you're interested in how Independence Township officials plan to manage future growth, you may want to attend a special meeting on Tuesday, March 26.

The purpose of the Independence Township Board meeting is to allow the township attorney, Gerald Fisher, to give a presentation regarding growth management.

The meeting is planned for 7 p.m. in the township annex, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston. For more information, call 625-8111.

Moms pray for area schools' staff and students

BY BETTY WAGNER
Clarkston News Special Writer

With special groups publicly praying for peace in the Gulf, it seems more people are comfortable talking about praying.

Moms in Touch (MIT), composed of 12 to 14 mothers of students attending Clarkston Community Schools, meets weekly to pray.

They pray for their children's problems, test scores, grades and classroom situations. They pray for teachers, administrators, office staff, bus drivers and custodians.

Each Wednesday at 1 p.m. MIT meets for one hour in a member's home.

"We pray for 45 minutes, just taking turns in a conversational manner," said Debby Bjurman, a member since September. "We write down specifics in a notebook for future answers. We end up with a cup of coffee and chit chat for a little bit."

Bjurman added, "Every few months we take muffins or goodies to the teachers' lounges with an appreciation note saying, 'Thank you,' and 'We're supporting you with prayer.'"

Response to the group has been positive, said Bjurman. "One teacher said to my son, 'I hear your mom's in a group praying for us. Tell her I want to be first on the list.'"

An elementary teacher sent a prayer request home with a student. And office staff members have asked to be included.

While many who know of the group welcome prayers, one teacher asked why the moms were praying for teachers.

Bjurman explained that MIT submits that everyone needs prayers and that teachers are in such a close relationship with the kids all day long — educating them in all areas of life, not just the 4 R's.

The moms pray as a group for personal support and because the Bible encourages group prayer.

Clarkston MIT began after one mom heard Linda Driedeger of Poway, Calif. — group founder — interviewed on The James Dobson radio program.

"We have at least one or two moms from every school to pray for the special needs of that school," said Bjurman, except, she added, there's no one from Andersonville Elementary or the Oakland Technical Center.

"We want to make it clear that we are not a lobbying group at all — simply for prayer," said Bjurman. "We're active in the schools as individuals, not in the name of Moms in Touch."

Any mother who would like to pray with the group is welcome even if her children attend private school, she said.

For information about the group, call Bjurman at 620-0816.

Just a kiss

Julie Campe

As children, my brothers and I would hide our eyes and squirm in embarrassment if someone kissed in front of us -- our relatives, actors and actresses on television or in the movies.

It was akin to our later years when our mother would try her hardest to embarrass us in public by trying to kiss us in front of our teen-age friends.

If she were dropping one of us off for a school event, for example, she would actually call out, "Andy, wait," and he would return, while his friends waited for him, watching. And she would kiss him goodbye -- or try to -- and Andy would be totally humiliated (or at least partially). She would not hear the snickers from his friends. Or, if she did, she did not care.

Some evenings when we were younger, we would sprawl on the living room floor, on our stomachs, chins propped up by our hands. Engrossed in a movie, we would not always know that a kiss was coming.

"Ooooh, yuck!" was our response to the shocking display.

If we could tell in advance that such sloppy moments were likely to take place, we would prepare ahead of time. Our hands covering our eyes, we would watch the movie through the spaces between our fingers, covering our eyes completely when the time came. (Sometimes, though, my brothers peeked. I know because I peeked, too.)

What was it about a simple kiss that made us squirm?

Later, we would actually search out that sort of thing in books, magazines and movies.

As a teen, my older brother once had a clandestine collection of magazine that revealed bodily parts that a more modest woman would not show in front of a camera.

They did not embarrass him at all by then. In fact, he was furious when my friend, Cindy, and I, armed with 64 crayons, colored bathing suits over the poor, chilly girls.

No, he did not like that one bit.

Somehow, the once embarrassing kiss became something to seek.

When I was old enough to go to movies without my parents, my friends and I preferred the romantic movies to the "shoot 'em ups."

I saw "An Officer and a Gentleman" seven times in a matter of a few months. Each time, the movie was just as romantic.

And even now, adults -- including my brothers and myself -- demand that brides and grooms kiss each other at weddings.

Pounding on tables, clanging water glasses with spoons, sophisticated guests somehow revert to unruly teens, demanding to see kisses.

As adults, the embarrassment over kissing is gone -- sort of -- but the intrigue remains the same.

Jody

by Lelané McCarty

It was the principle of the thing, you see
That's why Jody died, you know
And now I've got a real nice flag
I'm going to hang it over the mantle
Right near his picture
Jody
He was such a good boy, you see
Looks a lot like his Dad
That's a picture of him
His Dad fought in Nam, you know
Didn't come back
Got a flag for him too
Jody was so proud of his Dad
Wanted to be just like him
Guess he is... was Principles --
Oh yes, by all means, turn it off
I just keep the TV on for company

Noise, you know
It's so quiet here
Now
Oh my yes, I'm very busy
I've got lots to do
I've got a little job and then there's the garden
It's such a mess right now
And I take good care of Jody's dog, Simon
You know, he really loved that dog
And Simon, I know Simon misses him
A lot
This is Jody's room
It's just the way he left it
I keep expecting him to come bursting out of it
To show me what he is making now
He was always into something
Loved to know how things worked
It was the principle of the thing
You know
You see
Wish to God that I did

Jim's Jottings

Found: The perfect bait

Hold on to your Erie-Derie, walleye fishermen! That goes for your Hawger, Drip Lip Jig, Dead Eye and Hot'n tot. Is there really a walleye-mobile?

That's what I read in the issue of Walleye Tips & Trips I picked up at the Palace fishing show. It also said the walleye-mobile was at the Silverdome fishing show in January.

January is too early to think of fishing, so I waited for the March show. Everyone else did, too. The show opened at 4 p.m. Thursday. At 4:20 we needed a taxi to get back to the Palace from our parking spot.

We've said before and will repeat many times, fishermen are nuts. Who else pays to park to pay to walk through a door where everyone inside wants you to pay them money?

We do this at least once every year, which proves we're just as nuts as all other fishermen. What's worse, we always buy more "killer" lures each visit.

I have more than one tackle box filled with lures that can't be exposed to lakes or streams until we have a landing net in the opposite hand from our fishing rod.

These lures I have collected at show after show are so attractive we attach the bait below the gunwales of the boat so the fish don't jump in, thus filling our limit before we get the joy of reeling.

This is the way I think at fishing shows. This is also the way I think right up to the time I cast my first plug for whatever season I'm opening.

Of course, my wife and the other longtime reader of this column know my fishing experience is somewhat different than my pre-season thinking.

Forget that! When trout season opens this year on the last Saturday of April I'll make believers out of them. I have this new, can't-fail lure. It's a first for the Palace show (which is only in its 3rd year).

It was designed and manufactured in the Allegheny Mountains in Pennsylvania. Doubters please note: The brookies we go after are not mountain fish. They thrive in ponds and streams near Engadine.

These lure-makers not only sought an obscure production site, they also did not name their bait. At the point-of-purchase this plastic, minnow replica is placed in a nondescript sandwich bag... no chance of jealous fishing buddies reading the label in advance of opening day and pre-empting me.

So, April 26, when others are fiddling with their fish flies, Johnny Whopper spoons, Mepps and Little Cleo's I'll be wondering what to do with the rest of the day, my creel having been filled shortly after breakfast.

And, next year when the 40-ft walleye-mobile information center wheels into Michigan I can remain arrogant, having finally found the perfect trout bait.

(JAS note: Expect to see this same column at the same time next year -- only the description of the lure will be changed.)

Confident in school system

I am writing in regard to the lack of confidence in our school system that some people have expressed. I would like to share my personal feelings about this issue.

I have been in the Clarkston school system for 10 years, and each year has been a new and exciting experience. I have gained a solid foundation of learning skills through encouragement and dedication of good teachers.

My positive self-esteem, in part, is directly related to the variety of extra-curricular activities, such as sports and special programs that are continually presented at the elementary, junior high and high school levels.

Also, the continuous support to grow as an independent individual and to learn from our mistakes will help us to become the person we are to become to the fullest extent.

Thanks to teachers such as Mrs. Wenger, Mrs. Hewko and Miss Czarnecki, who constantly encouraged me to be my best, I have set goals in my life and am learning to achieve them.

In conclusion, I would like to say that I believe the faculty and staff in the Clarkston school system has commitment to their students and pride in their schools. I believe that only with the help of the community will our school system be able to continue to meet the educational needs of the students.

Hard to eat popcorn with two wives

It was a chance to save $3, but I hesitated. Which was ironic, because the purpose of the bargain is to eliminate hesitation and keep the popcorn line moving.

We were in the Star John R. Theater in Madison Heights recently. It may be recalled that I first wrote about the Star refreshment counter in October, complaining that it had embarrassed me into admitting my wife and I don't trust each other.

I'd ordered two boxes of popcorn and the clerk said we'd get more for the same money in one Superbucket. Feeling constrained to explain why I'd pass up such a grand opportunity for economical nutrition, I admitted we'd previously experimented with communal feeding and discovered we couldn't enjoy the movie because she worried that I'd grab more than my share of popcorn, and I regarded her with the same nervous suspicion.

Subsequently I crafted a scholarly column examining the Star's civic responsibility not to encourage situations that could damage otherwise loving relationships. I speculated that popcorn containers cost management more than the popcorn itself, so more people eating out of fewer containers means higher profits.

There was a genial response from Barrie Lawson Loeks, co-owner of Loeks-Star Theatres, which operates 64 screens contained in seven theaters (communal viewing begat communal feeding). "The main reason we push Superbucket Combos is not because of the container cost, but because it is faster to prepare a Combo than multiple containers," she said. "We strive to next-in-line service so speed is important; I'm sure you know how frustrating it is to wait in line while your movie is starting."

Sure. Which brings us back to our most recent trip to the Star John R. This time we were a party of three, including granddaughter Emily. And when I ordered three small boxes of popcorn and two soft drinks (my wife prefers stealing slurps from mine), the clerk said I could save $3 by getting the same amount of popcorn in a single bucket. Which certainly gave me the pause that the buckets are designed to eliminate.

For an old poop who used to pay 10 cents for a double feature plus 5 cents for popcorn, $3 is a lot of money. On the other hand, when I'm with my wife and Emily, it's the same as having two wives. Emily agrees with her grandma on everything, including the unfair contention that I eat popcorn like a starving pig. I knew I wouldn't enjoy the movie with two wives monitoring my feeding procedures and slapping my hand whenever it reached toward the bucket.

So I told the clerk three boxes would be best, even for $3 more, because otherwise there'd be an awful battle over who got to hold the bucket, and I'd lose, 2-1. Previously, that honest admission of a distrustful relationship had elicited regretful but polite, if surprised, compliance from the popcorn salesperson. But not this time.

"We have bags for such situations," the clerk said with an understanding smile.

I said I didn't believe it. He showed me the bags specially provided to facilitate peaceful sharing of bucketed popcorn. I took two empty bags and one full bucket and saved $3.

"I'd like to think my column had something to do with this new bag-plus-bucket policy," I told my wife. "I wonder how many marriages I've saved. If Ann Landers had written to me, she might have avoided a divorce."

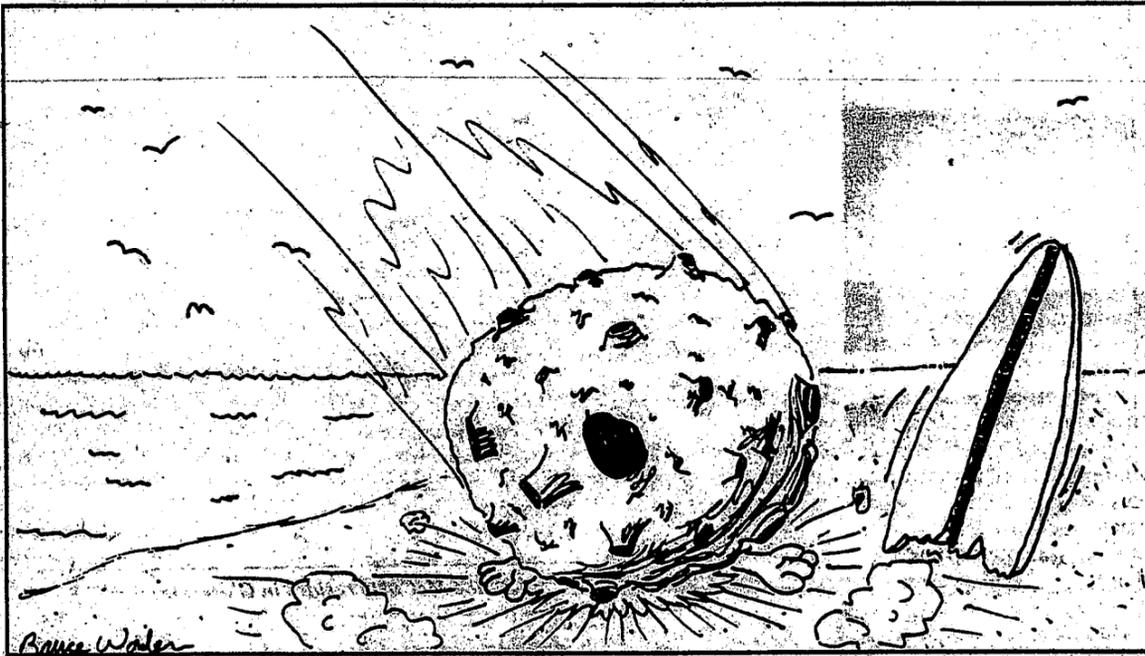

But then we sat down and my wife said she had to split the popcorn up because I couldn't do it without spilling half of it. Emily said yeah. My wife and Emily got bagfuls and I got what was left in the bucket. With the naked eye it was impossible to tell if the portions were equal.

It must be noted, however, that the two wives were still eating long after I was done. And the person who gets the bucket gets the dregs, which must be eaten, just in case of a dreg bust.

Star advertises as "The World's Best-run Theaters." Based on 60 years of continual movie-going, I agree. Opulent lobbies, large auditoriums, and astonishingly accommodating employees.

The next time I balk at savings by the bucketful, I expect the clerk to offer marriage counseling.

The wind: it is a' blowing

A full month after residents dashed plans to build new school facilities, frustrations continue to swirl in letters, accusations and discussions.

The water is muddy, sure. But one factor gets clearer and clearer: people care about this issue, whether they were in favor of the proposals or not.

This isn't the first time area residents have displayed intensive concern for their community — the cityhood issue, various rezoning attempts and elections all have prompted strong reactions.

People of Clarkston do things. They write letters. They attend meetings. They form committees. They get elected.

Whatever they do, they work to improve the community in which they live.

A lot of times, this unity of purpose can get as confused as the issues themselves. The recent school election is a good example.

Though some people simply spoke out against taxes, almost everyone who expended effort in the campaign — in favor or against the proposals — worked for improvement.

Long meetings were conducted. Pro and con committees were formed. Letters were written.

As with any issue that evokes passion, sides were taken and opinions were formed.

Were the proposals too elaborate? Was the electorate uneducated? Was the administration lying? Were some board members working against the proposals' passage?

The questions and answers are confusing. And painful.

The process, though, was healthy. Residents cared enough about their community to get involved. Took a stand. Worked to evoke change and improvement.

The dust is still settling on the school issue. But the wind is strong and true.

Two discrepancies

Two discrepancies in Betty Wagner's short article recently "AIDS not likely caught from eating out."

One is the AIDS virus does "live off the body for long." Some researchers say seven hours; some say seven days. These claims are listed in a book, "AIDS," as well as a Walter Reed Army Hospital study.

Second is "If a waitress coughs on the food, the virus will not survive." Viruses I know like warm mediums, and direct ingestion of a virus is probably risky at best.

Caution is the order of the day, especially since there is such a long incubation period to the disease.

As a P.S., I have an uncle, once chief of pathology, and he has stopped eating out.

On the side of godly standards

After 11 years in Midland, we came to Clarkston eager to meet new friends, get acquainted with the village and enjoy our new home and community.

We have not been disappointed. Clarkston is a great place to work and to live.

With long-term experience as a teacher and family counselor, I am particularly interested in our school and community education.

We must give our best support to our teachers, be involved as parents and work together as a community to build strong families and educational institutions.

School curriculum and the extra-curricular activities that accompany the day-by-day program should be geared to strengthening the whole person — mentally, physically, socially and even spiritually.

I mention the spiritual knowing full well our sensitivity to the separation of church and state. (Our current interpretation of the law is considerably far removed from its intended understanding when first recorded at the nation's inception.)

Still, no class or activity should contribute to the demise of any aspect of a child's wholesome development, particularly in the areas of moral and spiritual sensitivities.

It is for this reason I write concerning the Clarkston High School Post-Graduation Party.

I give my wholehearted support to the activity.

It has great merit and its intended purpose is well endorsed by the community at large.

I cannot give my endorsement to the casino gambling or the hypnotist as a part of this event. I am surprised no one has spoken up in previous years.

Neither of these activities contribute positively to the graduating senior. Indeed, both have the potential of opening the mind to very negative and debilitating paths.

My opinions on these matters have been validated by numerous individual and family cases through nearly 30 years of professional counseling.

I sincerely believe the planning committee wants what is best for our young people. The choice of teaching gambling and opening the mind hypnotically are at the very least very poor choices for entertainment. Hopefully, the committee will reconsider.

There is yet another concern related to this matter. While protests from parents and portions of the religious community may not bring a change, those who speak out should have the opportunity to share without being branded as fundamental fanatics who are somehow opposed to our schools, to our youth and to the concept of "just having a little fun."

I am aware that the church has its fanatics, out of tune with reality and common sense.

I also know there are religious organizations that have their "Las Vegas Nights" and even sponsor "hypnotists for entertainment." But this does not make it right or healthy or less dangerous.

In this case, I believe those who protest are on the side of godly standards and common sense. Nevertheless, let us have dialogue as parents, teachers, administrators and community leaders.

Let us listen to one another with respect. Let us consider seriously that which builds healthy minds and bodies, promotes and contributes to the best of moral standards and builds lasting generations.

We will be a better community for the effort.

Need new movies

Every weekend when my friends and I think of something to do, we usually decide to go see a movie. Because we are either 14 or 15 years old, we have a hard time figuring out rides to go all the way to Auburn Hills.

Our problems would be solved if the Clarkston movie theater would change its movies more frequently. I am not saying that "Home Alone" was not a good movie, but after seeing it two or three times, it gets a little boring.

If the theater would change the movie about every two weeks, they would probably get more business, especially by young adults (since more than 50 percent of the movies out are viewed mostly by us anyway).

When going out to the Auburn Hills theater, you are paying $2 more than going to the Clarkston theater; therefore, I think the people prefer going to the Clarkston theater anyway.

Right now there are a lot of great movies out. Around here no one would even know that. If our cinema were to bring, let's say, "He Said, She Said" or "Awakenings," most people around here would not have to go all the way to Auburn Hills; and I'm sure the Clarkston theater's business would increase.

Don't overlook kids' opinions

In the town of Clarkston, it states in several places on the sidewalk "No Skateboarding" and "Walk Your Bike." It's not our fault if a few people have been careless and caused accidents. We shouldn't all have to suffer for someone else's mistakes. After all, we are citizens, and we pay our taxes, which paid for those sidewalks. I think we should at least vote on the restrictions in town.

I read, a while ago, in the news that a skateboarder ran into someone carrying a lot of groceries. The kid on the skateboard was put to blame. Maybe the person on the skateboard was careful, and the person who wasn't paying attention was the one carrying the groceries.

Accidents will happen; it's unavoidable. But you have to take in consideration what the consequences of certain decisions will have on the majority of the population.

Note: Clarkston resident Daisy Dowling offered to share the above correspondence. Sgt. Michael A. Hamlett can be contacted by writing to Sgt. M.A. Hamlett, 364-86-3767, USMC, Mag-50 Comm 5th MEB DET N, FPO San Francisco, Calif., 96693-8539.

Dear Daisy Dowling,

Hello from 6,000 miles away in the Persian Gulf! This is Michael Hamlett and, yes, I do remember you. I remember a fond, but embarrassing moment between you and I, which I still speak of. That moment occurred when I was surprisingly presented with your scholarship in front of my class of '82. I can still feel, if I think about it, the burning sensation caused by my blushing surprise.

This is a memory which will be someday portrayed to my children and possibly grandchildren. But not being presently married and with circumstances as they are, I have far greater concerns.

We have heard tonight that Hussein has not decided to concede to defeat or even to meet the conditions set forth for his surrender. Unfortunately, this will mean that the avoidable ground war is now seen as inevitable.

Before now, I haven't seen any combat action. But soon my men and myself will be part of the bloody fray. Still, here I sit in the Persian Gulf readied to stand up and meet the terms required by my commitment to the armed forces and, most importantly, the American people.

I, as well as my men, have received an outpouring of support from Americans of all ages. This is a true boost to our morale, and it shows to us that we are truly part of a great country. We draw much of our strength and courage from those who openly support our action here.

And, if upon the Fourth of July I am home to view this spectacle, it will be my country and its people I salute.

I wish there was a way for words such as these to be in print for all to read, and for all to know, that they, the pride of America, its people, are so cherished by we, who are just simpletons. Even though I am just a pawn in this war, I want the American people to know all this.

I hope they will not forget us when we return, as Vietnam found so many disowned.

Thank you so very much all of you!

Well, much must be done and not much time is to be had these days. So please take good care of yourself and we'll see you upon our return.

Mind-altering 'fun' unacceptable

We are writing to you as concerned residents in the Clarkston school system to object to the use of a hypnotist as a form of entertainment for the Senior Party.

The Senior Party is a lock-in held the night of graduation.

The reason for our concern is that hypnotism, by its very nature, is a practice that is "mind altering."

Webster's New World Dictionary defines hypnosis as: "a sleep-like condition, psychically induced, usually by another person, in which the subject loses consciousness but responds, with certain limitations, to the suggestions of the hypnotist."

To hypnotize is defined as: "put into a hypnotic state; cause hypnosis. Dominated or control by suggestion; to cast a spell over."

We feel that the $500 spent to pay the cost of hiring the hypnotist for one to one-and-a-half hours could be better spent on an alternative entertainment, one that would not affect the minds of the about 400 students who will be present that night.

What kind of messages do we want sent to our children? If we continue to allow hypnotism to be used on our kids as a form of entertainment, what will be next?

We care about our kids and all students in the Clarkston school system. Please join us in challenging this practice of letting someone alter the minds of vulnerable teen-agers in the name of "fun."

Skip mini-malls

Why so many mini-malls? It seems that Americans have an obsession with "strip-malls." In Clarkston alone, their overabundance has grown considerably in recent years.

First, they are not needed as most remain virtually empty. Still, though, more and more are built unnecessarily, probably to be left empty themselves.

Second, it is environmentally irresponsible to destroy so much land. This is not an anti-progress letter. I'm not against using some land, if there is a good reason for doing so, but as I have already stated, these mini-malls are useless if they remain empty.

Take, for example, water. When it rains or snows, the water sinks into the permeable ground. When this ground is covered with a non-permeable parking lot, the excess water has nowhere to go.

It is my opinion that we should first focus on filling the already built strip-malls, then consider building new ones.

Judge takes township side in Deer Lake sewer suit

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Deer Lake sewer controversy may have come to a conclusion in Oakland County Circuit Court last week.

On March 13, Judge Barry Howard overturned a lawsuit filed by residents against Independence Township. He decided in favor of a summary disposition filed by township attorney Gerald Fisher.

The suit was filed in December by Sagamore resident Charles Myers. He represents a faction of residents who want to stop a project that would connect a sewer line at the southern part of White Lake Road and intersect with Dixie Highway to the west.

Fisher said the summary disposition refuted Myers' three counts, which made up the basis of the lawsuit. These counts included: improper establishment of the Downtown Development Authority, allowing the DDA to run sewer lines outside the DDA's boundaries, and tax increment financing is a violation of the state constitution's uniformity clause.

According to Fisher, Howard said the validity of the DDA wasn't at question in this case and that the circuit court wasn't the correct regulating body for that type of determination.

In the matter of the sewer lines exceeding the DDA's boundaries, Howard found that a majority of the lines are to be within the district and that those beyond are merely serving the district.

And Howard also refuted the claim that increment financing is unconstitutional because no taxes are being levied. He added, according to Fisher, that the complainants need not worry because they are not considered part of the district.

With the decision, Howard's Dec. 19 restraining order has been terminated.

Fisher said those residents should have faith in the township and the assurances promised to them prior to the suit.

"These assurances seem satisfactory," Fisher said. "Both sides have spent a lot of money in this suit and nothing has really come of it."

The mentioned assurances include providing water if area homes have well problems during construction, saving as many trees as possible during the laying of the lines, and cutting down on erosion.

Charles Myers said he was disappointed with the outcome. He said his faction is considering an appeal because their attorney feels there is a good chance of winning. Myers has 21 days from the date of the decision to submit an appeal.

Supervisor Frank Ronk said he anticipated the decision and hopes that the project won't be severely hampered by the delay. However, he added that the township will probably have to re-seek bids because the prices have changed since they were originally secured.

With DDA approval, Ronk anticipates the project to start around fall of 1991.

'Keep the Oil Out' achieves its goal

More than 2,100 quarts of used motor oil were picked up by the Independence Township Groundwater Leadership Team for recycling.

Their recent program "Keep the Oil Out" was aimed at preventing toxic used motor oil from contaminating the ground water used for drinking water by everyone in this area.

"We were very pleasantly surprised by the overwhelming response from every part of the community," said Jim Reed, a project team member.

"It is evident that many people are becoming aware of the direct connection between their actions and the quality of our environment," he said.

Another successful aspect of the project was informing the community that their used motor oil should not be put in the trash, be used to "oil" gravel drives, or be used in any way exposed to the environment.

Rather, the team let everyone know that Roy Brothers Amoco station, on Sashabaw Road at I-75, and Morgan's Marathon, in the Village of Clarkston, accept used motor oil for recycling.

The team expects more and more residents will be recycling their used oil either by dropping it off or having their oil changed at either of these two service stations.

For the future, the team is planning new projects to protect local ground water from contamination by household products.

Coming soon will be a battery disposal program and an effort to have local stores and stations stock products made from recycled oil.

Clusters proposed for lake parcel

BY BETTY WAGNER
Clarkston News Special Writer

A subdivision is in the works for the south shore of Soft Water Lake in Springfield Township.

The board took no action on the proposal but listened to the presentation on the project.

Norm Hyman, attorney for Central Land Development of Waterford Township, showed a tentative concept plan for the 55-acre parcel owned by Central Land.

Hyman explained that Central Land "has been in limbo for a long time" and that their revised plan now meets all county requirements.

"We ask you at this point to let us go ahead," he said.

Concerns about density, sewage and preservation of open spaces prompt the 1988 township board to deny rezoning the property from family residential zoning that requires 1.5-acre minimum lot sizes to a family residential zoning that requires a half-acre minimum lot size. Central Land's concept plan calls for 46 lots in accordance with cluster zoning, plans to hook up to a county sewage system if such a system is available in the next six months, and open common areas to preserve natural beauty.

Township board members Dennis Vallad, J. Calvin Walters, Margaret A. Bloom and Lois J. Stiles objected that the plan's lot sizes were too small.

Hyman asked if the board members wanted larger lots or a cluster concept with commons to preserve natural terrain.

A majority of the board said they preferred the cluster concept.

"Unless we hear otherwise I hear consensus for cluster," Hyman said.

No official action was taken by the board.

Baby vaccine may prevent meningitis

Babies under 15 months now have help in preventing an attack of a dangerous bacterium.

The American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) Committee on Infectious Disease recently announced that the AAP will recommend Haemophilus influenzae type b conjugate (HIB) vaccine for children age 2 months or older. Previously, it was not available for children under age 15 months.

The vaccine will protect the youngsters from Haemophilus b, a bacterium that can cause severe disease, especially in children under age 5.

This bacteria does not cause the flu, but in the United States, Haemophilus b causes about 12,000 cases of meningitis (infection of the covering of the brain) each year, mostly in children under age 5.

Meningitis left untreated results in death, but even those children treated can die or suffer permanent brain damage.

Haemophilus b can also cause pneumonia and infections of other body systems, such as blood, joints, bone, soft tissue, throat and the covering of the heart.

About one in 200 children in the United States will have a moderate to severe disease caused by Haemophilus b before age 5. Severe Haemophilus b disease is most common in children between 6 months and one year of age.

Several firms manufacture the HIB vaccine, but only two forms — HIBTITER and PEDIVAXHIB — were licensed by the Federal Drug Administration as of Feb. 1.

Pediatrician James O'Neill of Independence Township said he began offering HIBTITER about six months ago and has had positive results.

The HIBTITER is administered in three doses, usually at the same time as the DTP, at the ages of 2, 4 and 6 months. Children older than 2 months but younger than 15 months may be phased in as well.

Because this is a new use of the vaccine, most insurance companies don't cover these immunizations, said O'Neill.

In a letter, O'Neill said, "Because of the extreme importance of the use of this vaccine, we are offering it to our patients at our cost and expect other physicians may be willing to do the same."

For more information, contact your pediatrician or family physician.

A little help from government friends

Residents who live on gravel roads will get a little extra help in dust control this year.

The Springfield Township Board voted unanimously to cover the cost of a 4-cent-per-foot increase in the bill to chloride gravel roads this year.

Springfield Township Trustee Nancy Strole said she would like to see the township pay all costs associated with chloriding roads in the area. But, she said, it could set a precedent that would be difficult to continue every year.

Currently, the township pays 26 cents, and residents pay 10 cents for every foot.

Scuffle avoided at Silverdome

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Clarkston Junior High School seventh-graders were forced to leave an anti-drug jamboree at the Pontiac Silverdome March 13, avoiding a potentially dangerous clash with other students.

CJH seventh-graders, along with teens from schools throughout the state, were invited to the annual Say-No-To-Drug Jamboree, sponsored by the Michigan Parent Teacher Association.

According to CJH Principal Vince Licata, a number of students began throwing paper airplanes during the event.

Licata stressed there was no confirmation that Clarkston students were responsible for the airplanes.

"A number of unknown students were recipients of the airplanes," Licata explained. "They approached a group of students who happened to be Clarkston Junior High students."

After one student was threatened, and chaperons noticed conflict, the chaperons gathered CJH students toward the exit before the show was over, Licata said.

At that point, eight or nine students approached the group of Clarkston pupils, and one Clarkston student was hit in the back of the head, Licata said. There were no injuries.

"He was more scared than anything else," Licata added.

The Clarkston students then reportedly ran from the Silverdome and gathered behind a bus. They then boarded their bus and left the area, Licata said.

Licata declined to speculate why the incident occurred.

"I really don't know what the motivation was," he said.

"Everything happened so quickly," Licata added. "I don't know what school they were from, and none of the chaperons took time to find out."

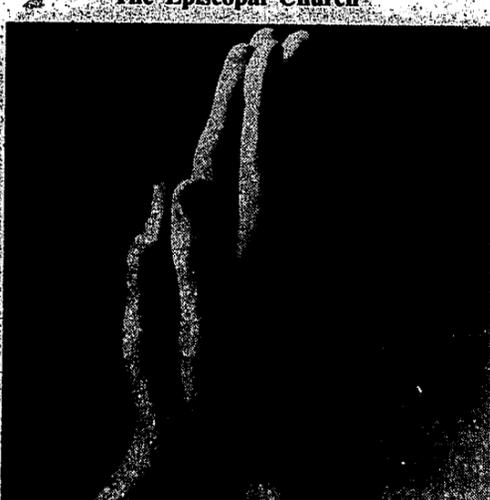

A report was filed with Silverdome security. Licata also plans to notify the Michigan PTA that "CJH will not be a part of this organization" in the future.

Apart from that, Licata doesn't plan any additional action, and stated, "We just don't know what happened."

Hearing condo proposal in former scout camp

A public hearing has been set to discuss converting a former youth scout camp to a 151-acre condominium project.

On March 21, the planning commission is to hear comments about a special land use request that would allow cluster lots in a site condominium project on what used to be "Camp Oweki."

The property is on the south side of Waldon Road and surrounds Gulick Lake. It is presently zoned single-family residential.

The hearing begins at 7:30 p.m. in the township annex, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston. For more information, call 625-8111.

Wolves' shooting fizzles at regionals

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston and Flint Northwestern didn't bring their regular-season varsity basketball teams to the Class A regionals March 14.

"On any given night if we shoot poorly, anybody can beat us."

Coach Dan Fife

That was fortunate for the Wildcats but not for the Wolves.

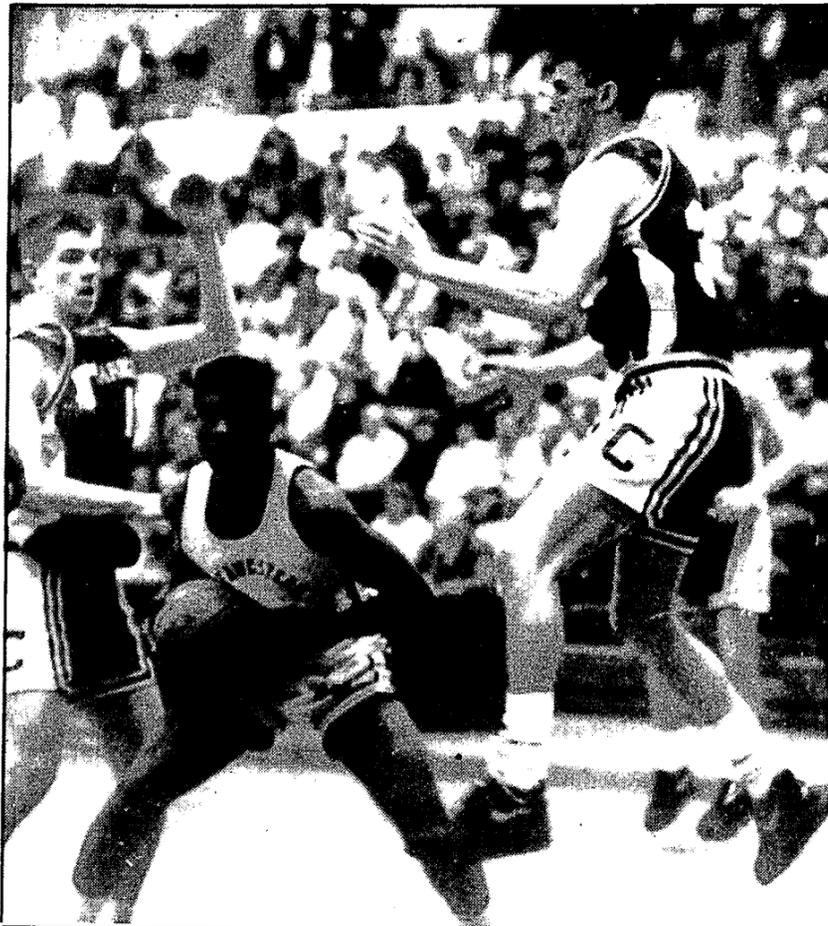

Northwestern, which would crush Swartz Creek in the finals two days after the win over the Wolves, stopped Clarkston, 61-42, in the regionals at Saginaw Valley State University.

It was the first loss of the year for the 22-1 Wolves, while the Wildcats went into the regionals with a 15-7 mark.

"Their team's never been beaten, so they didn't know how to come back," said Northwestern coach Grover Kirkland.

Clarkston, rated No. 3 in the state, rarely had to come back all season, largely due to its hot shooting and pressure defense.

But the Wildcats had no problem weaving through that defense and Clarkston was uncharacteristically cold, sinking 17 of 42 field goals (40 percent) and five of 17 3-pointers (29 percent).

Clarkston coach Dan Fife knew his team was off the mark, "On any given night if we shoot poorly, anybody can beat us," said Fife.

But Northwestern didn't play like just anybody. The Wildcats, who have continually played better and haven't been defeated ever since they edged Saginaw on Feb. 22, hurt the Wolves inside as well as outside.

Coach Kirkland said his Wildcats "probably" had their best outside shooting day of the year against the Wolves. Kirkland also attributed the victory to his team's improved rebounding (27 compared to Clarkston's 26), the play of 6-foot, 9-inch Leon Derricks and the Wildcats "responding very well" to the "second season" (tournaments).

Two other statistics that hurt the Wolves were Northwestern's 12 steals (Clarkston had three) and the Wildcats making 13 of 22 free throws (Clarkston only went to the line four times all game). That lack of free throws meant the Wolves were not driving to the basket like they had been all season.

Northwestern hurt the Wolves with a balanced attack as four Wildcats scored in double figures.

"We let kids hurt us that we didn't think would hurt us," said coach Fife about the Wildcat firepower in addition to Derricks.

Dugan Fife, who had a fever the morning of the game and was ill the four days preceding the game, missed his first eight shots and finished with 19 points.

"We made him work for his baskets," said Kirkland.

Despite poor shooting, Clarkston still found itself in the game (after an 8-8 first quarter) at halftime. A 4-point play (a 3-pointer while being fouled) by Dugan Fife near the buzzer pulled the Wolves to within 25-22 at intermission.

Clarkston took its last lead, 27-25, at the beginning of the third quarter. But after that, it was all Northwestern as the Wildcats reeled off 18 of the next 21 points for a comfortable 43-30 lead after three quarters. The Wolves were never closer than that 13-point difference for the rest of the game.

Along with Dugan Fife's 19, Derek Wiley scored seven, Chris Wasilk six, Mark Galbraith and Jon Wyniemko each had four and Sean Halleran added two.

Wildcat Thurman Tucker tied Fife for game-high honors with 19 points, Derricks had 13, Quincy Brann 12 and Marcus Johnson 10. Carod Read had five and Courtney Kirkland added two.

Clarkston's 22-game winning streak was the longest ever for Dan Fife in his eight-year coaching career.

And next year's team will have one ingredient it hasn't had in a few years, more than one starter will be returning (Dugan Fife has been the only one the past two years). The Wolves will lose starting seniors Galbraith and Wasilk to graduation.

THE Wolves experience their first loss after 22 straight victories.

Swinging from the Heels

'Stray from School,' Food Town lights, midnight basketball

James Gibowski

I was just thinking ...

■ How can anyone take the NBA's "Stay in School" campaign seriously?

Many of those players giving that plug would be better speakers for "Stray from School," if school also includes college. How can Michael Jordan stare into a camera and say, "Stay in School" when he never earned a degree at North Carolina, let alone even go there for four years? And he's only one of many.

A "Stay in high school" campaign would be more believable.

■ The state's best Class A wrestling team, Clarkston, practices in the school's cafeteria.

What is the connection between winning the state championship and 125-pounders trying to make weight while smelling aromas of fiestas?

Or the connection of the title and having other students pass by and watch you sweating while doing calisthenics?

Or the connection of winning it all and carrying the mats to and fro the cafeteria on daily basis?

I don't know the answers, just the questions.

■ Clarkston High School graduates who are professional athletes continue to be in the national spotlight.

A few Sundays ago, Tim McCormick started for the Atlanta Hawks against the Chicago Bulls. A few weeks ago, Steve Howe was included in a Sports Illustrated article about major leaguers trying to make a comeback this spring. And don't forget Tim Birtsas. He'll again be pitching for the Cincinnati Reds.

■ Independence Township resident Iva Caverly has written a letter to the editor to the News, complaining that the lights in the parking lot of the new Food Town store are too bright.

If that's really the case, I've got a suggestion. Maybe Food Town could swap lights with those at the Clarkston High School football field (it would help my exposures while photographing the Wolves).

And if the lights are too bright for the football and soccer teams, the Wolves could wear some sun glasses. Can you imagine... sun glasses, at night, in freezing December.

■ Speaking of grocery stores ...

Independence Township must have set a world's record in the number of grocery stores built within a year.

First there was the A&P, then Kroger's and now Food Town.

What is going to happen to the three vacant stores? I've got a few suggestions.

The wrestlers could practice at the old A&P, since it's closest to the school. They wouldn't have to drag out the mats every day, but they probably would still smell some food aromas.

The old Kroger's could become one of those Whirlyball (a competition featuring bumper cars) places.

The old Food Town could be converted into a movie theater. However, this theater wouldn't just show "Ghosts" for six months and then "Home Alone" for the other six months.

■ What's the most important thing in big-time college athletics?

The players? Nope.

The coaches? No.

The spectators? Nah.

The cheerleaders? Ya' sure.

It's television and time slots.

This fall I noticed how Stanford

(which is supposedly the "Harvard of the West") played a football game across the country out East on a Thursday night.

Because of double or triple headers, many college basketball games on ESPN have started at 9 p.m. Eastern Standard Time. One game even started at midnight E.S.T.

■ I know Clarkston's basketball team was feeling pretty down after losing to Flint Northwestern in the regionals.

Clarkston was flat and Flint was hot. The Wolves might have been beaten by Northwestern, but yet, they weren't rattled.

That's why winning a state championship in basketball is extremely tough. One bad game and you're out.

This 22-1 Clarkston team was terrific to watch. Players and fans are going to remember many moments from this year.

And this season's successes will carry over to next season. The seniors will be gone, but I can already hear coach Dan Fife or assistant coach Charlie Shires "telling" some new junior in practice that "you can't get away with that move playing varsity."

Runnin' Rebels win playoff

The Runnin' Rebels don't just win basketball games in Las Vegas, they also do quite well in Clarkston.

In fact, the Runnin' Rebels shot down the Young Guns, 86-68, to win the Pony Basketball Playoff championship.

The Rebels advanced to the finals by stopping Los Guapos, 54-44, in the semifinals. The Young Guns advanced by edging A.K.D.B., 57-52.

Clarkston icers pace team

Two Clarkston High School sophomores recently made a big impact on their hockey team's fortunes.

Left-winger Brad Eickhorst scored the game-winning goal in overtime and goalie Tim O'Neill made 19 saves as Lakeland Arena's Bantam AA team edged Plymouth, 3-2, to win the division title.

The win qualifies the team for the state finals at Port Huron.

SARAH Hool has been successful on the ice performing and competing. The fifth grader at Pine Knob Elementary will be performing at Lakeland Arena's spring skating show March 23. She will be Dorothy from the "Wizard of Oz." In January, she placed third at the State Figure Skating Finals, earning a bronze medal (the eighth medal in her career). Earning his ears

Area youth is Disney Mousketeer

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A 15-year-old Sashabaw Junior High student will be donning the ears of true Americana when he heads south next month.

Overcoming tremendous odds, T.J. Lucca of Waterford Township has been named to Walt Disney's new Mickey Mouse Club. In April, the ninth-grader will be flying to Florida to begin rehearsing and filming for a season's worth of programs on the Disney Channel.

T.J. will be cast in a club, whose initial popularity ran its gamut from the 1950s to the 1960s. However, the Mickey Mouse Club was revitalized as part of the Disney Channel's regular programming two years ago.

Like the Mickey Mouse clubs of the past, many members grew too old or found they couldn't handle the pressure. So, in 1990, Disney made a national sweep to find more talented teens.

T.J. decided to take a chance when Disney representatives visited Detroit last October. At the audition, he was asked to sing, dance and read from a script.

He impressed recruiters to the extent that they contacted him for a call-back audition nearly three months later.

In Los Angeles, T.J. competed against 16 other teens, many of whom had formal training in the arts. However, the Michigan youth got the word of his acceptance in February.

Consisting of four boys and three girls, the new entourage prevailed where nearly 17,000 other youngsters failed. T.J. admitted he was surprised to make the final cut.

"I never thought I had much of a chance because I've never (taken) singing or dancing lessons," he said. "But my older sister, Amy, talked me into trying out. She said this type of job could be a big boost to my career."

T.J.'s mother, Sally Lucca, was also surprised that her son succeeded because some of his competition seemed so overwhelming.

"Some of the kids showed up at the Los Angeles audition with their singing coaches and agents," she said. "Some of them had already modeled professionally or had done television commercials or auditioned for 'Star Search.'

"Here, a lot of the kids had their own portfolios, and we were lucky to remember his school picture," she added jokingly.

After being selected, T.J. was informed that he would have to live in Florida from mid April to early September. This meant he would miss the last nine weeks of the school year.

However, the Lucca family was surprised to find out that Disney had already made arrangements for his continuing education.

"Soon after T.J. was chosen, we got a phone call from a tutoring service named 'Education on Location,'" said Tony Lucca, T.J.'s father. "They said they were contracted by Disney to help the kids keep up with their studies. Apparently, this New York-based company, works with the children from the 'Cosby Show.'"

This was a great relief to the Lucca family because T.J. is a good student. He currently holds a 3.8 grade point average and has been recognized by SJHS on several occasions.

T.J. said the Mousketeers, whose ages range from 11 to 16, follow a tough regiment when working on location. As explained to him, the Mousketeers study from 9 a.m. to noon five days a week. Their afternoons will be filled with various rehearsals and tapings of the Mickey Mouse Club program.

After graduating from high school, T.J. intends to go next month with his father, Tony, and mother, Sally, to begin taping segments of the Mickey Mouse Club program.

to college. He's currently interested in art and music fields but added that drama isn't out of the question.

Despite being named a Mousketeer, Sally said her son's attitude hasn't changed.

"My friends keep telling me that T.J. must be going out of his head, but he's remained modest," she said. "He gets his modesty from his father. Me, on the other hand, I can't say enough about him -- but that's just a mother's prerogative."

Despite his inevitable fame, T.J. said his friends

"He gets his modesty from his father."

Sally Lucca

haven't treated him any differently.

"My friends are happy for me and keep hinting that they want to visit while I'm taping in Florida," he said. "I really haven't been kidded about being a Mousketeer because, even among my age group, there is a certain amount of respect given to the Mickey Mouse Club."

The Other Side of Things

Attaining the academic standards of a lobster

Ashley Ball

It was a Thursday night — my night to prepare dinner. Laura prepares it on Tuesday-nights. My parents thought preparing the evening meal once a week would be a wonderful opportunity for Laura and me to learn all about the joys of cooking in a hot, sweaty kitchen.

Opening the refrigerator door, I looked for something special to fix for dinner ... something light, yet satisfying ... something not too difficult, yet tasty. Something French, yet ... ah, yes, I thought, spying the "piece de resistance" ... left over Sara Lee croissants and Dr. Pepper.

But we usually do more planning ahead than this for our once-a-week meals. Laura and I make up a grocery list, and my mom drops us off at the grocery store. We go to Food Town or A&P. We can't go to Kroger's, because Laura spends all her time there taking her blood pressure on the blood pressure machine in the lobby and doesn't help with the shopping.

Anyway, we prepare usual family-type meals: frozen Kraft macaroni and cheese, frozen Stouffer's lasagna, frozen Birdseye garden vegetables, frozen ... well, you get the picture. If it's microwaveable, it's on our menu.

But on special Tuesdays and Thursdays, like when our parents will be coming home for dinner after parent-teacher conferences, we try to prepare something especially tasty and soothing — something to help them forget their troubles. The last conference night at Clarkston Junior High fell on a Tuesday, Laura's night to cook. I suggested she prepare our parents' favorite meal: lobster.

We picked up a nice lobster at the grocery store the day before she was to prepare the meal, dropped him into a nice sink full of water in the kitchen, and named him Sebastian. Laura was immediately impressed that Sebastian was no ordinary lobster and spent the entire evening fooling around with him.

By the next afternoon, she had taught Sebastian to roll over, play dead and count to four on his snappers. Clearly, Sebastian was a high achiever.

By the time we were ready to plop him into the microwave, Sebastian was prepared for the Clarkston Elementary spelling bee and had won the Uncle Bud award at CJHS. We couldn't possibly microwave Sebastian. He was too talented. Besides, there was every chance that he could be trained to do algebra homework.

So, instead of microwaving Sebastian, Laura prepared a box of frozen Bagel Bites along with some microwaveable Orville Redenbacher popcorn.

This was just as well, because when my parents arrived home from my parent-teacher conferences, they were in no mood for a festive meal. (It's funny how parents always take teachers' comments so seriously.)

Anyway, after the dinner of Bagel Bites and popcorn, Laura put Sebastian through his paces for my parents. They were impressed! At least, more impressed that they were when they came home from my parent-teacher conferences.

As I was walking up the stairs to my room that night, I reflected to Laura on Sebastian's academic antics.

"I guess my teachers would be more impressed with me if I were more like Sebastian."

Laura looked at me with a puzzled frown on her face.

"You mean if you could roll over, play dead, and count to four on your snappers?"

Somehow, I had always thought that my life would amount to more than trying to attain the academic standards of a lobster.

Ashley Ball is a ninth-grader at Clarkston Junior High School.

QUESTION: Do you have any suggestions on how much a home should be lighted when being shown to a prospective buyer?

ANSWER: In my opinion - the brighter the better! Give the prospect the best image you can of the comfort, beauty and livability you are offering. In other words, you want to sell a home not a house. And full illumination is the best way to give your home the "lived-in" look. Furniture, rugs and fixtures take on a warm glow from the proper lighting. Kitchens should always be bright, turn on lights in all rooms and especially in closets and storage rooms. The brighter - the better.

Bob Jones to speak at Maranatha Baptist

The Rev. Bob Jones III, president of Bob Jones University, Greenville, S.C., is the special speaker at Maranatha Baptist Church of Clarkston on Sunday, April 7, at 6 p.m. The event is open to the public.

Free nursery service will be provided at the church at 5790 Flemings Lake Road, off Sashabaw Road, just north of I-75 in Independence Township.

A third-generation preacher, Jones attended Bob Jones Academy and Bob Jones University, receiving the bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees. He has taken additional graduate work at Northwestern University and New York University. He holds honorary doctorates from Pillsbury Baptist Bible College, San Francisco Theological Seminary and Maranatha Baptist Bible College.

The Rev. Bob Jones

Each year, the fundamentalist minister receives more requests for his evangelistic campaigns, youth rallies and other religious gatherings than he is able to fill. His speaking engagements have taken him to all parts of the world, and he has conducted tours to the Holy Land and Europe.

Jones is a member of the board of directors of the Gospel Fellowship Association and Gospel Fellowship Missions, serving that organization in the capacity of vice president of the board.

Bob Jones University is the largest independent fundamental Christian school in the world.

Gardening film showing

The Clarkston Farm and Garden Club invites any one interested in gardening to join club members for a special program April 8.

Planned for 1 p.m. Monday at the Clarkston United Methodist Church, the program consists of "the most entertaining and informative film" called "Gardening with Ruth," said Gini Schultz.

Ruth Stout, author of books and articles on gardening, is known for her "no work, mulch, and let the garden grow" theory.

Refreshments follow the film.

For more information, contact Schultz at 625-3122.

Free honor shield

A "Shield of Honor" is offered free to families with relatives in the Persian Gulf.

The Shield, a modern-day equivalent of the Blue Star—the symbol used during World War II to signify a family had a loved one in the field of battle—is an 8 1/2-inch-by-11-inch card plaque made in red, white and blue colors, to be placed in the window until all the troops have returned home.

The Shield also includes an inscription honoring the families of service people.

Families in the Clarkston area who would like to receive their free Shield of Honor should contact Ed Taub at the American Freedom Coalition (AFC) office in Southfield: 352-8946.

The AFC is a grassroots organization founded in 1987. Its purpose is to help renew moral and patriotic values in America.

Clean sweep

IT WAS a clean sweep for Clarkston Junior High School in a poster contest sponsored by the Detroit Water and Sewage Department. The top three places and one honorable mention were made up of CJHS students. A total of $1,500 in savings bonds were distributed to the top three finishers. The theme for the poster contest was "the importance of wastewater treatment in our environment." The winning artists were (from left): eighth-grader Matt Wenger, third place; seventh-grader Lisa Herron, first place; eighth-grader Katie Reschke, second place; and eighth-grader Leah Scharl, honorable mention. Skip fad diets; get nutrients from food

Betty Wagner

March is nutrition month, but I think shamrock cookies and chocolate Easter bunnies have overshadowed any celebration of the four food groups.

Many of us equate nutrition with losing weight, not with feeling and performing well.

Where, when and how does nutrition learning begin?

The topic has always intrigued me. As a teen-ager I checked the caloric content of foods I ate. As a college student I studied nutrition. During the last 30 years, I have continued to read the experts and attend their nutrition lectures.

But this year nutrition month is especially important to me. I am working as a volunteer nutrition consultant for Head Start, a preschool program for low-income families and their children.

As a nutrition consultant I talk with parents about feeding their families, and I play nutrition games with 4-year-old children.

My specific training came from a series of workshops by the Michigan Home Economics Association.

For parents' meetings, I use two books by Ellyn Satter, a registered dietitian and a social worker — "Child Of Mine" and "How To Get Your Kid To Eat ... But Not Too Much."

Satter says, "Parents are responsible for what is presented to eat and the manner in which it is presented.

"Children are responsible for how much and even whether they eat," she writes.

Her books are readable, full of common sense advice, and make wonderful gifts for new parents.

For nutrition games with the children, I use materials developed by The Dairy Council of Michigan and "Creative Food Experiences for Children" by Mary T. Goodwin, public health nutritionist, and Gerry Pollen, early childhood and elementary school teacher.

Nutrition is a hot topic. Scientists are learning daily about nutrients and their effects on the body. Today there are no absolutes in nutrition, but there are intelligent choices.

"University of California at Berkley Wellness Letter" defines choices for us:

"Eat a varied and balanced diet. Skip the fad diets. Get your nutrients from foods, not pills."

Happy nutrition month.

Home-economist Betty Wagner resides in Independence Township. Her "Microwave Plus" cable-TV program appears on Independence-Clarkston Channel 65.

SUMMARY OF VILLAGE COUNCIL MINUTES OF REGULAR MEETING MARCH 11, 1991

Meeting called to order by President Catallo at 7:45 p.m. followed by the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

Roll Present: Basinger, Catallo, Schultz, Whitmer.

Absent: Haven, Mauti, Roeser.

The minutes of the February 25, 1991, meeting were approved as presented.

Bills in the amount of $45,263.64 were approved for payment.

The Michigan Bell Conduit project was discussed. Present were Cheryl Mathews, Michigan Bell Engineer; Richard Duden, Siebert Construction Co.; and David Love representing Hubbell, Roth and Clark.

Jim Smith and Jim Hitchcock, residents of North Main Street, were present to register complaints regarding sidewalk construction and the manner in which driveways were disrupted.

Cheryl Mathews, Richard Duden, David Love, and Village Manager Art Pappas will meet at 9:00 a.m. on Wednesday, March 13, to inspect the problem areas discussed.

Mr. Gary Kipp was present to investigate the possibility of using the property at 69 South Main (Plum House) as an office. The Council feels that this would be a non-conforming use of the property.

The Council is to study the Definitions in the proposed "Construction, Development, and Land Use Code" presented at the February 25 meeting by Trustee Basinger. The definitions will be discussed at the next meeting.

Karen Neubeck was hired as crossing guard at the rate of $6.75 per hour to fill a one-month vacancy and to be used as substitute crossing guard.

Trinity Lutheran Church will be allowed to use the Village Park for a sing-a-long on a Sunday to be picked in June or July.

The Council instructed the Village Manager to publish a notice of hearing for the next Planning Commission meeting to consider a technical change in the Village of Clarkston Zoning Ordinance, No. 72.

The Village Council agreed that it would permit 30-minute parking on Mill Street as soon as appropriate signage was obtained.

The Village Manager was instructed to obtain a copy of the Walled Lake ordinance on ice shanties for the Planning Commission.

Permission was granted for a banner to welcome home veterans of the Gulf war to be displayed for the two weeks prior to July 4. Meeting was adjourned at 10:15 p.m.

Respectfully submitted,
Artemes M. Pappas, Acting Clerk

PEANUTS are a good thing to give to elephants, even if the elephants are only pretend animals made of construction paper and a cardboard box. Vaughn Pockrandt, 4, gets close to his target with a cup of peanuts.

Photos by Julie Campe

DAD Dennis Welch provides a little help when his daughter, Shelby, 2, makes an elephant mask. Each Friday, parents are invited to take part in SPICE activities. They get to enjoy imaginative and sometimes messy activities with their children.

PASTE, thick and goey, is the stuff used by Theron Brown, 4, to make a brightly colored picture during SPICE.

PUPPETS, brought to life by Nathan Jamnik, 3 1/2, and his mother, Roxanne, talk to each other during a pretend circus at SPICE, a special program for pre-schoolers at North Sashabaw Elementary School. Children could walk a tightrope, feed the elephants, pretend to be caged animals, make animals masks, wear clown makeup and more during the imaginative day. Parents, too, seemed to enjoy the circus.
