Clarkston area spared brunt of storm

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

According to authorities in Springfield and Independence townships, last Wednesday's storm didn't cause substantial damage in the Clarkston area.

It did, however, wreak havoc in most of Oakland

County where hundreds of trees fell, and nearly 77,000 Detroit Edison customers lost power. While no tornadoes were reported to have touched down, the wind's gale force reached about 75 mph in most of the county.

Despite the ferocity of the March 27 storm, local emergency services had few calls to answer. Gar Wilson, Independence Township fire chief, said his stations received seven storm-related calls. Most of the calls pertained to downed lines and trees.

The only significant call in Independence Township was a small house fire on Perry Lake Road, which started when lightning hit the television antenna. No one was injured, and the house was damaged only slightly by smoke.

In Springfield Township, Chief Marlan Hillman said his department received only three calls. All were reports of fallen electrical wires.

"There was comparatively little damage in Springfield," Hillman said. "The storm pretty much moved around us."

Sgt. Joe Quisenberry of the Oakland County Sher-

"My feeling is that this storm was a tornado, not just high winds."

Chief Gar Wilson

iff's Department said the Clarkston substation wasn't extremely busy. He said Independence Township was spared the overall damage seen in many of the neighboring communities.

In an analysis of the gale, Chief Wilson said the storm's pattern through Independence Township resembled a tornado.

"My feeling is that this storm was a tornado, not just high winds," Wilson said. "Just go to Union Lake and the path seems to line up with Independence and Oxford. I don't think it touched down, but that pattern of high wind seemed to follow a definite pattern."

Time changes Sunday

DAYLIGHT SAVINGS TIME BEGINS
APRIL 7, 1991

We lose an hour this weekend due to daylight savings time. That means it will be a little darker when we wake up in the morning but lighter when we go home at night.

Officially, the time changes at 3 a.m. Sunday, April 7, so don't forget to turn your clocks forward by one hour before you retire on Saturday, April 6.

A memory aid for the time changes is "Spring forward, fall back." The time moves forward by one hour the first Sunday in April and moves backward by one hour the last Sunday in October.

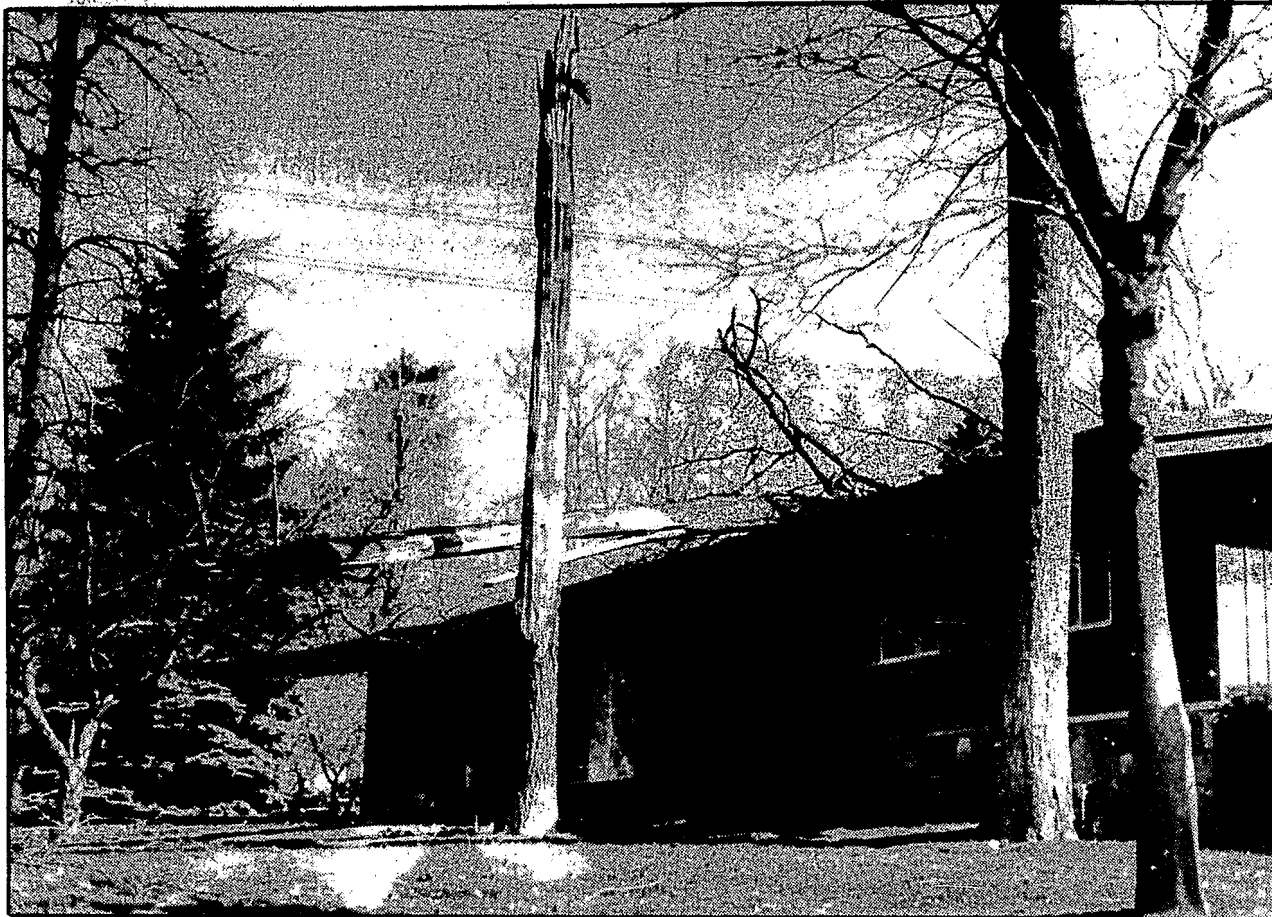

IN SPRINGFIELD Township, an electrical pole falls in a corn field off Andersonville Road, near Big Lake Road, bringing another pole down with it and pulling on adjacent wires.

A PINE tree is toppled onto a garage on Kingfisher, Independence Township, during the March 27 storm. The tree put a hole in the roof and knocked down the basketball hoop.

After the storm

PART of Mockingbird Lane, Independence Township, is blocked off due to fallen electrical wires. This house, on Warbler near Mockingbird, sustained damage from the top of a towering tree that fell during the gusting 70-mph wind and rain storm on March 27. Some residents in the "bird land" neighborhood off Maybee Road were without power for more than 36 hours. In other parts of the township, residents waited until Saturday or Sunday for power to be restored. Detroit Edison crews worked around the clock to restore power to 77,000 customers in Oakland County. Edison officials said the twister-filled storm caused more electrical-related damage than any other storm in recent history. Independence and Springfield townships, however, escaped with minimal damage and injury, compared to other parts of the county. (Photo by Julie Campe)

Two fill vacancies

The last two committee vacancies were filled by the Independence Township Board March 19.

Nancy Ward was named to the zoning board of appeals, while Brent Cooley was chosen for the wetlands board. Their selections were unanimously approved by the township board.

Ward has been involved with various community organizations, and Supervisor Frank Ronk said she will be a competent and dedicated member of the ZBA. Because she is a replacement, her term will expire December 1991.

Cooley is presently the assistant principal at Clarkston High School. Ronk said his community awareness will make him an asset to the wetlands board. He is also a replacement, and his term is set to expire June 1991.

Dr. Fiasco and his magical world

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

For the past 50 years, Independence Township resident Bill Condon has been delighting audiences with his sleight of hand.

The 61-year-old magician is the host of a magic program aired twice a week on Independence-Clarkston Channel 65 on cable television. On the program, his persona is that of Dr. Fiasco -- a wise-cracker who devotes half the show to the talents of his guests.

This is Condon's third season with the cable channel. He is presently putting together 10 shows for the 1991 season. His wife, Joyce, serves as producer of the program.

The Dr. Fiasco Show originated in Waterford through the COMCAST cable company. Joyce Condon, a former media specialist for Waterford Schools, was responsible for airing the program a few years ago. After the couple's retirement in 1988, the program was picked up locally.

Condon's career in magic started at age 11. He

"I had polio as a kid, so I picked up magic as a type of therapy."

Bill Condon

picked it up to take his mind off his ailment.

"I had polio as a kid, so I picked up magic as a type of therapy," he said. "Magic helped me through some tough times, and I've used it in some of my previous jobs."

These previous jobs included administrator of 36 years in the Pontiac and Genesee County school systems. He retired from Pontiac Schools three years ago.

Condon holds a doctorate degree in elementary education, and his status as a "doctor" helped him choose his stage name.

"The name Dr. Fiasco originated from two different sources. One is that I'm a doctor and the second comes from my favorite slogan, 'that every show is a fiasco,'" he

"Magic helped me through some tough times, and I've used it in some of my previous jobs."

Bill Condon

said.

As a practicing magician, Condon is involved in a couple of magic-oriented clubs. He's a member of the International Brotherhood of Magicians and the Charles Romig Ring, named after a Michigan magician.

He also belongs to the Clare Cummings Round Table, which is made up of 10 veteran magicians such as Milky the Clown and Garden Rust.

Condon said his most memorable feat occurred when his two grown boys were still in elementary school. During a PTA function, Condon was asked to vanish the class pet, a guinea pig. However, when the guinea pig disappeared he received an unusual response.

"All the kids got upset and started crying that they wanted their pet back," he laughed. "I wanted to oblige them as soon as possible."

When asked to name his favorite magician, Condon made a traditional choice.

"I think David Copperfield has added a lot to the field with his feats of illusion, but my favorite is Harry Blackstone Jr.," he said. "I like his work because it's patterned after his father's acts of the 1920s."

With the 21st century quickly approaching, Condon sees a resurgence in the field of magic.

"I think magic, like anything else, is going to change," he said. "The best thing going for magic is its appearance on television shows such as 'Night Court.'"

IN a photo taken about 10 years ago, Bill Condon, a.k.a. Dr. Fiasco, performs the levitating ball trick.

Those tricks performed by Harry Anderson (Judge Harold T. Stone) can intrigue a kid to give magic a try.

"Magic is also making a return to the comedy clubs," he added. "When done tastefully, it gives audiences a break from some of the more colorful speaking comedians."

With his career as Dr. Fiasco nearing 40 years, Condon isn't contemplating retirement yet.

"Dr. Fiasco will continue on as long as I live," he said. "I have no intentions of ever quitting magic, as long as it continues to spark my interest."

SCAMP Home Tour slated for June 1, 2

Plans for the Clarkston SCAMP Home Tour, scheduled for Saturday, June 1, and Sunday, June 2, are well underway.

Ellie Miller, this year's chairwoman, and her committee organizing an event that will offer visitors a blend of the past and present.

The tour features six beautiful homes in the Village of Clarkston and surrounding area.

The event begins with the Golden Patron Tour, which offers a premier showing of the homes, followed by a champagne reception at Sharron and Clarence Catallo's beautifully restored home, originally the Clarkston Methodist Church, constructed in 1873.

Sunday Patrons tour the homes and enjoy a complimentary light lunch at the historic Clarkston Cafe.

The Clarkston Home Tour is a fund-raising event sponsored by the North Oakland SCAMP Funding Corp., a non-profit organization.

The sole purpose of the Funding Corp. is to raise funds for the Clarkston SCAMP Program, a five-week summer day camp for young people with special needs in northern Oakland County.

The summer SCAMP this year celebrates its 16th year of providing recreational activities and academic reinforcement to more than 200 youths, preschool through young adult.

For more information, contact Bunny Newmarch, 625-3330, or write to North Oakland SCAMP, 6590 Middle Lake Road, Clarkston, MI 48346.

Opening statements outline case against district

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Two overriding issues face jurors as they determine whether Clarkston Community Schools wronged its former architect, Charles W. Sherman.

Did the district breach a five-year contract negotiated with the architectural firm? And did the district interfere with the firm's ability to find new business after the contract was terminated?

These two fundamental principles were outlined by attorneys for both sides during opening statements before Oakland County Circuit Court Judge David R. Breck March 28.

A six-member, two-alternate jury was selected moments earlier.

The district terminated a contract with Sherman in 1988. In December 1989, Sherman filed a lawsuit against the district seeking $2 million in damages incurred by loss of income, profits and goodwill.

After the lawsuit was filed, the district offered Sherman $175,000 in "separation expenses," as recommended by a mediation panel.

Sherman turned down the offer, opting instead to take the matter to trial.

Sherman's attorney, Richard Condit, must now attempt to prove his client's claims, in hopes of earning at least 10 percent more than the settlement offer. If he fails in this attempt, Sherman is required to pay the district's legal fees.

Should the jury decide against Clarkston schools, the district's insurance policy would pay legal fees. Any damages awarded in the case would be paid for with district bond money, said Superintendent Gary Haner. Operating money would not be used.

Sherman's Attorney, Richard Condit, began by stating that neither side disputed the reasons for the contract termination.

"The district has admitted they terminated the contract without (fault placed on the architect) for lack of performance," Condit explained.

"The defendant admitted that they terminated this contract without fault," he added. "But wrongful interference — the district denies that."

Condit outlined the Sherman firm's background, describing work completed for Pontiac and other Detroit-area school districts.

As the relationship between Sherman and Clarkston schools grew throughout a 12-year period, Condit said, the firm's other business slowly fell away.

"In 1988, the firm was doing so much business with Clarkston schools — in which it had served as architect for 10 years — as much as 93 percent of their business came from this relationship," Condit stated.

Though things were "going well," things changed in July 1988, when Superintendent Gary Haner was hired to replace the retiring Milford Mason.

"From that day forward everything went downhill as far as the firm is concerned," Condit said. "It was literally a nightmare experienced by the architect."

For several months, Condit claimed, the architect began to have difficulty in getting answers to questions about a project underway.

"Two months later — with the superintendent in office not more than 68 days — (former school business director) Bill Jackson is requested to go to the architect's office and gracefully get out of the contract," Condit said.

He added that several months later, the board met "with no prior notice to the architect — with no opportunity to be heard"; and the board completely terminated the five-year contract with Sherman, other than for certain roof projects.

"It was nothing on their performance," Condit argued. "It was just what the superintendent wanted."

Months later the architect would be reinstated, but only for certain projects. One month after that, the board would, again, vote to terminate the entire contract.

Condit said Sherman later came to Bill Jackson to drop off some files. Condit described a conversation between the two men.

"Sherman said 'I would like to get a recommendation; would you be willing to sign?'" Condit told the jury. "Jackson looked sheepish and said 'Do you intend to file a claim for termination services?'"

"He, Jackson, said 'Attorneys told us if anyone calls in ... to say 'no comment,' ... but if you withdraw termi-

Notes of a courtroom reporter

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

The case brought against Clarkston Community Schools by Charles W. Sherman and Associates is wedged in between a variety of matters heard by Oakland County Circuit Court Judge David F. Breck.

"We have a reputation as being one of the busiest in the United States," Judge Breck told jurors after a morning full of delays.

Those attending the Clarkston case from the beginning were already familiar with this particular nature of the courts.

On the first scheduled day of trial the case wasn't begun at all; on the second scheduled day, the court ran out of jurors to hear the case; and on the third day, proceedings started just after 2 p.m.

Even when the jury was seated to hear the Clarkston case, the judge was required to hear matters of other consequence, such as bonds to be set, dates to be arranged and circumstances of certain individuals.

On some of these occasions, Oakland County Jail inmates visited the courtroom in dark blue jail uniforms and chains.

"I will be apologizing to you throughout the trial for delays," Breck, told the Clarkston jurors with a sad smile.

Throughout the jury selection process, candidates were told the Clarkston case was expected to occupy them through the first two weeks of April.

This fact served to excuse some prospective jurors: a professional musician, a man with non-refundable vacation reservations and a college student were excused after discussion with attorneys.

Other jurors were excused because they resided in Clarkston, had knowledge of either the principals in the case or the professions discussed, or had triggered some warning in the minds of attorneys representing the case.

The five-man, three-woman jury eventually seated in the case consists of a firefighter, a nurse, a housewife, an arena supervisor, a truck driver, a systems engineer, a court reporter and a clinic service technician. The six-member jury uses two alternates.

One juror who told the judge he couldn't sit for long periods was given permission to stand frequently.

Judge Breck told the man he understood his condition, and that he, too, stood frequently.

"I do it to stay awake," the judge quipped.

The attorney for Clarkston Community Schools, Mike Eschelbach, thanked the jury in advance for their close attention.

The attorney for Plaintiff Charles W. Sherman, Richard Condit, asked each jury member whether they would have difficulty listening to a lot of numbers.

After each responded "no," the trial began and each had a chance to test his response.

Attorneys for the case have privately surmised the trial will take five full days, which conceivably could run for two weeks.

For information on trial schedules, contact the Oakland County Circuit Court Assignment Clerk at 858-0350. The case number is 89381842.

Lawsuit hinges on two points

nation expenses (which are part of the contract, Condit added), we would give you a recommendation," he continued.

"Our client considered that blackmail," Condit said. "The firm was forced to close its doors on July 16, 1989."

Condit gave the jury some questions to think about and told them that testimony would bear out the things he alleged.

Attorney for the school district, Mike Eschelbach, told the jury that in his interpretation, things happened differently.

"We wouldn't be in the same courtroom if we saw things the same way," Eschelbach said.

Sherman, in fact, had undertaken minor architectural services for the district, Eschelbach said. The firm, meanwhile, maintained other clients.

The contract eventually signed with Sherman included three parts, Eschelbach said: projects within a $5.2 million bond issue, modifications to existing buildings and a new high school.

Prior to taking the job with Clarkston, Haner was concerned about the magnitude of the projects and the architect chosen to complete them, Eschelbach added.

"The district was about to lay out substantial taxpayer money," he said. "As protectors of that money — and as spenders of that money — the board has an obligation to determine whether the board has hired the best firm for doing the job."

After he started in his job, Haner became aware that Sherman was contracted for "extended services," something lawyers told him was legal but not advisable, Eschelbach said.

Haner recommended to the board that they "back-off" and look at a construction manager as an alternative.

Sherman reportedly said all or nothing and "the board said nothing," according to Eschelbach.

Regarding a recommendation for the architect, Eschelbach said "Mr. Jackson's recollections are quite different."

The attorney told the jury Jackson remembered asking Sherman whether he'd be suing.

According to Eschelbach, Jackson said that if he were, that would put Jackson in an awkward position.

Eschelbach said no attempt was ever made to solicit a recommendation from the school board or the superintendent, "only Jackson as an individual."

"The district was not obligated to give a referral," Eschelbach argued. "We don't believe that failure to provide one had anything to do with the firm's inability to get work."

The case is expected to extend over a two-week period.

Man charged with state embezzlement

The owner of an Independence Township group home has been charged with embezzling $18,000 from the state Department of Mental Health.

Bradley Kotula, 32, owns and operates four group homes for the mentally impaired in Oakland County, including the Horseshoe Circle Home on the 1000 block of Horseshoe Circle, Independence Township.

According to Sgt. Camille Kleinow of Northville's Michigan State Police Post, the four homes are listed under Kotula's Waterford-based company, North Oakland Residential Services, Inc.

Kleinow said all four homes remain open at this time.

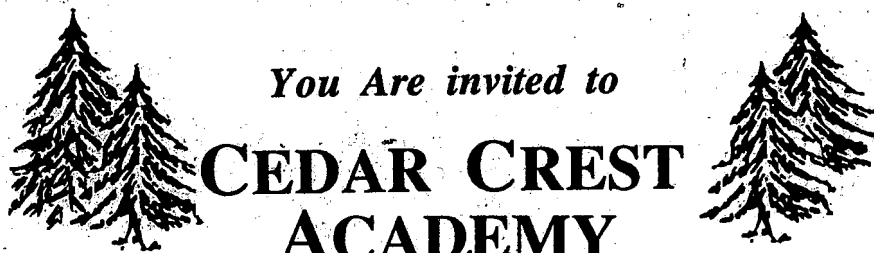

During a 15-month period beginning in October, 1987, Kotula allegedly defrauded the mental health department through the use of falsified receipts, annual settlement statements and quarterly statements.

He is being charged with a total of 15 counts on five separate incidents. The counts include obtaining money in the amount over $100 by false pretenses, embezzlement and larceny by conversion. If convicted on all charges, he could receive the maximum penalty of over 100 years in prison.

Opinions

Fools and love

Julie Campe

Lucky Fletcher got about 20 people with his April Fool's Day gag on Monday -- some people he didn't even know.

He worked it this way: He approached the unsuspecting person with a file folder and informed him that he was being served with "official" papers.

The person would take the folder -- a little nervously -- and open it. Inside was a white card with "April Fool" written in big red letters.

Speaking of fools, no one mentioned Andrew the Horrible at the family Easter gathering at Cousin Nancy's on Sunday. I had to bring up the fact that he and his bride, Michele, were decadently lounging about their South Lyon home on Easter instead of cavorting with the family.

Of course, an onlooker may have thought that the bunch at Nancy's was a little decadent, eating all that ham and JELL-O and scalloped potatoes, not to mention the chocolate pie and my mother's chocolate brownie cheesecake drizzled with caramel and chocolate; and afterward sitting back with a glass of punch or soda pop, lazily swapping tales punctuated with occasional outbursts of guffaws from Aunt Leone and her sister, my mother.

(Whew! I know that was all one sentence, but the day was really like that.)

Different on this year's Easter was the fact that Niece Colleen and Cousin Nicki both possessed driver's licenses. What's more, both could drive a stick shift and, indeed, did so that very day. Somehow, this made some of us feel old, remembering how the two used to run around with mussed up hair, cuddling puppies and quarreling with each other. Now, their hair always looks nice, and you never see them quarrel.

Another relative served as the entertainment during the holiday gathering. Someone had brought a tape of Cousin Emily Orr of Milford, who appeared on TV-2 last week.

At Cousin Rod's Halloween party last year, Emily had mentioned that she had been writing to a serviceman in the Persian Gulf and couldn't wait to meet him. From his letters, he was too good to be true. He was the love that she had dreamed of, she dared to say way back then.

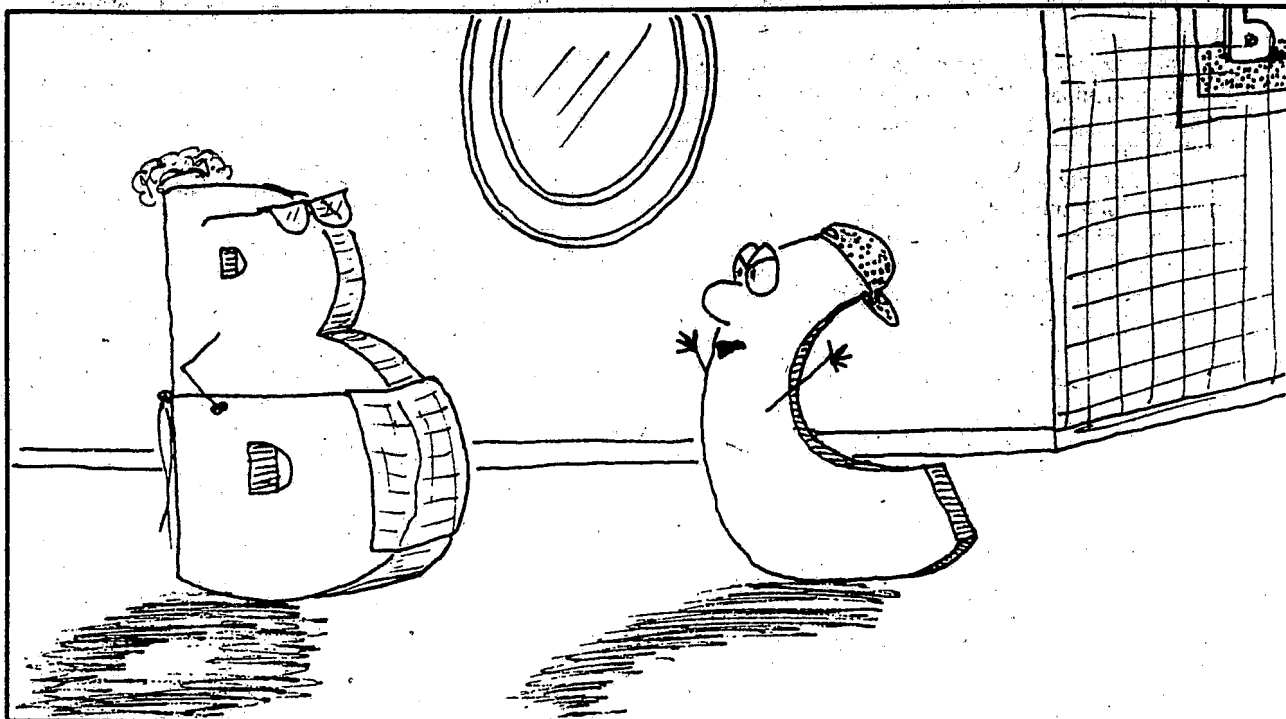

Well, he returned home from the Persian Gulf last week, and TV-2 captured the young couple's first meeting on film.

Emily, slim and teary-eyed, ran to meet the officer, after his parents pointed him out to her. They hugged and kissed -- a lot.

During the family viewing, little Cousin T.J. asked such questions as, "Why is Emily running?" and "Why is she crying?" and "Why is that man talking into the microphone?" and "Who is Emily?"

Perhaps next Easter T.J. can ask Emily and "that man" those questions himself.

MOM!! I'M PRACTICALLY A CAPITAL! WHY DO YOU KEEP TREATING ME LIKE A LOWER CASE LETTER??

Jim Sherman

Jim's Jottings

We all get mad when we read of the pork barreling, but the politicians don't care. Year after year our elected officials spend our money on what they must believe are vote-getting projects.

State Rep Margaret O'Connor (R-Ann Arbor) has a 123-page list of goodies from the Michigan 1990 pork barrel.

I'd like to tell you a few of them, and you can decide if you would vote along with the legislators in spending your money.

The Cuban Festival Dancers were given $9,000. Olay! A man named Harold Allen was given $10,000 to take time off work to paint a picture.

Still in the "arts" category, Don Belton got $5,000 to take time off work to write a novel, Thomas Bolmert got $10,000 to take time off to do eight sculptures and Ann Eskridge got $6,000 to write a play.

Don't you love it?

Needy towns get some of our money, too. Frankenthumb... the tourist laden, money grabber in the Thumb, got $150,000 to promote tourism and business. That'll buy a couple billboards.

A park in Lapeer County was given $135,000 by us generous taxpayers and Lansing got $400,000 to build a cobblestone square. I'm really in favor of Lansing having a cobblestone square.

Of the partial list I saw of Margaret O'Connor's, I think the only one I'd have voted for was the $35,000 for toilets at Sanilac County Fairgrounds. At least the need is obvious. The horse racing/showing people got a total of $2,030,000.

I gleaned the above from Len Ganeway, Lapeer County Press columnist (ex-owner). He also said: "Here's the difference between government and private enterprise:

"When a restaurant business slows and has to cut back to a five-day week, it drops its slowest day-- usually Monday.

"When the state in January cut back its license bureaus to a five-day week, it closed Saturdays. That's the one day that many working people have for transferring titles and buying licenses.

"The state should go back to its old system for small towns. They should once again let private business handle this work. These were generally insurance agents who were not only open Saturday mornings, but on most holidays as well."

A home with a 4-year-old is a place where you also wash the soap when you clean the bathroom.

It really doesn't make much difference who wears the pants in the family just as long as there's money in the pockets.

If you think it's hard to meet new people, pick up the wrong golf ball.

For the successful completion of any task requiring tools, it is necessary to bleed at least once.

Romance enhances Taiwan trip

As I entered the temple among hundreds of Chinese on the first hour of the Chinese Lunar New Year, a cloud of pungent smoke from the overabundance of burning incense enveloped me.

The huge inner courtyard of the temple was filled with this gray aromatic cloud, hanging in the air and mixing with the drizzling rain to create an effect I will surely never forget.

Surrounding me were Chinese people of all sorts: young and old, rich and poor.

In this environment they were somehow united, all with the same objective: to be first to greet the gods and get them for good fortune in the New Year.

The congregation was larger than any I had ever seen, yet there was no noise, confusion pushing or shoving. Everyone seemed to move about one another effortlessly, silent and clear-minded.

Anywhere within reach stood individuals holding massive bundles of burning incense that seemed to flow continuously out to the throngs of people offering their prayers to the Gods.

To receive them, as in any Buddhist temple, were an assortment of statues, urns and other symbolic objects used to represent the many different forms of Buddha.

Falling in love with a Chinese man was certainly not on my agenda for the six months I would spend in Taiwan. But somehow it happened.

Everywhere I looked, I saw people in prayer amid the smoke and rain, holding their children, standing beside their loved ones, some even supporting their aging parents or grandparents, and some alone. The impression was overwhelming, and I stood awestruck, feeling very much a part of the entire experience yet somehow still alienated from the heart of it.

The moments I spent in that temple during the first hour of the New Year could sum up a great deal of what it so often feels like to be a foreigner.

The wonderful feeling of involvement in something or someone that extends past what you've ever known before is smitten by the knowledge that cannot be forgotten — you are not and never will be part of that world.

You can partake in daily life, witness rituals and celebrate holidays, but you can't possibly saturate the culture enough to truly understand it.

This often neglected realization hit me full force that evening as my boyfriend led me through the temple by the hand.

As I wound through the crowd of people, so close we touched in passing one another, I grasped a fleeting sense of affiliation.

Perhaps this was due to the intense emotion that emanated from the Chinese during such a culturally rich ceremony.

Yet as I looked on while my boyfriend approached a black urn to perform his "bye-bye" (the Chinese work for prayer, which isn't exclusively associated with Buddhism, but more an ancient custom of offering to the gods for most all Chinese) my affiliations vanished.

I watched as he lifted a single stick of burning incense to his forehead.

Eyes closed, he paused for a moment in prayer, then bowed slightly twice in this solemn pose and placed his small offering among several others in the mound of ash.

At that instant I felt simultaneously as close and as far away from him as I ever had. I was sharing a bit of his heritage, and I could feel the significance of the moment.

But I also knew there was so much I didn't and would never comprehend simply because I am an American, not a Chinese.

The dynamics of this "culture gap" are difficult to explain. Even more so, they are difficult to accept at times, especially when emotions extend beyond those of a "cross-cultural friendship."

Falling in love with a Chinese man was certainly not on my agenda for the six months I would spend in Taiwan.

But somehow it happened, and needless to say, it has significantly affected by experience here.

Because of our relationship I have learned much about the Chinese people and have definitely become more open to accepting different ways of thought. It has brought me closer to their culture than I have ever thought I would come.

"How wonderful to experience a different way of life simply through loving someone," I think to myself when we are together.

Yet the experience turns bittersweet when I face the often overlooked gap between our worlds. Regardless of how close we might become, there will remain certain things we won't understand about each other.

However, this unfortunate reality did not stop us from ringing in the new year with fervor, perhaps even a bit too much.

The rain and the festivities continued the following day with a huge meal, many bottles of the local Taiwanese sherry, endless firecrackers and the disbursement of the "red envelopes."

It is Chinese custom at the New Year to present the "shiao pungyo" (children, literally "little friends") with red envelopes containing "lucky money."

It is also Chinese custom to toast quite frequently during any celebratory meal.

Unlike Americans, who consume their individually chosen spirits casually during dinner, the Chinese fill everyone's glass at the start of the meal with a very potent wine, straight from the bottle.

Then about every five minutes or so for the next few hours random guests take their turn at announcing the invitation to toast the event, which is rather like a demand lest you want to insult someone by not drinking.

This can be done selectively, by choosing one or two people to toast with, or it can simply be directed to the entire table.

The individual making the toast indicates those he would like to join him merely by calling out a name. Holding his glass in the air, he says "Gan'bay!" — bottoms up.

The Chinese find a distinct and somewhat warped pleasure in watching a foreigner become intoxicated. Having been victimized unmercifully a few times before, I now knew how to play the game — smile a great deal and sip very slowly.

But we were visiting childhood friends of my boyfriend, whom he hadn't seen in nearly five years.

He was talking so much he barely ate and was relentlessly called to toast. Soon he was quite drunk, setting off firecrackers all around the neighborhood and giving away all his money in red envelopes to his friends' children.

I sat back and observed the entire scene in quiet fascination, listening to the choppy monosyllabic rhythm of Mandarin Chinese and watching the reddening faces, all the while wondering to myself, "How on earth did you get here, Andrea?"

When it was time to go, we walked to the scooter we had ridden from another friend's house the night before.

The friends asked me in Chinese, with a bit of sign language, if I could drive it.

Having never dared to drive a scooter even in Kaohsiung (we were in Taipei, Taiwan's largest city), I was hesitant to say the least.

But as I looked at my boyfriend I realized I had no choice — in his condition, he certainly would have been even more dangerous at the handlebars than I.

We mounted the bike, wet and cold in our flimsy clothing we had brought from sunny Kaohsiung 300 miles south of Taipei just yesterday.

Before starting the engine, I turned to look behind me at this man, 10 years older than I, now reduced to a cold, broke, drunken little boy with the most adorable smile I had ever seen.

We took off, riding aimlessly through the rainy streets of Taipei, laughing and shivering all the way.

"I'm so cold! I'm so drunk! I'm so old! I'm so poor!" my boyfriend called out to the city in his charmingly broken English as he clutched me around the waist, pressing against my back for warmth.

I laughed aloud and wondered at that moment if I had ever been happier.

The man on the phone, in Maine, said he'd call me back, so I gave him my 7-digit number. He asked for my area code. Oh, Lord. The area code isn't printed on my new office phone. I hurriedly hissed to the young woman at the next desk: "What's our area code number?" She gave me a strange look that demanded an explanation of how I possibly could be so dumb I didn't know my own area code. I wanted to slap her young face.

It took a minute to wheedle the number out of the young woman, and the man in Maine surely interpreted my hesitation as stupidity. So now there were two people astonished by the incredible fact that I could live in the Detroit area all my life, use the phone regularly as an integral tool of my profession, and not know the area code for Detroit.

It's all part of growing old. For people my age, several facts of aging are depressing. For example, it is depressing to see June Allyson on television selling diapers for people my age.

Forty years ago, I would have hooted and scoffed at the ridiculous prediction that cute, perky, forever-young June Allyson someday would appear on television to suggest that she wore diapers for important social occasions, and maybe I should, too.

Also depressing was a recent Esquire article in which Jerry Lewis bragged that he and President John Kennedy chased women together. "The best years in my life I had with JFK," Lewis said. "I used to get on a Marine chopper, and they'd fly me to the South Lawn so that I could bypass the press. Kennedy . . . was nuts over the girl singer in my band in Chicago. One of the great BLEEP men of all time. Except for me."

JFK was my hero, and Jerry Lewis was my idea of a world champion loud-mouthed jerk. And 30 years later I learn they were womanizing best buddies, with an assist from the tax-supported Marines. I'm not sure I wanted to live long enough to see the last shreds of Camelot flushed down the sewer by Jerry Lewis.

As for my area code, what's depressing is that I knew it the day before I didn't know it, and I knew it again the next day. I know it right now — 313. But when that man from Maine asked for it, the only phone number I could bring to mind was 22651. That hasn't been my phone number since 1944 when I moved out of my parents' home at 1020 Pine Grove Ave. in Port Huron. We had the same number when we lived at 928 Huron Ave. in the same city. I can remember all those 45-year-old numbers easily, but today's numbers keep slipping away.

Because I'm about to take a long motor vacation, I'm reminded of perhaps my most embarrassing loss of memory. A couple of years ago I stopped at a Holiday Inn in Alabama. When the room clerk asked for my auto license number, I'd forgotten it. I would have read it to him from the car registration in my wallet, but I'd forgotten my reading glasses.

I would have asked the clerk to read the number off my registration, except I'd forgotten my wallet. When I went out to the car to get my glasses and wallet, I'd forgotten where I parked.

After the obliging clerk finally reunited me with my car and got me safely into a room, I left it to drive across town for a dinner engagement. When I returned to the Holiday Inn, my door key wouldn't fit the lock. When I complained to another obliging room clerk, I learned I was at the wrong Holiday Inn.

Onward and Upward. I'll be back after vacation. Please don't forget me.

Columnist Tracy King is on vacation.

Letters to the Editor

B&B perspective from New England

My husband and I are former Clarkston residents and have maintained our subscription to The Clarkston News since our move to Connecticut two years ago.

We have monitored with interest the ongoing saga of the bed and breakfast issue in the Village of Clarkston.

Our memories of Clarkston are fond ones, and our only steadfast criticism of the area was and is the lack of a nice place for out-of-town guests to stay. Not everyone has the luxury of extra rooms in their homes to offer to visitors.

We now live in New England, the heart of bed and breakfast company. We can not only share many wonderful tales of our visits to these quaint establishments but also attest to the obvious positive aspects of B&Bs in local communities.

The bed and breakfast patron is an individual who wants to walk down a Main Street sidewalk to browse in downtown shops and sample local eateries. Is that not what Clarkston has been crying for?

On the other hand, the bed and breakfast "inn-keeper" is an individual who draws his or her guests not just to a bed to sleep in but extends an invitation to those guests to relax in a comfortable environment and share in the history and beauty of the area.

Our knowledge of the village council's actions on this issue comes from our weekly perusing of The Clarkston News. To our knowledge, there has not been one shred of negative response from the members of the community, yet the issue has been tabled indefinitely.

We hope this New England perspective may shed a little light for the council members. It seems to us that the bed and breakfast ordinance as posed could do nothing but enhance the charming Village of Clarkston, enable more visitors to sample that charm and put welcome dollars into the local economy.

Town fine as is

Each week I read "Letters to the Editor" stating "We moved to Clarkston because ... quiet, homey, friendly, laid back, community pride" and all the things that make for comfortable living; and they always finish their flowery descriptive adjectives with "but —"

At that time, they spend the rest of their letter recommending changes. They complain about the school; they complain about the sports; they complain about who plays sports; they complain about local functions to help school children and graduates celebrate or observe goals in life.

They have all the answers to Utopia: they want to bring all the things from a place they left and didn't like to their new home.

I moved into the Clarkston area in 1960. My children graduated from the "antiquated" school and finished college no problem.

I've enjoyed all the things about Clarkston—the old Tink's barbershop and a half a haircut during fire call; Jim's shoe repair, doing my half soles; the old Clarkston Cafe and fish and chips, the parades, the small-town atmosphere.

But I also enjoy the new cafe, the coffee shop, Coaches Corner — all the places that replaced the old guard; the gazebo; the concerts — the list is endless.

My grandchildren are doing very well in the school system. Thank you for the dedication of a lot of parents, elected officials, boosters — you name it.

I don't enjoy the intellects drafting all these "nay say" letters. If Clarkston offends you, please move on. You're like a stone in your shoe: very small but a large pain.

Tom Miller

Disappointed in our community

I am writing this in response to February's bond election. I am extremely disappointed in this community. I don't understand how the citizens of this town could vote "no" on the bond issue.

Maybe it is because I am only 14 and I don't want to worry about financial difficulties.

Many people don't realize how much everyone from this community would have benefited from each of the proposals voted on, for example, the new high school and possible OCC campus.

The high school is overcrowded as it is, and with Clarkston's growing population, it's becoming more crowded every year. Plus, with the freshmen moving over in a few years, it will be extremely worse. Next year, when I go over to the high school, I may have to share a locker with someone I may not know or like.

The new high school and possible OCC campus were supposed to be started and finished in two to three years. This meant that those seniors who had fulfilled all their high school requirements could have taken college courses while still in school.

Another proposal voted on was that of a new swimming pool. Both the school and the community would be able to use this pool. The pools would provide summer entertainment for the community, and the pool would provide Clarkston with yet another chance to show off their athletic talent. This may seem to be one of the more trivial issues, but anything that can be a benefit to this community isn't trivial.

I hope my point was proven. I really wanted to express my feelings and those of others. Now maybe this town will see what they are missing.

Don't alter plans

Hats off to the many letters that have appeared in the "Letter to the Editor" section in favor of casino-type gambling and hypnosis at the Clarkston High School post-graduation party.

Hopefully, the "concerned residents in Clarkston" have also read your responses and have taken to heart your viewpoints.

The entire planning committee is derived of volunteers and residents of Clarkston who are concerned for the well-being of the graduating seniors.

Not one person on that committee would intentionally plan an event that was not in the best interest of each participant. The casino-type gambling and hypnosis currently on the agenda are harmless. As stated in other letters, there are plenty of other activities to choose from, aside from these events if one does not wish to participate.

This all-night, non-alcoholic party is carefully planned for graduating seniors to gather and safely celebrate. How fortunate we are that these adults chose to attend this party instead of "partying" on their own with alcohol; in an empty field, cruising Dixie Highway or in the basement of your neighbor's house.

Let the festivities begin without having a few bad apples spoil the bushel (no offense intended). Remember, these graduating seniors are adults and should be treated as adults.

I urge the planning committee to not alter the proposed schedule of events.

Dump some lunch tray types

Clarkston schools and many other districts are adding to a problem that is already too large — non-degradable wastes. I strongly believe that plastic foam lunch trays should be replaced with reusable plastic trays.

Hundreds of plastic foam lunch trays are thrown out every day in the Clarkston school district alone! That means thousands of trays are added each week to a pile in the dump yard that will take longer than my lifetime to begin to break down.

If schools switched to plastic trays, they would never have to be thrown out unless they were badly damaged. Schools would save money if they wouldn't have to replace trays all the time. A dishwasher of some sort (machine or human) would be needed, although it would be much cheaper than replacing trays daily.

Considering the facts, the right and obvious choice for schools is to replace the disposable plastic plates with durable, long-lasting plastic trays.

Brant Blomberg

Others noteworthy

Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone and Ben Franklin discovered electricity, but what about all the other inventors who are African-Americans, Asian-Americans, Native Americans, Hispanics and those from the Middle East?

In school, we are only exposed to those inventors who are caucasians. Even though many of us are interested in learning of different ethnic groups, the material is not included in the school curriculum or available for personal use.

I feel that the contributions that other ethnic groups have made are important and should be taught or at least made available in our schools.

The library should have books, pamphlets, etc. on the inventions and contributions of those who are not yet recognized. These people have invented many helpful items that are still in use today.

For instance, have you ever heard of Rodolfo Gonzales? Gonzales is an Hispanic-American who is fighting to keep Mexican culture, language and history alive by creating a school where people can study the Mexican culture.

Or have you heard of Hector P. Garcia? He's another Hispanic-American who was told in high school by one of his teachers, "No Mexican will ever make an 'A' in my class."

With excellent work, he still had only a "B+." Garcia was furious! He was determined to show people that he could succeed. So when America plunged into World War II, Garcia was with them. He trained soldiers how to safely dock the ships, which saved many lives. He later became a combat surgeon.

So as you can see, there are many others we should know about. Please help us make that possible.

Lightning causes fire

Last week's ferocious storm is being blamed for a house fire on the 8000 block of Perry Lake Road, Independence Township.

At 6:52 a.m., March 27, personnel from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department and the Independence Township Fire Department were called to the home of Robert Van Norman.

Apparently, a flash of lightning had struck the television antenna atop the house. The strike caused the home's control box to short out and set some draperies ablaze.

However, the family was able to successfully put out the fire before the arrival of the fire trucks. No one was injured in the incident.

If variables stick, school budget should balance

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

A lot of unknowns face the Clarkston school board for the 1991-92 year: how much revenue taxes will bring in, how much money the district will get from the state — and how much expenses will increase.

But district officials have to come up with their best guesses by the end of this month.

That's when board members must decide how many mills they will ask voters to renew in the annual school election June 10.

The framework for the 1991-1992 school budget was unveiled to the Clarkston Board of Education in a special meeting March 25.

The information should help the board decide how much money the school district will need in the next school year.

The number of mills that the board requests is expected to replace mills that expired with the 1990 tax levy this year. Five operating millage issues expire in the 1990 tax levy, costing the district about 20.9271 mills.

To bring the district to the 38.83-mill level of operating millage voters approved in July 1988, the board would be required to ask for a renewal of 19.3276 mills.

The number takes into account the Headlee Amendment to the state constitution, which automatically rolls back the millage rate whenever property values increase at a rate higher than the rate of inflation.

One mill is $1 for every $1,000 assessed property valuation.

The board will determine the actual number of mills to request by the end of April, or at least 45 days before the election.

Business Director Steve Lenar told the board that if the mills are renewed to current levels, the district could maintain the level of programs it offers today.

"I feel pretty comfortable," Lenar said. "What I've done is taken the current program and moved it over to determine what that will cost us in 1991-92."

Lenar cautioned that the proposed budget, estimated at $27.5 million, was tentative and depended on a number of assumptions.

The school board will determine a final budget in hearings in June.

Among the expenses expected to remain constant in the budget are staffing, salaries and benefits; contracts for next year have already been negotiated.

The district is expected to use about 217 full-time teachers, at a cost of just over $10 million.

On an aside, Lenar showed the board that among all Oakland County school districts, Clarkston ranked in the bottom third for teacher salaries.

Other constants within the budget include supply costs, employee insurance costs and utility costs.

The flip side of the budget — revenue — also contained variables, Lenar said; but like expenditures, certain assumptions could be made.

The budget assumes voters will maintain the current millage rate, for one thing.

The amount of taxes levied against school district properties is another variable, Lenar said.

Another assumption — which is almost a certainty, according to Lenar — is that the district will go out of the state's school aid formula next year, which means the district will receive drastically less money from the state.

After injecting a number of variables into the state aid formula for Clarkston, Lenar concluded, "all three ways you look at the variables, there is no way Clarkston will stay in formula."

Lenar listed "investment interest" as another variable in the school district budget. This refers to the amount of interest earned on revenue the district has collected.

Among the questions raised by board members was

"Our crystal ball is no less cloudy. If assumptions of a three-year projection proves wrong, the district takes another black eye."

Durham Downs

whether the millage request would be a one-year renewal or a multi-year renewal.

At least one trustee argued that it is difficult to determine year to year what the district needs.

"Our crystal ball is no less cloudy," Durham Downs said. "If assumptions of a three-year projection proves wrong, the district takes another black eye."

Trustee Janet Thomas argued that the district should use better forecasting techniques.

"I still think we need to prove what's going to happen," she said.

Another question raised by the board was whether to increase the district's fund-equity balance, which is the "rainy day" fund — money not assigned a specific purpose but that provides the district flexibility in case of emergency or unexpected expenses.

According to school accountants, the fund balance should equal anywhere from 5 to 10 percent of the district's total revenue.

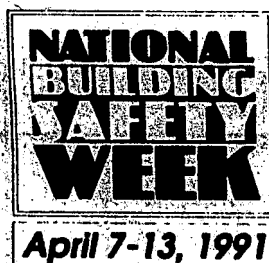

Thomas noted that because Clarkston's fund balance frequently totaled less than 1 percent, steps should be taken to increase the amount.

Members debated whether this meant increasing mills, cutting programs, cutting fat from the current budget or leaving the fund equity where it is.

The board discussed setting a reasonable goal for increasing the fund balance — such as 1 percent a year — and determining where money might be saved in the current budget.

Lenar was directed to determine what cuts could be made and to report back to the board.

Thinking improvements? Don't forget permit

Now that spring is here, homeowners are often anxious to get started on home improvements. Sometimes they forget to get their permits or are simply unaware that they need one.

In Independence Township, permits are required (but not limited to):

- decks that are 30 inches or above in height.
- sheds, kit-type or stick-built; barns; carports; garages.
- above-ground and in-ground pools. All pools must be appropriately secured.
- enclosing a porch or a patio.
- aluminum or vinyl siding.
- most structural changes to existing buildings for additions.

Permits are not required for the following:

■ fences — however, you need to know the regulations for height and placement on the property.

■ replacing shingles on your roof — but you do need a permit if it involves replacing the structural components of the roof, such as plywood decking.

If you're thinking of building, call the township building department (625-8111) to avoid placing the foundation/footings too close to lot lines or having your shed or barn not meet the height requirement or not meeting the BOCA code.

Township building department officials recommend that if you hire someone to do the job, ask for their builder's license or residential maintenance and alteration contractor's license — and look at the expiration date.

Also, regardless of whether work is done by a contractor or homeowner, a permit is necessary before construction.

For more information, call 625-8111.

Tips can provide for a safe spring

Tree-climbing and kite-flying are two spring activities that could lead to accidents when youngsters forget about safety.

Children should be told to stay away from overhead electric lines and trees when flying kites.

Consumers Power offers some basic rules that will help young kite-fliers and tree-climbers to have fun and avoid trouble:

- Keep away from overhead electric lines.
- Never climb a utility pole, a tree or a broadcast tower to retrieve a tangled kite.

■ If an electric line falls, keep away from it.
■ When buying or making a kite, make sure it is constructed of wood, plastic and paper — do not use anything made of metal.

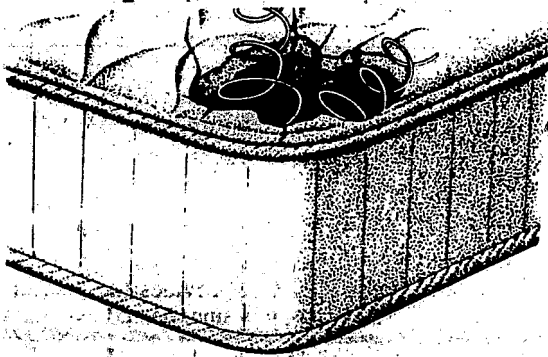

■ Use dry string when flying your kite, not wire or anything metallic.

■ Fly your kite in open areas in dry weather. Avoid streets and highways and keep away from television and radio antennas.

ANYONE entering or leaving Clarkston High School via the service drive (a.k.a. "Varsity Drive or Academic Alley") will now be greeted by banners off the side of the road. The banners are similar to those put up in Downtown Clarkston during Fun Daze. Clarkston High School Assistant Principal Brent Cooley said the banners were donated to the school, with the Clarkston Jaycees and the school's Interact Club each spending $500 for the costs. Flourishing zebra mussels could spread to some inland lakes

Best precaution: Let boat dry before transferring to another lake

BY SANDRA G. CONLEN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Water enthusiasts should beware. An invasion of the Great Lakes water system can threaten the ecosystem of that great waterway.

Even though there are no reports zebra mussels in Clarkston-area lakes, residents can be affected by the invasion of the small mussel that colonizes, said Don Schloesser, fishery biologist for U.S. Fish and Wildlife Department in Ann Arbor.

The mussels could spread to inland lakes.

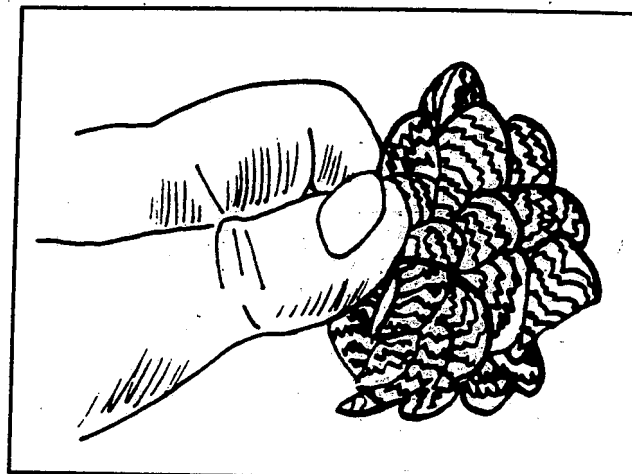

Plus, power generators rely on power from the Great Lakes, and a colony of mussels can shut down some of the machinery used to supply electricity, Schloesser said.

According to a report compiled by Sally Cole-Misch of the International Joint Commission, Detroit, in two years the zebra mussel population has grown rapidly.

In a six-month period, the population in a square-meter area grew from 3,500 to 23,000.

The zebra mussel attaches itself to hard surfaces. In the larger lakes, such as Erie and St. Clair, pumping stations have been restricted due to clogged water intakes for municipal drinking water plants and industries.

But other objects serve as colonies for zebra mussels, as well. Navigational buoys have sunk from the weight of the mussels on buoy chains; boat bottoms have been severely damaged, and entire spawning reefs for walleye and trout have been covered in western Lake

ZEBRA mussels thrive in parts of the United States. (Illustration by Bruce Jamieson, International Joint Commission).

Advice to wash boats in a spray car wash is not sound. The car wash does not remove all of the mussels, Schloesser said.

Another way to help control the problem of the zebra mussel is to keep the public informed about it, he said.

Little money is supplied by the government to control the mussel — only about $3-4 million.

"I hope the public's expectations (of the government eradicating the zebra mussel) are not too high," Schloesser said.

Erie.

Recreational boaters and anglers should take precautions to help stop the spread of the zebra mussel.

"The best way to get rid of them (zebra mussels) is to let the boat dry out," said Schloesser.

Man accidentally shoots friend in foot

A 21-year-old White Lake Township man was hospitalized after a friend accidentally shot him in the foot.

Friday evening, March 29, James Nichols was shot by pal Kevin Newton, 21, while attending a party at Newton's Oak Grove Road, Independence Township, home.

According to a report at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, Newton was showing some of his guests a 9mm semiautomatic pistol when the accident occurred. Apparently, the gun discharged while Newton was unloading it.

The bullet hit Nichols in the right foot. He was taken to St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital, Pontiac, that evening and released the next day.

In the police report, Newton admitted to drinking six to seven beers prior to the incident.

Soldier delights first-graders in 'Show and Tell'

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Gregory Patterson, a first-grader at North Sashabaw Elementary, provided his class with a memorable day of "Show and Tell."

On March 28, the youngster brought in Pfc. Troy Martin, a veteran of the Persian Gulf War. Martin, a 1988 graduate of Clarkston High School, served in the Middle

"This was really nice. They all knew a lot about the war, and that's good for kids so young."

Troy Martin

East for nearly four months. He is a member of the Army Airborne, with skills in paratrooping and communications.

The children in Pat Smith's classroom welcomed the soldier with applause and fluttering flags.

For nearly 30 minutes, the curious students pelted the 20-year-old soldier with numerous questions on his experiences. These questions varied from the possible sighting of Patriot missiles to the type of food eaten in the desert.

Martin, who was stationed near the Iraqi-Saudi Arabia border, asked the students if they knew why the U.S. went to war. A majority of the class proved their know-how by yelling, "to free Kuwait."

However, most of the group grew silent when Martin asked them if they'd ever heard of General Stormin' Norman Schwarzkopf.

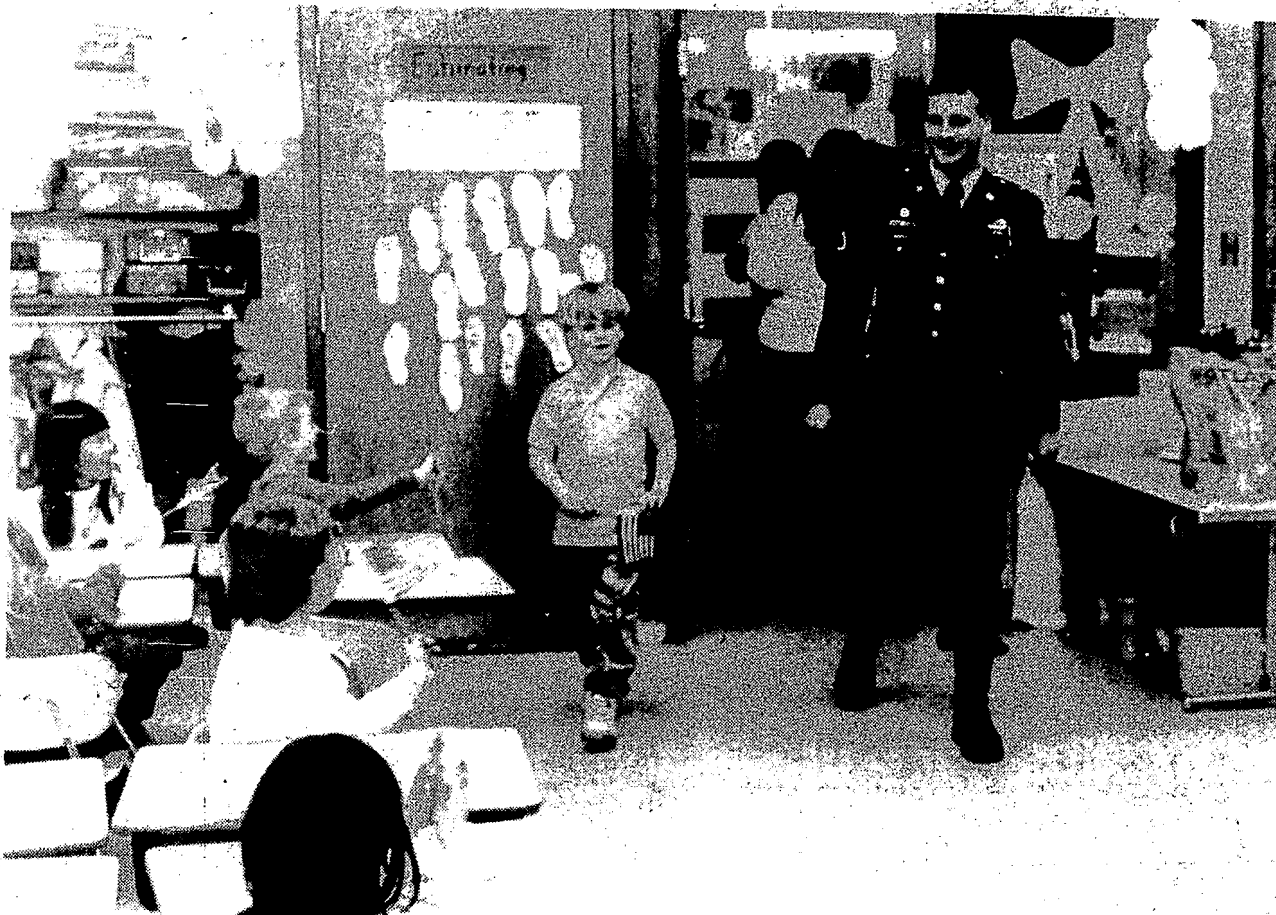

Martin and his wife, Tammy, told the group how they had to cut their honeymoon short due to the war.

Married in late November, the newly weds had only one day before Troy was shipped out.

The veteran has been stateside for nearly two weeks and will be returning to Fort Bragg, N.C., within the week.

Martin said he enjoyed his chat with the children and was pleased with their knowledge of the war.

"This was really nice," he admitted. "They all knew a lot about the war, and that's good for kids so young."

Symphony headed to Clarkston

BY DOROTHY NEFF

The Clarkston Foundation, Optimist Club and Band Boosters have pledged $1,500 to support a program that will bring Pontiac Oakland Symphony musicians into Clarkston classrooms in 1991.

A matching grant from the Oakland County Cultural Council will enable Project PREPARE (Prelude to Proficiency, Appreciation and Respect through Enrichment) to have 100 percent funding.

A string quartet will spend one day at Clarkston and Sashabaw junior high schools. Students from the sixth-grade "exploratory" classes will have access to the group as a classroom resource and then will watch them in a concert performance.

The string quartet will also spend a day at each of the five elementary schools where they will perform in concert for fourth- and fifth-grade students after conducting pre-concert class discussions of the instruments and music to be used.

A quartet composed of horn, double-reed, trumpet and trombone will spend a day each at the junior highs and high school, providing in-class, hands-on instruction to band students.

Demonstration will be provided to sections having the greatest need. Students will learn tone production, intonation, technical proficiency and style interpretation.

Seven days will be required to complete the project activities and will impact 1,500 students.

Because this area has many culturally deprived students who have never been exposed to classical music, and because the students in the elementary school have no instrumental music program, this project is intended to impact these children. This gives them an opportunity to play with and learn from professional musicians and creates an opportunity for students to experience the range of cultural and educational programming normally limited in this district.

David Daniels, music director with the Pontiac Oakland Symphony, said "I heartily endorse and strongly support the project and find it to be an outstanding plan that should yield great benefits for the students."

Dorothy Neff of Independence Township submitted this article.

Pool, deck questions? Ask township staff

In observation of National Building Safety Week, the Independence Township building inspectors are focusing on deck and pool safety.

They are available to answer questions. For information, call 625-8111.

Building Safety Week began in 1980 to publicize the importance of construction codes and their administration by units of government. The week also has heightened recognition of the role that professional code officials play in assuring the safe construction of buildings of various types and sizes.

Often, the importance of construction codes and their enforcement are overlooked until some great fire or other construction-related tragedy occurs.

In Independence Township, code administration is carried out by the building department inspection staff under the leadership of Beverly A. McElmeel, building official.

Clarkston's days in GOAL may be numbered

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Greater Oakland Activities League may or may not continue beyond the 1991-1992 sports season.

Clarkston, Lake Orion and Brandon have inquired about getting into new leagues.

"We've made some contacts," said Clarkston Athletic Director Paul Tungate, who points out that the contacts are inquiries and nothing is for certain.

Clarkston has joined Lake Orion in inquiring about the possibility of getting into the Southeastern Michigan Association, the Metro Suburban Activities Association and the Macomb Area Conference.

Tungate said the best chance of any of the three would be the Macomb Area Conference, but even that is quite uncertain.

"I wish I had a crystal ball. Right now I don't see much of anything," said Tungate.

What Tungate would actually like to see is a new type of Oakland County conference, similar to the Macomb Area Conference. That would separate all the teams in the county into about three divisions based on student enrollment. Different sports teams could also move up or down into different divisions (with a two-year commitment) according to their skill levels.

Tungate also said that the flexibility of a new county league would better serve the growing population trends in Oakland County.

But Tungate and athletic directors from other county schools that desire such a setup know they are facing a tough uphill battle for the several county leagues to merge into one.

Tungate said, "Eighty percent of the objections are because of traditions."

The best chance of breaking those traditions occur in smaller schools that are unhappy in their league because they can't compete with suddenly larger schools or growing schools that are unhappy because they are facing less competition.

Brandon began much of the speculation this year by seriously discussing leaving the six-team GOAL. Brandon, the league's only Class B team, has never won a league football game in the three years it has been in the GOAL. However, the Blackhawks have competed strongly in some other sports, and have finished as high as fourth for the all-sports trophy battle.

Tungate said if Brandon does the leave the GOAL, the league wouldn't automatically fold up. But losing the Blackhawks would make a difference.

"It could survive with five teams, but it would lose some credibility," said Tungate.

Clarkston and Lake Orion, concerned about a possible Brandon departure and about on-again, off-again millage problems at Pontiac Northern, have inquired about joining other leagues together. Joining another league together would restore the strong rivalry between the two schools.

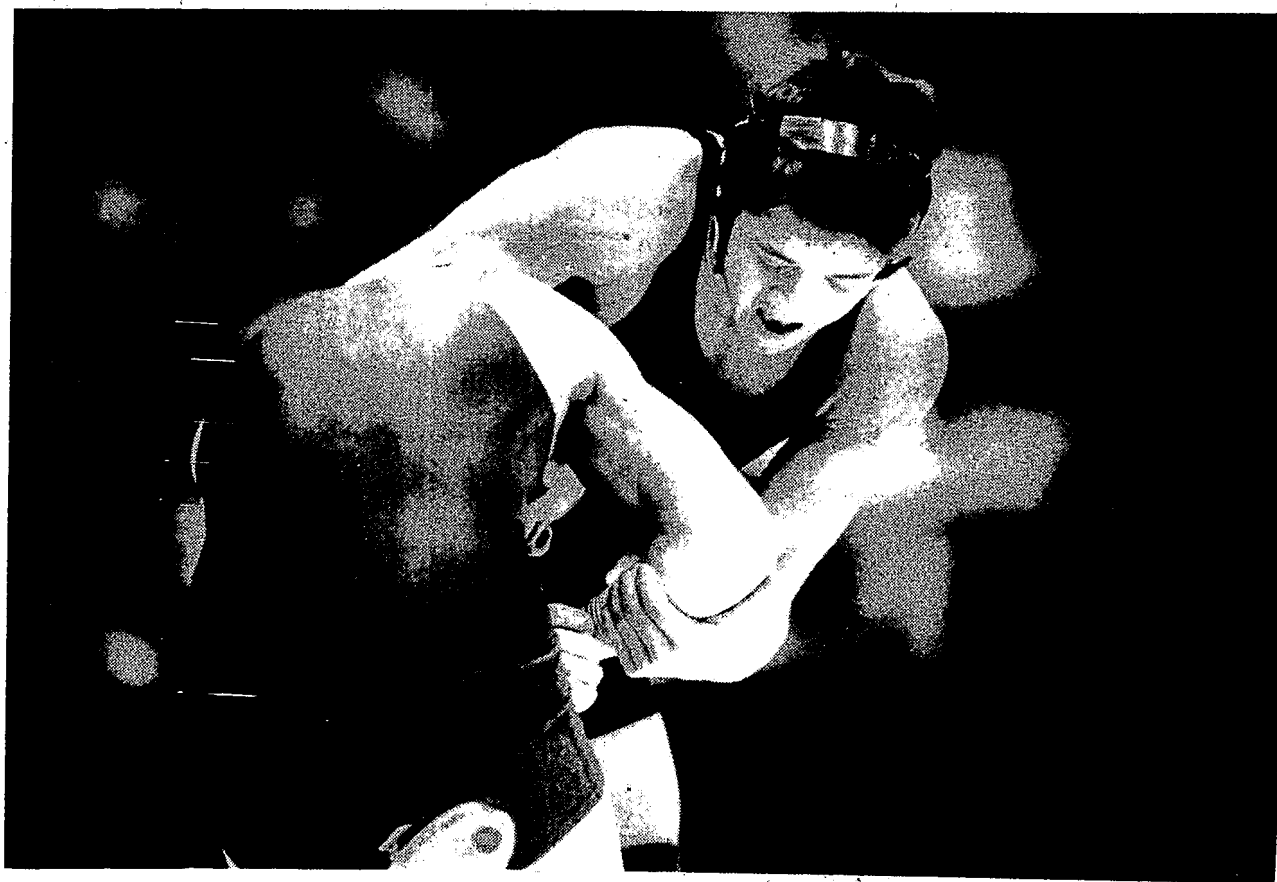

Clarkston and Lake Orion have dominated the GOAL. Either the Wolves or the Dragons have won the all-sports trophy the past five years.

Another key factor for any school deciding on a new league is transportation. Tungate said he wouldn't expect any major differences no matter what happens. He said even if the Wolves get into a new league, they would end up traveling about the same distances to games because many of the current teams have to travel outside of the county for non-conference games.

Sports

2-time state champ

THE Clarkston area is loaded with good wrestlers. Not only did Clarkston win the Class A team state championship and Damon Michelsen win the 171-pound individual state championship, Birmingham Brother Rice junior Derek Moscovic won the 112-pound individual Class A state championship for the second straight year. Moscovic, who lives in Independence Township, attended Clarkston elementary and junior high schools before transferring to Brother Rice for high school. The junior finished at 43-0 this season to up his career record to 121-8 (with 42 pins). He will probably be moving up to a new weight division next season, when he goes for his third straight state championship. (Photo by Guy Warren)

Cheerleaders 13th at state finals

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston's varsity cheerleading team cheered for strong football and basketball squads this season.

And the cheerleaders did well themselves when it came to competition, finishing 13th in the state at the Class A finals in Saginaw. Clarkston entered the state finals (18 teams qualified) by getting an at-large bid after finishing eighth in the regionals. At state, the Wolves defeated three teams that had finished ahead of them at regionals.

The Clarkston Athletic Booster Club paid hotel expenses so the team could stay overnight in Saginaw for the competition.

Earlier in the season, the team finished second in the Greater Oakland Activities League competition. It was the second straight year the Wolves finished second, both times one spot behind Waterford Kettering's team.

The 13th best team in the state had 13 cheerleaders on the team: senior Britt Ried; juniors Kim Chamberlain, Tonya DeGroot, Kim Gillrie, Missie Irish, Hope Irwin, Amanda King, Brooke Manuel, Heather Nicholie, Amie O'Rourke, and Shannon Schaefer; sophomores Ami Lucca and Mary Ellen O'Rourke.

The season began for the Wolves at the Cheer Michigan summer camp at Nahel in Ortonville.

"We grew together as a team there," said Clarkston varsity coach Gayle Conwell.

The team practiced three hours a day three days a week and cheered at one game a week during the fall and two per week during the winter.

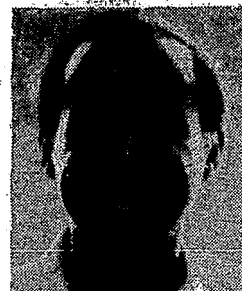

In post-season awards, Chamberlain was chosen most valuable and Mary Ellen O'Rourke was picked as most improved. Ried and Manuel received the coach's award.

One of the team's fund raisers in the fall was a haunted gym at Pine Knob Elementary. The team plans to again switch from cheering to scaring this fall.

The 1991-92 cheerleading squad has been selected. Returners on the team will be current Chamberlain, DeGroot, Gillrie, Irwin, Manuel, Nicholie, Schaefer, Mary Ellen O'Rourke and Lucca. New members of the squad will be Theresa Perkins, Heather Loeffelbein, Melissa Loeffelbein, Kim Michalak and Cara Rayner.

Senator Dave Honigman
P.O. Box 30036
Lansing, MI 48909

Representative Tom Middleton
P.O. Box 30014
Lansing, MI 48909

Dear Senator Honigman and Representative Middleton:

I am writing to request that you will support bills introduced in Lansing March 14 that would outlaw municipal bonding by any Michigan county or city for purposes of constructing a new professional baseball stadium.

In other words, I am hoping that Tiger Stadium remains the home of the Tigers and is refurbished. And if owner Tom Monaghan still figures out a way to build a new stadium, I hope the bill is passed so the millionaire pizza owner will have to spend all of his own money instead of getting it from the taxpayers of Michigan.

Do any of us really want another Pontiac Silverdome fiasco? We're still paying for that one.

As you know, the bill would amend the Building Authorities Act and the Revenue Bond Act, thus blocking major possible sources of public support for a new baseball stadium.

The bills were developed by Sen. John Kelly (D-Detroit), Sen. Phillip Arthurhultz (R-Whitehall), Rep. Curtis Hertel (D-Detroit), Rep. Gerald Law (R-Plymouth), attorney Charles Moon and Tiger Stadium Fan Club representatives.

The fan club and the legislators agree that refurbishing Tiger Stadium through the Cochrane Plan or the Birkerts-O'Neal renovation plan would not only save a great stadium but save much money because of the great cost to build a new stadium.

I have heard that the Tigers are sending some "top-notch" lobbyist to Lansing to help stop the bills.

And during the past few months, Wayne County officials have been meeting with the Tigers to discuss stadium options. They have been meeting with no public involvement, which is par for the course for the way Monaghan operates.

You know Monaghan, he's the guy in 1984 who inherited a World Series caliber team and organization which has been going downhill ever since then. Among other things, he wants to destroy an historic ballpark, publically criticized Kirk Gibson (twice) and Tiger fans, made about half the people on Drummond Island furious at him because of development there, and helped fire long-time Tiger announcer Ernie Harwell.

I am a Michigan native, born and raised in Bay City. However, for nearly 10 years, I lived in the Pacific Northwest. I saw many baseball games in Seattle. Seattle is a beautiful city, surrounded by water and mountains. But the Kingdome is an awful place to watch a baseball game.

Watching games at the Kingdome (and attending several other baseball stadiums around the country) made me appreciate Tiger Stadium even more. At Tiger Stadium, even a seat in the outfield puts you much closer to the action than reserved seats at other stadiums.

Unfortunately, I really feel many people in Michigan don't realize what they already have, one of the few great ballparks remaining in the country. Apparently, Monaghan and his yes-men don't realize this. Boston (Fenway Park) and Chicago (Wrigley Field) have successfully played up their historic parks in marketing campaigns.

It doesn't look like the current Tiger ownership is as smart as the Red Sox or Cubs' owners, so please don't let the Michigan taxpayers pay for Monaghan's ignorance.

Please pass those bills.

Sincerely,

James Gibowski

Sanders' students break through for 43 trophies

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Sanders' Martial Arts students are a bunch of real crack-ups.

In fact, they cracked up enough boards to win nine of 12 breaking divisions at the 6th annual Phung Hwa-Do Heam Jo To Kwan World Open Championships at Lake Orion High School March 16.

Over 200 competitors from the Detroit metro area took part.

It was the first tournament of the season for Sanders' students, who are enrolled through Clarkston Community Education. Twenty-one students finished the day earning 43 trophies.

Two of the students placed in each of the four events: Todd Feak took firsts in form, fighting and breaking and second in weapons; Denise Schulz was first in form, fighting, weapons and second in breaking.

Competing in the weapons events is fairly new for Sanders' students.

Instructor Joe Sanders, a fifth degree black belt who could earn a sixth degree black belt by meeting requirements this weekend, was especially impressed with his students' breaking abilities.

"Joe Glisson, Jeremy Moore and Michael Gochenour put on outstanding breaking demonstrations," said Sanders.

Glisson took a first in breaking, first in fighting and third in form. Moore was first in breaking, first in form and second in fighting. Gochenour was first in fighting and second in both breaking and form. (Gochenour, a fifth grader at Pine Knob Elementary, also recently qualified for a Junior Olympic tournament in Cincinnati July 4 by placing second in form and third in fighting at a Junior Olympic tournament March 23 in Ann Arbor).

Erin Gochenour also picked up much metal, earning firsts in form, fighting and breaking.

Sanders' students who placed in two events were: Rocky DeLeon, first in form, third in fighting; Ron Tolbert, first in form, third in fighting; Robert Brinson, first in fighting, third in form; John Webb Sr., first in breaking, second in form; Stacey Hamilton, second in form, second in fighting; Joe Lonteen, second in fighting, second in breaking; Linda Webb, second in form, second in fighting; Kerry Weil, second in fighting, third in form; Danny Wayne, third in form, third in breaking; Kristen Hamilton, third in form, third in fighting.

Students placing in one event were:

Brian Weil, first in form; Josh Lonteen, second in form; Kyle Stout, third in fighting.

John Webb Jr. and Daniel Weil also competed at Lake Orion.

Sanders said competing at Lake Orion was a good "warm up" for his students, who will soon compete at the Tri-State Tae Kwon Do Karate championships in Youngstown, Ohio, April 13.

Children will learn the fundamentals of using a baton and in the process increase their eye-hand coordination and social skills.

WALK MICHIGAN

Participants in any of the rec. department's free "Walk Michigan" walks not only will get some exercise but will have a chance to win a free trip for two to Mackinac Island over Labor Day weekend.

At the conclusion of each day's walk will be drawings for prizes. The Grand Prize winner will be drawn from all entrants of the 1991 Walk Michigan program.

The next scheduled walk is Wednesday, April 10, at Clarkston High School from 6:30-7 a.m. and 2:30-7:30 p.m. This is an indoor walk.

MHSAA increases support

High schools participating in post-season tournaments will be getting more of their expenses defrayed beginning with the 1991-92 school year.

The Michigan High School Athletic

Clarkston grad helps Lakers

Ali Fedio, a Clarkston High School graduate, has completed her third season of playing for the Grand Valley State University women's basketball team.

Fedio, a 6-foot center, played in 26 of the Lakers' 28 games this season, averaging five points and 3.4 rebounds per game. She also blocked 10 shots and had 14 steals.

The Lakers finished 17-11 overall and fourth in the GLIAC with a 9-7 mark.

4 Endreszls place in tourney

Endreszl was a popular name at the March 30 AAU freestyle tournament at Romulus High School.

Four Endreszls placed to go along with Clarkston Wrestling Club teammate Chad Auten's win.

Auten won the 95-pound Schoolboy Division event, with Mark Endreszl taking third. Eric Endreszl finished second in the 140-pound Schoolboy Division.

In Midget Division action, David Endreszl placed second at 60 pounds and Bryan Endreszl was third at 65 pounds.

Wrestling club members next compete at the AAU state tournament in Battle Creek, April 6-7.

Association's representative council has passed a measure which will double the mileage allowance given in previous years to schools participating in the MHSAA football playoffs. In addition, schools hosting the games will now receive a set percentage of the net receipts, or a minimum payment, whichever is higher.

"After one year of the expanded football playoffs, we have found that we are able to further assist schools financially that qualify," said John "Jack" Roberts, MHSAA executive director. "It is also pleasing to be able to provide a school which works so hard to host a playoff contest with additional monies if it is well-attended."

Additionally, greens fees in golf and lift tickets in skiing at finals meets will be paid to a set limit beginning next year.

The MHSAA council also moved to allow all schools sponsoring football to begin practice this all on Aug. 12, regardless of when each school's first game is scheduled. The date corresponds with the first allowed day of practice for other fall activities.

Oakland County's traffic deaths increased in 1990

Oakland County recorded a slight increase in traffic fatalities last year which.

When examined in the light of increased traffic volumes, the increase represents an improvement in the death rate, according to the Traffic Improvement Association of Oakland County (TIA).

One hundred thirty-one people were killed on roads in Oakland County in 1990, compared with 129 the preceding year.

The average annual traffic death rate for the preceding five years stand at 136.

Bruce Madsen, executive director of TIA, reported that the traffic fatality trend line in Oakland County and the State of Michigan continues to decline, reflecting a significant, positive impact of traffic accident counter measures.

"Despite a substantial increase in vehicle miles traveled and in drivers licensed in Oakland County, traffic fatalities have declined due to improvements in such things as road and vehicle safety engineering, seat belt use, emergency medical services and other factors impacting the traffic accident picture," Madsen said.

Madsen predicted that an additional decline in traffic fatalities might be expected this year, considering the current and projected economic downturn.

"Although the trend line continues downward, we have observed a definite correlation between economic conditions and fluctuations in traffic deaths," Madsen said.

"In good years they increase and in bad years they drop," he added.

TIA reported that, even considering the overall improvement in Oakland County, traffic accidents still remain one of the county's most serious problems in terms of human and economic losses.

A study conducted by the University of Michigan and recently released by the Michigan office of Highway Safety Planning indicates that the total cost of index crimes in Oakland County in 1988 amounted to $242.69 million while the cost of traffic accident in the county that same year was nearly three times as much: $718.54 million.

Index crimes include murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny, motor vehicle theft and arson.

Madsen says 40 drug-related deaths and 49 homicides were reported that same year, considerably less than the 130 lives claimed in traffic accidents.

In the State of Michigan, 1,541 lives were lost in 1990, compared to 1,630 the previous year.

The fatal traffic accident figures for the last year are provisional, with a slight increase expected due to a delay in deaths resulting from accidents that occurred in 1990.

Stolen truck torched in Lapeer County

A brand new pickup was stolen from the Hidden Lakes Apartments Saturday night and was found torched in Lapeer County.

According to a report from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, the 1990 Chevrolet pick-up was stolen from the apartments' parking lot off Maybee Road, Independence Township, between 8 and 11:20 p.m., March 30. The owner, Harold Irwin of Hill Lake Road, Orion Township, was visiting a friend at the time.

Irwin reported the vehicle stolen around 11:30 p.m. Shortly after midnight, Oakland County deputies were contacted by officials at the Lapeer County Sheriff's Department, who said they had found the vehicle.

The truck, however, had been set ablaze on Hadley Road, south of Genesee Road, Lapeer County. The truck, valued at $20,000, was impounded in Lapeer. Officials are still investigating the case.

Jeffery Zook

Flutist in town

His concert is set for 1 p.m. Saturday, April 20, in the Stewart Hall of the Church of the Resurrection, Clarkston Road (across from the township library). Tickets are $7 and are available by calling 625-3640.

Zook, who made his debut with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in 1982, studied at the Interlochen Arts Academy and the University of Michigan. In 1988, he was awarded the coveted Recitalist's Diploma at the Royal Academy of Music in London, England.

He has won many competitions, including the National Concerto competition sponsored by General Motors and Seventeen Magazine, the National Flute Association Young Artist Competition, and the National Endowment for the Advancement of the Arts' Arts Recognition and Talent Search.

Some kids choosing careers the mentorship way

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Career ideas are developed and dashed in a unique program offered to some Sashabaw Junior High School ninth-graders.

The students, all enrolled in Sue Kiser's Gifted and Talented Education (G.A.T.E.) class, have been assigned to mentors in the working world.

"They're professionals in a field that we might want to be in," explains Alexia Klayman, a 14-year-old student interested in communications.

"We learn what they do," she adds. "If you don't like it you can stop at any time."

Alexia is quick to add that her own experience has been beneficial and enjoyable.

At least twice a month, she works at United Cable, the local cable channel operating from Waldon Road, Independence Township.

"It's what I expected," she says. "It's really fun. It's something that I might want to do."

A similar reaction was noted in Janae Cooley, whose mentor was found in the psychology lab at Oakland University, Rochester.

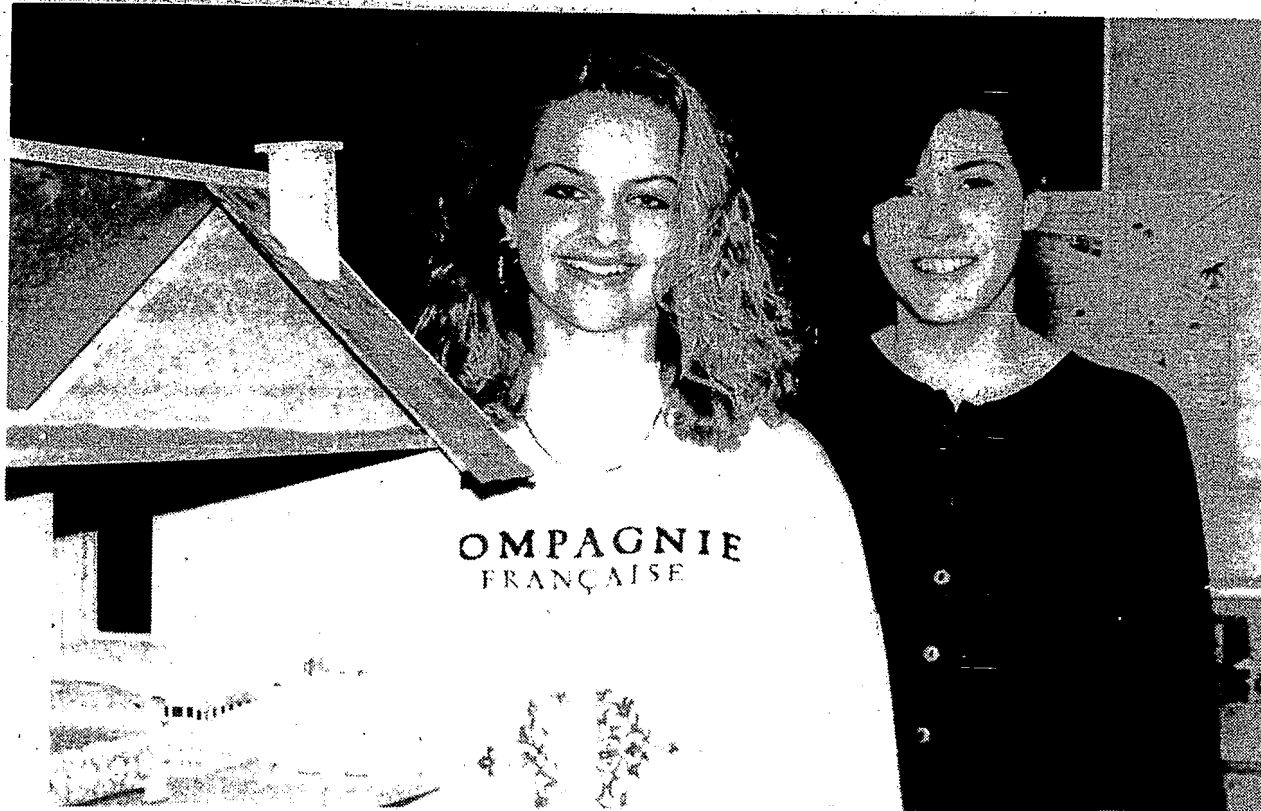

Like Alexia, Janae visits the lab about twice a month and has taken part in psychology experiments.

Eventually Janae, her family and most of her G.A.T.E. classmates will take part in a sleep experiment, in which they will spend three nights at the lab.

"Psychology is a big field," Janae says. "I wanted to go and see what they do and what is involved to get a degree."

While many students have their interest confirmed, the program also helps students sort through whether they really want to commit to the field.

"I liked it and learned some stuff," says Amy Raymond, who visited Oakland University's psychology department. "(But) psychology was an experiment for me."

STUDENTS in Sashabaw Junior High School's Gifted and Talented Education class are encouraged to pursue a number of independent studies, such as the construction of this doll house completed by Angela Smith and Kari Cosner. Another G.A.T.E. project matched students with mentors in the community.

Taxidermists specialize in all types of trophies

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When it comes to local and international trophy mounting, Hilde Taxidermy knows its "stuff."

Founded in the Detroit area nearly 50 years ago, the company has been located in Oakland County for the past two decades. It's presently located at 10795 Dixie Highway, Springfield Township, where it moved from its M-15, Independence Township, location three years ago.

Bob Taylor, a taxidermist of 23 years, presently owns the company. He worked at Hilde Taxidermy for 19 years, before buying the business 15 months ago.

His staff consists of taxidermy veterans John Potter and Bill Zuck. He is also assisted on a part-time basis by his wife, Pam, and son, Rob.

Taylor, a Springfield Township resident, attributes his career to a love for the outdoors. And he has certainly seen his share of wildlife. He estimates that the total number of species mounted at his shop ranges in the hundreds.

Hilde Taxidermy specializes in mounting all types of waterfowl, fish, North American and African big game. Taylor's fee for mounting the head of a white-tail buck usually runs $250, and he guarantees all trophies finished within four months.

Despite mounting nearly 200 white-tail trophies a year, Hilde Taxidermy is predominantly known for its African Safari mountings. In the store's showroom, you can find everything from the mounted heads of jungle cats to a seven-foot ostrich. Taylor said the most exotic animal he's had to mount is the head of a Russian Gazelle. According to Taylor, he was chosen to mount the first one ever shot by an American hunter.

Taylor said his business is regularly sent crates from all over the world. Inside these crates are the trophies of hunters, looking to immortalize their prey.

Hilde Taxidermy has also been recognized on several occasions by its peers. In the last year, Hilde has captured ribbons for three mounts at an international exhibition. Taylor has also been awarded a first-place ribbon for a mounted snake at the 1991 state competition.

Despite Hilde's worldwide reputation, Taylor admits he is always looking to improve.

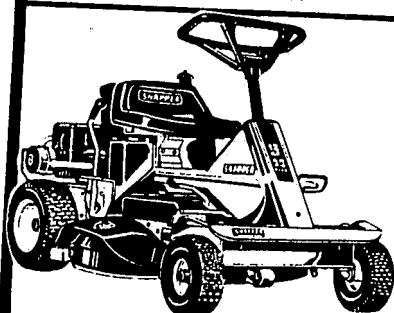

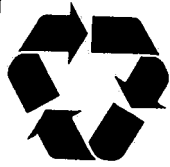

"My biggest challenge is improve year after year," he said. "When you go to competitions and see extraordinary mounts, it makes you strive for excellence. With that in mind, we always try to come up with something a little different and appealing."

She makes career of thwarting would-be muggers

SANDY Barresi shows off the Mugger Stopper, a personal protection device. The Independence Township-based saleswoman has sold more than 100 units in one month's time.

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After 25 years of unemployment, an Independence Township woman has found a worthwhile reason to return to the working world.

Sandy Barresi of Deerwood is the first sales representative in the United States distributing a new line of personal protection devices. On the job for only one month, she has sold over 100 of these units to an array of people.

The name of the product is generically called "Entry Alert," but the line's five devices offer a variety of uses. The product line includes Mugger Stopper, Entry Stopper, Mini-Alarm, Mugger Stopper/Door Alarm and Burglar Stopper.

Ranging between $15 and $35 in price, the devices offer an inexpensive way to thwart criminals on the street or in the home.

The Mugger Stopper is presently Barresi's hottest seller. It's smaller than a pack of cigarettes but delivers a 100-decibel blast when used. It can be engaged by a switch or by pulling out the carrying cord. The Mugger Stopper can be conveniently hung around the wrist and carried in unison with a purse or bag.

The most unique feature about the carrying cord is that once it's pulled out, only re-insertment can stop the alarm. This makes it impossible for a fleeing criminal to shut off the alarm if the owner still has the cord.

Barresi said she heard of the Florida-based units through an advertisement and bought 14 for members of her family. The fascination with the devices led her to a sales job with the inventor.

"I have an aunt who lives in Ohio, and she was petrified to sleep in her trailer at night. The fear of an intruder was ruining her life," Barresi said. "So I bought her one of the units equipped with a door alarm. It helped her feel more at ease and spurred me to inquiring about a sales position with the inventor."

The distributing position is the first full-time job in 25 years for Barresi, who has been active as a volunteer in various non-profit organizations.

She thinks the units are fantastic, with large market potential.

"I've sold a lot of Mugger Stoppers to college coeds, senior citizens and airlines stewardesses," Barresi said. "Actually, they're appropriate for anyone who does a lot of traveling alone. I've even sold a couple to men."

What's new in business

Barresi conducts her business out of her home, but the popularity of the product has prompted her to give presentations at senior centers, college campuses and real estate agencies.

When compared to Mace, Barresi said the Mugger Stopper can be a more reliable deterrent.

"Mace is fine and I even carry it in my own purse, but there are three major drawbacks," she explained. "Mace is usually kept in a woman's purse where it does little good when sleeping.

It also needs to be replaced after a year because it can go bad. But most importantly, it can be used against you."

Barresi said the Mugger Stopper is a double-edged sword for prospective criminals.

"The Mugger Stopper allows for the stun and run theory," she said. "A mugger usually flees when the siren goes off. But if he doesn't, the device should give the owner a chance to get away because the mugger can't hold on to you and grab at the device at the same time."

What Barresi likes most about her product is the sense of security it provides.

"It makes people aware that they always have to be cautious," she said. "I think it's the greatest source of personal protection that I've come across in a while."

The danger's not in this dog's bite. It's in what bites this dog.

Heartworm-infected mosquitoes in this area can threaten the lives of unprotected dogs. A mosquito that bites your dog could be carrying heartworm, a common - and potentially deadly - parasite. One bite from a disease-carrying mosquito is all it takes for your dog to become infected.

Treatment for heartworm disease can be dangerous for your dog and expensive for you. The longer this disease goes without detection, the harder it becomes to treat and the greater the risk of permanent damage to your dog's heart.

The good news is that your dog can be protected from heartworm disease. Just call our office for a heartworm test and find out how easy and convenient prevention can be.

Pen Pals meet on high note

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A letter in a music education publication was just the right note to bring Springfield Township and Detroit elementary students together.

Wilbie Cobb, a music teacher at MacCulloch in Detroit, wrote a letter to the editor of "Sforzando," the official publication of the Michigan Music Educators Association.

Cobb said the 160 Detroit Public Schools music teachers have started many positive programs in Detroit and challenged suburban music teachers to see those results by writing, "Let's have a student exchange program where several of your students spend a day with several Detroit students."

Gloria Lacy, music teacher at Andersonville Elementary School in Springfield Township, took Cobb up on that challenge.

"I was upset about people's attitude toward Detroit," said Lacy, who blames that attitude on the "fear of the unknown" and negative reporting by the media. "I think we should close the gap between urban and suburban students."

Students from the two teachers' classes became pen pals last fall. Andersonville students then visited the Detroit school on March 20, and one week later MacCulloch students visited Springfield Township.

In addition to meeting and singing with their pen pals at MacCulloch School, about 35 Andersonville fifth-grade students rode on the People Mover and toured the Renaissance Center.

When more than 40 fourth- and fifth-grade Detroit students came to Springfield Township, they joined Andersonville students on stage to sing and play instruments. (See FIFTH-GRADERS, next page) ments, followed by a tour of the school and a pizza party. The meeting of the students may have been a start at lessening Detroit's image problems and people's fear of the unknown — at least among Andersonville Elementary School fifth-graders.

For MacCulloch fifth-grader Robin Davis and Andersonville fifth-grader Heather Whitfield, it was a chance to make new friends. The two became pen pals and then met each other during the schools' visits.

The girls, who plan to continue writing to each other, agreed that MacCulloch has a larger school building but Andersonville has a bigger playground.

Davis thought the ride on the People Mover was a little "shaky and scary," but Whitfield thought it was "fun." Davis likes basketball and the color red, and Whitfield likes football and purple.

The two also said they both like boys. Davis, however, qualified her answer by adding, "At least, some."

Detroit and Springfield Township are more than just miles apart, but letters and music have helped bring Davis, Whitfield and their schoolmates and teachers a little closer.

WRONG PRICING LOGIC

Question: I have a good 'gift of gab' selling plumbing supplies. Why shouldn't I sell my own home and save the commission.

ANSWER: It takes a lot more than a 'gift of gab' to sell a home properly today. It's a big financial undertaking and takes a lot of specialized education and financial training to prepare one's self to do the job professionally. Realtors know that many sales are lost strictly for want of proper financing. They also know the intricate methods and sources of financing. Your home is probably your most valuable asset. The best way to sell it is the professional way-through a Realtor.

KNOWLEDGE OF FINANCING is vital in selling property in today's market. You can't rely on a 'gift of gab'.

chance to be discovered at a national modeling competition.

Tana Leah Monroe of Springfield Circle has qualified for the finals of the "Model of the Year - U.S.A." pageant. She will be competing against 80 other women for the right to wear the crown.

Monroe, a 1985 graduate of Clarkston High School, is presently an insurance agent with AAA. She is also a registered representative on the New York Stock Exchange.

She is the daughter of Jim and Jan Dean of Main Street, Clarkston.

The pageant's final competition will be held July 27 at the Macomb Center for Performing Arts, Mount Clemens. During the contest, Monroe will be asked to model a daytime outfit and a one-piece bathing suit, walk and read from a prepared document.

The winner of the pageant will be awarded $10,000 in cash, a fur coat and various other prizes. Numerous contract possibilities also await the top model.

Present at the competition will be prominent modeling agents from Los Angeles, Chicago and Europe. Monroe said everyone has an opportunity to be discovered, not only the winner.

"Some of these agencies look for specific eyes, lips or petite builds," she said. "A lot of past participants have gotten work because they've had a certain look."

When asked if her high school classmates could envision her as a contest finalist, Monroe said no.

"I don't think any of them could see me as a model. I was pretty quiet and shy back then," she said.

Monroe picked up some amateur modeling experience while studying retailing and marketing at the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus.

She said her inspiration to try out for the contest came from her fiancé, Ken Lorenger.

"My folks have been great. My mom plans on going to Vic Tanny with me, and my dad has taken some photos for the contest," she said. "But my grandmother in Mio is the most excited. When I was younger, she'd always told me to be a model, and now that I've got a chance she's sending me low-fat cookies."

Microwave Plus

Healthy eating
can prevent cancer

Betty
Wagner

Mark April 18 on your calendar as a day that may change your life.

It's the date the American Cancer Society has selected for its second annual Great American Food Fight Against Cancer.

TV and radio spots entitled "Ready, Aim, Chew" will be promoting healthy eating styles.

"The whole theme is changing your diet to healthy eating styles," said Karen Murphy, director of programs for Oakland County American Cancer Society.

Research indicates that 35 percent of all cancers are attributable to diet alone.

With this in mind, the American Cancer Society encourages Americans to eat foods following these guidelines:

■ High in vitamins A and C — fruits; green, leafy and yellow vegetables.

■ Low in fat — lean meats, fish and skinned poultry, legumes and low-fat milk products.

■ High in fiber — whole grain breads, cereals and pastas.

■ High in cruciferous vegetables — broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cabbage and cauliflower.

Brussels sprouts, a cruciferous vegetable, are often incorrectly cooked and taste bitter. Cooking them in the microwave oven tends to sweeten the flavor and keep the texture firm.

Here is a colorful, quick and creative recipe from "Low-fat Microwave Meals" by Barbara Methven, copyright 1989 by Cy DeCasse, Inc.

SWEET-SPICED BRUSSELS SPROUTS & APPLES

Serves 4

- 2 teaspoons packed brown sugar
- 1/8 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1 pound fresh Brussels sprouts, trimmed and cut in half
- 1/4 cup water
- 1 medium Rome apple, cored and cut into 1/2-inch cubes
- 1 teaspoon margarine

1. In small bowl, combine brown sugar and nutmeg. Mix well. Set aside.

2. In 2-quart casserole, combine Brussels sprouts and water. Cover. Microwave at HIGH for 6 to 8 minutes, or until tender-crisp. Drain.

The training programs, offered by the Clarkston Career Center, must use the funds by June 30 this year.

Through the program, an employee may work 20 or more hours per week during a one- to six-month training period, and the employer is reimbursed for 50 percent of the wages paid out.

For more information, call the Clarkston Career Center at 674-4791, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Free growth screening offered for children

If you're concerned that your child is too small for his or her age, you may be interested in a free growth screening clinic April 17.

Planned for 2-6 p.m. Wednesday, April 17, at The Clarkston Medical Group offices, 5885 M-15, Independence Township, pediatric endocrinologist and growth specialist Nasir Hacque will evaluate children for possible growth hormone deficiency and counsel parents if a deficiency is suspected.

The younger a child is diagnosed, the more successful the treatment using a new synthetic growth hormone.

Appointments for the free screening must be made in advance by calling 625-2621.

Five CHS students see Washington 'close up'

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Associate Editor

The inner workings of U.S. government were experienced firsthand by five Clarkston High School students early in March.

The five traveled to Washington, D.C., in a trip sponsored by Project Closeup, a national, non-profit, community-education program.

Among the trip's highlights was Capitol Hill Day, in which students watched congress debate the savings and loan issue.

"We could go into different committee hearings and watch," explained Kelly Kostrzewa, who took the trip with classmates, Jeffrey Decker, Suzanne Baumann, Pella Lazaris and Tom Hackbardt.

Kelly hopes to work in the government or international arena; other students say they sought an opportu-

"It was definetly worth it."

Jeffrey Decker

nity to "meet people and see everything."

Though a portion of the trip was underwritten by Project Closeup and a grant from The Clarkston Foundation, the students were required to raise money through candy sales and other fund-raisers for a sizable portion of the trip's cost. Plus, community groups donated to their trip.

The six-day trip provided many learning and cultural experiences for the students, including trips to Georgetown, the dinner-theater and other cultural experiences.

Upon arrival, Clarkston students were split from Clarkston teachers, who would attend workshops of their own.

The Clarkston students were assigned a bus, which would transport several Close-Up students throughout their activities.

"One highlight was meeting all the different people," Kelly said.

"You're overwhelmed by how much there is to do," added Suzanne. "You start at 6:30 a.m. and go until 11 p.m."

"The day was full," she added.

One memorable experience involved the taping of C-Span, the congressional cable channel. Clarkston students, along with students from other schools, had an opportunity to ask questions during the proceedings. They watched the broadcast upon their return to Clarkston.

The students spent considerable time with Michigan congressional representatives.

When asked whether they felt better or worse about the way the government was being run after seeing Washington at work, most students said they were impressed.

"It was definitely worth it," said Jeffrey.

mann. Not pictured are Pella Lazaris and Tom Hackbardt. The five raised their own money for the trip, with a little help from community groups.

TOP ORATORS Peter Miller and Cricket Myers of the Clarkston area captured first place in the fifth annual Oratorical Contest, sponsored by the Clarkston Area Optimist Club March 19. The two received a $200 savings bond and are to compete in a zone contest at Washtenaw Community College, Ypsilanti, in April.

Students present outstanding orations

The phrase "If Only" was explored in speeches by six young people in this year's Oratorical Contest March 26, sponsored by the Clarkston Area Optimist Club.

In the boys' contest, first-place winner Peter Miller, 13, portrayed himself as the phrase "If Only" and discussed the many different ways people used him.

Cricket Myers, also 13, captured first place in the girls' contest with her speech on using positive thinking.

Contestants were required to speak for more than four minutes, but no more than five minutes, on a topic relating to the theme.

Three judges awarded contestants up to 100 points for such elements as material organization, delivery and presentation, and overall effectiveness.

As first-place winners, the two local winners received a $200 savings bond from the Clarkston Area Optimist Club, a certificate of participation and a chance to compete in the zone competition in April.

Winners in that contest qualify for the district competition and a chance at a $1,500 scholarship.

Of course, when you consider that we use only Genuine Toyota Parts, installed only by our highly trained Toyota technicians, the chances of anything going wrong are slim-to-none. So you'll probably never even have to take advantage of Toyota's Lifetime Guarantee. But if you do, at least it won't come as a shock to your wallet.

MORE THAN a hundred children in several age groups hunted for Easter eggs and candy Saturday, March 30, at Sashabaw Presbyterian Church. Any plastic eggs that were found were turned in and exchanged for prizes.

EVEN the tall grass in a field didn't stop hunters from searching and finding eggs or candy. The Easter egg hunt is an annual event at the church.

Searching for sweets

MEGHAN Mitchell, 7, of Grosse Pointe, grabs a piece of candy during her visit last weekend to the Clarkston area.
